

Beyond Help and Hope

Dreadful Disaster in a Western Coal Mine.

Over 200 Men Meet a Terrible Death.

Forty Persons Fatally and as Many More Badly Hurt.

The Principal Avenue of Exit and Air Closed as the Result of an Explosion.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Jan. 8.—A special from McAllister, Ind. Ter., says a report has reached here from shaft No. 5 of the Osgood Coal Mining Company at Krebs, that a terrible explosion occurred there at 5 o'clock last evening, from the effects of which 200 lives will probably be lost. It was just before the day shift changed off and came out of the mine for supper, when

A PUFF OF SMOKE was seen to escape from the mouth of the single shaft to the mine. Immediately following this there was heard a terrible report, followed by

A RUMBLING AS OF ROLLING THUNDER. The men at the top of the shaft at once sounded the alarm, and preparations were made to send down a rescue party, but they found that the mouth of the shaft had been completely closed up by the debris. When the messenger left nothing had been done towards getting the men out.

TWO HUNDRED MEN ENTOMBED. There are between 180 and 200 men entombed in the mine, and it is believed every one of them will lose their lives, for the shaft is a single one and there is no means of getting air to the entombed men. It was impossible to get any further particulars from the scene of the accident last night.

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED VICTIMS. A later account says: A most appalling calamity occurred near here last night. There was an explosion in a mine and as a result over 200 men died and about 400 fatally and as many more badly hurt. At 5:10 mine No. 1, owned by the Osgood Coal Mining Company, at Krebs, four and a half miles east of here, exploded. At the time 350 men were in the mine, most of whom were waiting for the cage to take them out, and the foot of the shaft is

A MASS OF DEAD BODIES. Eighty-five men came out by an entry and 42 were saved by the shaft, most of whom are more or less injured and bruised, and half will probably die. This leaves

ABOUT 223 MEN YET IN THE MINE, and in all probability 200 are dead. At 7:10 a. m., the dead men were brought out and only one could be recognized. The remains were so mutilated

THE BEREAVED ONES. Wives and mothers are eagerly watching each cage as it comes to the surface hoping to see their loved ones, only to turn away disappointed.

THE CAUSE. The explosion was caused by firing a shot when gas was in the mine. At this time it is impossible to learn the number of dead and wounded.

AN ANARCHIST NEST RAIDED. Discovery of a Dynamite Bomb Factory Near Birmingham Run by Socialists.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The police raided a Socialist club at Waltham, near Birmingham, yesterday, and discovered a dynamite bomb factory here. Dackens, the leader of the club, Victor Gales, a clerk Frederick Charles, a molder, and Calcutti, a painter, were arrested. Documents were found showing the extent and objects of the conspiracy and also half finished bombs with destructive explosives. Dackens was the agent of Anarchists on the continent, and several crowded boats would have been in danger had the conspiracy gone on. It is also reported that Dackens intended the bombs for use in extorting money from rich men, to be devoted to the advancement of anarchy.

Successful Case of Skin Grafting. LA PORTE, Ind., Jan. 8.—The experiment of treating Ernest Schmitz, of this city, the young lad who was frightfully burned with gasoline last summer and whose burns were fixed to heal by skin-grafting is a pronounced success. The skin was furnished by Miss Lena Johnson, the patient and his two brothers. The operation was performed the latter part of December, and eight grafts ranging in size from one to three inches in length and one-half inch in width were made. Each graft has so spread as to cover nearly, if not quite, the entire surface of the wound and producing one of the most perfect results possible.

Bishop W. Perkins, Appointed Senator from Kansas.

Gov. Humphreys, of Kansas, has filed the vacancy caused by the death of United States Senator Plumb by the appointment of Bishop W. Perkins. Bishop W. Perkins was born at Rochester, O., and was 55 years old on Oct. 18 last. He went to Colorado, and on his return to Illinois in 1862 enlisted in Company "D," Eighty-third Illinois Volunteer Infantry. He became sergeant and lieutenant, and in December, 1863, was appointed adjutant of the Sixteenth Colored Infantry. Later he was captain of Company "C" in the same regiment. He was judge-advocate on the staff of Gen. Gillen, and afterward on the staff of Gen. Sherman. After the war he returned to Illinois and resumed the study of law in the office of O. C. Gray at Ottawa. In 1872 he was elected judge of the eleventh judicial district. He was re-elected in 1874 and 1878, and in November, 1882, was elected a member of Congress from the third district. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1880.

SLAVERY IN AMERICA.

Japanese Women Held in Terrible Bondage in Seattle.

SEATTLE, W. T., Jan. 8.—The investigation which has shown the existence of slavery among the Japanese in Victoria have been followed with similar results in this city, and the first decisive step has been taken to stop the importation of Japanese women for immoral purposes. The United States authorities learned that a man named Ishiki had gone to Yokohama about seven months ago and purchased three Japanese women of their parents for $80 each. He brought them to this country, saying that one was his wife and the other two his sisters. His "wife" he left in San Francisco, and his sisters he brought to this city. All three were forced to live as fallen women and give nearly all their earnings to their owner, who merely allowed them enough for food and clothing.

The facts were reported partly from the women and partly from the owner, and when the chain of evidence was completed, Ishiki was arrested. The Japanese Consul has requested the aid of the Ministerial Association here in breaking up this system of slavery. The Christianized Japanese in Seattle say that all their countrymen who come to the United States as laborers are held in subjection by a powerful secret society, which, playing on their superstitions, compels them to pay tribute. About 150 Japanese women in Seattle have been sold outright by their parents and brought over here by their purchasers.

These Japanese women live in the part of Seattle known as Whitechapel, which everybody coming from the Northern Pacific depot or steamboat landing passes. They inhabit six rows of yellow pine cottages. The rows are about 100 feet long, and the little buildings front one another and are separated by passages about twenty feet wide, making three short streets. The place is a counterpart, on a small scale, of the famous district in Tokio devoted to the habitations of the fallen women of the city. The Japanese quarter of Seattle, the best people of the town have long regarded Whitechapel as a crowding, disagreeable place, and on several occasions they have threatened to rise in their might and wipe it out of existence.

Gladstone on Bible Criticism. LONDON, Jan. 8.—Mr. Gladstone, in writing a dedication to join in the current discussion in the newspapers on the subject of modern criticism of the Old Testament, says: "I am under the impression that the Bible has undergone a certain amount of revival in credit and authority consequent upon these criticisms. My own practical observations of the controversy, parallel and in some important respects analogous to the poems of Homer, compel me to entertain but a mean opinion of negative speculations." Mr. Gladstone goes on to urge young inquirers to beware of drawing their strength of persuasion and warmth of affection into the field, as if they had the force of argument.

EGYPT'S RULER DEAD.

Mohammed Tewfik Pacha Falls a Victim to Grip.

The Khedive Bore a Good Character—English Press Comments on the Event.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Khedive of Egypt died yesterday from an attack of influenza. The Khedive had been ill for a week, and had been treated for simple influenza until Wednesday, when an acute disease of the lungs supervened. Three European doctors were summoned, and every known remedy was administered without success, and he succumbed after a long period of insensibility. The Khedive is inconsiderable over his death, and has retired to another place. The heir to the throne, Abbas Pacha, has attained his majority and will assume the throne. Abbas has displayed much ability and force of character.

Mohammed Tewfik Pacha was born Nov. 19, 1852, being the eldest son of the late Khedive Ismail. He succeeded to the throne of Egypt by a decree of the Ottoman Empire, Jan. 25, 1879, upon the forced abdication of his father, and received the investiture on Aug. 14. He is the sixth ruler of Egypt, the dynasty of Mohammed Ali Pacha, who was appointed wali or governor in 1806, and who in 1841 got the Sultan with the five great powers of Europe to settle the hereditary principality in his own family.

Prince Tewfik was president of the council at the time of the coup d'etat of 1879, being the eldest son of the late Khedive Ismail. He succeeded to the throne of Egypt by a decree of the Ottoman Empire, Jan. 25, 1879, upon the forced abdication of his father, and received the investiture on Aug. 14. He is the sixth ruler of Egypt, the dynasty of Mohammed Ali Pacha, who was appointed wali or governor in 1806, and who in 1841 got the Sultan with the five great powers of Europe to settle the hereditary principality in his own family.

The death of the Khedive was entirely unexpected. It was stated Wednesday evening that he was in no apparent danger, when suddenly the complications set in and developed with startling rapidity. Two physicians were in attendance, but they did not appear to realize that the Khedive's condition was critical until yesterday morning. When it became generally known that the ruler of Egypt was dangerously ill, crowds of people gathered at the gates of the Helwan Palace where the Khedive was lying. At 6 o'clock last evening (Cairo time), a bulletin was issued, stating that the Khedive was in a critical condition. At 7 o'clock his death was announced. He will be succeeded by Prince Abbas, his eldest son, who was born July 14, 1874.

The London Times, in commenting on the death of the Khedive, says that the accession of a youthful ruler affords a good reason why England should have a tighter hold on Egypt. The Standard says: "Should the Sultan consider the time opportune to reopen negotiations he will find that while we entertain a punctilious respect for his august person, we have no objection to his Egyptian to a repetition of dangers from which England alone rescued them."

CAIRO, Jan. 8.—Abbas Pacha, successor of the Khedive, was in Vienna when the intelligence of his father's death reached him. He immediately telegraphed to the President of the Council, The Khedive's death, he said, was a misfortune to the whole of Egypt. Abbas Pacha also announced his intention of starting immediately for Egypt to assume the duties which devolved upon him through his father's death.

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—The German newspapers in commenting upon the results that may be expected to follow the death of the Khedive, express apprehension that the event will give rise to the revival of the French agitation to secure the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt. The popular opinion is that should it again be started it will prove unsuccessful.

REVIEW OF BRITISH TRADE.

Diminished Foreign Demand for Goods, and Higher Prices for Bread. LONDON, Jan. 8.—A review of British trade for the past year shows a heavy increase in the imports of food and raw materials. The heaviest proportionate decrease in the exports affected are metals and metallic goods. Textile fabrics and worsted especially suffered from the new American tariff. The re-exportation of imported merchandise also shows a decrease. The Daily News in commenting on the state of British trade says: "Foreign credit and adverse tariffs have diminished the foreign demand, but the revival in America is likely to keep our industries over the time of dullness, but not unprofitable ahead. The home demand was the backbone of the trade of 1891. Dearest bread and the diminished foreign demand for goods are against the trade for 1892."

Terribly Fatal Boiler Explosion. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 8.—A boiler of a large saw mill at Bolent, Ala., the property of Caldwell, Miller & Flowers, of this city, exploded yesterday, instantly killing Engineer Cooper and four other employees of the company. SEVEN YEARS FOR PERJURY.

A Hackman Convicted of False Testimony in a Murder Trial.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Thomas Bennett, a hackman, has been convicted of having committed perjury as a witness for the defense in the recent trial of Michael J. Gallivan, charged with murder in the second degree in shooting James Cummings. Bennett's trial began yesterday, when he witnessed the shooting of Cummings, who in fact he did not hear of the shooting until nearly two hours after it occurred.

"Bennett," said Recorder Smyth, "what have you to say for yourself?" "Well, I am a poor fellow, scratching his grizzly head, and I hope that God will strike me dead if I said what those fellows say I said in Kayton's stable. I wasn't there," said Recorder Smith. "I think you are entitled to no consideration except on account of your age. On that account only do I feel inclined to impose less than the extreme penalty under your conviction. I sentence you to State prison for seven years, the extreme penalty being ten in prison."

STOPPED BY THE UNDERTAKER.

An Unpaid Bill Causes the Postponement of a Funeral.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 8.—A remarkable scene occurred here Wednesday at the funeral of W. H. Francis, a colored boot-maker, who died here last night, Monday, under suspicious circumstances. His mother openly accused a woman named Mary Fullerton of poisoning Francis, and on her return to this city attempted suicide. Mrs. Francis was taken to the New York City Hospital, where she is now recovering. The funeral was postponed until the 12 o'clock from the Messiah Baptist Church, on John street.

The church was filled with colored people at that hour, and the service was over half an hour they began to realize that something had happened. Many of them went to the house, where they found everything in commotion. Undertaker Cook had come from New York, and presented a bill of $24 for services rendered. He would not let the funeral go on until his bill had been paid. His demands were thought to be exorbitant.

The cries of lamentation from the bewildered people could be heard in the street. Every possible influence was brought to bear on the New York undertaker, and he finally agreed to take $7.50 and cancel his bill.

BRIDE, 12; GROOM, 26.

Papa Was on the Warpath, but Relented and Blessed the Pair.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 8.—Professor Tamm, a talented pianist, complained to Chief of Police Taylor that he was of the belief that his daughter, Angela, a musical prodigy of 12, had got married on the sly. The father said that for the past week Angela had called repeatedly in her room, "darling Frankie," "sweet Frankie," "dear habibie," and other sweet names, and that he was anxious to get his hands on "darling Frankie," just once.

Chief Taylor took the case in hand, and Tuesday afternoon the father and the chief constable went to the residence of the bride, where they found a young man in the street arm in arm with a young man decidedly older than herself. The pair were arrested. The young man gave the name of Frank Bennett, aged 26, and when papa asked for an explanation of the matter, he said he had obtained leave of absence, and to have hurried home to London. Upon his arrival in this city Lord Charles Bessford, according to the story, had a stormy interview with Lord Salisbury, and the latter, in a fit of anger, had threatened to leave the country, and create a scandal of an extent unknown since the time of George IV. At first Lord Salisbury appears to have refused to have anything to do with the matter, but (still according to the story), he consented to act as mediator between the Bessfords and the Prince of Wales. Lord Salisbury, it would seem, did not consent to adopt the course until Lord Bessford had threatened to sue Lady Brooke for slander.

The Prince of Wales, the story also has it, was visiting Linton when he received a copy of the mysterious pamphlet. The Prince is said to have sent for Lord Bessford, who is an old and intimate friend of the heir apparent. When the two met there is said to have been some angry language indulged in, but the quarrel was apparently soon patched up. Lord Bessford, it is alleged, agreeing to shift the blame upon Mrs. Gerard Pacha, his wife's sister, who, the story says, had access to the letters published in the pamphlet and betrayed the confidence placed in her.

All the pamphlets are said to have been called in with the exception of one, which came into the possession of Miss Yznaga. This typewritten copy is said to have been retained and to have been sent to the United States. Finally, the parties interested are said to be moving heaven and earth to suppress the whole matter, and the friends of Sir William Gordon Cumming are, and it is also stated, not at all displeased at the revelations that the pamphlet is supposed to have made.

THE BABY FROZE TO DEATH.

While Its Mother Went on a Carouse and Left the Little One Alone.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Mary Winkelman had lived with her four children and husband on Third street, Jersey City. Her husband is in jail. Tuesday night Mrs. Winkelman left the children, three little girls and a boy 6 months old, alone, and went into a saloon to drink with her women. The children were superstitious and there was no fire in the room.

Late at night the little girls went after their mother, but she would not return. The baby cried until toward morning, and then became silent. The little girls, who went to sleep in a corner, at daylight they woke up. The snow had drifted in over the baby, and they could not wake him. Their mother had not returned. One of the little girls went to Policeman Moran, who found the little boy frozen stiff. The little girls were put into the charge of Poor-master Hewitt.

Mrs. John McLean, writes from Barrie Island, Ont., March 4, 1880, as follows: "I have been a great sufferer from neuralgia for the last nine years, but, being advised to try St. Jacobs Oil can now heartily endorse it as being a most excellent remedy for this complaint, as I have been greatly benefited by its use."

LONDON'S LATEST SCANDAL.

The Prince of Wales and Lady Brooke Involved.

Contents of the Mysterious Type-Written Pamphlet—Jealous Lady Bessford the Accredited Author.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—It was announced recently that a mysterious type-written pamphlet, of which only 57 copies had been issued, was being circulated in high circles. It was added that the pamphlet referred to attacked the Prince of Wales, Lady Brooke and others, and that the Duchess of Manchester, at a luncheon party, had read it aloud to her guests. The result of the appearance of this pamphlet was a series of conferences between the Prince of Wales, Lord Salisbury and Lord Charles Bessford. The following appear to be the facts in the case:

Lady Bessford, the wife of Lord Charles Bessford, seems to have become jealous of the favor with which Lady Brooke was received at Marlborough House, and the town residence of the Prince of Wales, and she is said to have prepared and circulated the pamphlet in question, which is said to contain private correspondence which had passed between herself and Lady Brooke before and during the Baccarat trial. There is also, it is said, an addendum, which discloses the degree of friendship existing between Lady Brooke and the Prince of Wales, showing in a new light certain features of the Baccarat suit, and proving that Sir William Gordon Cumming was loyal to the Prince of Wales, and so maintained silence upon certain points in connection with the case.

The pamphlet is a small one in every sense, and is couched in veiled language. It claims to point out various instances where the couple (the Prince and Lady Brooke) were together, including a certain meeting at the Doncaster Hotel, where they are said to have met incognito, directly after the Baccarat scandals at the Wilsons' residence, at Tranby Croft, near Doncaster. It was on this occasion, according to the pamphlet, that the Prince of Wales informed Lady Brooke of the facts regarding the card scandal, which the latter is said to have subsequently talked about sufficiently to them to become public property. It was this publicity given to the affair, will be remembered, which led to the suits which were brought by Sir William Gordon Cumming against the Wilsons and others, in which the former was not-suited.

The mysterious pamphlet is also said to contain copies of letters written by Lady Brooke, admitting many facts in connection with her friendship for the Prince of Wales, and boasting of it to her quondam friend, Lady Bessford. In one of these letters Lady Brooke is quoted as speaking of the Prince of Wales visiting her town house, and Lady Bessford is alleged to add that from facts afterwards developed it was learned that the Prince was in the habit of driving in a carriage with Lady Brooke, and other facts which could be known, that he was accustomed to stop at Grosvenor square, and to alight there and walk up Brooke street. Continuing, the pamphlet adds that when the Prince approached the steps of the Brooke residence the door was silently and quickly opened and the Prince would enter the building. Another allegation of the pamphlet is that Lady Brooke's housekeeper recently left that lady's employ in order to get married to a schoolmaster, and that Lady Brooke loaded her with fabulous presents in order to retain her silence.

Copies of this pamphlet are said to have been forwarded to the Princess of Wales, to Lord Salisbury, to the Prince of Wales, to other members of the royal family, and it is added that the Princess of Wales is indignant at the whole affair, and that she caused Lady Bessford to be informed that she will no longer be received at Marlborough House.

Lord Charles Bessford is alleged to have been very angry when these facts were communicated to him. He is supposed to have then telegraphed to him at Salisbury, where he was with his ship, H.M.S. Undaunted, for an explanation. He was of absence, and to have hurried home to London. Upon his arrival in this city Lord Charles Bessford, according to the story, had a stormy interview with Lord Salisbury, and the latter, in a fit of anger, had threatened to leave the country, and create a scandal of an extent unknown since the time of George IV. At first Lord Salisbury appears to have refused to have anything to do with the matter, but (still according to the story), he consented to act as mediator between the Bessfords and the Prince of Wales. Lord Salisbury, it would seem, did not consent to adopt the course until Lord Bessford had threatened to sue Lady Brooke for slander.

The Prince of Wales, the story also has it, was visiting Linton when he received a copy of the mysterious pamphlet. The Prince is said to have sent for Lord Bessford, who is an old and intimate friend of the heir apparent. When the two met there is said to have been some angry language indulged in, but the quarrel was apparently soon patched up. Lord Bessford, it is alleged, agreeing to shift the blame upon Mrs. Gerard Pacha, his wife's sister, who, the story says, had access to the letters published in the pamphlet and betrayed the confidence placed in her.

SQUIRMING OVER THEIR OWN MEDICINE.

Having failed in the endeavor to elect their own candidate, the London Free Press and the Conservative bosses who brought
Mr. Esery out, in opposition to Ald.
Spencer, because the latter would on no condition pledge himself to their views in regard to the future, now fall back on the excuse that they were defeated because the Liberals refused to support their man!
The Free Press further says that one Liberals refused to support a candidate for school trustee because he was a Conservative, and it wishes it to be understood from this alleged example of party preference that in the recent municipal contest its party friends were at a disadvantage because they took no part in it "as an organization." Who, then, gave the secretary of the Conservative Association power to arrange candidature, to pull wires for the withdrawal of one Conservative candidate in order to make the election of others of the same stripe certain, and to solicit the attendance of certain candidates at the rooms of the Conservative Association, to be entertained as to whether or not their views satisfied the bosses?It may have been in the late contest some Liberals voted as such, and for no other reason, but if they did they did not have far to go for satisfaction that their course was warranted by the action of the men who were responsible for the appearance of Mr. Esery in the field, as well as for the wire-pulling regarding candidates for other municipal positions.Referring to the speeches recently made by Sir Charles Tupper in England, the Victoria, B. C. Times says:
"Tupper's regard for truth certainly does not increase with his age."The High Commissioner has to act according to instructions from his masters at Ottawa, or run the risk of losing his job. And so Tupper who ever got hold of a good thing ever voluntarily let go.

IF CHEESE, WHY NOT BUTTER?

Within the last day or two, the Eastern Dairymen's Association has held its meeting in Brockville, and now the Western Dairymen's Association is about to assemble at Brantford. Important results are likely to flow from this interchange of ideas by the leading dairymen in the Province.
The associations, from small beginnings, have come to be powerful organizations, with a well-defined yet constantly broadening field of operations. In 1867, H.
Rainey was carrying on a large private dairy in Dereham township, Oxford county. He had 100 cows in his stable, and he could show good results from his operations. The late James Harris, his son-in-law, knowing that the co-operative, or factory system, had recently been established with phenomenal success in Herkimer county, New York, and believing that it would provide an outlet for the energies of Canadian farmers, called a meeting of farmers in his neighborhood, and they held a conference with representative business men in Ingersoll. The result was a resolution to introduce the factory system, and a formal convention for organization was held in Ingersoll on July 31 and Aug. 1. Then the Canadian Dairymen's Association was formed, and out of it has grown the Western Dairymen's Association —a most useful and progressive organization.From small beginnings the factory system of cheesemaking has spread throughout the West, and London has become the center of production. The system has spread from one end of the Province to the other. It is indeed a non-progressive neighborhood which does not have its cheese factory.
Moreover our exports of cheese, which were not worth 25 cents a year ago, are now worth about $10,000,000 a year, and what is equally satisfactory our cheese stands first in point of quality in the European markets. This is due, in no small degree, to the efforts of the dairymen's associations, coupled with the aid and countenance of the Government of Ontario, which has been ever ready to place before the dairymen all the latest scientific and practical information.It is a misfortune that while so much attention has been given to the production of good cheese in Canada, but little care has been taken to put our butter on the market in a manner calculated to bring the best financial results. While the demand for Canadian cheese has yearly increased, our sales of butter abroad have dwindled away, and now do not approach what they were twelve or fifteen years ago. Last summer owing to an unusual scarcity in the British markets, a brisk demand for Canadian butter set in and we have but to produce a quality of butter as we do of cheese to sell in ever-increasing quantities. The Trade Bulletin agrees with us on this point, and adduces as evidence the fact that Australia and New Zealand can find such a profitable outlet for their butter although they are much further from the English market than we are. By the last mail from London it is stated that large quantities of the antedean product are being landed by each steamer from the great continent of the Southern Pacific and fetching good prices, as high as 12s to 12s 6d being realized for finest qualities, which is equal to about 23c to 25c per pound here. Now the question arises: "How is it possible that New Zealand and Southern Australia can produce butter and ship it 11,000 or 12,000 miles, crossing the equator, and land it in London and receive several shillings more per cwt. than the finest Canadian butter will fetch on the same market?" This certainly is a question which should cause Canadian butter-makers to blush when it is considered that they have all the home advantages possessed by the New Zealanders, besides the special one of a comparatively short run of about 3,000 miles in order to land it in Liverpool. The Trade Bulletin asks why we should not get our full share of the English market for butter in ordinary years as well as in a year of paucity like the present?
There is certainly no reason why Canadian butter should not be quite as much a necessity in the English market as the Irish, Danish, Normandy and New Zealand products are. But two conditions are requisite—our farmers must produce it equally good and be able to sell it at as low prices.
There is no sentiment in the British purchaser. He will buy from a Hottelet or a Chinaman just as soon as he will from a Canadian, and sooner if the other fellows have better or cheaper goods.What the Canadian farmers must do in order to increase their sales of butter in Britain is to have it marketed at stated intervals, and in a fresh condition. Canada makers have always been averse to selling their summer make when it is fresh, as they adhere to the principle that it pays better to carry their butter all through the summer into fall to realize the higher prices which sometimes prevail then, and sometimes do not. Canadians need to be converted to the view that the best results are to be obtained from co-operative butter-making; they need to realize that the finest butter will not bring a good price if it is not marketed in its most perfect condition.
Butter is not like cheese. It cannot be kept in a cellar for months, to await opportunities for speculation without running the risk of depreciation in quality, and probably resulting in heavy loss. It cannot be mixed hutch-patch fashion, the finest with the poorest in quality, days after leaving the churn, and be sold as it might be were the scientific system of producing and marketing it in a fresh condition, at stated intervals, followed out.Even John L. Sullivan, the notorious price-fighter, is compelled to testify to the beneficial effects of temperate habits.
He wants to get into the best possible fighting trim before his match with Slavin, and his first step is to take the pledge that he will drink no intoxicating liquors for one year. He knows that the more liquors a man takes the greater is the impairment of his physical strength, to say nothing of the effects on his mental and nervous system. Proof from so unwilling a source is proof indeed.

LIQUOR LAW IMPROVEMENT.

On the 1st inst., the new Provincial Liquor Law came into force in British Columbia. The Pacific Coast legislators have had the good sense to model the new statute somewhat after the Crooks Act though this measure is scarcely as strict as the liquor law in this Province. The new law enacts that no bar-room is to be open from 11 o'clock on Saturday night till 1 o'clock on the Monday morning following.
During these hours no liquor is to be sold from bar-rooms except when called for by a physician's requisition. Nor must any liquor, whether sold or not, be drunk on the premises except by the occupant or some member of his family. For the first infraction the fine is $20 to $50, and for a second $30 to $100. These provisions are not to apply to the furnishing of liquor to bona-fide travelers, nor to the case of hotel and restaurant keepers supplying liquor to their guests. The law is a great improvement on that which formerly governed the sale of liquors in British Columbia and will be welcomed by temperance men as an earnest of better things to come.

THE FAILURES.

The official list of the failures for the past year in the Dominion and Newfoundland, as reported by Dun, Wiman & Co., is as follows:

Province	Failures	Liabilities
Ontario	899	$3,811,739
Quebec	681	$3,833,700
New Brunswick	133	$66,452
Prince Edward Island	11	$93,500
Nova Scotia	7	$6,550
British Columbia	22	$14,243
Manitoba	29	$176,355
Newfoundland	23	$76,710
Totals	1,889	$17,100,649

This is not a very favorable statement.
The country needs a change. There would be fewer failures if the people were allowed to buy and sell with greater freedom.
Too much of their earnings are now diverted into the pockets of the monopolists in Toronto and Montreal. No wonder the minor traders suffer.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The Empire does not teach good protection doctrine—Canadian Manufacturer.
Because there is no good protection doctrine!The Halifax, N. S. Chronicle is now printed in eight-page form, after the manner of the ADVERTISER, and moreover is arrayed in a handsome new dress.
The Chronicle is a first-class newspaper, and deserves the prosperity which its progress indicates.There are 30,000 school children in Toronto. Free books, which have been voted for by the people, will be a great boon to many of these children. The free book system had its origin in Boston.
All progressive cities, London included, may be expected to usher it in soon.The Manchester Chamber of Commerce has informed Mr. Howard Vincent, M.P., that the subject of "the furtherance of mutually advantageous trading relations upon a preferential basis between the various sections of the British people" had already engaged the attention of the Chamber on various occasions, and no useful purpose could be served by a meeting on the subject. Mr. Vincent is apparently unequal to the contract that he undertook when in Canada. There is no general movement in favor of a resort to a tax on breadstuffs by the British people, nor is there likely to be. They know the benefits of freedom of trade.The total amount of the interest and non-interest bearing debt of the United States has now been reduced to $975,981,946.
But for the payments for pensions for services in the late war the debt would be wiped out in the next five or six years. As it is, if the States keep out of trouble with other countries, their people will have virtually no debt on which to provide interest before many years have passed. Is it not about time that Canada were beginning to reduce rather than increase her debt and taxation? If we want to make Canada an attractive country to live in, and keep our population here, we must set about reducing both debt and taxation at once. We need a change of system and of men at Ottawa as speedily as possible.

NO CHILD'S PLAY.

(Kingston News.)
The Globe, Mail and Empire, of Toronto, all announce an increase of yearly subscription from $5 to $6 for the future.
They announce that their former rates were too low for the expenses necessary to keep them up. Newspaper competition is so great in Canada that the profits, if any, are very small. Few people have an idea of the amount of labor and expense necessary in maintaining a daily paper.

THE OZAR'S CLOSE CALL.

A Boy Turned the Hands of an "Internal" Clock the Wrong Way.
BERLIN, Jan. 8.—The Kreuz Zeitung publishes an account of the manner in which it is alleged the accident to the Ozar's train at Korki on Oct. 17, 1888, really originated. The account states that a kitchen boy who was employed on the Imperial train, and who was supposed to have been killed in the accident, escaped death and that he was recently arrested on suspicion of being a nihilist and handed over to the Russian police. According to the Kreuz Zeitung this youth since his arrest has confessed that he placed an internal clock in the compartment next to the Imperial dining-room and fearing that it would explode too soon turned it the wrong way, with the result that it exploded in a downward direction causing the accident.A dispatch from South Australia reports that the English Ministry there has resigned. The Governor, the Earl of Kin-roar, has requested ex-Premier Playford to form a new cabinet.

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Diseases after eating, sick headache, heartburn, sour stomach, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes healthy digestion, relieves sick headache, clears the mind, and cures the most obstinate cases of dyspepsia. Read the following:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat did me no good. I did not sleep. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or dizziness, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food, which I had not enjoyed, I now eat with relish and satisfaction. I have felt no such better since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I am happy to recommend it." G. THE SPORTING WORLD.

Death of a Valuable Horse in Montreal.

The English Road Bicycle Record—Baseball, Curling and Other Amusements.

THE TRIGGER.

The Chicago sportsmen are jealous of the fame of Fulford and Brewer, and within a week they will watch George Kleinman shoot either for $500 or $1,000 a side.

The captains and men interested in the McGillivray sparrow match met at Mack's hotel the other day to count their birds, and the east end men were declared winners by about 1,000 sparrows. Another match is to take place at Adair shortly.

THE TURF.

A syndicate of Ottumwa (Iowa) horsemen have purchased the famous trotter, May Queen, 5 years, 2:13, by Electioneer for $12,000. The horse was bred by Senator Stanford, on the Palo Alto farm.

Results of the Gallop races are said to have been fairly reported to pool rooms in western cities one day this week, causing a loss to the pool rooms of something like $150,000.

Harold Wilkes, one of Case's valuable stallions, died in Racine this week. The animal was a blood bay colt, 15½ hands high, weights 1,000 pounds, and was foaled in 1886. Bred by R. G. Stoner, of Paris, Ky., he was sired by Baron Wilkes, record 2:18. The animal was one of the most valuable of the Hickory Grove Farm stock, and was worth from $5,000 to $8,000. Peritonitis was the cause of death.

The thoroughbred horse Longstep, by Longfellow, belonging to Mr. Alexander Strath, was found dead in his box Thursday at Montreal. The horse was perfectly well when the stable was closed Wednesday night. He was one of the handsomest and best bred horses in Canada.

Benjamin S. Wright, the veteran horseman, died from a complication of diseases at the home of Horace E. Willis, in Medford, Mass., Tuesday. He was familiarly known as "Uncle Ben Wright" by horsemen throughout the country.

The sensational prices which yearling thoroughbreds of last year brought under the hammer eclipsed all previous records in the history of the turf. On this side of the sea Col. Ruppert paid $30,000 for a son of St. Blaise, J. A. & H. Morris $14,000 for a filly by imported Wagner, while $10,000 was a mere bagatelle for yearlings offered at the late Belmont sale. In England a colt by Ormonde was sold for $27,000, and others brought from $15,000 to $10,000.

BASEBALL.

Ernest Foster has inherited $25,000 through the will of his mother, and announces his permanent retirement from the diamond.

The Boston Globe says Pitcher Clarkson received $150 per game last year—$1 for every time he delivered a ball.

Now is the time the player writes to his manager that he will "play the game of his life." Now is the time the same player is broke and the little old advance looks as big as a house.

With the prospects of low salaries minor leagues are beginning to show signs of life. Another New England league is being talked of to comprise Portland, Boston, Manchester, Providence, Worcester and New Haven.

THE WHEEL.

The English Road Record Association at their last meeting accepted the following records: Fifty-mile, ordinary, record of 2 hours 45 minutes and 55 seconds, made by Sidney C. Houghton; record from London to End to End of Great of 4 days 11 hours and 17 minutes, made by G. P. Mills.

DEATH CLAIMS A FAMILY.

Terrible Affliction Visited on a Brooklyn Doctor.

Reappearance of a Disease that Carried Off Thousands of Victims in 1812.

New York, Jan. 8.—Four generations in a Brooklyn home have been suddenly carried off by bilious pneumonia, a disease which has not visited this country since 1812, when 1,703 persons were swept off by its ravages in Saratoga county alone.

The victims were members of the household of Dr. J. Barney Low, at No. 221 Fifty-third street, one of the best known physicians in the city, and a Democratic politician of note.

A wife, a daughter aged 12 and a son aged 3, with his wife's mother, Mrs. Margaret Barrow and her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Burgoyne, aged 92, comprised the physician's family.

Mrs. Burgoyne, whose age was so much against her, was taken ill with grip on Dec. 1 and was making good progress toward recovery under the constant care of Mrs. Barrow, when Dr. Low's daughter was prostrated by what appeared to be a combination of grip and bronchitis. Her little brother showed similar symptoms the next day, and Mrs. Barrow, exhausted by incessant care and watching, also fell ill.

Mrs. Low, the doctor's wife, succumbed next and died a few hours after giving birth to a child.

Mrs. Barrow sank rapidly and died on Dec. 2. The shock of her daughter's and granddaughter's death, added to the malady, carried off Mrs. Burgoyne a few hours later. Mrs. Burgoyne and Mrs. Barrow were buried in the same grave at the Holy Cross Cemetery, Flatbush, last Saturday. Since then the 12-year-old daughter has died.

As soon as Mrs. Low, the doctor's wife, died, Dr. Rushmore, Shepard and Parsons, who had been called in consultation, pronounced the disease bilious pneumonia. It is an epidemic and is said to be fatal in four cases out of five.

The patient expectorates mucus in ordinary pneumonia, but in bilious pneumonia this symptom is wanting. The disease is terrible in its rapidity and does not give the physician a chance to make a fight.

The lungs become clogged with stringy mucus until the patient is asphyxiated by its solidification.

Dr. Low administered a large dose of mercury on his own responsibility to his little son, aged 3, and believes that in consequence the little fellow is out of danger.

The mercury sent his pulse up to 147 degrees, and his temperature to 104, but started the secretions moving again and saved his life.

It is believed that bilious pneumonia is prevalent at this time, and that many more cases will be recorded. It is not contagious, strictly speaking, but is epidemic in form.

When the disease ravaged this country in 1812 Saratoga county appointed a committee of its leading physicians to examine into its cause and suggest, if possible, a cure. Although nothing was accomplished in the line laid out, the bereaved Dr. Low thinks it a singular coincidence that his grandniece, Dr. A. C. Barney, of Greenfield, was one of the physicians on the committee.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

The Subject Discussed by the Detroit Equal Suffrage Society.

DETROIT, Jan. 7.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Detroit Equal Suffrage Society, held in the club room of the Hotel Cadillac yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Sarah J. La Tour, secretary, announced that the American Woman Suffrage Association would be held in Washington, D. C., Jan. 17 to 20, inclusive. The Michigan State Convention is to be held in Battle Creek early in May.

Under discussion was "Women in Politics." Mrs. Helen P. Jenkins read a paper on "Women in English Politics," which was a review of an article by Justin McCarthy on "The Petitioner in Politics."

The reviewer showed that English women actually enjoyed greater political privileges than those in America. They could vote for all elective officers except members of Parliament, and in the Isle of Man could vote for all candidates.

The women of the aristocracy not only were efficient and enthusiastic members of political clubs, but even made public speeches in behalf of candidates. Nominations for Parliament were summoned before these women's clubs and solemnly catechized as to how they stood on the issues of the day, and although the ladies had no vote, their political influence and power were universally recognized.

Mrs. Jenkins said that if women were given some good and useful matter to talk about they would talk about it; but if they were denied that, they would gossip.

Mrs. Virginia Dunbar read an article from the Arena on "Citizenship and Suffrage," in which the author held that the recognition of those members of Congress who had been elected partially by woman's votes was a practical recognition of the citizenship of women by the Federal Government.

Under the fourteenth amendment to the constitution, anyone recognized as a citizen of the United States could claim State citizenship, and it was the conclusion that the Supreme Court, after its ruling on this matter in behalf of the colored man, must, if a proper test case was brought, decide that women were citizens.

A Nightmare. "I never eat mince-pie," said Chappie. "Why not?" asked Hicks. "It's a bad omen," said Chappie. "Between us, they were all twined."

KENT.

Judgment has been rendered in Toronto in the action of Hangstaff vs. McKee, of Wallaceburg, sued at Sarria with a jury for damages to the plaintiff's lands and crops, caused as was alleged, by wrongful acts of the defendants in constructing and maintaining a certain boom across the north branch of the River Sydenham, lodging thereon a large quantity of logs, amongst which were a considerable number of "sinks" and "bobbers," which forced a dam across the river and so caused the plaintiff's land. At the trial the action was dismissed against the defendant McKee, a co-defendant with costs. The jury answered certain questions with regard to the other defendant and the trial judge reserved his judgment upon the findings. He now holds that it must be assumed from the answers of the jury that the act of McKee's negligent act in throwing the boom was the proximate cause of the injury to the plaintiff. Judgment for the plaintiff against the defendant McKee for $200 with full costs. Lister, Q. C., for the plaintiff. J. S. Fraser (Wallaceburg) for the defendant.

He was married in 1857; a large family of sons and daughters was born to them—seven sons and two daughters, with their mother, survive him. Mr. Chalmers was a member of the Presbyterian Church and was a Liberal in politics. He was at one time a member of the municipal council.

Wm. Follis, Wallace, has disposed of his farm to Charles Walker. The farm consists of 150 acres and the price paid was $7,800. It is one of the best farms in the township, being well fenced and in a good state of cultivation. The buildings are first-class. The dwelling house is a two-story white brick cottage with large kitchen and woodshed in addition.

Mr. Walter, reeve of Wellesley township, has again been elected by acclamation. This makes Mr. Walter's 25th consecutive year as reeve of that township.

On Tuesday evening the barn of the farm occupied by Thomas Jones, Pilkington, about two miles from Elora, was destroyed by fire, together with all the contents, which included the season's crop. The horses, cattle and wagon with a small load of grain, were saved. The fire is said to have originated by the upsetting of a lantern which the hired man was using while getting some straw. Mr. Jones had the contents insured for $1,000. There is said to be $600 insurance on the building.

The congregation of Knox Church Harrison, intend holding their anniversary services on Sunday and Monday. Rev. A. Gilray, M. A., of Toronto, will preach morning and evening on the Sabbath, and will be present on Monday evening at the social.

BEST HOURS.—Intending pupils should arrange now to secure the best hours.

Fate of Sir Hugh.

"I am speaking now of my younger days, but presently there came a time when they treated me less as a fault than as a misfortune; when Raby dreaded the repentance more than the paroxysm, for so poignant was my anguish of remorse that they threatened to prey on my health.

"Then, when they saw how I wept and strove against it, and how the torment of my own undisciplined nature was more than I could bear, then they grew to look upon me as one upon whom some deadly scourge was laid—some moral sickness that they could not understand indeed, but which, out of their great love, they could afford to pity.

"Years rolled on. Raby had passed through his university life with honors; he gained a fellowship, and had taken orders, and accepted a curacy some distance from Sandylife.

"It was only a temporary position until the church at Sandylife had been restored and was ready for use; the living had been already promised to him, and small as it was, he wished to hold it, at least for the present.

Raby was a man singularly devoid of ambition, and though he must have been conscious that his were no common gifts, he always told us that he did not wish a wider sphere until he had tested his powers, and had worked a little in the home vineyard.

"At this time he was much occupied with his studies, and some doctrinal treatise on which he was engaged; and as only Sunday duty was required of him, he was able to devote his time to his studies, and to his work on Monday to Saturday.

"The next two years that followed were, in spite of my dear uncle's loss, very happy ones.

"The fits of passion became more rare and decreased in violence, and for a time ceased altogether. It seemed to be coming true what Raby had once prophesied, that I should outgrow them when I became a woman.

"That was our chief joy; but later on, after a year or so, Hugh Redmond came more frequently to the Grange, and by and by Margaret and he were engaged. Raby gave his consent rather reluctantly; he always told me he did not consider him worthy of a woman like Margaret. He thought him weak and impulsive and without ballast; but Margaret had lost her heart to her handsome young lover, and could see no fault in him, and for a time went smoothly. But I am anticipating a little.

"The event that stands prominently in my recollections was a ball that was to be given in honor of young Egerton Trenlow, the eldest son of a wealthy merchant living at Pierpoint. Margaret was going, and of course Hugh Redmond would be there, but they were not engaged then. Margaret had induced Raby to let me accompany her, for I was nearly seventeen then, and very womanly for my age. He consented rather reluctantly, I thought, and the subject dropped. Another time I should have tried to extort a more generous permission, for my heart was set on it; but for some time I had noticed a slight change in Raby's manner to me, an imperceptible reserve that made me a little less at ease with him; it was not that he failed in kindness, for he had never been so good to me, there was certainly a slight barrier between us. He seemed to treat me as a child, there was something deferential in his tenderness; his eyes had a keen, watchful look in them as they rested on me that perplexed me.

"I was beginning not to understand Raby at all; either he was not quite happy, or I had disappointed him in some way; and yet, though I longed to question him, an unusual shyness held me back.

"It was the evening before the ball, and Raby was in the library so absorbed in his Hebrew manuscript that for once he had not missed me from my accustomed place. The new ball dress Margaret had ordered for me in London had just arrived, and she had coaxed me to put down my book and try it on in case any alterations should be required. I had never seen my gown liked better; the rich creamy tint just set off my olive complexion and coils of black hair to perfection. I was quite startled when I saw myself in the long pier glass; my neck and arms were gleaming through the dainty, cobwebby lace, a ruby pendant sparkled like a crimson star at my throat. Margaret was enchanted.

"Oh, Crystal," she exclaimed, "how beautiful you look, just like an Esther or a Vashti with their grand Oriental faces. Come down with me and let us startle Raby with our dusty old felloes; he will think he sees a vision."

"I followed her smiling; I was pleased that Raby should see me in this queenly garb. I stole gently behind his chair. 'Oh, king, live forever, I said, laughing, and then he turned round; and as I dropped him a mocking courtesy he tried to suppress the exclamation that rose to his lips.

"Where are you going?" I asked, presently, when he had closed his books and was preparing to leave the room.

"I am going up to West Point to see poor Little White," he returned; "her mother has been down this morning and tells me she is worse. You had better not accompany me, Crystal, for I had started up from my chair."

"And why not?" I exclaimed, in a hurt voice; "it is such a delicious morning, and there is no such place as the West Point for a breeze; it will freshen me up for the evening."

"Well, do as you like," he returned, coldly, and closed the door. The indifference of his tone wounded me. What could I have done to offend him; but I was never proud where Raby was concerned, so I put on my hat and accompanied him.

"For the first mile or two we were very silent. Raby walked on with his shoulders slightly bent, and his eyes fixed on the ground, a habit of his when he was thinking very deeply.

"Raby," I said at last, rather timidly, "I wish you would walk a little slower. I want to talk to you;" and then he looked at me with some surprise.

"I was only thinking of my next Sunday sermon," he replied, as if in apology for his want of attention. "I told you you had better not come with me, Crystal."

"Oh, I know you did not want me," I answered, lightly; "your manner made that fact very apparent; but you see I wanted to come, and so I had my own way. Of course, I know the text you will choose. Raby, what a pity that it is too far for me to come and hear that sermon. To think that neither Margaret nor I have ever heard you preach, and to lose that sermon of all others!"

"My dear," he returned, gently—very gently; but there was pain and some strange solemn meaning in his face—"I disappointed you last night. You thought that I would not give you money or stoop to flatter your innocent vanity, that I held myself aloof from your girlish pleasure. Ah, with a sudden change of tone, 'you little know what brilliant vision haunted me last night and drove sleep from my senses; but God had mercy on His poor priest, and strengthened his hands in the day of battle.'"

"The white abstracted look of his face, the low vehemence of his tone, thrilled me almost painfully; never had Raby looked or spoken like that.

"No, my darling," he went on, sorrowfully, "I will never wrong the child I have guided and protected all these years, or take advantage of your youth and inexperience, by using my influence and condemnation to lead you to a life for which you are not fitted. Go forth into the world then, my Esther—did not Margaret compare you to Esther—make experience of its pleasures, its trials, its seductions, its false wooings, and its dazzling honors; if they tell you your beauty might win a coronet they would be right."

LEGAL QUERIES.
KOHLEK.—Is a mechanic, i. e. blacksmith, tailor, shoemaker, legally bound to work for a man if he does not feel so inclined? ANS.—No.

SUNDAY.—Would a blacksmith be bound by law to shoe a traveler's horse on Sunday if the horse is in danger of spoiling his feet? ANS.—No; it is wholly a matter of agreement.

DOCTOR.—Is an M.D. who advertises in a newspaper to go at all hours compelled by law to go at any call? ANS.—Having advertised he is liable to an action for damages if he refuses to go without a sufficient reason, such as his physical inability or refusal to pay on time.

MORTGAGE.—Has a mortgagee a year in which to redeem his property after foreclosure or sale? ANS.—No; there is, however, six months or more time given to the mortgagee in which to redeem, previous to the final order for sale or foreclosure.

LESSEES.—A had an auction sale, at which B bid on a cart, and it was knocked down to him. A now refuses to let it go. What steps will B take to get his cart? ANS.—Tender the price and demand the cart. If A still refuses you can sue him for breach of contract or for the cart itself. Consult a solicitor.

Q.—A bets that the Ontario Government alone has the power to confer the title of Queen's Counsel upon well-trained lawyers, and B that the Dominion Government alone has the power. Which is right? ANS.—The question has not been settled. Both Governments have exercised the power, and the matter has been recognized in the Provincial courts. We cannot decide the bet.

MAIL CARRIER.—What security does the law require from a man entrusted with conveying Her Majesty's mails, and is he or his sureties responsible for anything more than his honesty and the carrying out of his contract? ANS.—The nature and amount of the security is fixed and approved of by the Postoffice Department and depends upon the nature of each case. There is no general law or rule. The security covers any breach of contract to carry the mails not covered by Providence and may also cover any theft, loss or destruction, etc., done by the carrier or caused by his neglect, connivance, etc.

WYOMING.—I buy logs and timber on a stream. One half of the cost of driving the logs is caused by bridges stopping and detaining them. Can I force the township to put wings on the bridges to glance my stuff through, or collect damage of them? ANS.—Upon the facts stated we are of opinion that you can recover damages, as your right to float the logs cannot be legally interfered with by the erection of bridges. Whether such interference is to be remedied by damages or removal of the obstruction by making additional spans to the bridge is a question to be decided by the court upon the evidence. You had better consult counsel.

Give Ear to the plain facts about Pearline, and then give Pearline a chance to prove them, by giving it a fair trial. Nothing else will give the same result. It washes safely, as well as surely; it cleans carefully, as well as easily. It is as cheap as soap and better. Anything that can be washed, can be washed best with Pearline. It lightens labor and does lightning work. As nearly as we can figure, about eight millions of women use it. Do you? You will sooner or later.

—Old John Simmons promised the police magistrate yesterday that he would go to St. Thomas. He appeared again this morning as a drunk and made the same promise.
Only 45 cents was found on him, but Simmons insisted that he had some more cash hidden in his boot. He will be escorted to the train this time.

sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Harry R. Graham, St. Paul, Minn., brother of the groom, was groomsmen.
The happy couple will continue to reside in the city.

school scholars had an enjoyable entertainment last evening, when after supper a table programme was presented. H.

among those taking part were Alice Mills and T. Pratt, club swinging; Miss Jones-tion; Mary Johnson, organ; Albert Baker, song; Miss Ray, organ selection; Master Pritchard, recitation; Infant class song.

of Richmond and Dundas street reports great trouble in looking after people who drive across it faster than the law allows.
Tom Tracy was before the police magistrate this morning for the offense, but he explained that his horse had become frightened and he could not hold him.
Case dismissed. James Jones was similarly charged, and declined any intention of breaking the statute. Allowed to go; first offense.

—The First Division Court is being held to-day, Judge McKenzie presiding. There are 70 cases on the list, 34 of which are suits entered by the City Mutual Fire Insurance Company of this city, against various persons. The suits have been possibly on account of the death of Mr. W.
Vining, treasurer of the company. The actions are against policy-holders. To compensation of premiums according to the provisions of the insurance policies of the company.

—"My Jack," one of the most powerful of melodramas, was produced at the Grand Opera House last night before an appreciative audience. Its scenic accompaniments are the best and most extensive seen here for many a day, being some of the masterpieces of the late Mat Morgan. Every act was replete with magnificent and startling stage effects, the best of which was probably the life-boat climax in the first act. The drama, seen in the realistic, and shows what beauty may be brought out on canvas by a master hand.
"My Jack" is worth going to see for its scenic excellence alone, but it is also interesting as a play that calls for some very clever acting if it is to be properly presented. The role of Cirio Panza is exceedingly exciting, and Henry Lee has done it justice by hard work, united to dramatic ability.
Edgar Forest makes a gallant hero and Charles Frew furnishes the humor very satisfactorily. The play is a very powerful one, and a class performance. It will be repeated to-night, and it should draw a large house.

—The Ontario Beekeepers' annual convention came to a close yesterday afternoon.
The retiring mayor made a brief address of welcome, and a vote of thanks was tendered himself and the corporation for the Journal for 50 cents per annum was adopted. Mr. Conne was reappointed secretary. Mr. A. Pringle delegate to Farmers' Institute, J. B. Aches and J. B. Hall delegates to Western Fair Board, and Messrs.

Knight and Gemmell to the Toronto Industrial Fair Board. Mr. McKnight will token of his valuable services. Mr. Enright, of Halbrook, was appointed treasurer at a salary of $50.

—A gentleman of municipal experience suggests that the Council committee for 1902 be struck as follows: No. 1—Yates (ward 1), Jeffery (2), Garsshore (3), Leonard (4), Dreaney (5) and Judd (6).
No. 2—Connor (1), O'Meara (2), Jones
(3), Scarrow (4), Bartlett (5) and Shaw (6).
No. 3—John Heaman (1), Moulie (2),
Wm. Heaman (3), Hannah (4), Fitzgerald (5) and Parnell (6).

—The funeral of the late W. R. Vining took place this morning from his late residence, 386 Dufferin avenue, the remains being interred at the family cemetery in Nisour township. Deceased was buried with Masonic honors, St. George's Lodge, No. 42, of which he was a member. St.
George's Royal Arch Chapter, No. 5, and the Knights Templar being well represented. The pall-bearers were: Very Wor. Bro. A. Ellis, Very Wor. Bro. J. D.
Burke, Wor. Bro. Wm. Skinner, Wor.
Bro. J. B. Vining, Bro. Wm. Hayman and Bro. J. A. Nelles. The members of St.
George's Benevolent Society turned out to pay their last respects to a departed brother and there was a large attendance of the general public.

—George Pritchard wrote the Council regarding damages to his property on Hamilton street, through alleged defective drainage. At the Board of Works last night the city engineer reported that the difficulty arose because Mr. Pritchard's property was in the natural course of water runoff from township lands. A sewer running by the street on the corner of Spring and that would obviate the difficulty.
The committee decided to stick to their recommendation that Contractor Barlett be paid $75 for relaying blocks on Queen's avenue washed out by the rain in November. R. J. Wood complained that the water hacked into his cellar owing to the defective sewer on the corner of Wellington and Simcoe streets, causing damages to the extent of $25 at least. The city engineer said the sewer was sixteen feet deep, so the letter was filed. A communication from the Council to the effect that the Queen's Park caretaker be the joint servant of the city and Fair Board provided the latter erects or agrees to pay the rent of a house on the grounds for him was left with No. 2 Committee of 1892.

—The remaining link in the chain of circumstances surrounding the death of the late George O. Challenor, was supplied last night by his daughter, Miss Challenor, with whom deceased lived at his residence, Somerset street. The jury, pursuant to adjournment, met at the Police Station at 7 o'clock, Coroner Smith presiding.

—"My father was naturally of a very cheerful disposition," she testified, "and I noticed a change in him some three weeks before his death. He was less cheerful." Witness—About $10,000. As time went on it worried him more, and I thought that on Thursday night he seemed more troubled than usual. I had been ill, and was confined to my room; he came there at 11 o'clock and exchanged a few words with me. The next I heard of him was at 2 a.m., and I thought he was getting up to attend to the furnace. I went to sleep and woke at 7 o'clock. When I got up I went to his room and found him missing, although his bed had been occupied. No, he did not touch the furnace.

—At request of the counsel, Mr. McKillop, the witness produced Mr. Challenor's diary. The following few entries serve to show that he was so very troubled in mind: Thursday, Dec. 24—"Rain all forenoon; misty rain falling all day. My outlook as dreary as the day."

Saturday, Dec. 26—"Suffering mentally most terribly."

Sunday, Dec. 27—"Passed anything but a cheerful day. Lena and Harry over to dinner. No rest at night."

Monday, Dec. 28—"Same old worry; bother me awfully. No ray of sunshine to clear the horizon for me."

Tuesday, Dec. 29—"Still my burden too heavy to carry alone."

The last entry, made on Thursday, Dec.
31, the day before his death, was: "Fair, as to weather. Down town in forenoon, settled with Kingsmill. No let-up to the terrible burden of care."

For days back, entries in the same book were in the same troubled strains. The jury deliberated but a few moments, and returned a verdict to the effect that Geo.
O. Challenor drowned himself in the River Thames, and that he was temporarily insane at the time.

The opinion is advanced that deceased jumped off York street bridge at 3 o'clock Friday morning, but he had also watched him leave the bridge and walk east on York street. It is probable that the unfortunate man turned north to Thames street, and from there to the river bank. The fact that he left home at 2 o'clock, was seen walking leisurely on the bridge at 4.45 minutes later—this time proceeding briskly along—shows that he must have been wandering aimlessly around the streets for an hour, probably to try and ease his mental anguish, and then that he had suddenly resolved to end his troubles in the way he did.

—The City Council of 1891 meets for the last time Monday evening.

—Miss Bird Foster is visiting her sister, Mrs. Will Hobbs, Dundas street.

—Mrs. Wm. Gibbons, Winnipeg, is
