IMPERIAL DEFENCE COUNCIL ESSENTIAL, CLAIMS BERESFORD

British Politicians and Representatives of the Dominions Hear His Message.

BRITAIN'S "DECADENCE"

Mid Enchanting Scenery, Big Crowd Hears of Weakness of Imperial Defence.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, March 14.—The London correspondent of the Montreal Gazette says: Home politicians, together with representatives from the dominions, sat amid the enchanting scenery of the "Daring of the Gods," in His Majesty's Theatre, yesterday, while the auditorium and galleries were crowded to hear warnings concerning the deficiencies of Imperial defence.

Lord Charles Beresford was expected to be among the star performers, but was prevented by an attack of influenza, and Sir Herbert Tree, who presided, received a letter from him of pungent criticism on the present public apathetic attitude regarding Imperial defence. Lord Charles called attention to the shortages recently reported in the regular army and the territorial, also referring to the naval weakness. A decade ago, he said, Britain was supreme over all the seas on naval basis properly manned and armed. Now there was discussion as to whether there was even a margin of one or two ships over the standard laid down. It appeared to him that the first necessity was to call immediately an imperial council of defence, all the dominions being represented, without which it was impossible to dream of a businesslike and common sense foundation of empire defence.

This rousing appeal for imperial unity was followed by Digby Dinnman, premier of Queensland, who boasted of Australia's compulsory military service.

Mr. Page-Croft, M.P., depicted England demoralized, football and tango teas excluding the visions of empire defence.

The meeting was organized as an imperial mission, and the agents-general of Nova Scotia and British Columbia were on the platform.

MRS. PANKHURST WINS RELEASE FROM JAIL

"Hunger and Thirst Strike" Is Successful—Brutal Treatment Alleged.

[Canadian Press.]

London, March 14.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, was again released from Holloway Jail today. She had started a "hunger and thirst" strike immediately after her arrest on Sunday last at a Glasgow, and is reported to be in a very weak and exhausted condition.

A demonstration had been arranged by the militant suffragettes outside of the prison, but this failed owing to the secrecy with which Mrs. Pankhurst was removed from the building. She was driven in a taxicab to a nursing home.

Suffragists charge the police with brutal treatment of the militant leader at the time of her arrest in Scotland. Mrs. Pankhurst fell during the scuffle, and the militant newspaper says the police threw her bodily into a cab, where they allowed her to lie on the floor, while they sat on the seats insulting her. An investigation of the incident is demanded.

SYLVIA TOO.

Miss Pankhurst also was liberated from Holloway Jail today. She had been in prison since March 8.

ILLUSTRATIONS THAT SHOW NATURAL LOCATION FOR RIDOUT STREET SUBWAY

Ridout Street, Looking North to the Tracks.

Low construction charges, because of the natural slope of the land from the north side of the railway right-of-way, is one of the principal arguments for the Ridout street subway under the Grand Trunk. The two cuts illustrate this in no way from the tracks to the level of Horton street there is a slope that precludes Grand Trunk engineers who have gone over the situation have expressed themselves as being satisfied that Ridout street is the logical location for a subway. Street car traffic to and from South London could be diverted through a subway. Present downtown level crossing blockades would be a thing of the past.

The pictures of the two approaches to the present level crossing at Ridout street are regarded as the best possible arguments that could be used for the Ridout street subway.

In the photograph "looking north," the height of the present tracks above the level of York street is indicated by the small portion of the street car, turning at York street, that is visible. The view looking south illustrates, by the Gas Company's property, the slope of the Ridout street hill that could easily be cut to make an ideal subway location.

Wild Geese Herald Approach of Spring

Signs of spring there are many, but none surer than the northward flight of the Canadian wild geese. When their peculiar cries of "honk, honk, honk" sound through the gray March atmosphere and the V-shaped phalanx in which they always fly, led by their tribal leader, gleams faintly against the early morning sky, then, indeed, does the Canadian heart feel gladdened, for spring cannot be very far off.

Two East Londoners, William Johns, of 497 Elizabeth street, and George Young, of 345 Adelaide street, reported seeing this morning a flock of several hundred geese flying directly north. They were honking lustily and flying in their usual angular lines.

VILLA DETERMINED ON THE PRESIDENCY

Nothing Less Will Satisfy the One-Time Bandit, Says Close Friend.

IS REALLY THE DICTATOR

Coming of Carranza to Chihuahua Not to Lessen His General's Power in Any Way.

[Canadian Press.]

Chihuahua, Mexico, March 14.—"Villa, the one-time bandit, will be the next president of Mexico. That is his ambition, and, despite all reports to the contrary, it will remain his ambition until he is dead or president."

This declaration was made today by a friend so close to Gen. Villa as to give authority to the assertion. It was prompted by reports that the coming of Chihuahua of General Carranza, recognized as the civil head of the revolution, was to bring about conditions more satisfactory to foreign governments and to place in the seat of authority better advisers than Gen. Villa appears to have in handling complications growing out of the killing of Wm. S. Benton, a British subject.

Likely To Embrace.

That Villa and Carranza might meet, and that they might publicly embrace as an evidence of their perfect harmony was given out as a possibility.

Gen. Carranza is now on his way overland from Sonora and a magnificent marble building has been prepared as the official residence or capital, in which he is to perfect the details of government.

It was stated emphatically that the coming of Carranza is not to lessen in any way the power now wielded by Villa, who for months has been dictator.

City Is Resigned.

In the absence of any indication that Gen. Villa intended to move southward immediately, this city, the largest in rebel territory, apparently has resigned itself to an indefinite state of revolution.

Outwardly conditions are almost normal. The military band discourses operatic music on the plaza, crowds promenade in the gay lights, a wandering Tanshumare Indian, garbed only in a blanket, a pair of boots and a silk hat, joins the parade, and an enterprising merchant opens a soda water fountain.

Power Is Villa's.

The silent disappearance of "suspects," the reports of executions and the general knowledge that the people for months have been hiding in the basements of buildings, form another aspect of life little mentioned. The "man on the spot," a wandering Tanshumare Indian, garbed only in a blanket, a pair of boots and a silk hat, joins the parade, and an enterprising merchant opens a soda water fountain.

SMASH WINDOWS OF McKENNA'S RESIDENCE

Militants Surprise Police, But Are Arrested After Damage Done.

[Canadian Press.]

London, March 14.—A detachment of militant suffragettes, armed with hatchets and hammers, smashed every pane of glass on the ground floor of the residence of Reginald McKenna, home secretary, in Smith Square, Westminster, today. The six women arrived in the square in an automobile, and took by surprise the policemen who kept continued guard over the homes of the state ministers. All of those who took part in the attack were arrested, however, as they were leaving. McKenna left town for the week-end yesterday.

Two Months Each.

The six women, who mostly gave false names, were later in the day charged at Westminster police court and each sentenced to two months' imprisonment with hard labor.

"Boadicea" Threatens.

One of the prisoners, who gave the name of Boadicea, said in court: "I wouldn't have given much for him—Mr. McKenna—if we had got inside."

Another of the women said: "It is a lucky thing for you, we do not shoot."

All the women pleaded guilty, and said they had been driven to break Mr. McKenna's windows by "the great brutality shown to our beloved leader."

The magistrate, in passing sentence, said he had never heard a sadder or more deplorable story than that which had been told to the court.

"But," ejaculated one of the women, who were then led away to the cells.

Burn Pavilion.

Birmingham, Eng., March 14.—A militant suffragette "arson squad" set the torch to the tennis pavilion of the Olton Club, five miles from this city, in the night. The building was burned to the ground.

POLICE FIND MAN HIDING IN STORE

On Owner's Complaint, Officers Visit East End Grocery and Arrest Edward Arnold.

As he was about to retire shortly after midnight Friday, Robert Tremaine, grocer, of Dundas street, London Junction, thought he heard someone moving about in his grocery store. Walking stealthily to an outside window and peering through the glass he saw a man crouching on the floor. Tremaine quietly slipped over to a neighbor's and summoned the police.

When the officers arrived in the motor patrol a man, who gave his name as Edward Arnold, was found in the store and placed under arrest.

In court today Edward Arnold appeared before Magistrate Judd to answer a charge of breaking into and unlawfully entering Tremaine's store. He elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty. The police was not ready to go on, and the case was adjourned until Monday, March 15.

MELIE ENTERS PLEA OF "NOT GUILTY" TO SHOOTING CHARGES

Man Accused of Shooting Linemen Denies Accusations and Elects Summary Trial.

COMES UP NEXT SATURDAY

Will Appear Then Before Judge Maobeth—An Interpreter Needed This Morning.

Rocco Melie, the foreigner charged with the shooting of William Skingley and Hector Miller, two Hydro-electric linemen, in the Hotel Harrison bar on the night of March 3, will come up for trial before Judge Maobeth at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning. He appeared before the judge this morning and elected summary trial. He pleaded not guilty to all charges laid against him.

His counsel, J. H. Plock, stated that he was ready to go on with the trial at any time, and the date was fixed for Monday next.

Four charges are preferred against him by the crown. He is charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm on each of the linemen, and also with shooting with intent to do bodily harm.

Melie does not know sufficient English to understand the questions put to him by the court, and the proceedings this morning were carried on by the aid of an interpreter.

TEN PEOPLE KILLED IN N. S. W. TRAIN WRECK

One Family Practically Wiped Out While on Sorrowful Mission.

[Canadian Press.]

Temora, New South Wales, March 14.—Ten passengers were killed and fifteen others injured, three of them seriously, in a collision today between a mail train and a freight locomotive, near Moss Vale. The accident occurred during a dense fog.

Among the ten killed were a man and his two daughters, who were taking home the body of the man's wife, who had died previously in a hospital. A son of the same family was seriously hurt. The train was proceeding from Sydney to Melbourne.

According to the physician, Miss Wilson resigned following a telegram from the lady superintendent, Miss Margaret Stanley. Miss Stanley, it is said, came into the operating-room, and with a pin of dirt along one of the window sashes. For the presence of this small accumulation of dirt, it is said, Miss Stanley took Miss Wilson severely to task. At the same time, Miss Stanley, it has been pointed out, gave Miss Wilson most excellent recommendations, when the latter sought the position of public school nurse.

Joseph Devlin, in a spirited article in a local newspaper, says: "The Carsonites are not to be conciliated at any cost. The home rule bill should be carried as it stands, and the Government must take the responsibility of enforcing the law against the aristocrats pleading rebellion."

T. P. O'Connor Thinks Tories Will Accept Government Offer on Home Rule.

New York, March 14.—A special cable to the New York American from London says: Irish party leaders are determined the home rule bill shall go through without further concessions to Ulster, whatever happens. T. P. O'Connor sends the following message to the New York American: "It is over but the shouting. There will still be a good deal of shouting, but it will not matter. The Government have said their last word—the Tories may take it or leave it. I think they will leave it."

Witnesses are to be heard by the court of assizes, and the suit will be fought in the usual way.

PHYSICIAN SAYS LADY SUPT. USED PIN TO FIND DIRT

Claims Discovery of Minute Accumulation Caused Resignation of Miss Wilson.

TRUST SENDS A LETTER

Pupil Nurses Remain in Operating Room Only Until Graduate Is Secured.

Though no meeting of doctors to discuss the resignation of Miss Isabella Wilson, late operating-room head nurse at Victoria Hospital, has yet been held, developments in this matter are expected within a day or two.

The 21 medical men who signed the petition, asking the hospital trust for an investigation of Miss Wilson's resignation, and requesting that in order to keep up the standard of the surgical work, there be less frequent changes in the department, have received a circular letter from Lieut.-Col. W. M. Garthshore, chairman of the board, advising them that as the resignation of Miss Wilson was voluntary the trustees did not consider themselves warranted in making any further investigation.

Supervisor in Charge.

As for eliminating the frequent changes in connection with this position, Col. Garthshore points out that this is a matter entirely in the hands of the nurses, who have resigned from the position on their own initiative. The employment of pupil nurses, it is further explained, has, in all cases, been only temporary, between the resignation of one graduate and the engagement of another. "She was one of the best nurses who has ever held the position."

MANY WOMEN SMOKERS DECLARE TOBACCONISTS

Dealers Have Different Story Than Temperance Workers—London To Have Clinic for Treatment of "Cigarette Habit."

While members of the W. C. T. U. in London declare that there is little smoking among women in this city, tobacconists have a different story to tell.

Women interested in the temperance work and other social reform organizations are watching with keen interest the success of the clinic for cigarette smokers in Toronto. As soon as the efficiency of the treatment is assured steps will be taken to establish a similar clinic in London. According to Mrs. May R. Thornley, of the W. C. T. U., the extent of cigarette smoking among local boys is deplorable.

In Chicago a clinic has also been established for girls and women who wish to quit smoking. The treatment consists of spraying the smoker's throat with nitrate of silver solution. Lucy Page-Caston, president of the Chicago Anti-Cigarette League, declares that the treatment is quite successful.

"Don't Need Women's Clinic Here."

"I know Mrs. Caston," said Mrs. Thornley, "but I don't think we need a clinic for girls or women here. The number of girls and women in London who smoke is very small in comparison with American cities or Toronto."

The tobacconists' version of London's women smokers is different, however. "You would be surprised," said one tobacconist, "to know how many women smoke in London. We keep quite a number of brands in stock especially for the use of our lady patrons."

Women's Sales Increasing.

As a matter of fact, a few years ago it was difficult to secure ladies' cigarettes in London. There was no call for them. Now any tobacconist will supply you with "morisettes," "clams," and half a dozen other brands recommended especially for ladies' use. Their sales are constantly increasing, the tobacconists declare, and to all classes of society, "the colonel's lady and Lady O'Grady," as Rudyard Kipling would say.

One woman, influential in social reform circles, declared to The Advertiser that the smoking habit by many working-girls was learned in tobacco and cigar factories, where they were employed. But a different deduction could probably be drawn from the fact that all the brands of cigarettes called for in local shops by lady smokers are the more fashionable and high-priced brands.

CARRANZA OFFERS FULL PROTECTION

Consents to American Consuls Looking After Foreigners' Interests—Will Hear Any Applications.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, March 14.—General Carranza has consented to have American consuls to look after the interests of foreigners in parts of Mexico under control of the constitutionalists, where their own governments have no consular representatives. Where there are such representatives, he suggests that, even where their governments have recognized Huerta, these consuls may not officially communicate with him without involving their governments.

Also, he suggests his willingness to listen and hear any applications made to him directly by the friends and relatives of foreigners whose lives or property may be threatened, and to make investigation of every case and to punish any of his followers who may be culpable.

This is the substance of a telegraphic report made to Secretary Bryan today by Consul Simplich at Nogales. Copies of the communications have been furnished to the various diplomatic representatives in Washington by Secretary Bryan, without comment.

Rear-Admiral Fletcher reported today that there were no developments at Tampico.

THREATENED C. P. R. STRIKE IS AVERTED

Negotiations Succeed in Preventing a National Calamity.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, March 14.—As a result of negotiations that have been conducted during the past few days between representatives of the maintenance of way employees engaged on the Canadian Pacific Railway and D. McNicol, the vice-president of the company, a threatened strike that would have practically cut up the entire traffic from coast to coast of the company, has been averted.

In an interview with Mr. Lowe, international president of the Maintenance of Way Employees' Association, today, it was learned that as a result of conferences held with Mr. McNicol, it was mutually agreed to accept that part of the recent arbitration board's award, which recommended that each body should withdraw its claims for the present. Mr. McNicol further agreed to meet the delegation at any time on or after May 1.

A ROYAL DIVORCE

Grand Duchess To Answer Charge of Deserting Husband.

[Canadian Press.]

Stockholm, March 14.—The Grand Duchess Pavlovna of Russia, wife of Prince William of Sweden, second son of King Gustav V., was summoned today through the Swedish legation in St. Petersburg to appear in the court of assizes at Stockholm. She will there have to answer a charge of having deserted her husband. Divorce proceedings between the royal couple have been in progress for some time.

The grand duchess is a daughter of the Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovich, and a cousin of the Emperor of Russia. She is now in her 24th year. Her husband is in his 30th year, and the marriage took place in 1905. They have one son, Prince Lenart, born in 1908.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON
Author of "Graustark," "Truxton King," Etc.

"I think, Brandon, if you were to allow me to apply alone to one of these places I could get in without much trouble." "Good Lord!" he gasped, going very red with dismay. "What a fool!"

"I'll try the Savoy," he said quickly, and then laughed at him. His face was a picture of distress.

"I shall come for you at eight," he said, stopping the taxi at once. "Good-bye till then."

He got out and gave directions to the chauffeur. Then he did a very strange thing. He hailed another taxi and, climbing in, starting off in the wake of the two women. From a point of vantage near the corridor leading to the "American bar," he saw Hetty sign her slips and move off toward an obscure spot and, seeing that she was quite out of the way, he approached the manager's office and asked for accommodations.

"Not a thing."

"Everything has been taken for weeks, sir. I'm sorry."

"Sorry, too. I had hoped you might have something left for a friend who expects to stop here—a Miss Castleton."

"Miss Castleton has just applied. We could not give her anything."

"Eh?"

"Fortunately we could let her have rooms until eight this evening. We were more than pleased to offer them to her for a few hours, although they are reserved for parties coming down from Liverpool tonight."

Booth tried the Cecil and got a most undesirable room. Calling up the Savoy on the telephone, he got her room. The maid answered. She informed him that Miss Castleton had just that instant gone out, and would not return before seven o'clock.

"I suppose she will not remove her trunks from the hotel until she finds a permanent place to lodge," he inquired.

"Can I be of any service?"

"I think not, sir. She left no word, sir."

He hung up the receiver and straightway dashed over to the Savoy, hoping to catch her before she left the hotel. Just inside the door he came to an abrupt stop. She was at the news and ticket booth in the lobby, close to the entrance, in conversation with the clerk. Presently the latter took up the telephone, and after a brief conversation with someone at the other end, turned to Hetty and nodded his head. Whereupon she nodded her own adorable head and began the search for her purse. Booth edged around to an obscure spot and saw her pay for and receive something in return.

"By Jove!" he said to himself, amazed.

She passed her hand, without seeing him, and went out into the court. He watched her turn into the Strand.

When the night boat, from Dover to Calais slipped away from her moorings that evening, Hetty Castleton and her maid were on board, with their bags and trunks, and Brandon Booth was supposed to be completely at sea in the heart of that glittering London town.

The night was fog-laden and dripping, and the crossing promised to be unpleasant. Wrapped in a thick sea-ustler, Hetty sat huddled up in the lee of the deck-house, sick at heart and miserable. She reproached herself for the scurvy trick she was playing on him, the shrewd and yet pitied herself. After all, she was doing him a good turn in forcing him to despise her. He should have known that she treated his devotion, his fairness, his loyalty. He would be happier in the end for the brief spasm of pain and disgust he was to experience in this second revelation of her unworthiness.

Crouching there in the shadow, with the foghorn chortling hoarsely over the shabby trick—so it seemed to her—she stared back at the misty glow of the pier and tried to piece the distance that lay between her and the lights of London, so many leagues away. He was there, in the glitter and glamor of it all, but black with disappointment and wonder. Oh, it was a despicable thing she had done! Her poor heart ached for him. She could almost see the despair, the bewilderment in his eyes as he sat in his room, hours after the discovery of her flight, defeated, betrayed, disillusioned.

There were but few people crossing. Sadness stood by the rail, peering into the fog, but it seemed to her that no one else was aloft on board the steamer. Already the boat was beginning to show signs of the uneasy trip ahead. Many foghorns, far and near, were barking their lugubrious warnings; the choppy waves were slashing against the vessel with a steady heat; the bobbing of the ship increased as it plunged deeper into the cross-seas. But she had no thought of the ship, the waves, or the perils that surrounded her. Her mind was back in London with her heart, and there was nothing ahead of her save the dread of tomorrow's sunlight.

She was a good sailor. A dozen times, perhaps, she had crossed the English Channel in fair weather and foul, and never with discomfort. Her maid, she knew, was in for a wretched brawl with the steward, but Hetty was too wise a sailor to think of trying to comfort the unhappy creature. Misery does not always love company.

A tall man came shambling down the narrow space along the rail and stopped abruptly in front of her. She started in alarm as he reached out his hand to seize her against the deck-house. As he leaned forward, he laughed.

"You were thinking of me, Hetty," said the man.

For a long time she stared at him, transfixed, and then with a low moan covered her eyes with her hands.

"Is it true—is it a dream?" she sobbed.

He dropped down beside her and gathered her in his strong, eager hands.

"You were thinking of me, weren't you?" And reproaching yourself, and hating yourself for running away like this?

Thought so. Well, you might just as well try to dodge the smartest detective in the world as to give me the slip now, darling."

"You—spied on me?" she cried, in muffled tones. She lay very limp in his arms.

"I did," he confessed, without shame. "I did, but I don't regret it. I might be doing at this moment if I hadn't found you out in time! Think of me back there searching for you in every corner."

"Please, please!" she implored.

"But luck was with me. You can't get away, Hetty. I shall let you out of my sight again. I'll camp in front of your door, and you'll see me wither and die of sleeplessness, for one of the other of my eyes will always be open."

"Oh, I am so tired, so miserable," she murmured.

"Poor little sweetheart!"

"I wish you would hate me."

"Hie where you are, dearest, and—forget!"

"If I only could—forget!"

"I will hold you tight and keep you warm. We're in for a nasty crossing, but it is paradise for me. I am mad with the delight of having you here, holding you close to me, feeling you in my arms. The wilder the night the better, for I am wild with the joy of it all. I love you! I love you!" He strained her closer to him in a sort of paroxysm.

She was quiet for a long time. Then she breathed into his ear:

"You will never know how much I was longing for you, just as you are now, Brandon, and in the midst of it all you came. It is like a fairy tale, and now I shall always believe in fairies."

All about them were the sinister sounds of the fog—the boots, the growls and groans of the lost things in the swirl of the North Sea current, creeping blindly through the guideless mist. To both of them the night had a strangely symbolic significance; whether they were drifting, and where the unseen power lay, was not clear. A huge liner from one of the German ports slipped across their bows with hoarse blasts of warning. They saw the misty glow of her lights for an instant, and even as they drew the sharp breath of fear, the night resumed its mantle and their own little vessel seemed to come to life again after the shock of alarm, and its engines throbbed the faster, just as the heart-beats quicken when reaction sets in.

CONFESSES KILLING HUSBAND.

Chicago, March 13.—George Penrose, who was on trial with Mrs. Louise Van Keuren, charged with killing the woman's husband last June, received his freedom today after Mrs. Van Keuren had confessed that she shot and killed her husband. Van Keuren, she claimed, had broken down the door to her apartment and she shot without knowing who was attempting to enter the rooms. The state rested its case after the confession had been read, and the court took Penrose's case from the jury and gave him his freedom.

ALL PROVINCES TO JOIN GOOD ROADS CONGRESS

An Expenditure of More Than $60,000 Involved in Present Programs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Montreal, March 13.—Every Province in Canada will be represented at the first Canadian and International Good Roads Congress, which will be in Montreal for six days, May 11 to 23. The delegates will discuss the 1914 programs which are interesting every part of the Dominion, for bettering these thoroughfares which will involve an expenditure of more than $60,000,000.

Every Province in the Dominion has given the subject of good roads increasing earnest consideration during the past few years and almost all appropriations for the expenditure of huge sums during 1914 have been made. Of the $60,000,000, a total of more than $32,000,000 is available for expenditures from appropriations made by the Legislatures of the various Provinces. Official figures for one or two Provinces have not been obtained, but statistics available today show the various Provinces of the Dominion rank as follows:

British Columbia	$6,000,000.00
Alberta	7,000,000.00
Saskatchewan	1,200,000.00
Manitoba	2,500,000.00
Ontario	8,500,000.00
Quebec	8,000,000.00
Nova Scotia	225,000.00
New Brunswick	100,000.00

$33,225,000.00
The present appropriation made in Ontario is just half the specified amount, $4,500,000, so the figure stated needs explanation. This sum is on hand now, ready for building and maintenance of roads, but the Province is expected to vote a similar sum at the present session of Parliament. The work last year done under provincial supervision, cost more than $10,000,000.

TIME EXTENDED FOR FENIAN RAID BOUNTIES

Limit Now Is December 31, 1915—Boon to Nova Scotia Men.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, March 13.—The Minister of Militia has given notice of a bill extending the time in which applications will be received for Fenian Raid bounty to December 31, 1915. The time had expired on the first of January last. This is an extension for two years. The bill will also provide for payment of bounty to widows of veterans who were living when the original act became law, on the first of April, 1912.

It is said that the extension of time will result in thousands of additional applications being received, especially from the Province of Nova Scotia, where the whole male population was called out for service in 1866. It is understood that many of the veterans in the Province when mustered out were not provided with arms and the impression prevailed until recently that only men who had been armed could obtain the bounty.

However, just before the time for applications expired a number of men who had been out without arms were given the bounty. The result was that others sought to get their applications in and were greatly disappointed to find that they had been too late.

As soon as the law extending the time for applications receives the royal sanction there will be thousands of Nova Scotia veterans heard from.

Pimples Are Signals of Distress

And By Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers They May Be Removed Quickly, Surely and Harmlessly.

Before the blood becomes entirely impoverished it tells man of its condition. It warns him repeatedly. These messages are conveyed by pimples, blotches, liver spots, eczema, tetter, rash, etc. If one disregards these symptoms one runs the risk of permanently diseasing the blood beyond hope of cure.

"You—spied on me?" she cried, in muffled tones. She lay very limp in his arms.

"I did," he confessed, without shame. "I did, but I don't regret it. I might be doing at this moment if I hadn't found you out in time! Think of me back there searching for you in every corner."

"Please, please!" she implored.

"But luck was with me. You can't get away, Hetty. I shall let you out of my sight again. I'll camp in front of your door, and you'll see me wither and die of sleeplessness, for one of the other of my eyes will always be open."

"Oh, I am so tired, so miserable," she murmured.

"Poor little sweetheart!"

"I wish you would hate me."

"Hie where you are, dearest, and—forget!"

"If I only could—forget!"

"I will hold you tight and keep you warm. We're in for a nasty crossing, but it is paradise for me. I am mad with the delight of having you here, holding you close to me, feeling you in my arms. The wilder the night the better, for I am wild with the joy of it all. I love you! I love you!" He strained her closer to him in a sort of paroxysm.

FIFTY THOUSAND FARMERS TO SIGN BOUNTY PROTEST

Hope to Prove Effective in Preventing Grant by Government.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Sarnia, March 12. — Vice-President Lloyd Lott, of local fence company, stated to The Advertiser this afternoon that he had been assured that the protest of the company and the organized farmers of the country would be given a thorough hearing before anything could be done by the Government. Petitions for fifty thousand names have been forwarded by the company to the farmers throughout the country, and they will be signed and sent to the House. This is the same method that was used years ago to stop the grant of bounties at that time.

The result of the farmers' appeal will be watched with great interest throughout the country.

FRENCH ARMY TO LOSE AN HISTORIC FEATURE

Women in Charge of Canteens Can No Longer Take Part in Active Service.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, March 13. — The picturesque cantinières, or women who take charge of the French regimental canteens, and who have played many heroic parts in French military history, are no longer to share the dangers of active service with the troops, according to the Minister of War.

The women, one of whom is commissioned to each battalion of infantry, regiment of cavalry, or battery of artillery, are in future to be retained simply in times of peace.

Formerly the women wearing the uniform of their branch of service, marched into battle with the troops, serving often as nurses, or carrying soothing drinks to the wounded. They were the wives of non-commissioned officers or musicians, and if their husbands died or were killed, usually married a comrade. Other- wise they could not remain in the service.

EDDY'S FIBREWARE

TUBS AND PAILS RETAIN THE HEAT OF THE WATER MUCH LONGER THAN THE WOODEN OR GALVANIZED IRON TUBS, ARE CHEAPER THAN THE LATTER, AND WILL NOT RUST THE CLOTHES.

Easy Way To Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines which they play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercurochrome wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of axolite, 1 oz. dissolved in half pint witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.—Advt.

FAIR GROUNDS VALUE $240,000

Assessment Commissioner Prepares Plan To Be Submitted to Board of Control When Sale Is Considered.

On Monday the board of control will consider Aid. George H. Haney's motion to appoint a committee to consider the advisability of securing a new site for the Western Fair grounds and the prospects for selling the old grounds to advantage. Assessment Commissioner Stephen Grant has prepared a plan of Queen's Park and the adjoining lands that comprise the present fair grounds property, the whole being estimated at approximately $240,000. Secretary A. M. Hunt, of the Western Fair Association, in an interview the other day, did not favor changing the location, and estimated that it would cost close to a million dollars to secure sufficient land and erect the necessary buildings. Mr. Hunt admitted that the present grounds were too small, but thought that additional land could be secured to remedy the crowded conditions.

Some east end people, as represented by Aid. Haney, would like to see the present fair grounds cut up into building property, on the ground that such a procedure would do much to enhance the value of other holdings in that section of the city. They claim that the property is too large, too valuable and too well located to warrant its being tied up year after year simply for exhibition purposes, and that cheaper land in some other section of the suburbs should be secured.

DENIES APPOINTMENT.

[Canadian Press.] New York, N. Y., March 14.—Hugh L. Cooper, of New York, the engineer who built the Keokuk power dam across the Mississippi, denied today the recent report from Washington that he had been designated consulting engineer for the Egyptian Government in the construction of the new Nile dam.

CONFERENCE ON THE HOME RULE QUESTION

Rumor Has It That "Covenanters" Are Soon To Prepare for Mobilization.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, March 14.—A London cable to the Mail says: "There was another conference yesterday at No. 11 Downing street, between Lloyd George and Mr. Birrell, Irish secretary, and Messrs. John Redmond, Devlin, O'Connor and Dillon. Subsequently Mr. Birrell conferred with Winston Churchill, Colonel Seely, secretary for war, and Sir John Simon, attorney-general, at the Irish office."

The personnel of the conference is significant, and lends color to a rumor said to be current in Ulster circles that orders are about to be given that the "Covenanters" shall prepare for mobilization early in April, unless the Government yields further concessions. Public opinion is, however, generally undisturbed.

ASK FOR HYDRO RADIAL AT BELMONT

Deputation Interviews Minister of Power as to Prospects.

A deputation from Belmont and vicinity waited on Hon. Adam Beck this afternoon to press the claims of that district for a hydro-radial from Aylmer to London via Belmont, and also for the distribution of hydro power throughout the section. The deputation, comprising about twelve representative men, sought information as to costs, etc., of the proposed line and power.

The deputation presented petitions signed by several thousand persons in various municipalities asking that the Ontario commission take steps towards building the desired road. When the estimates are complete, the municipalities will vote on the subject.

AGAIN SUGGESTS RIVER "BOULEVARD" SCHEME

Park Commissioner Believes Idea Is Impartial—Would Beautify the City.

Park Commissioner Emory Hamilton has revived the plan for beautifying the banks of the "Vicinity" of Tecumseh Park with shade trees and a river drive, and the suggestion may be considered by the parks commission. Mr. Hamilton thinks that the street sweepings could be dumped along the bank of the river and supplemented with other dirt, would make a permanent roadway that would be a source of much pride and pleasure to citizens in general.

"With plenty of trees, grass and electric lights, together with a nice driveway around the river," said Commissioner Hamilton, "the effect would be pretty, and with the boats sailing up and down the river, we would have a miniature Venice."

WILL ENDEAVOR TO HAVE BOATS CALL

Board of Trade To Take Up the Question of Lake Connection for Port Stanley.

The executive of the board of trade will meet next week, when the question of taking steps to have the lake freight boats stop at Port Stanley this summer will be brought forward. Word has been received in the city from a Montreal shipping concern to the effect that Port Stanley will be discontinued this summer as a port of call. The business last year apparently not having warranted the further continuance of the service.

The question is being taken up with the R. and O. Navigation Company, and a strong effort will be made to keep the boats on the Port Stanley run this year. It is stated that the company has decided to also eliminate Sarnia from its calling list.

The executive will also recommend the names of members who are to be sent as the board's representatives on the radial waterways deputation.

The question of making a grant to the Great Waterways Union will also be discussed.

CONSERVATIVE PAPER HINTS AT AN INTRIGUE

Suggests Lloyd George and J. Ramsay MacDonald May Start a New Party.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, March 14.—A London cable to the Daily Mail says: The Daily Express (Conservative), prints an article hinting at a political intrigue which aims at the establishment of a working alliance between Lloyd George, the chancellor of the exchequer, and J. Ramsay MacDonald, the leader of the parliamentary labor party. It is based upon Lloyd George's eagerness to secure a compromise on home rule and Mr. MacDonald's hint in the debate on Monday last that the Government should drop the time limit feature of its offer to Ulster.

The Express says that both leaders are eager to get home rule out of the way, and it is already anticipated that after the next general election they will act together in the formation of a Radical Socialist coalition, which will be in active opposition to the imperialist Liberals represented by Sir Edward Grey and Winston Churchill.

CLUB MATCH A DRAW

Hyman Hall and South London Euclre Teams Play to a Tie.

The inter-club match between euclre teams from the London Liberal Club and the South London Liberal Club, played at the South London Liberal Club smoken last night, resulted in a draw. There were fifteen tables, with a total attendance of more than 75. The evening's entertainment was an enjoyable one. Short speeches were made by President James McCormick, of the South London Club, and by George S. Gibbons, and others. The first prize for the individual scores went to Samuel Sieman, 110 Marley Place, who made a perfect score, going through the entire night's play without losing a single game.

$61,945 IN PERMITS.

Total for Month to Date Compares Well With Last Year.

Building permits issued so far this month, total $61,945, as against $52,589 for the whole of March, 1913. This is considered a very satisfactory figure, and before the end of the month it is expected that last year's total will be appreciably exceeded.

John Hayman & Sons have taken out a permit to transform the old Eccles property on Queen's avenue into a four-family apartment-house, at a cost of $1,000. Other permits include one to A. Dickinson for a two-story brick-veneer dwelling on Ridout street, to cost $2,200; C. O'Rourke, a $1,200 frame cottage on Jacques street, Chelsea Green, and the new radial power station on Horton street, $22,900.

McADOO CAPTURES WHITE HOUSE BRIDE

[Canadian Press.] Washington, March 13.—"The President and Mrs. Wilson announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Eleanor Randolph, to Hon. William Gibbs McAdoo."

This announcement was issued at the White House by Secretary Tumulty tonight, after a day of speculation in capital official and society circles over the prospects for another White House wedding in June.

The youngest of the family, Miss Eleanor, is said to be her father's pet and there is a strong personal friendship between the President and the man who is to marry his daughter.

Secretary McAdoo is fifty years of age and Miss Wilson is twenty-four.

Forget Your Stomach

Anyone in perfect health never "feels" at the stomach. It's forgotten like any other part of a perfect running machine. No jar, no shock, no sensations at all; just easy, pleasant, restful work—duty well done.

The Way

lies in the proper selection of food and drink, getting down to Nature's principles—plenty of fresh air, good water, and particularly plenty of good food that will easily digest, and nourish and rebuild—not clog up.

Understanding how the body works upon food and what elements it requires to rebuild itself, this knowledge was used to produce the perfect food—

Grape-Nuts

It contains the natural Phosphate of Potash which the life forces especially require for rebuilding bone, muscle, brain and nerves.

Then again, in Grape-Nuts a part of the starch of the wheat and barley has been changed into sugar by the baking at the factory. That is exactly the condition which starchy food—bread, oatmeal, potatoes, etc., assumes in the act of natural digestion. So we find Grape-Nuts has passed through this process outside the body, and is therefore partially pre-digested—a tremendous help for those who are a bit weak in digestive power. And so of health, with its glow, vigor and energy, will come back. The years are forgotten, and so is the stomach, but you'll know

Germans of high rank are settling in Alberta. But they should be told Western Ontario is the only place where saurkraut crops flourish.

If the Pankhursts continue their hunger strikes much longer they may waste away to the point where there won't be enough left to arrest.

America's smart set must feel rather taken back to be told that the Paris gowns for which they pay so dearly are merely American gowns made in France.

The Western University hockey team went after that championship and brought it home with them yesterday; modern argonauts winning the golden fleece.

Deputations seem to be having considerable success at Ottawa this session, especially those in the forty million dollar class. "A return of all the papers" might prove interesting.

The duty on agricultural implements may be lowered, but if a bonus is granted to the iron industry, the farmer will pay toward the ore producers, out of his taxes what he may save on his implements.

How W. J. Hanna, it is said, has promised to enforce the Scott act. The people would excuse Mr. Hanna from making promises if they could see him perform. Why, in any event, should a cabinet minister promise repeatedly to do his duty?

Toronto's tax rate is to be something less than twenty mills and the mayor feels the necessity of calling a mass meeting of ratepayers to explain where the money is all going. London's tax rate last year was twenty-four mills and the people returned the same administration to office.

The social service congress at Ottawa recently asked for an inquiry by the royal commission into the Vancouver Island strike. This is the strike that is in progress when the Minister of Labor suddenly felt the need of a vacation in Europe. The Government, without attempt at defence, put its stamp of approval on the Hon. Mr. Crothers' acts, so there is little prospect of a royal commission being appointed.

"Two more United States regiments move to the border," ran the headline of the Mad Mullah's morning paper.

"Call out the reserves!" shouted the M. M. "Give me the code book! Get the war office on the cable! Wake up, Col. Dennison!"

Then he glanced at the article and found it was not the Canadian but the Mexican border upon which the troops were advancing, and subsided. Quite angry at the United States just the same.

Rev. John Coburn, grand chaplain of the Orange Society, was dropped from office at the session this week. Reporters for some of the Conservative papers intimate that his action in making speeches in favor of Mr. Rowell's "banish the bar" policy during the election in East Middlesex may have been the cause. At least, they do not put it that way; they speak of his opposition to Mr. McFarland. It comes to the same thing. Of course, it is the Orangemen's own business.

The United States authorities have been making a stubborn fight against the trend of emigration from that country to Canada. Lately it was announced with considerable flourish of trumpets that large numbers of the emigrants were deserting the Dominion, and going back to their old home. The Minister of the Interior in Parliament this week announced the result of a careful inquiry to show that while some had permanently removed from Canada, a large number had simply gone back on a visit to their old homes. They were only temporarily absent, while of the Canadians who had emigrated to the States, fifty per cent had returned to us. There will always be a certain number from Canada who will remove to the republic, but it is evident that Canada more than holds its own despite all the efforts made by the authorities over the lines to prevent it.

HATS OFF TO BERLIN.

BERLIN, Ontario, means to be beautiful as well as busy. The most pretentious scheme of town planning undertaken by any Ontario city is in tentative shape, an American expert having brought down his drawings and conclusions after an exhaustive investigation into the thriving city, from a topographical and architectural standpoint.

The services of the specialist, amounting to $1,500, were paid from the private purse of several public-spirited citizens, but no man who is conscious of the trend toward the development of cities along prescribed lines will argue that the money was not well spent. Berlin has seen great communities grow on patchwork plans and these cities now find it necessary to invest millions in undoing the early and narrow tendencies to let a village merely grow into a town, a town into a city, and a city into a vast unorganized conglomeration of all three. Just as a boy should change, at least enlarge his habiliments when he enters man's estate, so should a city. But instead we have overgrown boys of cities with village-sized pants and vest or side-walks and streets; cities with transportation equipments many sizes too small; crooked street lines and inadequate boulevards.

For many cities the town-planner comes too late. Toronto, for instance, is to spend $2,000,000 to widen Yonge street; years ago a surveyor could have provided adequate traffic ways by counting off fifty paces instead of twenty. London and every other growing Western Ontario city should have foresight in these matters. Not alone for beauty, but for utility should a vision of our future greatness be materialized in the bylaws of the city. Wherever houses are to be removed to make place for business buildings the street line should be expanded, and proper restrictions should be embodied in a clearly-outlined movement. London has had the issue urged upon it; aside from the poetry of it, the desire to build our house for a greater and more prosperous and a happier civic family should lift us to the work.

MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS.

A YEAR ago the Provincial Government asked the Legislature for authority to borrow five millions for the development of Northern Ontario. It was a most indefinite proposition, for there was no specified time or object for the expenditure. It was contrary to the well-established British parliamentary practice which requires a government to ask each year for the money it needs for that year, which requires a clear statement of how the money should be spent, and which forbids, except under grave emergencies, the spending of any money which has not been specifically appropriated for the purpose. The Liberal Opposition fought hard for the British practice, but the Government's large majority obediently passed the measure.

The consequences anticipated have been realized. Under the power thus acquired the Government has borrowed more money than it spent in Northern Ontario, has placed the borrowed money to its credit as ordinary revenue, and has utilized it for general expenses. Had it borrowed no more money under the Northern Ontario development act than it spent in that section of the Province, its nominal surplus would have been in the neighborhood of $100,000, instead of over three times that amount. Nominal, we say, for had it not been for counting as revenue borrowed money, repayments of loans, and receipts from the sale of assets, there would have been a huge deficit instead of a surplus. But that is a matter solely of improper bookkeeping resorted to for the purpose of blinding the public. A more serious matter is the new policy of utilizing as ordinary revenue money borrowed under special authority for a specific purpose, and spending it for something else. Of course the pliable majority in the Legislature sustains the Government in its irregular proceedings, and the ministers will justify themselves on the ground that they approve of the purposes for which the money was spent. But it establishes a dangerous precedent. Following it, a Government might take authority to borrow ten millions to carry on the business of the Province, and spend the money as it pleased for any or all nominal Provincial objects—erecting buildings, making roads, raising salaries, giving donations—anything it chose. All a Government need to do is to say to Parliament we need so much money for this year, never mind what we are going to spend it for. Trust us to be honest and economical and wise. It would simplify legislative proceedings very much, and save time now spent in discussion.

CHANGING CONTRACT PRICES.

MESSRS. Staunton and Guelins, in their investigation into the construction of the National Transcontinental road, found that the Liberal Government's commission had allowed a change in contract price in one or two cases. Where the contractor had tendered on the basis of earth excavation, and had subsequently found himself in rock instead of soft dirt, he had been allowed something extra. And this, of course, is laid down as evidence of wastefulness and graft.

A BAD COMBINATION.

Two dead Montreal policemen and the escape of a party of desperate burglars form melancholy evidence that gunmen, guns and automobiles are a combination which ordinary police methods cannot cope with.

er day shows that the present Government had let a contract in Quebec in which the figure for earth excavation was 85 cents per cubic yard. The work was supposed to be done in the summer. But in order to provide employment the contractor was allowed to go on during the winter, and was allowed $2.30 per yard, because the dirt was frozen. That meant a difference of $36,000 on the cost of the work.

Contrast the two cases. A moderate increase on account of digging through stone instead of earth was a very reprehensible transaction, but a jump from 85 cents to $2.30 cents when the dirt was more or less frozen was all right. The one case was under a Liberal Government, the second under the immaculate Mr. Borden. One was all wrong, the other all right. Had the case been reversed, had the Tory Government allowed for stone, and the Grits for frost, the former would have been right, and the latter wrong. Under this rule you can always tell whether a certain action is right or wrong. What we do is right, what the other party does is wrong.

HORRORS IN FIGURES.

THE Balkan people are now counting the cost of the war. The Serbian minister of war has just given his report to Parliament of the losses to that small kingdom, which are no less than 12,000 killed and 48,000 wounded. Two thousand five hundred died from after effects of wounds; between 11,000 and 12,000 from sickness, besides 4,300 from cholera. One of every fifty male Servians dead! A high mill rate.

THE QUALITY OR MERCY.

JUDGE Morgan, of Toronto, in a farewell speech on retiring from the bench after long years of service, reviewed the policy he had adopted in his work. Except in the case of confirmed criminals, he says, leniency is better than vindictiveness in the treatment of offenders. Law should not be vindictive. A criminal should not be submitted to a penalty as an act of vengeance on the part of society. He is punished for the protection of the community, but the best results are obtained if with the minimum of punishment there can be secured the maximum of reform.

This is modern doctrine. The drastic codes of past ages seem to have been framed in a spirit of revenge. An eye for an eye, and sometimes much more. Because a person had injured some one, he should be injured in return. It did not matter whether the punishment made the criminal a worse man, or a greater menace to society than he was before. The progress of modern civilization has developed new and more humane ideas. We realize now that the great object of punishment is the prevention of crime in the future, more than the discomfort of the criminal. That does not mean that the criminal should be pampered, or made the subject of silly sentiment. But it does mean that he should be treated as a human being, subject to reformatory influences, and capable of being improved.

Judge Morgan's policy is that of the modern British bench, and it is the best, both for the offender and for society.

MODERN HAPPINESS.

A GENTLEMAN of sixty remarked the other day, speaking of the long walks in his youth to country schools, churches and meetings, that there was just as much happiness in the days before modern conveniences as now. He would not believe that telephones, trolleys, picture palaces, painless surgery, electric light, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, gas stoves, rubbers, pneumatic tires, shower baths, church organs and so on, have made the Canadian people any happier.

Happiness is generally admitted to be a matter of the inner life. Philosophers who love paradox have assured us that the wise man can be happy on the rack; though one of Shakespeare's characters says that there was never philosopher yet who could endure toothache with equanimity.

With the increased perils of city streets it would perhaps be rash to say that we have a greater sense of security than of old. Yet it is pleasant to have a telephone within reach or a fire alarm handy, and it can hardly be denied that freedom from fear or anxiety is a part of happiness. Hence it was once said, "Call no man happy till he is dead."

Children are more humanely treated by far than forty years ago, both at home and in school. Men have more holidays and shorter hours of labor. Women's work is lightened by a dozen contrivances in the home. The farmer takes a couple of hours' sleep more a morning than when he got up with the birds, and his telephone is a joy forever, under qualification of the eavesdropping, sometimes a topic of complaint. Less work and more sleep are creature comforts, and yet after all the inner life is not unaffected by these things.

Old folks tell of the snow and cold of former winters. Perhaps the houses were not so well heated, and chilblains consequently abounded. Many a toothless mouth now "gumming it" might still boast a scattering array of teeth if modern dentistry had been as universally practiced forty years since as today. On the whole, the last stage of life has less chance than formerly of being "sans eyes, sans teeth, sans anything."

ABE MARTIN

In the old days before the player-planner and the phonograph, a feller could visit his friends with safety. Just as young men are all supposed to do when'er they meet a peach. Each one gave her a diamond ring. Which is, of course, the proper thing. To do when'er you'd win the smile. From summer girls that are worth while. The season over with at last. Her ardent beach admirers passed. From memory as quick as scat. The sequel of the tale is that she married one who stayed at home. All summer long and didn't roam. From business drudgery and sich. The kind of man who waxes rich. And doesn't peddle diamond rings. And pretty compliments and things. With this man Cupid never balks. It is a case of where money talks.

She had admirers by the score. When summering down by the shore. And each of them in time proposed. Just as young men are all supposed. To do when'er they meet a peach. Down at the high-topped bathing beach. Each one gave her a diamond ring. Which is, of course, the proper thing. To do when'er you'd win the smile. From summer girls that are worth while. The season over with at last. Her ardent beach admirers passed. From memory as quick as scat. The sequel of the tale is that she married one who stayed at home. All summer long and didn't roam. From the Hickeyville Clarion. It was rumored that Elmer Jones had bought a new slide trombone and was practicing on it nights in anticipation of joining the Hoptertown Silver Cornet Band, but it turned out to be a canard. Elmer had simply adopted the fresh air fad and was sleeping outdoors. What the neighbors heard was Elmer snoring. Property in that neighborhood has depreciated 20 per cent in two weeks.

Mr. Anne Frisby has the iron dogs in his front yard painted green. Huh! Some feller's idea of the artifice is far fetched. Who ever see a green dog?

SAVE THE BIRDS.

[Windsor Record.] In all, about 13,000 species of birds are known to science; of this number only 325 have been found in Ontario. The birds are more efficient in keeping down insect pests than are all other agencies, natural and artificial, combined. If not persecuted, they will attack themselves to the farm, garden, and orchard, where their services are of the greatest value. Save the birds.

Dr. Hill Replies

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Mr. William Westell, of Sparta, writes in your column, March 11, 1914, on vaccination, referring to a previous letter on the same subject, which I failed to see at the time. He quotes the words, "probabilities" that this, that, and the other might "perhaps" happen. The whole column of "probabilities" as "proving" that measles, etc., convey no immunity is knocked out by the mere consideration of commonplace facts. Since 90 to 95 per cent of the population has this disease once, and measles is "epidemic" every year, in the sense epidemic is used in smallpox outbreaks, then on Professor Vogt's own showing, the chances of anyone having measles twice, if there were no immunity, would be the square of 90-100, or 81 per cent, i.e., 81 per cent of the population would have measles twice. The square of 81-100 gives (in round numbers) 65 1/2 per cent, which means that practically two-thirds of the population would have measles three times. The square of this gives 42 per cent of the population having measles four times. The square of 42-100 gives about 18 per cent having measles five times. The square of this shows 3 1/2 per cent having measles six times, and one and one-fourth per cent having measles seven times.

In other words, a population of 1,000 adults would represent approximately 900 first attacks, 810 second attacks, 655 third attacks, 430 fourth attacks, 180 fifth attacks, 35 sixth attacks, 14 seventh attacks, or 3,924 attacks for each thousand persons. The least informed person knows that this is absolute piffle. As a matter of fact, if pure accident ruled, exposure to measles with so much existing specific resistance to disease. It may be complete or partial, permanent or temporary, and, as in everything else connected with life, there are occasional exceptions to the general rules. An attack of smallpox confers an immunity which is complete and permanent in the vast majority of persons, perhaps one case in 10,000 having smallpox twice. (I do not know the exact figures for such

A Red Nose Sufferer.

Dear Miss Grey: I thank you for past favors and will please tell me a cure for a red nose? I do not think it is indigestion and I very seldom take any liquor.

CONSTANT READER.

Ans.—Your trouble is probably caused by poor circulation. Person so afflicted generally have cold hands and feet. Should advise vigorous exercise and frequent baths, followed by alcohol rubs, providing there is no abnormal condition of the heart which forbids violent exercise. A hot mustard footbath at the night is recommended and care of the diet, making plenty of milk, raw eggs and green vegetables and avoiding pastry, sweets and acids. Take plenty of pure water.

Initials On Writing Paper.

Dear Miss Grey: I enjoy your department very much and read it every day. But I have never seen the question I intend to ask you answered. Does an unmarried girl use her first or last initials on writing paper and seals? With best wishes for the future success of the corner.

CELIA G.

Ans.—The initials of the last name is the one to use on stationery and seal, but I think a monogram is very pretty. Thank you for the good wish expressed.

Advice for Furnishing.

Dear Miss Grey: In buying china dishes would you advise including bone dishes, bread and butter dishes, and individual dishes, or are the bread and butter plates appropriate for all three meals of the day?

In preparing a dining-room of medium size, with three south windows, black ash finish, what colored paper and rug would you use? There is no plate rail. Would you advise plain or figured net, cotton voile, scrim or lace for the curtains?

tains? I have two large ferns for the room.
Ans.—Bread and butter plates will answer every purpose and I would not advise getting anything else. In the dining-room, I think you would be pleased with gray walls and either a gray blue rug or a green one. You will like a plain net for the curtains; both have excellent wearing qualities. Find the ferns in jardiniere of brass or copper.

To Make Wheat Coffee.

Dear Miss Grey: I think, perhaps, this is the recipe asked for by "Brown Eyes" in Monday, March 9, Advertiser. I have used it for a number of years and it is much enjoyed by my family, and is very nourishing.

Wheat Coffee.—Put about 2 quarts of wheat, after washing and drying it, in a pan in oven, let brown nicely, stirring frequently. Then put into a frying pan one tablespoon butter and three tablespoons of black-strap molasses. Put in your pan of wheat and brown, stirring constantly. The flavor can be varied by the degree of browning given either time. Allow one tablespoon of prepared wheat for each person. It requires half an hour boiling at least, and more is better. We all enjoy your column very much, and thank you for your many helpful recipes and words.

Yours sincerely,
M. A. B. G.
Ans.—What a joy it is to receive such a helpful letter as this! I have great delight in passing the recipe on to our readers, and hope that "Brown Eyes" does not miss it.

It is practically shapeless with loose cuffs under the wrap are worn gray top patent leather button boots and a taffeta hat, the newest for spring.

spring, striped duvetine in a rich sweet-pea shade. The only trimming is silk embroidered arrow-heads, and the garment is lined with champagne silk and facing capes, and the house is occupied in attending, once in a year, at a polling booth, even if we throw in the time spent in reading newspapers and political treatises, has hitherto made them neglect their shops or their counting-houses. I have not heard that those who have votes are worse merchants, or worse lawyers, physicians, or even worse clergymen, than other people. The occupations of most women are, and are likely to remain, principally domestic; but the idea that these occupations are incompatible with taking an interest in national affairs, or in any of the great concerns of humanity, is as futile as the terror once sincerely entertained lest artisans should desert the workshops and the factory if they were taught to read. Copies of this speech are included in the literature of the depository.

Pot-Pourri

Conducted by "THE NOMAD."

Some extremely interesting pamphlets, booklets and circulars have been included in the depository of the London Suffrage Society in charge of Mrs. E. M. Tilley, 554 King street. It is to be hoped that some of this literature will find a place on the reading table of every home in London and district. Whether or not in favor of woman suffrage, it is only fair to give the matter individual study and consideration.

Some Suffrage Books

Read, for instance, the famous speech of John Stuart Mill, on suffrage for women, delivered in 1867, and in which he sets forth so clearly and logically the reasons why women should be enfranchised. Here is how the fine pioneer exponent of woman's suffrage answers the statement that politics is not woman's business: "I am not aware that politics is a man's business either, unless he is one of the few who are paid for devoting his time to the public service, or is a member of this or of the other house. The great majority of male voters have their own business which engages nearly the whole of their time; but I have never heard that the house occupied in attending, once in a year, at a polling booth, even if we throw in the time spent in reading newspapers and political treatises, has hitherto made them neglect their shops or their counting-houses. I have not heard that those who have votes are worse merchants, or worse lawyers, physicians, or even worse clergymen, than other people. The occupations of most women are, and are likely to remain, principally domestic; but the idea that these occupations are incompatible with taking an interest in national affairs, or in any of the great concerns of humanity, is as futile as the terror once sincerely entertained lest artisans should desert the workshops and the factory if they were taught to read." Copies of this speech are included in the literature of the depository.

Another splendid argument in favor of woman suffrage is found in a little book entitled "Christian Citizenship," in which is claimed the right of women to have an equal voice with men, not only in affairs of the community but also in the church.

Christian Citizenship

Believe that the great vices in our large cities will never be conquered until the ballot is put into the hands of women, says Bishop Hearst. The woman with influence plus the ballot is a far greater power without the ballot. Women are today, and have always been, the mainstay and chief supporters of the churches and the leaders in all great moral reforms, yet as a disfranchised class they are powerless to give any material aid in bringing about social and moral reforms that depend upon legislative or governmental action," says the writer of this bright little book.

Those who desire to learn some actual results of "votes for women" should read an account of their enfranchisement in America as told by the members in the different towns in the suffrage states. The general voice appears to be that it has been an unqualified success.

Among the many valuable leaflets are noted such titles as "Some Catholic Opinions," "Do Teachers Need the Ballot?" "Women, Children and the Ballot," and "The Unanswerable Argument Answered."

SCHOOL SANDWICHES.

Sandwiches of some sort or other usually form the principal part of most school lunches. The woman who studies the problem of how best to prepare them will probably find that if she begins preparations the day ahead she can save herself time and nervousness in the morning and provide far more variety.

The Sun and Neptune are in places held to be fortunate for human affairs. Astrologers find this a day in which to push business interests, seek employment and solicit the co-operation of persons of influence. Mars, however, is in an aspect that is threatening, and it is well not to provoke a quarrel.

Old-Fashioned Molasses Cookies.

Recipe No. 1.—One-half cup sugar, and half a cup of hot water and half a cup of shortening, one cup molasses, one teaspoon soda, a little salt and half a teaspoon of ginger. Flour enough to roll.

Recipe No. 2.—One-half cup sugar, two-thirds cup shortening melted, one cup of molasses, half a cup of milk (very sour), one dessertspoon of soda (level), one teaspoon heaping full cinnamon, a pinch of salt, and four to roll; roll quite thick. They are nice, soft cookies and will keep soft.

Lemon Marmalade.

Wash the lemons and boil them in plenty of water for two to three hours. When the rind is sufficiently tender to be pierced with a straw or a pin's head, the fruit has cooked long enough. Remove it from the fire, wipe it dry, and slice very thinly, taking out all pips. To each pound of fruit pulp add one pint of water (using that in which the lemons were boiled), and one pound of sugar. Boil for about an hour or until the mixture sets, then put into pots.

Two Good Pudding Sauces.

Royal Sauce.—To one part of sweet cream and two parts of boiling water; sweeten well and flavor with powdered mace. This is a delicious sauce to serve with rice puddings, apple dumplings, etc.

Brown Sauce.—One-half teaspoonful of brown sugar mixed with one-fourth of a cup of butter; add a pinch of hot water, a little vinegar, and as desired. Thicken with one tablespoonful of flour moistened with a little milk, and boil. This sauce should be served hot.

A DAY IN THE SPORTING WORLD

SIDE LIGHTS ON MANY SPORTSL. C. I. LADIES WON,

Ingersoll Ladies 2 to 1.

WOODSTOCK COLLEGE WON

Defeated Strong Aggregation of Local Players in Fast Game
by 2 to 1.

The London Collegiate girls won their game from the Ingersoll ladies' hockey team at the Princess Rink last evening, but a team representing the L. C. I. boys went down to defeat before the Woodstock College seven by the score of 6 to 5 in an exciting and nicely-played contest.

Girls' Game Interesting.

The girls' game was an interesting one, the local maidens winning out by the score of 2 to 1. The half-time score was 1 to 0 in their favor. The Ingersoll ladies were older than the L. C. I. girls and their win over Paris and the practice they secured in Woodstock and Whitby against the ladies' teams of those places made them appear formidable before the game started. However, after the contest had gotten fairly under way the local girls showed them some new tricks, and it was soon apparent that the visitors were in for a beating.

Miss McBride, Miss Ward and Miss Woolley played splendidly for the L. C. I. ladies, and Miss Beasars and Miss Eva Clarke put up the best game for the Ingersoll team. Eddie Schumacher handled the game. The teams were:

Ingersoll: London. Edith McKee Goal. Susie McKone Anna Beasars R. defence Mabel Thorne Edith Hill L. defence. Marie June Eva Clarke R. defence. Centre. Muriel McBride Alice Jones Centre. Muriel McBride Marjorie Taylor L. wing. Katherine Ralph Vera Jones R. wing. Pauline Ward Centre. Near End.

The second game was a thriller, especially in the last few minutes of play, when the locals ran up to within one goal of the Woodstock College seven after the latter had taken a good lead. The final goal saved the visitors, however, and the locals had to be content with the small end of a 6 to 5 score. The count was 3 to 2 at half-time in favor of the visitors.

The L. C. I. team had Eddie McKay, Johnny Ross, Al Moore, George Wardrop and "Swifty" Morenz on its line-up, but even the formidable array of local experts could not pull out a win. The Woodstock seven was a strong one. Armstrong, the Woodstock junior player, being on its line. The visitors were a heavy and tidy-looking aggregation, and they looked far better than they did when they played here during the O. H. A. season. Wallace, at centre, was the star, and his work contributed largely to the victory. Armstrong also played a nice game, while Dunlop, in the nets, made a number of great stops. The visitors had speed and some nice combination plays.

Wardrop a Little Off. George Wardrop had an off-night in the nets, and he looked a trifle "bushy" in some of the shots. Al Moore did not play his usual game, either. Morenz and Johnny Ross were the pick of the locals, while Eddie Schumacher, in the nets, made a number of great stops. The visitors had speed and some nice combination plays.

The teams: Woodstock. Goal. Wardrop. Sutherland. L. defence. McKee. Ross. Warren. R. defence. McKee. Armstrong. Centre. Morenz. Cavanaugh. Left wing. Moore. Gray. Right wing. McCrimmon.

Throughout, Winning 5 to 4.

Winnipeg, March 13.—The Allan cup, carrying with it the amateur hockey championship of the world, after sojourning in Winnipeg for the last four winters, takes a trip further west. The Regina Victorias did the trick tonight, they they scored four goals in the first twenty minutes of the game, and though the Monarchs fought back like fiends they could not pull down the early lead.

WANDERERS LEAVE

Vancouver and Quebec Clubs.

Montreal, March 13.—The Wanderers hockey team left tonight for New York, where they will play the first of a series of games for a purse of $5,000 between Wanderers, Quebec and Vancouver. The first game will be between Wanderers and Quebec, the second between Quebec and Vancouver, and the third between Wanderers and Vancouver, the team making the highest aggregate of goals to take the first money.

The Wanderers tried to get Skene Roman and Clint Benedict, but Ottawa would not allow them to make the trip. It was stated that Frank Patrick had drafted Roman and that he would insist on Ottawa letting him go should the Wanderers want him.

Big Pirate Catcher Says He Is In Grand
Shape—Pirates Have To Desert Dawson's
Springs For Hot Springs Owing to Cold Weather.

(BY JINK.)

The continued cold weather in the here-tore "sunny south" has caused the Pittsburgh National League team to pull up stakes at its training camp in Dawson Springs, Kentucky, and hike for Hot Springs, Ark., according to a letter from George "Mooney" Gibson, the big Pirate catcher. The Pittsburgh Club arrived in Hot Springs yesterday and it will finish its spring work at that place.

Dawson Springs Nice Place. According to Gibson, the Dawson Springs camp is a fine one and one well liked by the members of the Pittsburgh Club. The people here did everything in their power to make the stay a pleasant one for the team and the players were very sorry to leave. They will be back again next season, when it expected the weather will be such as to enable the club to get its full work out here.

Sarnia, March 13.—Tomorrow night the Preston hockey team and the Exhibits, of Sarnia, will clash at St. Andrew's arena and the sports of the town are looking for a fast game. The last game between these two teams resulted in the first defeat that the Exhibits have had, but the boys from the east will have to go a lot faster to trim the "Imports" here. It is estimated that the rink will be packed, as everybody is figuring on going to the game. Unless the weather takes a quick change the ice will not be very good.

Undoing of the Junior Champions.

A good game of hockey was played at St. Thomas last night between the Swastikas and the Wellington Street Methodist Junior hockey teams.

The Swastikas, who played in the Interdenominational Hockey League as the St. James Juniors and won the junior championship of that league, played a good game, but the effective rushes of Campbell, of the Wellingtons, the close play of McBurney and the good team work behind them proved too much for the junior champions, and they were defeated by the score of 5 to 2. The score at half time stood 2 to 0. The winners' lineup was as follows:

Barney Clarke refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

MANAGEMENT BLAMED

Referee Makes Serious Charges Against Officials of Organization.

SUIT MAY STOP ERECTION OF CHICAGO FEDERAL PARK

Property-Owner Near Park Has Issued Injunction to Restrain Building of Stands.

Chicago, March 13.—A suit to prevent the erection of the Chicago Federal League plant was brought in the Cook County Circuit Court today by Herman Croon, owner of property near the site of the proposed park. The plaintiff asserted in his bill that Charles Weeghman, William N. Walker and James A. Gilmore, incorporators of the club, had failed to file with the building commissioner the written consent of a majority of the property owners on the streets surrounding the park. An injunction restraining the defendants from building grandstands and from advertising their intention to hold exhibitions of baseball was asked.

The concrete foundations of the grandstand and bleachers are about completed, work having been in progress on the plant for over a week.

NO RUNNING RACES
FOR LONDON THIS YEAR

Canadian Stewards Do Not Include This City in Dates.

HOPE FOR RACES NEXT YEAR

It Is Not Likely Track Will Be Completed Until 1915—List of Dates Announced.

That there is little likelihood of local followers of the racing game attending a meet this year on the mile track that is being constructed east of the city limits is proven by the fact that the Canadian racing stewards have sanctioned this year's dates and have failed to include the Forest City in their list.

"You can take it from me that there is little chance of us having anything but the merry-go-round at Queen's Park and our old Josh Billings with his even money book until 1915, when there may be something doing in the bangtail game here," stated a man who is closely connected with all that has to do in the line of the sport.

The dates allotted for this season's meets are:

Montreal Jockey Club, May 22 to 29; Ontario Jockey Club, Toronto, May 23 to 30; Montreal Jockey Club, May 30 to June 6; Dorval Jockey Club, Montreal, June 8 to 15; Connaught Driving Club, June 16 to 23; Hamilton Jockey Club, June 23 to July 2; Montreal Driving Club, June 27 to July 2; Racing Association, Fort Erie, July 4 to 11; Windsor Jockey Club, July 15 to July 22; Hamilton Jockey Club, July 23 to August 3; Racing Association, Fort Erie, August 5 to 12; Windsor Jockey Club, August 15 to 22; Connaught Jockey Club, Ottawa, August 23 to September 2; Montreal Driving Club, September 3 to 12; Dorval Park, Montreal, September 14 to 21; Ontario Jockey Club, Toronto, September 19 to 21.

HYDRO-RADIAL UNION

The Surrounding Municipalities Join in Support of the Movement.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Stratford, March 13.—Stratford, with the unanimous support of 130 delegates from the surrounding municipalities and city hall full of representative local citizens, entered the hydro-radial game tonight by becoming a member of the Hydro-Radial Union of Western Ontario. The platform was crowded with natives from the municipalities surrounding and with prominent men.

Elected as officers were: Honorary president, Hon. Adam Beck; president, W. J. Mooney; first vice-president, Mayor John Stevenson; second vice-president, C. McLeod; secretary, D. A. McLachlan; treasurer, R. Mussen; committee, John Whyte, A. McDonald and D. M. Wright.

Resolutions were passed favoring the purpose of the union to disseminate useful knowledge on hydro-radials and to carry on a campaign when once the estimates from the commissioners' engineers are received, and to support strongly the big delegation which will wait upon the Federal Government on March 26.

Mayor J. Stevenson presided over the meeting and Hon. Adam Beck, H. B. Morphy, K. C. M. P., James Toman, M. P., P. T. J. Hannigan, J. W. Lyon and Mayor Samuel Carter, all three of Guelph, were there to explain the radial situation.

CARNEGIE FUND HELPED REPEAL OF EXEMPTIONS

Senate Committee Hears of $30,000 Spent in Literature.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, March 13.—How the Carnegie endowment for international peace has aided in the fight for repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act was revealed today by the Senate lobby committee.

Senator James Brown Scott, secretary, and a member of the board of directors of the endowment, appearing under subpoena with books and papers, told the committee that a total of more than $30,000 had been appropriated for "circulation of Panama Canal literature."

Detailing the efforts of the endowment, Dr. Scott said a million copies of a pamphlet urging repeal of the exemption clause, and signed by practically the entire directorate, had been sent throughout the country and 700,000 copies of Senator Root's speech in the Senate, urging repeal, had been mailed under the senator's frank.

Money For Peace Propaganda.

The annual statement of the endowment showed that the American Peace Society, of which Senator Burton, of Ohio, is president, draws a subvention of $21,000 a year from the Carnegie organization. This money was used, Mr. Scott said, to distribute pamphlets bearing on peace propaganda subjects. The committee displayed great interest in these publications as dealt with Panama Canal tolls or general arbitration treaties. Dr. Scott agreed to furnish copies of all such documents.

No questions were asked the various witnesses relating to charges made in an executive session of the Senate recently by Senator O'Gorman that the actual purpose of the endowment was to promote an alliance between Great Britain and the United States, its peace propaganda serving merely as a cloak for that purpose.

Peace and Tolls.

Senator Root, however, demanded an explanation of the relation between international peace and the tolls for use of

CUMULATIVE PREFERENCE STOCK

Preferential as to Capital as well as Dividends

Par value of Shares, $100.00

Subject to redemption at any time after five years from the date of issue, upon three months' notice, and payment of accrued dividends, at $110.00 per share.

Price: Par, with a bonus of 50% Common Stock

Fractional shares of Common Stock will be dealt in at $50 per share

The Electric Steel and Metals Company, Limited, will manufacture the following articles:—Light-weight, high-grade steel castings; manganese and other alloy steel castings; bar steel suitable for rifles; bar steel for rock drills, boring machines, etc.; ingots for forging shops; ingots for tool-steel manufacturers.

After careful study of conditions existing in Canada by Mr. David Carnegie, Consulting Engineer, of London, England, the following conditions were found to exist:—

That light, high-grade steel castings were mostly imported from the United States. That manganese and other alloy steel castings were imported from the United States and Great Britain.

That bar steel for rifles and rock drills, etc., has to be imported. That ingots for forgings and ingots for tool-steel manufacturers are not made in Canada. Such ingots enter the United States duty free.

And that all steel castings are subject to a duty of 27½% ad valorem.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE.

Our plant in Welland will be ready for operation about May 1st, 1914, and will have a capacity of 4,000 tons of steel castings per annum. The total cost of this first plant, including organization, site, foundry equipment, electrical furnace, all buildings, labor and engineer's charges, will be under $130,000 by contracts already made by the company. Seventy thousand dollars will be reserved for working capital, making a total outlay of $200,000 for the production above mentioned.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

Hydro-electric power is available at fourteen dollars per horsepower per annum, this price being subject to reduction as the load increases.

The Company is also favored with a fixed assessment of $10,000 for a period of twenty years, the taxes on which will not exceed $500 per annum.

The five-ton electric furnace which we are installing will handle five heats per day, and on this basis the plant will produce 4,000 tons of finished castings per annum. In the following estimate of earnings we have based our calculations on a production of three-quarters this capacity, namely, 3,000 tons. Our earnings are estimated as follows:—

3,000 tons steel castings, selling at $120.00 per ton	$360,000.00
Less cost of production, at $33.00 per ton	249,000.00
	$111,000.00
Less depreciation on plant and machinery	16,000.00
	$95,000.00
Less 7% dividend on $200,000 Preferred Stock	14,000.00
Leaving available for Common Stock	$81,000.00

The above costs of production and basis of selling prices have all been carefully prepared under the advice of Mr. David Carnegie, and detailed statements may be inspected at the Company's office in Welland.

THE HOME BANK OF CANADA

There are many savings accounts opened with the Home Bank for special purposes; for instance—a householder may be saving up to make payment against a mortgage on his house; or to pay a premium on his life insurance. It is a regular practice with many Home Bank depositors to open special accounts for such purposes and to withdraw the money at the end of the six months, or year, when they have sufficient to make the necessary payment.

DRESSED HOGS DROP
---LIVE ONES FIRM

The Largest Market of Season,
Though Lacking in Hay—
Butter Cheaper.

Although not a single load of hay was on the square, the market was probed by the largest of the season, and crowded with shippers. The smaller farm produce was offered in large quantities.

Dressed hogs dropped in price from $12.50 to $11.50, which is the cheapest they have been for some time. This decline is to a certain extent unaccounted for, as the price of live hogs continue firm. They sold around $8.90 and $9 per hundredweight.

Eggs are cheaper, and sold for 28 and 29 cents, wholesale, this morning. The price for single dozens was 30 cents. Butter remained at quoted prices, although a drop was expected by the dealers.

Fine large lettuce was on sale for 40 cents per dozen, and the demand is becoming much better. Radishes and green onions brought 40 cents per dozen, and were offered in much larger quantities than in the first of the week.

A large supply of apples was on the square, but the demand was not great. Prices remain the same. Potatoes sold at quoted prices also.

Oats brought from $1.12 to $1.17 per hundredweight, most heads selling around $1.15 per hundredweight. Wheat is unchanged in price; little was on the square this morning.

An occasional load of barley is offered, and the prevailing price has been about $1.12 per hundredweight.

No hay was weighed, although up until Friday night, there were 150 loads on the market. Straw is dull; only two loads were on the square.

There was a great deal of live poultry offered this morning, but the demand was not brisk. The quantity of dressed was small. Prices in both remain about the same as formerly.

Hides were in fairly good demand, but the price is unchanged.

Winnipeg, March 13.—The market was dull with a plethora of sheep and not much real news. The cash demand was light, but not so light as the offerings, which were almost nothing. There was again a little trade in the buying of Winnipeg May and selling Chicago July and a very small amount of export.

Towards the close of the first time, a Balkan War scare, but no one believed it, being useless at the eleventh hour the market went up for May, which closed 1/4 higher. July was 1/4 down and October 1/4 higher, but all options were down. October flat was quoted for the first time, opening at $1.40.

Cash prices were 1/4 higher for wheat and 1/4 down for barley. Receipts were on the heavy side, being 314 cars inspected and 225 in sight.

WOMEN TEACHERS' MAXIMUM IS $900

Finance Committee Recommends $100 Increase to School Board.
20 START IN SEPTEMBER
Chairman Shaw Declares It Is Up to Board to Get Rid of Incompetent Teachers.

The finance committee of the Board of Education, at a meeting Friday afternoon, decided to recommend that the maximum salary of women public school teachers be raised from $800 to $900, effective in September, 1914. If this decision is passed by the board, it will mean an additional expenditure in salaries this year of about $1,200.
The committee had rather a frank discussion of the salaries problem as it applies to the women teachers, and the chairman, Trustee R. W. Shaw, unreservedly declared that it was up to the board to get rid of all incompetent teachers.
"If we have any teachers on our staff who are not worth the money and we pay them," said Trustee Shaw, "then they shouldn't be allowed in the schools."
Went Out Poor Teachers.
The other members of the committee agreed with him, and there seems little doubt but that the board will act on a confidential report to be made by Inspector C. H. Edwards, of the work of the 187 teachers at present in the service. Where it is determined that a teacher is not giving his or her best service to the city or that the place could be filled by some more capable and energetic person, the idea is to simply ask for the teacher's resignation.
The committee recently recommended the increasing of the principals' maximum from $1,600 to $1,800, but up to date no action has been taken toward giving the male assistants any extra remuneration. Their maximum, at the present time, is $1,200.
Inspector Edwards advised that the women teachers were quite well worth the maximum increase recommended by the committee. In Hamilton and Windsor, he said, the maximum for this class of instructor was $900; in Ottawa, $1,100, and in Toronto, $1,200. The London staff, he declared, was doing good work.
There was a disposition upon the part of the committee to make the increase date from January 1, last, but it was pointed out that this would mean an extra expenditure for the year of about $4,200. Accordingly, the compromise to make the increase effective in September, was arrived at.
Estimates Uncompleted.
The committee did not finish the striking of its estimates pending the decision of the board on the proposed salary increase, which would enter somewhat materially into the total amount needed for the carrying out of the year's work. The various other items of expenditure of the jurisdiction of the finance committee are, with few exceptions, the same as in 1913. One thousand dollars is allowed for art supplies, $500 for household science, $500 for kindergarten, $2,500 for printing and stationery, $2,500 for substitute teachers, $1,500 for the Normal Training School, $1,000 for library, maps, pictures and appliances, and $25 for the Robb medal.
Last year the salary expenditure reached $145,098, and this amount will be increased by several thousand dollars if the increases recommended by the committee get by the board.
The building committee will meet, probably, on Monday afternoon to consider its estimates, and the new collegiate committee, No. 3, will also have a session next week to determine how much is to be spent in the usual way at the Collegiate Institute this year.

Hotel Harrison Is Appreciated In City

The Hotel Harrison, corner King and Talbot streets, under the able management of Mr. Brammer Harrison, has long been appreciated by Londoners and farmers in the vicinity of London, who do their trading in this city, for the able manner in which the wants of the travelling public are met.
A number of improvements have been made recently to the hotel, amounting to several thousand dollars, and before fall Mr. Harrison expects to put an entire new front on the place.
A number of the rooms are equipped with baths and a barber shop is also conducted in connection with the hotel. The rooms have been refurbished and a tile floor has been constructed in a number of the rooms on the bottom floor.
Since taking over the Harrison House Mr. Harrison has done all in his power to conduct a well-regulated hotel and he has been quite successful along those lines.

ONTARIO TOWNS PATTERN FROM LONDON SCHOOLS

Mitchell and St. Marys Deputations View City in Search of Ideas for New Buildings.

Despite the apparently pressing demands for the expenditure of more than $200,000 in school additions and improvements in this city, other Ontario municipalities continue to use London's educational system as a model after which they may build.
On Friday a deputation of school trustees from Mitchell called on Chairman A. M. Hunt, of the board of education, and were shown the Chesley, Aberdeen and Alexandra schools. Mitchell is at last to have a fine new public school building to replace the one that Trustee Dr. R. W. Shaw, of London, attended 30 years ago. According to the doctor, the building was not by any means new even at that ancient date.
On Thursday a St. Marys deputation was in the city and inspected several schools in search of new and helpful ideas that may be used in the erection of a fine new temple of wisdom in the Stone Town.

Vitiated Atmosphere. The oxygen in the air and the carbon in the tissues unite, thus burning up physical heat and keeping the body warm. The skin also gives off carbonic, from $\frac{1}{15}$ to $\frac{2}{15}$ pounds of water being evaporated daily from the surface of the body. The warmer it becomes the more abundant are the secretions of the skin, so that the higher the temperature the greater will be the vitiation of confined air. This is an example of the earthy acid gases thus generated plants live by. Indoores there are no plants to take up this gas, and so the air becomes laden with it. Thus the composition of the air is altered and it becomes harmful.

Heating Rooms.

Floating impurities in the air, such as solid particles, smoke, dust, etc., are likewise harmful because in the first place, they get into the pores of the lungs, thus clogging them and inviting decay, and in the second place because these particles may carry disease germs and implant them in the lung tissue. Dr. Louis Ascher has shown that smoky air

A Good Word for Becker.

"The organization will sacrifice any body," said Mr. Brown. "They sacrifice Becker. He was one of the best men New York ever had in uniform. Now they are sacrificing Murphy. They are creating a lot of thieving fakirs that never lived."

"Becker, of course, was a little crazy himself. But he was not a bad fellow after all. I believe that a second trial will be a clear vindication of Becker. Tammany and while Tammany was in power. But now they desert him. Dick Croker was the only one that ever won out with Tammany. He was wealthy, and he has bought himself a reputation as a reformer, and an old Irish castle. When he came back to New York recently it was hinted that he was going to take the head of Tammany again, but that was only a mere intention. He has no plan for a reorganization of just where he got his money. For years the New York people have asked that question and spent

Their lungs gradually become more or less coated with fine particles, and inflammation and tuberculosis quickly follows. Frederick Hoffman, of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, has estimated that removing these dust particles from the consumption death-rate could be lowered so that more than 22,000 lives could be saved annually. Assuming that the conditions these 22,000 people would average fifteen years more of life each, he estimates, or a total of 342,465 years. Placed at only $200, he figures that each person loses through premature death $30,800. The total loss to the country from these deaths aggregates $88,493,000.

"This is the sixth year Mr. Brown has visited Canada, always on invitation. Never once has he solicited or advertised for engagements of any kind. He has conducted services all the way across the Dominion," from Westville, N. S., to Kamloops, B. C. The first time he spoke in Canada was in London, at the invitation of the Y. M. C. A. Several years ago he conducted a series of evangelistic services in Grace Church, St. Thomas. On April 15, he is to speak in Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y. This is a privilege and opportunity eagerly sought after by eastern clergymen. Mr. Brown has conducted the Protestant chapel services there many times, and Jews and Catholics, as well as Protestants come to hear him.

SEALED HOUSE A GREAT PERIL---IMPURE AIR MEANS DISEASE---POINTERS BY AIR EXPERT

Unluckily for us, air not only can absorb moisture; it cannot be prevented from absorbing it. So that when we heat indoor air and fail to provide moisture for it, the air sucks its moisture from everything it can find. This includes furniture, woodwork, hangings, etc. but principally from our own bodies. Everyone who is familiar with dried-out cigars or even reader knows how brittle paper becomes in a hot room, every householder realizes how his woodwork cracks and his panels shrink when the house is heated. All these things happen because the dry air has sucked out the moisture. What the air does to cigars, books, woodwork, etc., it does also to human beings.

white man is today killing off the American Indian. In 1868 the 25,000 Missouri River Sioux were put on a reservation. They gave up their wild life and their wigwags, and moved into tight board-houses provided for them. Previously there had been little tuberculosis among them. Soon it became a scourge. Now 60 per cent of the children of these Indians are tubercular, and half of those reaching maturity die of consumption. The closed house did it.

The parts most seriously affected are the nasal passages and the lungs. To quote a New York yhpician of some prominence, "Lack of moisture in the air we breathe in harms the mucous membranes of the nose, and upper air passages. These membranes are one of the great bulwarks of health. A fluid is produced by them that kills germs or washes them into the stomach where the digestive fluids vitalize them. When the air is too dry, these membranes dry up. The air is like baked fly-paper. Nothing will any longer stick to them, and germs find their way past them into the trachea."

Mr. J. G. Markey, the present managing-editor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, began his newspaper career with the St. Marys Argus under the late J. B. Crabb. In 1886 Mr. Markey took up his residence in Woodstock, and joined the staff of the Sentinel-Review as a reporter. At this time the paper became daily, and Mr. Markey remained on the staff for seven years, when he temporarily left journalism and Woodstock at the same time. Returning in 1898 he was prevailed upon to take the city editorship of the Woodstock Express, which had just been started. He held this position until 1904, when he returned to the Sentinel-Review, where he has been ever since. Mr. Markey is a man of retiring disposition, of scholarly and literary tastes, and has never entered public life, although taking a deep interest in public affairs, whether local, Provincial or Dominion.

THE MONEY FOR THE NAVY

"Only within the past few weeks have ministers generally realized that, without any departure from the policy approved by Parliament, a large and sensational upward movement in connection with the cost of the navy must not only be faced, but be explained and justified to a considerable body of supporters," says the Telegraph.

"In the first place, the Government is confronted with supplementary estimates for the navy, which amount in round figures to £2,000,000, raising the expenditure of the present year to about £50,000,000.

"In the second place, the navy estimates for the next financial year, even if all the reductions on which the Treasury can legitimately insist are made, will reach a total of about £53,000,000, whereas last spring the sum voted was only just over £46,000,000, and in 1912-13, £45,000,000.

An increase of £8,000,000.

"In two years, therefore naval expenditure will have increased by approximately £8,000,000.

"The present sources of revenue will, it is understood, prove inadequate, particularly in view of the larger sums required by other departments.

"Fresh taxation will have to be imposed, although not probably for a large amount.

"Income tax is collected on the average of the three years' trade, and will consequently show a further increase in 1914-15, after three years of prosperity and an expansion of stock exchange business, which is confidently anticipated, will add to the revenue from stamps. The falling off in customs and excise will probably not be large, and a relatively small increase in the income tax—possibly on unearned incomes only—may be found to meet the needs of the exchequer," thinks the Telegraph.

Unauthorized Expenditure.

The Manchester Guardian argues that the expenditure of some millions by the admiralty without Parliamentary sanction is a serious irregularity. This view is confirmed, it says, by a letter from Mr. Gordon Harvey. He was a member of the newly-formed estimates committee which examined the naval estimates last year, and not a word was ever said to it to show that they were likely to be exceeded.

"If," he writes, "the various items were swollen behind our backs until the total sum reached the gigantic figure you suggest, all I can say is that I cannot imagine a greater affront to all of us."

"We do not know what proportion of four or five millions of the so-called supplementary estimates has been actually spent, but much of it has, and so far from regretting this expenditure, the department commander (we quote from the Daily Chronicle) defends it as perfectly legitimate. It is not as though the excess expenditure had been upon unauthorized objects," says the Chronicle.

Preliminary sanction had been obtained from the House of Commons for all the purposes on which the money was spent. There is only one way in which the House can sanction expenditure other than through the annual estimates, and that is by an Act. There certainly was no act."

"It is believed that the cabinet will sanction the construction of four battleships in the 1914-15 program, in accordance with the five-year formula, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4 laid down by Mr. Churchill in March, 1912," says the Chronicle."

New Era in Sight For Alaska

[Literary Digest.]
The arrested development of Alaska's vast natural resources, brought to a virtual standstill eight years ago, when the forces of conservatism and spoliation locked horns, now promises to start again and to proceed at a pace which should soon make up for lost time. Not only have both houses of Congress passed bills authorizing the Government to build and operate one thousand miles of railroad in that far-northern territory, but they are now considering another which would provide for the leasing of Alaska coal-fields, the income from royalties and rentals "to be paid into a special fund for Alaskan development, and particularly for helping to pay for the cost of building the Government railroad." The effect of this program upon Alaska, according to Secretary of Interior Franklin K. Lane, will be to make of it not merely a region of mines and fisheries supporting some 65,000 inhabitants, but a land "of towns, farms, mills, and factories, supporting millions of people of the white race, the construction of four battleships in the 1914-15 program, in accordance with the five-year formula, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4 laid down by Mr. Churchill in March, 1912," says the Chronicle."

Lamp-light Stories for Winter Saturday Nights

A Wasted Day

BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.
(Copyright, 1914, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

When it was his turn, the private secretary, somewhat apologetically, laid the letter in front of the wisest man in Wall street.

"From Mrs. Austin, probation officer, Court of General Sessions," he explained. "Wants a letter about Spear. He's been convicted of theft. Comes up for sentence Tuesday."

"Spear?" repeated Arnold Thorndike. "Young fellow, stenographer, used to do your letters last summer going in and out on the train."

The great man nodded. "I remember. What about him?"

"Went on the loose; had with him about $500 belonging to the firm; he's with Isaac & Sons, now, shoe people on Sixth avenue. Met a woman, and woke up without any money. The next morning he offered to make good, but Isaac called in a policeman. When they looked into it, they found the boy had been drunk. They tried to withdraw the charge, but he'd been committed. Now, the probation officer is trying to get the judge to suspend sentence. A letter from you, sir, would—"

It was evident the mind of the great man was elsewhere. Young men who, drunk or sober, spent the firm's money on women who disappeared before sunrise, did not appeal to him.

"Spear had a letter from us when he left, didn't he?" he asked. "What he has developed into, since he left us—" he shrugged his shoulders. The secretary withdrew the letter, and stepped on to his place.

As his car slid downtown on Tuesday morning the mind of Arnold Thorndike was occupied with such details of daily routine as the purchase of a railroad, the Japanese loan, the new wing to his art gallery, and an attack that morning, in his own newspaper, upon his pet trust.

But his busy mind was not too occupied with the details of the traffic policeman who cleared the way for him. Or by some genius of memory, to recall the fact that it was on this morning young Spear was to be sentenced for theft.

It was characteristic of the great man to act quickly. "Stop at the Court of General Sessions," he commanded. What he proposed to do would take but a few minutes. A word, a personal word from him to the district attorney, or to the judge, would be enough.

Out of the sunshine Mr. Thorndike stepped into the gloom of an echoing rotunda. With a deprecatory laugh, he laughed good-naturedly and reached for the outburst of approbation he had anticipated did not follow.

The district attorney ran his finger briskly down a printed card. "Henry Spear," he exclaimed, "that's your man, Court III, Judge Fallon. Andrews is in that court." He walked to the door of his private office. "Andrews!" he called.

"Mr. Thorndike is interested in Henry Spear, coming up for sentence in Court III. Three this morning. Wants to speak for him. Take him over with you."

The district attorney shook hands quickly, and retreated to his private office. Mr. Andrews took out a cigarette and, as he crossed the floor, lit it.

"Come with me," he commanded. Mr. Andrews led him to an office, bare and small, and offered him a chair, and handed him a morning newspaper.

Mr. Thorndike refused the newspaper. "I thought I was going to see the judge," he suggested.

"Court doesn't open for a few minutes yet," said the assistant district attorney. "Judge is always late, anyway."

Mr. Thorndike suppressed an exclamation. He wanted to protest, but his clear mind showed him that there was nothing against which, with reason, he could protest. Next time he would send a clerk.

But he was not without a sense of humor, and the situation as it now was forced upon him struck him as amusing. He laughed good-naturedly and reached for the desk telephone.

"May I use this?" he asked. He spoke to the Wall street office. He explained the situation, and he was told that the judge would be in at ten minutes. He directed what should be done if the market opened in a certain way. He gave rapid orders on many different matters, asked to have read to him a cablegram from Vienna, and one from Petersburg, and one from Vienna.

"The answer each other," was his final instruction. "It looks like peace," Mr. Andrews with genial patience had remained silent. Now he turned upon his visitors. A Levantine, burly, unshaven, and soiled, towered truculently above him.

"You gotta hell of a nerve to come to see me," he commented cheerfully.

"Was it you," demanded young Andrews, in a puzzled tone, "or your brother who tried to knife me?"

"Get out!" said young Andrews, "and don't show your face here—"

The door slammed upon the flying Greek.

A kindly-eyed, sad woman with a basket on her knee smiled upon Andrews with the familiarity of an old acquaintance.

"Is that woman going to get a divorce from my son," she asked, "now that he's in trouble?"

"Now that he's in Sing Sing?" corrected Mr. Andrews. "I hope so! She permitted to sit as an equal among policemen. No longer was he Arnold Thorndike. He was merely the man "with Mr. Andrews."

A court attendant beat with his palm upon the rail.

"Sit down," whispered Andrews. "The judge is coming."

Mr. Thorndike sat down.

The court attendant droned loudly words Mr. Thorndike could not distinguish. He saw a rustle of silk, and from a door behind him the judge stalked past.

"Stand up," he hissed. Mr. Thorndike stood up.

After the court attendant had uttered some unintelligible words, every one sat down; and the financier again moved hurriedly to the rail.

"I would like to speak to him now before he begins," he whispered. "I can't wait."

Mr. Andrews stared in amazement. The banker had not believed the young man could look so serious.

"Speak to him, now," he exclaimed. "You've got to wait till your man comes up. If you speak to the judge, now—"

The voice of Andrews faded away in horror.

Not knowing in what way he had offended, but convinced that it was only by the grace of Andrews he had escaped a dungeon Mr. Thorndike retreated to his armchair.

The clock on the wall showed him that, already, he had given to young Spear one hour and a quarter. The idea was preposterous. No one better than himself knew what time was really worth. In half an hour there was a board meeting; later he was to hold a post-mortem on a railroad; at every moment questions were being asked by telegraph, by cable, questions that involved the credit of individuals, of firms, of even the country. And the one man who could answer them was risking untold sums only that he might say a good word for an idle apprentice. Inside the railed inclosure a lawyer was reading a typewritten speech. He assured his honor that he must have more time to prepare his case. It was one of immense importance. The name of a most respectable business house was involved, and a sum of no less than $200,000. The contrast struck Mr. Thorndike's sense of humor full in the center. Unknowingly, he laughed, and found himself as conspicuous as though he had appeared suddenly in his night clothes. The tipstaff beat upon the rail, the lawyer he had interrupted uttered an indignant exclamation, Andrews came hurriedly toward him, and the young judge slowly turned his head.

"Those persons," he said, "who cannot respect the dignity of this court will leave it." As he spoke, with his eyes fixed on those of Mr. Thorndike, the latter saw that the young judge had suddenly recognized him. But the fact of his identity did not cause the frown to relax

Unknowingly, he laughed, and found himself as conspicuous as though he had appeared suddenly in his night clothes. The tipstaff beat upon the rail, the lawyer he had interrupted uttered an indignant exclamation, Andrews came hurriedly toward him, and the young judge slowly turned his head.

Man, "the court is open." At a door a tipstaff laid his hand roughly on the arm of Mr. Thorndike.

"That's all right, Joe," called young Mr. Andrews, "he's with me." They entered the court and passed down an aisle to a railed inclosure in which were high oak chairs. Again, in his effort to follow, Mr. Thorndike was halted, but the first tipstaff came to his rescue. "All right," he signaled, "he's with Mr. Andrews."

Mr. Andrews pointed to one of the oak chairs. "You sit there," he commanded. "It's reserved for members of the bar, but it's all right. You're with me."

Distinctly annoyed, slightly bewildered, the banker sank between the arms of a chair. He felt he had lost his individuality. Andrews had become his sponsor. Because of Andrews he was tolerated. Because Andrews had a pull, he was or the rebuke to halt unuttered. In even, key tones, the judge continued: "And it is well they should remember that the law is no respecter of persons, and that the dignity of this court will be enforced, no matter who the offender may happen to be."

Andrews slipped into the chair beside Mr. Thorndike and grinned sympathetically.

"Sorry!" he whispered. "Should have warned you. We won't be long now," he added encouragingly. "As soon as this fellow finishes his argument, the judge'll take up the sentences. Your man seems to have other friends; Isaac & Sons are here, and the typewriter firm who taught him; but what you say will help most. It won't be more than a couple of hours now."

"A couple of hours!" Mr. Thorndike of the law that is no excuse. Some men can drink and keep their senses. It appears you cannot. When you drink you are a menace to yourself—and, as is shown by this crime, to the community. Therefore, you must not drink. In view of the good character to which your friends have testified, and on the condition that you do not touch liquor, I will not sentence you to jail, but will place you in charge of the probation officer."

The judge leaned back in his chair and beckoned to Mr. Andrews. It was finished. Spear was free, and from different parts of the courtroom people were moving toward the door. Their numbers showed that the friends of the young man had been many. Mr. Thorndike felt a certain twinge of disappointment. Even though the result relieved and delighted him, he wished, in bringing it about, he had had some part.

He was moving out of the railed inclosure when Andrews called him by name.

"His honor," he said impressively, "wishes to speak to you."

"The law, Mr. Thorndike, is not vindictive," he said. "It wishes only to be just. Nor can it be swayed by wealth or political or social influences. But, when there is good in a man, I personally, want to know it, and when gentlemen like yourself, of your standing in this city, come here to speak a good word for a man, we would stultify the purpose of justice if we did not listen. I thank you for coming, and I wish more of our citizens were as unselfish and public spirited."

It was all quite absurd and most embarrassing, but inwardly Mr. Thorndike glowed with pleasure.

The chief clerk and two bank messengers were waiting by the automobile with written calls for help from the office. They pounced upon the banker and almost lifted him into the car.

"There's still time!" panted the chief clerk.

"There is not!" answered Mr. Thorndike. His tone was rebellious, defiant. It carried all the authority of a spoiled child of fortune. "I've wasted most of this day," he declared, "and I intend to waste the rest of it. Andrews," he called, "jump in, and I'll give you a lunch at Sherry's."

It was characteristic of the great man to act quickly. "Stop at the Court of General Sessions," he commanded. What he proposed to do would take but a few minutes. A word, a personal word from him to the district attorney, or to the judge, would be enough.

Out of the sunshine Mr. Thorndike stepped into the gloom of an echoing rotunda. With a deprecatory laugh, he laughed good-naturedly and reached for the outburst of approbation he had anticipated did not follow.

The district attorney ran his finger briskly down a printed card. "Henry Spear," he exclaimed, "that's your man, Court III, Judge Fallon. Andrews is in that court." He walked to the door of his private office. "Andrews!" he called.

"Mr. Thorndike is interested in Henry Spear, coming up for sentence in Court III. Three this morning. Wants to speak for him. Take him over with you."

The district attorney shook hands quickly, and retreated to his private office. Mr. Andrews took out a cigarette and, as he crossed the floor, lit it.

"Come with me," he commanded. Mr. Andrews led him to an office, bare and small, and offered him a chair, and handed him a morning newspaper.

Mr. Thorndike refused the newspaper. "I thought I was going to see the judge," he suggested.

"Court doesn't open for a few minutes yet," said the assistant district attorney. "Judge is always late, anyway."

Mr. Thorndike suppressed an exclamation. He wanted to protest, but his clear mind showed him that there was nothing against which, with reason, he could protest. Next time he would send a clerk.

But he was not without a sense of humor, and the situation as it now was forced upon him struck him as amusing. He laughed good-naturedly and reached for the desk telephone.

"May I use this?" he asked. He spoke to the Wall street office. He explained the situation, and he was told that the judge would be in at ten minutes. He directed what should be done if the market opened in a certain way. He gave rapid orders on many different matters, asked to have read to him a cablegram from Vienna, and one from Petersburg, and one from Vienna.

"The answer each other," was his final instruction. "It looks like peace," Mr. Andrews with genial patience had remained silent. Now he turned upon his visitors. A Levantine, burly, unshaven, and soiled, towered truculently above him.

"You gotta hell of a nerve to come to see me," he commented cheerfully.

"Was it you," demanded young Andrews, in a puzzled tone, "or your brother who tried to knife me?"

"Get out!" said young Andrews, "and don't show your face here—"

The door slammed upon the flying Greek.

A kindly-eyed, sad woman with a basket on her knee smiled upon Andrews with the familiarity of an old acquaintance.

"Is that woman going to get a divorce from my son," she asked, "now that he's in trouble?"

"Now that he's in Sing Sing?" corrected Mr. Andrews. "I hope so! She permitted to sit as an equal among policemen. No longer was he Arnold Thorndike. He was merely the man "with Mr. Andrews."

A court attendant beat with his palm upon the rail.

"Sit down," whispered Andrews. "The judge is coming."

Mr. Thorndike sat down.

The court attendant droned loudly words Mr. Thorndike could not distinguish. He saw a rustle of silk, and from a door behind him the judge stalked past.

"Stand up," he hissed. Mr. Thorndike stood up.

After the court attendant had uttered some unintelligible words, every one sat down; and the financier again moved hurriedly to the rail.

"I would like to speak to him now before he begins," he whispered. "I can't wait."

Mr. Andrews stared in amazement. The banker had not believed the young man could look so serious.

"Speak to him, now," he exclaimed. "You've got to wait till your man comes up. If you speak to the judge, now—"

The voice of Andrews faded away in horror.

Not knowing in what way he had offended, but convinced that it was only by the grace of Andrews he had escaped a dungeon Mr. Thorndike retreated to his armchair.

The clock on the wall showed him that, already, he had given to young Spear one hour and a quarter. The idea was preposterous. No one better than himself knew what time was really worth. In half an hour there was a board meeting; later he was to hold a post-mortem on a railroad; at every moment questions were being asked by telegraph, by cable, questions that involved the credit of individuals, of firms, of even the country. And the one man who could answer them was risking untold sums only that he might say a good word for an idle apprentice. Inside the railed inclosure a lawyer was reading a typewritten speech. He assured his honor that he must have more time to prepare his case. It was one of immense importance. The name of a most respectable business house was involved, and a sum of no less than $200,000. The contrast struck Mr. Thorndike's sense of humor full in the center. Unknowingly, he laughed, and found himself as conspicuous as though he had appeared suddenly in his night clothes. The tipstaff beat upon the rail, the lawyer he had interrupted uttered an indignant exclamation, Andrews came hurriedly toward him, and the young judge slowly turned his head.

"Those persons," he said, "who cannot respect the dignity of this court will leave it." As he spoke, with his eyes fixed on those of Mr. Thorndike, the latter saw that the young judge had suddenly recognized him. But the fact of his identity did not cause the frown to relax

When it was his turn, the private secretary, somewhat apologetically, laid the letter in front of the wisest man in Wall street.

"From Mrs. Austin, probation officer, Court of General Sessions," he explained. "Wants a letter about Spear. He's been convicted of theft. Comes up for sentence Tuesday."

"Spear?" repeated Arnold Thorndike. "Young fellow, stenographer, used to do your letters last summer going in and out on the train."

The great man nodded. "I remember. What about him?"

"Went on the loose; had with him about $500 belonging to the firm; he's with Isaac & Sons, now, shoe people on Sixth avenue. Met a woman, and woke up without any money. The next morning he

TO DASH ACROSS THE ATLANTIC IN NINETEEN HOURS WITHOUT A STOP BRITISH AND AMERICANS TO MAKE DARING TRIP IN A FLYING BOAT

Glenn Curtis and Captain Porte Preparing for Journey That Is Expected to Eclipse All Other Aviation Feats.

[Toronto Star.]
A dash across the ocean at one hundred miles or more an hour in the mid days of late summer or early fall, following possibly in the wake of an eastward bound storm from this side, in a light high-powered flying boat; such in brief is the proposal of Glenn H. Curtis as the solution of the problem of trans-Atlantic flight which Rodman Wanamaker has undertaken to finance.

There will, no doubt, be numerous attempts at the same achievement by aviators on both sides of the Atlantic but none of them will take up the task with the experience and knowledge of water flying that Mr. Curtis has as his equipment. As the father of the marine type of aeroplane he was first in the field; and it is due to his experiments in its practical use on the Pacific coast three years ago last month that the navies of the world have adopted it as an auxiliary.

Mr. Curtis, ambitious of greater achievements, has long contemplated the trans-Atlantic attempt from the constructor's standpoint, and, as he frankly states, only the financial problem involved prevented him from building an aeroplane for the purpose. In the cause of science, Mr. Wanmaker has supplied the means to surmount the difficulty.

"The crossing of the Atlantic in one flight," says Mr. Wanamaker in explaining his interest "is the my mind as important as was the voyage of Columbus to transportation by water. It will be of far more practical importance than was the successful expedition to the North Pole."

It is a daring and interesting in the program of the noted constructor is the announcement that unlike others he expects the aeroplane he is building to make the crossing in a single non-stop flight—just one big jump, figuratively speaking—from Newfoundland to Ireland.

Admits of No Halt.
There is to be no dropping down to passing steamships to renew the fuel supply, although the terms of the $50,000 prize offer of Lord Northcliffe of the London Daily Mail, permit such a stop, and the Wanamaker craft incidentally will try for this prize. Enough gasoline for the entire voyage is to be carried in the tanks of the aerial boat. About a ton of it, Mr. Curtis calculates, will be needed for the 1,900 miles, approximately, to be covered on the great circle route from St. John's to the Irish coast.

Steamships in sight along the route will be useful to inspire the aeroplane's two pilots with confidence in the event of a failure of mechanism in any particular, involving an abandonment of the flight. But such an eventually is to be provided for in other ways, so that the bold aerial seamen will be able to conduct their own relief expedition.

Mr. Curtis has pinned his faith so strongly for his motor and flying equipment, however, that he will admit of no provision for resuming the flight should the machine be compelled to alight on the water. If its pinions fall and it drops to the surface of the Atlantic it must stay there. Mr. Curtis says that the new flyer was not built to arise from the rough water of the Atlantic. This feat would require a much heavier and larger hull, he explained, to overcome the resistance of the waves in the fast run over the surface, which is the preliminary to rising in all existing marine aeroplanes.

"We are building to cross in a single flight," he said, "and we might well put additional weight into it."

Should it come to the worst, however, and the flyer be abandoned in mid-ocean, the two naval officers who are to make the attempt as the pilots of the craft will be able to navigate it on the surface of the sea toward the nearest port or track of steamships. The boat will not, however, be operated by means of its wings and the power of the air from its tractor.

Abie to Discard Wings.
The wings might prove a serious obstacle to navigation in rough weather, consequently it has been arranged that they may be discarded in an emergency if required, and other means of propulsion will be supplied to the craft. Just how the hull shorn of wings will be driven has not been told by Mr. Curtis. The motive power while in the air is to be supplied through a big tractor screw of the same type as that which is used in the water, but it might easily be unshipped and replaced by a smaller tractor screw designed to cleave the water instead of the air. Tractors have been used on motor boats, although the propeller form is generally preferred.

It is Mr. Wanamaker's intention that one of the pilots shall be British, the other an American, preferably naval officers, typical of the bond of union between the two countries which he hopes the flight will emphasize. Lieutenant John C. Porte, R. N., is the British aviator whose services have been volunteered, providing the necessary permission is granted by the admiralty; while Lieutenant John H. Towers, U. S. N., has expressed willingness to make the attempt for America.

Lieutenant Towers is one of the pioneer naval aviators of the world. With Lieut. T. G. Elyson he made the first of the long flights over the waters of Chesapeake Bay little more than two years ago. On this occasion while they were at a height of nearly a mile for more than an hour flying at a minute pace, Lieutenant Towers, perched on the motor, gripped a leaky joint in the radiator, holding it together to prevent loss of water. They covered 110 miles in this notable flight.

British Pilot in Practice.
Lieutenant Porte is one of the most expert monoplane pilots in England, where he has made many flights in the Deperdussin, the machine in which the world's principal records have been made. Recently he has been reported practicing in a Curtiss flying boat in preparation for the transatlantic attempt.

Lieutenant Porte says he expects it will take him only twenty-four hours to fly across the Atlantic.

As to the exact time of flight much will depend on the advice of the meteorologists of the Governments of Great Britain and the United States which will be sought. More information is needed as to the wind velocities at various levels than is at present possessed. It is contemplated flying at an altitude of ten thousand feet, where the speed of the wind is believed to be four or five times that on the earth's surface. No observations at any height above the ocean, however, have been taken over the proposed route. A strong west wind that will follow the aircraft and accelerate speed above the normal average of sixty miles an hour is what the projectors have in their hopes.

They will not entrust the aviators' safety to such a chance as this, however. There will be sufficient fuel aboard to run the engine thirty-two hours, which at an average speed of sixty miles an hour would span the great deep at the point selected, a stretch of nineteen hundred miles.

Trusts Not in Bulk.
The description and sketches of the craft that he is building for the attempt show that Mr. Curtis does not put his trust in an aerial monster. The craft that he has designed is small compared with the magnitude of the task before it.

Expect To Go at Rate of a Hundred Miles an Hour Starting from Newfoundland and Landing on Irish Coast.

There is at least one larger aeroplane in the world, the Sikorsky biplane, which spreads its wings a hundred feet, as against eighty feet allowed by the Wanamaker flyer. The engine will be of 200 horsepower.

Fifteen gallons of precious gasoline will be consumed each hour of the flight at full speed, so that as the voyage advances the load carried by the engine grows ever lighter. Gasoline weighs about six pounds to the gallon. It will be seen, therefore, that the weight dispersed in gas will be equivalent to ballast of ninety pounds heaved overboard every hour, or to dropping a passenger weighing 135 pounds every ninety minutes on the way across.

It is probable that the boat attachment of the Wanamaker flyer, built for lightness of weight as well as strength and buoyancy, will weigh much less than one ton unloaded. Its total length will be thirty-five feet, and its beam six feet. Like other Curtiss hulls, it will be built up of mahogany strips.

There will be an enclosed cabin to shelter the pilots when not steering. It will be about twelve feet in length, and will be located about midway between bow and stern. Just forward of the cabin, as the designer's sketch shows, are the biplane wings, ten feet in depth or chord. The upper of the two planes as shown is fixed at a level slightly above the top of the hull. The lower plane, which spreads about twenty-five feet less than the other, springs from the hull at a point close to the water line. Its tips have the support of small floats when the craft rests on the water.

Another feature which has been found to give a certain amount of natural balance to aeroplanes has been adopted in the dihedral angle of the wings, as it is known among constructors. Instead of lying in a nearly horizontal position in the same plane, the wings rise, like those of a soaring bird, to right and left from the centre of the extremities.

There is good reason to believe that the American attempt for the title of the Columbus of the air will not be allowed to proceed unopposed. Several of the most noted aviators in England and France have already announced that it is their intention to link the continents of America and Europe during the present year. The disclosure of Mr. Wanamaker's intentions and the earnest interest that he has given in the rapid advance in the construction of his aircraft in the hands of Mr. Curtis are expected to hasten the arrangements of the European candidates.

SIR HENRY LUCY AND SPURGEON'S ARRIVAL IN LONDON

[From Public Opinion.]
Sir Henry Lucy, telling in the Cornhill the story of his "Sixty Years in the Wilderness," tells how he met Mr. Spurgeon therein.

"It is eighteen years since I made Spurgeon's personal acquaintance. He was at the propitious moment sitting on a fence by the roadside some miles out of London, overlooking the dropping of coppers, shillings, and stray half-sovereigns into a stout box. The collection was made on behalf of the expense of building a new chapel, to which end Spurgeon contributed a stirring sermon, delivered under an historic oak-tree.

"I saw a good deal of him about that time. He was celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of his beginning work in London, and talked a great deal of his early experience. He vividly remembered the day of his arrival in London. He told me he never noticed how people were dressed. But he remembered very well how he himself was arrayed when he set out from his quiet home in Waterbeach in reply to an invitation to preach a sermon at New Park Street Chapel, Southwark. Anxious to make good appearance calculated to militate against the exceeding juvenility of his aspect, he selected a huge black-satin stock, which he wound round his neck with the happy assurance that it gave him almost a venerable air. Not to overdo it in that direction, he possessed himself of a blue handkerchief with white spots. These, of course, in addition to his ordinary Sunday clothes.

"When I first came under the lights of London, he made his way to a boarding-house in Queen Square, Bloomsbury. I gathered from his conversation it was a place somewhat resembling Mrs. Todgers, where Mr. Pecksniff and his blooming daughters used to put-up on their visits to London. It was full of boarders on the night of his arrival, and they were all anxious to know what had brought this country lad to London. He felt no hesitation in telling them he was going to preach at the New Park Street Chapel, a prospect which, in the impression of the time, seemed greatly to amuse them. It seemed greatly to tickle them that this country lad with his black-satin stock, and his blue handkerchief with white spots, should be the course of a few hours, appear in a London pulpit and address grown-up men and women, heads of families. Spurgeon went to bed in a cupboard over the front door, and what with the excitement of the journey, and apprehension of what might befall him when he came to face a London congregation, he slept scarcely a wink.

"Years after he wrote some lines about that memorable night, which animate the scene with the touch of a great master.

A Pittless Night.
"Pittless was the grind of the tramp in the street; pitiless the recollections of the young city clerks, whose grim propriety had gazed upon our rusticity with such amusement; pitiless the spare room which scarce afforded space to kneel; pitiless even the gas lamps which seemed to wink at us as they flickered among the December darkness. We had no friend in all that city full of human beings; we felt among strangers and foreigners, hoped to be helped through the scrape into which we had been brought, and to escape safely to the serene abodes of Cambridge and Waterbeach."

"Spurgeon, as it turned out, had come to stay, and rapidly made for himself a name and fame that will endure as long as those of Whitefield or Wesley," adds Sir Henry. "That he was a great preacher all the world knows. Less widely spread is acquaintance with his genius for organization. If he had not been a preacher he might have been a general in command of an army, or a great railway director."

CAN BRITISH PARLIAMENT CONTINUE? DOES IT EXPRESS PUBLIC OPINION? LORD ESHER'S REMARKABLE QUESTIONS

No one has a more intimate knowledge than Lord Esher of the inside working of the political machines of both parties or a larger knowledge of its secret history, and these facts add piquancy to the startling questions which he puts in the Statesman.

Lord Esher focusses vividly the startling changes which are taking place with regard to representative institutions everywhere, both in Parliament and in trade unions.

He seems to foresee the end of our parliamentary system, because it no longer stands for "representative government," and his article opens up the whole wide problem of how executive authority is to be delegated and the will of the people or public opinion made effective. What gearing will enable public opinion to work the executive machine?

Is Parliament Needed?
"It is to be true that democracy, in the discussion of the day, means government working directly through public opinion, does it necessarily follow that democratic government need work through a Parliament, or, indeed, through any representative body at all?" asks Lord Esher.

"This question is of some interest at the present juncture of political affairs, when obvious as well as unexplored changes are taking place in the constitution of our country."

Some Questions.
"Supremely interesting to us is the speculative meaning of the ferment going on in Ulster today, among the trade unions in England and Scotland, and especially in the political party calling itself Unionist and Conservative."

"Is it democracy seeking new means of expression?
"Is it popular desire for some form of Government working more directly through public opinion than is compatible with the representative assembly?"

"Does it foreshadow the fall of our ancient parliamentary system?"

"Is England, the Mother of Parliaments, about to give birth to some new method of expressing the popular will in matters of government? Such a problem, suggested by Lord Morley's recent book, seems worthy of meditation and discussion."

Look at Ministerial Bench.
"Look, however, down the Ministerial front bench today, and what could be less like a row of Palmerston's colleagues or the Gladstonian ministers of 1880? Instead of a row of hereditary politicians picked from governing families in huge preponderance, with here and there a shamefaced and uneasy plebeian, we have the colonial secretary sitting alone for the old tradition of a Lord of a Lower House nominally inferior, but proudly cognizant of its real power, we have the vulgar predominance of a boasting House of Commons, based not upon sure recognition of its representative character and of the people's will, but upon an ill-drawn, half-hearted statute. The Parliament of Pitt and Canning has gone into the limbo of Old Sarum and the rest. The Parliament of Disraeli and Gladstone has followed after. If, then, democracy today means government working directly through public opinion, what will presently happen to the Parliament of Mr. Asquith?

Changes in Political Ideas.
"It is clear to every watcher that the executive and legislative machinery is undergoing profound alteration. But what is not so clear is the change in political ideas and political aspirations."

"Modern democracy, or 'Government working directly through public opinion,' is seeking free methods of expression. Very new is the wine now in the making, and the old double-necked parliamentary bottle is perilously out of date, and dangerously unsuitable."

"Public opinion," easily aroused in a people intelligent, literate, and conscious of power, desires more 'direct' means of expression than representative government affords. The rumblings of popular resentment against 'delegation' are ominously loud, whether among trade unionists who defy their leaders or the great Conservative party in politics that clamors for recurrent appeals to the constituencies."

"The life of Parliament" has been shortened by law from seven years to five.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very dry, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

Its expression in the press and on the platform, desires still further to shorten the term in practice. The House of Commons is no longer composed of free and independent representatives, elected to redress grievances and to legislate for the people, but of paid delegates. We may still claim for the House of Commons that it virtually selects the Prime Minister of the day and registers his executive decrees. For short and ever-shortening periods. Popular opinion, judging from thority is delegated to a chosen statesman not unwillingly for five years. Then, at latest, the people desire a fresh voice in the matter. Presently the term will be still further shortened to four years or three. The rapidly recurring general elections indicate that the parliamentary system has easily of its leaders—even of Aristocrats.

Wanted, Something More.
"Popular representation—the delegation of legislative power—had for its basis the illiteracy of a people. Now papers and the capacity of the constituent masses to read them have sapped the foundations of representative government, as it has been understood in England, and 'public opinion' seems about to require more 'direct working' than the parliamentary system has hitherto afforded, or is likely to afford."

News of The Poultry World

Is the keeping of poultry profitable? Well, it all depends on the point of view, and the care and intelligence used in handling the feathered flocks. Years ago some people used to say that no chicken was worth more than market price. Those same people are like the market chickens—dead ones nowadays. Like fine dairy cows and high-grade horses, chickens, just chickens, that are pedigree bred and raised on scientific lines are yearly increasing in monetary value and being appreciated more and more.

Last year at the big Boston show a well-known Canadian was offered $1,000 for his first-prize male bird. He refused that sum and kept the bird for his own breeding yards. Last season he sold $500 worth of hatching eggs from the pen which this bird headed and raised some chickens that were worth more than the other $500. Thus he made the full value in one season and still kept the grand prize winner. Another well-known Canadian sold three cocks at New York for a straight thousand dollars.

Recent sales have been reported of single fowls going for $1,000, $400, $350, and so on. And the fancier who can produce the big winners can easily win the big prices.

Old-fashioned Favorites.

The past winter's shows brought on fine exhibits of many of the old-fashioned favorite varieties, notable the Houdans, Dark Cornish, Dorkings, Andalusians, Langshans, Brahmas, and they seem to be taking a new lease of popularity.

At the big Boston show in January last the showing of Houdans was the largest and best in quality ever put on in the United States, some 157 birds being staged. The judges had their troubles in making the awards as the quality was uniformly very good. A few blues and whites were among the Houdan classes. The American Houdan Club, which has several Canadian members, met in annual convention during the show.

The Hatching Season.

The hatching season is now open. Get busy and get out some early chicks. Aim this year to improve your stock, and do it now. Remember one good bird is worth the price of several settings of eggs, and if you buy the eggs from a reliable and skilful breeder you are very likely to get more than the one good bird.

If you have a good pen or two of your favorite breed you will have some settings to dispose of. Put an ad in "The Advertiser" "Poultry and Eggs" Small Ads and you will quickly find customers for all you have to spare.

In recent English shows Bantam classes were strongly filled. Notable among the exhibits were the new Millelours (a Thousand Flowers), the most esteemed being a pale china blue, with a white spot on the end of the feathers. Of course, big figures are asked for them, and the variety has not yet reached Canada.

Clean Up the Yard.

A clean-up in the chicken house and yard is a good thing, but one keep clean is worth a dozen of them. At the last meeting of the London Poultry and Pet Stock Association were brought in specimens of Houdans were brought in for scoring. Mr. William McNeil and Mr. John Macdonald did the judging, and gave some of the birds the mark of genuine quality. These meetings are proving of more interest and help to the members, giving an opportunity to compare their best birds with the best from other pens, and having them judged and scored by competent judges.

The raising of chicks is now the main object of the poultry fancier, and is a most entertaining and engrossing pastime. Get a few of the little fellows out as early as you can, and then take the best of care of them. Be ready for them before they appear. Have clean, dry, handy quarters prepared for them, where they will be sheltered and comfortable, as comfort and warmth is the keynote of success with chickens. One cannot expect much success unless the people are well-bred and well-born. Don't expect too much, but be satisfied with a fairly good hatch. It has been found by test that natural hen incubation averages seven chicks to a setting of thirteen eggs and that with incubators 50 chicks from a hundred eggs is the average.

Sure To Lose Some. You may raise all the chicks in some broods, but you are likely to always have a small percentage of loss. With good food, good care and proper management you can keep the loss down to small proportions. If working under favorable conditions the greater the loss. A few well-looked after will do better and produce better results than a swarm.

As soon as chicks are "nest ripe" or taken from the incubator provide them with clean water and sharp sand. Don't be in a hurry to feed them. Different breeders have different notions on the time of first feeding, and some abstain from feeding the little chicks from 35 to 72 hours after they are hatched. Undoubtedly a large proportion of chicks, hatched healthy and strong, die early because fed too soon.

The first feed given, and one of the best, is infertile eggs boiled hard and broken up, shells and all, mixed with bread crumbs. Failing the eggs it is dry and crumbled. These foods may be alternated for two or three days, sparingly, five or six times a day. Then use one of the good commercial chick feeds for several days. Grit, ground oyster shell and charcoal should be before them constantly and a quantity of dry bran always available. With pure water, frequently renewed, you will soon have them eating whole wheat and cracked corn. Milk is valuable in feeding youngsters and green bone or meat is a treat and developer.

Keep the chicks clean and comfortable. Dust the mother hen down to the skin with a good powder, rub a little lard and borax on the heads of the babies, get them on the ground as soon as you can, vary their feed with judgment and good common sense, and get satisfaction and reward in the best bunch you ever had.

FRUIT ORCHARD BEST ASSET OF MIDDLESEX FARM RETURN FINE PROFITS WHEN PROPERLY CULTIVATED EXPERT GIVES PRACTICAL ADVICE TO THE GROWER

Most of us have at least one big thing in our lives. It may be a hobby, or it may be a life work, but whatever its nature at times, if not continually, it engrosses us body and mind to the exclusion of everything else. A glowing example of this spirit is Mr. John Sharman, manager of the London Branch of the Middlesex Fruit-Growers' Association, whose energies for years have been concentrated on fruit culture. An Adviser man who called on Mr. Sharman to have a talk with him on fruit culture in Middlesex, found him more than ready to talk on the subject, although a very busy man.

"The one thing that I cannot understand about the average farmer in Middlesex," said Mr. Sharman, "is his gross carelessness and wilful neglect of the orchard. In a day's drive one can observe from 25 to 50 orchards on the road to destruction."

"In a great many cases the pruning saw has not done duty for years, and as a consequence the once noble tree is nothing more than a brush heap. This style of orcharding is a disgrace, and an eye-sore to any community. I have just been conversing with a Westminister Township farmer about his orchard, and he admitted that he had not pruned it for three years."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because I have not the time," he straightway replied.

"Would it not pay you to hire it pruned?" was my next question.

Well, he thought it might, but good pruners were so few that he despaired of securing anyone to do it properly, and he thought other things more important, so it was left from year to year gradually getting into worse and worse shape to produce a paying crop, and swiftly approaching a day when the owner will decide that as it is not paying it had better be turned into firewood.

A suicidal policy of neglecting the orchard is ruinous, because when the orchard is gone, so has the beauty of surroundings of farm buildings, and the farm is worth hundreds of dollars less. It simply means that one of the best farm assets has been dissipated in this vicious manner."

"What are the fruit men doing to encourage better treatment of the orchards generally?" was asked Manager Sharman.

"The Middlesex Fruit Growers, through its seven branches, have endeavored to attract men to their meetings to hear orchard treatment discussed by such practical men as Harris, the fingersoll apple king; Kydd, the provincial demonstration expert; Clark, of Petrolia, and our own district representative, I. B. Whale, and his assistant, Mr. Noble. These men by their clear and practical talks and demonstrations have awakened new interest in the growing of Middlesex fruits, especially apples."

Crop Prospects.

"What are the prospects for the fruit crop in Middlesex County this year?" was another question Mr. Sharman was asked.

"Well, it is rather early to definitely answer that question, but from observation I would say prospects are good. Even the peach buds are safe as yet; apples of some varieties have an abundance of fruit buds, and other fruits look good to me, but that does not necessarily mean a big crop. Fruit trees require special attention at certain periods of development."

For instance in two or three weeks time spraying must begin, applying what is known as the dormant spray, using lime, sulphur or soluble sulphur, ten pounds to 40 gallons of water. This is the spraying proaching a day when the owner will decide that as it is not paying it had better be turned into firewood.

that a great many neglect to apply, claiming that it is useless. A second spraying should be made as the buds and blossoms are bursting and a third as soon as the blossoms fall, using two or three pounds of arsenate of lead in addition to the usual quantity of lime sulphur and soluble sulphur and then again later on we must repeat the dose."

"If these three sprayings are applied in the proper season and from 5 to 7 gallons to a tree the fruit grower will be certain to have clean and high priced fruit, which is to my mind the only kind worth while. If orchard owners will join and conform to the rules of the Middlesex Fruit Growers they will be richer by thousands of dollars, because by forming associations we obtain power to do things that the individual could not possibly obtain."

The Tender Fruits.

"You asked about grapes and other tender fruits. London should not have to go outside Middlesex for these. We are not living up to our privilege of being near a splendid local market. Why should London receive as high as eight or ten cars of Niagara fruit in a week. Why not grow the bulk of the fruit in this county? It can be done by planting the right varieties and following up by thorough cultivation, pruning and spraying. I must admit that fruit growing is at times hard work and sometimes disappointing, but I know of no other line of farm endeavor that will return such handsome profits. The future holds great things in store for the live growers and nothing for the careless."

"Middlesex growers must improve their methods, give greater attention to their old orchards and plant more of the best commercial varieties, prune and spray thoroughly, pack honestly and attractively, and then in my opinion the fruit growers of Middlesex will be the aristocracy of agriculture."

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT!

ENGLISH SCHOOLBOYS COMING TO CANADA TO CAMP WITH CANUCK BOYS IN THE WOODS

London, Feb. 26. — Headmasters of the great public schools of England are enthusiastic in their support of the suggestion of Mr. A. L. C. C. of the Upper Canada College, Toronto, to take a party of public school boys to Tamiami, Ontario, for their holidays, so enthusiastic indeed that a number of our prominent educationalists will accompany their pupils.

The scheme also has the support of the League of Empire, who believe it will cement the bond between English and Canadian lads.

Holidays Worth While.

"I am convinced," Mr. Cochrane said, "that the time has come when one of the most useful things to be carried out is an exchange of vacation times between England and Canada. Many of our boys do pay a visit to the mother country during their holidays, but it is not usual for English Varsity men or public school lads to visit Canada. The matter came to the attention of the League of the Empire and I am glad to say that in my short visit here I have found it taken up with great enthusiasm by school authorities, head masters, and others. I have spoken publicly at a number of the schools, such as St. Paul's, Mill Hill, King Edward's Grammar School, Birmingham, and University College School, Hampstead, and I am going on to Eton, Harrow, Winchester, and the Manchester Grammar School. I had no idea that the notion would have been taken up so readily, or I should have arranged for a longer stay. As it is, we shall take out a very considerable party this year, and I think it will grow very quickly. I shall be surprised if we have not at least a hundred next year."

"During recent years not only have the boys from Upper Canada College, with which I am connected, come into camp, but members from the University of Cambridge, and the English branch of the League of Empire, have been taking up a vacation, living close to Nature, camping together in the backwoods, and on the trail, canoeing, fishing, swimming and exploring in the heart of one of the best camping grounds, in the world, should result in a mutual understanding and the formation of life-long friendships. Canadian boys will take the greatest pleasure in showing their fellow-subjects from England all that they know, and there need be no fear of any 'ragging' or anything of that sort. Tamiami Camp provides a most invigorating holiday, for, after some weeks of life in this immense forest reserve, much of which is still unexplored, and an ocean voyage out and back, campers should return with an abundance of vigor and energy for future work, while the memory of the trip and of experiences gained there should be of life-long value."

Arranging Well in Advance.

"As at present arranged, the university party may leave England in the beginning of July, and the public school boy party immediately at the end of the term. They will have three weeks in the woods, at least, and return by the middle of September. They will go to Quebec, and on their way to the camp visit Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion, and come home by way of Toronto, Niagara Falls and the St. Lawrence River, with its thousands of islands. We were in some difficulty about the fees because no profits are made, and yet we did not wish to be

FOUGHT WITH LORD ROBERTS

Veteran of Crimean War and Indian Mutiny Suffered Horribly With Rheumatism Until "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Welcome Relief.

GEORGE WALKER, Esq.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continued exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using "Fruit-a-tives." They cured me of both the Constipation and Rheumatism. Today, my bowels move immediately after breakfast, and in my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation."

You are at perfect liberty to publish this letter and my photo if it will be advantageous to "Fruit-a-tives."

This letter of Mr. Walker tells how to cure Rheumatism, but does not tell WHY "Fruit-a-tives" cures this trouble. Rheumatism is the result of poisoned blood, due to weakness or faulty action of the bowels, kidneys or skin. In Mr. Walker's case, Rheumatism was the result of excessive Constipation. Waste matter remained too long in the system, was absorbed by the blood and inflamed the nerves and membranes in his legs. When he started to take "Fruit-a-tives," these tablets immediately acted on the liver. More bile was given up to move the bowels. As the bowels were cleaned, the poisonous waste matter was removed, the blood became clear and the nerves were no longer irritated. Today Mr. Walker is enjoying vigorous health that was his when he fought with Lord Roberts and helped to plant the British flag firmly in our Over-Seas Possessions. He is as active as a man of forty and cannot praise "Fruit-a-tives" too highly. Try them yourself, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

out of pocket. We have got it down to fifty guineas inclusive from and back to Liverpool. This pays for the ocean passage, railway, and local steamer fares, and all necessary incidental expenses en route and in camp. The boys will go out on boating, exploring and fishing expeditions. They will have Indian guides to teach them trailing work and will be taught swimming and diving, and engage in competitions in both land and water sports. For the most part they live under canvas, and each fine evening is spent with song and music round the camp fire. The fishing is extraordinarily good, trout up to thirty pounds weight having been caught by members of the camp.

MOTHERS' CLUBS

On Tuesday evening, March 17, a debate will be held in Victoria School, between the Victoria Mothers' Club and the club from Chesley Avenue School, the subject being "Resolved that the country is a better place for child-life than the city." On Thursday evening the same subject will be debated upon at the Chesley Avenue School.

The regular monthly meeting of the Empress Avenue Mothers' Club was held on Tuesday evening in the kindergarten room, when there was a large attendance. An interesting feature of the evening was a talk by Mr. Phillips on "The Essentials in Child Development." Miss Nash, the school nurse, was also present, and gave a talk on the work of a nurse in schools. Musical numbers were given by Miss Chapman, Mr. Evans, and Miss Ware.

Aberdeen Mothers' Club held their monthly meeting last evening. Mr. E. R. Dennis was the speaker of the evening. He explained many topics of interest to the mothers. The president of Empress Avenue Mothers' Club gave a reading which was highly appreciated. Refreshments were then served. A large attendance of club members, also members from other branches, were present. Mrs. Jones presided.

A marvelous pain reliever. Not an ordinary liniment — just about five times more powerful, more penetrating, more pain-subduing than any thick, oily, sticky liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled, tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferruzone at bedtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am today well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously."

Several of the city churches and church organizations have granted donations towards the support of the Young Women's Christian Association "Travellers' Aid." The Association provide room, board, light and laundry, which is considered equal to $200 a year, but the rest of the salary of the "Travellers' Aid" is made up of free-will offerings, from private individuals, societies and churches.

Contributions have been received from the following church organizations: First Presbyterian Ladies' Aid, Memorial Church Ladies' Guild, Askin Street Girls' Bible Class, Talbot Street Church Ladies' Aid, St. Andrew's Ministers' Aid, St. James' Presbyterian Church (through Mr. Mitchell), and Knox Church Ladies' Aid.

The Y. W. C. A. made an appeal a short time ago to all the city churches, and it is hoped in consideration of the importance of the "Travellers' Aid" work, that other churches will lend a helping hand in this matter.

LADY HOLDER'S VISIT

The visit to this city of Lady Holder, wife of the late Sir Frederick Holder, K. C. M. G. of Australia, is one that is anticipated with a great deal of interest. Lady Holder comes to London to speak in the interests of the feminist movement, and while here will be the guest of Mrs. C. B. H. Wright, Elmwood avenue.

Known throughout the length and breadth of South Australia for her philanthropic and benevolent work, Lady Holder is, as well, a woman of letters, and for years has been active in her literary work. She is also president of the National W. C. T. U. for Australia, and has travelled extensively.

At one time Lady Holder entertained the most conservative opinions about the franchise, deeming that it was not at all woman's place to vote, and that in doing so she quite stepped aside from her rightful sphere as a dignified woman. But conditions in Australia, and particularly the law which compels every son to take military training, brought about a change in Lady Holder's views, and today she is an out-and-out exponent of the franchise movement.

After spending the winter in Bermuda, Lady Holder is now touring the continent, but is expected to arrive in New York today. It is expected that she will come on to London about the 20th. During her stay here she will give addresses under the auspices of the London Suffrage Society.

RECEPTIONS, TEAS, ETC.

Quite a number of school teachers from St. Thomas have been coming up to London every Monday evening to attend the course of lectures being given under the auspices of the Women Teachers' Guild by John Cowper Powys, M. A. On Monday evening next, a number of the local teachers are giving an informal tea in the Alexandra School for the visitors from St. Thomas. A very enjoyable hour is anticipated.

A most delightful tea and musicale was given in the officers' quarters at the Armories on Thursday afternoon by four members of the Seventh Regiment Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, when many members of the Chapter were present, with other friends. The hostesses, Mrs. George Watson, Mrs. E. M. McLean, Mrs. Randall Brown and Mrs. H. Kemp, received many congratulations for the success of the afternoon.

Among those taking part in the musical program were, Mrs. Victor Blackwell, Mrs. John Daly, Miss McCrimmon, Miss Lillian Strong, Miss Isabel Coles, and Miss Lillian Johnston. Many delightful numbers were rendered, and received the warm appreciation of the presenters. Mrs. Harris P. Elliott acted as accompanist for several of the singers.

Tea was poured by Mrs. A. A. Campbell, regent of the chapter, at a table prettily arranged with pink roses. Some of those present besides those mentioned above, were: Mrs. Whitman, Mrs. C. T. above, were: Mrs. W. E. Hodgins, Mrs. Harry T. Reason, Mrs. W. D. I. Wright, Miss Bull, Mrs. McCrimmon, Mrs. R. M. Graham, Mrs. S. N. Sterling, Mrs. J. L. Johnston and others.

Largely attended was the reception of Mrs. John N. Bray, of 550 Princess avenue,

A FAREWELL PARTY

A party in honor of Miss Elsie Baker, of the C. P. R., was given her last Monday evening by the office staff, owing to her immediate departure to Edmonton. A very enjoyable evening was spent at the theatre and later at the Manor Inn, where luncheon was served.

Miss Baker was presented by the superintendent and dispatching staff with a handsome leather travelling bag and hand saddle, fully equipped with a set of ivory toilet articles.

Miss Baker has been an employee of the C. P. R. for over four years, and has formed many friends. After wishing her a safe and pleasant journey, the party broke up at midnight.

Daughters of Empire

A special meeting of the Lord Roberts Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. W. Scatcherd, Fiddell street, to complete arrangements for the erection of the drinking fountain which is to be purchased with the Queen Victoria Memorial Fund. For some time past the individual members of this chapter have been devoting their efforts towards raising this fund by means of musicales, teas and bridge parties, and it is anticipated now to erect the fountain very shortly. The site chosen for its situation is the "W" at the corner of Richmond street and Central avenue, and the fountain, which is to be at night by electricity, it is probable that a formal ceremony will mark the erection of the fountain.

Following the business part of the meeting, Mrs. Scatcherd served afternoon tea, assisted by Miss Nancy Mangault and Miss Chisholm. Among the ladies present were Mrs. Ernest Smith, the regent, Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. Reddome, Mrs. Niven, Mrs. Ed. Johnston, Mrs. Burke, Mrs. T. H. Smallman, Mrs. Edge, Mrs. W. E. Hodgins, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. F. McCormick and Mrs. Puddicombe.

On Wednesday afternoon next Mrs. R. W. Puddicombe is having a "birthday party" at her home, The Beeches, in aid of the Queen Victoria Memorial Fund of the Lord Roberts Chapter. Although the drinking fountain will be erected in the near future, the ladies of the chapter desire to augment their fund by a series of informal entertainments to be given by the individual members from time to time.

HIS photoplay retells the story of an episode of the war between the British and the Zulus in South Africa in 1879. The film is remarkable not only for the vividness of its photography but for the realism of its battle scenes. A real British army marches through these pictures and Rorke's Drift is besieged by real Zulus. The photographs are so close to reality that in the final scene when relief comes to the besieged the spectator almost feels he can hear the soldiers cheering.

Running through this realism is the fabric of a strong melodrama. Tommy Brandon, a British cavalryman invalided at Rorke's Drift, falls in love with his nurse, Grace Linden. The camp, a frontier post set down in a sea of yellow sand, swept by the never resting wind and scorched by the African sun, seems the last place in the world for a romance. Nevertheless the soldier's advances are not spurned by the girl.

The day comes when Brandon is to leave the hospital. A playful meeting with his nurse results in a marriage proposal. Grace gives no definite answer, but the trooper finds in her manner no cause for despair. A little later he finds the reason for her diffidence. Grace has a worthless brother, who is a soldier. Brandon sees him begging money from his sister. She begs her suitor to protect her brother from himself and in return promises him her love.

That same afternoon Ken, the brother, cheats at cards. Brandon, to shield him from the contempt of his companions, accepts the blame himself. Grace learns of the incident and, not aware of the real situation, tells Brandon never to see her again. Almost immediately Ken Linden and Brandon leave Rorke's Drift with a column sent out to surprise the Zulus.

The Zulus, however, have planned a surprise of their own. The column had scarcely marched out of the camp when Grace discovers the savages creeping up on an attack on Rorke's Drift. There is no time to send a messenger and the girl resorts to the use of the helicopter to warn the departing soldiers that the outpost is threatened.

TRUNNELLE

Miss Mabel Trunnelle is said to possess the most expressive eyes on the picture play stage. Her admirers say she "talks with them." They are large, coal black, and capable of conveying many degrees of emotion, even through the camera. She has been with the Edison company three years. She was born in New York, and received her early stage training in a large stock company in Philadelphia. Among the picture plays in which she has appeared recently are: "Othello in Jonesville," "A Concert of the Violin," "The Man from the West," "Ann," "Dolly Varden," and "Why Girls Leave Home."

"SOPHIE PICKS A DEAD ONE."
Essanay.

THIS is one of the Essanay company's western comedies. The idea—that of an individual who gets into the habit of pretending to commit suicide every time anything doesn't go to suit him and finally is tricked at his own game—is funny, and the "hero" role as enacted by Victor Potel comes up to all the requirements of picture play humor.

The cook (Victor Potel) at Snakeville first discovers the efficacy of pretending suicide when a bad dinner results in his being spoken to harshly by his cowboy boarders. Grieved by their conduct, he goes out and makes believe to hang himself. The cowboys discover him and cut him down. Penitent, they overwhelm him with sympathy and kindness.

The cook is in love with Sophie Clutta, the Snakeville belle. So is Mustang Pete, the camp foreman. So, in fact, is all of Snakeville. Miss Clutta gives a musical at her house. The cook arrives first and is warbling sentimental airs when the rest of Snakeville, equipped with horns, violins, bassoons, guitars, banjos, and other instruments makes its appearance.

Last of all comes Mustang Pete. He finds the musicians monopolizing Sophie's attention, and to get rid of them he stampedes their ponies with a few shots from his pistol.

While the cowboys are chasing their horses, Mustang Pete proposes to Sophie and is accepted. He prepares for a hasty marriage. A minister is summoned and the ceremony is under way when the cook looks through the window.

Horrified, the cook fires his pistol and falls down in a spasm. Sophie, rushing out in the midst of the ceremony, finds him writhing apparently in his last throes. The wedding is abandoned and the cook and Sophie are left alone. Then the cook confesses his duplicity, and Sophie, won by such devotion, is married to him.

Weeks pass and Mustang Pete is dying of a broken heart. A tragic day arrives in Snakeville and prepares to give a performance of "Faust." Sophie catches the cook in the act of slipping from her purse the money to attend the show. She boxes his ears, forbids him to go, and sends him to bed.

There the cook pretends to hang himself. Sophie finds him and runs in horror for the doctor. The latter has figured in two of the pretended suicides and has had enough of them. He gives the patient a sleeping potion and then calls in the cowboys, informing them incidentally that the cook is a faker.

The cowboys adopt the doctor's plot. They put the cook into a night gown and deposit him in a coffin. Then they summon the Mephistopheles of the "Faust" production and revive the "suicide" long enough to permit him to get a look at his Mephistopheles. Satan compels the cook to take another sleeping draught, and when he wakes again he finds himself beside his own grave and experiences the sensation of reading his own epitaph.

Mustang Pete, meanwhile, has risen from his bed of sorrow. He is informed the cook is dead. He loses no time in seeking out the fickle Sophie, who, convinced her husband has passed to his reward, accepts his attention. They are being married when the "resurrected" makes his appearance.
