A DECLARATION OF LOVE.

I am for plain, simple love, without any embroidery.—Benjamin and Fletcher.
I know no ways to mine it in love, but direct; I love you: if you cannot love me for this, I will not; if not, to say to that I shall die, is not, for thy love, by the Lord, no; yet I shall die.—Shakespeare.
A fair face will wither; a full eye will grow low; but a good heart is the sun and moon; and over the sun and not the moon; and for it shines light and never changes.—Ibid.
I love thee! but I do not think
Thy form is perfect grace,
Nor that the charms of Venus dwell
In the features of thy face:
I love thee! but I think I've seen
A smaller foot than thine;
I also think I've seen, before,
An ankle much more fine.
I love thee! but a brighter eye,
A ruddier cheek I've known,
A whiter forehead, and a mouth
Much prettier than thine o'er;
I love thee! but I know I've seen
A whiter neck and hand,
And tresses, that more lightly wave,
When by the breezes fanned.
I love thee! but I do not mean
To flatter thee, and swear
That thou art perfect and divine,
When I don't think you are;
I love thee! but if thou my love
Dost scorn, I never do
Intend to pine and die for thee;
And yet I love thee too.
I love thee! for I never saw
One of the woman kind
More richly dower'd with the gifts
Of a pure and noble mind;
I love thee! for there never was
A heart more true than thine,
Or that could touch, so tenderly,
Responsive chords in mine.

THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

A STORY OF WARK CASTLE.

From Wilson's Tales of the Borders.

inate, however, as the resistance of the son was, and bloody as the price indeed paid at which the Castle was to be purchased, David had too much of the Bruce in his blood to abandon the siege. He began to fill the ditches, and he ordered engines to be used to batter down the walls. The towers were filled, and before the heavy and cruel blows of the engine a breach was made in the outer wall, and with a wild shout of triumph the Scottish troops rushed into the court.
Joan Plantagenet disclaims ye still?" cried the Countess. "Quail not brave," she exclaimed, addressing the garrison with deadly aim continued showering arrows upon their besiegers—"Before I Wark Castle shall be my funeral pile!" And mine!" cried Sir William as an arrow struck his hand and became transfused in the visor of one of the Scottish men.
Madeline glanced towards him, and her eyes gleaming with courage seemed to say and
And ours!" exclaimed the garrison—ours!" they repeated more vehemently, waving their swords, "Hurra!" cried "for our lady! St. George! and merry and was the shout of valiant but despairing
Yet as the danger rose, and as hope less and less, so rose the determination of the Countess—she was present to animate at the place of assault. She distributed gold among them, her very jewels she gave to the bravest; but though they had shed of the best blood in the Scottish army's defence was hopeless, and their courage not save them. Almost their last arrow expended, and they were repelling their assailants from the inner wall with their spears.
Went, the most formidable enemy of the age, began to assail them from within. It was now that the gentle Madeline, when William endeavoured to inspire her with hope, replied—"I fear not to die—to die with you!—but tell me not of hope—it is not to be found in the courage of the brave garrison whom famine is depriving of their strength. There is one hope for us—only one, but it is a desperate hope, and I would rather die than risk the life of another."

"Nay, name it dearest," said Sir William eagerly, "and if the heart or hand of man can accomplish it, it shall be attempted."

Madeline hesitated.
"Speak silly one," said the Countess, who had overheard them, "where lies your hope? Could true knight die in nobler cause? Name it, for I wot ye have a wiser head than a bold heart."

"Name it, do dear Madeline," entreated Sir William.

King Edward is now in Yorkshire," she replied, "could a messenger be dispatched to him, the Castle might hold out until he hastened to our assistance."

"St. George! and 'tis a happy thought!" replied the Countess. "I have not seen my cousin Edward since we were children together; but how know ye that he is in Yorkshire? I expected that ere now he was conquering the hearts of the dark-eyed dames of Brittany, while his arms conquered the country."

"In dressing the wounds of the aged Scottish nobleman," answered Madeline, "who was yesterday brought into the Castle, he informed me."

"What think ye of your fair lady's plan for our deliverance good brother?" inquired the Countess addressing the Governor.

"Madeline said it would be a desperate attempt," replied he thoughtfully—"and it would indeed be desperate—it is impossible."

"Out on thy knighthood man!" rejoined the Countess—"is this the far-famed chivalry of Sir William Montague!—why, it is the disposition of your own fair lady, whom verily ye cannot believe chivalrous to a fault. But is it to Joan Plantagenet that ye talk of impossibilities? I will stake thee my dowry against fair Madeline's, I find a hundred men in this poor garrison ready to dare and do what you declare impossible."

"You find not too, fair sister," said Sir William proudly.

"O! say not one—not one!" whispered Madeline earnestly.

Upon every man in the Castle did the Countess urge the dangerous mission—she entreated, she threatened, she offered the most liberal, the most tempting rewards, but the boldest rejected them with disdain.

The Scottish army lay encompassing them around,—their sentinels were upon the watch almost at every step, and to venture beyond the gates of the Castle seemed but to meet death and to seek it.

"At midnight have my fleetest horse in readiness," said Sir William addressing his attendant—"what no man dare I will!"

"My brother!—thanks!—thanks!" exclaimed the Countess in a tone of joy.

Madeline clasped her hands together,—her cheeks became pale,—her voice faltered,—she burst into tears.

"Weep not loved one," said Sir William, "the heavens favor the enterprise which my Madeline conceives. Should the storm increase there is hope—it is possible—it will be accomplished"—and while he yet spoke the lightning glared along the walls of the Castle, and the loud thunder pealed over the battlements. Yet Madeline wept, and repented that she had spoken of the possibility of deliverance.

As it drew towards midnight the terrors of the storm increased; the fierce hail poured down in sheets and rattled upon the earth,—the thunder almost incessantly roared louder and more loud, or when it ceased the angry wind moaned through the woods, like a chained giant in the grasp of an enemy,—and the impenetrable darkness was rendered more dismal by the blue glare of the lightning flashing to and fro.

Silently the Castle-gate was unbarred, and Sir William throwing himself into the saddle, dashed his spurs into the sides of his courser and bounded off at its utmost speed, followed by the adieux of his countrymen and the tears of Madeline. The gate was scarce barred behind him ere he was dashing through the midst of the Scottish host. But the noise of the warring elements drowned the trampling of his horse's feet, or where they were indistinctly heard for a few moments the sound had ceased, and the horse and its rider were invisible, ere the sentinels who had sought refuge from the fury of the storm in the tents could perceive them.

He passed through the Scottish line in safety; and proceeding by way of Mospeth and Newcastle, on the third day he reached the camp of King Edward near Knaresborough. The gay and chivalrous monarch, at the head of a portion of his army, like a true knight hastened to the relief of his distressed cousin.

David, however, having heard of the approach of Edward at the head of an army more numerous than his own, and his nobles representing to him that the rich and weighty booty which they had taken in their inroad into England, together with the oxen and the horses, would be awkward incumbrances in a battle, he reluctantly abandoned the siege of the Castle, and commenced his march towards Jelf Forest about six hours before the arrival of Edward and Sir William Montague.

Madeline took the hand of her lover as he entered, and tears of silent joy fell down her cheeks; but the Countess forgot to thank him in her eagerness to display her beauty and her gratitude in the eyes of her sovereign and kinsman. The young monarch gazed enraptured on the fair face of his lovely cousin, and it was evident while he gazed in her eyes he thought not of gentle Philippa, the wife of his boyhood—nor was it less evident that she, flattered by the gallantry of her princely relative forgot her absent husband though in the presence of his brother. Edward finding that it would be imprudent to follow the Scottish army into the Forest, addressing the Countess, said "our knights expected, fair coz, to have tried the temper of their lances on the Scottish shields, but as it may not be, in honour of your deliverance, to-morrow we proclaim a tournament to be held in the Castle-yard, when each true knight shall prove on the morion of his antagonist whose lady-love is the fairest."

The eyes of the Countess flashed joy, and she smiled, well pleased at the proposal of the sovereign—but Madeline trembled as she heard it.

Early on the following morning the Castle-yard was fitted up for the tournament. The monarch and the Countess were seated on a dais covered with a purple canopy, and the latter held in her hand a ring which gleamed as a morning-star, and which the monarch had taken from his finger, that she might bestow it upon the victor. Near their feet sat Madeline, an unwilling spectator of the conflict. The names of combatants were known to the pursuivants only, and each entered the lists armed with lance and spear, with their visors down, and having for defence a shield, a sort of cuirass, the helmet, gauntlet and gorget. Several knights had been wounded, and many dismounted, but the interest of the day turned upon the combat of two, who already had each discomfited three. They contended long and keenly, their strength, their skill, their activity seemed equal. Victory hung suspended between them.

"Our lady!" exclaimed the monarch rising with delight, "but they fight bravely! Who may they be? Were it not that he cannot yet be in England, I should say the knight in dark armour is Sir John Aubrey."

Madeline uttered a suppressed scream, and cast round a look of mingled agony and surprise at the monarch, but the half stifled cry was drowned by the spectators, who at that moment burst into a shout—the knight in dark armour was unhorsed—his conqueror suddenly placed his lance to his breast, but as suddenly withdrew it, and stretching out his mailed hand to the other, said—"Rise mine equal!—'twas thy horse's fault and none of thine that chance gave me the victory, though I wished it much." The conqueror of the day approached the canopy beneath which the monarch and the Countess sat, and kneeling before the dais, received the ring from her hands. While she had held the splendid bauble in her hands during the contest, conscious of her own beauty, of which Border minstrel and foreign troubadour had sung, she expected on placing it in the hands of the victor, to behold it in homage laid again at her feet. But it was not so. The knight on receiving it bowed his head, and stepping back again knelt before the lowly seat of Madeline.

"Accept this dear Madeline," whispered he, and she flushed and started at the voice which she knew and loved. The Countess cast a glance of envy on her companion as she beheld the victor at her feet, yet it was but one, which passed away as the young monarch poured his practised flatteries in her ear.

The king commanded that the two last combatants should raise their visors. The victor still standing by the side of Madeline beyed—it was Sir William Montague.

"Ha! Montague!" said the monarch, "is it you! Well for your gallant bearing to-day you shall accompany us to France—we shall need such hands as thine to secure the sceptre of our lawful kingdom. But what modest flower is this that ye deck with your hard-won diamond?" "I added he glancing towards Madeline, and without waiting a reply he turned to the Countess, saying, "is she of thy suite dear coz? She hath a fair face worthy the hand- maiden of Beauty's Queen."

The Countess liked not his inquiries, but nevertheless was flattered by the compliment with which he concluded, and she replied that she was the orphan daughter of her father's friend, and the worshipful divinity of Sir William. The other combatant now approached also, and kneeling in front of the dais, raised his visor.

"Aubrey!" exclaimed the monarch.

"My brother!" cried Madeline, starting to his side.

"Your brother!" responded Sir William.

"What! my little Madeline a woman?" replied the stranger. "Bless thee my own sister!"

"What?" exclaimed the monarch, "the pargon of our tournament the sister of bold Aubrey!—and you too the combatant against her chosen champion! Had ye spilled blood on either side, the days' sport might have spoiled a bridal. But whence came ye, Aubrey, and when?"

"My liege," replied the other, "having arrived at Knaresborough, on the day after the departure of your majesty, I hastened thither to inform your Grace that France lies open to our arms, and our troops are eager to embark."

MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS.

A barrister had a small ulcer on the leg, which was difficult to heal, and he determined to apply to Mr. Abernethy. Aware of his impatience and eccentricity, he, immediately upon entering his room, began to pull down his stockings. "Holloa! holloa! what the devil are you at?" said the surgeon. "I don't want to see your leg; that will do—put it up, put it up." The patient did so, but justly dissatisfied with the imperfect manner in which his case had been considered, he, instead of the usual fee, placed a shilling only upon the table. "What is this?" said Mr. A. "Oh," replied the barrister, "that will do—put it up, put it up," and coolly walked away.—Mr. Pettigrew's Medical Portrait Gallery.

Suett's Landlady.—Suett had at one time a landlady who exhibited an inordinate love for the vulgar fluid, yeelp gin, a beverage which Suett himself by no means held in abhorrence. She would order her servant to get the supplies after the following fashion—"Betty, go and get a quarter loaf and half a quarter of gin." Off started Betty; she was speedily recalled—"Betty, make it half a quarter loaf and a quarter of gin;" but Betty had never got fairly across the threshold on the mission ere the voice was again heard—"Betty, on second thoughts, you may as well snaks it all gin."

Diamond cut Diamond.—A noble lord a short time ago, applied to a pawnbroker to lend him 1000 guineas on his wife's jewels, for which he had paid 4000.

Age and Size of Trees.—The Wallace Oak at Ellerslie, in Scotland, three miles from Paisley, was a remarkable object at the beginning of the 14th century, and must be at least 700 years old.

There are 14 species of the Pine in North America, some of which grow to a great size, surpassing in height all other trees of the forest.

A single log of mahogany, imported into Liverpool weighed nearly seven tons; was, in the first instance, sold for £387; re-sold for £253; and would, had the dealers been certain of its quality, have been worth £1000.

Extraordinary Sheet of Paper.—There was sent from the paper manufactory belonging to Messrs. A. Cowen & Sons, at Colinton, last week, a single sheet of paper, weighing 553 lbs.

Mrs. Wood, who had been singing with much applause at Edinburgh, has been compelled to close her engagement by severe indisposition.

It is calculated that ten millions of volumes are annually printed in Germany, and that there are upwards of fifty thousand authors of one or more books.

We are told that Mr. Joseph Hume, justly fearing that there was a chance of his great labours and extraordinary usefulness being forgotten and overlaid by the almost interminable discussions now carrying on, has had it in contemplation to move for a return of the number of returns he has moved for during the last 15 years—such return to set forth each return in the orders of its date, together with its description as entered on the journal of the House.

Four Companies of the 71st Regiment came into town on Saturday from the village of L'Acadie, where the Regiment had been stationed during most part of the winter.

The Great Western steamer brought 7,723 letters and 1,153 newspapers, being the largest number she has yet had entrusted to her care.

Tea in Russia.—The Russians are the most inveterate tea drinkers out of China; and with such excellent tea as they have, the passion is quite excusable.

THE TRANSCRIPT.

QUEBEC, SATURDAY, 27TH APRIL.

New-York and Boston papers of Monday last, received this morning, have no later news from Europe, nor any local intelligence of interest.

The steam-ship Liverpool was to leave Liverpool on the 18th instant, and is advertised to sail from New-York on the 20th May.

From the Montreal Gazette received this morning, we gather the following particulars respecting the Court Martial:

The findings of the Court Martial in the following cases having been submitted to His Excellency the Governor General, have been promulgated in General Orders.

Charles Mandat, Clotilde Patenaude, and Moyses Loustin, for High Treason, and being concerned in the murder of Walker of La Tortue, are all found guilty, and sentenced to be executed; but Mandat was recommended to mercy.

The following prisoners from Beauharnois, were found guilty of Treason, and sentenced for execution: Michel Marie, Jos. Goyette, Louis Hainault, Basile Roy, Joseph Roy dit Lapense, Edmond Tremblay, Philippe Tremblay, Francois Vallée, Constant Buisson, Chs. Bergevin, Antoine Carbonneau, Joseph Cousineau, Francois Dion, Louis Julien, Jean-Baptiste Tuellet, Moses Dalton, Samuel Newcombe, and Jeremie Rochon.

The following prisoners from St. Cesaire and Napierville, are found guilty of Treason, and sentence of death pronounced against them:—Louis Defaillette, Jacques-David Hébert, David Demers, Thomas Suprenant dit Lafontaine, Francois Suprenant, Hyppolite Lanctot, Louis Pissenault, René Pissenault, Eliezer Langueud, Bénéti Verdun, and Et. Langlois.

It is understood that capital punishment will not be carried into effect in any of the above cases.

The Montreal Herald of Thursday gives a very interesting account of a general muster of the volunteer force of that city, and the presentation by Lady Catherine Harcourt, on behalf of the ladies of Montreal, of a beautiful set of colours to the Light Infantry.

Colonel Thomas, of Burlington, arrived at Montreal on Saturday last, with a communication from the Governor of Vermont to His Excellency Sir John Colborne, informing him that Dr. Holmes, accused of the murder of Mr. Tasché, would be delivered up to the authorities in Canada, on application for a writ of habeas corpus.

The Burlington Sentinel gives an account of the escape from jail of an individual named Hutton, who was confined on a charge of stealing letters from the Essex mail; and adds,

The strangest part of the story is, that Holmes was in the same room with him, yet knew nothing of his escape till the next morning.

On Thursday, at noon, Sutherland and the other political prisoners, who have been confined in the Citadel since the 10th June, 1838, were sent up to Montreal, in the British America, under a military guard of the 11th Regiment. It is believed that they are to be conveyed to the United States and set at liberty.

The notorious Baron Fratelli has been compelled by the Superintendent of Police to quit the Province. He was conveyed in Mr. Hough's stage, via the Kennebec, to the State of Maine.

An individual named Stewart, a resident of Niagara, U. C., has been apprehended and held to bail on a charge of attempting to kidnap, and bring into Canada, one of the murderers of Mr. Usher. The murderer's name is Benjamin Lett, and a reward was offered for his apprehension.

Among the passengers in the steamer Canada, arrived on Thursday night, was Lieut. Col. Oldfield, appointed to the command of the Royal Engineers in the Canadas, in the room Lieut. Col. Wright, who is about to leave for England. Lieut. Col. Oldfield came passenger to New-York in the Great Western.

Shipping Intelligence.

We have no arrivals yet from sea. The river is clear of ice, and it is not probable that any impediment will be met with by vessels coming up. The wind has been favorable for two or three days past, and arrivals are almost hourly expected.

LAUNCHES. During the present spring tide, an extraordinary number of ships built during the winter will be launched from the different ship-yards of this city. These vessels are generally of large tonnage, and are in every respect superior to vessels built at this port in any former year.

Yesterday evening, a ship fully rigged, of 500 tons burden, built by Mr. Black, was launched from his yard, at Cape Cove. She went off the stocks in beautiful style, and in the water, appeared as perfect a model of naval architecture as we have ever seen.

A fine bark of 311 tons burden, built by Mr. Nesbitt, was safely launched this morning at six o'clock. She is called the Hibernia, and is owned by Mr. Park.

A fine ship of 700 tons burden, built by Mr. Nesbitt, to be named Brucia's Queen, will be launched on Tuesday morning about ten o'clock.

Mr. Lamson will launch a bark of 700 tons burden, on Wednesday next. She has been purchased by Captain Hopper, who will command her, and will sail for Belfast when ready.

A ship of 580 tons burden, built by Mr. Edward Oliver, to be called the Wellington, will be launched on Tuesday morning. She will be commanded by Captain Gortley, and will sail for Belfast.

On the same morning, a ship of 500 tons burden will be launched from the yard of Mr. Thomas Oliver. She is owned, we believe, by Mr. Park.

A r. T. Oliver will also launch a ship of 53 tons on Thursday next. This vessel belongs to a house in Belfast. She will be commanded by Capt. M'Alpine, who has superintended her building.

A bark of 300 tons, built by Mr. Edward Oliver, to be called the Benjamin Hart will be launched on Thursday next.

We understand that this latter vessel is owned by Benjamin Hart, Esq. of Montreal, and is one of a line of regular traders intended to run between this port, and London and Liverpool. These ships,—two of which are now building at Quebec,—will be substantial vessels, of a beautiful model, and we believe that the accommodations for passengers will be of a very superior order. The Benjamin Hart is commanded by Captain Wetherall, formerly of the Sophia, and is expected to be ready to see about the 1st of June.

Messrs. Nicholson & Russell have on the stocks a very handsome ship of 600 tons burden, which will probably be launched in the course of the week.

Victoria: Mr. Munn has several but it is thought that he launch any of them during the week.

The steamer Canada is about one o'clock on the barges in tow. She will be expected to arrive to-night.

The steamers John B. Sorel, and will probably bring for several days.

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE.

THE Committee of the Q. T. A. Society, in calling the attention of the friends of Temperance to the following PROSPECTUS, would just state that Subscriptions—

One Shilling and Sixpence per annum, STRICTLY IN ADVANCE— will be received by Mr. JOHN SHAW, Saint John Street, Mr. D. CAMERON, Rue Sous-le-Fort, Lower Town, and MESSRS. MUSSON & SAVAGE, Baile St. Quebec, 10th April, 1839.

Persons wishing to subscribe, will be kind enough to hand in the amount immediately, as the work will not be sent from Montreal without the cash.

PROSPECTUS
Of the Fifth Volume of the

CANADA TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE.

THE Committee of the Montreal Temperance Society, in commencing another volume, earnestly request the aid of the friends of Total Abstinence in both Provinces to extend its circulation, by subscribing themselves and procuring as many subscribers as possible. The welfare of our country the safety of our families, and the prosperity of the Church of Christ, demand vigorous measures to stem the torrent of intemperance which is rapidly spreading its destructive course over the land.

Amongst the many means for effecting a reform, the promulgation of truth, through the medium of the press has been, by the blessing of God, one of the most efficacious. Acting upon this belief, the Committee, besides making arrangements to render the Temperance Advocate still more interesting, have resolved to lower the price of the next volume fully one half, although at the present rates, its support is attended with considerable pecuniary loss. To sustain the undertaking at even a moderate sacrifice, prompt payment and an extended circulation are absolutely necessary. The friends of Temperance are, therefore, appealed to for renewed exertions, in order that the committee may be relieved in some measure from the responsibility assumed, and be enabled to continue the support of a means so necessary for the success of the Temperance Reformation.

The following are the terms of the fifth volume: When delivered in town, 4s. annum, 1s. 6d. copy. Sent by mail (except to post-masters) postage included, from 1. to 10 copies 1s. 8d. 4s. annum; from 10 to 100, 1s. 6d.; 100 and above, 1s. 3d. NO PAPER FORWARDED WITHOUT PAYMENT IN ADVANCE. All communications and remittances to be sent (post paid) to Mr. JAMES COOPER, Secretary.

N. B.—Copies will be sent (gratis) to every Minister of the Gospel and Schoolmaster whose names are transmitted. Individuals and Societies unable to pay for the quantities they may wish to take, will be supplied at reduced prices or gratis, on making proper representations. MONTREAL, February, 1839.

ONE HUNDRED Kegs superior U. C. BUTTER, 130 Barrels ditto ditto fine Flour, 50 ditto ditto ditto Peas. EBENEZER BAIRD, Quebec, 27th Feb., 1839.

BALDNESS.

A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR is the grandest ornament belonging to the human frame. How strangely the loss of it changes the countenance, and prematurely brings on the appearance of old age, which causes many to recoil at being uncovered, and sometimes even shun society to avoid the jests and sneers of their acquaintances; the remainder of their lives consequently spent in retirement. In short, not even the loss of property fills the generous thinking youth with that heavy sinking gloom as does the loss of his hair.—To avert all these unpleasant circumstances, OLDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA stops the hair from falling off on the first application and a few bottles restores it again. It likewise produces eyebrows and whiskers; prevents the hair from turning gray, makes it curl beautifully, and frees it from scurf. Numerous certificates of the first respectability in support of the virtues of Oldridge's Balm are shown by the proprietors.

Read the following:

ROBERT WHARTON, Esquire, late Mayor of Philadelphia, has certified, as may be seen below, to the high character of the following gentleman:

The undersigned do hereby certify that we have used the Balm of Columbia discovered by J. Oldridge, and have found it highly serviceable not only as a preventative against the falling off of hair, but also a certain restorative

W. M. THAYER, senr., Methodist Minister in St. George's charge, No. 86 North Fifth st. JOHN P. INGLISH, 334 Arch st. JOHN D. THOMAS, M. D. 163 Race st. JOHN S. FUREY, 101 Spruce st. HUGH MCCURRY, 243 South 7th st. JOHN GARD, Jr., 123 Arch st.

It will certainly raise its virtues in the estimation of the public, when it is known that three of the above signers are more than 50 years of age, and the others not less than 30.

From the Mayor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, City of Philadelphia: I, ROBERT WHARTON, Mayor of said city of Philadelphia, do hereby certify that I am well acquainted with Messrs. J. P. English, John S. Furey, and Hugh McCurry, whose names are signed to the above certificate, that they are gentlemen of character and respectability, and as such, full credit should be given to the said certificate.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the city to be affixed, this sixth day of December, &c.

[L. S.] ROBERT WHARTON, Mayor. CAUTION.—Observe that each bottle of the genuine Balm has a splendid engraved wrapper, on which is represented the Falls of Niagara, the agent's name, &c. Sold wholesale and retail by J. J. SIMS, MUSSON & SAVAGE, BEGG & URQUHART. Quebec, Sept. 1838.

MORISON'S UNIVERSAL MEDICINE.

NOTICE.

THE Subscribers, general agents for Morison's Pills, have appointed William Whittaker, Sub-Agent for the Upper Town, No. 27, St. John Street.

LEGGE & CO.

That the public may be able to form some idea of Morison's Pills by their great consumption, the following calculation was made by Mr. Wing, Clerk of the Stamp Office, Somerset House, in a period of six years, part only of the time that Morison's Pills have been before the public; the number of stamps delivered for that medicine amounted to three million, nine hundred and one thousand.

The object in placing the foregoing powerful argument in favour of Mr. Morison's system, and to which the public attention is directed, namely, that it was only by trying an innocuous purgative medicine to such an extent that the truth of the Hygeian system could possibly have been established. It is clear that all the medical men in England, and the world, put together, have not tried system of vegetable purgation to the extent and in manner prescribed by the Hygeists. How, therefore, can they (much less individually) know anything about the extent of its properties.
