THOUGHTS On the death of the late Mrs. L. Irene Palmer. who died January 23, 1852.

Poetry.

" And all that fancy conjured up, And made thee look and say— Till we have loathed reality That classed such dreams away."—L. E. L.

Didst never, at the evening hour, Muse by a summer lake,-When tones of far-off melodies Would o'er the stillness break : Though there was neither voice nor form, To say whence came the strain ; 'Twould pour its tender memories, Upon the heart again.

So comes thy presence, dearest one, To those thou'st left behind Thy memory leaves the sweet effect, Of music on the mind : We're led by Fancy's magic power, Through vistas of the past While sadly, sweet rememberings, Are o'er our spirits cast.

We see thee on the sunny hill, In fancy's hues arrayed;

And fail to feel that thou art in Thy lowly dwelling laid But we'll miss flice when the bashful May

Whispers among the flowers We'll miss thee when the laughing June, Awakes the summar bower

But faith would pass the solemn tomb, That keeps thee from our view Our spirits would not linger there, 'Neath shadow of the vow : But borne on faith's "strong eagle wing," Our saddene ! hearts would rise ; To greet thee, deay departed one," In mansions of the skies ANELIA. # An Ambition, Worthy but Bare.

" If you were an ambitious man," said one a minister of talent and education, who was scaled in a retired and obscure parish, "you would not stop in such a place as this." How do you know that I am not an ambitions man?" said the pastor. "You do not art like one." "I have my plans as well as others-the results may not appear as soon, perhaps." " Are you engaged in some great work?" " I am-but the work does not ask their Christian minister-What is the Is a man of itamoral principles, and does an bitious, perhaps, in the ordinary sense of ground on which he would bid them into the he endeavour to conceal his delinquency, and the term. More of this ambition would throw more young men into the ministry, and would greatly change the aspirations and efforts of some now in it. Is not an unhallowed ambition the worm at the root of many a minister's mental peace and spiritual usefulness ? It is one thing to labour for the promotion which man gives, and quite another to labour for that which God gives. # Facing the Enemy.

Henry Parker, at the age of seventeen, was, by the death of his master, left alone in the world, to gain a livelihood as a shoemaker. He shouldered his kit, and went from house to house, making up the farmers' leather, and mending the children's shoes. At length a good old man, pleased with Henry's industry and steady habits, offered him a small building as a shop. Here Henry applied himself to work, with persevering industry and untiring ardor. Early in the morning he was whistling over his work, and his hammer was often heard till the "noon of night." He thus obtained a good reputation, and some of this world's goods. He soon married a virtuous female, whose kind disposition added new joys to his existence, and whose busy neatness rendered pleasant and comfortable their little tenement. Time passed smoothly on; they were blessed with several children, and in a few years Henry was the possessor of a neat little cottage and a piece of land. This they improved, and it soon became the abode of plenty and joy.

But Henry would occasionally walk down to an ale-house in the neighbourhood. This soon became a habit, and the habit imperceptibly grew upon him, till, to the grief of all who knew him, he became a constant lounger about the ale-house, and, going on from bad to worse, he became a habitual drunkard. The inevitable consequences soon followed : he got into debt, and his creditors soon took possession of all he had. His poor wife used all the arts of persuasion to reclaim him, and she could not think of using him harshly : she loved him even in his degradation, for he had always been kind to her. Many an earnest petition did she prefer to heaven for his reformation, and often did she endeavour to work upon his paternal feelings. Over and over again he promised to reform, and at last was as good as his word, for he was induced to stay away from the ale-house for three days together.

His anxious wife began to cherish a hope of returning happiness; but a sudden cloud one day for a moment damped her joy. "Betsey," said he, as he rose from his work, "give me that bottle." These words pierced her very heart, and seemed to sound the knell of all her cherished hopes; but she could not disobey him. He went out with his bottle, had it filled at the ale-house, and, on returning home, placed it in the window immediately before him. "Now," said he, "I can face an enemy." With a resolution fixed upon overcoming his permicious habits, he went earnestly to work, always having the bottle before him, but never again touched it. Again he began to thrive, and in so thoughtful a mood. Presently there jority of your brethren deem an "offence to others beyond it, are what they are. of his former delightful residence ; his children grew up, and became respectable members of society Old age came upon Henry, and he always kept the bottle in the window where he had first put it; and often he would refer to it, and thank God that he had been able to overcome the vice of drunkenness." "He takes delight in my industry," said the Goldfinch.

"But am I not full as industrious as you?" inquired the Mole. "Look, I have dug up the whole garden; I am busy day and night, and allow myself scarcely an nour's repose. Can I do more ?"

" My friend," replied the Goldfinch, " it s not enough that one should be industrious merely : industry must have a good aim. I toil to rear my young, and care for their nourishment; by this I disturb no one, and can do no harm. But what do you effect by your industry ? You destroy instead of preserving. This garden is the joy of its naster. You uproot it, gnaw the roots of the vegetables, and disturb the plants .---Ask yourself if he can be pleased with you for this, or can applaud your industry. # Thoughtless Anna.

"Anna, my dear, said uncle Joshua to his niece, who was playing with a kitten upon the door-step, " Come, get your bonnet, for I want you to take a walk with me this fine morning."

Quickly jumping up, and shaking the curts from her forehead, Anna bounded up the staircase to get her hat. Presently her uncle called to know what detained her so long

"Oh, wait a moment, dear uncle," she replied, I cannot find my tippet," but almost in the same miunte, she appeared in the hall, apparently neatly and warmly equipped. Uncle Joshua gently patted her on the head, and asked her if she had ever heard a little motto, about having a place for everything.

"On, yes indeed," she answered gaily, I know it; mother often repeats it to me; this is it --- " Always have a place for everything, and everything in its place." But then it is hard to think. I forget all about my resolution, almost as soon as I make it."

"But you must keep trying to remember it, and as the old saying goes, " try, try, and if you don't succeed, why try again.'

They walked on in silence for some time. Do not think, dear reader, that a reformation was at once made. It cost her many a struggle, and much self-denial, but I have recently learned that neither Mrs Ludlow, nor good uncle Joshua, has now any occasion to call the little girl " thoughtless Anna."-Youth's Companion.

The Family Circle.

There is nothing, says Dr. Droight, in this world, which is so remarkable as the character of parents; nothing so intimate and so endearing as the relation of husband and wife; nothing so tender as that of children; nothing so lovely as those of brethren and sisters. The little circle is made one by a single interest, and by a singular union of affection.

(From the Protestant Churchman.) Correspondence

Between the Right Reverend WILLIAM R. WHITTINGHAM, DD, Bishop of the Protestant Episc pal Church in Maryland, and the R. v. HENRY V. D. JOHNS, D.D., Rector of Christ's Church, Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, OCT. 9, 1851. Reverend and Dear Sir,-

I received your note of yesterday this morning at ten o'clock,-too late for reply before the hour appointed for your public exercise in Eutaw Screet.

It occasions me deep regret to learn, that in your judgment compliance with my request and official admonition, on the grounds set forth in my communication of the 4th, would be inconsistent with your views of duty; and to be obliged to infer that you therefore did not comply.

I have no resource, in the discharge of official duty, but to lay our correspondence before the Standing Committee of the Diocese, in order that that body may determine whether or not my communication of the 4th was such a "godly admonition" and "judgment" as, at your ordination to the Priesthood of this Church, you solemnly declared your obligation " reverently to obey ' and " with a glad mind and will to follow ' and " submit to."

Whatever may be the decision of that

ChristChurch, as conducted by my predecessor (now Bishop Johns, of the diocese of Virginia), and urged me to make a change in the same, and when, in reply, I respectfully declined on the ground that I could not consent to a measure which would be a reflection upon my brother's ministry, and also upon my own, nor deprive my congregation of a service which I had always found extremely useful and profitable-you deemed it your duty to press the matter of conformity to your wishes, by the declaration that such services as those held in Christ Church lecture-room, where selections from the Liturgy had always been used before the sermon, were irregular. I informed you that, in this opinion, I could not agree with you, and that I was supported in my convictions by the known practice of a number of our bishops and prominent clergy. As an evidence, however, of my respectful consideration for you, and mindful of the fact, that we had been conjointly invited to the Rectorship of Christ Church, which you declined whilst I accepted. I proceeded to give you a standing invitation, whenever you found yourself at home in Biltimore, disengaged from any immediate Episcopal duty, and disposed to preach, to come and occupy the pulpit of Christ

I had with you, nine years since, held at Church. Having been informed that you were anxious to remove from Courtland Street, I also availed myself of that occasion to tender to you the occupancy of the parsonage house of Christ Church, which was unnecessarily large for me, and I offered to rent a house elsewhere for myself and family. I name these things for the purpose of showing you, that whilst, on the ground of principle I am constrained to differ with you, I was disposed in every way in my power to conciliate and accomodate you. It has been my painful experience, however, and that of the clergy with whom in sentiment and practice I sympathize, to discover that, no matter how carefully we have endeavoured to avoid it, our mode of serving our heavenly Master, and advancing the spiritual welfare of our Church, subjected us to unprecedented Episcopal interference, admonitions and judicial proceedings most annoying to us and vexitions to our congregations. The consequence has been that, one after another, a considerable number of c'erical gentleman with whom I found myself associated, have resigned and retired from this Diocese, whilst others are preparing to follow them. Thus we know full well, and from mournful experience, that we are off-usive to yourself and the majority to whom you refer : and why? Because our principles and views of this Church, and of our duty in it, and to it, and But, Right Reverend Sir, can you fail to perceive that the ecclesiastical principles, doctrinal views and practices, in accordance therewith, of yourself and the majority referred to, are also "an offence" to us, a minority of your brethren of the clergy and laity of this Diocese ? Have we not respectfully remonstrated, publicly and privately, collectively and individually, against not a few of your official acts and measures, and those of the majority adverted to, when the same were pressed upon us ? Have we not implored to be admitted to serve God and His Church, and others around it, in the enjoyment of our never-before-questioned "perfect freedom ?" And this on the ground, not that we wished to interfere with yourselves, but that we begged you would not interfere with us ? I do not specify particulars, for that would be manifestly improper, " but refer in general to the well-known position which you occupy, and to the principles which you hold and advocate, as disunguished from those which are, with equal conviction of duty, held and advocated by the minority to whom I have referred, and among them by him who now has the honour to address you. It is then well known, Oct 9th, which was duly received., I am that two totally distinct and well-defined systems of ecclesiastical and doctrinal views and practices arising therefrom, are now tion of a portion of the clergy and laity of embraced in this Diocese. The Goldfinch and the Mole. BY MRS. ST. SIMON.

In a lovely garden, full of sweet-scented flowers, a beautiful Goldfinch had built its nest in an apple tree. It laboured unweariedly for its young, and perhaps a thousand times a day it flew from its nest, sought food for the helpless little birds, and brought it to them in its bill.

A Mole who was uprooting the garden in all directions, often stopped beneath the apple tree, and gazed at the industrious Goldfinch. At times, also, the master of came into the room, and was greatly surthe garden came with his little son to the prised to find her daughter thus occupied. tree, and watched with a smiling face the busy, lively bird.

Her uncle then gave his little niece many words of counsel and advice, warning her against the encouragement of so careless a habit, and begged her if she would save herself and friends much vexation and trouble, to reform immediately.

This good instruction, for the first time in her life, seemed to make some impression upon Anna's conscience, and no sooner had she returned from her walk, than she cleansed the soiled bonnet, and neatly sewed on the string. As she laid it away, a large rent in her morning frock met her eye, this she immediately sat down also to mend.

While she was thus occupied, her mother # ness one to the other. And now I most earnestly call your attention to this plain and obvious view of the case. We are, in our principles and practices an offence to you and yours-whilst you and yours are equally an offence to us.

Permit me then to say that, whilst I deplore the excitement of a judicial trial, and the exacerbation of feeling so apt to grow out of it, yet as you have taken the initiative step, I have no alternative but to meet it. and trust and hope that salutary results will grow out of it in the good providence of God. If it be decided that the principles laid down in your communications to me of the 4th and 9th of this month, are to be enforced, and that that moderation for which this Church has hitherto been distinguished is now to be abandoned,-why, it will follow that the system of ecclesiastical and doctrinal views with which you are identified, must here exclusively prevail, and then, as a certain consequence, it will be manifest that terms of communion of a most extraordinary, if not, as we view them, sinfulnature, are presented to us, and a most painful necessity will then be before me, and probably before others also, both of the elergy and I ty.

In conclusion, I have only to state, that during a ministry of more than twenty-six years, I have been in the practice of " combining with """other denominations of Christians" in various, and some of them consecutive rervices, conducted under no other author y than the law of love to our common Lord and Saviour. During the meetings of the Diocesan Conventions of Ohio, -- and I believe the same custom obtains in Vir, inia-the pulpits of all the evangelical denon-mations of Christians are occasionally offered to our clergy, in the same spirit of Christian courtesy with ply of this most excellent vegetable which the Eutaw Street Methodist Episcopal Church puloit was recently offered to me, and has been occupied by our brethren. I have preached in churches of I know not how many diffe ent denominations, and upon one occasion with a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church by my side. 1 have officiated in steamboats and public hotels-in soldiers' barracks, in almshouses and hospitals, and even in the public streets of our city, a few years since, when the alarming increase of municipal crime seemed, as now, to call for extraordinary efforts to leaven the vast multitudes around us with the truths of the blessed gospel. I have united with my brethren of other denominations, in Bible Societies, and for seven years hav : been honoured with the office of President of the Maryland Branch of the American Tract Society ; in the service of which, its officers and managers, clergy and laity of different denominations of Christians, combine in consecutive religious services-praying together and working together in the diffusion of those truths beets ten or twelve inches asunder; stir is sure to reap a rich reward in the time of which are equally dear to us all. Of the very moderate usefulness which I may have been permitted to render to my fellow-men, and to my own several congregations, I believe a large share will be found in connection with these associations; nor am I willing to forego them, during the short time which my God and Saviour may permit me, his most unworthy servant, to continue his service. I shall never interfere with others of my respected brethren of the ministry who conscientiously differ with me in these "points, but my christian liberty and obligations must not be abridged by them. Such, Right Reverend and Dear Sir, are my fixed determinations. Proceed, therefore, in the purposes indicated in your letter of the 9th, and with the help of God, I shall endeavour to pre-

Work in the Garden.

There is no spot in a farm as competent to insure comfort and profit, as in the space allotted to a garden, if that be well tillednay, so far as regards profit, it is safe to assert, that half an acre devoted to such purpose, and cultivated, as it ought to be, with skill and industry, will yield more profit than any three acres which may be appropriated to field culture.

Sowing Seeds for Early Use.-It is to be presumed that all our enterprising readers have prepared their gardens with hot bed frames; therefore we take pleasure to remind them that during this month they should sow seeds of the following kinds of vegetables, viz: Cabbages, of early and late kinds-lettuce, cauliflower, broccoli and celery.

Celery seed may be sowed in the openground as soon as the frost is out of the ground, to raise a crop to succeed that which may be grown from the plants grown in the hot bed.

Radishes .- If you have a good loamy, warm border, facing the south, and protected on the north and west, you may sow radishes thereon, so soon as the frost is out of the ground. The border must be well manured, dug deep, and thoroughly pulverized by frequent raking. Should frost unexpectedly come after the seed is sown, or the plants up, protect the border by a covering of straw, corn stalks, or pine bushes,

Cheese Making.

" Take a gallon and a half of water, and throw into it a pint and a half of common salt, boil and skim it, and add three or four ounces of rose leaves. After it is sufficiently steeped, let it cool, and put in one ounce of saltpetre and four runnets. A great spoonful of this preparation is enough to turn fifteen gallons, of milk. When the curd is made dip it out carefully, and put it into a cloth that sits in a vessel with its bottom perforated with holes. Let a person on each side of the cloth take up the corners, and raise the curd carefully and turn it from one side to the other in the clo h, in order to better draining off the whey; then lay it as before, in a vessel perforated with holes, and thus turn it once in fifteen or twenty minutes, and in the intervals place a follower upon it, with a stone above; cutting the curd through each time. When the whey is out, season it with salt to suit your palate, while cutting it up in small pieces with a suitable knife; then put it up for pressing. Let it

Skill in Farming.

The farmer has quite as much need of skill and tact in cultivating the earth, as any other class of citizens. Skill, tact and good management, contribute quite as much to success in farmers as hard work. The head must work as well as the hands, and be mutual helpers. In the article of butter, for instance, the same outlay is required to make a miserable article as a good. one. But rancid butter will not sell in market for half as much as that which is pure and sweet, and skilfully put up in yellow balls, and in clean wholesome firkins. It is the skilful dairyman that pockets the most cash, and establishes a good reputation for himself and his butter. Just so it is in all the various departments of agriculture. # Mr. William North, of Cornwallis.

MR. EDITOR,-We are constantly being reminded, through the columns of your useful miscellany, of persons quitting the pale of the militant, to join the communion of the triumphant Church. During the past year, many have died in Cornwallis. Other Churches have sent their gems to stud the Redeemer's crown, and their trophies to evidence his triumphs over sin, death and hell. The Wesleyan Church has contributed its quota, and augmented the population of the skies. But while the militant Church is being diminished, and the number of the finally saved multiplied, it is cheering to know, that revivals of religion are constantly taking place, and that thus new recruits are being enlisted within her pale, and under her banner, not only to fill the places of the departed, but to carry forward the victory of the cross, and in their turn to seize the starry crown. So true is it

' The gates of hell can ne'er prevail, The Church on earth can never fail."

And successive ages shall still establish the truth, while unborn millions shall pray to the Head of the Church-

Ah! join me to thy secret ones! Ah! gather all thy living stones!"

While, however, we rejoice that " multitudes. shall still be added unto the Lord," and that "the Church shall grow and flourish large very well, but other mixtures may answer and fair," we cannot but mourn, as one after

"Far from a world of grief and sin, With God eternally shut in."

The first whose exit we have been called to mourn, is Mr. WILLIAM NORTH, an old and respected inhabitant of Cornwallis, North Mountain. Mr. North is one of the few who are saved, and enter the vineyard, at the eleventh hour. For seventy years he "lived according to the course of this world": not imagining that anything more was necessary in order to salvation, than a well ordered life and conversation. Hence he became strictly moral. Honesty, uprightness, and veracity, were his characteristics from youth; and he did not dream but these would entitle him to eternal life, or give him an easy passport to heaven. It is believed, however, that his conscience was somewhat aroused, and that he saw something more than mere morality was necessary, under the preaching of the Rev. Mr. Snowball, many years ago; but he had evidently lost these awakenings, till about ten years since, they were revived under the ministry of Rev. Benjamin Clark. then a Wesleyan Minister stationed on the Cornwallis Circuit. While the Preacher was showing the necessity, and describing the nature, of the new birth, a ray of heavenly light shone into his mind. The Spirit of God was in it! He thought, "What! and must I come to this? Are not my morality and upright living enough? If this change be indeed necessary, then ! I am destitute of it-I am deceived." Such was the substance of what he stated to the writer, when speaking of his awakening and conversion a few days before his death .---And now

For the Wesleyan. Miss Flint, of Yarmouth.

Died, at Yarmouth, on the 31st of March, Miss ABBY FLINT, in the 24th year of her age. Miss Flint was awakened to a consciousness of her moral state at the early age of 14 years, under the ministry of the Rev. Charles Dewolf, and joined the Wesleyan Society in 1842. Her friends being Baptists, she was not baptized in her infancy; but having found a sense of the pardoning mercy of God, she felt it her duty to consecrate her youth to God in the sacrament of Baptism, which was administered to her the the following year by the Rev. Charles Churchill.

At the time of her conversion, she was a scholar in the Milton Sabbath School, in which school she afterwards became a most zealous and active teacher. The Town School was subsequently favoured with her useful labours, until the Sabbath previously to her last illness. Her regularity at the means of grace, her diligence as a Sabbath School Teacher, and her general deportment, caused her to be observed and beloved by all who knew her. She was also a member of our Catechumen class, and evidently de- received the Lord, she felt his grace was free for lighted in the acquisition of Scriptural know- all, and that our views of the mode of Baptism ledge, in conjunction with her youthful com-panions. At the time her complaint was at the crisis, she unfortunately took cold, which brought on typhus, which terminated fatally. At first she was not apprehensive of the dangerous nature of the disease, and she delighted to converse on the various subjects introduced at the Bible or Catechumen Class, and of the benefits she had derived. and expected to derive, from that means of instruction. When informed that her complaint had assumed an alarming character, she received the information with perfect composure ; and when interrogated as to her experience and hope, she replied that she was happy in God,-that she had no fear of death-she felt the Divine presence with her, and had no doubt in her mind but Heaven would soon be her eternal home. She appeared to be seized with death on Saturday, but retained her speech until Tuesday morning. Not a murmur escaped her lips, nor a desire for life, but an entire acquiesence in the will of her heavenly Father. She lingered until the morning of Wednesday, when this excellent young woman, without a struggle or a groan, fell asleep in Jesus. She is the first member of our Bible class that has been taken away by death.

For the Wesleyan. Barrington Circuit.

In these, the Spirit's latter days, "while the dew from all around falls plenteously from the skies," on other parts of our Zion, we have reason to praise our Covenant-keeping Lord, that Barrington has not been left, "like Gideon's fleece, unwatered, still and dry." We, too, have been watered from on high-have realized, while "publishing the name of our God," the truth of that part of the song of Moses, "My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew; as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass." Our meetings were characterized by the still, small voice, rather than by the great and strong wind, and the earthquake, and the fire breaking in pieces the rocks, and proof has thereby been given to us, that we must not set the Lord a plan, and that there is a diversity of operation, but the same Spirit that worketh all in all. To produce these blessed results, Brother J. ARMSTRONG and myself, being assisted by our beloved and tried friend, Brother Winthrop SARGEANT, and others of our Brethren, endeavoured for a few days, in all meekness, to instruct, warn, exhort, and invite those that opposed themselves, and the result has been, "God hath given them repentance to the acknowledgement of the truth, and they have recovered themselves out of the snare of the devil by whom they were taken captive at his will." And now the signs of Heavenly as well as of natural spring are around us-"The winter is past, the rain is over and gone, the flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land." Young men and nent of error in doctrine and practice. As well maidens, old men and children, are now " praising the Lord, for He is good, for His mercy endureth for ever." The wise and the prudent have at last been led to see, that these things are hidden from such, and revealed unto babes; the wisdom of this world now appears foolishness to them, while the foolishness of preaching,-the wisdom of the God and the power of God. Universalism, and the vain philosophy of the present days, though lifting the horn on high, have been broken and brought down to the obedience of the Cross; and at last the blessed truth has been felt and confessed-" By Grace we are saved. through faith, and that not of ourselves, it is the gift of God, not of works lest any one should boast." Those who were unbelievers in protracted meetings, as they are now called, came and saw for themselves, " and being convinced of all and judged of all, the secrets of their hearts were made manifest, and so falling down, they worshipped God and reported that God is among you of a truth."

About seventy have given in their names for Church membership. One of these was one of the Rope's own children ; but being illuminated by the Grace of God, she saw herself in the dark, and after feeling after the Lord for some days, she found him while telling the exercises of her soul, and her joy was like one that had found great spoil. Another of these was one, who held to Calvin and immersion, but when she

TRUTH ELICITED BY CONTROVERSY.

As long as truth and error are opposed, and there are found those who abet the one and the other, controversy will exist in the world. Those who object to religious controversy, overlook the fact that Prophets and Apostles, yea, our blessed Lord himself, were Controversialists in a preeminent sense. They assailed error, in its principles and details, dragged it from its dark lurking places, exposed its deformity to the light of day; and, by precept as well as by example, have left their followers in truth, no alternative but to prosecute the war. The Bible, as the word of God, the depository of inspired truth, is an unflinching, ever-existing, ever-active oppomay the objectors in question, except to the Word of God and to its inspired writers, as to those in these days, who, set for the defence of the truth, are contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, provided they discharge their duty in a christian spirit. These remarks are designed to have special reference to the great, fundamental principles of revealed religion. Whenever, and by whomsoever, these are attacked, openly or covertly, they must at all hazards, be defended,-but this cannot be done without controversy.

There is, however, a class of subjects, generally admitted by orthodox Christians to be of a subordinate character as not being essential to the salvation of the soul, on which good men entertain opposite opinions, and which, in former years, gave rise to various controversies ;--such, for instance, as the points of difference between the Calvinian and Arminian creeds. It has been questioned, whether it be proper or profitable to discuss these topics in a public manner. Desirous of peace, and anxious that sincere Christians of these opposing creeds should be drawn nearer together by the bonds of brotherly affection, some have declined entering into a defence of their distinguishing views, even when these have Evangelical Arminianism. "That eminent man." (JOHN WERLEY) "held the doctrine of Universal Atonement, with the allied views of man's freedom and responsibility, as one part of a doctrinal system which ascribes all the glory of sal-vation to grace. As far from the Pelagian, as from the Calvinistic extreme, he taught his followers to magnify free Divine mercy as the source of all good to lost and helpless men."-Wes. Methodist Magazine.

We are now at no loss for the reason which has induced our neighbour of the Presbyterian Witness to deny the evangelical character of Arminianism as held by the WESLEYANS. His late deliverances have confirmed us in our belief that he was either unacquainted with the writings of ARMINIUS, WESLEY, and FLETCHER, OF had not moral honesty enough to represent their views faithfully. His paper circulates principally among Presbyterians, who are not in all probability conversant with the writings of these eminent divines; and, therefore, he doubtless felt it to be a safe course so to speak of Arminians, as to leave an impression that they denied the doctrines of original sin and salvation by grace ! Yet we can prove, that no body of Christians hold these doctrines more strongly, or more scripturally, or insist on them more strenuously, than evangelical Arminians. If the Witness be ignorant of this fact, he proves himself unfitted to write on the subject he has taken in hand; if he be aware of it, he proves himself guilty of wilfully withholding the truth, and therefore unworthy of confidence. He may embrace either horn of the dilemma he thinks proper, and which ever he elects, he is placed by the other in no enviable position before the Christian public. If a man will write about Arminianism, we demand of him at least competent knowledge and moral honesty. He may write about Calvinism as much as he pleases, and make it, as a system, as dark and repulsive as he possibly can, if his heart and his head so incline him; but when he undertakes to write about and condemn Arminianism, then we feel it to be our duty to see that he fairly represents it, and if not, that his misrepresentations go not unexposed or unrebuked.

Let us hear, then, this sage writer, who is going to set the whole world right about that Popish thing, Arminianism. In his number of April 3, he says :-

" Before entering-upon any particular discussion or line of argument in order to substantiate the views maintained by Calvinists in opposition to the tenets of Arminianism, we would merely furnish a simple statement of doctrines corroborated by a few leading passages from the Bible in proof of each particular doctrine. We shall then be in a fit position to enter upon a consideration of the disputed points."

Among the doctrines "maintained by Calvinists in opposition to the tenets of Arminianism," he places the two following :---

1. "Man is by nature dead in trespasses and Thus saith the mercy of the Lord, " T'll be a God to thee ; T'll bless thy numerous race, And they shall be a seed to me.

A hallowing influence pervaded the ordinance. I would that this Ilymn of Dr. Watts were not rejected, while his other hymns are received : but rather believed and acted out, in the Baptism of Believers and their households ; the principle of which was acted upon by Abraham, the father of the faithful, when he believed, by circumcising his household and his infant Isaac,-and which principle was continued by the Apostles, only altering the outward and visible sign, "as water seals the covenant now that once was sealed with blood " It being only of modern date, that man has separated the parent from the child, I would say to all among us, search the scriptures with prayer to the Father of lights, and let God alone speak, being divested of the prejudices of education ; and the Spirit will guide you into all truth, and you will know of the doctrine, whether it be from heaven or from men ! "There is a time to speak"-and a time to write. Misrepresentation ought not always to be allowed to go unexposed or unreproved. Even minor points of doctrine, especially where belief may be reasonably expected to influence conduct, should sometimes be stated and defended. Truth here has claims not at all times and under all'circumstances, to be disregarded; and if in its advocacy, the prejudices of some should be shocked, and the faith of others should be shaken, let the fault, if any, lie at the door of those who have unadvisedly given cause for such results .-Truth has nothing to fear from the most search ing investigation. It must and will come forth triumphant. Such has been the experience of the Christian Church from the beginning; and, such may be expected to be more fully the case, as the latter days draw on. The Lord will appear for the justification and maintenance of "the truth as it is in Jesus;" and, on many points disputed at present, his Watchmen shall more gen-

"The errors charged upon these (usually termed Arminians) by their opponents, are five, (1.) That they deny Original Sin. (2.) That they deny Justification by Faith. (3.) That they deny Absolute Predestination. (4.) That they deny the Grace of God to be irresistible ;and (5.) That they affirm, a Believer may fall from grace.

" With regard to the two first of these charges, they plead, Not guilty. They are entirely false. No man that ever lived, not John Calvin himself, ever asserted either Original Sin, or Justification by Faith, in more strong, more clear, and express terms, than Arminius has done. These two points, therefore, are to be set out of the question; in these both parties agree.

three other questions. Here they divide : The former believe Absolute, the latter, only Conditional Predestination. How can any man know what Arminius held, who has never read one page of his writings ? Let no man bawl against Arminians, till he knows what the term means."

The real points of difference between Calvinists and Evangelical Arminians are these :-Has God absolutely, for his own good pleasure without foresight of faith and good works, elected. before they were created, a limited number of mankind to eternal life, and absolutely, for his own good pleasure, without foresight of unbelief and wicked works, reprobated, and doomed the rest of mankind, to eternal damnation-the decree of such election and such reprobation being eternal and irreversible ; or has God, according to his purpose of grace, on the foresight of faith and good works; elected Believers, as such, to life eternal, and according to his purpose of justice, on the foresight of wilful and avoidable unbelief and disobedience, reprobated and doomed Unbelievers, as such, to eternal death-the decree of such election and reprobation, respecting individual persons, being conditional and reversible, but, as to character, absolute and unchangeable ?

Did Christ die only for the "elect" in the Calvinian sense, or did he die for every man in the Arminian sense ?

Is the grace of God irresistible, and therefore inamissible, or resistible, and therefore amissible ?

These questions can be decided only by the infallible word of God. The opinions of John Calvin or James Arminius, are here of importance, only so far as they truly represent the revealed mind of the Spirit. On the disputed points, we are persuaded the Sacred Scriptures teach not the repulsive views of Calvinism. Fatalism, partiality, injustice, insincerity, cruelty, and tyranny, belong not to Christianity. No truth stands out on the sacred page more clearly, or more invitingly, than that-God is love ; and no assurance is rendered more doubly sure than the declaration ratified by the oath of God, of whom it is said, "it is impossible for him to lie' -As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live.

As an illustration at once of the truth of Arminian views, and of the inconsistency of the practical teachings of Calvinian divines with their system of limited atonement and restricted grace, we direct attention to an article on our first page from the heart of the late Dr. Chalmers. " The blessings of the gospel" are as general as "light," "water," "air," -- "the element of Heaven's love" is "commensurate with the species, and may be tendered, urgently and honestly, to each individual of the human family" -how it can be tendered honestly to each individual of the species, save on the ground that Christ honestly died for each individual of the species, is a question which would puzzle any

The nett increase of members on the London Third Circuit during the past quarter was thirtyone, leaving forty-two on trial. The spiritual state of the members and their unwavering attachment to the ordinances and interests of Methodism are such as encourage the belief, that the set time to favour Zion is come.

On the Banbury Circuit our Church continues to enjoy peace and an encouraging measure of prosperity. The desire to hear the Word is very great, and most of our chapels are filled with affectionate and attentive hearers. The missionary proceeds for the last year were in advance of any preceding year, while all the meetings them in their dealings with their neighbours. were happily spiritual in their tendency and impression.

The finances of Birmingham West Circuit are reported in a favourable state; but that which more especially inspired the members of the late Quarterly Meeting with devout thanksgiving to the Head of the Church was, the fact that, at most of the chapels, He had revived and prospered his work. The returns showed an increase of thirty-nine members this quarter, and a still larger number on trial.

The business of the Bradford East Quarterly Meeting was conducted with consummate ability by the Rev. Dr. Alder. During the past quarter, there have been many conversions. In the Sabbath Schools, particularly, there has been a general awakening of attention to the great ultimatum of all educational effort,-the salvation of young persons. Nearly a hundred have been admitted on trial for Church-membership; and a special sacramental service was held early on Easter Sabbath, that these youthful disciples might seal their vows at the table of the Lord.

The Circuit Schedules of Clitheroe Circuit showed an increase of thirteen members upon last quarter, with seventy-five on trial. The Circuit enjoys uninterrupted peace, with an encouraging amount of spiritual prosperity.

The attendance of Leaders and Stewards at the March Quarterly Meeting at Hull was large, and the proceedings were characterized by great unanimity and truly Christian feeling. The number of members reported presented an increase of forty during the quarter, with sixty-six on trial for membership.

It has pleased the Lord to pour out on the Preston Circuit his Holy Spirit, and to revive his work. About three hundred have during the quarter received notes on trial for Church mempership.

At Stockton-on-Tees, it was found that an increase of upwards of fifty members had taken place during the past quarter, and above fifty more have been received on trial.

On London Fifth Circuit, during the past quarter, forty-four were added to the number of members, and one hundred and eleven remained on trial.

We have not space at present to devote to more of these notices; but those already given will be cheering to the friends of Methodism in hand upon the bench, as if he was going to rise, these Provinces. Unholy agitation alone has and with no small emotion of spirit, spoke to the evangelical advocate to solve, but one who has arrested the work in those places where the cause is not flourishing. But we hope a better day is dawning on our beloved Zion in England. Methodism, peaceful, faithful, and zealous, is still owned of God.

Sabbath Mails. Our Post Office Department is so well conducted, generally, that we have hitherto refrained from bringing under public notice a fault connected with its management, which ought to be rectified. This is the occasional opening of the Office in Saint John for receiving and delivering mails and letters on Sunday. We are aware that the present very unsatisfactory arrangement with regard to the Nova-Scotia Mails, 1s in some degree the cause of this, and we hoped that, before the close of the Legislature of Nova-Scotia, that body would have interposed to 'compel the officials to allow common sense and a spirit of accommodation to guide

Now, however, that there is no longer room for hope in that direction, we trust our Post Office authorities will see the propriety of locking up their doors on Saturday night, and keeping them locked until Monday morning, so that the Clerks and others employed in the Office, may be allowed the benefit of the appointed day for rest or devotion. We are not aware what necessity existed for despatching a Mail for Fredericton on Sunday evenings during the winter. The Mails will soon, we presume, be sent by the boats, so that Sunday service will no longer be required for that purpose.

If Post Office Clerks attend to their duty properly, there are no labours more arduous, or more quiring due seasons of relaxation; and as the Office ought to be kept open during the week, from early morning until late at night, so as to accommodate all classes, the day of rest, which others are compelled to observe by law, should not be encroached upon without urgent necessity. -St. Join, N. B. Courier.

A MERITED REBUKE .- Sometime ago, a man was tried at Cambridge for a robbery committed on an aged gentlewoman in her own house. The udge was Baron Smith, a man of an amiable character for religion. He asked the gentlewoman if the prisoner at the bar was the person who robbed her.

"Truly my lord," said she, "I cannot posilively say it was he, for it was duskish when I was robbed, so dark that I could hardly discern the features of his face."

"Where were you when he robbed you ?"

"I was in a closet that joins my bed chamber, and had got into my house while my servant had gone out on an erraud."

"What day of the week was it ?"

" It was the Lord's day evening, my lord." " How had you been employed when he robbed you ?"

" My lord, 1 am a Protestant dissenter ; 1 had been at the meeting that day, and had retited into my closet in the evening for prayer and meditation on what I had been hearing through the day " She had no sooner uttered these words, than the court, which was crowded with some hundred of students, rang with a peal of loud laughter.

The judge looked round the court as one astonished, and with a decent solemnity laid his toliowing effect

"Where am 1? Am I in the place of one of the universities of this kingdom, where it is to be supposed that young gentlemen are educated in the principles of religion, as well as in all useful learning ! and for such to laugh in so indecent a manner, on hearing an aged. Christian tell that she had retired into her closet on a Lord's day evening for prayer and meditation ! Blush and

"What is the matter ?" hurriedly enquired the deacon.

"Wasps !" was the laconic reply.

" Pooh !" said the deacon, " the wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are as bold as a lion !" and taking the workman's swath he moved but a step, when a swarm of the brisk insects settled about his cars, and he was forced to retreat with many a painful sting, and in great discoinfiture.

"Aha !" shouted the other with a chuckle, "the prudent man forseeth the evil and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are punished!'

The good deacon had found his equal in mak ing application of the sacred writings, and thereafter was not known to quote scripture in the mowing field.

THE FATE OF A LEARNED MAN .- There is a man in Boston, an old man of sixty, who graduated at the University of Dublin, Ireland ; at the age of twenty-two was admitted as a surgeon in the British army, and in that capacity visited this country with the English; was present at the destruction of the public buildings at. He has dined with two kings, one empress, one emperor, the Sultan, a poper innumerable great generals, &c. He has held the largest diamond in his hand known in the world, except one. He has had the British crown in his hand. Has been married three times; father to eleven children, all of whom he survived. Broken down by disease, he could no longer practice his profession-too poor to live without employment-too proud to become a pauper, he sailed in an emigrant ship to this country three years ago; and this man of remarkable adventures, classic education, master of four languages, 60 years of age, poor, old, and decaying, is now peddling oranges and apples in the streets of Boston ! # Halifax County Circuit. V

The Rev. G. O. Huestis, under date ot April 29, says :---

"I am happy to inform you, that since my last communication respecting the revival of God's work in the Eastern extremity of this Circuit, the blessed cause is extending in the Western part. During a few extra meetings commenced on the 11th April, at Margaret's Bay, the blessing of the Lord was graciously realized. A general quickening among our members has taken place; some backsliders have been reclaimed and a few converted to God. On Sunday 25th, sixteen were received on trial for church membership. Many more seem deeply impressed with the importance of personal religion; some of whom will probably shortly unite with us-We have also re-organized the Sabbath School. May the 'gracious Spirit Divine' preserve and greatly extend the good work commenced."

The London Watchman of latest dates contains pleasing accounts of the prosperity of our beloved Methodism in various Circuits in the Mother Country.

Philadelphia Conference.

The session, so far as we witnessed it, was a peaceful and pleasant one. There is little or no diversity of sentiment among the preachers of this Conference in relation to the late movement here, let them blush also to see in how irreligious of some of the laity in the city. There has been a manner their pupils and students behave." And little done in the Churches in the way of conversions since the question of lay delegation began to be agitated; this being another illustra- mannerly, as well as irreligious usage; you have tion, in addition to the many, of the truth that no reason to be ashamed of what you have, on Church agitation is not promotive of the advancement of religion and the conversion of sinners ;-peace, or internal harmony, is a natural condition of the Church's prosperity.

At present there seems to be little excitement upon the questions mooted in " the lay convention " among the laity in the city. All the information which we were able to gain goes to confirm us in the conviction that the originators and promoters of the movement are a small minority of the body of Philadelphia Methodists. We mean no disrespect by this statement, but make it because we suppose it will impart information to which the Church is entitled. The counter convention to take place in May, of course, differently regarded, according to the diversity of views entertained upon the subject of a lav delegation .- Ch. Ad. & Journal.

QUOTING SCRIPTURE .- A worthy deacon, in the good town of F----, in the neighbourhood of this city, was remarkable for the facility with which he quoted scripture on all occasions. The divine word was ever at his tongue's end, and all the trivial, as well as important occurrences of life furnished occasion for quoting the language of the bible. What is better, however, the exemplary man always made his quotations the standard of action. One hot day he was engaged in mowing with his hired man, who was leading off, the quotations, when the man suddenly sprang from opened. .

DISASTERS - The disasters which have occured at the Seal Fishery in the present spring, both as it respects the destruction of property, and the sacrifice of human life, exceeds anything that has taken place within the annals of this country .-Two heavy gales of wind, with an intervening period from one Monday to another, have smashed up and sent to the bottom many a well-built and substantial vessel, with crews saved and stews lost, the whole disastrous consequences of which it is not possible to calculate. In the meantime it is remarkable that all the sealers which have reached this port in safety have been well fished, and that in the case of the derelicts which have been picked up and towed in, these derelicts have been well fished also. A great deal of anxiety arising from these melancholy disasters, naturally pervades this community, and that anxiety will continue to prevail for some days to come .- St. John's Public Ledger, Ap. il 16.

The unparalleled disasters which have been encountered in the ise, in the loss both of proper ty and human life, continues to be the all en grossing topic of the day, and the subject of uni versal convern and anxiety. There may be some exaggeration in the statements which have been set forth, and we believe there is, still, enough of actual and unquestionable fact remains to occasion a very general gloom and depression. Arrangements have been made to despatch three vessels from this port and two from Conception Bay in quest of the shipwrecked men, who are said to have succeeded in gaining the shore, or some one or more of the Islands which lie upon the coast, but the north easterly wind which has been of such long continuance has prevented these vessels from leaving the port. The number of wrecked vessels is computed, in all, to be between fifty and sixty, but it may be doubted if this does not greatly exceed the actual state of the case - 16. 20/k.

It is satisfactory to observe that the question of Steam and Telegraphic communication to and from this country has awakened considerable interest, as well in England as in the United States, and it will be seen that the House of As sembly here have granted the sum of £2,500 per annum for five years, in furtherance of direct Steam navigation with Newfoundland .- Courisr.

We learn from the Secretary of the Newfoundland Steam Backet Company (Mr. Hayward) that the new Steamer now building in Scotland for this Bay, will be finished about 1st of June. and that she will leave for this country early in that month. No expense will be spared in her construction; and there is no doubt but in all respects she will be a first-rate oraft. Her measurement will be about 153 tons, N. M. Mr. Hayword received the above last evening by Electric Telegtaph. - Hurbour Grace Herald.

Later accounts state that the Fever was greatly abating in that Colony on the 2d inst. Latterly, its ravages were not confined to Sailors, Portuguese Emigrants and Europeans, but had extend ed among the Creole Population .- Jean Baptiste Van Waterschoedt, Esq., Inspector General of the Police Force, and Lieut. George Bott, R.N., Stipendiary Magistrate, were among the deaths by Fever.

Five Convicts that had escaped from the Penal Settlement had been captured but not until they were fired on by their guards.

On the 24th ultimo the Court of Policy met for the discussion of the contemplated constitutional changes. The Bill introduced appears in the Colonist of the 31st. The general opinion is adverse to the measure ; as being inadequate for the requirements of the Colony ; but it will, for the present, be accepted.

SUMMARY.

The U. S. Secretary of the Navy recommends that an expedition be sent to explore the recondite regions of the Northern Pacific. The daving advances of the American Whalers far beyond Bhering's Straits has opened a vast field of profitable but perilous adventure.

It is stated that one hundred and fifty four vessels composed the fleet in those seas in 1849-and that the proceeds of the voyages in gross 26,850 barrels of oil, and 2,481,600 lbs. of whalebone. The summer of 1850 was still more profitable. Of the transactions of 1851 we have only partial accounts and these are disastroas. Seven of the finest vessels of the fleet have been lost-others damaged. flence the originating of the proposed exploration.

THE INVASION OF ECUADOR.-It is said that Gen. Flores is at the head of the expedition which has gone to revolution ze Ecuador, and that he has from 2,000 to 2,500 men, and a steamer with eight guns, besides several sailing vessels. It is also stated that several American and English officers accompany him, and that some desperate fighting may be looked for. Captain Jackson, a Texan ranger, is reported to be one of his officers. - Baltimore Sun.

DEMERARA - The Governor has communicated to the Court of Policy that he had received an order in Council authorizing that body to legislate on all of the changes proposed to be made in the Constitution without the intervention of Royal instructions; and at the same time declared that he was ready to adopt such steps as the Court might thin's proper to sanction.

Yellow Fever still prevailed as Georgetown, though but few deaths are recorded in the newspapers of the Colony. It is it seems mainly confined to the seamen in the river, the Portuguese emigrants and in a few cases to the newly arrived Europeans.

MOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

A MOST MIRACULOUS CURE OF BAD LEGS, AFTER 48 YEARS' SUFFERING. Estraet of a Letter from Mr. William Galpin, of 70 Saint Mary's Striet. Weymouth, dated May 15th, 1851. To Professor HOLLOWAY,

To Professor HoLLOWAY, Bin,—At the age of 18 my wife (who is now 61) caught a violent co d, which settled in her legs, and ever since that time they have been more or dess sore, and greatly inflamed. Her agonies were distracting, and for months together she was deprived entirely of rest and sleep Every remedy that medical then adviced was tried, but, without effect; her health suffered severely, and the state of her legs was terrible. I had often read your Advertise ments, and advised her try your Pills and Olintment; and, as a last resource, after every other remedy had proved weeks ago, and, strange to relate, is now in go-d health. Her legs are painless, without scan or scar, and her sleep sound and undistured. Could you have witnessed the sufferings of my wite during the last 43 years, and con-trast them with their present enjoyment of health, you would indeed feel delighted in having been the means of so greatly alleviating the sufferings of a fellow creature, (Signed)
