POETRY.

The Mystic Angel, Sleep.

Out of what dreary land,
Or league of sea or shadow,
Or lakes where lilies stand,
Or over snows and meadow,
Cometh the tender angel, Sleep,
To those that either laugh or weep.

In all the long years fled
Beyond the phantom river,
No saint nor seer hath said:
"I saw his pinions quiver,
And heard across the silent night
His coming or his mystic flight."

Swift from some meadow bed
Of poppies, white as lace,
Or from the days long dead
Amid the vanished faces,
Maybe he mounts the dusky sky
Where clouds of fading scarlet lie.

But all we ever know,
When once his spell hath bound us,
And sleeping soft and low,
The world is lost around us,
Comes in the rosy tide of dreams
As sweet as lilies over streams.

For, when the morning gates
Swing back in silvery glory,
This angel never waits
To hear our drowsy story,
Whether the morrow comes again
In splendid rapture or in pain.

Enough to us that he
From poppy bed or meadow,
Or from some league or sea,
Hath brought through dusk and shadow
That sweetest gift to those that weep
Or laugh—the blessed balm of sleep.

SELECT STORY.

The Train Dispatcher.

The office clock ticked with a steady swing, the long pendulum oscillated between the ends of the arc with a monotonous regularity that made one sleepy. The air was damp and chilly outside, only to make the grate a dispenser of warmth and comfort. The constant clicking of my desk relieved the lonesomeness, as I sat with my thumb and two fingers on the key and my eyes on the clock dial sending the trains in security along the various lines of the road.

The comfort and happiness of men, women and children were entrusted to my vigilant care. The responsibility of the position can only be appreciated by one who is, or has been, placed in a similar position. I sat all alone with invisible flames fixed on the network of iron, where trains were sweeping over miles of space with lightning speed, while the far reaching throbs of electric power came to me from distant stations to locate every movement that gilded my untracing judgment.

Every delayed train became an object of concern as it sidetracked for the regular or made up the time between long runs, thus keeping my nerves up to the tension which made life a constant round of duty.

I looked drowsily at the clock, my eyes were heavy with sleep. Oh! for something to rouse me. I walked the narrow space in front of the railing. I opened the door; the cool air blew on my face to bring new life to the sluggish blood that was stealing all my senses. I involuntarily shivered, as the cool breath of night swept through me to make me draw nearer to the fire.

I peered into the glowing bank of coals only to relapse into deeper unconsciousness, when a rap at the door startled me. Glad to escape from the incubus that made me dull, I welcomed the intruder with a bluff:

"Come in."

A rough looking figure stood by my side. The broad brimmed slouch hat half concealed the firm look that made me feel uncomfortable as his wild looking eyes stared steadily into mine. Was the man a lunatic just escaped from the asylum? Insanity was evidently stamped upon the neglected face.

"Are you the operator?"

"Yes, what do you want?"

"Here is a note for you. You dare not refuse the request contained in the letter. You recognize the handwriting?" I hurriedly glanced along the lines to catch the import. My heart stood still.

"Go! I will be at the appointed place."

"I was instructed to see that you did come. I will show you the way." I glanced at the face, upon which a frigid, determined look had settled with a savageness that made me tremble. The letter was before me. Without noticing the remark, I read every line that burned into my brain.

"Wait. I will come."

I rose from my seat, glanced sharply at the clock, noted the time, which was propitious, for I could spare an hour without danger: drew on my overcoat and followed the strange man, who seemed entirely oblivious to surroundings as he strode forward with an energy that made walking anything but a pleasure.

I halted and dropped behind a corner; in a moment his dainty, bony fingers were around my throat. I was powerless to resist. A choking sensation made me weak and timid. With a movement that he seemed to understand the strong grip on my neck was relaxed. Again we strode forward to turn into by ways which were unknown to me.

I was betrayed: what was the terrible danger that made my duty a culpable neglect? Already the moments were flying, a chilly sensation swept through every nerve as I thought of the helpless lives entrusted to my keeping; but onward he strode. I could feel the basilisk charm of the bloodshot eyes that resembled coals of fire as they cast watchful glances behind.

We halted at a remote house on the suburbs; with a heavy rap he stood waiting for an entrance, while his inhuman expression was intensified by the sickly glare of a single tallow dip, whose dull rays struggled through the dingy pane.

A shuffling gait from within and a cautious turn of the key opened the door to reveal the outlines of a bent figure that shaded the candle with one hand, while a suspicious, cunning stare was fixed upon the newcomers.

Without a remonstrance I followed my guide through the rickety passage that ended at a low, wide portal which was securely closed. Quietly the limping figure drew from the faded cloak a bunch of keys and with extreme deliberation pushed open the door.

The subdued hum of voices reached us faintly as we passed along a narrow dark way to stand at the further end until a flood of light almost blinded our eyes. We entered, the door was closed.

The low ceiled room was filled with rough looking men. Winchester and pistols were the principal ornaments, as they hung from painted pegs or lay carelessly around within easy reach.

A look of astonishment that I could not conceal caused a roar of laughter as they handed my iron genius a flask of brandy and shoved him into one corner, where he slumped back to the present, as he reclined in a drunken stupor.

"Come, young chap, you see we de-coyed you; take a hand just for luck."

"I have no money."

"Here is a pile of chips, blue, red and white. You see we sorter thought as how you was business up there and sent Dick to find you. We will treat you right if you behave yourself. Come make your aut, you keep the game waiting."

I was fond of poker, but the game was as far from my thoughts as the stars from my present position. I played mechanically; I luck smiled in every jack pot. I could not lose. I grew immensely in the estimation of my captors. Every moment was an agony, for I could see what the result of neglected duty would be. I continued to play, the stakes were in my hands.

Rough applause followed every lucky turn of the game. I called for four cards, my opponent did likewise; their hot whiskey breaths were on my face I threw down my hand, four aces, and ended the game.

"Young chap, the money is yours by right, you cleaned us all out; but we will make a haul to night that will be worth something."

I sat upright, the whole truth flashed upon me—a train robbery. I located the very spot; what a fearful sacrifice of life; oh, what horror numbed me!

"Young chap, you can find your way back the best way you can, for the damage has been done by this time." As he spoke he drew a watch from his pocket and stared fixedly at the face. I stole a glance, his time was fast. I scarcely breathed, it might not be too late. I stood alone in the deserted street, a hawk moved slowly by, I sprang to the seat and thrust a five dollar bill into the driver's hand. "Drive for your life to the depot." He cast one glance at the money, the horses were in a mad gallop as we whirled by corners with a recklessness that was dangerous. The hawk drew up at the entrance. I sprang from the seat and flew to my room. The fire had gone down; the room was chilly; I awoke with a start, and with a horror stricken face I noted the time, twenty minutes to twelve, cold beads of perspiration stood upon my forehead. Just twenty minutes to avert a disastrous accident.

I staggered to the instrument; but one station between mangled limbs and safety. If I could hold No. 4—if I could hold No. 4. I sounded the call with an eagerness that was startling; with my eyes on the clock I pressed the button down with a hopeless despair, and yet no answer. The time was almost up—five minutes more and it would be too late.

I closed my eyes to see visions of two trains that were masses of torn and shattered splinters. I could even hear the groans of the wounded and dying. My heart gave a fierce beat of joy—"Hello, what is the matter?" "Side track No. 4 quick, for God's sake," and none too soon, as the lightning express swept by like a whirlwind.

I looked into a glass, my hair was as white as a snowbank.

I never touched the key again.

Ostentation in Funerals

It is a sad commentary on a Christian community, writes George William Curtis, which takes that distinctive title from a religion whose founder is called the Consoler, because his word plucks the sting from death, that it surrounds death with every circumstance of woe and gloom. The distinctive ministry of the faith seems to fail at the very point to which it was especially directed. The natural Christian tone at the burial of the dead would seem to be the cheer that springs from the thought of immortality—a sublime hope, a tender resignation. The Christian thought in that hour should inactively dwell upon the soul, not upon the body, and the simplest and most unostentatious rite of burial would seem to be most truly Christian.

But the ostentation of Christian funerals has become so great that burial reform associations are formed both in this country and in England, to relieve the poor of the painful and needless cost, which, from mistaken respect for the dead, they will not spare so long as ostentation is the custom.

Close Mowing

There is nothing gained by cutting upland grass too close. Some farmers now their meadows as close as possible and make the turf look as if it had been shaved with a razor. Of all grasses, timothy probably suffers the most from too close mowing. It should not be cut below the first joint, and better still above the second. When cut through the bulb or too near it the plant is often killed. The meadow will start much quicker if the grass is cut about two or three inches high than when below that height, and the pasturage which will be gained will amount more than balance for the extra amount of hay of doubtful quality that is obtained by close mowing. Finer grasses can be cut lower than coarse ones, and lowland meadows suffer but very little from being cut close, and possibly benefited, as the sun can thereby reach the ground and dry out the excess of moisture. Our object in this note is to speak against the close cutting of upland meadows, especially timothy, when thereby the roots are unduly exposed, and often killed.

The Coming Girl.

The coming girl will walk five miles a day if need be, to keep her cheeks aglow; will mind her health, her physical development, and her mother; will adopt a costume both sensible and conducive to health; will not confound hypocrisy with politeness; will not place trying to please above frankness. The coming girl will not look to Paris but to reason for her fashions; will not aim to follow a foolish fashion because milliners and dress-makers decree it; will not torture her body, and shrivel her soul with purities, or ruin it with wine and pleasure. In short, the coming girl will seek to glorify her Maker and to enjoy mentally his works. Duty will be her aim, and life a living reality.

Adults take two teaspoonfuls of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, in water for cramps and chills.

The Check Rein

The barbarism of the check-rein appears at last to have attracted the attention of our humanitarians, and the announcement was made some days ago that the S. P. C. A. intended to prosecute any person found using it.

Time and again we have called out against this needless torture of the horse—one of man's noblest friends among the brutes. The obnoxious fashion—has been blindly followed by scores of people who never had sense enough to see the discomfort they were giving the unfortunate animals in their possession, and the result has been that many a horse that otherwise would have been free from vice has had his temper ruined by the check-rein. We have spoken before of that excellent little story "Black Beauty," which has done so much for the horse's cause. In it the horse tells his own story, and describes the different kinds of masters he had been in the possession of. A wide circulation of this book has already been achieved, but all the people who ought to have read it have not yet seen it. In regard to the check-rein, we rejoice to see that Queen Victoria has shown herself mindful of the need of a change in the pattern of the harness of the horses of her reign. An order was recently given to have the bearing reins taken off the royal harness, and unless human nature has greatly changed we shall soon see the new order of things finding its way down to the masses, and the horses of common people will be emancipated. Everyone knows how hard it is to carry a load without bending forward; how then can a horse be expected to do his work easily with his head tightly held up by the bearing rein. Blinkers or binders are another evil, but they will have to be more gradually abandoned, because the horse that has been accustomed to them would perhaps not be able to go without at once. The use of blinkers has always appeared to us particularly foolish. A horse with his vision so interrupted, and constrained to look right before him, is often frightened by objects which he can only partly discern, whereas, if he could only look squarely at them, he would see no cause for alarm. Why did the Creator place a horse's eyes so that he could look to one side or the other if it were needful to do so? Man sometimes thinks he can improve on Nature, but he does not often succeed in doing so. It is true in this matter, as in many others, that with what measure we mete, it shall be meted to us again, where we treat our dumb servants best, they will reward us by the best service. "Evil is wrought by the want of thought, as well as want of heart," says Hood, and we believe that in some cases of abuse, thoughtlessness is as often the cause as heartlessness; but when the cruelty of a practice is clearly pointed out, there remains no excuse for the perpetrator. The action of the S. P. C. A. will, of course, be an additional inducement to people to treat their horses in a humane manner.—Haltio Critic.

Faults in Road Making.

A fault in making roads is that of excessively crowding or rounding up the centre of our roadbeds. This makes an even distribution of gravel over the surface impossible; and after a time, by compelling the wheels to go in the same places, produces rut. If loaded teams are compelled to turn aside, the peculiar shape of the roadbed throws an undue pressure on the outer wheels, subjecting them to a severe strain, while the sliding sideways increases both the draft and the wear on the wood. "Cradle-holes" are met with on much travelled roads, and should be filled up as soon as they start. The deeper they become, the greater the force of the impact with which every passing wheel goes thumping to the bottom, and thus they grow worse in a constantly increasing ratio. Another evil in our roads is the lack of adequate under drainage.

Boys on the Farm.

Boys, stick to the farm. A great many of you think that the large towns and cities afford better advantages educationally, socially and financially than the farm. As a rule it is not so.

Educationally, the city may have some advantages, but any energetic country boy can get an education. To get a common school education he has a much better chance than the city boy while socially and financially the chances are certainly in favor of the farm. In the city you may get what sounds like big wages, but after you have paid your board and other expenses you have but little if any more than you could have made on the farm. Then, too, the company which a new boy in the city gets into is generally not of the best and if he is entertained he must expect to pay for it. You cannot leave your work at any time then to go to a picnic or an excursion, or hitch up in the evening to go pleasure riding, as you do on the farm. Although farming is called hard work, the average farmer can take life about the easiest and pleasantest of the hard working class.

Let the Girls Romp.

Most mothers have a dread of romps, so they lecture the girls daily on the proprieties, and exhort them to be little quiet and gentle, and as prim as possible. The lot of such children is irksome. Childhood is the time for childish pranks and plays. The girls will grow into womanhood soon enough. Let them be children as long as they can. Give them plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and let them run and romp as much as they please. By all means give us hearty, healthy, romping girls rather than pale-faced little ladies condemned from their very cradles to nervousness, headache and similar ailments.

He Believed It

Sharps.—"Do you believe in that foolish superstition that if you find a piece of money on the street Monday morning it will bring you luck?"

Philatz.—"Um—yes. I found a five cent piece on the street one Monday morning about ten years ago. I bought a paper with it. First thing I saw was an adv. of a merchant that he wanted a business manager. I applied for the place and got it. The merchant was a woman. I managed her business for six months, married her, and in less than a year she sold out and ran off with another man. It was all owing to my finding the five cent piece."

And you call that luck?

Certainly. Didn't I tell you she ran off with another man?"

The Belt.

How the modern girl does adore the belt! It is a most important item in the fashionable toilet of a school girl this season. And what a variety of these belts do come in, to be sure. There is the gold and silver snake belt, the ladies whose sensibilities are not superfluous, to say the least, adopt; the circlet of mock pearls and the more practical ones of soft leather, velvet, passementerie and solid gold and silver. There are the Russia leather bands, clasped with the owners monogram in silver; the blue canvas, drawn by a gold or silver ornament; the slender, flexible chain belts of gold, and daintier, perhaps, than all the others, narrow belts, accentuating the narrow waist, and clasped with old buckles of paste or silver.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is an effective remedy, as numerous testimonials conclusively prove. "For two years I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and liver complaint. I doctored a long time and the medicines prescribed, in nearly every case, only aggravated the disease. An apothecary advised me to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and was cured at a cost of $5. Since that time it has been my family medicine, and sickness has become a stranger to our household. I believe it to be the best medicine on earth."

—J. F. McNulty, Hackman, 20 Summer St., Lowell, Mass.

FOR DEBILITY, Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a certain cure, when the complaint originates in impoverished blood. "I was a great sufferer from a low condition of the blood and general debility, becoming finally so reduced that I was unfit for work. Nothing that I did for the complaint helped me so much as Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a few bottles of which restored me to health and strength. I take every opportunity to recommend this medicine in similar cases."

—C. Evrick, 14 E. Main St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

FOR ERUPTIONS

And all disorders originating in impurity of the blood, such as boils, carbuncles, pimples, blotches, salt-rheum, scald-head, scrofulous sores, and the like, take only

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 3, 1891.

The Government Wharf.

Would it not be well for an effort to be made to procure a Government grant for a wharf at the mouth of the creek? There is no doubt but that it would be a boon not only to Wolfville, but to the county generally, and we believe a grant could be got if gone about in the right manner.

The Pessimist.

If the Lord left any snakes in Paradise after the settlement of the prima fusa they took the shape of the man who is a confirmed cynic and pessimist. The man who laughs at the mention of good in the world, or virtue in women, or honor among men.

Our Dominion.

Wednesday was the 24th anniversary of the consolidation of the British American Colonies into one great union, and the event was duly celebrated throughout the Dominion.

St George's Lodge.

It must be known by most persons that Wolfville has a Masonic Lodge, but there cannot be many who know that the Lodge named St George's Lodge, R. N. S., and which holds its monthly meetings in Wolfville on the second Friday of every month has been in existence since the year 1784.

The Lodge celebrated its centennial in 1884, and those who had the pleasure of being present will doubtless remember the pleasant evening they spent.

By the action of the Grand Lodge of N. S., lately in session in Yarmouth, the antiquity of St George's Lodge was recognized, and it was then put upon record that such evidence as the Lodge possesses, entitles it to be considered as being in existence from the year 1784.

It is a fact worth knowing that over a century ago our ancestors met when the country was comparatively unsettled, and through all difficulties kept up the Lodge which to-day still meets. In the Lodge room anyone curious or interested in such things can see furniture, jewels, mantle-books, etc., used by the brethren long since raised to the great Lodge above.

Mr A. M. Hoare, who has filled the office of Master over a year, has done much for the Lodge although living in Halifax. By his efforts at the last meeting of the Grand Lodge he has obtained for his Lodge the position she is so justly entitled to hold.

Lady Macdonald's Letter of Reply.

Lady Macdonald, in the following feeling language, conveys her thanks for the resolution of condolence passed by Conservative members of Parliament: -

I have received and read with a proud satisfaction the address you forwarded to me from the Conservative members of both Houses of Parliament, conveying, in words that are each one a comfort and consolation to me, their sense of my loss and their own. Will you do me the favor to say to these gentlemen, my husband's true and devoted friends, with what a swelling heart I dwell on their loving testimony to the greatness of him, whose useful, kindly, Christian life it will be our high privilege to remember.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 3, 1891.

Local and Provincial.

Rev. H. Fosby occupied the Baptist pulpit last Sunday evening.

Prof. J. F. Tufts left on Wednesday for the Pacific coast. We wish him a pleasant trip.

Mr. Rice wishes us to state that he will not be able to be in his photo. studio in Wolfville in July, but will be here as usual in August.

The dark, cold weather of the past week or so is over, and on Wednesday the sun made his appearance. He was a welcome visitor.

During the storm of Wednesday morning last, the barn belonging to Mr. Daniel Hartley, of Base Line Road, near Harbordville, was struck by lightning and totally destroyed.—Beginer.

C. R. Burgess' barque, King's County, which was launched last year at Kingsport is now on a voyage from San Francisco to Antwerp. She is due in Antwerp about the first of August.

Dominion Day passed off quietly in Wolfville and was very generally observed as a holiday. Quite a number went to Windsor, Annapolis, Bridgetown and elsewhere to witness the sports.

Prof. Frank H. Eaton has been invited to accept the chief mathematical position in the Boston Latin School, one of the oldest and best secondary educational institutions in the United States. The salary approximates $3,000.

The attention of the public is directed to the adv. of Messrs J. W. and W. Y. Fullerton in making preparations for doing a large business in coal here, and their efforts should meet with the hearty co-operation of our people.

Choice Table Butter, 14cts at R. Prat's.

The barque Bell, now lying at the Kingsport wharf, is said to have netted her owners over a quarter of a million dollars since she was first launched. A survey will probably be held to see if the bark is worth repairing. She has seen many years of service and has been a very fortunate vessel.

Why suffer the ill peculiar to females when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will thoroughly eradicate every vestige of the trouble, and restore to your faded cheeks, the bright, rosy glow of youth and health. Green Wire, Cloth Windows and Doors ready to put on, for sale low. WALTER BROWN.

Wolfville Division, S. of T., are getting ready for the erection of a building on their lot, which has been vacant for the past ten years. The building is to contain a nice store with a well-arranged hall on the second floor. The cellar is being dug this week. From their present plans we should say that the new building will be a credit to the town, and will fill up an ugly gap in Main street. We bespeak for the society every encouragement in their laudable undertaking.

On Ice.—"Hires Root Beer," and Royal Belfast Ginger Ale and Lemonade at R. Prat's.

Mr. J. I. Brown, practical V. S. and specialist on castration, performed a very skillful operation on a two year old filly, owned by Mr. Isaac Caldwell, of Gaspereau. Four days previous to the operation Mr. Caldwell noticed that his filly was suffering from some internal trouble. Mr. Brown was sent for, and after a careful examination, he found the trouble to be cancer of the womb. After thoroughly acquainting himself with the nature of the diseased mass, he succeeded in cutting it out by the use of his castrator. There was no loss of blood, though the cancer was so large that it weighed ten ounces. The filly is doing well and will live.

Get Japanese Enamel Paint for art furniture at Walter Brown's. Anyone can apply it.

The Bridgewater Bulletin is the latest exchange to hand. It is a neatly printed and newy little sheet, published by C. J. Cragg & Co. We wish it abundant success.

Mr. C. R. Higgins, after a few weeks in the Wolfville agency of the People's Bank, has been sent to Lunenburg to take a position in the agency at that place.

Rev. Arthur Wentworth Eaton, author of Acadian Legends and Lyrics, together with another Canadian writer, is preparing a collection of garrison tales, the scenes to have their centre in Halifax.

The foundation is being prepared for the engine house and we hope to see the building soon actually under way. The long summer evenings would be an excellent time for the fire company to drill.

Miss E. L. Blair, daughter of Mrs. I. A. Blair, of this town, returned home from the Northwest on Wednesday last week. She has been teaching at Canmore, Alberta. Her father, Mr. I. A. Blair, is at Calgary.

Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood's new serial "The Lady of Fort St. John," begins in the July number of the Atlantic Monthly. It is a story of one of the Lords of Acadia, Charles de la Tour. After a prelude, "At the Head of the Bay of Fundy," the novel opens in a fortress at the mouth of the river St. John. Within the walls of this fortress, over which Madame de la Tour, the Lady of Fort St. John, presides, is gathered a curious family,—a noblewoman formerly of the English court, a Swiss lieutenant, a dwarf witch-woman, a Dutch gentleman, and two Jesuit priests. There is a good deal of dramatic interest in the "first installment." It cannot fail to appeal to all dwellers in the Dominion.

The new locomotive "Kentville" for the W. & A. railway arrived here on Monday. She was built at the Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia, the largest works of the kind in America. She is expressly designed for the fast trains shortly to be put on between Annapolis and Halifax. Her cylinders are 17x24 inches and driving wheels 5 feet 6 inches in diameter; weight, 67 tons. From beginning to end her wheels are steel tired. She is fully equipped with all the latest improvements, Westinghouse air brake, etc., and is one of the best engines in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Saylor came in charge of her from Philadelphia.—Western Chronicle.

Sir John Macdonald's Portrait.

Every person in the Maritime Provinces has heard of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, but not one in ten has seen the great leader. Progress of St. John, N. B., the splendid popular page paper that has won deserved popularity so quickly, has no politics, but for a fair dollar in stamps it offers a handsome cabinet photograph of Sir John and a three months' subscription to Progress. It will not be surprising if thousands of persons—on both sides of politics—take advantage of this offer, and thus secure a good picture of the man who has governed Canada so long. The portrait is a perfect copy of one now in possession of Sir Leonard Tilley, governor of New Brunswick, who received it a few days before Sir John Macdonald's death.

The Story of the Springhill Disaster.

Miss A. Isabel Hamilton has been in Wolfville during the past week soliciting orders for an excellent work on the late disaster at Springhill. The awful calamity is still fresh in the minds of our readers and some permanent chronicle of the event will be gladly procured. This story of the Springhill disaster is a handsome volume of 300 pages with many illustrations, and is written by Mr. R. A. H. Morrow, a gentleman who is especially qualified for the work because some time ago he became thoroughly acquainted with the working of the mines through his work as a newspaper correspondent. He has supplemented this by complete plans showing the interior of the mine, and where every dead body was found. It gives a thorough history in detail of all the events connected with the disaster, before and after. Besides giving a thorough account of the disaster Mr. Morrow treats of other coal mining disasters, the danger of coal-mining, safeguards against accidents, in mines, coal and its history, mysteries of the mines, mechanical operations in the pit, &c. The book is an extremely interesting and instructive one and should find a ready sale at the low price of $1.00. Miss Hamilton will canvass the other towns of the county and we bespeak for her a successful sale for her truly valuable work.

The Year's Financial Statement.

Hon. Mr. Foster in his budget speech referring to the financial position of the Dominion, said: "As a whole, our expenditure and income stand as follows: We took care of the ordinary expenditures of the country out of the consolidated fund, we laid a sum by in the sinking fund for the reduction of the debt amounting to $1,807,237, and had a surplus of $3,985,893, which we placed over against capital expenditure, and came out at the end with an increase of the debt of only $3,170." He gave the amount of the net debt as $237,533, 211, and added, "the average per cent interest paid on the net debt in 1887-88 was $1.79, in 1888-89 it was $1.74, and in 1889-90 it was $1.65. This is the burden of the debt upon the country, and the figures I have given show that the payment of interest last year was but 6 cents more per head than it was in 1879, before the Canadian Pacific railway had begun to be built or these vast expenditures made."

A Finished Prayer.

BY MISS M. L. RAYNE. The sick room was very still; the night lamp burned low, and the watchers made fantastic shadows on the wall, but no one moved or spoke.

"What, dear boy?" answered the father, softly. "Is it near morning?" "Yes, dear boy!"

"And will I be well then?" "The poor father could not answer. No one spoke, and a faint light soon stole into the room that drowned the flickering rays of the night lamp.

"Yes, dear boy!" "And will I be well then?" "The poor father could not answer. No one spoke, and a faint light soon stole into the room that drowned the flickering rays of the night lamp.

"The rising sun shone into the room and lightened up its dim obscurity. It lay in golden bars on the white pillows, and touched the little face with a merrily glow of health and strength.

"What is the true religion?" asked the Paynim. Anxious to tell what he thought was the truth and yet not to offend the courteous Moslem, Nathan paused and meditated during the absence of Halahad.

"After his death each for a time thought himself possessor of the ring his father had worn, but they soon discovered that the other two also had rings. Then arose a contention among them as to the genuineness of the rings, but they could not be distinguished one from the other; so the dispute was never settled and each one persisted and found comfort in the conviction that he possessed the genuine ring.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

Established 1810. UNLIKE ANY OTHER. AS MUCH FOR INTERNAL AS FOR EXTERNAL USE.

ORIGINATED BY AN OLD FAMILY PHYSICIAN. All who lay on order direct from us, and request it shall be sent to them by express, to any part of the United States, or to any foreign port, by the Atlantic, Pacific, or Indian Ocean.

GENERATION AFTER GENERATION HAVE USED AND BLESSED IT. When Baby was sick, we gave her Cuticura. When she was a Child, she cried for Cuticura.

When she became a Man, she clung to Cuticura. When she had Children, she gave them Cuticura.

When a young man says that he can never love another, he means, of course, not for two or three weeks.

Excuse me, George, but when I saw you a year ago, your face was all covered with pimples; it seems to be all right now. "Yes, sir; that's because I stuck to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the greatest blood medicine in the world. I was never so well in my life as I am now."

It is, perhaps, a trifle superfluous to say that recent failures in the shoe trade were because of inability to foot the bill.

We and our neighbors think there is nothing that will build up a person as quick after a severe attack of La Grippe as Dr. Norton's Deek Blood Purifier, which we believe saved very many of our friends in this place this spring and returned us to health soon.

These who, without knowing us, think or speak evil, do us no harm; it is not we they attack, but the phantom of their own imagination.

Edward Linde, of St. Peter, C. B., says: "That his horse was badly torn by a splinter. One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT cured him."
