

TWO PICTURES.

This is what the great Edmund Burke says of the duty of a Representative. We want Mr. Snowball and his friends to read it:—
"It is the duty of your parliamentary representative to sacrifice his repose and his pleasures to yours, and above all, TO PREFER IN ALL CASES YOUR INTEREST TO HIS OWN."

PICTOU AND COLCHESTER.

TWO WATERLOO'S IN ONE DAY.

"If you have tears prepare to shed them now."

Perhaps our goodly political opponents, who made so merry over the purchased election of Mr David Irvine, are convinced that one swallow does not make a summer, that a scab won through deep scheming and bribery on the one side and criminal neglect of organization on the other, by no means proves that the policy of the Government is falling into disfavor. It was left to the two elections in Nova Scotia to say whether the election at Carleton fairly registered the pulse-beat of public sentiment, or whether it was merely a blunder on the part of that county, and a defeat over which our party in New Brunswick ought to be heartily ashamed.

Before the counties of Pictou and Colchester were opened at all, before Chief Justice Young had tendered his resignation, the leading organs of the Reform party said no constituency in Nova Scotia would be opened up, that the Government were afraid. But before the ink of their articles was dry, Judge Young resigned, Hon James McDonald left the Cabinet, and the Government threw open Colchester and Pictou! How the Reform organs have regaled their readers since, it is hardly necessary to say. The Opposition were not only going to win one seat,—they were sure of the two. Mr McLellan was assailed in every way that artifice could devise. There was a strong count from the present made against him, and they even exhumed the skeletons of slanders nearly 20 years old, to do duty with the rest. His opponents shirked the main question, the policy of the Government, trafficked in side issues and baseless scandals. But Mr McLellan was elected, and by a majority of Four hundred and Thirty-two.

As for Pictou, so loudly did the Reformers boast of their influence there, that many of the moderate Conservative journals said they had no hopes. After a calm view of the situation it was difficult to reach any other conclusion. Hon. James McDonald its late representative and one of the most popular men in Nova Scotia, had gone upon the Deuch, and his seat was to be contested for by a young man known through scarce half the county, having no political record whatever, and possessing the most meagre business and social influence. Indeed when Pictou was opened, the Conservative party had not made up their minds who their candidate was to be, and their enemies in Halifax taunted them that they had to pull off their considering caps without being able to get a man. But on the other side was a man of extensive business influence and of first class business abilities; a man like unto another of whom our readers know to their cost, with this exception, that the Pictou man would be a credit to his County in the Commons, on whatever side he sat, being at once an able politician and a man who would not desert his constituents at a time when he should be at his post, no matter what the personal consequences. If we mistake not, Mr Carmichael builds ships, supplies a number of small firms, supplies very largely directly, and gives likewise direct employment to a host of people. So influential and worthy a man is he that in 1873 he defeated Hon. James McDonald, and in 1878 the opponent of this man was the more unknown, unpretentious young Mr. McDougall—and he beat the great and worthy Carmichael by two hundred and eight votes!

Is it any wonder that our local Grits here at 12 o'clock on election night had not "heard a word" from Pictou and Colchester? That they walked through the streets their jaws hanging as low as on that fatal morning which brought the direful news of the utter rout and annihilation of the Mackenzie party and the death blow to all their foolish hopes?

GOVERNMENT FOLLY.

The Government orders the proprietors of ballast wharves to repair their wharves, to keep the ballast from piling through into the river. And what will be accomplished by this?—so long as captains may if they chose, and if they take a little care to find the opportunity, dump their ballast anywhere in the river a few miles down? A correspondent, who would not make a false statement informs us that not long since three ships dumped their ballast in the river, and that no one seemed to know, or care anything about it. Indeed this dumping in the river has passed into a practice by some, and this is why, when some other captains, who discharge ballast in a lawful way go home, they are upbraided by their employers for going to the expense. "Why not dump your ballast in the river. You might have had you desire to. Captain so and so did it, did the same last year, and the year before—has always done so. If some are allowed to break the laws, why should you seek to fulfil them?" That captain seeks the opportunity on his next arrival and—dumps his ballast in the river. Still the Department with charge of this matter goes around blowing that they have ordered the ballast wharves to be repaired! For goodness sake if they can't grapple with the whole irregularity, at least with its most flagrant features, if in other words they cannot guarantee such official vigilance as will see the laws are carried out, let them not put our ballast wharf proprietors to annoyance and expense, but let every thing stand as it is, and one thing with the other go to the dogs.

WHAT THINK THE GRITS OF THIS?

Edward Blake, the pure, the immaculate Free Trade leader, in the anguish of his heart turns himself to England, and across the dreary expanse of ocean cries, et tu Brute! for Free Trade England, to whom Mr. Blake has pointed as being now about the only country wherein a thorough-bred Free Trader may see a model, has become possessed of "the protection craze." Here is an extract from a late cable to the N. Y. Herald test any Didymus may doubt us:

The growing feeling in England in favor of protection has had its effect upon the English commissioners, and they are very strongly inclined to insist upon duties which, while nominally retaliatory, shall be in effect protective. The question of duties upon heavy woollen goods will be discussed next week.

Isn't it about time something were done here, in this matter? Cant the Sons of Temperance "Scribe" draw up a "resolution" to restrain England—or couldn't Councillor Goggin or Mr. Snowball do something?

HEADS, I WIN.—TAILS, YOU LOSE.

The honest, and conscientious Telegraph took a most encouraging view of the situation Saturday morning. It started out like a child that knew it was going to get a spanking; and then it proceeded to take comfort out of the situation. If the Liberals carry the Counties even by the slightest majorities it said, we may expect at the general Elections a sweeping victory; if the Opposition take only one seat, likewise will it indicate an overwhelming Liberal victory in 1883; even, says the unctuous writer, should the Government retain the seats by moderate majorities, the result would indicate a Liberal triumph at the next election. Precisely: It would be impossible for these elections to turn out any way that would not indicate a majority for the Opposition in 1883! The Conservatives are content with the offices; let the poor Grits have the hopes.

EXPENSIVE CHICKENS.

Mr David Irvine, burnt lands, Carleton, will soon be called upon to give an account of all the chickens he bought on polling day. The proper legal document touching the methods by which he gained his seat, has been made out and filed in the Supreme Court, at Fredericton. A man has a right to pay what price he pleases for a chicken or a young duck, but when he has "battered" with the vendor for 30 cents a pair a month before the election, and on polling day offers $2 a pair, there is something then for the Court to enquire about, and something for this standard bearer of purity to answer.

POETRY ON THE STUMP.

The Grits even employed poetry against their opponent in Colchester. One dazed old man, "James Young, M. P. P." 86 years old—too gouty to get to the booth—flooded the electorate with rhyme. He said the N. P. drove his son off to "Calaforne," and he wrote to him to come back "But yet he writes he cannot come—may be it will not be. Thanks to McMillan, and McKay, and the thing they call the N. P." It is time this old man were dead.

The disturbance through Ireland is subsiding; and, as we predicted a few days ago, the crisis is passed.

NIHILISM.

Nihilism is still growing in Russia. It has spread through the army and the navy, and breaks out in high and low places. The efforts of the Government to stamp it out are laughed at. A revolution is growing: some day it will develop itself, and that day is not very far. The mene, mene, checkel, is written above the house and the rule of the luckless autocrat of the Russias.

There has been serious rioting in Mersailles, between the resident Italians and the French population. The trouble has grown out of France's accession of Tunis. When the French troops, returning from Tunis, landed in Mersailles, members of the Italian Club hissed them. Then followed the conflict. Several have been killed, and 30 or 40 wounded.

Mr. Boyle of the Irish Canadian, has made just eleven somersaults in the last year. The News can't hold a candle to him.

EDITORIAL GLEANINGS

AN IRISH PROPHECY.

The peasantry in the neighborhood of Timoleague, on Courtmaesberry Bay, are greatly excited over the old prophecy of St. Molaga, from whom the town is named—Teach-Molaga, the house of Molaga. The abbey ruins and tombs at Timoleague are among the finest in Munster, and there, according to tradition, St. Molaga lived for many years. He was a saint of great renown in the County Cork. He was born near Fermoy. Teuber-Molaga is his well and Labba-Molaga his bed or grave. His prophecy on the agrarian agitation, which has been lately discovered from the mass of local folk-lore, is said to have been uttered in 660, when Coreagh (Cork) was, as its name implies, a marsh, and when the old sept of McCarthy ruled the place. Here is a translation of the prophecy:—

Eighteen Eighty-one
The stranger is undone, In Coragh shall be seen
The red beneath the green; Eighteen Eighty-three McCarthy's sons are free,
The green above the red,
The lion's litter dead.

This prophecy has been printed and scattered far and wide through Munster, and copies of it have been sent to Irish members of Parliament and exhibited in the lobbies of the House.

WHO WOULD BE A CZAR?

St. Petersburg advices state that the Czar still keeps himself a close prisoner at Gatschina. Sappers and miners have dug up every rod of ground within a mile of the place in the search for mines. The water used in the palace is brought from St. Petersburg in consequence of a rumour that the Nihilists have tampered with the supply at Gatschina. The troops guarding the palace are changed every day. The Czar is said to be a complete wreck. Some days he sluts himself up in a cabinet and refuses to see even the members of his suite. It is stated that he intended some time ago to make Kieff the capital of Russia, but the recent operations of the Nihilists in the south west frightened him. The peasants threatened an agrarian war.

lying at the Canada Dock discharging ballast.

There is a schooner in New York loading anthracite coal for Mr. T. F. Gillespie our M. P. P.

Mr. Henry Wyse of Newcastle has purchased the property belonging to his father on George Street.

Hon. Mr. Caron, Minister of War will be at Sussex on the 1st of July. The Governor General, and several Ministers and other notables will be likewise there.

Archbishop Hannen arrived in Halifax from Rome, Saturday, in the "Parisian." The Catholics of Halifax turned out in large numbers, and gave His Grace a beauty reception.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The people of St. John do not belong to the Carlyle school. They take the good of every day but seem to have neither taste nor energy enough to look for more to morrow. They lack those honorable feelings of pride and ambition which are necessary essentials for an onward march to progress. Every winter they are entertained with a series of lectures which are always pronounced admirable but in truth are nothing more than magazine articles sometimes poorly written, sometimes indifferently compiled and invariably badly delivered.

Sometimes ago the idea struck them of perpetuating the memory of the pioneers of the country through the means of a monument of some description. For quite while the correspondence and editorial columns of our papers had space for no other subject until it was finally decided that a Memorial Hall should be erected.
Here the matter dropped and we have heard nothing of it since.

The Free Public Library was the next to be renovated. The requirements of the fair Queen of the Fundy, and the fact that there were men in St. John who would one day grace the annals of the literati, were arguments readily used by those who were anxious for the movement. Works were sent liberally from different quarters of Canada and the neighboring Republic, a repository was procured; and I would say, the matter was left to rest in peace, was it not for the fact that every week or so the press informs us that they are putting a new lock on the door, white washing the ceiling, painting the shelves, marking the books, or scrubbing the floor. And the people are happy because there is a slight prospect of having books for the free use of their children ten years hence.

The literature of their newspapers is very indifferent, and still they are contented. Its "pot house politicians," elected by their popular vote, is another proof of excellent taste. And the claim they now have to a professional artist is another example of their love for the sublime. If the duty of a "child of art" consists in throwing paint with a brush on canvas I am compelled to admit that their his and such a state of perfection that Minerva should decorate his brow with the diadem of success and his name should adorn the garland of art with that of Angelo, Raphael and Ra-bens.

MORE LAWYERS.
Mr. A. B. Walker, L. L. B., a colored gentleman who studied law in this City under the preceptorship of George G.
Gilbert, Esq., was sworn in on Wednesday last, as an Attorney of the Supreme Court. Mr. Walker has established quite a local fame as a photographer and is beyond a doubt the only verbatim reporter in the Province. He has been a hard student and possesses no small amount of intellect so that he bids fair to reach a high position among the members of the bar.

ST. JOHN, June 21, 1881.

OUR CHATHAM BUSINESS
HOUSES.

MR. MOSES CONNORS.

Mr. Connors and his business are well and favorably known. This establishment is one of the time-honored institutions of the Miramichi, that has seen others totter and fall, always maintaining itself. Some men people say are born under a lucky star; but the lucky star is the man himself, and not some controlling influence in the sky. Mr.
Connors seems always to have prospered in his undertakings, and he now sees himself, after his battle through life, well provided for in his later years. His store has always been a credit to the trade; and now as always it boasts of a large general stock, and a staff of customers, whom nothing could induce to go elsewhere. By the way, one of the English delegates in a letter to the British press, described Mr. Connors as a Rot-schild of the Miramichi.

MR. J. FOTHERINGHAM.

Everybody knows the establishment with the sign of the golden ball; and few there are about Chatham and its environs that do not know the proprietor of the establishment. Mr. Fotheringham has played in the dual role of mercantile man and local politician, and in both he has been successful to a creditable degree. While he kept a first class boot and shoe store, he was a first-class councillor for our parish, but at the present he gives his time to his business, and Mr.
Goggin holds the reins of government.
Besides boot and shoes, of a wide variety, and the best quality, Mr. Fotheringham is an extensive dealer in furniture which he always sold cheap and which he now sells cheaper still—even though afflicted by the N. P. Mr. Fotheringham is a warm hearted Scotchman, generous and frank to a fault and we wish him a long continuance of his usual good luck in business.

MR. W. N. HARPER.

Mr. Harper's establishment is adver-tized elsewhere in the Star. He keeps and makes, and repairs watches, clocks, jewellery, and nearly everything in the jeweller and goldsmith's line. He is a first-class workman, is prompt in his attention to his business—and popular with his many customers. His stock on hand has been selected with care; and owing to a proper management the business of Mr. Harper is a paying one.

D. M. LOGGIE & CO.

This is an extensive and popular dry goods, and general establishment, and successful as it is extensive and popular.
Wherever you see a Loggie doing business, you may be sure he is not going behind hand, and this is eminently true of the establishment in question. Mr. D. M.

Loggie has been about 8 years doing business here, and each year in that time has seen an improvement in his affairs.
His stock is choice, extensive and varied, while his clerks are attentive and courteous, and keep their shop in a creditable manner. Beside the dry goods business Messrs. Loggie do an extensive outside business in the fish trade etc.

MR. JAMES DESMOND

Has lately established himself in a grocery business on Water Street, and though he has not long occupied the new stand, he has secured an encouraging share of patronage. Mr. Desmond is a general favorite personally, long and well known as a business man; as a master shipbuilder and mechanic. We wish him success in his new establishment.

MR. P. A. NOONAN.

This is a new establishment, dry goods, situated in the old Noonan store, which occupies one of the most prominent business places in town. The business has been started by Mr. P. A.
Noonan, on his own account, and the stock is very large, and in great measure selected under the personal supervision of Mr. Noonan. It would be difficult to enumerate the entire stock list but the general goods furnishings, in wide variety, of different prices, but all low, ready made clothing, hats, caps, may be mentioned. Mr. Noonan has already an encouraging patronage, and the prospects are it will increase much, and will reward the young proprietor for his venture.

A TOUR THROUGH IRE- LAND.

ANOTHER "BAD" LANDLORD.

Beautiful Scenery—and Lands let out for Pasture.

O'RUARKE'S CASTLE—WHENCE FLED
"ERIN'S DEGENERATE DAUGHTER."

(From Cor. Montreal "Witness.")

I was a little disappointed that I was getting no information on any side of the question of the day, and my letters which were to be sent to Sligo not coming to hand. I was advised to go down to the beautiful Lough Gill to Drumahaire to see the ruins of Breen's Castle, the place from which the fair wife of the O'Ruarke, Prince of Breen, fled with McMurrough, which was the cause of the Saxon first gripping green Erin.

A VERY PRETTY GIRL

electrified me by informing me that I was from America. She advised me to take a small boat and have a sail on Lough Gill, for I would always regret it if I did not see its beauty when I had the opportunity. In her excessive kindness she introduced me to a river maiden, strong and comely, who would row me about with all kindness for a small consideration. Prudently discovered what the consideration was to be, and then gave in to the arrangement. The water nymph had been away gathering sticks; she had to empty her boat and I waited a little impatiently, a little ruefully. The boat was big, clumsy and leaky, but the girl was eloquent and eager to persuade me it was a fast and comfortable boat.
She produced an ancient cushion from somewhere; there was a clumsy getting on board, and she pushed off. We went sailing down among the swans, the coots and the rushes, passed little tree laden islands, hooped with a stone wall for fear they might be washed away. The sun shone pleasantly, the swans floated on majestically, or solemnly dived for our pleasure, the coots skimmed about knowing well we had not often enjoyed the pleasure of watching them. The grand woods that encompass the residence of Wynne of Hazelwood spread out over many acres, caught the sunlight on one side. The broad green meadows of Captain Wood Martin lying among the trees looked like visions of Eden on the other. My river maiden discovered to me a swan's nest among the reeds; told me stories of the fierceness of brooding swans, and offered to get me a swan's egg for a curiosity, nevertheless. Remarking to her that

CAPTAIN WOOD MARTIN

kept his grounds looked up very carefully enquired what should happen if he drew ashore and landed on his tabooed domain. The water maiden said one of his men would turn us out. Enquired if he was a good landlord. "Oh sure he has never a tenant at all as at on his whole place; it does be all grazing land. He takes cattle to graz. He charges £2 a year for a yearling and £5 a year for a four year old, and he has cattle of his own on it." How do you know the price? "Sure I read it on the handbills posted up." Looking at the other side of the glorious lake, at the long thicket of trees that shades the demesne that Wynne of Hazelwood keeps for his home and glory, stretching over miles of country; saw the little grey rabbits, more precious than men in my native land, that were hopping along after their manner, quite a little procession of them, at the edge of the bush.

TO DRUMAHIRE.

We drove completely round lovely Lough Gill, seeing it from many points of view.
Sligo is not altogether a garden of Eden, for we passed a great deal of poor stony barren land here and there on this journey. Like all hilly land, there are pretty valleys among the hills and fair, brood fields here and there, but there is much barren and almost worthless soil.

Now, there is one thing that has struck me forcibly since I came to Ireland. I saw it in Down, Antrim, Derry, Donegal, wherever I have been as well as in Sligo. The poorer and more worthless land, the tenants' houses the thicket. The good land has been monopolized to an immense extent for grazing and for grand and glorious beautiful. Then pride and fashion demand that the mountain commons be reserved for game, that is, rabbits. A man must have extensive wilds to shoot over, so the poor laborers are huddled into houses —awful hatches with gardens, and the poor farmers are clustered on barren soil trying to force nature to allow them to live after paying rent. Some of the mountains near Drumahaire are billows of solid stone crusted with moss. They have a strangely awful look. We left the car to climb up Doony Rock, a little round isolated hill or rock with enough of an earth quill to cover its rockiness, so that grass, flowers and even trees cling to its breast and wave round its top. From the clear grassy spot on the summit fringed round with trees, which one arrives at in a rather breathless state, there is a view of surpassing beauty. The lovely lake lies as our feet with all her islands sleeping on her breast. The Hazelwood forest, I may call it so, runs down into the lakes in points, sweeps back from round little bays; its masses of foliage look as if the house were a sweet secret that it guards well. Oh, there is hill and dale, meadow and copse, mountain and glen, and one gets drunk with looking at and breathing in beauty. Oh beautiful Erin! and your sons and daughters starving amid all this plenty and luxury! We got to Drumahaire stopped at a dandy iron gate beyond which the turrets of Breen's Castle were waving banners of ivy, entered and found the castle in a private domain. Here in the shadow of the old castle was the handsome modern cottage extensive and stylish, inhabited by

MR. LATOUCHE.

the agent so much dreaded, so much hated in Northern Leitrim. This is the gentleman who is accused of charging the tenants 10s 6d for potatoes which the landlord sent down to be given to the tenants at five. If racking the tenantry is the condition on which he gets this lovely home, it is a temptation certainly. We felt as if we were in the wrong place, as, after glancing at the handsome cottage, the trim lawn fringed with shrubbery and then at the ruins, we took the lower walk hoping to get round under shelter of the trees to the ruins. A small river brawled over stones below—far below where we were walking. A detached portion of the ruins sitting on a rock overlooked both us and the river.
Was it at any part of this building the naughty lady watched for her lover? A little further on we looked down some steps into gardens stretching along beside the river—gardens blazing with its flowers and sweet wild blossomed fruit trees. It was so unexpected, so splendidly beautiful, it surpassed a dream of fair-land. We passed on, saw a shadowy lady among the flowers on the lawn, knew it was the wraith of the unhappy and guilty Dearyogill. Stole out of the garden gate—at least I did—with naughty and intrusive. Found ourselves in the clean little town of Drum-ahaire, a pretty little village straggled over a hillside among the trees. Went into a shop to enquire for the veritable

BREEN'S CASTLE.

A sad and hungry looking man scen-ing a possible sinence started forward as a guide. He piloted us back by the way we came into the ruins we had passed. We determined to see visions and dream amid these historical ruins. Alas, it was a disgraceful failure!
Not only was the back of the modern tyrannical cottage laid up against the ancient and modern were dovetailed into one another trying to bewilder you, as to where ancient history and legend ended, and modern anecdote began. We looked into the great hall with its deep floirapace at the side, and upward where another stately apartment had once been, a lofty presence room over the great hall, but the week's wash of the La Touche's was flapping in the wind that moaned through the deserted halls of the O'Ruarke. Looked into a tower to find a great stack, climbed over a load of coal to see the withdrawing room of the departed, but not forgotten great lady, or the kitchen that cooked for the men-at-arms, who waited on the lord's behest. Peeped into a turret and was insensibly asked what we meant by a splendid but ill-tongued peacock; admired the ivy green that lapped the bare walls and noticed that the chickens roosted there in its shelter.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for May.

This ably conducted magazine presents rare attractions, both literary and artistic, in the latest issue. The opening article, entitled "Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield," is particularly interesting; it is admirably illustrated, "Recollections of Cadet White Forty Years Ago."
"The Lancashire Witches," "The South Africa Trader," "Among Lombard Gables," "The Islands of the Bay State" (by N. Robinson), etc., etc., possess great merit, and are profusely illustrated.
"A Late Remorse," Mr. Benedict's intensely interesting serial, is continued, and there are short stories by S. Annie Frost, B. C. Cordell, Jane G. Austin and other popular writers; these, with several excellent sketches, afford pleasant reading.
The poems are by W. H. Roberts, J. Cunningham, etc., and many of them have tasteful illustrations. The miscellany embraces a great variety of subjects, and abounds with information, interest and entertainment. In view of the quantity and quality of the literary and artistic contents of each number of this periodical, it must be regarded as the cheapest magazine published. There are 128 pages quarto, and about 100 illustrations.

The yearly subscription is $3, and a single copy is only 25 cents, sent postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.
