"CANTON" Account Registers!

Merchants everywhere realize that to be successful, and to get best results from their business, they must do the largest possible volume of business with the least help. This is the reason why so many Computing Scales, Cash Registers, Oil Tanks, Meat Slicers, Cheese Cutters, etc., are being sold. All these specialties are expensive and it pays to buy the best made. Bookkeeping in any business is an expensive proposition. Any system which will make bookkeeping easier and avoid mistakes is of great value. Many Account Registers of various styles have been placed on the market, they have proven very valuable in saving time and avoiding mistakes. It was found however that in order to be of real value, any account register must be kept in a fireproof cabinet. At present the market is flooded with so-called "fireproof" cabinets containing Account Registers. The walls of most of these cabinets are so thin, they cannot possibly resist an ordinary fire. Some of them have glass covers which are easily broken. Some have different compartments requiring transfer of accounts from one compartment to the other, all of which takes time. The "Canton" Register has recently been placed on the market which overcomes most of these difficulties. It consists of a strong, well-made metal cabinet. The walls are made of special heat-resisting material, and are double, with one inch air space between; this gives much better fire protection. It contains receptacles in which may be filed account slips or in which a separate book may be kept for each customer. No index is required and only one writing is necessary. These cabinets are made in different sizes. For instance: our one hundred account cabinet contains space for one hundred steady customers, also for an equal number of transient or occasional customers. This cabinet occupies a counter space of 13 1/2 by 20 inches and is 24 inches high. They are built in six sizes at following prices delivered to your store:

Table with 3 columns: Size, Price, and Description. 100 account 24 inches $127.00, 200 " 36 " $188.00, 300 " 36 " $232.00, 400 " 36 " $296.00, 500 " 36 " $348.00, 600 " 36 " $396.00

To give an idea of the substantial construction of these registers we might state that our 200 Account Register weighs about 265 lbs. This Register was patented November 21st, 1913, and is the last word in fireproof cabinet construction. Any standard pads or sale book can be used. If you are interested in the simplest and safest Account Register on the market, write or wire.

CHAPTER IX. THE DOCTOR'S STRANGE AGITATION.

"Yes, Devonshire air seems to agree with your brother as well as it agrees with you. I am glad to see you looking so well, Miss Kendrick," the doctor replies, looking down into my flushed face with eyes that seem to penetrate the depths of my soul.

"The meal, which I have hastily improvised for the benefit of our guest, passes off without any appearance of Addie and her escort; and Len and the doctor, ignoring my existence in a way that is not flattering to feminine vanity, enter upon a long political discussion.

Clearing the table at last, I light the lamps; and, leaving them to their chat, stroll away into the moonlit garden. It is a quiet, May night, warm and balmy as June itself, heavy with blossom and deep with scent. Resting my arms on the gate, I stand looking up the road, where the ancient elms are casting black shadows in the moonlight, when a step, a breath—a vague, indefinable something—tells me that I am not alone; and, rousing from my abstraction, I look up into the grave, unsmiling face of Doctor Fuller.

"What a beautiful night!" he says, in that brusque way I know so well, reaching up, without looking at me, for one of the white spikes on the chestnut tree above my head. "Moonlight in the country is a different thing, is it not, from the pale glimmer we sometimes see struggling with the red and white glare of gas and electricity in the city? I have come out to look at your flowers, Miss Kendrick."

"You mean weeds," I laugh, with a glance at the tangled wilderness. But whether flowers or weeds, it looks beautiful as a dream in the white radiance, turning leaf and twig into things of beauty, as side by side we stroll toward the plantation of dark firs bounding the farther end of our neglected domain.

"It seems a pity that a place like this should run to ruin so utterly," he presently remarks.

"It is a pity," I agree; "but how are we to prevent it, Doctor Fuller? An Addie enthusiastically declares, Despert has wonderful capabilities. With time and money, one might do almost anything with it; but, then, as you know, we are too poor to bestow much of either on a place that will not let, and cannot be sold. You have heard the story of the strange way in which it came into our family possession?" I ask, as we near a straggling cluster of yew and laurel.

But the question dies on my lips, for a spectral woman starts up from the path before us, with a suddenness that seems to take away my breath. A woman with a mass of gray hair flowing wild and disheveled over her shoulders. With the air of some hunted animal, she pauses for a moment in the moonlight filtering down through the trees, her mournful eyes fixed upon us. Then, with a low, pitiful moan, she puts her hand to her head, and disappears as suddenly as she came.

I have seen that wild face with those haunting eyes before; but it does not terrify me so greatly now, for the reason that I am not alone. I have the comforting sense of Doctor Fuller's protecting presence to sustain me, I think, looking questioning-ly up into the face of my companion; and if I have not been frightened before, I make up for it now.

Never in all my life have I felt so startled, so shocked, and surprised. White to the lips, and rigid as death, he stands there in the moonlight like a figure carved in stone, his eyes still strained toward the bushes behind which that spectral figure has disappeared, as if he could never move or speak again.

Utterly at a loss what to say or think, I stand for one breathless moment looking up into that white, horror-stricken face with an amazement words are powerless to express.

"That it was something connected with the appearance of that mysterious figure which moved him so deeply, I do not doubt; and, with a great tide of pity, of terror in my heart, as I look into that pained, white face, I lay my hand on his arm and speak to him.

"What is it?" I ask. "Oh, Doctor Fuller, pray don't look like that! You frighten me!"

The sound of my voice seems to recall him to himself in a measure, for, with a sigh that is like a groan, a dead, passionless look settling down over the sternly handsome features, he puts out his hand as if to brush some hateful vision from his sight, and then lets it drop, heavy and pulseless, on my shoulder.

To me it is a supreme moment—why, I could hardly have told—as, stirred to the inmost depths of my soul, I stand here with Doctor Fuller's strong right arm resting like a weight of lead on my trembling shoulder, waiting with this strange, new fear in my heart for him to move, speak, or show some sign of recovery from that mysterious rigidity that seems to possess him like a spell.

Yet I am dimly conscious, frightened though I am, of the smell of tobacco, the sound of an approaching step. And the next moment Len is standing before us, staring from one to another, and asking a dozen questions, which neither the doctor nor I seem able to answer.

"Don't be alarmed, Kendrick," Doctor Fuller says at last, with the air of a man who is making a desperate effort to pull himself together. "It is nothing; I shall be all right in a moment, believe me—a little attack to which I am rather subject at times."

There is no mention, I notice, of the mysterious apparition which I feel assured has been the real cause of what he calls "a little attack." And, taking my cue accordingly, I am equally reticent on the subject; when that weird cry that startled us a moment ago rings out again on the stillness of the evening, and once more that shadowy figure sits like a specter before us.

"Well, upon my word, that's comfortable!" exclaims Len, in his cool, matter-of-fact way, starting with wide-open eyes in the direction the specter had taken. "Now, what do you call that? Is it the veritable ghost of Despere, or merely some rascally piece of very commonplace flesh and blood playing off a senseless little trick upon us? Come along, Fuller," he adds, "let us follow, and find out what its ghostly make is of. You go down that path and I'll take this; and it will go hard indeed if we don't catch it between us. Come!"

Something in the face of our guest seems to arrest his attention, for he stops, and looks at Len in silence.

"What is it, Fuller?" he asks, at last, with a sudden change in his look and tone, as he lays his hand on his arm with a touch that is like a caress. "What's amiss? Are you ill? Tell me what I can do for you?"

"Nothing, thanks," is the reply. "Come, Kendrick, let us return to the house; the dew is falling more than is good for your sister. I am all right now, and more than sorry if I have alarmed you by my illness."

"Then it wasn't the sight of the ghost that upset you, doctor?" Len inquires, with a laugh, as we enter the hall, which is still in darkness save for a gleam of lamplight streaming through the partly open door of the parlor in which the voices of Adelaide and Ernest Warden, who have evidently just returned, are distinctly audible. "Come up to my 'den,' old fellow, and take a glass of wine or a little brandy and a smoke. That will set you all right in no time—do you more good than all the drugs in the entire pharmacopoeia!"

Taking the stairs two steps at a time, Len starts off to his own domain without waiting for an answer; but for the moment the doctor makes no attempt to follow him.

Are You Master

or does your business master you? Does it insist on following you home and to bed and worrying you day and night until you are on the verge of nervous collapse?

A few weeks' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do wonders for any business man or business woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. It nourishes the nerves back to health and vigor.

"Lesley," he says, calling me by my name for the first time—a tragic intensity in the low, suppressed tones in which he speaks—and coming close up to me, he lays his hand on my shoulder with a viselike grip that makes me wince with pain, "will you do me a favor, child?"

"If I can," I reply, trembling to the lips with agitation; "only tell me, Doctor Fuller, what can I do?"

"Say as little as possible of the weakness you have seen me display this evening—least of all, of its cause!" he returns, a look of misery in the gloomy eyes as they rest for a moment on my face.

"I will say nothing," I reply. "Believe me, Doctor Fuller, you may trust me."

"I know it," he replies; and, turning my face to the light, he looks down at it with a long, earnest gaze, under the power of which my heart awakes and trembles. "My experience of life has taught me to trust few men, still fewer women; but, for all that child, I trust you," he adds.

Lifting my hand to his lips, he presses it for a moment hard and close in his own; then, dropping it suddenly, turns away, to follow Len, leaving me with a wild sense of joy tingling through every vein in my body as I stand looking after him with yearning eyes which the friendly darkness happily hides.

CHAPTER X.

ONLY A GOOD FOR NOTHING.

"I say, Lesley, what in the name of mystery was up with the doctor last night?" Len inquires, on the following morning, sauntering nonchalantly into the kitchen, in which I am rather absently engaged in my preparations for breakfast. "You looked uncommonly like the hero and heroine out of some thrilling melodrama, when I came upon you last night, you two. What inspired him, may I ask, to such a dramatic little performance as that all at once? You had not been playing off any of your little tricks upon him, I hope—breaking his heart, or any trifle of that sort, eh?"

"Not that I am aware of," I reply, with feigned indifference. "I should hardly think the doctor's heart so brittle an article. Cannot he be ill like other people, without exciting everybody's comment?"

"H'm! I can't comprehend it. Had it been any one but the doctor, I should have suspected him of having been scared at the ghost, for he has been asking me no end of questions about that mysterious apparition, as if I could understand it any better than he can; but it would take rather more than a thing of that sort to throw a man like Fuller off his balance, I think. By the way, Lesley, how do you explain the mystery of that gray, shadowy figure in the garden last night?"

"I don't explain it at all," I reply, without looking up. "As Lord Dunsany says, there are some things in the world that no fellow can find out; and possibly that is one of them, though I strongly incline to the suspicion that it must have been some one playing a trick upon us."

"Then they had better not let me catch them at their tricks, whoever they are!" replies Len, stalking away, and leaving me to my own thoughts, which are full of perplexity and bewilderment.

"Three days later, Doctor Fuller's visit comes to a close."

His professional duties will not permit him to be long absent from home, although his practice is not a large one. I fear, a very lucrative one, judging from that trim little house in London, over which, in spite of its methodical neatness, there hangs such an unmistakable air of genteel poverty. Since the evening of that little episode in the garden the somber face has worn a look of pain and suffering, but never once, either by word or look, has he made the slightest allusion to the subject of his indisposition, or the reappearance of that weird figure, which I strongly suspect to have been the cause of it.

"Well, good-by, old fellow, and many thanks for the pleasure your visit has given me," Len remarks, with a parting handshake, on the morning of our guest's departure. "My best regards to the great city and all in it. Upon my word, I wish I were going with you! I am positively pining for a smell of London smoke and the sight of bricks and mortar."

DAYTON Money Weight Scales!

After deciding to locate in Newfoundland, we wished to obtain agency for the best computing scale made. We visited all the leading cities of the United States and Canada as far west as Chicago. We visited three computing scale factories, all of which offered us their agency. We talked with hundreds of users of various types of computing scales. The result of our investigation showed us that the Dayton Money Weight Scale was absolutely the best computing scale made, and that it would outwear any two computing scales of the swinging pendulum type.

We therefore closed the contract for the sale of Dayton Scales and have sold a number of them in St. John's and the various outports. Every scale sold is giving perfect satisfaction.

We are also agents for the Dayton Silent Meat Slicer and Dayton Cheese Cutter.

Over a curving front of more than twenty miles, the British and French troops are continuing to sweep by the Germans across the plains of Picardy from the region north of Somme, east of Morlancourt to eastern bank of the Avre, northwest of Mont Didier. On the first day of offensive material progress was made and on Friday over the entire battle front many additional villages were captured. The bag of prisoners was largely increased, numerous guns and great quantities of war stores were taken, and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy by tanks, moured motor cars, the cavalry and infantry. The losses sustained by the Anglo-French forces are cleared to be relatively small. To Allied forces there have fallen 17,000 German prisoners and between 200,000 and 300,000, many of them of high calibre, and innumerable machine guns, trench mortars and kind small weapons. WAR REVIEW.

Over a curving front of more than twenty miles, the British and French troops are continuing to sweep back the Germans across the plains of Picardy from the region north of the Somme, east of Morlancourt to eastern bank of the Avre, northwest of Mont Didier. On the first day of the offensive material progress was made and on Friday over the entire battlefield many additional villages were captured. The bag of prisoners was largely increased, numerous guns and great quantities of war stores were taken, and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy by tanks, armoured motor cars, the cavalry men and infantry. The losses sustained by the Anglo-French forces are declared to be relatively small. The Allied forces there have fallen 47,000 German prisoners and between 200 and 300 guns, many of them of heavy calibre, and innumerable machine guns, trench mortars and kindred small weapons. To the north of the Picardy theatre the Germans also have given ground on two important sectors. On the famous Lys salient northwest of La Bassée, and in the region southwest of Ypres on the equally famous battleground north of Kemmel, on the Lys sector, territory over a front of more than seven miles was evacuated by the enemy, while to the north of Kemmel the British advanced their line over a front exceeding 1,000 yards. These manoeuvres on the part of the Germans seemingly indicate that they either considered their ground insecure in the face of the heavy forces General Haig is known to have in both regions to ward off any attempt to reach the Channel ports, or that Crown Prince Rupprecht's army has been materially decreased in strength to make reinforcements to the battle zones where the German armies in the south are being so severely harassed. Already having penetrated the Picardy salient to a depth of nearly thirteen miles in the centre towards the vicinity of the important railway junction of Chaunoy, and at other points along the arc pushed forward between five and seven miles, the northern and southern flanks of the Abbe front where the Germans had been resisting desperately, gave way before the pressure respectively of the British and French. On the north, the British captured Morlancourt and pressed on eastward, while on the south, northwest of Mont Didier, Plerrepont Center and Villers were taken by the French who drove in their wedge to a distance of more than 8 1/2 miles. The tanks, armoured cars and cavalry are still working throughout the entire region, while airplanes are soaring far behind the lines bombarding transports and troops movements and also paying particular attention to the bridges over the Somme by which the enemy is endeavoring to escape from their advancing foes. Behind the line the Germans are destroying ammunition depots as they quit their positions. With the new turn of events Mont Didier is in an uncomfortable position. With the Allies hammering away a score days at the Germans holding it and with the only railroad leading into the town also under their guns, a forced evacuation of the town seems not improbable; in fact with further pressure eastward by the Allies between the Somme and the Avre and with the possibility of measure northwest against the Germans from the line running north-westward from Soissons, it is not outside the realm of possibility that the entire Mont Didier salient will have to be abandoned. There has been little fighting of great moment on the Vesle River, except in the nature of reciprocal artillery duels. The Americans, however, have made another crossing of the Vesle and captured the village of Fismette, northwest of Fismes.

ATTACK DEVELOPING.

PARIS, Aug. 9. Cavalry forces are in action. The reports received up to 11.30 o'clock show the attack is developing victoriously on a large scale.

ELEVEN MILES IN DEPTH.

LONDON, Aug. 9. The Franco-British advance on the battlefield south of the Somme has reached a maximum depth of eleven miles, according to news received here shortly after noon to-day. Advances from the battlefield south of the Somme to-day report British cavalry, armoured cars and tanks in advance of the infantry to have reached within a mile of the Chaunoy railway junction.

TOWNS TAKEN.

LONDON, Aug. 9. (Official.) On the Lys front the British now hold Locon, Lecornet, Malo, Quentin, La Felt, Pacaut, and Lesart, above the Lys region. On the front north of Kemmel, the British carried out a local operation last night, in which their line was advanced somewhat on a front of more than a thousand yards. The Germans put up a vigorous resistance north of the Somme, the statement declares, and there was heavy fighting between Chipilly and Morlancourt.

MORLANCOURT CAPTURED.

LONDON, Aug. 9. The British have captured Morlancourt, on the northern end of the Somme salient, and the infantry line now runs from that point southward to a point southeast of Moreuil. This represents an infantry advance to the maximum depth of seven miles in the centre, along the Amiens-Chaunoy-La-Fere railway. Along the whole front the average advance of the infantry is from five to six miles.

CANADIAN HORSE TROOPERS.

LONDON, Aug. 9. Canadian horse troopers co-operating with the French cavalry, cut off a large force of the enemy in to-day's operations on the Somme front.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Aug. 9. (Official.) Our progress on the battlefield continues. The French have taken up the offensive in the Chaunoy region, east of Le-Queval and Catz. North of the Somme the enemy is making vigorous resistance to our advance. Heavy fighting has taken place between Chipilly and Morlancourt. The number of prisoners taken by the Allies yesterday exceeded 14,000, and the number of guns captured cannot be estimated. During the past day, the enemy has continued to evacuate forward positions held by him in the Lys valley. Our line has advanced along the whole front from the Lawe River to the Bourre River, northwest of Morville, to a maximum depth of two thousand yards. Our troops now hold Locon, Le Cornet, Malo, Quentin, La Felt, Pacaut and Lesart. We carried out a successful local operation last night north of Kemmel, advancing our line a short distance over a front of one thousand yards and capturing thirty prisoners.

ENEMY RETREAT SERIOUSLY EMBARRASSED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 9. (By the A.P.) The British cavalry has rounded up many prisoners, but the largest part of the 14,000 so far taken were captured by the Canadians and Australians. The Allied armies have blown up many of the bridges over the Somme River, and the enemy's retreat is seriously embarrassed. An enormous quantity of stores and ammunition has been abandoned by the Germans in their hasty retreat.

DIVISIONAL GENERAL REPORTED CAPTURED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 9. (By the A.P.) It is reported that a German Divisional General has been captured in the drive. British cavalry and some infantry were signalled in the neighborhood of Chaunoy this morning. When last heard from, they, together with armoured cars, were operating back of Fismette, and have now progressed many kilometers beyond, continuing the cleaning up of the country and capturing villages.

PRISONERS AND GUNS.

LONDON, Aug. 9. More than 17,000 prisoners have been captured by the Allies in the Somme drive up to noon to-day, according to advices this afternoon, and more than 200 guns have been taken.

PARALYZING OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, Aug. 9. It is held that the new offensive is likely to paralyze the armies of Crown Prince Rupprecht, which will be obliged to bolster up Von Mutier. Consequently, Rupprecht may have to abandon the operation he had apparently prepared in Flanders. In addition the mere announcement that the new battle is due to the initiative of the Allies will be a sad blow to both the German army and the German public.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

PARIS, Aug. 9. The situation on the battlefield south of the Somme is unchanged, to-day's war office statement announces. The text follows: There is no change on the battlefield south of the Somme. During the night there was a good deal of activity on the part of the German artillery forces in the Champagne. The Germans undertook several raids in the regions of Frosnes, the Mountain-without-a-name, and Souaine. They were repulsed.

AGAIN UNDER BOMBARDMENT.

PARIS, Aug. 9. The Paris region was again under bombardment to-day from the German long range cannon.

GLADYS M. HOLLETT TOWED TO PORT.

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 9.—The Nrd. three-masted schooner Gladys M. Hollett, 129 tons, which was held up off this coast on Monday last by an enemy submarine and bombed, was towed into port early this morning. The schooner is on her beam ends, but can be easily righted and made seaworthy again. The vessel was bound from Twillingate, Newfoundland, for New York, when the U-boat attacked her. Capt. Cluett, master of the schooner, reported when he reached land last Tuesday that the Germans exploded a bomb on his ship, but that when he last saw her she was still afloat, though on her side.

SPAIN'S NOTE TO GERMANY.

MADRID, Aug. 9. (By the A.P.) Spain has addressed a new note to Germany concerning the torpedoing of Spanish ships. Foreign Minister Dato made this announcement late yesterday, after the Cabinet had held an extraordinary session.

JAP GENERAL FOR SIBERIA.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. General Kikuzo Otori, one of Japan's most distinguished soldiers, has been chosen to command the Japanese section, and will be the ranking officer of the American and Allied expeditionary forces in Siberia.

BRITISH PRESS ON THE BATTLE.

LONDON, Aug. 9. While recognizing that the real test of success in the new battle on the Amiens front is yet to come, the newspaper comment this morning dwells upon the importance of the operation as showing that the Allies still retain the initiative, and by such a blow as yesterday have reduced the likelihood of its recovery by the enemy. That Field Marshal Haig was able to surprise the German command is regarded as noteworthy. "It was a victory of a very remarkable character," says the Times. If the enemy, as Mr. Bonar Law suggested, intended to evacuate this country, it is an even more remarkable confession of defeat than the retreat to the Vesle, for nowhere has he fought harder than he did this spring for the possession of the ground which was the scene of yesterday's attack. The completeness of the surprise is all the more remarkable because of the quickness of the enemy's reaction in the recent fighting on the Ancre showed he attached importance to this ground, and was suspicious of our intentions. The Chronicle contends that the pushing of the enemy further from Amiens and the initial progress made on Thursday are of very great moment, even if the Allies are unable to enlarge the extent of the ground recovered. The Daily Mail says: "If to the most satisfactory results attained the gain of ground should be

SATURDAY, Aug. 10th, 1918.

The Price of Coal.

With the price of soft coal set by the Shipping Board at sixteen dollars per ton, it would be idle to conceal or endeavour to conceal the fact that the pockets of the majority of people in this city are being seriously affected. We had nearly used a much stronger expression, and perhaps one which, under the circumstances, would have been quite justified, and unless things change for the better very shortly, we shall be obliged, in the public behalf to call attention to certain hitherto unheard of matters, and give them by their correct definitions. It is nothing short of an outrage on the people of this city that they should be subjected to such a huge sum for two thousand, two hundred and forty pounds of coal. Conditions abroad do not warrant it, and conditions at home should be so adjusted that the burden be less heavy to bear. But, who cares? Nothing has apparently been done on this important matter of coal prices. The year is advancing and there are now but four months of it left for general freight work by sailing vessel. Steamboats may possibly continue for another two months in the transportation of coal, but that depends upon ice conditions in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and in the harbours of Sydney and Louisbourg. There is at the moment urgency that full supplies of coal for household use should be landed here before the middle of December. We do not know exactly just what arrangements have been made for the importation of this supply, and consequently do not wish to make any criticism yet. The price, however, is another matter. July findings that the various Coal Companies operating throughout Nova Scotia had advanced the price of coal to a much higher figure than was warranted, the Canadian Fuel Controller, at once issued regulations governing the same, giving the new rates official announcement through the press. As these rates are applicable to Newfoundland purchasers, it will be at once seen from the scale which we now publish, that a price of sixteen dollars per ton in St. John's is absolutely unwarranted and unjust. As the bulk of our coal supply comes from Sydney, under the new regulations we should be getting household requirements at a much less rate than is being now extorted. The Dominion Coal Company's price has been set by the Canadian Fuel Controller at $4.65 per ton, at White Pier, Sydney, and Coal Shipping Pier, Louisbourg. Sydney Coal Co. $4.75. Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., North Sydney, $5.25. The major portion of coal for Newfoundland comes from the Dominion Coal Company's Mines, hence the following table of cost per ton including cartage, is a fair and just one, the estimated charges from point of shipping being most liberal. Cost at point of loading, $4.65; Trimming, 15 cents; Insurance, 25 cents; Freight, $5.50; Duty, 70 cents; Landing 25 cents; Cartage, $1.20. Total $12.70. Adding 30 cents for incidental expenses not included in the above table, will bring the landed cost, including cartage, to $13.00. Therefore ed a fair profit basis the price of coal in St. John's to-day should not be more than $14.50 sent home and quite legitimately could be sold at much less even than that figure. If it is the business of any person or Board to see about it, let whoever is responsible begin at once. If not the people themselves will have to take the initiative.

Reids' Laborers at Port aux Basques.

GO ON STRIKE.
The men working at loading and unloading Reids' boats and cars at Port aux Basques walked out on Wednesday, having failed in getting their demands for an increase of pay acceded to. They were being paid at the rate of 22 cents per hour for day work and 25 cents an hour for night work, and were offered of increase of eight cents per hour for night work only, the day rate to stand. This they refused and the N. I. W. A. Branch at Port aux Basques ordered a strike from 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. In addition to the freight workers, the boiler men and car-repairers quit work in sympathy. Last evening the St. John's Branch held a meeting of the Reid Co's employees to discuss the strike. It was decided to give the strikers their fullest financial and moral support, and already a large sum of money has been sent them. The Reid employees here have guaranteed to raise the sum of $500 a week for the men at Port aux Basques until the strike ends.

Boy Nearly Drowned.

On the South Side, this morning, while swimming from an old sluiced wharf with a number of boys, a young lad had a very near escape from drowning. He had been diving from the wharf and swimming under water, so that he was not seen. The accident occurred. When he was missed, he had been unconscious for several minutes. One of the boys suddenly noticed that he was gone, and he dived over, swimming around, until he caught sight of the boy, under water. He was quick to get to the shore, when a doctor was soon secured. It is not known what rendered the boy unconscious, but had he been there another minute or so, he could not have recovered. He is now much better and will soon be quite well again.

Michael of the Mount.

A Man Who is Beloved by the Irish. A short, squat man with a large head bent over a massive chest; with a strong, rugged face, and keen, shrewd, eyes looking from under shaggy eyebrows. A somewhat undignified, plebeian figure, with a shagging gait, and a nervous trick of plugging with the chain from which his gold crucifix is suspended. Such to the eye is Michael, Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh and Roman Catholic Primate of all Ireland—more familiarly known as "Michael of the Mount" from the eminence on which his splendid cathedral and palace stand.
His conversation, too, is no more impressive than his figure. He has no gift of eloquence, no grace of language. His speech is homely; and he will discuss Irish tillage and the price of pigs with as great a knowledge and zest as any farmer in the country. In current Irish politics he takes the keenest interest; but he is a clever man who can induce him to discuss them.
And yet this unimpressive Cardinal is essentially a great man—great in intellect and in force of character. With no advantage of birth he has fought his way from obscurity to his scarlet cap by sheer ability. He was a Bishop as long ago as 1874, and he was a Cardinal when the Archbishop of York was still a curate at Leeds.
In his younger days his Eminence travelled widely on the Continent and in America; and his wanderings have furnished him with a great store of anecdotes which he loves to tell.

Reids' Laborers at Port aux Basques.

GO ON STRIKE.
The men working at loading and unloading Reids' boats and cars at Port aux Basques walked out on Wednesday, having failed in getting their demands for an increase of pay acceded to. They were being paid at the rate of 22 cents per hour for day work and 25 cents an hour for night work, and were offered of increase of eight cents per hour for night work only, the day rate to stand. This they refused and the N. I. W. A. Branch at Port aux Basques ordered a strike from 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. In addition to the freight workers, the boiler men and car-repairers quit work in sympathy. Last evening the St. John's Branch held a meeting of the Reid Co's employees to discuss the strike. It was decided to give the strikers their fullest financial and moral support, and already a large sum of money has been sent them. The Reid employees here have guaranteed to raise the sum of $500 a week for the men at Port aux Basques until the strike ends.

Boy Nearly Drowned.

On the South Side, this morning, while swimming from an old sluiced wharf with a number of boys, a young lad had a very near escape from drowning. He had been diving from the wharf and swimming under water, so that he was not seen. The accident occurred. When he was missed, he had been unconscious for several minutes. One of the boys suddenly noticed that he was gone, and he dived over, swimming around, until he caught sight of the boy, under water. He was quick to get to the shore, when a doctor was soon secured. It is not known what rendered the boy unconscious, but had he been there another minute or so, he could not have recovered. He is now much better and will soon be quite well again.

The Submarine Failure
For some months enemy submarines have been at work on this side of the Atlantic, but in spite of frequent incidents which remind us of their presence in American waters the fact remains that they have accomplished little. They have sunk not a few sailing ships and some slow steamers, and both vessels and cargoes have been valuable, but the big factor to be kept in mind is that the campaign has been a conspicuous failure. The proof of that failure is overwhelming. It is to be found in the uninterrupted journey of a great American army to France, an army that is increased by thousands every day as the transports follow one another in endless procession. The food, the clothing, the ammunition for these men and our own is carried in other ships that go and come constantly a vast traffic, which the enemy has been unable seriously to interrupt or disorganize. The principal aim of the Germans - to prevent troops from this side of the Atlantic from being poured into France - has been defeated, and will be. The vigilance and efficiency of the navy have protected the vital ships and the U-boats have been forced to content themselves with minor prey. Berlin has lied about the campaign in American waters, lied brazenly and consistently, but the world has not been deceived for it has witnessed with growing wonder one of the great feats of the war in the transportation of American forces, without loss or even serious delay.
These are facts to keep in mind. In the face of the sinking of minor vessels on this side of the Atlantic. Frequent reports are made, and as winter comes and our export business grows volume the need for constant vigilance will be ever greater in this part of the world. It is the part of wis-

Collision Barely Averted.
This morning a carman was driving his horse and log-cart along Bond Street, going east, and fast. When within a few yards of Prescott Street, an automobile dashed from Prescott Street, around the corner, and towards him. The auto missed the horse by about the sixteenth of an inch, and passed on without stopping. As the horse was greatly frightened, the driver did not look to see the number of the auto, but says he saw a miniature American flag flying from it.

Not Built Yet.
We draw the attention of the Municipal Council to the fact that the new road on the King's Beach has not yet been built. This road should extend from the Anglo-American Telegraph Office on Water Street, to the Foster and Shields corner on Duckworth St. Several meetings of the Council have been held since we drew their attention to this matter, yet nothing has been done. In the meantime the horses and men are waiting with what patience they can muster.

To Make Things Interesting.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are few things the average man enjoys more than taking a fling at woman's dress. He loves to talk about the rapid change of fashion and the folly of such winter combinations as furs at one end and pumps at the other. Most men, too, will surely have something to say on tight-lacing and high-heeled shoes, with fine masculine superiority to the fact that tight lacing isn't done any more, and that a great many women wear common sense shoes for common sense purposes.

One would think, to hear the man talk, that his own dress represented the acme of common sense and utility and beauty, and that if he found it did not measure up to this ideal, he would defy the conventions and regulate it to suit himself.

The Critic Criticized.

Whereas, as every woman knows, the exact opposite is true.

In the first place, there are many things about men's dress that represent the acme of foolishness and uselessness and ugliness.

In the second place, men are far more afraid than women to make individual variations from the form, or even to follow a new fashion.

Take, for a glaring instance, the matter of men's collars. Could anything be more uncomfortable and more ugly in the summer, than that hard, white linen thing men wear about their necks? We women used to wear something similar, and then the fashion of open-throated waists came in, and women seized upon it and have refused to let it go despite attempts to bring the high neck back. They don't want to be comfortable.

Most men, on the other hand, firmly refuse to accept a release from the bondage of the stiff collar. To be sure, the soft collar has unquestionably made some headway; but the prejudice against it is still strong. Just recently I heard of an employer who wouldn't permit a single clerk in his office to appear in the office with a soft collar. Think of that!

True, the soft collar is not as bo-coming to some men as the higher line. It is unsatisfactory because it is a halfway line. But if the halfway measure is not satisfactory, why not go the whole way, and have a V-neck for men as well as for women? I can just hear the hoot of masculine derision that goes up at that! Too funny for words, isn't it—to suggest substituting a beautiful healthy fashion for an ugly, unhealthy one (doctors say that the general health of women has improved immensely since they have ceased to wrap up their throats). As for the beauty of it, I love to see a man with a flannel shirt open at the throat. I think a good-looking man never looks handsomer.

The Most hideous Headgear Ever Invented.

No, I have not the least idea that I shall ever live to see men wearing V-necks. Any more than I shall live to see them discard that most hideous headgear ever invented by savage or civilized tribe—the derby; or adopt some more beautiful garb to grace the festive occasion than that strange monstrosity—the dress suit.

I just suggested it to make things interesting!

I bought a horse with a supposed incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.

Cheap Clothing.

The Philadelphia Bulletin says: A remarkable achievement has been put through by the British Government in co-operation with the wool dealers, cloth manufacturers and clothing makers, by which $75,000 worth of clothing for men, boys and youths is to be put on the market at low prices. Suits for men are to cost $16, with lower prices for youths and boys, while overcoats are to range from $15.50 downwards—all these at retail. This provides clothing for at least five million persons, and the samples are said to be precisely of the quality, and much of the style, of the suits which King George bought recently. Better and finer suits will cost more.

THE SECRET FLAWS.
Seems like I'm never goin' to be The man I'd like to make o' me; Get started well, an' then I fail, An' carelessly I spoil it all. My whole life through, somehow, it seems, I've been a wrecker of my dreams. I've had my share o' joy, and yet I've done so much that I regret.

It's not the faults that others see That very bitter trouble me; When I have fairly tried an' failed, I am not bitterly assailed. By thoughts of shame, I've done my best; An' go to sleep at night an' rest. The flaws that put my peace to rout Are those that no one knows about.

The little petty things an' mean That possibly have passed unseen, Bring more regrets, I think, to me, Than all the faults that others see. Sometimes a nasty word o' mine Has spoiled a day that should be fine; An' all my sighs an' all my prayer Can't wash away the blot that's there!

Seems like I'm never goin' to be The man I want to make o' me; I think I'm doin' well, an' then I stoop to selfishness again. An' when, at night, I'm all alone, That deep I am ashamed o' mine. The world may think my record fair; But I know every blot that's there.

A Wonderful "Fourth."

The King at Baseball.
Universally and wholeheartedly Great Britain and London in particular, celebrated American Independence Day.

Early morning saw American flags on all sides, notably on the Palace at Westminster, in Pall Mall, and in the City. American soldiers and sailors from rest and training camps poured into the town, and by 10 a.m. a huge crowd had gathered at the Eagle Hut in Aldwych to cheer the raising of the flag. The band of the Irish Guards played national airs while brakelod after brakelod in khaki and blue drove gaily away, cheering and cheered, to visit London, East and West.

The Stock Exchange suspended business to cheer for the President; Lloyd's and the Baltic sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King."

London churches offered prayers for blessings on our American Allies and a lasting friendship. The Dean of Westminster conducted a special service in the Abbey. At the City Temple, where Dr. Fort Newton preached, the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack were hung behind the pulpit. The Lord Mayor presided over a Y.M.C.A. prayer meeting at the Mansion House. Dr. Jowett was at Westminster Chapel.

The High Court Judges wore their scarlet robes in honor of Liberty Day. The Anglo-Saxon Fellowship meeting in the Central Hall, Westminster, with Lord Bryce in the chair, was a huge success; hundreds were turned away. Mr. Churchill's "No compromise" was hailed with enthusiasm. While the band of the Grenadier Guards played American airs, the fraternal feeling between Americans and Britons was genuinely shown.

With the bells of St. Paul's and of Southwark Cathedral ringing, with American flags waving, American soldiers riding through the streets, and with masses by wearing American emblems, the celebration of the "Fourth" became universal.

Early in the afternoon men began to stream towards the football ground at Stamford Bridge for the great "ball game." As a group of American soldiers and sailors passed Buckingham Palace they stopped to give three cheers. The King and Queen stepped on to the balcony and smilingly acknowledged the demonstration.

Their drive later to Stamford Bridge was one long ovation which culminated when they entered the grounds to the strains of the National Anthem from the Welsh Guards. More than 38,000 people passed thro' the turnstiles to see the match, which ended in a victory for the U.S. Navy over the Army.

In most large towns in England the day was recognized. Historic cathedrals and chapels, St. George's Windsor, and King's College, Cambridge, among others, saw services. Liverpool was decked in flags and a review of troops was a feature. Manchester opened a Stars and Stripes Club. At over two-score points in England baseball games were played.

Last night London hotels and theatres gave themselves over to celebration. American menus were in evidence, and theatreland made the American fighting man feel it was his particular night.—Daily Mail.

Tommy Atkins, Philologist.

Mr. Thomas Atkins has further enriched the English language with war words and phrases. They may not creep into future dictionaries, remarks London Answers, but they will certainly remain as part of the common language of everyday use. "Narpoo," coined by Tommy from the French "Il n'y a plus," is now our general expression for "nothing doing."

It is safe to assume that the expression "over the top" will become part of our language, to be used when man must be put to the supreme test.

"Azazac" is another coined word that will remain for all time. A "scranger" for a forager, "buck-shee" for anything extra in the way of rations, and "Conchy" for the shirker, are hardly likely to be forgotten.

THE KAISER.

WILHELM II.

The Kaiser makes me wear old duds, and drink the cheaper grades of soda, and smoke punk torches that, affra, tastes like a shoe or rubber tire. Oh, once I always bought the best; I had an ample treasure chest; I drew on Cuba for cheroots, and sent to Lunnion for my boots; a Paris triumph was my hat; the Kaiser put a stop to that. I buy my things in pawnshops now; a battered derby shades my brow; a suit of mohair drapes my frame—the hanged old war lord is to blame. I used to scan the bill of fare and choose the richest viands there; a big planked steak was just my size, topped off with divers kinds of pies. Now to a chop-house I repair, and eat the cheapest victuals there; they will not let me have a steak, they have no flour to make a cake, they dole out sugar with a spoon, and cut in halves the luscious prune. The Kaiser's hand is everywhere; it even grips the bill of fare. The Kaiser landed on our shore, his shadow darkens every door. Your every care and every ill you may charge up to Kaiser Bill. And he'll overshadow every heart until we wipe him off the chart; all other chores we must eschew until that mighty task's put through.

Milady's Boudoir.

KEEPING THE ELBOWS BEAUTIFUL.

Perhaps there is nothing easier in the way of increasing beauty than to have pretty elbows, yet how seldom we see them. They are usually rough or there seems to be dark circles about them, or they are unhappy. Any of these faults may so easily be rectified that it seems too bad there are so many ungloriously looking elbows peeping out from sleeves and white kid gloves everywhere one goes.

Almost every woman has the falling of leaning constantly on her elbows no matter where she is, or what she is doing. This results in hardening the skin, and causes it to become coarse and brown.

A far of good cold cream, a stiff complexion brush, and a cake of white soap, which every toilet chest possesses are the only necessary "first aid" kit.

Night and morning Milady of the unsightly elbows must apply the cold cream generously and gently massage the hard discolored skin. This massage should be a "pinching" not readily to the fingers.

When bathing the arms do not simply bathe the elbows, but scrub them until they tingle and cry for mercy. A few weeks of this simple home treatment will cause them to become soft and delicately pink. Beautiful elbows are rare, and should be cultivated.

What to Call the American Soldier.

There has been a good deal of discussion in the United States, and in Great Britain also, as to what to call the American soldier, and for a time it looked as though "Sammy" would be the companion of our "Tommy." American soldiers in France, however, have taken the matter in their own hands, and in their official journal, the Stars and Stripes, refer to themselves as "Yanks," an abbreviation of Yankees. The "Yank" is, of course, a typical New Englander, but we observe from the Stars and Stripes that soldiers from all parts of the Union are agreeing to call themselves "Yanks," and that appears to settle the matter.

Englishwoman is a Private.

Sergt-Major Flora Sandes, the only Englishwoman in the Serbian army, is about to rejoin her regiment at Salonika. She had returned to England for a few weeks' sick leave, devoting much of her time to raising money for comforts for her Serbian comrades by telling the dramatic story of her military career. She went to Serbia in 1914, and after experiencing the strain of the retreat before the German hordes, she was cut off from her ambulance unit, and at once joined a Serbian regiment as a private. For two years she took part in all the hardest fighting in that desolate theatre of war, often being first over the top and coming scatheless through fierce hand-to-hand encounters. Then, in a charge that secured some vital heights, she was wounded by a hand grenade explosion. For her bravery she has received the highest order that a Serbian soldier can win.

No New Thing.

Oatmeal bread is no new thing in a season of scarcity and war. While the British troops had their headquarters at New York, 1779, Major-General Patterson wrote to Lord Viscount Townshend as follows: "The only interesting occurrence which has happened with us since I had the honor to write Your Lordship on the 18th December, is the very reasonable arrival of some victualers' ships from Cork. They came in two days ago, and nothing could be more opportune, as there has not been a barrel of flour in the public store for some weeks past, and the oatmeal which has been substituted in lieu of it for the ammunition bread, reduced to a most trifling quantity." He wrote a letter of the same date and of the same tenor as the former part of the foregoing letter, to Lord Amherst. These letters were sent by the Halifax packet bound to Falmouth - "Occasional" in Acadian Recorder.

Peace or War?

The American nation stood, a year and more ago, on a high eminence and beheld all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them. It was an exceedingly intoxicating vision. The gold of the world was pouring into its coffers. Factories were working to their utmost capacity and wages were very high. The national supply of millionaires was being greatly multiplied. Shortly ahead loomed the vision of America dominating the world's markets; of Wall Street controlling the destinies of all nations; of the American dollar the world standard, and the wealth of the world centered within our borders. It was a most alluring picture. "All these things will I give thee," was being whispered in the American ear, "if thou wilt fall down and worship me." The principle of Socialism was being greatly interested all said, Yes. The Society of Friends is saying, Yes. It was the Christian conscience of the nation, despising the comforts of peace, throwing away the results of profiteering, repudiating a false conception of Christianity, defying the combination of Socialism and Kaiserism moving hand in hand, that said, Get thee behind me, Satan! It was the Christian conscience of the nation that preferred abstinence and perhaps poverty, that sent the nation's sons to war and placed the heart of the nation at home to sustain them. And in these awful days when the power of evil is slowly pressing back the armies of God and of righteousness on the western front, because Russians have surrendered to the principle of Quakerism plus Socialism plus Kaiserism, and there is little left that we in America can do except pray and redouble our efforts to get men and supplies across the water, it is the knowledge that we are fighting for God that sustains us; that the faith that our own men are making besides the men of France and of England and of Belgium is offered, in a mighty groan of suffering, as the world's prayer to Almighty God: Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven! Use us, we pray Thee, as the foundation upon which to build Thy kingdom; accomplish, through us, Thy will on earth! Thus shall we be content! - The Living Church."

Thrilling Story of Battle With Submarine

London, August 4. - A thrilling story of a fight between a British decoy ship and a German submarine was told by Sir Eric Goddee, First Lord of the Admiralty, at a weekly concert held for the American troops at the Palace Theatre to-night. He explained that the Germans now know about the ruse, and it is needless to withhold the story longer.

The decoy, known as "960," had the appearance of a dingy old collier, with an undisciplined-looking crew, which was suitably attired, he said. This ship sailed into the Atlantic with the necessary orders and finally sighted a German submarine. The decoy turned and ran away, but the submarine overhauled her and opened fire. Some of the German shells fell on the decoy's deck and members of the crew were wounded and killed. The flight of the decoy continued and she signalled for help. An hour and a half later the submarine drew nearer.

In the meantime, the decoy's decks had been set on fire, and the captain told that her magazines would soon explode. In fact, the explosion came in a short time and sent one of her guns hurtling through the air.

The submarine sank.

The submarine had now swung around in front of the decoy. The captain of the latter signalled to a man-of-war which had been keeping below the horizon and unmasked the forward gun of the decoy and heavily shelled the submarine. One projectile tore away the enemy's conning tower and another hit her in the hull. She sank after the fight had lasted for five hours.

The warship, which had been keeping out of sight, hurried up and rescued the crew of the decoy.

"There is no longer any need of secrecy," concluded Sir Eric. "Admiral Sims and I have more ways than one of catching submarines."

Sloe Gin.

(By JAMES MURPHY.)
Alas! "Excelsior!"
The rain was falling hard and fast
As through old Coval Lane, there passed
A youth, who here beneath his coat
A bottle on the label wrote
Sloe Gin.

His brow was glad, his eye beneath Winked at a policeman on his beat His face was red, his legs looked strong.
This was the burden of his song.
Sloe Gin.

In many homes he saw the light
Of sixteen dollar coal burn bright,
And "quid" the dealer ever sold,
But still he bawled out clear and bold
Sloe Gin.

"Stop your noise, an old man said:
'Tis time that you were in your bed;
A seat on a hopper enjoyed,
And to the old man he replied,
Sloe Gin.

Oh stay, a fair one said, awhile—
I'll be talk of the picnic on Belle Isle, Where I would like with you to go
He answered, this will do me, Plo—
Sloe Gin.

Beware of drinking "two-in-one"
Beware, and Florida Water shun,
This was the maiden's last good-bye,
A voice replied, "that's all me eye"
Sloe Gin.

At break of day, as to the town
The fishermen rowed, bronzed and brown,
Near Harvey's wharf they heard quite clear,
A voice cried through the foggy air,
Sloe Gin.

A youth by one of them was found Stretched on the "dusty tarvie ground"
Holding fast with deadly grip
A bottle, marked, upon his hip,
Sloe Gin.

There he lay as proud as Mars,
While in the sky above two new stars,
And a voice seemed floating overhead,
And everyone said that it said,
Sloe Gin.

The Football Game.

Undoubtedly last evening's football game between the C. E. I. and E. I. S. was the most exciting one for the season, resulting in a win for the former by 3 goals to 1. From the beginning the play was fast, both teams putting up splendid exhibitions. The combination, which was particularly good on both sides, created great enthusiasm among the spectators. The first half ended with the C. E. I. one goal to the good. The second half was quicker and the C. E. I. soon notched up another. Then the E. I. S. scored one, the only one for their side. Before the end of the game Ewing scored the third for the C. E. I.
Try the remainder of the game, both teams put up some good play but no more scoring was done.

Soldiers Dinner.

An enjoyable time is anticipated at the dinner and entertainment for the returned soldiers this evening at the British Hall. A large gathering is expected, as men from any regiment are invited. The smoker will be under the direction of Mrs. Baxter, the mention of whose name is a guarantee of the interest and enjoyment of the event.

vice at No. 1.

The officers will leave by the express on Monday for Halifax, but enroute they will, by request, stop off at Grand Falls for the purpose of giving the Illustrated Lecture on the Halifax disaster. A short stay will likely be made at Channel also.
Adjutants Hargrove and Hurd will be glad to see all their old friends to-them. Mr. Thompson is accompanied by Mr. W. H. Greenwood, one of his staff, and for some years Managing

The Fighting Swing.

(By Badger Clark in Scribner's Magazine.)

Once again the regiments marching down the street,
Shoulders, legs, and rifle barrels swinging all in time—Let the slack civilian plod; ours the rifle pace.
Dancing to the music of the oldest earthly rhyme.

Left, right, trim and tight! Hear the cadence fall.
So the legion Caesar loved shook the plains of Gaul.
Fighting bloods of all the earth in our pulses ring.
Step! Lads, true to the dads. Back to the fighting swing!

We have kissed good-bye to doubt, left the frod and stew;
Now the crows may steal the corn, now the milk may spill.
All the problems in the world stammer down to two:
One is how to dodge the shells, one is how to kill.

Left, right, glints of light! Down the ranks they run.
So the January spears caught the desert sun.
Once again the ancient steel has its lordly fling.
Flash, away, battle array! Back to the fighting swing!

Set and silent every mouth, steady every eye—
Grooping, wrangling days are done; Regulations, how to live, orders when to die.
Life and death in primer print any man can read.

Left, right, eat and fight! Dreams are blown to bits.
Here's the Old Guard back to life, bound to Austerlitz.
Shake the sun and rain the sweet;
loose the arms that cling.
Blood, dust, grapple and thrust!
Back to the fighting swing!

CRICKET MATCH—Arrangements

INFLUENZA IN LONDON.

There is a great deal of influenza in London, particularly in the new industrialised areas, and wherever people congregate in large numbers to work they are being suddenly knocked down—that is a literal description of it—by scores. It began in Chelsea (London's artistic quarter) a week or two ago and is now widespread, and is beginning to cause anxiety to works managers and others because of the difficulty of keeping up production.
Fortunately, it is not of a severe type, and does not in most cases last long if prompt and suitable drugging takes place and the patient stays in bed for a few days—and he will be physically incapable of doing anything else. It is very much like a mild attack of malarial fever, and, if the medical profession will permit an audacity, the remark may be hazarded that it may be insect borne. Certainly the so-called English gnats this summer have a power both of poisonous bite and vicious song equal to any mosquito that ever came from a tropical swamp or a prairie "sloo" in the far north of Canada. Perhaps when the war is over our scientists will take up again the question of insect-borne disease. Thanks to Sir Donald Ross and others they were making much progress with it in the tropical portions of the Empire, and a war on flies of all sorts was started in this country. Does anyone know what happened to the experiment of importing into India the tiny Barbadian fish which lives only on the larvae of the mosquito and keeps that island almost free of malaria? It was going to rid India of malaria. The fish was to be acclimatised in our own ponds and lakes if it would be so obliging.

TWO YEARS MORE OF RATIONS!

One big London grocery store, which is appealing just now for its customers to register their new food books with it, warns them that rationing is bound to last at least two years longer, however soon the war may finish. I know that the authorities say the world must be short of food and of shipping to transport for at least 18 months after the war, so this store's prediction is probably about right.

SIR GEORGE PAISH.

To a large number of readers on financial and economic subjects it will have come as a surprise to see the name of Sir George Paish at the head of the list of civil pensions. Sir George was a member of the editorial staff of the London "Statist" for over thirty years, becoming one of the joint editors in 1900. Towards the end of 1913, Sir George, who had previously assisted Premier Lloyd George unofficially on several occasions in financial problems, was appointed adviser to the Chancellor of the Exchequer on financial and economic questions, a post which he was forced to relinquish in the following year owing to a serious nervous breakdown. He was succeeded at the Treasury by Hartley Withers, now editor of the "Economist," who formed there the "Statist" and numerous contributions to newspapers and magazines both here and in America, financial students will remember his name by several important works on railway finance and administration, in which subjects he was a recognised authority. He is only fifty-one years of age, and it may be hoped that his retirement will give him opportunity for a restoration of health and activity.

GERMANY'S DAY OF RECKONING.

Attention was once again called to the precarious position of German finance by the Government spokesman in moving the second reading of the Finance Bill in the House of Lords this week. Lord Emmott is no optimist, so far as our own financial affairs are concerned, but he confessed that were he a German he would regard the position of his country with absolute terror. Germany's day, in his opinion, is over, because there is no prospect of indemnities. She is marching to bankruptcy. It may be remembered that Bonar Law expressed in different language somewhat similar views in the course of his Budget speech. The Chancellor of the Exchequer then pointed out that, even taking notoriously manipulated figures at their face value, German war taxation amounted to only $1-$25,000,000, although the war debt next March will be $40,000,000,000.
Britain's war taxation amounts to $5-$20,000,000. After having subjected Bonar Law's verdict to a critical analysis he was in a position similar to that of Germany he would certainly think that bankruptcy was not far off. That Germany has been afraid to impose adequate war taxation upon her population is an encouraging symptom for her enemies. But the bill will have to be faced some day, and, as Lord Emmott suggested, the British Government would do well to avail itself of any opportunity of giving the German people a glimpse of the inevitable day of reckoning.

DEARER STANDARD SUITS.

In consequence of higher charges for labor it has been decided to raise the fixed selling price for standard suits made to measure from worsted serge cloth from $4, 12s. 6d. to $4, 17s. 6d. ($23.10 to $24.35), with an additional charge of 3s. 6d. (84 cents) for lined trousers. An extra pair of trousers may be ordered at the same time as the suit and the price will be 25s. 6d. ($6.95). There will be ten patterns altogether, in blue, black, brown and grey. Although standard ready-to-wear suits at $2, 17s. 6d.
($14.35) and $4, 4s. ($21) were announced to be on sale from June 15th, it will be some weeks before the shops receive supplies in any quantity. This is due to the clothing manufacturers being so busily occupied with military, naval and other Government clothing work. It is stated that the demands on the factories to-day are heavier than at any time previously.

ENEMY ALIENS AND INTERNMENT

Feeling in this country has been of late growing exceedingly strong upon the question of the safe internment of every enemy alien. It has come as a shock to most people here to find out that there are many thousands of these enemy still at large in this country, free to move where they like under just a few restrictions that do not amount to much. A by-election in London was fought on this question alone and would have resulted in a defeat for the Government. Coalition candidate had not that candidate promised authorities that there would be fresh and more drastic internment legislation immediately. In a few days' time there will be a day's debate in the House of Commons on this question and this is being looked forward to eagerly.

Our Greatest Danger.

The disastrous failure of Germany's latest offensive has led to new talk of peace in the Teutonic countries. This was expected. It is admitted by Dr.
Kuehlmann that the enemy cannot obtain a decision on the field of battle, and the signs are increasing that the Kaiser realizes the inevitability of defeat and wishes to begin peace negotiations while Germany holds Belgium and is more or less in control of Russia.

There is no doubt that the latest peace offensive has the full backing of Emperor William and his government. They realize that not only are the Entente Allies holding the western front solidly, but that over a line sixty miles long our armies are advancing after having taken the very foundations of the German military structure in the Soissons-Rheims salient. They realize also that reinforcements are arriving from the United States so rapidly that the Germans cannot hope to hold out indefinitely. And it is not only on the western front that Germany is worried. Military observers point out that the failure of the Austrian offensive on the Piave and the sharp advance through Albania by Allied troops are matters of grave concern to the Berlin authorities, who see in these setbacks a menace to Germany's ambitious schemes in the east. As the situation now stands, wherever the enemy turns he finds himself opposed by forces which are increasing in strength and determination. Whether or not the morale of his own armies has been shattered remains to be seen. This statement is made on very good authority, but cautious critics are warning the people of the Entente that it would be folly to accept such statements until they are supported by much better proof than anything which has happened so far.

We may expect, and must be prepared for a peace movement on a scale greater than anything with which the Allies have had to contend yet; but every patriotic man and woman in the Allied countries must resolve to discourage all idea of a made in Germany peace. The enemy must not be permitted, when the day of settlement comes, to lay down the law regarding the Balkan States, Poland, Rumania, Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine, or the colonies which have been taken from him by force of arms. The free and democratic peoples who have fought and bled for the freedom of the world must see to it that the peace terms are of their making and of such a character that no country shall hereafter be permitted to begin a war whenever it desires.

If ever there was a time when the Allied nations should go forward with firm step and unshakable faith in the power of their armies to win a glorious victory in behalf of world freedom, that time is now. No enemy can hope to win from armies re-equipped with the reinforcements which, acrossing the ocean each week, take their places in the firing line. The righteousness of our cause is fighting for us. Time is on our side, the tide is settling with the Entente, and while the victory which must come before we can go to sheathe the sword is still a long way off, our armies are making unexpected progress. They are wearing down the enemy's resistance to the breaking point, and we need not fear that they will fall to carry on while civilization is menaced. Our greatest danger lies in the activities of ill-advised pacifists at home.

Serious

There is a delicacy about mentioning piles. And yet so many suffer needlessly who could be readily relieved and cured if they only knew about Dr. Chase's Ointment.
Men tell one another about this remarkably suc-

women pine away their health and vitality, dreading a surgical operation and not knowing how easily they can be cured at home by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Sensational Performance.

The gorge below Niagara Falls seems to possess a peculiar fascination for aviators finishing their courses at the American and Canadian training fields within a radius of 30 miles of the cataract. The most sensational performance has been by two unidentified aviators, supposed to be from the training field at Beamsville, Ont.
They sent their two planes through the gorge and under the lower steel arch and cantilever bridges which are close together and in the narrowest part of the chasm. The aviators came from the north, entering the gorge near the whirlpool and emerging at a point about 300 feet south of the cantilever bridge. They then circled over the falls and sailed away toward Beamsville.

NEVER AGAIN!

This week one of the most important Inter-Allied Conferences ever held assembled in London—a meeting of the Parliamentary Commercial Committee of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, Serbia and Portugal. The United States will be unofficially represented. The Conference is to consider primarily a report drawn up by Sir W. Watson Rutherford, M.P., on behalf of the British Commercial Committee, dealing with the most effective measures for combating Germany's nefarious trade methods after the war.

In our "Germany Day" by Day" there is a timely reminder to the Inter-Allied Conference as to what the Huns of Hamburg and Bremen, as the spokesmen of the Hun trading world generally, expect after the war. They expect to do "business as usual" with us. They fondly delude themselves into believing that we of the Allied world will make haste to "resume honest competition all along the line in old-time unrestricted fashion."

In other words, the German hanker to be permitted to nibble once more at Allied flesh-pots, to gorge themselves for the purpose of acquiring the wherewithal to reconstruct their war machine, and generally to enjoy the rich pickings which we, in our blindness, so long allowed them to do.

The hour is ripe for a ringing pronouncement that Germans are living in the most visionary of fools' paradise if they imagine for a moment that anything of the sort will or ever again can be.

Our armies, before their work is done, will hit the Hun on the battlefield in a way he will not misunderstand. Let the Inter-Allied Commercial Conference promulgate this week as a plan of campaign that will let the Hun on the field of commerce know that annihilation of his hopes awaits him there too.—Daily Mail.

Amsterdam, July 31.—Given two hours in which to prepare for the end, Nicholas Romanoff, former Russian emperor, was taken out by his executioners in a state of such collapse that it was necessary to prop him against a post, says the Lokal Anzeiger, of Berlin, which claims to have received from a high Russian personage an account of the Emperor's last hours.

o'clock, on the morning of the day of his execution, by a patrol of non-commissioned officers and six men.
He was told to dress and was then taken to a room where the decision of the Soviet council was communicated to him. He was informed the execution would be carried out in two hours.

The former Emperor, it is added, received the announcement of the sentence of death with great calmness. He returned to his bedroom and collapsed in a chair. After a few minutes he asked for a priest with whom he was allowed to remain unattended. Subsequently he wrote several letters.

When the escort arrived to take him to the place of execution, Nicholas attempted to rise from his chair, but was not able. The priest and a soldier were obliged to help him to get to his feet. The condemned man descended the stairs with difficulty and once fell down.

As he was unable to stand, without support, when the place of execution was reached, he was propped against a post. He raised his hands and seemed to be trying to speak but the rifles spoke and he fell dead.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties:—batteries of fair capacity are expensive; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent. of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means that a large portion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive; therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory.

After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unilectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries; it will use all standard equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without change.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction. Monsignor Reardon, Placentia, lights Church and Presbytery; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights Church, Presbytery, Convent and School; G. C. Fearn & Son, Placentia, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric boring machine to be run by current from Unilectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding.

We are now installing the Unilectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unilectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.

Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us.

Do You Perspire Freely?

Many people are acutely sensitive to the odors arising from excessive perspiration, and yet under no circumstances is it wise to completely check perspiration for it is essential to health—many of the impurities of the body are gotten rid of by perspiration.

O'MARA'S

PERSPIRATION DEODORANT does not unduly check perspiration, but when properly applied it keeps the body comfortable and sweet—it counteracts body odors.
