

matves might be settled by paying him $15, which Preston said was too much, and offered $5, but Preston not having the money, he went away. After Mr. Macdonald had addressed the jury for the defence, and Mr. Peterson replied, His Lordship summed up, and felicitously alluded to the case as being so painful a contrast to that of the one tried in the morning, when a man verging on the close of life was tried for this capital offence, whilst in the afternoon a young lad, just entering on life was tried for the same offence. After the lapse of about a quarter of an hour, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty of assault with intent, with a strong recommendation to mercy.

The British Government and Mr. Fawcett's Bill.

The action of the British Government on Mr. Fawcett's bill relative to the University of Dublin is causing considerable excitement in political circles in Britain, and there is a possibility that the Government may be defeated on the measure. The question at issue may be briefly stated as follows:— Trinity College, which is really the University of Dublin, was founded for disseminating instruction on the basis of the Protestant religion. In 1792 it departed to a certain extent from its exclusive character and allowed Roman Catholics to be admitted to the course of instruction and to take degrees. Nevertheless, the class still remains excluded from competition for the highest prizes and from the government of the institution by tests which leave none eligible but members of the late Irish Church. Upon the disestablishment of that Church the excuse for these restrictions ceased. This was readily conceded by the authorities of the institution, and they agreed to an arrangement by which greater latitude should exist than either at Oxford or Cambridge. A bill was accordingly drafted to meet the views of the authorities by Mr. Henry Fawcett, member for Brighton, a liberal of considerable distinction.

The object of Mr. Fawcett's bill is two fold. It will abolish completely and at once all religious tests, and it will reconstitute the government of Trinity College and the University of Dublin, so as to gradually admit persons of all religious opinions to share in the government. The essential point of this plan is that it will perpetuate the system of mixed education in Ireland. Mr. Gladstone accepts the clauses of the bill which abolish tests and acknowledges them as a useful and weighty reform; but he refuses to accept the bill as affording any settlement of the University question in Ireland, denying that the establishment of a system of mixed education can be regarded as solving the question of Irish education. When Mr. Fawcett, about a month ago, moved that his bill should be read a second time, Mr. Gladstone said he would vote for the abolition of the tests, but he distinctly declared himself against the principle of the bill, which, as Mr. Fawcett asserted, is affording State aid solely to united education. Mr. Gladstone then recalled his pledges, which have made so wide a breach between himself and the Nonconformists, who favor complete separation throughout the United Kingdom. He said he was pledged to the belief that it is an extreme hardship on that portion of the population of Ireland who do not choose to accept an education apart from religion, that they should have no University open to them in Ireland at which they may obtain degrees. This was a virtual recognition of the demand of the Roman Catholics for separate educational institutions, and was consistent with the course of the Government on the educational questions in England and Scotland. Consequently, the defection of the Nonconformists, which was anticipated on the Scotch Education bill of the Government, could scarcely be expected to remain dominant when the Government failed to conform to their requirements on the question of education in Ireland. It is, therefore, this defection of the Nonconformists from the Liberal ranks which has endangered the position of the Cabinet.

A Half Ton of Flesh.

On Monday evening, says the St. Louis Times of the 17th inst., Mrs. Asa Brooks, aged 51 years, died at her residence, in the alley bounded by Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Wash streets and Franklin avenue. Mrs. Brooks, whose frame was but little more than medium-sized, had accumulated flesh until she weighed between 900 and 1,000 pounds. Until very recently she had been employed as a nurse in the family of a barber on Olive street, but an irresistible tendency to plethoric entailed her sphere of usefulness, and she was retired by the barber, and another nurse of less pronounced individuality engaged in her place. After her death there was some little difficulty experienced in placing the body in its "narrow final resting place." As no coffin could be found large enough, a box was built 6 feet long, 28 inches broad and 26 in depth. Even this was not sufficiently wide, and it was necessary to compress the form nine inches, but as that was the widest box that could be got into the room without tearing out the front of the house, it was thought more charitable to reduce the clay than to injure the premises. Her dimensions were 5 feet 10 inches in height, 28 inches across the shoulders, and 37 inches across the hips. Her arms were 30 inches in circumference and her thighs 16 inches in diameter. When she had been arrayed in burial vestments it was found impossible for 7 men to lift her. Finally the box was tilted on its side and she was rolled in, while priests chanted the service of the dead. She was then placed in a large wagon which proceeded carefully to Calvary Cemetery. The wagon was backed up to the grave and eight men and six mules combined their exertions to lower her into her narrow bed. The earth was thrown upon her, and a neat tombstone erected.

BY TELEGRAPH

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES

The Indirect Claims.

The Times Version of the Case.

The Boston Coliseum.

The Fuss in Mexico.

New York, April 27.—The New York Times correspondent telegraphed last night that all the sensational despatches, which have been sent from that city within the past few days in regard to the action taken by this Government on the question of indirect damages, are utterly without authority and substantially without truth. That they are the result wholly of manipulations of certain busy-bodies and political intrigues. The only good that has resulted from these pretended outgivings is to convince the Government that no matter what it may do to save the arbitration at Geneva its action is to be misrepresented for political effect, but the fact is the position of the Government on this question is unchanged. The indirect claims are not withdrawn, and they will not be withdrawn unless Great Britain makes such concessions inside or outside of the Geneva tribunal as will grant the point for which they were inserted to meet a settlement of the question involved. The Government is sincerely anxious to save the arbitration. It has been unjustly accused of unnecessary stibbornness in the matter. It has never intimated that it expected any award of pecuniary damages for the indirect claims, and it does not believe the people expect it, but it believed, and still believes, that it had a perfect right to present them and to have them decided. A decision is all it wants, and if Great Britain does not agree to a decision of the question, then she must take the responsibility of not only breaking the Treaty, but of refusing to meet this Government's most generous advances in a spirit of fairness and candor.

Boston, April 26.—The gigantic brass wall and towers of the coliseum were blown down. The report of the crash was heard for miles. The guss destroyed was 110 feet high and had a span of 300 feet.

Matanzas, April 26.—A vessel from San Luis Potosi, up to the 14th inst., state is quite there. The line to Rio Grande from Mier is occupied by the Government. Trivinto's cavalry are at Ramon to-day. Gen. Gutra, writing on the 19th, from the State of Durango, confirms the temporary occupation of the fortifications by Cordena. He says the garrison were surprised, and 1,000 men, 2,000 guns and cannons, and $6,000, belonging to the Government, were captured. A merchant who had arrived at Saltillo, from the interior, reports that Disay had been heard from in Jalisco, he was at the head of a strong division. A Courier from Comargo brings us advices up to the 24th inst. Rocha has been called to the City of Mexico, owing to the rising of Serdistas. Quinaga has moved hither with 5,000 men. Narranpa remains commanding at Comargo.

Tug "Lady Franklin" Ashore.

Special to the Mercury. Milford, April 27.—The tug Lady Franklin went ashore on Gull Point, at 2 o'clock this morning. She is not in a dangerous condition yet. The iron was thrown overboard, and she will get off if the heavy weather ceases. Hiram Calcutt comes to aid her.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, April 25th. Hon. Mr. Cameron, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported that they had considered the returns on the case of Marquette, Manitoba, and were of opinion that the Returning Officer should have returned both the candidates (J. S. Lynch and Angus McKay) as elected. With respect to the petition of J. S. Lynch for the seat, the Committee had postponed its consideration till tomorrow.

Sir John A. Macdonald laid on the table further papers respecting the Fisheries question, and the appointment of the Joint High Commission. In reply to a question, Sir F. Hincks said the Government had remonstrated strongly against the Imperial Copyright Act, but it was not their province to take any steps to get the Act repealed. Mr. Stephenson asked whether it was the intention of the Government, in view of the increased revenue of the Dominion to introduce a measure to totally abolish or further reduce the rates of postage on newspapers printed and circulated within the Dominion of Canada. Sir Francis Hincks replied in the negative, the postal expenditure at present being largely in excess of its revenue. Hoff Mr. Hutchison moved for a return of the names of all officers pensioned from the 1st of July till the 1st inst. He complained that the system of pensioning was used for political purposes. He stated that an officer had been pensioned off so as to provide a situation for a brother of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. Mc-Dougall (South Renfrew) moved for the instruction and correspondence, &c., respecting certain divisions of the Canadian Pacific Railway exploratory survey. He proceeded to say that the commissariat connected with the survey was badly managed. He mentioned, by way of example, that some of the men had to wait a considerable time for supplies, and that on another occasion thirty yards of sticking-plaster were sent for forty men. (Laughter.) Mr. Bodwell moved that the House go into Committee to consider a resolution declaring it desirable to adopt the 4ft 8in gauge in the construction of the Intercolonial.

After recess the House resumed the debate on bill to repeal the Insolvency Law. Quite a long discussion took place. Two amendments, one to adjourn the debate to the 9th May, and the other to refer it to the Committee on Banking and Commerce, were lost, and the bill was read a second time, and ordered to be read a third time, and referred to committee of the whole on Monday.

HELEN MOIR OR LOVE AND HONOUR.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
 "THE NOVELTY AND THE NEW FASHIONS."
 "The second—these base, unmitigated scoundrels!" said Bridgforth, through his ground teeth, his eyes at the same time flaming with rage, and his bosom panting with wrath.
 "Oh," he went on, "what an idiot I was to be so easily duped and led into this trap! I seem and loathe myself at the thought of it."
 "Alas, father!" moaned Helen, "how could we suspect treachery? The bait held out was at once so natural and so alluring."
 "Yes," returned her father, with intense bitterness; "their plot was well laid, and, through my stupidity, most easily executed. My child, my child, I have brought you into this danger!"
 "No, father, no; reproach not yourself thus," whispered Helen, soothingly. "They have succeeded only because they have trafficked on the holiest feelings of the heart. But oh, father," she wailed, "is there no escape for us? Can Heaven allow such iniquity to prosper?"
 "Never!" shouted Bridgforth, with vehemence. "Never, else Heaven has formed a league with hell, and right and justice have fled from the universe. I cannot, will not believe that such monstrous outrages can prevail."
 "And yet, father," sighed Helen, "things as wicked have been done in the world, and Heaven did not interfere to prevent."
 He sprang up and clutched his hands in fury.
 "What!" he cried, "you forced to become the wife of that wretch—his—his—wife!"
 "No, father," answered Helen, very gently, and with deadly paleness, "that shall never be. Death and the grave rather than that. But, oh, it is hard, to have the end of happiness again dashed from my lips when it had returned there, and Hermann and I were free to drink of it. Dear, dear Hermann, shall we never meet again?"
 And with a great burst of grief, she sank on the floor, laid her head on the cushioned seat of the cabin, and sobbed and wept with convulsive vehemence.
 Wildly her father flew to her, gathered her in his arms, and sought to soothe and comfort her. But what words could he utter which could have the desired effect? He was powerless to help—powerless to save her. Gladly would he have sacrificed himself for her deliverance; but he had not the means of doing even that. He maddened him to see her grief, and he impotent to mitigate it. An outraged wild beast of the jungle had not more ferociousness than he had at the moment; and, could he have got Jaquin or Dubouche into his hands then, he would, in his frenzied fury, have torn them to pieces.
 But shut up in that narrow cabin, with every outlet sealed he could do nothing—nothing, only clench his teeth till they were nearly broke, and curse with awful rage the fiends who had incarcerated them.
 The day advanced, and slowly its hours one by one passed away, the vessel all the while sailing rapidly along before a steady breeze. Sometimes from the little circular windows of the cabin they saw the shore at a great distance, though often it was undistinguishable. Frequently, too, they saw vessels sailing near, and manoeuvred in every evitable and decent of despair their inability to communicate their situation and solicit aid.
 Thus the evening drew on, and night again fell. In the most trying circumstances nature claims her due; it is not perhaps very wonderful, then; that both slept, and that soundly. Helen was the first to sink into the blissful region of forgetfulness, and it was a relief to her father's heart when he found that the soft and silent mantle of a peaceful slumber had fallen on her soul. He was thankful of it, inasmuch as it gave her a respite from the grief and terror of her heart, and stole away for a brief time the anguish of her fear. In calm and purest beauty she lay, with her head resting on the curtain, and her pale and lovely face dimly discernible through the darkness, for no lamp had been placed that night in the cabin.
 We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnston's Anodyne Lincture: one case of a man forty-five years old, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Lincture cold, and rub in well with the hand.
 The last winter, in England, has been the mildest on record. During the whole time, the thermometer fell below the freezing point only four times—on the night of January 15th and 16th and March 10th and 11th.

Celebrated Perfected Spectacles

Appointed Mr. D. Savage

As their sole agent for this place. They have taken care to give all useful instructions, and have confidence in the ability of their Agent to satisfy the requirements of all customers. An opportunity will be thus afforded to procure at all times

Spectacles unequalled by any for their Strengthening and Preserving Qualities.

Too much cannot be said as to their superiority over the ordinary glasses worn—there is no glimmering, wavering of the sight, dizziness, or other unpleasant sensation, but on the contrary, from the peculiar construction of the Lenses, they are soothing and pleasant, causing a feeling of relief to the wearer and producing a clear and distinct vision as in the natural and healthy sight. They are the only spectacles that preserve as well as assist the sight, and are the cheapest because the best, always lasting many years without change being necessary.

The Alabama Claims - A Compromise Suggested.

New York, April 25.—The Alabama claims is the absorbing topic of Washington correspondence. The excitement is now in regard to a rumour that has got abroad that the American Government is about to propose a compromise. It is said that while the President and Mr. Fish are determined to defend the honour of the country at all hazards, and not permit the English to force us into a false position, still they are eager for a peaceful settlement of the question. Impossible as the whole thing seemed a day or two since it now seems probable that the whole matter will be settled at an early day on a basis highly honourable to both nations. The anticipation of such result has given universal satisfaction in diplomatic and administrative circles, for, as relations between England and America now are all business of a financial character between the two nations is at a stand still. As English feeling now is the Americans cannot sell a bond in Europe.

The Rev. Mr. PUNSHON.—A statement is going the rounds of the Provincial newspapers to the effect that, after the Western Conference in June, the Rev. W. M. Punshon will go to Manitoba; thence to British Columbia, from there to California, thence to China and Japan, and finally to England, where he will remain. The tribune has authority for stating that Mr. Punshon has no present intention of making the above extended tour. After the Conference, however, accompanied by the Revs. Enoch Wood and Mr. John Macdonald, he will proceed to Manitoba on some missionary business, which the three gentlemen were appointed last summer to transact.

"HOUSE-WEN" and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders: Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 5 nights; the same for a milch cow, and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

BREAKFAST—Epps's Cocoa—GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctor bills.—Chief S. "see Gazette." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labeled "James Epps & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London." Also, makers of Epps's Milky Cocoa (Cocoa and Condensed Milk).
