chosen, the same result will follow. It is to harged against Blaine that he is hostile to England, and that he seeks the support of the fenian element. Such a support is unworthy any man, and the fenian leaders should be put on an island and see how they would agree there. They should be made to earn an honest living, and not be permitted to rob poor, ignorant servant girls. Sympathy was expressed for Blaine, because he has been so cruelly villided; for he (the speaker) had had his share, and sometimes more than he cared for. Britain and the United States will never fight again, for they are one, and if Cleveland and the United States will never fight again, for they are one, and if Cleveland be elected, and is willing to earry out God's plan as to Manassah, he will do well. While deprecating the way party warfare and rancour unearths the past life of these men, the lesson is taught that only a man of unsullied reputation can hope for high position, and young men were especially urged to make their lives pure.

Miss Hultin of Michigan at the Unitaria Church Yesterday. The pulpit of the Unitarian church, Jarvis street, was occupied yesterday by Miss paying a brief visit to Toronto, from the national unitarian conference held at Saratoga during the past week, on her way to Algona, in Iowa, where she is to take the regular pastoral charge of a unitarian church. Miss Hultin is an excellent type of American cultivated wemanhood. To a fine, dignified presence she adds, in her speaking, thoughtfulness, energy and finish; and the natural tenderness and sympathy of the feminine nature, though pronounced, are well controlled by the more strictly mental qualities. Her discourse of yesterday morning indicates her to be a young woman of high promise. the more strictly mental qualities. Her discourse of yesterday morning indicates her to be a young woman of high promise. It was based on the text, "The summer is past, the harvest is ended, and we are not a saved." She dwelt upon the potancy of the ideas of God and immortality as civilizing forces in the world's history. Take away the hope of life beyond the grave, and though we might still prefer good te evil, yet you would take the heart out of our efforts and aspirations. The belief in God as a loving father gave us assurance that he would not suffer his children to go out into darkness. Heaven, she said, was not of the without, but of the within; it was the character of the heart—the consciousness of good thoughts harbored and good deeds done. We could not make the evil of yesterday the good of today; though God might forgive us, we could not blot out from ourselves what we have written. We were only saved from sin by not doing it, from the evil record by not writing it—only by the not doing that we were saved from the doing.

At the evening service the pastor, Mr. Bygrave, and G. M. Rose gave reports of the doings of the unitarian conference, and Miss Hultin delivered a brief address, in which she warmly urged women, by the cultivation of their range of thought, to fit themselves to do their own above so day; the presidency the names of Messrs. Moses Oates coyly acknowledged on Saturday that his weather predictions for the week had been about correct. The country papers, which are interested in fall shows, notably the London journals, have been comparing Moses' prophecies with each day as it came around, and note the results with admiration mingled with awe.

For the benefit of those connected with rural exhibitions, Mr. Oates lifted up his voice Saturday and prophecied as follows with regard to the present week: There is danger ahead for Wednesday, which ought to be a big day at most of the fairs, and I predict the attendances generally will not be so large as expected. Hamilton, St. Thomas, etc., may, I think, look for rain on that day. Lady visitors should not wear muslin dresses on Thursday either, as the weather is likely to be very uncertain. Private Bankers.
The Montreal Gazette drops a hint which suggests that the minister of finance will probably at the coming session try again to legislate regarding private banks. There is not the same need for these banks as there was some years ago. In Ontario alone there are three hundred postoffices, in which money can be deposited with pertect safety. In our contemporary's view the main objection to private banks is that they are virtually under no control of government, and that they offer no adequate security to the depositor. Of course, recent instances will give to the demand for fresh legislation greater force the minimum is signally refuted by the logic of events. Civilization and progress, instead of lessening the need of government control, make it very much greater. proaching the mathematical in its certainty, that in time to come railways, telegraphs, banks, other financial institutions, and corporate companies generally-will all be more under government control than they have been in time past. It is, be it observed, the progress of communities that makes government control necessary. The nore backward any community is, the less need to regulate corporate enterprise by law. On the other hand, the more progressive it is, the more urgent does the need of government interference become.

It appears to be a fact settled that the cattle export trade has not generally been a paying one of late for Canadian operators. A very few have perhaps held their own, but the majority have either worked for nothing or made actual losses. Mr. Fawcett, the western private banker who suspended recently, attributes his embarrassment principally to the duliness of the cattle trade, in which his various agencies were largely interested. This throws light upon the circumstance of considerable losses, or at all events, delays of payments occurring at points where ordinary commercial liabilities could not have been very | heavy. He says that many cattle dealers have been unable to dispose of have kept their cattle over from the spring, thinking that better figures could be obtained for them this fall, but shipments to England have not proved as successful as anticipated, and his agencies have not been able to collect.

He adds that there has been dullness all over, in business generally, and puts in the reminder that, although the year's harvest is a good one, farmers have not yet rea lized on it to any extent. All this allowed for, however, the information now before the public as to the cattle trade suggests that buyers going round the country have been too eager, and that they must have been paying the farmers higher prices for cattle than the markets would warrant.

The Ship of the Future.

Last week the America, the latest addition to the Cunard fleet was launched on the Clyde from the shippard of John Elder & Co., who entertained a distinguished party at luncheon on the occasion. In the course of his speech, Mr. Pearce, a member of the firm, said that the ship of the future for the passenger business would carry no heavy freight. Vessels would yet be built to carry passengers only, and the traffic would be divided just as it is on railways now, which have their passenger trains and their freight papers sometimes. For instance, it was trains. "We have no right," said Mr. Pearce, "to take cargo in these steamers at all. These steamers should be essentially adapted and fitted for passengers amount of $75,000. Now it is stated that only, and the sooner I can convince the $1000 will cover all the loss chairman of the Cunard company or the chairmen of the other companies or people who are at present unassociated with shipping to believe that I am right the sooner they will make a fortune, hause it is altogether a mistake inspection, and interviews with the engito suppose that you can drive a very great weight, consisting of ship engines, pig is not being scamped. It is but fair to the iron, etc., and a very small weight of passengers across the Atlantic ocaan at a pro-properly accommodated as in a first-class hotel will pay a good price. They will pay for speed and they will also pay for superior accommodation."

There is really no sound reason for hurrying heavy freight across the ocean, as is now the custom. Frequently enough the express haste to Europe, there to lie unsold for months; while European goods are sent west with as much needless hurry. Per haps the extra speedy voyage is not really required at all, except in such cases say as those of dairy produce and meat going east, and of fashionable goods, for the sea son at hand, coming west. As for grain, also iron and other heavy merchandise, shipping a little sooner or receiving a little ater would make no practical difference. The Mowat procession was a big one, although the political arithmeticians are not agreed as to how big exactly it was. But contracting, as free traders argue, but it was nothing to the procession of icebergs that commenced sailing past St. John's, Newfoundland, less than two weeks ago. At times as many as sixty or seventy of these glittering and dangerous monsters from the frozen north could be seen at once, slowly drifting towards the warm southern waters. The Montreal Gazette's Newfoundland correspondent says: "The oldest inhabitant" does no emember anything approaching to the ice phenomena of this year. In ordinary years, a few icebergs are seen after Aug. . But now we have a huge fleet of them sailing past in the middle of September and chilling our atmosphere. Since the beginning of February a stream of icebergs and floes has been passing at intervals. Some great ice movement must have occurred in the arctic regions of an unus nal character to cause such an abnormal their stock at remunerative prices. Others disgorgement, and call into existence the vast ice-argosies of the last seven months As a consequence, the supply of the next few years may be comparatively small and we may have but few of these mighty wanderers of the deep, the arctic war houses being temporarily exhausted. Referring recently to the exorbitan charge of ten cents for a cup of tea at the Frand Trunk station here, we said that the usual charge at Toronto restaurants was five cents. This is true, but still it does injustice by omission. At the temperance coffee houses, King street east and Shaftesbury hall, a cup of excellent tea or coffee is furnished for three cents. Mr. Spicer should make a note of the outrageous over charge at a station which is under Grand Trunk control.

In Quebec city the bakers have reduced the price of bread two cents per loaf. Toronto next. If not, why not?

The export cattle trade is dull a resent, and the price of beef on foot is lown several points. But the price in the butchers' shops remains high all the same. With both butchers and bakers it is "heads I win and tails you lose" every time.

The scott Act and the Clubs.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: The World of to-day, referring to violations under the Scott act, says "Already combinations of persons calling themselves clubs sell and consume alcoholic liquors without leave or license, Sunday, Monday and holy day." By the amendments to the Crooks act of last session it is provided by clause 9: (1) "Any society, association, or club which has been or shall be formed or incorporated under chapter 167 of the revised statutes; and any unincorporated society, association, or club which has been, or may be formed or carmengers across the Adamtic ocaan at a profit, but you can drive ship and engines

Sub sections (2) and (3) enact that the keeping of liquor by clubs or societies is a violation of liquor by clubs or societies is a violation of intended consumption shall be conclusive evidence of the sale of such liquors. It is evident from this that the law is sufficient to break up these so-called clubs. What is needed is active, determined inspectors to put the law in operation. The government have time and again expressed their readiness to dismiss any inspector against whom a well-founded complaint of inefficiency or refusal to do his duty may be lodged.

People who wish to note the progress Toronto is making ought to visit West Toronto Junction. It is within a few minutes of the Union station by the trains of either the Ontario and Quebec and the Grand Trunk or the Northern. The junction station of the C. P. R. is now in full blast and freight and passenger trains are stopping there every short while. New houses are going up all round wnile the plans of many handsome ones are still in the hands of the architects. Real estate in the neighborhood has steadily risen in value and promises to advance still more rapidly. A lot or block in this locality is the best investment a workingman or capitalist can go into. It will double itself in two years just as Parkdale, Brockton and the whole west end has done. Some of the best lots in West Toronto are to be had from George Clarke, 295 Yonge street.

New Yerk, Sept. 26 .- In the dry goods trade a better and more hopeful feeling is apparent, and a fair average distribution of fall goods is likely to be made. Owing The London Advertiser remarks once to the late financial upheaval in Wal pate a steady re-order demand for some to come. The market for dressed goods has ruled very quiet thus far, although agents report a steady re order demand for small parcels of staple worsteds, such as cashmeres, beiges, alpacas, poplins, etc., and jobbers are doing a fair business in both worsted and all wool fabrics. In woollen goods the volume of the business in first hands has been of an average amount, and no unexpected change in the character of the demand has occurred this autumn. The jobbing trade are now very busy, and an effort is being made to push forward shipments on account of recent orders.

O. Canada, Mon Pays, Mes Amours. From the Montreal Star. Canadian skies and Canadian air have omething about them which scems to nake life worth living, and it is not a rare occurrence for foreigners who have come to Canada to acquire a competence, with the intention of returning to their own country later on, to find the new love so strong that they must be off with the old one. Paris Canada, Mr. Hector Fabre's one. Paris Canada, Mr. Hector Fabre's paper in Paris, recently gave a case in point: An old country Frenchman from Lyons, named David Jean, had made a snug little sum in Canada, and with his wife went back home last Spring to end his days in la belle France. But the ties of thirty five years were not to be broken of thirty-five years were not to be broken so easily, and his homesickness became such that he returned for good to his first chosen home, where he will lay his bones. PAUNCEFORT'S LAST GAME.

"Didn't know Lan Pauncefort? Strange?
I thought everybody knew Lan, from Sandy Creek, down in Maine, to the Sandwich islands. You missed a heap of fun tered money, as I as the time. Gentlemen, I'm going to take a drink. Anybody join me?"

"Two lemonades," says the 'Frisco sharps. "You don't want a drink, Lan," says Jim, working his eyes like a corn thresher.

"I don't, hen?"

I thought everybody knew Lan, from Sandy Creek, down in Maine, to the Sandwich Islands. You missed a heap of fun and, I reckon, some money, as Lan scattered money right and left. He'd a been dead sure to stack up your chips if he had seen you lose your grip, whether he had knowed you or not. Lan was a thorough bred—a natural born gambler. He'd a bet on the worms in his own coffin if there'd been a show of cornoring. He had one peculiarity for a long time, though—he was dead sot agin life insurance of all kinds. He didn't care to 'ante up,' he said, in a game 'where 2 fellow had to die to open the pot.' He got over that all anct, though, and one day walked into the office of Doc Elford, the examicer for a high toned company, and had a policy made o at for ten thousand in favor of a queralitete girl he had took a fancy to in Leadwood. He never went into society regular like, you know, because he was bashful in the presence of ladies. Fact; women were worse in his syes than a buga-boo. They cared him like the old boy, but this girl used to get him his shaving water at the hotel and fetched his hash to him without alamming it down when Lan had bucked the wild beast unconsciously all light. He was the most grateful cuss you ever saw and thanked a mangy dog for following him to smelt the grease on his boots.

"One day little Jule, as the boys called her, stood behind the door crying in her apron because some chap had chucked her wild beast unconsciously all you Deadwood was a hard place and don't you forget its.

me that would be worth havin, I'd like to know? It tain't human nater, Mr. Lan; I've got to starve or be cursed and chucked about all my days.'

"Not by a durn sight,' said Lan, swinging on his heel; and, sir, he goes right off to Elfort and had himself turned inside out pretty near, to see if he was sound.

"'You're good for fifty years, Mr. Pauncefort, said the doctor, filing out the documents for Lan. 'I never see a tougher nut than you are in wind and limb.'

documents for Lan. 'I never see a tougher nut than you are in wind and limb.'

"So the papers were all tinkered up in the name of Miss Jule Schneidecker, the little Dutch waiter girl who looked as American as anybody, and they were put in a lawyer's hands. Poor Jule, it pretty nigh caused her neek stretched, and she was mighty glad to get off with a whole skin, let alone getting the money, I tell you."

""Why, how was that?"

""Why, how was that?"

—Most excruciating are the twinges that any sane man would have done such a deed as that, and they 'lewed as his death benefitted no human being but Jule, it must have been all her doings, but, of course, it weren't. No such a thing. If Jule hadn't ruined herself for life by proving an alibi in the nick of time, gentlemen, she'd been strung up as sure as shooting. It was awful rough on Jule, but she had to choose betwitt that and hanging. She hung out. Themso Duesling, formerly a member of as eye, "you see, folks wouldn't believe

"I am not a good yankee in that respect;
I can't guess. Perhaps he cocked a gunbarrel with his toes, or sat down on a keg of dynamite with a coal of fire in his pocket. Something awful, was it?"

Calaveras Dan liked to prolong a story and get his hearers' patience and curiosity stretched, to the utmost limit before he reached, an end. So, he twisted off stretched to the utmost limit before he reached an end. So he twisted off a knuckle of tobacco and fixed himself comfortably, with a retrospective look in his eye, before continuing the tale of poor Lan Pauncefort, the gambier, who did what many a man has done—severed his soul and holy in a den of thiever where he had been fleeced out of every cent and made utterly desperate.

"There were a couple of crack poker men from San Francisco at the 'Flying Scud' who tackled Lan and his partner, Jim Oglethorpe of Santa Barbara, and pretty soon all the congregation from other places stood around watching the witch play. Oglethorpe was a big six footer, with a finger gone from his right hand, and a heap of white in his left eye, which were both as big as taw marbles. When anybody got away with Santa Barbara Jim anybody got away with Santa Barbara Jim they didn't have many more to scallop. Jim winked with off eye at Lan, and Lan sailed in with a huge smile. He knowed well enough that things were going over-board if he didn't catch every wink Jim sent him with that game swivel eye of "Lan was nervous as a witch. He warn't worth a barbee to play when his hand shook. He had just missed the jumps for a week, and the dootor told him if he took any more brandy he'd see varmints as big as hippopotamuses, and that like enough it would kill him, as his heart worked like a churn dasher, whippoty whop, clean out of gear. His father died in a fit in the old Sussaine mine, from alligator whisky. Lan had lorg ago given up everything but brandy sours, and now he had to whos, or slide down the dump. He warn't worth shucks to play in that fix, but there warn't no help for it; so Jim kept on drawing keerds and winking at Lan. Finally Lan got rattled and panicky. It was J m's swivel eye and now and then a kick under the table. The sharps from 'frisco were cool as a morgue in fly time; nary a flicker or wink passed betwixt 'em. 'It's no use,' said Lan, laying his band down, face upward, as Jim scowled black as 'Interest to of Winnipeg.

Folks said she had an object in Lan's death. But she got her alibi—told Lan's death. But she got her alibi—told where she was, It was proved and that settled it, but it drove Jule out of Deadwood. She lost her hold, somehow, on the Sunday school. Poor Lan! "Well, Pauncefort died, did he?"

"Died—you are right, he died. He died about a hundred times, I guess, altogether. I never saw such a blamed idiot. One death is about enough for an average man, even in a streak of the worst luck that ever struck a man, and Lan had a hard tussle before he lit out from Deadwood down the dark gulch, all of us have to locate sooner or later. I'll be hanged if I want to take Lan's route, though."

"He butted out his brains, did he?"

"Well, no," said Calaveras Dan, winking very fast. "He didn't have any brains, the doctor said; but you'd never guess what he did do all by himself in a back room in the 'Flying Scud,' the name of the gambling den and liquor saloon together, kept by One-eyed Jake from Trinidad, Col."

Toronto Exhibition.

In the Globe of September 18th last there appeared a statement in their Exhibition Notes that the Canadian Rubber Company had been awarded a Silver Medal for the excellence of their Fire Hose. This is absolutely false. The only other competitor in Fire Hose at the Fair was our Company.

The Judges demanded a test of the two exhibtis. The agent of the Canadian Company positively refused to agree to the test, saying that their goods were on exhibition only and not to be tested. For the c rrectness of this statement we refer the public to the letter from the Canadian Company to J. J. Withrow, President of the Industrial Association. In that letter the absolute refusal of a test is made. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the Industrial board.

Trappeur, St. George, Emerald and Athletic snow-shoe clubs; the Metropolitan athletic association of Ottawa and the Hamilton fencing club. W. L. Maltby, president, occupied the chair. The secretary reported that a number of members, who had in ignorance lost their standing as amateurs by competing for money, had applied for reinstatment, which in some cases had been granted, the council acting as leniently as possible. The treasurer's report showed a deficit of over $200, caused chiefly by bad weather during the association's games in the afternoon and by the fact of the Toronto-Shamrock game coming off at the same time. Man's Shoulder Dislocated. NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—One of the mos brutal prize fights which ever took place on this side the Atlantic was fought near Long Island City Saturday night. The principals were Mattie Bohen, 24 years of age, weighing 152 pounds, and John Wiley, 23 years of age and weighing 151 pounds. The fight was for a purse of $200, under the Marquis of Queensbury rules. In the first round Wiley landed a left hander on Bohen's nose. The latter responder with a right-hander on Wiley's chin, stagger with a right-hander on Wiley's chin, staggering him. The men closed and did some heavy punching. When separated it was found that Bohen had lost two teeth. In the second round Wiley planted a heavy right-hander on Bohen's mouth, splitting the upper lip and drawing blood from the nose. Bohen paid no att ntion to the wound, but got in sledge hammer blows on Wiley's breast and face, closing his right eye, and ending with a terrific blow on his forehead, knocking Wiley down. The third round was a repittion of the first, with the exception that Bohen fell heavily on his right shoulder. And Wiley falling on him dislocated his shoulder. Bohen was picked up and taken to his corner. His friends were ready to throw up the sponge, but Bohen insisted on resuming the fight. In the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th rounds Bohen the received all the punishment, and at the end of the 7th round was taken to his corner sons-less. His seconds again threw up the sponge, but when Bohen recovered he insisted on continuing the mill. His friends however would not admit it, and Wiley was his home in a coach.

The Torontos Beat the Clippers. Five to two was the tune to which the Clip-pers were done up by the Torontos at Hamilton Saturday. Some people have hinted that these two clubs are hippodroming, but all who witnessed Saturday's match do not and can-not entertain this idea. Each nine played for all it was worth. The game was ball from first to last. The Torontos surpassed them first to last. The Torontos surpassed themselves, especially on the field. Their battery was Most inley and Purvis. Jim's delivery was sharp and swift, and "Son" caught without an error. Field Wood also did good work in the box. The Clippers made some costly errors in the first three innings. The score to mishes all the details of the match. Each club has now a game to its credit. The third and final match will be played here Saturday next.

Mr. Fulljames and His Challenger. To the Editor of The World. SIR: I am surprised to see so many cha enges in the Toronte papers of late to me. fight in his life, had the audacity te mention my name in your paper. Mr. Hurst must have a very poor memory when a few months back I matched him to fight Jack Dempsey for $200, and the receipts of the house, but the night before the fight Mr. Hurst jumped the town fearing to meet Bentheys, in consequence of which I lost the battle money. Hereported the had received $50 from the opposite parties to leave, if so he proved himself to be an unprincipled, no good cur, but if he had not received the money, which he claimed he had done, he on the other hand proved himself to be a coward and an unsafe man for sporting men to place their money on. In regards to Mr. Bennie Green's challenge to me, Mr. Green knows and so does the American sporting papers that I was always ready to fight any body at 124 lbs, weight for any amount of money, but I could never get a match on at that weight, but now as I am matched, with Mr. Harry Gilmore it appears every body wants to fight me. I can not but help thinking there must be some mistake on Mr. Green's part, as he cannot be aware of my match with Mr. Gilmore. Knowing as I do of Mr. Green being one of the few gentlemen prize fighters now-a-days he would never have challenged me under the circumstances, but at the same time if Mr. Green is so anxious I will meet him in a four or six round contest for $200 a side and the receipts of the house in five or six days from signing articles, the contest to take place in Toronto. If this proposition does not suit Mr. Green I will match Prof. Paul Pattillo against him on the same terms later on, or I will match him against James Cruising on the Lake. The Aileen (Com. Leys) and Oriole (Vice-Com. Gooderham) left their moorings Saturday at 3 o'clock for a trip to Hamilton. The wind was fresh from the southwest, and the schooner had her top-masts housed, while the cutter carried full sail. The wind and sea increased to such an extent when the yachts were off the Humber, that the Aileen dropped her top-mast and put a reef in her main-sail. The weather did not improve, and she experienced heavier treatment than ever before, but she soon left her consort out of sight in this her favorite wind, and both yachts seemed to conclude at the same time, that it would be more comfortable to run for a port and have dinner at rest than "catch-as-catch-can" on the tossing billows. They did so and both reached their harbors at about the same time—the Oriole making Port Credit and the Aileen Oakville. They returned yesterday, the Oriole waiting for the Aileen, and both together reached their moorings about 5 o'clock. The Alarm left on Saturday for Whitby, and made some splendid sailing both up and down. Her beating in the heavy sea surprised her owners, and she reached home at 7 o'clock last night.

Dry Goods Clerks as Athletes.
The employes of A. R. McMaster & Bro. held their annual gaines at the exhibition grounds Saturday afternoon. A large number of clerks from other dry goods houses were present, and a great deal of interest was taken in the open race, which it was expected would be a close contest between Maelennan and Bob Macpherson. The former secured the prize after a hard struggle. Capt. McMaster was present, and was highly enthusiastic over the sports. Among the employes the event most thought of was the championship race, which was won easily by J. Preston. He took the

the writer, but found none among his stock to suit. Then Kleiser put in an appearance and left two watches with Richardson, who subsequently sold one to Flood, who paid $5 on the watch but did not take it away. Thinking that he had found a good customer, Richardson paid Kleiser the amount he asked for the watch. Flood failed to call and pay the balance, and the writer discovered that he had left the town (Orillia) in company with Kleiser the same day. It dawned upon Richardson's mind that the tea pedlar's part in the business was merely for the purpose of enabling Kleiser to dispose of a watch at agood profit to the Orillia tradesman. He was confirmed in this opinion by one of his employes telling him of a similar trick played by the same parties upon Mr. Vick of Owen Sound. Flood will not pay the balance on the watch and Kleiser refuses to take it back. Richardson consequently thinks he has been taken in by "a pair of confidence men."

The History of a Check. Durham Chronicle: Some time since the father of Mr. Stewart, of the firm of Stewart father of Mr. Stewart, of the firm of Stewart & Lowick, died. Mr. Stewart was appointed executor, and has had considerable trouble settling the estate. Having occasion to pay over $990 recently, on Aug. 25 he sent a chick on the Central bank for that amount to a Toronto lawyer by the name of Mailoy. About two weeks after it was sent, Mr. Stewart went to Toronto and found that Mr. Milloy had disappeared or absconded, one or the other. He immediately advertised the missing check, and up to now it has not been presented. The probability is that it is either destroyed, or Mailoy has committed suicide. Whichever it may be, it is Mr. Stewart's only hope to regain his money.

The Jersey Cream at the Oaklands Jersey Dairy is delivered in Toronto seven hours after the cows are milked.

Somebody's Luggage. -Years ago, when Charles Dickens, the greatest and best novelist the world ever George Beats His Record.

At the grounds of the London athletic club Saturday W. C. George, the English anateur runner, made an attempt to beat the record for 1000 yards in a handicaprace, which was arranged for the puspose. There were eight starters. The track was not in good condition, being soft in consequence of rain which had fallen during the night. The atmosphere was thick and muggy and there was a strong breeze blowing, which promised to materially interfers with an exhibition of toey high speed. George was in excellent condition, however, and notwithstanding all the drawbacks he succeeded in running a splendid race, heating his own and all king-lish professional records for this distance, all the drawbacks he succeeded in running a splendid race, heating his own and all king-lish professional records for this distance, all the drawbacks he succeeded in running a splendid race, heating his own and all king-lish professional records for this distance, all the drawbacks are drawbacks and movelette entitled Somebody's Luggage.
