The League is going at the question in a broad rather than a restricted way. It takes the ground that reciprocity in business means fair trade, and that the demand for better arrangements between the United States and the Dominion of Canada is not a sectional cry but is voiced by the representative business men not only of New England but of the tier of north-ern states bordering on the Canadian line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. As a result of a delegation to the County Council on Tuesday, Jan. 13, that body voted to assume one-half of any deficit that may accrue in holding an exhibition in 1903. The people of Bridgetown will no doubt authorize the Town Council to assume the other half as a circulated petition to that effect was well signed here last week.

Our representative in the Local House, Hon. J. W. Longley, has promised to do all in his power to obtain the required grant of five hundred dollars. In view of all this we have reason to hope that the County will hold an exhibition next Autumn.

You will be anxious to hear a word or two as to our work locally. I may say at once that we have not accomplished all we had hoped or even that of which at one time we had fair promise. But this is not due to lack of effort. Men have not kept faith with us, and thus far we have hesitated to invoke the law, not, mark you, for want of right or power, but because we have hoped that milder counsels might yet prevail. There is no doubt the law is on our side, but we are still hoping moral suasion will preclude the necessity of an appeal to it.

We have not thought it to be our work to appeal individually to those who encourage Sunday labor, beyond appeals made from the various pulpits, but we would respectfully suggests to them that absolutely no need exists in a town of the size of Bridgetown (or in any) for Sunday labor.

We have not thought it to be our work to appeal individually to those who encourage Sunday labor, beyond appeals made from the various pulpits, but we would respectfully suggest to them that absolutely no need exists in a town of the size of Bridgetown (or in any) for Sunday labour.

Before leaving local matters may I advert to a subject, which, although not actually within the province of the L. D. A., yet is very near to it. I refer to the late hour at which we find shops open on Saturday evenings. From conversations I have had with business men I am sure they, one and BUSION, Jan. 15.—Mr. Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, arrived here to-night from Sydney, C. thing then if the members of this Alliance made it a rule to get all shopping done before, say 9.30 on Saturday evenings, and then endeavor to persuade their friends to do the same. It would welcome such a practice. It would welcome such a practice of the Lord's Day.

For the work of the Alliance at large I must refer you to our quarterly leafflet, "The Lord's Day Advocate," which I understand, each member receives regularly. By this you will see that much is being done in various parts of the Dominion to resist the encroachments upon the weekly Rest. Day, and I count it a splendid privilege that we living here in Bridgetown are enabled through our membership in the L. D. A. to do something morally and financially to this end. Let us never forget that we are members, not merely of a local organization but of an Alliance that has for its object the benefit of every grade and member of Society.

We purpose this year, as last, soliciting support by personal canvass, and I heartily commend the aims and objects not to present members only, but also to our citizens at large.

Some people might object to planting large areas on the ground that they did not have the time to attend to so many trees. It was a fact that the largest orchardists in King-County were, at the present time, planting the most trees. Dairying was a good thing, but there was a wonderful difference in money making ability between orchard and dairy land. If the valley was so favorable for fruit growing, why not plant more trees and go in for it more? Some might fear a decline in the price of apples, but there was no need to. Prices were as good now as twenty years ago. Moreover, three years of high school work is carried on in the consolidated school, and the total cost of that is included in the $3,156.

The people in five adjoining townships have also consolidated their chools. Those of Gustavus, Kinsman and Johnston were selected for special scrutiny as presenting typical phases of the system. The schools of Kinsman and Johnston Townships have been consolidated for two years. At Kinsman the enrollment of pupils was lade, and eight school vans were employed. In passing through this part of the valley he had noticed many trees leaning to the east. It would be much better if a little attention were paid to such trees when they were young. There was always some way of getting a tree up straight. After being raised into position it would require a stout

Field-marshal Viscount Wolseley, K. P., begins a very interesting series of four articles on 'The Young Napoleon' in the January number. Three other features in the January Cosmopolitan will attract attention. The first is a sketch of Russell Sage and his methods and the immense resources controlled by him. The second, a very able paper on Daniel Gray Reid and the men who have recently played so large a part in financial affairs in connection with the Rock Island Railway. The third is by Representative Walter P. THE SINGLE TAX IN NEW ZEALAND

(The Springfield Republican.) (The Springfield Republican.)

There comes to the American state department from Consul Dillingham of Auckland, N. Z., a report which will interest the single taxers, if not other people. It relates to the land-taxation act of New Zealand passed some years ago, and now in operation over a good part of the colony. Whenever, in any borough, district, county or city a certain proportion of the tax-payers petition for the submission to vote on the question of applying the act, the question is submitted, and if a majority of the rate-payers voting favor the substitution of the tax on unimproved land values for the previous tax on

The advectes of the land tax in this countries of the land tax in this countries. novable opposition has been encoun-ered. But it is the country districts in New Zealand which have most gen-rally adopted the land tax and which appear to be most satisfied with the appear to be most satisfied with the experiment. The consul says:—

"The farmer, under the general proporty tax, has paid to the general government 1d. (two cents) in the pound sterling (§4.86) on the total value of his property and stock, with an exemption up to £500 (§2.433). Under the land and income tax, he pays 1d. In the pound on the unimproved value of his land, and his stock goes free of taxation. The average result was thought to be a little better for the farmer, and he enjoyed the consolation Some difficulty was met with in ap-aising the value of land unimproved distinct from improved land, but it s come to be generally held that the improved value amounts to about

-"Every match is safe, when caretully used, and no match is safe otherwise," said a dealer in reference to this subject. This prompts the New York Journal to pen the remark that the carelessness of people in handling matches is inconceivable, or would be and the lighted end to fly off in the scratching. Butthe matches themselves with all their faults, behave much better than most of the people who use them. It is an exceptionally fussy person who sees that his match has gone out before he throws it down, or takes any note of the place where it falls. In a large number of houses the common receptacle for burnt matches is the waste paper basket. A kind Providence sees that most of the matches have ceased burning before they reach the contents of the basket, but the marvel is that waste paper baskets do not take fire and start conflagrations. Doubtless some matches are safer than others, but no matches are safer than others, but no matches are so dangerous as most of the people who use them.

—Canadian territory is sufficiently extensive to satisfy the ambition of the youngest of us. The territories cover 2,634,880 square miles. Counting the provinces also the total area of Canada is not less than 3,760,000 square miles. 80,500,000 acres are insquare miles. 80,500,000 acres are in-land waters. Arbitration would prob-ably give us a considerable extent of territory now occupied by our good neighbors who are citizens of the United States. Here is a warning to boys, who foolishly imagine that they can carry deadly weapons with impunity. The Kingston police magistrate had eight lads before him the other day charged with carrying revolvers. Their ages ranged from ten to fourteen. Three of the older ones were ordered to receive a whipping at the hands of the police. On account of their youth the others were discharged with a warning. All the revolvers found on them were confiscated. It is well to remember that the law on the subject is the same here.
