Only a Few Enemy Troops Remain South of Vesle

French Patrols Have Crossed The River at Two Places

Allied Troops Hold Entire Southern Bank Between Fismes and Rheims — Prussian and Bavarian Guards Forced Back With Heavy Losses in Spite of Stubborn Resistance — May Not be Able To Halt Before Aisne is Reached — Enemy Passes Definitely From Offensive to Defensive

Paris, Aug. 5.—The Allied pursuit of the Germans continues and latest reports are that only a few enemy troops remain south of the Vesle River, says the Havas Agency today in reviewing the situation.

French patrols have crossed the Vesle at Baroches and Jonchery, west and east of Fismes respectively.

Allied troops held the entire southern bank of the Vesle between Fismes and Rheims. Stubborn resistance was made by Prussian and Bavarian guards between Muizon and Champigny, but they were forced back, suffering heavy losses. Both banks of the Vesle now are under heavy artillery fire from the opposing armies.

The Germans, it is believed, will try to stop at an intermediate position between the Vesle and the Aisne, but probably they will not attempt a definite halt before the Aisne is reached.

The enemy has suffered serious losses in men and material. Enemy dead are scattered along all the roads leading north. A large number of platforms for 300 millimeter guns have been found in the old Marne pocket, further indicating that the Germans intended to stay there.

The question is being asked in Paris whether the German withdrawal north and south of the Somme after that from the Marne does not indicate a change in German tactics in order to obtain effective for a new offensive elsewhere. It is also asked if the retrograde movement will not result in an extensive withdrawal similar to that from the Somme in March, 1917.

THE WITHDRAWAL ACROSS THE ANCRE

London, Aug. 4.—The following despatch has been received by Reuters from its correspondent at British headquarters:

"The importance of the German withdrawal across the Ancre should not be exaggerated. It has been forced by our ceaseless pressure, coupled with the extraordinary difficulty of maintaining communications across the swampy river valley. The Huns either had to get forward or retire before the wet season arrived, and presumably the torrential rains of recent days precipitated the decision. The real significance of their step is that in this sector Crown Prince Rupprecht's army definitely has passed from offensive to defensive tactics. The threat against Amiens and astride the great Albert road and to the northwards of the road is practically gone.

"The main withdrawal was carried out Thursday night, and must have proved a costly business to the enemy. The Ancre was swollen and we kept the bridges under a continuous fire, so that they were almost destroyed and most precarious to attempt. The Germans filled trees across the stream and possibly improvised some pontoon bridges under cover of the darkness, but it is known that many were drowned in the operation.

"Our patrols worked their way yesterday into Hamel. On the west bank of the Ancre no Germans were encountered, but considerable bodies of them were visible on the opposite bank. The Ancre was extended southward along the line of the river to Dernancourt, which is cleared of the enemy. Our patrols have been clearing up the situation in Albert, but the ruin of the town is now little more than a great gas and shell trap.

"Latest information available in London leaves the situation at Albert doubtful, but it is believed the Germans still hold a portion of the town.

"Today has been a fittingly commemorated. The biggest and most impressive ceremony was a special service of remembrance and intercession held at army headquarters. Chaplains of various denominations participated. About 5,000 troops paraded, including Canadians and Americans. After the service an artillery commander delivered a patriotic homily and the march-past of the Allied units followed."

GERMANS RESISTING

Paris, Aug. 5.—French detachments which crossed the Vesle are meeting with resistance from the Germans, says the official statement from the war office today.

"There is nothing of importance to report from the battlefield. Small French detachments which crossed the Vesle are meeting with German resistance everywhere," the statement says.

"The number of German troops in the immediate vicinity of the Vesle is estimated at 1,500,000.

Admits End of Offensive. Berné, Aug. 5.—The German offensive has been stopped and present operations cannot be publicly discussed, declared General Hellengrath, Bavarian minister of war, speaking in the first chamber Saturday.

"The fourth year of the war ends by what amounts to a stoppage of our offensive," he said, "but it is not possible to judge the situation apart from the operations now in progress, which cannot be discussed in public. Besides, our people are sufficiently steady and patient to accept the events which delay a final result."

RESUMING WORK ON DRY DOCK AT COURTENAY BAY

Heads of Company Here For The Send-Off

PREPARATORY FIRST

When Plant is Ready, Active Operations Will Commence—Will Employ Something Like One Thousand Men

Within a few days a steady stream of laborers will enter the city to go on government work at Courtenay Bay. Now that officials of the St. John Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Company say that operations are to commence forthwith it is expected the quietness of the eastern harbor will be gradually changed to a whirl of activity. The preparatory work for a while will consist of overhauling the old plant now on the job and installing new. This will be the task of engineers and mechanics. When the machinery is ready the bodies of laboring men will arrive. It is estimated fully 1,000 eventually will be engaged.

The prominent contractors now identified with the Courtenay Bay job will double their men from their other big works. No difficulty in this direction is anticipated.

Colonel Thomas A. Duff of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the St. John Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Company, arrived in the city on Saturday, accompanied by D. S. Pratt of Midland, who is president and managing director, and A. R. Dufresne, their chief engineer, who formerly was assistant chief engineer of the department of public works at Ottawa.

"We have sub-let the rock work to the Bedford Construction Company of Halifax," said Colonel Duff in talking to a reporter, "and the first work will begin Monday."

"Already we have purchased large quantities of machinery," he continued, "and paid for it, and we intend to push the work ahead as rapidly as possible."

Colonel Duff said that the company would complete the dredging of Courtenay Bay and the dry dock and put in a first-class ship repairing plant.

"We are not pressing the matter of concessions from the province and city just now, but when the province and city are ready and willing to talk concessions and want a modern steel shipbuilding plant we will be happy to talk business," said Colonel Duff in discussing this aspect of the work.

The officials of the company are James Playfair, president, Midland, Ont.; D. S. Pratt, vice-president and managing director, Midland, Ont.; Colonel Thomas A. Duff, secretary-treasurer, Toronto, Ont.; directors: D. L. White, Jr., Midland, Ont.; W. J. Sheppard, Wabash, Ont.; W. E. Finn, Hamilton, Ont.; R. T. Kenner, K. C., Montreal, P. Q.

LOST TWENTY MILES AND FORTY THOUSAND PRISONERS

London, Aug. 5.—(By Reuters' Limited)—Canadian Press Limited—Since the Crown Prince began his retreat his armies have fallen back twenty miles and lost forty thousand prisoners. The present German position is nearly a straight line between Soissons and Rheims. The latter town is still surrounded by the enemy on three sides, though the latest successes have relieved the pressure east of the city.

The enemy requires fewer divisions to defend this line than if he retreated across the Aisne, whose many windings would necessitate large bodies of troops to defend them. The Aisne, however, would be most dangerous in the rear of a beaten army, and indications are that the enemy will continue his retirement north of the Aisne, as even this natural rampart has been jeopardized by French brigades at Soissons and its suburb, St. Vaast, the latter commanding the whole sharp bend of the river east of the city.

A. Lull. Paris, Aug. 5.—There was a lull in the battle along the Soissons-Rheims front last night and the breathing spell extended into this morning. The Germans are being favored by the weather conditions, which have transformed the Vesle river banks into swamps and morasses and they are making a stiffer stand here than was anticipated.

BOLSHEVIKI KILL THREE RUSSIAN GRAND DUKES

CANADIAN FORCES WILL BE REPRESENTED IN RUSSIA

Announcement Made By Hon. F. B. Carvell At Woodstock Anniversary Service

Enthusiastic Gathering Hears Stirring Statement of War Conditions by Minister of Public Works—St. John People Assist

(Special to Times.) Woodstock, N. B., Aug. 5.—The largest audience that ever assembled in the big Hayden-Gibson Theatre was present last night when the exercises commemorating the anniversary of the war were carried out. An especially pleasing patriotic programme had been arranged, in which Miss Gailivan, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Mayes of St. John were prominent.

The boy scouts were on the stage with their bugle band, adding to the impressive nature of the occasion.

Hon. F. B. Carvell, in moving the customary anniversary resolution expressing determination to carry on to a successful determination, referred to the encouraging conditions under which the meeting was held. It was in striking contrast to an occasion about four months ago when the speaker in the same building here, and when the outlook was extremely grave. Now, it appeared, the Allies were forcing the Germans back rapidly on land, and the dangerous menace of the submarine warfare was over.

"Of course there was a long and hard struggle still ahead," Germany was still strong and as yet unbeaten, but there was no doubt of the ultimate result. He referred to the condition of the Canadian army, which had not been very seriously engaged in the fighting of the war four years ago, he referred to the fact of the immense sums of money loaned by the people of Canada to the government, amounting to more than $700,000,000, and this coming fall the people would again be asked to loan the government a large sum of money for the purpose of carrying on the war to a successful determination.

As a Canadian he was proud of the name the Canadian army had made for itself and for Canada. It was the aim of the American troops, which had gone to the front in such large numbers, to live up to the record made by their neighbors, the Canadians, and they were certainly doing it from the reports that came to hand of their military activities.

A tribute was paid to the splendid work done by the British navy, which had been mainly instrumental in keeping the seas clear of the enemy shipping and had made it possible for the immense armies of the Allies to concentrate on the French front.

During the course of his address, Mr. Carvell was handed a telegram containing the latest from the battlefield, and

ALLIED AIRMEN CONTINUE WORK OVER GERMANY

London, Aug. 4.—The official statement on aerial operations issued today, says:—"Raid and low clouds during the greater part of the day interfered with work in the air. Five tons of bombs were dropped by our airmen, and seven hostile machines and one balloon were shot down.

"In spite of a very dark night, five tons of bombs were dropped by us on the coast of the Netherlands, at Lille, and Steenwerck. Two day flying airplanes and one of our night bombing machines are missing."

HIGH HONOR FOR MAJOR BISHOP

London, Aug. 4.—(Via Reuters' Ottawa Agency)—A feature in the London Gazette which contains notice of a large number of awards is the conferring of the distinguished flying cross on Major W. A. Bishop, the Canadian flyer, "the most successful and most fearless fighter of the air whose acts of outstanding bravery have already been recognized by awards of the Victoria Cross, the Distinguished Service Order, bar to Distinguished Service Order and Military Cross."

The distinguished flying cross is conferred for "signally valuable services in personally destroying twenty-five enemy machines in twelve days, of which five were destroyed on the last day of his service at the front. The total number of machines destroyed by this distinguished officer is seventy-two and his value as a moral factor to the royal air force cannot be over-estimated."

SUBMARINE ADDS TO ITS STRING OF VICTIMS

Sinking of Fourth Fishing Vessel Announced

Craft Which Destroyed the Dornfontein Continued Its Valiant War Against Small Unarmed Craft—Another Off The Virginian Coast

A Canadian Atlantic Port, Aug. 5.—Four fishing vessels, one of Nova Scotia, and the others owned in the United States, are known to have been sunk off the Atlantic coast on Saturday and Sunday by a German submarine, previously reported operating in Nova Scotia waters.

The first news of the appearance of a U-boat on this coast came on Saturday, when it was announced that the St. John four-masted schooner Dornfontein, on her maiden voyage, had been torpedoed on Friday morning.

The crews of the American fishing schooners, Muriel and Rob Roy, have landed at Yarmouth and reported their vessels to have been sunk by an enemy submarine. The crew of the American schooner Annie M. Perry, landed at Wood's Harbor, near Yarmouth, and reported a similar happening to their vessel.

The fishing schooner Nelson A., seventy-two tons, Captain John Simms, owned by H. Amiro, of Yarmouth, was sunk at night on Sunday by a German submarine. The crew of the schooner was blown up by an enemy submarine twenty-five miles south of west of this port at noon yesterday. They said that they were bound for Lockport at the time with a good fare of fish, when they sighted a submarine about seven miles away. The U-boat did not fire at them, but came up at full speed, reaching half distance in about fifteen minutes, and ordered the crew to take to their dories immediately. After sinking the Nelson A., the enemy submarine disappeared.

To the Canadian Press today Captain Simms said that he sailed from Lockport a week ago for the La Have fishing banks. The weather was favorable, and on Saturday the schooner set sail for Lockport with seven thousand pounds of halibut and seventy thousand pounds of mixed fresh fish on board.

"At twenty minutes after eleven yesterday morning," said Captain Simms, "we sighted a submarine about seven miles away coming toward us from a southerly direction at full speed. In about fifteen minutes she stopped a short distance away from our stern, and the order came to us to take to our boats as soon as possible. This we did, launching four dories. Acting under the instruction of the commander of the Nelson A., I took one dory with two men alongside the U-boat and we rowed the commander and two men over to the Nelson A. They had with them several bags, containing bombs, I suppose. The Germans went aboard and ordered me to come with them. They took our log line and hauled one end of it under the ship's stern, making it fast to the main rigging. They then proceeded to 'heave haul' one of their bombs. It was evidently timed, as the Germans seemed in no hurry to leave the ship.

"The German skipper demanded my papers and flag, which I gave. He then demanded some halibut, which he took and put in the dory. Then he took me into the forecastle and took the provisions there that he considered worth taking.

"After he had removed about everything that was movable he ordered us to leave and take him back to the submarine. I asked him if he would allow me first to get a pair of boots and he granted permission. We then rowed off from the Nelson A. The other dories had proceeded a half a mile or so and they waited for us. When we gathered together we rested on our oars to see the read it to the audience amid much applause. The resolution was seconded by L. C. L. Ketchum, who made reference to the wonderful morale of the returned soldiers, who had always been confident of the result even when the stay-at-homes were a bit down-hearted.

The arrangements and preparation of the big meeting were under the direction of S. C. Hurley.

THE VICTIMS. Enemy submarine activities continue the chief topic of public concern, and indeed is the one big topic throughout New England, looming in the news horizon of both Canada and the United States in the national sense. Since the sinking of the recently-launched St. John schooner Dornfontein, other sailing craft have fallen victims of the ruthless Hun, of which the following is a list to date:

The American fishing schooner Muriel, Capt. Eldridge, which left her home port on Friday for the fishing banks. Torpedoed Saturday noon. The submarine took the crew aboard, placed a bomb under the Muriel's keel and made splinters of her. The crew reached a Canadian port in their own boats.

That same afternoon the Germans got another schooner, the Annie M. Perry, Capt. Jas. Goodman. The crew reached a Canadian port in their own dories.

Then the Rob Roy, Capt. Freeman Crowell, came along and the sub got her, too. The crew were hustled into their boats and the vessel blown up. After spending the night on a small island, the men reached a Canadian harbor.

All survivors of these sinkings agree that the U-boat is about 200 feet long, is manned by about fifty to seventy-five men, is brightly lit at night, and that commander and men are in a boastful, almost jocular mood.

SHOWS SHORTAGE OF MAN-POWER IN HUN ARMY

With the British forces in France, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press)—The latest indication of a shortage in the German man-power is found in the fact that certain Prussian divisions opposite the British have recently received drafts of Saxons, which is a most unusual proceeding. It is obvious that the battle between Rheims and Soissons continues, more fit divisions must be obtained by the Crown Prince, and these must be withdrawn from other parts of the front.

The smaller number of troops needed on a front held defensively than on one held for offense, may partially explain the apparent change of attitude of the enemy opposite the British.

INDEPENDENT SIBERIAN GOVERNMENT TO DECLARE WAR ON THE SOVIET

London, Aug. 5.—The semi-official Russian newspapers Pravda and Izvestia declare that the provisional government of Siberia intends formally to declare war on the Soviet government within a few days, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The Siberian government, it is added, has informed all neutral and allied powers of the establishment of an independent Siberian government.

Good Things Coming to Theatres of St. John

The Girl In The Moon

A Genuine Novelty and Spectacular Singing Feature at The Opera House This Week

For lots of hearty laughs and good clean entertainment, the vaudeville programme at the Opera House this week is recommended to everybody. As for novelty—there are two features that are decidedly new to St. John—one the contortion work of Chester Kingston, who can tie himself into intricate knots as easily as one ties a piece of string, and the other, 'The Girl in the Moon,' a spectacular and mysterious illusion of a kind rarely seen in vaudeville. How the moon floats so gracefully out from the stage and over the heads of the audience keeps everybody guessing, for there are no wires used, yet there it is, and she comes right down so everybody can get a close view and then sails away again and then you ask your neighbor: 'How does she do it?' This act was a feature at the New York Hippodrome for some time and has been a sensation in all the large cities of the country.

THE DORNFONTEIN DRIFTS ASHORE

At two o'clock this afternoon the Times was informed that the ill-fated St. John four-master Dornfontein, burned by a German submarine crew seventy-five miles from this city on Friday last, had been towed into a small cove—a fishing depot—on the Canadian coast. She is burned to the water's edge, including the deck-load of lumber. When asked if any of the cargo could be salvaged the Times was told that possibly the lumber in the holds might yet be recovered. The splendid craft is a sorry sight.

This One Escaped. A Canadian Atlantic Port, Aug. 5.—The auxiliary fishing vessel, McLaughlin, owned by Swimm Brothers of Lockeport, arrived here last evening and reported that she had been chased by an enemy submarine, but that she had made good her escape, thanks to the appearance of a large steamer which diverted the attention of the U-boat. Captain of the McLaughlin reports that he last saw the submarine chasing the steamer, but that he could not see what the final outcome was.

IN ADDITION, NOT AS A SUBSTITUTE

'O Canada' Not to Take Place of National Anthem at War Veteran's Meetings

Toronto, Aug. 4.—In a despatch sent out by this service on Aug. 2, it was stated that 'The Great War Veterans' Association have decided to replace the British national anthem 'God Save the King' with 'O Canada,' at the close of branch meetings. The above was not the sense of the resolution passed by the convention, which reads as follows: 'That the singing of one verse of 'O Canada' precede the singing of the national anthem at the dominion convention, and that this convention recommend to the branches of the G. W. V. A. that whenever the national anthem is sung it be preceded by the singing of one verse of 'O Canada.' Rev. Mr. Davison, who moved the resolution, wanted to make the singing of 'O Canada' before the national anthem compulsory on the local branches, but when President Purney pointed out that there was no authority for such action, the mover withdrew the compulsory feature and let it go as a recommendation. President Purney made it quite clear that the convention has not resolved to cancel the singing of God Save the King at the close of their meetings. 'O Canada' is to be an addition, not a substitute.

WAR ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED

London, Aug. 4.—The fourth anniversary of the beginning of the war was observed today, not as a day of prayer and remembrance in churches of all denominations, but also as a day of thanksgiving and hope. The news of the glorious triumph of the Allied arms at the front has sent a thrill through the whole country. The newspapers are not forgetful of the nation's past sorrows, but characterize the anniversary as marking the turning point of the war, and the breaking of a new dawn for the deliverance of the world from the menace of German militarism.

Paris, Aug. 4.—Public prayer for victory for the Allies was said today throughout France on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the declaration of war.

EXTENSION OF WATER MAIN TO EAST ST. JOHN

Delegations Wait on Common Council to Urge Commencement of Work

At today's meeting of the common council delegations from the St. John County Hospital and the Municipal Home were heard with reference to an extension of the water main to East St. John to supply these institutions. Dr. H. McDonald, Dr. F. S. Ferris, H. E. Schofield and Councilor J. E. Bryant represented the former, and W. E. Scully, W. L. Walsh, G. A. Knodell, A. M. Rowan and S. M. Wetmore the latter. J. King Kelly, county secretary, was also present.

Mr. Schofield explained that the delegation was present to endeavor to get the council to take up the question of giving them an adequate water supply. He pointed out that an agreement had been entered into by the city prior to the erection of the hospital to furnish water to the institution and they desired the city to carry out that agreement. He explained that the water they have been securing from an artesian well and from the small pipe coming across the flats was not sufficient to supply the hospital and would be entirely inadequate now that a new building had been erected for soldiers. There are between ninety and one hundred patients in the institution and a large supply of water is needed daily. He said that it cost $2,400 last winter to haul water there and that this sum would provide for interests and sinking fund on an expenditure of $80,000. At the present time, he pointed out, it was quite a problem to meet the needs of the institution, and when the new wing is opened it will be impossible to do so as it would accommodate about forty patients.

County Secretary Kelly then proposed an agreement entered into between the city of St. John and the board of the St. John County Hospital to furnish the institution with water. Dr. F. S. Ferris spoke about the trouble experienced last winter when the small pipe coming across the flats froze up. He said the daily consumption of the hospital was about 5,000 gallons and that with the addition of the new wing between 13,000 and 16,000 would be required.

Questioned by Mayor Hayes, Engineer Hare said that it was estimated that to lay a main to the hospital would involve an expenditure of $65,000. If they were to carry it some 1,200 feet further in view of proposed developments it would cost $80,000.

Commissioner McLellan said that it was a question of keeping faith and that he sincerely regretted that the installation had not been made a couple of years ago as promised. Mayor Hayes said that the Boys' Industrial Home was badly in need of a better water supply. While he was not anxious to make any big expenditure, he said, he felt that this was necessary. Commissioner Fisher agreed that it was necessary, but at first thought that the difficulty could be temporarily overcome by boring a couple of artesian wells. Later after hearing arguments against this, he agreed that it was out of the question.

Mr. Kelly asked if it would be advisable to take the matter up with the government and ask for a contribution for this work, but Mayor Hayes and Commissioner McLellan did not think it would do any good. They explained that the government was to pay so much per capita. Mayor Hayes said that from the humane side as well as from a moral obligation he was prepared to vote for a bond issue to cover the expenditure. Mr. Scully asked the mayor if it was true that in the event of a shipbuilding plant being erected at Courtenay Bay that the Municipal Home was liable to be sold. He explained that they wished to make some expenditures and did not feel like doing so if there was any chance of the institution being sold. In answer, the mayor said that there was nothing definite regarding that matter and did not see why any improvements should not be made. He said that, if any concern did take over the home, they would provide other quarters.

After the delegation had been assured that the matter would receive careful consideration and had departed, Commissioner Bullock moved that the commissioner of water and sewerage bring in a report for the next meeting regarding the proposed extension and the estimated cost for same. This was seconded by Commissioner Fisher and passed.

Another Chance for Defaulters. The militia department at Ottawa have once again decided to give the absentees and defaulters under the Military Service Act an opportunity of coming forth and reporting for service like true Canadians. The department say that if an absentee or defaulter reports for service prior to Aug. 24 he will not be proceeded against and his application for leave will be considered. In other words, the defaulter or absentee who reports will receive the same consideration as did the man who reported in his allotted time.

While the local military officials do not wish to make any threats, yet they intimate that it will be a lot better for the absentee and defaulter that they can. Those absentees and defaulters who do not report by Aug. 24 will face the charge when they are apprehended after this date. It is the intention of the militia department to have a standing court martial appointed in each military district before which the cases will be heard.

NEW FEATURES AT THE GEM GOOD

June Caprice in 'A Camouflage Kiss' and Episode No. 8 of 'The Eagle's Eye'

There are two excellent features in the Gem's new programme, which was keenly enjoyed on Saturday night. One is 'A Camouflage Kiss,' a romantic story in which June Caprice is starred. This is a five reel picture of superior quality, abundant in humorous situations and also in romance. The action revolves around a kiss stolen in the dark. Perhaps you will not believe it, but there was something about it which June liked, and what is more, she recognized the bestower when he kissed her a second time. There are many strong situations in the play as well as lighter moments in which 'The Sunshine Maid' distributes brightness. June is delightful as ever and gives a charming production of this play.

Episode No. 8 of 'The Eagle's Eye' is another thrilling chapter in this great series dealing with the German plots to make trouble in the United States and to further the cause of Germany there. This chapter is entitled 'The Kaiser's Death Messenger, Robert Fay,' and deals with the arrival of that expert bombist from Germany to carry out the nefarious work. His first mission is to carry out a gigantic explosion with T. N. T. Through the good work of the secret service the scheme is discovered and foiled and the uncovering makes a striking screen story in this excellent series.

The Gem will continue this programme until and including Tuesday night, with all changed on Wednesday afternoon.

THE ROTARY CLUB. Rotary Functioning was the subject of a brilliant address by Rev. Gordon Keirstead of Greenwich, N. Y., at the Rotary luncheon today. The local application of his address was that the club should get behind the playground movement, join in the fight against tuberculosis, and labor for other causes for the public welfare. He remarked that if the Rotary movement were self-centred, it would not last, but its opportunities for service were great, not only in relation to a city, but the country and the world. F. H. Quirt occupied the chair. F. A. Dykeman paid a warm tribute to the speaker, who is a St. John man. Both Mr. Keirstead and Mr. Dykeman heartily endorsed the Chautauqua movement. Secretary MacBeth reported that a committee had been named by the executive to decide in what way the club will raise funds for the Playgrounds Association.

A PHOTOGRAPH WHICH IS NOW OF HISTORIC INTEREST

Theodore Roosevelt and the Emperor of Germany photographed together at the German army manoeuvres some years before the great war was launched by Kaiser Wilhelm. Who would have thought when the photograph was taken that the United States would ever be at war with Germany or that the Roosevelt family would be one of the first to pay the supreme sacrifice of patriotism against an unscrupulous foe?

NEW WAR THE AIM OF GERMAN PEACE

Plans Made in 1915 to Prepare For Greater Conflict

Knew Then She Had Lost - Sought Armistice, Knowing That Fighting Would End, Hoping to Win at Give and Take

As a warning against the next German offer of peace, designed to cover German preparations for another war under more favorable conditions, Henry Morgenthau, ex-ambassador to Turkey, has made public secret negotiations by Germany in 1915, when Germany sought to put an end to the present war in order to make such arrangements for another war as would insure victory and domination of the world for the Central Powers.

The German agents, who approached Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople in 1915, made no secret that Germany's object was to put a stop to an indecisive struggle in order to allow her to get ready for a decisive one, and she was willing then to put forward terms, which she hoped might prove attractive, because she schemed to gain back everything then conceded and a great deal more, when she reopened the back door under better conditions.

Germany's hypocritical peace enterprises at that time are recalled as a warning against forthcoming proposals from Germany, designed to encourage pacifist sentiment among the Allies and produce an armistice, leaving the same military masters of Germany in the saddle to build thousands of submarines and attack later, when her undersea strength is considered sufficient to sweep the seas, isolate France, and make the Hohenzollerns the rulers of the world.

One German principle, Mr. Morgenthau pointed out, is that an armistice is sure to result in peace, and that to induce the Allies to agree to an armistice is the accomplishment of a great step toward insuring German rule of the world at a later date.

Mr. Morgenthau's experiences with German intrigue, which looked upon an armistice and upon a peace as mere pawns in the German game for world domination, is set forth in the World's Work for August, just published, in which he said:

"In the latter part of 1914 Wangenheim began discussing the subject, where, in the German system, he told me, not only to be completely prepared for war but also for peace. 'A wise general who enters a battle always has in hand his plans for a retreat, in case he is defeated,' said the German ambassador. 'This principle applies just the same to a nation beginning war. There is only one certainty about war, and that is that it must end sometime. So, when we plan our campaign for war, we must consider also a campaign for peace.'

"But Germany's ideas then comprised something more tangible than this philosophic principle. She had immediate reasons for desiring the end of hostilities, and Wangenheim discussed them frankly and cynically. He said that Germany had prepared for only a short war because she had expected to crush France and Russia in two brief campaigns lasting in all perhaps six months. Clearly this plan had failed and there was little likelihood that Germany would win the war; Wangenheim told me this in so many words. Germany, he added, would make a great mistake if she persisted in fighting the war to exhaustion, for such a fight would mean the permanent loss of her colonies, her merchant marine, and her whole economic and commercial status. 'If we don't get Paris in thirty days we are beaten,' Wangenheim had told me in August, and though his attitude changed somewhat after the battle of the Marne, he made no attempt to conceal the fact that the great rush campaign had collapsed, that all that the Germans could now look forward to was a tedious, exhausting war, and the most they could obtain from the existing situation would be a drawn battle. 'We have made a mistake this time,' Wangenheim said, 'in not laying in supplies for a protracted struggle; it was an error, however, that we shall not repeat next time we shall store up enough copper and cotton to last for five years.'

"At this time a German diplomat appeared in Constantinople who has figured in German recent history—Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann, since minister for foreign affairs. In the last five years Dr. von Kuhlmann has seemed to appear in that particular part of the world where important confidential diplomatic negotiations are being conducted by the German Empire. About the middle of December of Kuhlmann left for Berlin, where he stayed about two

"Arkansas Traveler"

A Dialogue-Melody That Had Western Vogue Years Ago

D. C. Allen, Liberty, Mo., has asked the 'Trouble Editor for the author, date of its being written, and circumstances of the conception of the dialogue-melody, 'The Arkansas Traveler.' The eighth volume of the publication of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society for the amusement of the subject from a Thomas Wilson. There are several versions of the famed 'fiddle' tune extant, and perhaps some reader of this column may further enlighten the inquirer or the editor as to the birth of the melody. The following is a list of Mr. Wilson's writing:

"The Arkansas Traveler" originated contrary to public opinion, not as a tune but as a simple drama. This simple drama was first given in Salem, Ohio, for the amusement of the guests at the Golden Fleece Tavern. The Golden Fleece was noted for its music, the chief depository of which was considered to be the 'Arkansas Traveler.'

"That was no real argument" in the drama at first presented. It was given as a dialogue between an Arkansas squatter (a fiddler) and the 'Arkansas Traveler.' The play opened with the squatter trying to remember a tune he had heard at a theatre in New Orleans, but he had failed to play it, but has only succeeded in playing the first line.

"He is about to give up in despair, when the 'Arkansas Traveler' appears upon the scene. While the fiddler is talking to the traveler he keeps trying to play the evasive, haunting tune. Finally, the traveler tells him that he can play it, and, much to the delight of the fiddler, he sits down and plays the piece over and over. The scene closes with the squatter picking out the tune on his fiddle.

"The dialogue between the two characters, as Thomas remembers it, goes as follows:

Traveler—Stranger, do you live around here?
Squatter—I reckon I don't live any where else. (Plays first part of tune only.)
Traveler—Well how long have you lived here?
Squatter—See that big tree over there? Well, that was here when I came.

Traveler—Well, you needn't be so cross about it. I wasn't asking no improper questions at all.
Squatter—Reckon there's nobody here cross, except yourself. (Plays first part.)
Traveler—Well, how did your potatoes turn out this year?
Squatter—They didn't turn out at all; we dug 'em out. (Plays first part.)
Traveler—Can I stay here all night?
Squatter—Yes, you kin stay right where you air, out on the road. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—How far is it to the next town?
Squatter—I reckon it's upward of some distance. (Plays first part.)
Traveler—How long will it take me to get there?
Squatter—You'll not get there at all if you stay foolin' with me.
Traveler—Got any spirits in your house?
Squatter—Do you think my house is haunted? Plenty of 'em down at the graveyard. (Plays first part.)
Traveler—How far is it to the forks of the road?
Squatter—Hit hain't forked since I've been here. (Plays.)
Traveler—Where does the road go?
Squatter—Hit hain't gone anywhere since I been here. Just stayed right here. (Plays.)
Traveler—Why don't you put a new roof on your house?
Squatter—Because it's raining. (Plays.)
Traveler—Why don't you do it when it's not raining?
Squatter—Because then it don't leak. (Plays.)
Traveler—Why don't you play the rest of that tune? I've been down in New Orleans and I heart it at a theatre, and I've been at work at it ever since I got back, trying to get the last part of it. If you can play the rest of the tune you can stay in my cabin the rest of your natural life. Git down off that hoss. If you don't, you've excited the tiger in my bosom and I'll have nothing short of your life's blood. Git down Git down.

Traveler—Yes, I can play it; there's no use of your getting mad. I'll play it as soon as I've had some supper.
Squatter—Fly 'round, old woman, and set the table.
Traveler—The result of it is that the stranger gets off, takes the seat of the squatter and the fiddle, and starts to play the last part of the tune.
Traveler—The tune that was used in this play-let came to be known as 'The Arkansas Traveler.'—St. Louis Republic.

WHY POSTMEN WENT ON STRIKE

Governmental Neglect of Administrative Duty Given as the Cause by Upper Canadian Newspaper

(Toronto Globe.) Inconvenience and loss occasioned by the public in the temporary re-upt of the business of the post office department was the penalty paid for governmental neglect of administrative duty.

With eight cabinet ministers overseas at one time matters which should have been attended to at home were allowed to drift. The post office department was without head and any real management. The bonus passed by parliament to the letter carriers was not paid. Their representations, made to the government from time to time, were apparently shelved and neglected. To arouse a lethargic administration the men finally took drastic action.

The strike, backed as it was by the sympathy and support of the overwhelming mass of public sentiment, was effective in awakening the ministers at Ottawa. The government made concessions, and has appointed a sub-committee of the cabinet to confer with the postmen.

Throughout eastern Canada generally the men accepted this action in good faith and returned to work. This course, the Globe believes, was the wise and proper one. It indicates recognition of the public interest, and will assure the men of a continuance of public support. The government has promised action. The men who returned to work accepted this promise, and the public will be behind them in seeing that it is kept.

Throughout the west, however, no such satisfactory situation has thus far resulted. The postmen in many centres are still on strike, and to make matters worse, the government is threatening to use the big army of the postmaster-general, according to despatches from Ottawa, has threatened those postmen who fail immediately to return to work with dismissal. The Globe would urge upon both the western striking postmen and the government the unwisdom of the course which each is following.

The government should realize that the responsibility for the whole trouble rests directly upon its own failure to do its duty. Having been in the wrong it should have been manly enough to confess its fault and remedy it as speedily as possible. Under the circumstances it will strike the public as most unseemly to attempt to deal with the situation by Cromwellian methods.

But it is submitted just as strongly that the western letter carriers would be well advised to follow the course taken by their eastern colleagues. They will lose nothing by so doing, and will be the better entitled to hold the public support which has been accorded them.

The national interest must be paramount. The postal service must be carried on. The government has at last been brought to a sense of its responsibility in dealing with the department

MORE CHEERING NEWS.

The German retreat continues. Not only has the Crown Prince's army retreated until only a few of his troops remain south of the Vesle River, but the withdrawal of Prince Rupprecht's army across the Aisne River is an admission that he has passed from the offensive to the defensive on that sector, and the fear of a drive against Amiens has passed. The whole situation has wonderfully improved. Everywhere along the Marne salient the enemy has been driven back with losses which are being reported very heavy, both in men and material. It is doubtful if he will be able to make a stand until he reaches the Aisne River. A large number of his heavy guns and great quantities of shells have fallen into the hands of the French. The Allies enter the fifth year of the war with a feeling that the crisis is past, and that hereafter the tide of battle will be in their favor, though the struggle may still be long. Ludendorff boasts that he is still master of the situation, but it is only to the extent that he has been able to save his armies from complete disaster by giving up ground he had won at great cost and retreating hastily to new positions. It is evident from the reports that the pressure upon German man-power is being felt very keenly, while the Allies are receiving more and more men from the United States to strengthen their fighting forces. The week begins with more good news from the western front, while the Russian situation also indicates improvement.

The people of the maritime provinces have had the war brought closer to them by the operations last week of a German submarine off this coast. Today's despatches tell of the sinking of a Yarmouth fishing schooner, in addition to the three previously reported and the schooner Dornfontein. The operations of this submarine have not been marked by the savagery displayed by some others. There is a fine opportunity for the cruisers off this coast to distinguish themselves, although it is no easy task to locate a cunning enemy in so great a stretch of water as that which stretches from Cape Breton to Sandy Hook.

WHAT HUGHES SAID.

The comment of the London Daily News on that portion of Sir Robert Borden's speech at a banquet in London on Wednesday, in which the Canadian premier said he and his colleagues necessarily refrained from attempting any interference with the fiscal policy of the United Kingdom, because Canada claimed and exercised absolute control of her own fiscal policy, conveys the impression that, in the opinion of the Daily News, Premier Hughes of Australia has been improperly meddling with English tariff affairs. That journal applauds Borden while it censures Hughes. It is interesting, therefore, to learn what Premier Hughes has been saying. Addressing the London Chamber of Commerce last month the Australian premier reviewed the economic policy of Germany and how it had affected England and declared that the open door was the policy Germany would like Britain to adopt. He charged that powerful German influences were at work in England itself, beneath the surface, to create sentiment in favor of "peace by negotiation," and the "open door." Continuing he said:—

"Gentlemen, we must fight to live. That is the plain truth of the matter. We owe it to our country, to the millions of brave men who are fighting for us and for liberty, that we shall create such conditions as will ensure them plentiful employment and good wages under decent conditions. Common sense points out that we should develop the resources of the Empire. That the various parts of the Empire should deal with one another in preference to dealing with our enemies. You who are gathered here today represent in a measure the industry and commerce of Britain. Upon you the future of the Empire rests. You would prefer, I take it, rather to see the economic and national salvation of Britain than the attainment of your own ends. But there are men in this country whose consideration for their own interests blinds them to any sense of duty and places them whether they desire it or not, alongside those agents of Germany who deliberately plot for our destruction. Against these men you must wage incessant war. Against their doctrines you must bring to bear all the energy at your command. They are strongly entrenched, and we must not underestimate their strength. Only by the concerted efforts of those who see the path that Britain must take, and rising above all selfish considerations, are prepared to take it, can this our Empire be saved. What is wanted is a clear, definite economic policy, adequate to all our circumstances. Effective action by the Dominions awaits and must necessarily await, the formulation of such policy by Britain. There is not one reason why it should not be declared, there are a thousand reasons why it should be declared without delay. Here we are the greatest Empire the world has ever seen. In our Dominions practically the whole of the raw materials necessary to our industries are to be found. I am glad to say that preparations have been made for some of these raw materials to be conserved for the manufactures of Great Britain—and other negotiations are in progress. But time flies, and what has been done is nothing to what has to be done. It cannot be done by committees; it must be done by a man. There must be a policy declared, and some man must have charge of this policy to give effect to it. There is not time for meandering along the tortuous course pursued by multifarious minds. We know where we have to go, and we know how to get there. We are to deal with a thousand and one problems. We have got to prepare for peace. If peace comes and finds us unprepared our last state will be worse than the first, we can do nothing in the Dominions of a permanent and effective kind until you declare your policy. Upon your policy ours is to be established. If imperialism is to be something more than an aim we must have action and a definite declaration of what you intend to do, a step from which there cannot be any withdrawal, any drawing back. The policy of England must be known; it should be declared from the house tops. Germany does not hesitate to do so. She has formulated her policy with Austria. Let us do the same. You here represent in ample measure some of the great interests of Britain. You are concerned with its welfare, you are concerned in its rise and decline. There are men in our midst whose voices are raised against definite steps that will determine clearly what is to be the policy of Britain. See to it that your voices drown theirs, and that they are marked out for what they are—the enemies of their country."

It would appear that the campaign of the Australian statesman has not been fruitless, for the London Times yesterday said that Mr. Lloyd George had made an important statement to a deputation of manufacturers, assuring them not only that imperial preference had come to stay, in order to assure Great Britain of the first call on the raw materials of the Dominions, but that the government would have to see that essential industries were strengthened and protected.

In the house of commons Thursday Mr. Bonar Law and the colonial secretary made it clear that the imperial preference referred to was a matter of domestic policy, and did not involve the Dominions, which will settle their own fiscal policies without interference of any sort. The imperial government simply proposes to give a preference in line with action already taken by the Dominions.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

The Financial Post believes we are approaching a crisis in the labor situation in Canada, and lays a good deal of the blame for it upon the capitalists and the government at Ottawa. It says:—

"The labor situation has never been treated with the understanding that would have created a common ground where capital and labor could meet amicably to settle all differences. There has been mutual suspicion and antagonism between capital and labor. The breaking down of these dangerous barriers should have been accepted by capital as an appointed and vital task. But not even at Ottawa, where the interests of the workman are supposed to be a first consideration, has any serious effort been made to smooth away the differences and the misunderstandings. No government has seen fit to put a labor man into office as minister of labor, or, in fact, to find for that highly important post any incumbent other than an out-and-out politician. The portfolio of labor has fallen to men who squeezed into the cabinet through political weight and who had to be provided with a post of some kind. The spectacle of a minister of labor offering opposite fronts to capital and labor when difficult situations arose has been too common to require specific mention. No, the labor problem has never been intelligently faced and the result is seen today when we confront conditions that are grave beyond compare."

A SONG FOR MARCHING MEN.

(Theresa Virginia Board, in the "Bellman.")

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
A martial song with a swing in it,
With measured rhythm and ring in it,
A song for marching men.

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
A gallant song with a cheer in it,
A tender song with a tear in it,
And never a taint of fear in it,
A song for marching men.

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
Trumpet and bugle and fife in it,
The passion and pride of life in it,
And the old mad joy of strife in it,
A song for marching men.

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
With iron and blood and ruth in it,
Vision and beauty and truth in it,
Terrible paths of youth in it,
A song for marching men.

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
With a sacred wordless space in it,
With a clinging last embrace in it,
A song with a woman's face in it,
A song for marching men.

O, who will give us a song for them—
The silent marching men?
A scorn for the tyrant's rod in it,
A thought of the crimsoned sod in it,
A faith in the Living God in it,
A song for marching men.

Some Lessons the War Has Taught Canada

(Toronto Star.)

War is a primitive thing, and a long, hard war wears away many flimsy pretexts by which people are misgoverned. It has been found, for instance, in Canada that when the taxing of the necessities of life falls to yield the amount of revenue required in war time, there are other sources of revenue that can be called upon—such as a sweeping tax on the excessive profits of large concerns. It is not possible, we think, that Canada or her people will soon forget what they have learned as to the availability of this source of revenue—a juster, fairer, and better source than taxing the bare necessities of life as used by the people at large, most of whom derive from their labors only a meagre subsistence.

It has been found possible to impose a graded tax on incomes, which our public men always said could not be done. As it has been found that the annual revenue of the country should mostly be derived from those who benefit mostly from the life and industry of the country.

During the war we have seen the government step in and restrict the profits of the packers and the millers as permitted to make. We have seen the government forbid the export of necessities and the import of luxuries; bring fish food from the Atlantic to the interior; forbid the eating of meals on certain days; and prescribe the material from which bread may be made. We have seen men conscripted to go to war, and men and women of all ages forced to repute themselves and explain who they are and what they are doing here among us. We have seen the railways practically taken over and required to cooperate rather than compete, and we have seen every ship receive orders as to what it shall carry and where it shall carry it.

All this means that the country has found out that it, as a country, is conducting an enormous industry in which every citizen bears a hand, is on the payroll, eats at the check, tent and sleeps in the bunkhouse. Having learned this and exercised all these various acts of superintendence it is not at all probable that the country will forget it, or listen to those who say that it is nobody's business what value a man or a company gives the public for its money, if you do not like a thing you can lump it.

It may be very difficult to regulate prices in every field of buying and selling, but it is possible to regulate profits and the quality of what is produced. The principle of doing this has been put into effect, not only here but in several countries, and although the methods may not be perfect they can be improved upon with practice and experience.

It is the common multitude of men who are saving the world today at the cost of their lives and the grief and loss of their families, and when the war is done those who fought in it and those who suffered by it will insist that the country must conduct herself with a knowledge of her experience.

HOME FROM ENGLAND

Lieutenant Daryl G. Peters, formerly of the 26th and later of the 23rd Battalion and son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Peters, 200 Germain street, also arrived home last night. He has been in England and was given a leave of absence in which to recuperate. Nevertheless he is in fine spirits and enjoyed his second return trip across the pond. Lieutenant Lozier, of Chatham, was the only other provincial officer on the troop special which immediately pulled out and proceeded on its journey to Halifax.

Her many friends in this province will be pleased to learn that Mrs. G. A. Kuhring, wife of Captain (Rev.) G. A. Kuhring who has been on V. A. D. and Red Cross work in England for the past seven months also arrived last night on the special from New York, her work having been completed. Mrs. Kuhring is in good health and enjoyed immensely doing her bit while on the other side of the water in the cause of the Allies. She was met at the station by Rev. Mr. Kuhring and other members of her family.

KILLED IN FRANCE

T. M. Morrow, who during the past year and a half has been engineer for John S. Metcalf Co., Ltd., on the new elevator, Water street, received word on Saturday of the death of his brother-in-law, Lieutenant A. C. Forest of the Royal Air Force, killed in France on July 29.

Lieutenant Forest was for several years a resident of St. John, a graduate of St. John High school, and was for a time engineer on the staff of the public works department here. Of late years, he has been secretary of a construction firm in Montreal. He was in his twenty-fifth year.

Mr. Morrow had intended returning to Montreal Saturday night, his work being completed, but owing to the circumstances was compelled to remain over for a few days, when Mrs. Morrow will accompany him.

A JUTLAND HERO.

"Paddy" Russell, V. C., a Jutland hero, arrived in the city on Saturday night on his way to Montreal. While in the city he was the guest of J. V. Shea of the post office staff, who lately returned on a vessel in which Mr. Russell was serving. H. M. S. Tipperary, on which he was serving, was giving a good account of herself in the Jutland battle when a shell from a German ship struck her amidships, killing several of the engine room staff. The vessel then became helpless, was drifting around at the mercy of the enemy's guns. Russell went down into the engine room and amid a hail of scalding steam, repaired the steam pipe and so put the Tipperary in action again. He was a few weeks later awarded the V. C.

The Story of Carnation MILK

"from CONTENTED COWS"

HAVE YOU read the story?

Have you tried Carnation Milk?

Do you know why Carnation Milk has replaced ordinary milk in so many homes?

You must be interested. If you are particular—or anxious, as many are—about the milk you use, the story of Carnation Milk is of vital importance to you.

***

CARNATION MILK comes to you sealed—air-tight, safe from contamination, sweet, fresh, rich, pure.

It is not perishable until you break the seal, even then it will keep fresh for several days in a cool dry place. It is "whole" milk.

That means that it contains all the cream, all the milk solids of fresh, new milk "from contented cows." Every can of milk is tested for its richness in butter fat.

Carnation Milk is evaporated to the consistency of cream, but only water is taken away from it. Nothing is added. No sweetening or preservatives. It keeps its freshness because it is sealed tight while still fresh—and because it is sterilized.

So, when you add an equal quantity of pure water to Carnation Milk you "bring back" the original milk. Not an artificially sweetened milk with a few uses only, but a fresh, rich milk that may be used as you use ordinary milk.

HOW convenient it is to have milk in this form! You keep it on the pantry shelves—always ready—yet always fresh.

Carnation Milk undiluted is cream for coffee, tea, cereals, fruit.

Diluted, it is a rich—and safe—milk for the children to drink.

It is so rich that it improves most dishes which call for milk. In creaming vegetables, soup, gravies—there is no need of adding butter when you use Carnation Milk.

If your recipe calls for skimmed milk—add more water to Carnation Milk. And you have none of the waste of perishable milk that must be used within a few hours.

This is only a PART of the Story

THE milk question is so important that we want every one to know about Carnation Milk and our methods of maintaining its uniform richness and purity. Let us tell you how we make it safe for you. Let us tell you how to prepare delicious dishes with Carnation Milk. We will send you free of charge "The Story of Carnation Milk" (including 100 recipes). Please mention this paper.

Food Board Flashes For Feminine Folk

Are you in the "sensible" buyer class or are you one of the great crowd of indifferent buyers who leave selection to their dealers?

The sensible buyer does her buying at first-hand—and not over the telephone. She goes out with her basket and picks what she wants. She encourages the cash and carry system and she believes in the grocer's final touch to sensible buying. She does not let herself be beguiled by the thing that looks tempting. She encourages the fish store all she can because fish species conservation is important. She studies the commercial page as religiously as she does the woman's page because there she finds the market prices. She adds the final touch to sensible buying by steering clear as far as possible of wheat products, of beef and of bacon. By such means she is becoming not only a sensible but also a patriotic buyer.

ORANGEMEN DISCUSS ALIEN ENEMY MENACE

Charlottetown, Aug. 3.—At the meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge, the historical committee discussed the alien enemy menace and the recommendation contained in the report adopted by resolution. It is said in effect that all dangerous enemy aliens should be interned and given employment either by the government or private concerns, or individuals when it was found impossible to secure regular labor.

The great feature of the day, in fact of the whole meeting was the report of the joint legislation committee.

One of the matters dealt with was the alien enemy menace and the recommendation contained in the report adopted by resolution. It is said in effect that all dangerous enemy aliens should be interned and given employment either by the government or private concerns, or individuals when it was found impossible to secure regular labor.

MINISTER OF WAR FOR NEWFOUNDLAND

"Quiet, unassuming, dignified and a wonderful leader of men was the manner in which Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig impressed me when I met him a short time ago on the western front," said Hon. J. R. Bennett, minister of militia for Newfoundland, who passed through the city last night en route to his home in St. John's (Nfld.), from the old land where he has been since early in the month of May.

Hon. Mr. Bennett was overseas on purely official business in connection with the prosecution of the war but did not attend the conference held in London. While overseas he visited the front, saw his own boys in action, saw the Canadians, had dinner with General Haig and climbed over Vimy ridge and spent several hours in the front line trenches.

"What impressed me most while in France," said Mr. Bennett, "was the genuine optimism which prevailed on all sides among the officers and men. Every man in France, no matter in what capacity he is working is absolutely confident that the Hun will be licked and licked soundly before we are through with him."

DEFENCE COMPLETED IN THE MALVY TRIAL

Paris, Aug. 4.—The defence in the case of Louis J. Malvy, former minister of the interior, who on trial charged with State foreign affairs, with the enemy, has been concluded. Malvy's counsel declared in closing the argument for the defence that the attorney-general's sole contentions were that M. Malvy failed to prevent pacifist propaganda. He said the defendant had fully performed his duty, and presented evidence to prove that M. Malvy had issued instructions to punish the authors of pacifist articles.

THE CHATAUQUA WEEK

The grand heroism which has been called forth. The first day of the Chatauqua week can be described as a splendid success from the point of view of the entertainment provided and the fact that so few people were there to enjoy this entertainment is greatly to be regretted.

RECENT DEATHS

At the sacred service which was held in the Chatauqua tent yesterday evening, Rev. Dr. Peter MacQueen gave an inspiring address on "Lamentation: Wining in which he showed the value of the Chatauqua week they present it before the assembled public.

RECENT DEATHS

Following the lecture the quartette of the McKinnie Operatic Company and their pianist gave a concert and the programme was a very well selected one, including as it did such old favorites as Annie Laurie and the Poet and Peasant, songs of the latest war songs of the American camps, humorous pieces and many tuneful melodies. The company is a well trained one and the music which it provided was of a high order and met with hearty applause.

RECENT DEATHS

The evening performance was patronized by a bigger audience than the afternoon one and everyone there in the evening did not have to be asked to advertise the Chatauqua. As they left the tent they could not refrain from saying how very much they had enjoyed the entering performance. The McKinnie Operatic Company presented the fourth act of Il Trovatore in costume and their acting and singing left nothing to be desired. This final act in the well known tragedy scope for the exhibition of a wide range of vocal powers. Without secrecy or pretentiousness the company was able to hold the audience fascinated and well merited the repeated applause which it received.

City Observes Fourth Anniversary of War

The fourth anniversary of Great Britain's declaration of war was solemnly observed by a special service in the Imperial Theatre on Sunday afternoon which was attended by Lieutenant-Governor the Hon. William Pugsley, Chief Justice the Hon. Sir Douglas Hazen, Hon. W. E. Foster, premier of the province, Mayor Hayes, the city council, representatives of the naval and military forces, the consuls of the Allied nations, representatives of the patriotic societies, a large number of the clergy of the city and many other prominent people. The theatre was opened half an hour before the service commenced and was quickly thronged with a crowd that was eager to show respect for and appreciation of the seriousness of the occasion. The service was a simple one consisting of hymns, prayers and address, the repetition of the creed and the pronouncing of the benediction. A collection was taken for the Red Cross Society.

Capt. (Rev.) G. A. Kuhring was the chairman of the meeting and said a few words at the opening of the service, previous to which the City Cornet band had rendered selections of hymn tunes and of the national anthems of the Allied nations. The music provided by the band during the service was exceptionally fine. The service commenced with the singing of the "Old Hundred," "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," following which Rev. L. A. Tedford delivered the invocation and led in the repetition of the Lord's prayer, while the people stood. Rev. J. Charles Appel read the chosen portion of scripture and the meeting then sang "O God of Love, O King of Peace," afterwards the Apostles' Creed was repeated and the Rev. F. S. Dowling delivered an earnest and beautifully worded prayer for the cause of the Allies and for the success, help and comfort of those engaged in the strife and of those who remain at home. The hymn "Eternal Father, Strong to Save," was then sung by the assembled company before the address was given. Empire Never Falters.

Rev. H. A. Goodwin in his vigorous and stirring address declared that the British Empire after four years of war was weary and bleeding and longing for peace but would never falter in its steady pursuit of its war efforts because of the righteousness of its cause and the cause of the Allies that cause would prevail. He referred to the brutalities of Germany and said that in the crushing of such a nation no life was too valuable to sacrifice, rather in its sacrifice it became more valuable. Of the valor of the peace-loving Canadians when they were fighting for the Liberty of their people he could not speak too highly and he said also that the bravery of the men the bravery of the women who had given those men would shine as brightly. He saw parallels of the war situation in the history of England and of Israel and asked the audience if the Allies would win.

"Yes, sir," the answer came back. Rev. Mr. Goodwin agreed with the answer which he was given. Good would not permit any other result and never should Canadians or British be slaves. Throughout the service the ushers, members of the Young Women's Patriotic Association, who for the occasion wore Red Cross armlets, and the benediction pronounced by Capt. (Rev.) G. A. Kuhring.

Capt. Kuhring expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mr. Golding for the free use of the Imperial Theatre, to the ushers, and to the City Cornet band. Throughout the service was an impressive and fitting commemoration of the termination of four years of desperate strife and in the history of the programme there was an evident realization that steadfastness of purpose must be maintained.

Sussex Camp, N. B., Aug. 4.—(Special)—The fourth anniversary of Great Britain's entrance into the war was fittingly observed at Camp Sussex today. Divine service for Protestants was conducted by Captain R. H. H. Buteau, chaplain, the address being delivered by Captain R. Benson, senior chaplain, on the subject "The Empire and Democracy." In the service for Roman Catholics, Captain H. L. Belliveau, R. C. chaplain, speaking in both English and French impressed upon the minds of the men the righteousness of the Empire's cause and a soldier's opportunity and duty in the fight for freedom. At both services special prayers were offered for the King, the Allies, our soldiers and sailors and for all who have suffered in the war.

The services were brought to a climax by the timely and appropriate utterances of Lieutenant-Colonel J. L. McAvity, camp commandant, whose service at the front permits him to speak upon the war from a standpoint, not merely academic. His speech was "The Treaty of Versailles," in which he pointed out to you, men, is vouchsafed the privilege of sharing in the glory of self sacrifice and serving up and maintaining the high standard of efficiency set by those who went before from the fair shores of this Dominion.

"Attack with zeal your present duties, give obedience to your officers and N. C. O's; follow out the instructions of your spiritual advisers and go forth to do your best to beat the Hun."

The services were concluded by three cheers for the King, led by Colonel McAvity, and the singing of the National Anthem.

At 8.30 p. m. a Thanksgiving service was held in the Y. M. C. A. hut on the camp grounds.

GERMAN RETREAT UNABATED; ALLIES ARE IN HOT PURSUIT

(Undated War Lead By Associated Press.)

The German retreat continues unabated, with the Allies everywhere in hot pursuit.

Apparently the situation now has resolved itself into a race for the northern bank of the Aisne river by the Germans, who have been evicted from strategic positions along the Vesle river, in the center of the line and directly west of Rheims which seemingly renders necessary that they put the Aisne between themselves and their pursuers as quickly as possible in order to escape further large losses of men made prisoners.

Just how large this bag of captives is at present cannot be reckoned, but unofficial advices from Paris assert that when the figures are made public they will thrill the Allied world. General Pershing, in his communication, says the Americans alone have taken 8400 prisoners and in addition 133 guns.

After hard fighting the Americans and French have succeeded in taking from the Germans the important town of Fismes, once Germany's great ammunition and supply depot, midway on the railway between Soissons and Rheims, while to the east at a number of places along the Vesle river the French have crossed the stream, driving the enemy northward. East of Soissons Allied troops have negotiated the passage of the Aisne to the northern bank of that stream, where they are in a position to harass the enemy as he endeavors to straighten out his line in conformity with that running northward.

So fast has been the retreat of the Germans in the center that already some elements of their forces have succeeded in reaching the northern bank of the Aisne and getting numbers of their big guns across with them. All through the salient towns are still ablaze behind the retreating Germans, and even crossings have been set afire in order to prevent the Allied troops gathering the ripened crop.

FRENCH PUSH ON TO NEUVILLETTE.

The fighting along the Vesle river was of a sanguinary character as long as it lasted. With the river at front and the Germans unable to ford it, they stood with their backs to it and gave battle for their lives. A majority of them were killed and the remainder were made prisoners. One of the most important manoeuvres north of the Vesle was the penetration by the French to the village of La Neuvillelette, which releases the German hold on the northern outskirts of Rheims and seemingly delivers the cathedral city from the German menace.

With the Germans now thoroughly vanquished thus far on the Soissons-Rheims salient, eyes are being turned to the regions in the northwest on both sides of Amiens. Here the French and British are keeping up their hard pressure against the armies of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria and have forced them on two highly important sectors to retreat. Southeast of Amiens, on the old Montdidier sector, the Germans have fallen back across the Avre river over a wide front, while northeast of Amiens, in the region of Albert a similar retrograde movement has been made across the Ancre.

The German official communication in admitting the withdrawal near Albert declares the manoeuvre was carried out without interference by the British.

Just what bearing these new offensives will have on the fighting front to which the Germans ultimately retreat for a stand in the Aisne region, cannot yet be forecast, but should the Allied troops be able to press back the line for any material gains eastward, it is not improbable that it would dislocate the entire German line in the south.

General Foch—A Pen Portrait
[Extracts from "General Foch: An Appreciation," by Major Robert M. Johnson]

Foch is the typical French soldier. He was born on Aug. 4, 1851, at Tarbes, a little city in the Pyrenees, where his father held an administrative post.

His education was obtained in provincial cities and at the Ecole Polytechnique, which he entered in 1871. He passed through various garrisons as an artillery officer and in 1884 was admitted to the Ecole de Guerre as a student.

Twelve years later, ranking then as a major, he returned to the Ecole de Guerre as an instructor. After five years in this professorship, in which he showed brilliant powers and exercised a great influence over the students, he was sent back to the line as a lieutenant-colonel. In 1907 he was transferred, as a brigadier-general, to the post for which he was preeminently marked out, that of commandant of the Ecole de Guerre, where for four years he worked to increase the efficiency of that institution. Later he was given the post of honor of the French army, the 20th Corps, Headquarters, Nancy. There the war found him.

He was the great teacher who, more than any other man in the French army, created the mode of thought under which its generals and staff entered the present war. Classes of young officers, selected from the whole of the army, sat at Foch's feet at the Ecole de Guerre, and carried away with them an unbounded devotion to and faith in the man had been privileged to listen to. He was an enthusiast, and his patriotism and his profession merged into a splendid effort of intellect in which his students delighted.

Later these young officers rapidly came to show us the workings of the French divisions, and this enabled Foch, in part, to realize one of his great ambitions, which was that the French army should be permeated with the doctrine of the Ecole de Guerre had taught of belief in the offensive, the offensive at all costs.

General Foch will undoubtedly attempt to show us the workings of this doctrine in its soundest aspects.

At the first battle of the Marne, after-ward in joint control of the operations that saved the Channel ports, and during the following winter, General Foch rendered the greatest services. From the first day of the invasion until the crisis of last spring, when Foch was chosen generalissimo of the armies of civilization, it stands out very clearly that of all the subordinates of Joffre, Foch has had the most consistent record whatever the circumstances, and during a long and proven record as that of a great soldier and a great Frenchman. Our histories will record our pride at having fought under his orders.

Same Submarine Sinks Three Fishing Boats

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 4.—Saturday afternoon there were further developments in the activities of German U-boats off the Bay of Fundy, which have been continuing for four days, when three fishing schooners bound from Boston to the Banks were blown up and sunk forty miles west of Seal Island.

These schooners were the Muriel, the Rob Roy, and the Annie M. Perry, their crews set adrift in dories, all managed to reach the Nova Scotia coast, and are at present in Yarmouth. The submarine lay in sight of Seal Island until Sunday morning when it submerged.

This triple sinking follows immediately after the burning of the Dornfontein on Friday afternoon by probably the same submarine which seems to direct its attention to the destruction of the smaller fishing vessels.

The Muriel, with Captain Eldridge Goodman, left Gloucester on Friday for the Banks. Saturday shortly before noon, when she was lying forty miles west of Seal Island, the submarine was sighted four miles off. Two warning shots were fired across her stern, and she was told to halt. Half an hour later the submarine came within a hundred yards of the schooner and ordered the crew into the dories; some of them were taken aboard the submarine. Its captain sent several sailors to the Muriel who placed a bomb amidships underneath her keel. Fifteen minutes later there was only wreckage floating upon the water. The crew of the Muriel were placed in their boats and reached Yarmouth shortly after daylight yesterday.

Thirteen of their number belong to towns along the southern shore of Nova Scotia. At 8 o'clock of the same afternoon, the submarine ran down the Annie M. Perry, Captain James Goodman, and blew her up in the same way as the Muriel. The crew took to their dories and reached Wood's Harbor yesterday morning.

Two hours later the U-boat, at a distance of five miles fired a warning shot across the bows of the Rob Roy, Capt. Fredrick Crowell. When the enemy craft drew near the crew of the Rob Roy were told to hurry into their boats. Then their vessel was blown up. About eleven of them spent the night on Seal Island, the remainder reached Clark's Harbor. They are all in Yarmouth at present.

According to the men, the submarine is 200 feet long. It is neat and clean, painted black along the top. It is equipped with four guns, two fore and two aft. As it lay off Seal Island it was brilliantly illuminated by a light which seemed to be suspended from the mast-head.

The captain boasted of his accomplishment to the crew of the Muriel. He said that on Friday he had sunk six schooners, and that he had orders to destroy all that he met. The direction which the submarine took on leaving Seal Island could not be ascertained.

The crew spent five hours in the bows of the submarine, for the reason that many of the German men, particularly the officers, talked English fluently. Some of them wore on their caps the name of a German battleship; others had on their caps the words "U-derer boat." They said that they had been out from Germany for some three months and that they expected to be back in Germany by October.

Has Heavy Guns.

The local men say that there were seventy or more comprising the crew of the submarine, and that the vessel was more than 200 feet long and that it mounted two guns the calibre of which according to the Germans was 5.9. When asked why they did not torpedo the schooner they said they did not want to waste a torpedo on her, for it was better for them to set fire to her.

It was about 5.30 p.m. on Friday when they were summoned on deck from the hold of the submarine. Then they were given orders to take to their lifeboats which were alongside.

"You know the direction of the land, and you know the way the wind is blowing," said one of the officers, to the captain of the Dornfontein. "So take to your boats."

The Germans, however, robbed the small craft of its sails and even took off the painter, so that a landing would not be effected so soon as to permit of effective pursuit of the U-boat.

The Dornfontein men think that they were then twenty-five miles away from land. They had a few biscuits and that was all their food supply. They pulled all through the night and on Saturday morning they reached shelter. There they were very kindly received and looked after after who were transferred to the mainland. Later they came to St. John. They bring home with them nothing but their experience on a German undersize craft and the clothing they wore at the time at which they were attacked, for the members of the crew believe that the Germans stripped the ship of all that was valuable in the way of provisions and clothing, and ship's papers. Evidence of this is found in the fact that some of the undersize crew were enjoying prunes and other such things from the stores of the Dornfontein.

Dornfontein's Crew Brought To St. John

It is reported that the enemy craft which destroyed the Dornfontein was the U-66, one of the latest type of German submarine. After taking from the ship all her valuables and food stuffs, as well as a large quantity of gasoline, which was stored on board to be used for motive power for the hoisting apparatus, the Germans started a fire in her forecabin and another in her after cabin and the ship burned to the water's edge. They explained to the men of the Dornfontein that they did not want to waste a torpedo upon her.

It was about 12 o'clock, noon, on Friday when the submarine was first sighted by the crew of the Dornfontein.

Definitely determining that it was an enemy craft rather than a peaceful one there came a shell screaming through the air and it struck the water about amidships of the Dornfontein but short, and thereby avoided doing any damage.

There was sufficient warning in the message, however, to make the captain trim sails and prepare to leave to. Soon following on the first shell came a second, this one set off by thirty or forty feet. The vessel by that time was rounded and sails lowered awaiting further orders, and soon came verbal instructions to send the crew by boat to the submarine. This order was obeyed and the Dornfontein's crew were taken on board the German craft.

All but the captain were taken below, into the depths of the U-boat through the engine room and into a sort of a hold. The captain remained on deck, what happened to him while they were aboard the U-boat none of the crew know. The crew spent five hours in the bows of the submarine, for the reason that many of the German men, particularly the officers, talked English fluently. Some of them wore on their caps the name of a German battleship; others had on their caps the words "U-derer boat." They said that they had been out from Germany for some three months and that they expected to be back in Germany by October.

Miss Cole is a young lady of many superior attainments and has written several excellent poems, some of which have appeared in the Sentinel.

GOES TO RED CROSS

The total collection taken up yesterday at the special service held in the Imperial Theatre in observation of the fourth anniversary of Great Britain's declaration of war, amounted to $176.96. The expenses amounted to $22.46, leaving a balance of $154.47. This amount will be paid over to the local Red Cross Association. Rev. J. E. Appel acted as treasurer.

MITCHELL-JONES

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Samuel Linton, Adelaide street, when her mother, Mrs. Margaret Ann Jones of Kars, Kings county, was united in marriage to David Mitchell of the city. The ceremony was performed by I. W. Williamson. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside in the city. Mr. Mitchell is the agent for the river steamer, Ocoonee.

BURIED TODAY

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Caroline Taylor took place this afternoon from her late residence, Rotheray. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Daniels. Interment was made in Fernhill cemetery.

BATTERY BOYS CROWDED OUT

It was a matter of sincere regret that a good-sized detachment of No. 9 Siege Battery did not get seating accommodations at Imperial Theatre yesterday afternoon. There was a tremendous crush of people before the doors were opened, and the ushering staff experienced difficulty in reserving sections for the various military and naval representatives. At four o'clock, when the meeting was about to be opened, the remaining reserved seats were thrown open to the waiting public. Then the battery boys arrived. The whole thing was most regrettable, but apparently unavoidable.

HAS FOUR GREAT GRANDPARENTS.

Mathew Morris, of A. Gilmour & Co's, King street, is being congratulated upon his attainment of the honored rank of grandfather. On Friday his daughter, Mrs. Bert Powers, of Bathurst, was blessed with a boy baby and a remarkable fact evolves that the little newcomer is the possessor of four great grandparents. The great grandparents on the maternal side are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin of this city, who are at present in Quebec, where Mr. McLaughlin is superintending the construction of vessels, and the paternal side one could reasonably hope to be Mr. McLaughlin quite recently officiated at the christening of one of the ships built under her husband's direction.

ON THE RIVER

Capt. Taylor of the Ocoonee is a truthful river-man, and when he said he counted three snowflakes this morning, it was accepted without question, especially by suburbanites who had to dig up extra bed-quits last night. The air was so chilly at Public Landing on Saturday night that the stokers were not removed from the sides of the dancing pavilion, and tenting parties along the river wondered if autumn had suddenly arrived. Saturday and yesterday were delightful days, but the nights were surprisingly cold for the first week in August. The motor boats last evening had also to plough through rougher water than usual, and there were many of them afloat. The Ocoonee brought down some new potatoes this morning, but freight generally continues rather light. There was the usual large list of passengers returning after a week-end along the river.

VALLEY RAILWAY WORK

Gradually succeeding hills along the St. John river are resounding with the toot of locomotive whistles and the whirr of wheels. Besides the operation of the Fredericton-Gagetown section, construction trains are now running down as far as Hamstead. From Woodman's Point upwards other construction rolling stock is at work. Thomas Coszolino, president of the contracting company, says the various sections will soon be linked up. After that the road is to be thoroughly ballasted and made ready for steady traffic. Inspection by government engineers then follows. Of course no exact date can yet be given for the completion of the big work.

PICTURE OF COL. MACLAREN'S WRECKED HOSPITAL

A snapshot recently to hand from overseas gives a detailed idea of the wreckage created by Hun aerial bombs at Col. (Dr.) Murray MacLaren's No. 1 Canadian General Hospital at Etaples, France, last May. The ground is strewn with shattered timbers and hospital furnishings—veritably a shambles. On a railway siding about fifty feet distant a train of Red Cross cars is shown. The disastrously Hun aviators gave as their excuse for wrecking the hospital their attempt to "get" this railway line.

ARRESTS MADE IN CONNECTION WITH THE RIOTS IN TORONTO.

Toronto, Aug. 4—Ten people have been arrested in connection with the riots here. Of five rifles and 1,500 rounds of ammunition said to have been taken from a shooting gallery the police stated they had recovered two rifles.

HERE TO CONFER WITH THE BAKERS

Upper Canadian Bread Makers Visit St. John to Give Local Men Benefit of Advice on New Regulations—Something Else in the Air?

On the Montreal Express today two prominent Upper Canadian bakers arrived in the city to confer with local bread makers relative to the new regulations of the Canadian Food Board and the uses of substitutes for white flour. These visiting gentlemen are H. E. Trent of Toronto, secretary of the Master Bakers' Association of Ontario, and Mark Bredin of Toronto, general manager of the Canadian Bread Co.

Messrs. Trent and Bredin are making a tour of Canadian centres, where they are requested to do so, to confer with local bread and fancy bakers, giving them the benefit of their experiences and a close-up view of the maritime strictures on their trade.

They were met at the depot by Charles Robinson and Joseph Dwyer, local bread manufacturers, and A. G. Crawford, manager of the Fleischman Yeast Co. branch here. When asked to discuss food matters, the visiting officials asked to be excused until they had conferred with the St. John men.

The local bakers were queried along the lines of a centralization of baking interests in Canada or provincially, but they said it was too early to say anything.

BOY SOLDIER GRATEFUL FOR WORK OF Y.M.C.A.

Glendon Seely, St. John's first High School boy to enlist for overseas, and who has been fighting for King and us for more than two years. Besides a year of service as a bandsman, writes very interestingly to his sister, Bessie, of Tower street, West St. John. He is a son of George A. Seely, of the Imperial Theatre, where Glendon was also employed.

The St. John boy some weeks ago received a direct query from his sister as to the work of the Y. M. C. A. over there. His reply, received on Saturday in these words:—

"You want to know what I think of the Y. M. C. A. over here. It sure does a lot of good for us boys, and I do not think much of a fellow who goes back home and runs them down. In winter they give us hot tea and coffee, with milk and sugar in it, if you like. This is absolutely free. Many a time coming out of the trenches I have been thankful for a mug of it. When we have been on our big drives the Y. M. C. A. give coconuts, biscuits and chocolate candy as well as cigarettes to the wounded and stretcher cases. They are certainly doing a grand work, but I suppose you will find ungrateful fellows everywhere."

Glendon Seely went across with the 114th Band, but was afterwards drafted into the ranks. He enlisted while still in short pants.

SUMMER FOLK ALARMED BY A STRANGE CRAFT

Cottagers on the Sandy Point shore, Kennebecasis, were startled in the stillness of Sabbath morning by the flapping of great sails and the clank and splash of anchor and chains. A strange craft—relic of the woodboat days—rounded the point and in handi-glasses disclosed a miscellaneous crew, indeed a small-sized army. A reconnoitring party—if that goes for the sea-set out in small boats from a half dozen mooring places and self-appointed immigration inspectors, customs officials and reception committees gave the square-ended schooner the once-over. Heated out of their course by a stubborn head-wind and further retarded by one of those auxiliary engines that often refuse to "aux," the Renforth residents, who happened to be the ship's party, told a sad tale of disappointment in not reaching the R. K. C. church service on the main river, of buffeting breezes and watery gasoline. No submarines were encountered, however, for which omission all were duly thankful. The crew and passengers were safely landed by the shore boats and for the remainder of the day the forty ladies, gentlemen and children had a very pleasant visit. The woodboat was captained by L. V. Price, who had his private helmsman with him; first mate was Guy Tapley, second mate, Fred Garrett; boatswain, J. Otty Brandiscombe, and navigator, E. Murray Olive.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT IS AT RIVER GLADE

Dr. B. A. Carmichael, who was recently appointed to succeed Dr. David Townsend, as superintendent of the River Glade Sanitarium, took over his new duties on Thursday. Since Dr. Townsend's departure to join the U. S. army medical staff, Dr. H. C. Clarke of this city has been acting as superintendent. Dr. Carmichael has had much sanitarium practice, having been in charge of the Galygor Sanitarium in Gravenhurst, Ont., prior to accepting his new position.

The new building in connection with River Glade Sanitarium for the occupation of soldiers, will be in readiness by August 15. It is expected that about fifty soldiers will be admitted within a short period.
