LORD MORLEY DEFENDS BUDGET
 Secretary for India Warns the Lords—Lord James of Hereford Adds His Plea—Vote Today, But Rejection Regarded Sure

London, Nov. 29.—Lord Morley's powerful speech was the absorbing event of the budget debate today in the House of Lords. The secretary of state for India related the importance of the struggle as viewed both at home and abroad, and called attention to the fact that foreign nations were watching anxiously the outcome of the conflict, to see whether there would be any change in England's fiscal policy.

He quoted Burke to the effect that the House of Lords had no right in any sense to the disposition of the public purse, and contended that if there were one thing that could not wisely be submitted to a referendum, it was the budget, with all its complexities. In addition a referendum would weaken what was most important to maintain, namely: a sense of responsibility in the House of Commons.

As to the Lords' contention that their action would arrest the wave of Socialism, he refused to believe that British artisans were proprietary or Socialist, but even granting that the misery existing among some classes has produced a movement akin to Socialism, it was hardly wise of the Lords to take up a position exposing them to the charge of straining the constitution as champions of the rich against the poor.

"The more triumphant the majority for Lord Lansdowne's amendment," said Lord Morley, "the more the disparity between the members of the government and the members of the opposition, the more flagrant will be the political offence."

Lord Morley concluded his speech with an impressive warning that when tomorrow the curtain fell on an empty house they would know that the note had been sounded for an angry and perhaps, a more bitter battle. When the secretary resumed his seat the small minority of Liberal peers broke into enthusiastic cheers.

Lord Rothschild, Liberal Unionist, spoke very briefly, dwelling chiefly on the difficulty of raising capital, even for the best English enterprises, while Russia and Japan found it comparatively easy to borrow money.

Lord James of Hereford, quoted Pitt, Palmerston and Lord John Russell against the Lords' claim of power to reject the budget.

Lord James declared that it was entirely beyond the Lords' competency to reject the budget. Precedent, practice, usage and acquiescence all came into play to prevent the House from taking the action Lord Lansdowne contemplated. He added that he separated himself from his party with regret and, displaying great emotion, appealed to his fellow-Unionists to reconsider their decision.

"The coming contest," he said, "will be one-sided. None of you will be able to defend the course you have taken and you will be at the mercy of your opponents, who will not spare you."

In conclusion, Lord James, who is a Conservative ex-minister, announced his intention to pursue the constitutional path and vote against the Lansdowne amendment. His uncompromising speech made an effect on the House second only to Lord Morley's.

Lord Swathling defended the budget. He contended that British credit was still the best in the world, pointing out that Japan was able to borrow because it offered large interest.

Many other peers spoke, nearly all of them in favor of the rejection of the budget, and the debate was adjourned at midnight. Although the result of the division tomorrow is a foregone conclusion, it cannot be doubted that the House and the country have been greatly impressed with the oratorical skill displayed in the upper house and especially by the powerful arguments of the Liberal peers against the course the Lords are pursuing. Evidence of this is beginning to show itself in the Conservative press.

The Daily Telegraph, which has been a firm advocate of the rejection of the budget, makes the significant admission that the moral of the brilliant debate is not that the House of Lords should abolish, or be shorn of the power of veto, which is essential to its existence, but that it should be reconstituted, so that its more distinguished members should not be swamped in the lobbies by the peers who have never given proof of political capacity.

HOUSE FROCK OF GENTIAN BLUE PERMO.
 Especially graceful for a tall young woman would be this afternoon costume of permo fabric—the exquisite mixture of worsted and mohair which drapes so softly. The frock is in the new gentian blue shade, and the embroidered vest, which continues around under the arms, combines two shades of the blue with pale apricot and coral colorings. The bodice and sleeves of tucked chiffon over the permo stuff give the loose, draped effect which all French bodices have this season.

THE THREE KEYS
 BY FREDERICK ORMOND.

As soon as he was assured that his own was better, he rose to go, saying that he would drop in again in the evening, on his way home.

"I found that stock all right. But the package has been opened."

"Certainly," his son answered, indifferently. "I looked it over. When will you be in this afternoon?"

"Between five and six."

"When his father had gone, the bed-room maid came in with the clothes off, and leaped for it."

"Now, Morris, hurry!" he urged. "I don't want to stir out of the house till you're ready to go. Then, he passed at the door, and said, very slowly, "You won't refuse me, will you, dearest? Say that you will be my wife!"

"Oh, they can wait until you get back," Millington answered, with a laugh.

As soon as he was left alone, he rang the messenger-call, and then wrote this note:

"Dear Miss Edna,
 "Morris and I wish to see you at once. You are splendidly about the affair, but it is not entirely straightened out yet. I must have your consent to one more thing, right away. Please come here at once."

"Jack Millington?"

After the messenger-boy had departed with this message, the young financier took up a position by a window from which he could overlook the avenue, and for a half-hour he remained there, watching the thoroughfare. Then, of a sudden, he laughed softly to himself, crossed the road and stood waiting until he heard light footfalls in the corridor, and the bell rang, when, on the instant, he swung the door wide.

"Come in, Edna," he said, gaily. "Morris will be back soon. He was called out for a moment."

"It is not at all right that I should come here in this way," she said, entering the parlor, but declining the proffered chair. "No, I won't sit down. I would stay only a minute."

Millington's manner changed abruptly, and he went on speaking with an extraordinary rapidity and emphasis.

"Well, never mind anything else just now," he said. "There is only one single thing of real importance, and that is this: Edna, there isn't a girl like you this side of heaven. Why, if I had you for my wife, with your grit and pluck and goodness, to do nothing of your beauty, trying, with rather poor success, to speak better than anything else in the world, for I'd have you. You needn't stand there staring at me as though you thought I had taken leave of my senses. On the contrary, my dear, I've just found them—that's God's truth! And you needn't try to think up some ingenious and gentle way of saying no. I tell you now, I won't take no for an answer. Why, nobody has ever said no to me since I was born, and I shan't let a slip of a girl like you begin it—not much! Besides, Edna, you must help me out of this scrape with the governor, you know. I'll never do in the world to let him know how we fooled him. I've got to go abroad to mend my broken bones—and you must go with me."

"Have you quite finished?" the girl inquired, tooting her head disdainfully, and trying, with rather poor success, to speak coldly.

"Finished? No, I've just begun," Millington retorted. "Just as soon as you say—"

"I thought you said that you was necessary," she said, with a look of surprise.

"Well, it isn't only just for form's sake, you know," Millington agreed. "But, just as soon as you do say it, I'll send down word, and have my men put into commission, and you and I, Mr. Morris and Rita!"

"Rita!" Edna exclaimed, astounded. "You and I, Mr. Morris and Rita, will have a quiet domestic wedding, and then we'll sail away. Edna, do you know that a man has to be educated in love, as well as in other things? The night before I started for Chicago I went with Morris to see Rita and I thought I had lost my heart to her. It turned out that it was only my head, then, when I met you yesterday. I knew the difference between the

FOSTER ATTACKS PUGSLEY AND IS SOON MADE TO REPENT

Minister Arraigns Him, Tells Some Plain Truths and Foster Sits and Takes it All in Silence—Plea for P. E. I. Representation

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—In the house of commons this afternoon the question of whether the procedure adopted in the public accounts committee should not be changed was discussed.

It has been the practice to confine the work of the public accounts committee to matters contained in the auditor-general's report for the previous year, but this afternoon Mr. Lennox suggested that the long established procedure should be revised and the auditor-general's report for the two preceding years be referred to a committee for inquiry.

Mr. Monk joined with Mr. Lennox in protesting against the method adopted in the public accounts committee.

Mr. Foster made no answer. After passing a number of Quebec items the house adjourned.

FATALITY IN RESTIGOUCHE Benjamin Lalonde, aged twenty, was killed on Saturday by the falling of a tree while working in the lumber woods for the Dalhousie Lumber Co. He was the only support of a younger sister, who resides in Dalhousie.

THIS is the open season for the gun to get them—you know where.

More Protection Needed. "Of course, banks in Great Britain and Australia have their departments for internal inspection, but experience in these countries has shown that an additional protection is essential, just as Canadian experience has demonstrated that far-fabricated balance sheets will occasionally appear so long as there is no proper supervision of the general management and of the direction. Auditing from the outside has had the same salutary effect in Great Britain, under the branch banking system, that government examination has had in the United States, where banks are not permitted to have branches.

MORE NEW INDUSTRIES FOR CANADA THAN IN THIRTY YEARS

Confidence That Next Year Will See Much Progress in Quebec, Ontario and Maritime Provinces

(Montreal Gazette)

Financial men are as one in the belief that there will be no more mergers of great consequence, and that the money coming into Canada in the near future will be devoted to Government loans, the financing of railways and other public works.

There is also a feeling amongst bankers and business men that the year 1910 will witness the creation of many new industries throughout the different provinces, that the industrial status of the country will receive a considerable impetus therefrom, and that the amount of money sent out of the Dominion for manufactured goods will be lessened.

Another idea that is likely to be disastrously dispensed when the next bank wreck occurs.

From the arguments presented herein, it is apparent that the want of stability in our banks is not due to conditions pertaining to the business of the country.

HEAD OFFICE INSPECTION. "The only reasonable conclusion, in regard to the means to be adopted for the prevention of bank failure, is that the remedy can be applied at the head office, where the evidence is available on which the general management prepares the statements furnished to the public.

DIRTY KIDNEYS CAUSE BACKACHE A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate Your Kidneys and You Feel Fine

A real surprise awaits every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble, who takes several doses of Pape's Diuretic. Misery in the back, sides, or loins, sick headache, nervousness, rheumatism, pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, lack of energy and all symptoms of out-of-order kidneys simply vanish.

It is needless to be miserable and worried, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the source of the trouble, cleanses the urinary system, distributing its cleansing and strengthening influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

SUDDEN DEATH IN BATHURST Bathurst, N. B., Nov. 29.—Gus Gibson, of Bridgetown (N. S.), a sub-contractor on the branch railway into the iron mines, near here, died suddenly yesterday in one of the construction camps.

POSSIBILITY OF DEPOSITORS. Analyzing the position of depositors in Canada having only claims of general auditors as to a bank's assets, the pamphlet points out that "it is true that in recent years depositors have not suffered by the larger failures. This is not due to any protection thrown over them by legislation, but to the self-preserving action of bankers, combining to avoid the disturbance of credit and the distress that would be caused by suspension and ordinary liquidation.

PILES. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and guaranteed cure for every form of piles. See testimonials in the enclosed card. It is guaranteed to give you more back in your pocket.

Simply say H.P. to your grocer, he will hand you a bottle of the most appetising sauce in the world.

But be sure you do say H.P., because it is H.P. Sauce you want

You can easily tell there is a view of the British Houses of Parliament and the letters H.P. prominently displayed on every bottle of real H.P.

PRICE OF HIDES MAY DROP

A despatch from Ogdensburg, N. Y., to the effect that the customs officials there have been advised that all cattle hides going into the United States from Canada, must be fumigated, has led to the belief that the price of hides, and perhaps of harness and shoe-leather will increase in the United States from that date. This order may mean that an abundance of hides will remain in Canada as it will increase the price American dealers. In that event the prices in Canada will surely drop.

EVIDENCE IS ALLOWED CONDITIONALLY

Case Wherein Stealing of Coats is Charged Develops Feature of Interest

In the police court this morning Wm. Golding and Arthur Galbraith were again remanded on a charge of stealing two overcoats from Wm. F. Higgins, Brunels street.

Detective Killen resumed his evidence, and said that when the men were arrested he obtained from the prisoners a statement relative to the case. Mr. Allan objected to this evidence, as it was stated that the men were intoxicated at the time and the objection was sustained.

Wm. F. Higgins identified the coats. The value was $47.

Counsel for the prisoners objected to a statement by one of the prisoners made after their arrest, being allowed as evidence. It is a statement given in a conversation with Mr. Higgins with Galbraith in a cell after the arrest. Galbraith, Mr. Higgins said, was under the influence of liquor. After a great deal of discussion, the evidence was admitted on the condition that if the other evidence was not sufficient to convince the jury, that they would not be sent up.

Wm. Higgins then said that Galbraith told him if he went to a building in Brunels street, where Messrs Schaeffer and Woodley keep a paint shop, he would find one of the coats near a coal bin.

The detective and the witness went, and found the coat.

Mr. Ritchie, the witness said that he told Galbraith he would do what he could for him when he told where the coat was.

Detective Killen resumed, and gave evidence on the same condition as that given by the last witness. He said that after assuring Galbraith that what he said would be used against him, he was told that Galbraith did not steal the coats, but that they were given to him.

Golding told him that he got a coat from Arthur Galbraith.

In answer to Deputy Chief Jenkins, the witness said that Galbraith told him he received $1 from the sale of one of the coats.

Deputy Chief Jenkins next gave evidence that he was an apprentice employed by Messrs. Mooney. On Saturday about 8 o'clock he was in the company of Galbraith and a friend named MacNamara. They drank several bottles of gin. Galbraith said he wanted to sell his coat, and the witness volunteered to sell it for him. This he did and received $2.75 for it. He gave $2.50 of this to Galbraith. With this money they had several drinks, and when they were arrested they gave quite intoxicated. During the drinking the witness received his pay envelope containing $8, of which he gave $1 to his friend.

Golding said that he did not know the coat was stolen when he gave Galbraith the $2.50, the latter returned to him. The witness gave his name as Wm. Earle, Regent street, and said, as he did not want his real name to appear on the books, the case will be resumed at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

CASSANDRA HAS 90 PASSENGERS AND 81 HORSES

Donaldson Liner, in Today, Brings Government Importation of Clydesdales—A New Steamer

Donaldson line steamship Cassandra arrived off Partridge Island this morning at 10 o'clock, from Glasgow direct. She made the passage to this port in nine days. She brought forty-five cabin and forty-five steerage passengers.

The Cassandra is the largest Donaldson liner that comes to this port, and is one of the best equipped ocean steamers of the line, her interior being fitted in most up-to-date fashion.

She is now berthed at No. 6, where she landed her passengers.

Among her cargo are sixty-four Clydesdale fillies, imported for the New Brunswick government; also eight Clydesdale fillies, six Clydesdale mares and three Clydesdale colts for A. Graham, of Manitoba.

The Cassandra is 433 feet depth of hold, 53 feet breadth, and 23 feet draft. She registers 8,133 gross tons and is 5,228 net tons. She has accommodation for 250 cabin passengers and up to 1,000 steerage.

The Donaldson line has placed a contract with Charles Connell & Co., Limited, of Glasgow, for a fine twin-screw passenger steamer of about 9,000 tons and with a speed of fifteen knots. She is to be specially designed for the popular one-class (called second) cabin business, so that all her accommodation for upwards of 250 passengers will be situated in the best part of the vessel amidships and cabin passengers will have access to the promenade decks, smoke rooms, ladies' rooms, music room and other appointments, with out restriction. All the latest improvements will be adopted including bilge keels to insure steadiness, electric apparatus and electric light throughout and Marconi wireless telegraph.

Her accommodation for about 1000 third class passengers will be of the best, a very considerable portion being permanent and particularly suitable for the carriage of eastbound passengers.
