THE BIGGEST AND THE BEST!

Pronounced Success of the St. Andrew's Society's Celebration and Banquet.

Pointed, Pithy and Patriotic Speeches by Dr. Samson, Rev. Br. Milligan, Col. Culver, Rev. Dr. McCrae, Principal Merchant and Others---Fraternal Greetings From Other Societies.

St. Andrew's Society has to its credit | Armstrong, Robert Boston, ex-M.P., a long list of successful dinners, but Thos. Stuart Reid, George Riddell nowhere on the record will there be | (Westimister), W. B. Nichol (Hubrey), F. found a success to equal that achieved W. Nichol (Westminster), Geo. Cairnby the banquet given last night at the cross, R. H. Morrison, Alex. Fraser, Tecumseh House. In all the things derson, Robert McMillan, Herbert hat go to make such an affair notable | Matthews, Samuel Wright, Thos. Suth--in point of attendance, in quality of erland, Dr. Charles W. McLeay, Dr. speeches, in excellence of culinary arrangements—the banquet was complete, and the officers and members of St. Andrew's Society are to be congratulated on having once more shown themselves adepts in the art of entertaining on a large scale. The attendance was over 150, and was so large as to tax even the capacious diningroom of the Tecumseh. The speeches were judicious admixtures of wit and wisdom, and they were diversified by the introduction at proper intervals of Walter S. Laidlaw, J. B. Laidlaw. F. the old ballads and stirring songs that never grow old. Not one jot or tittle never grow old. Not one jot or tittle of the time-hallowed customs were abated. The haggis, in royal state, made the circuit of the room, with two bare-legged lusty pipers blowing their bare-legged lusty pipers blowing their very lungs out in the effort to do it S. B. ## Introducing the Toast List.

President John Pringle, in introducing the toast list, thanked the guests (manager Bank of British North Amer- for their presence, especially those who were not members of the society. He took occasion to refer to the death son, A. C. Kerr, W. D. minded Scotchman." Commencing life as a poor boy, he had, with the char-acteristics of his race, taken advantage of his opportunities and risen to a position of importance. In his death St. Andrew's Society had lost an old and respected member, and the city had lost one of its most distinguished citizens. President Pringle then said it was his privilege to be the first president of the society to call for the health of "The King," and he asked the guests to honor in the old High-land fashion, one foct on the table. The toast was acknowledged with a spirit that showed the love and loyalty which had been pledged to Britain's glorious Queen had been given in all its entirety to her son and successor. The next toast was that to "The Imperial Forces of the Crown," proposed Principal Merchant. Principal Merchant, in opening, spoke of the diffidence with which he rose to respond to the toast, first, because he was acting in place of Sir nations John Carling, prevented from being present by illness, who would have responded in his usual eloquent and pa-triotic vein, and second, because he had never been connected in any way with the forces of His Majesty the King. Principal Merchant said that his only qualification for the honor of replying lay in the fact that he had been a life-long admirer of the courage, daring and magnificent achievements of not only the English forces but of the soldiers of the colonies. The stuff of which the latter are made was well shown when so recently the sons of the Dominion went forth to the veldt of South Africa and there displayed that they possessed all the dash of the Irishman, the courage and foresight of the Scotchman, and the dogged perseverance of the Englishman, adding to them the native intelligence of the Canadian. Canada has shown that she has the real foundation of a nation in her citizens. When word came that the motherland was in trouble and would welcome the assistance of her children, the sentiment of loyalty and love had actuated the noblest and best to go out and do battle for the empire. "It is our sorrow, but no less our pride," said the speaker, "that citizens, not only of this country, but of this city, had given up their lives for the empire's honor. But this sacrifice will not be in vain, for if the time ever comes when we are in trouble, and need help, the force that has never been conquered will come to our

Again I have occasion to thank you for the hearty and cordial manner in which you received this toast, "The President of the United States,' I wish again to express my delight at being present at another feast of St. Andrew, not only a feast for body but a feast for the intellect as

But I must assure you that I approach the subject assigned to me, with sadness, a sadness though mingled with joy, such as a person experiences when emerging from a dark shadow into the bright light of the sun, for if I interpret my subject aright I cannot avoid referring to him who a year ago was president, but who now, through the cruel and dastardly crime of the assassin, "sleeps his long last sleep;" neither can I escape referring to a parallel sorrow which came to your own people during the past year. For only one year ago tonight, at this festal board, we drank the health of your own beloved Queen, and our own beloved McKinley, and while the death of the one was anticipated and the world in some measure prepared for it, yet the sorrow was just as great and the gloom as world-wide, as when, later on, the death of the other one came in a moment. all unprepared, as by a flash from an angry cloud, while the world stood transfixed with horror at the fiendish

Never in the history of the world was a ruler more justly beloved than your own saintly Queen. Through long years of service in the interest of her people, under that intense light which heats only on a throne, and she met every expectation of her people, and by her queenliness and her womanliness and her motherliness she had at tracted the affections of her people as the sturdy oak attracts the tendrils of the vine, until she was literally encased by their love. So with our own beloved McKinley, who had by his manliness and his honesty and his patriotism, and his true Christian character, so endeared himself to his countrymen, that when these two lives went out and the ties of affection were broken, their people walked in the deepest darkness and sorrow, while the nations of the earth lavished their sympathy upon the grief-stricken people of the English tongue. History in all its annals fails to furnish the name of a ruler to be compared in all respects to these two great rulers of the English-speaking people. They were the highest specimens of their race, and represented in the village. the highest modern idea of liberal government. But the deep shadow which overwhelmed us for the moment, and brought such heartfelt sadness to the people of both countries is passed, as all earthly shadows disappear, and out of the darkness and the gloom occasioned by the shadow of death in both countries, there steps two stalwart Christian rulers who will be the cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night to lead their people on to yet greater achievements in the interest of a common humanity, and tonight we drink to the health of King Edward and President Roosevelt.

Surely the mantel of Elijah, in each instance, has fallen upon an Elisha. Usually when death overtakes a ruler and the change is made to another all untried and but little acquainted as he must be with the great responsibilities of his high office own country and the world experience a shock, which, for a time, staggers the business interests and fills the world with doubt and dire forebodings for the future; but not so in the changes which have come to us, for the people of both countries, without a "a new ruler, with a gladness and a wel- Pupils may enter at any time.

higher and nobler place among the nations of the earth. I think we need not be told that the people of the world are being gradually led out of the darkness of the past ages into the twentieth century light of Christian civilization. The evidence is abundant, and all about us, the cry of the age is for righteous self-government, tyranny and misrule must be banished from the earth, and in its stead an honest, comprehensive and enlightened administration of public affairs must be established everywhere, and what two rulers are more pledged and capable of securing good government than your good King Edward and President Roosevelt? The people of the United States have unbounded confidence in our new president. He need not have said when, standing by the bier of the martyred president, "I will bier of the martyred president, "I will carry on the work where he has left it," for the policy which McKinley followed, and through which so much was accomplished, was and is equally the policy of President Roosevelt. ## THE BONINE TRIAL

Testimony for Defense Begun-15 Witnesses

Testified for the Accused. Washington, Dec. 3.—The defense in the case of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine, charged with the murder of Jas. Seymour Ayres, yesterday placed fifteen witnesses on the stand. The purpose was to establish that Mrs. Bonine evinced no particular par-tiality toward Ayres, and that her conduct and bearing toward him differed in no respect from that displayed toward other guests at the hotel. William C. Hay, who, with his family, lived at the Kenmore at the time of the tragedy, testified that the dances at the Kenmore were usually arranged by Mrs. Bonine, and that at these dances her bearing toward Ayres was nothing out of the ordinary. It had been her habit, he said, when the dancers were not prompt in their attendance, to go to their rooms and urge them to come down.

Mr. Hay stated on cross-examniation that he understood it had been Mrs. Bonine's intention to leave the hotel, but after the tragedy he had advised her that it would be inadvisable to do so until the affair was clear up.

Richard L. Jenks testified that he heard Mrs. Bonine giving Ayres advice against drinking to excess.

George B. Gardner, assistant attorney in the interior department, to whom Mrs.
Bonine first told her story, and who was one of the government witnesses, testified that he had seen Mrs. Bonine and Ayres dancing together, and had observed nothing unusual in their conduct.

David C. Mooney said he had observed Mrs. Bonine dance with Ayres, but saw nothing in her attitude toward him differing from that toward others. Similar fering from that toward others. Similar

The Kidneys and Uric Acid.

Serious, Painful Ailments Which Arise From Neglected Kidney Derangements-Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills a Thoroughly Effective

Uric acid is the name given by medical men to the poisonous matter which the kidneys filter from the blood. When the kidneys are weak, inactive or diseased they fail to per-form their functions as filters, and the uric acid poison remains in the blood to find lodgment in the weaker organs, and produce the most painful and fatal results. The symptoms of kidney disease. such as backache, frequent and painful urination, deposits in the urine, pains in the sides and limbs, and headaches, are so familiar that it seems unnecessary for anyone to be ignorant of the approach of this dreaded malady. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are ever at hand as a thoroughly effective remedy, as they are for sale by nearly every dealer who pre-tends to keep any family medicines. Not only the kidneys themselves become diseased, but the uric acid forms crystals in the joints and muscles, causing the most extreme pain, and ease which can never be cured until the kidneys are made healthful and vigorous. Another form of kidney disease is dropsy and heart failure. In such cases the uric acid turns the blood to water and causes dropsical swellings, which, when in the region of the heart

In view of the frightful risks which you run in nglecting kidney derangements, and the undoubted efficacy of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a cure for weak, inactive, diseased kidneys, it remains as a duty for you to apply the remedy and be cured. You can be certain of beneficial results, for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have stood the test of time, and proven their right to first place as a kidney medi-

The Danger in That Common Disease,

Because catarrhal diseases are so common and because catarrh is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect. The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat make a fertile soil for the germs of Pneumonia and Consumption, in fact catarrhal pneumonia and catarrhal consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases which annually cause more than one quarter of the deaths in this country. Remedies for catarrh are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good derived is simply a temporary relief. There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered, which is rapidly beoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of catarrhal diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach. This new catarrh cure is principally composed of a gum derived from the Eucalyptus tree, and this gum pos-sesses extraordinary healing and antiseptic properties. It is taken inter-nally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to the taste, and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit. Eucalyptus oil and the bark are sometimes used, but are not so convenient nor so palatable as the gum. Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which may be found in any drug store, and any catarrh sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvement, after a few days use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which are composed of the gum of the Eucalyptus tree, combined with other catarrhal poison from the system. Dr. Ramsdell, in speaking of catarrh and its cure, says: "After many experiments I have given up the idea of have always had the best results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets: the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion far superior to any of the numerous catarrh remedies so ex-tensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trademark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them, because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every catarrh sufferer may use with perfect safety and the prospect of a permanent cure. For colds in the head, for coughs, catarrhal deafness and catarrh of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Catarrh

PROBLEMS IN FIGURES

Possibilities of a Lead Pencil From Statistical Standpoint.

[New Orleans Times-Democrat.] "I have been figuring on the possibilities of a lead pencil," said a young man who has a penchant for the statistical side of things, "and you would really be surprised to know what a man can do with one lead pencil. How many words are there in a lead pencil? How many columns of newspaper matter? How many pages of a book of the average size? How many poems, essays, sermons and things of that sort may one find in the lead of an ordinary pencil Really, these ques-tions are not easily answered, but one may arrive at a reasonable approximation by doing a little sum in arithmetic. In the first place the average pencil is seven inches long. The average dameter of the pencil used by men who write a great deal is one-twelfth of an inch. Considering the wood and lead, the point of a pencil measures about one-half of an inch. one-quarter of an inch representing the lead por-

"Allowing for breaks and scratches, one-quarter of an inch of lead wi. write two columns of matter for the ordinary newspaper, assuming that the pencil is not of the extremely soft character. There are about 1,800 words in a full column of a newspaper of the average size. Two columns would represent 3,600 words. So we get this number of words out of one-quarter of an inch of lead. Out of one inch of lead we would get four times 3,600, or 14,400 words. Out of seven inches we would get 100,800 words. So far as the number of words is concerned we have in this result the possibilities of the lead pencil. Allowing 1,800 words to antiseptics which destroy the germs of the column this would mean 56 columns catarrh in the blood and expel the of solid matter, or an eight-page paper of the seven-column width. "Two columns a day is a good average for a reporter. In order to grind out 56 columns of solid matter it would curing catarrh by the use of inhalers, require on this basis the reportorial washes, salves or liquid medicines. I energies of 28 men. In other words, energies of 28 men. In other words, there is enough lead in a pencil seven inches long to keep 28 men busy for the average time put in by newspaper writers in one day. This would mean that one pencil, with due care and attention, and without any unnecessary waste, ought to do one man nearly a month.

"A man can buy a lead pencil for 5 cents. The average price paid by the best newspaper of the country for accepted matter is $5 a column. If one pencil will write 56 columns of matter it is possible for a newspaper writer to earn, on an investment of 5 cents, $280. From this it would seem that is money in a lead pencil, and on the face of it it looks like one of the very best investments one could make, and yet there are men in the business who look at the matter from another viewpoint, for instead of being a prolific producer of wealth, the pencil generally leaves one haunted by the ironies or poverty."

Cold Water for Lather.

"It's astonishing how reckless wo men are in the use of fine soaps!" says a druggist. "A high grade toilet soap is a product resulting from much perfection. Most women waste soap by using hot water to produce a lath er. The painstaking soapmaker would wring his hands in despair if he could see people treating his product in this fashion. He has carefully studied out the length of time to dry soap, so that it will lather just right-neither too freely nor too tardily when used with cool water-and persons who run hot water on fine soap knock out the whole calculation. Hot water should never be used, nor should the lather be washed off good soap when people are done with it. It's a mistake, also, leave the soap exposed to the air-When not in use it should be placed in a receptacle with a cover, without he coating of lather having been removed, and in this way it drains and dries to its original degree of hardness."-Philadelphia Record.

WRITING BY WIRE.

Teleautography, or writing by wire, has been at last brought within range of the practical in the strictest sense

by Luigi Cerebotani, an Italian Jesuit auspices of the Bavarian postal authorities, who expressed their satisfaction with the experiments.

The principle of the new system, it is stated, "lies in a mechanical arrangement whereby the motion of the transcribing pen results in two movements, always mathematically at right angles to each other. Every point in the writing area covered by the pen is thereby exhibited by the straight lines before mentioned. The apparatus is, however, so contrived that, first, the transmitting pen is light and handy, and, secondly, that while there is only one point in the writing area in which the lines intersect, the movable point or writing pencil can, by means of slides, touch the whole area.'

Communications Dealt With by County Council.

Consideration of Bridges Will Evidently Occupy Prominent Place in Business Transacted.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the county council the following communications were read and variously disposed of: The special committee re Beattie's bridge reported that they had opened tenders and awarded the contract for erecting superstructure to the Hamilton Bridge Company, but the company having refused to agree to complete contract for erecting the superstruc-ture and having refused also to consent to penalty clause for non-fulfillment of contract the committee recommended that new tenders be called for. The report was adopted.

The clerk of Norfolk county forwarded a memorial to be presented to the legislature setting forth that legislation should be passed providing that railways be compelled to place more adequate cattle guards and fences at railway crossings and other places where needed, and failing such pro-vision by the railway that they be liable for any resulting loss or damage. the Oxygen Preparation, Powley's Liquified Ozone.

The process of manufacture of Powley's Liquified Ozone is a long one. It takes time, but at the end of the process we have a preparation of oxygen in liquid form, producing all the energy and vigor peculiar to Nature's great health-giving element. That it has extreme value is evidenced by Mr. Moore's letter in which he says: As foreman of Mr. Thompson's Cooperage works, I have put up in your laboratory several heavy retorts for making Ozone. I and my men noticed, while working in the laboratory and inhaling the gases, our energies and health becoming stronger. I obtained several bottles for my own use and I am pleased to state your remedy perfectly agreed

The reason that Powley's Liquified Ozone makes cures is because it contains oxygen. This element has been found lately to be of extreme value in the treatment of disease of any sort. Its value being chiefly demonstrated as a tonic

London, Tuesday, Dec. 3.

Canadian coal is now finding a good market in Germany, Austria and Norway. By and bye, if coal mining becomes much more expensive in Great Britain, we may indeed be carrying coal to Newcastle.

Pretty soon, Premier Ross will have a plenty of suggestions. One of the latest is that the Legislature should submit two alternative propositions in a referendum to the electorate: (1) Prohibition, up to the limit of the provincial powers, which do not include the questions of manufacture or importation: and (2) a considerably stiffened license act, under which bars and treating would be effectually discouraged. Next!

The death of Lord Aylmer, father of Adjutant-General Aylmer, took place at Richmond, Quebec, a few days ago. His father and grandfather were Admirals of the British navy. The family is an ancient one, with a highly honorable record. Londoners have a special interest in the matter, from the fact that the successor to the title, the present adjutant-general of Canada, the Hon. Mathew Aylmer, was for a considerable period resident in this city as A. D. C., in which capacity his knowledge and urbanity made him deservedly a universal favorite.

There is only one ex-President of the United States living, and he has recently been very ill. Mr. Cleveland does not occupy much public attention now, but he was a big man over the border when the Venezuela dispute was on, and he was president his war paint on, and with own particular view of the Monroe doctrine as his text. By the way, will some public man of the United States give us a version of the Monroe doctrine that will remain longer than the close of a current presidential term?

The Provincial Government and Tammany Hall.

It has been the custom among some of the opponents of members of the Ontario Government to shout "Tammany Hall" at them. As if there was any resemblance between the government of the greatest city in America by Tammany Hall (generally recognized to be the control of the worst elements in that great city by the worst and most unscrupulous politicians in it), and the Government of the Prov-

How far the charge is from the truth can in a measure be realized by reading the speech delivered by Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, at the World's Fair in Chicago, at the parliament of religions there held.

Cardinal Gibbons claimed for the Catholic Church, supported also by the Protestant Church, that they had accomplished a great deal in the follow- ing directions: 1. The sacredness of marriage.

- 2. The sanctity of human life. 3. Orphan asylums.
- 4. Asylums for old age. 5. Hospitals.
- 6. Reclaiming fallen women.
- 7. Abolition of slavery.
- 8. Friend of workingmen. Take an extract from his speech:

has taught man the knowledge of God to preserve, is there? and of himself. She has brought comfort to his heart by instructing him to bear the ills of life with Christian philosophy; she has sanctified the marriage bond; she has proclaimed the sanctity and inviolability of human life from the moment that the body is animated by the spark of life till it is extinguished; she has founded asylums for the training of children of both sexes, and for the support of the aged poor; she has established hospitals for the sick and homes for the redemption of fallen women; she has exerted her influence towards the mitigation and abolition of human slavery; she has been the unwavering friend of the sons of toil. These are some of the blessings which the Catholic Church has conferred on society. I will not deny, on the contrary I am happy to

Now, take the list enumerated by Cardinal Gibbons, and compare it with undertakes to uphold her right, with the work done in the same direction the consent of the populace, to exercise by the Ontario Government. Do we paramount influence over some part not find them accomplishing, so far as of the vast and at present ill-governed they can, all that he has enumerated, territories south of the equator. and could we not truthfully add more? Could we not add to his list:

When, therefore, at that record is raised the cry of "Tammany Hall," how harmless it falls! "Tammany tingent. Hall," that has used the worst elements of New York City by which to govern, that has been a fraudulent system from beginning to end, is the very reverse of the Government of Ontario, whose aims and accomplishments have been those referred to, and whose financial management is acknowledged by opponents and claimed by friends to have been clean. Let those who think they gain by such a cry continue it. The Government will gain by the comparison.

Where High School Pupils Go.

In a recent address, Hon. Mr. Harcourt, Minister of Education, thoroughly exposed the fallacious allegation that the high schools of Ontario are merely "teacher factories." He pointed out that last year 24 per cent of the high school pupils of the Province entered mercantile life, 15 per cent went to the farms, 7 per cent joined the learned professions, and 21 per cent joined the teaching profession. We believe that as time passes by, there will be an increasingly large number of high school graduates who will take to agriculture as a means of livelihood. The farm will yield a more ample income than it has done in the past, under the new conditions that are being established, and life in the rural regions will be far more tolerable. By and bye, when electricity is made to do pretty nearly everything on every farm, when there will be a telephone, obtained at a very moderate outlay, in every farmhouse, and when there will be a daily mail, the farmer and his family will have every enjoyment possessed by the citizen and'a great many advantages that the dwellers among great aggregations of humanity do not possess.

A Cheerful Ex-Governor-General.

Lord Dufferin, though he has been recently ill, is said, at last accounts, as a man at his time of life-75-could be expected to do. Our ex-Governorday he delivered an address to the students, in which he reviewed the great events of the last century, and made a most optimistic forecast of the 100 years upon which we have just entered-that is, so far as the British less sanguine would behold the lion brightest of hopes for the future. He passing cloud of the South African trouble-a passing-away military episode he declared it to be-no generation in the history of Great Britain which separates two centuries under mercantile energies, and above all, our colonial possessions."

Dealing with another question, in which Canada is vitally interested, the noble earl said: "Other cries which would ere long attract attention would be the canal that was destined to join the Atlantic to the Pacific, and whose completion would produce as great a dislocation of the world's commercial gravity as did the circumnavigation of the Cape or the cutting of the Suez Canal. Then. some time or other, there was sure to arise a dispute over the Monroe doctrine. That doctrine had not, as yet, received the sanction of international law. It was merely the assertion of a policy which the American Republic was determined to maintain, if necessary by force of arms. But, although England would certainly stand aside from the quarrel, we may be sure of this, that it would be ignored and infringed as soon as any European nation or combination of nations considered that their interests required and avow-that the various Christian bod- their strength encouraged them to combat it.'

Lord Dufferin clearly sees what is of most of these works of Christian likely to take place when Germany, or any other of the great nations of Europe, with new fields for colonizing and trading purposes in South Africa,

Quality Counts.

The Canadian Government is to provide the horses, sadd'ery, uniforms, boots, etc., for the new on payment therefor by the Imperial Government. The Imperial Government is to supply the arms for men. The officers are to be nominated by the Canadian ministers, in accord with the terms of the impudent orderin-council passed in connection with rejection of Mr. Merritt's offer. ### War and Its Sequel.

United States, in a late report, shows that the war pensioners of that country continue to increase at an alarming rate. The list today contains 4,000 names in excess of any previous year, and the claims pending at the begining of the present fiscal year footed up to the enormous number of 403,569. About one-half of these were claims for additional payments made by persons already on the rolls. The civil war ended 36 years ago, yet the amount disbursed for pensions during last year was $138,531,484. Still more remarkable is the number of claims for pensions by participants in the Spanish war, which began only three years ago. Twenty per cent of all the men who enlisted in that war have already filed claims for pensions for disabilities resulting, though in 1872, but 6 per cent of the soldiers who fought in the North vs. South conflict had entered claims. It is somewhat remarkable to find, too, that many claims for disability in the war with Spain were filed a few days after the claimants had been examined by army surgeons and found absolutely free from any ailment of any kind. War is a costly means of settling disputes, no matter how one looks at it for in the United States the scramble to get something for nothing has resulted in many persons being able to crawl into the pay of the people, by fraud or subterfuge, who did little or no service in the ranks, to the detriment of the real heroes, who were the sufferers. And what is most disheartening to the man who desires to see the public resources honestly administered, and every deserving soldier recognized, is the fraud resorted to by those who desire to get on the pension list without a particle of claim to that distinction. This is one reason why the investigation of claims by the Pension Bureau is always to be making as favorable a recovery so far in arrears. It is not creditable to the people, and it ought to make them strain every faculty to insure that their legislators shall agree to set-General is this year Lord Rector of the international disputes, if at all pos-Edinburgh University, and the other sible, without resort to bloodshed.

The Secretary of the Interior of the guiding star. In two of the great departments of government, the war and navy, he has already informed the politicians that no political influence will be considered in appointments in either of these departments. Merit, and merit alone, will be considered. We also believe that he is a man of courage and intense patriotism. It was Roosevelt who, through a sense of duty alone, abandoned a high and responsible position in the government, to accept the leadership of the rough riders in the Spanish war, and it was he who, with his men, faced the storm of bullets on bloody San Juan Hill, and who for days was exposed to the danger from the Mauser and shrapnel of the enemy; but he is not only brave on the battlefield, but he is courageous in the discharge of his every duty, for he has the courage to do what he believes is right whatever the consequences. And then, like McKinley, he is a true

Christian gentleman, and a man of peace, and I believe it can be said of him, as was said of Lincoln, "He car-ries himself like one of the humblest of men, he weighs every subject, he considers and reflects upon every phase of public duty; he relies upon the average judgment of the plain people; he high sense of justice, a clear understanding of the rights of others, and will never needlessly inflict an in-jury upon any man." Such, I believe, are the attributes of Theodore Roosevelt, and such as those are certainly befitting a great leader. Such a man as this we believe has the ability and the power to carry on the work from where the martyred president left off. And now, in conclusion, it is to be hoped that the cordial feeling existing between the people of these two great countries may be augmented and strengthened through the influence and co-operation of these two great leaders of the English-speaking people, and that we may never lose our place among the nations of the earth, as a people uplifted through the influence and enjoyment of civil and religious

Rev. Dr. McCrae.

The toast next in order was "Our Patron Saint-St. Andrew," introduced by Mr. J. B. McKillop and responded to by Rev. Dr. McCrae, of Westminster. The manner in which the toast was honored left no doubt as to the nationality of the majority of those present.

The opening portion of Dr. McCrae's address was in his characteristically humorous vein, abounding in sallies of wit and anecdotes, which were received with unbounded laughter. He quoted some amusing instances of British ignorance of Canada and things Canadian, and spoke more seriously as he deplored the lack of information in the mother country which gave existence to such pervert ed ideas of conditions in this country. In the same connection he paid a high tribute to Lord Strathcona, who had done so much for Canada in its early days of struggle and since confederation, and later had been such a great factor in solidifying the empire. Dr. McCrae spoke of Lord Strathcona's latest patriotic act in providing, at Canada for distribution in Englis lows I would like, however, speaking more seriously, to point out that St. Andrew, the patron saint of Scotland, is, at least in one respect, like the patron of no other nation that he could think of at the moment. We take our patriotism is in a peculiar sense Bible patriotism. As a simple matter of fact the Bible presents us with many of the most sublime instances of patriot ism to be found in all history, me the Book," said a great Scotchman. And that is what great Scots men have always said when the prin ciples of freedom and human liberty were at stake-"Rax me the Book. Bancroft, the historian, speaking of the influence of Scotsmen on world, says: "From the Book of Life brought down the noblest enfranchisement decreed from eternity Their views of freedom and progres always been of the The world owes Scotland a large debt of gratitude for her heroic and splendid service in the interests of modern freedom and justice. What Greece was to ancient civilization. Scotland has been to modern. There is only this difference, Scotland has been vastly more potential, as her principles have more lofty and Scotchmen have ever hated all laws that were framed "To stretch the conscience and to bind The native freedom of the mind."

It has often been said that the Bible was the secret of England's greatness. In a far greater degree it had been the secret of Scotland's greatness. In Scotland the Bible had always been the book of piety, the book of knowledge, the book of the home, the school and the mart. "What has made Scotland so great?" he asked. "What has made her the greatest country on sighed the struggling author as he the face of the earth? Isn't it the fact that among her rich and great, among her toiling artisans, among her rural hamlets, and in all her cotters' homes, as well as out on her lonely moors, an open Bible from time immemorial has been read and pondered, and its precepts practiced. Read the 'Cotter's Saturday Night,' by Scotland's greatest son, Robert Burns, and learn there why Scotland is great and honored among the nations of the world.' "From scenes like these old Scotia's abroad.' "The public life of St. Andrew, our patron saint, was characteristically quiet, but influential. He was not fussy man. There was no fussiness about him. Scotchmen are never fussy. They are the least fussy people in the world. But they are generally there, and stay there all the same. We hear much ess about Andrew than his more fussy brother, Peter. But mark you, we never hear a word to his discredit. Mark, also, if it had not been for Andrew, there never would have been ar Apostle Peter. It was Andrew who ound his brother, told him what he seen, and brought him into the new kingdom. We never hear of Anrew making a fuss during his public fe with his Master. But at the great noment in his history, we find he was here—with sympathy, intelligence and ip. And the same thing is true of all enuine Scotchmen. They do things nietly, but nevertheless effectively. They have the knack of getting over hard places with ease, such as is possessed by no other people." The speaker illustrated this point by a number of nest laughable and telling Scotch sto-Scotland's patron saint? In building up this great Dominion serious and difficult problems lie before us. These problems must be faced with quiet strength, sound judgment and wise, far-seeing statesmanship. A distinguished clergyman, speaking on a public platform about a year ago, prophesied for Canada a baptism of blood as an inevitable necessity for making a great nation. Most of the newspapers took him to mean that bloodshed between the different races that make up our great country was inevitable before we could become a great and united nation. Whether he meant this or not, I do not know, but I hope he did not. I have been sorry to see that a small section of the press of our country have fostered this idea in the minds of the people ever since. I think these sheets should be most severely rebuked. As a loyal Scotch-Canadian, protest against such vicious teaching." One thing that had made the United States the admiration of the world was the wonderful power she showed in assimilating and unifying the different races of her immense population, and forming into one grand united American nation. Were we to be told that Canada was lacking in this power? He himself took no stock in such a view, and he did not think any level-headed Canadian did. "What we need in Canada at this hour is a spirit of charity, forbearance and brotherhood, with wise and constructive statesmanship, and there will be no fear of the future. Because two or three public men in Canada have given forth a faint pro-Boer sound. some people have gone into a panic. Let them look at Britain itself. Canada is wonderfully united and harmonious already and is always becoming more so. As a matter of fact, our people are far more harmonious and united in regard to the South African war than the old country people themselves. Was it not left for Canadians, at a great Methodist gathering in old London, a short time ago, to severely rebuke the disloyal utterances of a great many of the English people who were taking part in the conference? "Talk of a baptism of blood. Let these people learn of Canada's wars of 1775, 1812, 1837, 1866 and 1885. Canadians had already had their baptism of blood. The blood of Canada's sons has already been freely and bravely shed in defense of the integrity of the empire at home and abroad. Abraham Lincoln, speaking for peace and amity and concord between the different sections of that great country, uttered these thrilling words: 'Let us see to it that our dead shall not have died in vain.' These words have a meaning for us, too. 'Let us, as Canadians, see to it that our dead Canadian heroes shall not have died in vain.' And need I say, sir," concluded the speaker, "that

PILL POINTS

Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills are a purely Vegetable Compound. A scientifically studied Formula. The after-effects of the medicine have been given as much consideration as the immediate results.

Not so with many of the Ancient Formulas-Painful Purgers and no healing powers.

Think of these points. If you must use medicine, look for the most pleasant, safest and surest to take. Dr. Agnew's Liver-Pills are supreme in cases of Sick Head-ache, Bilousness, Sallow Skin, Constipation, etc. 40 doses, 10 cents; 100 doses, 25 cents. 61 For sale by C. McCallum & Co.

I am sure we will do this. I am sure forded him to have the honor of re lishmen Irishmen, Frenchmen of Canadians born, we are loyal Canadians all, loyal Britons all, and we shall with one accord continue to sing, with hearts as true and loyal as any in the great empire to which we are proud to belong, 'God Save Our Gracious King," and we shall continue to sing also as heartily and truly and loyally

'The Maple Leaf Forever.'
"To you, then, members of St. Andrew's, to you Scotchmen, Englishmen, Irishmen, Frenchmen and Canadians, I say. Be mindful of all that is best in your ancestral lands; be mindful of the noble deeds of your fellow countrymen at home and abroad, so that in our beloved Canada the sentiment which cherishes the thistle of Scotland, the rose of England, the shamrock of Ireland, and the lily of France, may foster the maple leaf of Canada, making it the emblem of a people, free, united, happy, prosperous and great. (Great applause.)

He congratulated them on the splendid gathering, thanked them for the honor done him, and assured them that if, in his humble way he could do any-thing to help St. Andrew's Society, to declared that there was not a single if, in his humble way he could do anykeep Scottish memories, traditions, songs and games, he was at their service.

The Land We Live In.

In proposing "The Land We Live In," Treasurer John W. Jones said it was perhaps the more appropriate that he should have the honor of doing so because he was the only native Scotch officer left in the society, all the others being Canadian-born. However, a residence of 45 years in Canada had made him so thorough a Canadian, that now, when he went back to visit Scotland he was in doubt as to whether he was Scotch at all or pure Canadian. The toast was honored with an enthusiasm that showed that great as was the love entertained by those present for the land of their forefathers, Canada was for the majority their birthplace, and their own country,

"Their hope and their faith and their honor. They pledged to their native soil."

Dr. Samson.

It was Dr. Samson, of Windsor, whose name was coupled with the toast, and it is doubtful if in all Canada, where last night so many orators would be expatiating on the selfsame topic, there was as stirring, as vigorous, as eloquent, and in all respects as fitting an address delivered. reach their head; another thousand and Dr. Samson alternately convulsed his hearers with laughter at his humor and thrilled them with eloquent wordpictures of the vastness and magnificence of the inheritance which Canadians enjoy in the country which they possess, and which the speaker predicted would yet occupy the proud position of the leading nation in the world. In opening, Dr. Samson said he had no apology to offer for his presence, as the Mulock postal system had made it possible for a man to be bothered more easily and cheaply than when he was a boy. He was present only be-cause he could not possibly get out of t. He said he had pleasant recollections of being present on two or three previous occasions at similar affairs in London, and he went on to give some humorous incidents of those visits. Dropping into a more serious lyein, he expressed the pleasure it af-

that whether we are Scotchmen, Eng- | sponding to the greatest toast that any man present could ever be called upon to honor. He entertained a profound and firm belief that Canada would prove one of the greatest factors in the solving of important social and industrial problems. One hundred years hence, when Scotland's sons of those days meet to honor their country, London will be a great city, and Canada will be a country of fifty or sixty millions of people. Even today, its six millions of people enjoy a comfort and happiness greater than the inhabitants of any other country have ever known. Greater things were still in store for her. The conditions in the old lands were constantly shifting and changing. Where in Europe could be found the coming nation, or where even in America, save in this great Dominion? We enjoy the acme of the best system of government the world has ever seen. In our educational opour respect for each portunities, others' rights, our observance of the Sabbath, in all that makes a nation great and glorious, where could Canada's match be found? The speaker said he knew he would man on the continent who really knew the vastness of Canada and its resources. The valley of the Saskatchewan alone will some day feed and clothe and keep fifty millions of people. Already the great tides of emigration are setting in, and hundreds of thousands of people will be flocking to possess the boundless land whose resources are limitless. Our great lakes, our forests, our mines, cannot fail to attract the attention of the world.

It is no small thing, said Dr. Samson, to drink a health to the land we live in. No country has such a happy combination of the best kind of people. No country has so stable a system of government as we, not even Great Britain or the United States. The speaker pre-dicted that in a few years it would be the people of the republic who would come begging at Canada's doors for the reciprocity for which the Dominion had formerly asked in vain. The people of the United States are coming to realize that it is in the young and growing Dominion that they must find an outlet for their manufactures and wealth. With the influx of population a new era of prosperity such as has never been dreamed of must dawn on Canada.

The man is not worthy the name of British subject or true Canadian who does not sometimes stop and think of the limitless extent and exhaustless resources of this country. It was Principal Grant who said that one could start at Halifax and go a thousand miles westward, and one would have only reached the foot of the great lakes; go another thousand miles and reach the Rockies, and still another [Continued on page 7.]

Just a Cold in the Head!

But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure, is liable to result in Nasal Catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained, the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of mines for Nova Scotte, Mr. Neville, says: "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds coughs and catarrh. # SAVE HIMSELF!

Ald. Jolly's Hurried Trip Across

His Head and Ald. Olmsted's Fist Came Together—A Nasty Mix-Up at the Council.

Disputes in the council chamber frequently reach the personality stage, but rarely the fists. It so happened last night that the two hot-heads of the round table-Ald. Jolly and Ald. Olmsted, were the disputants, and the result was a repetition of the Douglass-Cooper encounter of a year or so ago. The affair was short but fast and sufficiently unbecoming to aldermen's dignity.

The report of the council's proceedings gives the detailed statement that led to the lamentable end. First one thing was said, then another. Ald. Olmsted had the floor, and, according to all rules of order and courtesy, should have been allowed to speak without interruption to his remarks. Ald. Jolly wished to take eption to his remarks, his exception plain course was either to wait until Ald. Olmsted had finished and then reply, or protest to the chair. He did neither. Instead he interrupted frequently, and said several times that Ald. Olmsted was lying.

Order was at last secured, and the matter should have ended. Unfortunateiy Ald. Jolly was not satisfied to let it rest. The heat of the affair be-ing over Ald. Olmsted retired to the ante-room to smoke his favorite cigar and meditate on the mutability of things mundane. The pugnacious strain in Ald. Jolly's make-up caused him to follow the flery fourth warder and revive the regretable unpleasantness, that had hurt the feelings of Ald. Garratt and one or two other aesthetic aldermen so grievously.

He walked over to Ald. Olmsted's chair and tapped him on the shoulder. "You were lying in there, George," Several times he repeated it, according to Ald. Olmsted and ex-Alderman Douglass, who was in the room at the Then Ald. Olmsted stood up. "Do you mean that?" he asked. "Yes, certainly"—

And the next second his strong fist smashed the head of his tormentor. A cotem says that it was a nervous blow, and barely reached the mark. The epithet was uncalled for, but Ald. will doubtless console himself with that trite saying, "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but names will never hurt me.'

Fortunately no bones were broken, although Ald. Jolly made a retrograde movement with marvelous celerity. A wall came to his aid and he recovered his equipoise, hurled himself upon his antagonist and spiraled his arms and legs around him, so as to avoid a short-jab in the break-away.

When the other members of the council got to the scene of the conflict they were locked in an embrace sucl as no Damon ever gave to his Pythias. Some say that Ald. Jolly's right leg encircled Ald. Olmsted's three times. Who can say? In that truly remarkable melange of limbs, he would indeed be an audacious man, who would say if this leg or that belonged to Ald. Jolly, or this arm or the other to Ald. Olmsted. However interesting situation was to the critical student of the pliancy of the human shinbone, it could not be allowed to last. Ald. Parnell managed to get his arms around Ald. Jolly's, and Ald. Cronyn, or, was it Ald. Winnett ?did the same thing for Ald. Olmsted, and they were

Relics of a Lost Tribe.

A valuable archaeological find has just been made near the ancient town of Novgorod, in the Russian province of that name, on the banks of Lake Ilmen. The articles found include hundreds of flint arrowheads, spearheads, The month of November, which has axeheads of slate, flint fishhooks and an enormous mass of crockery and similar fragments, ornamented in the same style as those found previously in other parts of the same province The discovery has been made by M. Peredolsky, of the St. Petersburg University, a son of the archaeologist who originally studied this province, and always insisted upon the existence in the neighborhood of Lake Ilmen of a numerous population during the stone age, a theory which thus receives satisfactory proof. The articles found are all of one class and date, indicating the existence of a considerable tribe, which must have either been wiped out or have migrated to other regions before attaining any higher stage of culture than that of the stone age.

IN CONGRESS

A Host of Bills Ready for Consideration-Important Points of President Roosevelt's Message.

Washington, Dec. 3 .- Several thousand bills already have been introduced in the house, covering nearly every phase of public affairs that has attracted interest in the country. They include Pacific cable, oleomargarine, amending the tariff law, to repeal the bankruptcy law, for a reciprocity commission, admission to states, establishing a department of commerce, amending the currency law, amending the immigration laws, etc.
David Henderson, Iowa, was reelected speaker of the house.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE. Here are some of the most interesting points in the message of President Roosevelt: Anarchy—A vigorous plea to con-gress to pass laws that will meet this great and growing danger. Trusts-The president is in favor of greater publicity. Over-capitalization, dishonest representations and disregard of the common law are condemned, and the president denounces many of the methods used by the pro-moters of trusts. It is a warning of stringent laws to come if these abuses are not discontinued. Reciprocity-He advocates the principle of reciprocal trade relations, but makes no specific recommendations. He advocates a reduction of sugar duties from Cuba in return for the admission of commodities from the United States at lower rates of duties than now charged. This arrangement is to go into effect when the new Cuban government is established.

Tariff—Mr. Roosevelt is in favor of letting the tariff rest without revision for the present. Foreign Relations-Our relations with other powers are stated to be friendly, and the president lays great stress on the purpose of his administration to continue them. He shows himself to be a firm believer in the Munroe doctrine, and points to its adherence by foreign powers. He speaks strongly in favor of the ratification of the pending treaty with Great Britain. Nicaragua Canal—The president hopes to see action taken that will the canal commission. Ship Subsidy-The president is impressed with the desirability of build-ing up the merchant marine, but does not mention the word subsidy, and leaves the matter to congress. Chinese Exclusion-The re-enactment start the work on lines laid down by

of the Chinese exclusion law is advocated, and early action is urged, because the act expires in May. Navy—Larger appropriations for the navy are asked, and it is pointed out that the enlarged responsibilities of the nation makes greater need in expanding the navy imperative. Internal Improvements-For the first time appropriations for irrigation and the reclamation of desert lands are suggested. Appropriations, limited to necessities, are bespoken for the improvement of the rivers and harbors.

DIED SUDDENLY.

Gertie May Constable, the 10-yearold daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Constable, of 654 Nelson street, died yesterday at the family residence. The circumstances surrounding the death were particularly sad. Gertie had been ill for several days with a severe cold, and yesterday her father, who is a motorman on the street railway, went in to kiss her before he went to work. The mother shortly afterwards stepped into the room with the intention of calling her child and was horrified to find her child and was horrified to find her past all earthly calling. The physicians say that heart failure was the direct cause of her death. The funeral took place this afternoon to "The Gore" Cemetery. The services "The Gore" Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev S. J. Allin, of the Hamilton Road Methodist Church. MISSIONARY SERVICES.

The Bishop of Huron visited Watford last Friday and held confirmation and missionary services. At St. James' Church, 15 candidates underwent the rite of laying on of hands and were admitted as full members of the congregation. The bishop's address was of an impressive and practical nature. A missionary service was held at Trinity Church the same day at 8 p.m. It being the eve of St. Andrew's Day, such having been appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury as a time of intercession for missions, the bishop preached a missionary sermon of great power and impressiveness from the words, "Go and teach all nations," (Matt. xxviii.. 20). He pointed out from the signs of the times the possible near approach of our Lord's second coming, and urged all diligence in missionary work in order to prepare his way There was a large attendance at both

MURDER OF A CHILD IS THE CHARGE

Dr. Alex. Graham Arrested at Noon Today

As a Result of Verdict Returned by Coroner's Jury

Which Investigated Death of Emma Agnes Kilbourne's Prematurely-Born Child.

As a result of last night's verdict in the Kilbourne inquest, Dr. Alexander Graham, of 616 Richmond street, was placed under arrest shortly after 1 o'clock today by Detective Rider, the charge being murder. The arrest was made at the doctor's office at 280 Clar ence street. The physician took his arrest coolly, and accompanied the detective without protest. He was taken to the police station, and his name entered on the books. He was left in the inner room of the station, instead of being lodged in the cell. He sent for Mr. J. M. McEvoy, who appeared in his interest at the inquest.

LAWYER WOULD NOT SPEAK. Mr. McEvoy would not say much when asked to speak about the case. He said, however, that he was confident that no evidence had yet been brought forth that could be available in a court of law. Mr. McEvoy promised interesting developments when the case goes on. It is understood that an effort will be made to discredit a party who will probably be chief crown witness by bringing out certain damaging facts in connection with the past life of the individual.

WILL LIKELY ASK FOR BAIL. Police Magistrate Love was unaware that an arrest had been made until informed of it by an Advertiser reported. He said the usual course pursued in such cases would be followed. The defense will probably make an application for bail, but it will probably not be granted until an examination of the witnesses has been made, and until the attorney-general has been conferred

The arrest was kept very quiet until it was actually consummated. Shortly after 12 o'clock an Advertiser representative saw Crown Attorney Magee in his office. At that time the warrant was probably in the hands of the detective, but Mr. Magee refused to say anything definite about the case, merely admitting that some action must necessarily follow such a verdict. At the time Mrs. Jessie Clark, the principal witness at the inquest, and her husband, were seated in the firm's outer

Paris, Dec. 2.-News received here from a Boer agent who has just returned from Pretoria is to the effect that Commander-in-Chief Louis Botha declares he will be able to continue the war five years, and ultimately to drive the British out of the Cape. On Sept. 28, Gen. Botha reckoned the Boer dead since the beginning of the war at 2,800. The agent says that the quietude which is reigning in Pretoria was obtained only by the aid of 700 detectives, and that the Boers, sooner or later, would rebel there. ## The Emerald of Kandahar

He had given strict orders not to be disturbed, so that no one came to him. He was, therefore, left alone with his ruin. He did not fall asleep; his eyes long outwatched the dying embers of the fire. But he remained in a trance intelligible to those only who have lost not only all that they have, but all that they hope for. There might, of course, be roads out of his difficulty, but he was not in a state of mind to perceive how they would run. He could only see that the picture, if such it could be called any longer, must be paid for, and that all his other schemes would, in consequence, fall to the ground. He would be unable to feed speculations, to make advances, or feed speculations, to make advances, or to answer calls, while his credit was al-ready pledged to the full; and the addling of all his eggs together meant the total loss, not of eighty thousand, but of hun-dreds of thousands. Even if he went through the court he would have to begin through the court he would have to begin the world again; and to begin the world is hard for one at whose fall the world would rejoice. At last the late winter morning began to break, and he was roused to something like life again by a numb feeling of cold that ran through all his limbs. The fire was long dead, and such warmth as there was, was merely the lingering memory of what had once been the warmth of a comfortable room. He wondered, as he slowly relaxroom. He wondered, as he slowly relaxed his grasp of his head, whether he had actually been asleep or no-whether the whole had not been a dream. But his whole had not been a dream. But his wonder only lasted for a moment, like a last dying gleam of hopeless hope; and then once more the cruel reality of his insanity came upon him with tenfold intensity, and as coldly as the morning of the new day. And he was now miserable in body as well as prostrate in mind.

I think—of course I cannot know—that if the natural history of suicide were If the natural history of suicide were properly understood, it would be found that the state of the body has far more to do with the matter than the state of the mind. To speak in philosophical language, mental anguish may be the causa causans, but bodily misery is the causa sine qua non; in other words, both mind and body must be brought into har mony before the latter will destroy itself for the sake of the former. And there is no period at which the real, actual bodily wretchedness of a man who is inclined to despair is so complete as during the early hours of a cold dawn after a long and sleepless night. Reaction and depression are then at their strongest, and the very thought of a new day is sufficient to make the idea of life seem insupportable, even in cases where mental anguish is not extreme. Even to the exceptionally healthy, to the exceptionally happy, there is something unspeakably dreary about the hours immediately prewith cold and sleeplessness. It is, in very fact, the hour of death, when more sort take their departure from earth than at any other of the twenty-four, and when death's fiend or angel, whichever he may be, goes about to gather all the harvest he can before the return of his eternal enemy, the sun. No wonder, then, that the ruined speculator called to mind that among all his chemicals there must at least he can be the time to be the sun. least he cas that, in one mount, would prevent the return of the sun for ever. So, shivering in every limb, he let himself so, shivering in every plans, he let nimself slide forward from the deep armchair in which he had been sitting, until the disproportioned extremities of his short legs touched the carpet, and then, staggering like a man who has just slept off a heavy debauch, followed by nightmare, groped about blindly for the means of striking a light by no means an easy task in the a light, by no means an easy task in the darkness, especially as the downfall of the table had confused the geography of

The first thing that caught at all events one of his two eyes was the braken frame that he had hurled away from him, and that was now lying at his feet. It was the final insult to his remorse. Instinctively he kicked it once more, and then his other eye saw upon the floor something just faintly shining with the pale light of a glow-worm, that had hitherto been covered by the rags of

Could his disappointment have driven him mad indeed? Was he really ready for the certificates of two physicians? Any-one would certainly have thought so, to have seen him dancing, leaping and laugh-ing wildly about the disordered room. He absolutely shricked with laughter, and pressed to his heart in ecstasy the rags of the magpie and then the piece of green crystal that had fallen from the broken ame. Every dealer and jewel broker has neard of the Great Emerald of Kandahar. It is the great poetical tradition of the trade; greater, even, than the Koh-i-noor, the Pitt Diamond, or the Queen Ruby of Caltura. It has been the cause of bloodier wars and darker crimes than ambition itself, from the days when it had been presented to King Solomon by the Queen of Sheba as the noblest ornament of the Temple, to those, some few centuries ago, when it formed part of the royal crown of the Czars of Caspia. But it was not unknown to the initiated in the secret unknown to the initiated in the secret history of crown jewels, that the great emerald had for some time past vanished from human sight. It had either been lost or stolen or hidden away—or else, as it now seemed, it had been secretly pledged with the great house that had dealt so magnificently with royal loans. But its description, its shape, the manner of its cutting, the exact number of its caráts, were all a matter of history; and what was more likely than that the what was more likely than that the lender should conceal his cangerous security in the most improbable place in the world?

Toronto, Dec. 2. - (Special.) - Mr. J. G. Jardine, one of Canada's commissioners to the Paris Exreturned to position, home at 305 Crawford street, this city, and is full of interesting stories of his experience during his stay in France. He was impressed with the superior ity of things Canadian when seen along side the products of the world. Everything from Canada was "genuinely good," and while in some cases other exhibits might be more "showy," none were more worthy.

Mr. Jardine returns, it possible, a more enthusiastic Canadian, and this is in part at least due to the fact that while in Paris he was very much benefitted by the use of that great Canadian tonic, Dodd's Kidney Pills. His work was very trying and made great demands on his health and strength, but he says:

"During my stay in Paris I found Dodd's Kidney Pills invaluable, relieving Backache instantly and toning up my system generally.

FOOTBALL.

LITTLE DANGER IN FOOTBALL. Football has been played by Harvard, Pennsylvania, Yale and Princeton ever since its introduction into America and not a single fatal aecident has occurred to any of the players of the "Big Four," who are representa-tive of the average American university athlete.

It is true that accidents are numerous, and occasionally fatal; but it is not true that fatal accidents are more numerous with football than with any other game, as is the general impression among non-athletic people. Fatal accidents are often wrongly attributed to the game itself when they should be attributed to other sources. The precautions exercised by the University of Pennsylvania are fairly representative of the way the sport is gulated in the leading institutions. At Pennsylvania every candidate who presents himself for the team is required to pass through a thorough physical examination. If the examiner is dissatisfied in any particular the athlete is not allowed to play. The same examination is repeated at different times during the season. When a player is suffering from injuries, the authorities refuse to allow him to participate in the game. It is this system, strictly adhered to, which prevents fatal accidents in the big colleges. What accidents are caused by the game oc-cur among the teams of small colleges and schools. Because of their lack of A Canadian Product Which Wins material, an athlete already injured is allowed to participate in the game. It is this unwise exposure to danger which should be checked. The game of football has lost none of its attractions. On the contrary, it has steadily grown in the favor of the people. Properly regulated, as in the larger colleges, the game contains no more of the element of danger than any other popular sport .- University of Pennsyl-thousand before the western confines of the Dominion would be in view. Ald. Harry Piper, of Toronto, had expressed it somewhat differently while at a banquet tendered in St. Louis to a junketing party of Toronto aldermen. After an American orator had described in graphic language the extent of the great republic, Ald. Piper arose and eclipsed all the other eloquence in his description of his own land, which "extended from the infinity of space on the south, to the aurora borealis on the north, and from the procession of the equinoxes on the east, to the judgment day in the west.' "One vivid incident of my earlier life comes to me often in maturer years," continued Dr. Samson, "It was a love ly May morning more than a quarter of a century ago, that I found myself alone on the top of a little mountain bluff, on the banks of the Northern Mississippi. Off to the left, wide as a sea, were the wide prairies of Minnesota, and over to the right the forests of Wisconsin. Between these states rolled the waters of the great river, on their long journey to the ocean. A railway ran along the bottom of the cliff. and a great train passed, rushing northward, loaded with Canadians hurrying away on to the new fields of Manitoba. Out in the middle of the river were passing three Indian bark canoes, the first of the kind I had ever seen, and carrying about a dozen Sioux warriors and their wives and children. The spot on which I stood was a little mound, the grave of an ancient moundbuilder. Under my feet were the ashes of perhaps some great member of that delightful, peaceful, pastoral people, who had tilled their fields and reared their flocks, and lived in happiness and prosperity for centuries, till swept away by the savage races, that left only graves and ruins and devastation behind them. And out there in the river was the very last, the very fag-end, of all the bloodthirsty millions who had scattered death and devastation from sea to sea for centuries. Standing there in that lonely spot, myself a fair specimen of the Anglo-Saxon race, it was a time to wonder whether, some other day, some other man in some other place, should not see the passing of the last of this proud people. And yet he may. All the nations of all ages have died and are lost in ruins. The one built on a foundation great enough to resist the ravages of all time may not yet be born, but we may be proud that one of the first acts of the first parliament of Canada abolished slavery, 108 years ago, and made all men free forever. No other nation in all the world began its life with such a story, and why may we not wonder whether that great empire of peace and purity and human happiness, of which the prophets wrote, may not in some future age become the legacy of this we leave "This new world of ours was old in human history when our ancestors ran wild and naked, and ate the acorns of the forests of Britain. The sands of the Yukon were washed for gold be-fore the Romans found the mines of Cornwall, perhaps before the days when the caravans of King Solomon were carrying treasures to Jerusalem from the center of Africa. Cities flourished on this continent, and commerce prospered, and temples were reared to worship before a Celt or Briton had seen a house or heard of God. But this was in the long ago. The mound-build-er lived and died and passed away, and he and his generations and his cities are all forgotten. The Indian came with his revelry of blood and carnage, but his camp-fires are out, and all to over. The white man came with loftier missions, first French and next the English, and the Irish, and with them came the Scotch, the great world-builders of modern days.

> "In conclusion, let me say, we know not now what destiny may have in waiting for us, through what tremendous vicissitudes of national life we may have still to pass, nor what deeds of daring shall yet be done in the broad arena of the northern half of this almost boundless continent. But standing here tonight, on the very frontier of this great empire yet to be and in the dawning days of perhaps the most illustrious century this old world has eve known or ever may know, I can foretell that whatever may be in store for us, much of the history of the days to come will be in the hands of the sons and grandsons and great-grandsons of noble sires, who crossed the wild, tempestuous sea from that little land we know so well-men born amid the humble vales of far-off Scotland, whose boyhood feet did tread the purple heather in the rugged Caledonian hills that for a thousand years have listened to no martial sound, except the battle-cry of freedom and the undying songs of human liberty."

Mr. John Cameron.

Mr. John Cameron, first vice-president of the society, in proposing the toast of "The Day and All Who Honor It," and coupling with it the name of Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, referred to the latter as a London Old Boy, his first pastorate having been in the English Settlement in London town-ship. Mr. Cameron spoke also of Dr. Milligan's having celebrated a few Dr. Milligan, said Mr. Cameron, was one preacher for whom the "dead line I ask you to drink to Dr. Milligan and 'The Day and All Who Honor It,'"

Rev. Dr. Milligan.

In the address which followed, Dr. Milligan proved himself one of the quiet, dry humor, which made them all the more pleasing to the mental palate. Dr. Milligan will undoubtedly e a welcome guest at future St. Andrew's banquets. Dr. Milligan, on rising to his feet, referred to Dr. Samson's instances of the manner in which Scotchmen had possessed themselves of the good things and leading places in the world. "There is nothing remarkable about this," said the reverend gentleman, "for we are the elect. We need not boast of it, for it is not through any merit of ours—it is decreed." Reverting to his subject, Dr. Milligan pointed out that one of the cardinal points in the character of St. Andrew, as learned from a study of the Scriptural references to him, was his democratic instinct. He showed this in bringing all classes to hear Jesus The democratic instinct was a rare thing in St. Andrew's day. Even Plato held the opinion that no good thing could come except out of Greece. and the Greek word for all other languages signified "tongueless," or Man is a born egotist, "gibberish." and thinks all knowledge not possessed by him is little more than worthless. The universal tendency is to locate new things as coming from below rather than from above, and to view unknown things in their worst rather success of future affairs of its kind. than in their best light, as the Chinese make their maps, marking all outside the Flowery Kingdom as "unknown deserts." St. Andrew, however, also went to the Master to get the true understanding of things. He was the true democrat-not the democrat who seeks to bring all down to one level. but the democrat that delieves that 'the man's the man for a' that."

St. Andrew was Scotch in his re-ligion, If Scotchmen have ever amounted to anything, it is because of their religion. The kings of the reformation in Britain were two Scotchnen, Andrew Melville and John Knox. and England today, as well as Scotland, owes her religious liberty to John Knox. A country needs such men in its history, and is nothing without such true men to develop itmen who remained poor. The speaker instanced Lord Mountstephen and Lord Strathcona as men who have obtained wealth, and who in their administration of it had followed such a course as their Master would have them do. Referring again to St. Andrew's possession of the spirit of the true democracy, the speaker said there is hope for any nation in which a remnant of that spirit still lives. The despot cannot exercise his despotism over any nation which will not have Another Scotch trait in St. Andrew was his display of family affection. He went and found his brother and brought him to the Master. Dr. Milligan digressed to speak of family life as it exists in Scotland. Christian endeavor had been a live topic of late years. The real sphere of Christian endeavor was the home, and "The Cotter's Saturday Night" was the true type of the Christian Endeavor Society. Dr. Milligan spoke of Scottish home life, in which the father was looked up to and respected as the head of the family, and in which the children were put under subjection and made to obey without question in all things. "I didn't understand, when I was learning my catechism away in Calthness, where the need and use of it all came in, but I chism and the training that accompan led its learning helped me to solve many a hard problem of life. And when I came to this country, a lad of 17, and went to teaching school, near Kingston, I did not know anything about the school laws, but I made every mother's son of my pupils—Me-thodists, Episcopalians and all—get up that catechism to the very letter."

lyle said that "The history of the world is the history of its great men." The biographer of the English Johnson was the Scottish Boswell.

Dr. Milligan said he had been shocked lately on querying two lads lately as to whether they would not like to be ministers, by each replying that there was no money in it. It was a bad outlook for a country were all the youth actuated by a similar motive. It should be hoped for Canada's sake that all her sons were not of this mind. A man should take up his profession for its own sake, and not for the money's sake. A man had no more right to go into medicine or law solely to make money than he had to go into the pulpit for the same purpose. Men should, like Andrew, go to the Master for counsel as to their life vocation.

The strong nature becomes stronger in front of opposition. The founders Venice, driven into the fens of the Adriatic, reared a city that became mistress of the seas, and the glory of the middle ages. The Dutch, to gain a home, were forced to beat back the encroaching waves of the German ocean, and that little country was the cradle of civil and religious liberty. In South Africa today we find the descendants of this hardy race foemen worthy of our steel.

Paganini could take a single violin string and extract from it the sweetest strains. Put the most valuable instrument in the tyro's hands, and there results only discords. So it is with na tions. We may have the country and its vast resources, but it is but the gigantic instrument, and unless we have the consecrated men we cannot bring out the music.

A great nation, like a book, must be written, and written for God. The writsenate houses, the marts and the factories. Only so can the great and permanent nation be made.

"Let us, then, be up and doing, With a heart for any fate, Still achieving, still pursuing, Learn to labor, and to wait."

The Sister Societies.

The toast of "Our Sister Societies" was coupled with the names of Mr John Forristal, president of the Irish weeks ago the 25th anniversary of his Benevolent Society, and Mr. Peter Birt-induction into his present pastorate. Wistle, president of the St. George's Society.

Forristal, after congratulating of 50" had no terrors and no applica- St. Andrew's Society on the success tion. "A preacher of preachers, a of the evening, spoke with pleasure of friend of friends, and a Scot of Scots, the livelier interest which had been taken during the past few years in the national societies. It was a good sign, Mr. Forristal thought, and he saw no reason why every Englishman, Irishman and Scotchman in the city should not belong to his respective national society.

Mr. Birtwistle made a brief and most entertaining and able speakers humorous speech, in which he pointed who ever graced a St. Andrew's ban-quet. His speech abounded in make quet. His speech abounded in noble ment of the Scots, the company should and inspiring thoughts, expressed in not forget that for twenty centuries ize these people and teach them the eighth commandment, and it was to repel the raiding hordes of the mountains that England had once to erect a mighty wall all across England.

Songs and Their Singers.

The toasts were interspersed with songs by well-known vocalists, among them being "Scots Wha Hae," "Canada" My Home," and "The Hielan' Man's Toast." J. W. The toast list completed, the gathering was brought to its close in the time-honored way. With clasped hands the guests surrounded the tables and sang with all their hearts the parting song, of all true Scots, "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot." KERRY GOW" AT THE GRAND.

A splendid audience gathered last evening in the Grand Opera House and Gow," by the veteran Irish comedian, Joseph Murphy, and his clever company. For the best part of half a century this play has been a perennial source of pleasure to those who love to witness a charming picture of Irish life and character in the old times, without the accessories of bludgeon, knife and gunpowder, so common to this class of plays. Father Time has dealt gently with Joe, and his portrayal of the ardent but bashful lover, Dan O'Hara, with Joe, and his portrayal of the ardent but bashful lover, Dan O'Hara, would have done credit to a youth just out of his teens. Mr. Murphy has surrounded himself with a well-balanced company that give him excellent support. One member, Mr. Frank McLaughlin (who has adopted "Frank McLean" as his stage name) was recognized as a London "old boy" and accorded a hearty welcome. He took ports six months I have gained in flesh, my sallow complexion has become clear, and my eyesight gradually improved, until now I am able to read and write. ## PINEY WOODS

Healthful But Not Always Curative To go to the piny woods is a help, but if one carries along the bad habits of food and drink that have caused sickness, the piney woods will not produce a recovery. Coffee drinking caused blindness in a Virginia gentleman, and his remark-able experience is worth reading. "I have been a coffee drinker since my earliest remembrance. If I missed coffee at a meal it brought on headwould set in until I drugged myself with coffee again.

"At last my eyesight began to fail. Some of the best optical specialists agreed that I had an affection of the optic nerve, and after two or three years treatment my eyes slowly lost their power and I became almost sight-"I was advised to go to a pine woods near the sea in a most isolated place.

This I did, and lived there for two years without any visible benefit. I gave up all hope of recovery until last spring a friend expressed the beenjoyed the presentation of "Kerry | lief that the coffee I drank was the cause of all my trouble. He had been a slave to it, and had been unable to find relief until he quit and took up Postum Food Coffee. "His experience startled me, and I decided to try the change although I had but little faith in its merits. My first cup of Postum proved delicious and was a great surprise. It was evidently well made. I had not the slightest trouble in leaving off coffee for the Postum filled its place perfectly.

Consumptive League asked the council to co-operate with the county council in erecting a consumption sanitarium by voting for this purpose $7,000. Ald. Campbell had intended to move that this bylaw be prepared, and submitted to the people, but as the time was too short, the communication was referred to No. 1 committee.

to No. 1 committee. The use of the city hall for Dec. 5 for a lecture by John Spargo, an English labor speaker was granted to a committee requesting the same. DO NOT WANT TO PAY.

A deputation of ratepayers on Talbot street appeared to protest against the construction of the tar macadam roadway on that street. Mr. Henry Macklin was their spokesman. He said that they knew the roadway was in a deplorable state and should be improved. The proposed work would cost $20,000, of which $15,000 must be paid by the property owners. This they considered was too large a percentage and that the centage, and that the larger share should be borne by the city, as the thoroughfare was used for the most part by farmers whose visits to the city benefited the whole community. Mr. Macklin was followed by Mr. John Taylor, who spoke along similar lines. The council was told that fifty out of 73 ratepayers were opposed to it. The deputation was assured that the work would not be done this year. No. 2 committee recommended that no street scrapers be bought for the use of snow cleaners. Ald. Cronyn asked if this meant the abandonment of all attempts at imsuggested that information be ob-

THE PLUMBING BYLAW.

The plumbing bylaw was given its second reading, upon motion of Dr. Campbell, who said that the objection of the R. E. O. P. A. was based upon a misconception. It was not class legislation, and he could imagine opposition from no one except perhaps a dishonest plumber. Ald. Parnell said that he had ideas upon the subject that were not in accord with the bylaw, and wished to express them at another time. Ald. Campbell has never shown any disposition to hurry the matter, and was content to leave it over.
