
Years.

n 1182,

MILLOY'S.

OF

THE

on.

WITNESS, x 1138.P.O.,

MONTREAL *********

CTITE AND CALL

GRONIELE. CULTUUSS

Vol. LII., No. 11

MONTREAL, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1902.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THE TRUE WITNESS P. & P. CO., Limited.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE—City of Montreal (delivered), $1.50; other parts of panda, $1.00; United States, $1.00; Newfoundland, $1.00; Great Britain, Ireland panda, $1.00; United States, $1.50; Belgium, Italy, Germany and Australia, $2.00. Terms, payable in astronomy, and chemistry, and even abilicative. All Communications should be addressed to the Managing Director, "True Wit-

EPISCOPAL APPROBATION.

"If the English-speaking Catholics of Montreal and of this Province consulted their ever be of any practical use. The bist interests, they would soon make of the "True Witness" one of the most prosperous and vast majority of girls in our day soverful Catholic papers in this country. I heartily bless those who encous age this excellent source with the country of girls in our day now the country. Archbishop of Montreal."

NOTES OF THE WEEK-

stated that this 's the second case of the kind, both being attributed

We cannot but rity the poor, foolish, weak-brained lad who was so led to go of his own accord into the presence of God; but we do not encourage to read three of her works.

national, an international menace,

and should be crushed out, or quar-antined, even as a deadly plague.

The Catholic Church alone, of all institutions existing to-day, has perpetually warned the world against this terrific scourge; and she alone has afforded the means whereby it may be counteracted. The day is have, and the only safeguard a-

ROMAN APPOINTMENTS.-With-

ing the truth or falsehood of the repress correspondents who persist in making appointments for the Vatican. If the Court of Rome were to and nominations that come to us almost daily through the press, there would be a very prodigal distribution of Cardinal's hats the worldover of Mgr. Falconio going to Washington is all the stranger in view of the fact that, while the whole American bout it, the Apostolic Delegate, himself, and the members of his household are in entire ignorance of any such action, or intention on the part of Rome. We do not say that there is no foundation for the report; but we do say that it is mere guess work, exactly like all Roman despatches to the American press. Happily Rome is but slightly influenced, if at all, by these bits of pub-ished information, and the authors of them rely upon the future to either justify their guessing or to make it convenient for them to suddenly forget that they had ever made such prophetic assertions.

and Canadian press can tell all

For example, this persistent

We do not often refer to our own editorial statements, nor to those of our special correspondents for the good reason that we do not consider they require any corroboration. But we cannot help recalling to the minds of our readers two statements that appeared in these columns a week ago. In an article upon the situation in France, in the course of which the present Premier was criticised, it will be remembed that we compared him to Nero, and that we mentioned the very unenviable position he has taken in becoming the cat's paw of a malignant minority, the members of which are glad to make use of him for the occasion.

In glancing over French exchanges we have come upon a striking Paris. caricature, in which Combes is represented as Nero, seated upon his throne in the amphitheatre and gazing upon the martyrdoms that are taking place in the arena. The legend under the cut reads thus:-

Combes a Nero. France: "Why do you persecute the clergy?"

Combes-Nero: "Because they edu-

This is about the sum and substance of the affair. The spirit manifested by Combes in persecuting those to whom he owed his education, is not unlike that of Nero commanding the murder of his own mother, "because she gave him birth.'

But the "Revue des Deux Mondes" strikes the second note, even more strongly than we did, when it says:

'We remember a former minister of war, who was called General Thibaudin. He was a poor creature in every sense of the word. In the absence of a man of worth willing to undertake the task, he had accepted office of minister of war in order to carry out the law expelling royal princes from the army. His task being done, he was kicked out doors, not without a feeling of vices. We will not commit the inustice of comparing M. Combes with General Thibaudin. He is more intelligent and more responsible. But the work he is doing is not a bit

This is certainly heaping on coals. grave doubts as to the ultimate execution of the "Law of Associations." Not that we imagined the Law would not pass, but simply that we not think France contained a public man capable of assuming the responfor its tyrannical enforcement. But we were mistaken; the man was forthcoming when the occasion demanded, and with the passing of the occasion the man shall disappear into the nonentity and oblivion out of which he so suddenly

The London' "Tablet" has come about the nearest of all organs to a proper solution of the problem that France's Premier and his course have set before the thinking world. The "Tablet" claims that the purpose of Combes is to force the Pope into some act of resistance that might serve as an excuse for the abrogation of the concordat. And it adds that the Holy Father will not be thus caught, nor will he take any action that might serve the purposes of the Church's enemies. He a genius, and a past-master in statesmanship, who can, at this day, out-manoeuvre the aged Leo XIII. and Combes is not of that calibre!

TECHNICAL TRAINING. -There is a great deal written and said, in our day, about technical training for BAD LITERATURE AGAIN. — We the boys; but it scarcely ever crosses the minds of these advanced educationalists to think of technical traingles agreed to the agency of the boys; but it scarcely ever crosses the minds of these advanced educationalists to think of technical traingles agreed to the agency of the Blessed Virgin. Her case created a great sensation among the English pilgrims.

thing to have a young girl fully educated; her music is charming; her painting is beautiful; her literary acquirements are elevating. It is also very nice for her to have a smatphilosophy. But these are attainments that presuppose either a teacher's vocation, or else a parent's wealth, in order that they can ever be of any practical use. comparatively early age. They go out of school to go into the facory, or the office; they go out of the factory, or the office, to go into home, as the mother and head of family. What on earth can they know about house-keeping, about the duties of a wife, or of a mother, or AN ESTIMATE OF COMBES. — picted in Marie Correlli's novel learned enough to unsuit them for their destined place in life, and not enough to be of any use either to themselves or others. What if to the reading of the same book. little technical training were introduced into the schools for young girls?

> vy the notorious novelist whose pen MUNICIPAL WISDOM .- The Solhas poisoned so many young lives ons, or mayors, of the principal and ruined so many souls. It was Canadian centres have met in cononly last Saturday that a literary vention within the good city of critic in the "Star" had the hardihood to defend this female fabrications concerning municipal governtor of moral infernal machines, un- ment. The convention was a most der the title of novels. We had the enjoyable affair, and it was a splendid occasion for a fireworks display and the patience to follow each of of oratory and advice. The theories them to the end, in order to find, advanced were all exceedingly sound, if it were possible, some redeeming as lar as theory goes; but the pracas far as theory goes; but the pracfeature in her output; but we closed tical side of the question seems to each volume in greater disgust then have been strangled in the midst of the previous one. Style and artistic conviviality. Take Montreal as an talent can never sufficiently veneer example. The good mayors— except that which is radically false and immoral to impart to it an air of respectability. But the world will clusion that municipal government sooner or later have to learn the needed reformation. terrible lesson that the bad litera- we are still anxious for the putting ture of the day, the sensational no- into practice of all these brilliant vel above all, is undermining the so- theories. We are also anxious for structure and is becoming a the advent of that wonderful being, deadly menace to the future genera-tion. Even if the evil, in its results, own seat or opportunities for the were to stop with the suicidal deaths sake of the reforms that he advowhich it instigates matters would cates. Such the Moses amongst his not be so bad; but when it is rotting people that we would like to see the heart of society it becomes a arise.

THE LATE WILLIAM RAWLEY

One of the most prominent figures in the ranks of the Irish National societies of Montreal was Mr. Wilfast approaching, when the States of the world, be they Republican, monarchical, or otherwise, will have liam Rawley, of H. M. Customs, whose death we are called upon to announce this week. Mr. Rawley to learn and admit that the Church had been ailling for some time past, is actually the only true friend they but notwithstanding the fact that he was nearing the Psalmist's allotted shame at the necessity for his sergainst the dangers that menace and span of life—he was 68 years old—vices. We will not commit the inthe evils that augment. ances anticipated that his illness would prove fatal. Mr. Rawley was out advancing any opinion concern- a member of St. Patrick's Society, port that Mgr. Falconio is to be translated from Ottawa to Washington, we cannot but express our surprise at assurance of the secular prise at assurance of the secular in connection with the A.O.H., of the parent Irish organization of which he was one of the most enthusiastic members. Until recently he was County President of that Orbe guided by all the rumored changes der. The funeral took Tuesday from St. Patrick's Church

Miracle at Lourdes

The "Daily Chronicle," London says that a Mrs. Notterman has re turned to her home in London from pilgrimage to Lourdes, France where, to all appearances, she was miraculously cured of an internal cancerous tumor.

Mrs. Notterman was unavailingly treated for cancer before going to France by experts in the London hospitals. On entering the waters at Lourdes she experienced a fainting sensation, accompanied by pain.
In a few minutes this passed away and with it the swelling of the tu-

Both as Lourdes and since her re turn to London Mrs. Notterman has been examined by doctors, who pro-nounce her absolutely cured. She attributes her cure to the agency of

THE CATHOLIC SAILORS' CLUB.

A large and enthusiastic audience was present at the concert given on Wednesday evening in the hall of the Catholic Sailors' Club, under the auspices of St. Patrick's Court.

Catholic Order of Foresters. The Hon, Dr. Guerin, who occupied the chair, thanked the audience for their attendance. The Catholic Order of Foresters, he said, would be always pleased to extend a helping hand to every movement and institution which aimed at the advancement of the cause of Catholicity. In providing a Mass for men every Sunday morning the Cath-olic Sailors' Club was doing a good work and it was also meeting long-felt want in giving the Catholic seamen coming to this port the benefit of the club-rooms, of the influence of the executive members of concerts. These sailors should be made acquainted with the fact that a disciple of St. Ignatius Loyola was always ready to minister to their spiritual wants. Sailors of other denominations should know that their temporal wants will be looked after by those in charge of the Club. He understood that it was the intention of the managethe sailors: and he hoped that when an appeal was made for funds for this object it would meet with a prompt and a generous response. The programme was as follows:— Messrs. Clark, Patterson and Cloran, J. P. Meehan, F. Riddell, J. Miss Donnelly, Miss Bannister, O'Brien, Mr. H. P. Betty, Mr. P. Kelly, Miss Mary Agnes Robkin; Seamen Hugh Boyle, steamship Pomeranian; Jas. Gilliland, Pomeranian; Wm. Frampton, Montcalm; Micheal Downey, Rosarian; John Marsh, Pomeranian; Wm. Cochrane,

HON. DR. GUERIN.

A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save Ireland."

Mrs. Jennie Riley McIntyre, accompanist.

At next Wednesday's concert Seaman Smith, of the Tunisian, will by special request sing "The Boys of Wexford" and "The Wearing of the Green."

Notes From Lachine.

THE SISTERS OF ST. ANN .- On the feast of the Nativity the feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin the Rev. Father Langevin, chaplain of the community, presided at a religious profession in the chapel of the convent of the Sisters of St. Ann, Lachine. The names to his prayers. Catholics, contiof the novices are as follows: Sis-ter Annie Gray, of Victoria, Cape of the English martyrs! Men of our Mary Breton, in religion Sister Thomas of the Rosary; Sister Eugenie Charlebois, of Montebello, Sister Mary Jane of Portugal; Sister Eugenie Mercier, of Three Rivers, Sister Mary Artemia; Sister Albina Lacasse, of St. Hypolite, Sister Mary ry Alberta; Sister Evifa Dube, of Haverstraw, N.Y., Sister Mary Theonas; Sister Rose Ann Turcotte, of St. Hypolite, Sister Mary Moses. makes life dear; yet in many there it was the fifty-second anniversary is little of self-spcrifice, and we need

Sisters who founded the Order of St. Vindicate,

Sunday the English-speaking Cath-Sunday the English-Speakers olics of Lachine organized a Holy Name Society for men. Seventy Name Society for men. Seventy members were enrolled. The following officers were elected:

Hon. President, Rev. Canon Savaria; president, Mr. W. Riley; first vice-president, Mr. P. McGee; second vice-president, Mr. Ferguson; treasurer, Mr. James Enright; secretary, Mr. S. M. Lowrie; correspond-ing secretary, Mr. Saniel Corcoran; librarian, Mr. C. Dunnigan; marshal, Mr. David Corcoran, ir.; and he following committee, Messrs. P. Fleming, J. McCall, Eugene Corcoran, David Corcoran, sr., Wm. Rouome, R. Hogan. The Rev. Father Cullinan, is the chaplain of the new society, which will, in the future affiliate with it the lady members of the congregation.

A Priestly Martyr of England.

On the occasion of the pilgrimage to the grave of the martyred Eng lish priest, the Rev. John Kemble at Welsh Newton, which was noted in a recent issue of the "True Witness," the Right Rev. Prior Cummins, O.S.B., delivered an interesting sermon. He said that the pil-grims had assembled that day from many parts of the country to honor one of the martyred priests of Eng. land, one who was born in that district, who labored there for over fifty years, who was martyred in their country town and was buried in this place. Beneath that stone, 223 years ago were laid the mangled remains of a saintly old man, done to death on this day for priesthood and the profession of the Catholic Faith. The voice of the people long ago proclaimed him a martyr; pilgrimages to his grave had often been made before: had invoked his intercession and believed that wonderful graces had been given in answer to his pray-The Church's judgment had alers. ready been passed on many others who suffered under the same laws and for the same cause as Father Kemble; that they were neither obstinate fanatics nor disloyal trait. ors, but faithful martyrs-England's truest friends and noblest sons. Father John Kemble was almost the last priest to receive the palm of martyrdom in England, and he is perhaps the only tomb of a martyrpriest which is absolutely undoubted. Born in 1599 at Rhydyear, about four miles from Welsh Newton. he passed his youth in this district until, inspired by the example of Father Roger Cadwallader, the martyr of Leominster, he went to Douai where he was ordained in 1625. That same year began his long apostolate of 54 years among the farmsteads, he was the snepherd of a scattered and harrassed flocv. When nearly 80 years of age enduring the excitement of Titus Oates' plot he was seized at Pembridge Castle, the house of his nephew, lodged in Hereford goal, hurried up to London and back again, tried and condemned for his priesthood and Faith and then executed at Widemarsh Hereford, on August 22nd, 1679. The incident of his calmly smoking a last pipe and drinking a cup of sack on his way to martyrdom impressed itself on the imagination of the people as suggesting the simple, unaffected character of the holy old man The mutilated remains were given to his nephew and buried in this churchyard; his grave at once became a place of pilgrimage, and mirown race and country, bearing familiar English names, speaking our dear mother tongue they lived and labored in our shires and towns: their generous blood stained ground on which we tread each day and they died to keep the Faith for to be—the greatest lacrosse team in us! The martyr spirit is not extinct amongst us whilst we see men city and to the citizens of Montreal, still forsaking for the Faith all that of the religious profession of the to emulate the Martyrs' example. ate, O God, their mem-that men may see in ory, HOLY NAME SOCIETY. — Last them true patriots and loyal Englishmen. Let their blood plead them true before Thee for Christian vengeance -the martyr's recompense in the conversion of his persecutors. Turn men's heart to the ancient Faith for which they died! Make us more worthy in our lives and sacrifices of the glorious inheritance of our Faith. O Holy Catholic Faith, Faith of our fathers, how we long and pray for thy triumph in this land! But if not our prayers, then may our Martyrs' merits win our country back to Thee! May God grant us this grace in His mercy!

The Shanirocks Are Champions.

(By a Subscriber.)

We have followed with a great deal of interest and with much more pride the success of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club during the season just coming to a close, and now that their glorious victory of last Saturday has given them the title of world champions of 1902, we cannot let the occasion go by without a word of approbation, praise and congratulation

It was a gala day for the admirers of the Shamrocks when the New Westminster team came here to match their strength against our Eastern champions, and forced by the superiority of Canada's great lacrosse team, to relinquish their aspirations to the coveted Minto Trophy, they left us not a conquering, but a conquered twelve.

Yet it was not such a victory as was that of last Saturday. The Capitals were, beyond a doubt, from the opening of the season the most formidable, and consequently the most dangerous aggregation against which the Shamrocks were called upon to defend their title.

It has been always so. The Senators, as they are commonly called, have ever, within the memory of the younger followers of lacrosse, with the Shamrocks the greatest exponents of the game in Canada. We think it but just to say, with no reflection on the efforts of other lacrosse unions, that to these two aggregations, and to the friendly rivalry long-standing between them due the success and popularity of Many conjectures have been made as to the number of friends who accompanied the Shamrocks to Ottawa. On this point, however, all agree, it was the greatest following that ever travelled to witness a match, and cheer their favorites on to victory. The number about the G. T. R. Station waiting the arrival of the victors was by no means an inferior one, and travellers arriving by trains earlier than the excursion special opened their eyes in wonder at the throng, questioned the cause of the huge gathering, and were answered but by the uproarous hurrahs, cheers and exclamations of praise of which the only intelligible word was "Shamrocks." St. Ann's school band was there, and with its good old Irish airs, worked up beyond description the enthusiasm of the throng. When at last the train pulled in, a rush was made for the players, and they were borne away almost on the shoulders of the moving mass of people.

Truly, it was a sight worth seeing, and a pledge of the well deserved popularity of our young Irish athletes. Of them it is no idle boast to say that we feel proud of them, and justly so, that we hold them what they have proven themselves a credit to their Association, and a credit to the dear old colors they Directory United Irish League.

Dublin, September 6th, 1902.

September a great public meeting of the citizens was held in the Supper Room, Mansion House, to protest against the recent proclamation the city of Dublin under the Coer-The meeting was convened by the Lord Mayor for the twofold purpose of protesting and make arrangements for the mass meeting of the citizens which is being called for Sunday week. A considerable time before the hour fixed for commencing the spacious hall was well filled, and as time went on the gathering so largely increased that numbers were unable to obtain sitting accommodation. In Dawson street people collected to watch the entry of the members of Parliament the delegates. A remarkable feature of the gathering was the presence of a number of clergymen and ladies. No less than 15 aldermen and 40 councillors, members of the Corporation; both North and South Dublin Unions were fully represented. The entry of Mr. John Redmond and the other members of the Irish Party was the signal for prolonged cheering by those in the hall. The Lord Mayor took the chair exactly at twenty minutes past four o'clock, and on the platform with him were Messrs. John E. Redmond, M. P.; John Dillon, M.P.; James M'Cann, Wm. Field, M.P.; J. J. Clancy, M.P.; J. G. Swifte MacMeill, M. P.; P. White, M.P.; J. P. Nannetti, M.P.; and Andrew Kettle. When the meeting was opened there was scarce standing room in any part of the hall, and the proceedings throughwere not marred by a single discordant note.

The chair was taken by the Lord Mayor at twenty minutes past four o'clock.

THE LORD MAYOR, who on rising was received with loud cheers. said:-Fellow-citizens, I have thought it my duty, in face of the extraordinary circumstance that has arisen here to-day to consult as to the atwhich has been made upon the character of our city. We are not unaccustomed in Ireland to proclamations and Coercion Acts. But doubt if the memory of even the oldest amongst us goes back to a time at which there was so unjustifiable and so inexplicable an attack upon the character and the liberty of the did not stand up in indignant pro- surd travesty of government seen? first resolution.

M.P., who was received with cheers, | said, I am glad the protest has comthen proposed the following resolu-

"That this meeting of citizens of Dublin desires to place on record its most emphatic protest against the action of the Executive Government in proclaiming the city of Dublin under the Coercion Act, and thereby depriving all citizens politically opposed to the Government, of the most essential constitutional safeguards of their personal liberty."

It was his duty as one of the membe effective, must not end even there. The real way to protest ahers of the city to propose this resolution. They all remembered the history of this Coercion Act. Well, tical situation all through it was an unconstitutional Act, passed in a panic-an Act that would not be tolerated by any people in a country governed on constitutional Follow-citizens the effect of this act The three safeguards of liberty under a Constitutional Gov- should instantly be discernible. were the right of public meeting, the right of association, and of view the proclamation ought to the exercise of a free press. He held be of considerable value to us, It it was the duty of every man who ought to be an incentive to the men loved liberty not only in Dublin. but of Dublin to take up the challenge in Ireland, to resist this Coercion Act by every means in their power Act by every means in their power, so that they might obtain that right of speech and action which belonged strong, as powerful, and as menacof speech and action which belonged to every free man in every free na-

Mr. James M'Cann, M.P., who was loudly cheered, seconded the re-DURI IN'S ANSWER -On the 5th solution.

> MR. REDMOND'S SPEECH .- Mr John Redmond, on coming forward to support the resolution, was received with a long-continued outburst of cheers. He said:-My Lord Mayor, ladies, and gentlemen- The outrage against which we have met here to-day to lift our voices must be met by protests of various kinds. but I think that the proper official protest of the city of Dublin is rightly being made here in this place, rightly presided over by the Chief Magistrate of the city. Ladies and gentlemen, in no other country in the civilized world could an outrage of this character be perpetrated upon the people. Why, I heard Mr. Wyndham himself, in the House of Commons, declaring that Ireland was freer from crime at this period than at any period of which there were any records. If this is true of Ireland as a whole, in a special manner is it true of the city of Dublin. I venture to say that in the whole civilized world there is not a city of the same population as free from crime as Dublin; and yet in face of these facts the public are solemnly told in a proclamation issued from Dublin Castle that the ordinary rights of freemen must be suspended in the city in order to prevent, detect, and punish crime. Fefllow-citizens, that proclamation is a lie. It is known to be a lie by every citizen, whatever his religion or his po-titical party may be. It is pertinent to ask upon whose advice has the proclamation been issued?

I want to know whether outside the narrow ring of paid officials in gainst the protest of the Parliamen-Dublin Castle whether any single citizen of the metropolis has been consulted. I want to know whether the Catholic or Protestant Archbishops of Dublin has been consulted? Have the ministers of religion of any creed been consulted? Have even the police magistrates who administer during the past few days, to call you the law from day to day been consulted? I venture to assert without the slightest fear of contradiction that outside the narrow circle of paid officials in Dublin Castle, not one single citizen of Dublin nas been consulted as to the issue of this proclamation which suspends the rights the "Daily Telegraph." It says:of the Constitution from the population of this city. It has been issued simply in obedience to the whim of city in which we live. I think it is a despotic ruler who, as far as we incumbent upon every class of the can judge, is animated in his Irish the Crown citizens, upon those who are in a- policy by the views of a little gang greement with the political views of of anti-irish absentee landlords who which has distinguished itself lately the Government, as well as those are able as they choose to move who are opposed to the Government the machinery of Dublin Castle. In the outspokenness of its exhortato demand some explanation for the some respects the political situation tions to its readers to break the law extraordinary attack upon our city in Ireland at this moment is absoand upon our citizens. We would be lutely laughable. Now, I seriously worse than the slaves the English ask, outside the pages of "Gulliver's Government try to make us if we Travels," was there ever such an abtest against that insult, and it is But I recognize that laughable as to consider the situation and to de- the situation is from that point of vise the best means by which you view, we who are the sufferers in called—to enforce respect for the will give effect to that protest that this matter cannot afford to laugh law. Having taken it up, we hope I have invited you here to-day. I at the absurdity of it. This was a will now ask Mr. Field, the member gross and wicked outrage. It about Parliament for St. Patrick's Diviousless all the rights of freemen in the city of Dublin, and therefore I say that it is right that the citizens of Dublin should instantly assemble to make a protest against THE RESOLUTIONS .- Mr. Field, what has happened; and, as I have menced here in the official headquart ers of the citizens of Dublin their Chief Magistrate in the chair But, fellow-citizens, if this protes is to be effective the proceedings of this room to-day must be but the commencement of the protest. The protest must go on outside this coom, and an opportunity must be given to the great mass of the citizens of Dublin to express their opin ions upon what has happened.

desire to say that the protest, to gainst this act is to make the poliand here in Dublin, too hot for those men, who are guilty of putting thi outrage and insult upon the people of the Government, in my opinion

therefore say that from that point and to answer back the insult.

League of 20 years ago. If you want really to protest against this proclamation that is the way to do it. Let this proclamation be a signal to the Nationalists of Dublin to rise up as one man to join the United Irish League, and to create here a fierce agitation in this city, and if it acts as a signal in that way then it will be indeed of great service to us; and for my part I mistake the spirit of the citizens of this grand old city of Dublin if they do not instantly take up the challenge and fling back the face of this English hireling the insult he has put upon their city

MR. DILLON'S SPEECH - Mr

John Dillon, M.P., who was received with loud cheers, said:- Mr. Lord Mayor and fellow-citizens, I most heartily support this resolution, I will commence the few observations which I desire to address this meeting of the citizens of Dubto-day by putting a which every man is asking himself-'Why has the city of Dublin been proclaimed?" It is a very difficult question to answer. The city, as Mr. Redmond has pointed out, distinguished for its freedom from and if one compares the city of Dublin with certain other great cities within the borders of the called United Kingdom we shall be more than struck by the audacity of this act. Let us cross the water. Take Birmingham, where on a reoccasion the Town Hall sacked by a mob. where 110 policemen were carried off the streets Birmingham as the result of that But the city of Birmingham is riot. not proclaimed; and I say that the city of Dublin in this matter of peace, freedom from crime in the true acceptance of the word, and order can bear comparison with city of its size in any part of the and I assert that in whole history of civilized nations there never has been a spectacle similar to that which is witnessed the city of Dublin to-day, namely suspension of the Constitution and the proclamation under the Coercion Act of a great city against the protest of its first magistrate, a tary representatives of that city Then, why is Dublin proclaimed? Now, I cannot answer the question out of my own intelligence. Our intelligence in Ireland is, I suppose, too dull for questions of that char acter. We have to look across the Press of England, and here I will give you an extract from one of the great London daily organs, which are the supporters of the Government, and which professes to give the reason why Ireland is proclaim-

"The County Borough of Dublin is included within the scope of the order, with the object it is surmised, of enabling the representatives TO DEAL SHARPLY A CERTAIN NEWSPAPER HIIW by the virulence of its language and of the land. Fully half of Ireland therefore, is now proclaimed as disturbed and disaffected. The patriots have got their wish. They have driven the Government in self-de fence to grasp more firmly the weap on of Coercion-if Coercion it can be the Irish executive will take vigor ous use of it, and not hesitate to fill the jails, but, if possible with the the agitation rather than

I will give you an extract from

with their dupes. Now, that is their view in London of the best way to govern the Irish people. that is my conviction, based upon my experience of Irish public that if they desired to make Ireland impossible of rule, they could not t about it in a more effectual way We constitutional agitators, have often been criticised, and I, for my part, have never found fault with those who criticised us (some of the best and warmest friends that I have had in public life are men who have no faith in constitutional agitation) I am not surprised at that. We have sections of our countrymen here at home in Ireland, and still more aross the Atlantic Ocean in America, for still adhering to the hope that constitutional agitation may do omething for Ireland. But I say wanting to persuade those who are inclined to criticise us, to give us ome help and give us at least a fair chance, it is this blow that is aimed at us by the Government, because the instinct of the Irish people here and in America will tell them that we-whatever the merits of the pol-telligent English newspaper that Dublin is proclaimed-and it is the only reason I have seen stated- for the purpose of dealing with one greater compliment was never paid to a newspaper. Today the capital of Ireland itself is deprived of its liberties, and the British Government by this act have proclaimed to the whole world their incapacity to govern the Irish peobecause in the public opinion of the civilized world the nation which can only maintain its government by the suspension of the liberties of the and the denial of constitutional rights-that Government was condemned, and it was only a question of time until it was hastened unto its fall. He (Mr. Dillon) said he rejoiced, for his part that, gross and monstrous as was the insult which had been levelled by this proclamation against the city of Dublin, he rejoiced at this proclamation, because it had put down ever the miserable spirit of flunkeyism which they had in this city, the capital of Ireland; ay, and in the capital of the South. After that proclamation every man in Ireland would be compelled to take sides for or against it. That proclamation, he confidently hoped, had opened a new chapter in the history of their struggle, when the great tug-of-war would be fought out on a final conclusive issue, and it would be settled for this generation and for their time whether in Ireland—in old, and holy Ireland—the stranger was to or the ancient Celtic people of the land.

MASS MEETING. -Mr. J. P. Nannetti, M.P., moved-"That, with a view of giving to the general body of the citizens of Dublin an opportunity of expressing their views of the outrage, which has been committed on the city of Dublin by Mr Wyndham and the Castle Executive. we hereby invite the citizens to assemble in public meeting Phoenix Park on Sunday, 14th September; and that a committee be hereby appointed to make arrangements for the holding of the propos ed meeting. In proposing the resolution, Mr. Nannetti said its terms formed a fitting corollary to the speeches to which they had just listened. He, as one of the members for the city, welcomed the proclamation, and hoped that they would have more of it, if only it would effect a stirring up of the manhood of Dubin and of Ireland generally

The Lord Mayor, in putting the re solution, said he was aware that they had Conservative gentlemen af that meeting, and he was glad say that he believed that everything that was politically good and worin the Conservative feeling the commercial life of Dublin utterly repudiated the action of the Gov ernment in this proclamation. Adopted.

A vote of thanks being passed to the Lord Mayor, the meeting con-

THE DE FREYNE ESTATE. Last week several influential and re presentative men visited the De Freyne and other of the Associated Estates. Among those were:- Mr. D'Arcy Scott, of Ottawa, who visit ed the estates on Tuesday; Mr. Marshall, Councillor of Halifax, and the late private secretary to Sir George Trevelyan. Both gentlemen Messrs. John Fitzgibbon, Webb, and Johnston. The latter accompanied Scott in his tour of the estates on Tuesday.

On Wednesday and Thursday Mr. Law, M.P., accompanied by Mr. Masterman, of Christ Church, Cambridge, and Mr. Toland, of the Boston Pilot," visited the estates. They also saw Messrs. Fitzgibbon and Webb, and were shown over the district by Mr. Denis Johnston, to whom they handed large subscriptions for the trustees of the tenants' fund, to aid in the struggle. All the visitors were great impressed the misery of the people, and the quality of the lands.

THE COURTHOUSES. - An adourned quarterly meeting of Swinford Rural District Council was ned at the boardroom, Swinford, on 30th August, for the con-Swinford, on Saturday, for the consideration of tenders for repair of roads, etc., Mr. M. C. Henry, J.P., Chairman, presiding. Other bers present:-Messrs. J. Jennings. T. Costello, J. Devitt, P. Conlon, J. A. Mellett, M. Dunleavy, Keane, M. Murphy, M. F. Campbell. and P. Kelly.

The Council held this meeting in the boardroom for the consideration of business in connection with roads. etc., for the first time, instead of at the Courthouse, as a protest a-gainst the action of Dublin Castle icy may be—who are for the moment struck at by the Castle, deserve the unanimous praise of all honest Irishmen. Well; we are told by this intrict Councillors for the purpose presenting addresses to Mr. William O'Brien, M.P.

At the quarterly meeting of the Ballina Rural District Council, on Sept. 1st, the chairman, Mr. M. J. Melvin, J.P., Co. C., presiding, Rural District Council, the chairman, Mr. M. J. Melvin, J.P., County Councillor, presiding, the members first met at the courthouse. A large crowd of the general public bled. Mr. Millen, P.L.G., said that he had a resolution to propose, and he felt sure that he would be ventilating the sentiments of the councillors

Resolved-"That we highly prove and endorse the action of the Co. Council in refusing to maintain these buildings, and trust they will be successful in testing this very important point. As the Council have to maintain these buildings out of the ratepayers' pockets, we cannat see why we should not use them to give expression to the wishes and desires of the people, and not be tortured by a non-descript of the Bingham class." (Cheers).

The resolution was carried amidst loud applause, and the Council, accompanied by the general public, proceeded to the boardroom, where they proceeded with the business

In Ireland.

(By an Occasional Correspondent.)

Commenting upon the recent and renewed application of coercive measures in Ireland, by the English Government, the "Gazette" makes the following remark: "It is an unfortunate state of affairs, but it is also an unavoidable result of conditions as they are. Home Rule has been rejected, and the Government has to protect people who are loyal to it, at any cost to those who are Here are two sentences that it is most difficult to characterize, and keep within the limits of calm journalistic expression. In fact, we feel so incapable of properly qualifying them in ordinary English that we prefer not to make use of any jectives at all. In the first place "unfortunate state of affairs" is not only "the unavoidable result of conditions as they are." but of spirit and the maladministration that have combined to make them as they are. "Home Rule been rejected," but not by Ireland, nor by the Irish people, nor by a majority of them, but by the bitter old irreconciliable enemies of the land, the people, and their cause. 'The Government has to protect people who are loyal to it," that is to say the small minority, "at any cost"-a dangerous and false expression-"to those who are not"-that is to the vast majority of the peo-

does not say "people who are loyal to the Crown," or "to the constitution," or "to the law;" but "to the Government." Would such a principle be tolerated one hour in Canada? We venture to say that were a Canadian Government so unpatriotic, so unpractical, so short-sighted as to proclaim its intention of protecting its adherents, its supporters those who are loyal to its cause, ano matter at what cost to its opponents, the "Gazette" would be the first to raise an outcry that would ring as far as its circulation - be that great or small-extends.

Coercion has been tried, and tried over and over again, as a method of governing Ireland, and, in every instance, it has failed in a most em phatic manner. We know that the present Premier has expressed himself as opposed to a coercive administration of the law in Ireland But the new Premier must make some concession to Mr. Chamberlain by way of compensation for having succeeded in winning from him the Premiership. And it is the hand of the Colonial Secretary that is most visible in this new and uncalled-for departure It was his deadly oppo sition to Ireland and to the principle of Home Rule that drove him out of the Liberal Party, that created that Unionist section of which was the parent, that kept him in the councils of the Conservative party.
It was that same detestation of the Irish cause that made him stultify himself, with contradictory policies in the eyes of civilization. While loudly proclaiming the glories of self-government for the colonies, he

The blank results of the long-anticipated conference of the Premiers has been the severest blow ever delt to the scheming statesman of Birmingham. Like the spider that weaves his web to entangle his victims, Mr. Chamberlain simply pretended to favor colonial freedom in order to drag the colonies into the Imperialistic vortex, and them faster to the Central Power, with shackles of their own forging, He failed in his project, and equally will he fail in the second part of his tyrannic programme- the reduction, by coercion, of the Irish people to a slavery still more abject than that which his fertile but perverted political sense had designed for the col-

The proclaiming unnecessarily of section of the country, the coercive methods resorted to by the Government, the doctrine of the crushing out, at any cost of the opponents of the powers that be, and the broad and false principle laid down by the "Gazette," all are so many ele-ments that spell "brute force," or 'might is right." The other day when a prelate of France ventured to remonstrate with Premier Combo and asked him why he enforced with so much harshness the law against the religious orders, the Premier made reply, "because I have a ma jority in the Chamber of Deputies at my back." This answer, if given by a Canadian Premier would evoke expressions of unbounded indignation from the "Gazette," yet, in the case of Ireland that organ lays down and advocates the exact same spirit and principle.

The only lesson to be drawn from the whole matter is that no English Government is capable of governing Ireland without having a cowardly recourse to to coercion. Consequently, the only remedy lies in the prin ciple of Home Rule. Coercion been tried, times out of mind; it has proved a big mistake, a fearful failure. Home Rule, even on a motion limited plan, has never yet tried Would not wise statesman ship suggest to any person, unblinded by passion and prejudice, that the only possible, or probable, chance of securing peace in Ireland and gaining over the country to the British Empire, is that of Home Rule? We epeat that Canada would not tolerate for twenty-four hours the maladministration of which Ireland is the victim. And Canada is loyal; Canada's loyalty is the boast peer and peasant. But Canada is loyal, because she has Home Rule; and she has Home Rule because she had a period of '37 and '38-not because the Chamberlains of the past loved liberty or wished to leave the colony free. There are more lessons than one to be drawn from Canadian history; and it might serve the British Government, if the Chief Secretary for the Colonies were to read a little more closely and reflect a little more seriously upon that history.

LADIES' TAILORING. PARISIAN DRESSMAKING mmmmi

LIANTAL DANALIMANI

Unexcelled price values, and an unrivalled assortment of all the latest and best novelties, are drawing daily crowds to our Flannel Counter. It will pay in lasting satisfaction as well as in moneysaving to visit us.

NEW FANCY FRENCH OPERA FLANNELS, 150 Patterns to select from.
THE NEW "AWOOLLA" FLANNELS FOR BLOUSES, in plain and fancy patterns.
NEW SELF-COLORED OPERA FLANNELS, in all the leading shades.
NEW SAXONY FLANNELS, in White, Scarlet and Navy Blue
NEW ALL-WOOL SHIRTING FLANMELS, in fancy stripes and checks,
NEW GRAY FLANNELS, a full assortment in plain and twilled

ment in plain and twilled NEW TENNIS FLANNELS. White and Colored.

NEW ENGLISH AND CANADIAN FLANNELETIES, in fancy patterns, also in stripes and checks.

NEW EIDERDOWN FLANNELS AND FLANNELETIES, in all shades.

NEW CANTON FLANNELS, in White, Cream and Self-Colored.

Country Orders Carefully Filled. Samples Sent by Mail.

JOHN MURPHY & CO.

2545 St. Satherine Street, corners! Motcalfe Street. Terms Cash Telephone Up 2749 OUR CURBSTONE OBSERVER.

inclined to jump

subject to anot

ing as my obser opened their classes and led me to visit a coupl

minent houses of educat

first of the month. I w notice the large attenda

pils, and to see so many commencing to acquire ledge which is so absol

sary in this age. It is couraging sight to beho and to know that such

the city's youth are bei

in a proper manner for of after-life. But I w struck with the grave d as far as numbers go, b ers and pupils. So mu pressed with the object

fore me, that I could no

temptation of occupying press me.

transition-

The school

space this week with m reflections. THE DISPROPORTIO have it understood that finding fault with nor ther the teachers, or the or those whose duty it tend our schools; but I dissatisfied with status To be plain, there are teachers for the number If any person will take to find out the number tending the different Car of this city, and then the teachers engaged in the structing those boys, it ly shown that we need ed more teachers to d the riseing generation. ers are not to be blame not multiply themselves. can fault be found with institutions; they car teachers. Yet someboo authority is in the wron opinion-if that is wort is that there is not suff agement by way of sala inducements extended to profession. Our Board Commissioners, the Cou lic Instruction, the Prov ernment-with its edu partment-may all have do with the matter; I upon what shoulders the ity rests, but decidedly a poor future for the t few of our competent me duced to follow the cal the small number of compared with the large creasing number of pup instance, I am unfortuna position of one who can the evil, but cannot remedy. I am not suffi versant with the syste tains to state exactly v be done, or how, or t should be done. All I nothing could be mor possibly nine people ou ten who have the opp visiting the classes of will imagine it to be as grand success and of gr if the class-room is full ing of the elementary c cording as you go upwa pils become less numero classes; some have left ers have gone to other so on; but of a class of in the first year, you v find more than 5 who graduating class. Ther room in the upper class when a pupil has reach stage of advancement, l ed how to study, how himself, and he needs le and minute personal att classes, the pupil requir stant guiding hand of and this he cannot get.

than the actual situation

AN EXPLANATION -

A LOSS OF TIME.-I

Lemon Juice For Rhen

The idea of treating with lemon juice appear had its rise in Germany. consists in swallowing to one lemon on the first on progressive up to tw results of the long-antiof the Colonial been the severest blow the scheming statesman ham. Like the his web to entangle his Chamberlain simply prevor colonial freedor g the colonies into the vortex, and to bind to the Central Power, es of their own forging. his project, and equally in the second part of his gramme— the reduction, of the Irish people to a more abject than that rtile but perverted poliand designed for the coliming unnecessarily of he country, the coercive orted to by the Govern doctrine of the crushing cost of the opponents of that be, and the broad inciple laid down by the all are so many spell "brute force," many eleight." The other day ate of France ventured ate with Premier Combes im why he enforced with shness the law against is orders, the Premier "because I have a ma-Chamber of Deputies at This answer, if an Premier would evoke of unbounded indignation azette," yet, in the case that organ lays down es the exact same spirit

esson to be drawn fro

atter is that no English is capable of governing hout having a cowardly to coercion. Consequentremedy lies in the prin-ne Rule. Coercion has imes out of mind: it has mistake, a fearful fail-Rule, even on a most has never yet d not wise statesmanto any person, unblindand prejudice, that the or probable, chance of ce in Ireland and gaincountry to the British hat of Home Rule? Canada would not tolerty-four hours the malon of which Ireland is And Canada is loval: yalty is the boast of sant. But Canada is e she has Home Rule; Home Rule because she of '37 and '38-not beamberlains of the past or wished to leave the There are more lessons be drawn from Canaand it might serve the ernment, if the Chief the Colonies were to more closely and reflect seriously upon that his-est novelties, are drawrowds to our Flannel It will pay in lasting as well as in money-sit us.

& CO.

 ES' TAILORING. AN DRESSMAKING mmi

Department.

FRENCH OPERA FLAN-Patterns to select from. VOOLLA" FLANNELS FOR in plain and fancy patterns.
ULOILED OPERA FLAN-Il the leading shades.
Y FLANNELS, in White, Navy Blue
OCL SHIRTING FLANney stripes and checks.
LANNELS, a full assortin and twilled FLANNELS. White and

AND CANADIAN FLANchecks. ETTES, in all shades.

FLANNELS, in White, Self-Colored.

lers Carefully Filled. s Sent by Mail.

IURPHY & CO. erine Street, cornersf Tetcalfo Street.Telephone Up 2749

WY MOREOGRAPHICAL CALCALON CAL  OUR CURBSTONE On Teachers and Classes. OBSERVER.

pupils, all under the direction of one eacher. I will not mince matters

this is wrong, radically wrong; this is unjust to the teacher, who cannot work miracles, unjust to the pupils, who simply lose their time and learn nothing, and unjust to the parents who have to pay for their ducation. I will say nothing about the very numerously attended classes will give that class four hours in the day; two in the morning and two in the afternoon. Each pupil can,

during the entire day, have four minutes of the teacher's attention. That is to say, the teacher who wishes to do justice to all his pupils has it in his power to instruct each individual during the space of four min.

utes. The rest of the time that pupil is either sitting down like a poor prisoner trying to follow that which he cannot understand—for he is too young to grasp or profit by general essons given out, as they would be to older boys-or else he is asleep or shamming, or making a pretence to be listening while his mind is abroad in the street or play-ground

As a result any conscientious director will tell you that for the first four or five years a boy lerns nothing. The school is merely a big nursery where men take care of chil-annoyance. And how can it be oth-teacher should be able to devote all his attention to each child; but how can he? Let us suppose that there teacher-especially if he be a member of a religious body-and that he ly for the pupils; even then we must emember that he is a human being and not a beast of burden. And were he to refrain from eating and sleep ing, and to devote every one of the twenty-four hours in each day to his pupils, he still would be unable to do them all full justice. Again little boys are not sold into white slavery worse than slavery for a lad to be standstill and never stimulated by a

A FIXED NUMBER. - I believe

there should be some school law whereby the number of pupils under each teacher would be fixed. Let us say that 30, or even 40, were the limit; then there would be a chance for a teacher to do something in the young boy should be in touch and constant contact with the teacher, who should be enabled to study the requirements, capabilities, peculiarities, and disposition of each pupil.

form that duty for half a hundred or more boys? I, therefore, repea that we have not enough of teach-getting over the cold facts. Yet, if each individual child does not make the same progress that he might under a master who could devote sufficient attention to him, we cry out against the teacher, or the institution, or the order, or the superiors. We have no right to expect the superhuman from men of flesh and blood, and we cannot demand

the greatest of devotedness to their work, can possibly accomplish.

Wherefore I say, let us have more classes, less pupils in each class, and more teachers to serve such classes. If they cannot be had, then it is the business of some one or other to see of our schools more than men, with

But how is any man going to

way of helping the boys along.

when sent to school. And it should be no consideration for dren, keep them in the house, will suppose a class of 60 boys.

the readers well know I am | classes of seventy, ninety, one huninclined to jump from one subject to another, without any transition-just according as my observations im-The schools have all opened their classes and my business led me to visit a couple of our prominent houses of education since the first of the month. I was pleased to notice the large attendance of pupils, and to see so many young boys commencing to acquire that knowledge which is so absolutely necessary in this age. It is a very en couraging sight to behold full classes and to know that such numbers of the city's youth are being prepared in a proper manner for the duties of after-life. But I was forcibly struck with the grave disproportion, as far as numbers go, between teachers and pupils. So much was I impressed with the object lessons hefore me, that I could not resist the temptation of occupying a small space this week with my consequent reflections.

SATURDAY, SEPT 20, 1902.

THE DISPROPORTION .- I would have it understood that I am not finding fault with nor blaming either the teachers, or the institutions or those whose duty it is to superintend our schools; but I am certainly dissatisfied with status of affairs. To be plain, there are far too few teachers for the number of pupils. If any person will take the trouble to find out the number of boys attending the different Catholic schools of this city, and then the number of teachers engaged in the duty of instructing those boys, it will be easily shown that we need half a hundred more teachers to do justice to the riseing generation. The teachers are not to be blamed; they cannot multiply themselves. No more can fault be found with the different institutions; they cannot create teachers. Yet somebody, or some authority is in the wrong. My own opinion-if that is worth anythingis that there is not sufficient encour agement by way of salary and like inducements extended to the teaching profession. Our Board of School Commissioners, the Council of Public Instruction, the Provincial Government-with its educational de school-room, when he is always at a partment-may all have something to do with the matter; I cannot say knowledge that he is advancing. upon what shoulders the responsibility rests, but decidedly there is such a poor future for the teacher few of our competent men can be induced to follow the calling. Hence the small number of our teaching compared with the large and ever increasing number of pupils? In this instance. I am unfortunately in the position of one who can point out the evil, but cannot indicate the remedy. I am not sufficiently conversant with the system that abtains to state exactly what should be done, or how, or by whom it should be done. All I know is that nothing could be more deceptive than the actual situation.

an EXPLANATION.— Eight, and possibly nine people out of every ten who have the opportunity of visiting the classes of our schools will imagine it to be an evidence of grand success and of trace of the school of t will imagine it to be an evidence of as the main reasons why there are grand success and of great promise, not more teachers for the vast numthe class-room is full. I am speak- ber of our young pupils. We may ing of the elementary classes. According as you go upwards the pugetting over the cold facts. You pils become less numerous in the classes; some have left school, others have gone to other schools, and were he under a private tutor, so on but of a class of 25 pupils in the first year, you will scarcely find more than 5 who go on to the room in the upper classes. Besides, when a pupil has reached a certain stage of advancement, he has learned how to study, how to learn by himself, and he needs less the close and minute personal attention of the teacher. But in the elementary classes, the pupil requires the constant guiding hand of the teacher, and this he cannot get.

A LOSS OF TIME.-I have seen that they are secured.

Lemon Juice For Rheumatism.

The idea of treating rheumatism The idea of treating rheumatism with lemon juice appears to have ment at three lemons. In another, had its rise in Germany. The method consists in swallowing the juice of twenty-five lemons, so complete and one lemon on the first day, and so so persistent that at the end of ten on progressive up to twenty-five lemons the patient had not once had interest by which 't supports the social and national life of Catholics in all sorts of commercial and other enterprises, and to the self-interest by which 't supports the olic Ireland.

ons. When this limit is reached the number of lemons is progressively diminished M. Desplats, of Lille, has recently adopted this treatment with some of his patients who suffered from articular rheumatism. In one case the patient was able to drop the treat-ment at three lemons. In another, an attack, whereas previously he had suffered periodically every month. The third case was one of ankylosis, use of his limbs, and is free from pain.

mode of treatment on a patient suffering from attacks of rheumatism accompanied by disease of the heart, for which all means adopted had proved merely palliative. After a few dred, and even over a hundred young days the patient experienced a manifest relief of the articular symptoms, but he also experienced in the upper right side of the thorax, the pain being extremely great and tenacious. In another case there in a less marked degree, and the pain in the thorax made its appearance at the end of the treatment. A third case gave the same results. Another in a few of our institutions; but I patient suffering from rheumatism that had proved refractory to salicylate and to thyroid when treated with citric acid in doses of from two to ten grammes daily improved considerably.

> Whatever interpretation may be placed on the action of lemons in general and citric acid in particular, these results are, beyond question interesting to chronicle.—New York

Some Remedies for Grievances in Ireland

A proposition which, if carried into effect, will have most important results in the material and industrial development of Ireland, to say nothing of its possible political consequences, is contained in an article in the Irish Rosary, by Mr. Daniel MacLaughlin. Briefly put, he advorelieve the parents of them and their cates the formation of a Catholic organization, the objects of which will rwise. Some people imagine that a be to preserve and develop a tinct and industrial existence for Ireland; to keep Ireland for Irish; to dissuade Irishmen and Irishwomen from emigrating their native land: to maintain the predominance of Irish Catholics in is obliged to sacrifice himself entirenumbers-which is threatened by emigration-to win for this majority the rightful predominance to which it is entitled in wealth, education, official position and power. The obstacle which now stands in the way of the progress and prosperity of the majority of Irish men in their own country-apart from alien legislation -is the exclusive dealing and freemasonry which enables the small body of English Protestant colonists forced to sit all day, locked up in a there to enjoy an unjust ascendency As Mr. MacLaughlin truly says

'A revolt has come in Irishmen's

minds against the inferior place they have been hitherto content to take in their own country. We have awak ened at last to a perception of the thoroughness of the English Protestant Ascendency in Ireland. The Cath olic Emancipation Act opened all offices and professions to Catholics but how much of them has not Protestant organization and self-interest reserved for itself since? The foreign Government of the country, that proposes to rule us impartially and for our best interests, retains in all its departments a preponderating force of its imported servants. University education is withheld from us by the same agency which complains of our incapacity for higher positions of administration, It is true the representatives of the sufficiently subservient to Protestant and English superiority. In the various Educational Boards the principle adopted by the Government in its honest desire to do justice Catholic interests while "protecting" its own clamorous minority is to appoint an equal number of Catholics and Protestants and both the Government and its garrison applaud their own liberality in thus giving one quarter of the population as much weight as the remaining three-quarters in directing the education of the idolaters and boast how they have admitted us to all the freedom and responsibility of the Empire." Our shame is that that we have allowed the small foreign colony to assume a superiority of position and wealth where it was in our power to preserve it for ourselves, that we have allowed our own money to be used for our degradation and for their advancement, and in servile self-distrust and vulgar shoddy snobbery we make them our only models of fashion and respectability and dissociate ourselves from every nasentiment. In addition to the selfrespect and self-confidence which makes this English class adhere to members of its own body in business, in appointments to offices, and in social patronage, it has been conso bad that the patient could not firmed in consciousness of our infedress himself without help. To-day riority in character and attainments he has almost entirely recovered the and status by our fawning subserviency and "tolerance." In our disgust for bigotry and anxiety to M. Desplats has also tried this show our toleration we hasten to them with our dealings, seek their companies' enterprises for our vestments and insurances, thereby declaring our want of confidence in Irishmen's business enterprises, and allow their financial leaders to man the railways, the insurance offices. the banks and all departments of public business with striplings of their own creed.

The best trade of Dublin is still in the hands of the Ascendancy colony whose predecessors built it up a century or two ago when a native papist was hardly allowed to live within its walls. Most of the manufactories, the wholesale stores, and the largest and most important shops are owned by the English class, and although in the majority of these businesses Catholic young nen are freely admitted, there is natural and reasonable preference for apprentices of the respectable employers' creed and openings are always to be found for the Protestant families to advance themselves.

"In this there is no one to blame

but a lesson may be learned from The reason why the native population during the past hundred years of freedom from restraint have absorbed so little of the city's wealth is because the Protestant merchants till comparatively lately excluded all Catholics from their ounters and offices and thus effectually prevented their learning the trades. Up to twenty years ago many Protestant wholesale firms of liberal tendencies necessarily chose Protestant commercial travelers to sell their goods in the country, for they experienced that whilst Catho lic shopkeepers would buy as willingly from a Protestant as from one of their own kin, the Protestant shop-keepers would have no dealings with a Catholic. And despite the general liberality of the Dublin houses at present there are still capitalists who keep their office and without provoking any resentment from the Catholic public on whose dealings they thrive. Only some years ago was a native spirit oused, when in their rage at return of a Nationalist member of Parliament for the Maiden City of the apprentice boys, the Orange newspapers of Derry advocated the disemployment of Catholic factory hands. The county of Donegal receives most of its supplies merchan dise from the Derry warehouses and when the threat was made they swered it by a declaration that they would buy no more Derry merchandise. This was too serious a price to pay for their revenge, so the Dertraders and manufacturers were glad to keep their Catholic staff.

lic companies,-railways, banks, etc. are mainly Protestant. reasonable as they are individually the largest shareholders, few native Irishmen having been able enabled during the last century of moderate security but of doubtful prosperity to amass large savings. But a large proportion of the capital in all these Irish enterprises has been subscribed by the Catholics, and they have thereby both the right and the power to secure that their own race shall share proportionately in the given all the superior positions to their co-religionists and left their his message), that moment marks Catholic employees to wait promothe beginning of defeat. The widetion till all the hungrier maws were satisfied. A Catholic shareholders' committee has been called for to demand representation for the very large Catholic capital invested the Great Southern Railway Company. At the half yearly meeting of sharenolders, which took place last month, Mr. Sweetman, of Kells, read a list which showed that every important and lucrative place the company's service-secretaryship, engineership, superintendentship by Protestants. The chairman denied that religion was ever considered at the Board in the appointdered at the Board in the appointment of officers, but he did not deny the facts or seek to explain them, or did he mention what measure the higher officials take to secure their ed Protestants into the Church.

own creed " To counteract the deplorable results of a policy of too much "toleration." is it proposed to form a national Catholic association, somewhat on the plan of the federated tional characteristic of taste and Catholic societies of Great Britain ples of which will be to give a united support to Catholics in all sorts of commercial and other enterprises, Christian Unity.

(By an Occasional Contributor.)

It is a well known fact that one of the principal notes of the Catholic Church is unity. From the very He was ordained in Boston by Bishbeginning, from the days of St. Peter, or down through the long ages, that has marked the history of the Massachusetts regiment. In this cap-Catholic Church has been admitted by even her most steadfast oppon-Is it not strange that Protestantism should be eternally crying out for more unity, and that it is these occasions his capture was due perpetually assailing the Catholic Church on account of that very re- wounded; and he was taken prison quisite which she possesses and which the severed denominations vainly attempt to attain? Of late we find a case in point, when twentytwo leading ministers and laymen of the United Brethren Church address to their bishops an appeal requesting them to take steps in the direction of Christian unity. In the document they especially name the Methodist Protestants, Evangelical, United Evangelical, and Cumberland Presbyterian Churches, The New York "Independent," in referring to this appeal, says:-

"Four denominations are specified as those to be addressed. But why these four alone? Are there not others that should also receive the compliment of the invitation? Why, for example, should the Congregationalists be left out, or the Free Baptists, or the Christian Connection? We mention these three bodies as they are among those that have talked most about union. We do not suppose that the United Brethren ould object to joining with other Christians who prefer baptism mmersion, but who do not hold to close communion. The Congregationalists have not only adopted a general proposition for union with other bodies, but they have had serious and more or less official correspondence on the subject with the Free Baptists, the Christian Connec-tion, and the Methodist Protestant churches. Here is a fine basis for union; and we do not know many other denominations there are hat might with equal propriety be invited. We should desire that the field be enlarged. The scheme is too grand not to be grander."

What strikes us as very strange in all this is the absence of any definite basis of unity. Denominations may agree to fraternize, to respect each other's creeds, to close their eyes to differences and to meet orayer and in Church organization; But still they agree to disagree upon the essential teachings of Christianity. Where can there be unity when there is no oneness of doctrine Truth presupposes undivided dogma; ught that is contradictory or conflicting cannot be based on eternal What, then, is the use of talking about unity if the very elements of unity are freely discarded? It seems to us that a statement made by Rev. Robert M. Raab, of Buffalo, in the "Homiletic Review" gives the key to the lack of unity in Protestantism. It could not be more clearly or honestly explained. This minister says:-

"The church's opposition to dogna has almost wrecked the ministry; for if there is one thing religionists of our time object to it is hard thinking on religion. And dog-Catholic figure head for a couple of prominent offices provided he is a safe loyalist, one who will be appointments of these companies. Yet hitherto the ascendancy garrison directors and managers have spread contempt for religion is due, in large measure, to the temporizing, apologetic attitude of Protestantism.

This is exactly what we have always contended, and for which contention our Protestant friends have found fault with us. It is the lack of dogma, of fixed principles, of infallible guidance, of immediate teachings that has been the bane of Protestantism and that must inevit ably prove the source of its ultimate downfall. It is in vain men cry out for unity, as long as they persist in treating Christianity as a species of political system in Dead.

On Monday last all that was mortal of a great priest who was wider, esteemed by all who knew him, was laid to rest in Cambridge, Mass He was called away a few days i revisority, full of years and honer, and his death.

fortified with the Last Sacraments The Rev. Thomas Scully was postor of the Church of Our 1 ady of Annunciation, Cambridge, and was chaplain of the Ninth Regiment of Civil War recown. He was an earnest and eloquent champ.on the Catholic total abstinence movement, and was a zealous and devot-ed priest. He was born in Ireland seventy years ago, and he finished his studies in England and in Italy op Fitzpatrick, and on the outbreak of the war of secession was appointed chaplain of the famous acity he served for three years, and earned distinction for his conspicu ous bravery. He was thrice captured as a prisoner of war. On one of to his unwillingness to abandon the er with them.

Afterwards he was appointed ; as ter of a Church in Malden, from which he was subsequently transferred to Cambridge. He celebrated his first Mass in the Church of the Annunciation thirty-five years ago.

When he went to the parish the parochial property amounted to 6,-700 feet of land and the unfnished church, valued in all at $25,000. Today the parish property consists of 81,355 feet of land. On this property stand the church, the parochial residence, convent, school buildings, a grotto which is a fac simile of one at Lourdes, Aquinas Hall, utilized for literary exercises and entertain-ments. The total valuation probably exceeds $250,000.

With the growth of his parish Fa ther Scully did not forget the sick. He donated a large portion of the Hovey estate on Cambridge street. Cambridge, for the site of a home for incurables. It is known as the Holy Ghost Hospital for Incurables: He experienced no little opposition in founding the St. Mary's Parochial School, but, notwithstanding , by his perseverance he succeeded, witnessed the formal opening of that institution on Sept. 6, 1875. The average attendance has been about 1.300 yearly at the school. He later inaugurated a college department March 7, 1881, on the date of the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas. No charge has ever been made to attend the schools, and books have been furnished where it was found the parents of the children were unable to do so. He and his assistants, ministered to the spiritual welfare of 6,500 parishioners.

Besides being looked upon as great and good priest and one beloved by all, he was honored for his high example of true citizenship. He took an active interest in all matters which had to do with the welfare of the city of Cambridge. He was well known as a temperance leader and advocate all over the country. To him was due in large part the success of the no-license move in Cambridge. He was so enthusiastic upon hearing the count of the votes on the license question that each year he superin-tended the ringing of the bells in his school. He had in his parish two total abstinence societies, Aquinas Cadets and the St. Mary's Society for adults."

The "Daily Post" of Boston pays this editorial tribute to the memory of Facher Scully:-

"For more than a quarter of a century the Rev. Thomas Scully has been a powerful and active force for good in this community. As a priest of the Roman Catholic Church, efforts have been directed along the lines of ecclesiastical work, and the results have been remarkable in that ity, so liberal his purpose, so allembracing his generosity, that what he did in the name of his church and his faith is recognized as a benefaction to all, of whatever creed, and an uplifting influence in the municipality and the State.

"It is no exaggeration to say that the work of education, of philanthropy, of healthful physical culture, of relief of misery, set on foot and carried to effective operation by Father Scully, has not been equalled by any other single individual in the history of this metropolitan district. More than any benefaction or endowment was the personal energy which he brought to the work Schools, gymnasiums, libraries, he built up by his own indomitable effort. That marvellous and blessed institution, the Holy Ghost Hospital for Incurables owes its existence to Father Scully.

"In his adopted country . Thomas Scully was born in Ireland and educated in England and in Italy-he was an exemplar of loyalty and of good citizenship. He was chusetts in the Civil War. When peace came, he gave himself, with

RELIGIOUS

There are men who

The Power of the Catholic Press.

The power of the Catholic press when it is united is well illustrated in the case of Appleton's Universal Cyclopedia, which was recently published in New York, and which contained grave errors and prejudiced misstatements regarding Catholic doctrines and practices in its articles dealing with matters connected our Church. That excellent and vigorous Catholic magazine, to The Messenger, of New York, was the first to point out these inaccuracies; and it was followed by denunciations of the Cyclopedia in the whole Catholic press of the United The "Appleton's" have addressed the following letter to the editor of "The Messenger" :-

"Dear Father Wynne: In reference to the Catholic articles complained of in Appleton's Universal Cyclopaedia and Atlas concerning which we have seen you here lately, we beg herewith to submit a statement concerning the criticisms made by you of that work, and the action already taken by this house in reference to them.

"One of the methods used in th conduct of our business is to hold weekly meetings of a literary committeei the membership of which consists of the president of D. Appleton & Co., the vice-president, the literary adviser, the editor of the "Cyclopaedia," the art manager and educational editor. Here are discussed all matters pertaining to new books and old ones, new editions, revisions, complaints and other matters affecting the text of any of our publications. In the regular course of this work, on the 12th of June, the first meeting held subsequent to May 22, owing to the absence of the president in Europe, the Catholic criticisms of the "Universal Cyclopaedia" were taken up, and it directed that the secretary should prepare a letter in response to complaints received setting forth the plan on which the "Cyclopaedia" had been prepared with respect to controverted subjects.

"On July 10 it was directed that a resolution should be prepared set-ting forth the decision of the committee that the Catholic articles should be submitted to Archbishop John J. Keane, who, under contract with this house, had had charge of their preparation, and that Archbishop Keane should be requested to make the revision himself, should it be found necessary to do so, or designate some person for that purpose. In due course of time Arch-bishop Keane made reply to our communication and designated Professor Grannan, Professor Pace and Professor Shahan, of the Catholic University of Washington, as such persons. A letter was at once addressed to Professor Grannan asking him to undertake his work. As yet we have received no reply from him We now learn from you that Father Grannan is in Europe, which, o course, accounts for the delay.

"You will observe from the fore going statements that a disposition to ravise the Catholic articles was shown by this house at a regular official meeting of its officers and heads of departments almost immelaints The minutes of this committee also show that the complaints made by you have been constantly under consideration, and that the matter was referred to us by Archbishop Keane, a distinguished member of your own communion, under whose supervision the articles were first

'In reference to the contract with Archbishop Keane referred to above, you will please let us remind you that he had full authority to preand assign these articles, eemed best to him, and that at any time, since the publication of the articles, had it been necessary, any corrections might have been made by him. It is not the policy of this house to ignore complaints that may be made to it affecting the accuracy of statements made in its works of reference. We regret that through no fault of yours or ours the representations you have made did not lead to an earlier meeting between yourself and D. Appleton & Very truly yours

D. Appleton & Co.,

"Wm. W. Appleton, president."

The "Messenger's" comment. upon this letter is as follows:-

It has come to our knowledge that some of the superintendents and dence in Troy with teachers of Catholic schools have ex- has one daughter.

cluded all text-books which bear the name of Appleton & Co. That no injustice may be done in this matter, it should be observed that although the text books were formerly issued by them and still bear their name, they are no longer theirs, and are issued by other houses. Thus the American Book Company issues readers, reading charts, geographies, copy books and school physics, which bear the name of Appleton, though in reality Appleton & Co. have at present nothing to do with them, as they have no share in the business or management of the American Book Company. These books, therefore, ought to be judged their own merits. In view of the letter printed above, it would be unfair to discriminate in the choice of books against a company which endeavoring honorably to make cyclopaedia accurate and impartial in every way.

The letter speaks for itself, and does honor to the writer and his associates, who are sincere and earnest in their efforts to have Catholic topics in their cyclopaeaia treated accurately.

A Catholic Daily.

The publication of "The New World" as a daily during the week of the meeting of the Federated Catholic Societies has aroused considerable discussion in the columns of some of our Catholic contempor aries. The need of a Catholic daily is advocated by a few; but the greater number of the papers speak in a hesitating and undecided way; not so much because they doubt the expediency of such a paper as from the fear that it might either become the recognized official organ of the country, or that it might supplant the weekly. Now, to us a Catholic daily paper seems hardly necessary. It is true that if there was published in the large cities a Catholic daily much of the news that pertains to the Church would be given forth in its correct form; but it is not at all probable that anywhere near the same number of persons would read the correct Catholic account as would read the secular daily's version. Americans are different from Europeans. They will to a certain extent read a weekly, in fact the greater number of educated Americans do read a weekly of some kind or other; but it is safe to say that the number of those who would buy every morning or evening, a daily published in the interests of a religious denomination, would be exceedingly small. The idea of great Catholic daily or a great religious daily of any denomination is a beautiful idea; but it is chimeri-Such a daily would not sell: and the paper that does not sell is useless. Anyway we have no parti-cular need of a Catholic daily. We have the Catholic weeklies, and the office of a weekly, be it Catholic or anything else in the informing line, is to review and correct the news items furnished during the week by the newspapers. This is what the people expect and this is what should be given them. A weekly should be a review, not a newspaper. Moreover, a daily newspaper must be a political paper. A paper nay of course give both political question, but it must have definite political leanings. Americans respect the politics of a man or a paper; they will not buy paper that poses as a political mugwump. Now a Catholic paper from its very nature cannot indulge in politics; one of the most important features, therefore, from a layman's point of view, would be cut away; the result would be the loss of everyone interested in political questions, which means the loss of almost every man. The idea of a Catholic daily, then, must be abandoned for the present; the energies of the Catholic press should be expended in issuing representative Catholic weeklies New World, Chi-

REQUEST FOR BEING KIND

Mrs Edith White has been notified officially that $17,500 is deposited to her credit in a bank in St. Louis. The money was left her by a strang-er whom she once befriended and who told her at the time that he would remember her in his will. paid little attention to it then. Mrs. White will go to St. Louis, secure the money and then take up her residence in Troy with her mother. She

FATHER STRUBBE TO RETURN TO BELGIUM.

Belgium of the Rev. Father Strubbe, the esteemed and beloved priest of St. Ann's parish, has caused a feeling of deep regret not only in the parish where he has so fruitfully labored for nearly twenty years, but throughout the whole city of Montreal, for Father Strubbe has at one time or another occupied the pulpits of nearly every church in the archdiocese and those of many othchurches elsewhere in Canada. The Redemptorist Order, of which he is so distinguished a member, has long occupied a foremost it dating from a time before the parish of St. Ann was entrusted to its members, and when St. Patrick's Church, in which they gave several successful missions, was the and him together.

The announcement of the recall to I tinuous, and conspicuous success not only from a spiritual, but from a temporal point of view. which would do ample justice to his efforts would fill a large volume. As we go to press he is being presented with an address in which these bors are gratefully recorded and deservedly appreciated, and with a gift which, in a more tangible way, expresses the esteem in which he is held. Although owing to the suddenness of the summons which calls him away to his native land, but little time was available to organize the farewell demonstration and presentations, the size and character testify to the widespread grief which the affections of the Irish Catholics his departure has caused, and to the of Montreal, their acquaintance with affectionate remembrance in which his career in St. Ann's will be held by the congregation which is called upon to sever tender and hallowed ties that have so long bound them sacred edifice in which they only worshipped in Montreal.

REV. E. STRUBBE, C.SS.R.

Father Strubbe's departure from St. Ann's parish has brought feigned sorrow to the hearts of the parishioners, among whom whom he has so long worked with untiring energy and apostolic zeal and has filled them with a deep sense of great personal loss. He is endowed with all the good and noble priestly qualities that go to make up the typical "soggarth aroon," for whom the Irish people, with their warm generous Celtic hearts, have always cherished an abiding affection.

Readers of the "True Witness" do not need to be reminded of the great work which Father Strubbe has accomplished in St. Ann's parish. On many occasions its pages have borne glad testimony to the numerous improvements which he inaugurated. His career has been one long, con- activity.

To leave, so loving, so devout, and so well organized a congregation. must bring a pang of bitter sorrow to Father Strubbe's heart. But he is a priest of God before all things When he entered his Sacred ministry he had to part with parents, rela tives and friends, in order to give his life wholly to the service of his Divine Master. His superior has now called him from Canada, and like the devoted, self-sacrificing and heroic priest which he is, he goes forth to obey that summons, pain ful, though the parting undoubtedly

In the departure of Father Strubbe from Montreal the "True Witness" loses a tried and trusted, and warmhearted friend. It is unnecessary to say that it cordially associates itself with the parishioners of St. Ann in wishing him long life and marked success in his new sphere of

Mr. D'Arcy Scott On Situation in Ireland.

Mr. D'Arcy Scott, president of St. Patrick's Society, Ottawa, has returned from a visit to Ireland. a sturdy champion of the rights of Irishmen to govern their own country it was natural that during his visit he should have studied the present condition of Ireland and the na tional movement there. The result of his observations, therefore, possess more than ordinary interest. In interview with a representative of the Ottawa "Citizen," Mr. Scott said:-"The Irish people are course very hospitable. I had th pleasure of stopping a few days with both Mr. John Redmond and Mr. William Redmond. They were both extremely kind to me, and took much interest in Canada and Canadian affairs. I met many prominent Irishmen, both home rulers and unionists. I also had the good forof hearing several important Irish debates in the House of Commons. As far as Home Rule is concerned I am perfectly satisfied that it is coming, and perhaps much sooner than some may expect. The Pariamentary party is strong and united. It has an experienced and able leader in Mr. John Redmond, He is mentarians in the empire, but is acknowledged to have no superior, and perhaps no equal as an orator British House of Commons to-day Mr. Redmond is respected by all parties in the House, and always gets a good hearing when he speaks.

"There have been unmistakable signs of the steadily increasing unpopularity of the present Government in England, while the Liberal seem to be making some successful effort to regain their lost power and influence with the English people. Of course, it must be admitted that the Rosebery wing of the Liberal party is likely to cause some trouble, but so far it is difficult to say just what strength they possess. I met Lord Rosebery and heard him and h lieutenants, Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Gray, speak at the League banquet. They all touched lightly on the Irish were vague and indefinite in what they said. I came to the conclusion that the Roseberyites were waiting to see how the cat would jump, and that they were prepared whichever way would best suit their political ambitions. In his speech Lord Rosebery said he was not in favor of "an independent Parliament at Dublin." By making this state There are doubtless many Home Rulers who don't favor an independen Parliament at Dublin, and while many think Ireland is entitled to it, not only one of the greatest Parlia- and should have it, it is certainly not what the Irish party is asking Mr. John Redmond, at the coronation meeting in Dublin Aug. 9th, speaking as the leader of the party, made that point quite clear when he said that they were prepared to accept the same settlement which Gladstone and Parnell had agreed to in 1886. That, as everybody knows, was not 'an independent Parliament at Dublin,' but a responsible Legislature and a Government in Ireland subject to the Imperial Parliament to legislate for and govern Irish affairs. "The present method of governing, or rather misgoverning, Ireland by coercion is a disgrace to the British empire. Ireland is as crimeless country as there is in the world, yet in addition to the municipal there is a standing army of 15,000 Irish constabulary costing the people millions of dollars annually who kept by the Government to hound the people and prevent free speech and other recognized rights of a British subject. Under Crimes Act, which is something like martial law, and which is now in force in many of the counties of Ireland, special magistrates called removables are appointed by the chief secretary to try political offences. These men are usualy Government hangers-on, and are subject, to be dismissed by the chief secretary at any time, so that if they don't make it unpleasant for the Government's political opponents they know what will happen to them. "The position of affairs in West shows the absolute necessity of remedial land laws. The people are all crowded together on the poor bog lands and the rich lands are reserved for the cattle, not the poor people's cattle, but cattle of the wealthy grazier or the absentee landlord who never visits Ireland spends a sixpence there. What the people of Ireland want, not merely Nationalists, but also the Unionists, the Catholics of the south and the Protestants of Ulster, in everyone except the landlords, is 'compulsory purchase.' that is. power to be given the congested dis tricts Board to expropriate the landlords' interest in the land without the consent of the landlord, so that the Board may then sell to each tenant the freehold in a sufficient quantity of arable land to enable him to live on it, Parliament to supply the money to pay the landlord, and the tenant to repay the Government in annual instalments. This arrangement is now carried out when the landlord consents to sell, and found to work very well. The Board some time ago bought the estate of Lord Dillon. I visited the former Dillon tenants, who are now freeholders, and found that they were perfectly happy and contented. Their land was being drained and new houses built and a general appearance of prosperity was coming over the district Adjoining the Dillon freeholders is the De Freyne estate, where Lord De Freyne is ejecting tenants for The people non-payment of rent. could not possibly live on the small holdings and pay rent from what the land produced. When the rents are paid they are paid out of money earned principally by servant girls in America, and harvest laborers in England. The rent that Lord De Freyne is asking is 33 per cent. more per annum than the instalment of purchase money that the Dillon free holders are paying the Government each year, and which will in a stated number of years be paid off. Such a state of affairs cannot long exist, and it is the opinion of many or both sides of the political fence that 'compulsory purchase' will become law within the next year or two After a visit to Ireland one can readily understand why the people don't gush much about the advanage of British rule. It seems to me that we in Canada would not be as proud of the British Empire as we very properly are if we were governed as Ireland is."

Mr. Scott visited the Cork exhibition, and was proud of the splendid exhibit that Canada has there. One thing, however, which he says "does not reflect much credit on cultural department" is the fact that while Canadians have been sent over there to look after our exhibits, and explain our resources and the advantages of our country to the people not a single Irish Catholic is employed in or about the Canadian building. "It seems to me," said Mr. Scott, "that business me thods if nothing else would make it appear necessary to the department to send some men who were in sympathy with at least ninety per cent of those who visit the exhibition."

SYMINGTON'S

GOFFEE ESSENGE

GUARANTEED PURE

The arrivale in Rome of the great pilgrimage from Ireland is animated keen interest. That zealous and venerable priest, the Very Rev. Father Ring, O.M.I., of Dublin, is the organizer; and a very large nun ber will doubtless take part in this demonstration of Ireland's unswerv ing fidelity to the Holy See. The pilgrimage will be on so large a scale that it has been deemed advisable to divide it into two sections, one of which is expected to reach Rome towards the end of October, and the other about the first or second week in November. The first section will be under the patronage of St. Joachim, and the second under that of St. Leo. Some good but misguided French Catholics are expressing surprise at the silence of His Holiness the Pope on the enforcement of the Law of Associations in regard to the teaching orders and congregations French, and are even calling upon him to denounce the action of the French Government. They forget many things in their pardonable excitement. They seem to be oblivious of the fact that the Sovereign Pontiff has already done all in his power under the circumstances. His letter to the Cardinal Archbishop of Paris gave proof of his sympathy with French Catholics in the persecution which they are experiencing at the hands of their atheistical government. As that letter pointed out, loyal Catholics should refrain from presuming to dictate to the Pope either the time or the manner in which he should intervene in crises of this kind. They should have long ago acted upon his advice to attach themselves frankly to the Republic instead of denouncing it and holding themselves aloof from it; and they should abandon their futile hopes of changing the political situation by bringing about the restoration of a nonarchial system of government.

Bigotry in Business.

Says our esteemed contemporary, land, Ohio:the "Catholic Universe," of Cleve-"Business is business," but nobody likes to do business with those who insult their customers. * * * The Catholics of Cleveland number 125,000. They are as honest as their neighbors and their trade proportionately as profitable in the agregate. A few of the business firms have as much as said that since Catholics are confined to the kitchen they are not seeking their trade. In they show not seeking their this trade. In this they show not only their ignorance, but their bigotry. We wish that we could publish the names of the firms that spoke in this way to our advertising solicitor. They then would find that a man's bigotry is often his own worst enemy. They would also discover that there is no walk of life and no class of society, no matter how exclusive Cleveland, that has not its Catholic representatives.' But why not publish the names of such firms, esteemed contemporary? The "Pilot" has encountered business men like unto those whom the "Catholic Universe" describes, and whenever it has found them insensible to brotherly correction, it has cheerfully given them a free adverwhich has taught them tisement more in a single week abo ancial importance of the Catholic community than we could demonstrate in many editorials. It is a work of mercy to instruct the ignorant-even if it must be done at their own expense.-Boston Pilot.

Premium Subscribers.

We offer as a premium to each Subscriber a neatly bound copy of the Golden Jubilee Book, who will send the names and cash for 3 new Subscribers to the True Witness.

This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a most interesting chronicle of the work of Irish Catholic Priests and laymen in Montreal during the past Fifty years.

eeded, but not replace these words a writer i view of Reviews" (July M. Combes, "Physician Radical Leader." He added Renegade, to con scription. However, h leave his reader long in this point, for he not o Combes' claim to the t places him in a class v and Gambetta—a delic flattery. Despite his e to do honor to the sub sketch, M. Guerlac appl honored maxim with wh not to M. Combes, but cessor, Waldeck-Rousses even higher place in his was to the support of t that M. Waldeck-Rousse long continuance in por Guerlac, "and it is th just that his policies sh tinued by those who ha and supported them." appointment of M. Co

cal party in the Chamb "This incoherent majo entirely through the sys ploitation of one gross ti-Clericalism. It is m men of varied ideas and terests. It comprises 1 ies, Socialists, and a number of the indifferer uncertain who conceal ance of all political que the anonymous mask of It remains to be seen if cious sectaries will go o Not that there can be doubt of their audacity the intrepidity of ignora

most fitting candidate

Radical party, there ar

men whose past services prestige marks them c able for the prime mini

"Journal Des Debats"

a graceful word to say

the "personal prestige"

obstinacy of narrow-min In enumerating the ne many qualifications for writer in the "Review unwittingly makes such arraignment of the man tives, that we may be quoting freely from the affords. What could be cant than the admission never explained to the meaning the reason for apostasy. Few men wh Church leave behind a will bear the light of c doubt, the French minis ception to the general r reader judge for him information advanced by making allowance of cou gentleman's frequent in of personal reflections a endorsements:

"M. Combes comes fro of France. He is a son bulent and fluent Midi are born eloquent, and heat of the sun seems to their natures a double s liness and aggressiveness Like many representativ thought and antagonist Church, he began his ca those influences of which later to become the ir adversary. He was edu religious seminary, when trained in the principles has since detested. I happened that the enemi Church have been of her hold. Voltaire who utte ous phrase, "Ecrasez l'in a pulpit of the Jesuits. I me in clerical circles : loathed as that of Volta all his instruction from leader of anti-clericalism Republic, Gam said, 'Clericalism is the like M. Combes, the pupi seminary. But M. Com religious instruction long them. Voltaire and were under clerical guar ly in their early youth.

self parted with the Chu age of twenty-two. M. mained within the Chur his maturity; he took pr and became what Renar dreamed of becoming,—ar

'In 1895, when M. C first made Minister of struction in the Radical M. Bourgeois, it occurre aunt up in the Library hunt up in the library bonne, in Paris, the thes Combes had written in h to obtain his degree of lettres. I found a great several hundred pages

cal professor in a Cath

ROM ROME

in Rome of the great n Ireland is animated nterest. That zealous priest, the Very Rev. O.M.I., of Dublin, is and a very large num-less take part in this of Ireland's unswervthe Holy See. The piloe on so large a scale n deemed advisable to two sections ted to reach Rome toof October, and e first or second week The first section will patronage of St. Jos second under that of out misguided French expressing surprise at His Holiness the Pope ment of the Law of regard to the teachcongregations in re even calling upon ce the action of the nment. They forget their pardonable exseem to be oblivit that the Sovereign eady done all in his ne circumstances. His Cardinal Archbishop of of of his sympathy atholics in the persethey are experiencing of their atheistical as that letter pointed of their atheistical holics should refrain to dictate to the time or the manner ould intervene in crises They should have long his advice to attach kly to the Republic uncing it and holding of from it; and they their futile hopes of olitical situation by in Business.

the restoration of a tem of government.

emed contemporary.

Universe," of Cleves business,' but noo business with those customers. * * * of Cleveland number are as honest as and their trade proprofitable in the agof the business firms as said that since onfined to the kitchen eking their trade. In w not seeking their they show not only but their bigotry re could publish the ms that spoke in this advertising solicitor. d find that a man's his own worst enald also discover that of life and no class natter how exclusive, that has not its publish the names of emed contemporary? s encountered businto those whom the erse' describes, and found them insensicorrection, it has them a fr has taught them week about the fin-nce of the Catholic we could demon-editorials. It is a o instruct the ignornust be done at their oston Pilot.

mium eribers.

as a premium scriber a neatly of the Golden , who will send and cash for 3 bers to the True

a splendid opobtain a most hronicle of the Irish Catholic l laymen in iring the past

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION IN FRANCES

.....

"There are men who can be suc-geded, but not replaced." With another thesis in Latin likewise these words a writer in the "Review of Reviews" (July), introduces "Physician, Scholar and Radical Leader." He should scription. However, he does not leave his reader long in ignorance on Combes' claim to the title, but also places him in a class with Voltaire and Gambetta—a delicate bit fattery. Despite his evident desire to do honor to the subject of his not to M. Combes, but to his prede-Waldeck-Rousseau, who holds even higher place in his esteem. "It that M. Waldeck-Rousseau owed his long continuance in power," says M. Guerlac, "and it is therefore only just that his policies should be conand supported them." Hence the ost fitting candidate as "in the prestige marks them out as available for the prime ministry." The lowed, and to break with the relief "Journal Des Debats" (Paris), has a graceful word to say in regard to had previously adhered? This he "personal prestige" of the Radical party in the Chamber:

"This incoherent majority subsists ploitation of one gross passion-an-It is made up of ti-Clericalism. terests. It comprises Revolutionar-Socialists, and a considerable ance of all political questions under the anonymous mask of Radicalism. It remains to be seen if these ferocious sectaries will go on to the end. Not that there can be a moment's doubt of their audacity. They have the intrepidity of ignorance and the obstinacy of narrow-mindedness."

In enumerating the new premier's many qualifications for office the writer in the "Review of Reviews" unwittingly makes such a striking arraignment of the man and his motives, that we may be pardoned for quoting freely from the evidence he What could be more significant than the admission, "this he never explained to the public" meaning the reason for M. Combes apostasy. Few men who leave the Church leave behind a record that will bear the light of day, and, no doubt, the French minister is no exception to the general rule. But let the reader judge for himself from the information advanced by M. Guerlac, making allowance of course for that contleman's frequent internellations of personal reflections and friendly

'M. Combes comes from the south of France. He is a son of that turbulent and fluent Midi where men are born eloquent, and where heat of the sun seems to impart to their natures a double share of liveliness and aggressiveness and color. Like many representatives of free thought and antagonists of the Church, he began his career under influences of which he was later to become the irreconciliable adversary. He was educated in a religious seminary, where he was trained in the principles which he has since detested. It has often happened that the enemies of the Church have been of her own household. Voltaire who uttered the famous phrase, "Ecrasez l'infame," a pulpit of the Jesuits, Renan, whose ame in clerical circles is as much loathed as that of Voltaire, received all his instruction from priests. The leader of anti-clericalism under the third Republic, Gambetta, who said, 'Clericalism is the enemy,' was like M. Combes, the pupil of a little seminary. But M. Combes received religious instruction longer than any them. Voltaire and Gambetta were under clerical guardianship only in their early youth. Renan him-self parted with the Church at the age of twenty-two. M. Combes remained within the Church even in his maturity; he took priestly orders and became what Renan had once dreamed of becoming, -an ecclesiastical professor in a Catholic semin-

In 1895, when M. Combes was first made Minister of Public Instruction in the Radical Cabinet of M. Bourgeois, it occurred to me to unt up in the Library of the Sorbonne, in Paris, the theses which M. Combes had written in his old days obtain his degree of docteur-es lettres. I found a great volume of several hundred pages,—like all French thesis,—upon "The Psychol-on a question of scholastic metaphyby analyzing them in a Paris news- Combes, as a matter of fact, added Renegade, to complete the de- paper. He began a campaign of ridicule and epigram in the Conservative press against the Radical who this point, for he not only proves M. had begun life as a theologian. M Waldeck-Rousseau himself, who was of teaching is a natural right." at that time the champion of the ministry of M. Bourgeois, said, at lient points in the character of the Bordeaux, in 1897, in replying to sketch, M. Guerlac applies the time- those who accused the Republican honored maxim with which he opens, party of reactionary tendencies: 'It you must look to find a magistrate was to the support of the Radicals real republicans by prosecuting them under the empire, or a learned theologian who has trained himself the study of the fathers of the Church to spy out better the clertinued by those who had approved icals in disguise." Again, the other day, when M. Combes first appeared appointment of M. Combes, — the before the Chamber, the old clerical Radical party, there are not many ly reproached him for his "apostamen whose past services or personal sy." How did M. Combas come to and royalist Baudry d'Asson bitter-has never explained to the public. We only know that one fine day he abandoned scholastic theology for entirely through the systematic ex- the study of medicine; left the department of the Tarn, where he had been known as l'abbe Combes, to esmen of varied ideas and varied in- tablish himself in the Department of the Charente Inferieure, where he was thereafter to pass as Dr. Combes. number of the indifferent and the Modest in his ambitions, he selected uncertain who conceal their ignor- a little town of five thousand inhabstants, the town of Pons, where he practiced his new profession. With the zeal of a neophyte, he began to promulgate the new ideas to which he had just given his adhesion, and which, in these southwestern regions, find a soil at once favorable and hostile, inasmuch as one part of the population is of Huguenot stock, and the other, more numerous still, retains a strong Bonapartist feeling. "The physician has a great influence upon the rural population in France. By his daily contact with the people he is enabled to gain the confidence of the simple-minded, and to spread his ideas. M. Combes. nevertheless, made but slow progress.

cal and religious system to which he

Senate. "The Senate which has only three rundred members, all at least forty years of age, is less turbulent, less ensational, and less frequented by public than the Chamber o Deputies. It is for this reason that men of great ability and genuine teient may here long remain unknown to all except those who ac tually watch them at their work. It was thus that M. Compes was little known when in 1895, M. Bourgeois placed him in his Radical ministry, by the side of M. Berthelot and M Cavaignac. He had not attracted the attention of his colleagues, cept by his work upon committers, especially those relating to educa-

In 1875, he was elected Mayor of ber of the "Conseil General," and it was not until January, 1886, that he succeeded in being elected to the

Pons; in 1879, he was made tional matters "In the Ministry of Public Instruction he was the author of certain bills which testified to the energy of his passion for reform, and to his vigorous hostility to clerical influence. Upon his return to the ranks he continued to make a specialty of those educational questions which. in France, have always engaged the attention of men zealous for the emancipation of the nation. In the discussions which ended, on May 29 of this year, in a complete reform of French secondary instruction, adapted from henceforth on to the needs of a modern democracy, M. Combes played a leading part spokesman of the Committee of the Senate. "To the measures which, during the Waldeck-Rousseau ministry, had distance. The head of the police had for their object the disarmament of the clerical party, M. Combes has given ardent support. He was chairman of the committee on the Law of Associations, whose report was presented by M. Valle, the new Minister of Justice. When M. Waldeck-Rousseau, in advocacy of the bill, delivered before the Senate one of those great addresses for which he is noted, it was M. Combes who proposed to the Senate that it sted on the walls of all the villages of France.

the Waldeck-Rousseau He has accepted power Cabinet. with a view to continuing this policy. Like his predeçessor, he does not seek to carry out the entire programme of radicalism. He will limit himself to applying vigorously the Law of Associations already in force and to striking a new blow at clerical education by securing the repeal of the law of Falloux, of 1850. which confers upon ecclesiastical inanother thesis in Latin, likewise upstitutions privileges which are not enjoyed by the national schools. sics. I took the occasion to make Like most men who have freed themthese two metaphysical works known selves from clerical influence, M. does not pride himself on being liberal. To an editor of "Le Figaro." M Jules Huret, he said recently that he did not believe that the freedom

"L'Echo," (Lyons), with admirmoderate party against the Radical able brevity thus summarizes the sapremier and his policy:

"M. Combes is a sectary, a gade seminarist given over to Freeis certainly not in our ranks that masonry. His policy is the vigorous application of the anti-liberal who has learned how to distinguish law, the refusal of all authorizations asked by the congregations, and the abrogation of the Fallou law."

M. F. Veuillot, writing in the Univers," pays his respects to the minister in no measured terms, he says M. Combes is "devoid of talconceive a generous thought, to realize a great work, to produce anything useful, to show any effort of a patient and beneficial kind. The patient and benefit brute, however, has formidable fists. and he strikes out blindly before him. The man is without a breath of intelligence, a single sentiment of He is but a commonplace mediocrity personified, rancid with hatred and puffed up with pride, As he cannot leave anything to make him famous, he will be notorious to posterity for his brutality alone."

Intent on the dechristianizing of France, the Free Masons could not have chosen a more worthy instrument to execute their savage decrees for the Premier is nothing more than their slave, brutally enforcing their orders leveled against the Church. History offers few sights more sad than those caused by the edicts of this apostate, whose acts degrade France in the eyes of all civilized people.

A manifesto from the committee of liberal action, posted up in Paris and several of the great provincial towns, and signed by M. Jacques Piou, as president, by Comte de Mun, who is vice-president, and by M. Amedee Reille, a deputy, who is secretary, thus boldly denounces the actions of the Premier:

"An unprecedented crime has just been committed. In eight days two thousand five hundred schools been closed, one hundred and fifty thousand children turned into the street, and five thousand schoolmasters and mistresses expelled and left without resources. Never have liberty of conscience and the rights of the family been more outrageously violated."

Ladies who have devoted their ives in the most self-sacrificing way to the cause of education and the care of the young have been ruthlessly thrust into the streets. Thousands and thousands of children have been turned out of the schools in which they were trained by devoted teachers. Even helpless orphans and infants shared the fate of the other scholars. And the government made no effort to provide for Brothers taught in a school belong-ing to a company whose salaried servants they were, the police went to the institution a few minutes after six in the evening and gave them ten minutes to clear out Brothers remonstrated, but yielding to force, hurried out of the building and found shelter with a neighboring family. Meanwhile the police had been busy sealing the windows and doors.

At Plougonver, near Crehen, in the Cotes du Nord where there was a school for boarders and day scholars, kept by nuns, the boarders and the Sisters were allowed three hours to leave the building. In vain the Sisters pleaded for time to word to the parents of their little charges, some of whom came from a simply answered: "I have my orders and I shall carry them These are examples of what has been done in the name of Republican li herty in France during the last few days with the sanction of the President of the Republic on the recommendation of M. Combes.

The outrageous tyranny of the Government proceedings has stirred Catholic France as it has scarcely ever been stirred since before great Revolution. The Holy Father has addressed a private protest to jected is trenchantly exposed. The and begged him to be more equitmentary followers gave him a. majority of one hundred and sixty. The ner Cardinal in his Pastoral has put the case for the Catholic schools on the ground of common rights.

The venerable prelate tearnessly assails the action of the Premier, taking up in turn the reasons for persecution, the legislation enacted towards this end, the legality of corre wal of his purpose to defend religic.'s liberty and to dein aid " Hot privileges, but rights to which all French citizens are entitled." full text of this document is an admirable exposition of the Cardinal don the sisters. Archbishop's views. We quote the following passages:-

"What are the motives which have called for this sudden and violent measure? There has been no scandal, no disorder in these educational establishments, which are under the direction of teachers holding certificates, as the law requires. The only reason there can be advanced is that the instruction given in these schools is in keeping with the principles of the Catholic Faith, ent, virtue, honor-a brute unable to that the teachers belong to religious congregations. An additional reason is that the Freemasons open- audience with the wife of the Presily declare that every Christian idea dent, commissioned General Dubois shall be eliminated from the educa- to inform Mme. Loubet, that they conscience directed against families. As a bishop, it is our duty and our these families against this sort of been heard from multitudes in attacks have been systematically planned by the anti-Christian the Academician, M. Pugliesi Continuous. In 1886 a law dealing with a Nationalist deputy, and many oth schools eliminated religious instruction from the school curriculum, rest. At Bresses, in the Four years later teachers who were members of religious congregations vere excluded from the public schools on the grounds that these teachers, being Catholics, taught things the State could not permit teachers in its pay to refer to.

"Families, by way of reply to these laws, established schools at the cost of many sacrifices frequently renewed. Great crowds of children flocked into these schools. As a counter stroke to this continuous manifestation of the wishes of families, the Freemasons enacted the law of association, which aims at making the establishment of tree schools impossible. The simultaneous closing of about three thousand schools has no other object in view than the doing away with religious instruction in the free schools after it had been excluded from the public

"After the statement of these selfevident facts, we deem it useless to stop to discuss in detail the measures adopted for the closing of the schools. After the declaration made by Premier Waldeck-Rousseau, a great number of the directors these schools felt they were safe question. The ministerial circular ance, and, besides, a ministerial cireducational establishments. If the opportunity of complying with legal formalities, they could have manifested this desire by granting reasonable delays. The granting of such delays was rendered more neversed in knowledge of the laws and of administrative regulations question the necessity and the legality of ers. The measures adopted manifest an evident desire to close the schools after every means had been employed to bring this about. "The Freemasons are unceasingly at work trying to create division by attacking Christian institutions. As of lawyers-there would certainly for us, Mr. President, we will continue, with God's aid, to fulfil the duty of a bishop-of a French bishop. We will defend religious liberfamily in matters touching the education of children; we will defend all legitimate liberties to which as citizens, we are entitled. We ask no privileges, but we demand that Catholics shall not be deprived of rights which they share in comm with all French citizens.'

tun, reminds the Government the hopes of internal peace held out by the President of the Republic at Brest before setting out for Russia have been dashed by the policy of the French Government. Day after day the French bishops have been Catholics generally is heartily in will inspire the Catholics with a votes out of twenty-nine, the Generaged Cardinal Archbishop of Paris al Council of Maine et Loire has electoral forces and exerting their had an interview with the Premier, passed a resolution condemning the full voting power for self-defence. able, but M. Combes is said to have Maurice (Clarente) and the Arronexpulsions. The municipality of St. replied insolently that his Parlia- dissement Council of Nantes have D'Entremont, in Donahoe's Magazexpressed their opinion in like man-

There is intense excitement in Brittany over the enforcement of the religious associations law. Commerce there is at a standstill, and the peasants openly avow their determination to resist the expulsion of the nuns.

The population of Landerneau, measures, the animus of the twelve miles from Brest, has formed Free Masons, and ends with an a- relays to guard the school, and peasant women sit on benches opposite the gate, knitting, while awaiting the coming of the gendarmes. They The are greatly excited and declare they prefer to be shot rather than aban-

The lady superior of Landereau convent said:

"Like true Britons, we will yield only to force. The women and oth er people who are guarding the school night and day have given us a courageous example."

In Paris and in all parts of the country demonstrations have been held in favor of the Sisters, and feeling has run high. Five ladies of distinction in Parisian society -Mmes. Reille, de Mun, Piou, Cibiel, and de Pomeyrol-called at the Elvsee and, being unable to obtain were resolved not to suffer persecu "This is a violent attack upon tion in silence, and that if the Government did not alter its policy blood would be shed in the streets right to protest in the name of The cry of "Vivent les Soeurs!" has tyranny which is the most cruel of principal quarters of the capital. all tyrannies. It is to be noted that For publicly advocating the cause of the expelled religious, M. Copce ers were for a time placed under argendarmes, who went to close the local Sisters' school, had to retire before two thousand peasants armed with pitchforks. Peasants also drove off the police at Teule, in Finistere. Whilst expelled nuns were proceeding in coaches to the railway station at Saint Ambroix, unvoked the horses, and led the Sisters back to the school. The three thousand persons who assembled cried again and again. "Hurrah for Liberty!" and "Down with the Tyrants!" Combes, who had been officiating as mayor at a "civil wedding" at Pons was hastily summoned to Paris, and has endeavored to terrorise heads of the religious bodies in France by telling them through the prefects, that they would be held responsible for the attitude of the establishments conducted by members of their Orders. But the threat will be of little avail.

That the Premier has already exseeded his power is generally admitted in press comment. Even the "Temps" (Paris) condemns the treatment of the religious as too severe, and the London "Standard" thus considers his right:-

"The doubt whether the ministeri-Their sincerity cannot be called in al action is strictly legal naturally tends to make the opposition more closing two thousand five hundred bitter. On that point, of course, we schools had not made its appear- express no opinion, but it is significant cant that M. Jules Roche, who is cular cannot order the closing of not a Clerical, and who has much administrative experience as well as authorities desired to afford, we legal knowledge, has declared that shall not say in a spirit of kindli- M. Combes is acting beyond his powness, but in a spirit of equity, to ers. If so, means can, no doubt, be At Alencon, where some Christian the teachers who had not done so an found to check him and his agents, ormous in France, and where it is concerned French courts are somewhat apt to act less like independent judicial authorities than as the cessary by the fact that persons agents of the Government. We do not require to be learned in the law to understand the hardship inflicted on the nuns when they are called on the formalities required of the teach- to obtain an authorization before they may teach the poor, and are told at the same time that it is too late to make the application. Whatever technical justification M. Combes may have and it is hardly credible that he is acting without the advice seem to be something like a breach of an honorable understanding. When the associations law was passed we were told that it was not directed against local orders engaged in educational or in charitable work, but only against the great organizations, such as the Assumptionist Brothers, the Jesuits, Dominicans, and others which are not peculiarly French, and are directed by generals resident at

The movement against the Govern-Cardinal Perraud, Bishop of Au- ment is a popular one the leading how part in it being taken by the parents of the children attending the Sisters' schools. However, the Sisters' schools. struggle against the expulsions may end, eit is to be hoped that the reday the French Disnoys as the constitution of the publishing Pastorais, is which the suns are subinjustice to which the suns are subtheir persecutors. By twenty-three duce them to engage with determination in the work of organizing their The necessity for such activity has been repeatedly demonstrated. - L.

Boodling in Civic Affairs.

The municipality of St. Louis. Mo., is being held up to the execration of the American public on account of some flagrant cases of boodling. But there are other cities in Canada as well as in the United States, in which similar corruption has taken place. The difference is that in the majority of the cases the aldermen composing "the ring" have kept silent, and no attempt has been made by the citizens to bring the culprits to justice.

What makes the St. Louis revelations interesting is the oath which the corrupt members of the municipal assembly took to remain silent as to the boodling transactions. One of the combine of nineteen members in the city council has 'fieached,' but he declares that such looting was so common that he had not thought it criminal until the new prosecuting attorney got afboodlers in earnest. oath, a copy of which has been handed to the grand jury who are investigating the case, was as follows:-

"I do solemnly swear before the Almighty God that in associating myself and in becoming a member of this combine I will vote and act with the combine whenever and wherever I may be so ordered to do.

'And I further solemnly swear that I will not, at any place or time, reveal the fact that there is a ombine, and that I will not communicate to any person or persons anything that may take place at any meeting of the combine.

"And I do solemnly agree that, in case I should reveal the fact that any person in this combine has re ceived money, I hereby permit and authorize other members of this ombine to take the forfeit of my life in such manner as they deem proper, and that my throat may be cut, my tongue torn out and my body cast into the Mississippi River.

"And all of this I do solemnly wear, so help me God."

John K. Murrell's statement that the house combine of 1899-1900, of which he was a member, bribes of $2,500 each for their votes on the lighting bill of 1900 made the lighting scandal the chief topic of investigation by the grand jury Tuesday. This "business agent" for the boodle combine bared the details of the scheme before the grand jury. For one franchise he was the custodian of $75,000 to be divided among the gang after the bill had received the mayor's signature.

"I held the key to the box in the Lincoln Trust Company containing the $75,000 bribe money to go to the house of delegates upon the passage of the Suburban Bill," he tes-

"This money was put up as the purchase price for the votes of the mbine that price having been agreed upon.

"The combine of the house of delegates was composed of nineteen men. This combine held frequent meetings in the room adjoining the house of delegates' chamber. There most of the schemes to get money for votes were concocted. matter came before the combine I was selected to negotiate with Philip Stock, the representative of the suburban railroad, as to the best price we could get for our votes upon the passage of the bill.

"Shortly before the Suburban Bill the combine sold their votes on the lighting bills for $47,500. Each member of the combine received $2,500. I was present and saw that money paid to, the various persons.

"These are only two instances, but there are others, evidence of which is in the possession of the circuit attorney. These two instances show, however, what has been going on in the municipal assembly.

"We did not look upon what w did as a serious crime, as it had gone on so long without interrup-tion that it was not regarded by those who participated in it as morally wrong. Until the present circuit attorney took office no sincere effort, apparently, was ever made to punish what was being done as a recorded-save in the parish register of Stockville, vet it was at one time the subject of general conversation in the environments of Ottawa Dan was an Irish lad, a pure Celt, with black curley hair and deep blue eyes, and a splendid brogue. many other lads he came out with parents, when he was a boy: and like many other parents his ed of the terrible ship fever and left him an orphan. He was always full of wit and had a keen sense of logic; consequently his powers of re partee and of argument made him a formidable antagonist. Mostly all his life he worked as a day laborer. and especially as a farm hand, until after his marriage. Now, in his old age, he drives a carriage and pair, and his son-one of the handsomest in Canada—may be seen on horseback, as grand marshall, certain festive occasions in the vicinity of Ottawa. I do not wish to be too minute in my details, for the family is a numerous and most highly respected one, and the events I am about to relate were known a few years ago, that I fear were I to give all the names exact, I might risk hurting the feelings of some one or other-and nothing could be farther from my wish.

The thorough investigation which

OLD-TIME REMINISCENCES.

By a Special Correspondent.)

Dan Hurley, in 1870, was a very bashful man, especially in the sence of the fair sex. He had been working for some years, at good wages, as foreman for a wealthy farmer and lumberman, five miles from Ottawa. During certain seasons of the year Dan used to go twice a to market, with hay, oats, roots, or other farm produce, and so honest was he that he would go without his dinner rather than to take the price of it out of "the master's" money, or he would go three miles of a round, over impossibl roads, through fences, and up gullies, in order to avoid paying ten for the toll on the highway. He-felt it his duty to bring "the master" every cent that he received for his produce on the market. However, if any person else saw fit to pay for his dinner or for a treat Dan had no objection to partake of the hospitality. He had the general reputation of having some money laid aside; and not a few of the farmers on the market would be glad if he were to make inquiries about their marriageable daughters. But Dan was the last man on earth to think of asking any person about a young girl, much less of speaking periously to any unmarried female. However, he was "bound to be caught some day," as he used to say; and caught he was. It happened in the following manner:

Dan had gone to market with load of hay. After selling his load he met with James Walsh, a well-todo farmer from Goulbourne. The latter invited Dan to "come and have something;" and Dan went and "ha something," and even two some things, if the story is to be believed Over their brimming bumpers Mr. Walsh informed Dan that he had fine lump of a girl at home" that would make a first-class w fe for the likes of our hero. Dan went so far as to say that he would have no objection to take a look at the lass The result was an agreement that go out to Goulbourn the next Sunday and stop at Jackson's hotel, to which rendezvous Mr. Walsh and wife would bring the daughter. Then a mutual agreement

Sunday Dan left after dinner, from where he was working, and walked into Ottawa, and thence out to Goulbourne. He reached Jackson's ho-

Experience of a Priest

The experience of the Rev. Fathe

McKeever, rector of the Church of St. Rosa of Lima, Newark, N.J., in his labors as hospital chaplain is by no means isolated, for the cowardiness and bigotry on the part of the physicians of whom ne complains are not confined to the Newark city hos-bital. He has had the courage, wever, to make a public ac tion against the offenders; and this tion against the offenders; and this makes the case a unique one. His example will doubtles be followed, and with equally beneficial results.

Pather McKeever declares that on

THE

In an Hospital.

Dan Hurley's wedding was never | haps the first) part" had not vet ar rived he took possession of the parlor of the inn. Looking out window he saw a horse and buggy coming to the door, and in the cupants he recognized his prospective wife and father-and-mother-in-law Dan began to lose courage. Finally when they came in by the front door he ran out by the back one, and went to hide in the yard. Mr. Walsh and party f ound the parlor empty and wondered what had become Dan. Just as they were about to take their departure, he had screwed up his courage to a point of "facing the music.'

When Dan came in, his head down as if he were about to be taken to the scaffold, the father and mother went out of the room, leaving Dar and Mary to introduce themselves to each other. Mary was seated at one end of the parlor, and Dan sat down upon the edge of a chair at the other end of the room. For a time all was silence. At last Dan made a brave move Mary-ward to another chair. After another twn | minutes he risked a word: "Nice day." "No it ain't," said Mary. "How are the crops?" asked Dan, after another pause. "Just so. so." said Mary, as she eved him carefully, somewhat after the fashion of a person eyeing a dangerous-looking dog on the roadside

At this the father spoke from outside: "Come on Mary, we are going home."

"In one minute," said Mary. Still there was no move made by Dan. "Mary, the horse is waiting," shouted the mother from the hall.

"I'm going," said Mary: but she Finally Dan made a desperate

"Would you like to live in Stock ville?" he asked.

"No; I would not," said Mary "Well, if you're going to be my rife, you'll have to," said Dan. "Then, if I have to I can't hesly

," said Mary. "Will you?" asked Dan.

"I suppose so," was the answer. "When will it be?" he querried. "A week Irom Monday," said she.

"Hurry up Mary, your mother wants to go home," shouted the fa-"She's going." roared Dan.

And with that the father and mo ther came in, and just as if they had not heard every word, they asked

"She'll give it to you on your way home," was Dan's parting re mark, after which he vanished.

On the second Monday after, at 5 a.m. Dan left the farm to meet his bride at the Church. They were married at eight o'clock, and when ceremony was over, she went back home with her parents, and before noon Dan was at work in the hay field of his master just as if nothing had happened.

A few days later his master called him and said: "Dan I thought you had got married?"

'I believe I did," said Dan.

"Where is your wife?"

"At home with her parents. 'When are you going to take her?' "When they won't keep her any longer; but there is no hurry. She have them keep her.' It was fully three months before Dan could be persuaded to go for his wife. Finally he went; he took her home; he made a good home for her; they had a most interesting family of five splendid children; and the only cross that poor Dan ever had was that lawsuit in which his father-in-law demanded thirty dol-our different occasions,

Catholic priest was engaged in hear-ing the confessions of Catholic patients in the city hospital, he discovered a certain physician, a mem per of the house staff, concealed be hind a screen or curtain, by which the beds of the patients were partly surrounded, with the apparent purpose of hearing what was passing between the confessor and the peni-

Father McKeever also states that the priests have been subjected ndignities and insults by some the physicians while in the act says they virtually prevented the priest from administering the last rom asphyxiation, who was being conveyed to the hospital in an amor disagreement might be reached. To make a long story short, on lars for Mary's board during the tel about four in the afternoon. As three months between marriage and the "parties of the second (or per- reunion of the happy couple.

of that institution.

The priest does not utter a word the institution except to say that rights of clergymen to be given every he submitted the case of Dr. Frank E. Baker, who had promised to investigate and inform him of the result of such investigation, but had failed to do so.

In discussing the causes of plaint. Father McKeever said:

"On the morning of August last I was summoned in haste to administer the last sacrament to a Co young woman named Margaret burn, a Catholic, who had been employed as a servant in the home of Samuel Lees, of 85 North Ninth She was 20 years old. had been in this country only a few days, and left the gas jet open in room. When found she was nearly dead. I responded to a call immediately, but when I reached the house I learned that the hospital physician had the patient in an ambulance.

"I climbed into the vehicle, and while it was being driven along the street, I administered the sacramen of extreme unction. I was unable to complete the sacrament, however, because the hands and feet of the patient were covered. I spoke sharply to Dr. Pfeiffer, the ambulance physician, and told him I considered his action outrageous, unless he was ignorant of the grave importance of a Catholic receiving the last sacrament in such an emer gency as that. He did not reply. I lighted.

"I watched the condition of Coburn until the following Saturday, and then, learning that could not recover, went to the hospital to complete the sacrament which I did, the patient dying while was at her bedside. When leaving the ward I met Dr. Pfeiffer, who in troduced me to Dr. Sandy, who ac knowledged the introduction with a stiff motion of his body. He ther said to me, referring to my previous experience with Dr. Pfeiffer:

"I consider your action in getting into the ambulance to have been an unwarrantable interference on your part.

"That remark incensed me, and I went at once and reported the occurrence to Dr. Baker. I requested him to call Dr. Sandy for an explan-That he refused to do on the plea that he was in a hurry to catch a train, but he promised to take the case up later and make a report to That he has so far failed to

In reference to his charge of the physicians listening to the confessions of dying patients. Father Mc-Keever said: "My question as to the right of a physician to conceal himself behind curtain to listen to what was being said in the confessional was the outcome of experiences on four different occasions in the city hospital of Father Corcoran, curate of St Joseph's Church. It was based or Father Corcoran's positive declara tion to me. He discovered the proximity of this person by being at tracted by the agitation of the curtains.

"Father Corcoran had reasons for not exposing the eavesdropper, but if it had been me I would thrown the fellow out of a window or at least administered a rebuke that might have had a salutary effect upon him.

"I consider this practice to be no thing short of outrageous. At all times and in every civilized land the sacred nature of the confessional and the sanctity of the relationship of the priest with the penitent have Catholic Sailors' Club is well off there, and it costs less to the sanctity of the relationship of been recognized. It has even established by law that the priest is absolved from exposing the crets of the confessional.

> "I do not propose to let this matter crop. I intend to address my parishioners on it next Sunday, and will continue the agitation until the assurance is given that the rights of a clergymen to have protection in the administration of his sacred duties shall be maintained."

The medical superintendent of the hospital, Dr. Baker, was shown the charges made by Father McKeever. Regarding the ambulance case, said:-

"The physician took offence a what he considered to be interference with his duties on the part of the priest," said Dr. Baker, "and treated the latter in a manner that I considered called for censure. took prompt action in that matte and told the doctor he had no right to act as he did. I told him, further, when he sought to justify conduct, that I would not stand for such things. I intended to visit the the result of my investigation, was too busy.

" Dr. Sandy admitted that he was wrong in addressing himself to the priest in the manner in which he did. He said that the priest was excited and spoke sharply to bulance under the care of a physician while he was administering oxygen to a patient in an effort to keep alive

"There is no doubt as to the opportunity to perform their spiri tual obligations to sick or flying ratients of this institution. The rules are plain and emphatic in that gard, and I have always lived up to them as far as I have been able

"I know absolutely nothing of the allegation that a doctor of this institution has been guilty of eaves dropping while a confession was be ing heard. Nobody has ever such complaint to me. I would not ment.

"There is no question that young physicians here occasionally do things they have no right to do, and they sometimes merit discipline Some of them do not seem to to conceive that anything able should interfere with their professional work, and do not think of the religious needs of a patient.'

Wit and Humor.

"Did your husband leave a will?" asked the lawyer of the weeping widow-for-the-second-time. "I don't think he could. I know he never had any as long as I've been mar ried to him.

Banks (flicking off the ashes with his little finger): Yes: I smoke a good deal. A cigar is company a fellow when he's lonesome. Rivers raising the window): You must have been hard up for companion ship when you lit that one.

The builder of a church, on return ing thanks for the toast of his health, which had been proposed, remarked: "I fancy I am more fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

A colonel now on the retired list had one of his fingers shot off during the Crimean War. One day, having a friend to tea, he was telling how it happened. His little three year-old grandchild, sitting on his knee, looked up after he had finished, with a face full of pity, and breathlessly said: "Gran'pa, and did you have all the hair shot off the top of your head, too?

Teacher: Who built the Suez Canal? Small Boy: Nobody, sir. Hit wuzn't built. Hit wuz dug.

"I hear that you are in business "I thought I for yourself now." was; but from the little I get out of it it appears that I am in business for other people."

On the facade of the principal hotel in Vichy, France, is the announce-"All languages spoke ment: "All languages spoken here." A recent tourist plied the host with English, Spanish, Russian and Dutch. Seeing that the good fellow understood never a word, inquired who it was that spoke every tongue. To that mine host responded with frigid dignity: "The travellers, sir.'

ALL SALLORS WELCOME.

Concert Every Wednesday Evening.

All Local Talent Invited; the finest in the City payus a visit.

MAES at 9 30 a.m on Sunday.
Sacred Concert on Sunday.

Evening. Open week days from 9 a.m. to 10 p m.
On Sundays, from 1 p.m. to 10 p m. Tel Main 2161.

St Peter and Common Sts.

C. A. McDONNELL.

Accountant and Liquidato 180 ST. JAMES STREET,

.. Montreal...

Fifteen years experience in councertion with the liquidation of Privational Inscirent Datates. Auditing

TELEPHONE 1182.

Business. Caras

T. J. O'NEILL.

Reul : Estate : Agent, 180 ST. JAMES STREET.

ar you want to buy a property, want to sell your property; if you want to exchange your property, want your rents collected, your taxes, insurance, repairs and renting attended to, call or write for terms. Special attention given to properties of non-residents. Prompt Returns. Moderate . harges

M. SHARKEY.

Real Estate and Fire Insurance Agent 1840and 1723 NOTRE DAMEST.,

Valuations made of Real Estate. Per onal supervision given to all business, Telephone Main 771

GARROLL BROS..

Registered PracticalSanitarians Plumbers, Steam Fitters,

795 CRAIG STREET, near St. Antoine Stree Drainage and Ventilation aspecialty. CHARGES MODERATE. Telephone 188

CONROY BROS.

228 Centre Street.

Practical Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters PLECTRIC and SECHANICAL

BELLS, etc.
Tel. Main 3552. Night and Day Service.

TELEPHONE 3833.

THOMAS O'CONNELL Dealerin General Household Hardware, Paint

Oils, and a fine line of Wall Papers, Cor, Murray and Ottawa

STREETS. PRACTICAL PLUMBER,

GAS, STEAM and HOT WATER FIFTEB BUTLAND LINING, FITS ANY STO

OHEAP, Orders promptly attended to. :-: Moders

harges. .-: A trial solicited.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

G. O'BRIEN. House, Sign and Decorative Painter PLAIN AND DECORATIVE

PAPER-HANGER.

Whitewashingand Tinting. Orderspromptly attended to. Terms moderate. Residence 545. Office 647. Dorchester street, ast of Bieury street. Montreal Bell Telephone, Main, 1405.

BANIEL FURLONG,

CHOICE BEEF, VEAL, MUTTON and PORK,

54 Prince Arthur Street Special rates for Charitable Institutions TELEPHONE EAST 47.

LAWRENCE RILEY. PLASTERER.

Successorto John Riley. Established in 1866.
Plain and Ornamental Plastering. Repairs of at Skinds promptly attended to Estimates furnished Postal orders att-uded to 15 Payls greet, Point vs. Charles.

Roofs of Every Description

Asphalt. Cement, and Vulcanite Floors.

If Low Prices make a bargain, High Quality doubles it, that is why we are sure of our own ground.

All our work supervised by Specia

GEORGE W. REID & CO., 785 CRAIG STREET

out-mailing flour acres the compty has turn them to us will remail and premiums a for it six points are a 16 inches. For it six poundatures for gifting a 16 inches. For it six poundatures for giftings it incompany to the points of the point

Society Directory:

A.O.H., DIVISION NO. 3, meets eathe first and third Wednesday of each month, at 1868 Notre Dame street, near McGill. Officers: Alderman D. Gallery, M.P., President; M. McCarthy, Vice-President; Fred. J. Devlin. Rec.-Secretary. 1528F Ontario street, L. Brophy. Treasurer; John Hughes, Financial Secretary, 65 Young street; M. Fennel, Chairman Standing Committee; John O'Donnell, Marshal.

ST. ANN'S T. A. & B. SOCIETY.
established 1868.—Rev. Director.
Rev. Father Flynn. President, D.
Gallery, M.P.; Sec., J. F. Quinn, 625 St. Dominique street: M. J.
Ryan, treasurer. 18 St. Augustin street. Meets on the second Sunday of every month, in St. Ann's Hall, corner Young and Ottawa streets, at 8.80 p.m.

A.O.H. LADIES' AUXILIARY, Division No. 5. Organized Oct. 10th, 1901. Meeting are held on 1st Sunday of every month, at 4 p.m.; and 8rd Thursday, at 8 p.m. Miss Annie Donovan, president; Mrs. Sarah Allen, vice-president; Miss Sarah Allen, vice-president, miss Nora Kavanaugh, recording-secre-tary, 155 Inspector street; Miss Emma Doyle, financial-secretary; Emma Doyle, mancial-secretary; Miss Charlotte Sparks, treasurer, Rev. Father McGrath, chaplain.

ST. PATRICK'S SOCIETY.-Established March 6th, 1856, incorpor-ated 1863, revised 1864. Meets in. St. Patrick's Hall, 92 St. Alexan-der street, first Monday of the month. Committee meets last Wed-nesday. Officers: Rev. Director. nesday. Officers: Rev. Director, Rev. M. Callaghan, P.P. President, Hon. Mr. Justice C. J. Doherty : 1st Vice, F. E. Devlin, M.D.; 2nd Vice, F. J. Curran, B.C.L.; Treasurer, Frank J. Green, Corresponin Secretary, John Kahala; Recording Secretary, T. P. Tansey

ST. ANN'S YOUNG MEN'S SOCIE. TY organized 1885.—Meets in its hall, 157 Ottawa street, on the first Sunday of each month, at 2.30 p.m. Spiritual Adviser. Rev. E. Strubbe, C.SS.R.; President, M. Casey; Treasurer, Thomas O'Connel; Secretary, W. Whitty.

ST. ANTHONY'S COURT, C. O. F., meets on the second and fourth Friday of every month in their hall, corner Seigneurs and Notre Dame streets. A. T. O'Connell, C. R., T. W. Kane, secretary.

ST. PATRICK'S T. A. & B. SO-CLETY.—Meets on the second Sun-day of every month in St. Pat-rick's Hall, 92 St. Alexander St., rick's Hall, 92 St. Alexander St., immediately after Vespers. Committee of Management meets is same hall the first Tuesday of every month at 8 p.m. Rev. Father MoGrath, Rev. President; W. P. Doyle, 1st Vice-President; Jno. P. Gunning, Secretary, 716 St. Antoine street, St. Henri.

C.M.B.A. OF CANADA, BRANCH 26.—(Organized, 13th November, 1873.—Branch 26 meets at St. 1873.—Branch 26 meets at St. Patrick's Hall, 92 St. Alexander St., on every Monday of each month. The regular meetings for the transaction of business are held on the 2nd and 4th Mondays of each month, at 8 p.m. Spiritual Adviser, Rev. M. Callaghan; Chansellor, F. J. Curran, B.C.L.: President, Fred. J. Sears; Recording-Secretary, J. J. Costigun; Financial-Secretary, Robt. Warren; Treasurer, J. H. Feeley, jr.; Medical Advisers, Drs. H. J. Harrison, E. J. O'Connof and G. H. Merrill.

FRANK J. GURRAN.

B.A., B.C.L.

.ADVOCATE ...

Savings Bank Chambers, 180 St. James Street, Montreal.

OHUROH BELLS.

MENEELY BELL COMPANY

TROY, N.Y., and 177 BROADWAY, NEW YORK City.

Subscribe to the

"True Witness."

SATURDAY, SE

CASHI

T would be usel

follow in detail

the Protestant Cashel. From A that is from A Richa there were these prelates who he by authority Cashel. eign of England. A Archbishop Laurence, place on the 28th Dec the metropolitan rank (Protestant) of the S were extinguished, an suffragan to the ar Dublin. We have simp existence of the Pro bishopric from the Magrath down to the tinction, in order to ccount of Cashel; but archbishops were recog nor did their existence the unbroken series of bishops. In order to idea of Cashel's Cath

copal history we will back to 1580-to Rev.

ley-who succeeded Ma

bon, who had been fo

minions of Elizabeth t

land, when the See wa

by James Maccagwill, of Miler Magrath. I will simply give a Catholic archbishops, of an index, in order have it before me, wh the details of each of hope to be able, in tw cles to bring the story archiepiscopal See dow day. Here are the crations and deaths. Consecrated. Consecrated.

Darby O'Hanlev ... 1580

Thurlough O'Neill—(Never presided over Ca
David Kearney ... 1604

Thos. Walsh ... 1626

Wm. Burgatt ... 1669

John Brennan ... 1667

Edward Comerford .1697

Christopher Butler .1712

James Butler, I ... 1757

James Butler, II ... 1773

-Gerard Techan —

Gerard Teehan — (Appointed and declined (Appointed and declined Thomas Bray. 1792 Patrick Everard. 1820 Robert Laffan. 1823 Michael Slattery. 1834 Patrick Leeby. 1857 Thomas Croke, Bishop of New Zealand appointed

It is now that we en really interesting story prelates. Beginning wi romantic history of Da and ending with the ma patriotic career of the bishop Croke, we have galaxy of great princ Church. We will, then mence with Archbishop

This prelate was born village of Lycodoon. from Limerick, about th His father was agent of mond, and his moth O'Brien, was descended house of Thormond. A his studies at Louvain became doctor and profe ology at Rheims, where noted for piety and lear thence to Rome, he was Archbishop of Cashel XIII. He prepared to flock confided to his can dangers for any Catholi bishop in travelling to those days, were so gree was obliged to remain in Brittany.

Finally Dr. O'Hurley ip bound for Waterfor his bulls and papers to merchant, because he been searched either at left, or on sea, or wher the merchant's ship fell ates, the papers were se strict search made for bishop himself, who, in time, had landed in Drog he proceeded to Waterfor met Walter Baal, a wre who watched him closely nounced him to the aut The informer's happily made known to ley, and to the priest v panied him also to John er of the Protestant C Waterford. John Dillon

Manufacture Superior CHURCH BELLS. ed, cast into prison, an leased through the influe chancellor. Dr. O'Hurley Castle of Slane, where he ly received by Catherine wife of Lord Slane, At

SEPT 20, 1902.

Flynn. President, D. .; Sec., J. F. Quinn, minique street: M. J. urer. 18 St. Aug month, in St. Ann's Young and Ottawa 80 p.m.

ES' AUXILIARY, Di-ES' AUXILIARY, DiOrganized Oct. 10th, ing are held on 1st
ery month, at 4 p.m.; reday, at 8 p.m. Mise van, president; Mrs.
n, vice-president; Miss augh, recording-secrespector street; Missn, financial-secretary;
tte Sparks, treasurer. tte tte Sparks, treasurer.
McGrath, chaplain.

'S SOCIETY.—Estab-h 6th, 1856, incorpor-swised 1864. Meets in. Hall, 92 St. Alexan-first Monday of the mittee meets last Wed-deers: Rev. Director, aghan, P.P. President, ustice C. J. Doherty; E. Devlin, M.D.; 2nd Curran, B.C.L.; Treas-J. Green, Correspon-John Kahala; Rectary, T. P. Tansey.

UNG MEN'S SOCIE 1 1885.—Meets in its tawa street, on the of each month, at piritual Adviser, Rev. C.SS.R.; President. Treasurer, Thomsecretary, W. Whitty. Thomas

'S COURT. C. O. F .. second and fourth ery month in their Seigneurs and Notre . A. T. O'Connell, ine, secretary.

C'S T. A. & B. SOts on the second Sumonth in St. Pat-2 St. Alexander St., after Vespers. Com-danagement meets in first Tuesday of every President; W. P. Vice-President; Jno. Secretary, 716 St. An-St, Henri.

CANADA, BRANCE zed. 13th 26 meets at St. h 26 meets at St. all. 92 St. Alexander all, 92 St. Alexander y Monday of each regular meetings for tion of business are 2nd and 4th Mondays
, at 8 p.m. Spiritual
. M. Callaghan; ChanCurran, B.C.L.: Pre-J. Sears; Recording-J. Costigan; Finan-. J. Costigan; Finan-y, Robt. Warren: H. Feeley, jr.; Medi-Drs. H. J. Harrison, of and G. H. Merrill.

J. GURRAN. A., B.C.L.

COCATE ... Chambers, 180 St. James et. Montreal.

OH BELLS.

URCH BELLS nimes and Peals, erior Copper and Tin. Getour price. IANE BELL FOUNDRY Baitimore, Md.

BELL COMPANY , N.Y., and

AY, NEW YORK City. perior CHURCH BELLS.

TEST SELL FOURSETY Estab. 1887.
Pont and Chime Bellalever and L. Index To used estaurity.
To E. W. YAND UMEN COBell Founder, Cinchunet. 6.

the

"True Witness."

CASHEL OF THE KINGS

follow in detail the history of the Protestant archbishops of Cashel. From 1629 to 1838 Cashel. From 1629 to 1838 that is from Archibald Hamto Richard Laurence there were fourteen of these prelates who held the See of Cashel, by authority of the soverof England. At the death of Archbishop Laurence, which took place on the 28th December, 1838. the metropolitan rank and rights (Protestant) of the See of Cashel were extinguished, and it became existence of the Protestant arch-Magrath down to the date of its extinction, in order to give an exact account of Cashel; but none of these archbishops were recognized by Rome nor did their existence interfere with bishops. In order to have a clear copal history we will have to go mond, who then held the Castle. back to 1580-to Rev. Darby O'Hurley-who succeeded Maurice Fitzgib- Lord Slane slept in the houses of by James Maccagwill, the precursor of Miler Magrath.

cles to bring the story of Cashel's Here are the prelates, with the dates of their respective consecrations and deaths.

Consecrated.	Deceas	ed.
Darby O'Hanley 1580	6th May,	1584
Thurlough O'Neill— (Never presided over Ca	shel).
David Kearney1604		1625
Thos. Walsh 1626	6th May,	1654
Wm. Burgatt1669		1674
John Brennan 1667		1692
Edward Comerford .1697		1705
Christopher Butler .1712		1757
James Butler, I1757		1774
Dutler II 1772		1791

James Butler, II....1773 Gerard Teehan —

really interesting story of Cashel's ing that she might induce him prelates. Beginning with the wildly romantic history of Darby O'Hurley and ending with the magnificent and patriotic career of the late Archbishop Croke, we have before us a while he could enjoy them in heaith galaxy of great princes of the Church. We will, therefore, mence with Archbishop Darby O'Hur-thence to Rome, he was appointed mains were deposited in the church-Archbishop of Cashel by Gregory yard of St. Kevin.

Finally Dr. O'Hurley sailed in a his bulls and papers to a the merchant's ship fell in with pirates the merchant's ship fell in with pirates the Architecture died where the Architecture died w met Walter Baal, a wretched spy, who watched him closely, and denounced him to the authorities in house of standard for the Baron of Slane."

For this week I will close my rehappily made known to Dr. O'Hur- so recently honored by the incum ley, and to the priest who accom-

T would be useless for us to inot leave his own room; but grow ing more confident by degrees, he appeared at the public table and dined with strangers. One day the Chancellor, Robert Dillon, came on a visit to the castle, whether by accident or design no one could tell, and the Archbishop conversed with such grace and eloquence that the Chancellor's suspicions were excited, and he determined to make inquiries regarding the mission and character of the distinguished stranger. Lord Slane was at once sent for, and ordered under the heaviest penalties to suffragan to the archbisnopric of bring the Archbishop to the Castle Dublin. We have simply told of the of Dublin. With this unjust mandate the Earl determined to comply, bishopric from the days of Miler partly through fear of losing his estates, and partly through weakness of faith: but before the Earl's return from Dublin, Dr. O'Hurley had escaped to Carrick-on-Suir. The Baron and his officials pursued him thithe unbroken series of Catholic arch- ther, and placed him under arrest, against the protests of Thomas Butidea of Cashel's Catholic Archiepis- ler, surnamed the Black Earl of Or-

On the journey to Dublin , when bon, who had been forced by the friends, or public hotels, the Archminions of Elizabeth to fly from Ire-bishop was flung each night into one land, when the See was seized upon noisome jail after another, in the several towns through which they passed. After their arrival Dr. I will simply give a list of the O'Hurley was examined, as was Catholic archbishops, in the form usual, before the Council. Loitus' of an index, in order that I may demeanor was mild; he thought to of an index, in order that the details of each of their lives. I entreaty to subscribe to the oaths wills," as the Church says in one of hope to be able, in two more arti- of supremacy and allegiance, while Wallop, Her Majesty's treasurer, had weakness and self-seeking of human des to bring the story of numan archiepiscopal See down to our own recourse to violent threats and in nature, going astray after the devectives. But all in vain, for nothing could change Dr. O'Hurley's pur- lowed ultimately to thwart the grapose, and no ground of complaint could be discovered, and no pretext all things sweetly. The question of assigned for this unjust treatment. Reunion, that is of repairing the Seeing all their efforts to be un- breaches in Sion, is surely one of availing the Lord's Justices propos-ed at first to send him to England Spirit could have inspired the for trial, a course, which on reflecthought. The seed He has sown will tion they found could not be justified, because Ireland as yet enjoyed her own laws and institutions, according to which each one accused of a crime must be tried and sen-Gerard Teehan—(Appointed and declined).

(Appointed and senting in His work is to plant and to watering the declined and senting in His work is to plant and to watering.

The appointed and senting in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering the declined.

The appointed and senting in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His work is to plant and to watering in His w such excessive torments. No means were left untried to shake his constancy; they even sent his only sister, Honora O'Hurley, to visit him It is now that we enter upon the in the midst of his sufferings, hopalter his resolution, but he implored her to fall on her knees and ask forgiveness for this great crime. When offered pardon and honors, he said, and strength of body, he declined accepting them on the terms proposed; how could he now deprived of all his senses, desert his faith and duty This prelate was born in the small to God, for what he could no longer village of Lycodoon, three miles enjoy? He was then sentenced to from Limerick, about the year 1520, be dragged to the place of execu-His father was agent of the Earl of tion, there to be hanged, his head Desmond, and his mother, Honora out off, his body quartered, and the quarters hung up on the four gates of the city. The holy martyr was house of Thormond. After pursuing of the city. The holy martyr was his studies at Louvain and Paris, he became doctor and professor of the phen's Green, on the morning of Frights where he was much ology at Rheims, where he was much day, the 6th May, 1583, in the sixnoted for piety and learning; going ty-fifth year of his age, and the re-flock confided to his care; but the Dr. Renehan gives a translation dangers for any Catholic priest or from O'Sullivan's account of the dangers for any Catholic priest or bishop in travelling to Ireland, in those days, were so great, that he was obliged to remain a long time in Brittany.

Finally Dr. O'Hurley sailed in a long time is closely, imprinted on it are disign to losely, imprinted on it are disign to losely, imprinted on the market recombed the mend themselves to all who seek God's Will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on ourselves, is the way in which that great light of the way in which the seeks which mend themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on ourselves, is the way in which that great light of the way in which the seeks god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on ourselves, is the way in which themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on the way in which themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on the properties which mend themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on the properties which mend themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on the properties which mend themselves to all who seek god's will. To pray as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on God, and to work as though all depended on God's will. To pray as though all depended on God's will all the god's will all the god's which mend themselves to all who seek god's will all the god's will all t of the cross as a lasting sign of his ship bound for Waterford, but gave his bulls and papers to a Wexford merchant, because he might have old tradition, a noble lady who was gure I hail any and every effort topossessed by a demon for many the merchant's ship fell in with pirates, the papers were seized, and a strict search made for the Archishop himself, who, in the meantime, had landed in Drogheda. Thence he proceeded to Waterford, where he proceeded to Waterford, where he wretched spy, where the Archbishop died. William

For this week I will close my re-Dublin. The informer's designs were cital. It will be seen that the See bency of Archbishop Croke, has had panied him also to John Dillon, bro- its martyrs and its patriots, extendther of the Protestant Chancellor of Waterford. John Dillon was arrested, cast into prison, and only released through the influence of the Chancellor. Dr. O'Hurley fied to the Castle of Slane, where he was kindly received by Catherine Preston, the wife of Lord Slane. At first he dare * amount of material before me, since, according to Tertullian "the blood of martyrs is the seed of Christianity," I would show show how the archdiocese of Cashel derived its glory from that source.

Reunion of Christians.

Liverpool, from which the following extracts are taken:-

Cardinal Newman in 1864 wrote these words to Ambrose de Lisle : "The mixture of good and bad which makes up the Protestantism of England is a great mystery. He alone Whose infinite intelligence can understand the union of the two can also dissolve it and set the truth and right free. But if any human agency is to be made His instrument in any part of the work surely it must begin by acknowledging, not denying, what Protestants have that is good and true, and honoring it in them as coming from the one Source of all right and holiness. Certainly, to my own mind, one of the 'most afflicting and discouraging elements in the action of Catholicism just now on English society is the scorn with which some of us treat proceedings and works among Protestants which it is but Christian charity to ascribe to the influences of divine grace." The Cardinal wrote nearly forty years ago. How far are his words justified to-day? The workings of God's grace are free. He can "compel our rebel her official prayers. Even the very vices of its own heart, are not alcious designs of One Who arranges cold winds of doubt and the hard looked-for day of harvest. Our share in His work is to plant and to wat-

of harvest and to make the Divine more faithful workmen. Woe to those life and it is especially so of that question now so much before the of all those who love the Lord Christ are beginning to see that those who but actually is a part at this very would do the Divine Will must ac- moment. What have we here but the cept it as a whole. In other words, Branch Theory? Roman, Eastern, that they must serve God as He and Anglican Churches all parts of wills to be served, not as they wish one whole whose unity has been to serve Him. And now they are realising that if they are united one years. to the other in the inward and insion and of the Father's love for mankind. "That they may be one. that the world may know that Thou has sent Me," was Our Lord's pray-To pray and to work for reunion are objects which must recom-

sure I hail any and every effort towards reunion We have had abundant declarations the attention from us that they merit. It is quite natural that those who were at one time members of the Anglican Church should be impacheerfully borne by the clergy on the mission, I have had time and opportunity of seeing more of the other side than many of my breth-And the more I see the I realize not only the joy of Faith, but the patience and sympathy needed to help others to accept God's grace in the hour of visitation.

What, then, can I say of the latest effort of the extreme section of the Anglican Church? The Rev. Spancer-Jones in his "England and the Holy See" has said what many, I know, are to-day feeling. He is a bold man, and does not hesitate to set forward plainly and directly what he and many others feel to be The Rev. Ethelred L. Taunton has - the truth. He shows us how the contributed an "Essay Towards Re-union" to the "Catholic Times," of advanced members of the Anglican Church. And when we remember how impossible such a book would have been forty or fifty years we can only confess with the Psalmist: "This is the charge of the right hand of God, and it is wonderful in our eyes." To show the drift of the book I will quote certain proposi-tions extracted from it by Father Prior McNabb, O.P., as given in the "Ave Maria." "That it was to the Church, regarded as one, that Our Lord youchsafed the promise of His presence .-That the enterprise of Reunion is therefore genuine, since its purpose is divine.—That a divine ide be capable of fulfilment. - that as a matter of history no other form or principle of government has been able to come near the Holy See in its power to keep together in the bond of a living fellowship so many thousands of Christians .- That the communion of Rome is conspicuous in the records of Scripture ('I thank God that your faith is spoken of throughout all the world.') and appears at once unique and conspicu ous in the subsequent records of the Church.-That the See of Rome the Apostolic See and is destined to become the visible centre of Chris tendom .- That Rome is, in fact, the Mother of English Christianity. That Reunion for the English Church signifies Reunion with the Church of Rome.-That England cannot formally remain as she is, except so far as she is infallible.-That Rome can not formally cease to be what she is, since she claims to be infallible." As my intention in this article is to bespeak sympathy for this and surely keep its validity though the all other attempts at Revnion, I do not propose to criticise the author. frosts of suspicion keep back the But I want to make as clear as I can the real difficulty under which he and his friends seem to labor This is the Divine Law - that Much as they have gained in Light, and much as they have won in the way of Catholic faith and practice. they are still not quite clear as to the nature of the Church itself. will take passage which seems to put Husbandman seek for better and Church of England," says Mr. Spencer-Jones. "be not a whole she must idle toilers; they hinder but do not be a part; and if a part, what is destroy that to which God has given her relation to the whole?" (p. 3.) This is true of all God's works, That is to say, if the Anglican Church be not an organization wholinds ly independent and self-sufficing, must look to some other greater and wider body of which she is an inte-His Kingdom and not their own. Men gral part. Mind, not was a part,

But if this Branch Theory is to be visible bond of the love of God they must tend to an outward and visible Lord's prayer for unity, as given in which boasts of a gold tooth, sions: the Divine Intention, the Di- when summoned to the milk saucervine Means, and the Divine End. And is only six or seven months old, she he points out that this last is "That is probably the only kitten in Amthe world may believe." But he has erica with a mouth so ornamented. failed to see that Christ made the Hence she is duly proud of her unique Unity of His Church to be the proof and distinguished position in aristoto an unbelieving world of His Di- cratic cat circles, and is proud of vine Mission and of the Father's exposing her gold tooth for the adlove: "that the world may know miration of human beholders. Sevthat/Thou hast sent Me and hast loved them." A living and visible ticed that one of her incisors was the American Church-Archbishop's Unity is a witness that the world not as strong as it should be for can understand and can reason about. What is the use of appealing delicacies highly esteemed by feline to an invisible or to a shattered epicures, so he resolved upon Unity as a witness? What will the world answer, what has it answered, of the Anglican position, but I do not know whether they have received Unity has been lost for a thousand chair, carefully secured to prevent years, the one witness to the truth her good teeth and better claws from of Christ's mission and of the stated interfering with the work in hand or love of God to man has failed you. the dentist's cuticle, and within an You and your founder have chosen hour or so, lo! there tient with such declarations. I say jour argument, and your Branch it is natural; it is not the work of grace, and I am inclined to believe that Anglicans as a body meet with thousand years ago. Don't tell me that Anglicans as a body meet with thousand years ago. Don't tell me new tooth immediately and purred the purred that Anglicans as a body meet with thousand years ago. The purred that Anglicans are about the purred that Anglicans as a body meet with the purred that Anglicans are about the purred that Anglicans are about the was Dainty took kindly to the purred that Anglicans are about the purred that Anglicans are about the was Dainty with a sword-like incisor of the purred that Anglicans are about the purred that a sword-like incisor of the purred that Anglicans are about the purred that a sword-like incisor of the purred that Anglicans are about the purred that a sword-like incisor of the purre more patient hearing from those who, like myself, have received the can see and understand, and one doctor's assistants and servants, sochait by heritage.

that will convince me by the force liciting their attention. Now she is I for one have always had an in- of facts I have under my very eyes."

a regular show feature of the establishment.

shattered for the last thousand

Christ's prayer for Unity has failed been taught a score or more and that the world has been felt tricks, which she performs readily without abiding witness to the truth when requested. She can make a of the Christian Revelation. It is this misapprehension that is in the way of individual reconciliation.

But, after all, the days are gone master's shoulder, but after the perby when nations could be received en formance of this feat Dainty insists masse into the Church; and as far as that the doctor shall brush her soft I have read, I do not think the im- coat with a whisk broom. Every mediate results were altogether happy in such cases. Now, by education, we have reached a keen sense of individual responsibility, and to convey the contents to realize that each man stands or falls according to his own conscience. So all reconciliation will have to be if it is a real one, an individual act of all, angrily flung about by the insubmission to what conscience acknowledges as Divine Authority. On and scratch until an egg of this individual acceptance alone can per consistency is set before her. submission be justified, and I fear the author of Disunion is making use of the illusive idea of corporate reunion to hinder souls from riod can wear one face to the world God's will: "That they may be one. It is a passing phase. vine Healer will touch the eves that may be the most true. now see men walking as trees; they will see aright. The people of England were deliberately educated out of their Faith. The way back must retrace the steps. How vast has been the progress we all know and are deeply thankful for; and

AN INTELLIGENT SEAL.-Some

shermen in the neighborhood of Los Angeles captured a baby seal, which proved to be an intelligent little fellow, and consequently a prime favorite with all who saw him. He was ter being confined for three or four weeks, in order to get him acquainted with his new quarters, ne was et free, and immediately made a dash for deep water, into which he disappeared in a twinkling. It was thought that this was the last of Dick, who, finding himself with the wild herd, would prefer their company to solitary confinement. Sur-than half an hour he came paddling up alongside the pier under the fishermen's poles, and, poking his head above water, began to cry and beg piteously for fish, of which he was furnished a bountiful supply. From that time he has gambolled in the deep water from sunrise to sunset.

appearing at intervals for his accustomed food. One day the fishermen coaxed him out with them a bout four or five miles off shore, and when the boat was anchored Dick climbed in and deposited himself on threw a small live fish overboard.

and his sealship immediately jumped in, and, capturing it, again took his station in the boat. This little diversion was repeated several times during the day, and Dick seemed to enjoy it equally as well as his biped companions. A steam tug, anchored outside of the pier every night, was selected as a lodging place by this precocious animal, for at sundown of each day he swam out to it, and,

crawling upon the deck, comfortably disposed himself and slept until

CAT HAS A GOLD TOOTH. - 1

the mastification of fish and other

Dainty

was Dainty

gold tooth. Accordingly, D was elevated to the throne of morning.

seat in the stern. One of them

orising to relate, however, in christened Dick by his captors.

this is the surest ground for the fu-

The OGILVY STORE FOR THE

can also leap from the floor to her morning she is served with an egg, medium boiled. This she eats from an ordinary egg cup, using her paw nouth. Should the cook prove so remiss as to boil the egg a trifle hard, presto! away go cup, egg and dignant puss, who will then quarrel

No man for any considerable pe-and another to himself without finally getting bewildered as to which

Carpet Buyers. With the Naturalist

In beauty, these new goods surpass anything we have yet shown. The designs are most artistic, so much so that our customers find no difficulty in getting just what they want. Another good thing is that we don't show too much of one design.

FOR FALL HOUSE CLEANING

Are you going to refresh your home this Autumn or Winter? If so you may require something special. Our Carpet Manager will be pleased to quote prices. Every care will be taken that your order is filled to your liking.

NEW FURNITURE COVERINGS

In Furniture Coverings we have a large and well assorted collection to choose from, in all the leading colorings and designs. Braids and Trimmings to match. A large assortment of Fancy Cords, suitable for Cushions, in nice colors.

Oriental Japanese Rugs.

We might write a chapter on these New Rugs—the best collection we have ever shown—but it wouldn't tell you what the real seeing will. We invite anyone looking for a good, serviceable Rug to visit this Department before going elsewhere.

Sole Agents for Pissell's Carpet Sweeper, "THE PRIZE."

Best Attention Given to Mail Orders

JAS. A. OGILVY & SONS.

St. Catherine and Mountain Sts.

Rubber! Rubber!!

know a handsome young Maltese cat Rubber Production Shares will pay YOU

> 100 Per Centum Annually

FOR A

LIFETIME.

Absolutely Safe investment. (No RISK).

WILLIAM F. SHARSWOOD. Mexican Plantation Agent. 180 ST. JAMES STREET

Notes From Scotland.

ARCHBISHOP OF GLASGOW: -Last week Archbishop Maguire formally submitted to the chapter sembled in the pro-cathedral, Glasgow, the Papal bull appointing him ssor to the late Archbishop His Grace was then enthron

DONEGAL MEN - His Eminence Cardinal Logue has graciously consented to preside this year at the reunions of the natives of Donegal in Glasgow and Greenock respectively. The Glasgow function takes place in the City Hall on the 5th of November.

MEMORIAL.-Two lorry loads of pure white stone and marble arrived last week at Coatbridge as the material for the memorial altar to the late Canon O'Keefe which forthwith to be erected in St. Patrick's Church, over which the late revered cleric ruled so long and worthily as a grand old "soggarth

PRESENTATION.-The Rev Father Douggan, of St. Mary's par ish, Paisley, has been presented with a handsome Raleigh bicycle by the local Children of Mary as a token of gratitude and respect for the great interest the rev. gentleman takes in their sodality, of which he is the zealous and devoted chaplain. The Rev Father Walsh presided over the gathering, which took the form of a tea-party in the schoolroom, and Miss Margaret Monaghan, on behalf of her numerous fellowmembers, made the presentation.

ABOUT WAKES .- Preaching at the last Mass, in St. Alphonsus' Church, the rector, Father T. P. O'Reilly, uttered some warning words about "wakes," which made a deep impression on the congregation. in many cases," remarked the rev. gentleman, "meant an excuse for a drinking and smoking carousal over the remains of the departed, and, as such, he knew no language strong enough to denounce them. He did not deny the pious origin of wakes, which aimed at gathering the relatives and friends around the dead each evening to pray for the repose of the soul; but the Christian tom had in these days so changed from good to evil in the majority of cases that he had now no sympathy whatever for the habit of waking the FATHER DWYER DEAD .- After a long illness the Rev. John Dwyer. so well known a quarter of a century ago as the active and able pastor of St. Patrick's, Glasgow, peacefully breathed his last a few days ago at Dunoon, where he had lived in retirement at Rowanlea for more than a decade of years. His life as an active priest was one of great usefulness and full of honor. 1877 he built the St. Patrick's Institute which, though costing about $15,000, profitably fulfilled in its day the object for which erected. It was during his pastorate also that St. Bride's chapel-ofease and school was acquired and opened. Though as a priest Father Dwyer was dearly and diligently devoted to duty, he did not leave "gaiety all to the laity," and was, therefore, like Father O'Flynn, overflowing at times with humor, the best of fun which, no doubt, stood well by him in the long and weary years of illness which followed his retirement from active life The funeral which was private took place last week at Dunoon.

PULPIT BLESSED .- The new pulpit in St. John's Church, Glasgow, was blessed last week by the newlyappointed Archbishop. As this was the first public appearance of His Grace since his appointment, there was a large congregation present, composed of Catholics from all parts of the city. Canons Chisholm and M'Brearty were the attendants at the throne. At the conclusion of the first Gospel His Grace, taking as ourselves his text. "We preach not but Christ our Lord" (II Cor. IV), congratulated the congregation on this the latest beautiful addition to their church The church itself and all in it had been gathered together their generosity and their pastor's zeal, and it must be a special pleasure to them to know that this Rhode Island bears a grateful particular pulpit and its design had been specially approved of by their Ambhiehon It was but natural that something should be said about the object of that pulpit. To some outside the Catholic Church it might appear only as an architectumight appear only as an architectural ornament of little use or meaning. "The altar is there," they might say. "It occupies the room and the interest taken up by the pulpits in other churches. Catholics had elaborate ceremonies, attractive educate.

music, lights and candles, the rest of it, but they pay little attention to the word of God." If that were so their meeting that day should be one of humiliation rathe than of rejoicing. God should be worshipped with decorum and order His rites should not be maliness. tilated by individual whims, but He should be worshipped in spirit and in truth, and for this the pulpit was required. If the worshippers were not instructed in the doctrines of Christ, then the worship would be an empty form. If those who attended church on Sundays were not instructed how to reverence God on all days, their worship would be an insult to God, therefore the pulpit must have its true place.

Irish Character History

Bishop Conaty, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, responded to the toast "Irish Charac-History," at the banquet, held in Providence, R.I., to celebrate the great battle of Rhode Island, where General Sullivan won a victory which was fraught with important consequences for the American Republic. Referring to the anniversary which the guests were celebrating, he paid a pleasant compliment to the host of the evening, Dr. Sullivan, who, he said, adds honor to a name which brilliantly shines from a page of Irish history and around which in American history clusters the sweetest memories of patriotism and devotion to liberty. "By the Battle of Rhode Island," he said, "won through the genius and energy of Gen. Sullivan, the path was made clear for liberty and the American Republic." Continuing, he "It is most interesting to study the influence of races upon national character-to notice how each contributes to the whole and how finally, there emerges an American character, a composite of all nations.

"The Irish character has close touch with American life from its early beginning, and has entered very fully into its national growth Unlike many other nations the Irish were forced into exile by unjust and iniquitous laws. Their land was one sacred to all the traditions of civilization-their history was teeming with benefits in religion and scholarship to all European nations, yet centuries of persecution for faith and land had not broken their spirit, nor crushed their heart, their religion was proscribed, their schools closed, their lands forfeited, their industry taxed, their cabins levelled, illiteracy, improvidence were placed as brands upon them, but despite all that an alien rule could devise the Irish maintained traits which all the nations to which they went welcomed as strength and beauty.

"The Irish are Christians, race they are Catholics, and hold as a national characteristic a deep and religious sense a reverence of God, a devotion to church precepts. makes them virtuous and gives them an honesty and an integrity of life which has always been acknowledged Chastity of life makes homes which the love of parents and children, the devotion of husbands and wives and all the domestic virtues are nourished. The deep and abid-ing faith in God and unflinching loymother church and her priesthood make the Irish synonymous in so many places with the Catholic. This religious sense is an element of strength and vitality to Amorigan national life Other nations possess it and contribute it, but the Irish as a race are characteristically gifted with it.

character influence "A second comes from the Irishman's love of liberty and his willingness to make Grand Trunk Stock Yards were a any sacrifice for it. They have always been ready to give evidence of loyalty to liberty by the blood which they were willing to shed, from Bunker Hill to Yorktown and Orleans to Appomatox, with Sullivan and Jackson, Sheridan and Shields they did but man's duty, but they stood ready always to do a man's duty. or in war their energies have been spent in the upbuilding and developing of the financial, industrial and commercial life of the republic. The history of every State and every municipality treasures their name membrance to the name of Joseph Banigan who was a type Irish-American manhood which has the love for knowledge which made the name of Ireland famous in the

Live Stock Market

London, September 15 .- There was no market at Deptford, but according to prices which ruled for American and Canadian cattle on Saturday the market was stronger at an advance of fully 1c per lb., as compared with a week ago. Choice American cattle sold at 15c, and choice Canadian at 141c. Sheep show no change, choice selling at 12½c.

Liverpool, September 15.—This narket was stronger, and prices are ic higher than a week ago for cat tle, choice Canadians selling at 13c, but sheep were steady at 12c.

A private cable from London quoted choice Canadian cattle at 13c to 14c, and sheep at 13c. A cable from Liverpool quoted choice Canadian cattle at 13c 14c and sheep at 12c.

Another cable from London quoted choice Canadian cattle at 14c and sheep at 12c, and one from Liverpool quoted choice Canadian cattle at 13%c and sheep at 12ca A cable from London quoted choic Canadian cattle at 141c.

A cable was received from Glasgow which reported sales of Canadian cattle at about the same prices as a

A fair active business continues to be done in local export live stock, says a local authority, but there is no special feature in the situation to note, except that the markets abroad, according to cable advices received recently, have taken a turn for the better after the recent dull and weak spell; in consequence a bet ter feeling prevails among exporters here, and they show a better disposition to do business. There was an improved demand for ocean freight space recently, and the tone of the market was steady. Engagements to Liverpool were made at 37s 6d to London at 30s; to Glasgow at 35s. and to Manchester at 35s. rate to the latter port is 2s 6d lower than it was a week ago, but the rest are unchanged. The demand for export cattle in the western market has been good, but owing to the limited supply of really choice stock coming forward trade has checked to some extent, as shippers could not secure sufficient suitable stock to fill their wants. is firm and prices for choice beeves range from $5.25 to $6, and for medium $4.50 to $5 per 100 lbs.

At the East End Abattoir market on Monday the receipts of live stock were 850 cattle, 300 sheep, 700 lambs, and 100 calves. Although the offerings were heavier than they were on last Thursday, yet this fact seemed to have little influence on the market, as prices for cattle were practically the same, which was, no loubt, due to the good demand from butchers for all the best grades, and the canning concerns cleaned the market pretty well up of the common and inferior grades. There was some demand from shippers and a few small lots of picked stock wer bought to complete shipments with at 5c to 51c per lb. The top prices realized for choice butchers' cattle were 41c to 41c, and some good lots were sold at 4c to 44c, while fair beeves brought 31c to 31c, and the common and inferior sold at 2c to 3c per lb. An active trade was done in sheep and lambs, there being good demand from both butchers and exporters; in consequence prices were maintained. Sheep sold at 3c to 31c and lambs at 34c to 4c per ID Calves were scarce, and as the demand for them was fairly goo prices ruled higher at from $2.50 to $12 each, as to quality.

The receipts of live hogs at the bout 500 head. There was a good demand for them from packers and jobbers; in consequence the tone the market was steady. Selected lots sold at 7c to 71c; straight lots at 6%c to 7c, and heavy fat at 6%c per

The shipments of live stock from

	ending September 13th		week
		Shp. I	Iors.
	To Liverpoof-
	Lake Ontaro 328	3
	Roman 70:	2 1,101
	To London-
	Brazilian 163	3 302
	Montezuma 49
	Devona 559
		5 130
	To Glasgow-
	Ontarian 280	3 100
	Marina 210	0	. 3
	To Bristol-
To the	Montfort 200	0 159
	To Manchester-City 891
e G
	Total3,57	0 4,058	3 8

A RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.

resident of Montreal, made her religious profession as a member of the Order of Sisters of Mercy at Burlington, Vermont, last week. Margaret Markham, sister of Mrs. John Gallagher, of Point St. Charles, and of Sister Margaret Mary of the same community, pronounced her final vows in pr of Bishop Michaud, several clergymen, and a large number of tives and friends. Sister Mary Agnes, as she will henceforth known, entered the novitiate three vears ago.

GRAND TRUNK SOLY

Annual Western Excursions

_Т	0-
PORT HURON.	, Mie	h !	$12.50
DETROIT,	66		12.50
BAY CITY,			16 25
SAGINAW,	16.		16.25
GRAND RAPID	DS 		17.50
CLEVELAND,	Ohie	D	15.00
COLUMBUS,	66		17.50
CINCINNATI,	66		20 00
CHICAGO, III			18 00
ST. PAUL, Min	n		41.00
MINNEAPOLIS	, M	inn	41.00
Going dates, Sept. Return limit, Oct.	25, 2	6, 27, 1 9 6 2.	902.
Leave Bonave	ntur	e Stat	ion

INTERNATIONAL LIMITED" daily a ar. at Toronto at 4.40 p m., Hamilton 5.50 p.m., Niagara Falls, Ont., 7.65 p m., Buffalo 8.20 p.m., London 7.45 p m., Detroit 9.30 p.m., Chicago 7.20 .m. Elegant Car Service on above Train. FOR COMFORT TRAVEL by the GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

CITY TICKET OFFICES. 187 St. James Street. Telephones Main 460 & 461, and Bonaventure Station.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

ANNUAL WESTERN EXCURSIONS

TO

DETROIT, CHICAGO AND POINTS WEST.

dember 25th, 26th and 27th, 1902, o return leaving destination on or before er 13th, 1902.

RETURN FARES MONTREAL TO DETROIT, MICH$12.50
Cleveland, Obio 815.00
Cleveland, Obio 815.00 B-y City, Mich 16.25
Columbia, Ohio
CHICAGO, ILL$18.00
Cincinnati, Ohio
IMPORTAL LIMITED CODUIGE leaving

IMPERIAL LIMITED SERVICE Montrea 11.40 a.m. Sundays, Wednerday and Fridays will be withdrawm after Friday, Sept. 19th Daily Transcontinental train will continue to

QUEBEC SERVICE. [From Place Viger]

†8.30 a.m., †2.30 p.m., §3.30 p.m., *11 p.

*Daily $ Sundays only, † Week days. SPRINCFIELD, MASS.

Through Coach and Sleeping Car. From Windsor St. Station 800 p.m. daily, erept Sunday.

City Ticket and Telegraph Office 129 ST JAMES STREET, next Post Office

FARM FOR

Consisting of one hundred and nine acres. No waste land. Within six acres of a village, having good stores, two blacksmith shops, wheelright shop, creamery, Post Office, Catholic Church, a place of Protest ant worship, two schools, about the same distance from R. R. Station less than two hours ride from Montwell watered, the buildings are large and in first-class repair. A large brick house arranged for two families. This would be a desirable place for summer boarders, or for a gen tleman wishing a country home so apple and sugar orchards; with a sufficient quantity of wood for a life time. With care the farm will carry from fifteen to twenty cows and team. For particulars apply to PHILIP MELLADY, North Stanbridge, P.O.

SUPERIOR COURT.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, District Montreal, No. 3007. Dame Elisa Sigouin, wife common as to proper ty of Philias Saulniers, shoem of the City and District of Montreal, duly authorized to "ester en justice," plaintiff, vs. the said Philias Saulniers, defendant. An action for separation as to property has been instituted in this case on the twelfth day of September, nineteen hundred and two. Montreal, 12th September, 1902. Beaudin, Cardinal, Loranger & St. Germain, attorneys for plaintiff.

THE S. CARSLEY CO. LIMITED.

Notre Dame Street. Montreal's Greatest Store. St. James Street

This is to tell you about an immense shipment of New Carpet Squares just received from one of the largest Carpet Weavers in England. This Lot has been specially designed for THE BIG STORE, and are in the newest and most approved styles. The prices tell their own story efoquently.

TAPESTRY SQARES. | TAPESTRY SQARES. Cuality No. 2.

Quality No. 1.
 Special
 $ 6.50
 Size 3
 by 3
 yards.
 Special
 $ 9.90

 Special
 $ 7.70
 Size 3
 by 3½ yards.
 Special
 $ 11.50

 Special
 $ 8.90
 Size 3
 by 4½ yards.
 Special
 $ 12.90

 Special
 $ 11.85
 Size 3½ by 4½ yards.
 Special
 $ 16.90

 Special
 $ 11.85
 Size 4 by 4½ yards.
 Special
 $ 16.90

 Special
 $ 12.45
 Size 4 by 4½ yards.
 Special
 $ 18.85

Best Quality Brussels Squares.

 Size 3
 by 3
 yards.
 Special
 $12.40
 Size 3
 by 4
 yards.
 Special $16.80

 Size 3
 by 3½ yards.
 Special
 $23.6
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20
 $25.20

15 Dining Tables in Elm. golden finish 7 only Bedroom Suites, 3 pieces; Bureau fitted with 16 x 20 bevelled mirror, full size fitted with 5 heavy fluted legs, extends to 7 feet, nicely finished and well made. d and weli finished. Regularl Regular value $7.00. Selling price $5.50 at $15.00. Selling price $11.95

IRON BEDS 35 Iron Beds in White Enamel finish, fitted with brass knobs and caps, in 4 widths, very strongly made. To-morrow's

VELOUR COUCHES.

15 Couches, covered in fancy Velour coverings, several patterns to choose from fitted with brass knows and caps, in a coverings, several patterns to choose from; widths, very strongly made. To-morrow's spring seats, fringed all round. Regular Special price......$3.50

TOILET WARE.

New Toilet Set just arrived from English Potteries, finest semi-porce!ain decorated in heavy burnish-ed gold, a set well worth $5

$3.25

LAMPS.

The latest line in Hall Lamps far excels all other, richly polish-ed brass fittings, large fancy globe in Ruby, Rose, Amber or Blue, complete with oil chamber, burner and chimney.

$1,50

Special Blanket

Excellent Blanket values of THE BIG STORE all this week. The kind that Housekeepers know to be good, because they are sold by the weight, the warm woolly, fluffy kind that look so well with their brilliant coloured borders. This special Value Sale is well-timed, for each day brings us nearer the nights when warm bedclothing will be a necessity. Those who are on the should look at this splendid assortment. Those who are on the threshold of Blanket buying

Size about 54 by 72 inches, White Wool Blankets, fancy borders ...$1 55 Wool Blankets, fancy borders ...$4.60

Size about 56 by 76 inches, White Wool Blankets, fancy borders...$1.95

Size about 60 by 80 inches, White

Wool Blankets, blue borders $3 15 Wool Blankets, fancy borders...$5 30

Size about 72 by 90 inches, Wh Wool Blankets, fancy borders...$5 10 Size about 72 by 90 inches, White

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

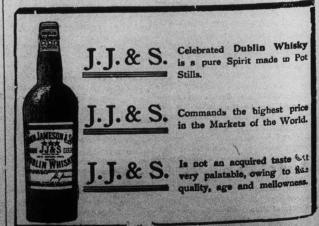

THE S. CARSLEY CO. LIMITED.

1765 to 1783 Notre Dame Street, 184 to 194 St James. Street, Montreal.

CARPET

Call Early and See the Novelties Opening at

THOMAS LIGGETT, EMPIRE BUILDING, 2474 and 2476 ST. CATHERINE STREET

der the shadow of the neath the waving boug grant blue gums, watch less birds flitting to a beautiful orchard, wh of trees from every con broken out into blosso picture an artist would at sunset. The finches havoc with the rosy cl the honeysuckers were juicy plants of the swe monks had hoped their busy bees. seemed! The Catholic the African hill side with forests of "sneese the "bush buck" roam dom, and the scarlet ' tered its welcome to sun, rising over valle white lilies fresh with was a beautiful sight, settlement in the "wild everything spoke to yo and of work too, for th ceases to impress upon the black man the dign The river that was idle centuries, now works th grinds the mealies and cuts the monarch of the planks of every size and far away, native boys the African mahogany, dressing stones for build ing trees in the orcha ranging the wine vaults age, and yet you hear a It carries you away to world, to the "Home brings back the days of friends of yore, the thurch, and the gray he It echoes through the hills: the native rests work, whilst the monk

SATURDAY, SEI

Customs an

The boys and girls a ringing out the Angel's sweet "Ave Maria." How is it that sorrow always so near us? Th side of the sweetest flow liest poisons grow? No the bride the mother's resting, and over there hills within view of th where the everlastings a up the rocks, looking li in the sunshine, where 3 heathen kraals and the black men and women the sun; there are sin as the darkest dye, and supe foul to name. In yo doomed men have begged mercy from the heartles (witch doctor), who has And over that pr most in sight of us, in were sent to death innoc supposed to be guilty They were made t it blindfold, and their m i(s were left for the vult bend in prayer, for it

from the tower, the A

The two great evils whi the missionary in South polygamy and witchcraft witch doctors of both se male witch doctor led the the Galekas on the Ibek was never found out who Many said she was a Ba She led the army up to and when the Galekas w back to the Fingoes, she some say by her own per by the Fingoes. A great

here are several kinds

ropeans saw her.

There is the doctor wh cases of illness, the "Aw herbalist; there is the "J sa," or doctor who drear visions; there is the "A or doctor who manipulate the "Izanuse." who smells out; the "Ame regulates the conduct of the "Awemvala," or rain Old missionaries say that is more than a superstitic native, it is a kind of reli doctors are consulted on sion and there are chiefs go anywhere unless accomloctor. The people say the tors have some connection ritual things. These are called "Ukutwasa," or mo the doctors speak of pas one state to another, and low their hair to grow ve a while, they don't paint are ill for a long time. The become emaciated. Havi through some kind of they ultimately become they ultimately become doctors! During this period ation, the doctor is sa "Twasa," but when he ed through it he can pra with the doctor, three or

Customs and Superstitions in South Africa §

SEPT 20; 1962; LIMITED

e. St. James Street

SEPT 20, 1902

about an immense et Squares just re-argest Carpet Weav-ot has been specially STORE, and are in-proved styles. The-ry eloquently, TRY SOARES.

latity	NO. 1.
yards.	Special $ 9.9
yards.	Special $11.5
yards.	Special $12.9
yards.	Special $16.9
yards.	Special $16.9
yards.	Special $19.0

Squares.

Tables in Elm, golden finish eavy fluted legs, extends to finished and well made $7.00. Selling price $5.50

JR COUCHES. elling price..... $5.00

LAMPS. he latest line in Hall Lamps

xcels all other, richly p rass fittings, large fancy Ruby, Rose, Amber or plete with oil cha er and chimney

$1.50

Sale.

STORE all this week. because they are sold that look so well with alue Sale is well-timed. warm bedclothing will old of Blanket buying

t 72 by 94 inches, White ets, fancy boiders ..$4.60

t 72 by 90 inches, White ets, fancy borders...$5 10 t 72 by 90 inches, Whit

ets, fancy borders...$5 30 90 inches, Wool Blankets,

XECUTED.

O. LIMITED. ames. Street, Montreal.

e Novelties

MPIRE BUILDING, 2474 and 2476 CATHERINE STREET

Dublin Whisky Spirit made in Pot

s the highest price rkets of the World.

acquired taste out ge and mellowness

neath the waving boughs of the fragrant blue gums, watching the songbirds flitting to and fro; in the beautiful orchard, where thousands of trees from every country had just broken out into blossom, making a picture an artist would love to paint at sunset. The finches were playing havor with the rosy cherries, whilst honevsuckers were robbing the juicy plants of the sweetness, which the monks had hoped to save for their busy bees. How peaceful it all seemed! The Catholic mission on the African hill side, surrounded with forests of "sneesewood," where the "bush buck" roamed in freedom, and the scarlet "lory" chattered its welcome to the morning on were standing in groups under the shadow of the cross, or be-

sun, rising over valleys of snowwhite lilies fresh with dew. Yes! it. was a beautiful sight, that Trappist settlement in the "wild land" where everything spoke to you of peace and of work too, for the monk never ceases to impress upon the mind of the black man the dignity of labor. The river that was idle for so many centuries, now works the busy mill, grinds the mealies and wheat, and cuts the monarch of the forest into planks of every size and shape. Not far away, native boys are preparing the African mahogany, others are dressing stones for buildings, pruning trees in the orchards or arranging the wine vaults for the vintage, and yet you hear another sound. It carries you away to the old world, to the "Home land." It brings back the days of youth, the of yore, the old parish died. hurch, and the gray haired priest. It echoes through the valleys and hills the native rests from his work, whilst the monk and the nun bend in prayer, for it is the bell from the tower, the Angelus bell, ringing out the Angel's greeting, the

How is it that sorrow and sin are always so near us? That side by liest poisons grow? Not far from the bride the mother's only child is hills within view of the mission, where the everlastings are creeping up the rocks, looking like fire flies in the sunshine, where you see the heathen kraals and the half naked black men and women basking in the sun; there are sin and shame of the darkest dye, and superstition too foul to name. In yonder kraal, doomed men have begged in vain for mercy from the heartless "Izanuse" (witch doctor), who has smelt them out. And over that precipice almost in sight of us, in Pondoland. were sent to death innocent persons supposed to be guilty of witch-They were made to walk over it blindfold, and their mangled bodi(s were left for the vultures to feed

sweet "Ave Maria."

The two great evils which confront polygamy and witchcraft. There are the Fingoes. A great many Europeans saw her.

There are several kinds of doctors. the doctor who attends cases of illness, the "Awoluqxa," or herbalist; there is the "Awokuvumisa," or doctor who dreams and sees ns; there is the "Awokupata," or doctor who manipulates the body; there is the "Izanuse," or doctor, who smells out; the "Amatola," who regulates the conduct of war, and the "Awemvala," or rain doctor. Old missionaries say that witchcraft is more than a superstition with the native, it is a kind of religion. These doctors are consulted on every occa sion and there are chiefs who never go anywhere unless accompanied by a doctor. The people say that the doctors have some connection with spiritual things. These are what are the doctors speak of passing from one state to another, and they their hair to grow very long for a while, they don't paint and they are ill for a long time. They really become emaciated. Having passed some kind of probation, ultimately become full-blown tors! During this period of probthe doctor is said to of through it he can practice. At the "Ukuvumisa," or consultation

the doctor, three or four men

The boys and girls at the Trappist | will go from a village to seek such a man, and they will tell no one where they are bound for. When they arrive at the doctor's place, they don't say who they are, nor where they have come from. At last it will be discovered that they are per-He then says, "You come from such a person," and they reply, "We con-sent." The doctor continues, "He is a sick person," to which they consent; then the doctor says, "The person from whom you come is an old man, or a young man," as the case may be. He has had his friends busy getting information secretly from these people; at least that is the only way in which we can account for his knowledge. If not a case of witchcraft he refuses o deal with the matter and the men go for another doctor, an "Awoluq-The doctor may smell a man out by stating that he has gone to a grave and dug up the body, and cut bits off it, and has used them as a means of sorcery. Nothing can save the poor unfortunate who is denounced by this wretch! He is seized, tortured or burnt to death. otherwise made away with. Old Bamela. Kreli's Chief Councillor, was pegged down and hot stones placed upon him. He was so burnt to death, because Kreli's son, Flynn,

> The Honorable Charles Brownlee who was Chief Magistrate of East Griqualand in 1883, relates the following case of witchcraft.

"It is believed among the natives in this territory, that parts of the human body are the most charms in the practice of witchcraft, and for this reason it has been represented to me that some children side of the sweetest flowers the dead- had disappeared, or been found dead with small portions of the flesh removed. The year before last, a litresting, and over there on the green tle girl, about three years old, was left in charge of its grandmother, while all the adult members of the kraal had gone to their gardens. The child was outside the hut occupied by the grandmother, playing with other children, when it suddenly disappeared. Search was made in every direction for days, all the inhabitants of the locality having been turned out by the magistrate this purpose. The body of the child was found after a time concealed in a gully with some portions 'of the flesh cut away. The grandmother was arrested on suspicion, and while in prison stated that her husband had murdered the child, that he had sent them to the hut when his little granddaughter went to meet him, and that when they returned the old man and his grandchild were gone. the missionary in South Africa, are This raised the grandmother's suspicions, which were further confirmwitch doctors of both sexes. A fe-male witch doctor led the attack by after dark quite wet; she expressed the Galekas on the Ibeka, but it her surprise at his bathing at that mentioned what she had seen, he would at once kill her. The old man was arrested, conbut that he had an accomplice who had offered to pay him a cow for a Ntswelabolya, that he had already obtained a male "Ntswelabolya," but still required a female to complete his charms. Witchcraft is still very common in this part of the territory. We have 'Circuit' here twice a year, and on each "Circuit" there are many murder cases arising out of this terrible superstition. Last month, I to the court to hear a case of this kind. Three brothers were in the dock, charged with the murder of a younger brother. They said he had "strange ways," was seen at night alled "Ukutwasa," or moon changes in the cattle kraal. So they strangled the poor fellow, and the doctor proved that before life was extinct. they had reasted him before a slow This was done to drive the evil spirit out of him! When I visited Centocow" mission lately, Father Baldwin, the Rector, told me the boys were all afraid of their lives, and he was obliged to send several to the post together. Witch doctors were looking out for a male "Ntswe-

the children knew they would kill the first boy they met alone. It was the same at "Lourdes," the next Trappist mission. The Christians were coming in from the out-stations; they feared to be alone. At "Lourdes" some years ago, I think seventeen died from poison, which was put in the food during divine ser-

In the summer I paid a visit to 'Reichenau," on my way back from a sick call. A short time before, a little Kaffir girl had come to the mission under the following sad circumstances. She came at the close of evening, came like the sorrowsons who have come to see the doc-tor. They then have a hut pointed shelter and protection under the tor. They then have a hut pointed out to them; the doctor takes his place and begins by uttering a series of assertions. He says, "You have come from such a place." The visitors clap their hands and carry on a series of the cross. She cast herself at the feet of the white-robed monk, poor hunted despised little lamb, with bleeding legs and throbors clap their hands and carry on a little lamb, with bleeding legs and throbors clap their hands and carry on a little lamb, with leading legs and throbors clap their hands and carry on a little lamb, with leading legs and throbors lead to the lamb leading legs and throbors lead to the lamb leading legs and throbors lead to the lamb lead to the lamb legs and throbors lead to the lamb le sort of low song, and reply if he has guessed aright, "We consent." into his face with her pleading eyes cried out in a voice choked with fear, "Umfundisi uku-sisa ndi," priest save me. The "white robe" calmed the little one. She was still a child, just blushing into womanhood, with a look on her face of the hunted fawn when it hears the baying of the approaching hounds. She clung to the monk, and, with many a start and throb, and a wild gaze over the hill, she whispered her tale of sorrow! Her people wanted her body for medicine. They were going to poison an unpopular chief little by little, and put a young one in his They had already killed an "Indoda" (man) and had taken out his brains and mixed them herbs and charms. But they were yet in want of part of the body of a young girl to complete the charm. She was the only one of the proper age in the "kraal," the others were too old, and that night she had overheard some old men and her own friends planning her murder. She was young; life was sweet. Umfun-disi ukusisa ndi. "I left the kraal when the darkness came and crept out into the night." What a sight! The half naked heathen girl, poor innocent victim of the darkest perstition, rushing over the mountains and rivers, away from the friends who should have protected her! She had only a sheep-skin for a covering, and the knees that had never yet bent to her Maker, were naked and trembling. In Pondoland, which is in my district, the victim of the "Izanuse" is tormented in many ways. Perhaps his hands and feet are bound with fine cords, perhaps he is scorched with fire. Or it may be that water is thrown over the person and swarms of black ants are shaken over the body, which they bite in a manner that causes great agony. The accused is generally killed out-

Before concluding, I must give a short account of the customs served at the burial of heathen natives. In doing so, I will quote from the minutes of evidence of Mr. W. R. D. Fynn, a well known authority on Kaffir customs. Whenever a chief of standing dies his death is immediately reported to the councillors, who send messengers to circulate the tidings throughout tribe, with instructions to the people to assemble for the ceremony of burial. They march up in clans and take their respective positions round the kraal. Then one or two councillors of each tribe fall out and was never found out who she was. time of the night; he made an eva-Many said she was a Basuto girl. sive reply, and she set up a wail and of good family are selected by them She led the army up to the Ibeka, and when the Galekas were driven back to the Fingoes, she was shot, some say by her own people, others by the Fingoes. A great many Euther of the charge, but told his wife is she in his last illness. The corpse is then carried into the cattle kraal, in the centre of which a shallow grave, two or three dessed having taken away the child, in depth, has been prepared. In this grave the corpse is placed. The people then approach the grave, take handfuls of sand which they throw into it. After this, the people groan with a kind of sound which varies with the tribe, for each tribe has its own peculiar groan of lamentation. Generally the groan is a prolonged sort of e-he! The grave is then closed, and the people falling back, sit in groups around kraal. The grave is filled with furze bushes in order to prevent people or wild animals disturbing the The undertakers, aided men, pull away the poles of the hut which quickly collapses. The gates of the kraal, after the cattle have been removed a short distance, closed with cross bars, and a man of good family is selected to remain with this stock, for a certain period, two or three years perhaps, or even longer. This watcher of the grave is a man of importance, and, in the event of any person getting trouble with his chief for witchcraft. that person may run to this kraal as to a house of refuge. No grass were looking out for a male 'Atawa last to a house of refuge. All glass as to a house of refuge. All glass is burned within a mile of such a place of burial.—F. H. Howlett, O. make a young chief "strong," and M.I., in the Missionary Record.

ST. VINCENT De PAUL SOCIETY IN UNITED STATES.

The annual report of the Superior Council of New York of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul to the Councíl-General in Paris has just been issued. Of the conferences in which the society in America is organized, 62 report through their Central Council of Boston; 98 are under the Central Council of Philadelphia, 26 under the Central Council of Chicago, and the remaining 188 conferences are included in the various other particular Councils and isolated conferences

The comparative statements for the years 1900 and 1901 are as follows:

MEMBERS A	ND WOR	KS.
	1900.	1901.
Number of conferences reporting .	359	374
Number of active members	5,748	6,113
Average attendance at weekly meeting)	3,461	3,590
Number of families
relieved	19,552	18,444
Number of visits
made	145,877	149,214
Number of situations procured .	1,147	1,176

FINANCES.

during the year$174,684 $203,249 Collections at 23,474 23,644 meetings ... Expenditures, relief of all kinds 178,437 198,053

For the New York Council a:one, the active membership was 1.156. and the total receipts $61,726. Fama ilies to the number of 7,035 representing 24,881 persons were relieved, 47,457 visits made, and 286 situations procured.

The report for the third year the organization of the Catholic Home Bureau for dependent children is in part as follows:-The number of children placed by us in the first year of our endeavors

was 47; the number in 1900, the second year, was 112; and we have the pleasure of announcing a total placements for the closing year reaching 175. But as our duty and care from the first has been to have quality to boast of, rather than quantity of work, we would not ask you now to think so highly of the results because they are expanding minerically-our great reliance is upon the permanently and truly good work done. Children of tender years Catholics; boys and girls of fourteen and fifteen placed in home surroundings with work and promise of early self-support; these are the positive and personal results of our labor. A nice choosing from among the homes offered, a refusal to intrust a helpless child to the carelessly living couple or to taskmasters, a prompt and energetic action to correct mistake if one has been made and might probably work injury to the child, these are the precautions that we have used to secure that the quality of homes is as it should be Eternal vigilance is a watchword for any position of responsibility - it was never more appropriate than for our work. As the number of our wards increases we mean to increase correspondingly the scope of this vigilance. But three children those placed have been unvisited in the twelve months and these are in orrespondence with us.

During the past year the majority of our applications came through advertising in the various Catholic periodicals and in a few secular pa pers. The total number of applicaions received from families desiring to receive children was 349 The cus tomary investigation was complied with in all cases, and all homes were passed upon by your Committee on Homes before the children were place

Of the 349 applications 191 were approved, 95 were disapproved; the remainder some were withdrawn by the applicants and some other failed to complete the references. Of the 175 children placed, 107 sent to homes in New York State and the remainder in adjoining States.

Up to the present time, the Catholic Home Bureau has placed 334 children in excellent Catholic family homes. After deducting the numbe tions there remains under our pervision a total number of 321.

Towards the close of the present vear (1901) a committee composed of our President, Mr. Thomas Mulry, representing your Bureau, Mr. Thomas W. Hynes, the city of New York, and the Rev. J. J. direct to Dougherty, of the Mission of the Co., Brod Immaculate Virgin, visited that sec- dy, N.Y.

tion of the Middle West where the glass industry flourishes. The committee examined carefully the condi tion of the employees, and submitted, through the President, a very thorough and exhaustive report bear ing on the subject. The result was that it was decided to send fifty boys to Indiana and Ohio, where they will at once become self-supporting, and have an opportunity to learn an excellent trade.

Twenty-five boys have already been sent to Gas City, Ind., and thirty to Tiffin, O. It was gratifying to witness the readiness with which the institutions responded to the call for boys to send to these places. In character and appearance the boys were very creditable, indeed, and the generaus equipment given them by their institutions was something re-

In speaking of the relation of the various conferences to public charit-ies, the Committee on Dependent Children makes this suggestion:

In many cases we learn, after weeks of waiting for a reply, that the conferences have not done anything for the families referred to them, and that the aid needed had been supplied by the Charity Organization Society or the Association for Improving the Condition of the In other cases the conferences have helped but have volunteered no information as to what they were doing, and we were totally unable to give any opinion or advice as to the needs or final disposition of the cases.

We are sure that the officers of conferences would remedy this evil if they realized how much good might be done by the few minutes' labor necessary to write a brief letter in forming us as to whether they consider it necessary to give or with-hold relief, and whether they would give or were unable to give the necessary assistance. One thing certain, your committee cannot, because of the large number of cases referred to it, do anything more than act as the intermediary between the Department of Charities and your conferences, and the lack of good results must be charged to non-participating conferences to the extent to which they neglect their duty.

The Committee of the Employment Bureau reports that the number of situations obtained was 670 for the twelve months, 1900 to 1901. "The majority of those obtaining places were recommended by the various conferences," it says; "we have frequently urged upon the members to give us their support by coming frequently to the office and looking o ver the work, and we especially ask this of members where there is any fault found by the men who have happily taken to the hearts of good been recommended and have failed to obtain places. Our experience is that often applicants have refused work, because of the wages or some other cause, and they do not state the fact to those who send them to the office."

The growth of Catholic boys' clubs in New York is in line with the deve lopment of Protestant or unsectarian organizations of the same kind Up to the beginning of this year nine clubs had been organized. average nightly attendance was more

BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Make Children Well and Keep Them Well.

For sick, weak, nervous frettu children, there is nothing so good as Baby's Own Tablets. They promptly relieve and cure all the stomach and bowel troubles that afflict little ones break up colds, reduce fever and allay the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth. The Tablets can be given with perfect safety to the youngest, feeblest baby, as they are guaranteed to contain no opiate harmful drug. For very small children crush the Tablets to a powder, Mrs. L. Axford, St. Thomas, Ont. "Before giving my little girl Raby's Own Tablets she suffered from a disordered stomach.
vomitted a good deal, and was and was very constipated, and pale and delicate looking. She was always a nervous child and did not sleep well. After cial action. We are your children, giving her the Tablets there was a great change. Her stomach got bet- ways to remain. Be pleased to bless ter, she retained her food, her bow- us, and bless with us all those who els became regular, and she has grown much fatter and looks the in heart to the Blessed Virgin and picture of health. I also give the Tablets to my baby when his stomach is sour, or when he has colic and they always do him good. keep the Tablets in the house and would not be without them."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggits or will be sent post paid at 25 cents a box by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicing Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenecta-

The Fribourg Congress

The Congress at Fribourg, Switzerland, in honor of Our Lady was attended by some thirty bishops and several hundred priests. Altogether the attendance each day numbered about two thousand. Many from different countries. The Right Dr. McSherry, Bishop of Junstinianolis, having come from his Vicariate in South Africa, had the distinction of having travelled far-Father Fletcher represented England. The visitors had a cordial greeting from the citizens of Fri-

The proceedings were inaugurated at the Salle de la Grenette by the eading of the Papal Brief approving and blessing the Congress. Then Mgr. Dernaz, Bishop of Lausanne and Geneva, addressed words of welcome to all present. "I greet," said he, "the large phalanx of representatives of France, distinguished for its votion to Mary; the cohort sent by faithful Belgium; the Germans and the subjects of the Austro-Hungarian Empire who have come to Congress; the Italians, whose devotion to the Mother of God is always so ardent; the sons of proud and valiant Spain; the representatives of England, a country which was once called the Dowry of Mary, and which owes, no doubt, to the prayers of the Queen of Heaven the consoling movement towards unity which manifests itself in 'the Island of the Saints.' I also welcome the faithful Poles, and in a word, the Catholics from every nation that has sent representatives. Those present then proceeded to the Church of Notre Dame, where the "Te Deum" was sung and Mgr. Jaquet, Bishop of Jassy, delivered a discourse

During the three following days there were religious services, meetings, and processions. Interesting papers on devotion to Our Lady were read, and many practical discussions took place. In a paper by the Marquise d'Auray, of Paris, the authoress expressed the hope, formulated at the last Marial Congress in Lyons, that the world would one day consecrate itself to Mary, that the Pope would introduce into the liturgy a Proper Office in honor of the Queen of the Universe, and that he would add to the Litany of Our Lady "Queen of the Universe, pray for us." A grand procession was arranged for Wednesday, the 20th, but. as the hour at which it was to start. approached rain fell in cataracts. The committee of arrangements were in despair. Suddenly, however, when the hour was reached the rain ceased and the sun shone out brightly. The procession was a splendid spectacle. It numbered eighteen thousand people. The ecclesiastical dignitaries re-entered the city blessing a double row of people all kneeling.

There was a memorable scene the evening of the last day, when the ceremony of crowning the statue of Our Lady took place at Notre Dame. An immense crowd assembled on the occasion. After a very eloquent discourse by the Abbe Courbe, the ceremony was performed by Bishop Dernez as the representative of the Holy See. A crown was placed on the nead of the statue and a sceptre in its hand. The "Te Deum" was then sung. The service was most impres-

The following address was sent to the Holy Father:-

"Most Holy Father, we priests; bishops, and laymen assembled this city in your name for the purpose of paying honor to the Blessed Virgin and promoting devotion to her cannot separate without expressing once again our sentiments of attachment, devotion, and unalterable love towards Your Holiness city of Fribourg, always faithful to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. by receiving us with real enthusiasm has shown that it fully understands the importance of the present hour. We trust that this Congress will give She a fresh impetus to devotion towards prove the dawn of a new period of true Catholic life and efficacious so-Holy Father, and such we desire alare united with us in thought the Holy See."

ing telegram: "The Holy Father, so grateful for the action of such large number of attendants at the Congress and pilgrims in meeting to acclaim the royalty of Mary, accepts the homage tendered to the Holy See and cordially grants the benediction asked for.-M. Card. Rampolla."

N an interesting article entitled "Going to Mass," A. M. ber, in the "Catholic World" agazine says:-

"A Sunday in Cologne is not an event to be easily forgotten. Before entering the magnificent cathedral we stood on the street for quite awhile, looking up at those massive towers, and niled our eyes, our hearts, and our souls with the en trancing majesty and beauty of that wonderful temple. It almost seemed incredible that anything so absolute ly marvellous as the Cologne Cathedral could be reared at mortal command; indeed, it is much more reasonable to conceive it as one of the magical occurrences of the "Arabian Nights." It is impossible to how infinitesimal one feels beside those gray walls and thousands of niches peopled with statues of the saints, and enriched with the work of centuries. And what language can do justice to that noble interior? Its vastness is almost appalling; and its devotional atmosphere, the mellowness acquired by ages of prayer, as it were, fairly grasps one on entering the doors, and envelops like the embrace of a loving mother.

The 10 o'clock High Mass was just beginning as we entered, and the vast building was crowded with worshippers—worshippers in the true sense of the word. No coming and going of the curious tourist here. A scarlet-clad verger, with his mace of office, stood rigidly at the foot every aisle, and no one was allowed to pass those stern sentinels se who had come to participate in the Holy Sacrifice; and it must be confessed that they were extremely strict in the performance of duty. A great organ near the altar pealed forth, a choir of men's voices rang out above the multitude, the incense arose in soft clouds to mingle with the bewildering array of sun-tinted colors that streamed from the jewelled windows over that

-to-be-forgotten scene. At 11 o'clock there was a Low Mass, and we were fortunate in be ing able to procure seats nearer to the main altar, the while we breath ed a deep sigh of relief that there were no annoying collectors for pewrent-they would have been such a desecration in so exquisite an envir The pews were quickly filled again, the organ pealed forth, oh, delight of delights! great congregation raised their voices simultaneously in a soul-stirring hymn of praise to God. In all directions they sang, those good, true, honest German voices - hundreds of stalwart soldiers in uniform, the men of fashion, the lowly peas ant, the women, the smallest chil dren, everybody-and they sang with a fervor and a delicacy of harmony that brought the tears to the eyes were not accustomed to such sounds. I am sure that two thousand people sang at that Mass, and the way that golden volume praise soared to the Gothic roof. and swept back again, in and out 'the arches and pillars, and whispered, and appealed, and loved as one glorious voice, was a vocal praye that no human kand could pretend to describe. I only know that we knelt, and sat, and stood in a perfect rapture of joy, and it is to say that never while we live shall we forget that morning in the Cologne Cathedral. In the evening, when we sailed away up the Rhine, the sun was setting behind a bank of misty red clouds, and the cathedral stood silhouetted in velvety black against the dazzling ball One little star twinkled out audaciously above the lace-like turrets, and all too soon the beautiful structure faded from our sight in the

The following Sunday found us in the town of Stratford-on-Avon, in England. We arose very early and started out, with plenty of time to spare, for the 8 o'clock Mass at the Church of St. Gregory. It was a long walk, quite a way beyond the famous Red Horse Hotel. Such a balmy, sunny, quiet morning in Shakspere's old town, with a sky of blue overhead! We vivid past the historical Grammar School, and the contemporaneous cottages it, in front of which a delightful old man in a pot hat and a ock was sauntering back and forth puffing at his pipe —a picture within a picture. On past Marie within a picture. On past Marie Corelli's comfortable-looking home.

where the flowers fairly grew out of the bricks in the walls, giving it the appearance of a house built in a bouquet of gorgeous yellow, red, and It was a wonderful sight, and, indeed, the abundance Stratford are one of its most pressive spectacles, and we found the toil-marked hands. early morning air sweet beyond compare with the beauty and the breath I don't think we met more than five people in that charming twenty minutes' walk, and we certainly did not jostle many going Gardens, and looked far across into the church. The way lay through a little old graveyard, fit setting for the most romantic type of a Gothic structure imaginable. It was altogether a realization of the rolled itself to picturesque church so much favored English literature. The roses nodded in at the windows-great big creamy feilows; and the ivy covered almost everything in sight. out to the sanctuary robed in rich white vestments, after the Gospel gave us a scholarly short sermon in a voice so cultured and well trained that it was a rare pleasure to listen to him. It was quite a large church, yet there were but forty people in the news, and of these only seven were men. seats at random, but later I found that we were in debt to the extent Every pew 'tu'pence' apiece. "had its price," so to speak. tice to that effect was printed in gilt letters on the post at each end of them. The prominent pews were sixpence, and the tax was modified in proportion, until towards the end of the church the value of a seat was but a penny, with "free sittings" for those who could not afford to pay

The intense, sincere devotion that made itself felt in that little English church was extremely edifying We willingly lingered when Mass wa over, while some sweet bird-song thrilled in through the narrow vindows, and the soft fire of the sanctuary lamp flushed the marble of the altar with a delicate pink radiance In returning we walked along the rippling Avon, which was all merry glitter and sparkle with the morning sun; then through Shakspere's church-yard, where we lingered to read some of the odd inscriptions on the mossiest, most illegible tombstones. The town was beginning to be wide-awake by the tiwe reached the streets again, and hastened back to our flower-decked inn to a very welcome breakfast.

It was a decidedly gray Sunday that dawned for us in "dear old Ir land," in the ancient town of Lisburn, County Antrim. early for the 9 o'clock Mass, and had ample time to saunter along the quiet streets, past the deserted old mansions that were the pride of this once thriving town. They seem for all the world like gaunt, sad ghosts, begging the passer-by to give back the days of prosperity and hos-We peered pitality. curiously through a few dusty windows in the vacant houses (alas! there are many of them), and their wide halls where the bright hearth fires had sent out their bright welcome, and the broad stairways, that had sounded to the touch of light footsteps, looked back at us so desolately through years of neglect and generations of dust-pathetic, lonely homes of Ireland, homes so symbolical of their councondition! The comparison impressed itself with extra force as we began to mingle with the crowd, all going in the same direction. A poor-looking, ill-clad company were, the majority of them the hardworking mill-hands. Most of the had shawls wrapped tightly around their heads in lieu of bonnets, many of them never having poswas impossible not to compare these humble, poverty-stricken creatures with the comfortably garbed Catho lics we had met in the churches of other countries.

Before the Mass began, were scrutinizing the hooded, praying figures surrounding us, it a strong temptation to picture to one's imagination the number hearts there must have been in that assemblage that were lifted to God on behalf of their nearest and dear-est whose homes were now in America. In that sense it was a different congregation from any amon we had hifherto knelt. would have been an odd man or man kneeling with us whose interest and affection would not have stantly responded at mention of that glorious New Country-the New Ireland for many of them - to which they were bound by the strongest ties of kinship and love.

The parish Church was a new one built on the site of its predecessor, which had witnessed many genera tions come and go. The children oc capied half of the middle aisle, boy girls on separate sides. boys sang hymns during the with very good taste and feeling; and one young lad stepped into the aisle beside the harmonium, which presided over by the school- and ready for occupation.

master, and sang alone, with an ex quisite, fresh young voice. His solo was that ever-beautiful one, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," every word was uttered with remarkable distinctness and devotion. Many luxuriance of the flowers in were weeping when he had finished, and every head was bowed in rough,

The sun streamed in over the altar before the Mass was quite finished, so that when we came out the day was as golden as a primrose strolled back through the old Castle the hills of County Down and Morne mountains, where the grass green as an emerald beneath the blue sky. As that splendid landscape un the horizon I thought with an overwhelming sadness of the millions of loyal Irish hearts in America that were breaking for the sight of such a picture as this, and the millions of aching hearts in all parts of the world who knelt in their own Irish Church in spirit every Sunday, even as we had been privileged to do in reality, with the breath of the hawthorn stealing in at windows, and God's sunshine stream ing down over his faithful people.'

 PITTSBURG'S NEW CATHEDRAL

HE new Catholic cathedral of Pittsburg, Fa., honor of St. Paul. When the ground occupied by the earlier quaint cathedral was purchased by Mr. Frick, the steel magnate of Pittsburg, for $1,000,000, the bish the diocese, in conjunction with the rector of the cathedral, de cided that the new edifice should far outshine the old, and be typical the growth of the faith and the expansion of the coal town itself. competition appealed to the committee in charge of the cathedral's erection as an efficacious method of reaching best results. The contest was limited to five prominent eccle States. All were eastern firms cap-States. Al, were eastern firms except one from Chicago, which captured the prize. The plans ted by Egan and Prindiville were found satisfactory and the contract was awarded.

The exterior of St. Paul's shows a Gothic structure of sweeping lines capped by tall twin towers. The style of the architecture is what may be designated as a pure example of the traditional or scholastic Gothic of the fourteenth century, the full flower of the "decorated Gothic," as it is technically called, The structure externally is of from base course to the sum mit of each spire; even the numerous traceried windows which are to embellish the exterior and interior are intended to be wrought in stone

The front presents an imposing fa cade, extending on Fifth avenue for a width of 120 feet over both tow ers, the main front gable rising to 120 feet, and each tower spire 250 feet. The doorway is in three parts, surmounted by moulded and carved arches and lofty pediments adorned with statues, the central pe-40 feet high and surmounted by a olosal statue of St. Paul.

Flying buttresses fill the space in front between the towers and main gable, giving an airy and graceful treatment of the connection between the central and side masses. Corres ponding gables and entrances of less elaborate character adorn both transepts, and windows of almos the same magnitude and of equal architectural beauty.

Interiorly the arrangement unique in this country, although being of a kind not unusual on the continent of Europe. The ground plan indicates five main divisions formed by four rows of columns, in to a central part or "nave," d, and four side aisles, this being almost identical with the plan thus far of the old cathedral building.

Above the arches of the nave cade are designed a series of sculp ared panels in high relief, intended to illustrate notable scenes in the history of the Church. The interior columns and wainscotings are to be finished in rare marbles The plans provide for a fire-proof structure throughout, as it is the in ention to so construct every partthe floor, the roof and even richly-vaulted ceiling—that ne wood-work shall be used. The cost of the structure will, it is thought, ap-proximate $700,000 when finished

TO PROMOTE CATHOLIC MARRIAGES

HE hesitation of young Catholics to enter into the marriage state and the al-Sarming growth of mixed marriages inspires the Catholic Press of Sydney to the following remarks:

No time should be lost in suggesting and carrying into effect the means for healing evils that must se riously affect our position in the No one can deny what great apologist Tertullian even in the earliest days of Christianity demonstrated that there is no more prolific source of infidelity than mixed marriages. And in the Catholic Church in this State we find that of all those who live in the state matrimony 35% per cent. are those in which either husband or wife is non-Catholic. How can we stop the tide and impede the evil consequences

Many Catholic lads find themselves at that period when they might rea sonably hope for a happy marriage and a comfortable home, in receipt of a wretched salary in an office or business establishment, while others who have learned a useful trade are receiving $15 and $20 a week. To parents then we must appeal to send their boys early in life to study trades and acquire a technical cation so that they may have a profitable and reliable source of income rather than the shabby-genteel res pectability of a clerkship.

Our girls also are somewhat fault. They are often over-educated in the social instincts of life known as accomplishments, and have no tastes whatever for the more substantial duties of housekeeping and cooking. In Belgium, for example, all girls are bound to a regular of domestic economy and culinary knowledge. Would it not be more desirable to have a thorough knowledge and love for hous work and domestic economy than to devote too much time to the pleasant recreation of the higher and, no doubt, nobler arts of music, drawing and painting in which not one girl in 10,000 can ever hope to excel? The genteel girl will not be inclined to associate or marry her brother's equals. She aims much higher in the social scale and is ambitious for at least a well-shaved bookkeeper, if she does not aim at a professional man and "society." Hence she fails in most instances and prefers to remain in single blessedness than endeavor to make someone in same sphere of life happy, whom her virtue and education would elevate and ennoble

William Cobbett says in his "Advice to Young Men," that the true and sweetest music in a home is that of a mother singing her baby to cannot be found in the pianolo and the grand piano It is not taught by the long-haired nusic teachers. And Cobbett pre ferred the needle to the novel. he was old-fashioned; and vet strangely enough the tastes of great democrat were also those of diment over the main entrance being the old-fashioned gentlewoman to whom we owe any little grace that

The dislike for housekeeping sends reat numbers of girls to seek employment as saleswomen and at fice work, which unfits them for the duties of wives to the industrious workingmen, who would in other cirumstances, give them a comfortable home which they could make happy Of course our remarks do not ply to a large number of sensible Catholic girls. We must, however, look at the evils honestly in the face, and seek the causes, even though we are forced to draw a Gr caving tooth or two in the process By a greater attention on the part of parents and our girls to the realities of their surroundings, we lieve these evils would be much ab ated and the Catholic community be nade more flourishing and influen

It is questionable too' if it is not desirable to revive the old practice of match-making. In Ireland other countries where the young rewn giddy fancies and to chance circumstances, the marriages are hap py. In Ireland divorce and domestic tragedies are unknown. In Austra lia parents make no efforts to settle their children in life. Too often the at a dance, the acquaintance ripens into love on her part, he mar ries her perhaps to break her heart, or, maybe, he jilts her, and for years afterwards her thoughts do not turn to matrimony. In such cases the parents seldom inquire into the man's position, habits and family history. The young men also on chance to supply them with partner for life and a mother their children.

We have no sympathy with the cowardly cry of poverty. This country is richer than other countries in which the marriage rate is high. Among the rich there is even a stronger disinclination to marry than among the poor. A young fellow and a young woman with good characters can marry reckless of consequences. Our wealthiest men began life in the humblest circumstances. We could give scores of names of successful nen who began married life with what would be regarded now scanty worldly prospects. It is not poverty, but a bad character and enemy of her religion that Catholic young lady has to fear.

It is the first duty of parents ee that their children are married It is of more importance safely. than all the genteel accomplishments with which they are wont to arm them for the battle of life. With a had husband or a bad wife, or in a lonely state, superficial accomplish ments are of very little use. Good character is the basis upon all happiness or love is built. Good men and women are all at heart a like, and there need be no fear that love will be a stranger in such union. And we all know Catholic young men and women who would make ideal husbands and wives, who would readily marry if encouraged to do so.

The present state of things is disgraceful and alarming, and unless serious and constant consideration is given to it the result cannot other than disastrous for the future of our people and of the Church in the Commonwealth.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

EISURE is just as possible to-day as ever it was, and Cone may have with it comfort than was attainable a hundred years ago. Th restless lives we live come by choice and not by necessity. There is certainly much more rush and hurry and tension, competition and failthan ever before; but the rush ure, of life is along the great highways of travel and commerce. They cover but a small space of the vast coun try through which they pass. miles away from the railroad, may live as retired, as peacefully, and in more comfort, than was pos sible a hundred years ago. In a New England town nany farms had been advertised for sale for less than the stone walls and the buildings cost, a farmer was recently asked why he could not live on a farm and thrive as his tors did. He said: "I can make more money than my grandfather "Then, why are men leaving did.' their farms and going to the towns?' "Because," he said, "we are not con tent with the things that satisfied our fathers. We want our children to have the best advantages of education. I am not willing to my wife work as my grandmother worked. She must have a domestic and good dom?stics are hard to get in the country. If sickness comes we want a good doctor. We are not willing to see our wives and chil-dren die for lack of medical service that we cannot afford to pay So we sell out and go into the town.

Many complain that they are driven by toil and society, so that they have no leisure for the quiet life. But, commonly, they are drawn, not driven They are entired by things they could do without if they reafly believed in the knowledge, the culture, the enjoyment, which comes to those who love nature, and seek first the real things which satisfy the mind and the heart. John Muir is not driven, he does not find the pace of modern civilization one that He takes for his domain the kills. He takes for his domain the Sierras, and the sky that overhangs them, the wind sifting through the pine trees, and all the wild life of the mountains; and in them he finds eace and quiet, and gains knowedge which millionaires of discretion end with. We are not driven; we are enticed by our desires. There are prizes and satisfactions in profusion which tempt us. But we are under no compulsion to seek them. He who complains, confesses that the mon blessings, never so freely given as now, do not satisfy.

There are trusts and combinations, good, bad and indifferent, there eager contention, rivalry in manufacture, in trade, in finance, which embitter life even when the prizes won; but no one is under compulsion to enter the race or play the game. Aside from these things, most of the people upon this continent are really untouched by them in any vital interest. The unrest under the oppressions of the commercial worlh is for the majority unreal, and would be unfelt if no heed were given to rumors and the noise of those who, for pay, tell the people how He who is content to able they are. live to-day on the same income that his ancestor lived a hundred years ago can have for the same money better food, better clothing, better means of travel, and access to books pictures and amusements which grandfather could have enjoyed only by taking long journeys at great expense. For ten cents, a person living half a dozen miles out of Foston in any direction may go into the city and return, and, while there, have, at stated times, free of pense, pleasures of art and literature which a hundred years ago no man could have compassed. Of other cities the same thing is true. Some things cost more than they did a few years ago, but those who produce them are getting better prices for them. The consumers who grumble at the enhanced cost of living are for the most part getter better prices for that which they produce, whether by labor of brain or by handiwork. From wide observation of neighbors and friends and fellow-citizens, we are convinced that most of our forebodings are without cause, and the things we suffer are imaginary. It may be that the street railway companies make more money than they ought to; but, when the man who boards an electric car and pays five cents" for ten-mile ride says that his blood boils with indignation every time he does it because of the rapacity of the corporation which accommodates him, his wrath seems to us fictitious, and the amount he suffers because of the two cents he begrudges to the corporation is more than balanced by the enjoyment he gets in "kick-

We are not defending trusts and corporations. We do not know enough about their nature and metinods to pronounce judgment for or against them, and we know very few people who do. What we do say is that he who chooses to pay the price for a quiet life, and for things in life, which his fathers paid, can make a better bargain with nature and society than it was ever possible to make in any century or in any country. And, if we judged our disadvantages by that which we really suffer and not by what we are told "the people" are suffering, we should be almost unconscious of the heart-breaking scramble wealth and fame and popularity which may go on out of earshot and beyond our observation if we will have it so .- Christian Register.

* THE PREVENTION OF CONSUMPTION.

HE international conference on tuberculosis in Berlin, October 22-26, is awaited with the keenest interest. It is hoped that discussion of the position of Governments in regard to the prevention of consumption may lead the way to more organized efforts. At the Sanitary Congress in Manchester recently, it was announced that through poor rate alone England spends $5,-000,000 yearly on consumption. Moreover, of the 42,000 who die annually from the disease, the great majority are between twenty and forty-five years of age, and their deaths are a sheer economic loss to the community. The mere loss in wages to the English wage-earning classes from consumption is estimated at from fifty to fifty-five million dollars annually. It is urged as a national necessity, as also a measure of national economy, to increase the number of sanatoria, and also to prevent the erection of homes which breed disease. 00000000000 Story of

Two hundred years

SATURDAY, SEI

light of an April mor old Haverhill, embos rimeval forests, near Merrimac. It was a hamlet consisting, at about thirty cottages ins. In the centre of stood a meeting house the village. On the open land the plow h furrows among stumps of trees, and and west it bordered en wilderness which st White mountains, and seemed a bulwark age In one of the best o only a few rods from church, lived Simeon wife, Rachel, and the zer, a boy of 14 years. was very rude, for it l ily thrown up, and the it was built were green but a few months bef there was no time to cracks between the log with sticks and stiff cl with a broad-axe and with the flat sides upw The door was a wide split or hewn and hung nut hinges. The latch were of wood, too, an was raised from the out of a leathern string, under it and through th the latch-string was dr door was securely faste thod of fastening gave hospitable saying: "M is always out.'

tar used in making the clay also, and the floo

logs split in half, roug

Just as the Keyser fa ing from their breakfas ny spring morning a li the door was heard.

"Come in," called Mi the familiar fashion of The latch rose with shy little miss of about "Mother said I migh play with Eben awhile, ence Hartshorn, the onl minister of the parish.

"Eben's got to pile s boards that I drew fr yesterday," said Mr. K you can stay by and s only be careful and not ter that, if you want to nothing against it." "Won't you have a h asked motherly Mrs. K 'No, thank you, ma's just eaten breakfast at started for Amesbury. was so busy that I tho come over. Shall I be "Not a bit, Prudy," faced Eben, taking his peg and rolling up his paratory to going out that his father had laid in the back yard.

The Keysers were going more substantial cottag autumn, and the pile drawn for that purpose laid up in regular ord It was pretty h a boy of Eben's age, stout and accustomed to he worked very busily f Prudy amused herself r playing keeping house, and pies of mud and us its of earthenware for "Well, I'm tired," gas the sat down and wiped tion from his forehead v handkerchief. "Seem's

"Shan't I pour you s won't you have a piece bread?" asked Prudy, w citous air of a housewife
"No, thank you, Miss trather have a drink of and I'll run and get it v frying those doughnuts.' "Bring me some, too, tea with," piped the am

In a few minutes Eber bearing a great wooden full of the cool liquid the "northwest corner o as he expressed it. He round for Prudy, but di

"Prudy - Prudy Hart are you?" he shouted.

"Whoep! Whoop!" car young voice, hidden awa; among the piles of logs "I'll find you in a mir Eben, as he stumbled ov ber. "Ah!" as he spied her white frock, "here y little mischief!"

"I thought you could me," said Prudy, strugg uiet, and gains knowmillionaires of discretion We are not driven; y our desires. There are atisfactions in profusion us. But we are under n to seek them. He who onfesses that the coms, never so freely given not satisfy.

rusts and combinations, nd indifferent, there is tion, rivalry in manufacle, in finance, which emen when the prizes are one is under compulsion race or play the these things, most of pon this continent are ched by them in any vi-The unrest under the

of the commercial worlh jority unreal, and would no heed were given to the noise of those who the people how He who is content to on the same income that lived a hundred years e for the same money better clothing, better evel, and access to books amusements which his could have enjoyed only ng journeys at great evten cents, a person !ivozen miles out of Foston ction may go into urn, and, while there, ted times, free of exures of art and literahundred years ago no ave compassed. Of other me thing is true.

gs cost more than they ears ago, but those who em are getting better em. The consumers who the enhanced cost of livhe most part getter betr that which they pror by labor of brain or k. From wide observabors and friends and felwe are convinced that r forebodings are with nd the things we suffer y. It may be that the y companies make more they ought to; but, says that his blood an who boards an elecpays five cents for a dignation every time he use of the rapacity of ion which accommodates th seems to us fictitious, unt he suffers because of ts he begrudges to the is more than balanced ment he gets in "kick-

t defending trusts and We do not know their nature and metiounce judgment for or aand we know very few do. What we do say is chooses to pay the price ife, and for the best which his fathers paid, better bargain with naiety than it was ever nake in any century or ry. And, if we judged tages by that which we and not by what we e people" are suffering, e almost unconscious of reaking scramble for fame and popularity o on out of earshot and observation if we will Christian Register.

THE REVENTION

OF NSUMPTION.

nternational conference aberculosis in Berlin, awaited er 22-26, is the keenest interest. It ped that discussion of of Governments in reprevention of consumpd the way to more orrts. At the Sanitary Manchester recently, it ed that through one England spends $5,- rly on consumption. the 42,000 who die an-the disease, the great between twenty and forof age, and their deaths conomic loss to The mere loss in wages h wage-earning classes option is estimated at fifty-five million dollars is urged as a national also a measure of na y, to increase the num-oria, and also to pre-ction of homes which light of an April morning shown on you never would. old Haverhill, embosomed in the rimeval forests, near the tranquil Merrimac. It was a compact little Besides, I would have known you hamlet consisting, at this time, of were here." about thirty cottages and log cabstood a meeting house, the pride of On the few acres of the village. open land the plow had just turned furrows among the charred in another moment a score of musstumps of trees, and on the north and west it bordered on the unbrokwilderness which stretched to the White mountains, and by its extent seemed a bulwark against invasion.

......

Story of Real Life in Colonial Days.

SATURDAY, SEPT 20, 1902.

In one of the best of these cabins, only a few rods from the little church, lived Simeon Keyser, his wife, Rachel, and their son, Ebenezer, a boy of 14 years. The cottage was very rude, for it had been hastily thrown up, and the trees of which was built were green and growing but a few months before; and as there was no time to burn lime the cracks between the logs were with sticks and stiff clay. The mortar used in making the chimney was clay also, and the floor was laid of logs split in half, roughly matched with a broad-axe and laid together with the flat sides upwards.

The door was a wide, thick plank, split or hewn and hung on stout walnut hinges. The latch and catch were of wood, too, and the latch was raised from the outside by means of a leathern string, which passed under it and through the door. When the latch-string was drawn in the door was securely fastened. This method of fastening gave rise to the hospitable saying: "My latch-string is always out."

Just as the Keyser family were rising from their breakfast on this sunny spring morning a light knock on the door was heard.

"Come in." called Mr. Keyser, in the familiar fashion of the time.

The latch rose with a snap and a "Mother said I might come and play with Eben awhile," said Prudence Hartshorn, the only child of the minister of the parish.

"Eben's got to pile some logs and boards that I drew from the mill yesterday," said Mr. Keyser, "but you can stay by and see him do it only be careful and not get hurt. After that, if you want to play, I have nothing against it."

"Won't you have a bit to eat?" asked motherly Mrs. Keyser.

"No, thank you, ma'am, we have just eaten breakfast at home. Pa started for Amesbury, and mother was so busy that I thought I would come over. Shall I be in the way?" 'Not a bit. Prudy." said ruddyfaced Eben, taking his hat from its peg and rolling up his sleeves pre-paratory to going out to the task that his father had laid out for him in the back yard.

The Keysers were going to build a more substantial cottage the coming autumn, and the pile of lumber drawn for that purpose was to be flaid up in regular order "to sea-It was pretty hard work for a boy of Eben's age, but he was stout and accustomed to labor and he worked very busily for an hour. playing keeping house, making cakes and pies of mud and using broken bits of earthenware for crockery.

"Well, I'm tired," gasped Eben, as tion from his forehead with a cotton trather have a drink of cold water, frying those doughnuts.'

Bring me some, too, to make my 'tea with," piped the amateur house-

In a few minutes Eben returned bearing a great wooden dipper half full of the cool liquid drawn from the "northwest corner of the well,"

Prudy - Prudy Hartshorn, where were the experiences of that genera-ville, Ont. are you?" he shouted.

among the piles of logs and boards. her white frock, "here you are, you ing down where she sat crouched be-little mischief!"

Two hundred years ago the sun-cape. "If I hadn't shouted I believe

"Yes, I should, though, for I should have seen your white frock.

"Well, you just shut your eyes and In the centre of the settlement let me hide again," cried the child darting away.

At that instant a shrill yell arose on the other side of the village, and kets rung out. "Indians! Indians!" cried the voices of the panic-stricken settlers.

Ebenezer Keyser's face grew denly pale and his heart almost seemed to stop beating. His little companion rushed to his side as if for protection.

men scalp us as they did poor Mrs. Hutchinson?" she asked innocently, for that cruel story of the frontie was familiar to all the young folks of that period.

"Kill us! Yes, if they find us." whispered Eben, "but I intend that they shall not find you. Here, Prudy, let me hide you behind this pile of boards and I'll tuck you in so that your white frock shan't betray you this time."

Trembling, half with fear and half with excitement, the young g,rl let the brave boy lift her up and let her down into a crevice between two piles of boards.

"Aren't you coming, too?" she added, as he hastened to place board over her hiding place.

"No, I've got to hide elsewhere But don't worry, Prudy. The Indians can't find you and I'll come for you as soon as they are gone. Be good and keep quiet."

"Yes, Eben, I'll be good, and quiet, too."

"Well, goodby," and he hastened away with an axious face, for the war-whoops of the savages were growing nearer and fiercer.

There were about two score in the attacking party. They had lain in shy little miss of about 10 years en- | wait during the morning hours until a suitable moment was offered for surprise, when they rushed forward in groups, simultaneously attacking nearly every one of the dwellings. Most of the men were shot down and scalped in their own dooryards or in the fields, where they were at labor. The cabins were ransacked, and the women and children either killed or taken prisoners.

One of the pioneers, William Dus ton, escaped on horseback with seven of his children; his wife youngest child, a baby, were taken prisoners. The latter was subsequently tomahawked. Mrs. Duston succeeded in effecting her escape—an adventure that forms one of the most exciting narratives of the fron-

Farmer Keyser was killed in his field, where he was sowing grain. His wife attempting to escape, was also murdered by one of the savages. The party then scattered, some going into the cellar to feast on the milk and provisions, the others going out through the garden, hunting after more victims.

Two of the warriors approached the place where Prudy lay concealed, stumbling over the very pile under which she lay, scarcely daring to breathe. One of them struck the Prudy amused herself meanwhile by board over her head with his hatchet, at the same time uttering a cry that startled the very echoes. The girl came very near crying out in her agony of terror. She was sure the sat down and wiped the perspira- they had discovered Eben; but she was trained to habits of obedience handkerchief. "Seem's to me it's and endurance, and by a great effort restrained herself.

"Shan't I pour you some tea and She heard them for a long time won't you have a piece of ginger-bread?" select Particle of their stepping about, and heard their stepping about, and heard their stepping about the stepping bread?" asked Prudy, with the soli- deep, guttural voices in debate. It seemed as, if they would never go a-No, thank you, Miss Prudy, I'd way. All the prayers her mother had taught her came to her mind and I'll run and get it while you are while she lay trembling there, and she repeated them over and over. ing ruin and desolation behind them. ed secure; a few hours later in the seeing that the full name, "Dr. Wildry on the willows by the river-side, the smoke rose from smouldermorning, while the mist was hardly as he expressed it. He looked a- ing ruins, and the sword was red round for Prudy, but did not see with the blood of brave men, of wo-

Whoop! Whoop!" came her clear, Prudy, listening with all her might young voice, hidden away somewhere in her hiding place, after a time among the piles of logs and boards. heard a smothered voice calling: "I'll find you in a minute," cried "Prudy, are you safe? They have Eben, as he stumbled over the lum-gone." And soon afterward she saw "Ah!" as he spied a piece of the face of her brave playmate lookwas afraid they would fine you." The boy laughed.

"They would not have done that so easy," he answered. "There is a pit dug just beyond that pile of logs, and it's right under boards. I thought of it the last minute, and crawling in pulled the boards over it again. Two or three times they stood right over me and jabbered, but they never once once thought of looking for any one un der the timber. It was a regular game of hide and seek, and we beat them this time, sure. But, Prudy it must be terrible over there. I am afraid no one escaped."

When Mr. Hartshorn returned the next day he found a sorry spectacle awaiting him. He took Eben, now an orphan, to his own home, and treated him as he would his own son. Eben lived to grow up and went into New Hampshire to live. Near one of the towns of that State there is a beautiful sheet of water, which bears the name of Key "Will they kill us? Will the red hid his playmate at the Haverhill ser Lake, in honor of the boy that massacre and thereby saved her life, -Fred. M. Colby, in the Catholic Columbian

PAINS. NEURALGIC

ARE A CRY OF THE NERVES FOR BETTER BLOOD

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make Rich Red Blood, and Drive These Pains from the System-Read the Proof.

A high medical authority has defined neuralgia as "a cry of the nerves for better blood," and to ef-Yectually drive it from the system the blood must be made rich, red and pure. For this purpose there is no other medicine so prompt and sure in result as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new, rich, red blood with every dose, and impart new life and new vigor to the person using them. Mr. John Mc-Dermott, Bond Head, Ont., offers strong proof of the certain results obtained from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. He says: "A few years ago while working as a carpenter in Buffalo I got wet. I did not think it worth while changing my clothes at the time, but I soon began to suffer for my neglect. I awoke next morning with cramps and pains throughout my body. I was unable to go to work and called in a doctor, who left me some medicine. I used it faithfully for some time, but it did not help me. In fact I was growing steadily worse and had become reduced in flesh that I weighed only 138 pounds. As I was not able to work I returned to my home at Bond Head. Here I placed myself under the care of a local doctor who said the trouble was neuralgia, which had taken a thorough hold upentire system. Misfortun seemed to follow me for the doctor's treatment did not help me, and I think my neighbors at least did not believe I was going to get better I had often read and heard of Dr Williams' Pink Pills and in emergency I determined to try them I had not used more than three boxes before I felt that the pills were helping me. From that on I gained day by day, and after I had sages to each other—the last in this instead of his letters furnishing an used some ten or twelve boxes, I had world; each kneeled in prayer for fully recovered my old-time strength, deliverance, but no deliverance came, the Orders, they supply a powerful its spread to other plants in the and have since been able to work at my trade as a carpenter without any trouble. I have no pains or aches, and I now weigh 156 pounds I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills an invaluable medicine and shall ways have a good word to say for them.

When the nerves are unstrung, when the blood is poor or watery or when the system is out of order Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the medicine to take. They cure all troubles arising from these causes, and At last the red men retired, leavmen bright, active and strong. Protect yourself against imitations liams' Pink Pills for Pale People" is Sold by all medicine dealers or mailed post paid at 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing to men and of mangled babes. Such Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brock-

> The man who thinks his sins will never find him out has deceived himself.

A certain Bishop was once asked : ittle mischief!"

"I thought you could never find as," said Prudy, struggling to es Eben as she clung to his hands. "I the right and go straight on." HEROINE OF

TO-DAY.

99994449999999999

HE Great Bird Rock lies in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It is one of two bare rocks of red sanstone. of red sanstone. As the name indicates, the Great Bird Rock is the home of countless sea birds-gannets, puffins, gulls and auks-and on the summit stands lighthouse, its light being visible twenty-one miles away. During the winter of 1896-97 the keeper in charge of the light was Angus Campbell, who kept vigil with his wife and two male assistants. The island itself is harborless, and its great frowning cliffs rise so precipitously from the sea that men and provisions have to be raised to the station, one hundred and forty feet high, by means of a steam' heist and then only when it is calm enough for a small boat to approach the cliffs from the supply teamer anchored in the open. On the 5th of May, 1897, the Canadian Government steamer Aberdeen reached the Bird Rock on its spring supply trip. For three long months at a time the inhabitants lonely lighthouse have no intercourse with the outside world, and there fore await the arrival of the steam er with the greatest eagerness. When the Aberdeen neared the inhospital le island, the captain scanned the edge of the cliff with his telescope, was surprised to see a gray-haired woman alone where he had left a comparatively young wife and three men a few months before. In due time the officer reached the windswept summit and asked for the

"Angus is dead!" came the brief reply, in heart-broken tones. Jim Duncan, and so is George Bryson, and I'm all alone.

That was all, and yet what depths of tragedy the few words held; what heights of herosim on the part of Maggie Campbell. This was her sad story:-Two months before her husband and his two helpers started out on a seal-hunting expedition. It was a bitterly cold day, but the floating ice from the great Northland had surrounded the Bird Rock for a distance of five or six miles, and on the shining floes could be seen hundreds of the little animals whose fur the men sought. There was apparently no danger, unless the should suddenly change; yet that is what happened. A few hours after the men had set forth on their journey, the dreaded south wind set in unexpectedly. Mrs. Campbell at once hoisted a danger signal, whereupon the hunters hurried toward their refuge. But was too late. The ice cracked in every direction, and the unfortunate ellows found themselves drifting helplessly on a cake of ice toward the open sea and to a certain cruel death. In an agony of suffering the wife watched the little group of doomed men as they were relentlessly swept farther and farther aand when the sun had set on the dreary scene Mrs. Campbell returned to her home a widow But what of the light- a vitally ecessary beacon to the sailor 'How did you manage to get along alone?" inquired the captain.

"I hardly know, myself," was her reply. "Sleep almost deserted me. hardly slept two hours together for the two months, and I ate but one meal a day. For hours during the daytime I swept the face of th waters with my glass in the hope of seeing the lost party-but I took care of the light all the time.

Seven Daughters and Une Son.

persistency till the magic number seven could be counted over their seven could be counted over their unlucky heads. The neighbors had grown used to saying 'another burden' when an thing happened over the way; but one morning the wonderful news went forth that a manchild had been born, and then they ister of the Interior, Martin du very infectious disease.

♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦ nodded their heads in a satisfied way and remarked, complacently: "They had a long run of bad luck, poor things, but now they'll have help in their old ages.' Well, the years went by. The 'burdens' grew apace and proved to be industrious maidens. Two of them worked themselves up from going out sewing by the day into a firm of fashionable dressmakers, two more became teachers, one is a trained nurse, another is a bookkeeper and the youngest remains at home to take care of the old people. By their combined efforts the seven 'burdens' freed the farm from debt, bought a snig home for themselves in the city, and -most herculean task of all - they educated the 'help.' Nature had beer rather niggardly with him in the way of brains, but the girls ambitious and he was their only brother, so they paid his way through college, and by dint of scolding and much advice, to say nothing of the waste of money, they forced through 'the law' till he came out a full-fledged lawyer. And then — be-fore he had secured a brief — the 'help' brought home his bride, was a little hard on the 'burdens. They had counted so on being taken out and made much of on account of their distinguished brother. They had been cherished secret intentions of shifting a little of their responsi bility to his broad shoulders; but after shedding a few bitter tears, they generously buried their own hopes set up the family idol in a brand new office. There he may be found to-day, with nothing nobler in the vista of the future than the advancement of his own bumptious, sel-ish self."-Home Journal and News.

Montalembert's Letters

(By a Regular Contributor.)

The Paris correspondent of the New York "Evening Post," has a lengthy contribution in that organ upon the subject of Montalembert and his early advocacy in France of the liberty of teaching and the se aration of Church and State. The entire argument is based upon some extracts of letters written by Montalembert to the Abbe Delor, in 1839, and upon the fact that Lacordaire and Lammenais, in 1830, helped Montalembert to found the subse quently condemned organ "Avenir." Out of this material, as far as we can see, it is sought to extract an argument in favor of the Law of Associations, or rather of the attitude of the present French Government in regard to teaching communities. Nothing could be more far-fetched and illogical. Conditions are vastly different to-day, and so are issued, and no comparison could be fairly instituted between the two periods. Montalembert was a monarchist prior to the Revolution of 1848; a Republican after the fall of the monarchy; and a Bonapartist; supporting Prince Louis Napoleon, when the latter aspired to Imperial power. He placed religion above politics, and he submitted to the condemnation of his organ by Pius IX. Veuillot proved him to be misguided, if honest, in some of his cherished views. That he advocated the liberty of teaching in France is very true; but were he alive to-day he would be stung to the quick to think that his theory of liberty of education could find application in the methods of the Combes' administration. It is exactly that liberty, for which Montalembert and Lacordaire contended that is ignored, and one against such a course.

As an evidence of how changed are conditions, we need but take one extract from the body of the corresoondence above mentioned:-In 1841, M. Villemain, who was then Minister of Public Instruction, presented to the Chambers an Education Bill. It authorized the opening of free schools, independent of the University, under certain guarantees of culture and morality. The masters were to have diplomas, conferred after examination. The law applied to the seminaries where the young priests were educated and were so far usder the control solely of the bishops. This last clause provoked the opposition of the episcopate, and, after long discussions, the bill was withdrawn. Montalembert much longer in a green condition, took a prominent part in the discus- and continue all the time doing their The neighbors may sometimes be took a prominent part in the discusmistaken, as is shown by a little sion, and his letters to the Abbe De- work of manufacturing starch and parable told by a contemporary:— lor bear traces of it. We also find "Once upon a time there was a allusions to an affair which made allusions to an affair which made household where girls were not want- much noise in 1844. A certain toes from the stafks ed or welcomed, but they came and came with the most absurd fen in he tered a Carmelite convent against uninjured. The potato is alright unthe will of her parents. cipal council asked the Government soon as the disease makes headway

Nord: "You have the power to do so; but the doors will themselves-you will have to break them in, and you will find me behind them in my sacerdotal robes."

There were educational difficulties sixty years ago in France, even as there are to-day. But the Villemain Bill of 1841 was withdrawn when it was found to meet with the disapproval of the Bishops; not so the "Law of Associations." In the case of the troubles concerning the Carmelite monastery in 1844, we see the attitude of Mgr. Berteaud, and how it quelled the attempts at violence. Montalembert was ready to stand beside the Bishop in defense of the religious, and in the proper as-sertion of that liberty which seems to have become a phantom to-day in France. We repeat, there is absolutely no similarity in the situations and the conclusions are wrong.

Notes for Farmers.

POTATO ROT .- It is learned that in some localities farmers are suffering from potato rot. Dr. Fletcher says this loss may be avoided taken in time. Most farmers helieve there is no way of ascertaining whether the potatoes will be sound or not until the tuber is wholly formed and is past treatment. Dr Fletcher points out that the potato rot is a fungus disease and may be successfully treated by Bordeaux mixture. The disease appears about the first of August, particularly in low-lying districts. It shows itself as rust on leaves and you can tell at once by the must smell from the fields. The potato rust appears at that time, and the rust on the leaves is exactly the same disease in another form as that which later in the year develops into the potato rot of the tubers. It appears first on the leaves, and the odor of the disease is easily detected when passing a diseased crop, particularly early in the morning or late at night, in muggy damp weather; that is the time when this disease is developed quickest, and spreads. Its first appearance is as a downy mildew beneath the leaves. Here the spores. minute bodies analogous with seeds, are borne, and from these subsequent infestation comes; these are blown on to other plants located near the njured plant, where they produce more rust. At the same time many of these spores fall to the ground, and by the first rain are washed down into the ground, where they reach the tubers, and the rot sets in. Like many other fungus diseases, conditions favorable for development may not be present: the spores may simply fall on the outside of the potato, and if we have clear dry weather, they may go into the root-house with the potatoes and never develop at all. In such cases we may have a good deal of rust, but no rot; but at the same they may develop, and generally do. When you find rot developing, late in the autumn after the potatoes are put into the root-house, then it is simply because the conditions are favorable for the growth of the parhouse there is less danger than in one where the ventilators are closed, and it becomes hot and muggy There is no way in which you can prevent this loss better than by spraying the potato foliage about the first of August with Bordeaux mixture, which is a mixture of bluestone, lime, and water, and is very destructive to all fungus growths field. We have found at the Central Experimental Farm, where we have carried on experiments for years, as object lessons, that where potatoes had been sprayed on a strip right through the middle of a field, potatoes which are sprayed will hold their leaves five or six weeks longer than those close to them, which were not sprayed. By the first of September many potato fields are brown, and all the leaves are dead. This is not because the leaves are ripened, but because they have killed by the disease. The potatoes or sprayed plants in the same field are twice the size of those of the plants of which the leaves have been destroyed by the rust. This is because the leaves are preserved so storing it up in the tubers. Even if the spores get on the pota-The muni- til the disease works into it.

Household Notes.

HINTS FOR HEALTH. - Don't Time is money. Every minute saved at your meals is a dollar in the pocket of your physician laton in life.

Don't fast to cure indigestion. As the body gets weaker its functions also weaken, and digestion will not

Don't drink too little water be tween meals. This is a very common fault among city folk. At least four to five pints of liquid, tea, coffee, water and milk should be taken during the day. Most of this should be taken several hours before and after meals, some on rising and going

Don't eat just after severe exercise especially if it is unusual. The blood is mainly out in the muscles and skin during muscular exercise. Before it can return to the stomach in proper amount to control digestion fermentative processes may be set up and consequent gastritis.

Don't eat a large meal when tired and hungry. Digestion is a chemical process that requires the expenditure considerable energy. When the system is exhausted it cannot supply this energy. Eat moderately first, then some hours later a hearty meal

Don't take other people's advice as to what you may or may not eat. Stomachs are at least as individual

TO PEEL TOMATOES.-The easiest way to do this is to dip them in to boiling water for a second before beginning. This loosens the skin, and it can easily be removed. An excellent plan is to put them into a frying basket and dip basket and all into the water, as then the water drains from them at once. If left to get sodden they are spoiled.

TO KEEP MEAT .- When there are many flies about it is a good plan if you have not a very good place in which to keep meat, to wrap up as soon as it arrives in a cloth lightly wrung out of vinegar water, redamping it when it dries. Of course, you cannot keep it long, even in this way; but it is impossi ble for flies to touch it.

FRUIT STAINS ON LINEN .- One of the simplest methods of removing these is to strain the stained part over a bowl, and pour boiling water in which a little borax has been dissolved, through till the stain disap-For this treatment to be successful the stain should not be allowed to dry. For stains that have been allowed to dry, moisten with a little whiskey before sending DIRTY WHITE KID GLOVES -When these are so bad that even when cleaned they look a dirty white put them on your hands and paint over two or three times with saffron water, letting them dry throughout between each application. Be careful to paint them over very lightly, as if made very wet they will be completely spoiled. To make the saffron water, boil a little saffron in water about ten minutes and let it stand twelve hours before using.

TO KEEP AN OIL STOVE .- Thoroughly clean and refill every time after using. If you allow dirt and oil to accumulate on it it will smell unpleasantly when lighted. Instead of cutting the wick, end off the charred part with a piece of stiff paper. fore putting out, and leave it turned down till the stove is again needed If the wick is turned up the oil will soak up it and spread over the outside of the stove.

NEGLECTED SINK PIPE.-If you notice an unpleasant odor emanating glass door and presented himself be-from one of your pipes, treat it in fore his employer. this way: Get plenty of boiling water ready, dissolve half a pound of last night?" demanded Mr. Tompsoda in half a gallon. Now pour kins, looking up sharply.

"At the usual time—6 o'clock," the boiling water down the pipe. This is to heat it and soften the decomposing matter, whatever it may be, that causes the odor. Follow this "Yes, sir." nce, while the pipe is still hot, with the soda solution, and finally give it another flushing with boiling water. Then pour in a little disin-fectant. All sinks should be well flushed with hot water after water containing grease has been poured into the pipes, as it is from the particles of grease that have been left clinging to the pipe that the unhealthy gases generally come

ADVANCED TOO RAPIDLY. "How are you getting along, Tom?" asked Professor Marks of Thomas Green, on the occasion of the latter's vacation visit to his old home at Fairhaven

"Pretty slow," replied Tom "Why, are you not still working for the L. B. & C. Railway?' "but I "Oh, yes," replied Tom, guess I am stuck and will stay where

I am for the next forty years "Why, what do you mean? I heard you had advanced quite rapidly in the office.

"Well, that is the trouble." re sponded Tom. "When I work for the company, I thought I knew too much to remain a simple messenger in the office, so I was exceptionally accommodating and po-lite to the chief clerk, and when a vacancy occurred above me I used my friends and influence to get the better position. I did my work well, but still thought I should have bet ter pay, and was able to fill a more responsible place in the office, so I spared no effort to get another pro-A year after I had been with the company I had been promoted five times, and was getting an exceptionally good salary for one of my age and experience.

"I had heard about that," re sponded Professor Marks. " Are you not still occupying that position?

"Yes, and have been for two ears, and that's the trouble. When had been there a year, owing the death of one of the men and the llness of the chief clerk and two of the boys being off on their vacations, I was compelled to take charge of the office for a few days. It was there I failed. Matters of which I knew nothing came up for consideration, and my short railroad career nad given me no experience to help me, out. For three days I struggled with the situation, until everyone in the office knew I was unable to run things. The third day the assistant nanager came in, desiring some in formation which I was unable give. He was very much surprised, and after asking me several questions, and making some inquiries regarding the details of my work, walked out of the room, and in an hour I was relieved of that work and sent back to my old desk.

"The boys in the office had a good laugh on me, and while no one realized more than myself my inability, it took all the courage I had to remain in the office. Now, not only my ability, but I find myself disgo a little slower, and been as anxious to learn the details as I was to get more salary. I would now be

HARRY NOT A THIEF. - Thaddeus Tompkins, counselor-at-law, occupying rooms 99 and 100 Skyscraper building. New York city, was in state of mind the reverse of calm and agreeable.

He sat down in his spring-back chair, slammed back the cover of his roll-top desk, and shouted forth the one word:

"Harry! "Yes, sir," responded a frank, boyish face from the adjoining room and Harry Wilson, a lad of 15, who held the position of office boy to Mr Tompkins-pushed open the swinging

"What time did you start for home

"At the usual time-6 o'clock," was the unruffled reply. "Did you remain in the office all

"Did you have any callers after I went home?"

'Yes: I believe there were three. Who were they?'

"A messenger boy came in with a letter for you, which I signed for and left in the usual place on top of your desk; then Mr. Edwards came in and he said he would like to see you in his office at 10 to-day; I made a memorandum of it and put it under the paper weight with the letter: and the last caller was a stranger who had a model of a new invention that he wanted to show you and see what you thought about getting a patent on it."

"Did he say who he was or make my appointment to call again?'

'No, he took the model out of his satchel and said at first he would leave it and call to-day and see you after you had looked it over; then he changed his mind and said he was in a hurry to have it attended to and would hunt up some other law-

"And no one else called?"

'No, sir; those three were all." "Well, young man, I'll tell you why I have been asking all those questions. It was raining when I started from home vesterday, so I ore my old storm coat, leaving my best overcoat hanging up in the closet here, with my purse containing about $15 in one of the pockets. I to work so late, Harry," answer didn't miss the pocket-book until I reached the ferry, and then I remembered leaving it in my overcoat. Instead of coming back as I ought to shall have to borrow some more and first thing that has disappeared from the closet either. You remember my gold-handled unbrella walked off in the same way about a month ago. Begins to look as if there was a thief somewhere in the building, doesn't it?"

Harry turned pale. "Are you sure the-the coat is gone?" he stammered.

"Just as sure of it as I am that sitting here. And now I'd like to know how you account for

"Perhaps someone has a key that fits the door and-"

"And comes in at night after we are both gone, eh? Not at all likey; and besides, if you remember, the imbrella disappeared while I was out at lunch one noon and you were here all alone."

Harry colored up. "Yes, I re nember that." said he. "but I don't how it could have happened. There were several callers in that them near the closet. I will keep a sharper lookout after this."

"You'd better if you want to keep your job. There is something very nysterious, not to say suspicious, about the disappearance of that umand overcoat, and if anything of the kind happens agin I do it on your mother's account, but ed in. He carried his satchel, and value your situation; that's all!"

kins, counselor-at-law, turned to his vanished and a pocketbook contain-desk, and began his day's work, ing $15 along with it! leaving his youthful assistant in a He was wearing an overcoat. decidedly unenviable frame of mind. widow in poor circumstances. She er had lost, though it was had been compelled to give up the place on account of failing health. Then, though only 14 years of age, Harry had left school and stepped bravely into the breach as the wageearner of the family.

The greatest calamity that could going on. happen to him, he imagined, would to even think of such a thing. And "No; he has just stepped out to inside of each pocket. to lose it through suspicions of his lunch," replied Harry. Had I been content to honesty would make it 10 such news home to his mother? One tuation it would be through no fault of his. He had no idea become of Mr. Tompkins' umbrella and overcoat, but he made up mind that nothing more would disappear from that closet-while was present, at least- without his knowing something about it.

Hereafter it would be part of his business, when his employer was absent, to keep an eye on the door of that closet. In other words, Harry proposed to play the part of detec tive, and capture the thief if he showed up again; or at least prevent him from stealing anything more and getting him into any further trouble That night when Harry was eat ing his supper, he suddenly asked: "Mother, do you mind if I stay at the office nights for a week or 10 days? I have something to attend to there evenings for a while. it will keep me so late I think I'd better do my sleeping there. There's a good leather couch that I can sleep on like a top, but of course I will be up and home in time for breakfast every morning.'

"I don't object to your 'sleeping there if it is really necessary for you his mother. "But I shouldn't think Mr. Tompkins would require you to work like that."

"Oh, Mr. Tompkins doesn't require have done I borrowed some change it, mother, I am doing it on my and went on home; and now I find I own account," exclaimed Harry. "It's something special; but I'd rabuy an overcoat; and this isn't the ther not tell what it is unless you insist on it."

"I will not insist; only don't be getting into mischief, Harry.'

As soon as he had eaten his supper Harry went back to the office and for a number of nights thereafter he slept on the couch near the door, and "kept one eye and both ears open for sneak thieves," as he expressed it afterward. But somewhat to Harry's disappointment none of these gentry called, and he was finally forced to the conclusion that he was on the wrong scent that the rogue who had undermined his peace of mind and threatened his job was not a night prowler after

So he dropped his nightly vigils and resumed his regular routine of duties, but the warning words, "don't let it occur again, if you 'don't let it occur again, value your situation," kept running in his mind.

More than a month had passed, and Harry was beginning to think noon, but I didn't notice any of that his detective abilities had been expended to little profit, when his vigilance was finally rewarded by having the fish walk right into his net, so to speak. It happened one day during the noon hour. Mr. Tompkins had just stepped down to the restaurant in the basement, for his lunch, when a shall have to let you go. I hate to stranger opened the door and walk--well, don't let it occur again if you Harry's heart jumped into his throat alue your situation; that's all!" as he recognized him as the same And having delivered himself of man who had called with the model his piece of advice. Thaddeus Tomp- the day Mr. Tompkins' overcoat had which, to Harry's quick eyes, looked Harry Wilson was the only son of suspiciously like the one his employhad formerly held a position as fore- what shorter than that, and the velwoman in a small cloak factory, but vet collar was of a different shade a year before our story opens she from thut of Mr. Tompkins'.

Harry kept at work copying documents at the letter press in the corner of the room, and although his back was partly turned to the caller, every sense was on the alert and and altered somewhat to suit he was keenly alive to all that was present wearer, but unfortunately for going on. the thief, he had overlooked and times "Sorry; got a work here I thought recognized as a clever sneak thief worse. How could he ever carry he might like to look over." said who was "wanted" by the author-

the caller, opening his satchel and small book

It struck Harry that the size satchel was entirely disproportionate to the size of the book, but ne kept at work and said nothing.

"Perhaps I'd better wait for him a few minutes," went on the caller, helping himself to a chair and sit ting down at the farther end of Mr. Tompkins' desk, next to the clother The desk was now between Harry and the door of the closet, and although the desk completely and the lower part of the door, the upper party was still plainly visible

Harry kept rattling away letter press, apparently too busy to notice anything, but in reality he vas watching that door with vigilance of a cat lying in wait for

Presently he saw the top of the door begin to move and swing slowly outward, until it stood half way open. Harry's heart thumped like a trip hammer as he dropped his work and noiselessly glided across He reached the corner of the desk without being heard, and then with a quick spring he slammed the closet door and bolted it, with the enterprising caller snug and safe on the inside "What the dickens do you mean?" Let me out or I'll kick the door down!" howled an excited voice from the interior of the closet.

chuckled Harry. "Guess not." These doors were not made to be kicked down. Might as well take things easy, Mister. I've just rung the electric bell for the janitor, and if he comes and finds that door kicked down he'll be apt to make trouble for you. Besides you haven't seen Mr. Tompkins yet about that work you wanted him to over.

While he was talking, Harry had kept his foot pressed tightly against the door to offset the force of the blows on the other side, and seeing that his struggles were useless the man ceased his kicking and tried another tack. "Say, young fellow," said he, coan willing to pay well to get out of it. Let me out and keep mum and I'll give you five dollars, cash down. do you say to that?" "Not for five hundred!" responded

ingly. "I see I'm in a box and I'm

Harry promptly. "I've got something at stake in this matter as well as "I thought you had some sporting blood, but I see you haven't,' growled the voice on the other side of the door. "Thanks for the compliment," said

Harry, "and now I'd advise you to keep quiet for a minute; I eone at the door." The newcomer proved to be Har-

's employer, returning from lunch. "Well, Mr. Tompkins, I've found your lost overcoat!" was Harry's greeting as he entered the room 'Where is it?'' inquired Mr. Tompkins, looking around. "In the closet-wieh a man inside

He came back after some more plun-

"What do you mean?" "Just what I said. The overcont s there, and the thief inside of it.

der and I captured him." When a policeman was found and the man in the closet brought and placed under arrest, it was found that Harry's surmise was correct. The overcoat the visitor had on was the very garment stolen frnm Mr Tompkins' office six weeks before. It had been fitted with a new collar "Mr. Tompkins in?" inquired the omitted to remove the owner's name, which was plainly stamped on the

! The prisoner, when arraigned, was

ities for other jobs; and he is now doing more useful work than he ever did before, with every prospect of steady employment for some to come. Harry also has before him the pleasing prospect of steady and lucrative employment for years to come. He has grown greatly in his employer's estimation since the day he captured the sneak thief, and is still growing; and the best of it is, that his salary seems to grow as fast as he does.

AN

Every

Irish Catholic Should Buy The Golden Jubilee Book, And Read The Story Of The Irish

Priests And Laymen In Montreal During The Past

Fifty

Years.

FOR SALE St. Patrick's PRESBYTERY. Miss MILLOY'S,

Main 1182,

St. Catherine St.,

WILL ENSURE PROMPT DELIVERY

OF THE BOOK.

Jre.

PRICE, $1.00. John.

Special Terms to Book sellers or Agents, ADDRESS,

TRUE WITNESS. Box 1138,P.O., FIONTREAL *************

ol. LII., No. I  THE TRUE WI IS PRINTED AND PU

SUBSCRIPTION PRI Canada, $1.00; United St and France, $1.50; Belgiu All Communications s EPIS

u If the English-speak it interests, they would s werful Catholic papers in

NOTES

CONSCIENTIOUS case of Colonel de St. French officer who was refusing to send the m ommand to assist at the Sisters in charge school, has excited the the "Daily Witness," in the punishment tha meted out to him. I court martial has redo credit. According to t respondent of the Lonhe addressed the court "I knew the serious of my decision. Yes, should have to appea and undergo your judg also knew that I should dergo a more serious j of God." These are r and it is not astonishi court acquitted him of disobeying his superior was, however, adjudged obeying the prefect wh to employ his troops in the Government decree Sisters. His punishme ever, only nominal-a prisonment, to count b of the trial. He was released at once. The however, animated by petty tyranny which ha d it since its formation ed the conscientious Co retired list. This is a to the prestige of the fession in France. Few any self-respect will he free to do the behests istic prefect who desire display of his brief civ When General Buller in Ireland many years of his soldiers to help carry out a decree of gainst a number of po tunate tenants. He c to do so; but the Gove dreamt of calling him his refusal. They ma things worse in France a movement in Brittan erect a monument to t author of some terrible Renan has left his own literary one, behind him enviable one it is. I sought, even by Canad to justify the honoring memory on the ground a magnificent style. was a seductive and er er no one is going to o very fact of possessing erary talents, and of i to undermine spirit of his generation his condemnation in th terity. He was not ev al writer; he was wors phemed from commence ish. Even Voltaire wr that might stand critic Christian point of view wrote nothing that a could read without fee ment of disgust or raiswelling in his breast.

RENAN'S MONUME

What is becoming of Catholic Brittany t ters of religious comm persecuted and forced b ands, called soldiers lic, to abandon their l work, their industrious schools, their missions face of these outrages government smiles upor raising a monument, ir dicated to the destruc gion and the effacing a God. Such a monu

- SUBSCRIBE

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER

The True Witness P. & P. Co.'y, Limited

P. O. BOX 1138, MONTBEAL, [P. Q. I hereby authorize you to send me THE TRUE WITNESS for which I agree to pay to your order at the rate of One Dollar per year.

> Signed Address

Subscription Rates. Strictly in Advance

Canada, Newfoundland and United States, 781.00 per year City'and Foreign, $1.50 per year.