CHAPTER XXIII.
THE FIGHT.

"Take your men up that right hill, Frayne. They're too strong for us there."

Darrel caught his breath. It was the fort he wanted, but the hill—well, so be it. He gave the order hoarsely from his parched throat, and his men obeyed like machines.

They had to meet a strong force, for the Afridi had held themselves in reserve for this attack on the flank of the foe.

It seemed to him, if he thought of all, if he were conscious of self and the emotions that move it, that was hours, days, before he came in touch with the howling, cheerfully howling, mass that moved down upon him; but in truth it was only a few minutes before he and his men met them and took grip of them.

There is no deadlier, no fiercer foe than your Afridi with his stockinet cap, his shirlike tunic, his bare and wayworn feet, when he is at close quarters. Darrel took the first man that came to hand, and fought as men fight for life, for home, for the women they love. As he dug and thrust there moved in his mind the memory of the men who had fallen by his side during that awful march, in which they had dropped like rabbits in a Devonshire field.

It was not vengeance he craved for, but the desire to be even with the stealthy foe who had held them at its mercy during all those hideous days.

He felt as if he possessed the strength of a demoniac, for the stories Durton, and others more experienced, had told him of the fiendish cruelties of the Afridis surged through his veins.

These men he was fighting had broken their promises, their vows; fighting was a game, a pastime for them. So be it. They should have the rigor of the game.

He killed his man and turned to receive the next. There seemed no end of them; there seemed no limit to

12 Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Dear Mrs. Currah—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years, and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women the world knows. Use it in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of some sort to be expelled. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and pen cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louise E. Holtzridge.

The letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results for the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc.

I will send a sample box containing 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it if she will send me her address. Enclose 3 stamps and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

their courage, no satiating of their thirst for blood. His new foe held him by the throat. He looked into the man's distended, bloodshot eyes; he could feel the murderous knife touching his side as his foe essayed to strike.

Suddenly the man's knife fell, he gurgled, spluttered in his throat, and fell back. He had been struck by a bullet.

Darrel shook him off and looked around. An Afridi sprang at him, but as Darrel met him he felt something—it was not like that of a weighty object, but quite a slight kind of blow—strike him in the chest.

For a moment it scarcely caused him any inconvenience, but suddenly he felt faint; a kind of nausea seized him; he was conscious of a desire to retch, to be sick; his legs gave way and he pitched head foremost upon his foe.

The Afridi struck with his knife, then pushed him aside carelessly, indifferently, and darted on to his next quarry.

Darrel lay where he had fallen; the tide of battle swept over and past him. He lay stretched out like one dead, with quite a peaceful expression but for a faint frown on his face. The stifling, choking heat of the day—and can anyone adequately describe the heat of an autumn day on an Afghan hill?—the day itself passed. The purple eve, sliding into violet, fell on hill and plain.

He came to as the moon rose, became conscious of an overmastering fact—that he was thirsty, so thirsty that he would give the life that had returned to him for one long swig of water.

He was as stiff as if he had been playing football for six days—running; there was a pain in his chest which caught him every time he breathed. There was also a humming and buzzing in his head as if he had loaned it out as a hive for a swarm of bees.

Also, to particularize, his mouth was full of blood, and his eyes burned as if scorched in a furnace.

With a tremendous effort he cast the burning eyes to left and right of him, and he saw with a pang that daily smote across his apathy, some of his men stretched out beside him.

He closed his eyes, but presently he felt, rather than saw, that something was moving near him, something that glided stealthily, mysteriously. He watched it through his half-closed eyes.

It was an Afridi woman with a sharp knife in her hand; he saw her bend over a man within ten yards of him.

Up went the knife, there was a sob, a gulp, from the body the knife had struck, a quiver of the helpless frame, and then stillness. The human fiend, with gleaming eyes, approached him. Darrel was powerless to move, to utter a sound, even a whimper. She bent over him, knife upraised. It flashed down in the direction of his heart.

He could almost feel the needle-like point of the cold steel, could feel his side wince from the impending thrust; but the poor woman was tired, her aim was uncertain.

The knife pierced his side, clear of his heart. He felt her hand moving about him after the loot to which she, no doubt, felt herself entitled; then he fell into a swoon, so like death that the Afridi woman spurned him with her foot and passed on.

When he awoke from his dream of blood-tinged death his eyes met the stone wall of a sangar, a kind of wall built out from the hill, and pierced by loopholes. He stared at this for some minutes, then dragged his eyes down, and, by a tremendous effort, brought them to bear to the side of them.

And, to his dull amazement, they met the dark, fierce, yet contemplative eyes of a woman who was sitting on her hams and watching him.

CHAPTER XXIV. A CHANCE OF LIFE.

Darrel's intelligence came back more slowly than his sight, and for a minute or two he stared vacantly at the motionless woman sitting beside him. He tried to move, to sit up, but he could not stir an inch, and he shut his eyes again and feverishly hoped that she would be quick about her business and put him out of his misery at once.

There was a sharp, stinging pain in his shoulder, and an aching in every inch of his body; he would have liked to have groaned, but he was reluctant to offer her the satisfaction which he knew any complaint on his part would afford her, and he set his teeth hard and crushed back the desire.

Presently the silence, which was growing well-nigh intolerable, was broken by the sounds of desultory firing and shouting; but they came from a distance and soon ceased, and he concluded that the fight must be over or had drifted up the pass.

Suddenly he felt a hand upon his forehead, and, with a shudder, he prepared himself for the knife. He tried to think of the few words of the Afridi language he knew, so that he might beg her to hasten his despatch, but as he opened his lips her hand glided down on them warningly.

The nullah, or depression in the hillside, in which he lay, was almost hidden by a sangar, a rough wall built of stone, which had served to conceal an Afghan markaman, but he caught a glimpse of a woman, similar to the one beside him, moving on the hill, caught the gleam of a knife, and heard a muffled cry of agony, and knew that other women were out and at their sanguinary work.

The figure passed, the silencing hand left his lips, and he said feebly: "Kill! quickly!"

A faint smile crossed the swarthy face above him, and the long, coffee-colored hands began to unbutton his khaki tunic.

"Ought to know where my heart is," he thought; "but she understood, and is going to make sure the first stab."

He closed his eyes again, but opened them quickly as he felt something cold and damp strike the wound, which felt like a spot of raging fire. Was she washing it? Not only washing, but bandaging it, it appeared. She did it neatly—your hillwomen have plenty of practice at rough surgery—gave him a drink from the water bottle, and, raising, made a sign to him to be silent, and stole stealthily into the open.

Puzzled, afraid to hope, lest this should be merely a respite, he lay motionless and waited. She came back presently, as stealthily as she had gone, examined his bandage, and went over him with her supple hands.

Then she nodded as if satisfied. And, taking from the folds of her robe the remains of a chupatti, which was nothing more or less than the familiar pancake, made thick, held it to him invitingly; and though he was far from feeling hungry, he thought it wise to accept her hospitality.

She nodded again and squatted down beside him with an air that was

How He Escaped An Operation

And Was Completely Cured of Piles of 14 Years' Standing by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. Beauvais.

Doctors say that about one person in every four suffers more or less from piles, and who can imagine a more annoying, torturing, disagreeable ailment?

After trying a few treatments without success, and as the ailment grows worse, the medical doctor is consulted. An operation, he says, is necessary. You think of the suffering, expense and risk to life itself, and hesitate before taking such a step.

In many thousands of such cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has made thorough and lasting cures. Read this letter for the proof.

Mr. Charles Beauvais, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief.

not at all a bad imitation of that of a civilized nurse.

There was a silence for a while. For he felt reluctant to again exhort her to a merciful dispatch after her seeming kindness. Then suddenly, in a low voice, she said in Hindustani, with a display of glittering teeth:

"You no know me, sahib?"

Darrel almost started, and she stared at her in a bewildered fashion.

The sound of the Hindustani was grateful to his ears, for he knew enough of the language to understand her and to make himself understood. "No!" he replied, and he peered at her in the dim light of the nullah. "Who are you? You are a hillwoman, an Afghan? But you speak the language of the plains. What are you going to do with me? Why do you tend my wound and feed me? Who are you?"

"I am Lal Sef's daughter, sahib," she replied quietly, but with a gleam of her teeth and eyes. "I am the wife of Abdurmalm, to whom the sahib gave me."

"What!" exclaimed Darrel. "Lal Sef's daughter! Turn to the light! Yes, it is! I remember now. And you have saved me, Khasti. I remember your name now! How—how did you manage it? The fight—how has it gone with it? Have we won or lost?"

"The sahibs have won," she said simply, and with a kind of dignity. "They have the fort. The hillmen have flown, scattered. The women, too; they are all gone; the one you saw, sahib, was the last of them; she saw the man outside and risked her life to reach him, and kill him. My people have gone to the hills, and your people are following them."

"Thank goodness!" murmured Darrel. "We've won—I beg your pardon, Khasti! I—I was forgetting. You belong to the other side. Your husband—is he alive?"

She nodded and touched her forehead, with a gesture of thanksgiving. "He is alive," she said. "It was he who found you. He carried you here, where I was waiting." Darrel shuddered; he knew what she had been waiting for; the long knife shone dully in the dull light. "He knew you—how should he forget, sahib!—and he bade me watch and care for you. He has gone with the rest, but he will return, if it is possible."

Notes and Comments.

Dr. Arthur White, of Trinity, passed away at three o'clock this morning. For years he was in partnership with his father, who had an excellent practice in Trinity Bight. After his father's death, he conducted the practice alone. He was highly esteemed, as was his father before him, and was a strong supporter of the Liberal Party.

TO-DAY'S NEWS

Special to Evening Telegram. OTTAWA, To-day.

At two this morning the consideration of the Naval Aid Bill in the Commons came automatically to an end. The termination of the long struggle was awaited by crowds in the gallery and was welcomed by the enthusiastic cheers by Ministerial members. The last hour was reached of the votes taken and the measure framed for the purpose of lending Canada's assistance to the Empire in the task of Naval defence and now stands for the third reading probably next Tuesday. The discussion of the Committee was devoid of the spectacular incidents which had been confidently predicted. The rule confining discussion to twenty minutes speeches worked satisfactorily.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, To-day.

Republicans in the Senate leaped eagerly into the fight against the Underwood Tariff Bill, when it was brought over from the Lower House yesterday and precipitated the issue by attempting to override the decision of the Democrats to consider the measure without public hearings. For the running assault that the Republicans propose to wage against the schedule, A. Toz, Senator of Penrose South, moved that the bill be referred to a Finance committee with instructions for public hearings. After the Senator's summons, the chairman of the committee had moved for a reference without instructions. An action on this phase was pending when the Senate adjourned until Tuesday. Several Republican leaders were predicting they would win their contention and that public hearings would be forced over the heads of the finance committee.

The Village Blacksmith

To-night is the last chance of seeing the funniest and best of all the musical comedies. "Last night Rosette's Theatre was again filled, many having to stand, and no wonder, for if such a well devised farce does not draw a full house nothing will, that is, of course, for a good hearty laugh; then lovers of good songs and beautiful ballads can have their taste gratified, and again the performance of our city children are fine, especially in their new songs and dances, dressed as little blacksmiths with the beautiful electrical anvil chorus. There is another big comedy now in course of preparation by Mrs. Rosette entitled, "The Goddess of Stone."

Coastal Boats.

The Clyde left Fogo at 6.30 p.m. yesterday.
The Dundee left Port Blandford at 2.15 p.m. yesterday.
The Ethel left Hant's Harbour at 2.15 p.m. yesterday and is due at Carbonear at 2.15 p.m. to-day.
The Glencoe left Belleoram at 7.15 p.m. yesterday going west.
The Home left Fortune Harbour at 7.45 p.m. yesterday, bound north.
The Lintrose left Port aux Basques at 9 p.m. yesterday.
The Duchess is at Lewisport.

Dangerous Pastime.

Daily numbers of small boys congregate on the slip at the King's Wharf and enjoy themselves jiggling 'tom cods.' Two days ago a youth fell overboard and was barely rescued by a Customs Officer. Some one should be given charge to keep boys off the wharf, and parents should warn their children of the danger or else a serious accident will ensue.

STOLE LIQUOR.—During the week two boys were arrested for being drunk and since then the police have discovered that they stole the liquor and they are being prosecuted shortly for the offence.

Memory Cure.

Minister of Justice Should Invest in a Pot.

The following advertisement is taken from one of the early numbers of the "Spectator"—published 200 years ago. We commend it to the Hon. D. Morison, Minister of Justice, who said he forgot the law about cutting timber on Crown Lands. Here it is:—

"LOSS OF MEMORY or FORGETFULNESS certainly cured. By a grateful Ectuary, peculiarly adapted for that end; it strikes at the Prime Cause (which few apprehend) of Forgetfulness, makes the Head clear and easy, the Spirits free, active and undisturbed; corroborates and revives all the Noble Faculties of the Soul, such as Thought, Judgment, Apprehension, Reason and Memory; strengthens as to render that Faculty exceedingly quick and good beyond imagination; thereby enabling those whose Memory was before almost totally lost, to remember the minutest circumstances of their affairs, etc., 'tis a wonder."

PRICE, 2s. 6d. a POT.
"Sold only at Mr. Payne's at the 'Angel & Crown,' in St. Paul's Church Yard, near Cheapside—with DIRECTIONS."

It may be that a descendant of Mr. Payne is still doing business at the old stand in Cheapside. Mr. Morison should look him up and buy a two and sixpenny Pot if it is not too late and if he does not begrudge the price.

U. S. TARIFF

In the issue of April 12 The Fishing Gazette published the proposed schedule of tariff duties on fish as reported by the Way and Means Committee and since then the Democratic caucus has adopted the committee's report, showing that the latter will pass the House. What the Senate will do can't be foretold so clearly, but if the Senate's action is influenced by the action or non-action of the industries affected, and if the attitude of New York merchants is to be taken as typical of fishing interests elsewhere, it is safe to say that no strong protest against the practical free trade basis of the new duties will be made.

The 'Fishing Gazette' has made a pretty general canvass of New York dealers, and while some object to one feature of the schedule or another, in the main they say they think the change in duties will have little or no effect, so far as the duties go. There is a general opinion that the period of readjustment will be bad for the trade; but this would be the case without regard to schedules. In fact, the effect of the uncertainty already is apparent, and by uncertainty is not meant doubt as to what the new duties will be, but the mere fact of impending change, and the upset conditions incident thereto.

The prevailing dullness in almost all lines already is attributed to this very thing. Naturally, with lower duties likely or no duties at all on stock now carrying a tariff, importers will not bring in any more goods than they can dispose of at once, and wholesalers and jobbers won't take more than they can quickly sell. Buying by all hands thus becomes of a hand-to-mouth character, and this is true of business of all kinds where tariff duties are to be lowered. The business dullness, therefore, may be expected to be general and dullness in one line has a sympathetic effect on another line, and so the effect becomes general.

If dealers have any complaint, it generally concerns the ad valorem instead of specific character of the rates on some of the items. Merchants say this method is troublesome, leads to unintentional undervaluations, with consequent penalties, litigation and no end of trouble.

So far as concerns a lower cost to consumer of goods on a free trade basis, dealers generally say the difference is so small that when apportioned out it will be too slight for retailers to take cognizance of in dealing with their customers. Fluctuations in price, due to the conditions of supply and demand, are known to be far greater than the differences in tariff rates can account for. For example, in 1911 herrings sold at an average of $10 per barrel, and in 1912 at $14. Yet in the latter year more stock was imported and used than in the former, according to a dealer here. This was due to conditions entirely apart from price considerations.

Some exporters who were seen this week were inclined to think that their business would be injured, but others strongly dissented. One leading exporter, whose business is with the West Indies, said he thought free fish would result in so much larger sales in this country that the Nova Scotia supply would be drawn on to such an extent as to cause an advance in the producing market. This would mean a higher purchase price to the exporter, who, getting his stock through in bond, has done business on a free trade basis. Others, however, point out that this argument is not well taken, since the present duties on fish are not large enough appreciably to influence the quantities imported, and so really no effect at primary points is to be anticipated. The aggregate of duties on large amounts of stock handled by an importer, jobber, or even retailer, of course, makes an item which he must take care of, and which influences his business transactions; but it is the ultimate consumer whose buying determines all these transactions, and as long as the price to the ultimate consumer is not materially changed, they say, no material change in the volume of business, or in its general directions, is likely. Just as if, were the case reversed and the duties going on, instead of coming off, the increase of duties would be too small to check consumption, just so the decrease as now scheduled is too slight to cause any sensibly wider consumptive demand, or upset any existing trade conditions.

Producing interests, of course, may not look with such equanimity on the projected changes. Producers generally do not take kindly to such. A Gloucester despatch says "a storm of protest" has arisen there, and plans are on foot to hold a meeting of master fishermen to protest to Washington. Fred. L. Davis, a local merchant, is quoted as saying:

"The proposed change would mean the death of the fishing industry, not only to this place, but to all other seaport towns, because we will not be able to cope with such competition as Nova Scotia will give us."

Dealers here say the Gloucester folks are unduly alarmed, and say producers always look at such mat-

Apt students of get-rich-quick promotion methods, British Columbia Indians have unloaded on American and Canadian gold seekers, scores of claims that do not contain a trace of color. It has developed that the recent stampede into Teslin County, B.C., was engineered by the redmen, who cleared many thousands of dollars through their trickery. John G. Johnson, one of the discoverers of gold in Nome, Alaska, a multi-millionaire, brought news from the north to-day that not a sign of gold has been found in the Silver Creek district, all of which was staked by Indians and sold to white men.

School Boy Equals

World's Record for 100 Yards and Lowers 290 Yards Record—World's Record by School Boy.

State College, Pa., May 3.—World's sprinting records were smashed here yesterday by Robinson, the speedy schoolboy from Mercersburg Academy. In the first heat of the 100 yard dash his time was 9 3-5 seconds, equalling the world's record for the distance in any kind of competition. In the final heat he ran in 9 4-5, equalling the scholastic record for the distance. His most remarkable performance, however, was in the 220 yards dash, when the stop-watches caught his time at 20 4-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second faster than any previous record.

The track was carefully surveyed after the race and found to be full length.

Fifty Miles an Hour.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night, the many people who were going over LeMarchant Road, were appalled at the speed with which a driver of one of the new motor expresses went west on that thoroughfare. Many believed that he went fully 50 miles an hour, and those in the middle of the street jumped quickly to the sidewalks to escape the equipage. From Mr. K. R. Prowse's west he went at lightning speed. The motor was one of these new red-painted machines and it would be but a simple act of justice if the police would prosecute the driver.

Rheumatism For Thirty-Four Years.

CURED BY TWO BOXES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Quebec Man Tells How He Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure When He Got to the Root of the Disease.

ST. FAUSTIN STATION, Que., May 9.—(Special)—"I suffered from rheumatism for thirty-four years. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me." That is the statement of Joseph Boisjau, Charrier of this place, and his neighbors are satisfied that the statement is a true one.

Pressed for further details of his cure, Mr. Charrier said: "I had rheumatism, sciatica, and pains in my back. My memory was failing, and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the least exertion, and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor. "I was always troubled with heart flutterings, my limbs were heavy, and I had a dragging sensation across my loins."

These symptoms tell just why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Charrier so quickly and completely. They are, every one of them, symptoms of kidney disease. Mr. Charrier's rheumatism was caused by the diseased kidneys failing to remove the uric acid from the blood.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his kidneys; the cured kidneys strained the uric acid out of the blood, and the rheumatism disappeared.

The southern extremity of the boundary starts from a point opposite Cape Luzon, Alaska, and traverses the waters at the Dixon east entrance of the Portland Canal, and thence follows through the centre of that Arm of the Sea to the first made boundary in British Columbia.

LONDON, May 9. Anxiety over the Suffragettes' acts of destruction was displayed this morning when Premier Asquith and Winston Churchill, accompanied by their wives, left Waterloo Station to proceed to the coast to join the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, in which they are to make an extended cruise in the Mediterranean. A large number of naval aides-de-camp, secretaries and railway officials surrounded the party, which included cabinet Ministers and others who had come to bid them farewell. Beyond these were outer circles of detectives. So great was the force that any demonstration would have been impossible. Asquith and Churchill intend to inspect the British garrisons and naval stations in the Mediterranean.

Picture Making

By "Enlarging."

Pictures attract everyone, and when amateurs realize that not only can they make photographs, but by having these small photographs enlarged they can get real pictures, then the fascination of their hobby is increased a hundredfold. Many of their negatives will possess a value they did not anticipate, as the small direct prints they make are often too inconspicuous to attract attention. We make the very highest grade of enlargements, and do the work promptly.

If you have a small photo which you are fond of, have us enlarge it for you, and the result is sure to please you a hundredfold more than the small one ever did.

Romance of The North

A romance of the Northland compared with which fiction seems to pale into insignificance before its realism was unfolded in Cochrane, Ont., recently by a marriage celebrated by Rev. J. R. Bythell, incumbent of Holy Trinity Church.

It was a ceremony unique in the annals of Canadian church history and a tinge of more than ordinary interest was added to it by the principals, Mr. Charles Stewart Richmond, son of Rev. J. R. Richmond of Gaspe Bay, Quebec, and Miss Sophia Mackenzie, a beautiful Indian girl who is claimed by her relatives to be a descendant of Sir Alexander Mackenzie the discoverer of the Mackenzie River.

It was about eleven years ago that Mr. Richmond, then being a lad, attracted by the call to the wild and the lure of the mining life, was one of the first whites to break a trail east of Hurricanaw, Blazing trails through the bush he found on a little unknown island a little Indian girl—deserted by stepmother and left alone to face starvation and perhaps death. The child as she was then, could not tell the tale of her sufferings, but Mr. Richmond later learned that she had been on the island for four days without food and shelter and had subsisted on the wild berries she gathered.

Taking the child back to his little camp he tenderly nursed her back to health and between them there grew a love which without benefit of clergy took its natural course.

In the years that rolled away the father and stepmother found out the child and claimed her. Well supplied with all the necessities of life, Mr. Richmond's generosity to the natives soon cemented their friendship though, and the father gave his daughter in marriage to him.

The only ceremony attendant on the first union was a solemn promise exacted by the girl's father that as soon as they could get out of the bush to a point of civilization where there was a clergyman that the marriage would be performed in the legal way.

When Mr. Richmond finally found that he could have the marriage performed according to his belief, he held his promise as sacred and with their children the pair set out for Cochrane.

From Keewagama Lake, Que., Mr. and Mrs. Richmond started over the trail for Cochrane. The father took the boy who was a year old in December, and the mother carried the infant girl who was born to them last December. They packed it over an unbroken trail with their children's comfort and health their first thought to the steel at Hurricanaw. There for the first time the little mother heard the clang of a train; from Hurricanaw she enjoyed the first journey that had not been made on foot.

At the conclusion of the marriage Rev. Mr. Bythell baptized the children and the boy was called George Nolan and the girl, Mariel Emma. Mrs. Richmond would gladly pass for a white, but she prefers to be known as a squaw and is proud of her Indian blood.

Mr. Richmond has great expectations for the future of his wife and family. Highly educated himself, fairly well to do and of good family, it is his intention to send their children to his mother to be educated under her supervision. He has five brothers

SIR EDWARD AT CATALINA.—On Tuesday morning Sir Edward Morris landed on the wharf at Catalina. There were 8 or 10 persons present. There was no cheering, guns or any kind of a welcome. Nobles took no notice of him, but he shook hands with the policeman.

MOTHER'S DAY.—To-morrow, the second Sunday in May, will be observed in Wesley Church as Mothers' Day. This is becoming rapidly a popular feature in the Methodist Church both in this country, Canada and the States and no doubt large congregations will be present at Wesley Church to-morrow. There will be special music and Rev. Dr. Rodgers will preach in the morning while the Pastor, Rev. F. T. Matthews, will preach at night.

Clever Capture of Paris Thief.

Paris, May 3.—The police believe they have arrested the chief of the "Collectors' band of burglars, who are so called because they only take the choicest articles, which they sell in London.

Scotland Yard informed Paris that the head thief was probably Rodais, who frequented a certain cafe. The French police watched the place, and after Rodais had taken a drink the wine glass was seized. A comparison with the finger prints showed they were identical with those which had been found where burglaries had been committed.

Rodais was arrested, and has confessed. He says he worked alone, although the police believe that he acted only for people who knew the value of the objects to be stolen.

At the City Hall.

The weekly session of the Municipal Council took place yesterday afternoon.

Councillor Martin spoke of street cleaning work being charged to road grant and thought such work should come under the sanitary work which was ordered.

Councillor Mullaly objected to money spent on Victoria Park. Councillor Martin represented the Park Committee. The Mayor said Councillor Martin acted perfectly right, and Councillor Mullaly replied he never heard of one man comprising a committee; the vacancy of a deceased Councillor not being filled.

The Colonial Secretary acknowledged receipt of Council's letter re C. C. C. grant for land on Parade Grounds. The matter will be brought before the Executive Government.

The Government will pay expenses of 400 feet of fencing on Allandale Road to complete the fencing of Parade Grounds.

J. J. Pike asked for water connection to St. Mary's Rectory, Southside. Granted.

A letter from P. J. Grace, Secretary of the Baseball League, stated that the club was not prepared to shoulder any financial obligations unless they got the exclusive right of the site given them on the Parade Grounds. The matter was left over.

R. J. Green complained of the unsanitary condition of affairs on Pennywell Road; also to the unsatisfactory lighting of same. Will be attended to.

Councillor Coaker asked that "clean up" day be fixed for Tuesday, May 13.

J. Ledingham, Secretary of St. Andrew's Church, complained of bad wall near that place. Engineer will visit it and report.

W. N. Gray drew Council's attention to flooding of C. E. Cemetery caused by flooding of sewer. Referred to Engineer.

Applications received for the position of Caretaker of the Quidi Vidi Swimming Pool were filed.

Thomas Delahunty, Council employee, who was on the sick list, asked for remuneration while he was laid off.

Permission was given N. A. Outerbridge to build motor house; R. K. Holloway to repair house on Gower Street and W. Mackey to repair house on Barnes Road.

Plan of G. Thoren's house, South Side, was submitted and approved.

Councillor Ryan asked if any of the $90,000 overdue taxes were collected. The Mayor—Yes, about $14,000.

Councillor Martin asked that band concerts be given weekly in Victoria Park. Councillor Myrick asked for a similar request for Bannerman Park; also that a new fence be erected there. Here Councillor Mullaly interrupted. He objected to such requests as band concerts until the work of collecting the outstanding taxes was done. Some cross firing then ensued between Councillors Martin and Mullaly.

After this Councillors Mullaly and Myrick, the Office Committee, moved that a new system of office work be introduced so that any member of the Council wishing to obtain information off hand as to arrears, etc., could get it as well as details as to amounts collected daily, etc. This was approved by the Board and the work of arranging for the new system will commence immediately.

Were Well Fixed.

Yesterday evening, the police picked up two men who were intoxicated and who were well furnished with money. One, a city chap, had in his pockets $50, two valuable watches and a well filled valise, as he was leaving the city. The other who was a Harbor Gracian, had no less than $90 in his pockets when searched by the guard in the lockup. These men would have been a good "find" for some of the crooked ones around the city.

PEOPLE INTERFERED. — During the week a number of men who were cutting a right way from Come by Chance were forced to quit operations owing to the opposition of the people of that section. The men worked under the supervision of Mr. Leadwell, who could not induce the people to allow them to proceed with their task.

Building Futures

During the growing period young people must have food containing the right kind of nourishment, not only to repair the everyday wear and tear of play and study, but for building the growing body into sturdy manhood and comely womanhood.

This means double duty, and mothers must pay heed to the children's diet.

A regular morning dish of

helps wonderfully in developing youthful strength of mind and muscle because this food contains the true brain and body making essentials required by Nature.

Grape-Nuts food—made from choice wheat and malted barley—is rich in the vital grain phosphates, especially required for nourishing the child's rapidly developing brain and nerves.

The crisp golden granules have a delicate sweet taste and, being easily and quickly digested, are readily acceptable to the most sensitive stomach—making a most appetizing breakfast for both young and old.

RILLINGTON STATESMAN, Registered No. 1717.

Examined and warranted sound and free from all hereditary diseases and defects by Erwin Murray, M.R.C.V.S. to His Majesty the King, June 12th, 1912.

The Cleveland Bay, a hardy, powerful, yet fairly light and swift animal, originated through a blending of the powerful charger of the middle ages, with the more active Barb and Arabian. The Cleveland Bay has lots of quality and substance with well defined sinews, large, clean, flat bones of a density equalled only in the Arab and Thoroughbred. His long lineage gives him prepotence in impressing his splendid characteristics and soundness of constitution.

Rillington Statesman, registered in England, was bred among his native hills in the Cleveland Valley of Yorkshire. He is an excellent specimen; color, deep, rich bay, height 15½ hands, weight about 1400 pounds. His action is high, free and open, his stride long, temper perfect; he is in all respects a perfect general utility horse, a free cheerful roadster, sure-footed, fearless of all objects and with marvellous endurance. He needs only to be seen to be admired—used to be appreciated.

LONDON, Yesterday.
 King George and Queen Mary left London to-day to spend Whit Sunday with the troops at Aldershot. They made a trip from Buckingham Palace by an automobile and arrived at the Royal pavilion in the afternoon. They were met by General Sir Douglas Haig and his staff at Aldershot. The entire population by the Hampshire military depot, turned out to welcome them. Extraordinary precautions were taken to prevent any annoyance to them by suffragettes during the trip. The visit will be informal, as the King wishes the soldiers to carry out the ordinary manoeuvres, and has no intention of hindering it by calling for a full dress parade. General Haig has arranged an imposing series of field operations and the troops are in for a busy four days. Queen Mary will witness the drill from an auto, but the King will ride a horse, as he likes to go about among the troops inspecting various positions, watching storming parties and criticising cavalry charges.

LONDON, To-day.
 An official return for March shows 31,275 people left for places within and without the British Empire; 7,443 proceeding to the U.S. and 24,021 to Canada. For the last three months the immigration figures are as follows: Canada, 36,927; Australia, 17,899; States, 14,493.

SYDNEY, Yesterday.
 It is officially announced that the Dominion Coal Company has been awarded a contract for supplying bunker coal to all steamers in the Government service for the present year. This contract was held last year by the N. S. Steel and Coal Co.

VANCOUVER, Yesterday.
 Hemmed in by flames which started from some unknown cause, six members of the crew of the steamer Ophir, which sailed from Vancouver last night, and later was tied up at Brunswick Cannery, Canal Pass, were burned to death in a fire, which totally destroyed the vessel. The steamer was of wooden construction and owned by the Lincoln Steamship Co., of Vancouver.

Clean-Up Day.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I think the Council deserves great praise for inventing a Clean-up Day. It is a thing greatly needed, and I hope all people, especially the laborers and mechanics will make it a success on Clean-up Day, as it is the time to clean up our back yards and other places after the winter.

Mr. Editor, if Mary and Jane would only help to clean up and put out all old garbage around, we would not have as many diseases going around. And when all is cleared out to give it a coat of lime-wash you could sit there all the evening, often with the baby in your arms and sewing in your hands, taking in the fresh air.

Hoping that all who can will send a horse on that day, to help the sanitary men, as they will have all they can do. Six of us women are clubbing together to send a horse and cart.

Now boys and girls, get a hustle on for Clean-up Day is near.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, on giving me space in your valuable paper,

Yours,

MARY JANE.

Seven Canadians Chosen by the Geological Survey.

Ottawa, May 3.—Vilhjalm Stefansson, the discoverer of the blonde Eskimos, is here on his return from Europe putting final touches to his well-matured plans for his three years' expedition to the farthest north of Canada. He will direct two parties one to explore Beaufort Sea and the other Victoria Land. It is planned to sail in June.

In addition to a dozen English scientists who will be with the expedition, the following have been selected by the Geological Survey: George Malloch, geologist; J. J. O'Neill, geologist; Kenneth Chipman, topographer; J. R. Cox, topographer; Henri Beauchat, anthropologist; D. Jenness, anthropologist; R. M. Anderson, geologist.

Why They Wear Pigtails.

The London doctor who said that the practice of plaiting the hair adopted in girls' schools is a harmful one has been answered by Mr. Willie Clarkson, the well-known perukier. "A little harm to the hair may result where it is plaited very tightly," said he "but greater injury is caused when it is worn loose. The reason why girls are made to wear pigtails is that when the hair is loose it is liable to be caught in the clothing. The quantity of hair which is lost in that way is surprising."

WELLINGTON, N.Z., To-day.
 The British mail steamer, Indira Barah, from London, on February 12, for Auckland, was wrecked on the Manjato coast. No details were received here. The Indira Barah is 7,325 tons and a steel vessel, was built in 1910 and owned by the India Line.

MADRID, To-day.
 Queen Victoria took her children to a cinematograph exhibition of pictures taken during King Alfonso's visit to Paris. The young Prince and Princess rapidly recognized their father in the picture and applauded him loudly. This manifestation delighted the audience who roundly cheered the Royal party.

ROME, To-day.
 The Pope recovered sufficiently to perform part of routine duty yesterday and received in audience the entire Apostolic delegation which attended the recent Congress at Malta. His Holiness is slowly gaining strength. Physicians say if he obeys their orders he will be able to resume the daily routine.

OTTAWA, To-day.
 General Sir Hamilton will arrive in Canada during the first week of June on a trip of inspection of camps which he intends to make through the whole Dominion. Lord Brooks, who will command the Cavalry Brigade at Fetewa, will arrive about the same time and will be accompanied by Captain Howard W. Vyse, Royal Horse Guards and graduate of the Staff College of England. Captain Vyse was Brigade Major-General in the famous manoeuvres held in England last year.

NEW YORK, To-day.

William J. Bryan, speaking at a dinner given last night in honor of the foreign members of the International Peace Conference, that is arranging the celebration of the hundred years peace among the English speaking people declared the new peace plan offered by President Wilson to all nations is his latest and longest step toward peace. It contemplates time for investigation and deliberation, he said, and this makes the possibility of war remote. Bryan's subject was progress towards peace. He said the part of the States in the cause must of necessity be large because more than any other nations. Peace for all time between States and Britain was the key note. Other addresses of the evening were delivered by Lord Wear-dale, chairman of the English delegation, Sir Edmund Walker of Canada, Sir George Reid of Australia, Judge George Gray of Delaware. To-day they start for Boston.

What About Your Cough?

It is gradually growing from bad to worse? A person contracts a cold some way or other. Very often you do not know how you contracted it. The symptoms do not begin until 1 or 2 days after.

1st—It affects the head, causing a nasty, uncomfortable feeling for about 36 hours, leaving the head and affecting the throat and gradually settling on the chest, which 9 cases out of 10 is neglected. This is the time when the danger is at hand.

If there is nothing to relieve the spasms of coughing and to take effect on the bronchial organs of the throat and chest, the chances of the cough leaving the system of its own accord, is not very great.

As a rule in the night your cough is worse than any other time.

Phonone Cough Mixture quickly gets at the seat of all kinds of coughs and colds, and in a few hours great relief is obtained. If you mix equal parts of Staford's Liniment and Sweet Oil in a saucer, warm slightly and apply on a piece of thick flannel, placing same over chest and allowing it to remain three or four hours, this will also relieve you a great deal.

Hundreds of people have coughs and colds gradually growing from bad to worse just because they do not take the proper treatment. If you are one of these don't delay any longer.

Phonone Cough and Cold Cure is prepared only by DE F. STAFFORD & SONS, St. John's, Nfld. Price 25c. a bottle, postage 5c. extra. ap25,1f

MIGHT HAVE PERISHED.—Last evening, before dark, a telephone call from Mount Cashel brought Sergt. Mackey there with an officer. They found a resident of Torbay lying on the ground of the institution in a stupor from liquor, and drove him to the police station. It was fortunate that the man did not lay down elsewhere, or he must have been undiscovered and perished in the cold of last night.

Stonewall Jackson

BY H. L. RANN.

This is the 50th anniversary of the death of Stonewall Jackson, Confederate general. General Jackson was not named Stonewall by his parents, who preferred Thomas Jonathan, but by the entire Union army, after it had run up against Jackson in the performance of his duty. The only fact that Stonewall Jackson ever turned his back to were liquor, profanity, backbiting and other similar pursuits.

General Jackson was born in the mountains of Western Virginia when a mere child, and soon after was made an orphan without any action on his part. After attending country school and learning how to throw the damp paper with unerring accuracy, young Jackson worked his passage into West Point and took the full course, including the 32d degree in plain and fancy hazing. When the Mexican war broke out, Stonewall broke out with it and returned home with a collection of shoulder straps which caused him so much embarrassment that he had to cover it with a heavy undergrowth of whiskers.

At the opening of the Civil war Jackson offered his sword to his state, which commissioned him to attack, defeat, scatter, separate, segregate and decimate the Union army whenever he felt in the mood for doing so. As Jackson was in this mood about nine-months of the time, his methods of doing business became very annoying to the Union generals, who never were able to whip him with any success except in the press dispatches to the northern papers.

General Jackson had the disagreeable habit of running around the Union army in circles, and then penetrating a neat surprise by piercing it in the left flank with great vivacity. It was while engaged in one of these movements that Jackson encountered the fire of some of his own men and fell. His death stilled a valiant, chivalrous heart and deprived the Confederate army of its most successful general.

Footers' Meet.

The Collegian Football Club met last night and elected officers for the coming season, as follows:— Edward Barnes, Captain; C. Quick, Vice-Capt.; W. R. Smallwood, Sec.-Treas.; W. Pippy, League Delegate. The three former officers and Mr. T. Sparks comprise the Selecting Committee. The Collegians are now getting in trim and hope to give a good account of themselves in this year's league fixtures.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., April 4. Fillmore & Morris, Amherst, N.S.

Dear Sirs,—In reference to your inquiry as to the selling qualities of Mathieu's Syrup, we might say that it is of no use whatever for us to keep any other Cough Medicine in stock. When you first began to sell it here, the Druggists did not handle it, and now every Druggist in town has it, and we are sure they find a ready sale for it. Mathieu's Syrup is sold by at least 18 Dealers in Springhill.

A goodly supply of fresh salmon was in the market this morning, and sold for 12 and 15 cents per lb.

Our shoe factories are now rushing to fill spring orders, the operatives being forced to work overtime.

Farmers are now very busy preparing for their summer's work. The season is fully a month ahead of other years.

There will be a meeting of citizens at the Court House, to-night, to decide on some fitting way to receive His Excellency the Governor next Wednesday. Carbonar will also hold a meeting to-night for the same purpose. His Excellency will visit that town on Thursday next.

Many of the roads in town are now in a bad condition, requiring immediate attention. The boulders on Death Hill, referred to by us three weeks ago, are still there, no effort being made to remove them.

The s.s. Lloydsons, which arrived here on Monday morning, is discharging her cargo at Messrs. Murray & Crawford's. There are several young stowaways on board. The ship will finish this evening.

Mr. James W. Walsh, for the past 18 years on the Standard staff, has decided to try his luck in Canada, and leaves for Montreal in about two weeks. Mr. Walsh is a skilled job printer and has turned out some excellent work. We predict for him much success in the big Canadian capital.

Mrs. Alex. Butt and her four children, after spending the winter here with Mr. Butt's mother, left to-day for Sydney to join her husband who is working there.

It is so common to find fault with postal and in fact all Government officials, that perhaps a change will do no harm. The P.M.G. will be glad to hear that his postal arrangements are so complete that your correspondent posted a letter for Boston on Saturday, April 26th, and received a reply to it on Monday, May 5th—only nine days.

We regret to report the illness of Mr. John N. Ash, one of our best known citizens. Mr. Ash was stricken with what appeared to be a stroke of paralysis a week or so ago, and is still far from well, although slightly improved. We hope soon to be able to report the complete recovery of our old friend.

Tuesday last, the 6th inst., flags were flying in different parts of the town, it being the anniversary of the accession of King George V.

The schooner Ruby, Capt. M. Yetman, arrived from St. John's this a.m. with a load of provisions to R. D. McRae & Sons.

It is said the firm of R. D. McRae has just purchased the fine new three-masted schooner Hilda R., and will use her in the foreign trade.

Hr. Grace, May 8, '13.

Indifference.

Oh, well, I don't care if they fuss with the tariff and knock all the schedules sky high, fifty ways; I'll tend to my knitting and just keep on hitting my trusty old garden for what it can raise. That moldy old question won't spoil my digestion or cause me to lose half a minute of sleep; with pigs to be tended and sheds to be mended, oh, why should I worry or argue or weep? I see many neighbours neglecting their lbsours to prove that the tariff is noxious and rank; and while they are fussing and pawing and cussing I carry a package of bones to the bank. I see many a sleek, old grass-nourished relic, debating the duties on sheepskins and salt, and while they are spinning your uncle is wheeling a barrow of hoochie to put in the vault. I see many fellows exhausting their bellows, explaining free trade as a thing that is fine, and while they are yawning I keep on a-hopping and pickle the marks and the kroners in brine. Oh, cut out the fooling and mooning and drooling o'er tariffs and duties and schedules and such, and labor like thunder and sit down the plunder where months won't corrupt it, and soon you'll be rich.
