Love a Conqueror —OR— WEDDED AT LAST!

CHAPTER VI.

A week passed, and a second week was entered into, and Sir Hugh Glynn and Guy Stuart were still at Fairholme Court, and apparently so well satisfied with their quarters that they were in no haste to leave them. They had gladly accepted Sir Gilbert's cordial invitation to remain with them over the Christmas and New Year weeks, when several other guests were to assemble at the court. Oswald Fairholme had gone back to his regiment, grumbling not a little at his hard lot, and leaving many a parting injunction with his cousin that she was not to encourage Major Stuart if she saw that Sir Hugh was attainable; and Shirley had laughed and crimsoned, with a sudden conscious light flashing into her eyes, which were half glad and half sorry just then—sorry because Oswald was going, yet glad with a gladness new and strange to her, poor child, the source of which she did not try to discover.

Life was very pleasant at Fairholme Court just then, and even a letter from Jack, saying that he could not get the week's holiday he wished for, hardly marred Shirley's pleasure for longer than a few minutes. Never had the Court seemed such a kindly, friendly place to her as it did now. Lady Fairholme, pleased at the impression that her daughter had made upon Sir Hugh, was gracious and kindly to her husband's niece, and Alice was too much occupied by her endeavors to make a conquest of Sir Hugh Glynn to take much heed of Shirley during those short December days.

Thus Shirley was left free to follow her own devices; and the use she made of her leisure was—to fall in love. Poor lonely Shirley! Not that she had any idea that it was so with her. She only knew that the world seemed to have grown far more beautiful these days than it had ever seemed before. Her life had become suddenly filled with a great golden light which touched and glorified everything. She did not know whence or how it came, she did not know what she felt or what had come to her. She knew dimly that she was not the same Shirley, and that she could never be the same again; strange new thoughts came to her wishes and aspirations and longings. She felt sometimes that her eyes filled with tears, which were not tears of sorrow, and that there was a strange stir, half pain, half pleasure at her heart which she could not analyze.

If the girl had a mother or sister or any woman who cared for her, then she might have guessed who had befallen Shirley. Never in all her life which was past and never in all her life to come had she been so loved as she was so loved as she was during those brief winter days. There was a bright shy light in her hazel eyes, a sweet soft color flickering in the creamy pallor of her cheeks; step in the corridors would make her start and tremble, a deep rich voice would make her eyes droop and her lips quiver.

She was glad and sorry, happy and miserable at once, Shirley's capacities for happiness were great, and her capacities for misery were equal large. The earth seemed a paradise of sunshine and music and joy; the roses of her life were all in blossom, strong and fragrant as sweet; and they reached their fullest bloom one fine day before Christmas when Guy Stuart came into the parlour where she was sitting alone and told her that he loved her and asked her to be his wife. Shirley trembled and started, but, oh, so happy!—put both her hands into his without a word, as she had done on that afternoon when they had met again. But this time the little hands were not empty; they were full of the riches of a great, deep, passionate, enduring love; and, with a tender "My darling!" Guy took her to his heart.

They were still standing together before the fire when Alice and Sir Hugh and the other visitors at the Court came in from a walk through the grounds. It was a clear, fine, but frosty winter day, and the girls were wrapped in furs and sealskins, and Sir Hugh wore a great-coat trimmed with the darkest of fables, in which he looked very handsome and foreign and distinguished. They came in laughing and chatting merrily, bringing with them, as it were, a breath of fresh cold air from the outside world; and Shirley started and blushed and moved away from Guy's side as they entered, and only Sir Hugh saw the start and the pretty color which rose in the fair girl's face.

"So you have returned," she said rather nervously, as she left the fire-side. "Was it pleasant out?"

"Very pleasant, but very cold," answered Ruby Capel, a bewitching little brunette, with whom poor Oswald was very much in love, but who, during his absence, was carrying on a desperate flirtation with young Algernon Rivers, an eligible from Dumfries. "You should have come, Shirley, although I dare say you and Major Stuart found it very comfortable by the fire-side."

She spoke lightly, and without any special meaning; but the color deepened in Shirley's face, and a slight smile stole up under Guy Stuart's heavy dark mustache as he glanced toward Shirley, whose shy eyes did not meet his.

"I suppose you would like some tea?" Shirley asked.

"Happy thought!" said Alice, who was allowing Sir Hugh to assist her to remove her long sealskin coat. "Ring and order it, Shirley."

Shirley was about to obey, when Guy forestalled her; and as she lifted her eyes shyly to his, he looked down at her and smiled.

"We shall have skating to-morrow," said Ruby Capel, unfastening her fur cape and tossing it aside. "Are your skates in order, mesdames? It is freezing hard, is it not, Mr. Rivers?" "It must be if you say so," answered Mr. Rivers, gallantly; "but it did not seem to me so very cold after all."

"I don't think it is freezing hard, Ruby," said Miss Fairholme, who had been watching her cousin a little curiously since her entrance. "Shirley, how you burnt your face over the fire!"

With a pretty little conscious gesture, Shirley put up both her hands to her hot cheeks, and Ruby Capel laughed.

"It is a very pretty rouge," she said lightly, "and very becoming. I should advise you to try it every time that you are going out, Shirley, and I wish you would give me your recipe."

"Is it not the fire?" asked Alice with affected surprise. "Shirley is always so pale that—Ah, here is the tea! I am so glad! Shirley, will you pour it out? I am so tired!"

She sank into a low chair, in an attitude of fatigue and exhaustion, giving Sir Hugh a coquetish glance from her blue eyes, which noticed that he was rather paler than his wont, and that there was an expression of unrest upon his face almost something almost like pain in his blue eyes.

"Are you tired also, Sir Hugh?" Alice inquired languidly.

But he did not answer—indeed he did not hear her question. He was wondering what was the meaning of those red cheeks of Shirley's and that new light, luminous and glad, which shone in Guy Stuart's gray eyes.

As she noticed his abstraction, Alice Fairholme's face darkened slightly and a gleam of annoyance and displeasure flashed into her blue eyes; she only nestled her pretty face against the cushions of her chair with a tired, weary grace.

"You ought to have been with us, Shirley," she said. "You would have one into raptures over the rim which was on the skeleton trees; I sparkled like myriads of diamonds in the sunshine—did it not, Sir Hugh?"

Sir Hugh acquiesced absently. He seemed to be more occupied with watching Shirley Ross as she stooped before the tea-equipage than Alice approved of. The handsome blue eyes were fixed upon her cousin with an intent, earnest scrutiny which had dispersed all their sleepiness, and he, hand, unconsciously even to himself was clinched as it rested upon the table.

"I really think we shall have some skating soon," said Miss Capel gayly.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain large quantities of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money can buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Takes a teaspoonful every one, two, or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been limited, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe. If the genuine Pinex is used, your doctor has Pinex, or will get it for you, if you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. "I indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment."

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 60 cents a box at dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

ly, "I have not skated for a long time. These mild winters of ours quite prevent us from ever excelling in the accomplishment. Just as one has mastered the outside edge, the thaw sets in and puts a stop to everything!"

"Yes, it is very provoking," agreed Rhoda Montolieu, a pretty gray-eyed girl, a school-friend of Miss Fairholme's, and an heiress; "we never do get any skating. Shall we petition the clerk of the weather, Mr. Rivers, to be eloquent enough to give us a hard frost?"

"Perhaps he might, if you were the petitioner, Miss Montolieu," Algernon Rivers answered, bringing her some tea, and lowering his voice perceptibly. "I know that if I were, clerk of the weather I could refuse you nothing."

Rhoda Montolieu laughed lightly. "Then I wish you would become so," she said merrily. "No bread and butter, thank you—a macaroon please."

"Do you skate, Miss Ross?" Sir Hugh asked abruptly, as he went over to the table to fetch Alice's tea; and Shirley started a little, and looked up at him in a bewildered manner, as if she had not the least idea what he meant.

"I beg your pardon," she said nervously. "I did not hear, Sir Hugh." "Why, coz, your wits seem wool-gathering!" Alice, cried laughingly from the depths of her great armchair. "Sir Hugh is asking you if you skate, and you look as startled as if he had made some alarming proposition. Where are you, Shirley?"

"Not here," Sir Hugh remarked coldly, as he brought Miss Fairholme her tea and drew up a low chair to her side. "Miss Ross's thoughts are evidently far away."

"And Major Stuart looks equally distraught," said Alice softly. "I am afraid they have grown sleepy over the fire. But it is a curious coincidence, is it not, that they should both have wandered away together? You look tired, Sir Hugh," she added gently. "Won't you have some tea? It will refresh you. I forgot when we were out that you had ridden over to Maxwell this morning."

"I am not tired, thanks. No, Miss Fairholme, I don't care for tea, you know."

"But we will convert you. I am quite an old woman in my affection for it, and, judging by Major Stuart's performance at present, he seems to share my predilection."

Sir Hugh looked across at the group round the tea-tray, and his brow darkened. Algernon Rivers seemed to be dividing his attentions pretty equally between the two girls; but Major Stuart was standing at Shirley's elbow, cup in hand, while Miss Ross, her face slightly turned toward him over her shoulder, was pouring in some cream with due deliberation. They were both smiling, and Shirley's hazel eyes were down-cast. As Hugh Glynn watched them, a passion of hatred and resentment rose in his heart, and almost to his lips.

"I had no idea Miss Ross had such a capacity for flirtation," he said coldly. "I fancied she was rather an ingenué."

LONDON, Dec. 10.
John Redmond has rejected the offer of a national testimonial which admirers of his long fight for Home Rule were about organizing. The movement took form at a meeting in Rathdrum near Dublin, on Sunday last, when it was proposed to recognize his valuable services to the cause by presenting him with the title deeds to a house and land near Dublin. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, who warmly supported the plan, received a telegram yesterday from Mr. Redmond, which said: "While extremely grateful for suggestion, I most strongly protest against project. Absolutely insist no meeting be held or any steps whatever taken in matter."

MEXICO, Dec. 10.
Preparations were begun among the rebel ranks yesterday for some military movement which is thought to be directed against Ojinaga, where the federal army has taken refuge. The federal strength in or near Ojinaga, now the only federal stronghold north of Monterey, is 7,000, a large number of whom would necessarily be left for garrison duty at Chihuahua, and along the railroad between these cities. The proximity of so large a force of federals is said to have given Villa much concern. He believes that the federals, after escorting all civilians to the border will retreat to the South. General Villa has taken the position that should they not do this they will continue to be a menace to the rebels north. His purpose is to dislodge them should they attempt their flight if they intend to continue southward.

The Poor.

Until the holidays are over, of people who have plentiful store, the poets all will sing, forgetful of the downcast soul who does not own a finger bowl or silver napkin.
The holidays are speeding by, and Christmas trees and gifts; the season's stock of songs and jokes would make you think there are no folks beside the idle rich. But in a million humble homes poor father through the cupboard combs for something fit to eat; no banquets are for him designed; he's mighty thankful should he find a carrot or a beet. He labored hard, the long, long year, and spent his lowly wage for beer, and gin, and brandy smash; and now, while others eat their fowls, he listens to his children's howls, and cannot give them hash. While beer of commerce blithely foams, the holidays in countless homes, will be a dismal ruck; and wives will fill the air with sighs, and wipe their worn and weary eyes, and children cry for cake. The kegs and jugs the poor have drained since last the festive season reigned, would buy ten million pies, and all the turkeys in the land, and all the good things ever canned, which fact no man denies.

New Theatre Opens

Known as the "Crescent Picture Palace"—Building has Magnificent Interior.

The ushering in of the approaching New Year will see the introduction in our midst of a new moving picture show, which will, no doubt, be gladly welcomed by our St. John's theatre-goers, particularly during the present winter season.

The new theatre has been under construction for a considerable time past and is now practically finished. It will be known as the Crescent Picture Palace and will make its debut to the public on Monday next, the 15th inst. No expense has been spared and no trouble saved by the owner Mr. P. Lacey, in the undertaking. The new structure fronts on Water Street, opposite the General Post Office, and extends several hundred feet towards the waterfront. The interior is splendidly designed, presents a strikingly attractive appearance, can accommodate not less than 600 people comfortably and is well heated and lighted. The arrangements for patrons to enter and exit are excellent. To summarize, the whole is splendid in every particular and the building for the purpose it is intended stands second to none in the country. The work of erection was done under the supervision of Mr. J. Pigeon, and the workmanship is very creditable. management, as already mentioned, are sparing no expense to

Going back For Gold

Col. MacGregor Will Look Up Long Neglected Field.
About thirty-five years ago a party of prospectors, while exploring the north-western slope of the Rocky Mountains in British Columbia, came upon promising indications in a secluded valley, hidden in the depths of what was then the great wilderness beyond the divide. They had panned out gold along the Cariboo, and from there had pushed on in the hope of finding new fields. They were interested for a time in a gravel bank on a tributary of the Omineca River, where one hundred dollars a day were secured for every man working on the bank.

Pushing on, the party came to the valley in which they found most promising indications; but the season was far advanced, the supplies were running short, and the party was obliged to leave the valley before thoroughly testing its worth. Returning to camp, the men separated; and of that party, only one member is alive to-day—Colonel Donald MacGregor, of Williamstown, Gleggarry, Ont. He knows the location of the valley where gold was found, but which was left unexplored, and he has now under consideration an expedition to the distant place among the western slopes of the Rockies.

Col. MacGregor was in British Columbia in the early days when gold mining outranked all other occupations, and later, when the wealth of the forests began to be turned to account. Much later, and when the Klondike was the latest El Dorado, he spent ten years in the Yukon, principally, at Dawson City, where he was chairman of the celebrated Citizens' Committee that brought about reform in the government of the famous mining camp. He now thinks of making one more trip to the West, revisiting the valley found many years ago, and robbing it of the secret of its hidden wealth.

Armored Biplane Has Been Secured FOR FRENCH ARMY.
Paris, December 5.—A powerful new armored biplane, backed by August Belmont, is a feature of the Paris aeroplane "Salon." President Poincare opens to-day.

The Belmont machine bears the name of Paul Schmitt, the inventor, who has been building it in secret during the last three years. Schmitt claims the biplane is capable of attaining the greatest degree of automatic stability now possible. The two forward planes are moveable, and while the pilot manipulates them to rise or descend, he does not disturb the aeroplane's horizontal balance. He can also land at a very low speed. The biplane has been sold to the French army.

London, December 5.—Further distressing incidents on the Volturno were described yesterday at the session of the Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the liner, Trimmer. Michael Reedy said, that when he reached the deck after the alarm, he saw a big man standing with two women. Suddenly the man threw one of the women overboard, then the other, and followed himself. None of them wore life belts. The cook of the Volturno said a number of persons were on the boat deck, which was without rails, and thus were unprotected after the boats were launched. When the vessel rolled, several fell overboard, clutching others, whom they dragged down with them. Given for Christmas—cherished for life. Essentials and Non-Essentials.

By RUTH CAMERON.

How much unhappiness, how vast a waste of energy, what a needless friction is caused by the average human being's failure to separate essentials from non-essentials!

According to the opinion of a prominent doctor, every human being has a certain definite amount of energy. As he draws upon it, rest and the recuperative powers of nature fill up the depleted reservoirs; but at the best there is never any too much for the demands of our strenuous modern life, and whenever we use energy in an unnecessary or futile way we take away from our supply of energy to deal with essentials.

The nagging woman is an excellent example of energy wasted through failure to distinguish between essentials and non-essentials.

Her husband has certain habits which disturb her. He smokes to such a degree as to injure his health; he frequently forgets to post her letters; he spends more money than she thinks necessary on magazines. Now the first of these habits is a serious thing, something that ought to be stopped, while the other two are mere annoyances. If she distinguishes between them, separated essentials from non-essentials, concentrated her power of protest upon that harmful habit and made up her mind to say nothing about the less essential things, she might make some impression upon her husband. But she doesn't. Instead she nags him fretfully about one thing after another, diffusing her power of protest over essentials and non-essentials, tiring herself, irritating him, arousing friction, and accomplishing nothing!

A friend of mine is fairly wearing herself out in the effort to exact obedience from her two small children. Another friend who has three little ones seems to manage them quite well without any undue use of energy. And the difference is this. The first woman is constantly saying, "Do this," or "Don't do that," to her babies, and then exhausting herself in trying to enforce obedience to all these commands—many of which are in regard to quite unessential matters. The second mother never gives a command unless it is in regard to something distinctly important. In that case, she always enforces it, but in all unessential matters she lets her children alone. And because she is capable of distinguishing between essentials and non-essentials and acting accordingly, she can manage three babies with far less outlay of energy than the other woman requires for two.

Again, a great many women wear themselves out before their time, and some, I doubt not, even lay down their lives, because they cannot distinguish between the essentials and non-essentials in housekeeping.

And I think one big reason why many people fail of happiness in life is simply because they were not intelligent enough to distinguish between what was essential and what was non-essential before they set forth on their quest of success and happiness.

As the reaper winnows the wheat from the chaff, so the wise man soon learns to winnow the essential from the non-essential in every relation of life.

The Poison Needle Mystery.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 6.—Federal as well as state authorities are likely to take a hand in the investigation of the poisoned needle mystery growing out of the experience of Mrs. Marjorie Graff, in a moving picture theatre two days ago.

So far the only arrest is that of the young South American, Armand Megaro, who is held in $20,000 bail, on an assault charge made by Mrs. Graff, after a man seated near her in a box, jabbed a needle into her arm and she was seized with drowsiness.

The cases of five young women reported to have been victims of an experience similar to those of Mrs. Graff are being investigated by the police of this city, however, and the attention of the federal authorities has been brought to the Graff case, in connection with their inquiry into several white slave cases.

United States assistant district attorney Chas. F. Lynch, said to-day that the government authorities would act if it was shown that a "needle gang" was operating between this state and New York.

Sociological workers here and in New York city have laid emphasis on the Graff case in their public warnings regarding methods of white slavery in procuring girls. They pointed out that hypodermic needles may be bought for 50 cts each, and that degenerates have no trouble in purchasing drugs also.

The police here are at present withholding the names of all the reported victims except Miss Keannie Clark 19 years, who said to-day she had been attacked in the way Mrs. Graff was. Miss Clark could not identify Megaro as her assailant.

Girls of Sixteen Sold to White Slavers

IN MONTREAL CITY.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—A regular systematized trade in young girls exists in Montreal, conducted by men who appear to succeed without difficulty in evading the police.

Girls, many of whom under sixteen years of age, are battered for and sold daily in the Red Light district and the law appears helpless to put a stop to the traffic.

This was revealed by investigation carried on by a number of citizens who are interested in the crusade to drive from the city the men who prey upon the young and innocent girls. The system has agents who regularly visit the keepers of resorts and offer citizens to procure girls for them for a price. Thousands of girls are sold in this way in Montreal every year; thousands of others, chiefly French-Canadian girls, are sent from this city to various places in the United States under conditions which practically amount to slavery.

Mustang Killed Riding Master.

New York, Dec. 6.—Smilingly declaring that he could master a vicious mustang that had successfully resisted every attempt to subdue it in the several months it had been in the stables of an up-town riding academy, Ernest Furst, the chief riding master, entered the untamed horse's stall last night. He stroked the beast's side and it remained quiet for a second, then, as he turned to the admiring crowd of visitors and assured them that he had no fear of the result, the mustang whirled and kicked straight at the chest of the riding master. His body crushed through the side of the stall from the impact of the horse's hoofs, and he fell dying at the feet of the on-lookers. Furst was dead before an ambulance surgeon who was summoned could reach the stable.

Roofing As Attractive in Price —As in Color

You'll admit this roof looks attractive—in distinctive colors of red or green. But for most home builders its chief attraction lies in its remarkable economies. Let's begin with its first cost. NEPONSET Prostate Roofing costs less to buy than good shingles. Greatly reduces the cost of repairs. No shingles to split, crack or "curl up." Remember, the shingles of today aren't the shingles of 20 years ago. NEPONSET Prostate Roofing makes a water-tight blanket. And best of all, resists fire—is "spark-proof." Its protection from fire-hazard alone is worth all its cost. Its first cost is its only cost. Can you afford NOT to have NEPONSET Prostate Roofing on your roof?

Job Printing Executed.

Mrs. O'Brien Delivered Letter Promptly.

On Monday we published a letter from the Postmistress at Bay Bulls disproving the charge that she had not delivered a letter in reasonable time. This charge was made in a communication we published on Wednesday of last week. This morning we received a visit from the Postmistress, Mrs. Emily O'Brien, who brought along the letter complained of, which by its own evidence showed that the complaint against Mrs. O'Brien was absolutely unfounded, and that the fault lay with the writer who had addressed the letter wrongly. This letter Mrs. O'Brien obtained from the person for whom it was evidently intended. The letter was addressed Patrick K. Williams, Caplin Bay, N. Side. The envelope bore the St. John's postmark dated Oct. 6th, and the Caplin Bay stamp Oct. 10th. The delay was due to the fact that there was no person bearing such a name and address at Caplin Bay, and eventually the letter was re-addressed in pencil Bay Bulls, where there are several Patrick Williams's, and the envelope carries the Bay Bulls stamp Nov. 5th. Mrs. O'Brien tells us it was late at night on Nov. 5th when she received the letter. It is clear then almost a month had passed since the posting of the letter in St. John's before Mrs. O'Brien received the letter. There was no delay on her part. There was no Patrick K. Williams at Bay Bulls. But she tried a Patrick Williams, who opened it and found the letter was not intended for him. Then she tried Patrick V. Williams, who apparently was the person for whom the letter was intended. She acted with promptness and she naturally enough feels aggrieved that she should be charged with delaying the delivery of a letter, when the delay was caused by others and not by her, and when the main fault lay in the person who had addressed the letter. We regret that the complaint should have been given publicity in The Evening Telegram.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Messrs. R. D. McRae & Sons scilicet. Hilda B. Capt. W. Yegman, reached port last night.

Mr. James Kennedy, formerly of this town, but who left here about 20 years ago, is now in town on a visit to his friends.

Mr. Thomas Carroll, the handcuff king, as he is called, gave a very clever exhibition at St. Paul's Hall last night. Quite a large audience was present and enjoyed the treat, being none the less interesting because the performer is one of our own boys, a native of Bristol's Hope, and not a foreigner. We congratulate Mr. Carroll on his work. We hear he is going to visit Hearst's Content, Carbonear and other outlying towns.

The Pheasant Company are still giving the public the benefit of cheap, but excellent entertainments. They have just installed a new machine and are as usual pleasing their patrons.

Mrs. Samuel Taylor left for St. John's yesterday to enter the General Hospital there for treatment. She was accompanied by her son Francis.

At the regular meeting of the Masonic Brethren here, Mr. Thomas Ford was elected W.M. and Mr. Jas. Cron re-elected Treasurer.

Business is rushing at the Harbor Grace Shoe & Shoe Factory, so much so that the hands are putting in night work to keep up with the orders that are pouring in. We were shown yesterday a pair of boots turned out at this factory 18 months ago, and although the owner had nothing else to wear, still there is not a feather out of them yet. Manager Jones will be interested to know this.

Panama Canal.

By GEORGE FITCH,
 Author of "At Good Old Sivasah."

The Panama canal, which will soon be open for business at the old stand, is a fifty-nine-mile-long gash in the face of Nature, which would be visible from the moon with the aid of the Yerkes telescope. It is the largest alteration and improvement on the planet which has been accomplished by man up to date and has been done in the past ten years by 100,000 workmen, a few sets of high powered brains and a shipload of mosquito netting.

For many hundred years men have wanted to dig the Panama canal, and several very costly attempts have been made. But while plenty of help could be secured and boatloads of money was available, the exact model of brain required could not be found and no attention was paid to mosquito netting. As a result, while the Panama district became one of the most flourishing cemeteries in the world it has never been navigable to any extent. This is a scientific age, and nothing proves it more extensively than the fact that when the United States engineers tackled the job of moving several hundred million tons of earth and rock they began by chasing a mosquito into a corner and killing him with a kerosene can. As a result Panama, which was once a tripe more fatal than the chloride of mercury tablets, is now one of our leading winter resorts and the workman who tires of life and wishes to fade away as former workmen once did by thousands has to hire a personal friend to kill him with a club.

The Panama canal unites the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and severs the neighbourly feeling between England and America. By means of the canal 30,000 ton ships will be hoisted daffily over the mangled back bone of the continent and dumped safely into deep water on the other side. It has cost upwards of $500,000,000, and no one has gotten rich off it. Thus, without going into tedious dimensional details we can say with confidence that

It is the eighth wonder of the world and the first wonder of American politics. In order to dig the Panama canal the government had to cut a mountain in two, build a large navigable lake, pull a river up by the roots, build locks big enough to hold an exposition building, change a climate, establish a revolutionless Central American Republic and keep several thousand politicians at bay. All this was successfully accomplished under Col. Goethals, the world's greatest locksmith and geographical surgeon — which leads us to hope that the government will now have the courage to tackle the Mississippi river and make it behave.
 Why pay $100.00 for a season's gasoline when $20 worth of kerosene will run a FRASER engine the entire summer and give more power, mileage, and satisfaction than gasoline.—dec10,13

There are records kept in your business which are seldom referred to, but when reference to them is desired, can you locate them instantly?

"Office Specialty" Filing Systems do more than provide a place to file papers. The method of filing the papers under proper indexes makes the finding of any letter, on any subject or from any firm, as easy as the filing. You don't have to tumble all the letters out of the file to find any particular one. There is only one place for each letter, and every letter is in its place. Card Records, Cheques, Stock Records, Correspondence, are all found instantly when wanted.

Here is a very convenient stack of Sectional, Quarter-Cut Oak, Filing Cabinets, 2 vertical drawers for Letters, 5 drawers for 3 x 5 inch Card Records, 3 Shannon drawers for Receipts, Invoices and Bills, 4 drawers for 6 x 4 inch Card Records, 3 Stationery drawers, which together with the top and base make a very useful stack for any business office.

THE EASTERN TRUST COMPANY.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer Trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does no other. But no kind of trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer efficiently.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It depends for its prosperity upon the efficiency of its management of its clients' business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this field is becoming rapidly more availed of.

For instance.—In St. John, New Brunswick, where it has quite lately established a branch, the estate of James Ready, of Fairville, which has been sworn to under $651,200.00, is being administered by The Eastern Trust Company as one of the joint executors of Mr. Ready's will.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has just been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which its value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

The Eastern Trust Company can execute this function of executor or administrator as efficiently in Newfoundland as it can in Nova Scotia, Quebec, or New Brunswick.

The Eastern Trust Company requires commodious offices on Water Street. Apply to WINNIPEG, To-day.

John Krafchenko, charged with robbing the Bank of Montreal at Elmwood, Manitoba, on Wednesday last and murdering the bank manager Arnold, was captured yesterday. The arrest was effected without a struggle, the much wanted man saying "It's all up, guess I will come quietly. I did not intend to shoot anyway." The prisoner made the statement in the police station, regarding the crime with which he is charged. The police have recovered one thousand five hundred dollars stolen money.

LONDON, To-day.
No request for strengthening the British naval forces in Mexican waters has been made so far as is known here, where it is considered the two vessels already there are quite sufficient for all purposes. It is stated if the cruisers Lancaster and Hermione have been ordered to proceed to the Mexican coast, it is a local matter which has been decided by Rear Admiral Cradock, commander of the squadron. It is thought possible he desires to give the crews of the Berwick and Suffolk a period of leave in which case the Lancaster and Hermione would relieve them.

For Hospital.

Two patients, Lorenzo Collins, of Indian Islands, Fogo District, and Andrew Jeans, of Pool's Island, arrived by the Sagona this morning for the hospital. All the available cots are now filled, and they were taken to boarding houses to await admission to the institution. P. W. Ryan, of Grand Falls; Michael Stone, Bay Bulls; and John Hewitt, of Torbay, entered the institution to-day. The latter is suffering from a cancerous growth in the lip.

According to the Times, the yacht Siamrock 4, Lipton's challenger for America's cup, will probably be launched in April and be ready for sailing trials in May. The yacht will be as extreme a type of boat as the rules will permit with a tremendously long hang and an abnormal sail spread.

SAN FRANCISCO, To-day.
Dismasted and deserted, the British steamship Dalgoun was sighted Oct. 28th, 1,200 miles west off coast of Chili by the French barque Maria which arrived from Liverpool. The Dalgoun was a steel ship built at Southampton, England, and probably carried thirty men. Two of her small boats were missing but others were still swinging from the davits. The cargo had shifted. She was lying almost on her beam ends. The papers are missing and the derelict appeared to have been caught in a hurricane which shifted her ballast.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.
Tentative efforts were inflated yesterday by the Conservative element in the Mexican Government to induce Huerta to ascertain if Carranza would be willing to cease fighting for the purpose of holding an election at which the Constitutional leader would be a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic, or would name his choice for office. It is assumed in political circles here that Carranza would have his opposition in the Presidential race a candidate from the capital named by the Catholic and other political parties.

Lassoing Alligators.

Shooting alligators is tame sport compared with the methods adopted by Mr. Lee and his two sons, who have an alligator business in Proserpine, North Queensland. If you fancy an alligator as a pet, all you have to do is to order one from Mr. Lee, who will deliver you one of whatever age or size you wish. With lasso and dogs he captures them alive, but it is a perilous and exciting business. There is no dish an alligator likes so much as a nice dog, and, knowing the reptile's weakness in this respect, Mr. Lee baits his trap with a yelping canine, who, however, suffers no injury. On the sloping bank of a creek infested with alligators Mr. Lee constructs a trap, consisting of a barrier composed of sticks and brushwood, with a small hole like the entrance to a kennel. Behind the barrier he places a dog as bait, and the barking of the animal soon attracts the attention of one of the reptiles. As it scrambles towards the barrier for the purpose, flies out and attacks the reptile, while Mr. Lee huris a lasso over the alligator's head ere it has time to retreat.

Whipping the other end round a tree and securing it, Mr. Lee, armed with a forked stick attached to a rope with a running noose, tries to thrust it into the alligator's mouth. Every moment there is the danger of being seriously injured, if not killed, by a sweep of the powerful tail, or crushed in the reptile's jaws. Sometimes the struggle continues over an hour, but once the stick is thrust into the mouth of the exhausted alligator the rest is comparatively easy. The jaws and tail are rapidly trussed up with the rope and the monster lies helpless.

To Mr. Lee belongs the credit of having caught alive in this fashion the largest alligator in Australia. The capture was made when executing an order for a live alligator for a firm in Melbourne. Though the tip of the tail was missing, the reptile still showed a length of 17 feet 6 inches, and turped the scale at 2,800 pounds. Mr. Lee's experience in catching alligators recently led to a bet that he could not recapture one fifteen and a half feet long, which he had sold to the layer of the bet, in ten minutes. Mr. Lee accepted the challenge, the alligator was set free in a creek, and Mr. Lee, assisted by his sons, caught it within five minutes.

Mr. Martin's
Letter in Daily Telegraph.

This Letter Won the First Prize of $100.

Editor The Daily Telegraph.

Sir—Employment is a contract and though the written document which binds the employer to pay and the employee to do certain work may not contain the details which call for faithful service, there exists an unseen force which may compel or impel the parties to exceed the terms agreed upon. An employee who does his work in a perfunctory manner, merely as a machine, nothing more than is actually called for, is not faithful, and his employer who permits faithful service to go unrewarded, barely allowing the remuneration is set down in the contract, is not wise. Where "esprit de corps" is in evidence amongst employees, the principal may congratulate himself, but where it is absent, bad management is certainly on exhibition, and although the latter may not show any defect, the former is certainly travelling the "right road." Old fishing contracts contained a clause, which, I believe, exists to-day in every country at least, which binds the servant to work "for the good of the voyage and his master's interest." The relationship between master and servant depends to a large extent upon the "manner of man." What I should like for an employer is to render faithful service, making his interests mine and being zealous for his success as if he were a direct beneficiary; and having done so it is imperative upon my employer, if he has a discerning mind, to show some tangible recognition of such service beyond the cold terms of the contract.

MR. CLARKE'S LETTER.

Editor The Daily Telegraph.

Sir—I expect my employer to inspire me with the ability and capability as a master and leader. The relationship existing between a conductor and his band may be applied. The conductor runs the band; it is his business. He does not make the music; he creates it with his wand. My employer should create my work. He should do for me what every capable conductor does for each unit of his band. My employer should have me properly trained. He should point out all deficiencies and should know that I am playing my part satisfactorily. My employer should appreciate my work and push me ahead when I deserve it. Last, and all important, my employer should pay for my work. What can I do for my employer? Work for his is of most importance to him. The player can be as interested as the conductor in the success of the band. I can play hard and do my best. I can be as interested in his business as if it were my own. I can work hard and stick to his interests. I can say "He'll do it" and do much. I can do the thing when I know I ought to do it, whether I like it or not.

Notes From Heart's Content.

Opening of the New Church of England High School at Heart's Content.

On December 8th the new Church of England High School was formally opened. The occasion will long be remembered by the children, their parents and friends as one of the greatest events in the history of Heart's Content.

At 3 p.m. the ceremony began, there being present the Rev. Frank Smart (Rector), W. W. Blackall, Esq., B. A. (Supt. of Education), Rev. E. M. Bishop (Curate), Rev. Mr. Upward (Incumbent of New Harbor Mission), Messrs. Geo. E. Charlton, Geo. J. Young (representing the School Board), the teachers, children and many of their parents and friends.

The Rector after reading prayers asking God's blessing on the work to be carried on in the building, and rendering thanks for the successful accomplishment of the construction of the building, gave a very practical address suited to the occasion. He also read a list of the subscribers to the Building Fund, which showed that some forty-three persons had by straight giving contributed about $700. Substantial donations had also been received from the Women's Association, E. Company of C. L. B. Girls' Guild and Mrs. Tranfield's "At Home."

The teachers and children have in various ways, such as entertainments, garden parties, etc., raised about $300 which is being spent in equipping the school.

The Superintendent, Mr. Blackall, then followed in a very clever and instructive address on education, showing clearly the purpose of education, the influence of the home, the influence of a neat, clean, and well ordered school on a child. He showed by sound reasoning and illustration how it is possible for children to matter how poor to rise to high positions of trust and responsibility if properly educated in the home and school. After expressing himself to be well pleased with the new building and its adaptability for school purposes declared it open for work.

Rev. Mr. Upward who had taught school here about sixteen years ago compared conditions then with the present up-to-date building. He made some suggestions as to training of teachers, so as to fill their positions with more proficiency.

Mr. W. E. Bradbury (Principal) expressed his gratitude as a parent for the splendid school accommodation provided for the children and as a teacher for the advantage it would be performing his duties with greater ease and hope better results. He advocated the benefit of co-operation of parents and teachers in their common work of education.

The ceremony was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

The building is most substantially constructed and artistically finished inside. It consists of three classes rooms with ample space, attached lavatories, good cloak room space, and a room 30 feet x 10 feet to be used as a school museum and library.

That there would have been no such building in Heart's Content today but for the untiring efforts of our good Rector is a statement which fears no contradiction. For the religious, moral, and intellectual advancement of his people he saw the necessity for such a building. He has worked assiduously for its completion since it started in July almost daily superintending its construction, at other times soliciting funds to defray the expenses. He attends to-day a living monument to his zeal. A credit to him and to the people who gave of their money for this Educational advancement.

The Women's Association held their annual sale of work and Xmas Tree in St. Mary's Parish Hall, on December 3rd and 4th. The proceeds amounted to over $300. The ladies are well pleased with results.

The annual missionary services are being held this week. The deputation consists of Revs. Mr. Upward, from New Harbor, and W. W. Blackall, Esq., B.A., with the Rector and the Rev. E. M. Bishop, curate. After the opening of the new school they left here for Winterton a distance of six miles, in spite of the terrific storm of wind and rain.—Com.

Heart's Content, Dec. 8th, 1913.

Our stock this year is the largest and most varied we've ever had. Every available space in our store is occupied with pretty things most suitable for Xmas Gifts. Prices lower than ever. R. H. TRAPNELL.—dec8,tt

WINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISEMPER.

Pierre Loti's
Tale of Horror.

Pierre Loti writes in the Daily Telegraph a terrible story of the Bulgar atrocities at Adrianople. He claims that the facts are gleaned at first hand, and he gives a lurid account of his visit to Adrianople after it was captured by the Turks.

"I wish simply to tell in all simplicity what I have seen with my own eyes, seen in the desert which the Bulgarians have made of Thrace. Oh, how it surpasses in abomination everything that I had been told, and all that I imagined! With what fury have these Christian liberators worked in order to accomplish so much destruction in a few months."

"A desert," I said, and the most tragic of deserts, because one knows that the place was once a smiling province, and that the earth is full of freshly-killed peasants. Nothing more."

Here is one incident as the Bulgars escaped from Adrianople.

"The Bulgarians took the time to throw into the wells a few last prisoners of war. Then they fed in disorder. They returned to capture a young Turkish officer, Rechid Bey, son of the great Fuad, who approached close to their claws. They tore his two eyes from their orbits, cut off both his arms, and then disappeared. That was their last crime, at least for the time being."

Slaughter of Prisoners.

"Poor Adrianople, whom I have seen en fete, bedecked with flags and illuminated at evening in honour of Ramadan, possibly her last Ramadan! Behind this joy of the people in the streets there remained the recollection of the atrocities of the preceding night. In the Turkish quarters I was shown demolished mosques, and doors and windows that had been beaten in by the robbers or satyrs."

... it was the hour of evening prayer, and I went with the Vali and his suite to the marvellous mosque of Selim II., where already thousands of men were prostrating themselves," adds Pierre Loti. "And that evening the hodjas chanted as though in a delirium. Their beautiful clear voices seemed to soar towards the enormous dome, while the innumerable muffled and heavy voices of the kneeling faithful accompanied them like a subterranean rumbling. Never in any mosque have I heard such exaltation of prayer—prayer of action and of grace, and, at the same time, what supplication and terror!"

"In a few days, alas! the Europe brings the Bulgarians back here, what will become of all these imploring men; what will become of these beautiful mosques which the bell-voers fill with their ardent psalmody?"

Dewey's Own of Battle

No naval officer of any time... ever rewarded with more extensive praise than was Admiral Dewey after he sailed into Manila Harbor on May 1st, 1898, and sank the dozen old tubs that constituted the Pacific Ocean division of the Spanish fleet. He was hailed as the greatest naval commander of history by the flamboyant American press, and been trying ever since to live up to the foolish talk of his comparative New he has published his autobiography, and it reveals that himself was not as anxious for applause as his fellow-Americans to give it.

It was not until the third day of the battle that he despatched a message to Manila on May 11 that the good news home, nor until his return to Manila on May 11 that the victorious commander began to receive the plaudits of his countrymen for winning the battle that had fought May 1. He had prudently the cable to prevent the Spaniards from communicating with the "males," and incidentally isolated the squadron not only from "orders" from news. The officers and crew of the squadron were unaware of the naval battle had already been fought in Cuban waters. Although they were entirely confident of the victory, they could not help being afraid that the result of it might do in the public mind the lasting achievements of their own squadron in the Far East. "But had really been the first blow of war, it must be appreciated home."

Nine Hundred Dividend

Two million sterling is the estimated value of the fox farming industry of Canada—an industry which in years has increased in importance and wealth to such an extent that people to-day are as anxious to invest their money in fox farms as they were to speculate in rubber shares two or three years ago. And their eagerness to do so will be readily understood when mention is made of the extraordinary dividends which have been paid this year by the raising companies.

THE WORLD'S GREAT LOVE STORIES.

The Tragedy of George Eliot—The Story of Her Unconventional Marriage, and the Bitter Remorse that Followed.

The life of Mary Ann Evans, who, under the pen-name of George Eliot, became one of the most famous of the Victorian novelists, is a remarkable example of the old, old law that when a woman breaks the moral code of the society in which she lives she has to pay a heavy price, which is often that of a broken heart.

"As Ugly as a Monkey." Most of these friends of hers were to tell the truth, dry as dust types. They were men absorbed in abstract problems of philosophy, or engaged in criticizing the art and literature and religious opinions of the age.

Suddenly, however, there came into her life a man of emotional temperament and eccentric character, who desired to have her as his mate, and would not be denied. It was George Henry Lewes. He, too, was a philosopher. Most of us owe our knowledge of old philosophies to his fascinating masterpiece of biographical history.

strong in character, and she broke the moral code after deliberate thought and a careful decision. She stretched out her hands to George Lewes and said: "My dear, our love shall make our union more sacred than if it had been blessed by the Church and sanctioned by the law."

Love and Conscience. The truth is that George Henry Lewes was breaking down the woman's pedantry, in her heart finding a hiding-place in her heart and that his ardent, joyous, brilliant nature was like the sunshine of life to one who had been living in rather grey surroundings.

"Cascarets" Always Straighten You Up. If Costive, Headache, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean your Liver and Bowels.

Her Great False Step. "George," she said, to the whimsical little man who pleaded with her passionately, "I am ready to give my life into your keeping. Our love is greater and more holy than the conventional code."

Others should be guilty of transgressing the moral code in such a way. The censure of the world—that little world in which she had been revered—fell heavily upon the woman who had violated its social code.

others should be guilty of transgressing the moral code in such a way. The censure of the world—that little world in which she had been revered—fell heavily upon the woman who had violated its social code.

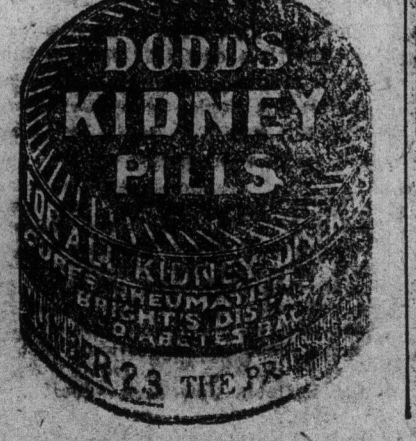

On the whole there is no doubt that this irregular union was productive of an intellectual happiness both to Lewes and to George Eliot. The man had an enthusiastic devotion to her, and it was owing to his recognition of her genius and to his intuition that George Eliot became a novelist and reached the heights of fame.

Her inscription on the title page of "Romola" sums up her gratitude to the man who watched over her and tended her with a noble fidelity:—"To the Husband whose perfect love has been the best source of her weight and strength, this manuscript is given by his devoted wife, the writer."

She sternly upheld the doctrine of obedience to the ordinary duties of life. The words which she put into the mouth of Savonarola came from her own heart.

Dewey's Own Story of Battle of Manila Bay.

No naval officer of any time was ever rewarded with more extravagant praise than was Admiral Dewey, after he sailed into Manila Harbor on May 1st, 1898, and sank the half dozen old tubs that constituted the Pacific Ocean division of the Spanish fleet. He was hailed as the greatest naval commander of history by the flamboyant American press, and has been trying ever since to live down the foolish talk of his compatriots. Now he has published his autobiography, and it reveals that the man himself was not as rapturous for applause as his fellow-Americans were to give it.

Nine Hundred Per Cent. Dividend—Fortunes in Fox Farming.

Two million sterling is the estimated value of the fox farming industry of Canada—an industry which of late years has increased in importance and wealth to such an extent that people to-day are as anxious to invest their money in fox farms as they were to speculate in rubber shares two or three years ago. And their eagerness to do so will be readily understood when mention is made of the extraordinary dividends which have been paid this year by fox-raising companies.

Recently an official Canadian report declared that the capital invested in the industry of raising black foxes for pelts during 1912 realized 300 per cent. As a matter of fact, the industry has lately developed into a gambling mania. There are great risks attached to fox farming, but the profits resulting from expert management of a good stock of foxes are such as to encourage the most timorous speculators to invest their money.

The boom really started about 25 years ago, when a couple of hunters on Prince Edward Island realized that the demand for fox fur was fast outgrowing the supply. They started experiments in breeding, and carried on their work very quietly for several years at a handsome profit. Others were ultimately attracted by their success, and as years went by fox farms sprang up all over the place.

From 1gd. to 6d. a day to keep, according to circumstances. Everything, however, depends on the knowledge of breeding. Males and other diseases have before now completely wiped out a farm, while a £1,000 vixen may prove barren if not properly taken care of.

Healthy and Unhail by Lighting. Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True, but it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:— Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air.

Signs of Rain. These signs of rain were written long ago by Dr. Edward Jenner, being forty reasons for not accepting the invitation of a friend to make an excursion with him: The hollow winds begin to blow. The clouds look black, the glass is low. The spouts fall down, the spaniels sleep. The spiders from their cobwebs peer. Last night the sun went pale to bed. The moon in halos hid her head.

The Frailty of Man. We are all liable to error and will be so to the end of time—the most careful will make mistakes, sometimes, for we are not merely human. With the fact of our own frailty staring us in the face, would it be reasonable on our part to neglect the means placed within our reach for the elimination of error? Errors in the counting house are costly but they can be avoided by the use of present day inventions constructed as well as human ingenuity can suggest.

Signs of the Time. Several carpenters are complaining of the scarcity of employment in the city at present. Many of them are practically starving, while some few are engaged from time to time making packing boxes for the Water St. Arms, the remuneration for which barely ends to keep the wolf from the door.

St. Andrew's Sale of Work.

The annual Sale of Work by the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church was held yesterday in the Presbyterian Hall, and was largely patronized. Frew, Miss Agnes Anderson playing the National Anthem as the Vice-Regal Party entered.
