STEWART'S Home Made Bread, THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DIPHTHERIA.

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved in all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can clean the dirtiest fabrics in a dainty lady's easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rise in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

LUX FOR DAINTY FABRICS

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

CHAPTER XX. DECIDED.

With a groan he flings himself into a chair, but he starts up the next moment with a harsh, bitter laugh. "And I—poured out my confession of my former life and loves, deeming the concealment a sin against one so pure and innocent. I made mention of my past, while you—you were hiding within the heart that nestled against mine, a love-tale that had been whispered not years, not months, but weeks—days ago! Jeanne, you were wise! You feared to lose your coronet. Well—you have gained it. Are you happy?"

Jeanne looks up, as he extends a hand to her with a bitter laugh; looks up, then around her, as if seeking some refuge from his mad passion. But there is none. With a low cry she throws up her arms to her face.

"Let me go home—let me go home," she moans.

He laughs sardonically. "Go back?" he says. "Will that heal all you have done? Will that make reparation for your falsehood? If you go, will you leave me the Jeanne I love, or only the remembrance of the marchioness whom I despise?"

As if his words were the knotted thongs of an actual scourge, she starts and shrieks back from him.

Then she draws herself to her full height, and looks at him, her lips set, her eyes flashing; if there have been any tears in them, they are burnt up now by the fire of wounded pride, and the unbearable sense of injury.

"Let me go," she says. "I will go back!" and she moves slightly.

"No!" he looks at her for a moment in silence, then, with a harsh laugh, he exclaims: "No! Why should you? After all we are but as many others. One man in a thousand, one woman in a thousand, marries for love; the remaining nine hundred and ninety-nine are content with the shadow and semblance. Why should you go?"

Jeanne shrank back with a look of terror on her face.

The Pure, Fresh Flavor of the genuine "SALADA" TEA has been responsible for its enormous sale, which eclipses that of any other tea.

BAIRD & CO. WHOLESALE AGENTS ST. JOHN'S

With a groan he strides across the room, and, kneeling beside her, lays his burning hand on her bare arm.

"Jeanne!" he breathes, fiercely, "say that you love me!"

At his touch, at the almost savage energy of his words, she shudders and springs to her feet. It is her turn now. "Do not touch me," she breathes.

All the passionate indignation of a woman scorned blazing in her eyes. "Do man earned blinding in her eyes. You do not come near me. You have driven me half-mad, but I have sense to remember what you have accused me of. You—you think I married you for all this," and she waves her hand with a scornful gesture. "You think me false, and treacherous, and deceitful. You hate and despise me! but you will not let me go back, though I want to go—yes, want to go! But it is true that I deceived you—you do not understand why; you cannot, you are too unjust! I did deceive you, and I will bear the punishment. Because I did it I will stay; I will not do you any further harm, as I have done you so much. This great place is large enough for both of us. You have said that we are apart—we will keep so. I will stay until you tell me I may go—until you tell me that I may go!" and with a sob she presses her hand to her eyes and moves toward the door.

He rises slowly, and looks at her with a bewildered stare. Is this Jeanne—the yielding, loving girl who used to cling to him blushing, so child-like in her ways and words that it seemed desecration to kiss her? This proud, passionate, indignant woman cannot be Jeanne.

But surprise is mingled with admiration. Never had she seemed so lovely in his eyes as she appears now—her lithe, graceful figure drawn to its full height, her eyes flashing like diamonds, her lips apart.

"Jeanne!" he cries, hoarsely, "what I have said I—For Heaven's sake forget it! Jeanne, come back to me! I—there is some mistake—"

"Yes," she says, with a look of anguish, "you thought you loved me. Some mistake—I have been mad! Jeanne—my Jeanne—forgive me! come back to me!"

And he moves toward her with outstretched arms.

But Jeanne, the old Jeanne, is not to be whittled back to his fingers like a tame bird; rather, like an eagle, she is soaring above him, and beyond his reach.

With one lithe movement she moves away, extending one hand to keep him back.

"Oh, Hal—Hal!" she breathes, "no—no! I cannot forget! We are apart—apart!"

Terrified in his turn, he holds out his hands to her.

"Jeanne," he implores, "have you forgotten I—I love you, Jeanne? Have you lost all your love for me so soon?"

A sharp pang seems to wring her heart.

"Yes," she breathes, "I did love you, but not now—not now. You have driven my love away. Do not come near me!"

He has made a step toward her, but at the gentle, cold words he stops and folds his arms.

"You will have it so," he says, speaking with an effort. "From tonight you are to live apart—one only to the world. Oh, do not shriek!" for as he speaks, she has drawn further away from him—"I will not force your love. It was yours to give or to withhold. So be it—so ends this last hope of happiness!"

"Crushed by your own hand," she says, "by your own hand!" and without another word she turns and moves slowly over the thick carpet to the conservatory.

He scarcely knows that she has moved, but when he lifts his head and finds that she has gone, he starts forward, calling her name:

"Jeanne—Jeanne! Come back!" But before he can reach the curtain he hears the outer door close, and realizes that she is gone beyond recall. With a smothered oath, he flings himself onto a chair, and looks about him with a dazed, vacant stare.

The black fit of passing rapidly, the room seems stifling and hot as a furnace. With a fresh oath, the miserable victim throws open the window, and passes to and fro with agitated steps; then he takes out his cigar-case, and, with trembling fingers, lights a cigar.

Oh, potent tobacco! who, knowing your virtues, can speak too highly in your praise! Before that cigar is half-consumed, Yane, Marquis of Ferndale, sees his folly, and curses the madness which has cast aside, utterly thrown away, and trampled upon that sweetest gift which the gods can give a man—love! That cigar has effected all that reason, love, and experience failed to do—it dispels the remaining symptoms of the Ferndale passion; but it shows, clearly as the noonday sun, how great a fool he has been.

For, with a groan, he leans his head on his hands, and there he remains smoking and repentant until the dawn comes creeping slowly from the east, and throws its gray, cold light on a face as cold and gray as its own.

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-cream" gives to the thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness. All druggists!

There are softly shaded lights upheld by gleaming statuettes along all the corridors, and Jeanne remembers her way, or finds it by instinct, and at last reaches her own room.

As she enters the boudoir, Mrs. Fleming rises from a chair.

"I was right to wait, my lady, was I not?" she says; then stops suddenly, struck dumb by Jeanne's white face and wild eyes.

"Right," says Jeanne, at random. "Are you waiting for me? Who are you?—yes, I remember. No, do not wait, please."

"But your ladyship will let me comb your hair—"

"No—no!" says Jeanne, hurriedly. "Go, please, at once!" and, following her to the door, she locks and bolts it.

She goes to the innermost room, and bolts and locks both doors, and then, woman-like, falls upon her knees and bursts into a passion of tears.

She sits as she may the sobs that shake her as a willow is shaken by the wind. She has not come to the care of Nova Scotia. Garland has disappeared as completely as if he had never existed, and the legend of the Spanish gold, buried below a murdered man, somewhere in the Province between Yarmouth and Gloucester Bay, is as much a legend as it ever was.

Garland was reported to have had a chart which he obtained in Zastro, Spain, from a lineal descendant of a member of Captain Kidd's crew, who remained unchanged. The chart located a treasure of golden church vessels and plate together with thirty-five small kegs full of the regulation "doubloon" and silver dollars, somewhere in the vicinity of Halifax.

There have been other charts, and when the Garland story appeared in a local paper a citizen of Halifax gave out the information that there exists a spot not far from a gloomy swamp, and within easy distance of the "main" the smallest straggle of hidden gold. A man built a house there some years ago, but had to remove it again because in the dark of the night the moon mingled with the melancholy hoot of the owl and the whine of the wind in the rigging, the rattle of chains and the groans of souls in pain. At any rate Kidd's treasure has been the subject of much search and intense excitement at one time or another in almost every part of the province, although not a solitary piece of eight was ever found in Nova Scotia.

Wins $100,000 on Honeymoon Trip.

New York.—Mrs. Betty Schwartz, six weeks a bride, retired from her honeymoon to Europe $100,000 richer from a visit to Monte Carlo, while her husband, H. H. Schwartz, of 839 Broadway, was $12,000 to the good as the result of a crap game aboard the Imperator, which docked nearly two days late, after making the roughest voyage of its career.

Mrs. Schwartz, who was Miss Betty Sadowaky, is pretty and twenty. She believed her age was lucky, so she played twenty on the roulette wheels of Monte Carlo. And she won, time after time, without losing once, until she had amassed $100,000 in winnings and hubby decided it was time to quit.

Officers of the Imperator laid the trip, was the worst they have ever seen, and that despite her size, being the largest passenger ship afloat, she was badly tossed in the storm, and washing her decks and inundating her cabins, forcing the passengers to dryer quarters.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DISTEMPER.

Willard Confident He Will Defeat Dempsey.

New York.—Radiating confidence in his ability to "come back," a "little slower in his movements than in the past, due, no doubt, to increased superfluous weight and the addition of several years, but more able than ever before, Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight champion, just plain "Big Jess" now—dropped into town on business bent. The tall Kansan, who crumpled before the sledge-hammer blows of Jack Dempsey in the memorable ring affair on Maunee Bay is here for the double purpose of closing arrangements for his prospective return match against Dempsey, scheduled by Promoter Tex Rickard for Madison Square Garden, March 17, and to attend to some oil business which will take him to town within a few days. The former title-holder arrived here, accompanied by Ray Archer, his business manager, and immediately established himself at the Biltmore.

One of the first things "Big Jess" did upon his arrival was to communicate with Rickard and arrange for a conference to discuss details and terms of the proposed Dempsey bout. Rickard and Willard held council at the Biltmore, but the promoter would not divulge the respite of the conference.

Did Garland Find Treasure?

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 24.—If Thos. Garland, deep sea sailor, of Sydney, found Captain Kidd's cache of treasure when he came to Halifax looking for it last July, and is now enjoying the ill-gotten gains of the famous pirate, it has not come to the care of Nova Scotia. Garland has disappeared as completely as if he had never existed, and the legend of the Spanish gold, buried below a murdered man, somewhere in the Province between Yarmouth and Gloucester Bay, is as much a legend as it ever was.

Just Folks

THE LITTLE GIRL WITH A BROKEN NOSE.

Poor little girl with the broken nose. Wondering why all the attention goes to the baby now, and why daddy's knee isn't all your's as it used to be. Oh, it's all so strange and it's all so queer. You used to have all of the love, my dear. And now there's another to claim a share. And somehow it doesn't seem just quite fair.

We can read the thought that so plainly lies Beneath the furrows above your eyes; The mother can't play as she used to. And spend so much of her time with you. And when folks come into the house you miss and sigh. The lips they offered for you to kiss; They dance the baby about the floor And don't seem to care for you any more.

Time was that all eyes seemed to shine on you. And glow with joy at the things you'd do. But now unnoticed you seem to be. For the smile of the baby is all they see; They're kind to you, but in some strange way Your world has changed in a single day. And somehow you know it won't be the same As it used to be before baby came.

Poor little girl with the broken nose. That's ever the way that this old world goes— Nothing we have shall we keep for long. We must share our laughter and mirth and song. And the changes come, and we wake to find That always we're leaving some joy behind. Time breaks all our noses in just the way That your's has been put out of joint to-day.

PROMINENT NEW YORK MAN PRAISES TANLAC.

John F. Hyatt, of Albany, N.Y., is Relieved of Severe Attack of Rheumatism of Many Years' Standing.

"I am now seventy-two years old and am just getting rid of a fifteen-year case of rheumatism that had me crippled up. I could not walk," said John F. Hyatt, 227 Pearl St., Albany, N.Y., in relating his remarkable experience with Tanlac, recently. Mr. Hyatt was chairman of the committee in charge of building the Albany County Courthouse and was four times elected a member of the County Board of Supervisors. At present Mr. Hyatt is Assistant Superintendent of the Albany County Courthouse, with offices in the building.

"I don't believe," he continued, "anybody could have rheumatism any worse than I did, and my case was of such long standing I didn't expect to ever get over it. I was unable to walk except for a short distance, supported with a cane, and even then the pain struck me every time I took a step. My legs, hips and ankles hurt something awful and my joints were stiff and aching. I couldn't cross my leg without having to lift it up with my hands, and to turn over in bed, why the pains nearly killed me. My appetite was gone and the sight of food nauseated me. My stomach was out of order, and I had a sluggish, heavy feeling all the time. I was weak, off in weight and discovered so that it looked like I might as well quit trying to ever get well."

"I had no idea Tanlac would relieve my rheumatism when I began taking it last Spring. I took it because saw where it would give a fellow an appetite. Well, sir, I was the most surprised I ever was in my life when the rheumatic pains began to ease up. I took seven bottles in all and, it's a fact, I didn't have an ache about my body."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE PERSON WHO "MAKES IT A RULE—"

A Letter-friend wants me to paint the companion piece to a certain picture which I painted a few weeks ago. The original picture was of the type of person who, if he or she patronizes a tailor or a dressmaker, or buys a certain make of piano, or goes to a certain hotel, thereafter prides that maker or tailor or piano or hotel, and thinks it almost personal insult if you do not agree with him and follow in his footsteps.

The companion piece which my friend suggested to me, is the picture of the person who is never shy to recommend anything or shew for fear you may not be pleased and will blame him.

Her Vacation Was Spoiled. "I have a friend," she says, "who had to go to a certain summer place. I planned to go there and had her if she could recommend a summer place. She said she really didn't want to. I thought from that she didn't like the place she had to go to and so I went elsewhere. The place I chose was wretched and finally moved to the place she used to go to. That was excellent and when I came home and saw her again she told me why she hadn't said so. 'Oh, I liked it ever so much,' she said, 'but I didn't want to recommend it. People's tastes are so different that I make it a rule never to recommend anything.'"

Discant the Recommendation. It is a wise habit when anyone recommends anything, to take that person's personality into consideration, however. If you don't you're apt to get jolly well stuck. For instance, a very uninteresting, highly conventional woman once told me that a certain hotel was wonderful, and I foolishly accepted her recommendation without discounting her personality. It was wonderful as far as food and material comforts went, but as lacking in taste and atmosphere as the woman herself.

But that does not prove that it is foolish to accept a recommendation without discounting the personality of the giver.

MY COLUMN

(By The Cub-Editor.)

IMPRESSIONS OF A HOCKEY GAME

The night of the first hockey match I decided to renew my acquaintance with the game and about 7:15 p.m. I wended my way rinkwards. When I got within fifty feet of the door I ran up against a seething mass of humanity which swayed to and fro like the waves of the Atlantic during a north easter. I first thought that I had run into a political meeting but I soon discovered that the crowd was composed of hockey enthusiasts of all ages and both sexes who were fighting for entrance. I hung on to the tail end of the mob and before five minutes had passed I found that I was in the centre owing to the crowd which had come up behind me. Gradually I felt myself moving in the direction of the door. At least I thought it was the door but I wasn't sure of it because I was too occupied in watching the point of a hatpin in the headgear of a girl in front of me, to look and see. By this time I was compressed as flat as a pancake and my breath was coming in short gasps. I tried to push forward. The man in front of me turned round disclosing a face which almost made me think I had discovered the missing link at last. "Who d'y think you're walking on?" he snarled. "If you'll kindly take your elbow out of my mouth I might be able to tell you," I replied. Before he had time to answer the crowd gave a sudden heave, and we were fortunately separated. Nearer and nearer I got to the door, then there came a sudden shove, an awful squeeze and I was through—in more senses than one. My poor battered body could stand the strain no longer—I flopped. The next thing I remembered was to find myself lying on a plank bed in complete darkness. My collar seemed to be missing and my shirt was where it shouldn't be. The remaining few hours were like a dream. I felt myself dragged from my rude bed into the light of day by two stalwart constables. I remember hearing my name called and I remember the judge asking me what I had to say for myself. For the life of me I could not open my lips. I heard the judge say "poor fellow" and "take him home." When I next awakened I found myself at home in bed with Horace by my side. "Well, guv," said my young probate. "Fancy getting drunk and being judged at your age. I never thought of you."

My boss just missed Horace's head as he vanished through the doorway. As for me, no more hockey thank you.

TO CORRESPONDENTS. Deuce.—The answers to your letter will form the subject of my next editorial.

Worried.—If the girl you want to ask for a hand is skating with a girl you don't want to ask, the correct procedure being as follows. Skate as closely as you can to the one you don't want to ask, and tell her to look at the lovely dress of the girl in the gallery. Then, catch the eye of the other girl, wink slowly and distinctly and hold up as many fingers as correspond to the number of the hand you want. Then wink again, rub the tip of your nose and if she nods you know it's alright.—The Cub-Editor.

REMINDS OF THE TIMES. (5) HOW TO ALTER HUBBY'S FACE. The other day there came to court a lady of immensity. Who of her husband's face made sport with varying intensity.

He took her off the streets, he said. Where he had often sought her. And though by him she'd not be led. Onto his home he brought her.

So then his wifey cut up rough. And everything in sight she smashed. And then not thinking this enough. Her man's face with fat-irons bashed.

So then to court he brought her down. And with assault he charged her. The judge there with portentous frown. Told her that he discharged her.

So now you wives of St. John's town. If you don't like your hubby's face. All that you have to do is down. His throat, a hot, flat-iron place.

HER TURN. Mary had a little ring, 'twas given her by Joe, and everywhere that Mary went that ring was sure to go.

She took the ring with her one day, when she went out to tea, where she might show it to the girls, who numbered twenty-three.

And when the girls all saw that ring, they made a great ado, exclaiming with one voice: "Has it at last got round to you?"

DID YOU KNOW THAT. Gas-lamps were first used in London in 1807.

It is stated in connection with the question of alterations in the peace clothing of the Army, that there is no likelihood that the kit will be abolished.

Of pupils in State-aided secondary schools two-thirds come from primary schools, and 30 per cent. are "free places," the Board of Education's rule requiring only 25 per cent.

The total weight of artillery projectiles used at Waterloo was 37 tons. In the whole South African war it was 2,800 tons. In one day last autumn on the British front in France, over 13,000 tons of shells were fired.

During the war we manufactured 20,000 guns and 200,000 machine-guns. Towards the end of the war, aeroplanes were manufactured at the rate of 4,000 a month, and poison-gas at the rate of thousands of tons a month.

PITTY JOKES. "Her complexion is very clear," said the casual acquaintance.

"Yes, indeed," her dearest friend agreed. "Anybody can see through it."

"Well," said Dr. Kidder, "there's only one way to get rid of insomnia." "And that is?" queried the patient. "Go to sleep and forget about it."

Miss Plane: "Now, get as nice a photo of me as you possibly can."

Photographer: "Never fear, ma'am; when this is touched up you won't know yourself."

He: "The closer a man gets to nature the happier he is."

She: "That's not what you said when you slipped on a piece of banana peel yesterday."

"Do you—er—ever tell fibs?" asked the lady who had advertised for a maid.

"Not for myself, ma'am," answered the applicant: "only for the missus."

A FAIR QUESTION. A farmer not used to travelling made his way to the nearest railway station.

"What's the fare to London?" he asked.

"Forty-one and three, if you're going third," was the reply.

"Any luggage allowed?" "Yes, you can take a hundredweight of luggage if you like."

"Oh, can I? Well, now, I'm only taking a stick, that's all. My son, here, he don't quite weigh a hundredweight, can he come as luggage?"

IN A HURRY. The blithe new year is gaily hopping to join the old years of the past; the days slide by, there is no stopping, our days are much too good to last; soon we must do our Christmas shopping, time goes so fast, time goes so fast.

The new year came, with ringlets curly, and on his lips a cheer-up song, that heartened 'em the sore and surly, and showed them that their grouch was wrong; but soon we'll do our shopping early—time whoops along, time whoops along!

The new year did some wholesome bragging about his pep and punch and vim, but soon we'll see his step is lagging, and he'll have spavins on each limb; and then we'll see him sadly dragging his carcass to the boneyard grim. So to the shadows we are wending, a little older every day; each flying hour some gray hairs lending to our old domes, already gray, and bringing nearer us the ending of hope and dread, and work and play. Each flying minute makes us older, and plants new ailments in 'our frames; some new rheumatics in the shoulder, where once we pressed against the hames, or gout in feet that danced in youthful games. Ah, well, gadsocks, we've had our inning, we old, old gent's and gaffers gray, and like the year, in our beginning, we put up many kinds of hay; and now that our white locks are thinning, we must give youth the right of way.

Police Save Bombmaker's Life. There is at least one Irish Republican languishing in jail who has reason to bless the vigilance of the British police. This youth, who was employed as a waiter in a north British town, had decided to assist the cause of Irish freedom by turning bomb manufacturer. When the police visited his lodgings they found him experimenting with a partly-made bomb, into which he had mixed potassium, nitrate, sulphur, potassium chlorate, charcoal and sugar. Apparently dissatisfied with the explosive properties of the mixture, he was on the point of adding some sulphuric acid when the police made a timely appearance and took him into custody. Had a drop of sulphuric acid been added with the ingredients, not only the amateur bomb manufacturer, but most of the block would have gone up with a bang.

Encouraging Germany.

Friends of Germany within the Empire are beginning to give that country moral support and encouragement in their advancement of the plea that to exact the full amount of reparation indemnity from the late enemy, will have disastrous effects not only upon the Teutons but upon all Europe. By the signing of the Treaty of Versailles Germany pledged herself to make good the sum assessed by the Allied plenipotentiaries as indemnification for damages done French and Belgian property and territory. The German envoys knew exactly what they were signing, and how much devolved upon their country with regard to acceptance of the terms of Peace. Why now should there be the familiar Hun whine that it will be ruinous for Germany to fulfil her treaty obligations. And the worst of it is that there are small-souled people within the Empire who back up the Germans in their demands for modification of the reparation sections, and by so doing give moral support to the wily Hun in his insistence that he be permitted to evade his full responsibility. This should not be. Germany should be made pay to the last cent. Germany was the aggressor in 1914. Her armies marched through Belgium devastating and destroying as they went, invaded France and wrought havoc and destruction upon French cities, towns, villages, farms and fields. The myrmidons of the Kaiser were out to destroy, and they did not fail to carry out their instructions thoroughly. They had no sympathy for Frenchman or Belgian then. Why therefore should there be any Britisher so soft-hearted or morally warped as to have any sympathy for Germany now that she is being held to account for the damage wrought by her barbarian armies. There was no such expression of sympathy for mortally wounded France at the close of the Franco-Prussian War in 1871, when Germany insisted upon an indemnity of two hundred million pounds sterling payable in three years, France to be occupied by a Prussian Army until the last franc was paid. There was no sympathy for France when Alsace and Lorraine were wrested from her by the conqueror, in addition to the huge indemnity, which by a supreme effort on the part of the French people, was cleared off in three years. It would have been futile for France to have asked that man of blood and iron, Bismarck for any amelioration of his hard and fast terms. "Leave the French only eyes with which to weep," was his instruction, and can it be wondered if France to-day remembering that unforgettable insult is determined upon receiving ample compensation and satisfaction for all that she has suffered at the hand of the Hun. Germany sets up the plaint that she cannot pay the annual sums to be exacted on reparations account. That the war impoverished her people, killed trade and commerce, and produced national stagnation. To emerge from the financial slough of despond into which she has fallen, she asks for time. Common habit with the Hun and in full keeping with other of his "slim" characteristics. Reports coming out of Germany do not indicate any serious depression, for while on the one hand they tell of food shortage and famine conditions, on the other there are stories of great prosperity in many lines of industry and ambitious plans are being made by German capitalists to put production and distribution into the hands of trusts and to recapture their old position in the markets of the world. Extravagance in money spending is rife amongst certain classes, and these are they who should be called upon to pay the annual indemnity—and the vast sum of 420,000,000 marks is said to have gone through the betting machines of Berlin alone during the racing season ended in December, as against 203,000,000 for the same period in 1919. Another instance of reckless extravagance is cited in the increase in the annual consumption of champagne, which had the past year risen to 10,000,000 bottles at an approximate cost of 1,000,000,000 marks. Though the value of the German mark is not rated very highly in the exchanges of the world, the aggregate figures quoted are sufficiently imposing to justify comment on the plea of the debtors that they have no money to meet treaty requirements. Industrial plants are increasing their capital, and German trade papers report better business in gloves, stockings, silk and upholstery manufacturing. Toy makers at Nuremberg and Thuringia were busier during the month of November past than ever before, on foreign orders, principally from England, and in all the value of toys exported during November was 200,000,000 marks. The "Made in Germany" trademark seems to have become popular in the United Kingdom again. The "Lusitania" and other similar outrages have been apparently forgotten by the English people, who have so soon established trade relations with the owners of "bloodstained hands." The Minister of Transportation in Germany stated that railway efficiency had increased 25 per cent. last year and he hoped to raise it to 25 per cent. more during the current annual period. The ex-Kaiser has received anywhere between 50,000,000 and 100,000,000 marks from the German Treasury since his flight into Holland in 1918. Altogether the state of Germany's national finances do not appear to be in the condition which that country's administration would have the world believe, and therefore there is no real reason why small-souled Britons should lament over the decision of the Allied Supreme Council, even to the extent of lending their help to strengthen Germany in her protest,—to exact full and complete reparation for wanton damages, not necessarily done in the exigencies of warfare.

Police Report.

During the month of January, 21 drunks appeared before Judge Morris in the police court. Of these, nine got drunk on scripts, six on dope and the remaining six got there in some manner at present unknown. The number of dope cases constitutes quite a large percentage of the whole. Balsam and Honey is still enjoying a great sale but the Inspector General now has it on his list of prohibited articles, and it will probably be officially banned soon.

Bears against Walter Goess, the hearing of which was begun this morning, the liabilities of the alleged insolvent were placed at $12,640.00, and the assets at $12,384.00. Mr. M. F. Gibbs appeared for the attaching creditor; Mr. Barron and Mr. Hunt for other creditors.

Candlemas.

To-day is the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, also known as Candlemas Day. The observance to which it owes the latter name, viz., the lighting of candles, and the consecration of candles, which are to be used during the year for ecclesiastical purposes, are said to have an emblematical reference to the prophecy of Simeon that the child Jesus should become "a light to lighten the Gentiles." The institution of this Feast dates probably from the reign of Justinian, and the year 543 is sometimes fixed upon as that of its first celebration. The festival of Candlemas is supposed to have grown out of the heathen festivals held in this month, a view which according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, is supported by the following considerations: (1) The word February (connected with Februus) denotes purification; (2) In this month the purification of the people took place; (3) The rites of the Lupercalia, which were celebrated on the 15th, included the lighting of candles, in allusion to those used by Ceres in her search for Proserpine; and (4) the origin of other Christian feasts appear to have been similar. Candlemas is chiefly known in Scotland in secular matters as the first of the quarterly terms; and the state of the weather on that day is said, proverbially, to determine the weather of the spring.

Locally there are numerous household rhymes on Candlemas as it affects the weather, one of the most familiar reading as follows: "If Candlemas Day be fair and fine, The worst of the winter is left behind; But if the clouds do cover the sun, The worst of the winter is to come."

Another well-known ditty refers to the length of the day in these words: "On Candlemas Day Put candles and candlesticks away." There is also an ancient superstition that if all Christmas decorations are not burnt by Candlemas Day, evil spirits will inhabit them.

"Away, away with the holly bough, The yew and mistletoe! Burn them all! 'Twere fraught with danger to keep them now, Away, away with the holly bough! Or else—the ancients would off away."

"Some hidden evil would soon befall, Away, away with the holly bough, The yew and mistletoe! Burn them all!" "We keep this rite as a merry jest, And throw our wreaths on the leaping flame. When vexed, disheartened, or just depressed, We keep this rite as a merry jest, For on that fire we can fling with zest Our fears and worries that have no name. We keep this rite as a merry jest, And throw our wreaths on the leaping flame."

Hockey Notes.

The Feldians and St. Bon's clash to-night in what is expected to be the most exciting game of the series, so far. Whether it will be so, however, is a matter of which only time can tell. It would be wise to remember the old proverb, "Blessed be he who expects little."

Both teams are in the pink of condition and have had plenty of practice. They are fairly well matched, but if anything, the Feldians have the superiority on the grounds of experience. The supporters of both teams will be there in their hundreds to-night, and if nothing can do anything, both will be encouraged to do their utmost. It is a pity, though, that when the college teams are playing the small boys, who are the most enthusiastic rooters, will not be able to gather in the galleries as in other games. Some of these small but vociferous fans will not be able to see over the fence and to miss the game will be a great disappointment.

Mr. C. C. Robertson will control the game.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Clyde left Placentia yesterday afternoon on the Placentia Bay service, Western route. S.S. Rosalind is expected to leave Halifax this evening for this port. Schooner Douglas Adams which put back to Lisbon in a damaged condition has been obliged to go into dry dock at that port, where extensive repairs to the hull will be made. S.S. Castle Point which was recently here for repairs, again encountered trouble off the Irish Coast and had to be towed to Queenstown where she is now undergoing repairs.

Optimistic Cable.

The Fish Exporters met in the Board of Trade Rooms at 10.30 this morning to consider a message received from Portugal, in which the sender, Mr. Coaker, is very optimistic regarding the sales of fish to that market. In speaking to the president of the Fish Exporters, Ltd., the Telegram was informed that the message, being considered to-day, is the most hopeful received for some time.

Arrived at Cannes.

A message has been received by Messrs. T. H. Carter & Co., from Cannes, France, informing them of the safe arrival at that port of the schooner Cape Pine, after a stormy passage of 55 days from St. Pierre. The Cape Pine left St. Pierre with a cargo of salt bulk fish and as she was so long on her voyage much anxiety was felt for her safety. Capt. Burke reported his crew all well but stated that the vessel was badly damaged and had lost a considerable part of her canvas.

"Prince of Pilsen."

There are very few treasures Or pleasures in life, And life's not worth living Unless you have a white! If your troubles are many, Or if you have any, Just leave them behind for a while; Let the P-O-P scrip Give your heartaches a rip, And your face, for a century, smile.

There's a scent from the pine, That'll always be thine, As you stroll or wander our hills; But the dear Prince of Pilsen From head and to kilsen Will give you a thousand more thrills. He has come in his glory To tell us his story, In a voice that is rich, soft and rare; And when he gets through, You'll forget every "blue," And your heart will acclaim with a cheer.

If your heart has an ache That has come from Love's Lake, Just listen to Tom and his wrong, There's a love in his breast That he can't keep at rest, For he pours out his soul in his song. Let your soul be on fire With the greatest desire To personally meet P-O-P, Though you come feeling "blue," You'll return feeling new, For fun is the greatest M. D.

Trade Outlook.

REVIEWED AT ROYAL BANK ANNUAL MEETING.

The announcements made at the annual meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada had a particular bearing on the outlook for Canadian trade and industry. On this account they become of special interest.

Banks are not only the custodians of the savings of the people, but the agency by which the business of the country is carried on. Banks, while the main spring of trade, cannot prosper unless trade prospers, and so the annual reports of these institutions become a reflex of general conditions. In this sense the year recently closed marked a general prosperity throughout Canada. Interest is centered, however, less in what has been than in what is to be. We know that the turning of the road has been reached, that prices have declined, and that confidence cannot longer be felt that purchase of goods at the current price assures sale at a later higher price. Both Sir Herbert Holt, the President and Mr. Edson L. Pease, the managing director, touched on this subject, and in doing so were able to establish from the accounts that through the period of contraction the bank has given a helping hand to its clients. No other proof of the policy than an increase of $40,000,000 in current loans at the end as compared with the beginning of the year need be cited. And in this connection it is to be observed, as Sir Herbert Holt emphasized, that the sanctity of contracts is the very basis of stable trade. Credit is sensitive. It is the motive power of commodity exchange; without credit a business calamity would fall; and while not fatal, the repudiation of contracts brings to desuetude that confidence called credit upon which commerce is founded.

The addresses at the Royal Bank meeting are instructive and very comprehensive. Few features of the worldwide situation have been overlooked. Matters specific in respect of certain trade, and matters in the large are touched upon, and from the retrospect Sir Herbert Holt turned to the prospect. He sees no need for pessimism, but he does not ignore facts. We may not have reached the end of reaction in prices. Further liquidation is inevitable. The United States, moved by similar conditions to those which prevail in Canada, sets the pace because of its greater immensity, diversity and influence. Economic history for many generations has proved that at the United States sets the pace, so will Canada follow. In that country the bound upward preceded the like movement in Canada, and in that country the reaction was first to occur, and to quote the language of Sir Herbert: "I see no escape from the common level."

It is to say, we in Canada must lapse in prices to the American level, and not having yet done so the recession with us is not completed. The encouraging view is that the United States business is reaching rock bottom, that the reaction will not be long deferred; and the hopeful fact is that Canada is in a position to parallel the course of its neighbor without serious distress or impairment of the natural resources upon which its sure foundation rests.

G. W. V. A. Dance.

Patrons of to-night's dance are again reminded that the first number will not start until 9.15 o'clock in order to give people attending the hockey match time to get to the C. C. Hall. Ticket holders for "The Prince of Pilsen" would do well to go to the Veterans' Dance afterwards. They would have ample time to partake of supper and the second portion of the dance programme. Arrangements are now completed and to-night's event will be an enjoyable one in every way. A good programme, good supper and the latest music. In yesterday's notice of the dance the name of Mrs. J. B. Mitchell, who is one of the best friends the Veterans have, was inadvertently omitted.

Germany Resists Reparation Demands.

Support of Weak-Kneed Britons Encourage Refusal to Negotiate—Canada Steamship Lines Not in Merger—Nationalists Not at one With Sinn Fein—Berlin Press Unanimous in Condemning Reparation Terms.

GERMANY REFUSES.

BERLIN, Feb. 1. Walter Simons, Foreign Minister, declared in the Reichstag that the government would refuse to negotiate on the basis of the reparations decisions regarding reparation and would formulate counter-proposals. His position was supported by all the party leaders, except the Communists, who heaped abuse on him when he concluded speaking. Dr. Simons said the German government was unable to renege or to agree to participate in the forthcoming London conference because it had not yet been invited to do so.

MADNESS OR JUSTICE WHICH?

BERLIN, Feb. 1. Berlin newspapers to-day are as one in voicing the opinion that the reparations conditions, as laid down by the Allied Supreme Council in Paris, sound the economic ruin of Central Europe, including France,

Belgium and Italy. The press, however does not presume to advise the cabinet as to its course in this crisis, reaching the conclusion, as one of the newspapers expresses it, that Germany is powerless to oppose this victory madness.

FORD AS CRITIC.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. The complainant in a $5,000,000 damage suit against Henry Ford and his paper, the Dearborn Independent, was filed in the circuit court to-day by Morris Gest, theatrical producer, who alleged that one article in the Independent on Jan. 22, 1921, contained libelous, slanderous and false statements concerning Mr. Gest and certain stage productions he has handled. The article mentioned in the suit was said to have attacked Aprodite and Mecca in particular, terming them the most salacious spectacles ever shown in America.

Fire on Topsail Road.

Bucket Brigade Did Good Work. At 6:30 o'clock on Sunday morning last, the house of Mr. R. K. Holden, on Topsail Road, was discovered on fire. An alarm brought neighbors to the scene, and a bucket brigade was formed. After much difficulty the blaze was subdued, but not before damage to the extent of several hundred dollars had been done. The fire originated in an upstairs room and was caused by a defective chimney. Great credit is due Messrs. H. Coultas, H. Barnes and Walter James and other nearby residents through whose efforts the house was saved from complete destruction. Mr. Holden is north on business and it is not known if the property was covered by insurance.

B. Hemmion, Dr. Jones and Messrs. R. A. Templeton, W. R. Stirling, John Leamon, H. Burt beside Arthur Mews, Esq., C.M.G., and the Cochrane St. Methodist choir—while many clergymen and members of the Committee found seats among the audience. The meeting opened with a Hymn and the reading of a passage of Scripture and Prayer by the Rev. Dr. Curtis. After which His Excellency took the chair and gave an intensely interesting and thoughtful address on the Society's work in different parts of the world and one of at some length the difficulties encountered in translating the numerous languages by the translator and cited several instances in various dialects which had recently been translated.

Dear Old Newfoundland.

That is our home, our native home, Tho' cold and rough she be The home of many a noble soul. The birth place of the free, We love her rocks and rivers, Till death our quick blood chills, For aye then dear old Newfoundland And your snow clad rugged hills.

Shall not that land tho' poor she be, Who gave those brave heroes birth, With pride stepped forth to take their place.

With the mightiest of the earth, Then for their sake whose lofty fame Our very blood it thrills, For aye then dear old Newfoundland And her snow clad rugged hills.

They tell us of our freezing clime, Our hard and rugged soil; Which hardly half repays us for Our springtime care and toil; Yet gaily sing the merry boy, As his homestead farm he tills, God-bye then dear old Newfoundland.

Others may seek the Western clime, (They say 'tis passing fair), That sunny are its laughing skies And soft its balmy air; We'll cling to our dear childhood home, Till we see our warm blood chills, Till we die in dear old Newfoundland And sleep beneath her hills. Dear Sir—I would wish to say a few words regarding the 20% all round increase. What has become of the issue that promise was made. If I rightly remember it was promised by Hon. R. A. C. C. Corps to Be Re-organized.

Mr. James Parker presided over the adjourned meeting of the C. C. C. Committee which took place in the C. C. C. Hall on Sunday evening last. There was a large attendance of brigade supporters, all of whom are anxious to see the Corps re-organized. The Chairman, who for the past ten years has worked hard for the Corps, made an excellent address, which was well received by all. Rev. J. Pippy, Chaplain, made an excellent appeal to all young men of the city to take an active part in connection with the work of the Corps, as the Catholic youth must receive a good physical training as it helps to make them good strong citizens in the future.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

POWERFUL AERO ENGINE. LONDON, Feb. 1. The successful testing of a 1,000 horse power aero engine, which is said to be the most powerful known has opened up claims by experts of the possibility of a regular London-New York Aerial trip, within twenty-four hours direct, or by changing aircraft at the Azores Islands. It is being recalled by experts that Capt. John Alcock in 1919, flew from Newfoundland to Ireland in less than 16 hours, using two 375 horse power engines. The new engine is called "the Cub." It was ordered by the Royal Air Force, and it is understood that the "Titania," a flying boat destroyer, which is to be used in long distance patrols, will be equipped with two Cubs and have a range of 1,500 miles. For war time the crew will number ten, and for civilian use the craft can accommodate fifty passengers. The Cub's eighteen cylinders on a test, indicated 1,067 horse power in 20 hours of running. The engine weighs nearly a ton and costs about 5,000 pounds.

FORDNEY BILL ATTACKED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. With Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, as its only consistent defender in the debate, the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill went through another series of hard knocks in the Senate to-day, opponents of measure accepting every opportunity to attack it. Whether the Bill is to be side tracked, or its consideration continued under the limitation of debate, will be decided to-morrow, when the Penrose resolution for closure will be voted upon. The most ardent supporters of the closure, and of the Bill, admitted to-night that the defeat of the Penrose motion is inevitable.

POWERFUL AERO ENGINE. LONDON, Feb. 1. The successful testing of a 1,000 horse power aero engine, which is said to be the most powerful known has opened up claims by experts of the possibility of a regular London-New York Aerial trip, within twenty-four hours direct, or by changing aircraft at the Azores Islands. It is being recalled by experts that Capt. John Alcock in 1919, flew from Newfoundland to Ireland in less than 16 hours, using two 375 horse power engines. The new engine is called "the Cub." It was ordered by the Royal Air Force, and it is understood that the "Titania," a flying boat destroyer, which is to be used in long distance patrols, will be equipped with two Cubs and have a range of 1,500 miles. For war time the crew will number ten, and for civilian use the craft can accommodate fifty passengers. The Cub's eighteen cylinders on a test, indicated 1,067 horse power in 20 hours of running. The engine weighs nearly a ton and costs about 5,000 pounds.

FORDNEY BILL ATTACKED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. With Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, as its only consistent defender in the debate, the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill went through another series of hard knocks in the Senate to-day, opponents of measure accepting every opportunity to attack it. Whether the Bill is to be side tracked, or its consideration continued under the limitation of debate, will be decided to-morrow, when the Penrose resolution for closure will be voted upon. The most ardent supporters of the closure, and of the Bill, admitted to-night that the defeat of the Penrose motion is inevitable.

Trade Expansion Reviewed at Royal Bank Annual Meeting.

Sir Herbert Holt, President, Stated That Considering the Times, Canadians Are a Fortunate People—Government Ownership of Railways and Fleet More Expensive Than Pension Charges and Other Legacies of War.

Edson L. Pease, Vice-President and Managing Director, Points Out That Business is Being Brought Down to a New and Sounder Basis—Foreign Branches Important Factor in Building Up Foreign Trade of the Dominion.

C. E. Neill, General Manager, Reviews Most Successful Year in History of the Bank—Total Assets Now Stand at $594,670,013, an Increase for the Year of $61,022,925.

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Royal Bank of Canada marked the close of the most successful year in the history of the bank, and was also featured by a number of interesting announcements by Sir Herbert Holt, the president, and Edson L. Pease, vice-president and managing director. The past year has been one of unusual developments throughout the world, and many problems have naturally developed for the larger banks. Sir Herbert Holt made a particular reference to the situation in Canada at the present time, and touched on what the bank considered to be the outlook. In discussing this subject, Sir Herbert said:

"The position of Canada is fundamentally sound. Considering the times, we are a fortunate people. No nation has escaped the aftermath of the war, and throughout the world there is disturbance and unrest. In China, fanatical spirits are rampant, and Europe is writhing in pain. In Russia, the foreigner is being driven out, and the country is being torn apart. In Germany, the people are suffering from the effects of the war, and the country is being torn apart. In Italy, the people are suffering from the effects of the war, and the country is being torn apart. In France, the people are suffering from the effects of the war, and the country is being torn apart. In the United States, the people are suffering from the effects of the war, and the country is being torn apart. In the Dominion, the people are suffering from the effects of the war, and the country is being torn apart."

Edson L. Pease, vice-president and managing director, also pointed out the tremendous load that is now being inflicted upon the country through government ownership of railways. He discussed the question of government control, Sir Herbert said:

"Government ownership has practically disappeared during the year just past—wheat, paper and sugar being the commodities to be freed from regulation. Government ownership of transportation systems has developed. Without any advantage to the public in efficiency or rates, the government ownership of our national railways during the past twelve months has resulted in a loss which has been absorbed by the government. The excess profits and income taxes for the year 1920, unless Government methods of operation are more efficient in this country than they have been in others, taxpayers in Canada may find the maintenance of their railways more expensive than pension charges and other legacies of the war combined. Of a total of $6,400,000 spent by the United States during the last year, $1,037,000,000 went to pay the cost incurred by the Government in its control of the railways. The present waste is obvious and the remedy should be speedy and effective. The needs of the country, the business-like administration of its assets. If this be afforded, we can attack our problems with added confidence."

Situation in Cuba. Owing to the important developments that have occurred in Cuba and the interest which the bank has in that center, Sir Herbert reviewed the Cuban situation and also drew attention particularly to the bank's position in dealing with this subject. Sir Herbert said: "You will doubtless wish to hear how we fared in Cuba, in view of the recent financial disturbances in that island, and our interests there. The business of Cuba is bound up in sugar. Production last season was some 700,000 tons less than estimated, and prices naturally rose abnormally, reaching over 25% last May. A sugar famine in the United States appeared inevitable, when relief came from an unexpected source. Financial disturbances in the Far East, and the sudden fall in the silver exchanges, led to the curtailment of Far Eastern purchases of sugar in the Java market. This sugar was available for the United States, and it is estimated that that country purchased altogether 300,000 tons of sugar, about 10 per cent. of last season's production. 90 per cent. of the crop had been sold at prices which averaged not less than 10c per pound, and the amount thus realized, over $700,000,000, was much greater than that obtained for the whole crop of 1918-19, itself a record season. Certain individuals and firms, however, were hard hit by the collapse of Cuba's troubles. The difficulties of one Cuban bank which suspended operations in October last year caused only a passing loss in the original cause of Cuba's troubles. The difficulties of one Cuban bank which suspended operations in October last year caused only a passing loss in the original cause of Cuba's troubles. The difficulties of one Cuban bank which suspended operations in October last year caused only a passing loss in the original cause of Cuba's troubles."

Development of Foreign Trade. Mr. Pease also touched upon the commercial relations between Canada and the United States. Dealing with this subject and the manner in which our exchange had been affected, he said: "The character of our foreign trade has also changed sharply. The year ending November 30, 1920, shows an adverse balance of $66,000,000 as compared with a favorable balance for the year ending Novem-

Fighting The Submarine.

The Victory at Sea—By Rear-Admiral William Snowden Sims, U. S. Navy, Commander of The American Naval Forces Operating in European Waters During The Great War.

FROM THE LONDON TIMES.

The first squadron of American destroyers reached Queenstown on May 4, 1917, to be followed thirteen days later by a second. In that very week the U-boats had sunk 240,000 tons of Allied shipping, and a continuation of that rate meant the total had to be retained with the early German victory. The number of British destroyers in commission was, of course, large in the aggregate, but warfare of this character had not been contemplated or provided against. Fully half the total had to be retained with the Grand Fleet and could not possibly be spared; others were required to safeguard the Channel crossing, and there were vital duties to be performed in the Mediterranean and elsewhere. Hence the destroyers available for offensive work against the submarine marauders were lamentably few. It was with the military purpose of diminishing the number still further that the Germans deliberately, and after notice given, adopted the policy of sinking hospital ships at sight, so as to make it necessary to furnish them with escorts, and in this purpose, of course, they succeeded.

"I think (says Admiral Sims), that history records few spectacles more heroic than that of the great British Navy, fighting this hideous and cowardly form of warfare in half-a-dozen places with pitifully inadequate forces, but with an undaunted spirit which remained firm against even the fearful odds which I have described."

With preliminary explanation such as these the author comes to his main subject—the history, methods, and hardly won success of the anti-submarine campaign. It is a wonderful story not only of heroic adventure, and patience, but of strategy and tactics worked out on new ways, and the unlooked-for weapons of many novel uses. The adoption of the convoy system was the first decisive step. This had long been advocated and had been considered many times, but hitherto laid aside as impracticable, not only because with one voice the listeners' blood ran cold. "Only one thing in the world could make a sound like that. It was the crack of a revolver." A second shot followed; then others in quick succession, and knew that 25 despairing men had committed suicide.

The most exciting incidents in the whole extraordinary story are, of course, the encounters with individual submarines. These took many forms, some of which are strange indeed. Mines, mystery ships, depth charges, attacks from the air and the feats associated with all these have an almost familiar sound, but who has read of the exploits of the hunting submarines, whose business it was to torpedo the torpedoes? And how many civilians have heard of the "sub-chasers," whose story is perhaps the most marvellous of all? These little war-vessels of 60 tons and 110 feet in length, officered and manned for the most part by college boys from the American universities, with other civilians unused to the sea, crossed the Atlantic to the number of 170 and were sent to places as far apart as Queenstown, Bristol, and Corfu. Their duty was to listen in the water for submarines, to fix their position when submerged, and to track them down until they could be destroyed. They owed their deadly efficacy to the Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Christmas Eve at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston, Mass., by Father Dacey, when Elizabeth C. Sears was given in marriage by Troop Sergt. Kelly of the 26th Yankee Division, to Edward Thomas Duffy of Boston. The bride wore a gown of grey georgette crepe showered with a bouquet of lilies of the valley and was attended by Miss Marion Duffy, sister of the groom, who was attired in a blue satin dress with a bouquet of roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Peter Cleary, cousin of the bride, of St. John's, Newfoundland. After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Sears (nee Cleary of St. John's, Newfoundland). The presents received were numerous and costly. The groom's presents to the bride was a diamond necklace, and to the bride a diamond wrist watch; to the best man a gold cigarette case. While the guests were dining away to the strains of a fine piece of jazz orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Duffy spent their honeymoon in New York, visiting a cousin, Mrs. Harold Bennett, of St. John's, Newfoundland. When they return they will make their home at 107 Appleton St., Boston, in a large house, a present from the bride's mother.

Neediness of Increased Exports.

Is it any wonder we are suffering from adverse exchange rates? The only correctives are, we repeat, the curtailment of imports of non-essential articles and the increase of exports. So far as a country's currency is at a discount, the cost of exports is increased, and price fluctuations tend to change legitimate business into speculation. We Canadians have been fortunate in that our exchange relations with the United States have been fairly stable compared with those of other countries with the United States. The premium on American funds ranged from eight to nineteen per cent. during the year ending November 30, 1920. Contrast this with the discount on other currencies in New York on December 31st; Sterling 27%, French exchange 68%, and Italian exchange 82%. Difficulties incident to a period of falling prices in Canada and abroad have been lessened by the fact that this year's field crops in the Dominion have been abundant, and are estimated to represent in value an increase of $134,000,000 over the previous year, this despite the fact that the acreage sown in 1920 was about a million acres less than the previous year, and the average price for wheat is low compared with the price paid in the United States last year for the entire crop, viz. $2.83 per bushel. The percentage of the total wheat crop which has been unfurnished by the United States and the market for wheat has been a feature, but their place in the market has been taken to a certain extent by the United States and various continental countries.

Best Year in History.

C. E. Neill, the general manager, in reviewing the statement for the past year, said: "The statement submitted to you to-day records another year of substantial progress. The total assets of the bank are now $594,670,013.43, an increase of $61,022,925.50 for the year ending November 30, 1920, the growth being $61,022,925.50. It will be noted that this is a shrinkage in net deposits, which is accounted for by the fact that on November 30, 1919, we had large deposits in connection with subscriptions to the Victory Loan. The substantial increase in our ordinary deposits is a particularly noteworthy feature. We are glad to know the rich can buy Champagne, but why should it not be the saving of the people. We hate to say it like the duke! You have been really led astray. OUR price is reasonable to you."

Sunken Kingdoms.

When the ancient kingdom of the Assyrians fell through effeminacy and negligence 3000 years after the Trojan War, many parts of its territory were out of its ruins, two of which raised themselves to a high degree of power. The kings of Media subdued the mountain land of Persia and established relations of amity with hordes that wandered on the eastern side of the Caspian Sea; they conquered also a portion of the empire which had centered in Nineveh. At the same time the king of Babel, or Babylon, flourished with still greater magnificence and power. In Babylon, ancient seat of learning and science, Nabopolassar, after a long period of anarchy and division, erected a most powerful monarchy, whose sceptre Nebuchadnezzar, his son, extended from the Caucasus Mountains, where he defeated the Iberians to the sandy deserts of Lybia. He burnt Jerusalem, defeated Ammon, Moab and Edom, conquered Tyre, and made the Phoenicians, laid waste Egypt and formed his empire on new boundaries. He adorned Babylon, the city of his residence, with the noblest works of architecture, but of this city the ruins are scarcely discernible. It is still more difficult to trace the vestiges of Nineveh, which lay a three days' journey from it, and whose ruins sink in the marshy soil.—Detroit News.

Strange Standards Which Have Led Men to Battle.

The word "standard" is usually associated with some soft, highly-colored material streaming in the wind, but the military standards of the ancient world were for the most part carved objects, wrought in wood or the various metals, fixed to the end of a long staff and carried to battle.

The standards of the Egyptians often assume the form of various sacred animals. The most characteristic Egyptian standard, however, is the fan, which was a sacred instrument with the Egyptians, as, indeed, it was, and still is, throughout the world of the East. These either assumed the feather which was painted various devices or ornamentation. The king's chariot was always accompanied by at least two of these; upon the field of battle the fan bearers either attended the monarch on foot, or took command of a division with the rank of general.

With the Greeks, the flag at the prow of vessels, either carved or with painted ornamentation representing some natural device, as a mountain, a tree or a flower, was the means whereby ships were distinguished from one another. In the earliest days of the Roman Empire, the greatest simplicity in war insignia obtained, the military ensign being nothing but a wisp of hay or grass fastened to the top of a pole, hence a company was called manipulus or handful of herbs.

The chief standard of Rome was the eagle, this symbol occurring most frequently on the monuments.

Japanese Battle Fans.

The employment of the hand fan in war was general in China and in Japan up to the period of the Japanese revolution in 1868, when the army of the last-named country began to be reorganized according to European methods. The Chinese general, Tchou-Kohiang, commanded his three army corps holding a fan of white plumes.

Japanese battle fans are of two kinds—the flat, rigid screen (uchiwa) which is the earliest, and the folding (ogi). The first-named is either entirely of metal, usually iron and brass, or of lacquered wood, fixed in a metal framework and ornamented both in lacquer and metal inlay. In the folding fan, sticks are of iron, with a strong paper leaf or mount generally ornamented with the sun, moon or North star usually in red, but also in gold on a black or colored ground. Both were employed by generals for direction, offense and defense; in other words, as baton, weapon and shield.

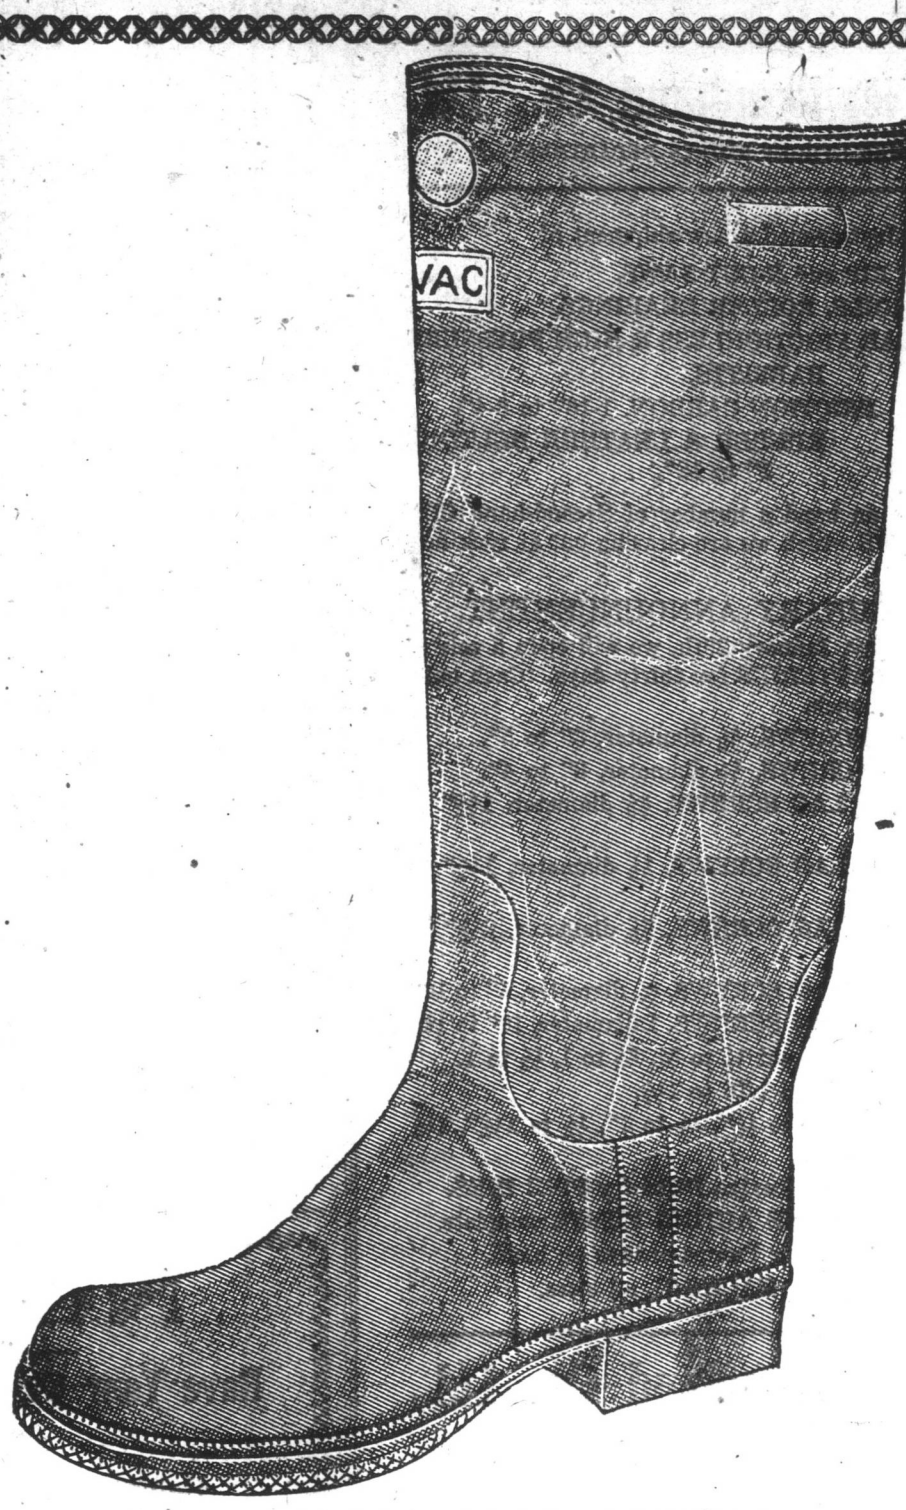

The first banner mentioned in English annals displayed a representation of the Nazarene and silver crosses. English troops believed that the saint whose banner was displayed would interest himself in their behalf; thus the standard of St. Cuthbert was carried with the army of Edward I. into Scotland, and with that of the Earl of Surrey to the Battle of Flodden Field.

Standards Driven by Oxen.

The standards of the eleventh and twelfth centuries, being too large to be wielded by a single hand, were sometimes fixed in a scaffold upon a car driven by oxen, guarded night and day by knights attended by as many trumpets. This was the case at the battle of Northallerton, or the battle of the Standard, fought in the reign of Stephen. In this instance the standard consisted of three sacred banners dedicated to St. Peter, St. John the Baptist, and St. Wilfrid of Ripon, the staff being ornamented with a silver pyx at the top.

The earliest arms of France were the three frogs (crapauds). The ancient kings of France bore the blue hood of St. Martin on their standards, and this was the device that Clovis adopted in his struggle with Alaric in 507.

The office of standard-bearer was usually granted for life; it was one of peculiar privilege and trust, demanding personal qualities of high order. From Froissart it is learned that at Poitiers the Lord Geoffrey de Chaurigny carried the banner of France as being the most variant and prudent knight of the army.

Railway Conquest of the Dark Continent

THE CAPE TO CAIRO LINE.

Engineering enterprise of modern times has been surrounded by difficulties and dangers as the line of the Cape to Cairo Railway, which was to be the first to cross the continent, has been a fight against the forces of Nature. Hindered by Lions.

The railway was pushed northward through many difficulties. Some of the lions objected to the line of the road, and it required considerable tact before they were induced to allow trails to be through their territory. The track winds its way across the veldt, through the thickets of virgin forests, and the lions are a constant menace. The line is to be built in sections, and the first section, from Cape Town to Cairo, is now being completed.

English annals state that Raaf Vestryden held ($50) a year by letters patent under the great seal till rewarded with an office, granted him by Edward IV. for the good and agreeable service he did unto us in beryng and holding of our standard of the black bat at the batayl of Sherborne.

Jimmy Wilde a Fallen Idol.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Part of London looked to-day with feelings almost akin to despair on the shattered pieces of her last ring idol.

Standards Driven by Oxen.

The standards of the eleventh and twelfth centuries, being too large to be wielded by a single hand, were sometimes fixed in a scaffold upon a car driven by oxen, guarded night and day by knights attended by as many trumpets.

Stomach Acidity Causes Indigestion!

Food souring, gas, distress! Wonder what upset your stomach? Well, don't bother! The moment you eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapiesin all the lumps of indigestion pain, the sourness, heartburn and belching of gases, due to acidity, vanish—truly wonderful!

Millions of people know that it is needless to be bothered with indigestion, dyspepsia or a disordered stomach.

A few tablets of Pape's Diapiesin neutralize acidity and give relief at once—no waiting! Buy a box of Pape's Diapiesin now! Don't stay miserable! Try to regulate your stomach so you can eat favorite foods without causing distress. The cost is so little. The benefits so great.

Wilde undertook a superhuman task in giving the American a fifteen and one-half pounds weight handicap.

Wilde entered the ring against the advice of his best friends.

Wilde entered the ring against the advice of his best friends. By coming into the ring suffering from overweight Herman forfeited the bantam weight championship. Although defeated, Wilde is the bantamweight champion of the world to-day, the Daily Graphic said.

Herman was outboxed from the beginning. His superior weight saved him, said the Times.

Wilde tried the impossible. Herman was always too strong. Only in the fifth round did Wilde show his real form and it didn't bother Herman, the Mail said.

After the fight, Herman told the United Press, "Wilde is the greatest little boxer I have ever seen in my life."

"That's all I can say," Herman plans to said Saturday for American. As the end came in the seventeenth bout to save the little Welshman from the ignominy of a knockout.

Although in the last round Wilde three times had been knocked through the ropes, he was still coming back for more punishment when the referee caught him in his arms, ended the battle and gave the decision to Herman. The fight had been advertised as being for the bantamweight championship of the world.

The men had agreed to weigh in at 118 pounds, but Herman was one and a half pounds over the stipulated weight.

The first five rounds were in favor of Wilde. Then the advantage alternated until the fifteenth, when Herman's weight began to tell on the Welshman. Early in the seventeenth a right to the jaw sent Wilde through the ropes.

This was twice repeated and the referee ended the contest.

Previous to the fight the announcement of the British Board of Boxing Control that it could not proclaim the bantamweight title at stake until more details of the Lynch-Herman fight are procured from New York, threw some cold water on the hopes of the British that Wilde would annex another title, but it did not detract from the interest in the fight.

The Cobbler's Reply.

(Thomas Potter)

The shoemaker entered the shoe shop on Monday morning and found the shoemaker whistling at his work. Looking down at him condescendingly he said, "I am glad to see you so happy at your humble calling." The shoemaker, dropping his work for a moment replied, "My brother, I never want to hear you call it an humble calling again. It is the work God gave me to do, and if, when we stand in the judgment, it is found that my shoes are better made than your sermons, I will get the better reward." And the shoemaker was right.

PERFECTION TIRE!

With the market turned upward and this issue steadily advanced from a "low" of 90 cents to present bid $1.50, asked $1.62, it would be advisable for clients who sold Perfection to consider this situation.

There is diversified opinion on the outlook of the tire industry but Perfection is admittedly underpriced and a much enhanced market may occur before another recession.

Is Perfection groomed to continue upward or does the present market warrant "short" selling?

We are fully equipped to handle your orders either way and we offer you careful executions and prompt confirmations.
