Things as They Are and As They Might Have Been-An Unconfirmed Report of Further Outrages by Big Bear. HUMBOLDT, N.W.T., May 1.-The Body guards arrived to-night and will remain in camp here for the present.

The York Rangers, Simcoe Foresters and The York Rangers, Simooe Foresters and the Winnipeg Cavalry are stationed at the fort. The men are in good spirits and health. Extra px.cautions are still maintained, one hundred men being kept under arms during the night, with an extra guard.

Old residents say too much is being expected from the South Saskatchewan, which rarely rises before June or July, when the snow on the rockies melts and fills up Bow, Belly and Red Deer rivers, its principal affluents.

WINNIPEG, May 2.—Immediately on receipt of the news of his brother being wounded' telegraphed to General Middleton offering his Services. They were accepted and he has gone to the front. Capitaln Swinford, the eldest brother, is captain and quartermaster of the Sth battalion, and is stationed at Qu'Appelle.

Achilie Blais of the 9th battalion of Quebec, lied in hospital here yesterday from typhoid fever.
John Davidson, of the 7th Fusiliers, London, is seriously ill at the hospital, but will recover. There are fifteen other volunteers at the hospital as the result of the hardships encountered on the trip north of Lake Superior.

The Mysteries of French Domination. Cor. of the Winnipeg Sun. OTTAWA, April 27 .- Some light is being thrown upon the Ouimet mystery. It appears that both Col. Ouimet and Amyot are Chap-leauites and opponents of Col. Caron as minister of militia, who is the dominion leader of the latter faction. The Chapleaultes say that fighting against halfveeds is intensely unpopular in Quebec, and that to do so means political suicide. They boldly insinuate that the effect of Col. Caron's selecting the regiments commanded by Cols. Ouimet and Amyot for active service will be to kill them politically and to remove from his path two prominent chapleauites. Altogether it looks as if the breach between Mr. Chapleau and the Castor were widening.

Col. Outwet Rejoins His Regiment. CALGARY, May 1.—Col. Outmet and his adjutant arrived yesterday, and proceeded this morning to join his battalion. He was accompanied by the Alberta mounted rifles, who will act as scouts with the force at Red Deer. Deer.
There is no doubt whatever that Gen.
Strange's expedition to Edmonton saved that district from an Indian and halfbreed rising.
Rev. John McDougall has written a long letter in which he states that the troops arrived in the nick of time.

Unworthy of Reliance. the capture of four more women by Big Bears The same courier asserts that John Walkinshaw and Albert Harkness, both from Ontario, were killed over a week ago. Their wives and the wives of the two missionaries are priseners. This report was circulated here, but so far nothing confirmatory has been received and the courier bringing it is not believed to be worthy of trust.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N.W.T., April 19.—

Dear Mother; I write in camp on Sunday atternoon. All well. We have not smelt powder yet. We all attended field service this forenoon. The general and all his staff was there; the colonel read service and the band of the 90th furnished the music. We were then warned against disobeying orders by the colonels of the regiments. The general complimented us on the manner in which we stood the hardships we have met with, though what they were I do not know. It is all good fun so far. We outnumbered every other battalion. They were four days ahead of us at the start and at the finish only half a day. The Q. O. R. are having a regular picnic, doing it all by rail and boat.

It says: 'Does anyone believe

3. That one did go there?
4. That there was any such conversation?
5. That there were only twenty rebels?
6. That Middleton's force could not dislodge twenty?"

Provision for Our Volunteers.

We are pleased to notice that a suggestion made in these columns regarding the using of barbed wire in the fortifications in the Northwest has been acted on. Some of the forts already have the fences completed. We now respectfully offer another viz.: that to every volunteer on active service in the Northwest the government give a grant of at least 3200 acres of land free of all duties; to each of those wounded it give as a bonus a lump sum of money ranging from $200 to $2000 and that to each family losing a supporter, i. e. father, son or brother it gives at least $300.

This will forever settle the business and at the same time be doing justice to the brave boys at the front. There are many whose health will be permanently shattered by cold and exposure. These should also be recompensed. One hundred thousand dollars would cover almost the entire expenditure in this connection, and there is not a taxpayer in Canada who would object.

Major Walsh's Ideas.

At Port Arthur Major Walsh was interviewed by a Sentinel reporter and expressed himself recity freely. After stating that Major Crozier must have lost his head at the Duck lake fight be said: "Col. Irvite, should have gone back when he met Crozier and camped on the fields that night. Next morring be should have attacked the enemy, if there was any in force, or arrest the leaders of the party he met the previous day. There were 250 men counting Croziers police and settlers all well armed and determined. With that force and the assistance in different localities of the loyal settlers he could have managed the whole affair. Instead of retreating to Prince Albert, which was perfectly safe, he should have dispersed any gathering in the neighborhood of Duck Lake and pushed on for Battleford, where he was needed. The settlers would have been all right life had shown he was masic of the position. The Indians and other turbulent characters were actually encouraged by the colonel's failure to even hold his own. His over-cautiousness was carried to even greater extent than Gen. Middleton's, and at a time when the whole Indian population were watching to see if he was carried to even greater extent than Gen. The Garrison Artillery paraded to night and the enthusiasm was unbounded. Hundreds througed the men so that they could hardly move at the drill shed door. There seems to be an idea that British Columbia and the coast defences against the Russians is the destination of the regiment. This, however, is not credited by the well informed. Lient, Col. Oswald addressed the men stating that they had been the first called out from the sith military district, that the telegram calling them out for active service had been despatched previous to his arrival in Ottawa, and that, therefore, it was through no influence on his part that they sad the honor of the first called out from the 5th military district, that the telegram calling them out for active service had been despatched previous to his arrival in Ottawa, and that, therefore, it was through no influence on his part that they had the honor of the first call. He trusted that before leaving and when there they would obey orders and do their duty. He might say that when he found out the regiment was ordered for service, that he looked to the comforts of the men, the result being that the necessary stores and equipment would leave Ottawa to ni Another Trunk Tragedy.

Mr. Wallis, mechanical superintendent, remarked, as an indication of the falling off in the cost of machinery, that they can purchase locomotives for $6000 to-day which cost $9000 in 1883 and $12.000 in 1882. He also insisted that he had show the 10 per cent. reduction to be only temporary, and that when the old rates were warranted by improved rates the men would get them. He says that the Grand Trunk could destroy 450 freight and twelve passenger cars, with thirty-two engines, and still have the complete capital stock intact. The men meet to-morrow morning again to discuss the situation, and expect then to hear from some delegates who went west yesterday to see the men of the western division.

A large mass meeting of the mechanics employed in the car and locomotive works of the Grand Trunk &t Point St. Charles was held in that vicinity yesterday morning to discuss the proposition of the general manager to reduce the wages of the men ten per cent. In opening the meeting the chairman referred to the reception the deputation appointed had received from the chief of the mechanical department, He said Herbert Wallis replied to their representatives that the men would have to agree to the reduction, but they would be employed full time, which was, more in their interest than being idle half time perhaps. Mr. Wallis also remarked that men could accept lower wages as living now was cheaper than formerly. Messrs. Ramsay, Firth and Penny, mechanics, combatted the argument of the mechanical superintendent as not being correct, and all held that it would be better to remain on short time than to accept a reduction in wages. After a ppeals by the various speakers to the men to be united and determined, Mr. Firth proposed a resolution that the men stop, work at once unless Mr. Wallis to inform him as to the decision arrived at by the meeting. should make the government cautious of accepting the so called "aid" offered by the Canadians. The government of Canada will neither assist nor encourage such a movement as that headed by certain military, or rather milital, officers in the dominion, but (as they did during the American civil war) they will allow as much recruiting to be carried on as England likes to pay for, secretly well satisfied with getting rid so easily of a horde of unsettled and unemployed "tramps," whom assisted immigration and false promises have lured into the country to starve. And very probably, if England accepts this "aid," besides being expected to pay a high price for The public are con ably, if England accepts this "aid," besides being expected to pay a high price for It to the conceited "troops" themselves, she will be called upon at no distant date to recognize her debt to the dominion by helping it in its thickening financial embarrassments. The Canadian parliament, individually and collectively, has as little love for England as the American house of representatives. It is just as well to bear in mind that the "loyalty" of a Canadian minister or politician is a shoddy deception, put upon the market at a valuation infinput upon the market at a valuation infin-itely beyond its worth. Scared to Death By A Newsboy. From London Truth. In ordinary circumstances howling newspaper sellers are merely an unmitigated nuisance, but in times of war they become something considerably worse. At present, for instance, these bawling ruffians carefully ascertain the localities in which the relatives of officers serving in Egypt are living, and at all times of the day and night they perambulate these streets and squares, and madden nervous women by yelling out all manner of horrors and atro. vities. A case which has just come under my notice exemplifies the unfortunate reaults which may follow from this pernicious practice. The wife of an officer on duty in Egypt was in an exceedingly delicate state of health, having recently been confined, and was, of course, extremely nervous about her husband's safety. Down the street one night came a brace of leather-lunged newspaper vendors, bawling out—"Another great battle!" "Slaughter of the guards!". "Eavy British losses!" "Many officers kitled!" &c. Terribly frightened, the unfortunate lady sent out for a paper, and at the same moment a loud ring at the front door announced the arrival of a telegram. The message was from her husband, assuring her of his safety, but, believing that a terrible catastrophe had overtaken the guards' brigade, she—on seeing the telegram—at once controphe had overtaken the guards' brigade, she—on seeing the telegram—at once concluded that it contained the news of his death. She swooned away, and died a few days later, literally from the shock. Needless to say that the slaughter of the guards was a pure invention, improvised because the bawling ruffians knew where the house was. But cannot something be done to protect helpless women from being terrified to death by the yelling of false news?

COOK'S AUTOMATIC POSTAL SCALES

Indicates instantly the Postage to be paid on Letters, Newspapers and Parcels.

Small Loose Weights Required.

These Scales are designed to meet a need of something simple, convenient and correct for Postal Weighing.

Their novelty consists in their SELF-ADJUSTING WEIGHTS and REGISTERING DIAL, giving instantly the weight of article and the amount of postage to be paid.

A single indicator tells the whole story by means of four circles of accurately divided spaces, properly figured.

The exterior circle shows the weight by half ounces; the next, the postage required for Letters; the third, that for Book Post, and the inner circle indicates the cost of Parcel Post All calculated for Canadian Postal Rates.

These scales are built for a capacity to the limit allowed to be sent through the mails, which is five pounds; but in order to offer them as low as possible to mean of the cost of the postage required in the cost of the cost of the limit allowed to be sent through the mails, which is five pounds; but in order to offer them as low as possible to mean of the cost of the cost of the limit allowed to be sent through the mails, which is five pounds; but in order to offer them as low as possible to mean of the cost of the limit allowed to be sent through the mails, which is five pounds; but in order to offer them as low as possible to mean of the cost of the limit allowed to be sent through over one pour means of four through the mails.
