Poetry.

In September.

Mornings frosty grow, and cold, Brown the grass on hill and wold;

Crows are cawing sharp and clear
Where the rustling corn grows sere;
Mustering flocks of blackbirds call;
Here and there a few leaves fall,

In the meadows larks sing sweet,

Oft comes faint report of gun!
Busy flies buzz in the sun—

Evenings chilly are and damp,
Early lighted is the lamp,
Fire burns, and kettle sings,
Smoke ascends in thin blue rings;
On the rug the children lie;
In the west the soft lights die;

From the elms a robin's song
Rings out sweetly, lingers long—
In September.

Under the law, as it now stands, members of the legislature are paid the sum of £300 stg. a year for their services. An agitation is now going on in favor of doing away with this allowance to members, and requiring them to serve without any remuneration whatever, as has hitherto been the case with members of the British House of Commons.

The system of payment of members has led to the election of a large number of so-called to the election of a large number of so-called to the election of a large number of so-called to the election of a large number of so-called to the election of a large number of so-called to with marked attention by a very large congregation. The last session lasted for ten months, much longer than it takes the British parliament to transact its busitness; yes the amount of useful legislation passed was so small that it became the subject of general remark. Now it is proposed to get rid of these garrulous individuals by branch of the public services. If he makes a nuisance of himself by talking upon every one of the most successful and practical Sunday-school conventions held in this country was convened in the Baptist church in this town last Wednesday, 20th inst.

To abolish entirely the payment of members, as is now proposed in our sister colony of New South Wales, would drive from parliament every poor man, however talented he might be, and leave the legislation of the country altogether in the hands of the wealthier classes. This is surely not desirable, as these would be inclined to legislate in the interest of the class to which they belong, to the neglect of all others. The people of New South Wales should be able to find some easier and more reasonable method of ridding parliament of these talkative labor representatives. Their experience, however, is a striking evidence of the fact that it is a mistake to measure a meminal meeting, and urged the officers of schools to forward returns, thirty schools in the score of the Sunday-school or officers, receiving of reports from vice-presidents, and the reading and discussion of a paper by Bro. N. B. Dunn: subject, "The atmosphere of the Sunday-school room."

At the afternoon session the following essays were read: "Normal Teaching," by Miss Whitman, of New Albany; "The Use and Abuse of Lesson Helps," by Mrs. A. Cogswell, of Centreville; "The Sunday-school Officers," by Bro. A. F. Newcomb, of Bridgetown. These papers were commented on by Revs. F. M. Young, J. T. Eaton, Erb and Allen; Bros. B. H. Parker, S. N. Jackson, N. B. Dunn, B. W. Sahfner, and others.

The secretary stated that the complete statistics would be furnished at the seminanual meeting, and urged the officers of schools to forward returns, thirty schools having already done so. subject which comes up, and upon all occa-

The mass meeting held at Middleton on Thursday last seems to have proved very satisfactory to its promoters and to have passed off very pleasantly and successfully. Although some twelve or fifteen hundred people attended the meeting, fully one-third of whom differed politically from the speakers, there was not, we learn, a single interruption of any kind, or any offensive remark made, during the three or more hours the meeting lasted. On the contrary, each make received a courteque and attentive.

We still have too many men who always vote one way, no matter whether the party which they support has acted wisely or not. When the number of these becomes lessened, and their place is taken by those who dare to vote one way at one time, and another way the next, if they think the interest of the country requires it, we shall have reached even a higher state of

The Baptist church at Mevern Square was re-opened last Sabbath, 24th, after undergoing extensive repairs. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. E. E. Daley, B. A., of Berwick. Text, Zach. vi, 15.

The discourse was an able one, and was liamed to suit by marked attention by a very ject of general remark. Now it is proposed to get rid of these garrulous individuals by abolishing the payment of members, and Sir George Dibbs, the present premier of the colony, has declared in favor of such a change and is making it a main issue in the contest.

It is extremely doubtful, however, if the proposed change, should it be carried out, would prove a wise one, or in the best interest of the people of that colony. The man who serves his country in parliament has as much right to receive some remuneration for his services as the man who serves it in the army, or navy, or in any other branch of the public services. Frank Sabeans again at Liberty.

The notorious Frank Sabeans, who was committed to the county goal at Annapolis some few weeks ago by Stipendiary Cox, to await trial at the October term of the supreme Court for the robbery of Mr. George Annapolis devoted a very tame affair, while rotten eggs, dead cats and various other accompaniments, were frequently called into requisition, in order to add spice and variety to the proceedings. Now, there is no place, in this county at least, where the speaker, who treats his audience courteously, cannot get the same treatment in return. Men seem to be growing more liberal minded, more tolerant of the views, sentiments, and prejudices,

IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

Is mechanically constructed upon scientific principles, symmetrical in shape an que in design.

Each section of the corset is so formed as to maintain the vertical lines of the body, Each section of the corset is so formed as to maintain the vertical lines of the body, and readily conforms to the figure of the wearer.

It is stayed with strips of highly-tempered spring ribbon steel, which is superior to any other boning material owing to its flexibility, smoothness and durability.

Each steel (or stay) is nickel-plated, highly polished and guaranteed not to corrode, metal tipped to prevent the ends from cutting through the fabric, and electro-magnetized, thereby transfusing a mild galvanic current throughout the body, strengthening the nerves, assisting the action of the heart and imparting additional vigor and energy to both body and mind.

The steels (or stays) are incased in separate pockets and can be removed or replaced at pleasure through openings near the top of the corset, and are so distributed as to afford the necessary support to the spine, chest and abdomen, while at the same time so pliable that they yield readily to every movement of the body, thus assuring constant comfort to the wearer.

These corsets are made by experienced operators, from superior fabric, carefully examined by experts, and guaranteed not to break or roll up like inferior makes.

Ladies who, after giving them a fair trial, should not feel perfectly satisfied can return them to the merchant from whom they were purchased and get their money refunded.

A well-known captain, who sails out of St. John, returned home one day last week, after a year's absence. Picking up his favorite child, a bright little tot of five summers, he was surprised to find that her weight and stature had not increased as it should. Looking into her eyes, the father said, "Polly, what a little craft you are! Why don't you grow, dear, like your mother?" "Why, papa," said the tot, "I haven't dyspepsia. Mamma uses Groder for dys-

The Duty of Sympathy It should not be hard for mothers to put emselves in the place of their eager, impetuous children and thus sympathize and appreciate their efforts. It must have a chilling effect upon a lad in the midst of an exciting description of a game of ball to tell him he forgot to wipe his boots. Furthermere it does no good.

We often limit sympathy to pity or appreciation of the condition of those who are in mental or physical pain. But in everylay experience we have quite as much rea son to sympathize with those who are happy and complacent as with their opposites, and much more frequent occasion. And our failure to sympathize with those who are happily situated is as much a cause of friction in the home as our hardness of heart would be were our friends in trouble.
