THE TERRIBLE EUROPEAN WAR

HAWK'S TROOPS ARE WATCHING EVERY MOVE OF THE WILLY ENEMY

And it is Their Belief That If Germans Launch Their Offensive They Will Pay a Hellish Price For Any Ground They Get.

(By Philip Gibbs, for the New York Times)

WAR CORRESPONDENT'S HEADQUARTERS, February 25—Although today is dull, the previous two days had been wonderfully bright for the time of year, with a blue sky over the sea, and the British airman made the most of the visibility by getting out and about across the German lines, noting the changes there, and watching for any movement on the rails and roads.

It is not often in this war nor in any other that one can see the enemy in actual battle, for as a rule if a man is seen, he dies. But two days ago I had a chance to see many German soldiers behind their lines, no bigger than ants to the naked eye, but through one's glasses quite clear and distinct as human creatures. Busy with some purpose of their own, they came winding down the track 2,000 yards away, not knowing, I guess, that they could be seen from the hummock of earth whither I had crawled into a hole to look through a squint box.

LIKE MEN OF ANOTHER PLANET

First came a column of lorries and then a body of marching men and then a party of cyclists. The track was white in the sun against the green of the grass, and these men moved very slowly, like a creeping shadow. It gave me a queer emotion to see them there in their own lines, these old grey men, who are hidden as a rule until the British go forward in an attack to rout them out of their holes and ditches after enormous bombardments. It was as if one saw the inhabitants of another planet through some mysterious telescope.

FRENCH TROOPS ATTACK THE GERMANS

Entered the Enemy's Lines Over a Large Front, and Captured Over Four Hundred Prisoners

PARIS, February 21—French detachments made a heavy attack on the Germans in Lorraine yesterday, entering the German lines over a large front and capturing more than four hundred prisoners, according to the war office announcement. The text of the statement reads:

"In the Argonne we repulsed an attack at Four de Paris and inflicted appreciable losses on the enemy. In Lorraine, north of Bures and east of Moncel, (northeast of Nancy) our detachments penetrated the German lines deeply on a large front. This operation, brilliantly carried out, enabled us to bring back prisoners, the number of which are known to exceed four hundred.

"In the Vosges there was quite marked artillery fighting in the region of La Fave."

Tuscania's Total of Dead 204

WASHINGTON, February 21—The official estimate of losses by the torpedoing of the troopship Tuscania was issued today through the committee on public information.

It states that there were 2,179 officers and men aboard; 1,971 saved; known to be dead, 127; still unaccounted for, 81.

The unofficial compilation has shown 126 known dead; 33 unknown dead, and 72 still missing, including the unidentified dead.

The official compilation at American army headquarters last night put the total dead at 204.

Weymouth Colored Men Go Insane

YARMOUTH, February 21—Word has just been received here, that a colored man, of Weymouth North, went suddenly insane this week, and attempted to murder his wife, by striking her with a heavy stick of wood. She got away from him and was not found for some hours, when she was discovered in a closet upstairs hiding in terror. This is the second colored man in Weymouth to go insane this week.

STEAMER TOWED OVER 1200 MILES

RECORD LONG DISTANCE TOWED IN ROUGH WEATHER

Eight Stout Hawsers Required to Perform the Work—For Many Hours the Ships Were Unable to Make Headway Against the Big Seas.

HALIFAX, Feb. 22—There are on record many long distance tows by steamers or tugboats, nearly all of them made at a season of the year when winds are moderate and the task is comparatively easy, but the arrival here of a Cunard liner with the crippled American steamer Clara, 3,937 tons, dragging on eight stout lines running from the Cunarder's stern, eclipses all previous towage records. Barges, yachts and other craft may have been towed longer distances—the Clara was towed twelve hundred miles—but it is doubtful if any other vessel has ever brought her tow to port under conditions such as these which the Cunard liner above referred to had to combat. The Clara lost her rudder and the machinery was disabled.

THIRTY AIRPLANES DESTROYED

In Airplane Fighting on Tuesday Eleven Machines Were Brought Down—Air Attack on Thionville

LONDON, February 21—Twelve German airplanes have been accounted for by British airmen and one by infantry, says a statement on aerial operations last night, which also announced successful attacks on Thionville and Pirmasens, Germany. The statement reads:

In air fighting Tuesday eleven hostile machines were brought down and another was driven down out of control. At night a bombing machine was brought down to No Man's Land by infantry. Two of our machines are missing.

Tuesday night Thionville again was attacked successfully. Twenty-six heavy bombs were dropped on the railway station and a large explosion was caused and two fires started. All our machines returned safely. Today our airplanes bombed large factories and the station at Pirmasens, Germany, and dropped a ton of bombs. All returned safely.

FLORIZEL LOST SUNDAY MORNING

RED CROSS STEAMER FLORIZEL WRECKED NORTH OF CAPE RACE

11 Survivors out of 77 Passengers and 69 Members of Crew—Struck in Raging Blizzard During Saturday Night and Founted Herself to Pieces on Rocks.

St. John, Nfld., Feb. 24—The British steamship Florizel, from St. John's for Halifax and New York, with passengers, was pounded to pieces by combbers, a few hours after it went ashore at Freshwater Point, seven miles north of Cape Race. The number of passengers—passengers and crew—who are thought to have perished, is placed as high as 145.

The meagre reports received from the isolated spot where the Florizel, a Red Cross Line vessel of 3,081 tons gross, went upon the rocks, have failed to mention that any lives have yet been saved. Heavy seas made fruitless the efforts of rescuers and agents of the line here said they believed there could be no survivors. Already the bodies have begun to come in from the sea.

Beating her way due south, the Florizel plunged into a blinding snow blizzard. She rounded Cape Race in a heavy sea and was hugging the shore when she piled on the rocks. After sending a single S. O. S. call, her wireless became silent.

The steamer, in charge of Captain William Martin left here last night at 8.40 for Halifax and New York. Her crew comprised 69 all told and she had 59 saloon and 27 steerage passengers. It was fine when she left, but a snow storm soon followed and by midnight a furious blizzard was raging over the whole country-side and extending seaward where it must have made the Florizel's progress difficult if not impossible.

She should have rounded Cape Race shortly after midnight but at 5 this morning she reported herself by self-wireless message heavily ashore near Cape Hayden, fifteen miles north of Cape Race, and fast breaking up. When daylight broke men from the fishing village hurried to the scene and found that some few men were visible on deck, but that there was no chance of helping them owing to the mountainous seas raging.

Forty-four survivors of ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., February 25—Boat crews from the Newfoundland steamer Prospero, braving the breakers which are battering to pieces the wreck of the Red Cross liner Florizel on the ledges north of Cape Race, today took off forty-four survivors, all that were left alive of the ship's company of 136. The death list tonight stood at 92.

Of the rescued 17 are passengers. Only two of the twelve women aboard and none of the four children were saved.

THE SOLDIERS' VOTE

Further Returns Increase and Decrease Various Majorities.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—Further returns of the soldiers' vote in Canada, show that Quebec is the only province where an opposition candidate received more votes from the men in khaki than did the government candidate. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Quebec East, got 73 votes, while Drouin, the government candidate only received 42. In Quebec West, Parent, opposition, got 120 votes to 31 for Chasse, government. Alphonso Verville got 76 votes from soldiers in St. Denis, while Houle, his opponent, got only two.

In matane of the soldiers' votes polled, Pelletier, the endorsed Laurier candidate got them all and Boulay, the Nationalist-Conservative member in the last house got none. Jacobs, the Laurier candidate in Cartier was given 48 soldiers' votes, while his two opponents got two each.

In Dorchester, Hon. Albert Sevigny received five votes as against two for his successful opponent, Lucien Cannon.

Down in Nova Scotia, Duff, the opposition candidate in Lunenburg, who had a majority of over 800 has only had it cut down by a little over 100. In Inverness, where Dr. Chisholm had a majority of nearly 1,600, the Unionist candidate only received 48 as against 19 for Chisholm. In Digby and Annapolis Davidson, Unionist, secured 169 and Lovett, 45.

LONDON, February 21—The Daily Mail's Petrograd correspondent, telegraphing Wednesday afternoon, says that the latest developments there have made impossible measures of assistance which the Allies were preparing to give Russia in her fight against the enemy.

FIFTY-THREE LITTLE TOTS CON-SIGNED TO EARTH

A Sad Scene at the Funeral of the Victims of the Grey Nunery Fire in Montreal

MONTREAL, Feb. 21—Fifty-three little white caskets, each containing the body of one of the victims of the Grey Nunery fire, were buried from the chapel yesterday afternoon.

Archbishop Bruchési, assisted by the Rev. Father Thibault, chaplain of the Grey Nunery, had charge of the funeral services, which were held in the Holy Cross Chapel. A choir of thirty voices, all Sisters, led the singing of the "Canticules of the Angels" in a chapel which was half filled with ferns and flowers, in which the little white caskets were almost concealed. When the last words were spoken, the Sisters, in eighteen carriages, rode to Cote des Neiges cemetery as if loath to part with the little ones.

The bodies were brought to the chapel yesterday morning, and hearses and carriages were provided to remove them later to the cemetery.

In the spring the children will be buried in the Grey Nuns' community plot in Cote Des Neiges cemetery, and the Sisters will erect over the Common grave a monument to those who perished.

A Valuable Souvenir

Annapolis Spectator says: A substantial and valuable souvenir of the battlefield was received this week by Town Clerk Harris, from his son Kenneth, who had been enjoying a fortnight's leave and sent the article from Edinburgh. It is a field glass of superior make taken from a German officer, the casing being so constructed as to be non-breakable, the lenses for each eye being of separate operation and adjustable to any vision, while a graduation system gives the range of objects according to their visibility. It is certainly a scientific production of the latest type.

Austrians to Attack Italians
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Official despatches from Rome today interpret the recent closing of the Swiss frontier by Austria to indicate troop movements to the Italian frontier in preparation for a renewed offensive.

Italian aviators, the despatches say report continued arrival of fresh enemy troops from the Russo-Rumanian front. Alien Plotters
CAMP LEWIS, Tacoma, Washington, Feb. 22—Four national army soldiers were held in the guard house today, awaiting a presidential warrant from Washington, which will mean their internment as aliens, who plotted not only to shoot their officers the first time they got into action in Europe, but also to deliver all the American soldiers to the German army.

VANCOUVER URGED TO FOLLOW SUIT

The Daily Sun Urges Westerners to Adopt Halifax Edict on Passing to Right.

The Vancouver Daily Sun says: "Halifax has adopted an edict that traffic is, in the future, to pass to the right, instead of to the left, as heretofore. Thus she gets herself into line with the rest of the continent. Isn't it about time for British Columbia to do likewise?
"The rule of the road, which requires traffic to keep to the left had its origin in England, where it still prevails. On the continent of Europe and in the United States the custom has always been to keep to the right."
"The mere weight of numbers is bound at last to compel the adoption everywhere on this continent of the rule to keep to the right. In fact, it is already done, more or less, in some sections of the interior of British Columbia, thereby adding appreciably to the risks of travel. There is also confusion caused among tourists passing from one side of the international boundary to the other, to say nothing of the incidental danger of collision."
"The subject is perhaps not of immediate and pressing importance. But if Halifax is able to shake itself loose from a custom which is nothing but a surviving mark of provincialism—not to say parochialism—surely there ought to be enough energy and progressive spirit in British Columbia to follow her example."

HOOVER APPEALS TO SHIP WORKERS

Must Have Ships to Send Food Across the Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, February 20.—Food Administrator Hoover, in a statement today called on all patriotic ship workers to enroll in the public service reserve. No amount of amount increased food production, decreased food use, or food substitution and saving will help unless ships for sending food across the Atlantic are available, he said.
"My anxieties about ships are no less numerous and various than those about food itself," said Mr. Hoover. "Hence it is with me the utmost earnestness that I endorse the idea of creating a voluntary reserve of men, from which the man power necessary to solve the great problem of shipping can be recruited as rapidly as it can be used. For every army of fighters there is necessarily a much larger army of loyal, eager men devoted to the maintenance of the fighting unit. One is as essential and truly patriotic a service as the other."

LIVED OVER 100 YEARS

The Oldest Man in New Brunswick Has Passed Away.

Sackville Tribune: There died recently in Midgic, Mr. Joseph C. Smith, probably the oldest man in Sackville Parish, if not in the Province of New Brunswick. He claimed that he was eight years old at the time of the great Miramichi fire in 1825, which would make him over 100 years old at the time of his death. When the great fire took place, Mr. Smith was attending the school at Richibucto and he well remembered how the cinders fell in all directions. Deceased at one time lived in Dorchester, later in Cole's Island, and recently at the home of Mr. Phineas Sears, Midgic.

We are glad to report that Mr. Stafford Guest, who is a patient at the Kentville sanatorium, is improving in health.
Quite a number of the young people of this place, attended the supper held at Parker's Cove on Monday evening last. All report a very enjoyable time.

No Fish Hooks.

A traveller for a well known jobbing house of Toronto, was in Yarmouth last week. His house handles immense quantities of fish hooks and lines. The price of these, like the price of everything else has gone up in leaps and bounds, but the possibility is that it will go up still higher. This gentleman informs us, that at the present time, there is not a fish hook being manufactured in the world, even the immense factories of Mustad, in Christiania, Norway, having been diverted to munitions.

MOTHERS TO BE

Should Read Mrs. Monyhan's Letter Published by Her Permission.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, sometimes I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.
Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WITHIN FOUR MILES OF JERICHO

Gen. Allenby Again Advances Three and a Half Miles on Palestine Front.

LONDON, February 21—A further advance of three and one-half miles on a front of seven and three quarter miles, has been made by the British forces in Palestine, the War Office announces. The British are now within four miles of Jericho. The operations are being continued.

The British losses on Tuesday, when an advance was made on a fifteen mile front east of Jerusalem, were very slight. Yesterday's losses have not been reported.

The British also advanced north-west of Jerusalem to a maximum depth of one mile on a front of four miles. The text of the statement reads: "Yesterday our advance east of Jerusalem was resumed, despite heavy rainstorms. Moving through a difficult country, in which the enemy offered obstinate resistance, our troops made progress to the extent of three and one-half miles on a frontage of about seven and three quarter miles, within four miles of Jericho.

"At the same time our line was advanced to the northwest of Jerusalem, in the sector west of the Jerusalem-Nablus road to a maximum depth of one mile on a front of four miles.

"Co-operating with this advance, our air service made effective bombing attacks against enemy camps and depots on the left bank of the Jordan about Shunet Nimrin, ten and a half miles east northeast of Jericho.

GIRLS! ITS YOUR STEP THAT ATTRACTS

Says Women Pay too Much Heed to their Face Instead of Corns

"Watch your step! A brisk, lively step is what charms more than a lovely skin, but your high heels have caused corns and you limp a little. That's bad, girls, and you know it. Corns destroy beauty and grace, besides corns are very easy to remove.

Rid your feet of every corn by asking at any drug store for a quarter of an ounce of freezone. This will cost little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops applied directly upon a tender, touchy corn relieves the soreness and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out without pain.

This freezone is a gummy substance which dries instantly and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding skin.

Women must keep in mind that cornless feet create a youthful step which enhances her attractiveness.

Three Million are Facing Starvation.

NEW YORK, February 21—Information that three million persons in Turkey, Armenia, Persia and Syria, now face death by starvation has been received here by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. In addition a cablegram from United States Minister John L. Caldwell, at Teheran, transmitted today to the Board by the State Department, that "Beggars multiply and hundreds swarm the streets piteously crying for food and at times in their desperation assaulting those beseeched. Similar conditions are reported from all Provinces and cities of Persia."

Submarine Sinkings Show Decrease.

LONDON, February 20—British merchantmen sunk by mine or submarine in the past week numbered fifteen according to the admiralty statement issued tonight. Of these twelve were of 1600 tons or over and three were under that tonnage. One fishing craft was also sunk.

The arrivals at ports in the United Kingdom for the week numbered 2,322; sailings, 2,395. Eight vessels were unsuccessfully attacked.

The sinkings for the past week show a slight diminution from the previous week, when nineteen merchantmen were sunk, thirteen of 1,600 tons or more and six under that tonnage.

TOO MUCH TALK ON WAR AIMS

Lord Milner Says That the Allies Are Fighting For Their Lives

LONDON, February 21—Viscount Milner, member of the War Cabinet, speaking at Plymouth today, deprecated too much talk about war aims. "Until peace negotiations are reached," he said, "we are fighting for our lives and the very existence of the free nations of western Europe. As a result of the collapse of Russia, the military party of Germany is again firmly in the saddle. Doubtless many of the people of Germany loathe the continuance of the blood-shed for mere aggression, but at present they are quite powerless."

Lord Milner contended that it was no longer a question of destroying Prussian militarism, but whether Prussian militarism would destroy the Allies and dominate Europe and part of Asia.

"President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George have made it perfectly clear," he continued, "that we have no desire to dismember Germany, dictate her constitution or exclude her from a fair share of the world's intercourse. There can be but one answer to Germany's challenge, and that answer may involve greater sacrifice and endurance than heretofore."

Lord Milner then referred to the Versailles War Council, which brought much nearer to real co-ordination the effort of the Allies and to concrete realization the great conception of a single Allied front. He had no fear of a revolution in England, and, he said, national unity and the co-operation of all the free nations of the world would assuredly bring an enduring peace.

What Canada Has Done.

To those who know nothing of the vast quantities of high explosives and munitions of all sorts shipped across the Atlantic in the past three years, the biggest wonder in connection with the Halifax tragedy is that something of the kind has not happened in one of our harbors before. Every single day for more than two years past Canada alone has shipped 40 to 50 carloads of munitions and an average of 35 carloads of other army supplies. That means that two very long freight trains loaded with supplies, more than half of them explosive in character, have gone to the wharves daily for the voyage across the Atlantic. But not only has there been no earlier accident on shipboard, but it is noteworthy that not a ship loaded with Canadian munitions or other supplies has been a victim of the U-boats, with the single exception of the Mount Temple two years or so ago. That ship, loaded with horses, was sunk, but every man in the crew was saved.

That record is a very remarkable one, when we consider the great increase in commerce that it indicates and the loss of shipping that commonly comes in peaceful times. The U-boat have claimed victims among ships returning to Canadian ports for other cargo, but every shell, every overcoat or every pair shoes or every bushel of wheat or case of canned goods that left Canada for England or France has reached its destination safely in spite of submarines and storms and present perils in the cargoes themselves, such as wrecked Halifax.

His grandfather was for many years Rector of Cornwallis.

No More Big Stamps.

The Annapolis Spectator says: The sale of the big brown confederation anniversary 3 cent stamps has ceased at the local post office and the majority of people are thankful. As there wasn't any discount on these stamps and it was doubtless an extra tax on the people for their cost, to say nothing of the extra amount of energy and juice required for adjustment, the reward to the public was not very apparent.

WHERE DUTY CALLED HIM

A Much Travelled Soldier Returns to Nova Scotia.

The Yarmouth Telegram says: Sapper David Jack, who crossed to England about three years ago and enlisted in Kitchener's army and navy, has been granted an honorable discharge and has returned to his home in Yarmouth. While in the Imperial Service Sapper Jack had a wide and interesting experience, which, at times, was hazardous. He was on the patrol service of the English channel and the Thames and later was on similar work about Mesopotamia. Then he was at Bombay and from there he was sent to Cairo, Egypt, where he was on guard duty over Turkish premises. After spending some time there he was sent to Suez Canal, where he was put on a dredging outfit. On several occasions, while in that part of the world, he was stricken with malaria, which so impaired his health, that he was ordered to England. To get to England he was put in the engineer's department of a large hospital ship and travelled all around the coast of Africa, stopping at several South African cities and finally arrived in England in July last, where he has since been on depot work until his health got so that he was no longer fit for the active work of the army. He is now resting at his home for a few days, after which he will again enter the employ of the New B. J. Iron Co.

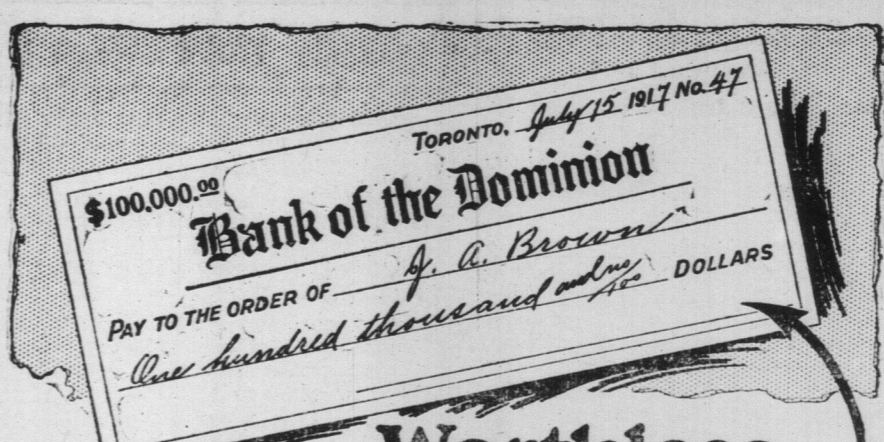

A CONTINUOUS PROCESS

Can't Stop Making Vinegar For One Single Minute.

PHILADELPHIA—One vinegar factory here has been in continuous operation 24 hours a day every day of the year for 52 years and another for 40 years. This fact was brought out when the owners of the factories appealed from the Fuel Administrator's order, closing industries for certain periods to save coal.

Vinegar experts testified that to stop making vinegar would ruin the tanks in which it is manufactured. Alcohol is placed in tanks lined and packed with beech shavings. If the generating process is halted, the shavings are dried or burned up and are useless.

To stop for a day would mean closing for six months, said a large manufacturer. Much of the present output of vinegar here is used in making explosives.

A Regular Attendee.

We know that our venerable friend, "B. B.," was well informed in historical facts; he also knew that he had travelled extensively, visiting more cities and towns on this continent than any other man residing either in Canada or the United States, and as he always appeared to be "one of the boys," we had formed no idea of his age. We are reprinting, however, the following from last Friday's Annapolis Spectator:

A Circle Reception.

A reception for Roundhead Soldiers, Major Gibbs and other returned soldiers, will be held in the Primrose Theatre Friday evening, March 1, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Mayor and members of the Town Council and Trade. After enjoying a few reels of pictures, refreshments will be served, followed by "smokes," after dinner speeches, and a general good time. Gentlemen wishing tickets can obtain the same from Com. W. H. Maxwell, which are being issued at 75c each, to cover expenses.

Local Happenings

The Baptist Women's Missionary Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Burpee-Chute Tuesday evening, March 27th, at 7.30.

Don't forget the Ladies' Short Course in the Demonstration Building, Lawrence-town, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 28 and March 1st.

An alarm was rung in Saturday morning for a small fire in the Payson building, Granville street, which was soon extinguished.

Centrelea Red Cross will meet at Mrs. Ed. Messenger's Thursday, Feb. 28th, and the following week, March 7th, at Mrs. Victor Caldwell's.

We have had stormy Tuesdays for the past three weeks, but yesterday's downpour of rain, together with the icy sidewalks, made it one of the worst days of the season.

On Saturday evening, March 2, at 7.30, in Providence Methodist church, Bridgetown, the Rev. W. H. Heartz, D. D., of Annapolis, will give an illustrated lecture on Egypt and Palestine.

Lunenburg Weekly News: Small congregations at the churches Sunday, owing to the storm. A day of sacred rest for the working classes, and a day of indulgence for the fair weather Christians.

There are a few business men in Bridgetown who do not have an advertisement in the MONITOR. We know if they would once give our columns a trial, they would stay with us. For certainly advertising pays.

DEATH OF MRS. THOMAS LAWSON

A Prominent Resident of Kings County Has Passed Away.
[Berwick Register.]
We deeply regret to have to announce the death of Mrs. Thomas Lawson, of Gratton, Kings county. Mrs. Lawson, who was a native of Ulster, was a most estimable woman, and her removal is deeply mourned by all who had the privilege of her acquaintance.

The funeral on Saturday was, notwithstanding the very severe weather of that day, very largely attended, not only by residents of the immediate neighborhood but also by friends who came from more distant parts to pay the last tribute of love to a departed friend and to express their sympathy with the bereaved. Services were conducted at the house by the Rev. Mr. McFall, Rev. H. S. Shaw and Rev. Mr. McLeod, of Waterville, taking part in these services. The pall bearers were Messrs. Grant R. Bowles, K. R. Norton, Andrew Morton and H. McK. Neslin. Interment was at Waterville cemetery.

The bereaved family, consisting of the husband, three sons, Thomas, of the Finance Department, Ottawa; Peter J. of the editorial staff of the Halifax Herald, and David A., an official stenographer in Chicago, and two daughters, Miss Christine McL. and Miss Gertrude (Pineo), have the sincere sympathy of very many friends.

DEATH OF HARRY PORTER

Wintering Young Horses Outside

(Experimental Farms Note.) With the prevailing high cost of building material and labour, many farmers are deterred from going very extensively into live stock raising, under the impression that a heavy outlay for buildings is necessary.

Such is not the case. While work horses and milking cows require warm stabling, sheep and poultry, in order to be profitable, must be kept away from warm quarters; brood sows do excellently in small individual cabins; young cattle thrive when running outside with only a shed for shelter. Even dry cows and idle work horses can be wintered under cheap shelter.

The reason these classes of live stock do so well wintered outside is that they get what is hard to obtain when kept inside, namely, fresh air and exercise, and are, as a result, in good health and fit for profitable breeding operations.

WINTERING YOUNG HORSES AT CAP ROUGE

During five years, fifteen different young horses were wintered outside, at Cap Rouge Experimental Station, with only single board sheds as shelters. Though the temperature went down as low as thirty-one degrees Fahrenheit below zero, not a single one has ever been known to shiver. Moreover, as a rule, they commence to shed their hair earlier in the spring than others kept in the barn. During an outbreak of influenza, all the animals inside, were sick whilst not one of those in the pen was affected.

Any shed, which is free of draughts and with an opening to the south, will answer the purpose. If it is placed on a slight elevation, so that water may not run in, there is no need of a floor, ground floors are best. Shingles or paper may be used for the roof, which must be perfectly rain-proof, for metal will get the place too warm during the summer. As only one thickness of lumber forms the sides, it should be grooved and tongued.

PERM REQUIREMENTS OUTSIDE

The main objection to keeping stock in cold shelters during winter has been that more food is required. That the contention is correct cannot be disputed, if the conditions were always perfect in warm shelters. But, as a matter of fact, there are very few well ventilated barns in the country and it is a question whether there is not as much loss of food through bad digestion, due to the foul air breathed inside such buildings, as through the extra amount given outside.

Matting the Breeding Pen.

(Experimental Farms Note.) The shortage of labor and the tremendous increase in feed prices make it imperative that only the very best producers should be kept. Stock that would return a substantial profit in pre-war times, when feed was cheap, will now, under the changed conditions, show a loss. This, perhaps, applied more strongly to poultry than to any other class of live stock as the securing of suitable feed is becoming more and more difficult.

In the matting up of the breeding pens these conditions should be borne in mind. Aim to use nothing but your very best birds as it is only from these that the highest results can be obtained.

SELECTING THE BREEDERS

The male to head the flock should be from a high producer and if possible to know that his sisters are showing their ability to lay, all the better. Not only should his pedigree be right but he should show vigor in every move. A bird of this description will show a fairly broad head with a rather short stout beak, a bold piercing eye, a skin that is soft and velvety to the touch.

Scott & Bownes, Toronto, Ont. 17-15

shanks with fine scales and showing a certain amount of red pigment down the outer sides.

His mates should be vigorous females that have shown by egg production what they can do. If trap nests are not used—and they are not on most farms, band those pullets that start to lay first and select the breeding pens from them.

The ideal mating is a well developed cockerel of the foregoing description mated to young hens, but if enough hens of the desirable type are not available, do not hesitate to use pullets, so long as they are well matured and vigorous, they will give the best of results.

A Seven-Year-Old Hen Flock.

For some time the experts who write for the poultry papers have told us that it is not profitable to keep hens in the laying flock more than two years. In order to test this claim the Utah experiment station has made a study in annual egg-laying production based on the records of a flock of seven-year-old hens and their progeny. This has led the station to make some interesting observations and conclusions.

The hens in the test were White Leghorns, descended from a small number of individuals introduced into the poultry plant some nine years ago. Taken as a whole, the flocks were unselected as far as egg production is concerned. They were, however, always selected for vigor.

The average productive life of this strain of fowls appears to be about four years. The average first year production of all flocks in the test was 124 eggs. The average second year production was exactly same as the first, while the average of the third year was only one dozen less. The normal variation in the first year flock averages in between 100 to 160 eggs, the second year between 105 and 140, and the third year between 100 and 120. After that the averages for all ages has been very close to ninety eggs per year.

The total production of a flock for the first three years appears to be the same regardless of whether the first year record was extremely high, extremely low, or medium in amount.

Nearly all of the longer-lived hens of a flock will lay over 500 eggs; the majority of them will lay over 600 or 700, while individual records running from 500 up to nearly 1,000 eggs may be expected. In the flocks making low first year records the second and third year records were high and there was little difference in production in these two years between the high layers and the low layers of the first year.

In the flocks making high first year records the second and third years' records were low but the higher layers of the first year continued to be the highest producers.

The ten hens making the highest second years' records gave a higher three-year total than the ten making the highest first year record.

More hens have made their highest year's record after the first year than during that year. Three hens made their highest record the fifth year.

Nearly all the hens in these flocks whose total production has been extremely high, have made low or only medium first year records. One hen laid 103 eggs the first year, 197 the second, 188 the third, 72 the fourth, 103 the fifth and 103 the sixth year.

Minard's Lintment Cures Distemper.

The Corn Crop in Quebec.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Nearly every farmer knows what his corn crop means to him in his live stock work. First, it makes, when put into the silo, one of the most cheapest and most palatable of feeds as well as one that makes a good balanced ration with clover, hay, roots, and a small amount of grain, for milk production as well as beef. It is also very serviceable to feed to sheep, idle horses and colts in limited quantities. Second, it is one of the best crops to work into your farm rotation, for the frequent cultivations that are necessary to get the best results with corn, clean the soil well of weeds and leave it in the best possible shape for the following crop, which is generally grain of some kind seeded down with ten to twelve pounds of clover and ten pounds timothy added per acre.

At the Experimental Station, Lennoxville, Que., it has been found that corn does the best on a clover sod. Manure is spread in winter on the corn ground as drawn from the stables so as to save labor, at the rate of about fifteen tons of manure per acre.

In spring, this manure is ploughed under with the green sod, turning into a shallow furrow, say five inches. The manure and green sod, when turned under and packed properly, commence to decay, warm up the soil and give the young corn roots the best chance possible. The ploughing of the corn ground may be left until nearly ready to plant for the soil is then generally in better shape to work. The plough is followed with the double disc harrow so as to pack the furrows, save evaporation and also to get a good seed bed before the soil gets baked, as it will if left exposed to the sun long after ploughing before being worked.

By all means be sure to have as perfect a seed bed as possible before planting for that is half the battle. When you have this be sure to have the best seed possible with good germinating qualities and of the variety best adapted to your district.

At Lennoxville, in the Flint varieties, Compton Early and Longfellow, and in Dents, Wisconsin No. 7 and Early Learning have been found to be about the best.

Corn should be planted thirty-six to forty inches apart in rows according to the variety, but if weeds and couch grass are present it might be preferable to plant in hills three feet apart each way in order to allow for cultivation both ways. When planting in rows, try to arrange to have the rows run north to south in order to let in the most sun possible which is needed so much in this district for this crop. Frequent cultivation and the hoe around the plants are very essential.

As to the mode of harvesting and conserving this important crop the silo is strongly recommended, but if shocked up in quite large shocks and tied with binder twine near the top and left in the field until required the corn makes very good feed when run through the cutter though not nearly so much relished as in the ensilage.

Died at 115.

A Charlottetown, P. E. I., despatch says: Miss Lizzie Palmer, the oldest person on the island, if not in Canada, died in the Provincial Infirmary here, aged 115. She was born in Nova Scotia and came to the island when a child and has been a ward of the government since 1883. She became blind two years ago. Previous to that she had regained her second sight and could read without glasses. Her hearing was acute and otherwise she was normal.

Calling a Bluff

Among the advertisements in a paper appeared the following: "The gentleman who found a purse with money in it is required to forward it to the address of the loser, as he is recognized!"

A few days afterward the reply was inserted: "The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse requests the loser to call at his house."

Store the Ice.

By storing all the natural ice that it is possible to harvest, ice companies, farmers, creamery owners and others will help materially in saving ammonia this year. Even at the present time there is an absolute shortage of ammonia in the United States of 60,000,000 pounds per annum for war and commercial purposes.

Shortage of Feed

According to a recent statement made by Mr. H. E. Brotherton, President of the Board of Agriculture, there were only enough oats available in Britain to feed working horses on reduced rations, after making allowance for milling stocks. There was no concentrated food for cattle feeding and this shortage would continue for at least a year, he declared. He was afraid that all carriage horses which had not been sent out to grass would have to be killed, while hunters would have to be sent to grass and kept there.

Allied Aviators Raid German City.

AMSTERDAM, February 26—A raid by Entente aviators on Treves, East Prussia, is reported in a despatch from that city to the Cologne Gazette. It says bombs were dropped in various parts of Treves, causing damage to property. No military establishments were injured.

There is a city of about 45,000 inhabitants, on the Moselle River, 35 miles from the French border.

Get Out Your Sap Buckets.

Farmers and others who have maple sugar outfits, even if they have not been in use for years, should put them to work this year. There is a sugar shortage, and Canadian maple trees should be made to produce to the maximum. So even if you haven't the most up-to-date equipment, tap all the trees you can and make the most of the facilities you have on hand. There'll be a good market for all the maple sugar and syrup produced.

Thanksgiving Day In Burgess Pass

FOR one who thinks of Banff as the only place in the Canadian Rockies—where you can get a good meal and a good night's sleep, who think of summer days playing tennis, afternoon teas at the hotels, bridge and dances in the evenings, the following paragraphs may be of interest.

Having spent the summer and fall in the mountains, making my gradual climb of Cathedral (10,453 ft.) to become a member of the Alpine Club, staying in camp south of Hector and spending the remainder of the time at the Club House in Banff. I still had not had enough of the mountains and took the morning train from Banff to Field, where I had full seven hours before leaving at night.

Where to go in that time was the question as there were so many delightful and charming spots. Burgess Pass was said to be very beautiful walk, and being fond of walking I started out alone at 1.15 p.m. The trail was good, having been used by ponies all summer going to the Yoho Valley. It was a steady but gradual ascent all the time; the timber was heavy and beautiful, the autumnal tints on poplar trees and fruit bushes gave just the needed touch of color. Added to the beauty of the foliage were high banks of moss in varied shades of green and bronze, and the bright scarlet of the pigeon berries was seen along the trail; a stream came rushing madly down the mountain side, as if to retard one's progress, but the usual "stepping stones" were there, I already felt repaid by my first hour's climb. Mount Stephen and Cathedral could be seen to advantage at this point and needless to say the summit of the latter interested me, for I had not forgotten my seven hours climb to reach it.

Time passed, at last the peak loomed up which I thought must surely be my goal. I immediately took a short cut over some rock and shale, thinking it would soon lead to my wonderful view, but alas! nothing but dense timber was ahead. After several attempts the trail was found and it was a steady climb till another ridge loomed up. As Mount Burgess was now on my left and I was walking along the base of the summit, and could see the sky line between some scraggy trees (they were now fewer and farther between) I knew it was no distance to my summit. Two and a half hours had now gone by, though the day was perfect and the sky cloudless, so that one could obtain the best of views. I wondered if it would be worth the climb.

Unless one has climbed, the indescribable expectancy as you reach a summit cannot be understood, nor can it be even by those who climb. You held your breath and wonder in which direction to look first; each step means so much, like steps taken slowly and deliberately in some great crisis in life. They are of such importance. The first snow-capped peak appears—a few more steps are taken when a glacial hung summit comes into view; then more peaks with their snow fields, even the crevasses were discernible, another few steps and the summit is reached; never as long as I live shall that moment be forgotten; looking ahead for the summit I little dreamt of the view behind. Mountains, mountains in all directions, as far as the eye could reach—Mount Burgess to my left with Emerald Lake lying at its base (more green, if possible, than any emerald) in a most beautiful valley. President and Vice-President ahead of me, Mount Wapta to my right, with its pony trail leading to the Yoho on its side, Cathedral and Mount Stephen southeast of it, and to the south range upon range of snow-capped mountains. I was literally dumb and numb of soul. No thought or words could express such a moment, it was several minutes before I could think, and then I found my soul breathing a prayer of joy—utter joy in the fact that I was alive and could enjoy such a view. It surpassed even the Grand Canyon of Arizona. To be under the canopy of heaven with no living thing in sight as far as the eye could reach, where only silence is heard, for a while such as that is not noise, for the "infinite" speaks. It surpassed any service ever attended on Thanksgiving Day. I was not only on the summit, but further away I knew not where, on another plane; another world—at least in the world of thought.

The sun was now dipping behind Mount Burgess and how quickly the colors changed, the Emerald Lake became the color of olivine, the mountains began to grow hazy. It was time to leave or darkness would overtake me, so I started, loath to go. After an hour and a quarter walking steadily I sat down to rest: the coloring was now in all the rich tints of Roman days. The mountains were blues and purples, the pine trees looked dark and dismal, and the yellows and reds of other trees looked deeper and richer than they had an hour ago.

The dusk was falling quickly, and the path was barely discernible when nearing the end of the trail. The lights of Field now began twinkling through the trees like so many stars. There were fifty minutes before my train left, though one had just passed and I wondered if I had mistaken the time on account of the mountain and Pacific time, so why leave! I sat down on the trail, the night had come, the day was passed and my wonderful walk a thing of the past, but what memories, and what a Thanksgiving Day. One never to be forgotten. "Alone!" No, one is not alone when with Nature, for many voices are heard: such were my thoughts at this moment when I heard a sound—what was moving on the trail? A figure emerged from the gloom, and he too was "alone." I spoke first and asked if the train that had just passed was the regular, and to my joy it was not. This "Lonely Figure" had walked fourteen miles. We went back to the hotel together. Kindred spirits and one with nature. He told me of his travels in the Alps and the Sierras, but nothing that expressed it perfectly. We both agreed that to see the real nature of the mountain, the beaten trails and high roads should be left and the pony trails and high roads should be taken, either on foot or on horseback, and we inspiring ourselves, and awe-inspiring ourselves, the Canadian Rockies can be seen to the best advantage. A few days should be spent at Field, or if time will not allow, at least miss one train to go through Burgess Pass, for the whole trip is certainly worth that one glorious view.—E. C. McDi.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Wall Street Journal Comments on Cost to Canada
It has been estimated the taxpayers of Canada in forty-seven years have lost $268,000,000 in operating the 1,736 miles of road known as the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island lines, without any allowance for taxes collectible had they been privately owned. This is in addition to $112,000,000 officially given as the capital cost of these roads. The thirty-two-mile Windsor branch of the public road, under Canadian Pacific management from 1881 to 1914 earned $662,000 net, or more than one-third of all net earnings of the Intercolonial since 1887.

Determined by the attitude of successive governments toward public operation, it would seem the craving for control was rather sharpened by a record of twenty-five annual deficits. Certainly there has been no marked development toward a change to private management—not even of the portions of the Intercolonial contiguous to the Windsor Branch. The results of inefficient service may prove harmful to shippers and burdensome to taxpayers, but no Government has yet shown a disposition to relax operating control, if the Manitoba taxpayers got nothing from Intercolonial, the Quebec taxpayers will get nothing from Hudson Bay Railway.

Canada has a highly representative and responsible form of Government, at least as amenable to orderly public opinion as our own. Its oldest public railway originated in circumstances of apparent general interest, having very much of the character of a public utility which public operating control is now claimed on this side of the line over other things beside railroads. There is one moral for both countries. Political operating control of any form of business or finance is much easier to grant than to resume. When it becomes necessary to confer it, neither a parliament nor a congress can afford to measure the extent of the powers created by the intentions, no matter how good and unambitious, of the Government for the time being.—Wall Street Journal.

PATRIOTIC PORK

"Just about the time them pigs is ready to sell—down goes the price," argued old John, his lean, white face determinedly pessimistic. "I've raised pigs a-many years, and I dunno as I ever caught the big price yet!"

"You git scared, that's why," said young Jimmy Greer from his seat on the dry goods counter. He was, in point of fact anything but young, but because his father, old Jimmy Greer, had been so painfully economical of names this elderly son still carried the distinguishing adjective.

The storekeeper opened the ancient box stove, and thrust in a weighty maple knot. When he had lighted the lamp he prepared to depart.

"You boys talk away," he said.

"I'm goin' to slip into the house an' get my supper while things is quiet, but I won't be long."

As the door slammed behind him, old John snorted contemptuously.

"Never asks us if we have a mouth on us!" he said with bitterness. "When he comes up so my place delivering goods,

I dont run away in to get my dinner, and leave him standing out in the shed!"

"Sho!" returned the other, amiably. "Don't chew, John! You wouldn't go in to supper if he did ask you, so what're you talking about? Wish the mail would come along and then we could both go home, where we'd ought to be—doing chores. Did you get them little pigs o' Wat Semple's?"

"Got eleven. I went back to get the other nine, but I was just a leetle late," mourned old John, whose grievance was chronic, with various acute symptoms. "I might 'a-know somebody would snap 'em up at $12 a pair. I've got to buy every thing them pigs eat—they ain't much profit in pigs anyway; they just eat grain, no hay nor straw. I'd maybe been better to let 'em be."

"Well, what'll you take for the lot—$70?" asked the other, scenting a bargain afar off. Old John was somewhat startled, but he was not to be caught so simply. He shook his head.

"I've fed 'em over a week now, and pork is going up, you know something awful! Couldn't do it. I've got 'em and I'll take a chance on 'em, but I wish a fellow had some way o' knowin what the price would be, six or eight months from now."

"Oh, it'll be good enough. I guess. The Government guarantees a good price, and if the rest of the world is starving it ain't right for us to set back and haggle about the price."

"There—if that isn't just the same old song!" Cried out the old man irritably. "That's what they all say! But looky here. I put my money this Fall into cattle to beef through the Winter. Then, in place of getting a new range for the kitchen, the missis bought a Victory Bond and made me get one, too! Now I gotta borrow the money to buy them pigs, and buy their feed. If I knowed what they would be worth next September, I'd know just how deep I could go—I could maybe buy another litter next month. I can buy the feed cheaper, too, if I buy it all at once. I ain't aiming to make much out of them, but I don't want to be behind on them."

"You won't run behind," retorted young Jimmy encouragingly. "You'll be doubling your money on them, sure thing."

"Well, maybe, unless a lot o' them dies—or I get sick myself. It's a lot o' carrying, mind you, to pump water and fetch swill for all them pigs. I've got fourteen o' my own as well, and nobody but me to do that an' everyting else, too! Then I bet you when time comes to market that pork, the price will go flat—you'll see."

"John, John, if you ain't the blamest old bunch of groans ever invented! Don't you see the harm you're doing with your long face and your everlasting lamentations? You would discourage anybody from going into this pork business—and why? Not because you really want to discourage people, but just because you are a natural-born dark lantern! Gosh, I'd be ashamed if I was you! Course there's nothing certain in this world, but the chances are that pork will be a big price for long enough. People ain't paying for the article—they are paying for the scarcity, and the scarcity can't be done away with very quick. Your pigs ain't likely to turn up their toes to the daisies for a while yet—an' I've knowed you since I came to this neighborhood, but I don't remember of you ever missing a meal!"

Old John regarded him fiercely. Few people can bear with equanimity the imputation of perfect health.

"Knowin' as much as you do, it's a wonder you ain't famous," he said scathingly, but without rancor. The other man gave him a look of mingled affection, amusement and exasperation.

"Tain't what you know that makes you famous—it's the use you put your knowledge to!" he said sensibly. Now say, John—here's you and me. We're both well known around here, and tolerable well respected, for people know we're honest and have some sense. There's two paths open to us—patriot or traitor! Maybe it don't look just like that, but then carbolic acid looks quite a bit like coal oil—if your eyesight ain't very good. And it makes quite a difference which you spill on your hands. We've got to choose our line of action. We can get the grouch off our chest onto everybody else and rile up this neighborhood to a regular fever of discontent and uneasiness; we can pretty well put people from laying out their strength and money for their country. We can be real pro-Germans and never know it. Or—"

He paused a moment, his plain, homely face lighting up with earnestness. His small shrew eyes appraised old John gently but determinedly.

"Well?" prompted the old man, with pardonable peevishness. He loved a sermon as little as anybody could—and he was annoyed over being taken at a disadvantage.

"I wonder just how much we could do!" pondered the other. "A nation is just so many individuals and oh, if they would only stand solid together! That's been Germany's strength right through. If we could only influence this corner of the township, John, to put away grumbling and discontent, and strike right in together to do anything and everything to back the Government, to encourage production, to make the wheels turn round. Think of it, John! Do we hold back—or do we help? Do we take the chance, or lose it? Tain't a matter o' the price o' pork or the scarcity of labor, or any o' them things—it's being willing to do what we can in the face of any obstacle or argument or criticism—and sweeping the neighbors along with us. You ain't going to miss it?"

Old John thrust out a knobbed, gnarled hand, and showed a face of protesting admiration.

"There—there, Jimmy! You always was more or less of a fool, but by spells you talk sense. I never s'posed there was any harm in a little grumble now'n then, but I ain't doing no low tricks on my country. We'll try your plan anyhow—it looks kind o' good to me!"

Two common old farmers sitting in a country store waiting for the arrival of the mailman; calling out of themselves their finest instincts in the service of the nation; planting a seed tiny as a grain of mustard, which shall presently remove a very mountain of distress; pitting their little strength against the cunning of war-bred diplomats and plotters who bolster up a putrid dynasty in seething Prussia; two plain old men, humble in speech, and manners, yet representing the casting vote in the contest which occupies the world. Just how much can they do? Trust them to go ahead and do it anyway.

If both of these questions are answered satisfactorily, there won't be doubt about results. It is our duty today, more than it ever was, to train children to the highest state of efficiency.
