No man Condition.

Perfect health is the condition of the body when digestion is so perfect that the physiological balance between the destruction and construction that goes on ceaselessly in cell life is daily kept normal. —E. B. Warman.

x x x

Start the New Year Bright.

Let every member start the "new year" with the idea that as a matter of duty to the C. M. B. A., each member in order to perpetuate it is bound to bring in at least one new member each year. Get this idea firmly fixed in your mind, then go to work and get the new member at once.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

A fraternal insurance society like the C. M. B. A. cannot afford to stand still, as success means constantly increasing the membership, not spasmodically, but steadily every year. If you took in one member last year, do not think that sufficient, as you should now take in another and next year one more, and so on to the end of time.

Take Your Share of the Burden

The work of increase should not fall upon the few, but should be and is the obligation of all alike. The officers are the chosen leaders and we naturally look to them for inspiration and encouragement. If those who have been honored are listless in their work, what is to be expected of the members who lack leadership.—Pennsylvania Workman.

The Right Kind of Soil.

There can be no proper soil for a child plant to grow in, or to attempt to grow in, than the soil of protest. To learn to conceal is a sorrowful lesson indeed for a child. To learn to conceal honest poverty, as though ashamed of it, is the most sorrowful of the sorrowful lessons in this life, for it is to no little purpose, and is unnecessary afterward.—January Ladies' Home Journal.

Personal Effort.

Experience teaches what may be done by personal effort in accomplishing the most effective missionary work. Without inconvenience to himself the member may make converts to our Order, not only in the holiday vacation, but all through his intercourse with his acquaintances and friends. It is a mistake to suppose that the people with whom we are thrown temporarily in contact have no interest in our system of fraternal protection, and do not wish for light on the matter. To suppose that is to be dangerously untrue to our own interests and human pity. Wherever we see souls behind human faces we may be satisfied that they will be willing to bring protection to, and brighten the lives of their loved ones by availing themselves of the provision our order affords. There's speak a word in season to invite your friends to become members.—Workman.

Health the Mainspring of Success.

The chief essential of success for a young man is, what the vast majority of young men think about the least—that is, good health and a sound constitution. That is the first thing: nothing precedes it. In the battle for success, that should be a young man's first thought, not his abilities, nor his work, but his health. That is the basis: the corner-stone of all. Abilities cannot bring health, but health may, and generally does develop ability.

Valuable Figures.

The Spectator, a legal reserve insurance journal, recently submitted figures of the old line insurance companies showing the percentage of actual mortality cost. The figures cover a period of four years— from 1881 to 1884 inclusive. The figures of each year are given separately. The average showed that in 1881 the percentage of actual to expected mortality was 70.91. In 1884 it was 71.62. In no year given has the mortality reached eighty per cent. of the expected. The figures are very valuable and show the basis on which the rate of the legal reserve companies are placed. The above is the experience of all the old line companies after many years active operation and it seems unfair that they should keep on basing their premium rates on a mortality over 21 per cent. higher than their own experience justifies.—Canadian Workman.

Twentieth Century's Dawn.

"The first people to live in the twentieth century will be the Friendly Islanders, for the date line, as it may be called, lies in the Pacific Ocean just to the east of their group," writes John Ritchie, in the January Ladies' Home Journal of "Where the Next Century will Really Begin." At that time, although it will be already Tuesday to them all the rest of the world will be enjoying some phase of Monday, the last day of the nineteenth century December 31, 1899. At Melbourne the people will be going to bed, for it will be nearly 11 o'clock; at Manila it will be two hours earlier in the evening; at Calcutta the English residents will be sitting at their Monday afternoon dinner, for it will be about 6 o'clock; and in London, 'Big Ben,' in the tower of the House of Commons, will be striking the hour of noon. In Boston, New York and Washington half the people will be eating breakfast on Monday morning while China will be barely conscious of the dawn. At the same moment San Francisco will be in the deepest sleep of what is popularly called Sunday night, though really the early dark hours of Monday morning and half the Pacific will be wrapped in the darkness of the same morning hours, which become earlier to the west, until at Midway or Brooks Island it will be but a few minutes past midnight of Sunday night."

Staying Power the Secret of Success.

The chief difference between the successful and the failures lies in the single element of staying power—is by tenacity of purpose, rather than by sudden dash, however brilliant, that success is won. Hindrances, checks, trials, instead of defeating one should bring out one's native force "able natures," on the contrary, as Balzac strikingly says, "live in their sorrows, instead of converting them into apothegms of experience." They are saturated with them, and they consume themselves by sinking back each day into the misfortunes of the past. To forget is the great secret of strong and creative existence—to forget after the manner of Nature, which knows no past, and begins again every hour the mysteries of her indefatigable productiveness." Hearken to an old English dramatist.

"The wise and active conquer difficulties By daring to attempt them; sloth and folly Shiver and shrink at sight, fail and hazard, And make the impossibility they fear."

The Gold of the Stand.

At a time when all eyes are on South Africa a few particulars of the mineral wealth which brought Outlanders to the Transvaal will prove of interest. Wonderful, indeed, are those great "Witwatersrand" gold fields of the South African Republic. The Dutch word "Witwatersrand" means literally "white water range," and the strip of territory a few hundred miles long and a few miles in width to which it is applied was but a few years ago considered a nearly worthless ridge useful only for the pasture of cattle and sheep, and for even this comparatively valueless. In 1881 it never gold was discovered and in 1882 the value of the gold production was about $1,000,000. It increased with startling rapidity, the production of 1888 being about $10,000,000; that of 1889, $25,000,000; that of 1890, $40,000,000; over $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in each year. This wonderful development attracted to South Africa thousands of people in the hope of realizing quick fortunes. Development, however, showed that the mines could only be successfully worked by the use of costly machinery, and while they have been extremely productive where machinery has been used they were not of such character as to make hand or placer mining profitable, as was the case in California. The gold production in the Rand since 1881 has been over $100,000,000, and careful surveys and tests by the use of drills and other processes of experts show beyond question that the amount probably amounts to hundreds of millions sterling, while the large number of mines which have been located in adjacent territory, particularly in parts of Rhodesia, give promise of additional supplies, so that it seems probable that South Africa will for many years continue to be, as it now is, the largest gold producing section of the world.

Recent discoveries lead to the belief that those wonderfully rich mines are the long lost "gold of Ophir," from which Solomon obtained his supplies making "a navy of ships in Eziongeber, which is opposite Eloth, on the shore of the Red Sea, in the land of Edom, and Hiram sent in the navy his servants, shipmen that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon, and they came to Ophir and fetched from thence gold, and brought it to King Solomon." Commercial intelligence.

Two sides.

The fraternal beneficiary orders have two sides, the fraternal and the business, both are necessary for the perpetuity of the order. Fraternity binds the men together in a united band of brotherly friendship, requiring each one to see that the beneficiary of the deceased member gets the amount of his certificate and to visit the sick care for the distressed and bury the dead. The business part requires the prompt payment of all dues and assessments, the careful scrutiny of the financial condition of the order, and that the members are faithful to the discharge of their duties. Both of these sides need to be carefully looked after and lived up to.

Fraternity is good enough when an order is exclusively built upon fraternal lines, but when combined with family protection it must go hand in hand with business methods, neither one being right of the other and neither one taking up the other; the one is too much fraternity is apt to overlook the shortcomings of the business side, and too much business will trample upon and crush the fraternal. Care is required to prevent the two sides from becoming antagonistic, so that one may be well guarded in its interests and the other well upon by the others of the order.

Not other should be the motto of a Christian.

Great souls are now in this world, others are reverent, to what is over them, while small mean souls are elsewhere. —Carrie

THE NEW YEAR AND THE
C. M. B. A.

Another year with all its memories of pleasure and pain, all its burthen of weal and woe, and all its load of sorrow and sin, is passing into the gulf of eternity, and the world, tenderly regretful of the past, but cheerily hopeful of the future, stands on the threshold of its successor waiting to speed the parting and to welcome the coming guest.

The moment is a solemn one, and almost unbidden suggests a host of reflections, some of which are not without their application to my brethren of the C. M. B. A. and to the noble organization to which we have the honor to belong. The year now going out with the tide has added another to the history of our Association, and I am happy to think that it has also added not only to our experience and to our prosperity and strength, but also to the force of the bond of union, fraternity and affection which links us together in a great brotherhood for the maintenance of our holy faith and the protection of those who are dear to us when our race here has been run. There are gaps in our ranks since I had the pleasure of addressing to you my last Christmas greeting.

The grave has closed over some of our members who were deservedly esteemed by their brethren and their fellow-citizens generally, but while we deplore their loss and honor their memory, we are to some extent consoled by the knowledge that their last hours were soothed by the recollection of the wise provision which they had made through the C. M. B. A. for the comfort of their loved ones. Their passing away emphasizes the moral which our Association aims to inculcate and which should tend not only to the increase of our membership, but to a redoubling of exertion on our part for that purpose. The constant introduction of new blood is as desirable as it is essential to the perpetuation of the order and the extension of its usefulness. This can best be assured by vigorous effort, individual and collective, by demonstration of our prosperity and strength, and above all by the constant renewal of our youth through fresh accessions to our members, and by the example of a genuine brotherhood based on the true sentiments of affection and fraternal union. Indeed, I cannot lay too much stress on the pre-eminent necessity of this last and most important feature of our Association. The principles of true brotherhood, union and affection are its very essence, and by the diligent cultivation of the feelings which underlie these principles will the admirable objects of our noble order be more surely and speedily attained.

I venture to hope, therefore, that the incoming year will witness such additions to our ranks and such fervent recognition of the fraternal spirit, that should ever and always animate us, as will place the C. M. B. A. in the foremost ranks of Catholic Mutual Benefit Associations.

And now at the parting of the ways, looking back to the past and forward to the future, with the old year drifting out and the new year coming in, I can only repeat the assurance I have often given to the brethren of how deeply I feel by the loyal trust they have reposed in me and of how anxious I am for the promotion of their good and that of our Association.

In securing this I may not have been so successful as I would have wished, but I have the proud satisfaction of knowing, at all events, and so have we all, that the C. M. B. A. was never in a more prosperous and flourishing condition than it is at present and that its prospects for the coming year are equally encouraging.

Upon this auspicious condition of affairs, I sincerely congratulate the whole brotherhood and I take advantage of the occasion to wish them all, individually and collectively, with their families, A VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR and many returns of the season.

M. F. HACKETT,

Grand President, C. M. B. A.
Stanstead, 20th December, 1889.

NOTE.

Officers of branches are reminded that the per capita tax, initiation tax and Supervising Medical Examiner's fees for the quarter ending December 1, 1890, are overdue, and should be paid without further delay. See Sections 60, 147 and 176 of Constitution.

1900.

With this issue of THE CANADIAN we begin a new year—the last of the old century.

The year just past has been one of unusual brightness for the C. M. B. A. In no year during the history of the Grand Council of the C. M. B. A. of Canada has the Association made more substantial progress. At no period of her existence has her position been more secure.

Looking backwards from to-day on the grand work we have accomplished we can truly say we have been in all respects a great factor for good. And during the past we have been especially blessed. Our death rate has been exceedingly low and the duration of membership has been markedly increased. From sudden and unprovided deaths, under God's mercy, we have been especially exempt. The number of calls for our charity and benevolence have been decreased, showing our membership to be in a happy and prosperous condition and free from want and sickness and distress.

Our financial position is all that the most sanguine and enthusiastic member could demand.

The remarkably low number of fifteen assessments have sufficed.

Only once in the history of the Grand Council have our assessments gone below this figure.

Our Reserve Fund has gone on steadily building up, until now it forms a bulwark against all danger both for the present and for the years to come.

But it has been in the great increase in our membership that the past year stands out almost unique in the history of the C. M. B. A. of Canada.

About sixteen hundred new members have been added to our roll during 1890.

New branches have been established in every quarter of the Dominion. And the most significant feature of the year's work is the fact that a good percentage of our new membership during the year has come from the old branches. In some branches as many as fifty new members were added during a single month.

There is no dry rot in the C. M. B. A. There is vitality and vigor in the old branches and a love and respect and confidence in the Association where it is best known.

Therefore we review with pride and satisfaction the record of the year just closed, and we look forward with hope and confidence to the year upon which we are now entering.

All along the line the tide has set in our favor. And with the new year let new resolutions come. Let us take advantage of our present high standing in order that we may advance higher still. Let each member resolve to do his duty to our beloved C. M. B. A.,

and make the last year in the old century the proudest in our history.

A happy, happy New Year to our brothers, one and all.

GUARANTEE BONDS.

All branches of the C. M. B. A. of Canada are hereby notified that arrangements have been made with the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, of London, Eng., through its agent, Mr. H. J. McKeon, of Montreal, Que., by which said company will issue a "Blanket Bond," covering all officers of our Association that are required by our Constitution to be under bonds. The Grand Council will pay said corporation the total premium in one sum, and the branches will pay their respective premiums to the Grand Secretary. This will be much better and more convenient for all concerned.

Each branch will therefore remit without delay its premium at the rate of 50 cents for each $100 bonds for its Treasurer and its Financial Secretary. The amount of bond is $1 for the Financial Secretary for each member, and $5 for the Treasurer for each member in the branch. See Sections 171 and 177 of our Constitution.

Example: A branch has 100 members. Its bond is $1 for Financial Secretary and $5 for the Treasurer. Total $1. Amount of premium $1.

The premiums for bonds must be remitted to the Grand Secretary annually in January, and when a new branch is instituted.

OUR APOSTOLIC DELEGATE

His Excellency Mgr. Diomede Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to Canada, was born in 1842, at Pescocostanza, in Abruzzi, Italy, and entered the Order of St. Francis at the age of eighteen. After a brilliant course of studies, under the direction of learned members of his Order, he was, in 1865, sent to the United States. The following year he was raised to the priesthood by Right Rev. Doctor Timon, Bishop of Buffalo.

In July, 1866, he was appointed to the vice presidency of St. Bonaventure's College, at Alleghany, N. Y., filling, at the same time, the chair of philosophy. He became successively secretary of the Franciscan province of the Immaculate Conception, professor of theology, and president of the seminary and college. In 1871, he was transferred to Newfoundland, to assist Mgr. Corfagnani, O.S.F., Bishop of Harbor Grace.

In these various offices Mgr. Falconio gained the good will and esteem of all who had dealings with him, and several years ago when he revisited America after a long sojourn in Europe, he was the object of touching and sympathetic demonstrations on the part of his former spiritual children.

From 1883 to 1892 Mgr. Falconio gave his services to his Order as provincial of one of the Franciscan provinces in Italy. During this term of office he opened a novitiate, founded a house of studies, and re-established a number of convents.

In 1888 Mgr. Falconio had just been named superior of his province for a more as is necessary, and the sad condition of our brother, who is a good man in every way, with a helpless family of little children, is a most worthy case for the charitable alms of the members of our Association.

Brother M'Donough had a small property, which he has lost since his illness in securing treatment for his disease, and is now totally dependent upon charity for the existence of himself and family.

Branch 11 has delayed for a good while making this appeal, but the very serious and hopeless case of Brother M'Donough and his children compels us to ask the members of the C. M. B. A. of Canada, at this season of "good will to all men," for an alms to a most distressing case, and also as a thanksgiving offering from all those enjoying the inestimable blessing of health.

Brothers, we hope that you will, in your charity, send a contribution to help gladden the heart of our poor brother, that he may not have added to the knowledge of his own condition, the thought of his children and wife in want.

Yours fraternally,
JOHN F. N'KELI, President.
E. C. ARMAND, Rec. Sec.

Approved by Rev. A. Chaine, Spiritual Adviser.

All contributions to be sent to E. C. Armand, Box 149, Arnprior, Ont., and will be placed in the hands of a committee of the branch for the care and support of Bro. M'Donough and family, and acknowledged in THE CANADIAN.

Arnprior, Dec. 18th, 1889.

London, Dec. 27 1889.

E. C. Armand, E. q., Rec. Branch 11,
Arnprior, Ont.

Dear Sir and Bro.—The appeal from your branch in behalf of Bro. John M'Donough has been allowed by the Grand President and Board of Trustees.

Yours fraternally,
SAMUEL R. BROWN,
Grand Secretary.

JOINED THE BENEDICTS

Woodstock, Dec. 18th, 1889.
To Bro. James J. Murphy, Chancellor of Branch 221.

Dear Sir and Brother—We, the members of C. M. B. A. Branch No. 221, having heard with much pleasure that you have become a Benedict, take this opportunity to express to you our congratulations. The news of your good fortune in choosing such an estimable young lady for your life partner gives us great satisfaction. No one can possess true friendship without rejecting in the prosperity of a friend. To one who has always been manly, true and noble, and who has labored persistently towards a particular end, success must be extremely gratifying. We also take this opportunity to express to you our high approbation of the services you have rendered us as an officer of this Branch for the past five years. In the discharge of your duties you have been ever faithful and zealous, never sparing yourself, but were always ready and willing to give us your good advice. It will ever be our delight to hear that you are prospering in your undertakings, and if in any way we can serve you, you can rely upon our best endeavors. With every good wish for yourself and Mrs. Murphy.

Signed on behalf of the Branch Francis B. Fuertth, President; John Fitzgerald, Recording Secretary.

To the above address Bro. Murphy, on behalf of himself and wife, made a suitable reply, in the course of which he outlined the benefits to be derived from a membership in the Association, the advisability of securing a membership therein, and brought his happy remarks to a close by the expression of a wish that the society would continue to grow and flourish, and that the picture of his wife as a member of Branch 221 of the C. M. B. A. of Canada shall with him always find a suitable resting place among the happiest pictures which hang on memory's wall.

ARE GAMES WASTE OF TIME.

At the opening of the Spalding Institute, the new High School for boys at Peoria, Bishop Spalding delivered a lengthy but masterly address on the subject of "Opportunity." He touched upon a variety of practical subjects, and as he has few if any intellectual superiors on this continent his words, although they may not meet with the approval of many who stand in the van of progress, are nevertheless worthy of the most serious consideration. We reproduce for the benefit of our readers the passage in his address dealing with recreation and work:

Bishop Spalding said—"The man finds or makes his opportunities and in turn they help to make him."

The multitude will not lay hold on opportunity unless it is thrust upon them; and even then they are listless and unresolved: and therefore are they condemned to remain inferior. The few who rise above the crowd are ever alert to discover how they may improve themselves and become helpers and leaders.

We are born to grow—this is the word religion, philosophy, literature and art ceaselessly utter—and we can grow only by keeping ourselves in vital communion with the world within and without us. Life or loss is nature's law; also, use and improve. If a little money is taken from us we make ourselves miserable, and all the while we are permitting the wealth which enriches the mind to slip from us as though it were the dirt from which the gold has been sifted.

There are few whom routine work keeps busy more than ten hours in the twenty-four. Allow eight hours for sleep and two for meals, and there remain four for self improvement. How is it possible, you ask, to live without recreation and amusements? Find them in the effort to buildup your being, and jolliness of life shall be yours beyond the reach of kings. Learn to think, and you shall never lack pleasant occupation. Bring your mind into union with the currents of thought which are found in the books of power, and you need be neither lonely nor depressed. The transfusion of thought is more quickening than the transfusion of blood. As in the midst of battle the soldier is often unconscious of his wounds, so they who have a purpose and seriously pursue it, easily become indifferent to the troubles which make weaker men tremble.

Games and other amusements doubtless have their uses especially for the young, and for all who are feeble in body or mind, but when we consider that they are generally occasions for wasting time, and a cheap obstacle to human advancement, it is difficult not to condemn the apathy, the indifference to the meaning and worth of life which makes possible their universal prevalence. They are least harmful in the home, and even there, what irreparable loss they involve! Economy of time is more indispensable than economy of money: for it is a means not only of getting money but of getting what is vastly higher and more precious—wisdom and virtue. All else may be good, but time misspent is lost forever. It is the element in which life exists, and to squander it is to dissipate vital force. What increases health and strength of body is good, unless it diminishes vigor of mind or weakens the will to devote one's self to right human ends. The passion and persistence with which athletic sports are followed in our colleges and universities undermine moral and intellectual ambition just at the time when the formation of character and the acquisition of knowledge are of the highest importance. Those whose ideal is athletic are in danger of not looking higher than the prize ring. True human power is not physical: its seat is in the mind, in the will, in the conscience. Let our school boys be happy and joyous, let them divert themselves, in a free spirit, like gentlemen, but let them not lay the stress of their attention and admiration on rowing or leaping or kicking a ball or hitting it with a bat, nor imagine that great skill of this kind is helpful or desirable. It is generally an accomplishment of those whose spiritual being is callous or superficial. These sports are not the best means even for promoting health and physical culture, which are the result of moderate, not violent, exercise, of temperance, cleanliness, sleep, cheerful thoughts and worthy aims followed in a brave and generous spirit. Mere strength of body is not a test either of endurance or of vitality. We die from sensual excess or from despondency or from both. Indulgence and disappointment kill more than work, which, if it be full of joy and hope, brings length of days. Worry, whatever its source, weakens, takes away courage and shortens life. Our sons murder us, said a rich man, speaking of a friend who had just died.

The sweet idleness praised by poets and lovers is not idleness, but leisure to give one's self to high thoughts and softer moods. The really idle are oppressed by a sense of fatigue, and therefore tiresome to themselves and others. Let those who complain of having to work undertake to do nothing. If this does not convert them, nothing will. Those who live in inaction on the fruits of the labor of others lose the power to enjoy, come to feel existence to be a burden, and fall a prey to life-weariness. He sits uneasy at the feast who thinks of the starving; he is not comfortable at his own fireside who remembers those who have none. To know that life is good one must be conscious that he is helping to make it good at least for a few.

Work, not play, is the divine opportunity. The outcome of civilization, if we continue to make progress, must be that to each and every one work shall be given to do which, while it provides the necessities and comforts of life, will cheer, strengthen, console, purify and enlighten, and when this day comes the nineteenth century shall appear to have been but little better than the ninth, for a society in which millions are condemned to do debasing work or starve is barbarous.

The century which is now drawing to an end has been so filled with wonders, with progress in science and wealth, with discoveries and inventions, that it seems to illumine the pages of history with a blaze of glory. But it is not all light. The failure is as serious as the success is great. The individual has not risen as his knowledge has widened and his environment improved. What he is, is still held to be less important than what he possesses and uses. In the mad race for wealth multitudes are sacrificed as pitilessly as in warfare; they are dragged by competition to verge of starvation: they are driven to work under conditions which dehumanize. Greed has led to a world-wide struggle as cruel as that of nature, in which only the strongest or the most cunning and conscienceless survive. Our society makes criminals, and our penal institutions harden them in wrongdoing. The people are taxed to support vast armies and to supply them with more and more expensive and effective instruments of murder, and wars are waged, not to liberate and lift up weaker races, but to rob and oppress them and these crimes are committed in the name of religion and civilization. The great powers of Europe look on in stolid indifference while helpless populations are massacred; and America, which has always meant good will to men and opportunity for all, seems to be drifting away from what Americans have loved and lived for into the evil company of these old-world nations, drunken with lust for conquest and lust for gold. While knowledge grows, while man's control over the forces of nature increases, the individual seems to be losing his hold on the principles which underlie right life. The power of sustained thought, of persevering labor for high and unselfish ends, the spirit in sacrifice and devotion, faith and hope, the love of liberty and independence, are, it is to be feared, diminishing.

There is still evil enough in the world to save us from self complacency, from the foolish and vulgar habit of self laudation, but the triumphs of the nineteenth century have been sufficiently real and great to inspire confidence and courage in the young who are preparing to take their place in the twentieth as strong and faithful workers in every righteous cause.

Here in America, above all, the new age approaches, offering opportunity. Here only a beginning has been made, we have but felled the forest and drained the marsh, and bridged the river and built the road; but cleared the wildwood and made wholesome the atmosphere for a more fortunate race, whom occasion shall invite to greater thoughts and more godlike deeds. We stand in the front rank of those who face life, endowed with all the instruments of power which the labors of the strongest and wisest in all time and place have provided.

PREAD OF CATHOLICITY IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

From the Tablet.

In England and Scotland, which at the beginning of the century contained but 1,200,000 Catholics, there are now 2,000,000 under the charge of 2 Archbishops, 15 Bishops and 2,700 priests. In the course of the century the number of Catholics has risen, in Germany, from 1,000,000 to 1,000,000; in Switzerland, from 5,120,000 to 1,170,000; in Scandinavia, from 2,000 to 5,000; in the Balkan Peninsula, from 27,000 to 610,000; in Persia, from 3,000 to 10,000; in North Africa, from 15,000 to 500,000. In Russia the Ruthenian Church, which existed at the beginning of the century, has given place to 10,000,000 of Latin Catholics.

In the far East the record of progress is the same, the increase being from 1 to 6,000,000 of Catholics. In Central, Eastern, Western and South Africa, where in the middle of the century there were no Catholics, there are now nearly 2,000,000 grouped in 30 missions, under the charge of 250 missionaries. In the Spanish, Dutch and English colonies of America, where there were no Catholics, at the beginning of the century, there are now a million and a half. In Canada their numbers have risen from 1,500,000 to over 2,000,000, and in the United States of America from 3,000 to 10,000,000.

ABOUT CATHOLIC SOCIETIES.

Of late there has been a sort of awakening on the part of Catholics to the advantage of forming themselves into societies, orders, legions, associations and other such organizations. Women as well as men seem to have caught the fever; until at present it is difficult to find a Catholic man who is not affiliated with several organizations; and the Catholic women who belong to associations are every day growing more numerous. Many of these orders are to be commended. They have benefit and insurance features which are decidedly helpful. Through them Catholics are brought together in social and friendly intercourse—a most desirable result; and their influence is, in the main, excellent. But they do not go far enough. Their rules as to the personal conduct of their members are not strict enough. They do not insist upon that high standard of Catholic life which the Church expects from people who come together in her name. While all their members are supposed to be practical Catholics, it is a well known fact that many of even their high officials may be found who are careless in the observance of their religious duties; and the personal habits of more than a few can hardly be called edifying.

There is not much use in having a society composed exclusively of Catholics if the members do not show by their faithfulness to the Church, by their loyalty to her commandments, and by their proper appreciation of her spirit, that they really understand their position. When an association assumes the name "Catholic," or when it is understood that it is composed only of Catholics, by and for Catholics, as far as the generality of outsiders think its reputation and that of the Church are bound up, one in the other; and if the society suffers through any discrediting conduct of its members, wrongly, of course, but none the less surely, the Church is held blameworthy also. This is one of the most serious faults to be found with our Catholic orders—while their constitutions and laws and mottoes contain high sounding phrases there is not, apparently, on the part of the members at large, any attempt either to understand or obey their spirit.

If these numerous and growing organizations were filled with a proper desire for the promotion of Catholicism, what a great amount of good might they not accomplish! What an impetus might they not give to God's work, which for want of help and helpers is now in so many places languishing!

It is the custom to point proudly to these organizations as a proof of Catholic progress, Catholic unity, Catholic strength, Catholic intelligence, Catholic activity. But surely the Catholic life which manifests its highest activity in smoke talks and pool tournaments and shabby little entertainments is not to be admired too highly; and certainly we have not progressed if the time which should be given to education and enlightenment is wasted in the mummery of the secret society. If for the ambition which possessed our men in former days to be good plain citizens and good Catholics we substitute a craze for high sounding titles in secret Catholic societies we have not gained much.

Insurance conducted on a common-sense and business basis is all right. So is sociability. So also are the many excellent features which our Catholic orders certainly contain, but there are many things for them yet to do before they can become truly worthy of the name Catholic.—Sacred Heart Review.

ACTING RATHER UNWISELY.

Are These Fraternal Leaders Who Are Distracted by the Tom-Toms of the Old-Line Insurance Companies.

Some of the old-line insurance companies have been endeavoring to make capital out of the proceedings of the National Fraternal Congress. They claim that the committee on statistics and Good of the Order and also the special committee on rates reported that the creation and maintenance of large reserve funds are absolutely essential to the growth and usefulness of fraternal organizations.

The fact of the matter is that a good many members of the congress seem to have been carried away with the old-line insurance doctrines, and have unwisely and injudiciously expressed fear for the system of fraternal protection when they had no occasion for the expression of such pessimistic views. They thus furnished old-line life insurance companies with that weapon which the latter are now using to vigorously belabor those who have unwittingly placed it in the hands of these old-line life insurance companies.

There is a decided difference between fraternalism and old-line life insurance, and just as soon as those who have been accomplishing such wonders in the field of fraternalism are distracted by the tom-toms of the life insurance companies and swerved from their original purpose, just so soon does it become impossible for them to continue to successfully labor in the field of fraternalism. That a reasonable fund is highly desirable there is no doubt, but that a large reserve is essential is not true, as has been demonstrated in numerous instances by fraternal organizations which have paid beneficiaries millions of dollars, although operating merely on an assessment rate barely sufficient to meet maturing obligations.

It has been well said that no system of government, society, corporation or co-operation is perfect, so that there is no reason why we should look for absolute perfection in the plans for any fraternal organization. And yet it is wonderful how few changes it has been necessary for most fraternal orders to make when it is taken into consideration what tremendous results they have accomplished. That they are progressing toward more perfect methods is the best possible indication that they are conducted along safe and progressive lines.

The fundamental difference between the old-line life insurance companies and fraternal orders is that the former do too little for their policy holders, while the latter have in some instances attempted to do too much. It is truly marvelous how it has been found possible to conduct the complicated details incident to an order which receives its revenue in small monthly payments at such a trifling expense, when it is a well-known fact that many old-line companies set aside from forty or seventy per cent for that purpose.

There is in reality no conflict between the old-line system and the fraternal. Fraternalism, as the term implies, means co-operation, and no age of the world has ever been so ready for this as the present. Combinations are being formed on all sides, and cooperation is extended into every sphere and avenue of life, and both capitalists and laborers have discovered the great possibilities along this line. Why should the fraternal orders, therefore, allow old-line companies to swerve them from their original purpose? Such perplexities and difficulties as arise from time to time must be met wisely and bravely, but fraternalism has nothing to learn from old-line insurance, because the fraternal benevolent societies had their inspiration on account of, and were evolved out of, the selfishness of old-line insurance, there being the crying need for protection at absolute cost which the old-line companies did not and could not supply.

What is needed is a return of first principles. More interest must be taken in the lodge system by the members of fraternal orders, and there must be that thorough recognition that there originally was that the growth of fraternalism must be brought about very largely through the efforts of the individual members, rather than through paid deputies. This is one of the advantages fraternalism offers over old-line insurance, and it is such a decided one that it should not be lost sight of in the slightest degree.

The point which the friends of fraternalism, whenever their order favors a reserve fund or the contrary, is after all, a matter of not half so much importance to them as the fact that through fraternalism they are getting all they pay for, whereas in old-line insurance they are contributing a very large percentage toward exorbitant expense. If it is, therefore, found necessary at any time to slightly readjust the plan on which their order has been conducting business, it means merely that such re-adjustment is necessary in order to meet new contingencies, and as loyal members, they should stand ready to meet the emergency. If these fraternal orders which are members of the National Fraternal Congress and the officials of which claim that their orders are now organized to insure their perpetuity would therefore proceed to meet the emergency rather than to talk about it, they would be acting the part of wisdom for their membership, and would save themselves the jeers of the old-line companies who do not and cannot be expected to understand that fraternalism first of all meets such a free discussion of plans and methods as would be entirely foreign to the officials of the old-line companies.—Mystic Recorder

LOOKING BACKWARD

Rev. Plus R. Mayer, S. J., in the Carmelite Review.

With this month we enter the last year of the nineteenth century, and it is but natural to ask ourselves what did the past century bring to the world and what will the new one bring?

We do not belong to the prophets, and mere calculation will necessarily be at fault, where so many very complex questions require a solution, and so many agencies are at work, the movements of which it is impossible to prognosticate. One thing, however, seems to be certain, namely, that the twentieth century will be a century of moral questions more than of material progress. Why? Because the year foregoing is to the year following, what the seed is to the harvest, and a large number of questions of paramount importance to man have been opened during the nineteenth century which must find a solution one way or the other in the new century. Material prosperity is a matter that depends on the will of man but to a small extent, whilst moral questions will be settled by him alone for his happiness or unhappiness, according to the choices made. Hence we expect in the twentieth century great moral revolutions and hope for the good of mankind. This expectation is founded upon the happenings of the past century, which we now undertake to briefly review.

A hundred years ago the world found itself in a sorry plight. The French infidels had succeeded in undermining faith and morality, the political rulers had lashed the nations with scorpions, art and science were in a torpor, heresy and schism were raising their heads here and there, and mankind was unhappy. The Corsican usurper, Napoleon, had raised his standard, and, like a second Attila, devastated Europe in a brutal and remorseless manner. He even stretched his hand out against the Vicar of Christ, whom he dragged to France as a political prisoner. He abolished and erected bishoprics at will, and, like Pharaoh, would not hear the voice of Moses, so he braved the excommunication, launched against him by Pius VII. "This excommunication," he replied scornfully, "will not take the arms from the hands of my soldiers." But a few years later the arctic winter of Russia did take the arms from the hands of his army; the first misfortune was followed by Lepic, and two years later Waterloo sealed his downfall. The prisoner on St. Helena petitioned the Pope for his blessing. It was the same Pope, whom he had treated so outrageously at Fontainebleau.

Napoleon's fall involved a change in the map of Europe. The old boundaries were re-established, and the exiled princes returned to their dominions. But the moral consequences of the years of revolution, treason, conquest and racial persecutions of the faith could not be so easily obliterated. There were ruins everywhere. Catholic governments vied with the Protestant ones in suppressing any manifestations of re-awakening faith. In England the penal laws were still in force. Holland persecuted the Catholics. In Belgium, in Germany the corporal baton directed the Church. Russia, Prussia and Austria used hands in wiping out the remainder of unhappy Poland. Janissarism, heresies and the Illuminati of Weimarberg rapped away the foundations of religious life. Scandals amongst the clergy helped in this process of disintegration—in a word, the prospects were very gloomy. But the indestructible vital power of the Church exerted itself likewise, and the grace of God rewarded the efforts of the Popes, who graced the nineteenth century. Pius VII., ruled but a very short time, but Pius VIII., Leo XII., Gregory XVI., Pius IX. and Leo XIII., were beacon lights on the bark of St. Peter. A great division took place amongst Catholics; the chaff was separated from the wheat, and whilst thousands abandoned their faith, and became either infidels or heretics, millions approached Rome closer and closer, feeling that union is strength, and only a close and lasting union with the Apostolic See can bring forth blossoms and fruit of a spiritual life. The schismatic attempts of Ronge, Döllinger, etc., proved abortive, their deluded followers, we might almost say, vanished. The Syllabus of Pius IX. and the Ecumenical Council of the Vatican pronounced clearly and unmistakably against the errors and falsehoods of modern learning. The centralization of the ecclesiastical power, united bishops, priests and people into an homogeneous mass of faithful Catholics, and we can say, without fear of contradiction that there is no century in Church history which shows the Church as numerous, as united, as clear in her doctrine, as successful in its work, as the departing nineteenth century.

The periodical change of seasons in nature finds its counterpart also in the life of mankind. New life is substituted for old and decayed life, and when nations become unfaithful to grace, God in their stead gives His grace to others, who hitherto sat in darkness and in the shadow of death.

Since Gregory XVI., the foreign missions amongst pagan nations have developed in a manner truly miraculous. There is no country on earth where Catholic missionaries have not penetrated. Hundreds of them died martyrs, a still greater number succumbed to jungle fevers, malaria, etc., and all of them had to lead a life of extreme poverty and consequent privations.

But their converts number millions, and no amount of persecution was able to uproot the Church in Japan, China, Tonking, Annam and Siam, or on the Cannibal Islands. The blood of martyrs is the seed of Christians, now, as well as in the time of Tertullian.

Even in Protestant countries, like England, Sweden and Norway, there is a movement toward Rome, gathering force by day, and the Church not only made up for the losses of the sixteenth century, and the smaller losses of the centuries following, but she far exceeds her former figures. To-day we count 320,000,000 Catholics, 150,000,000 Protestants and 130,000,000 Schismatics. The latter at least in Asia and Africa are also casting looks of longing upon the centre of Catholic unity, and during the century about three millions returned to the unity of the Church, whilst others are preparing to follow their example.

Turning our eyes upon the non-Catholic denominations, an entirely different spectacle meets our gaze. The nineteenth century showed no signs of life, but of decay. Tired of the end less doctrinal disputes, the Protestants to a great extent threw the robes into the arms of agnosticism. Others separated from the denomination to which they belonged, founded new confessions, and every attempt at reunion only brought out more of the hopeless discussion. Biblical criticism gradually led many to a rejection of the Bible itself, the cold meetings more and more failing to satisfy feeling hearts, and apathy took the place of fanaticism. Not even the hatred against Rome, till now the rallying point of Protestantism, is able any longer to unite them. More and more the eyes of the better classes are wistfully turning to Rome, and ministers find themselves and their meeting houses abandoned.

In England the Tractarian movement brought church services nearer to that of the Catholic Church, and many of the learned and noble returned to the faith of their fathers. In Germany Frederic William III., King of Prussia by royal prerogative, welded Lutherans and Reformers into an evangelical church. The recalcitrant ministers were imprisoned and their churches closed. Many of the Lutherans emigrated to America, where the diverse churches led only to infidelity and the Protestant churches in the cities were emptied. The modern Julian the Apostate, Bismarck, tried to separate the Catholic Church of Germany from the centre of unity, and for fifteen years the Kulturkampf was waged by all means of injustice and brutal force. The May laws, intended for the destruction of the Catholic Church, inflicted a mortal wound on the evangelical churches. The protection of the old Catholics could not foster the abortive child into life, but the Catholics fought, united, acted under the experienced leadership of a Mallinckrodt, Windhorst, Lieber, Ballestrem, and they conquered. Bismarck went first to Canossa, and later on out of office.

America is a very good exemplar of the many sects wherein people change from one to the other, as they change their clothing. There are about three hundred and twenty different denominations in the United States, and this scattering of forces has produced a lethargy more pronounced than in Europe. One result is, that at present the majority of Americans are not even baptized. Infidelity dominates.

Likewise the "Greek Orthodox Church" in Russia, Turkey and Greece shows but signs of stagnation, and the sects, separating from her in spite of governmental persecution, are getting daily more numerous, as their tenets more extravagant and even criminal.

It appears to us probable, that the twentieth century will see the end of Protestantism as a system, and the battle will be fought between the Catholic Church and infidelity. The fate of the Schismatic churches is identical with the fate of the Russian Empire, and we do not know how this will turn out.

The metaphysical science (Philosophy) found during the century many exponents, but the quality did not correspond with the quantity. It was not, Multum in parvo, but Parrum in multis. Reason wished to emancipate itself from the dominion of faith, and the result was the abandonment of the old, tried and proved propositions of Aristotelian and Scholastic philosophy and a wild, untenable speculation. Pantheism, Atheism, Theism and Idealism were the ruling systems, and under the leadership of Kant, the delirious dreams of transcendental speculations ripened everywhere. Of late there are signs that even the philosophers are ashamed of their work, and are returning to common sense, so that we can hope to see a really rational philosophy in the coming century. In this case philosophy will be a valuable aid to faith.

In natural science the century was very productive, and can boast of solid progress. But also here we find much chaff amongst the wheat. Instead of being contented with examining the laws of nature, the scientists placed their investigations into the service of infidelity, and geology, chemistry, archaeology, astronomy, and kindred sciences were used as a means at their disposal, to disprove the Bible and rob the people of the treasures of faith. Darwin, Huxley, Tyndall, Jackel, Hartman, etc., became conspicuous by their bold attempts to disprove the history of creation as contained in the Bible, and to declare man evolved from an ape. But the zenith of their novelties is passed, their sun is setting and here also we witness a gradual return to sound and impartial logic.

On the other side newly invented or improved instruments and the close observation of nature led to important discoveries of natural laws, and allowed natural philosophy a phenomenal development, of which all countries and all classes profited. This work is but begun, and the new century will behold marvels.

Earth is man's legitimate dominion, and he cannot call himself fully the Lord of his dominion, until he fully understands his kingdom.

In consequence of the progress in natural science an immense number of mechanical inventions was made, by which the century was far above any of the preceding ones. In the beginning of the century any kind of texture was made by hand, and manufacturing depended on horse or water power. Travelling was slow and fatiguing, navigation uncertain and hazardous, light was furnished by wax or tallow candles. Now the nations possess steam and electric power, petroleum, gas and electric light. The hand-loom gave way to the most complicated machinery, replacing the work of thousands of hands. Travelling is common, distance is annihilated, the elements are successfully overcome, and even aerial navigation seems near its solution.

Warfare, instead of being an unslaught of brutal masses, has become a real science, carried on on scientific principles. Agricultural machines sow a production far beyond the most sanguine expectation. Medicine and surgery are boasting of marvellous triumphs. Domestic comfort is tenfold to what it was one hundred years ago.

All these improvements, however, were not an unalloyed blessing to the world. It is even an open question, whether they were a blessing at all. We are in a period of transition. Machinery rendered possible the centralization of production: the middle class of mechanics could no longer compete with the enormous and rapid output of large factories. An appalling disproportion between the earnings of capital and that of labor shook human society to its foundations, and the social question became a puzzling one. It is not solved to-day, it will not be solved in the near future, and it is impossible to foretell the solution after the present fermentation is over and the new state of things an accomplished fact. Wealth and poverty are both gigantic forces, and the bitter contention between them is of paramount physical, moral, social and religious importance. Who will gain the mastery? Ultimately we believe that Poverty, that is, the masses, will win, but by far not a sword.

Also in politics the century brought about enormous changes. We spoke a word of the downfall of Napoleon, which changed the map of Europe. But this is not the only change. The holy Roman empire of the German nation was buried in 1806. Holland lost Belgium; Denmark, Schleswig-Holstein; France, Alsace-Lorraine; Austria, Lombardy and Venice; Spain and Portugal, most of their colonies the Holy Father, his patrimony of St. Peter; Turkey lost Egypt, Rumania, Bulgaria and Servia; Poland and some of the minor German States were wiped out as independent States. Luxembourg became independent of Holland. France conquered Algeria and Tonkin; Russia, a great part of Asia; England took possession of every vacant spot on earth which she could reach in time. The empires of France and Brazil were changed into republics; the United States developed from small beginning into a powerful nation.

Most of these changes were brought about by war, and the pages of history are filled with the records of blood. The peace congress at the Hague was in the eyes of the world but a farce, and the wars now going on are but acts of highway robbery.

The most important political change was in the government's themselves. Formerly governments were autocratic and the king's interests were identical with the interests of the country, but now the industrial and commercial interests of the nation determine its politics, and dynasties have to identify themselves with these interests. The facility of transportation and postal communication brought the nations nearer to each other than they had been heretofore but they also excited greater jealousy and fiercer competition, till at the close of the century nations appear to us like shop-keepers, trying to outwit each other, and ready to use the most reprehensible means to gain financial advantages.

It was a delirious dance around the golden calf, and it will be, it must be, the task of the twentieth century, to reduce these aspirations to a legitimate size, else mankind will soon be more wretched than it ever was within the history of the world. Signs of improvement are not wanting, but just at present the crisis of the fever has not yet passed, and hence we have to expect convulsions in the near future, which will clear the atmosphere, bridle human passions and lay a better foundation for the future. May God grant it!

NO LONGER "DARKEST AFRICA."

"The twentieth century Africa promises startling contrasts when compared with the Africa of the nineteenth century," writes Hon. O. P. Austin in the December Forum. "With an area four times as great as that of the United States, a population of 150,000,000, a soil and climate capable of infinite variety of production, a rapidly expanding commerce, and the greatest known supplies of ivory, gold and diamonds, its development under the modern methods which are now being applied to it is practically assured. The home of the oldest civilization, it is the last of the continents to yield to the touch of the newest civilization. But yesterday enveloped in the darkness of mystery without and ignorance within, to-day luxuriant by the search light of modern methods; and as its importance and attractions are being recognized, with this recognition must come development. With 200,000 Europeans scattered over its vast area, acquainting themselves with its natural conditions and requirements, with the steamer, the railroad, the telegraph and the telesincere sorrow in this their sad hour of bereavement.

Resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mrs. Donovan and relatives and spread upon the minutes and published in our official organ, THE CANADIAN.

At the regular meeting of Branch No. 26, Montreal, Que., held in their hall Tuesday, December 26th, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas this branch has learned with most sincere regret of the death of one of its most respected and esteemed members, the late worthy brother, Michael Haynes, father of our respected brothers, John C. Haynes and Frederick Haynes,

Resolved that our most sincere sympathy be tendered the widow and family of our deceased brother.

Resolved that an offering of Masses be given for the repose of the soul of our deceased brother.

Resolved that in token of our sorrow the charter of the branch be draped in mourning for the space of one month, and that these resolutions be inscribed on the minutes of this meeting, and published in the True Witness, and the official organ of this Association, THE CANADIAN.

At the regular meeting of Branch No. 7, Sarnia, Ont., held on the 11th instant, a letter being read from the Secretary of Branch No. 23, Seaforth, Ont., announcing the death at that place of Brother J. W. Jones, who was a member of Branch No. 7 until about two months ago, when he was transferred to Branch No. 23, of Seaforth, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to remove by death our worthy brother, J. W. Jones,

Resolved that, whilst bowing submissively to the will of all Wise Providence, the officers and members of Branch No. 7 desire to express their sincere sorrow for the loss of an esteemed member, and to convey to the widow and family of the deceased brother our heartfelt sympathy, coupled with the prayer that He who doeth all things for the best, may comfort and sustain them in their affliction.

Further resolved that this resolution be entered in the minute book of this branch and copies be sent to widow and THE CANADIAN for publication.

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His wisdom to remove by death our worthy and esteemed fellow-member, Norbert Tomney.

Resolved that we, the officers and members of this branch hereby express our heartfelt sorrow for his widow and child and extend to them our most sincere sympathy and condolence in their sad affliction.

Resolved that our charter be draped for the usual period and that copies of this resolution be sent to Mrs. Tomney and THE CANADIAN for publication.

MESSAGÉ DU PRÉSIDENT.

LA NOUVELLE ANNÉE ET LA C. M. B. A.

Encore une autre année vient de s'écouler avec ses souvenirs de plaisirs et de peines, son fardeau de malheur et de joie. Elle est disparue dans l'éternité, charge peut-être de chagrin et de péchés. La nouvelle année nous apparaît toute rayonnante d'espérance et de bonheur, anxieuse de faire son apparition, déposant dans nos coeurs un doux espoir dans l'avenir.

C'est certainement un moment solennel qui suggère à l'esprit une foule de réflexions qui ne sont pas hors de propos pour les membres de cette grande et noble association à laquelle nous avons le bonheur d'appartenir. L'année qui s'avançait a ajouté une page à l'histoire de notre société, dont je suis heureux de constater le progrès, la force et l'union, union et force qu'ont aidé au soutien de notre sainte foi et qui ont été une protection pour ceux qui nous sont chers.

Il s'est fait des vides dans nos rangs depuis que j'ai eu le plaisir de vous écrire à Noël dernier. La tombe s'est fermée sur plusieurs de nos frères qui étaient bien estimés de leurs concitoyens. Bien que chagrins de leur départ, nous trouvons quelque consolation à notre peine en songeant qu'ils ont laissé à ceux qui leur étaient chers une ample provision, et tout cela par la C. M. B. A.

Leur départ semble nous dire que nous devrions redoubler nos efforts pour augmenter le nombre de nos membres et pour aider ceux qui sont laissés orphelins.

L'introduction de nouveaux membres est très désirable pour le maintien et la solidité de notre association. Ceci peut se faire par les efforts constants que les membres et la société feront en dévouant au public la prospérité et la vigueur de notre association et par-dessus tout en exposant la véritable charité qui existe entre chaque membre de notre association. En effet, je ne saurais trop insister sur ce point sur lequel repose notre force. C'est principe de fraternité, d'union, vers lequel doivent tendre tous nos efforts et qui feront notre force et notre gloire.

Je me bercé d'espérance que la nouvelle année verra ces liens de fraternité se renforcer. Liens qui doivent toujours exister entre chaque membre de la C. M. B. A. et qui mettent notre société au premier rang parmi les sociétés de secours mutuels.

Maintenant à la fin de cette année et au commencement de la nouvelle, rempli d'espérance pour l'avenir je ne puis que vous répéter ce que souvent je vous ai dit, que j'ai coeur l'avancement et le progrès de notre belle et noble société.

Et parlant ainsi il peut se faire que le succès que j'ai obtenu n'a pas été aussi brillant que je l'aurais désiré — cependant je puis vous dire que la société à un étonnant et aussi prospère qu'elle ne l'est maintenant et que l'avenir est tout à fait souriant.

Sous de tels auspices il me fait plaisir de féliciter tous les membres de notre association et je sais aussi cette occasion pour souhaiter à chacun en particulier

Une bonne et heureuse Année.

M. F. Hackett,
Grand Président de la C. M. B. A.
Staunton, 26 Décembre, 1900.

1900.

Avec ce numéro du Canadien nous commençons une nouvelle année, la dernière de ce siècle.

L'année qui vient de s'écouler a été une des plus remarquables pour la C. M. B. A. Jamais auparavant dans toute l'histoire du Grand Conseil de la C. M. B. A. l'Association n'a fait plus de progrès. Dans aucun temps de son existence sa position n'a été plus en sûreté.

Jetant un regard retrospectif sur l'ouvrage que nous avons fait nous pouvons assurément dire que sur tous les rapports nous avons fait un grand pas vers le bien, et brûlant d'une manière spéciale par la providence. Le taux des mortalités a été excessivement bas et l'accroissement des membres a été remarquablement élevé. De la mort soudaine, par la Divine Providence nous avons été spécialement exempts. Le nombre d'appels à la charité et à la bienveillance des membres a diminué, démontrant que l'état des membres est dans une bonne condition et exempt de toute bénédiction et de toute maladie.

Notre position financière est tout ce que peut désirer un membre dévoué;

Le nombre minimum de quinze cotisations suffit;

Il ne fait seulement dans toute l'histoire du Grand Conseil avons nous vu notre cotisation plus basse.

Nous fonds de réserve a augmenté à un tel point, qu'il peut maintenant affronter tous les dangers présents et à venir.

Mais l'accroissement des membres durant l'année est un fait unique dans toute l'histoire de la C. M. B. A. du Canada.

Près de seize cent personnes sont devenues membres de l'Association durant l'année 1899.

De nouvelles succursales ont été établies dans tout les quartiers du Dominion, et le fait le plus remarquable est que la plupart des nouveaux membres viennent des vieilles succursales. Dans quelques succursales le nombre c'est élevé au delà de cinquante membres durant un seul mois.

Il n'y a pas de point sec dans la C. M. B. A. Il y a de la vie et de la vigueur dans les anciennes succursales, et de l'amour et du respect pour l'Association.

C'est pourquoi nous regardons avec orgueil et satisfaction les archives de l'année qui vient de s'écouler, et nous espérons et avons confiance en la nouvelle année.

Et comme tout est en notre faveur, et nous formons de nouvelles résolutions pour l'avenir. Prenez donc avantage de notre état actuel de maine à l'augmenter encore; il est possible. Que chaque membre fasse son devoir envers la C. M. B. A.; et que l'âge de la gloire se rapproche du vieux siècle la plus belle de l'histoire.

A tous nos frères, bons et heureux année.

GARANTIE.

Toutes les succursales de la C. M. B. A. sont par la présente notifiées, que certains arrangements ont été faits avec la corporation des "Employers Liability Assurance" de Londres Angleterre, par l'entremise de son agent Mr H. J. McKeon de Montréal. Que par lesquels la compagnie fournit une garantie qui comprendra toutes les obligations de notre association qui doivent donner une garantie. Le Grand Conseil paiera à la corporation la prime totale en un tout, et les succursales paieront les leurs au Grand Secrétaire. Ceci est mieux et donnera plus de satisfaction.

Chaque succursale remettra sans délai sa prime au taux de dix quatre cents pour chaque $100 de garantie pour son Trésorier et son Secrétaire Financier. Le montant de la garantie pour le Secrétaire Financier est de trois dollars pour chaque succursale, et de cinq dollars pour le Trésorier. Votre la clause 15. et 17. de notre constitution.

L'exemple suivant nous aidera à comprendre :

Une succursale à 100 membres sa garantie alors est de $100 pour le Secrétaire Financier et de $300 pour le Trésorier, total $400, la prime sera $100 et qui devra être remise au Grand Secrétaire immédiatement devant le mois de Janvier, ou quand une nouvelle succursale est instituée.

Tout homme logique doit croire naturellement fidèle, c'est-à-dire, croire en Dieu; tout chrétien doit croire nécessairement chrétien, tout chrétien logique doit être nécessairement Catholique, et tout Catholique digne devrait devenir membre de la C. M. B. A.

NOTES.

Il est des accusations qui cadrent si peu avec le texte du document sur lequel on les appelle, que les esprits superficiels ou irréfléchis seuls sont exposés à les gober. C'est pourquoi, en pareil cas, le silence de l'accusé est la meilleure manière de témoigner le mépris dont elles sont dignes.

Les officiers des succursales vous diront bien se rappeler que la taxe per capita, la taxe d'initiation et l'honoraire du Médecin Examinateur en Chef pour le trimestre finissant le 31 Dec., 1899, sont passés, et qu'ils devraient être payés sans plus tarder. Voir les clauses 6.ème, 117 ème et 174 ème de la constitution.

SA GRANDEUR MGR McDONALD

Condamnation Quelques Sociétés. Lire la C. M. B. A.

Jacques Charles McDonald, par la grâce de Dieu et la bénédiction de son Vaisseau et l'Eglise de Charlottetown, et Clergé de l'île de Charlottetown, au Nom de la Sainte Trinité et du Sauveur.

Bien Chers Frères. Nous voilà au terme du dix-neuvième siècle, déjà rempli d'événements importants dans l'histoire de notre pays. Dans son combat il a vu l'Eglise à deux périodes très intenses et calamiteuses, et en cette dernière, il a vu jumelée à la pluriété, d'une liberté religieuse et civile. Nous avons vraiment raison de remercier Dieu qui veille sur son église soit toujours tout à sa plus grande gloire. La persécution religieuse est pratiquement finie pour nous. La mère patrie ne menace plus l'Eglise, les Etats-Unis et les provinces peuvent maintenant exercer les saintes fonctions sans qu'il y ait lieu de crainte ou de alarme, cependant peut-on dire que l'Eglise est sans danger? Non, il y a d'autres mauvais influences qui continuellement tentent de gagner des hommes au Seigneur. Il est malheureusement trop vrai, qu'il existe certaines agences mauvaises qui empêchent l'extension de la Religion, et nous pouvons dire sans exagération que parmi elles, les sociétés secrètes occupent la première place. Sans ces-elles, s'effacent d'influence de l'Eglise par l'éloignement de quelques uns de ses membres. Ce mal évidemment n'a pas échappé à la vigilance de Notre Seigneur Père le Pape. Car ce débat de son politicien, l'illustre pontife a condamné emphatiquement les sociétés secrètes. Non content de condamner en particulier la franc-maçonnerie, et autres associations mauvaises, il va plus loin: Car il y a d'autres sociétés, qui quelqu'elles d'ailleurs des autres, les révélations, la forme, ou l'origine, contiennent leurs ressemblances par l'un ou, et pour cela non différent en rien de la Franc-maçonnerie, autre de laquelle toutes les autres prennent, ou se déguisen. Quelque de nos bons amis semblent agir de la même façon, et cependant leurs assemblées publiques ne dépendent pas si ou les examens de prière ou y croire encore ou traiter avec quelque des saintes sociétés. Maintenant nous tenons toutes les bonnes personnes de ces sociétés au milieu de toutes nous, voyons avec regret que nos catholiques se sont eus sans leurs bannières, sans pour être réaliser le danger auquel ils s'exposent ou dans un but: A fait préjudice. Les sociétés dont nous parlons, il est vrai, n'ont pas été condamnées formellement par l'Eglise, mais d'un autre côté Elle ne les approuve pas, et Elle soupçonne grandement celles qui ne sont pas sous son contrôle. C'est pour cela que le Pape Leo XIII glorieusement régnant, de tout coeur bénit l'intention générale de la Ligue du Sacré Coeur du mois de Septembre dernier, viz., "La Lutte contre les Sociétés Secrètes." Pour la même raison nous joignons notre voix à celle du grand pontife, et nous exhorts tous les pasteurs de notre diocèse, d'éloigner les fidèles autant qu'il est en leur pouvoir de telles sociétés. Et vous bien aimés frères laïques n'écoutez pas ces loups changés en agneaux qui vous proposent de jardiner ces sociétés qui n'ont pas l'approbation de l'Eglise. En d'autres termes ne donnez pas votre nom à aucune de ces sociétés qui n'a pas pour chapitre, un prêtre du Seigneur.

Nous en appelons à vous aujourd'hui avec plus de force parce que nous avons aussi dans notre diocèse une autre école errante, possédant tous les avantages temporaliens que possètent les autres sociétés qui depuis la bataille d'Appomattox de l'Eglise. Nous voulons par ce de l'Association Catholique du Renouveau du Nom de Canada. C'est notre plus grande envie que la cité Asie fut au prospère et au milieu de nous et que chaque paroisse ait sa succursale. Nous recommandons aux pasteurs des églises, d'expliquer aux fidèles les statuts de l'Association, et les avantage qu'elle offre. Et en terminant, nous exhortons tous nos frères à nous faire de menes d'une vie de prudence et de circonspection, spécialement durant ce saint temps de l'avent où l'Eglise nous demande de nous préparer par la prière et la prière, à la venue du Verbe fait Chair.

Que la grâce du Seigneur soit avec vous Amis.

Demandé à Charlottetown le 30 de l'Automne de conception l'an mil huit cent quatre-vingt-dix-neuf.

J. C. McDonald. Et que de Charlottetown.

INSTRUCTIONS

Aux Grands Députés et Organisateurs de la C. M. B. A.

NOUVEAU INSTITUTER UNE SUCURSALE.

1. Appellez l'assemblée à l'ordre, et faites dire la prière ordinaire d'ouverture par un prêtre s'il s'en trouve un présent, et si non, rectez là vous-même.

2. Lisez le rapport que vous avez reçu du Grand Secrétaire donnant les noms, etc., des aspirants dont les Certificats Médicaux ont été approuvés, et faites les répondre à leurs noms. Ensuite priez toutes les autres personnes, à l'exception des Messagers du Clergé ou de ceux qui sont déjà membres de l'Association, de se retirer.

3. Ditez à la salle, à peu près ayant que possible, suivant le dixième chapitre de votre Constitution.

4. Lisez l'engagement de l'A-sociation aux candidats et assurez-vous que chacun d'eux repende: "J'ac pronet à la question canonique dans la sécurité de mes parents de cet engagement.

5. Lutes signez le livre de nos paroisses, et faites payer à chaque membre et à l'association tout ce qui tombe au pouvoir de l'assurance et condamnez à être fusillé, refus de se laisser bander les yeux: "Non, dit-il, il y a quarante ans que je regarde la mort en face; laissez moi la voir venir à moi, je suis préparée je ne crains rien".

5. La nomination et l'élection des officiers doivent ensuite avoir lieu.

Immédiatement après l'élection, procédez à l'installation des officiers élus et conduisez chaque officier à son siège respectif après qu'il aura pris l'engagement.

6. Puis faites passer la succursale par les formalités d'une assemblée suivant la Clause 207, expliquant à fond chacun des ordres du jour à mesure que vous procédez.

Instruisez bien les membres sur l'usage du "maillet," le "Devoir des membres en entrant ou en sortant pendant la séance," la "Manière de procéder au Ballotage," ce que signifie le "Dossin" placé audessus du fauteuil du Président, et les "Cérémonies d'ouverture et de Clôture."

À l'ordre du jour N° 13. Affaires Nouvelles, faites déclerer par la Succursale la date et le lieu de ses assemblées régulières, et le montant des contributions mensuelles. Ceci peut se faire au moyen d'une résolution ou d'un règlement en conformité des Clauses 156 et 157.

À l'ordre du jour N° 15, R-marques pour le bien de l'A-sociation, expliquez à tout la manière d'opérer de l'Association et les devoirs des membres, spécialement des officiers des Succursales. Insistez sur la nécessité de faire diligente en faisant remise au Grand Secrétaire des agents des cotisations ou au Fonds Général, et dans l'ordre des demandes d'admission aussi à que possible après l'initiation, ayant soin au préalable de les compléter en remplissant les espaces avec les dates requises. Si les Succursales sont négligentes dans l'exécution de leurs devoirs envers le Bureau Central, comment peuvent elles s'attendre à ce que le Grand Secrétaire conduise les affaires avec cette efficacité qui devrait caractériser la C. M. B. A. au Canada.

7. Faites tirer un mandat sur le Trésorier de la Succursale pour $25 et envoyez ce mandat et la somme, les demandes d'admission, ci votre rapport au Grand Secrétaire sans délai.

Les dépenses nécessaires des Grands Députés, lorsqu'ils instituent des Succursales, sont payées par le Grand Conseil.

Après que la Succursale aura été instituée et que le Grand Secrétaire aura reçu une liste des officiers et membres fondateurs, il préparera la charte de la Succursale et l'enviera au Secrétaire-Archiviste.

La prospérité d'une Succursale dépend en grande mesure de ceux qui en sont les premiers officiers, et de la manière dont ils remplissent leurs devoirs.

COMMENT MOURIR.

Il n'y a pour un homme que trois manières de mourir:

1. En l'achevant, les yeux fermés comme l'autruche qui, se soutenant à bout de forces, enfonce sa tête dans le sable et attend ainsi le coup qui doit l'achever.

2. En revolte, le blasphémat aux invités et la rage au cœur, comme Julian l'Acoustique, qui lançait au chef un projectile de son sang et s'arrêtait dans un dernier rire. Tu as vaincu, Guillelm!

3. En brave, c'est à dire en homme et en chrétien, comme ce soldat français qui, tombé au pouvoir de l'ennemi et condamné à être fusillé, refus de se laisser bander les yeux: "Non, dit-il, il y a quarante ans que je regarde la mort en face; laissez moi la voir venir à moi, je suis préparée je ne crains rien".

LE PREMIER DE L'AN.

Une fête aussi solennelle que celle de la naissance du Sauveur devait avoir une octave. Aussi, pendant plusieurs siècles, le huitième jour après la nuit de Noël était chômé sous le titre "d'octave de la Nativité de Jésus". On croit que ce fut vers l'an 660 que l'on donna à cette fête le nom de "fête de la Circumcision de Notre Seigneur."

Un vieux livre dit, à propos de la célébration de ce jour : "Jésus-Christ a voulu nous faire voir dans ce mystère que, quoique la divinité fut jointe à son humilité, il n'était pas venu pour se dispenser de la loi."

Quand l'année commence, l'Eglise offre aux méditations des fidèles un exemple de soumission à la loi établie, comme pour leur dire : "Pendant les jours qui vont vous venir, restez obéissants à qui vous commande au nom de Dieu. Voyez, celui qui n'avait sur sa divine personne aucune marque du péché, n'avait besoin ni de la circoncision ni du baptême : mais comme il venait enseigner l'humilité, il s'est humilié sous le joug commun."

Dans la loi de Moïse, il n'y avait rien de prescrit sur le lieu où la circoncision devait être faite : l'on peut donc croire que le Fils de Marie fut circoncié dans Bethléem, où il était né, puisque les Magis trouvèrent ce divin enfant dans ce même lieu quand ils vinrent l'adorer.

C'était le jour où l'on faisait couler le sang de l'Enfant nouveau-né, qu'on lui donnait le nom qu'il devait porter parmi les hommes. Le Fils de Dieu avait bien le droit de prendre les noms les plus glorieux, ceux qui avaient été illustrés par les grands rois et les conquérants ; mais non, ce fut celui de Jésus qui veut dire Sauveur, qu'il offrira à tous les autres. Aussi, on lit ces paroles dans l'Évangile de la Circumcision :

"Pour ajouter à leur gloire, les conquérants prenaient les noms de nations soumises par leurs armes — Mais vous, ô Jésus ! vous prenez un nom qui annonce la délivrance : vous aimerez mieux délivrer que conquérir."

Quand j'étais au collège, je me souviens que nos maîtres nous recommandaient d'écrire, à la première page de nos cahiers d'études, une pensée à la gloire de Dieu, pour sanctifier et rendre notre travail meilleur. Eh bien ! dans ce Nouvel An de Jésus, mis au premier jour de l'année chrétienne, je trouve quelque chose de semblable : pour que les jours qui vont suivre cette première journée nous soient bons, la religion en a marqué la première heure par un nom de rédemption et de salut.

Ainsi, l'homme des champs, qui veut que ses pratiques aient de bons résultats, fait partir et dérouler tous les ruisseaux qui les arrosent d'une source pure et bienfaisante. Avec le temps, telle que l'habitude nous les a faites, les premières journées de l'an sont en général peu sanctifiées. Les "devoirs de société" empêchent trop sur les "devoirs religieux" — En cette journée de vitesse, il y a souvent un bienfaiteur oublié . . . C'est Dieu, celui qui envoie les années à la terre pour savoir ce que valent les hommes.

L'Eglise s'est souvent affligée des retours du paganism qui signalent cette première journée du nouvel an. . . . Les chrétiens, si aimées de nous tous quand nous en recevons, et plus douces encore quand nous pouvons en donner, ces brevettes, si attendues des enfants, ont été anathématisées par les saints Pères à cause de leur origine païenne.

Le Concile de Tours, tout l'an 505, nous apprend qu'un premier jour de Janvier, il était ordonné d'opposer le chant des litanies aux chants impies et superstitieux des païens, ce qui marquait que ce premier jour de l'an était moins un jour de fêté et de joie qu'un jour de pénitence et d'expiation, un jour sans Alleluia à l'office.

Vers la fin du septième siècle, l'Eglise abrogea les trois jours de jeûne que les conciles avaient prescrits pour la fin de l'année et le commencement de l'année suivante . . . Elle exhorta vivement les fidèles à substituer les "pauprées" à la place des "amis," et à convertir les "étreunes" en "au-mônes."

Toute la charité chrétienne se retrouve dans ce précepte : les siècles deus leur marche, peuvent bien amener quelques changements dans le cérémonial des fêtes religieuses, mais ils ne changent rien à l'esprit du catholicisme : il reste toujours pur, élevé, plein d'amour et de mansuétude, de miséricorde et de justice. Et quand les temps seront accomplis, il retournera vers Dieu qui l'a fait, comme ces anges qui venaient visiter les patriarches et les saints, remontaient au ciel sans que leurs pieds d'ivoire eussent été souillés de la poussière du monde, sans qu'une plume fut tombée de leurs ailes ! — Les évêques les seigneurs de bonne année, étant résidés un usage établi, la religion va à mérite sa sagesse et ses conseils. Je me souviens qu'un jour du premier de l'an, vers les neuf heures du matin, j'étais alors à Rouen, j'entré dans l'église de "Saint-Maclou" : elle était pleine de fidèles, et ce vieux et respectable curé était en chaire.

C'était bien aux pauvres habitants de ce pauvre quartier de venir, la première matinée du nouvel an, demander à Dieu de la force pour travailler et de la résignation pour suffrir : car en cette paroisse, que les riches habitent peu, "résignation" et "force" sont des vertus de première nécessité.

Le bon pasteur parlait à son troupeau avec un ton paternel qui allait à l'âme, et je regardai debout dans l'église, trouvant si grand honneur à l'entendre, que je n'ai point oublié ses paroles :

"Beaucoup d'entre vous," disait le vénérable curé, "beaucoup d'entre vous sont venus me souhaiter une bonne année, je les en remercie et, pour que l'an qui commence aujourd'hui me soit "bonne" et "heureuse," il faut qu'elle ne vous soit pas mauvaise : à vous donc, mes chers enfants, je souhaite une bonne année, une année sans malice, sans fléau de Dieu, une de ces années de vertu qui mènent aux anges et éternelles."

"A vous donc, qui m'écoutez et qui n'avez ni splendides habitudes, ni de somptueux atours, à vous je souhaite résignation et patience . . . Oh ! portez en chrétiens soumis les pauvres vestemens que je vous vois, et si "les bonnes années que je vous souhaite" vous adviennent, là haut, Dieu vous échangera ces habits contre des manteaux de pourpre, semblables à des manteaux de rois."

Comme j'étais dans la foule, je vis l'émotion qui y régnait : il y avait alors, je vous assure, entre le troupeau et le pasteur, entre les enfants et le père, entre les chrétiens et le prêtre, une union de charité si intime, que ce n'était plus qu'un cœur et qu'un esprit.

Dans tous les premiers de l'an que j'ai vus passer sur ma tête, aux jours d'adversité, dans les malaises des grands ou je suis allé avec la foule de faire des voeux de bonheur aux heureux de ce monde, j'ai vu bleu des choses, je les ai oubliées ; et comment se fait-il que j'ai gardé le souvenir de cet échange de souhaits entre le curé de Saint-Maclou et ses pauvres paroissiens ? . . . Oh ! je le sais, c'est que la religion avait imprimé son sceau sur cette scène, et rien n'a pu l'effacer.

Il y a bien des gens qui passent d'une année à une autre sans rien ressentir, et qui reprennent à sourire de dédain quand vous leur dites que vous ne finissez pas une année, que vous n'en commencez pas une autre sans émotion : moi, j'avoue que ce n'est jamais sans plaisir que, dans la nuit du 31 Décembre, je compte les douze coups de minuit : quand le dernier coup a sonné, j'écoute toujours, car le son qui vibre pendant quelques secondes, et qui est tout ce qui est resté de l'onde expirante, lui appartient encore : ce ne sera que lorsque cette vibration ne tremblera plus dans l'air que la nouvelle année commencera.

Je trouve qu'à ce moment de transition il faut appeler près de soi une personne religieuse : sans cela, l'âme serait saisie de trop de tristesse, car cette année qui s'en est allée tomber dans le gouffre de l'éternité, combien de nos amis n'at-elle pas emportés dans leurs snares ?

Avec l'espérance pour l'avenir, avec de la résignation pour le passé, j'ais à l'année qui commence :

"Salut ! fille naissante du temps ! salut, inconnue qui nous arrives ! nous viens tout enveloppés de voiles, nous ne pouvons voir si ton visage est riant ou triste, si les mœurs en enfermées nous apportent bonheur ou misère, si tu as dans les pis de ton manteau la paix ou la guerre, tu es mystérieuse pour nous, mais tu viens de Dieu, et nous "te donnons" la bénédiction . . . salut ! . . . Bien voilà celui qui vous vient au nom du Signeur !

Le jour qui commence l'année semble si courtois que j'voudrais que la partie de la relique, n'y fût grande. Quoique, quand une fontaine va être cuverte aux habitants d'une ville, vous voyez un pontife venir bénir les eaux qui vont couler. Et bien ! je voudrais qu'il y eût aussi des marches de l'autel, une bénédiction des jours qui vont nous venir.

Sous le soleil, y a-t-il quelque chose qui se ressemble plus que les eaux qui coulent et que nos jours qui passent ? Les eaux vont à l'océan, les jours à l'éternité. Mais si le vaste Océan ne dit point aux ondes qui lui arrivent : Pourquoi êtes-vous troubées et heureuses ? Dieu dira à nos jours : Pourquoi n'avez-vous pas été purs ? Tâchons donc qu'ils ne soient pas souillés.

L'ASSURANCE DE VIE.

Tous nos lecteurs savent ce qu'est l'assurance sur la vie — quand même ils ne l'auraient pas su que par les nombreux agents qui parcourent les villes et les campagnes cherchent à persuader aux gens que ce qu'ils ont de mieux à faire est de prendre une police dans leur compagnie.

Les assurances sur la vie ont du bon, du moins nous savons tous que cela jusqu'ici ; mais elles ont aussi leur mauvais côté : c'est leur côté cruel et cruel, bien lointain. Pour en convaincre le lecteur il suffira de leur dire l'histoire vraie que nous racontait, la semaine dernière, un citoyen pauvre mais honnête, qui a vu le caractère lamentable de l'assurance sur la vie.

Il y a une dizaine d'années, barbado par un de ces agents, après au gain, il avait fini par consentir de prendre une assurance de $1 500 00 moyennant le paiement annuel d'une prime de $75 00. Les affaires allaient assez bien dans le temps, et il croyait pouvoir payer cette somme sans priver sa famille du nécessaire. Il paya ainsi pendant qua ans, les paiements étant de plus en plus difficiles. A faire chaque année jusqu'à ce qu'enfin, la cinquième année, il se vit tout à fait incapable de verser cette somme de $75 00 entre les mains de la compagnie. Ceilà il voulut se montrer généreux, et il offrit de prêter la somme ci-dessus à l'assureur.

L'emprunt fut contracté à raison d'un taux de 5 pour cent par an, lequel intérêt était payable, sans faute, dans le cours de juillet de chaque année.

Deux mois s'écoulèrent, et notre homme, se trouvant de moins en moins capable de payer sa prime, dut prendre ce que les gens de métier appellent une police acquittée, pour trois cents piastres payables après sa mort. Mais les $75 00 restaient toujours dus. L'assureur fut payé annuellement sur cette somme pendant six ans, et au mois de juillet dernier, l'individu dont nous parlions dut recourir à la compagnie qu'il lui était complètement impossible de payer son intérêt dans le cours du mois par suite de preuves qui avaient foudri sur lui, et il demanda un dédit de quelques mois. On lui dit qu'il y a déjà longtemps, ces compagnies sont des corps sans âme, aussi dans le mois d'octobre recevait-il une lettre chargée, au nom de la police d'assurance avait été annulée. Tout était donc fini, et les trois cent trente piastres qu'il avait payé en argent gagné par un rude travail, étaient perdus pour lui et sa famille.

N'avons-nous pas raison de dire que les assurances sur la vie, pour le petit propriétaire, pour l'ouvrier qui a besoin de tout son salaire pour faire vivre sa famille, pour tous ceux qui n'ont pas un revenu fixe sur lequel ils peuvent compter, que ces assurances ont leur mauvais côté.

Nous ne parlons pas ici des associations mutuelles de bienfaisance, où tous les membres se considèrent comme des frères, et en moyennant une légère contribution mensuelle, ils s'assurent un revenu hebdomadaire en cas de maladie, et une somme variant de $200 ou $300 dans le cas où la mort viendrait à les enlever à leur famille. Un jeune homme, et même celui qui est dans la force de l'âge, agit toujours sageusement en entrant dans de telles associations — du Canada de St. Paul Minn., 1<sup>re</sup> Div. 1<sup>re</sup>

UNE JEUNE CONTROVERISTE

Dans une réunion de jeunes filles pauvres, en Angleterre, en leur posa un jour, pendant le catéchisme, la question suivante : "Si l'Eglise romaine est approuvée catholique, parce qu'elle est répandue dans tout le monde, pour quoi l'hérésie, que l'on rencontre aussi partout, ne pourrait-elle pas être approuvée catholique ?"

"Je toute petite fille se mit à crier : "La sainte Eglise romaine est approuvée catholique, non seulement parce qu'elle est répandue partout, mais encore parce qu'elle est partout la meilleure." L'assureur, au contraire, se trouva partout, si l'on veut : mais partout elle est différente, attendu qu'elle est divisée en un nombre infini de sectes, dont les unes ne croient pas ce que les autres croient."

Cette réponse varia tout en volume. — Impartial.
