Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (leader of the Opposition): Before your opinion is given, Mr. Speaker, with all deference to yourself, I think the House should carefully consider the question raised on the point of order. In the last session, and I think the session before, but undoubtedly in the last session, holdings were given the other way. I think at the time I argued that the holding which you, Mr. Speaker, indicate you may now give was the correct holding. I was, however, over-ruled, and I think the arguments presented by what was then the Oppostion weighed very heavily in over-ruling my view of the rules of the House at that time. While I thought that, I feel it would be very unfair that under the late government the members of the Opposition should have been permitted to move such resolutions as these, and that on a change of government a different ruling should prevail. It seems to me to be a case where precedents ought to obtain. The reason of the holding last session was this: It was held by Mr. Speaker that inasmuch as the mere passing of the resolution itself, did not impose any charge upon the treasury, the resolution should be looked upon as a mere pious affirmation of opinion, and consequently that the House should be allowed to debate and dispose of it as it might see fit. I argued, quite frankly, that the contrary view should prevail, but I was overruled, and that having been done, it appears to me we would be well advised to follow the course of procedure then adopted.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Did I understand my right hon. friend to say the Government was opposed to its being proceeded with?

Mr. MEIGHEN: No, my hon. friend has quite misunderstood me. I am arguing the point of order, hoping that I may not be too late, and in support of my argument I am merely saying that the contrary was ruled last session against my argument. I admit taking the view that Mr. Speaker has indicated just now, but I was overruled, and I just expressed the view that the Speaker over-ruled me because of the weight he attached to arguments advanced by the then Opposition.

My position is that this practice having obtained last session, and, I think, the session before—indeed it obtained all through the last Parliament, but it was distinctly affirmed by Mr. Speaker last session—it should be followed in this case, and these resolutions should be considered as mere affirmations of opinion, as indeed they are, and as in no way effecting in themselves a charge.

Mr. SPEAKER: I think I can clear the atmosphere. There was an error made in that the first resolution placed on the Order Paper by the hon. member for Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) was wrongly drafted. Accordingly the hon. member amended it, and as it now appears on the Order Paper it is properly drafted and is certainly in order. The mistake arose through handing me the original resolution which in my judgment was not in order, but no reason now exists for raising a point of order and the mover may proceed with it.

At six o'clock the House took Recess.

After Recess

The House resumed at eight o'clock.

Mr. T. W. CALDWELL (Victoria and Carleton): Mr. Speaker, my reason for putting this resolution on the Order Paper and bringing it before this House is to direct the attention of hon. members to the fact that, although the Government of Canada has spent a large sum of money at the port of St. John to facilitate the export of the western wheat which comes down there for export, we have to ship the crop we grow in New Brunswick, namely potatoes, through the port of Boston when we export to a foreign country. This is a condition I do not think should obtain. I took up this matter with the Government last year through the then Minister of Customs, who was the member for St. John at that time, and he was very anxious that facilities should be established at St. John to take care of the export of potatoes, in order that our national port might get the benefit of the trade and that our potato growers might get a remuneration for the crop they grew that would enable them to make even the producing expenses, which they have not done for the last two years. I was very strongly supported in this last year by some of the largest shippers in New Brunswick. I have a letter under my hand from which I wish to quote, to show something of the conditions existing at St. John, and I wish to go back to last year, to enable the House to understand the conditions as they exist to-day. This shipper writes:

> We have been shipping to the Havana market for the past twelve years and during this time practically all our shipments have been through the port of Boston, where we have facilities and a large frost proof warehouse on the dock and regular sailing from Boston to Havana each Thursday, so we know just when our goods are going forward and our customer in Havana knows just what time he can expect the arrival of same, which is very important in the Havana market, as you are no doubt aware the weather is very hot and potatoes will not keep long in Havana so they only buy from week to week what they can use. Now we have been paying freight on these potatoes from this section to Boston in American funds, also ocean freight in American funds to Havana.

I wish to refer to that paragraph of the letter. Due to a ruling of the Railway Commission, freight on goods shipped to an American port, or through an American port to Cuba, must be paid in American funds, and from the point of shipment to destination, which meant that our shippers had to pay last year—the conditions are not the same this year—$1.16 in Canadian money, for $1 of Canadian freight over a Canadian railroad. At the same time our Railway Commission made this ruling, the Interstate Commerce Commission of United States made a ruling with regard to international freight, which was that for freight destined to points in Canada from the United States, the freight must be paid in American funds to the American boundary only, and the American shipper had an advantage over the Canadian shipper. He could pay the freight from the American boundary to destination in Canada in Canadian funds, which was sharp discrimination against the Canadian shipper. To resume my quotation, the letter continues:

> Twelve years ago when we started to ship potatoes to Havana our railway freight to Boston was 17c per 100 lbs., our ocean freight was 50c. per sack of 180 pounds, Boston to Havana, which made a total freight delivered C.I.F. Havana around 80c. per barrel. To-day the cost of shipping one barrel of potatoes from this section to Havana, Cuba, via Boston is $3 per barrel payable in American funds.

Which meant $3.48 in Canadian funds at that time. A month previous to the time this letter was written these shippers were compelled to discontinue the shipment to Cuba, due to the fact that the price in Cuba had fallen to $4 a barrel. The freight was $3 in American funds, which meant $3.48 in Canadian money, so that the shippers could not pay anything, practically, for potatoes in New Brunswick. If we had had facilities at St. John and a regular sailing from that port to Cuba, they could have shipped those potatoes to Cuba at $1.20 a barrel instead of $3.48, and they would have been able to pay the farmers at least $2 per barrel for the potatoes, a price which would have enabled them to ship the potatoes. The fact is that last spring there were thousands of barrels of potatoes dumped in New Brunswick because we could not pay the freight to Cuba, and ship them through Boston. I took this up last year, through the Minister of Customs and the Minister of Marine, with the Government, to see if we could not get a warehouse established at the port of St. John and regular sailings. The Minister of Customs reported to me from time to time that he had taken it up with his colleagues and they had agreed to go ahead and establish a warehouse at St. John. I have a letter here from the Department of Marine stating the reason why they were not putting on vessels. The letter says:—

> Our steamship manager advises me that they have done their best to cultivate a potato trade with New Brunswick but without success. It is true that the port of St. John is not fitted with a frost proof warehouse adjacent to the loading steamer, and this has no doubt discouraged the movement of potatoes through the port of St. John during the winter.

This letter goes on to state that due to the fact that there were not enough potatoes coming through St. John they could not put on a steamer. They also state that they did not think the trade in Cuba would warrant putting on a steamer anyway, and they were basing their statement on the fact that there were practically no potatoes going through St. John. This shipper in the same letter tells me that, up until a month of the time the letter was written—that is January 1921—this one firm was shipping ten to twelve thousand barrels to Cuba through Boston. They were not going through St. John, because they had no facilities at that port to handle potatoes in cold weather.

I have a report of the shipments of potatoes as they were received at the port of Havana for a few weeks last year. I went to the Minister of Trade and Commerce as well, because I believed that that department would know what the export to Cuba of commodities from this country was, and they reported that there were not enough shipments going forward to warrant putting steamships on that line. I want to give the House the quantity of potatoes received at the port of Havana for a few weeks last year. In the week ending October 31, 1920, there were shipped 14,558 barrels and 5,397 sacks. These sacks hold more than the barrels; they contain 180 pounds. In the week ending November 6, the total shipment was 16,005; November 13, 30,988; and December 11, 30,489 sacks and barrels.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Where were they shipped from?

Mr. CALDWELL: Part of them were shipped from New Brunswick and the rest via the United States. I shall read a part of the letter I received from this shipper, who says that they have captured the Havana trade:

> Last winter we tried to ship via St. John to Havana, and we gave the Canadian Government Merchant Marine a cargo of potatoes and sent two or three of our best men to oversee the loading, but we could not induce the management of these boats at St. John to load our potatoes in any kind of shape, and handled same as so much junk which resulted in a loss for which we have now entered action against the Canadian Government Merchant Marine to recover, so we gave this up and went back to shipping through Boston, and have been shipping through this port some ten to twelve thousand barrels each week during this season, up until one month ago, when the potato market in Havana dropped to $4.00 per barrel, then we were shut out, the potatoes costing us at that time $1.25 here, $3.00 freight to Havana left us a loss of 25c. per barrel.

Possibly a hundred shippers in New Brunswick send their potatoes to Cuba; and at that time this firm, as the letter states, was shipping from 10,000 to 12,000 barrels per week. When the House prorogued last year I went home in the full expectation that the government would establish this frost-proof warehouse at St. John before the following winter, but I learned during the summer that nothing had been done in the matter. I had several conferences with the shippers to ascertain what could be done, and failing any action on the part of the government, this firm, from whose letter I am quoting, and two other shippers in New Brunswick formed an export company, leased a warehouse at the port of St. John and fitted it up at their own expense, and shipped through it during the past winter. Now, that will not benefit the potato growers of New Brunswick. These shippers practically have a corner on the potato export business of New Brunswick. They pay the same price for potatoes as other shippers pay who ship through the port of Boston. No shippers, of course, can use the warehouse at St. John except the three who own it, and everyone who has any potatoes to ship must ship them through Boston and pay the excessive freight rate due to the long haul, instead of getting the advantage of the short haul to St. John.

Now, it is quite probable that some hon. member may say that there is now in St. John a frost-proof warehouse. Well, I know there is, and I mention the fact merely to anticipate anything that may be said in that respect. There is a warehouse, but as I have said, it does not benefit the potato growers of New Brunswick who have to ship through Boston. The average cost of producing potatoes last year was $2 per barrel and the growers are to-day getting 60 to 80 cents. The reason is, we cannot get our potatoes into Cuba without paying an excessive freight rate, or else an exorbitant profit to the company who have the shipping facilities in St. John. The Government should establish a warehouse at that port open to all shippers of New Brunswick. They might give the firm who own this warehouse an option of selling to the Government for the money they put into the business. I do not want to see this firm suffer, and I am not finding fault with them for establishing that warehouse and making a profit out of it. They need a big profit, because they were put to considerable cost in establishing and equipping this warehouse. If the Government decided to establish a warehouse of their own at St. John this firm could be given the opportunity of selling out to them, and the shippers of New Brunswick would then be able to export to better advantage than they can to-day. They would save in freight rates and would be in a better position to grow potatoes at a profit. I do not wish to take up any further time, and as I shall have the right to close the debate I shall reserve until then anything more I have to say on the subject. But I trust I have made clear the necessity for a public warehouse at St. John.

Mr. PIUS MICHAUD (Restigouche and Madawaska): I endorse the resolution of my hon. friend from Carleton and Victoria (Mr. Caldwell). In New Brunswick to-day the farmers have thousands of dollars' worth of potatoes that they cannot ship. Formerly our potatoes had a good market in Winnipeg, Boston, and even in this city, but unfortunately, owing to the higher freight rates to which our products have been subjected, we have been unable to compete with the state of Maine and with other provinces of the Dominion. Our potatoes are of excellent quality by reason of the adaptability of the soil, and to-day we are to some extent specializing in this industry. But we have no facilities for shipping our potatoes, and it will be impossible for us to continue this line of farming unless something can be done to reduce the freight rates we have to pay. The state of Maine is to-day providing practically all of the New England states, except New York, with potatoes. They have a considerable advantage over us. As my hon. friend (Mr. Caldwell) says, our American friends can compete successfully against us because of the disadvantage with which we have to contend in the matter of shipping, and, in the past, in regard to the exchange. St. John is advantageously situated as a shipping point for our potatoes, because it is a seaport, and Cuba for the last few years has been a good market for us. We have been shipping potatoes practically all the year round, but since the establishment of the private warehouse in St. John we have been handicapped in competition with the shippers of Maine. I hope the Government will look into the matter at an early date and make it possible, even before the close of the present season, for us to export our potatoes to outside markets if we have not adequate markets in this country.

Mr. RICHARD B. HANSON (York-Sunbury): I desire briefly to support the resolution. It is quite in line with the promise of the Government to extend our marketing facilities, as outlined in the Speech from the Throne, and I would suggest to the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Robb) that this is a matter in respect of which he could do a very real service to the farmers of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. I include the Island farmers. It is true that the New Brunswick farmer in days gone by has been very seriously handicapped, for while we have had free trade with the United States in potatoes, whenever it suited them to do so they declared an embargo against our product and shut us out as effectively as they have now done under the Fordney tariff. The result was that our nearest market was closed to our potatoes in more ways than one. The Cuban market has been rather erratic in the past, and a very real difficulty has been experienced by shippers by reason of the fact that until within a comparatively recent period there has been no direct steamship communication from our own ports. But through the enterprise of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company round trips have been made this season by their ocean steamship service, and the very satisfactory accommodation to the potato trade has demonstrated beyond a doubt that their service out of St. John can more than compete with that provided by the United Fruit Company's boats out of the port of Boston.

I would not have the House think that our only crop in New Brunswick is potatoes, but our farmers have been actuated, I think, by the example of their neighbours in the State of Maine, who confine their efforts almost exclusively to the production of these tubers, and in the northern counties they have gone very extensively into potato production—rather unwisely, perhaps, because, I am of opinion that they would be much better off if they engaged in mixed farming, following the example of their brothers in the eastern part of the province in days gone by.

I was not aware that the frostproof warehouse established this year at St. John is a private enterprise. I was under the impression that shippers on payment of a toll could use that warehouse, and I believe that was done this past winter to some extent, although I speak subject to correction.

Mr. CALDWELL: Three shippers.

Mr. HANSON: There was a community of shippers,—how many I am not aware.

In the opening of this trade, which has lain dormant for the reasons mentioned by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell), the Government by the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money could confer a very substantial benefit on the locality affected. I commend this particularly to my hon. friend, the Secretary of State, (Mr. Copp), who, I know, is just as much interested in this matter as we are, and I hope he and his colleagues will give it their very earnest and favourable consideration. It will be a step in the right direction to attempt to relieve what is now a really bad situation in the province, and the establishment of these terminal facilities would be a great help during the cold weather towards obtaining a new market for our surplus potatoes, which, as has been rightly said, have no superior on this continent.

Mr. O. TURGEON (Gloucester): I rise to support the resolution of the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) urging the Government to provide proper terminal facilities at the port of St. John to place the potato growers of New Brunswick in a position to command the West Indian and other markets. For the past two years I have on frequent occasions called the attention of Parliament to the hardship imposed upon our products from the East—products of the farm as well as of the forest—by reason of the very high freight rates. In many cases these excessive freight charges have in effect put an embargo upon the products of New Brunswick,—our old markets have been closed to us, and we are left to find other outlets, which has been very difficult and in some cases impossible of accomplishment. Although the county which I have the honour to represent is the most distant from the port of St. John, still if we had such terminal facilities as have been suggested the farmers there could take advantage of them as well as the farmers of southern New Brunswick. I hope that the Government will without delay concede the request of my hon. friend from Victoria and Carleton. I have no doubt that the hon. Minister of Public Works (Mr. King), who must still have some sympathy for his native province, will contribute his energy as well as his sympathy to that end, and that the Supplementary Estimates will contain an item sufficient to provide these facilities for next season's crop.

Mr. W. J. WARD (Dauphin): Mr. Speaker, there is another phase of this question which has not been touched upon, and in my judgment one which places a very great handicap upon the potato growers of western Canada at least. The constituency which I have the honour to represent has become quite a potato growing district, but the growers are at a decided disadvantage in that the railway companies do not permit potatoes to be unloaded at a given point other than the point of destination, and stored there until the market will absorb those potatoes. For example, last fall there were five thousand carloads of potatoes standing in the Chicago railway yard on which there were no bids, largely due to the fact that the railway companies do not allow through rates on potatoes diverted in transit. At Dauphin we have no warehousing for vegetables, and our local growers, who ship from fifteen to twenty carloads of potatoes a year, are compelled to load their product within a month and ship them direct through to Chicago, New York, or some other large centre, thus bringing about congestion, which naturally causes a very great slump in prices, such as took place on the Chicago market last fall. I think this question of diversion in transit should be taken up along with the warehousing question and have the serious consideration of the Railway Commission.

Mr. G. B. JONES (Royal): I rise to support the resolution proposed by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton. We lost our American market because of the American tariff put into effect last year, and therefore I think the Government should give our potato growers every assistance. Formerly we had a very good market in Quebec and Ontario, but the excessive freight rates from the maritime provinces have cut off that market, and last year our farmers had to feed their cows large quantities of potatoes left on their hands. The section I represent is largely devoted to dairying, and I think everyone knows that potato feed does not conduce to milk production. Consequently the farmers in the constituency of Royal have met with very severe losses. I hope the Government will see fit to do something to meet the situation, which has been so well put before the House by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton and others who have spoken in support of his resolution.

Hon. J. B. M. BAXTER (St. John City): There seems to be nothing to add to the arguments advanced by hon. members who have preceded me, and I am sure that you,

Sir, and the House will be pleased to see such a manifestation of unity from the province of New Brunswick. We are all one on a subject of this kind. I shall not attempt to add anything to what has been stated, except to suggest to the Government that whether it be in the form of a potato warehouse or any other development of a Canadian port, it is work along the right lines. The country is pretty well served with railways at the present time, but you have to have a spout, so to speak, through which the produce of the country can be sent on its journey overseas; and the equipment of our ports is the urgent problem of to-day. Advocated as it is from within the ranks of the party to my left, I trust that the efforts of the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) may be successful in bringing about among his party a broadness of spirit which will recognize that there are claims for reasonable consideration on the part of the people of the East as well as on the part of the people of the centre of this Dominion. It may be wheat one day, but it can very well be potatoes the next; it may be railroad rates one day, but it can very well be equipment of our ports the next; and unless the House is prepared, unless the groups in this House are prepared, to give equal consideration to all these problems, it is scarcely possible to expect that any of them by itself will be successfully solved. I congratulate the hon. member on having brought this matter to the attention of the Government. They are pressed, it is true, with the urgent need of economy, but this expenditure would be so small and the service rendered so great that I trust the Prime Minister will see fit to have provision made for it in the Supplementary Estimates.

Mr. L. H. MARTELL (Hants): I have much pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in concurring in the sentiments which have been expressed by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell), and in supporting his resolution with regard to the providing of terminal facilities for the export of potatoes from New Brunswick at all seasons of the year. I have, however, one request to make, and it is that he be good enough, at least impliedly, to embrace within the four corners of his resolution an equal request that similar terminal facilities be provided for the city of Halifax, in order that the people of western Nova Scotia, particularly of the county of Hants, may have an opportunity of exporting their potatoes.

The county of Hants, I need hardly remind you, Mr. Speaker, is one of the finest agricultural districts in the Dominion; we raise potatoes in that constituency which are the equal of those produced in any other part of Canada. We are not entirely confined to the growing of fruit; we regard the raising of potatoes as one of our basic industries. The hon. member for Victoria and Carleton advocates the interests of the potato growers of New Brunswick; I wish to reiterate his remarks and to make the same plea for the potato grower of the midland and western counties of Nova Scotia. I believe it is in the best interests of the farmers of the maritime provinces who are concerned in the growing of potatoes that ample terminal and shipping facilities be provided for the export of their product. If our people are going to be kept on the farm it is false economy for us to endeavour to save a mere pittance where the welfare of the farmer is concerned. In order to make our country more prosperous, in order to improve industry, it is essential that some money be spent, and while there is no doubt that Canada to-day is in dire financial straits, our condition is not such that we can afford to follow the policy of "let well enough alone." We should rather adopt a policy having for its object the development of industry, and if we expend a reasonable amount of money in the development of our industries, then, of necessity, better financial times will come.

I therefore have much pleasure in concurring in the resolution proposed by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton. If there is one class of people that we want to help in this country, it is the farmers. I happen not to be of the farming class; I am a member of that much abused profession of law. But every possible effort must be made—and particularly is it the case in Nova Scotia—to keep our people on the farms, and we can do that only by encouraging them all we can and providing them with the best possible facilities for the export of their products.

Hon. J. H. KING (Kootenay, Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I see no reason why this House should not concur in this resolution. For the information of hon. members who are interested in the matter, I would say that officials of the Department of Public Works are now making inquiries in the hope of finding that we have facilities at the port that may be utilized for this purpose, or, if possible, to bring about conditions at the port—

Mr. MEIGHEN: Louder, please.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): —to bring about a condition at the port that will provide this accommodation.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I tried to listen, but I am still without information as to the Government's attitude. Might I ask the minister if he would repeat those two sentences?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The Government is going to do what is asked—agree to the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Does the right hon. gentleman wish me to repeat?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I understood the minister to say they were making inquiries whether there was room for the warehouse. Perhaps I am wrong.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I stated that we were inquiring into the present facilities at the port to see if we could not use those facilities, or some of them, in order to give this accommodation.

Mr. T. W. CALDWELL (Victoria and Carleton): While the resolution only asks that the Government should take this matter into consideration, because that was as far as I could go under the rules of the House, I would really like to have a stronger assurance from the Minister of Public Works (Mr. J. H. King) or from the Government that this matter will be taken up and that a warehouse will be actually established. A pious wish does not get you anywhere in exporting potatoes; I have learned that to my sorrow. If the Government will give me an assurance that they will—I do not know just how to put it without getting out of order; but while one may not as a private member propose a motion involving the expenditure of money, it is possible for him to urge quite strongly that the Government spend this money and build this warehouse.

I am grateful to the minister for having taken this matter up so promptly. I spoke to him some days ago about it and he very kindly consented to consult his officials at St. John and see what the possibilities were. I would like to warn the minister in one respect: I have no doubt that the very shippers who urged me so strongly last year to get the Government to establish this warehouse and who have since established one of their own, will oppose this very strongly, because they certainly have the best thing in New Brunswick in the shape of a money-making organization. They have a corner on the exports at St. John in the way of potatoes; it is a crop we grow largely for export, and it is the largest export crop in the province. These people would object to the Government establishing a warehouse that would give to every shipper in New Brunswick a chance to ship through the port of St. John. It means a matter of $1.50 to $1.75 a barrel by way of profit to them if no one else can ship through St. John, because if the other shippers are compelled to ship through Boston, the St. John shippers only have to pay the price that any shipper pays who ships through the port of Boston. I hope I have made that clear. I could furnish a volume of communications which I have received from these shippers last year urging the building of this warehouse, as showing the necessity for it and the benefits that would thereby accrue to the farmers of New Brunswick. I would like the minister to give us some further assurance that the Government will not be too easily put off. I am not betraying any confidence, I think, when I say that I believe the report from St. John was that there was no room to provide further facilities at that port. I can hardly agree with that statement because I have been at the port of St. John a good deal and while the facilities for exporting grain and other produce are considerable—there are grain elevators provided by this Government, and rightly so—there is still plenty of room to establish a warehouse where we could unload both out of the cars into the warehouse and out of the warehouse into a boat. That of course is essential because we have to ship a large part of our potato crop in the winter. It is not harvested until the cold weather is upon us in the fall, and anyone who knows anything about the growing of potatoes knows that you must market them before the next summer; so the potatoes have to be marketed in the cold weather. If we had summer the year round we could ship our potatoes from St. John without the facilities asked for, but as it is, it is impossible to collect a load of potatoes at the docks and let them stand in cars on the track, and if that were possible you could not keep them from freezing in the cold weather. If the Government will give me the assurance that they will go ahead and establish a potato warehouse, I shall be pleased to withdraw the resolution.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: If the Government promises to do all my hon. friend requests in his resolution, will my hon. friend be content?

Mr. CALDWELL: I am not satisfied with this resolution as it stands, and the only reason I put it in this form was because I could not put it in any other. A pious wish does not provide facilities for exporting potatoes.

Mr. LAPOINTE: We cannot do more than accept the resolution.

Mr. CALDWELL: I think I can depend on the good faith of the minister to go ahead. I know that if he inquires into the matter he will find it necessary to establish a warehouse at the port of St. John, so I have much pleasure in withdrawing the motion.

Motion withdrawn.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FISHERIES

Mr. W. G. McQUARRIE (New Westminster) moved:

That, in the opinion of this House, it is advisable that the Standing Committee on Marine and Fisheries be and the said Standing Committee is hereby authorized and empowered to investigate and consider fisheries conditions in British Columbia, and more particularly, but not so as to restrict the generality of the foregoing, the depletion of the salmon fisheries of the Fraser River district, and to make suggestions for the restoration and conservation of the same; also to investigate and consider fish hatcheries, including the proper system to be adopted, their value as a means of propagation, the methods of operation and the results obtained therefrom; with power as to all the hereinbefore mentioned matters to call for persons, papers and records, to examine witnesses under oath and to report from time to time.

He said: Having disposed of the potatoes, I presume it is now in order for us to start on the fish. I am told they go very well together. One of the principal reasons why I am a member of Parliament to-day is the condition of the fishing industry in British Columbia. While I cannot claim to be a fisherman, or even an expert on fisheries, I have had the privilege of living in New Westminster, on the banks of that once great salmon stream the Fraser river, for upwards of thirty years, and during that time I have studied very carefully fisheries conditions. I think I may safely say that I at least know the fishermen; I know their work and the difficulties they have to contend with. I know the importance of the fisheries industry to the community as well as to the country at large. I also have had something to do with the canning industry, having worked in a cannery for a short time. I have seen the salmon industry at its best. I have seen the big runs when the canneries, although large and numerous, were unable to handle the fish that was supplied to them. Those were the good old days when everybody was happy. The fishermen, the cannery men, and merchants were all prosperous and contented.

I have also unfortunately seen the dark side of the picture which presents itself to-day in most alarming form, when the canneries are practically all closed down, when pessimism is rife, and when the fishermen are cold and hungry. The big salmon run on the Fraser river is practically a thing of the past, and if conditions get any worse, it is evident that in a comparatively short time king salmon will be as scarce in the waters of the Fraser river as is the buffalo on the prairies, and the sockeye, that great canning fish, will be a curiosity entitled to a place in the Victoria Museum. If I can do anything to assist even in a small way in restoring this great industry, I shall consider that I have done something worth while.

In rising to propose this resolution, I do not do so with the object of securing an opportunity to make a speech, but with the sole and only purpose of getting action. I intend to make my remarks as brief as possible, but hon. gentlemen will no doubt agree that it is advisable, indeed necessary, that I should at least outline some matters which I think should be taken up by the committee if this resolution should pass.

To put myself right, I might be permitted to explain that in moving this resolution I have no intention of embarrassing the Government in any way. I do not wish to attack the administration or its officials, or, for that matter, any person or corporation. I believe the officials have been doing their best and that there are in the department capable and conscientious men who have been doing good work. What I complain about is that we have not been getting results. I am not looking for political advantage or trying to make party capital. While I am a party man, I am firmly convinced that when we come to consider matters of national importance we should put aside party ideals, party standards, and party differences and all work together for the common good of the Dominion of Canada as a whole. I can frankly say that if the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Lapointe) will take up this subject with the intention of investigating it fully, and will do something to improve conditions and clear up the situation, as I believe he will, I shall co-operate with him to the best of my ability. While this is a question which primarily affects the Pacific coast it also materially concerns the whole Dominion. If there are similar problems on the Atlantic coast, or elsewhere in Canada, I shall be most anxious and willing to co-operate with the members from those districts who bring any such matter before the House. I am asking for the co-operation of hon. members in this most important matter. We have a committee on Marine and Fisheries which is composed of men who presumably have some knowledge of fisheries, and it is my object to invoke the aid of the hon. members on that committee, and I am hopeful that good results will follow. Let us study the question from all angles and see if we cannot do something to improve conditions. Let us hear all sides with open minds, and let us devise some solution of this difficult and complicated situation. I am not one of those who desire to attack the canners. It is true that I am much interested in the fishermen, or I should say the white fishermen, and one of my most prized possessions is a membership card in the British Columbia Fishermen's Protective Association, but at the same time I appreciate the fact that the canners have a large amount of capital involved in this industry, and I think they should receive every reasonable consideration. Let us treat all the interests fairly and equitably and do the best we can in dealing with this problem.

Now the British Columbia fisheries despite all drawbacks, impediments and mismanagement—or I should say lack of control—constitute to-day nearly one-half in value of the fishery resources of the Dominion. In 1920 those resources amounted to $49,241,339 and the British Columbia fisheries to $22,329,161. You will see from that how important the fisheries of the Pacific coast are, and I would say without any hesitation that it is quite possible, with proper encouragement, to increase the amount derived from the British Columbia fisheries—I would say it could be doubled, or trebled or perhaps quadrupled. Now the revenue that we receive from British Columbia also constitutes a very important part of the whole amount derived throughout the Dominion. The revenue for 1920-21 for the Dominion was $318,455.73, and for British Columbia it was $233,282.04. Therefore, if conditions are improved and the fisheries become more profitable, then, of course more revenue will be obtained for the Government. I have pointed out that the expenditures in connection with the operation of our fisheries are very heavy and that the disbursements in British Columbia constitute an important part of this outlay. The expenditures for 1920-21 for the whole Dominion, including fisheries protection, were approximately $1,758,925.06 of which about $250,000 was for fisheries protection. The expenditures in British Columbia were $710,412.14 of which $176,770 was on account of fisheries protection. Now I think that is one matter which might be taken up by the Marine and Fisheries Committee. Where there is a great expenditure of that kind it seems to me the committee might very well consider whether the money is being properly expended or whether it could be devoted to a more useful purpose.

Now with regard to the Fraser river. I do not wish to worry the House with a lot of figures. I have here the complete returns for a number of years, showing the packs on the Fraser river and elsewhere, but I intend to refer only to a few of them. I might point out to hon. members that every fourth year we have, or are supposed to have, a large run of fish. That condition has existed for a great many years. The explanation of this I am unable to furnish nor do I think anybody else is. It has so happened, however, that for a great many years every fourth year has witnessed a big run while the runs of the intermediate years are smaller. Some people are inclined to think that this fact is due to some artificial cause, but in looking through one of the reports I have here and will later refer to I find that Simon Fraser, the discoverer of the Fraser river, and after whom it is named, in a report which he made in 1806-11 refers to the fact that at that time they had these large runs every four years, so that condition has prevailed for a great many years.

I will now refer briefly to the big runs every four years, and I will start with twenty years ago. In 1901 the pack on the Fraser river was 990,252 cases, and I would say that the great proportion of that pack was made up of sockeyes which are the best grade of fish for canning. In 1905 the pack was 877,136 cases; in 1909, 567,203 cases; in 1913, 732,059 cases; in 1917, 377,988 cases; and in 1921, 103,918 cases. Now you will note that the difference between the pack in 1901 and that in 1921 amounts to 886,334 cases. I might also point out that in 1921 there were only 35,900 cases of sockeye. Now what does that amount to in money. Taking the value of a case at $15, which I think is a conservative figure, we find that this country has lost $13,295,010, representing the difference in the value of the packs in these years. That I think is a matter that might very well be considered. The question, of course, is whether the fisheries on the Fraser river can be restored or not. As to that I would simply point out that a few years ago on the Columbia river in the United States they had pretty nearly the same condition that we have to-day. However, they went into the matter thoroughly and to-day the yield of the Columbia river has been restored. Last year we were fortunate in having one of the men responsible for bringing back the Columbia river fisheries make an investigation of our fisheries on the Fraser river—I refer to Mr. Camsell, one of the greatest authorities in the United States. Mr. Camsell, in his report, which I have here, says that it is quite possible, quite feasible, and not at all difficult to restore the Fraser river fisheries. I simply quote a short extract where he says:

> Unlike those of the Upper Columbia River Basin where the development of the industrial projects has tended towards their destruction, the immense spawning beds of the Fraser River watershed are still unimpaired, being practically in the same condition as formerly. All those who have studied the matter agree that, up till a few years ago, the spawning beds were abundantly seeded at least during the "big" years. Hordes of parent sockeyes then visited the upper river and to-day the conditions are as favourable for their reception as they ever were.

Again he says:

> It is apparent that in the past many of those sincerely anxious to restore the Fraser River sockeye fishery have been working more or less at cross purposes. In my judgment, if success is to be assured, all past differences must be set aside and all join whole-heartedly in finding a means for overcoming the present conditions. It is the desire of everyone concerned to rehabilitate the fishery. The only difference lies in the method by which this can be brought about.

He advises co-operation between the Dominion, the provincial, and the state authorities, and he says that if we have that co-operation we will bring the Fraser river fisheries back to what they were in 1901, without the expenditure of a great deal of money. He goes on to point out the millions of dollars that have been spent in reclaiming the arid lands of the United States, and he says that it is just as profitable an investment for the country to restore the fisheries as it is to reclaim lands of that kind.

Now the resolution calls for an investigation as to the methods of propagation, including hatcheries. I had the privilege last year of making some remarks along these lines, and I am not going to repeat them. I simply say that there is a great difference of opinion as to whether we should have any artificial propagation, or whether we should rely upon and encourage only natural propagation. That is a matter that this committee might take up. Then we have the enemies of the salmon. I have made a list of some of the enemies of the Pacific Coast salmon, and at the head of the list I have put down "the United States Senate." Hon. gentlemen may consider that that is a rather rash statement, but possibly when I explain myself hon. members will agree with me. We have a peculiar conditions on the Pacific coast, in the southern part, where the Fraser river runs out to sea, inasmuch as we are situated very close to the international boundary line. The waters of the Fraser river permeate some of the waters of Puget sound, which is in American territory. As a matter of fact, the Americans should never have had the boundary line placed where it is. Of course, that was not our fault. Other people were doing the negotiating for us. When our business was handled by other people we always seemed to get the worst of it. However the boundary line was placed where it is, and the result is some of the fish which are hatched out in the hatcheries on the Fraser river come back to Puget sound. We have regulations of all kinds on our side, close seasons and all that kind of thing. We have hatcheries and other means of propagation. We have fishery protection and so on. They have nothing of that kind on the other side of the line, and they simply catch fish. That is what they have been doing for a long time, and that is one reason why the run has become depleted, as it is to-day. That is recognized by the authorities of the state of Washington and by other United States authorities. In 1919 a treaty was negotiated between Canada and the United States, or between Great Britain and the United States, to meet the situation, to provide for an appointment of an international committee which would study and investigate conditions and provide means for bettering those conditions, and also to provide certain restrictions and prohibitions which would tend to the correction of the unfortunate situation. That treaty was signed on the 2nd September, 1919, by the various authorities, by the Hon. R. C. Lindsay, chargé d'affaires of his Britannic Majesty, the Hon. Sir John Douglas Hazen, Chief Justice of New Brunswick, and a member of the Privy Council for Canada, the President of the United States, and by the Hon. Robert Lansing, Secretary of State for United States. I have that treaty in my hands. It is my opinion, and the opinion of a great many others, that if that treaty had passed it would have gone a long way to help the situation. It went up to the United States Senate where it suffered the fate of a great many other treaties and agreements, and it was thrown out. It was thrown out by the Senate because of a lobby which had been put up by selfish interests, by men who were so small, mean and contemptible that they would place their own interests before the interests of their country, men who thought only of the present and cared nothing about the future. It is just possible that we did not do everything that we could have done on that occasion to have that treaty ratified by the United States Senate, I do not believe that the Senate understood conditions at that time, and, so far as I know, we had no one there. We made no effort to see that the facts were placed properly before that body.

Mr. CALDWELL: Did anybody represent Canada before that committee.

Mr. McQUARRIE: Not so far as I am aware. That is a matter which might be taken up, and it might perhaps be considered advisable to re-open negotiations with the United States. They tell me that since that time there have been many changes in the United States Senate, if not in policy possibly in personnel, and it is just possible that if negotiations were renewed that treaty might be put through. If we cannot negotiate with the United States, then I say we can play with them at their own game, if it is possible to do so. The question is how can we do that? A way out has been suggested to me. Whether it is feasible or not I do not know; I would not care to express an opinion. But the proposition is this: The Fraser river has three channels. The North arm, the main channel, and the South arm, otherwise known as Woodward's Slough. The waters of the main channel and the North Arm go out into the Gulf of Georgia, directly in front of our own territory. The waters which pass through Woodward's Slough go down in a southerly direction and permeate the waters of Puget sound. As it is, the waters from the Fraser river go about three-quarters of the way over to Vancouver island. The line of demarcation is very clear, the colouration is distinct, and anyone who goes across can see where the Fraser river waters end. Now, the salmon is a peculiar fish. He goes out to sea when he is a fingerling or smaller and stays away four years, after which he comes back to the place where he was spawned. If not hampered he will come back to the precise spawning ground from whence he came. I do not know how he does it. Of course, the salmon have no compasses or other instruments such as navigators have to assist them.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Have they a chart?

Mr. McQUARRIE: No, but they have what is just as good, an infallible instinct that leads them back home, and our salmon if not interfered with would come back to the Fraser river to their own spawning grounds. The first obstruction they encounter is Vancouver Island, which is about 280 miles long. They proceed down along the shores of the island looking all the time for fresh water. When they reach the southerly end of the island they separate, some going north and others continuing south but all looking for the Fraser river. Those that go south strike fresh water that leads them on to Puget sound where they are caught in the traps that are set there. The Minister of Public Works (Mr. King) will know what I am talking about. There are miles of traps built at Puget sound and our fish are caught by the Americans, our fisheries being depleted to that extent. If we block up the south channel of the Fraser river—Woodward's Slough—it is said that the volume of water would be sufficient to carry the waters of the Fraser river right over to Vancouver Island, and when the salmon comes back he would strike that fresh water leading him directly to the Fraser river. Thus the Americans would get practically no fish at all. Now, that sounds like a fairy tale, but I am told that there is something in it, and if we cannot negotiate with the Americans we might at least try to beat them at their own game.

Another enemy of the salmon is the seal. This is another fish story. The seals are good for nothing. At any rate, we do not make use of them, although the Japanese do; they carry on an industry and make leather out of the hides of the seals. One seal will eat between four and five salmon a day, and salmon are worth 60 cents each. It is estimated that one seal destroys some $500 worth of salmon per year. It is estimated that in the Fraser river there are to-day between 5,000 and 10,000 seals. Taking the minimum, 5,000, in the Fraser river alone, the seals destroy $2,500,000 worth of fish a year. We will take it for granted that the average life of the seal is ten years, and I believe some of them attain a very ripe old age. However, put it at ten years, which is a conservative figure, and in that period the seals in the Fraser river will destroy $25,000,000 worth of fish. Now, what is being done to combat that menace? Practically nothing. Ever since I came to the House, and even before that, I have endeavoured to get something done; I have tried to have bounties placed on the seals. If cattle were being destroyed in this way on the prairies, certainly no expenditure would be too great to eradicate the evil. This is a matter that should be considered by the House.

The trout also is an enemy of the salmon and is very destructive in British Columbia. The most attractive bait for a trout is salmon eggs, and the trout kill millions of prospective fish every year. Yet nothing is being done in this direction either. On the contrary, we have encouraged the propagation of trout, for in the streams and lakes which are connected with the sea trout eggs have actually been placed, and there is a close season in connection with the catching of trout there. Now, I am a sportsman and believe in sport. I have no objection to creating a sportsman's paradise, but I am opposed to doing this where it will interfere with a commercial enterprise such as this.

Then there is the question of orientals. I will not say much on this subject, but in British Columbia to-day the Japanese practically control the fisheries. I have the figures given me by the department the other day and I will quote from them. In 1919, in district No. 1, which is the Fraser river, there were 837 Japanese gill net licenses issued, as against 55 licenses issued to Indians and 409 to others. In district No. 2 there were 1,139 licenses issued to the Japanese, 630 to the Indians, and 721 to others. In district No. 3 there were 267 licenses to the Japanese, 279 to Indians and 226 to others. The figures are similar for the other years. I will give those for 1921:

	Japanese	Indians	Others
District No. 1.. ..	873	68	490
" No. 2.. ..	1,110	967	968
" No. 3.. ..	107	46	132

It will be seen therefore that the Japanese are pretty much in possession of the fisheries of British Columbia. I understand that they are absolutely in control of the fisheries of the Hawaiian Islands, and if we allowed them to do so they would take complete possession of the fisheries of this country. Now, you will ask: How do these men get licenses if they are Japanese, because only British subjects are eligible for licenses? Well, as a matter of fact, the Japanese who get licenses are naturalized citizens of this country. Most of them were naturalized many years ago, and the peculiarity is that a naturalized Jap never dies—at least, one has never been known to die. I am told that when a Japanese fisherman is about to give up the ghost there is standing beside him on the boat, ready to take over the tiller, another Jap who steps into his place and takes possession of his naturalization papers. Fortunately, I am thankful to say, it is not so easy now for the Japanese to secure naturalization; in fact, the naturalization judge in the city of Vancouver has absolutely refused to naturalize any Japanese. He states that they are not entitled to naturalization, because they cannot be expatriated, for notwithstanding their naturalization they must still acknowledge allegiance to their emperor, and in case of war, if they fail to respond to the order to serve their native country, they will be shot as traitors. It has been suggested that it would be a good thing to take finger prints of the men to whom licenses are granted, so that there would be no question of identity. I submitted that suggestion to the department last session, but unfortunately the then Minister of Marine and Fisheries did not think it advisable to take action along that line.

There are other enemies of the salmon but I am not going to mention them to-night. They could, however, be referred to the consideration of this committee.

At one time we had a very profitable sturgeon fishing industry, but it is practically of no account to-day. In this connection I could relate a real fish story—but as newspapers never tell anything but the truth, I will read to this House this extract from the Vancouver Province of April 22nd, 1921.

> The old saying that there are as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it is apparently equally applicable to fresh water, judging by the specimen that was displayed on Monk's wharf, New Westminster, yesterday afternoon.
>
> "It's a whale," more than one visitor asserted, but they were wrong. It was a sturgeon. From the tip of its tail to its snout it measured just thirteen feet, and it weighed 988 pounds. This monster fish was taken with a drift net in the Pitt River by Coquitlam William, an Indian fishing for Monk & Company.

At ten cents a pound that fish would be worth $98.80. At one time there were a great many sturgeon in the Fraser and Pitt rivers and Pitt lake. Only a few of them are left, but if we could re-establish the sturgeon it would be worth while.

Then we come to the regulations. It is claimed by the fishermen that the regulations are unfair, and I think that that remark applies to some of the regulations. For instance, if a fisherman is found guilty of a trivial offence such as throwing out his net a few minutes before the appointed time, he is not only fined but his net and boat are confiscated. That seems to be too drastic. If a motorist breaks the speed law, his automobile is not confiscated. The fishermen say: Fine us; the first time make it a small fine, for the second offence increase the fine, and ultimately make it so heavy that it will be an effective deterrent; but do not confiscate our nets and gear. I think there is something to be said in favour of their view.

Then with regard to cannery licenses, for which a large fee is charged, of course the big companies can well afford to pay those fees, but some fishermen would like to can their own fish. This is impossible to them so long as they have to pay such a large sum for the privilege, and they suggest they should be given the opportunity of canning their own catch if they wish to do so. That is a matter that might well be considered.

Then I come to the dual license fees. In British Columbia the provincial government exercises certain rights over the fisheries. Recently I asked the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he had received a request from the provincial government as to taking over the fisheries, and he answered in the negative. I think if he will look up the records of his department he will find that some years ago a proposition was made by the Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Fisheries for British Columbia, that the province should take over the fisheries. If that is so, is it not worth while considering the advisability of meeting the desire of the province? Being on the spot, might not the provinciai authorities be better able to administer and control the local fisheries than the federal government can from Ottawa?

In my opinion the subject matter of this resolution is of national importance and worthy of concerted effort on the part of this House. The Fisheries Committee as far as my experience has gone—and I was a member of the last Parliament—has never considered the question of the Pacific coast fisheries. All I am asking is that that committee get to work and study the question so that it may be ascertained if anything can be done to improve the fisheries conditions in British Columbia.

Mr. T. W. CALDWELL (Victoria and Carleton): Mr. Speaker, this is a matter that I am also interested in, in view of the fact that possibly the second largest river in Canada flows through the province from which I come, and it is fairly well stocked with salmon. I was a little disappointed to find that this resolution was not made broad enough by the hon. member for New Westminster (Mr. McQuarrie) to take in all our fisheries, as I think it is a subject that might very well engage the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Lapointe).

We have a small fish hatchery on the St. John river. We have a very good run of salmon on that river, but of course not developed to anything like the extent that obtains on the Fraser river. Nor have we any canning factories. However, it might be made a very paying industry on the St. John river. And in supporting the resolution before the House, I would urge the Minister of Marine and Fisheries not to confine his attention solely to the Fraser river. In fact, as the hon. member proceeded with his argument I was under some doubt as to just how we were going to get over the anomaly there that we supply the fish and the Yankees catch them. But we will not be in that unfortunate position on the St. John river, because while the river is at no very great distance from the international line, it is bounded by Canadian territory on both sides until it reaches the northern end of New Brunswick, and although it rises in the United States, the very high falls prevent the salmon from leaving our waters. I hope the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will take this particular matter into consideration while he is dealing with the British Columbia situation.

Hon. ERNEST LAPOINTE (Minister of Marine and Fisheries): Mr. Speaker, as the hon. member for New Westminster (Mr. McQuarrie) has pointed out, the condition of the salmon fisheries on the Fraser river is rather serious. But the causes of the decline in the run of salmon are rather international in their character, and therefore cannot be affected by anything which Canada can do alone. The salmon making for the Fraser river have to run the gauntlet of American fishing equipment before emerging into Canadian waters just below the entrance to the Fraser river. The result is that of the total quantity of fish caught when making for the Fraser river, sixty-six to seventy per cent goes to the Americans. Anything that can be done must be done by both countries, although the future of the fisheries in the Fraser river depends exclusively on the extent to which the spawning grounds in that river are properly sealed. This question has been dealt with by both countries at various times. A treaty was agreed to in 1908 but was not ratified by the United States Senate—one of the enemies of the salmon, as my hon. friend says. Another treaty was entered into in 1920, but it also failed of ratification by the Senate, and the United States government last year informed the department at Ottawa that it would not be possible for the Senate to ratify that treaty. Negotiations, however, are still in progress with a view of inducing the Senate to ratify it.

As my hon. friend has said, there is the peculiar phenomenon in connection with the salmon in the Fraser river that there is a big run every four years, the run in the other three years being not so good. It is surmised that in former days there was a slide from the mountain which blocked the river and prevented the salmon from getting to the spawing beds, and that it was three years before the obstruction was washed out. The Fraser river fish is what is called a four-year fish: it takes four years to mature; then it goes on to spawn, and dies. The last big year was in 1913. In that year the Canadian Northern was constructing a line in the vicinity of the river and the works there caused a slide which blocked the way to the salmon; the fourth year afterwards, 1917, was a very poor year on that account, and 1921 was also a bad year. Generally speaking, in the other British Columbia waters the salmon industry is improving. The years 1919 and 1920 were very good years, though last year was a poor year. The extent of the run depends largely on causes and influences exerting themselves in the sea, and of which we can know nothing.

I do not know whether the work of the committee as suggested will bring about an improvement of conditions, but I have no objection to such work being undertaken. The only possible objection would be that rather large expenditure in witness fees might be involved. However, the committee can start to work, hear the experts of the department at Ottawa, and be the judge whether other witnesses from British Columbia should be summoned. I have no objection to the resolution of my hon. friend.

Mr. WILLIAM DUFF (Lunenburg): Mr. Speaker, the resolution as introduced by the member for New Westminster (Mr. McQuarrie) is, in my opinion, one of the most important resolutions which will be considered at this session of Parliament. Like my hon. friend from Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell), however, I regret that the hon. gentleman did not make his resolution broader. But in my opinion the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton should not have criticised the hon. member for New Westminster; he should have taken the beam out of his own eye before he sought to get the mote in the eye of the hon. member for New Westminster. You will notice, sir, that my hon. friend's potato resolution related only to terminal facilities at St. John, although it is just as important that we should have terminal facilities at other ports in this country. However, in regard to the resolution of the hon. member for New Westminster, I may say that I do not think it is in the interests of the fisheries—though my hon. friend may deem it his privilege, and his duty, perhaps, to put the proposal in its present form—to bring before Parliament a resolution which confines itself to one of the fisheries of this country. I had the honour and the privilege a few years ago to speak before the members of this House on matters pertaining to the fisheries, and although I come from Nova Scotia, in the few remarks which I made at that time I did not confine myself to the fisheries of my own province, or even of the maritime provinces; I dealt with the inland fisheries and those of the Pacific as well as those of the Atlantic coast. There is no question about it Sir, that the fisheries of the Pacific are very important indeed. In my opinion, the fishing industry has never had a fair show, whether on the Atlantic coast or on the Pacific coast, and if there has been one sinner greater than another, it was the government that was in power from 1911 to 1921. They did nothing for the fisheries of this country, and nobody knows that better than the hon. member for New Westminster.

Mr. McQUARRIE: I would not exactly agree to that. As a matter of fact, the late Minister of Fisheries did more for the fisheries of the Pacific coast than any minister who preceded him.

Mr. DUFF: The hon. member has a perfect right to support his minister, but if I had been called down and asked to withdraw a resolution which I had placed on the Order Paper, I would not think much of the minister who asked me to do it. The hon. member was in the House for four years, supporting the government of the day, but did not propose any resolution of this kind, and it is rather strange that he now asks this Government and our present Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Lapointe) to give this matter the attention it deserves. I am proud indeed, Sir, to hear the Minister of Marine and Fisheries say that he is quite willing to place this matter in the hands of the committee on Marine and Fisheries; that is more than was done by the other minister who, the hon. member for New Westminster tries to make out, was the best Minister of Fisheries we ever had. Why, two years ago, after the people on the Pacific coast had been crying out for perhaps two years for refrigerator cars to move their halibut, they could do nothing with the then Minister of Marine and Fisheries or the Minister of Railways, and though there were thirteen hon. members interested in the subject who supported the then Tory government, not one of them rose in his place in the House and endeavoured to get the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or the Minister of Railways to better the conditions prevailing in connection with this industry. It fell to me, Sir, a very humble member from a Nova Scotia constituency, to show the Minister of Railways and the Minister of Fisheries the importance of the halibut fisheries of Prince Rupert, with the result that the refrigerator cars were put on and the fish were moved to the eastern cities of Canada and of the United States.

The member for New Westminster as well as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries referred to the large catch of salmon every four years. Well, that is nothing strange to those of us who have some slight knowledge of the fisheries. It is well known that not only in the salmon industry but also in the other fisheries, the fish come on the coast in greater quantities some years than they do others. The hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) referred to the fish having no chart. It is quite true that the fish have no chart or no compass to guide them, but I would not be surprised to learn that the reason for their staying away from British Columbia during the last four years was because, like the people of this country, they had no confidence in the Union government or in the National Liberal and Conservative party. It is also quite possible that the reason they come every four years is because every fourth year is a "leap year," and the salmon are fish which are in the habit of leaping out of the water as they come up from the ocean to the spawning ground.

The hon. member for New Westminster also referred to the revenue which was obtained from the fisheries of this country and told us that out of a total fisheries revenue of $380,000 for the whole Dominion the large sum of $233,000 came from British Columbia. I want to say that I am opposed to collecting any revenue from the fisheries of this country. The fisheries of this country are carried on by men who cannot afford to pay for licenses except in British Columbia where the great canners are able to pay a fee and prevent the poorer man from packing salmon. In my opinion we should derive no revenue from the fisheries of this country and furthermore, I think a larger expenditure should be made by this Government to develop the fisheries. I repeat I am opposed to gathering revenue from this source; I think it is a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy, and I say to the minister that one of the first things he should do is to reduce the license to the minimum both in the salmon and every other fishery or else cut it out altogether. As I said a moment ago the greater part of the men who are engaged in this great industry are poor men, not capitalists who can invest hundreds of thousands of dollars in the business, but men who own their fishing boats outright or co-operate and own a vessel on shares, and if we ever expect any real development in this great industry, and I have a good deal of faith in this Government's desire to develop the fisheries, one of the things we should do is to cut out the canneries' license, because under the present system the rich man can pay $500, while the poor man, who is not able to afford the fee, is not allowed to pack fish.

Mr. McBRIDE: Would you cut out the licenses for orientals in British Columbia?

Mr. DUFF: If I had my way, I would not give the orientals a license at all. It is a strange thing but if you look at the statistics you will notice, as the hon. member for New Westminster has pointed out, that most of the people who fish in British Columbia are orientals. If there were no orientals fishing, there would not be nearly as many fish caught. I do not believe in oriental fishermen. I believe that we should have white fishermen, and if the late government and perhaps other governments before it had taken the proper steps, we would not now have so many orientals fishing in British Columbia. We do not have orientals fishing on the Atlantic coast, but white men, and from the Atlantic coast we usually return sixteen Liberals to represent the province of Nova Scotia. Perhaps if the people of British Columbia would send Liberals to this Parliament instead of Tories, as they have been doing the last few years, there might not be as many orientals fishing on the western coast as there are at the present time.

The hon. member for New Westminster gave some very good reasons why this question should be referred to the Standing Committee on Marine and Fisheries. He pointed out that there were certain reasons why the fisheries in British Columbia did not yield as high a return last year and for the last two years as they had done in former years, in 1911 and 1901, I think he said. It must not be forgotten, however, that perhaps the main reason why the fisheries were not prosperous last year to the same extent as before was that during the war or shortly afterwards it was impossible to sell the great catch of salmon which the packers had on hand. There are other reasons why the fisheries are not as productive as they were before, and I am very glad that the hon. member for New Westminster mentioned some of them. He spoke of the destruction caused to the salmon by the seals. There is no question that the seals which come into the rivers and bays of the Pacific coast destroy a great many salmon, and I would suggest to the minister that steps be taken to do away with this pest. I think that the people on the Atlantic coast also have sent petitions to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Lapointe) asking him to take steps to do away with the seal menace on the Atlantic coast. We have the same trouble from seals in connection with our mackerel. The seals follow the mackerel into the nets and make holes in the twine, and the mackerel escape. I hope that something will be done to combat this menace both to salmon and mackerel.

I also agree with the hon. member for New Westminster in his remarks as to the unnatural—shall I say?—propagation of fish which has been carried on in this country. I am opposed to that practice. I do not think it is any good to take the spawn from the female fish, because there can be only one result; most of the spawn die. I think the only proper way is for the fish to propagate naturally. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been wasted in the last number of years in this country in an endeavour to keep up hatcheries, which in my opinion do not do a very great deal of good.

In conclusion, I do not believe it would be a wise policy to pass over the control of the fisheries to the provinces. I believe the federal government is able to look after the fisheries a good deal better than the provincial governments, and it is more the business of the federal government, because the fisheries do not relate to any one province alone but to the whole of Canada. The whole country is interested in this industry, and the federal authorities, in my opinion, are far better able to look after it than the different small provinces. The small provinces have enough to do already and I would be very much afraid if the control of the fisheries passed into their hands that very little would be done to make this industry what it should be.

I have great faith in the fishing industry in this country, and I would like to see this Government in the next two or three or four years do everything possible to encourage people to go into this business. As the hon. member for New Westminster has said, and I want to repeat it myself, the fisheries of this country have not advanced in the last twenty years. We have either stood still or gone back. That is not because there are not lots of fish in the sea; there are more than ever there were. Nor is it because there are less salmon coming into the harbours and rivers of British Columbia that salmon are scarce. It is because the federal government, not this Government or its predecessor, but the governments of this country for the last twenty-five or thirty years have never taken the interest in fisheries that they have in farming and other industries. I do not object to millions of dollars being spent on the encouragement and development of agriculture, but I do say that the fisheries, if not to the same degree, are just as important as agriculture, and this Government should take every step to encourage people to go into this great industry.

Mr. A. W. NEILL (Comox-Alberni): I only wish to speak a few words on this subject, because it is getting late. Whenever a subject comes up in connection with the maritime provinces the discussion has not gone on for more than three minutes before it gets down to the sins of the late government. The discussion may begin with any subject under the sun but it always ends up with the sins of the late government, and I notice that when anything comes up in connection with British Columbia it always ends up with the Japanese question. This evening the debate began with the fisheries and we very soon drifted off to a discussion on our Japanese wrongs. I will not deal with this question now because I understand there is a resolution coming up on the subject, and will therefore keep to the question of fisheries in the few remarks I want to make.

My hon. friend from New Westminster (Mr. McQuarrie) spoke about the penalty. He said the penalty was too drastic, that if a man committed some trifling offence the only penalty provided was the entire loss of his gear and boat, a tremendous penalty for possibly a trifling offence. One of the fishery guardians brought that to my attention. He said, "You cannot owing to a trifling offence take a man's whole property from him." I took the matter up with the fishery officials down here and they told me it was necessary to have that provision in extreme cases of deliberate poaching by American boats. It therefore was necessary to impose such a penalty but they gave instructions to their fishery officers and in the case of minor offences such as I have indicated provision has been made by which, on a fisherman giving security that his boat would be forthcoming when it was required, he would be allowed to go on fishing and in the meantime he can put in an appeal, which will always be granted, for cancellation of the confiscation. That put the fear of the law upon him without actually subjecting him to the extreme penalty; and they claim it is necessary for the reasons which I have indicated, that the extreme penalty should be there.

The hon. member for New Westminster also mentioned the subject of taking over the British Columbia fisheries. That is a question that has engaged the attention of fishermen in British Columbia, but when we heard the Minister of Marine and Fisheries tell us the other day he was agreeable to our taking over the fisheries provided we assume the cost of running them which amounts to something like $400,000 a year, that rather dampened our enthusiasm for taking these fisheries over. I think our idea in British Columbia was to take over the issuance of licenses and let the Dominion government finance the other end of the bill.. Possibly the minister will not see the matter in that light. The idea in British Columbia was this—that if the issuing of licenses was put in the hands of British Columbia officials they would be easier—I will not use the term "got at," because that is a nasty suggestion—but they would be easier of approach and we would get quicker action when quick action was necessary. If the proposition means the taking over of the whole of the British Columbia fisheries and the expenditures attendant thereupon I am afraid it is beyond our powers. We have got a little project called the P. and G. E. railway which will engage our financial attention almost exclusively for some time to come.

The hon. member for New Westminster also talked about the question of small licenses. He said it was not fair that a man should pay $500 for a canner's license if he only wanted to put up a small quantity of fish. That question has already arisen and has been dealt with. Last year in my district there were one or two dozen, perhaps, gill net fishermen who combined together, and they got some kind of a domestic cannery outfit that would put up three dozen tins possibly at a time. They asked permission of the fishery officials in Vancouver to get a license, without having to pay $500, and to allow them to operate in this small way. The superintendent there very liberally met their wishes and gave them a license for a very small sum. The officers here tell me that if that occurs again this year they will also get consideration; that where a few fishermen want to put up fish in a small way they will not be compelled to put up such a large amount.

In connection with the subject of hatcheries I can endorse a great deal of what the hon. member for New Westminster has said. At one time they were regarded in British Columbia as being almost a failure; it was believed they were not doing any practical good. Various reasons were given for that. One was what the hon. member for New Westminster has alleged: They propagated trout; they protected the young trout in the very same lakes where the hatcheries were situated, the consequence being that they were breeding salmon on the one hand and propagating trout to eat them on the other. I have also heard it stated—I do not know what truth there is in the statement—that the hatchery had this effect—they made the young salmon too tame. The man who told me—and he is a man of experience—told me that if you go into any water where salmon are developed under natural conditions before you can even get a glimpse of them almost they are out of sight because nature or instinct has taught them to be wary. On the other hand, the young salmon that are brought up in hatcheries become almost as tame as cats, and do not show any fear of the attendants when they move around. When they are turned into the creeks to shift for themselves and the trout come along they stand, so to speak, with their mouths open and let themselves be destroyed. I do not know what truth there is in this story, there may be some basis for it in the same way as hand raised pheasants are less alert than wild ones. There is no doubt however that when propagated under these artificial conditions they are not so alert as they are under natural conditions. I understand the department now has a new system which they employed last year for the first time and which they claim does give very satisfactory results. They keep the young salmon a great deal longer than they used to and they find the percentage which escapes from their natural enemies is far greater. They put the young salmon into sort of natural ponds where they are perfectly free from enemies and keep them there six or eight weeks longer than heretofore, and they claim that in time this system is going to give very good results.

As regards the fishery protection service of British Columbia, I again endorse what my hon. friend from New Westminster has said. There is a large sum now spent on this service and I think a good deal of it might be saved. The money at least might be spent in a much more economical way. There is a protection boat which costs $45,000 or $46,000 with mahogany fittings, plate glass mirrors and a large crew. There is no necessity for boats of that kind in the district which I represent. When I canvassed the district in the middle of winter I did it in a launch which cost only $1,100. I got around without being seriously incommoded and I did not have a $45,000 or $46,000 dollar boat with a crew of eight.

When my hon. friend from New Westminster was talking about the enemies of the salmon he did not mention one that is very prevalent, on the west coast at all events and that is the sea lion. My hon. friend talked about how many salmon the hair seal will eat. Why the sea lion will eat more salmon in ten minutes than a seal will eat in a week. By the way an expert was sent out from somewhere some years ago to investigate the sea lion. He came back and wrote his report. That report said the sea lion was perfectly inocuous, and declared that the sea lion lived on seaweed. The expert had operated on a sea lion and found some seaweed in his insides, and therefore he declared they lived on seaweed. I suppose if he had found a horse collar inside he would have said they lived on horses. I expect the truth is that the seaweed had been covered with herring roe and had been eaten by the sea lion for that reason. I have seen sea lions gamboling with salmon in the water; one animal would playfully toss a fish in the air and another sea lion would catch it. There is no doubt they live very largely on the salmon. I took the question up with the Department of Marine and Fisheries and they promised to take the necessary steps to deal with the sea lion; they promised somebody would be sent to the rookeries where they breed to kill off the young ones. If that was done for three or four years it would soon put an end to the depredations of the sea lion. The only way to kill them off is by shooting or clubbing the young at their rookeries, There are certain islands where they are known to exist and if the patrol boats visit those islands they could destroy large quantities of them. The objection to offering a bounty is that if an adult is shot in the water it immediately sinks and there is nothing to produce to claim the bounty.

As regards the subject of negotiations with the Americans over the Fraser river fishery, I understand that Canadian and American fishery officers held a conference last year and they came to an agreement on the basis of limiting the fishing and totally closing the traps and nets in the Fraser river for a period of years, but the negotiations fell down on this subject: The Americans said: "We will close the river for five years." But when it came to the point of opening up again the American canners wanted to hog the whole thing and would make no provision for allowing the British Columbia fishermen engaged in the Fraser river to get any fair proportion of the results. They would agree to a long closed season but at the end of the closed period the Americans proposed to go in, put out their traps and deplete the run as they did in the past. It was on account of that fact that the negotiations fell down. I suggest it might be well to take the matter up again and see if a treaty could not be negotiated along those lines.

A great many people in British Columbia are of the opinion that the appointment of an Advisory Control Board for the fisheries in our province would be highly advisable. Many have expressed that view, both canners and fishermen. The board would be composed of local men and it would be a great advantage, even if they only acted in an advisory capacity. I see the same thing has been done in the state of Washington. They have appointed a board with compulsory powers, and in a short time they brought about a marked change. They understood the local conditions, and they were not in any way hampered by lobbies or regulations made at Washington and they will do a great deal to re-establish the Washington state fisheries. They closed up a lot of creeks, and prohibited fishing less than three miles from the mouth of any river, whereas we have a provision which says that you cannot fish within half a mile of the mouth of a river.

There was one thing that my hon. friend did not mention, which surprised me. I am afraid he was thinking too much of his own district, and perhaps the question does not arise in his district. He talked about the enemies of the salmon. What is eliminating the salmon, and what will in a very few years entirely exterminate them in the British Columbia waters, is the use of traps and seine nets. I know I will be talking heresy in the view of many people, because they believe otherwise. The cannery man has not a great deal of conscience regarding salmon. It has been said that the canning men will not kill their own industry, but experience has told us that many times they will. They will skin the fish supply, clean them out, let their cannery go to pieces and move somewhere else. You can trust a canneryman's word in many things, but you cannot trust him not to tackle salmon whenever and wherever he can get them.

For the information of members who may not understand the difference, I may say that the gill-net is a small net operated from a gas or row-boat and trailed more or less behind the boat. Two or three fishermen would be employed, and they might take 30 or 40 or 50, perhaps 60 salmon in a night. But the seine net is so many fathoms long, it takes in a large area and they scoop around an eighth-of-a-mile or something like that and have been known to take 6,000 salmon in one haul. They can repeat the operation three times in the course of 24 hours, or perhaps in 12 hours, and you can imagine the rate of progress you will make in eliminating your fish if you are taking 30 or 40 or 50 in a gillnet on one hand, or if you are taking 6,000 with one scoop of the seine-net on the other. That is why the seine-net is so beloved by cannery-men, and they operate in places most fatal to the salmon industry. They operate at the mouths of the creeks and rivers, they cannot operate anywhere else to the same advantage, because that is where the fish gather together preparatory to going up the creek. The salmon bunches up about that time, they lie there in the bay, and the fishermen come along with the seine-net. The regulations say they must not use it within half-a-mile of the mouth of the river, but the man who mapped out the mouth of the river is a hundred miles away, people's memories are perhaps short and these men go in after the fish and get them. They leave no tracks behind them, and you cannot see them. They have gone in at the mouth of the river, and grabbed every salmon in sight. They go back again every 24 hours, and that is the sort of thing that is going to destroy the fisheries of British Columbia.

I know this is not the case in the Fraser river where they do not use the seine-nets and never did, but the conditions there are different. The muddy water allows gill-nets to be used. The American traps and our own traps off the coast of British Columbia have depleted the run. The member for New Westminster told you about the American traps, but he did not tell you that we have a large number of traps, which we should not have, off the coast of Vancouver island, where cannerymen take heavy toll of the fish, and although we have this fishery committee to investigate the matter, if this state of affairs continues, and until the seining of salmon is done away with we will never have a solution of the situation. If they keep on using seine-nets for a few years more you will not require to bother about a committee to discuss the subject because there will be no subject to discuss.

Mr. W. J. WARD (Dauphin): This is a question in which I am also interested. Listening to the discussion to-day one would think that salmon was the only kind of fish produced in Canada. I come from a district in which one lake has produced in the last 20 years 5,000 carloads of fish, and these fish are just as great a delicacy as the salmon or any other fish in Canada—I refer to the whitefish. Lake Winnipegosis produces a very fine quality of whitefish, pickerel, goldeyes and many other good varieties of fish. In that district, Mr. Speaker, I desire to inform hon. members, the fishermen, after producing 5,000 carloads of fish in 20 years, find themselves almost destitute. In my judgment the reason that they are in this position to-day is because our inland fishing industries of Canada are entirely in the control of American capitalists. The fish industry, both on lake Winnipeg and lake Winnipegosis—a district with which I am thoroughly well acquainted—are absolutely in the control of two large American fishing concerns. The Canadian fishermen who fish in these lakes have no say whatever in the setting of the price or in the sale of the fish. They simply do the fishing, place the fish on the market, and are at the mercy of these American capitalists who control the entire inland fish industry and will not make them any bids on their fish. They have to ship the fish to Chicago or some other market and rely on the grace of God or the goodness of luck to get enough to pay freight, and I might say in this regard—that the same thing applies here as applied in the case of the potatoes, to which I referred a few minutes ago—these fish are shipped in probably ten, fifteen, or twenty carload lots direct to Chicago, and when they get to Chicago they are simply sold to the highest bidder. The company that is handling the fish, for whom the fishermen are fishing, is the same company who buy the fish at the other end. The fishermen is fleeced at the point of production and he is again fleeced when his product reaches the great markets. I think this matter should receive the serious consideration of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Lapointe). Last winter the jackfish from lake Winnipegosis were selling on the lake for 1½ cents a pound. Any fisherman knows that fish cannot be taken out of the lakes and put in boxes at 1½ cents a pound. At the same time jackfish was selling in Winnipeg at 10 cents a pound. Whitefish was selling at lake Winnipegosis at 5 cents a pound and in Winnipeg at 15 cents a pound. Whitefish is about as great a delicacy in the form of fish as we have in Canada, and I think it has not received the consideration in the past from the Department of Marine and Fisheries that it deserves. I would like to draw attention to another fish known as the goldeye. I am convinced—in fact one gentleman who is very familiar with the fishing industry said that he believed—that the national debt of Canada might be paid off in the course of ten years by developing the goldeye industry of Canada. They are just as great a delicacy as the speckled trout of eastern Canada ever was, and I believe we might develop a remarkable trade in the United States and probably other countries if we were to develop the goldeye industry of Canada and put this fish on the market as a delicacy. We could get a very remarkable price for it. I make these remarks for the benefit of the minister.

Motion (Mr. McQuarrie) agreed to.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY EMPLOYEES—PENSION RIGHTS AND STATUS.

On the notice of motion of Mr. Boys:

That in the opinion of this House, immediate steps should be taken by the Government to restore the pension rights and status of all employees and ex-employees of the Grand Trunk Railway who were deprived thereof owing to participation in a strike on the system in the year 1910, to the end that all such may secure their just rights pursuant to the terms and true intent of the settlement made between the parties.

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): The hon. member in whose name the resolution stands (Mr. Boys) is not in the House. I regret his absence, because I desire to make a statement on the subject of the resolution.. However, he will be able to read my remarks in Hansard and that will perhaps serve the same purpose. There is no need for this resolution inasmuch as the Government has already taken steps in the direction proposed. The Government has been negotiating with a view to seeing that a long standing injustice should be remedied without further delay: If it is not possible to effect by negotiation what we hope and believe will be attained by negotiation, then the Government will bring in the necessary legislation to see that the injustice that was done to employees of the Grand Trunk Railway involved in the strike of 1910, in virtue of the terms and conditions of its settlement not having been complied with, is duly remedied.

PENSIONS TO IMPERIAL FORCES

On the notice of motion of Mr. Ladner:

That, in the opinion of this House, no change should be made in the practice adopted by the late Government, of paying at par in Canadian currency pensions payable to former members of the Imperial Forces with pre-war domicile in Canada.

Hon. W. S. FIELDING (Minister of Finance): The hon. member in whose name this proposed resolution stands is not present. The policy laid down with regard to payment of pensions to the members of the Imperial forces with pre-war domicile in Canada has been continued with the understanding that the matter is now engaging the attention of a committee of this House; and until that committee decides otherwise, we have given direction that the pensioners shall receive the benefit of the payment with favourable exchange. So that what the resolution asks for is being done now, subject to the report later on of the Committee on Pensions.

IMMIGRATION ACT AMENDMENT

Mr. J. S. WOODSWORTH (Winnipeg, Centre) moved the second reading of Bill No. 16, to amend the Immigration Act.

Hon. ERNEST LAPOINTE (Minister of Marine): Before this motion is carried, I may say that this bill is rather of an important character and seeks to amend the Immigration Act in a very radical way. I myself last year introduced a bill to amend the legislation which was passed during what was known as the panicky session of 1919 while the strike in Winnipeg was on. There is no doubt that provisions were enacted at the time which were of a very serious character, especially when British subjects could be deported from this country without the right to be tried before suffering such deportation, which is the right of all British subjects under British law. Two years ago the then Minister of Labour introduced a bill in the Senate to amend that legislation of 1919 and to enact that a British subject could not be deported summarily in that way without having a trial in due form. That bill was rejected by the Senate and never reached the House of Commons during that session. Last year I took that very bill and introduced it in the House. It was accepted by the Government, and a provision of the Immigration Bill which was introduced by the then Minister of Immigration embodied the amendment which I had presented. Now, I should not like to oppose the principle of this bill, because it embodies what I myself proposed last year and what was then accepted by the government, and passed by the House, although it was blocked in the Senate again. This bill, however, goes a good deal further. It contains provisions which I could not accept, although I agree with that portion of it that embodies the principles of the bill I introduced last year. In view of the very important features of this bill, I think it would be wise for the House to refer it to a special committee which could carefully study its various characteristics and amend it if necessary and report to the House. The work could more easily be done before such a committee than in the House. I suggest that it be read the second time and sent to a special committee for consideration.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I should be glad to have a special committee consider the matter and bring in any amendments that are found to be necessary. Certain classes of labour are suffering disabilities at the present time, and I can readily understand that a discussion in committee would bring out details more clearly than could be done in this House. I shall be glad to have this procedure adopted.

Motion agreed to and bill read the second time, and the House went into Committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The bill is now before the Committee of the whole House. At a later stage, when the Minister of Justice (Sir Lomer Gouin) is present, we shall move to take it out of Committee of the whole House and refer it to a special committee.

Mr. FIELDING: Without remarking on the merits or demerits of the bill, I think it is exceedingly complicated, and for that reason objectionable. No one can readily discover what it means, and I think it would be a sounder policy to repeal the whole section and re-enact what is desired. However, I call this to the attention of the law officers of the House, and do not offer any opinion on the merits of the bill. If the House desires this legislation it could draft it in much simpler form.

Progress reported.

CRIMINAL CODE AMENDMENT

Mr. J. S. WOODSWORTH (Winnipeg Centre) moved the second reading of Bill No. 17, to amend the Criminal Code.

Mr. LAPOINTE: May I suggest that the same procedure be adopted with regard to this bill as was followed in connection with the previous bill.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I hardly understand this procedure—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order; this motion is not debatable.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, I have not moved—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order; this motion is not debatable.

Motion agreed to, and the House went into committee on the bill, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I am not familiar with the procedure, but I understood a moment ago that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had suggested that this bill be referred to a special committee, to which I agreed. I want to bring this whole matter before the attention of the House.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: May I assure my hon. friend that that is exactly the procedure we are adopting now? In order to do that, it will be necessary to move to-morrow or later that the bill be taken out of Committee of the Whole and referred to a special committee, giving at the time the names of the members of that special committee. The Government would like to consult my hon. friend before those names are given.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I thank the Prime Minister. I did not understand the procedure.

Progress reported.

On motion of Mr. Mackenzie King the House adjourned at 10.30 p.m.

Tuesday, April 11, 1922.

The House met at three o'clock.

THE GRAIN TRADE

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE AND COLONIZATION

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi) presented the fourth report of the Select Standing Committee on Agriculture and Colonization, as follows:

That the question of the constitutionality of the reconstruction of the Wheat Board, with the powers conferred thereon by the orders in council establishing or extending the same be referred to the law officers of the Crown for their reasoned opinion.

On motion of Mr. Kay the report was concurred in.

CHARTERED BANKS, ETC.

Hon. W. S. FIELDING (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, in conformity with the requirements of the Statute, I beg to lay before the House the following papers:

List of Shareholders of the Chartered banks of Canada; Statement of unclaimed balances; Statement respecting the Quebec Savings Bank.

In former times these papers were printed for the information of the House, but several years ago the late Government, as evidence of its great economy, decided not to print them. As I do not want to be less economical, I am submitting the papers in this form.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE

DOCUMENTS OF CANNES CONFERENCE TABLED BY THE PRIME MINISTER

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, yesterday my hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar) asked me to bring down certain papers relating to the proceedings at the Genoa Conference as outlined originally at Cannes. I therefore beg to present:

1. Copy of Memorandum on Anglo-French relations and of the draft of the proposed treaty with France presented by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom to Mr. Briand at the meeting of the Supreme Council at Cannes, January, 1922.

2. Copy of Resolutions adopted by the Supreme Council at Cannes, January, 1922, as the basis of the Genoa Conference.

My hon. friend asked that these documents should be incorporated in Hansard, so that hon. members might have an opportunity of perusing them during the Easter vacation. With the unanimous consent of the House I move that these documents be so incorporated.

Mr. SPEAKER: Do I understand that there is unanimous consent for the motion made by the Prime Minister?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Motion agreed to.

(The documents referred to are as follows):

ANGLO-FRENCH RELATIONS

Memorandum by the British Government

The British Government strongly desire that the Cannes Conference shall lead to definite results which will be approved by French and British sentiment and also by the opinion of Europe as a whole. In their judgment the indispensable condition of such success is a close preliminary understanding between the French and British Governments.

Public opinion is undeniably anxious and disturbed both in Great Britain and in France. Questions in which both countries are deeply interested are rightly believed to be at stake. There is a general feeling that some of the fundamental problems of the peace still await solution, and the critical temper of the public in both countries has given rise to public controversy. The suspicion and uncertainty thus produced have been reflected throughout Europe and even beyond Europe with unhappy results.

The failure of the Cannes Conference would therefore re-act with very bad effect on the relations of the two countries. Indeterminate or provisional decisions would be regarded as tantamount to failure, and would inevitably accentuate the divergence between French and British sentiment which has lately made itself felt. Europe would regard any such consequence with dismay, since its peoples realize that a close understanding between the British Empire and France is essential to European welfare and the peace of the world. The British Government desire to make it plain at the Cannes Conference that the British Empire and France stand together as firmly in the issues of peace as in the ordeal of war.

In their opinion this is not to be secured by any piecemeal treatment of the questions by which the Conference is faced. On the contrary, they consider it absolutely necessary that the problem should be treated as a whole; and with this object in view, they desire to state the position of both countries, as they see it, at the present time.

In their opinion there are two principal reasons for anxiety in France.

In the first place, French opinion is disquieted on the subject of reparations. France is endeavouring to repair her devastated area, and is obliged to advance great sums, which make a formidable gap in her budget, for that purpose. This expenditure should and must be met by Germany; but, in spite of settlement after settlement, satisfactory reparation by Germany is always postponed.

In the second place, French opinion is naturally anxious about the future safety of France. She has been invaded four times in a hundred and twenty years, and in spite of the losses of man-power suffered by Germany in the war and under the peace, France has still a population twenty millions less than that of the German Empire. Germany, moreover, possesses five million men trained to arms, and amongst them a very powerful corps of officers and non-commissioned officers. It is true that Germany has been deprived of nearly all her arms and equipment, but France cannot overlook the possibility that this deficiency may, by one means or another, be made good. It is therefore essential to her that the discrepancy between French and German man-power should be made up in such a way as to guarantee her soil from another devastating war.

In Great Britain there is also grave cause for anxiety and discontent. Britain is a country which lives by its exports, and its trade has been devastated as terribly as the soil of France. The consequences in human suffering and privation are very serious. Nearly two millions of the British working-class are unemployed, and their maintenance costs the country nearly £2,000,000 a week. This burden falls upon a community more heavily taxed than any other in the world and more hardly hit than France by the economic consequences of the war.

The hard ordeal through which the British people are passing is not, however, peculiar to them. France is in some ways the most fortunately situated of European countries. Owing partly to the large proportion of her population which lives upon the land, partly to the stimulus given to internal production by the needs of her devastated area, and partly also to the fact that the arrested condition of emigration to extra-European countries affects her population much less than those which sent large numbers of emigrants oversea before the war, she is suffering less than others from unemployment and from the collapse of international trade. In Italy and Belgium, however, the unemployment is serious. Belgium is a food-importing country, dependent upon the European markets for 80 per cent of her export trade. Italy is also very dependent upon foreign trade, and has a greater population to employ than before the war.

In Central, Eastern and South Eastern Europe the collapse and confusion of the normal processes of economic life are even more marked. Millions are living in conditions of bitter privation and misery. Even where inflation has given employment and good wages to the working-class, the relief is temporary and reaction certain, unless measures are taken in time. The educated and the professional classes are suffering more terrible even than the working-class. The civilization of Europe cannot long survive such conditions. In its present state it is moving fast towards social and economic catastrophe.

Profoundly, therefore, as her own interest is engaged in the economic reconstruction of Europe, Great Britain appeals in no selfish spirit for the co-operation of France in that great human cause. It must be undertaken here and now. There is an awful aggravation of human misery, and in some parts of Europe an increasing menace to civilization itself, in every month of delay.

The problem before the countries is how to meet their respective necessities by common action. These must be met as a whole. Complete frankness between the statesmen of both countries is essential, if the problem is to be effectively solved. Great Britain fully recognizes France's ground for anxiety, but she cannot agree to postponing the question of the reconstruction of Europe, while meeting France's desires in regard to her reparations and her security. In order to give satisfaction to French needs, the British Government must be able to tell the British people that the two countries are marching together to restore the economic structure of Europe and the general prosperity of the world.

With regard to reparations, His Majesty's Government are prepared to abide, so far as they are concerned, by the arrangement reached in London under which France would reap considerable advantages while Britain would make considerable sacrifices. They believe that this arrangement will meet the essential claims of France until such time as a wider financial settlement can be attained—perhaps in two or three years.

With regard to the safety of France, Great Britain is prepared to give her a guarantee that in the event of unprovoked German aggression against French soil the British Empire will put its forces at her side. There will be double value in this guarantee, since it will not only safeguard France in the event of German attack but will make any such attack extremely improbable. It is not likely that Germany would have attacked in 1914, had she realized the great forces which the British Empire would throw into the war. In 1914 Germany credited Great Britain with only six divisions; she knew little or nothing of the character or the resources of the British Commonwealth. She is wiser now, for she knows that, instead of six divisions only, the British Empire was maintaining 400,000 men in the field in France by the end of the first year of war. These numbers rose rapidly afterwards, and during the last two years the Empire had a strength of 2,000,000 men in France and Flanders despite a heavy drain of casualties. Great Britain called out a total of nearly 7,000,000 men for military service by land, sea and air. The self-governing Dominions called out more than one million and a half. The Indian Empire called out nearly the same. The total strength thrown by the British Empire into the war, was therefore over 10,000,000 men. The losses in killed, wounded and missing were 3,500,000.

It is inconceivable that Germany should forget these facts or their significance as a guarantee of French soil. What the British Empire did once for civilization, it will, if need be, do again. Germany, it is true, has great reserves of trained officers and men; but those of the British Empire will be available as long as those which Germany preserves from the old military regime. If, therefore, she is certain that the British Empire will stand by France in a future war, she will not be tempted to keep alive any dreams of revenge. It is of great importance to divert the German mind from any such ambitions as well as to provide for the defeat of those ambitions should they mature. The British Government believe that both objects would be met by a British guarantee to France against invasion of her soil, and that such a guarantee must ripen and strengthen the friendship of the two nations as years go on.

There are two ways in which the guarantee could be given.

The first is by means of an offensive and defensive alliance. Though such an alliance might seem desirable to France, it would in reality not serve her interests well, because such alliances are contrary to British tradition. The British people understand the claim of France to be guaranteed against invasion of her soil; but they would not willingly be committed to military liabilities for breaches of the peace elsewhere, and they would not undertake responsibility of any kind for the defence of countries in Eastern or Central Europe, in which their interest is necessarily small. An alliance involving, or even appearing to involve, any such responsibility would not carry the whole-hearted concurrence of the British people. On the contrary, it would be strongly opposed by large sections of the community in all parties, and would therefore not be as valuable to France as an understanding in another form.

The second alternative is a definite guarantee that the British Empire would stand by her in the event of unprovoked aggression by Germany against French soil. This alternative was discussed at the Imperial Conference last summer, and it is probable that the opinion of the Empire would support that of Great Britain in giving such a guarantee to France. It would therefore have far greater weight, for it would, the British Government believes, carry with it the whole-hearted opinion, not of Great Britain alone, but of the Dominions, which put a million soldiers of first rank into the field during the war. The real danger to France is from German invasion. She cannot be invaded by any other Power. A guarantee against German invasion secures her safety beyond doubt. This, therefore, is the alternative which His Majesty's Government prefer to adopt. They propose the draft Treaty between Great Britain and France attached to this memorandum as the form of engagement best calculated to protect the common interests of both Powers in Western Europe.

In order, however, that effect may be given to it, it is necessary that the guarantee should be accompanied by a complete Entente between the two countries. This was the basis of the agreement of 1904, which gave France the support of Great Britain in the war, and it is equally essential now. For such an Entente to be achieved, three questions must be cleared away. These need only be indicated here.

The first is the settlement of the Eastern question and the attainment of a just peace between Greece and Turkey.

The second is the question of Tangier.

The third is the question of submarines. His Majesty's Government make no condition of this, and they fully understand that the divergencies of French and British views on the subject may be due to different ideas of the uses which submarines can serve. The British opinion, however, based on four years' war experience, is that submarines are effective only against merchant ships and are ineffectual otherwise as instruments either of attack or defence. British opinion would inevitably insist on a heavy programme of anti-submarine craft, if the French submarine programme were carried out, and the two countries would thus be launched in a course of competitive naval construction. The British Government cannot disguise the fact that any such development would react very seriously on British sentiment towards France. Her sea communications are to Britain what her eastern frontier is to France. Naval competition in any form between herself and France would corrode goodwill.

The fourth and last essential to the proposed Entente is that France should co-operate wholeheartedly with Great Britain in the economic and financial reconstruction of Europe. The British Government desire the agreement of France to the immediate summoning of an Economic Conference at which all the Powers of Europe, including Rusia, would be represented. The economic collapse of Central, Eastern and South-Eastern Europe is now the most serious factor in the paralysis of European trade; and it cannot be remedied unless the produce and the markets of Russia are once more made available to the world. The presence of the real leaders of Russia is therefore necessary, in the opinion of the British Government, to the success of such a Conference. No useful object is served by discussing the Russian question with secondary representatives of Russia, or by forwarding conditions in writing to Moscow. It is most important to deal, if possible, with the heads of the Russian Government, and the Conference should be held as soon as possible at the most suitable centre for that purpose.

In order to trade with Russia, certain assurances and guarantees are essential. Those may be briefly set forth here. The British Government would not propose to present them to the Russian Government in advance of a Conference, but to discuss them at the Conference itself in conjunction with the counter-proposals for recognition which they would undoubtedly call forth.

In summary, they may be stated thus:—

(1) Nations can claim no right to dictate to each other regarding the principles on which they are to regulate their system of ownership, internal economy and government. It is for every nation to choose for itself the system which it prefers in this respect.

(2) Before, however, foreign capital can be made available to assist a country, foreign investors must be assured that their property and their rights will be respected, and the fruits of their enterprise secured to them.

(3) The sense of security cannot be re-established unless the Governments of countries desiring foreign credit freely undertake:

(a) That they will recognise all public debts and obligations which have been or may be undertaken or guaranteed by the State, by municipalities or by other public bodies, as well as the obligation to restore or compensate all foreign interests for loss or damage caused to them when property has been confiscated or withheld.

(b) That they will establish a legal and judicial system which sanctions and enforces commercial and other contracts with impartiality.

(4) An adequate means of exchange must be available, and, generally, there must be financial and currency conditions which offer sufficient security for trade.

(5) All nations should undertake to refrain from propaganda subversive of order and the established political system in other countries than their own.

(6) All countries should join in an undertaking to refrain from aggression against their neighbours.

[Mr. Mackenzie King.]

These are the four questions of which His Majesty's Government particularly desire a solution in connexion with the Treaty which they propose. They have indicated them because they consider agreement upon them to be indipensable to that complete Entente between Great Britain and France which they desire to maintain. The time has passed when statesmen could pledge their countries to engagements without full regard to the popular sentiment which they represent. In order that the Treaty of Guarantee proposed should be of lasting value to France, it is essential that the democracies of the British Empire and the French Republic should feel assured that they are guided by similar purposes and harmonious ideals. All questions, therefore, should be cleared away which may be capable of dividing the sentiment of the two countries and marring their accord. His Majesty's Government are confident that the four questions which they have indicated here can be solved in a manner satisfactory to both Governments, and that the Treaty of Guarantee between the two nations may thus be sealed and confirmed by a complete and durable Entente.

It is, moreover, their particular desire that this Entente between Great Britain and France, so far from excluding other nations, should form the basis of a larger scheme of international co-operation to ensure the peace and stability of Europe as a whole. The sixth clause of the stipulations put forward for discussion at the Economic Conference which they propose lays down a simple condition of international accord—"that all nations should join in an undertaking to refrain from aggression against their neighbours." Such an undertaking they are willing to give and to promote by all means in their power. It would lead, as they hope, not only to a temporary improvement of European relations, but also to a universal reduction of armaments and this, in their belief, is the only certain means of building up that sense of safety amongst nations, great and small, which Europe through the many centuries of its political history has never yet attained.

Cannes.
9th January, 1922.

Draft of Treaty between the Governments of the British Empire and the French Republic.

Whereas the soil of France has been twice invaded by Germany within living memory, and is still suffering deeply from the devastation wrought by the enemy; and

Whereas the peoples both of France and of the British Empire have paid heavy toll of their manhood and their wealth in overcoming the German armies of invasion and

Whereas the welfare of the European peoples and the economic structure of the world have been profoundly disturbed by the protracted ordeal of war through which they have lately passed and

Whereas guarantees of the security of France against any future invasion by Germany are indispensable to the restoration of European stability, the safely of Great Britain, and the peace of the world; and

Whereas the following safeguards contained in the Treaty of Versailles

"Article 42. Germany is forbidden to maintain or construct any fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or on the right bank to the west of a line drawn 50 kilo. to the east of the Rhine.

"Article 43. In the area defined above the maintenance and assembly of armed forces, either permanently or temporarily, and military manœuvres of any kind, as well as the upkeep of all permanent works for mobilisation are in the same way forbidden.

"Article 44. In case Germany violates in any manner whatever the provisions of Articles 42 and 43, she shall be regarded as committing a hostile act against the Powers signatory of the present Treaty and as calculated to disturb the peace of the world," may not sufficiently provide for the defence of the essential common interests of the High Contracting Parties and the maintenance of peace in Western Europe:

His Britannic Majesty and the President of the French Republic having etc., etc., etc., have agreed as follows:—

Article I

In the event of direct and unprovoked aggression against the soil of France by Germany, Great Britain will immediately place herself at the side of France with her naval, military and air forces.

Article II

The High Contracting Parties reassert their common interests in Articles 42, 43, and 44 of the Treaty of Versailles, and will consult together, should any breach of them be threatened or any doubt arise as to their interpretation.

Article III

The High Contracting Parties undertake further to concert together in the event of any military, naval or air measures inconsistent with the Treaty of Versailles being taken by Germany.

Article IV

The present Treaty shall impose no obligations upon any of the Dominions of the British Empire unless and until it is approved by the Dominion concerned.

Article V

This Treaty shall remain in force for a period of ten years, and shall, if approved by both parties, be renewable at the end of that period.

Cannes.
13th January, 1922.

Resolutions Adopted by the Supreme Council at Cannes, January, 1922, as the Basis of the Genoa Conference.

I.—Economic and Financial Conference.

(a) Mr. Lloyd George's Resolution.

The Supreme Council agreed at its meeting, held at 11 a.m. on Friday, the 6th January, 1922, to accept in principle the draft resolution proposed by Mr. Lloyd George in regard to an Economic Conference. The resolution was considered in detail at a further meeting of the Supreme Council held the same day at 3.30 p.m., and was finally approved as follows:—

The Allied Powers in conference are unanimously of opinion that an Economic and Financial Conference should be summoned in February or early March, to which all the Powers of Europe, including Germany, Russia, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, should be invited to send representatives. They regard such a conference as an urgent and essential step towards the economic reconstruction of Central and Eastern Europe, and they are strongly of opinion that the Prime Ministers of every nation should, if possible, attend it in person in order that action may be taken as promptly as possible upon its recommendations.

The Allied Powers consider that the resumption of international trade throughout Europe and the development of the resources of all countries are necessary to increase the volume of productive employment and to relieve the widespread suffering of the European peoples. A united effort by the stronger powers is necessary to remedy the paralysis of the European system. This effort must include the removal of all obstacles in the way of trade, the provision of substantial credits for the weaker countries and the co-operation of all nations in the restoration of normal prosperity.

The Allied Powers consider that the fundamental conditions upon which alone this effort can be made with hope of success may be broadly stated as follows:

1. Nations can claim no right to dictate to each other regarding the principles on which they are to regulate their system of ownership, internal economy and government. It is for every nation to choose for itself the system which it prefers in this respect.

2. Before, however, foreign capital can be made available to assist a country, foreign investors must be assured that their property and their rights will be respected and the fruits of their enterprise secured to them.

3. The sense of security cannot be re-established unless the governments of countries desiring foreign credit freely undertake—

(a) That they will recognize all public debts and obligations which have been or may be undertaken or guaranteed by the state, by municipalities, or by other public bodies, as well as the obligation to restore or compensate all foreign interests for loss or damage caused to them when property has been confiscated or withheld.

(b) That they will establish a legal and juridical system which sanctions and enforces commercial and other contracts with impartiality.

4. An adequate means of exchange must be available, and, generally, there must be financial and currency conditions which offer sufficient security for trade.

5. All nations should undertake to refrain from propaganda subversive of order and the established political system in other countries than their own.

6. All countries should join in an undertaking to refrain from aggression against their neighbours.

If in order to secure the conditions necessary for the development of trade in Russia the Russian Government demands official recognition, the Allied Powers will be prepared to accord such recognition only if the Russian Government accepts the foregoing stipulations.

(b) Place and Date of Conference.

The Supreme Council agreed at its meeting, held at 11 a.m. on Friday, the 13th January, 1922, that the Genoa Economic and Financial Conference should assemble on the 8th March, 1922, subject to any later adjustment.

(c) Invitation to Russia.

The Supreme Council at its meeting held at 6.15 p.m. on Tuesday, the 10th January, 1922, agreed that an invitation should be addressed to Russia in the following terms:

On behalf of the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers I have the honour to transmit to you a copy of a resolution passed by the Allied Powers in conference at Cannes on the 6th January, 1922.

In accordance with this resolution and with reference to M. Chicherin's telegram, dated the 8th January, 1922, I hereby formally invite delegates from Russia to attend an Economic and Financial Conference to be opened at Genoa early in March, 1922.

I shall be glad if you will inform me of the names of your delegates and their staff, and on receipt of this information and a statement of the route by which your delegates propose to travel I shall communicate with the interested governments and inform you of the arrangements made in order to afford them all necessary facilities and safe conduct.

The Supreme Council, conscious that you recognize the importance which it attaches to the assurances nad guarantees which it has laid down as indispensable to the useful co-operation of the Allied Powers with Russia in the task of the economic and financial reconstruction of Europe, learns with satisfaction that you propose to send representatives with full powers to take decisions.

(d) Invitation to the United States of America.

At its meeting held at 3.30 p.m. on Friday, the 6th January, 1922, the Supreme Council agreed that an invitation to be represented at the conference should be addressed to the United States of America.

(e) Invitations to other Countries.

The following lists show the countries to be invited to the Genoa Conference in accordance with the decision of the Supreme Council taken at its meeting held at 6.15 p.m. on Tuesday, the 10th January, 1922:

I. The following countries to be entitled to appoint delegates without limit:

1. The Allied Powers represented at the Cannes Conference.
2. United States of America.
3. Germany.
4. Russia.

II. The following countries to be entitled to appoint two delegates each:

5. The various dominions of the British Empire.
6. Spain.
7. Portugal.
8. Norway.
9. Sweden.
10. Denmark.
11. Finland.
12. Switzerland.
13. Esthonia.
14. Poland.
15. Czecho-Slovakia.
16. Latvia.
17. Austria.
18. Hungary.
19. Roumania.
20. Jugo-Slavia.
21. Greece.
22. Bulgaria.
23. Holland.

III. The following country to be entitled to appoint one representative:

24. Luxemburg.

(f) Outline Agenda.

The following outline agenda was approved by the Supreme Council:

1. Examination of the methods of putting into practice the principles contained in the resolution reached at Cannes on the 6th January, 1922.

2. The establishment of European peace on a firm basis.

3. Essential conditions for re-establishment of confidence without injury to existing treaties.

4. Financial subjects.

(a) Currencies.

(b) Central banks and banks of issue.

(c) Public finance in relation to reconstruction.

(d) Exchanges.

(e) Organization of public and private credit.

5. Economic and commercial subjects.

(a) Facilities and guarantees for the import and export of commercial products.

(b) Legal guarantees for the re-establishment of commerce.

(c) Protection of industrial property and copyrights.

(d) Status of consuls.

(e) Admission and position of foreigners in regard to the conduct of business.

(f) Technical assistance to industrial reconstruction.

6. Transport.

(g) Detailed Agenda and Resolutions.

The Supreme Council at its meeting held at 11 a.m. on Friday, the 13th January, 1922, appointed the following Committee to prepare the detailed agenda and draft resolutions for the Genoa Conference:—

Belgium, Viscount Davignon.
British Empire, Sir Maurice Hankey.
France, M. Seydoux.
Italy, Signor Jung.
Japan, M. Tokugawa.

(h) Press Notice.

A Ministerial Committee issued to the press on the 11th January, 1922, a notice explaining the objects and proposed procedure of the Genoa Conference. This press notice is reproduced in the Appendix to this paper.

II.—International Corporation

(a) Resolution of the Supreme Council.

The following is the text of a resolution passed by the Supreme Council at its meeting held at 6.15 p.m. on Tuesday, the 10th January, 1922:—

The Supreme Council approves the establishment of an International Corporation with affiliated National Corporations for the purpose of the economic reconstruction of Europe and the co-operation of all nations in the restoration of normal prosperity, and agrees that a Committee shall be immediately constituted, composed of two British, two French, two Italian, two Belgian representatives and a Japanese representative, with power to add representatives of other countries:—

(1) To examine the project in detail;

(2) To conduct any necessary preliminary investigations;

(3) To proceed with the organisation of the proposed Corporation and affiliated Corporations with a view to its beginning operations at the earliest possible moment;

(4) To report to the Genoa Conference on the progress made;

(5) To make any recommendations to any of the Governments concerned or to the Genoa Conference which, in their view, are likely to assist the purposes of the Corporation or of the Genoa Conference.

The Governments represented on the Council undertake to provide immediately in equal shares £10,000 for the work of the Organising Committee, and to give all the support and assistance in their power to the Organising Committee and to the Corporation when formed.

(b) Preliminary Meeting of the Organising Committee.

The Supreme Council at its meeting held at 11 a.m. on Friday, the 13th January, 1922, came to the following decision:—

That a preliminary meeting of the Organising Committee of the International Corporation for the re-establishment of better economic conditions in Europe should be held in London in eight or ten days' time, invitations to be issued by the British representatives. The names of the representatives (Belgium, France, Italy and British Empire, two each, and Japan one) to be communicated to the British Secretary 2, Whitehall Gardens, London, S.W.1.

APPENDIX

Press Notice regarding the Genoa Conference.

The Supreme Council have to-day agreed upon the subjects to be discussed at the Conference which is to be called at Genoa early in March, in order to facilitate the economic revival of Europe.

General Objects and Conditions

The published resolution of the Council of the 6th January explains the reasons which in the unanimous opinion of all the nations represented on the Council make necessary a united effort by all European countries to restore the economic life of Europe and to remove the obstacles which at present impede it, and the fundamental conditions of such a combined effort. These include the recognition by all countries of their public debts, and compensation for loss or damage caused by the action of Governments; financial and currency conditions which offer reasonable security for trade and peace amongst nations. Among the essential objects of the Conference will be the consideration of the practical measures required to give effect to these principles, and in particular to secure, without injury to the provisions of existing treaties, the essential conditions for the re-establishment of confidence between nations without which international commerce cannot revive.

Peace

The first condition which is of prime importance in the reconstruction of Europe is to establish the relations of all the countries on the basis of a stable and enduring peace.

Financial Subjects

The Conference will also discuss the financial conditions which impede revival and the financial measures which might assist it, in particular the financial situation in the several countries in relation to the task of reconstruction: the rapid variation in the amount and purchasing power of the national currencies; the violent fluctuations in the relative value of the currencies of different countries as reflected in the exchanges, and the bearing upon these problems of the position and status of central banks and banks of issue. The Conference will examine the conditions under which public or private credit can best be made available for the work of reconstruction.

Economic Subjects

The obstacles to revival, however, are economic as well as financial. The Conference will therefore consider how the existing impediments to the free interchange of the products of different countries can be removed, in particular by the abolition, as rapidly and completely as possible, of such new impediments as have resulted from post-war conditions. The improvement and development of the transport system will engage special attention; and among other questions which might be usefully examined are the security afforded by the laws and by the legal systems and commercial documents in the different countries; the provision of expert and technical assistance by countries specially qualified to give it; the position of consular officers; the protection of copyrights; and the regulations governing the admission of foreigners for the purpose of carrying on business.

January 11, 1922.

CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER, REPORT

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I beg to lay on the table of the House a copy of the report of the Chief Electoral Officer. I move, seconded by Mr. Fielding;

That one thousand copies in English and five hundred in French of the report of the Chief Electoral Officer, transmitted on March 1st 1922 to the hon. Speaker of the House of Commons, pursuant to Section 74 of the Dominion Elections Act, and laid on the table of this House on March 14th, 1922, be printed forthwith, and that Rule 74 be suspended in relation thereto.

Motion agreed to.

SELECT STANDING COMMITTEES

CHANGES IN MEMBERSHIP

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition) moved:

That the name of Mr. Neill be substituted for that of Mr. Hubbs on the Select Standing Committee on Marine and Fisheries, and that the name of Mr. Hubbs be substituted for that of Mr. Neill on the Select Standing Committee on Mines and Minerals;

That the name of Sir Henry Drayton be substituted for that of Mr. Garland (Carleton) on the Select Standing Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph lines, and that the name of Mr. Garland (Carleton) be substituted for that of Sir Henry Drayton on the Joint Committee of both Houses on the library.

Motion agreed to.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION —EXAMINATIONS

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. GEORGE PARENT (Quebec West): Before the Orders of the Day are called, Mr. Speaker, I beg to bring the following matter to the attention of the House. I am informed that the Civil Service Commission, after leaving the public under the impression that civil service examinations would be held in the spring, has now decided that no such examinations shall be held. I am also informed that many students have prepared themselves for these examinations. In view of these facts, I should like to know if the Government intends to take such steps as may be necessary to force the Commission to hold such examinations.

Hon. A. B. COPP (Secretary of State): I have no definite information with regard to the matter, but I will make inquiries and let my hon. friend know what is being done, at the next sitting of the House.

SIR MONTAGU ALLAN

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. O. R. GOULD (Assiniboia): Mr. Speaker, I would call the attention of the Government to a press report which states that Sir Montagu Allan is leaving Canada. Now, the affairs of the Merchants Bank have keenly interested the public quite recently, and under the circumstances I am wondering what right this gentleman has to leave Canada. If he persists in staying away, will extradition proceedings be instituted to bring him back to Canada?

Sir LOMER GOUIN (Minister of Justice): I have no information on this question. I will inquire of the attorneys representing the Government and will inform my hon. friend at the next sitting of the House, or before, what has actually happened.

ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. W. G. McQUARRIE (New Westminster): Before the Orders of the Day are called, may I ask the Prime Minister if it would be possible to fix a day for the discussion of the resolution dealing with oriental immigration, which stands on the Order Paper in my name, and to give it the right of way? I have been asked by a number of hon. gentlemen when the resolution is to come up, and I think it would be convenient if a day could be fixed. I suggest, if I am in order in doing so, Monday, the twenty-fourth.

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I certainly shall seek to meet the wishes of my hon. friend, but without knowing the order in which the several motions come, it is a little difficult to say offhand what day could be fixed. I will endeavour to arrange the matter with him, however, and in time to give the House due notice of the day on which the resolution may be taken up.

[Mr. Parent.]

PRIVILEGE—MR. KAY

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi): Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege. In the Halifax Herald of last Friday, the 7th of April, I find an article which is malicious false, and untrue. It is headed:

> Wheat Board is cause of big political war among Liberals.

I will read the part of this article which refers to myself. Speaking of the Government, it says:

> One of its main tactics is to raise the cry that the establishment of a national Wheat Board would be an interference with provincial rights and contrary to the British North America Act. Thus, when the question came up in the Agricultural Committee meeting yesterday, Mr. Kay, a friend of Mr. Robb, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, moved that the question be referred to the Supreme Court for a verdict upon its validity. The idea in Mr. Kay's mind, and in the mind of the Government, is that with the question before the Supreme Court, it would be safely shelved for the present.

It is hardly necessary for me to state, Mr. Speaker, to the House that as Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture I could not make a motion. The facts of the case are that the Committee on Agriculture passed unanimously a motion asking this House to refer the question of the constitutionality of the re-establishment of the Wheat Board to the Supreme Court of Canada. In my capacity as chairman of the committee, I presented that report to this House.

I may say, Sir, that my mind is absolutely unbiased as to the pros and cons of this very important question. And may I be allowed to say that the only suggestion which I have received from any member of the Government is that the Committee on Agriculture should be urged to give a free and full hearing to any parties interested in this most important question and to speed up and expedite in every way the report of the committee to the House. There is one word of truth, Sir, in this article,—which article I have declared to be malicious, false and untrue,—and that is that I am a friend of the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Robb). To that allegation I plead guilty.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

ANNUAL STATEMENT BY THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

The House again in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the chair.

Civil Government—Railways and Canals—salaries and contingencies, $221,470.

Hon. W. C. KENNEDY (North Essex, Minister of Railways and Canals): Mr. Chairman, when the estimates of the Department of Railways and Canals were presented to the House on a recent occasion, at the request of the former minister (Mr. J. A. Stewart) and the right hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) I withdrew them for the moment in order that I might later present the annual statement. I am now in a position to present to the House the annual statement of the Minister of Railways with respect to the operation of the nationally-owned railways of Canada.

The period under review is the twelve months which ended December 31 last, the calendar year now being the fiscal year of all Canadian railways, including the Government lines, whose year formerly ended on March 31. Although a year of depression in trade, with decreased tonnage and less travel, and with reduced rates when contrasted with the previous year, the nationally-owned roads were able, largely owing to drastic curtailment of expenditures, to make an improved showing over 1920.

As the Government-owned railways are still being operated in two groups by two separate boards, though with such co-ordination of operation as has been possible under separate management, it is again necessary to make separate statements concerning the operations of the Canadian National lines, and of the Grand Trunk lines. But before dealing with the separate reports, I would like to say that seemingly the outstanding feature of 1921 operation was the improvement in the position of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk combination. Those roads comprise approximately 52 per cent of the railway mileage of Canada, and in 1920 they did 52.21 per cent of the railway business of the country as reflected in the gross earnings of the transcontinental lines. During 1921, a year of depressed trade and falling railway revenues, the Canadian National-Grand Trunk lines increased their percentage of gross earnings from 52.21 to 54.22 per cent. Applying these percentages to gross earnings of the transcontinental lines, it means that the nationally-owned lines increased their proportion of the available railway business and improved their position as carriers during the year to the extent of about eight and a half million dollars.

Canadian National Railways

The operated mileage of the Canadian National lines at December 31, 1921, was 17,338. During 1921, 123 miles of new line were turned over to the operating department for permanent operation and, in addition, 65 miles were turned over for operation on behalf of the construction department, a total of 188 miles.

The mileage comprises the following units:—

Canadian Government Railways
Intercolonial Railway	1,670
Prince Edward Island Railway	276
Branch Lines, including the leased St. John and Quebec Railway	515
		2,461
Transcontinental Railway including Lake Superior Branch	2,007
Hudson's Bay Railway	214
		2,221
		4,682
Canadian Northern System		9,900
Grand Trunk Pacific		2,756
Canadian National Railways		17,338

The average mileage operated in 1921 was 17,236. The gross earnings amounted to $126,691,455.72, being an increase of $1,049,703.41 over the previous year, notwithstanding decreased traffic to the extent of four million tons of freight and 1,715,625 passengers. The National system is said to be the only transcontinental system in America whose earnings in 1921 from the increased freight and passenger rates established in September, 1920, were not entirely offset by the loss in tonnage and passengers.

Operating expenses amounted to $142,784,357, being a decrease of $19,700,365, leaving loss on operation of the system of $16,092,901 for the year, as compared with $36,842,970 for 1920, or an improvement in the operating result of $20,750,068. It is claimed on behalf of the management that this reduction was not made at the expense of the property, and that deferred maintenance and betterments made during 1919 and 1920 were reflected in 1921 by providing more economical operating conditions, while increased efficiency of the working forces enabled more work to be done by fewer employees.

The year saw a big slump in railway traffic following the decline in trade which set in during the closing months of 1920. There was a decline in the movement of all commodities with the exception of wheat. The grain movement of that season continued into January and February and kept the national lines as a whole from very seriously feeling the loss in total traffic until March, when instead of the increase which this month usually shows over January and February, there was a serious decline in car loadings. The drop continued through April, reaching the lowest levels in the first two weeks of May. June and July showed very little improvement, and it was not until half way through August that any pronounced upward tendency was shown. That month a surplus of $47,231 on operation was recorded. In September it grew to $504,174, in October to $1,036,-130, and in November it was $734,149, In December the loss was $1,114,794. What seems to have happened is that, as there was no car shortage, the grain crop of last season was handled as it was harvested and traffic was restricted to the fall months which ordinarily was spread over much of the winter. This would seem to account for the light traffic of the first couple of months of the current year.

As hon. members will no doubt be interested in knowing the loss on individual lines, I am handing in with other detailed figures at the conclusion of my remarks, a statement showing the individual deficits for 1921, as contrasted with 1920.

From this it will be seen that the Canadian Northern was able to cut its loss by about ten millions, the Intercolonial by two and a half millions, the Grand Trunk Pacific by six millions while the Transcontinental, loss on which has been almost three millions, has a deficit of less than half a million. The increase in deficit of certain of the branch lines, especially those more recently acquired, was due to the necessity to bring these roads up to Canadian National branch line standard.

The greatly improved showing of the Grand Trunk Pacific is attributed to the fact that for a full year it has been operated as an integral part of the Canadian National System, and is one of the results of co-ordinated operation of these western lines under one management. By that co-ordination, the loss of ten millions on a gross of 14 in 1920 was turned into a loss of four on a gross of sixteen millions in 1921.

Conforming to standard railway accounting, this year's statement shows tax accruals, which swell the net operating deficit by a million and a half, after which non-operating income (car rentals, rental of joint facilities, express, mails, elevators, etc.) is taken into account. This in turn is affected by deductions from gross income —hire of equipment, joint facilities, etc.— which brings us to the net deficit, $15,-896,018 before taking fixed charges into account.

In the case of the Canadian Northern it will be seen that the fixed charges are split to show those due the public, who invested in securities before or since the taking over of the roads, and those due the Government on loans and advances. The difference between these two classes of fixed charges is that the interest due the public is paid—by the Government—and the interests due the Government is not paid, but becomes an added liability of the railway to the Government. It is, however, not compounded.

The Grand Trunk Pacific fixed charges are shown as those due the public, interest due the Government, and in addition, interest which has accrued on Receiver's certificates and interest due the Grand Trunk. Those due on receiver account are for advances of all kinds rendered necessary to meet deficits and other obligations since the Minister of Railways was appointed receiver in March, 1919. Those due the Grand Trunk are on account of loans which that company made to the Grand Trunk Pacific and subsidiaries, and also on account of interest on loans by the Government to the Grand Trunk Pacific and guaranteed by the Grand Trunk, all of which are interest charges against the Grand Trunk Pacific.

It has been submitted by the management that, inasmuch as large sections of the National lines serve the newer portions of the country, and thus assist in their development, and as a considerable portion of the advances made by the Government has been for maintaining the property and carrying it through what might be called the pioneer stage, interest on such advances should be suspended for a certain definite period, and that the fixed charges be limited for the present to interest payable to the public. On the other hand, it has been alleged that our railway accounts are misleading because in the case of the Intercolonial and the Transcontinental, interest on capital account has not been charged up and compounded annually.

Matters of this kind will be referred to the incoming administration for consideration and report to the Government.

The total increase in fixed charges, both Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk

Pacific, from $33,194,243.96 in 1920 to $40,777,915 in 1921. reflects the increased interest charges during the year, to which I shall refer in a moment. After these fixed charges are taken into account, the total deficit for 1921 will be seen to amount to $56,989,978 as against $67,851,075 for the previous year, and which was erroneously stated at the time to be $70,331,734, owing to the fact that available figures were incomplete when the minister made his announcement. I have endeavoured to have the figures I am using to-day as exact as possible.

Mr. MEIGHEN: There was a correction made to $69,593,441. I understand that now it is given as only $67,000,000 odd.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I am now giving the correct figures. The minister in his statement last year gave the figures as $70,331,734, which was later corrected to $67,851,075. That is due to the fact that the figures were incomplete at that time, and that was also one of the reasons why I asked the hon. gentleman to wait for my statement.

The auditors, Mesrs. Geo. A. Touche & Co., have completed their work on the Canadian Northern Railway accounts and the management have their certified balance sheet, so that the figures with respect to the Canadian Northern are final and complete.

Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell & Co. are still working on the Grand Trunk Pacific books, and Messrs. Geo. A. Touche & Co. on the Canadian Government railway accounts at Moncton. However, they expect to complete their audit in a few days, and the management feel that the accounts as submitted may be regarded as final.

During 1921, advances were made by the Government to the railways in the national system as follows:

Canadian Government Railways.		$ 5,792,896 48
Canadian Northern Railway..	$64,649,245 24
Less repaid from proceeds of securities, (to which I shall refer in a moment)..	27,927,119 40
		36,722,125 84
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway..		9,270,500 33
A total of..		$51,785,522 65

The advances for the year were applied on Construction and Betterments, Equipment, Repayment of Loans, including Equipment Trust obligations, operating Deficits and Fixed Charges.

The total advances to Canadian Northern Railway Company and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company to December 31st, 1921, are as follows:

	Total advances to December 31, 1920	Advances during 1921	Total advances to December 31, 1921
Canadian Northern..	$214,366,123 04	$36,722,125 84	$251,088,248 88
Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. Co...	73,209,803 33	9,270,500 33	82,480,303 66

The above figures represent cash advances only and do not include accrued interest due the Government, which, in the case of the Canadian Northern, amounts to $35,191,210.81, and, in the case of the Grand Trunk Pacific, to $14,729,238.80, of which sum $6,741,381.26 was prior to the appointment of the Minister of Railways as Receiver, in March, 1919, and $7,987,857.54 since.

During the year, an issue of $25,000,000 Canadian Northern Railway 6½ per cent twenty-five year sinking fund bonds guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada was disposed of, the proceeds going to the Government in repayment of advances. These bonds, which, plus exchange, brought $26,228,163.03, together with a balance of $1,466,044.16 from the bond issue of December 1920, and a payment of $232,912.21 on account of Series "B" Equipment Trust Issue, make up the $27,927,119.40 referred to a moment ago as having been repaid the Government. There were also retired during the year $2,000,000 five per cent Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg Railway Bonds guaranteed by the Canadian Northern Railway Company and £3,650,000 Canadian Northern Railway 5 per cent guaranteed notes. These were provided for out of an issue of $25,000,000 Canadian Northern Railway 7 per cent twenty year bonds, sold in the New York market in December, 1920.

I would now like to refer briefly to certain features of the year's operations. Wages and fuel still remain the principal charge upon railway revenues. The total pay-roll last year was $88,755,060, of which $82,381,597 was chargeable to operation; the balance, being for betterments, was chargeable to capital. The National railways used 3,544,200 tons of coal, about 300,000 tons less than in 1920, and the coal bill was $21,391,215. When operating revenues amount to $126,691,455, and wages and fuel combined require $103,772,812, the balance, roughly, 23 millions, is of course insufficient to meet other operating charges totalling 39 millions. For that reason, the operation ratio in 1921 was 112.70 In other words, it took 112.7 cents to earn a dollar. In 1920, the ratio was 129.32. That year wages took 78.61 cents of every revenue dollar, locomotive fuel 18.79 cents, and other expenses 31.92 cents. In 1921, the distribution was, wages 65.03 cents, locomotive fuel 16.88 cents, and other expenses 30.79 cents.

Out of every dollar spent in 1921, 23.61 cents went into maintenance of way and structures and 22.17 cents into maintenance of equipment. Transportation by rail—superintendence, train movement, station employees, yards terminals, telegraphs, etc.—absorbed 50.15 cents, and transportation by water, .08 cents. The Traffic Department, soliciting, etc., 1.79 cents, general—general officers, law, insurance, etc.—2.15 cents, while transportation for investment, the cost of moving the railway's own materials for betterments, new construction, etc., amounted to 1.39 cents.

Operating costs were high in January and February, due to the higher wage scale which was adopted in September, 1920, retroactive to May 1st, the result of the Chicago Award. When traffic commenced to fall away forces were reduced and by the end of April the staff showed a reduction from 60,500 in 1920 to 51,000 in 1921. This staff reduction was maintained until the end of the year. It ran nearly 10,000 below 1920 through the months of May, June and July, averaged about 6,000 less in August, September and October, and about 5,000 less in the last two months of the year.

The reduction of operating expenses by 20 millions is a welcome change, as in recent years it has been all the other way. Operating expenses of 1920 increased by more than 37 millions over 1919; those of 1919 increased by 27 millions over 1918.

Total Pay-roll, including betterments, was $88,755,060, as against $105,109,808 in 1920, a decrease of $16,354,748. The reductions in number of employees and of the rates of pay from July 16, 1921, is estimated to account for $12,775,000 of this, and the balance would be betterments. It has been customary to quote for comparative purposes the increase in the average railway wage which grew from $713 in 1915 to $1,633 in 1920. Last year the average wage was $1,471.33, but the comparison is of little use in contrast with full employment years as in 1921 decreased train service caused lessened mileage per man in the running trades, and part-time work in shops with permanent force rather than full time with reduced force materially decreased the average wage of the mechanical staff, while rigid curtailment of overtime was another factor. While this explanation shows the 1921 average wage to be of little use in comparison with other years, the fact remains that on reduced time, the average wage last year was still double what it was in 1915.

In accepting the reductions which the Canadian railways, acting in unison, made effective from July 16th last, the railway brotherhoods recognized the present labour situation and also accepted the principle of following in the deflation stage the United States precedents which built up the war time wage scale. At the present time negotiations are under way looking to a modification of some of the working conditions that the railways feel to be difficult of application, resulting in excessive wages in some classes and the placing of expenses on the railways which are claimed to be unduly burdensome. It is recognized that railway wages must provide for a proper standard of living, but they should have reasonable relation to the importance and value of the work performed, and to wages generally. The management inform me that the labour situation has greatly improved; that the spirit of railway labour is better than it was; that labour has become more efficient and is doing more work and better work. I am glad to give expression to the views of the management in that regard.

A problem which in recent years has confronted railway managements is the question of providing suitable service on branch lines at a cost not out of proportion to the earnings and capable of meeting in many cases motor car competition. For this the self-propelled gasoline car seems to be the most suitable. The Canadian National Railways have been active in obtaining experience with this plan of operation. Much will depend upon the attitude of railway labour towards the self-propelled car, which could take care of branch line services, if expenses of operation are not made too costly in the matter of wages. In this effort to cut excessive costs, and yet provide reasonable service, the co-operation of railway labour is invited. As a matter of fact, these branch lines suffer not only from heavy costs of operation, but from the competition of the motor car and motor truck, a competition which is increasingly felt each year by all railways.

While the trend in prices of materials and supplies is generally downward, the movement is slow, and prices continue greatly in excess of pre-war figures. Of course a drop in prices is not immediately reflected in operating expenses, due to the necessity to keep on hand large stocks of fuel and other supplies, which have to be charged out at purchase price until new stock begins to be used. The management estimates the reduction in tie expenditure last year to have been $1,550,000; reduction on account of materials and supplies generally $1,300,000 and on fuel $2,216,175. Average price of coal, which was $3.65 in 1916, and $7.40 in 1920, was $6.10 last year. Coal purchases during the year amounted to 3,483,085 tons. Of this 2,505,389 tons were Canadian coal, costing on the average $5.71, or $14,320,504.53; and 977,696 American coal, at an average price of $6.47, and totalling $6,324,450.94.

The management state that in 1921 they did not purchase for the Intercolonial railway or ship to the Intercolonial railway east of Montreal any American coal; that on the other hand, they took delivery of coal produced in the maritime provinces in 1921 to the extent of 1,184,015 tons. In addition to the coal taken by rail in the maritime provinces, they moved 281,959 tons of Nova Scotia coal up to Levis by water. They also took in through the port of Quebec, by water, 90,865 tons of Nova Scotia coal, and railed some of that coal as far west as Cochrane. The coal taken in by water at Levis and Quebec is included in the total of 1,184,015 mentioned. The total quantity of American coal purchased for use at Toronto and east during 1921 was 160,000 tons. Coal consumption on the Intercolonial in 1921 was about 20 per cent less than in 1920. They have now accumulated nearly four months' stock of coal, and eastern officials have been instructed that sufficient reserve has now been secured and the railway is, therefore, no longer in the market except for daily requirements.

After the very heavy purchases of rolling stock and motive power in 1918, 1919 and 1920, it was not necessary to go into the market for equipment of any kind during 1921.

No work was done on eastern lines in the construction of new branches during 1921. All such work during the year was confined to western lines. A number of branch lines and extensions were under way prior to the war, on which work was suspended, and the Government has since provided the National Railways management with money to go ahead with certain of these lines along which settlers were in bad way for railway facilities. A detailed statement of this construction work will be included with those which will appear as an appendix to these remarks.

The construction and betterment programme for 1922 is necessarily curtailed. There is in the west alone construction projected which would entail an expenditure of $25,000,000 to bring to completion. In view of the financial condition of the country and the impending general re-organization of National Railway direction and management, it is felt to be better to confine construction and betterments for the present to the minimum and leave to the new board to advise as to what is essential or necessary in the matter of extensions. Briefly, this year it is proposed to finish active lines, up to the point to which track has been laid, at an estimated expenditure of $1,286,164, with ballast, fence, telegraph line and buildings, but to make no extensions to any of them beyond the point where track is already laid. Details of this work will be given in connection with the estimates.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

I will now deal with the Grand Trunk Railway System. This system extends from Portland, Maine, to Chicago, with an operated mileage of 4,776, of which 3,612 miles comprise what are known as the Grand Trunk Canadian Lines. The New England lines, as the Eastern United States lines are known, extend from Portland, Maine, to Norton Mills, Vt., on the International boundary, with an operating mileage of 172, while 992 miles embrace the operated mileage west of the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, in the states of Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, between Port Huron, Detroit and Chicago.

In addition, there is operated under separate management, but controlled by the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, the Central Vermont Railway System, with an operating mileage of 613, extending from New London, Connecticut, to Montreal, of which 463 is operated in the United States.

	1921	1920
The Operating Revenues, all Lines (including the Central Vermont) were	$109,097,557 58	$113,223,934 52
The Operating Expenses were	104,725,039 93	108,884,828 58
Leaving a net revenue from railway operation of	4,372,517 65	4,339,105 94

After taking into consideration railway tax accruals, uncollectible railway revenue, hire of equipment, joint facility rents and non-operating income items, the gross income, before deducting fixed charges, was in 1921 $3,573,443.34, as against $7,498,393.30 in 1920. The fixed charges for 1921 were $19,245,583.68 as against $14,025,637.07 in 1920, making a net loss for the year 1921 of $15,672,299.34, as against a net loss for 1920 of $6,527,243.77.

The net deficits for 1921 and 1920 are apportioned as follows:

	1921	1920
Canadian lines	$7,386,170 97	$3,155,892 06
Western lines	4,797,177 55	1,935,155 94
New England lines	1,881,093 84	990,869 03
Central Vermant	1,607,856 98	445,326 74
	$15,672,299 34	$6,527,243 77

The increase in the net income deficit of 1921 over 1920 of $9,145,155.57 is due principally to variation in amount received under the guarantee of the United States government following the return of the American units of the system to corporate control on March 1, 1920, and to an increase of $5,219,946.61 in interest on funded debt. The increase in fixed charges was caused by the inclusion of a full year's interest on the guaranteed stock, which ran from May 21 only in 1920, and increased interest on government loans and new issues.

In addition to the results as shown for the system comprising the Canadian lines, the Western lines, the New England lines and the Central Vermont, there are certain stock controlled subsidiary companies, the net results of whose operations do not wholly enter in the system net income. These companies are:

Chicago, New York & Boston Refrigerator Co.
International Bridge Co.
Montreal Warehousing Co.
Terminal Warehouse Registered.
Oshawa railway.
Rail & River Coal Co.
Thousand Island railway.
Montreal & Southern Counties railway.
St. Clair Tunnel Co.
Grand Trunk Milwaukee Car Ferry Co.

The net income of all these companies for 1921 was $453,118.68, as compared with $613,639.66 in 1920. The amount taken into the Grand Trunk accounts as dividends from these subsidiary companies was $127,000 in both 1921 and 1920.

The accumulated undistributed surplus of these subsidiaries was $918,986.21 in 1921, as compared with $934,423.49 in 1920.

At December 31, 1921, there was on hand locomotive and car stock, owned by the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont, as follows:

Locomotives of all kinds	1,503
Passenger service cars of all kinds	1,210
Freight service cars of all kinds	47,312
Company's service cars of all kinds	2,545

The outstanding obligations as at December 31, 1921 and 1920 respectively, of the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont railway, bearing interest were as follows:

	1921	1920
Government loans	$ 73,702,154 42	$ 21,340,808 62
Other obligations	354,583,462 32	338,434,369 72
Total	$428,285,616 74	$359,775,178 34

Because of the fact that the operations of the units of the railway system in the United States were subject to a guarantee by the United States government in operating results for eight months in 1920, no proper comparison can be made for the system with the results of the operations for the twelve months of 1921.

Comparisons, however, can fairly be made of the operations of the Canadian lines for the two years. These will be found in detail in the statements which form an accompanying appendix.

Revenue passengers carried on the Canadians lines in 1921 numbered 11,609,762, as compared with 12,206,977 in 1920, or a decrease of 4.89 per cent. Revenue tons of freight handled in 1921 amounted to 21,687,749 compared with 26,322,423 in 1920, a decrease of 17.61 per cent. The loss in tonnage was distributed over all commodities, excepting products of agriculture, but was most noticeable in coal, both anthracite and bituminous, which together constitute between twenty-five and twenty-eight per cent of the total tonnage.

The average number of employees on Canadian lines in 1921 was 29,127, as compared with 32,260 in 1920, and 24,457 in 1917. The average wage in 1921 was $1,574.66, as compared with $1,661.54 in 1920, and $914.80 in 1917. Of the total operating expenses of $71,179,292.80 in 1921, $42,149,952.50, or 59.22 per cent, was the amount of the payroll. The 4 p.m. corresponding figures in 1920 were; operating expenses, $76,213,815.16; payroll, $49,567,436.72; per cent of operating expenses, 65.04.

Total hours worked, including betterments, ordinary and joint facility operations, in 1921, was 68,545,640, as compared with 82,178,337 in 1920. At rates in effect prior to the McAdoo award, the employees would have received, in 1921, $23,374,063.24, as compared with $45,865,171.10 actually paid, an increase of 96.2 per cent.

The decision of the United States Labour Board, known as the 12½ per cent decrease, which came into effect July 16 last, produced to December 31, 1921, on Grand Trunk Canadian lines a saving of $3,035,112.06. Had the decision been effective throughout the full year, the difference in wage charges would have been $6,306,198.88.

The Grand Trunk Railway system, exclusive of the Central Vermont, contracted for 2,795,000 net tons of coal during the coal year ending March 31, 1922, the aggregate cost, including freight and duty, being $15,288,900, or, $5.50 per ton. Of this amount, 2,675,000 tons had been delivered to March 31. The amount purchased for Canadian lines was 2,030,000 tons at an aggregate cost, including freight and duty, of $11,672,700, or, $5.75 per ton.

During the year ending December 31, 1921, there was added to the investment account of the Grand Trunk system $26,772,057.15, apportioned as follows:—

Canadian Lines..	$24,790,901 01
Western Lines..	1,550,513 95
New England lines.. ..	44,277 94 (Cr)
Central Vermont..	474,920 13

Of the above total $20,550,000 was for new equipment; $2,100,000 for improvements to equipment; $1,150,000 for increased weight of rail; $800,000 for sidings, yards and spur tracks $350,000, investment of Grand Trunk and Central Vermont in affiliated companies, and the balance, $1,500,000, in miscellaneous roadway, buildings, structures, etc.

The accounts of the Grand Trunk Railway system for the year ending December 31, 1921, have not been audited by an outside firm of chartered accountants, as is the case with the rest of the roads embraced in the National system. The auditing has been done by the Company's own auditors.

THE ESTIMATES

As to the Estimates, it is not necessary to do more at this stage than outline the requirements of the railways so far as the Estimates are concerned, and to leave detailed explanation for the consideration of the various items in committee.

Briefly, the amount to be voted on account of the railways for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1923, as provided for in the Estimates, is $97,220,000, compared with $179,065,760 last session. This includes both Grand Trunk and Canadian National lines.

For operating deficits $21,123,827 is provided for 1922, as against $23,129,369 for 1921. The actual operating deficit on the Canadian National lines in 1921, as already stated, was $16,092,901.

Interest charges due the public require $33,571,438. Last year this item was $35,871,195.

For betterments the sum of $30,261,286 is provided, as against $60,077,828 last year. Pending the organization of the new board and adoption of its policy as to necessary extensions, and also having in mind the general financial position of the country, the construction and betterments program has been restricted to minimum requirements.

Refunding securities in the hands of the public, for which $39,241,700 was necessary last year, calls for $11,129,910 this year. This refunding does not add to corporate capital indebtedness but changes the form, the usual practice being to retire a maturing issue with a fresh issue bearing the Government's guarantee. Where securities are retired by Government loans, the liability of the railway is transferred from the public to the Government.

It is not necessary this year to provide for refunding securities in the hands of the Government, for which $11,148,533 was included last year.

The actual cash for operating deficits, interest charges to the public, and betterments, which is required to be provided for the current year is $84,956,552, as against $119,078,392 last year.

FREIGHT RATES

In the Speech from the Throne it was stated that conferences had been arranged between the railway authorities with respect to the reduction of rates upon basic commodities. A number of these conferences have been held, but, because of the uncertainty of the entire rate situation, the executives of the various railways feel that it is inadvisable, at this time, to reduce rates on basic commodities in view of the fact that the suspension of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement ceases on July 6 next, and the Crow's Nest Pass scale of rates again becomes effective on the commodities named in the Crow's Nest Pass subsidy legislation of 1897; further, general order No. 308, of the Railway Commission, dated September 9, 1920, does not extend beyond July 1.

The Government feels that the matter is of such great moment and of so much importance to the people of the country—who are not only interested in lower freight rates, but concerned as owners of more than 22,000 miles of Canadian railways—that the entire question should be placed before the members in such a way as to enable them to obtain the fullest possible information. With this in view, I propose, at an early date, to ask the House to appoint a special and representative committee to examine into the question of rates, with power to summon the executives of the various railways and others to place before the committee all available information for the consideration of its members. It would then be for the committee and for the House to take such action as, having regard to all the circumstances, shall commend itself to the wisdom and judgment of Parliament.

REORGANIZATION

The first step in the reorganization of the railways will be the establishment of a single representative Board of Directors for the unified control and co-ordinated operation of the government-owned lines, now directed and controlled by two separate boards and two different managements. This board will be thoroughly representative and will include in its number the most competent railway men, men of wide practical experience and training, and possessed of expert knowledge in the various departments of railway activity.

I am aware that there has been criticism of the Government because the new board has not already been appointed. We realize that, for the time being, we might conceivably save some money by the immediate termination of dual control and dual management; on the other hand, we also realize that by unwise or hasty selection of this most important body we might easily, in the long run, lose a great deal more.

It is well to bear in mind that it is intended to turn over to this board properties in which the public and the Government have invested $1,582,500,000—and this does not take into consideration cash subsidies amounting to $41,000,000, nor land grants.

Last year, our railway executives spent $343,458,420, made up as follows:

Grand Trunk (operating)	$ 104,725,040
Canadian National (operating)	142,784,357
Cash voted in Estimates (not including deficits)	95,949,023
	$343,458,420

The total expenditure of the Dominion of Canada on Consolidated Fund account of 1919-1920—fiscal year—was $303,843,930, and in 1920-1921, $362,600,000.

It will be seen that the new Canadian National Railway Board will have the spending of more money than was expended by the Dominion on Consolidated Revenue Fund account in 1920, and almost as much as was spent in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1921. Before turning these properties over, or entrusting any board with an expenditure which equals or may exceed the ordinary expenditures of the Dominion, we are bound to know that the men to whom this vast responsibility is entrusted, and in whom this great confidence is to be reposed, are eminently qualified to successfully discharge such important duties.

I am free to confess that in the short time thus far at our disposal, and with the necessarily limited investigation it has been possible to give the matter, we are not yet in a position to announce who will compose this board. In an undertaking of this magnitude, it is above all essential that we be prudent and careful. When we turn over these valuable railway properties with a view to giving government ownership and operation a fair trial, it is of the utmost importance that we place them in capable and honest hands, and in the hands of men who, as regards component parts of the system, will administer them without fear or favour, without thought of politics, and in the general public interest.

For that reason, we prefer to be careful and prudent, adopting good business methods, and, in the final analysis, the country will benefit by it.

We are impressed with the necessity for bringing about the unification of the system as quickly as may be possible with due regard to the public interest. We keenly realize the magnitude of our responsibility.

We know what is expected of us, and when we appoint our board we wish it to fulfil on behalf of the Government and the people of Canada those same high expectations.

We propose to appoint this board under provisions of existing legislation to which, up to the present time, no effect has been given. This legislation provides for a single board of directors and for the inclusion of any lines of railway which may from time to time be vested in, or owned, controlled or occupied by His Majesty. When this legislation is brought into effect it automaticaly abolishes the present Canadian Northern Board, and the Canadian Grand Trunk Board, which succeeded the English directors in May last.

The new board will be given the direction and control of the Grand Trunk Railway properties, the Canadian Northern railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, the Transcontinental railway and the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island railway and branch lines. I have mentioned these lines specifically so that there may be no question or misunderstanding as to where any or all of them stand so far as general direction and control is concerned.

The board will be asked to examine fully for itself the existing situation, and after it has done so to make such recommendations as in its opinion will tend to the highest efficiency in the operation of these railways, without respect to political or any considerations other than the best and most approved railway practice. On their advice and recommendation will depend the division of the immense mileage into suitable operating districts or divisions, with regional headquarters which it is hoped will enable local or district matters to receive the consideration of officials most capable of understanding local requirements. Briefly, what will be aimed at will be centralization of general direction and control and decentralization in matters of local detail.

As to this, I have had opportunity to consult the gentlemen who at present are operating and managing the roads, and while there are natural differences of opinion as to how the various lines might best be grouped for economic management and operation they are unanimously of the opinion that a re-grouping and re-arrangement is necessary if improved results are to be obtained. They agree that the large mileage should be divided into units, each with its own headquarters and under the direction of a general manager who, while subject to the lines of policy laid down for his guidance and direction by the board at general headquarters, should have much wider powers on all matters pertaining to his own particular division or district than has recently been the case so far as the present two divisions of the Canadian National system are concerned. It will be for the new board, however, to advise just what form of administration is most suitable. It is the intention of the Government that the board in the exercise of its several duties and functions shall be free from interference, political or otherwise,

Upon the new board will devolve also the task of selecting and developing an executive composed of the best men in the existing systems, and such others as may be necessary, in order to combine the most suitable talent available for the management of the railways, and in order that economies may be effected which are desirable and necessary in the interests of successful operation and management. It is hoped to build up a distinctly Canadian National personnel and in this the board will receive such co-operation and support from the Government as should secure for it, from the employees, the same loyal and faithful service which generally characterizes the relations of the average railway man with his own particular road. The Government and the board will want the good-will and co-operation of the employees, and we will wish every employee to feel that he will have, under government ownership, the same opportunities of advancement to even greater responsibilities and greater rewards than would have been possible under former restricted conditions. Such of the older officials and employees as have given long service, and who of necessity may have to be retired, will receive the benefit of superannuation.

Just one other point. There has been such criticism of the statements presented by the Management of Canadian National Railways, and also concerning the Grand Trunk, as to impair parliamentary and public confidence in the figures and statements which have been put out from time to time. Naturally, any confirmation or verification of accounts, or investigation or justification of managerial methods and practice is a matter to be dealt with by the incoming board, to whom these properties are being turned over, rather than by the outgoing. The Government is most anxious that as far as the financial affairs of these railways are concerned, not only Parliament, but the general public, may have confidence in any statements which may be issued by the new board. To that end, it is proposed to supplement the work of co-ordination by an investigation of the financial affairs and business methods generally of the railways passing under the control of the new board. This is a usual business precaution in the nature of a stocktaking on the occasion of a change of administration.

CAANADIAN GOVERNMENT MERCHNT MARINE

I expect, Mr. Chairman, after the Easter recess, to be in a position to make a statement to the House concerning the operation of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine during 1921. Heretofore, that has been done by the Minister of Marine, but the late government decided that the responsibility of the department and Minister of Marine should cease with the completion of the construction programme. As the ships are being operated in conjunction with National Railways, and directed by the same board, and to a certain extent by executives common to both railways and Merchant Marine, on the Minister of Railways devolves the task of presenting the report of the operations for last year. I understand that the figures are now complete, and I hope, therefore, to present the report when we take up the Estimates of the Canadian Merchant Marine.

And now, Mr. Chairman, before taking my seat, I would like, following the usual practice, to hand in, for publication in Hansard, copies of the various statements which I have endeavoured to analyze in the course of my remarks. I would request the consent of the committee to have them printed as an appendix to the statement I have just concluded.

The CHAIRMAN: The Minister of Railways asks the unanimous consent of the committee that certain statements be printed in Hansard. Is it the pleasure of the committee that such consent shall be granted?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

(The statements referred to are as follows):

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

SUMMARY OF STATEMENTS REFERRED TO BY THE HONOURABLE THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS IN HIS STATEMENT IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IN CONNECTION WITH OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR 1921.

N.B.—Figures in italics are deficits, decreases or credits.

1. Mileage Statement.
2. Comparative Statement of Operating Results, 12 months ending December 31st, 1921 and 1920.
3. Memorandum showing Operating Results by months for year 1921.
4. Comparative Statement of Operating Deficits for year 1921 and 1920.
5. Income and Fixed Charges for years ending December 31, 1921 and 1920.
6. Comparison of Payroll showing amount of Operating Revenue paid in Labour, and average number of employees, 1921 and 1920.
7. Comparative Statement of Traffic 1921 and 1920, exclusive of Electric Lines.
8. Comparative Statement of Train Mileage, 1921 and 1920.
9. Statement showing details of equipment on hand December 31st, 1920, deliveries, retirements and positions at December 31st, 1921.
10. Summary of betterments carried out in 1921, and some of the larger works it is proposed to carry out during 1922.
11. Statement respecting Canadian National Telegraphs.
12. Summary of Construction carried out in the year 1921.

[STATEMENT No. 1.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS
INCLUDING
GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

OPERATED MILEAGE—DECEMBER 31, 1921.

Canadian Government Railways.—
Intercolonial Railway (Including International and N.B. and P. E. I. Railways.)		$ 1,670 38
Prince Edward Island Railway		275 99
Branch Lines in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec		342 85
		2,289 22
Transcontinental Railway (Including the Lake Superior Branch)		2,006 73
Hudson's Bay Railway		214 00
		4,509 95
St. John & Quebec Railway Westfield Beach to Centreville (Leased)	158 11
St. John to Westfield Beach (Running Rights)	13 96
		172 07
			4,682 02
Canadian Northern Railway System			9,899 90
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway			2,756 38
Canadian National Railways			17,338 30

AVERAGE MILEAGE OPERATED.

Canadian National Railways (including Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.)	17,064 43
St. John and Quebec Railway	172 07
	17,236 50

[STATEMENT No. 2.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS INCLUDING GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY OF OPERATING RESULTS—TWELVE MONTHS ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1921 AND 1920.

Excluding St. John and Quebec Railway.

——	1921.	1920.	Increase.	Decrease.	% Incr.	% Decr.
Operating Revenue.
Canadian Northern	$69,088,474 16	$66,695,398 80	$ 2,393,075 36	$	3·59
Canadian Government	40,964,303 92	44,537,803 85		3,573,499 93		8·02
Grand Trunk Pacific	16,638,677 64	14,408,549 66	2,230,127 98		15·48
Total	126,691,455 72	125,641,752 31	1,049,703 41		0·84
Distribution.
Passenger	21,110,052 83	23,583,571 58		2,473,518 75		10·49
Freight	93,785,017 60	90,951,115 73	2,833,901 87		3·12
Other	11,796,385 29	11,107 065 00	689,320 29		6·21
Operating Expenses.
Canadian Northern	75,564,385 30	82,953,978 60		7,389,593 30		8·91
Canadian Government	46,551,602 67	54,987,680 28		8 436,077 61		15·34
Grand Trunk Pacific	20,668,369 51	24,543,063 60		3,874,694 09		15·78
Total	142,784,357 48	162,484,722 48		19,700,365 00		12·12
Distribution.
Mtce. of Way and Str	33,707,956 47	42,907,217 78		9,199,261 31		21·44
Mtce. of Equipment	31,649,007 49	34,834,703 34		3,185,695 85		9·15
Traffic	2,555,090 60	2,456,715 09	98,375 51		4·00
Transportation—Rail	71,601,188 73	76,695,606 01		5,094,417 28		6·64
" Water	120,970 66	350,135 79		229,165 13		65·45
Miscellaneous	2,063,096 85	2,564,663 07		501,566 22		19·56
General	3,074,590 13	3,378,724 34		304,134 21		9·00
Transportation for Invest...Cr.	1,987,543 45	703,042 94	1,284,500 51		182·71
Operating Ratios.
Canadian Northern	109 37	124 38		15 01		12·06
Canadian Government	113 64	123 46		9 82		7·95
Grand Trunk Pacific	124 21	170 34		46 13		27·08
Total	112 70	129 32		16 62		12·85
Operating Deficit.
Canadian Northern	6,475,911 14	16,258,579 80		9,782,668 66		60·17
Canadian Government	5,587,298 75	10,449,876 43		4,862,577 68		46·53
Grand Trunk Pacific	4,029,691 87	10,134,513 94		6,104,822 07		60·23
Total	16,092,901·76	36,842,970 17		20,750,068 41		56·32
Mileage in Operation.
Canadian Northern—Steam	9,773·70	9,585·37	188·33		1·96
Canadian Government	4,509·95	4,295·95	214·00		4·98
Grand Trunk Pacific	2,756·38	2,756·38
Total	17,040·03	16,637·70	402·33		2·42
Can. Nor. Electric Lines	126·2	126·2
System	17,166·23	16,763·90	402·33		2·40
Average Mileage Operated.
System	17,064·43	16,642·66	421·77		2·53
Revenue Train Miles	$34,701,241	$37,920,271		$3,219,030		8·49
Earnings per R.T M.*	$3 60	$3 27	0·33		10·09
Expenses " *	4 07	4 24		$0 17		4·01
Net Loss " *	0 47	0 97		0 50		51·35

*Electric and Water Lines Excluded.

[Mr. W. C. Kennedy.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS INCLUDING GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY —Concluded.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY OF OPERATING RESULTS—TWELVE MONTHS ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1921 AND 1920 —Concluded.

Excluding St. John and Quebec Railway—Concluded.

	1921.	1920.	Increase.	Decrease.	% Incr.	% Decr.
Freight Traffic (Ecl. Elec. Lines).
Revenue Tons Carried	21,182,466	25,089,376		3,906,910		15·57
Rev. Tons Carried 1 Mile	8,991,467,782	9,221,370,748		229,902,966		2·49
Average Rate per Ton	$ 4 41	$ 3 61	$ 0 80		22·16
Avg. Rate per Ton per Mile	c. 1·039	c. 0·983	c. 0·056		5·70
Avg. Distance Hauled Miles	424	368	56		15·22
Passenger Traffic (Ecl. Elec. Lines).
Rev. Passengers Carried	11,856,620	13,572,245		1,715,625		12·64
Rev. Psgrs. Carried 1 Mile	711,867,853	841,636,864		129,769,011		15·42
Average Rate per Passenger	$ 1 70	$ 1 66	$ 0 04		2·41
Avg. Rate per Psgr. per Mile	c. 2·826	c. 2·684	c. 0·142		5·29
Avg. Distance Hauled Miles	60·04	62·01		1·97		3·18

[STATEMENT NO. 3.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

(INCLUDING GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY).

MEMORANDUM SHOWING OPERATING RESULTS BY MONTHS FOR YEAR 1921.

Month.	Earnings.	Operating Expenses.	Result.
	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.
January	10,932,081 63	13,808,668 47	2,876,586 84
February	10,225,436 82	13,203,762 32	2,978,325 50
March	10,539,862 54	13,061,704 27	2,521,841 73
April	9,397,525 00	12,005,843 55	2,608,318 55
May	8,456,806 61	10,972,049 84	2,515,243 23
June	8,429,913 92	10,967,695 62	2,537,781 70
July	9,306,384 27	10,568,080 40	1,261,696 13
August	10,536,461 74	10,489,230 30	47,231 44
September	11,500,126 24	10,995,951 37	504,174 87
October	12,906,133 97	11,870,003 63	1,036,130 34
November	12,817,198 28	12,083,048 63	734,149 65
December	11,643,524 70	12,758,319 08	1,114,794 38
	126,691,455 72	142,784,357 48	16,092,901 76

[STATEMENT No. 4.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

(INCLUDING GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY).

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF OPERATING DEFICITS FOR YEARS 1921 AND 1920.

	Year ending December 31st, 1921.		Year ending December 31st, 1920.
	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.
CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS		5,587,298 75		10,449,876 43
Divided as follows:—
Intercolonial Railway	4,022,053 92		6,549,629 48
Prince Edward Island Railway	617,158 93		729,772 16
Transcontinental Railway	441,182 99		2,780,359 46
Moncton and Buctouche Railway	43,946 17		43,800 68
Elgin and Havelock Railway	39,250 67		47,518 25
St. Martins Railway	42,068 38		60,305 39
York and Carleton Railway	16,010 95		21,317 39
Salisbury and Albert Railway	55,040 53		88,033 60
Lotbiniere and Megantic Railway	25,773 49		20,413 49
Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway	154,504 52		29,329 87
Cape Breton Railway	24,524 14		14,621 65
Quebec and Saguenay Railway	33,862 98		13,189 84
Hudson Bay Railway	71,921 08		51,585 17
CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM		6,475,911 14		16,258,579 80
GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY		4,029,691 87		10,134,513 94
Total Deficit		16,092,901 76		36,842,970 17

[STATEMENT No. 5.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

INCOME ACCOUNT

for

YEARS ENDING DECEMBER 31ST, 1921 AND 1920.

	1921.	1920
GROSS OPERATING REVENUE.
Canadian Northern Railway System	$ 69,088,474 16	$ 66,695,398 80
Canadian Government Railways	40,964,303 92	44,537,803 85
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	16,638,677 64	14,408,549 66
Canadian National Railways	$ 126,691,455 72	$ 125,641,752 31
OPERATING EXPENSES.	$ c.	$ c.
Canadian Northern Railway System	75,564,385 30	82,953,978 60
Canadian Government Railways	46,551,602 67	54,987,680 28
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	20,668,369 51	24,543,063 60
Canadian National Railways	142,784,357 48	162,484,722 48
NET DEFICIT FROM RAILWAY OPERATIONS.
Canadian Northern Railway System	6,475,911 14	16,258,579 80
Canadian Government Railways	5,587,298 75	10,449,876 43
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	4,029,691 87	10,134,513 94
Canadian National Railways	16,092,901 76	36,842,970 17
TAX ACCRUALS.
Canadian Northern Railway System	1,191,890 84	1,185,652 28
Canadian Government Railways	35,743 87	60 50
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	357,394 54	45,409 30
Canadian National Railways	1,585,029 25	1,231,122 08

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—Con.

INCOME ACCOUNT
for
YEARS ENDING DECEMBER 31ST, 1921 AND 1920.

	1921.	1920.
	$ c.	$ c.
TOTAL OPERATING DEFICIT.
Canadian Northern Railway System	7,667,801 98	17,444,232 08
Canadian Government Railways	5,623,042 62	10,449,936 93
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	4,387,086 41	10,179,923 24
Canadian National Railways	17,677,931 01	38,074,092 25
NON OPERATING INCOME.
Canadian Northern Railway System	3,119,349 72	1,845,994 62
Canadian Government Railways	457,352 46	1,737,978 51
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	863,185 83	1,837,442 03
Canadian National Railways	4,439,888 01	5,421,415 16
DEDUCTIONS FROM GROSS INCOME.
Canadian Northern Railway System	1,011,242 14	125,637 37
Canadian Government Railways	845,065 71	720,096 33
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	801,667 77	812,404 79
Canadian National Railways	2,657,975 62	1,658,138 49
TOTAL DEFICITS BEFORE FIXED CHARGES.
Canadian Northern Railway System	5,559,694 40	15,723,874 83
Canadian Government Railways	6,010,755 87	9,432,054 75
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	4,325,568 35	9,154,886 00
Canadian National Railways	15,896,018 62	34,310,815 58
FIXED CHARGES.
Canadian Northern Railway System—
Interest due Public	17,595,707 51	13,993,695 36
Interest due Government	13,224,208 27	10,326,260 69
	30,819,915 78	24,319,956 05
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway—
Interest due Public	3,977,447 36	4,270,244 38
Interest due Government	1,535,474 22	1,539,224 00
Interest on Receiver's Certificates	1,702,886 64	808,351 63
Interest due Grank Trunk Railway	2,742,191 60	2,256,467 90
	9,957,999 82	8,874,287 91
Canadian National Railways	40,777,915 60	33,194,243 96
TOTAL DEFICIT.
Canadian Northern Railway System	36,379,610 18	40,043,830 88
Canadian Government Railways	6,010,755 87	9,432,054 75
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	14,283,568 17	18,029,173 91
Canadian National Railways	56,673,934 22	67,505,059 54
St. John and Quebec Railway (leased)	316,044 60	346,015 49
Total deficit	56,989,978 82	67,851,075 03

[STATEMENT No. 6.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

MEMORANDUM SHOWING AMOUNT OF OPERATING REVENUE PAID IN LABOUR—YEARS 1921 AND 192 .

—	1921	1920.	Increase or Decrease	Inc. or Dec. %.
	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.
Gross Earnings:
Canadian Northern Railway	69,088,474 16	66,695,398 80	2,393,075 36	3·59
Canadian Government Railways	40,964,303 92	44,537,803 85	3,573,499 93	8·02
Grand Trunk Pacific	16,638,677 64	14,408,549 66	2,230,127 98	15·48
System	126,691,455 72	125,641,752 31	1,049,703 41	0·84
Operating Labour:
Canadian Northern Railway	42,233,504 97	47,563,113 08	5,329,608 11	11·20
Canadian Government Railways	28,649,972 81	35,941,959 31	7,291,986 50	20·28
Grand Trunk Pacific	11,498,120 09	15,262,647 77	3,764,527 68	24·66
System	82,381,597 87	98,767,720 16	16,386,122 29	16·59
Ratio of Labour to Gross Earnings:
Canadian Northern Railway	61 13	71 31	10 18	14·27
Canadian Government Railways	69 94	80 70	10 76	13·33
Grand Trunk Pacific	69 10	105 92	36 82	34·76
System	65 03	78 61	13 58	17·28
Comparison of Payroll (Including Betterments):
Canadian National Railways	88,755,060 20	105,109,808 29	16,354,748 09	15·56

AVERAGE NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES.

—	1921.	1920.	Decrease	% Decr.
Canadian Government Railways	20,658	23,849	3,191	13·38
Canadian Northern Railway	32,384	33,654	1,270	3·77
Grand Trunk Pacific	7,281	7,821	540	6·90
Canadian National	60,323	65,324	5,001	7·66

[STATEMENT No. 7.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF TRAFFIC, 1921-20 (EXCLUSIVE OF ELECTRIC LINES).

——	1921.	1920.	Increase or Decrease.	Per Cent Increase.	Per Cent Decrease.
1. Passengers Carried—
Canadian Government	6,235,601	7,344,074	* 1,108,473		15·09
Canadian Northern	4,862,887	5,468,352	* 605,465		11·07
Grand Trunk Pacific	814,845	824,732	* 9,887		1·20
Canadian National	11,856,620	13,572,245	* 1,715,625		12·64
2. Number Passengers Carried 1 Mile—
Canadian Government	298,645,302	361,555,820	* 62,910,518		17·40
Canadian Northern	335,277,128	387,818,185	* 52,541,057		13·55
Grand Trunk Pacific	77,945,423	92,262,859	* 14,317,436		15·52
Canadian National	711,867,853	841,636,864	*129,769,011		15·42
3. Tons of Freight Handled—
Canadian Government	8,301,330	12,976,623	* 4,675,293		36·02
Canadian Northern	13,634,537	14,504,411	* 869,874		6·00
Grand Trunk Pacific	3,674,507	2,853,116	† 821,391	28·79
Canadian National	21,182,466	25,089,376	* 3,906,910		15·57
4. Tons Freight Moved 1 Mile—
Canadian Government	2,706,274,266	3,422,139,155	*715,864,889		20·92
Canadian Northern	4,711,313,574	4,687,603,090	† 23,710,484	0·51
Grand Trunk Pacific	1,573,879,942	1,111,628,503	†462,251,439	41·58
Canadian National	8,991,467,782	9,221,370,748	*229,902,966		2·49

——	Per Passenger.		Per Ton Freight.
	1921.	1920.	1921.	1920.
5. Average Haul—
Canadian Government	47·89	49·23	326·00	263·72
Canadian Northern	68·95	70·92	345·54	323·18
Grand Trunk Pacific	95·66	111·87	428·32	389·62
Canadian National	60·04	62·01	424·48	367·54

*Decrease.
†Increase.
Less System Interline.

[STATEMENT No. 8.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

TRAIN MILEAGE.

—	1921	1920.	Inc. or Dec.	% Inc. or Dec.
Passenger—
Canadian Government Railways	4,624,183	4,791,387	167,204	3·49
Canadian Northern Railway	6,348,272	6,992,016	643,744	9·21
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	1,606,093	1,539,184	66,909	4·35
Canadian National Railways	12,578,548	13,322,587	744,039	5·58
Mixed—
Canadian Government Railways	1,116,665	1,236,931	120,266	9·72
Canadian Northern Railway	1,784,768	1,824,059	39,291	2·15
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	368,075	435,975	67,900	15·57
Canadian National Railways	3,269,508	3,496,965	227,457	6·50
Freight—
Canadian Government Railways	5,297,882	6,611,115	1,313,233	19·86
Canadian Northern Railways	10,305,947	11,559,893	1,253,946	10·85
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	3,111,247	2,817,337	293,910	10·43
Canadian National Railways	18,715,076	20,988,345	2,273,269	10·83
Special—
Canadian Government Railways	10,680	28,618	17,938	62·68
Canadian Northern Railway	28,496	82,132	53,636	65·30
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	8,782	53	8,729	.....
Canadian National Railways	47,958	110,803	62,845	56·71
Work—
Canadian Government Railways	313,360	622,360	309,000	49·65
Canadian Northern Railway	1,124,793	1,712,118	587,325	34·30
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	412,619	732,849	320,230	43·70
Canadian National Railways	1,850,772	3,067,327	1,216,555	39·66
Total—
Canadian Government Railways	11,362,770	13,290,411	1,927,641	14·50
Canadian Northern Railway	19,592,276	22,170,218	2,577,942	11·63
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	5,506,816	5,525,398	18,582	0·34
Canadian National Railways	36,461,862	40,986,027	4,524,165	11·04

[STATEMENT No. 9.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

(Including Grand Trunk Pacific Railway)

STATEMENT SHOWING DETAILS OF EQUIPMENT ON HAND DECEMBER 31ST, 1920; DELIVERIES, RETIREMENTS AND POSITION AT DECEMBER 31ST, 1921.

——	Dec. 31st, 1920.	Retirements during the year.	Delivered during Year	Dec. 31st, 1921.
Locomotives—
Passenger	1,730	9	12	1,733
Freight	.....	.....	.....	.....
Switching	226	.....	1	227
Electric Locomotives	13	.....	.....	13
Total Locomotives	1,969	9	13	1,973
Passenger Equipment—
First Class Cars	477	14	14	477
Second Class Cars	249	19	.....	230
Combination Cars	192	.....	3	195
Emigrant Cars	348	6	.....	342
Dining Cars	62	1	12	73
Parlor Cars	67	3	3	67
Sleeping Cars	202	1	21	222
Postal Cars	55	.....	.....	55
Baggage and Express	509	14	70	565
Business and Pay Cars	66	2	2	66
Other Cars in Passenger Service	61	4	26	83
Total	2,288	64	151	2,375
Freight Equipment—
Box Cars	55,824	706	715	55,833
Flat Cars	9,768	182	.....	9,586
Stock Cars	3,494	19	350	3,825
Coal Cars	8,371	112	.....	8,259
Tank Cars	78	7	.....	71
Refrigerator Cars	1,719	23	104	1,800
Other Cars in Freight Service	1,435	29	189	1,595
Total	80,689	1,078	1,358	80,969
Work Equipment—
Gravel Cars	271	7	215	479
Derrick Cars	181	14	20	187
Caboose Cars	1,074	55	30	1,049
Other Road Cars	3,497	251	173	3,419
Total	5,023	327	438	5,134
Total Cars	88,000	1,469	1,947	88,478

[STATEMENT No. 10.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS INCLUDING GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

ANNUAL REPORT WITH REGARD TO BETTERMENTS FOR FISCAL YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1921.

The total main track mileage operated by the Canadian National Railways on January 1, 1921 was 17,215·27 miles.

On December 31, 1921 the operated mileage was as follows:—

Canadian Northern Railway Eastern Lines—
Including Halifax and South Western Railway	2,949·91
Canadian Northern Railway Western Lines—
Including D. W. and P. Railway	6,823·79
Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway and Toronto Suburban Railway (Electric Lines)	126·20
		9,899·90
Canadian Government Railways—
Intercolonial (Including Branch Lines)	2,289·22
National Transcontinental Railway (Including Lake Superior Branch)	2,006·73
St. John and Quebec Railway (Leased)	172·07
Hudson Bay Railway	214·00
		4,682·02
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway		2,756·38
Total Miles Operated		17,338·30

Lines on which construction was completed and taken over for operation—during the year and included in the above figures

	Miles Added
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines—
Burrill Deviation 4·0 miles decreased length of main line by 0·40 miles.
Washago Connection 0·7 miles made no increase in length of main line.
Sellwood Jct. to Sellwood 0·18 miles decreased length of main track 0·73 miles.
T. and Nor. Ont. Connection North Bay	0·25
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines—
Preeceville to Lintlaw	27·70
Sangudo to Whitecourt	38·80
Cessford to Steveville	11·80
Lucky Lake to Demaine	9·00
Humbolt to St. Brieux	32·60
Moosejaw to Jct. with Riverhurst Sub. Div	1·33
Union Jct. Edmonton	0·56
Connection Camrose	0·08
Connection Alix	0·74
Connection Barlow	1·30
Total	124·16
Less reduction in mileage as above	1·13	Miles
		123·03

Net increase in mileage put in operation, 1921.

In addition to the above the following mileage was put into temporary operation and is included in the operated mileage of the System—

Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines—	Miles
Turtleford to St. Walburg	22·1
Demain to Beechy	5·6
Melford to Ridgedale	23·7
Lintlaw to Kelvington	13·9
		65·3
Grand Total Mileage Added		188·33

The following betterments were made to Roadbed and Track during the year 1921:—

New 85-lb. Rail Laid 1921—	Miles
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	166·08
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	71·26
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	37·67
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	211·91
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	24·00
Total	510·92

Second Hand Relay Rail Laid 1921—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	Nil
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	26·87
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	38·89
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	1·71
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	Nil
Total	67·47

Ties Put in Track for Renewals—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	1,193,387
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	147,987
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines (Including Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Ry.)	1,002,147
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines (Including D.W. and P. Ry.)	2,490,943
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	828,756
Total	5,663,220

	Miles
Ballasting Chargeable to Capital Account, 1921—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	35·3
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	103·3
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	164·0
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	140·3
Total	442·9

	Number
Water Supplies, 1921—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	16
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	13
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	3
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	72
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	23
Halifax and South Western Railway	3
Total	130

	Number
Tie Plates, 1921—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	Nil
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	62,500
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	10,000
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	238,455
Halifax and South Western Railway	Nil
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	121,083
Total	432,038

	Number
Rail Anchors, 1921—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	6,250
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	32,500
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	2,500
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	104,450
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	7,000
Halifax and South Western Railway	Nil
Total	152,700

	Miles
Fencing Wire and Snow—
Canadian Government Railways, Eastern Lines	15·4
Canadian Government Railways, Western Lines	1·5
Canadian Northern Railway, Eastern Lines	7·5
Canadian Northern Railway, Western Lines	37·2
Grand Trunk Pacific Railway	28·8
Total	90·4

The following new structures were constructed and improvements to existing structures and facilities carried out:

Item.	Canadian Government Railways.		Canadian Northern Railway.		Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.	Total.
	Eastern Lines.	Western Lines.	Eastern Lines.	Western Lines.
Stations, New	9	.....	1	5	3	18
" Extension	2	.....	3	1	.....	6
Freight Sheds, New	.....	.....	.....	1	.....	1
" Extensions	2	.....	.....	.....	.....	2
Bunk Houses, Section Dwellings	13	4	3	31	19	70
Other Buildings, New	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
" Extensions	11	.....	5	9	4	29
Coaling Plants	2	.....	4	2	2	10
Sidings and Extensions to Sidings	65	6	37	30	6	144
New Culverts	17	.....	9	28	9	63
New Bridges	5	.....	20	8	.....	33
Bridges and Trestles filled	14	2	67	39	13	135
	140	12	149	154	56	511

In addition to the above, considerable work was undertaken such as the construction of farm and highway crossings, roadways, ashpits, drop-pits, loading platforms, ditching and wells for station water supply, etc., and the installation of track scales, turntables, interlocking plants, machinery in shops and roundhouses and the heating and lighting of stations, freight sheds, etc.

The following are some of the larger items carried out during the year:—

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS (Eastern Lines)

At Fairview—grading for locomotive terminal started during the previous year was completed.

The replacement of the double track bridge over the Tantramar river, near Sackville, was completed during the year.

At Cape Tormentine, dredging the entrance channel and turning basin, in order to provide a greater depth of water for the ferry steamer s.s. Prince Edward Island, was continued and 65 per cent completed, at the end of the year.

Between Sackville and Painsec Junction absolute permissive automatic block signals were installed, thereby increasing the capacity and improving operation for traffic over this portion of the line.

At Moncton new terminal facilities, consisting of a 40-stall engine-house, machine-shop, power-house, stores building, turntable, coaling plant, water tank, stand pipes, cinder pits, and the necessary lighting, water and sewer facilities was undertaken and was sufficiently completed to be put into operation by the middle of December. Realignment of the main line and alterations and additions to yard tracks in connection with the new facilities were also made.

At Moncton mechanical shops—mechanical stokers were installed and duct for power line constructed.

At Bathurst—terminal facilities to facilitate the operation of the Caraquet and Gulf Shore railway were constructed consisting of a three-stall engine-house, turntable, ashpit and air hoist, together with the necessary trackage.

Grade and alignment revisions between McGivney Junction and Fredericton, which were started during the previous year, were completed.

On branch lines in New Brunswick the replacement of a number of bridges and the strengthening of trestles was carried out.

Between Lévis and Chaudière the installation of automatic signals was 50 per cent completed.

At Chaudière Junction improvements to terminal facilities consisting of extension to engine-house, new machine shop, coaling plant, ashpit, stand-pipes and yard re-arrangement was 80 per cent completed at the end of the year.

In connection with the co-ordination of the C.G.R. and G.T.R. at St. Rosalie Junction, a six-stall extension to the engine-house and additional yard tracks were provided. The installation of a new water supply at this terminal was 87 per cent completed.

At Hervey Junction the C.N.R. and C.G.R. facilities were co-ordinated, a connection being constructed to enable both lines to use the same station. Additional tracks were provided and a new station built replacing the former station, which was destroyed by fire.

At Parent commencement was made on the construction of staff quarters.

On the Amos subdivision, the replacement of trestle over the Coffee river with permanent structure was 13 per cent completed and the replacement of trestle over the Matagan river 75 per cent completed.

CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY (Eastern Lines)

Between miles 67.6 and 91.6 on the St. Lawrence subdivision a diversion known as the Burrill deviation was constructed reducing the grades and curvature. On the original lines there were two steel viaducts, but on the deviation only one was required, the other being replaced by culvert and fill. This work was 95 per cent completed.

At Hawkesbury, in order to co-ordinate the G.T.R. and C.N.R. facilities, eliminating one of the stations and an interlocking plant, two main track connections and some additional yard tracks were installed and a three-stall extension to the engine-house built. These works were 70 per cent completed at the end of the year.

At Rockland, a connecting track between the C.N.R. and G.T.R. was constructed, siding tracks provided and one-stall engine-house built. These works were 80 per cent completed at the end of the year, and when fully completed will permit of the consolidation of the stations and the elimination of a diamond crossing and interlocking protection.

At Washago in connection with co-ordination of the C.N.R. and G.T.R., a connection and passing siding were constructed and the C.N.R. station moved to the junction point.

At Hornepayne a new station was erected.

A number of trestles were replaced with concrete culverts and fill or with permanent steel structures and some steel bridges were renewed with heavier spans.

CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY (Western Lines)

New steel bridge over South Saskatchewan river at Saskatoon, replacing Howe truss spans, was completed.

Work commenced on new steel bridge seven miles east of Brandon, Man.

Crossing at Kaministiqua river, North Lake subdivision. Work started on new steel bridge.

New subway 90 per cent completed at Dauphin, Man., for pedestrian traffic.

Moose Jaw, Sask., new subway at Athabasca street, completed.

On the Boston Bar subdivision, British Columbia, reinforced concrete culverts were installed at various points, and 312 feet of tunnel lining completed.

New water supply at mile 85.2, Gladstone subdivision, has been established.

Work started on new reservoir for water supply at Ethelbert and work progressed far enough to have enough water to carry along.

At Maymont, Sask., a good water supply has been provided, water being taken from Saskatchewan river.

An excellent water supply at Dona, located to serve two subdivisions which cross at this location, has been completed.

A dam has been constructed at Kindersley, Sask., to collect water from spring run-off.

At South Saskatoon (Nutana), a new terminal yard has been completed and facilities provided comprised of new engine-house, coaling plant, machine shop, stores building, ash-pits, etc.

New freight tracks have been constructed in Winnipeg terminals and extensions were made to passenger tracks.

The yards at Hanna, Drumheller and Wayne were extended and new passing tracks were installed at various points on the Hanna and Drumheller subdivisions, to facilitate the movement of coal.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

At Melville, Sask., a contract was let for construction of dam and reservoir of approximately 250 million (250,000,000) gallons capacity. The reservoir was almost completely filled by rains during months of September and October and an ample supply of good water is now assured. Pipe line and pumping station were constructed in connection with this work.

Water supplies at Hubbard, Archydal and Riverhurst were completed to such an extent as to assure a supply of water at each point during 1922.

A portion of frame trestle at Birdtail creek, mile 190, Miniota subdivision, is being replaced by steel span on concrete piers, the work being 40 per cent completed at the end of the year.

Salmon wharf at Prince Rupert has been practically completed and warehouse is being erected.

New stations are being erected at Prince George and Prince Rupert.

Track diversion at Firdale completed.

Addition to Edson roundhouse completed.

During the present year it is proposed to continue works which were uncompleted at the end of last year and undertake new works of which the larger items are briefly referred to below:—

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS (Eastern Lines)

Continue the work of dredging at Cape Tormentine, yard improvements at Moncton, installation of automatic signals between Lévis and Chaudière, construction of staff quarters at Parent, replacing trestles over the Coffee and Matagan rivers on the Amos subdivision.

Flattening the slope and placing additional rock and large capping stones on the breakwater at Cape Tormentine.

Provide two eighty-ton cranes for Moncton repair shop.

Completion of yard extension and rearrangement of main line at St. John.

Provide telephone train dispatching service between Mont Joli and Lévis.

Extend stores building at St. Malo.

CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY (Eastern Lines)

Complete the work on Burrill deviation and replacement of trestles on various subdivisions.

Extend five stalls of the engine-house and provide additional machinery at Parry Sound.

Ballasting on various subdivisions.

Construct a new station at Napanee.

Provide additional stores accommodation and scrap reclaim building and plant at Leaside.

Pave roadways and provide drainage at Cherry street yard.

Provide additional terminal accommodation and trackage at Quebec.

Construct six-stall extension to engine-house and provide additional yard facilities at Limoilou.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS (Western Lines)

Erect boarding-house for staff at Sioux Lookout and lengthen fifteen stalls of engine-house.

Fill various trestles.

Provide telephone train dispatching service between Sioux Lookout and Winnipeg.

Install scrap reclamation plant at Transcona.

CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY (Western Lines)

On the D.W. and P. railway it is proposed to construct car repair shops at Virginia and Duluth as required by the Minnesota state laws.

Between Port Arthur and Fort William a second track is proposed to provide for the dense traffic between these points.

A number of wooden trestles are to be replaced with steel bridges on concrete foundations and a number with concrete culverts and earth fills.

Wooden bridges over the Kaministiqua and Assiniboine rivers are to be replaced with steel trusses on concrete substructures.

Ballasting on various subdivisions.

At Fort Rouge a new trunk sewer and a filtering plant for the water supply are to be constructed to serve the terminal. New water supplies are proposed at Maryfield, Rama, Avonlea, Gravelbourg, Delisle, Wiseton, Eston, Lloydminster, Vegreville, Mecheche, and completion of the water supplies at Paskwegin and Kindersley.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

Construct additional trackage at Watrous and Rivers terminals and improve the water supply at the latter point.

Provide water supplies at Arrow river, Tate and Bradwell and complete the water supply at Hubbard.

Complete the filling of Battle river trestle.

Improve Mirror terminal by the construction of six additional stalls to roundhouse and additional trackage.

Construct a freight repair shop at North Edmonton, this to form a unit of a complete repair shop at that point.

Construct a diversion of the railway at the Big Eddy crossing at Sundance creek.

Complete the construction of a terminal at Coalspur.

Complete the construction of a station, Salmon dock and warehouse at Prince Rupert.

Complete the filling of the Ky-ax river crossing and erect a steel span to provide permanent waterway at this point.

Ballasting on various subdivisions.

Replace various trestle bridges with steel spans on concrete substructures or with concrete culverts and earth fills.

CO-ORDINATION, CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY, CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AND GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAYS

Connect Transcontinental railway with Canadian Northern at Mokomon, in order to permit abandonment of approximately 28 miles of the Lake Superior branch.

Provide new classification yards west of Fort William.

Consolidation of C.N.R. and G.T.P. yards at Portage la Prairie.

Complete the consolidation of terminal facilities at Regina.

Consolidate the G.T.P. and C.N.R. in one line through Camrose and provide the necessary connections.

Complete connection between the C.N.R. and G.T.P. at East Edmonton.

Consolidate the C.N.R. with the G.T.P. in the vicinity of Entwhistle and construct the necessary connections.

Construct connections between G.T.P. and C.N.R. at Stony Plains and abandon the C.N.R. between Edmonton and Stony Plains.

Consolidate Lucerne and Jasper terminals at one point.

[STATEMENT No. 11.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL TELEGRAPHS

STATEMENT OF POLE AND WIRE MILEAGES

	January 1, 1922		January 1, 1921
	Poles	Wires	Poles	Wires
C.N.R. System (Including Transcontinental and Intercolonial)	12,150	57,157	10,424	44,553
Great North Western System	8,201	37,925	8,181	29,401
Grand Trunk Pacific System	2,818	14,590	2,820	14,430
	23,169	109,672	21,425	88,384

PRINCIPAL ADDITIONAL WIRES ERECTED IN 1921

Number	Kind of Wire	Between	Mileage
1	Copper	Winnipeg-Vancouver	1,645
2	"	Newcastle-Campbellton	214
1	"	Montreal-Quebec	178
1	"	Toronto-Niagara Falls	84
—	"	Miscellaneous	318
1	Iron	Saskatoon-Calgary	399
1	"	Edmonton-Vancouver	779
2	"	Vancouver Island	147
1	"	Warden-Brazeau	173
—	"	Miscellaneous	350
			4,287

Memorandum

Poles and wires property of G.N.W. System not on Canadian National Railway Right-of-way have been included in 1922 Statement, also Railway Wires in Western Union Territory East of Moncton. These were not included in 1921 Statement and will explain increased mileages.

[STATEMENT No. 12.]

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

STATEMENT OF WORK DONE ON CONSTRUCTION OF NEW LINES DURING THE YEAR 1921

Eastern Lines

There was no work done on Eastern lines in the way of constructing new branches, all this work during the year being confined to Western lines.

Western Lines

Grading.—During the year there was the equivalent of 67 miles of grading completed. By "equivalent" is meant that in certain places each mile may not have been completely finished so the percentage of this in yards to the whole yardage was taken to get the number of miles done.

Of this 67 miles of grading 65.6 miles were done on prairie lines and 1.4 in British Columbia on the Okanagan branch.

An appended statement gives in detail the branches on which this grading was accomplished, and is divided by provinces; this shows there was completed in Manitoba, nil; Saskatchewan, 51.2 miles; Alberta, 14.4 miles, and in British Columbia, 1.4 miles.

Bridges and Trestles.—On new lines in 1921 in the erection of 51 bridges and trestles 4,015,200 feet B.M. of timber, 118,260 lineal feet of piling, and 200,760 pounds of iron were used. Detail of where this work was done is given on an attached statement.

Cowichan river bridges at miles 71.6 and 74.6 and E. and N. crossing at mile 74.4 Vancouver Island line were completed during the year.

The substructure of the bridge over the Red Deer river at mile 59.3 on Hanna-Medicine Hat line was also completed during the year.

The erection of some wooden bridges on the Okanagan branch was also proceeded with.

Tracklaying.—There was laid in 1921, 99.6 miles of track on new lines, 96.5 miles being laid on prairie lines, and 3.1 miles in British Columbia on the Vancouver Island line. Detailed statement attached shows the branches on which this track was laid, and divided into provinces shows there was laid in Manitoba 17.7 miles, in Saskatchewan 66.9 miles, in Alberta 11.9 miles, and in British Columbia 3.1 miles.

In connection with tracklaying 74 switches and frogs were placed for sidings and wyes on new lines. This used up 10 miles of track in addition to the main line track referred to above.

Ballasting and Surfacing.—In 1921 there were 188.6 miles of new track ballasted; the whole of this was on prairie lines. Detailed statement is attached showing the branches on which this ballasting was done, and divided into provinces shows there was ballasted on Saskatchewan lines 90 miles, and on Alberta lines 98.6 miles. There was no ballasting done on new lines in other provinces.

Fencing and Telegraph Lines.—264.08 miles of fence, and 163.2 miles of telegraph line were erected during the year. Detailed statement showing the lines on which this work was done, and given mileages is attached.

Buildings and Structures

Water Tanks.—6 water tanks were completed in the season for new lines and 5 pump-houses, and 2,515 lineal feet of pipe line built to serve them.

Stations.—During the year one third class and one fourth class stations, 11 freight and passenger shelters, 32 loading platforms, and 12 stock yards, were erected on new lines.

Section Houses.—Nine section houses were completed on new lines during 1921. The branches on which these buildings were placed is shown in the attached table.

Miles Put in Operation.—During 1921 on Canadian Northern, Western lines, there were 173.4 miles of new lines turned over to the operating department for permanent operation, and in addition to this 65.3 miles of new lines were turned over to the operating department for operation on behalf of construction department, or a total of 238.7 miles. Attached is detailed statement showing these lines and mileages.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

WESTERN LINES.

STATEMENT SHOWING FENCING AND TELEGRAPH LINE ERECTED DURING 1921.

Branch.	Fencing. Fence Miles	Telegraph Line. Miles.
Onoway	68·30	16·0
Melfort-Humboldt	20·90
Oliver	42·70	10·5
Melfort, N.E	2·00	23·0
Jackfish	44·00	21·5
Hanna-Medicine Hat	18·33	7·8
Luck Lake	32·35	9·2
Red Deer Spur	.....	6·1
Thunderhill Branch	.....	13·5
Okanagan Branch	35·5
Vancouver Island Line	.....	55·6
Total	264·08	163·2

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

WESTERN LINES

STATEMENT SHOWING GRADING, TRACKLAYING AND BALLAST DONE DURING THE YEAR 1921.

Branch.	Grading.	Tracklaying	Ballasting.
Manitoba—
Amaranth	.....	17·7
Total for Manitoba	.....	17·7
Saskatchewan—
Peebles-Lampman	.....	0·5
Thunderhill	1·7	13·9	28·0
Melfort, N.E	.....	23·7
Melfort-Humboldt	.....	.....	33·0
Prince Albert, N.E	13·5	.....
Luck Lake	3·2	15·02	29·0
Eston, S.E	4·9	0·17
Turtleford, S.E	21·4	.....
Jackfish Lake	6·5	13·06
Acadia Valley	.....	0·64
Total for Saskatchewan	51·2	66·9	90·0
Alberta—
Acadia Valley	12·6	.....
Hanna-Medicine Hat	1·6	.....	58·6
Onoway Branch	0·2	11·9	40·0
Total for Alberta	14·4	11·9	98·6
British Columbia—
Okanagan Branch	1·4	.....
Vancouver Island	.....	3·1
Total for British Columbia	1·4	3·1
Total all Western Lines	67·0	99·6	188·6
SUMMARY.
Manitoba	.....	17·7
Saskatchewan	51·2	66·9	90·0
Alberta	14·4	11·9	98·6
Total Prairies	65·6	96·5	188·6
British Columbia	1·4	3·1
Totals	67·0	99·6	188·6

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

Western Lines.

Statement of Miles of New Lines put into either Permanent or Temporary Operation, 1921.

No.	Branch.	From Mile.	To Mile.	Miles.	Total.
	Turned Over for Permanent Operation.
	Saskatchewan.
11	Luck Lake	19·75	28·8 (Demaine)	9·0
7	Melfort-Humboldt	21·5 (St. Brieux) "A"	54·1 (Humboldt)	32·6
5	Thunderhill	72·6 (Preeceville) "B"	100·3 (Lintlaw)	27·7	69·3
	Alberta.
"C"	Drumheller Sub	315·6 (West of Drumheller)	322·7 (Just beyond Wayne)	7·1
18	Hanna-Medicine Hat	0·0 (Med. Hat. Jct.)	58·2 (Steveville) "D"	58·2
22	Onoway	33·4 (Robinsons)	72·2 (Whitecourt)	38·8	104·1
	Mileage put in Permanent Operation				173·4
	Turned Over for Temporary Operation on Behalf of Construction Dept.
	Saskatchewan.
15	Jackfish Lake	55·7 (Turtleford)	77·8 (St. Walburg)	22·1
11	Luck Lake	28·8 (Demaine)	34·4 (Beechy)	5·6
6	Melfort, N.E	0·0 (Melfort)	23·7 (Just beyond Ridgedale)	23·7
5	Thunderhill	100·3 (Lintlaw)	114·2 (Kelvington)	13·9
	Mileage put in Temporary Operation				65·3

SUMMARY.

Mileage put in Permanent Operation	173·4
Mileage put in Temporary Operation	65·3
Total Mileage put in Operation	238·7

"A" Previously near Lake Lenore to Humboldt (15 miles) operated on Behalf of Construction Department.
"B" Previously operated on behalf of Construction Department.
"C" Double track.
"D" Included in this figure is 46·4 miles, from Mile 0·0 to Mile 46·4 which was taken over for Permanent Operation prior to 1921, but not reported by this office.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

STATEMENT OF WORK DONE BY CONSTRUCTION DEPT., 1921.

Branch.	Turnouts Placed	Tanks.	Pump Houses.	Pipe Line.	3rd Class Stn.	4th Class Stn.	F. & P. Shelter.	Section Houses.	Loading P.F's.	Stock Yards.	No. of Trestles.	Trestles.	Piles Driven.	Iron.
				Lin. Ft.								M.F.B.M.	Lin. Ft.	Lbs.
Prairie Lines.
Acadia Valley	3
Alsask S.E.									1
Amaranth Extension	9										7	45,800	1,720	2,290
Eston S.E.	1
Hanna-Medicine Hat	4	1	1	75			1	1	3	2	2	449,700	18,745	22,485
Humboldt-Melfort Branch							1	3	3	2
Jackfish Lake Branch	9	1	1	400					3	2	2	311,500	7,825	15,575
Luck Lake Branch	9					1	1	2	5	2	2	62,800	2,560	3,140
Melfort N.E.	11	1							3		5	82,500	4,515	4,125
Munson-Wayne Dbl. Track	8										2	90,700	4,820	4,535
Onoway Branch	9	1	1	240			2		4		26	2,937,000	76,245	146,850
Oliver N.E. Branch		1	1	1,700	1		3	3	3	4
Peebles-Lampman Branch											1	6,200	325	310
Line Rev. 333·5 Drumheller Sub	2
Thunderhill Ext.	9								4		4	29,000	1,505	1,450
Swift Current Ext.		1	1	100					3
Total Prairie Lines	74	6	5	2,515	1	1	8	9	32	12	51	4,015,200	118,260	200,760
British Columbia. Vancouver Island							3
Grand Total	74	6	5	2,515	1	1	11	9	32	12	51	4,015,200	118,260	200,760

STATEMENTS REFERRED TO BY THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS IN CONNECTION WITH THE OPERATIONS OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PROPERTIES DURING 1921.

Statement No. 1

Comparative statement of the results of the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont, for the years ending December 31, 1920 and 1921.

Statement No. 2

Comparative statement of the principal and interest and the funded debt of the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont, for the years ending December 31, 1920 and 1921, showing the increase in principal and interest charges in 1921 over 1920.

Statement No. 3

Comparative statement of the results of the operations of certain stock controlled subsidiary companies, the net results of whose operations do not wholly enter the net income of the Grand Trunk Railway system.

Statement No. 4

Some comparative operating and statistical information in respect of the Grand Trunk Canadian lines for the years ending December 31, 1920 and 1921.

Statement No. 5

Statement showing for the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont. the locomotive and car stock on hand December 31, 1921.

Statement No. 6

Statement for the Grand Trunk Railway system, including the Central Vermont, showing the additions to investment during the year ending December 31, 1921.

STATEMENT No. 1.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM (INCLUDING CENTRAL VERMONT)
RESULTS OF OPERATIONS 1921-1920.

	1921.	1920.
Railway Operating Revenues.	$ cts.	$ cts.
Canadian Lines	76,858,032 27	81,442,647 32
Western Lines	22,193,256 82	22,106,707 15
New England Lines	2,910,515 43	2,936,869 55
Central Vermont	7,135,753 06	6,737,710 50
	109,097,557 58	113,223,934 52
Railway Operating Expenses.
Canadian Lines	71,179,292 80	76,213,815 16
Western Lines	22,641,181 93	21,389,912 07
New England Lines	3,592,005 72	3,712,544 75
Central Vermont	7,312,559 48	7,568,556 60
	104,725,039 93	108,884,828 58
Net Revenue from Railway Operations.
Canadian Lines	5,678,739 47	5,228,832 16
Western Lines	447,925 11 Def.	716,795 08
New England Lines	681,490 29 Def.	775,675 20 Def.
Central Vermont	176,806 42 Def.	830,846 10 Def.
	4,372,517 65	4,339,105 94
Taxes, Uncollectable Railway Revenues, Hire of Equipment and Joint Facility Rents—Net.
Canadian Lines	1,149,574 46 Cr.	156,614 01 Cr.
Western Lines	3,640,721 22 Dr.	3,841,249 46 Dr.
New England Lines	673,594 82 Dr.	724,027 95 Dr.
Central Vermont	469,122 37 Dr.	377,346 97 Dr.
	3,633,863 95 Dr.	4,786,010 37 Dr.

STATEMENT No. 1—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM (INCLUDING CENTRAL VERMONT)

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS 1921–1920.

—	1921.	1920.
	$ cts.	$ cts.
Net Operating Income or Loss.
Canadian Lines	6,828,313 93	5,385,446 17
Western Lines	4,088,646 33 Def.	3,124,454 38 Def.
New England Lines	1,355,085 11 Def.	1,499,703 15 Def.
Central Vermont	645,928 79 Def.	1,208,193 07 Def.
	738,653 70	446,904 43 Def.
Difference	.....	1,185,558 13
Other Income—Net.
Canadian Lines	2,278,129 80 Cr.	2,996,057 06 Cr.
Western Lines	1,368,567 48 Cr.	3,124,881 93 Cr.
New England Lines	526,008 73 Dr.	508,834 12 Cr.
Central Vermont	286,057 91 Dr.	1,315,524 62 Cr.
	2,834,630 64 Cr.	7,945,297 73 Cr.
Difference	.....	5,110,667 09
Net Income Before Fixed Charges.
Canadian Lines	9,106,443 73	8,381,503 23
Western Lines	2,720,078 85 Def.	427 65
New England Lines	1,881,093 84 Def.	990,869 03 Def.
Central Vermont	931,986 70 Def.	107,331 55
	3,573,284 34	7,498,393 30
Fixed Charges—Interest on Funded Debt.
Payable to Dominion Government Canadian Lines	3,107,420 66	771,450 67
	3,107,420 66	771,450 67
Payable to others—
Canadian Lines	13,385,194 04	10,765,944 62
Western Lines	2,077,098 70	1,935,583 49
Central Vermont	675,870 28	552,658 29
	16,138,163 02	13,254,186 40
Net Income or Loss.
Canadian Lines	7,386,170 97 Def.	3,155,892 06 Def.
Western Lines	4,797,177 55 Def.	1,935,155 94 Def.
New England Lines	1,881,093 84 Def.	990,869 03 Def.
Central Vermont	1,607,856 98 Def.	445,326 74 Def.
	15,672,229 34 Def.	6,527,243 77 Def.
Difference	.....	9,145,055 57

NOTES:—1. 1921 figures do not include credits on account of interest on advances to G.T.P. Ry., shown in G.T.P. statement as $2,742,191.60, and do not take into account in statement of interest due Government $1,000,000 payable to Government for loans to G.T.P., $10,000,000 (due 1919) and $15,000,000 (due 1923) guaranteed by G.T.

2. 1920 statement of Operating results shows operations of Lines in U.S., for ten month period only. Corporate income, however, is for 12 months and includes Standard return paid and to be paid by U. S. Railroad Administration.

[Mr.W. C. Kennedy.]

STATEMENT No. 2.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON FUNDED DEBT 1920 AND 1921.

	1920.			1921.
	Principal O/S Dec. 31.	Rate.	Interest.	Principal O/S Dec. 31.	Rate.	Interest.
	£ cts.	%	$ cts.	$ cts.	%	$ cts.
Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada.
G.T.R. Perpetual Debenture Stock	20,782,491 67	5	1,039,124 58	20,782,491 67	5	1,039,124 58
G.W. " " "	13,252,322 67	5	662,616 12	13,252,322 67	5	662,616 12
G.T.R. Consolidated Debenture Stock	119,839,014 33	4	4,793,560 56	119,839,014 33	4	4,793,560 56
Northern Railway Perpetual Stock	1,499,979 67	4	59,999 18	1,499,979 67	4	59,999 18
Canada Atlantic 1st Mortgage Bonds	16,000,092 00	4	640,003 68	16,000,092 00	4	640,003 68
Northern Railway 3rd Preference Bonds	70,566 66	6	4,234 00	70,566 66	6	4,234 00
Second Equipment Mortgage Bonds	719,780 00	6	43,186 80	.....	6	*21,593 40
Wellington, Grey and Bruce Bonds	279,346 67	Vs.	28,266 37	268,640 00	Vs.	*28,223 37
Guaranteed Stock	60,833,333 33	4	1,482,812 50	60,833,333 33	4	†2,433,333 33
Equipment Trust Notes "A"	591,000 00	4½	39,892 50	197,000 00	4½	*19,207 50
" " " "B"	672,000 00	4½	41,580 00	336,000 00	4½	*23,940 00
" " " "C"	672,000 00	4½	37,800 00	448,000 00	4½	*26,040 00
Whipple Car Shop Bonds	75,000 00	6	5,250 00	45,000 00	6	*4,350 00
Notes Payable Whipple Car Shops	200,000 00	5	12,500 00	100,000 00	5	*5,000 00
5 year 5½% Secured Notes July 1920	.....	.....	334,583 33	.....	.....	*
3 year 6% Secured Notes Jan. 1921.	4,866,666 67	6	292,000 00	.....	.....	*
Equipment Trust Notes "D"	1,750,000 00	5	96,875 00	1,500,000 00	5	*79,166 66
3 year 6% Secured Notes	14,600,000 00	6	876,000 00	.....	.....	*657,000 00
20 year S.F.G. Debenture Bonds	25,000,000 00	7	218,750 00	24,743,000 00	7	†1,741,824 00
Equipment Trust Notes U.S.R.A.	898,500 00	6	53,910 00	838,600 00	6	*50,316 00
Equipment Trust Certificate "F"	.....	.....	.....	11,586,000 00	6½	†703,994 99
15 year S.F.G. Debenture Bonds	.....	.....	.....	25,000,000 00	6	†391,666 67
Dominion Government Loan—
1918	593,733 34	6	35,624 00	.....	.....	35,624 00
1919	554,800 00	.....	.....	.....	6	†33,288 00
1920–21	20,192,275 28	6	735,826 67	25,000,000 00	6	†1,481,038 81
1921–22	.....	.....	.....	48,702,154 42	6	†1,557,469 85
Sundry items	35,000 00	Vs.	3,000 00	.....	.....	*
Total Grand Trunk Railway Co. of Canada	303,977,902 29	.....	11,537,395 29	371,042,194 75	.....	†16,492,614 70

* Decrease.
† Increase.

STATEMENT No. 2—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON FUNDED DEBT 1920 AND 1921.

	1920.			1921.
	Principal. O/S Dec. 31.	Rate.	Interest.	Principal. O/S Dec. 31.	Rate.	Interest.
	$ cts.	%	$ cts.	$ cts.	%	$ cts.
Grand Trunk Western Railway Company.
1st Mortgage Bonds	14,990,720 00	4	599,988 80	14,990,720 00	4	599,988 80
Cons. Mortgage Bonds	11,541,000 00	4	461,640 00	11,541,000 00	4	461,640 00
G. T. Jct. Mortgage Bonds	3,872,000 00	5	193,600 00	3,872,000 00	5	193,600 00
Equip. Gold Notes	3,027,000 00	6	174,052 50	2,891,000 00	6	†178,203 00
Indebtedness for Cars	1,098,700 00	6¾ & 8	82,174 76	1,098,700 00	6¾ & 8	82,174 76
Indebtedness for Adv	792,701 77	5	39,635 08	1,874,583 60	5	†93,729 18
Whipple Car Shop Bonds	.....	.....	1,050 00	.....	.....	*
Total Grand Trunk Western Railway Co	35,322,121 77	.....	1,552,141 14	36,268,003 60	.....	†1,609,335 74
Detroit, Grand Haven and Mil. Ry. Co.
Equip. Mortgage Bonds	1,999,000 00	6 & 7	122,612 88	2,000,000 00	7	†140,000 00
Cons. Mortgage Bonds	3,200,000 00	6 & 7	195,754 71	3,200,000 00	7	†224,000 00
Mowatts Mortgage Bonds	146,000 00	5	7,300 00	146,000 00	5	7,300 00
So. Lyon Land Bonds	80,000 00	6½	5,200 00	80,000 00	6½	5,200 00
Indebt. for Cars and Strs	285,000 00	.....	19,260 30	285,000 00	.....	*16,010 30
Indebtedness for Advances	666,289 28	5	33,314 46	1,505,053 39	5	†75,252 66
Total Detroit, Grand Haven and Mil. Ry. Co	6,376,289 28	.....	383,442 35	7,216,053 39	.....	†467,762 96
Total Grand Trunk Western Lines	41,698,411 05	.....	1,935,583 49	43,484,056 99	.....	†2,077,098 70
Central Vermont Railway Company.
Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds	13,261,000 00	5	516,219 30	13,161,500 00	5	†654,915 62
Montreal and Province Line Bonds	200,000 00	4	8,000 00	200,000 00	4	8,000 00
Stanstead, Shefford and Chambly Bonds	155,865 00	4	6,234 60	155,865 00	4	6,234 60
Equip. Trust Gold Notes "D."	147,000 00	5	8,983 35	49,000 00	5	*4,083 33
U.S. Govt. Note	.....	.....	.....	65,000 00	6	†1,551 51
U. S. Govt. Note	.....	.....	.....	128,000 00	6	†1,085 22
Collateral Trust Bonds	35,000 00	5	1,924 91	* Transferred to unfunded debt, Jan. 1921.
U.S.R.A. Note March 1 to Nov. 18, 1920	300,000 00	6	14,379 45	* Renewed and transferred to unfunded debt, Nov. 1920.
West River Bonds ($75,000)	.....	4	3,000 00	† Transferred to "Income from funded Securities."		†
Adjustment.....Cr.	.....	.....	83 32	.....	.....
Total Central Vermont Ry. Co	14,098,865 00	.....	552,658 29	13,759,365 00	.....	†675,870 28

* Decrease.
† Increase.

STATEMENT No. 2—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

INCREASE IN INTEREST CHARGES INCLUDED IN INCOME STATEMENT.

Item.	1921.	1920.	Increase, Decrease,
4% Guaranteed Stock	$ 2,433,333 33	$ 1,482,812 50	$ 950,520 83
20 year 7% S.F.G.D. Bonds	1,741,824 00	218,750 00	1,523,074 00
Equipment Trust "F"	703,994 99	.....	703,994 99
15 year 6% S.F.G.D. Bonds	391,666 67	.....	391,666 67
Government Loans	3,107,420 66	771,450 67	2,335,969 99
Western Lines—Fixed Charges	2,077,098 70	1,935,583 49	141,515 21
Central Vermont—Fixed Charges	675,870 28	552,658 29	123,211 99
Total	$ 11,131,208 63	$ 4,961,254 95	$ 6,169,953 68
Other Issues of G. T. Ry. Co. (Decreases)	8,114,375 05	9,064,382 12	950,007 07
Grand Total	$ 19,245,583 68	$ 14,025,637 07	$ 5,219,946 61

STATEMENT No. 3.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

SEPARATELY OPERATED COS. NET SURPLUS OF WHICH IS NOT TAKEN UP IN INCOME ACCOUNT OF G. T. RY. CO. RESULTS OF OPERATION 1920 AND 1921.

	Net Income.		Dividends paid to G. T. R. Co.		Accumulated Undistributed Surplus.
	1921.	1920.	1921.	1920.	Dec. 31, 1921.	Dec. 31, 1920.
Chicago, N. Y. & Boston Refrigerator Co	219,526 48	32,162 98*	.....	.....	340,522 42	120,995 94
International Bridge Co	88,310 09	174,642 17	120,000 00	120,000 00	379,740 40	445,217 44
Montreal Warehousing Co	165,772 42	109,648 42	.....	.....	2,598 05	21,825 63
Terminal Warehouse Reg'd	57,838 03	75,907 00	.....	.....	232,617 91	174,779 88
Oshawa Railway Co	51,367 29	94,074 65	2,800 00	2,800 00	143,767 61	115,737 20
Rail. & River Coal Co	211,573 84	443,188 26	.....	.....	854,158 83	698,834 62
Thousand Islands Ry	1,830 26	6,105 34	4,200 00	4,200 00	6,995 05	11,507 29
Montreal & Southern Counties Ry	90,124 23*	120,893 39*	.....	.....	548,708 86*	458,584 63*
St. Clair Tunnel Co	106,102 37*	134,952 02	.....	.....	390,299 83*	278,721 88*
G. T. Mil. Car Ferry Co	146,873 13*	1,917,79*	.....	.....	102,405 37*	82,832 00
Total	$453,118 68	$613,639 66	$127,000 00	$127,000 00	$918,986 21	$934,423 49

*Deficit.

STATEMENT No. 4.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

CANADIAN LINES.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY OF OPERATING RESULTS AND DETAILED STATISTICAL INFORMATION, 1921 AND 1920.

	1921.	1920.	Increase or Decrease	%
	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.
Passenger	15,510,164 08	16,948,180 21	R 1,438,016 13	8·49
Freight	54,239,903 65	58,102,053 78	R 3,862,150 13	6·65
Other	7,107,964 54	6,392,413 33	715,551 21	11·19
Operating Revenue	76,858,032 27	81,442,647 32	R 4,584,615 05	5·63
Maintenance Way and Structures	12,862,797 47	12,005,384 17	857,413 30	7·14
Maintenance of Equipment	17,809,497 41	21,103,421 77	R 3,293,924 36	15·61
Traffic	1,583,830 08	1,304,106 94	279,723 14	21·45
Transportation—Rail	35,574,797 57	38,518,233 35	R 2,943,435 78	7·64
Transportation—Water
Miscellaneous	462,320 04	501,360 95	R 39,040 91	7·79
General	2,904,024 32	2,787,700 26	116,324 06	4·17
Transportation Capital Account Material (cr.)	17,974 09	R 6,392 28	11,581 81	181·18
Operating Expenses	71,179,292 80	76,213,815 16	R 5,034,522 36	6·61
Operating Ratio	92·61%	93·58%	R 0 97%	1·04
Net Revenue from Ry. Operations	5,678,739 47	5,228,832 16	449,907 31	8·60
Railway Tax Accruals	1,325,577 28	1,280,062 62	45,514 66	3·56
Uncollectable Railway Revenue	8,908 68	23,004 63	R 14,095 95	61·27
Hire of Equipment (cr.)	1,755,059 13	690,172 71	1,064,886 42	154·29
Joint Facility Rents (cr.)	729,001 29	769,508 55	R 40,507 26	5·26
Net Operating Income	6,828,313 93	5,385,446 17	1,442,867 76	26·7
Revenue Tons Carried	21,687,749	26,322,423	R 4,634,674	17·61
Revenue Tons Carried 1 Mile	4,052,564,411	5,028,651,524	R 976,087,113	19·41
Average Rate Per Ton	$2 50	$2 21	29c	13·12
Average Rate Per Ton Per Mile	0·0134	0·0116	0·0018	1·55
Average Distance Hauled	186·90	191·00
Revenue Passengers Carried	11,609,762	12,206,977	R 597,215	4·89
" " 1 Mile	509,330,321	529,809,165	R 20,478,844	3·87
Average Rate Per Passenger	$1 33	$1 39	R 0 06	c 4·32
" " Per Mile	0·0305	0·0320	R 0·0015	0·47
Average Distance Hauled	43·9	43·4
Revenue Train Miles	17,587,275	18,628,310	R 1,041,035	5·59
Earnings Per Revenue Train Mile	$4 37	$4 37
Expenses Per Revenue Train Mile	4 05	4 09	R 0 04	0 98
Net Earnings Per Revenue Train Mile	0 32	0 28	0 04	14·29
Employees and Compensation.	1921.	1920.	1917.
Average Number of Employees	29,127	32,260	24,457
Average Wage	$1,574 66	$1,661 54	$914 80
Total Operating Expenses	$71,179,292 80	$76,213,815 16
Total Payrolls	42,149,952 50	49,567,436 72
Payrolls to Op. Expenses	59·22%	65·04%
Total Fuel for Locomotives	9,860,454 22	11,785,773 67
Fuel to Operating Expenses	13·86%	15·46%

NOTE.—R denotes DECREASF.

STATEMENT No. 4.—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

CANADIAN LINES.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY OF OPERATING RESULTS AND DETAILED STATISTICAL INFORMATION, 1921 AND 1920.

Freight Traffic Movement (Company's Material Excluded). Year, 1921.

Commodity.	Tons.	Percent.
Products of Agriculture.
Wheat	1,057,362	4·88
Corn	931,522	4·30
Oats	480,112	2·21
Barley	123,135	0·57
Rye	73,000	0·34
Flax	18,141	0·08
Other Grain	40,210	0·19
Flour	585,782	2·70
Other Mill Products	297,553	1·37
Hay and Straw	165,510	0·76
Cotton	38,186	0·18
Apples (fresh)	56,636	0·26
Other Fruit (Fresh)	161,582	0·74
Potatoes	50,564	0·23
Other Fresh Vegetables	65,385	0·30
Other Agricultural Products	207,011	0·95
Total	4,351,691	20·06
Products of Animals.
Horses	19,309	0 09
Cattle and Calves	214,553	0·99
Sheep	25,935	0·12
Hogs	94,455	0·44
Dressed Meats (Fresh)	219,090	1·01
Dressed Meats (Cured or Salted)	31,295	0·14
Other Packing House Products	116,138	0·54
Poultry	14,889	0·07
Eggs	50,217	0·23
Butter and Cheese	91,813	0·42
Wool	12,869	0·06
Hides and Leather	67,337	0·31
Other Animal Products	43,529	0·20
Total	1,001,429	4·26
Products of Mines.
Anthracite Coal	3,285,225	15·15
Bituminous Coal	2,359,069	10·88
Lignite Coal	7,484	0·04
Coke	96,350	0·44
Iron Ore	121,722	0·56
Other Ores and Concentrates	96,651	0·45
Base Bullion and Matte	3,968	0·02
Clay, Gravel, Sand, Stone (Crushed)	1,332,213	6·14
Slate—Dimension or Block Stone	271,168	1·25
Crude Petroleum	30,460	0·14
Asphaltum	23,692	0·11
Salt	95,666	0·44
Other Mine Products	61,391	0·28
Total	7,785,059	35·90

STATEMENT No. 4—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

CANADIAN LINES.

Freight Traffic Movement (Company's Material Excluded) Year 1921.

—	Tons.	Percent.
Products of Forests.
Logs, Posts, Poles, Cordwood	262,743	1·21
Ties	40,816	0·19
Pulpwood	1,109,606	5·12
Lumber, Timber, Box Shooks, Staves Heading	1,063,404	4·90
Other Forest Products	96,513	0·45
Total	2,573,082	11·87
Manufacturers and Miscellaneous.
Refined Petroleum and its Products	389,469	1·80
Sugar	215,489	0·99
Iron Pig and Bloom	118,326	0·55
Rails and Fastenings	54,986	0·25
Bar and Sheet Iron, Structural Iron and Iron Pipe	264,068	1·22
Castings, Machinery and Boilers	128,909	0·59
Cement	379,069	1·75
Brick and Artificial Stone	198,360	0·91
Lime and Plaster	98,438	0·45
Sewer Pipe and Drain Tile	43,730	0·20
Agricultural Implements and Vehicles other than autos	60,175	0·28
Automobiles and Auto Trucks	127,825	0·59
Household Goods	18,288	0·08
Furniture	29,861	0·14
Liquor and Beverages	42,861	0·20
Fertilizers (all kinds)	83,451	0·38
Paper, Printed Matter, Books	525,780	2·42
Wood Pulp	344,523	1·59
Fish (Fresh, Frozen, Cured, etc.)	24 944	0·11
Canned Meats	3,535	0·02
Canned Goods (all Canned Food Pds, other than Meat)	42,803	0·20
Other Manufacturers and Miscellaneous	1,418,144	6·54
Merchandise	1,363,454	6·29
Total	5,976,488	27·55
Grand Total	21,687,749	100·00

STATEMENT No. 4—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

CANADIAN LINES.

Freight Traffic Movement (Company's Material Excluded) Year 1920.

Commodity.	Tons.	Percent.
Products of Agriculture.
Wheat	1,040,272	3·95
Corn	342,563	1·30
Oats	448,937	1·71
Barley	80,177	0·30
Rye	168,077	0·64
Flax	18,011	0·07
Other Grain	43,274	0·16
Flour	421,072	1·60
Other Mill Products	293,435	1·11
Hay and Straw	292,699	1·12
Cotton	61,922	0·24
Apples (Fresh)	63,744	0·24
Other Fruit (Fresh)	161,102	0·61
Potatoes	81,122	0·31
Other Vegetables (Fresh)	84,030	0·32
Other Agr. Products	194,937	0·74
Total	3,795,374	14·42
Animal Products.
Horses	27,713	0·11
Cattle and Calves	241,364	0·92
Sheep	17,792	0·07
Hogs	109,979	0·42
Dressed Meats (Fresh)	294,723	1·11
Dressed Meats (Cured or Salted)	30,639	0·12
Other Packing House Pds	147,286	0·56
Poultry	11,942	0·04
Eggs	37,354	0·14
Butter and Cheese	84,976	0·32
Wool	16,229	0·06
Hides and Leather	67,326	0·26
Other Animal Products	42,721	0·16
Total	1,130,044	4·29
Mine Products.
Anthracite Coal	4,140,076	15·73
Bituminous Coal	3,051,832	11·59
Lignite Coal	22,914	0·09
Coke	290,663	1·10
Iron Ore	241,357	0·92
Other Ores and Concentrates	169,985	0·65
Base Bullion and Matte	9,007	0·03
Clay, Gravel, Sand, Stone (Crushed)	1,002,353	3·81
Slate Dimension or Block Stone	787,434	2·99
Crude Petroleum	332,026	1·26
Asphaltum	9,600	0·04
Salt	94,977	0·36
Other Mine Products	142,581	0·54
Total	10,294,805	39·11

STATEMENT No. 4—Con.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

CANADIAN LINES.

Freight Traffic Movement (Company's Material Excluded) Year 1920.

Commodity.	Tons.	Percent.
Forest Products.
Logs, Posts, Poles, Cordwood	195,454	0·74
Ties	48,752	0·19
Pulp Wood	951,404	3·61
Lumber, Timber, Box Shooks, Staves and Headings	1,254,565	4·77
Other Forest Products	308,456	1·17
Lumber, Timber, Pulpwood	773,715	2·94
Total	3,532,346	13·42
Manufacturers and Miscellaneous.
Refined Petroleum and its Products	243,734	0·93
Sugar	281,033	1·07
Iron—Pig and Bloom	334,685	1·27
Rails and Fastenings	122,195	0·46
Bar and Sheet Iron—Structural Iron and Iron Pipe	489,105	1·86
Castings, Machinery and Boilers	284,968	1·08
Cement	305,606	1·16
Brick and Artificial Stone	416,520	1·58
Lime and Plaster	69,301	0·26
Sewer Pipe and Drain Tile	25,472	0·10
Agricultural Implements and Vehicles other than autos	102,908	0·39
Automobiles and Auto Trucks	81,256	0·31
Household Goods	27,171	0·10
Furniture	21,354	0·08
Liquor and Beverages	87,732	0·33
Fertilizers (all kinds)	113,924	0·43
Paper, Printed Matter, Books	538,925	2·05
Wood Pulp	694,924	2·64
Fish (Fresh, Frozen, Cured, etc)	24,824	0·10
Canned Meats	2,676	0·01
Canned Goods (all Canned Food Pds. other than Meat)	54,739	0·21
Other Manufacturers and Miscellaneous	1,691,997	6·43
Total	6,015,049	22·85
Merchandise	1,554,805	5·91
Grand Total	26,322,423	100·00

STATEMENT No. 5.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM, INCLUDING CENTRAL VERMONT

STATEMENT OF LOCOMOTIVE AND CAR STOCK ON HAND, DECEMBER 31ST, 1921.

—	G. T. Ry. System.	C. V. Ry.	Total.
Locomotives—
Steam	1,398	99	1,497
Electric	6	.....	6
	1,404	99	1,503
Passenger Service Cars—
First and Second	533	49	582
Combination Cars	90	12	102
Dining Cars	23	1	24
Parlor Cars	28	4	32
Postal Cars	36	5	41
Baggage and Express	366	20	386
Other Passenger Cars	30	13	43
	1,106	104	1,210
Freight Service Cars—
Box Cars	30,501	1,875	32,376
Flat Cars	3,505	423	3,928
Stock Cars	1,510	7	1,517
Coal Cars	6,829	200	7,029
Tank Cars	100	.....	100
Refrigerator Cars	1,638	13	1,651
Caboose Cars	671	40	711
	44,754	2,558	47,312
Company's Service—
Officers' and Pay Cars	33	1	34
Gravel Cars	605	1	606
Derrick Cars	40	2	42
Other road Cars	1,721	142	1,863
	2,399	146	2,545
Total Cars	48,259	2,808	51,067

STATEMENT No. 6.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

ADDITIONS TO INVESTMENT YEAR ENDING DEC. 31, 1921.

Item.	Canadian Lines.	Western Lines.	New England Lines.	Central Vermont.	Total.
	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.	$ cts.
Land	67,763 48	239,729 73	.....	.....	307,493 21
New Equipment	20,534,246 09	34,465 26	.....	10,234 24	20,558,477 11
Improvements to Equipment	1,979,903 34	70,450 88	.....	41,621 00	2,091,975 22
Increased Weight of Rail	770,557 89	292,951 57	59,572 97	21,627 86	1,144,710 29
Sidings, Yards and Spur Tracks	253,174 64	547,713 66	2,588 39	.....	803,476 69
Roadway, Buildings, Structures and Miscellaneous	1,162,542 49	365,202 85	106,439 30	91,370 48	1,512,676 52
Securities and Investment in Affiliated Cos	22,713 08	.....	.....	330,535 03	353,248 11
Total	24,790,901 01	1,550,513 95	44,277 94	474,920 13	26,772,057 15

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not intend to make any comments at the moment; I simply wish to ask, I think, three questions of the minister. The first is this: As respects his figure of operating ratio for last year, which he gave as 129 and a fraction, I draw his attention to the fact that it was given in last year's statement as 124 and a fraction. As long as he is certain that his figure is not an error, I am quite prepared to take his statement that it is a correction of last year's figure.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I shall be glad to verify the statement. I gave it in good faith, and assumed it was correct.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I ask the question particularly for this reason: The loss last year was given in the same statement as $69,000,000, whereas the minister to-day corrects it and reduces the loss for 1920 to $67,000,000. Consequently, I would think, were he altering the operating ratio, he would alter it by diminishing it; instead of that, it is a very substantial increase.

The next question is this: In referring to the construction programme for this year, the minister stated that nothing would be done save in cases where construction had already proceeded to the point where the track was laid. I would like the minister to explain just what that means: how much of the track; the ballasting, or merely the construction of the grade; or does it include, indeed, the laying of the rails?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): It includes the rails.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Then I would understand that there were no new rails to be laid—not a mile of rails to be laid?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): That is correct.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The next question is this: In stating the invested capital in the railways that will subsequently be included in the entire unified system, he fixed the figure at one-and-a-half billions as subscribed by the public. I would understand by that, he means the public of this and other countries, not simply of this Dominion?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Exactly.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The last question is this: The minister referred to an investigation that was to be conducted for some purpose not any too closely defined, but he gave no intimation as to what would be the character of the commission or committee or individual who is to investigate. Is it under the Inquiries Act, is it to be a committee of this House a royal commission, or what?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): My hon. friend refers to the investigation of the board?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I really hardly know how to describe it because the minister did not describe it himself. He said there was to be an investigation concurrently with the co-ordination. What it is to investigate I do not know very well—finances, I think, or something like that. Is the investigation to be by a committee of this House, or a commission, or is to be under the Inquiries Act?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): That will be a matter for the new board. If it is thought advisable to have an investigation likewise by a committee of the House constituted for that purpose, very well.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What the minister had in mind, though, was an investigation under the new board after its appointment?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes. I might point out to my right hon. friend that there has been considerable criticism in the press of recent statements issued by the National Railways; they have been analyzed in detail in the press, and the criticism has been made that the statements put out by the railways were incorrect. One of the first things the new board will do will be to verify the figures that have already been given out. The thought I had in mind was that the statements that are given out should be of such a character that the people of this country will rely upon them.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Meaning it will be done by or under the board?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes.

Hon. J. A. STEWART (Lanark): Mr. Speaker, when hon. gentlemen who sit opposite occupied seats on this side of the House, it was customary to delay discussion of the annual report of the Minister of Railways until after it had been printed and distributed and the members had had an opportunity to study the figures contained in the report. I have no intention this afternoon—and I fancy that those who sit in this part of the House will for the most part delay discussion of this report—of following the Minister of Railways through the comprehensive report that he has presented to the House. He has given to us sufficient statistics to justify study by the members, and we will at some time before his Main Estimates are considered make opportunity to discuss such features of his statement today as in the opinion of members in this part of the House should be reviewed.

I would, however, like to say just a few words in passing with reference to certain features of the railway situation, and particularly with reference to the carrying out of the promise of co-ordination as contained in the Speech from the Throne. It is now some five weeks since co-ordination first broke upon the House, and during that time an anxious House and an interested public have looked for a realization of co-ordination by action of the Government. The statement made by the Minister of Railways to-day would appear to work out co-ordination by promising the bringing into force of the Canadian National Railway Act of 1919 at an indefinite time, and the appointment of a committee of the House to consider the question of railway rates. As I understood the minister's statement, those were the two declarations of policy which he made to us this afternoon.

It is very difficult for us on this side of the House to appreciate the necessity for the delay. The minister has stated to us that the matters involved in the appointment of a unified board are so important and so difficult that it is impossible for the Government at this time to appoint its board and to carry on the policy of unification that was contemplated when the Canadian National Railway Act of 1919 was passed. Those who were interested in the campaign last fall and followed the speeches made by hon. gentlemen opposite will be surprised, I am sure, that they do not feel they have yet a sufficient knowledge of the railway situation to carry out even the appointment of a unified board. The policy of the late government was a clean-cut policy so far as the administration of our railways is concerned. In 1917, when the Canadian Northern system was taken over, the Government of Canada assumed a tremendous responsibility, assumed it at a time when in the opinion of the Canadian people and of Parliament there was no policy open to the government except to do as the government did, and when any other policy would have broken down at the most critical time in the history of Canada the whole transportation system of this Dominion. The difficulty with the Canadian Northern arose at a time when the transportation facilities of Canada were groaning under war traffic, and had the road been permitted to go into liquidation there is no question that it would have not only destroyed the usefulness of the Canadian Northern system itself, but it would also have paralysed the whole transportation system of Canada.

I am not going to discuss whether the arrangement of 1917 was a wise one or not. The fact is that it is the one that was adopted by the Parliament of Canada. The government was face to face with the problem of providing for the management of the railways which were taken over by the Canadian Government at that time. Two plans for the management of its railway property were open to the government of the day. One was to manage the railways under a department of government, to continue the whole railway system of Canada under the political management under which the Intercolonial had been managed and controlled for forty years prior to that time; the other was to provide for independent control in the management. The policy adopted by the late government was to try out, perhaps for the first time in the history of railway economics, government ownership with independent control in management. The policy adopted at that time provided for the complete removal of the management of the nationally owned railways from political control. That condition prevailed down to 1919 when the arrangements for taking over the Grand Trunk were completed, and in order to continue the policy that had been adopted in 1917 the Canadian National Railway Act of 1919 was passed. That act provided for a new board which would take over the combined systems. It provided for the taking over of both the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk systems, so that we would have a unified management, under which we could get co-ordination. And perhaps those who have studied the Canadian railway situation will agree that there must be a ruthless co-ordination of these systems if we are to see daylight through our railway problem.

Now, under the original arrangement with the Grand Trunk the Grand Trunk officials were continued in office. They were continued in office for the reason that it was felt that in order to enable them to properly prepare and conduct their case before the arbitration tribunal they should have access to the books and records of the company and should be in complete touch not only with the records but with the operation of the system. But after there had been default in the completion of the arbitration proceedings at the time specified—a default which in the opinion of the government of the day was a deliberate default on the part of the officials of the Grand Trunk, a deliberate attempt to postpone the arbitration proceedings—and after the government had refused to extend the period for the completion of the arbitration, it was agreed between the Government of Canada and the Grand Trunk itself that the government should be given immediate control of the Board of Management of the system, and this was carried out, and a new board was appointed. The question might further be asked why the government did not at the time provide for the unified management, why at the time it did not provide for a central control? That occurred in the early months of 1921.

Mr. KENNEDY: In May.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): And a board was appointed at that time, an independent board, the board as it exists to-day. On that board the Government appointed executive officers of the Grand Trunk, and they appointed as chairman Sir Joseph Flavelle. The Deputy Minister of Justice was a member of the board, and Mr. Dupuis. The reason why an independent board was appointed was in order that it might be given an opportunity to investigate such details as might be necessary to carry out the amalgamation in management of two great railway systems. It was thought at that time that it would result in a more efficient means for the appointment of a central board and for its control in management if an independent board for the Grand Trunk railway were given an opportunity to study the details of the Grand Trunk system and its requirements, and that then the two boards would be utilized for one purpose of working out a central control. As early as October of last year we had, in the opinion of the government, reached the time when it would have been possible to carry out the provisions of the Canadian National Railway Act of 1919. We had reached the time when the two boards could have been dispensed with and a central board appointed. The question may fairly be asked why the government did not carry out that policy? The answer consists in the fact that we were in the midst of a federal election, and it was felt that it would have been unwise for the government to have possibly complicated the situation by the appointment of a board pending the result of the poll. Hon. gentlemen opposite will no doubt commend us on our foresight in that connection. The fact is that the new board was not appointed, but as early as the month of October the right hon. gentleman who leads the Opposition, in making a statement in the maritime provinces as to his view of how the eastern lines of the government owned railways should be managed, made practically the statement that was made by the Minister of Railways to-day. He stated in the maritime provinces in the early days of the month of October that in his opinion there should be a grand division—a grand division that would manage not only the Intercolonial and National Transcontinental but such of the Grand Trunk lines as might be brought within its jurisdiction. So that as early as the month of October last it was the opinion of the late government that the time had arrived when the provisions of the Act of 1919 might be brought into force.

We commend the Minister of Railways for his policy in reference to the Intercolonial. The hon. member for Cumberland (Mr. Logan) put up a very strong argument the other day in support of the return of the Intercolonial to political control. He gave us a very interesting historical account of the conditions under which the maritime provinces entered confederation, and urged that section 145 of the British North America Act made it compulsory for this Government to continue the management of the Intercolonial railway under the system that had obtained from 1878 down to the time it was placed under the management of the Canadian National Railway Board. He at the same time made a further statement with reference to rates—stated it as his opinion that the question of rates upon the Intercolonial was one which should not be determined by commercial considerations at all but should be regulated and controlled by the requirements of trade. I am not so sure that the position taken by the hon. gentleman as to rates can be disputed. I am not so sure that it is not possibly fundamental in the pact of Confederation that there should be interprovincial trade, and inter-provincial trade—it matters not whether it originates in the East or in the West, or whether it originates centrally for the East or for the West—must be on conditions that will permit that trade to be carried on. So I submit that possibly the position taken by the member for Cumberland in reference to rates is one that will commend itself to the House. But what I am glad to note by the statement delivered by the Minister of Railways this afternoon is, that the Intercolonial is to be permitted to function as a part of the great national railway system, and I am sure the fact that the Intercolonial should be treated in this way will commend itself to the House. Unquestionably it will best serve the people whom it was built to serve, and whom it was intended to serve, as a part of the national system rather than by reverting to a position of "splendid isolation."

I am not going to attempt to deal with the financial portion of the statement of the minister except to say this: That the improvement in round figures of $20,000,000 in operating revenue between 1920 and 1921 is a record which brings comfort to those who were chiefly responsible for the system that was adopted in respect of the national railway properties. As I understand it, and as I understood the figures of the minister, on the whole of the government properties, including the Grand Trunk, the operating improvement was $20,000,000 in round figures. The real test of a railway's strength, and the real test of administrative skill, does not occur in periods of prosperity and buoyancy of traffic, it occurs in periods of adversity and depression. And the fact that during a year such as 1921 we were able to show, in connection with the government railways, a result as satisfactory as that reported to the House to-day is very creditable indeed. It is unquestionably a good showing, and that statement will scarcely be disputed. I would like to ask hon. gentlemen who questioned the policy of the late government with reference to the property which came over to the Canadian people if there is amongst them those who still feel that the result for 1921 would have been better had we had private ownership and private control.

I wish to refer in a general way to the attitude of hon. gentlemen opposite with reference to the railway policy in Canada, not so much now as during the later months of last year. It was a popular political pastime for the opponents of the late government to lay at the feet of that government the blame for all our railway troubles. I am inclined to agree with my hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar) when he says it matters little which political party was to blame, or whether both were entitled to censure for the conditions that led up to the situation in which we found ourselves in 1917 and again in 1919, and I entirely agree with him when he says that the people of Canada must bear their fair share of the blame. I am sure, as far as the Liberal-Conservative party was concerned, that in 1904, and again in 1908, we did everything we could to convince the Canadian people that the construction of the National Transcontinental and the Grand Trunk Pacific was a mistake. There is no question about our position in that regard. The people decided otherwise in terms that could by no possible means be misunderstood, and for that reason there is no question that they are entitled to some share of the blame, if blame attaches, for the position in which we found ourselves later.

In the confession of political faith of the Liberal faith, and the confession of political faith of hon. gentlemen opposite, contained in the Ottawa platform of 1919, and in the public press, particularly in the press of the latter months of last year, and on the public platform of the same period and since this House opened, hon. gentlemen have charged the late government and the Liberal-Conservative party with the deliberate intention of destroying the Grand Trunk Pacific and the National Transcontinental by encouraging construction of the Canadian Northern system, and charging that the Canadian Northern system was deliberately built into territory which should have been the territory of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Hon. gentlemen who take that position might, with profit, refer to the views held by the late Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier. His views are very clearly set forth in the discussion in 1914 on the question of the advance which was then under consideration to the Canadian Northern railways. It will be found in Hansard 13th May, 1914. In his discussion of the resolution introduced by the Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden providing for a loan to the Canadian Northern in that year, the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid said in part:

> I may confess at once that I have long believed that this country requires three transcontinental railways and although this theory has been sometimes controverted, in this House and out of it, I have never seen any reason to change my opinion * * * For my part I can say that I have always favoured the efforts of our two fellow citizens,—

Mackenzie and Mann.

—whose names have been mentioned several times by my right hon. friend, and who have applied themselves for many years to the task of binding the continent with another band of steel. The late Government were not slow to interest themselves in the enterprise and to favour it as much as they could. * * *

In 1899, or thereabouts, after we came into office, we asked Parliament to give them assistance to extend the railway system then in existence in Manitoba eastward to the end of Lake Superior. If I remember rightly, we gave them a cash subsidy of $6,400 a mile for that length of railway. Later, in 1903, we induced Parliament to give them a guarantee of $13,000 a mile for a line of railway running through Manitoba to the city of Edmonton. Afterwards, in 1908, we asked Parliament to give them another guarantee of bonds to provide for several branch lines which would be feeders of the line in the Prairie Provinces. In 1911, as has been explained by my right hon. friend, it was considered that the system would not be complete unless it were extended eastward to the St. Lawrence and eventually to the Maritime Provinces, that is to say, unless it were made a transcontinental railway, and in that year we asked Parliament to give to the enterprise from Port Arthur to Montreal a guarantee of bonds to the extent of $25,000 a mile. * * *

We are told that these companies are to be united in a transcontinental system, and with that object I agree. * * * My right hon. friend said, and I altogether agree with him, that we cannot allow this enterprise to fail. We have too much money in it not only the money of the country, but of the Provinces and of the bond holders themselves. It is therefore, necessary that we should assist this enterprise. * * * My right hon. friend says that we are to go into partnership with Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann and the Canadian Northern railway. These are the very words of the Prime Minister. That being so, is it unreasonable to ask that in that partnership we should be the leading and not the junior partner? * * *

I said a moment ago, and I repeat, that this enterprise must go on. It has been conceived for the benefit of the Canadian people. We require this Railway. My right hon. friend said he would not let it go into liquidation. It must not go into liquidation, but we should have the contol of it. * * * Since we must go into partnership with the Canadian Northern railway let us see that we are the master, and not the servant. * * * We have helped them in the past, I for my part, have been an admirer of their energy and enterprise.

That was the policy advocated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1914. In 1917, when the financial difficulties of the Canadian Northern forced them to come to the Canadian parliament, the policy of the late government was in direct line with that advocated by the right hon. leader of the Liberal party in 1914. I submit to the House that when hon. gentlemen opposite attempt to disassociate themselves from the construction of the Canadian Northern and all that led up to its completion, they cannot, in the records of parliament, find anything to support that position. The hon. Prime Minister, the other day, urged that it was under the late government that more than 4,000 miles of the Canadian Northern came into operation. That I am willing to concede. The point I want to make is this, that practically all the main line construction of the Canadian Northern was effected under charters issued by the Liberal government prior to 1911, and the subsidies, with the exception of the subsidy covering the railway from Prince Albert to the British Columbia boundary, were largely, if not exclusively authorized by the former Liberal government.

I stated before and I repeat now that I do not propose to discuss the report further, but I shall have an opportunity of doing so when the general estimates of the Railway Department are considered.

Hon. D. D. McKENZIE (Solicitor General): This old and familiar subject of railways is rather tempting to one who has been in this House as long as myself. Let me at once congratulate the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) upon the very able and excellent presentation which he has made of the case to the committee. I am sure that there is no misunderstanding the real situation as presented by the minister and that, as he continues in the administration of the railway affairs of this country, the people generally and this House will be satisfied that no mistake has been made in putting the hon. gentleman at the head of this very important department.

The history of railways in Canada is rather an old one, and nothing comes closer to the interest of the people generally than the operation of our railways. Perhaps, this is not the time to go at any length into this question, and if any person of less incisive speech than the hon. member for Lanark (Mr. Stewart) had replied to the Minister of Railways, I am not sure that I would have said anything at all on this subject. Although always opposed to the hon. gentleman politically, I have great admiration for his talent and ability; he has a great knack of making things appear just exactly what they are not. After my hon. friends across the way came into power, there became noticeable amongst them an absolute neglect or forgetfulness of time; they apparently became possessed of one divine attribute in that one day was to them as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day.

The hon. member for Lanark reminded the committee that, in 1919, they passed an act for the purpose of amalgamating the railways. Well, 1919 is a good while ago. I was in the House at that time and I think the hon. member for Lanark was also. If I remember correctly, the right hon. gentleman (Mr. Meighen) who now leads the Opposition, had charge of that bill. If he had not charge of it, he was very industrious, as he always is, in the promotion of it. The bill was introduced in such a hurry that, after it had received its second reading, eleven clauses were added to it.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What bill does the hon. member refer to?

Mr. McKENZIE: The bill for the amalgamation of the railways, chapter 13 of the acts of the first session of 1919. I think my right hon. friend had charge of it. The year 1919 has passed; so have 1920 and 1921, and now we are barely started with 1922. And although lately hon. gentlemen opposite have had no control over these matters, during those years, although there was such feverish haste over introducing the bill that it had to be put before the House and put into committee before it was all properly drafted, nothing was done towards bringing about this amalgamation. To-day, however, I find the hon. member for Lanark metaphorically shaking his fist in the face of the minister and saying: "Here you have been in power since the 27th of December last, and nothing has been done in connection with the matter." Is it not a little marvellous what a difference it makes whose ox is being gored?

I notice that hon. gentlemen opposite are highly critical that we are taking so much time in carrying out other matters of this kind, when during ten long years with opportunities which we do not possess even now, they did nothing at all. Will the hon. member for Lanark take these matters into serious consideration and put himself for a moment in the other fellow's place? He himself has been a Minister of Railways, if not for a longer time, at all events, for about as long a time as the present minister, and I find no monuments standing to his memory.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Perhaps the hon. member would agree that the statement just read by the minister is some monument itself to what was done by the late government.

Mr. McKENZIE: All I can say is that for ten years we were hearing statements from ministers of my right hon. friend's party, and in them we found nothing at all of the hopeful note that is contained in the statement made to-day.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It is a monument to what had been done before the present minister came into office.

Mr. McKENZIE: As regards the will of the people, and monuments, I say to my right hon. friend that, in 1904, the railway policy of the Liberal party was submitted to the people of Canada, and it received almost unanimous approval from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The great leader of the Liberal party of 5 p.m. those days did not expend one dollar in carrying forward the railway policy of that party until he first made it the main issue in the election of 1904, and having received the mandate of the people of Canada to go on with this work, he went on with it. Therefore, it must be admitted that the policy of the Liberal party was fully and squarely presented to the jury of the electorate of Canada, and that the work was proceeded with only after the electorate had given full consent to the government of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier to go on with the work. What happened? The government that has just gone out of office and its predecessor in office, the Borden administration, came into charge of this policy before it was completed and brought to its full fruition; they had charge of the business of completing the construction of the railway and managing it for ten years, and the same people who said to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government "Build the railway," said to that administration after ten years of management: "You must be kicked out; you are not fit to be relied on."

Mr. SUTHERLAND: What did Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government inform the people this railway would cost them?

Mr. McKENZIE: Neither Sir Wilfrid and his government, nor any other government could say how much would be the cost of an enterprise comprising as many miles as this. There has been a great deal of misrepresentation about some statement alleged to have been made by the Minister of Finance of that day. It has been answered and cleared up a hundred times; but hon. gentlemen opposite, wishing to make political capital out of that statement and to put the Liberal party in wrong in connection with it, persist, notwithstanding those various and multitudinous statements, in still standing by the old statement. Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, as far as I know, never made any definite statement as to what the road was going to cost.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Will my hon. friend explain now why the statement that the road was going to cost $13,000,000 was made? He says that one hundred and one reasons have been given. What was the reason for that statement?

Mr. McKENZIE: We were told in an estimate issued by the late government, of which my hon. friend was an ornament, that this magnificent building was going to cost $5,000,000. What is it going to cost now?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I could not tell you.

Mr. McKENZIE: Perhaps $15,000,000 before we are through with it. Will my hon. friend explain that difficulty and that difference?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Very easily, if you desire the explanation now.

Mr. McKENZIE: My hon. friend is quite profuse with his language, and somewhat regardless of his figures sometimes, and I am sure he will give an explanation, whether satisfactory or not. When a certain man of old was asked who gave him his sight, he answered: "I know not; but one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." All I need say to my hon. friend is, that whereas his Government told the people that this building was going to cost $5,000,000, it will cost them $12,000,000 or $15,000,000. That is all the explanation I require from my hon. friend.

An hon. MEMBER: No such thing.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Mr. Chairman, I might point out that what my hon. friend has favoured us with is hardly an answer, and cannot be regarded as one of the hundred and one explanations why $13,000,000 was given as the true cost of the Transcontinental.

[Mr. McKenzie.]

Mr. GRAHAM: Which it never was.

Mr. McKENZIE: I say it never was; and it is no wonder that the people turned my hon. friend out of his high position of Minister of Finance if he could not see the difference himself. Now, we are told that we made a mistake in the building of this road. Let me remind hon. members opposite of the history of their own party and what the first Minister of Finance in the Borden administration, the Right Hon. Sir Thomas White, stated in regard to this matter. If any hon. member cares to turn up the first budget speech of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas White, delivered in February, 1912, he will find that the then Minister of Finance stated that so far as the railways then in operations or in course of construction were concerned, they were a splendid national asset, and would continue to be essential to our full development. That, sir, is the condition in which we handed over the railways to the management of the Borden government, and if they made ducks and drakes of them we cannot help it.

Mr. ARTHURS: How many railroads were then in the possession of the Dominion government?

Mr. McKENZIE: It is not a question so much—

Mr. ARTHURS: How many railroads were then in the possession of the Dominion government?

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. ARTHURS: Will my hon. friend answer my question?

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE: There was never any criticism—

Mr. ARTHURS: Answer the question. My hon. friend has not answered the question.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE: I am not obliged to answer the question at all,—

Mr. ARTHURS: I asked my hon. friend how many railroads were then in the possession of the Dominion government. He has not yet answered that question.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE:—and if I answer it, I shall answer it in my own way. I am too old a bird to be caught in that way.

Mr. ARTHURS: I ask the privilege of putting this question to my hon. friend: How many of the present units of the National Railway system were then in the possession of the Dominion government?

Mr. McKENZIE: The Canadian National Railways were not at all in the possession of the Dominion government in 1912.

Mr. ARTHURS: That is not an answer. I asked: How many—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE: I am not an encyclopedia of railway information. And, further, even if I did know, I would not undertake the enormous task incident to the penetration of the information to my hon. friend's understanding.

Mr. ARTHURS: My hon. friend knows very well that there was only one railway then in the possession of the Dominion government. If his intellect does not carry that far—

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE: How unkind of my hon. friend from Parry Sound to try and trap an inexperienced member like myself! He knows all about it. I thought he did. That is why I delayed giving him the information. Now he is unkind enough to try and get me "in wrong" with the committee by asking me to tell him what he knows perfectly well himself. It is hardly fair, and I would not have expected it of my hon. friend.

Mr. ARTHURS: I desire to tell my hon. friend that he is a better authority than I am on the subject.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. McKENZIE: I was expecting, Mr. Chairman, that I would be given right of way this afternoon after having kept so very quiet since the beginning of the session; but I observe there is no consideration to be gained from some hon. members by being quiet. My point is that the Canadian people gave their assent to the railway policy of the Laurier government; that it was necessary for the full development of the country to carry that policy into effect; that when the party to which I belong left office in 1911, we passed over the National railway property in its then condition to the incoming administration; and that their financial critic when making his budget speech in February, 1912, stated that that property was a splendid asset to the country. What he stated then has been often quoted in the House since, and it has never been contradicted because it cannot be.

Now then, the general railway policy of the Laurier administration was endorsed by the people, and we carried the Transcontinental almost to completion. And when we handed it over to the incoming administration, and one of their leading financial men said, "It is all right, it is money well expended, it is a splendid national asset," our responsibility ended. If the new administration spoiled the road in the building; if they broke the contracts and interfered with the arrangements we had with other companies in regard to it; if they made it impossible to carry out the original arrangement of which the people of Canada approved; if they made a wreck of the whole thing—and it was a wreck when handed over to us the other day—who is responsible? After the Government has been in power for a few weeks, hon. gentlemen, like the priest with the Levite, pass by on the other side; they say they had nothing at all to do with this wreckage. Is that fair? Will the hon. member for Parry Sound go home and pray over that, and then say that his attitude is right? Surely it is not an attitude which should be taken by fair minded men to-day. If the road has not been a success during ten years of administration by hon. gentlemen opposite, that is no fault of ours. If they spoiled the grade in the building of the remainder of the Transcontinental road and brought about a condition under which the contracts with the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Grand Trunk could not be carried out, that is no fault of ours. But the condition faces us, and we must make the most of it. We have promised to give government ownership a square deal and a fair trial, and that we are bound to do; we are bound to give the people an opportunity to see how this thing works out.

I do not wish anybody to have any misapprehensions about my own position in the matter. I happen to be a member of this Government, and I stand by the position the Government has taken in regard to giving this road a square deal and making the most of it. The records of this House will show that ever since there was talk of the Government taking these roads over, as a matter of conscientious belief I was opposed to that being done. I was not in favour of government ownership, because I have always believed that you cannot get the same results from government ownership and government management that you get under private ownership and private enterprise. But I am anxious and willing that everything shall be done in order to make this road a success, and I hope it will be a success. In that respect the statement made by the minister to-day is encouraging; it shows some signs of an advance in the right direction.

There is one other thing I wish to say about this railway situation. I cannot understand how hon. gentlemen sitting in opposition can talk as they do about Portland and the branch lines of the Grand Trunk in the United States, having regard to the attituude they themselves have taken. Since Parliament opened, several criticisms have been made about the attitude of the present Government with regard to the situation at Portland. We did what we could to prevent the acquisition of the Grand Trunk, particularly that portion of it which is in the United States. We took the ground that hundreds and millions of dollars had been spent in this country to establish railways running from east to west; that millions had been spent in the deepening of the St. Lawrence and the enlarging of canals to make navigation possible, so that we would be an independent nation and capable of carrying on our own affairs. But after all that money had been expended, the Meighen administration went down to Portland and established there, in a foreign country, what is practically a national port of this country. Can anybody stand by a policy of that kind? They bought not only 2,000 miles of road in a foreign country, but they virtually bought a port which must be maintained. Will anybody for one moment say to the Canadian people: "We were advised by the late government to spend millions in buying this road and establishing this terminus in a foreign country, and now we are to starve it by cutting off every avenue of traffic leading to it"? If hon. gentlemen opposite are consistent, they must be in favour of diverting traffic toward that port, thereby starving such places as Montreal, Quebec, Halifax, Sydney, and St. John.

Mr. ARTHURS: Cape Breton.

Mr. McKENZIE: Cape Breton is so well off and so wealthy that they could not starve it; if they could, they would have done it long ago. I may tell my hon. friend from Lanark (Mr. Stewart) that I have before me a record of the various resolutions that were proposed while the discussion on the Grand Trunk railway acquisition was proceeding in the House. Resolution after resolution was moved by hon. gentlemen then in opposition, now on the right of the Speaker, asking that delay should take place; that there should be investigation; that the bill should not be read until further information had been obtained. I find on looking at the division lists the illustrious name of my hon. friend from Lanark, indicating, by his vote, his desire to rush pell-mell to Portland and establish there, in a foreign country, the national terminus of all our railway systems. My good friend from St. John City (Mr. Baxter), who accepted office in the late administration, knowing the history of matters in connection with Portland, knowing that a stage had been reached which made a retracing of steps impossible, now finds fault, because forsooth, we are not cutting off Portland and cutting off all our connections with the United States. It is far from businesslike, far from courageous on the part of my hon. friends to whine about Portland and our connection with the United States when that is a condition which they themselves brought about. Our national status requires that we should have our own ports on the Pacific and on the Atlantic, independent of any foreign country. I condemn, as I have always done, the idea of linking up our railways with the railway systems of the United States and with United States ports, as was done by the right hon. gentleman who now leads the Opposition and his predecessor as Prime Minister of this country. Those who are old members of the House recall the battles that were fought over this question. They know, and we know in the maritime provinces, particularly in Nova Scotia, that one of our grievances against the outgoing government was their taking over coal mines in the United States, the output of which must necessarily compete with ours, thus destroying a part of the market for our coal. It was a near-sighted policy on the part of my right hon. friend and those who sat in council with him, to buy coal mines in the United States capable of producing something like two or three million tons of coal annually and to admit that coal into the markets of this country free of duty. While that coal output was controlled by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, duty had to be paid upon it when it came into Canada, and that was a matter of business; we could say nothing about it. But we bought the Grand Trunk, with its various railway lines, its coal mines, and everything belonging to it, and if the coal now pays duty on coming into Canada, it is simply a case, so far as the Government is concerned, of taking money out of one pocket and putting it into the other.

Mr. ARTHURS: Was the hon. gentleman opposed to the acquisition of the Grand Trunk railway, and is he still?

Mr. McKENZIE: Always was, am to-day, and shall continue to be. My hon. friend knows, and my record in this House will show, that I was always opposed to any property being acquired to be run by the Government, particularly the government of that day. I feel rather humiliated that I have never been able to impress upon my hon. friend where I stood on this matter. However, there is hope yet.

Mr. ARTHURS: My hon. friend quotes scripture oftener than he does politics.

Mr. McKENZIE: Of some people it can be said as was said of Ephraim, "Ephraim is joined to idols; let him alone." I have always been opposed to this policy of buying railways in the United States because, as every member of this House knows, we have no control, so far as legislation goes, over these properties in a foreign country. We cannot pass one line of legislation regarding them. They come under the legislation of the different states through which they run, and we have no representation in those state legislatures at all. Federal legislation by the United States may also be passed affecting these vast properties, as to which we would have nothing to say. That in itself would be a reason why the people of this country should be careful before they launch into the purchase of vast properties in a foreign country over which we have no control so far as legislation is concerned, and as to the management of which we have nothing to say. I submit to you, Sir, that the question of owning and operating and competing as a Government with our coal mines in Nova Scotia is a particularly sore spot with the people of that province, who cannot understand how any person or any government will take the responsibility of putting themselves in competition with private enterprises. I hope that as time goes on, now that the management is under the control of the Liberal government, the railways will show an improvement. Even in the short period towards the end of the year, the change of government has brought its results. The management knew, because they could not help reading the signs of the times, that there was to be a change of administration. Everybody believed that except perhaps the ex-Minister of Finance and his leader, and the management shaped their course to meet coming events; they were more careful, knowing that they would be submitted to the close criticism of a Liberal government and that business-like methods would be expected of them.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Perhaps it was the anticipation of the coming government that caused the big deficit in the month of December last.

Mr. McKENZIE: I am not aware that there was any such deficit, but I can readily understand that the old government having gone out, if there was any possible way by which they could take anything with them they would do it. However, the inquiry that the minister has promised will see to these things, and I would advise my hon. friends opposite to be careful about anything of that kind which they might have carried with them. I hope that as the years go on and proper management prevails in connection with these roads better results will be obtained for the good people of this country.

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): I will not undertake to make any exhaustive analysis of the statement presented by the minister to-day. It is too long and encloses within its compass so many figures, I think I might say, so much information—though I might add, were it appropriate, so little in the way of policy—that more time than a few minutes for reflection would be requisite for that purpose.

It is very rare, however, in the history of this Parliament that a minister of the Crown has presented a statement to the House which was received with a great deal more applause upon the part of the Opposition than upon the part of the Government. That has been reserved for the experience of this afternoon. I listened to the report with interest; I listened to it with some gratification, and I think the same can be said for most of the hon. members of this House. Upon the results of the operation of the national railways, particularly for the year 1921, depended very much as to what would be the attitude of the people of this country toward the continuance of the system of operation then in vogue, indeed, what would be their attitude to the whole immense problem of the management of our railways.

I could not help but come to the conclusion that the Government likely thought it would be wisest that as little serious discussion should take place this afternoon on this statement as could not be avoided, and that as a consequence the Solicitor-General (Mr. McKenzie) was put up with instructions to take just as much time as he could and say as little as possible. The Solicitor-General had the accumulations of humour of all this last winter to retail to Parliament; he has had his opportunity, and that task he has mightily well performed.

The statement presented to-day of the operations in 1921 before the change of Government—and I am not for a minute suggesting that under a change of Government, if they follow the lines intimated by the minister, there will be difference in the future—is such, I am sure, that it will carry encouragement to many throughout this country, and will strengthen the hands of those who have not given up hope, who have consistently believed that we can, if we follow right lines such as have been pursued, make these roads a success.

The hon. minister's statement discloses that in the national railway management, that is to say, within the ambit of the system given to the board, the Intercolonial, the Transcontinental, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern, in all that vast system, including a mileage of 7,340 miles, there has been an improvement in operating returns in what has been the worst commercial year for many years in this country—an improvement of something over twenty million dollars. From a deficit in 1920 of 36 million odd on all those systems, there has been a reduction to about 16 millions in the year 1921. There has been at the same time, it is true, an increase in the fixed charges. Such is inevitable because the deficits that necessarily accumulated during the time of amalgamation, during the time of the rehabilitation of the road, during the time of the completion of construction and—after construction—during the time when deferred maintenance and deferred betterments had to be made up—when all these had to be overtaken, the deficits that accumulated were necessarily substantial and consequently the fixed charges increased accordingly. The fixed charge increase this year—which if I gather the figures correctly amounts to $7,000,000, the difference between the $40,000,000 as it stands now and the 33 millions odd as it stood in 1914—will be made up in the main of the interest on last year's deficit and even in greater degree of the interest on the money put into the system in the way of betterments and in the way of increased construction, almost wholly in western Canada. But that increase is much less than the improvement that is shown in operation returns, with the consequence that a deficit of 69 millions odd announced last year is now reduced to 56 millions odd.

The minister gives us the information, which I receive with pleasure, that the deficit announced to Parliament last year of 69 millions as the 1920 deficit turns out to have been too large, and that the real deficit was $67,505,000. The difference is not great but that there is a difference on this side is something significant. It would indicate that the former Minister of Railways in giving the information last year erred on the side adverse to himself, and instead of painting the deficit as smaller than it actually was, he painted it larger. That fact surely has some significance. It stands alongside the other undoubted fact, that from the day the former Minister of Railways made it until this hour he has been condemned through the whole of the Dominion of Canada as having misrepresented the deficit, as having stated it to be far less than it actually was.

Very well, there is this improvement in the returns. It was accompanied by a small reduction of wages, but it shows itself, as disclosed in the statement of the minister as very largely due to the economies resultant upon amalgamation; to the increased traffic; to the perceptibly increased proportion of the traffic of this Dominion, indicating that the National Railway system is gaining on all competitors due to better service. The better service to the better equipment and better system brought about by the expenditures under the late administration. Anyway the corner has been turned. I want to impress again that, so far as I have discussed the subject up to now, my reference has been wholly to the roads under what we know as the National Railway Board, the board of which Mr. Hanna has been the president. That system has been in operation since, I think, the fall of 1917; I think it was put in operation just after the Union government was formed. The whole mileage was not then under the board but one by one different systems have been put under it. First the Canadian Northern; and, I think at the same time, the Transcontinental railway. We did not relieve the Grand Trunk Pacific from operating that line but the Grand Trunk Pacific refused to operate it. The Grand Trunk Pacific had no more competence or power to operate it than any humble penniless individual in this House. It could not begin to operate it because of the position it was in, and absolutely declined to do so. We were powerless to make it do so because it had not the resources with which to operate the road. We had in the system then, first the Transcontinental railway and the Canadian Northern; later was added the Intercolonial. The Canadian National Railway Board was made the manager of the Intercolonial, and later in the spring of 1919 on the seventh day of May, the Grand Trunk Pacific Board having notified the Government that on that date it would cease to operate the Grand Trunk Pacific because it could not even operate that road any longer we took the Grand Trunk Pacific, operated it as receiver, and very shortly afterwards turned it over to the Canadian National lines for operation. That brought all that system under the Canadian National Railway Board. There remains now outside one only of the government-owned lines—the Grand Trunk line, the parent Grand Trunk.

Very well. In so far as this speech discloses the condition of the national railways I venture to submit to the House that it is gratifying to a degree. And more: In comparison with the record of government operation in other countries—yea, in comparison with the record of private operations during the same period in other countries—it establishes the system of management which the late government put in, as the best yet devised for the operation of government lines. For although a deficit appears, although there is a deficit on operation, although there is still a very substantial deficit in operation and fixed charges, a deficit of some 56 millions —though that is the fact, you can put the result, that is the final result, alongside of corresponding results by similar privately-owned systems in other countries, and you will find that result to reflect credit upon the operations here; a favourable result as compared with the results in the United States for the same period.

I observe that the minister has not favoured the House with any figures corresponding with those he gave us as to our own roads taken from the returns of the United States railways in the same time. In the statement given last year those figures appeared and they were illuminating indeed. Other figures appeared as to relative results over in England. They also were of very great service to Parliament. I am sorry the minister did not include these comparisons in the statement he presented this afternoon.

There is one other point I want to emphasize. In the statement made last year by the Minister of Railways estimates were given as to what would be the result for 1921. It was estimated that in 1921 there would be better results in operation, but the utmost the minister of that day expected from the year 1921 was that, in operation and in fixed charges put together we could not expect to get out under less than sixty millions odd of a deficit. The figures given this afternoon show that that has been very much reduced, at least to the extent of some $4,000,000.

Consequently, all in all, the statement this afternoon will bring to the people of Canada the realization of this truth at least—that facing, as we have had to face, the taking over a system which we had to get under and take over or let it fall into liquidation, if not into desuetude and idleness, the best course available was adopted. And, having decided on the best course, the best system of management was devised, and that system of management has been vindicated by the results.

I was not able to follow—because a parallel method was not adopted—the figures given by the Minister of Railways as regards the Grand Trunk railway. I rather came to the conclusion, from the general purport of his remarks, that the results of the 1921 operations of the Grand Trunk are by no means as satisfactory as are the results with the sister system, the Canadian National. Of course, it must be remembered that the 1921 results in the Grand Trunk are results accruing, in so far as the government board is concerned, as only from the month of May,—I will be corrected if I am wrong. I am satisfied that it was towards the end of May when what could be called a government board was put in charge of the Grand Trunk. Hon. gentlemen will remember that until that time the government was not empowered to place directors in charge of the railway, the Grand Trunk directorate managed the system. The Grand Trunk Railway Company insisted, as one of the terms, which, finally, we conceded to them in making the arrangement for arbitration, that until the arbitration was over they be not ousted from control. Finally we yielded to that contention. I am not sorry that we did. If we had not yielded, there would be at least some semblance of justice in the cry that is now all too common in the Old Land that we used harsh methods in connection with the shareholders of that road. If we had ousted them, they would be able to say "Yes, you threw us out of our system, you insisted that we should get out or you would have nothing to do with us, and then, when we were out, unable to get the evidence to go before the arbitration board, you took advantage of the disability there imposed upon us, and you got the best of the arbitration." We yielded to them on that point, and as a consequence they had a right to keep their board in control of the Grand Trunk system until the time expired when the arbitration was to end. When that time expired, however, the government of the day determined, as disclosed in the speech of the former Minister of Railways, the hon. member for Lanark (Mr. J. A. Stewart), that, though the arbitration was not over, it should have been over, and, as the Grand Trunk had not used due expedition to get it over, if they wanted an extension of the time they must, first of all, yield that point, and permit the government to go into control of the road. The government of the day was anxious to hasten that time when we would be able to get, to the full, the advantages of complete amalgamation of the government system. We knew we could not get them in full immediately we put our board in. We knew that some time would be required on the part of the former officers of the Grand Trunk, and on the part of some of the officers of the Canadian National railways, to prepare the way for amalgamation, to prepare the lines immediately to be pursued when the amalgamation would take effect. Consequently, we were anxious that as little delay as possible should intervene between the control of the Grand Trunk Board proper and the advent of the Grand Trunk Board appointed by the Government. The Government appointed its board about the end of May or the 1st of June last year. The Government retained, and necessarily retained, on the board, temporarily at least, certain high officials of the Grand Trunk. The reason for that was manifest, and the justice of it no one would dispute. The government board, therefore, only operated with part of the Grand Trunk Board, the Government appointees, from the middle of May last year until the end of the year; consequently the less favourable showing of the Grand Trunk last year, is not attributable to the fact that there was a government board in control as opposed to the old board. I do not think there are many Canadians who would not gladly agree that those gentlemen added to the board by the government were strong, able and competent men, and who would not also be glad to hear the news that men of that character, or the same men, would be accepted by this Government and continued. Very well, that was the position they were in. There has been no opportunity at all as yet to secure the fruits of that unification, which was the policy of the late government, which was embodied in and the reason of the Act of 1919. The Act of 1919 is in itself the machinery by which the whole fruits of amalgamation can be secured. It will be seen that no time whatever was lost on the part of the late administration in reaching for that goal—that goal which we must reach if our national railway management is to be a success. But, unfortunately, there has been delay on the part of this Government. I know of no reason why it should not have been called into effect immediately they came into power. What was there to ascertain? What more was there to be done? I know there was not need for further conferences between the directorates. I am aware myself, and I am sure the minister will not dispute it, that the necessary arrangements had been made, so far as the organizations of the two systems were concerned, that would have enabled the Government to have called the act into effect at once. The minister in his speech does not in any word or sentence indicate that there was any reason on that score for not calling the act into effect. He says "We had to get good men to go on the new board, and three months and a half has not been time enough to enable us to think who the good men are." Is not that the only reason the minister has given? I would venture to suggest, in the light of the results of last year as disclosed in the statement this afternoon, that the Government would do very well to reflect, in the seriousness of their own cabinet council, whether or not it is probable that there were good men on the board last year. Why, then has the Government delayed? If I have understood properly the full meaning of the statement the minister has made it is this. He says "We are going to carry out the policy of the late government; after tribulations, after doubtings, after twistings and turnings, after fears, inward quarrels, and all sorts of rebellion in the party, we have decided that we are going to pursue the very policy the late government laid down, the policy the late government pursued right up to the time it went out of power. We have decided on all that, and all we have not decided on is just when we will put it into effect." That is one statement of policy as announced by the minister this afternoon. It is not very radical or momentous, but I think on the whole it is fairly wise.

Then on the subject matter of rates, about which we have heard much for many months, I waited with apprehension—not with apprehension but with genuine curiosity—to find what the minister would have to say. I was aware, as every hon. gentleman is aware, that the control of rates on our railways was delegated, by the legislation of 1902 or 1903, to the Railway Commission of this country. I was aware that the Railway Commission was sitting and considering the problem at the present time. I was aware that the Commission had an organization that had command of the facts and the history of the whole question. I was aware that it was composed of men whom, if they were not competent men, or were in any way truant in their duty, there was a proper method of removing. I was aware the Railway Commission had been placed in this position at the hands of hon. gentlemen, many of whom are now members of the present Government; but, of course, I had to remember as well that, notwithstanding, the scale of rates in effect under that commission was laid at the door of the late government by their orators, yea, by themselves, all through this Dominion, and I was wondering what would be the policy of this administration, what line they would devise that would harmonize their own conduct in placing this question under a judicial tribunal, with their professions in declaring that they would decide it themselves. Well, we get the result this afternoon. The whole of their policy is this: We promised in the Speech from the Throne a "consultation" of the railway heads. We have found that is no good. Here is our policy now: "We will appoint a committee of Parliament to think it over." That is the mouse that has come out of the mountain. There is going to be a committee of this House to decide what to do about railway rates. Will the Railway Commission be called as witnesses before the committee? Will we try all over again what the Railway Commission has been trying for almost a year back, or for twenty years back? If so, when is this session going to end?

I think this committee will clearly understand that the statement of the minister this afternoon disclosing the Government policy on rates is merely an admission of mental and moral bankruptcy on the whole question. There is no way in which they can carry out what they have declared they can carry out. There is no way to harmonize their professions now with their promises. There is no way in the world in which they can make good to the people of this country the promises they have made, without violating the policy of which they themselves are not only the disciples but, twenty years ago, the originators.

That is all I have to say on this question this afternoon. In so far as the facts of management are disclosed with regard to a system where the method of operation, the personnel of operation, the system and principles of operation, have been put to the test, the statement is gratifying to me—I do not know whether it is gratifying to the Government or not. I know how far it harmonizes, or rather fails to harmonize with their statements of the position all through last fall; and as I sat here and heard those definitions of future policy—a committee of Parliament to look into the question of rates, a committee or some agent of a new board which is to be put into the National Railways to investigate whether what the National Railway Board gives out as facts are really facts or not—I wondered how far those two anæmic and equivocal definitions of policy would be accepted by the hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell), as fulfilling his pledges made to the electors of his constituency during the last campaign. He was going to have a commission, a royal commission; he was going to bring over experts from Asia, no, from Europe and from some other continent which he did not name. These experts were going to be brought over to Canada to supplement the brains of hon. gentlemen opposite and to study the alleged railway tangle into which the late government had plunged this country. Where is his pledge now? Can he find any reference to it in the speech of the Minister of Railways? Who is this committee or this individual whom the new board, at some unspecified time in the indefinite and misty future, is going to appoint to see whether the board itself is telling the truth or not? Is that the fulfilment of his pledge to his electors? As we received notice that the late government's plans as to amalgamation were to be followed line by line and letter by letter, I wondered what thoughts were passing through the mind of the hon. member for Pictou (Mr. Macdonald), and I wondered what comments he was making to his seat mate beside him, the hon. member for Cumberland (Mr. Logan), who, I see, is conferring now with his fellow pledgor, the hon. member for St. Antoine. They, speaking in Nova Scotia, and, as well, the hon. member for Colchester (Mr. Putnam), used this pledge, that the Intercolonial railway was going to be jerked out of the National system when they came to Ottawa; that it was going to be extricated and restored to the Department of Railways and Canals, and run as it was in the years of long ago. I wonder now how they are going to square themselves with the electors of their constituencies. Do not let it be said that I favour the carrying out of what they were pledged to do. I favour now precisely what I said in the last campaign —precisely what the present Government is now undertaking to do at a very indefinite time, precisely what we undertook to do most definitely before the people of this country. I stated plainly in Moncton that, just as soon as we took in the Grand Trunk, as would be done at the earliest possible moment, at that time there would be sufficient eastern mileage to warrant the establishment of, and that there would be established, an Eastern Grand Division, in which there would be that measure of railway home rule that was essential, but in which there would not be lost at all the advantages of unification. There would be, in a word such decentralisation as the Canadian Pacific has in effect, as all railways of sufficient magnitude have in effect. That was what I stated was the proper policy. That is now what is intimated in the speech of the Minister of Railways. But it is entirely out of accord with promises given electors, which promises account for the presence in this House of the hon. member for Cumberland, the hon. member for St. Antoine, the hon. member for Pictou, the hon. member for Colchester, and, I know not how many more. I am not going to seek to exhaust, for it is six o'clock already, the comparison of the statement of policy on this phase this afternoon, attenuated, vague, timid, as it is, with the various bold commitments of hon. members opposite,—not at all. They were quite loose and reckless in their engagements; anything they thought would suit their constituents—that was the commitment made. One policy came from British Columbia, another policy from the prairies, another from Nova Scotia and another from New Brunswick, all designed to catch the prevailing opinion or cupidity of the district. All these policies are now scrapped, the policy which the former government sturdily pursued is now proclaimed as right and hon. members are asked by the Minister of Railways to go back and make their peace with their deluded electors.

Mr. FIELDING: It was understood that the House was to adjourn at six o'clock. I therefore, move that the committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again.

Progress reported.

On motion of Mr. Mackenzie King, the House adjourned at 6.04 p.m.

Wednesday, April 19, 1922

The House met at three o'clock.

PRIVATE BILLS

FIRST READINGS

Bill No. 48, respecting Aberdeen Fire Insurance Company.—Mr. Manion.

Bill No. 49, respecting Armour Life Assurance Company.—Mr. Manion.

Bill No. 50, to incorporate The Sisters of Saint Mary of Namur.—Mr. Demers.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS— IMPORTATION OF COAL

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou):

1. What quantity of coal was imported into Canada during the calendar year 1921 from the United States for the Canadian National Railway, exclusive of the Grand Trunk?

2. What was the cost per ton of the said coal at the border?

3. What amount was paid for said coal?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. 977,696 net tons.

2. $5.10 per net ton.

3. $4,992,694.97.

NOTES FOR INCOME TAXES

Mr. HALBERT:

1. Has a note been accepted in payment of income tax from any firm or individual other than the Riordon Pulp and Paper Company?

2. If so, from what firm or individual?

3. On what dates, and for what amounts?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING: Several notes were received, which were regarded by the officials as an acknowledgment of indebtedness, but not as payment. No such notes are now received.

The Minister of Finance has doubt of the propriety of making public transactions between the Government and citizens respecting income taxes. In England it is understood such information is regarded as confidential. The right of Parliament to full information regarding public business being recognized, a predecessor of the present minister held that if information of this kind was desired a motion for it should be placed on the order paper, and upon discussion the House should judge whether the public interests required it to be brought down.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—PASSENGER TRAFFIC

Mr. STEWART (Leeds):

1. How many different passenger rates are in effect on each of the systems of railways under government ownership in Canada?

2. Under what titles or headings are the classifications made, and what is the rate per mile for each classification?

3. What percentage of the total number of passengers carried during the last financial year is embraced in each class?

4. What percentage of the total yearly revenue of the last financial year was derived from each of such passenger rates?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. See attached statements, "A" as to Canadian National Railways, and "B" as to Grand Trunk Railway, Canadian Lines.

2. See above-mentioned statement "B" as to Grand Trunk and "C" as to Canadian National Railways.

3. Existing methods of accounting do not provide for the separation of the number of passengers in accordance with the various classifications of rates. To secure such information would require an analysis of all the original detailed records, such as conductors' train reports, etc., for the entire year. Information, therefore, is not available.

4. See answer to No. 3.

STATEMENT "A"—CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES.

——	Regular Passenger Fares		Special Passenger Fares
	Number of rates	Description	Number of rates	Description
Canadian Northern Ry.....	3	First class one way..... Second class one way..... One month return.....	33	For details see Statement "C" in connection with Question 2.
Grand Trunk Pacific Ry.....	3	First class one way..... Second class one way..... One month return.....	30	" "
Canadian Government Railways.	3	First class one way..... Second class one way..... One month return.....	36	" "

STATEMENT "B"—GRAND TRUNK CANADIAN LINES

CLASSIFICATION OF PASSENGER TRAFFIC ON GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM LINES IN CANADA SHOWING CURRENT RATE PER MILE FOR EACH CLASS (APRIL 7, 1922)

Classification	Rate per mile	Classification	Rate per mile
	cts.		cts.
First Class, Maximum one way	3·45	Members of Press	2·3
Second Class "	3·00	Nuns, Sisters of Charity	1·725
Third Class "	2·30	Deaconesses
Commercial Trav. "	2·587	Prison Gate Officers
One Month R.T	3·105	Rescue Officers Salvation Army Women
Commercial Trav. RT (Wk. End)	1·725	Entertainment Parties visiting Military Hospitals.	1·725
Mileage Ticket	2·100	Live Stock Attendants returning Western Canada.	1·725
Commutation, 50-R	0·85 (a)	Men in charge perishable fruit returning to points east of Levis and Megantic.	1·725
" 40-R	0·425(a)	Missionary, Eleemosynary, etc	1·725
" 10-R	2·50 (a)	Fall Fairs and Exhibitions	2·3
Excess Baggage	0·48	Soldiers Civil Re-establishment	1·725
Cert. Plan Arrangements—		Soldiers Land Settlement	1·0
Less than 150 people	3·105	Parlor Car Tolls	0·6 (b)
150 or more people	2·587	Dominion Provincial Employment Service.	2·70
Military and Naval—		Empire Parliamentary Association, one-way.	1·725
1st Class	3·0	Empire Parliamentary Association, Round Trip.	1·725
2nd Class	2·33
350 or more—all ranks (over 100 miles)	2·0
Royal Can. Mounted Police (R.N.W.M.P.).	2·5
Charitable Homes (inmates)	2·3
Charitable Homes (attendants and Officers).	1·725

(a) Minimum per ride 7½ cents except where local fare of 5 cents exists.
(b) Minimum fare of 50 cents applying for distance of 90 miles or less.

STATEMENT "C"—CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES—REGULAR FARES—GENERAL BASIS

—	1st Class Per Mile	2nd Class Per Mile	One Month Return Per Mile
	c.	c.	c.
Canadian Northern Railway—
All lines	3·45	Nil	3·105
Exceptions—
Line Tannis to Brazeau and Main Line Wolf Creek-Vancouver	4·0	Nil	3·6
Lines in Quebec, also Hawkesbury-Ottawa	.....	3
Line Hudson Bay to Le Pas	3·5	Nil	3·15
Grand Trunk Pacific Ry.—
All lines	3·45	Nil	3·105
Exceptions—
Line Wolf Creek to Prince Rupert	4·0	Nil	3·6
Canadian Government Railways—
Intercolonial Ry., 1 to 200 miles	3·45	2·3	2·795
Prince Edward Island Ry.—
201 to 300 miles	3·105	2·070	2·515
301 to 400 miles	2·875	1·917	2·329
401 to 600 miles	2·760	1·84	2·236
601 to 800 miles	2·645	1·763	2·143
801 and over miles	2·530	1·687	2·050
Exceptions—
Line Montreal to Levis, inclusive	.....	3·0
Transcontinental Ry.—1 to 225 miles	3·45	2·3	2·795
Line Moncton to Charny—
226 to 300 miles	3·335	2·223	2·702
301 to 400 miles	3·105	2·070	2·515
401 to 500 miles	2·99	1·993	2·422
Transcontinental Ry.—
Line Quebec to Hearst	3·45	3·0	3·105
Line Hearst to Winnipeg and Fort William	3·45	Nil	3·105
Cape Breton Ry	3·45	Nil	3·105
Quebec and Saguenay Ry	3·45	Nil	3·105
Lotbiniere and Megantic Ry	3·45	3·0	3·105
Salisbury and Albert Ry	3·45	Nil	2·795
Elgin and Havelock Ry	3·45	Nil	2·795
Moncton and Buctouche Ry	3·45	2·3	2·795
St. Martins Ry	3·45	Nil	2·795
St. John and Quebec Ry	3·45	Nil	2·795
Caraquet and Gulf Shore Ry	4	Nil	3·6
International Ry. of N.B	4	2·75	3·6
York and Carleton Ry	4	Nil	4

STATEMENT "C" CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES—SPECIAL FARES

EXHIBIT "B" SPECIAL FARES

Description	Class	Applies over lines indicated by "X"			Territory	Bases of Fares
		Can Nor. Ry.	G.T.P. Ry.	Can. Gov. Ry.		One Way	Round Trip
1. All Year Tourist Fares.....	1st	x	x	x	(a) From Eastern Canada to Western Canada and Pacific Coast.....	.....	Double regular first class one way fare less 10%.
					(b) From Prairie Provinces to Pacific Coast.....	.....	Double regular first class one way fare less 10%.
2. Barnardo Homes, Inmates of.....	1st	x	x	x	Port Arthur, Armstrong, Ont. and West.....	2·3c. per mile...
3*a*. Canada Land Settlement Agency (Applies for bona fide settlers from the United States).	2nd	x	x	x	(a) From Montreal, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Windsor, Sarnia, and other points in Eastern Canada to destinations in Western Canada.	Blanket rate of $25.00 to Edmonton, Calgary and intermediate points, plus 2c. per mile to points beyond
					(b) Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton and Regina to destinations in Western Canada.	2 cents per mile.
					(c) Vancouver to destinations in Western Canada.....	$16.00 to Edmonton and $17.90 to Calgary, plus 2c. per mile to points beyond.
3. (b) Canada Land Settlement Agency (Applies for bona fide settlers from Europe).	2nd	x	x		(a) From Calgary, Edmonton or Saskatoon or destinations in Western Canada (to bona fide settlers from Europe).	2 cents per mile.
4. Caretakers—Live Stock (Returning to their homes after accompanying shipments.	2nd	x	x	x	(a) From Eastern Canada to Western Canada.	One-half regular first class one way fare.
" "	2nd	x	x	x	(b) Between Stations Port Arthur, Armstrong, Ont., and West.	"
" Perishable Freight.	2nd	x	.....	x	Between Stations Armstrong, Ont., Montreal and East on Can. Govt. Rys. also from Can. Nor. Ry. Stations in Ontario to Can. Govt. Rys. stations east of Levis.	1·725c. per mile.
" Frozen Meat for export.	2nd	x	x	x	From Montreal and Quebec to destinations Winnipeg and West.	One-half regular first class one-way fare.
" Fresh fruits, Vegetables Liquors, Minerals and aerated waters.	2nd	x	x	x	Between Stations Port Arthur. Armstrong, Ont., and West,	"
5. Charitable Homes—Inmates of	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	2·3c. per mile...	2·3c. per mile each way.
6. Charitable Homes—Officers and Attendants of	1st	x	x	x	"	One-half regular first class one way fare.	Regular first class one wah fare.
7. Colonization.....	2nd	x	.....	x	(a) From stations in Ontario and Quebec to destinations in Northern Quebec.	2·3 cents per mile.	3·45 cents pe mile.
"	2nd	x	.....	x	(b) From stations in Ontario and Quebec to destinations in Northern Ontario.	" ..	"
	2nd	.....	.....	x	(c) From stations in Quebec to destinations in Matapedia Valley.	Two thirds of regular second class one-way fare.	One and one third regular second-classk one-way fare.
	2nd	.....	x	.....	(d) From G.T.P. stations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to destinations in British Columbia (Tete Juane to Terrace incl.).	2 cents per mile to Edson, Alta., plus 3 cents per mile beyond.	2 cents per mile to Edson plus 3 cents per mile beyond each way.

[Mr. W. C. Kennedy.]

STATEMENT "C" CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES—SPECIAL FARES—Con.

Description	Class	Applies over lines indicated by "X"			Territory	Bases of Fares
		Can. Nor. Ry.	G.T.P. Ry.	Can. Gov. Ry.		One Way.	Round Trip.
					(e) In commutation zones on Can. Northern and G.T.P. Railways.	2½ cents per mile minimum rate per trip, 7½ cents.
8. Commutation fares—10 trip	1st	x	x	x	Between station not more than 50 miles apart on Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways (east of St. Hyacinthe).
40 trip scholars	1st	x	x	x	(b) " " "	4½ mills per mile, minimum rate per trip, 7½ cents.
50 trip	1st	x	x	x	(c) " " "	8½ mills per mile minimum rate per trip, 7½ cents.
10 trip workmen	2nd	.....	.....	x	(d) New Glasgow-Trenton—Westville District.	Approximately 1⅞ cents per mile.
9. Commercial Travellers One-Way and Week-End Return.	1st	x	x	x	(a) All stations in Canada, except locally Cochrane, Armstrong, Ont. and Capreol, Port Arthur, Ont. inclusive.	2·587 cents per mile.	Regular first class one-way fare for week-end and return tickets.
					Exception: (1) Wolf Creek, Alta., Vancouver, Prince Rupert, inclusive. Tannis, Brazeau, Alta., inclusive.	3 cents per mile.	"
					(2) Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., The Pas, Man., incl.	2·625 cents per mile.	"
10. Conventions—150 or more in attendance	1st	x	x	x	(a) Quebec, Levis and West Canada.	.....	Regular first-one-way fare and one half.
Conventions—75 or more in attendance	1st	.....	.....	x	(b) East of Quebec and Levis.	.....	Regular first class one-way fare and two-fifths.
11. Employees of Railways and Steamship Companies.	1st or 2nd	x	x	x	All stations in Canada	One half regular fare charged General Public.	One half regular fare charged General Public.
12. Empire Parliamentary Association.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada	One half regular first class one-way fare.	Regular first class one-way fare.
13. Entertainment Parties visiting Military Hospitals.	1st	x	.....	x	All stations, Port Arthur, Armstrong, Ont. and East.	.....	Regular first class one-way fare.
14. Excursions and Pilgrimages Organized.	1st	.....	.....	x	East of Quebec and Levis, Que. only.	.....	Railway accepts regular first class one-way fare from Organizers, who sell to the Public at regular first class one-way fare. plus 15% with maximum of 75 cents retaining the difference to defray expenses.
15. Exhibitions and Fall Fairs.	1st	x	x	x	To points of Exhibitions in Canada, from adjacent territory.	.....	Regular first class one-way fare and one third.
16. Family Summer Resort and Seabathing 10 Round Trip Tickets.	.....	.....	.....	x	From Montreal, Quebec, Halifax, or St. John to Summer Resort at Seabathing points east of Quebec and Levis.	.....	Regular first class one-way fare and one-third per each round trip.

STATEMENT "C" CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES—SPECIAL FARES—Con.

Description	Class	Applies over lines indicated by "X"			Territory	Bases of Fares
		Can. Nor. Ry.	G.T.P. Ry.	Can. Gov. Ry.		One Way	Round Trip
17. Farm Laborers.....	2nd	x	x	x	From Eastern to Western Canada to assist in Harvest operations.....	Going—From Quebec, Levis and West $15 to Winnipeg. From St. John N.B. $20 to Winnipeg. To points west of Winnipeg authorized rate to Winnipeg plus one half cent per mile.	Returning--From Points West of Winnipeg ½ c. per mile to Winnipeg plus authorized rate East of Winnipeg. From Winnipeg, $20 to stations Quebec, Levis and West—and $25 to St. John, N.B.
18. Field Crop Competitions, judges of	1st	x	x	x	To points of Exhibitions in Canada.	.....	Regular first class one way fare and one third.
19. Homeseekers.....	2nd.	x	x	x	From Eastern to Western Canada.	.....	Regular second class one way fare and one half.
20. Immigrant fares for Passengers from Europe.	1st and 2nd	x	x	x	From Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal to destinations in Canada.	Regular 1st and 2nd class one-way fares not however to exceed fares authorized from New York and Portland, Me.
" " ..	3rd	x	x	x	From Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal to stations Winnipeg and West in Canada.	$35 from Port of Landing to Winnipeg plus ½ cent per mile
21. Indians.....	2nd	.....	.....	x	(a) Intercolonial Ry. Prince Edward Island Ry. and International Ry. of N.B (stations Levis and East).	1·15 cents per mile.
"	2nd	x	.....	.....	(b) Can. Nor. Ry. (Ruel to Port Arthur only).	One half lowest regular one way fare.	Lowest regular one way fare.
"	2nd	x	x	.....	(c) Port Arthur, Armstrong, Ont. and West, in Canada, also from Transcontinental Ry. stations Goodwin, Ont. Winnipeg, Man. incl. to Cochrane and vice vers.	2·3 cents per mile.	2·3 cents pe mile each way
22. Indian Hop Pickers..	2nd	x	.....	.....	(d) Can. Nor. Ry. (Stations Vancouver to Albreda, B.C. incl. only).	.....	Regular one way first class fare
23. Laborers under direction of Dominion Provincial Employment Service.	2nd	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	2·7 cents per mile, minimum $4.
24. Male Ex. Members and Ex-Nursing Sisters of Canadian Expeditionary Forces receiving treatment or training at Hospitals or Institutions of Department of Soldier's Civil Re-Establishment.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	.....	Regular first class one way fare.
25. Male Members of Canadian Expeditionary Forces under medical treatment travelling on Furlough.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	.....	Regular first class one way fare.
26. Market Return Fares	2nd.	x	.....	x	Between stations on Intercolonial Rly. (Ste. Hyacinthe and East).	.....	Approximately 2·05 cents per mile each way
27. Mileage Books—1,000 Miles.....	1st.	x	.....	x	(a) Stations in Canada, Port Arthur, Armstrong, Ont. and East.	3·1 cents per mile.
" " ..	1st.	.....	.....	x	(b) Canadian Government Railway Stations (Ste. Hyacinthe and East).	3·1 cents per mile.

STATEMENT "C" CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES—SPECIAL FARES—Con.

Description	Class	Applies over lines indicated by "X"			Territory	Bases of Fares
		Can. Nor. Ry.	G.T.P. Ry.	Can. Gov. Ry.		One Way	Round Trip
27. Mileage Books—Con. Lumber-Workmen	2nd.	.....	.....	x	(c) Stations on International Railway of N.B.	2·875 cents per mile.
" " ..	2nd.	.....	.....	x	(d) Stations on Transcontinental Railway. (Quebec City to Nottaway, Que. incl.)	3 cents per mile.
28. Militia and Naval Forces.	1st and 2nd	x x	x x	x x	All stations in Canada.....	First Class—3 cents per mile. Second Class—2½ cents per mile.	First Class—3 cents per mile each way. Second Class—2½ cents per mile each way.
					Exception: For Bodies of Troops by special train numbering 350 or more and travelling distances over 100 miles.	2½ cents per mile	2½ cents per mile each way.
29. Missionary, Charitable—Eleemosynary Workers.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	One-half regular first class one way fare.	Regular first class one way fare.
30. Press, Members of the.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	2·3 cents per mile.	2·3 cents per mile each way
					Exceptions: Wolf Creek, Alta.-Vancouver-Prince Rupert, incl. Tannis-Brazeau, Alta. incl. Hudson Bay Jct., Sask. The Pas, Man. incl.	2½ cents per mile	2½ cents per mile each way.
31. Royal Canadian Mounted Police.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	2½ cents per mile	2½ cents per mile each way.
32. Salvation Army—Rescue Officers (Women).	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	One-half regular first class one way fare.	Regular first class one way fare.
33. Salvation Army—Prison Gate Officers.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	One-half regular first class one way fare.	Regular first class one way fare.
34. Second class return fares.	2nd	.....	.....	x	Between stations on Prince Edward Island only.	.....	Approximately 2·05 cents per mile each way
35. Sisters of Charity, Nuns and Deaconesses.	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada.....	One-half regular first class one way fare.	Regular first class one way fare.
36. Soldiers' Land Settlement (for Ex-Members of C.E.F.)	1st	x	x	x	All stations in Canada—for distances of not less than fifty (50) miles.	1 cent per mile..	1 cent per mile each way.
37. Summer Tourist Fares.	1st	x	x	x	To summer tourist resorts and stations in Canada.	.....	Double regular first class one way fare less 10%.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—TIES

Mr. PUTNAM:

1. What quantity of railway ties have been purchased by the Canadian National Railway in Nova Scotia since November 30th, 1921?

2. What are the names of the parties from whom said ties were purchased and the quantity in each case?

3. What was the price paid?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. 150,130.

2.

Contractor	Quantity	Price
		No. 1	No. 2	No. 3
Awalt, D. W.	1,000	60	50	25
Bent, C. M.	10,000	70	60	30
Best, Eldred	500	60	50	30
Blanchard, C. P.	10,000	70	60	35
Bruhm, J. M. and Oikles Ltd.	10,000	70	60	30
Gass, Robt.	3,000	60	50	30
Johnson, M. S.	300	60	50	30
Kennedy, Bros.	600	60	50	30
Kennedy, D. H.	1,000	60	50	30
King, Bros.	2,000	60	50	30
King, Willard	2,000	60	50	30
Livingston, J. H.	2,000	60	50	30
Lunenburg Milling Co.	25,000	70	60	30
Martin, Malcolm	200	60	50	30
Martin, R. N.	500	60	50	30
Lewis Miller & Co., Ltd.	8,400	60	50	30
Morton, Bennet	2,500	60	50	30
Munro, J. S.	2,000	60	50	30
MacBaine, J. W.	880	60	50	30
MacAskill, Frank	300	60	50	30
McCabe, C. A.	2,500	60	50	30
McDonald, John D.	3,000	60	50	30
Maitland Lumber Co.	15,000	70	60	30
McDonald, Parker	10,000	70	60	30
McDonald, Robert	400	60	50	30
McIntyre, H. A.	600	60	50	30
McIver, John E.	350	58	48	28
McKay, Garnet	2,000	65	55	30
McKenzie, A.	500	60	50	30
McKenzie, K. M.	500	60	50	30
McLean, Allan	400	60	50	30
McLean, John D.	800	60	50	30
McLeod, Hugh	1,000	60	50	30
McPherson, Robert	100	60	50	30
McRitchie, M. A.	300	60	50	30
Nicholson, Dan.	500	60	50	30
Payne, E. G.	5,000	65	55	27½
Reid, A. J. & Son	15,000	70	60	35
Turner, John	10,000	70	60	30

3. See answer to question No. 2.

FREIGHT RATES

Mr. STEWART (Lanark):

Is it the intention of the Government to introduce legislation at this session to continue the provisions of subsection (5) of section 325 of the Railway Act, 1919, or to in any way further suspend the freight rate provisions of chapter 5 of the Statutes of Canada 60-61, passed on the 29th of June, 1897, which would become operative on and after July 6 next, or to repeal or vary or in any way amend said chapter 5?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The subject of freight rates is being referred for consideration to a committee of the House, and is receiving the consideration of the Government. Should it be found necessary or desirable to introduce legislation at this session, intimation to this effect will be given in due course.

[Mr. W. C. Kennedy.]

ORDERS IN COUNCIL

Mr. CHAPLIN:

How many Orders in Council have been passed by the present Government since it came into office on the 29th day of December, 1921, up to and including the 31st of March, 1922?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING:

Orders in Council—

Establishing regulations under legislation	35
Administrative	608
Routine	91
		734
Treasury Board minutes—
Administrative	497
Routine	129
		626
Total		1,360

Mr. ANDERSON:

How many Orders in Council were passed by the late government during the months of January, February and March, 1921?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Orders in Council passed during January, February and March, 1921:

Orders in Council—
Administrative	878
Establishing regulations under legislation	30
Routine	62
		970
Treasury Board minutes—
Administrative	247
Routine	53
		300
Total		1,270

DOMINION NOTES

Mr. SPENCER:

1. How many dollars in Dominion notes were passed over by the hon. Finance Minister White to Mackenzie and Mann on the guaranteed bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway?

2. How many dollars in Dominion notes did Mr. White, as Minister of Finance, pay to the Grand Trunk Railway on bonded security?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

1. Under authority of Orders in Council detailed hereunder, $10,000,000 by way of the issue of Dominion notes were paid to the Canadian Northern Railway company, on the security of $12,500,000 bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway company deposited with the Minister of Finance.

Date and number of Order in Council	Amount of advance
Sept. 5, 1914, P.C. 2325	$2,500,000
Sept. 26, 1914, P.C. 2450	2,500,000
Oct. 24, 1914, P.C. 2670	2,000,000
Nov. 20, 1914, P.C. 2921	2,000,000
Dec. 16, 1914, P.C. 3170	1,000,000

2. Moneys were advanced about the same time to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company, but not to the parent Grand Trunk Railway company.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION—CHIEF OF ORGANIZATION BRANCH

Mr. FOURNIER:

1. What is the name and age of the chief of the Organization Branch of the Civil Service Commission?

2. When was he first appointed to the commission, in what capacity and at what salary?

3. Was he appointed after competitive examination?

4. What experience had he fitting him for this position?

5. On what date, month and year, was he appointed as chief of the said Organization Branch, and at what salary?

6. Was his appointment retroactive?

7. If so, to what date, month and year, and on whose recommendation?

8. Did he receive any back pay?

9. If so, what amount?

10. What increase has he received each year since 1918?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. C. V. Putman, 33 years.

2. Temporary, to assist in classification work November 15, 1918, at $1,500.

3. Yes, when permanently appointed.

4. Six and a half years' banking experience, eight years of engineering experience; nearly two years of experience in classification work.

5. January 11, 1922, at $3,840.

6. Yes.

7. April 1, 1921. The Civil Service Commission.

8. Yes.

9. $450.

10. 1918—Answered by No. 2.

1919—Appointed Acting Chief, Organization Branch, March 1919. Temporary $2,700.

1920—Appointed Assistant Chief, Organization Branch, and Acting Chief, March 1920. Permanent $3,060.

1921—Promoted to Chief, Organization Branch, permanent, at $3,840.

VENEREAL DISEASES

Mr. ROSS (Kingston):

1. What amounts are contributed yearly by the Department of Health to provincial authorities for purposes of combating venereal diseases?

2. What amount of such sum is unexpended by each province for the year 1921?

3. Has the federal Department of Health any control of the amount contributed?

Hon. Mr. BELAND:

1. For 1921 the following amounts were contributed: New Brunswick, $7,517.83; Nova Scotia, $10,573.86; Alberta, $11,979.62; Manitoba, $12,611.20; British Columbia, $14,628.19; Saskatchewan, $15,361.63; Quebec, $47,388.80; Ontario, $57,473.68. The province of Prince Edward Island declined to enter into the scheme; therefore, no contribution was made to that province.

2. None.

3. Yes.

ST. THOMAS-NIAGARA FALLS HIGHWAY

Mr. CHAPLIN:

1. Has any federal grant been paid on the cost of the provincial highway from St. Thomas to Niagara Falls, Ontario?

2. What is the distance from the Village of Canboro to the Village of Allanburg, via Dunnville and Welland, how many railway crossings are there, and has any federal grant been paid towards the cost of this section of the said highway?

3. What is the estimated cost of this section of the said highway?

4. What is the distance from Canboro village straight east, following the old Canboro or Talbot road to the village of Allanburg. How many railway crossings are there on this section, and was any estimate prepared for this route?

5. Why was such a big bow put in the road between Canboro and Allanburg villages, at such an increased mileage and expense?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. No.

2. 36.9 miles; eight railway crossings; no federal grant paid.

3. This section has not been separately estimated. Portion from Canboro to Dunnville estimated to cost at rate of $29,918 per mile.

4. 25.8 miles. Four railway crossings. This department has no information of any estimates made.

5. Road was located through Dunnville and Welland for following reasons: 1st. Following practice of the provincial government of reaching county seats and larger centres of each county. 2nd. With object of connecting in future with an extension of the provincial system on the old Garrison road through townships of Bertie, Humberstone and Wainfleet to Fort Erie.

WELLAND CANAL—TONNAGE

Mr. CHURCH:

How many vessels, and of what tonnage, passed through the Welland Canal during each year since 1913?

Hon. Mr. ROBB:

Year	Vessels		Cargo in Tons
	No.	Registered Tonnage
1913	3,229	3,164,530	3,570,714
1914	3,692	3,635,695	3,860,969
1915	2,922	2,855,195	3,061,012
1916	2,939	2,513,619	2,544,964
1917	3,251	2,776,261	2,490,542
1918	3,192	2,595,389	2,174,298
1919	3,213	2,616,014	2,170,779
1920	3,124	2,528,256	2,276,072
1921	3,770	3,329,371	3,076,422

STEAM RAILWAY FREIGHT—TORONTO

Mr. CHURCH:

What was the total gross freight tonnage entering and leaving Toronto on steam railways since 1914?

Hon. Mr. ROBB: Information in full not available, but a record begun in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, September, 1920, shows the following for the year ended October 31, 1921:—

Freight loaded on cars in Toronto .. .. 1,155,599 tons
Freight unloaded from cars in Toronto .. .. 4,600,301 tons

VICKERS DRY DOCK

Mr. MARLER:

1. What subsidy, if any. was paid per annum by the late government to Vickers Dry Dock, Montreal?

2. On what valuation was this subsidy based?

3. What does said valuation include in the way of plant, tools, machinery, fixed assets and so forth?

4. Was subsidy originally intended to be paid only on construction of actual dock?

5. Is the subsidy to be continued?

6. If so, on what basis and on what valuation?

Hon. Mr. KING (Kootenay):

1. $105,000.00.

2 and 3. Valuation includes: Buildings, $561,075; fixed plant, $199,915; machine tools in machine and ship departments, $479,955; electrical equipment, $178,495; patent self-docking floating dock of 25,000 tons lifting capacity, $1,775,000; rent to be paid, capitalized at 4 per cent, $353,015; interest, during construction of plant, 5 per cent for half year on $3,000,000, $75,000; total, $3,622,455.

4. No.

5. Yes.

6. The value established was $3,000,000, and under the Dry Dock Subsidies Act 9-10 Edw. VII., chap. 17 (1910), a subsidy at the rate of 3½ per cent is payable annually for a period of 35 years from January 1st, 1914.

PARLIAMENT HILL MONUMENTS

Mr. St. PERE:

1. Is it the intention of the Federal Government to erect on Parliament Hill monuments of our celebrated statesmen?

2. If so, when will the monument of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier be erected?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING:

1. The policy pursued in the past will be continued.

2. In the near future.

MR. E. BERTRAND

Mr. PREVOST:

1. Is Mr. E. Bertrand a permanent official of the Labour Department at Montreal?

2. If so, does he receive a lower salary than others holding similar positions at Vancouver, Calgary and Toronto, and what is the reason for the distinction?

Hon. Mr. MURDOCK:

1. Mr. T. Bertrand is a permanent official of the Labour Department at Montreal.

2. Mr. Bertrand was classified by the Civil Service Commission as "Junior Wage Investigator and Mediator," with a salary range of $1,500 to $1,860. The Fair Wages Officers at Vancouver, Calgary, and Toronto were each given, by the Civil Service Commission, the classification "Wage Investigator and Mediator," with a salary range of $1,980 to $2,400.

Mr. W. E. CAMPBELL

Mr. BOWEN:

1. Has W. E. Campbell been recently appointed to advise the Minister of Railways or Deputy Minister of Railways, or the Board of Railway Commissioners in regard to traffic matters, or has he been appointed in any capacity, and for what duties?

2. If so, is such appointment permanent or temporary, and if the latter, for what period?

3. Is Mr. W. E. Campbell the gentleman who has held the position of Secretary of the Canadian Freight Association, Western Lines?

4. If so, has he resigned such position?

5. Is Mr. Campbell's appointment for the special purpose of advising the government regarding the Crow's Nest Pass agreement?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. W. E. Campbell has been appointed as a rate expert to assist the Board of Railway Commissioners in an advisory capacity.

2. Is employed by the month for such period as may be found necessary.

3. Was secretary of the association in question until September 18th last, when he was appointed chairman.

4. At present Mr. Campbell is on leave of absence from his late duties.

5. No.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—KAMLOOPS-KELOWNA BRANCH

Mr. McBRIDE:

1. What has been the total amount of expenditure in connection with the Kamloops-Kelowna Branch of the Canadian National Railways?

2. When does the Canadian National Railway Board intend to complete the said branch?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. Expenditure to December 31st, 1921, $5,268,156.45.

2. Completion of this branch as well as other branches deferred until financial conditions permit construction.

CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT FUND—INCOME TAX

Mr. CHURCH:

1. Did the Department of Finance, during the month of March, send out a circular letter to the accountants of the several public departments at Ottawa enclosing a statement showing the amount of interest added for the calendar year 1921 to the Retirement Fund accounts of the several employees of the public service, from whose salaries Retirement Fund reduction is made monthly?

2. Did such circular letter request the accountants of the several departments "to notify the employees concerned that the amount of this interest is to be included in their declaration of income tax for 1921, providing they come within the scope of the Dominion of Canada Income War Tax Act?

3. Upon whose authority was such letter communicated to the several departments?

4. Before the notification was sent out, was it submitted to the Honourable the Minister of Finance for his approval?

5. Was the opinion of the Department of Justice obtained as to the legality of such notification? If so, what was the opinion of that department?

6. Is it obligatory or optional on the part of any permanent employee of the Government not on the old "Superannuation List" to come under the Retirement Fund?

7. If obligatory, can an employee paying to the Retirement Fund deduct from his declaration of income the amount of his annual contribution to such fund?

8. Is the interest allowed on Retirement Fund contributions paid annually to the officials affected, or is it retained by the Government?

9. Is a Civil Servant who has to pay income tax annually upon the full amount of his income, less the statutory deduction, taxed both for Retirement Fund principal and interest withheld from him by the government?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. Upon the request of the Commissioner of Taxation for the convenience of the members of the Civil Service concerned.

4. No.

5. No.

6. Obligatory.

7. No.

8. Interest on Retirement Fund accounts is retained by the Government and added to the amount at the credit of the respective officials.

9. A civil servant's salary is subject to income tax law and no allowance is made for deductions on account of Retirement Fund. The annual increment of interest on retirement fund balances is considered as part of income and subject to income tax law.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—PENSION FUND

Mr. GAUVREAU:

1. Is it the intention of the Department of Railways and Canals or the Board of Commissioners of the Canadian National Railways to reorganize the pension fund of the said railways so as to increase the pensions to employees?
2. If so, when?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. Investigation is now being conducted, and it is hoped shortly to present for consideration a complete pension scheme for the Canadian National Railways.
2. Answered by No. 1.

Mr. GAUVREAU:

1. Is it the intention of the Department of Railways to increase the pension paid to the old employees of the Intercolonial Railway?
2. If so, when?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. The current estimates of the Department of Railways includes a vote of $50,000, the same as last year, to provide for increasing the minimum compensation from $20 to $30 per month for employees who have been superannuated under the present Provident Fund Act of the Intercolonial Railway.
2. Answered by No. 1.

GRAND ANSE, C.B., MAIL SERVICE

Mr. JONES:

1. When were tenders received by the Post Office Department for carrying the mails from Grand Anse, via Arichat and West Arichat, Cape Breton?
2. From whom were tenders received and for what amount in each case?
3. To whom was the contract awarded, on what date, and what was the amount of the tender?

Hon. Mr. MURPHY:

1. November 4, 1921.
2. (a) C. J. Terrio, $1,742; J. Doiron, $1,765; S. A. Boucher, $2,000; E. C. Reinhardt, $2,000; G. Landry, $2,200. (b) These tenders being considered somewhat excessive for the amount of work involved the tenderers were given an opportunity to modify their offers and the following were received: C. J. Terrio, $1,700; J. Doiron, $1,700; S. A. Boucher, $1,750; E. C. Reinhardt, $1,878; G. Landry, $1,900.
3. C. J. Terrio, the present contractor, having rendered satisfactory service and having completed arrangements to carry on the work, the contract was awarded to him on April 10, 1922, at the rate of $1,700 per annum.

[Mr. Fielding.]

POSTAL RECEIPTS

Mr. ARTHURS:

1. What were the total Post Office receipts during each year, from 1911 to 1921, inclusive, in the town of Parry Sound, Ontario?
2. What towns or cities in Canada, having equal or less average Post Office receipts, have public buildings used for Post Office purposes?

Hon. Mr. MURPHY:

1. Parry Sound, Ontario,—1911, $6,951.36; 1912, $6,790.81; 1913, $7,397.54; 1914, $7,906.29; 1915, $7,743.09; 1916, $15,919.55; 1917, $17,807.23; 1918, $18,418.46; 1919, $17,844.86; 1920, $14,906.44; 1921, $14,443.80.

2. Acton, Ontario, $6,728.04; Alexandria, Ontario, $8,729.45; Almonte, Ontario, $9,392.21; Amherstburg, Ontario, $8,267.11; Arnprior, Ontario, $14,301.65; Athens, Ontario, $3,983.06; Aurora, Ontario, $11,192.40; Aylmer West, Ontario, $12,897.70; Bowmanville, Ontario, $12,672.36; Burford, Ontario, $2,715.55; Bracebridge, Ontario, $12,668.39; Cardinal, Ontario, $5,058.06; Carleton Place, Ontario, $13,424.05; Cayuga, Ontario, $4,754.35; Chesley, Ontario, $8,586.80; Clinton, Ontario, $9,138.11; Deseronto, Ontario, $5,749.12; Dresden, Ontario, $6,230.82; Eganville, Ontario, $5,568.90; Elmira, Ontario, $6,213.97; Elora, Ontario, $6,287.63; Essex, Ontario, $8,997.06; Fergus, Ontario, $14,644.76; Glencoe, Ontario, $5,766.47; Grimsby, Ontario, $11,126.71; Hanover, Ontario, $13,112.12; Harriston, Ontario, $10,147,95; Hawkesbury, Ontario, $9,321.04; Kemptville, Ontario, $6,488.07; Kincardine, Ontario, $9,869.27; Lakefield, Ontario, $4,705.47; Leamington, Ontario, $14,279.30; Listowel, Ontario, $11,738.86; Markham, Ontario, $3,751.86; Milton West, Ontario, $8,932.00; Milverton, Ontario, $5,050.58; Mitchell, Ontario, $8,374.85; Mount Forest, Ontario, $10,139.10; Newmarket, Ontario, $14,897.91; Norwich, Ontario, $6,692.70; Orangeville, Ontario, $10,725.61; Palmerston, Ontario, $6,304.04; Park Hill, Ontario, $7,021.85; Petrolia, Ontario, $13,213.95; Port Colborne, Ontario, $13,933.98; Port Perry, Ontario, $5,764.97; Prescott, Ontario, $11,284.25; Seaforth, Ontario, $10,447.91; Shelburne, Ontario, $7,186.21; Strathroy, Ontario, $11,580.97; Tilbury, Ontario, $5,414.10; Tillsonburg, Ontario, $14,588.54; Uxbridge, Ontario, $8,555.87; Walkerton, Ontario, $11,046.75; Whitby, Ontario, $11,631.47; Wingham, Ontario, $10,875.13; Acton Vale, P.Q. $3,176.67; Arthabaska, P.Q. $3,393.82; Aylmer East, P.Q. $3,476.40; Berthier (en haut), P.Q. $5,715.66; Buckingham, P.Q. $7,249.63; Coaticook,

P.Q. $10,899.58; Cookshire, P.Q. $6,395.45; Drummondville East, P.Q. $7,569.51; East Angus, P.Q. $6,156.29; Farnham, P.Q. $8,413.70; Granby, P.Q. $14,707.63; Iberville, P.Q. $3,044.45; Jonquieres, P.Q. $5,033.70; Knowlton, P.Q. $5,316.55; Lachute, P.Q. $7,829.12; Lake Megantic, P.Q. $6,853.85; La Malbaie, P.Q. $4,544.47; La Prairie, P.Q. $3,154.18; Louiseville, P.Q. $3,676.73; L'Assomption, P.Q. $2,687.87; Levis, P.Q. $7,557.21; Magog, P.Q. $8,782.20; Marieville, P.Q. $2,865.69; Matane, P.Q. $5,418.60; Montmagny, P.Q. $7,397.36; Nicolet, P.Q. $5,109.35; Pierreville, P.Q. $3,109.47; Plessisville, P.Q. $4,807.22; Richmond, P.Q. $10,082.27; Rigaud, P.Q. $3,118.18; Rimouski, P.Q. $9,482.42; Roberval, P.Q. $7,869.25; Rock Island, P.Q. $8,517.62; Riviéré du Loup (en bas), P.Q. $7,018.48; Ste. Agathe des Monts, P.Q. $8,380.99; St. Eustache, P.Q. $2,883.59; St. Gabriel de Brandon, P. Q. $2,663.47; St. Jerome, P.Q. $8,505.02; Ste. Therese de Blainville, P.Q. $4,872.75; Shawville, P.Q. $4,273.92; Sorel, P.Q. $11,188.16; Terrebonne, P.Q. $5,080.10; Valleyfield, P.Q. $10,587.32; Victoriaville, P.Q. $12,744.07; Annapolis Royal, N.S. $6,750.37; Arichat, N.S. $1,763.72; Baddeck, N.S. $2,787.91; Canso, N.S. $4,589.84; Digby, N.S. $8,670.45; Guysboro, N.S. $2,662.09; Inverness, N.S. $4,436.21; Liverpool, N.S. $9,524.69; Lunenburg, N.S. $11,327.67; Parrsboro, N.S. $6,487.50; Pictou, N.S. $13,253.04; Shelburne, N.S. $4,865.60; Springhill, N.S. $9,073.12; Sydney Mines, N.S. $9,638.99; Trenton, N.S. $5,343.76; Westville, N.S. $6,611.07; Wolfville, N.S. $11,806.23; Bathurst, N.B. $11,829.73; Chatham, N.B. $12,938.56; Dalhousie, N.B. $4,988.22; Fairville, N.B. $4,831.16; Grand Falls, N.B. $5,605.47; Hampton Station, N.B. $2,685.32; Hartland, N.B. $4,778.99; Hillsborough, N.B. $2,880.97; Maryville, N.B. $2,194.21; Milltown, N.B. $2,314.69; Newcastle, N.B. $12,891.64; Richibucto, N.B. $2,754.80; Sussex, N.B. $14,361.47; Georgetown, P.E.I. $1,450.40; Montague, P.E.I. $4,839.36; Souris East, P.E.I. $4,709.13; Tignish, P.E.I. $2,593.95; Carman, Man. $8,560.72; Emerson, Man. $3,936.73; Minnedosa, Man. $9,457.22; Morden, Man. $7,495.58; Neepawa, Man. $11,538.85; Selkirk, Man. $7,717.51; Souris, Man. $8,689.86; Stonewall, Man. $4,912.16; The Pas, Man. $6,897.13; Virden, Man. $9,674.04; Battleford, Sask. $9,585.57; Gravelbourg, Sask. $8,591.96; Humboldt, Sask. $11,719.28; Lloydminster, Sask. $9,913.14; Maple Creek, Sask. $10,746.59; Melfort, Sask. $12,965.21; Bassano, Alberta, $7,050.96; Westaskiwin, Alberta, $14,777.99; Ashcroft, B.C. $5,131.48; Chilliwack, B.C. $13,151.34; Comox, B.C. $1,024.00; Cumberland, B.C. $6,504.98; Duncan's Station, B.C. $11,700.71; Grand Forks, B.C. $7,857.73; Greenwood, B.C. $2,765.48; Ladysmith, B.C. $5,963.30; Port Alberni, B.C. $4,618.32; Rossland, B.C. $8,480.85; Union Bay, B.C. $1,636.73.

CANADIAN MERCANTILE MARINE—PASSENGER TRAFFIC

Mr. MARTELL:

1. Was any person employed or any Commission appointed by the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Railway during the year 1921, to proceed to England to investigate or report upon the question of passenger traffic on the Atlantic Ocean in connection with the Canadian Mercantile Marine?
2. If so, who was appointed?
3. What amount was paid for services rendered?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. No.
2. See answer to No. 1.
3. See answer to No. 1.

QUESTIONS PASSED AS ORDERS FOR RETURNS

Mr. LOGAN:

1. What was the quantity of coal imported from the United States into Canada in the years 1918-19, 1919-20, 1920-21 by the Government of Canada for use upon
   (a) Railways;
   (b) Federal buildings and public works?
2. What was the amount of coal imported by the Government of Canada from United States during the above mentioned years for the use upon railways
   (a) East of Lake Superior;
   (b) West of Lake Superior?
3. What was the cost of coal per ton imported by the Government of Canada from the United States during the above mentioned years
   (a) At point of production;
   (b) At point of Canadian delivery?

Mr. LANCTOT:

1. What is the total amount of the bonus paid to civil servants up to April 1, 1921?
2. What is the total amount paid to civil servants on account of annual statutory increase for the fiscal years 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1921?

Mr. SHAW:

1. What offices, buildings or parts of buildings are rented for Government purposes in the city of Calgary?
2. From what owners and through what rental agents are such offices, buildings or parts of buildings rented?
3. What rental is paid in each case?
4. For what period are such offices, buildings or parts of buildings rented?
5. Which of such leases, if any, have been renewed by the present Government?

Mr. SUTHERLAND:

1. What amount of compensation has been paid out of the vote for health of animals, for cattle slaughtered affected with tuberculosis, during each of the years ending March 31, 1920, 1921 and 1922?

2. What proportion of this amount was paid for animals slaughtered in herds supplying milk to the people in cities, towns and villages; not necessarily pure bred animals, during the years referred to?

3. What proportion of the total grant paid was for animals under what is known as the accredited herd system of pure bred animals, during each of the years referred to?

4. What was the amount paid out in connection with each of the pure breeds for which compensation was paid during each of the above years?

5. What was the average compensation per animal paid in connection with each breed referred to in question four, during each of the above years?

6. What was the total compensation paid in connection with each breed in each province during each of the three years referred to?

7. How many veterinary inspectors have been employed by the health of animals branch of the Department of Agriculture in connection with the health of animals during each of the three years referred to?

8. What has been the total amount paid in salaries to inspectors under the health of animals branch during the years above mentioned?

THE GRAIN TRADE

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF RECONSTRUCTION OF WHEAT BOARD

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): With reference to the fourth report of the Select Standing Committee on Agriculture and Colonization, in which the House concurred on the eleventh instant, I may say that the Government has obtained the written opinion of the law officers of the Crown upon the question thereby suggested as to the constitutionality of the reconstruction of the Canadian Wheat Board, and that opinion is now submitted for the information of the House. I would ask the permission of the House to have the opinion printed in Hansard so that it will be available in that form to hon. members.

Mr. SPEAKER: Is it the pleasure of the House that permission be granted for the publication of this document in Hansard?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

(The document referred to is as follows):

OTTAWA, April 17, 1922.

Memorandum for the Minister of Justice:

The House of Commons on 11th instant having concurred in a report of the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization recommending "that the question of the constitutionality of the reconstruction of the Wheat Board, with the powers conferred thereon by the Orders-in-Council establishing or extending the same, be referred to the law officers of the Crown for their reasoned opinion", I submit for your consideration the following statement of my opinion.

The Canadian Wheat Board to which the resolution refers was constituted under authority of an Order-in-Council, No. 1589, of July 31, 1919, which was sanctioned, as therein expressed, "under and in virtue of the War Measures Act", and there are several amending Orders, the principal one being No. 1741 of August 18, 1919. The powers, duties and rights of the Board as set forth in these Orders-in-Council were by the terms of an Act respecting the Canadian Wheat Board, Chapter 9 of 1919, second session, continued in force for eighteen months from the passing of that Act, November 10, 1919, and the Governor-in-Council was thereby empowered to fill vacancies and to make regulations for the extension, conduct or management of the business of the Board. The Orders-in-Council and the rules, regulations and orders made thereunder by the Board were moreover by the provisions of an Act concerning the Canadian Wheat Board, Chapter 5 of 1921, ratified and confirmed as and from their respective dates, and it was also thereby enacted that the Board should continue to exercise its powers so far as might be necessary and convenient for winding up and concluding the business of the Board.

By the Orders-in-Council the Board was empowered to make such enquiries and investigations as were necessary to ascertain what supplies of wheat were or might be available from time to time; the locality and ownership of these supplies; the transportation and elevator facilities available therefor, and generally the conditions connected with the marketing of wheat.

The Board was also empowered to buy and sell wheat or wheat products at any point in Canada; to pay therefor the prices to be scheduled by the Board and approved by the Governor-in-Council; to sell wheat to the millers in Canada at prices and upon conditions fixed by the Board; to store, transport and market wheat; to sell quantities in excess of domestic requirements to purchasers overseas or in other countries at such prices as might be obtainable; to provide for the retention and distribution in Canada of seed wheat required for the season of 1920; to fix maximum prices or margins of profit at which flour and other products made from wheat delivered to millers might be sold, and to fix standards of quality of flour; to purchase flour from millers at prices to be fixed by the Board, and to sell the flour in Canada or in other countries; to take possession of and to sell and deliver wheat stored in any elevator or warehouse, or in railway cars or Canadian boats, and to deal with the same as if acquired by the Board in ordinary course; to control by license or otherwise the buying and selling of wheat and wheat products in Canada, and the export and sales of flour outside of Canada; to allocate Canadian lake tonnage and to distribute cars for rail shipments; to provide that no person, firm or corporation other than the Board should buy wheat, operate any elevator or warehouse where wheat is received, or handle wheat on commission or otherwise, unless licensed by the Board; to require that any wheat sold or purchased in Canada should be delivered to the Board, or to its order, in accordance with such regulations as the Board might make; to require every licensee of the Board accepting delivery of wheat to pay the purchaser by way of an advance or cash payment such sum or sums as might be directed by the Board; to order any person holding wheat stored in any elevator or warehouse or in railway cars or Canadian boats to sell and dispose of the wheat to any purchaser named by the Board on such terms as the Board might direct, and it was provided that any such order of the Board should pass to the purchaser the property in the wheat therein described.

The Board was also empowered to prohibit the export out of Canada, or the importation into Canada, of any wheat or wheat products otherwise than in accordance with the orders or regulations of the Board, and to prescribe penalties for contravention of the orders or regulations of the Board.

There were some other powers conferred by these orders, of a subordinate or incidental character, which need not be more fully set out because the foregoing statement indicates sufficiently for present purposes the objects of the board and the scope and character of its powers.

It will be perceived that these powers naturally group themselves under two heads; there are enabling or facultative provisions, and there are compulsory provisions. As to those of the former class, I apprehend that Parliament has undoubted authority to constitute a board for the purpose of buying and selling, and to enable it to contract and to exercise such powers as are necessary or incidental to a voluntary undertaking.

The board is, however, invested with compulsory powers, and for the purpose of considering the authority of Parliament to constitute a commission clothed with these powers, it is well to mention some of them separately. They include (a) the fixing of maximum prices or margins of profit at which flour may be sold by the millers; (b) the compulsory taking of wheat in store or in transit subject to compensation fixed by the board, including power by order of the board to transfer the property in any wheat so stored or in transit to such purchaser, and upon such terms, as the board may nominate and prescribe; (c) prohibition of buying and selling wheat in Canada upon commission or otherwise, and the operating of elevators or warehouses for wheat, except by license of the board; (d) authority to require delivery to the board of all wheat sold or purchased in Canada; (e) regulation by the board of the dealings of its licensees.

These coercive powers would be exercisable by the reconstructed board in the provinces, and they directly affect property and the exercise of civil rights in the provinces; they enable the board generally, not only to have a monopoly of the trade in wheat, but also to regulate the price of flour manufactured in a province, even from wheat grown in that province; they may be exercised to forbid trading in the provinces except by Dominion license. They are therefore powers of the character described by the British North America Act 1867 as relating to matters coming within "property and civil rights in the province," or "matters of a merely local or private nature in the province." Consequently, upon well established principles or interpretation, the reconstruction of the board with these powers is competent to the Parliament of Canada only if the necessary enacting authority be found in the enumerated Dominion powers of legislation, in which case the prima facie provincial powers are overborne.

Comprehensive authority is conferred upon the Parliament of Canada to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada in relation to all matters not coming within the classes of subjects assigned exclusively to the provinces, and moreover there are enumerated subjects as to which the authority of Parliament is exclusive; one of these is the class of subjects described as "militia, military and naval service and defence," including the necessary or incidental powers exercisable in time of war for the defence of the country. No question is suggested as to the authority of Parliament, or of the Governor in Council under the War Measures Act and the confirming Acts, to give effect to the Orders in Council under which the former Wheat Board was established and exercised the powers expressed to be conferred upon it. The temporary nature of these powers is evidenced, not only by the Orders in Council themselves, but also by chapter 5 of 1921, whereby the Orders in Council were continued in force merely for the necessary and convenient purpose of winding up and concluding the unsettled business of the board, and thus it is plain that the provisions affecting the former board were sanctioned only as war measures.

The present inquiry is concerned with the question as to whether Parliament may in the existing circumstances reconstruct the board with its former powers, and it does not appear whether it be proposed to reconstruct upon a permanent or a temporary footing; that consideration, however, becomes immaterial if, as I think, the board cannot now be reconstituted as a war measure.

It might have been suggested that the exclusive power of Parliament with regard to "the regulation of trade and commerce" would extend to regulation of the wheat trade in the manner provided by the Orders in Council, but this power, comprehensive enough in its mere statement, has been limited by judicial interpretation; and, compatibly with the decisions, it does not comprise the powers which would be necessary for the reconstruction of the Wheat Board.

The insurance trade was regulated by means of a system of licenses under the provisions of a series of statutes enacted by the Parliament of Canada from the time of the Union until 1910, but when the Consolidated Act of that year came to be reviewed by the courts it was held, both by the Supreme Court of Canada and by the judicial committee of the Privy Council, that the legislation was ultra vires, and their lordships of the judicial committee in pronouncing the judgment held that, as a result of the decisions, "it must now be taken that the authority to legislate for the regulation of trade and commerce does not extend to the regulation by a licensing system of a particular trade in which Canadians would otherwise be free to engage in the provinces." Attorney General for Canada vs. Attorney General for Alberta, 1916 Appeal Cases, at page 596.

Similarly in the recent case with regard to the Board of Commerce Act, and the Combines and Fair Prices Act, although the judges of the Supreme Court of Canada were equally divided in opinion, it was held by the judicial committee that the legislation, which was designed to prohibit the hoarding of the necessaries of life and to require the sale of them at fair prices, could not be upheld under the power to regulate trade and commerce.

It may be observed that the wheat trade is in some of its aspects not merely local within the province of production. The greater part of the crop in the wheat growing provinces is exported, not only from the province of growth, but from the Dominion, and the trade thus assumes an interprovincial or foreign character; it is also a trade of great dimensions and importance affecting the interests of the whole Dominion; but in like manner the insurance trade in itself was not the less interprovincial or extra local; and moreover the fair distribution of the necessaries of life at reasonable prices, which seems to have been the dominant motive of the Board of Commerce and Fair Prices legislation, was a project of general importance and of common interest, potentially affecting the whole body politic.

In the Prohibition Case, 1896 Appeal Cases, at page 361, their lordships of the Judicial Committee expressed their conviction that "some matters, in their origin local and provincial, might attain such dimensions as to affect the body politic of the Dominion, and to justify the Canadian Parliament in passing laws for their regulation or abolition in the interests of the Dominion"; and apparently their lordships upheld the Canada Temperance Act, which was then under consideration, upon the ground that the dimensions of the liquor trade were such as to withdraw the particular subject matter of that Act from provincial powers. We are told however that the principle enunciated by the Prohibition Case is to be applied with great caution, and with reluctance, and that its recognition as relevant can be justified only after scrutiny sufficient to render it clear that the circumstances are abnormal. A constitutional power which is beset by these conditions, and which moreover depends upon the dimensions of its subject matter, is not a very safe one to rely upon; the principle has in fact been made effective only with relation to the Canada Temperance Act, notwithstanding that it was afterwards advocated in several cases where the subject of the enactment in question was held to remain provincial, although not lacking in growth, magnitude or general importance. Therefore I do not think that the dimensions doctrine can be successfully invoked to reconstitute the compulsory powers which were possessed by the Wheat Board.

It is clear that so long as a subject matter of legislation finds place within the enumerations of provincial powers it does not belong to the Dominion under its general authority to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada. It is certain that the essential compulsory powers of the Wheat Board are prima facie included in the provincial enumeration of property and civil rights or local matters in the provinces. In my opinion these powers do not lie within the field which may be occupied by the execution of the Dominion power to regulate trade and commerce, as that power has been expounded in successive decisions by the ultimate tribunal of appeal; and I think it may be affirmed without uncertainty that the necessary reconstructive powers are not comprehended in any other of the Dominion enumerations. While I do not suggest a doubt that conditions of export from the Dominion and foreign trade relations may be regulated by Parliament, I am impressed with the view that these powers cannot be made a cover for legislation which denies the freedom of contract, capacity to buy and sell and the maintenance and exercise of proprietary rights which exist under the provincial laws. The powers of criminal legislation which belong exclusively to the Dominion are in their application to this case of an ancillary character and cannot as such be invoked to afford a sanction for measures in themselves ultra vires. Consequently it is my opinion that the reconstruction of the Wheat Board in the present circumstances with the powers conferred thereon by the Orders-in-Council is a project constitutionally incompetent to the Parliament of Canada.

E. L. NEWCOMBE.

I concur,
Sir LOMER GOUIN,
D. D. McKENZIE.

NOTICE OF MOTION TRANSFERRED

On the motion:

For a copy of all letters, telegrams, memoranda, reports to Council, Orders in Council and other documents in the possession of or under the control of the Government, relating to the alleged application of the British Empire Steel Corporation for incorporation under the Companies Act or any other Statute of the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. L. H. MARTELL (Hants): Mr. Speaker, I asked that this notice of motion for the production of papers be transferred to the debatable motions, and I understood that an order of the House was issued accordingly. I should like that to be done if possible.

Mr. SPEAKER: The motion will be transferred accordingly.

UNOPPOSED MOTIONS FOR PAPERS

Mr. PUTNAM:

For a return showing a list of the amounts paid, and the persons or firms to whom they were paid, in respect of maintaining the price on the stock markets of Victory Bonds, from the year 1916 to the end of the year 1921. Also a copy of all letters, telegrams, accounts, receipts, memoranda, agreements and other documents relating to this matter.

Mr. SIMPSON:

For a copy of Timber License issued to the Union Bank of Canada or any other parties to cut timber on Indian Lands in the Township of Laird, District of Algoma, together with a copy of all correspondance, letters, memoranda, telegrams and other documents, passing between the Indian Agent at Sault Ste. Marie, the Licensees or any other parties, and the Department of Indian Affairs, in connection therewith. Also a statement of all dues paid the Department in respect to said License.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi) moved:

That, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable that legislation be introduced during the present session to prohibit the adoption of Daylight Saving Time in any part of Canada.

He said: Mr. Speaker, the resolution which stands in my name is, I think, of the greatest interest to the people of Canada at the present time. During the war daylight saving was introduced in Canada as a war-time measure, in order that the people of this country should be able to devote an extra hour of the evening to cultivating land, especially in the cities, where, by working on garden plots during this extra hour of daylight, people were able to cultivate a good deal of ground in the aggregate, and so help production. At that time this Parliament enacted a measure enforcing daylight saving throughout the country, and the people without exception accepted the change of time. Since the war ended, this Parliament has not seen fit to re-enact daylight saving legislation, but many of the cities have adopted the change. We find that as a rule the larger cities, through an order of their municipal councils, adopt daylight saving for themselves, but the smaller towns and villages all go by standard time. The result is that there is no uniformity in the clock, of this country, and this causes a great deal of confusion, and even some cases of unhappiness. I submit that if we must have daylight saving time—and I for one do not approve of it—the change should be adopted throughout the whole country, as it would be better to have a uniform time than the present bungle.

The railways, as members of the House all know, are still running on standard time, but in order to meet the convenience of their terminals, which are, of course, always in the cities, they advance their schedules one hour commencing with the first of May, so that on and after the first of May if you are going to leave Ottawa or any other city by a train scheduled to leave the station at three o'clock railroad time, that train leaves at four o'clock city time. If you leave Ottawa at four o'clock and travel to a station an hour's distance away, you will find that according to the local time there it is still four o'clock, whereas by Ottawa time it is five o'clock. This discrepancy creates a great deal of confusion in the minds of the people. As indicating the feeling of people throughout the Dominion on this matter, since giving notice of this resolution I have received a great many letters from all parts of the country commending me for bringing the motion forward and expressing the hope that legislation will be introduced during the present session to prohibit any municipality from advancing its clocks at will. I do not wish to weary the House by reading all these letters but it may be worth while to quote from a few of them. I will commence by reading an excerpt from a letter from the county of Chateauguay:

It is a matter for congratulation to have at least one member of Parliament who is brave enough to rise in his seat and make a stand in favour of the general public. The so-called "Daylight Saving" fad is class legislation of the worst kind, as its chief beneficiaries are the class who already have leisure enough. It is certainly not a measure calculated to be the greatest good to the greatest number, and is without doubt a detriment to agriculture. We wish you success for the manly stand which you have taken and trust that you will keep on with the good work.

Here is a communication from Ontario:

All success to you with your Bill to prohibit forever and ever the so-called daylight saving which is nothing else than a death knell to all people and especially children. Is there one who can come forth and show where anything was gained by such outrageous Acts? Who first put the clock back? Was it not Germany? Why should any civilized people follow their method? Since reading in Thursday's paper I have spoken to a great many, and have heard the greatest praise for the noble stand you are about to take. I will venture to say if a vote was taken nine out of ten would vote against any such measure; and the voice of the people is what all governments should seek on all important questions. I hope no dissenting voice will be heard when you bring in your notice.

Here is another, from New Westminster:

We, Local 134 of Amalgamated Associates of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, endorse your stand on Daylight Saving. Passed at our regular meeting.

I have a letter from the city of Toronto which reads:

Notice in Mail and Empire of 23rd you are going to bring in a bill to prohibit daylight saving in the Dominion, and I, and thousands of others, earnestly pray that you will succeed in carrying it, as daylight saving is the worst fraud that ever was imposed on white people. We have a member here called T. Church. His hobby is daylight saving. He has tried to run this city—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. KAY (Reading):

—and will try and run the House in Ottawa, so please tell him where he belongs.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Name.

Mr. KAY (Reading):

Get every farmer member to work and vote against that cursed daylight saving, for if it carries we might as well leave the country. So please fight it to the last ditch, and you will confer a favour on thousands of the sensible, thinking people of this Dominion.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Name?

Mr. CHURCH: I would ask my hon. friend, who is the writer of that letter? I think my hon. friend should lay the communication on the table.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. KAY: From another letter I take the following:

I learn that you are good enough to interest yourself in what has become, and proven to be, a great hardship and annoyance to the working classes in Canada. May I ask that you make a special effort this session of Parliament to have daylight saving prohibited in every city and town in the Dominion. . . . It is a fight of the weak against the strong with money influence only. As a mother of five growing children, labouring from six o'clock a.m. sun time every day in the year, you will appreciate how a thing like this wrecks one's nerves, especially women and children, not speaking of the hardship worked on the many who go to their daily occupation at a very early hour. The movement is purely a pleasure one to benefit those with time and money. It inconveniences no one by the abolishing of it. And why should the poor and less fortunate classes of this country be bumped around to please a certain set?

Here is a quotation from another letter:

Your proposed prohibition of daylight saving is the first actual attempt that I have seen to stop the growth of the idea that the farmers are a class of ignorant peasants whose interests do not deserve any consideration when they conflict with those of the superior beings who dwell in the cities.

Another letter contains the following:

As a reader of the Parliamentary news I wish to state that I am delighted to see that you are taking steps to prevent the further imposition upon this country of what is known as "daylight saving." Your action, if successful, will prevent further interference with "Standard Sun Time," and from what I personally know of conditions, I feel sure that you should receive the support of every member, whether Liberal or Progressive or Conservative. Personally, I feel that any member failing to support you would surely be untrue to his constituents. The farmers are the backbone of our country, and it is the time requirements of the farmers which should therefore be considered first, last and always.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I rise to a point of order. In the first place, I desire to ask a ruling upon the question whether or not the hon. gentleman is in order in reading anonymous communications, particularly communications reflecting upon members of the House. It has been held, I think, upon more than one occasion that this is entirely out of order, and should be deleted from Hansard, and, on previous occasions such letters have been deleted from Hansard. I also desire to raise a question as to the competency of the House to deal with this matter. If we cannot deal with the question properly and authoritatively, we ought not to waste our time. I desire a ruling as to whether this matter is within the competency of the Dominion Parliament.

Mr. PARENT: No point or order—it is a speech.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: What is asked is that the municipalities should be prevented from changing the time. I would like to know whether we have anything to do with that, and whether that is not a question of provincial authority?

Mr. SPEAKER: As to the second point, I think the hon. member from Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) is perfectly in order. The daylight-saving legislation has already formed the subject of several debates, if my memory serves me well. At least on two occasions this question came before the House. In the first instance the House took the view that as a war measure the time should be altered. Later on, as a result of petitions which were sent from all parts of the country, the question was now entertained. At all events, in my humble judgment, I think the question is one which can be debated in this House, as it affects not only the time in certain municipalities, but the time all over Canada.

As to the first objection raised by the hon. member for West York (Sir Henry Drayton), an hon. member speaks to the point if he quotes an opinion in support of his resolution. Of course, if he quotes from correspondence it is always available, and must always be available, to the House, and no anonymous letter should be read to the House. I have followed the letters read by the hon. member for Missisquoi, and I do not think there is anything in any of these letters reflecting on the character of any hon. gentleman. But I would ask the hon. member not to repeat the reading of these letters as I think one or two letters will cover the point. There should be no tedious repetition of letters even as supporting an argument.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I take it, Mr. Speaker, that the signatures of these letters must be given.

The SPEAKER: The custom is, when a letter is read to the House, that the signature must be given.

Mr. KAY: I was going to deal with the question of the golfing enthusiasts in a short time. I quite understand that the member from West York, (Sir Henry Drayton) being a very enthusiastic golfer, would strenously oppose any curtailment of daylight saving in this country. That, Sir, gives some support to the articles I was going to produce with reference to daylight saving, and those who are chiefly in favour of it. As far as I can find out, those people who have a good deal of leisure, those people who are so fortunate as to be able to come down to their offices at nine or ten o'clock in the morning and to leave at four or five o'clock in the afternoon are the people who are most strongly in favour of daylight saving, and in that class I place my hon. friend from West York. It is a curious thing that those people in this country who have the greatest amount of pleasure are the people who are most keenly in favour of daylight saving. On the other hand, I find in the cities as well as in the country that people who rise early in the morning and get down to work at seven o'clock are almost unanimously opposed to daylight saving. After all, Sir, it is the toilers who work the longest hours who should be considered in a question of this kind. I do not know, Sir, whether your ruling is that I should not read any more letters, but I have three or four letters here, and, as my hon. friend from West York is not in his seat, perhaps I may continue reading one or two. My next letter reads:

> I was very much pleased to read in this morning's paper of your intention to bring in a resolution to prohibit this daylight saving fad in any part of the Dominion. I have always thought that is the proper place to deal with it and put an end to a hardship for the many who are affected by it. The confusion of time throughout the Dominion caused by this fad is to say the very least a nuisance and in many cases an actual loss to commercial and other men.
>
> Years have been spent in a successful effort to work out a standard time for the Dominion which is most satisfactory and no local faddists should be allowed to interfere with it.
>
> P.S.—I hope your resolution will become law and be applicable to 1922.

Then another letter reads as follows:

> You are on the right track, and I hope you succeed in obtaining legislation that will abolish fast time for all time. Looking back to a period before standard time came into existence, and having in mind the chaos that existed in time regulations, I would opine that the majority of present-day citizens have little idea of how or why standard time was adopted.
>
> The daily routine of ordinary life could be carried on in any community under any standard time, but when business interests became interlocked over the country, a set time for all became an important item. This was a matter that affected railways more than any any other line of business. Railways were the first to seek a remedy. Standard time was the outcome of conferences in Canada and the United States. In 1883, an International Conference of railwaymen of the United States and Canada, was held at Washington, D.C., October, 1883, and adopted standard time to take effect at noon on November 18, 1883. The general public fell in line with the railways and standard time was almost universally used throughout the United States and Canada. Many of the States passed laws for its adoption. It does not seem we have a Canadian statute making standard time a legal time for the whole Dominion, which is desirable.

I agree with the last remark that a standard time for the whole country is most desirable. I am told that, in the city and also in the country, daylight saving time is very injurious to the health of children, for the reason that children cannot be made to go to bed by daylight saving time. They wish to stay up until the usual hour, as they know it under standard time, arrives. Mothers of large families find it very difficult, under daylight saving time, to get their children off to school and to ensure that they receive the required amount of rest, and this, Sir, in my opinion, would alone be a sufficient reason for the prohibition of daylight saving in this country. The future of Canada rests with our children the rising generation; and if they are deprived of sufficient rest, they will become unhealthy, nervous and unfitted to carry on their work as the future workers of this country. If this Parliament has not power to prohibit daylight saving time or to enforce standard time throughout the country, I would strongly recommend that the British North America Act be amended to give this Parliament that power.

As I said in my opening remarks, it would be even better than the state of confusion through which we passed during the previous summer, to have one standard time; and if the majority of the people desire to have daylight saving time, I would regretfully acquiesce in its being passed, so long as that time is legal throughout the length and breadth of the land. I am sure I need not tell hon. members that the farmers of this country cannot successfully carry on their farm work under daylight saving time. One often hears golfers and other city men, who are so much in favour of daylight saving, say: "Why cannot the farmers go on the old time? They are not obliged to go on daylight saving time on their farms." But many farmers, who ship their produce to the cities, are obliged to rise in order to catch the early morning train into the city, and as the railroads advance their time one hour, the farmers are compelled to rise that hour earlier. It is not a fad with the farmers to object to daylight saving; they do not object to the city men getting an extra hour for their golf; but during the harvest season, it is absolutely impossible for the farmer, if he is operating on the early time, to get his crops in, because the sun does not rise on the crops any earlier on account of our putting our clocks forward one hour. The sun goes on the same old time and the crops are cured by the sun, so that if we are working on daylight saving time, we lose an hour of the best time of the day. Another argument that I have heard is: "Oh, well, the farmer works from daylight to dark anyway, so what difference does it make to him what time it is by the clock?" My experience, as a farmer, is that nowadays men do not work from daylight to dark; they stop work at the same time as other workers do, and I would not feel that I was doing my duty if I asked my men to work eighteen to twenty hours a day, because the farmer is entitled to the same hours of work as any other labourer in this country.

I hope this resolution will receive the support of many hon. members. I am not so optimistic, as some people who have written me are, who expect that ninety per cent of the membership of this House will support the resolution. But I feel that this is a very serious question, a big question for the country; and, notwithstanding the opinion of the ex-Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) who thinks we are wasting our time in this House by discussing it, I for one, feel that it is a question which deserves the serious consideration of this House at this time.

Mr. T. L. CHURCH (North Toronto): I had not intended taking part in this debate, but since the hon. member has deemed it fit to read an anonymous letter from a newspaper, I think it my duty to say a word or two on the subject. I was surprised that the hon. gentleman should read such a letter, because it is contrary to the rules of the House; and I shall ask you, Mr. Speaker, before I conclude to give a ruling on the question. This letter appeared in an evening newspaper of Toronto, a newspaper that for two years advocated daylight saving, not only from the health and economic standpoints, but for many other reasons. Now, I did not introduce daylight saving in the city of Toronto. The railways started it one year and the city followed. The people voted on the measure and it carried by a majority of ten to one. We had petitions from all classes; from the working people in the city over which I had the honour to preside, from the health officers, from the soldiers' organizations, and from others; and it was during the war that the principle was introduced. The military authorities, the board of trade of the city, the patriotic societies, the railways, and many other public bodies were unanimous in the request that the mayors of the municipalities should, by proclamation, introduce daylight saving in their various localities. There was no federal or provincial law on the subject, nor were there any municipal regulations. The municipalities adopted the scheme simply through proclamation by their mayors. I shall not go into the history of daylight saving, which had its inception in Germany in 1914, about the time the war broke out. At that time Great Britain also adopted it, the House of Commons and the House of Lords unanimously favouring the principle. France, Holland, and twelve other European countries followed suit, and today daylight saving is observed in the Mother Country and on the Continent. Great Britain a short time ago passed a measure making for uniformity with France and other countries. The principle was thoroughly investigated by a committee of both Houses of Parliament in the Mother Country, a copy of whose report I have here. This committee made a study of the practical working of daylight saving in England, Germany, France, Holland, and other countries which had adopted it of necessity, because of considerations of health and economy, and they unreservedly recommended it for Great Britain as well. The difficulty in connection with the practice of daylight saving in Canada is not due to any inherent defect in the system itself, for all the large cities in Canada adopted the principle by large majorities; and I know that it has proved a success in the city over which it was my privilege and honour to preside. The first year it was introduced I did not receive a single complaint from any public body or any private individual; and, as I have said, the letter which the hon. member read was published in a newspaper that for two years favoured daylight saving in Toronto, but, evidently currying favour with a certain section of the labour organizations—the socialistic section—afterwards changed its attitude. There were four anonymous letters published in that newspaper, written in the newspaper office, one of them being the anonymous communication which the hon. member has read. The second year the plan worked just as satisfactorily as before, and we asked the people to vote upon it, the result being that they endorsed it by a huge majority.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the difficulty of enforcing daylight saving in this country is due to the lack of co-ordination between the various parts of the Dominion and to lack of nation-wide enactment. As I say, the principle itself is perfectly sound, and in practice has proved a success in Europe and the United States, as well as the other countries I have named. It was investigated by the United States Senate, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Chamber of Commerce at Washington,—which has a membership of between forty and fifty thousand business men—and by various boards of trade throughout the country. These bodies were all agreed that from the standpoint of health, from the standpoint of economy, in the saving of light and power, and because of the benefit that accrues to the children of the country, to the farmers, to the business community, daylight saving is not only desirable but necessary. In the absence of federal or provincial law on the subject in this country, many municipalities adopted daylight saving, largely for health reasons and because of the recreation it afforded the labouring population, as well as for the reasons I have stated; and in Montreal, also in my own city, and in other places in Canada, the children have benefited to a very great extent by the lengthening of the day. In 1917, Sir George Foster introduced a nation-wide bill which, I understand, did not pass. It is a pity that that measure was not adopted, because it sought to make the application of daylight saving nation-wide. If it had carried, I believe that even the farmers would not have the objection which they seem to have to daylight saving in some parts of the country. Technically speaking, the railways have no daylight saving, but in practice they have, because in summer they advance their timetable an hour in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London and other places, so that the smaller centres have to fall in line. If the United States have daylight saving our time should synchronise with theirs.

4 p.m.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I was surprised to hear a supporter of a Liberal administration speaking in favour of prohibition in this regard. We had a declaration the other day from the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) in which he said that he was opposed to prohibition in this country. And I agree with him. After all is said and done, there are too many prohibitory laws and interferences with the liberty of the subject to-day; if we keep on in this course, pretty soon men will have no liberty whatever. A man should be able to do what he pleases so long as he interferes with nobody's rights and interests. I contend that this Parliament has no power under the British North America Act to pass the legislation which this resolution recommends. At any rate, if it is passed, I trust it will be treated as a mere "scrap of paper," because there can be no law to prohibit me from advancing my watch ten minutes or ten hours if I choose to do so. Soon we shall have laws prohibiting a man from going to church or going to work. I really cannot see any reason why this resolution has been introduced. Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and other cities have had daylight saving, and I have read in the last few days that the municipal associations in the country are in favour of the system.

Daylight saving has been a great success wherever it has been observed, and if we made it nation-wide in Canada I have no doubt that its benefits would be appreciated. Any defect in its operation is due to the lack of a nation-wide enactment co-ordination between the various parts of the country and the United States. The Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) the other day, in answer to a question I asked, said that it was not the intention of the Government to adopt a measure of national daylight saving, but he said that where a municipality had adopted daylight saving, the local government offices, such as the customs house, the post office, etc., would conform. The government of Ontario have adopted this policy and all provincial government offices are under daylight saving where a municipality so endorses a daylight saving measure.

Now, Sir, I am going to ask for a ruling as to whether an anonymous letter can be read and incorporated in the records of the House. I feel this to be contrary to rule. Latterly the railway companies have been communicating with the municipalities, asking them, if possible, to have their daylight saving run concurrently with the summer-time schedules of the railways. In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I would ask for a ruling on that point of order before the debate closes.

Mr. SPEAKER: I have already ruled that the letter in question might be read during this debate, because I find in it nothing reflecting upon the character of any hon. member. If there were anything in it of that nature, I certainly would not permit the reading of it. Bourinot says that while a member should not during the course of a debate abuse the privilege of reading letters and documents, he may, subject to certain limitations, read extracts from documents, books or other printed publications as part of his speech, provided that in so doing he does not infringe any points of order. I do not see any point of order in the present instance, because the letter in question bears directly on the subject which is now being debated, a subject which is a matter of public interest, affecting the whole of the Dominion. On the whole, and without prejudice, I think the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) has presented a fair case, without in any way reflecting upon the character of any hon. member. If anything in that letter did reflect upon the character of a member of the House, I would have it expunged from Hansard.

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): I do not rise to question at all the propriety of your ruling, Mr. Speaker, that this motion is not out of order in the sense of contravening any of the rules of this House, because, in the first place, your Honour's ruling has been given, and, in the next place, I think the ruling is right. I am of opinion myself that a resolution proposing to do even what is beyond the competence of Parliament is, nevertheless, not for that reason a resolution that is without the rules of Parliament. This House might resolve to do something which was purely within the powers of the provincial legislature, or might express opinion by resolution thereon. Certainly, the provincial legislatures have adopted the practice of resolving on many things that are wholly within the competence of this Parliament—such as reciprocity in trade, reduction of railway rates, and the like—and it would follow from that, if from no other reason, that we would have corresponding rights here.

[Mr. Church.]

But what I do rise to say is this—this resolution and the debate upon it are necessarily and manifestly futile. There can be no question, to my mind, that this Parliament has no right to restrain any municipality or public body that desires, if it chooses, to adopt within its limits daylight saving. I do not think any member of this House would say that we had any colour of right to act in that respect. We have certain rights, as you, Mr. Speaker, have defined, in relation to the daylight saving question. We could, for example, establish daylight saving within those institutions under the control of this Parliament. Possibly we have still further rights than that; I do not need to discuss that question—we have that right, anyway. But to say or suggest that we have any right to pass legislation putting it out of the power of a municipality to adopt daylight saving—well, is to suggest something that does not admit even of argument or of serious consideration. Consequently, where are we going, what are we doing, when we are absorbing time of this Parliament in discussing such a resolution as this? I submit, it is waste, and that we would do ourselves better credit, and would better discharge our duties if the debate, without further discussion, were to close.

Mr. THOMAS VIEN (Lotbinière): Mr. Speaker, I think the right hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) has "changed arms," as we say in military phrase. I remember a hot debate which took place in this Chamber a very few years ago on this same question, and the right hon. gentleman then fought the battle of the measure that we now oppose. A bill was introduced by the then Conservative government under the Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden. It was introduced by Sir George Foster, who exercised himself for over two hours to convince the House that the measure should pass in the interests of the whole country. I remember that quite a few hon. gentlemen who were sitting then behind the Treasury benches, and who are still in the House, sitting behind their hon. friend on the other side, had to be whipped in to vote for the measure, even though it was a government bill. I remember, for instance, if my hon. friend will allow me, the member for Fort William (Mr. Manion) rising and saying: "I am against the measure; I stand for freedom."

Mr. MANION: May I correct my hon. friend? I am sure he does not wish to misquote me. The only two times—in fact,

I think the only time—I ever spoke on this question in the House, I supported daylight saving.

Mr. VIEN: Yes; I was just going to say in what way the hon. gentleman did support it. He stated that he was against the introduction of legislation in favour of daylight saving, but that if it were a question of confidence he was not going to put the administration out of office on a measure relating to daylight saving.

Mr. MANION: I think my hon. friend is misquoting me. I may be wrong, but I do not think so. I would like to have him quote me, if he will.

Mr. VIEN: I will get Hansard and I will quote my hon. friend's very words, in a few minutes. But the hon. gentleman will not contradict me when I say that he stood up in the House and asked the then leader of the Opposition, Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, if it was a question of confidence. Sir Wilfrid Laurier answered that it was not a question of confidence. A few minutes later Sir Robert Borden came into the House and objected to an hon. member sitting behind the Treasury benches inquiring from the leader of the Opposition whether or not the question involved a vote of want of confidence.

Mr. MANION: May I again interrupt my hon. friend? I am sure he will permit me, because I know he does not wish to be under a misapprehension. I remember the incident he speaks of; it was not with regard to daylight saving at all, but with regard to titles. My hon. friend from Quebec East (Mr. Lapointe), I think, remembers that very well. It was with regard to the question of titles that I took that stand, not with regard to daylight saving.

Mr. VIEN: I think my hon. friend's memory does not serve him well. At any rate, I remember that Sir George Foster had a hard time to convince his own friends, and only by a long and laborious exercise could he summon around him sufficient support to have the measure introduced. My right hon. friend who now leads the Opposition was not at that time objecting to the measure. He thought then it was quite within the powers of this Parliament to enact such a measure.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Will the hon. member not permit a question? The measure was a federal measure of daylight saving, within the powers of the federal parliament. It was no measure endeavouring at all to restrain the rights of municipalities. That is a wholly different question, and the hon. gentleman, as a lawyer, knows it as well as I do.

Mr. VIEN: At any rate the questions involved were the same.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Oh, no.

Mr. VIEN: The object was similar, and the principle underlying the measure introduced by the late government was the very same. The question was of introducing legislation to compel people to advance their clock one hour in order to save daylight. Now, in the province whence I come, daylight saving is repugnant to public opinion, for several reasons. In the first place, it is hypocritical, because you advance your clock one hour, you know that you do it, you know that your clock lies to you, and yet you go by that clock. In our province hypocrites of any kind are not well liked. Daylight saving is like a number of other measures—prohibition, for instance, of which my hon. friend from Toronto (Mr. Church) spoke a moment ago. Prohibition is repugnant to us because we do not like anything which restricts liberty, and prohibition does restrict liberty. It does not make men any better; it makes them hypocrites, and if I am well informed, it has not increased the number of saints in any province where it has been adopted, not even in that pious Queen city of Canada.

There was also another objection to daylight saving, connected with the patron of the measure, Sir Robert Borden. In the rural ridings of Quebec—and I am the humble representative of one of them—we used to distinguish standard time from daylight saving time by calling them respectively, "l'heure du bon Dieu," and "l'heure de Borden"—the good God's hour and Borden's hour—and we were opposed, of course, to Borden's hour usurping the good God's hour.

The measure was also repugnant to the rural ridings, at least—and I shall limit myself to speaking on their behalf,—because it was anti-liberal. The word "liberal" means freedom, and daylight saving is not a measure that makes for freedom. It is compulsory in its character, and founded on a lie. It rests on a false principle; it is anti-liberal; it is hypocritical in its character.

It is fraught with many other evils, so far as the rural population at large is concerned. In the rural districts, at all events, you cannot advance the hour of sunrise by advancing your clock, yet your work must be regulated by sunrise and sunset. Even if you advance your clock one hour, the dew will not dry off the fields any earlier, nor until the sun has done its work; and those of us who have to engage city labour very often find that the city labourer likes to follow the hours he has been used to in the cities. He takes advantage of the fact that he has no work to do early in the morning under daylight saving time, and when the clock strikes six at night, when it is only five o'clock standard time, he wants to go home or get an extra hour's pay. In that respect, therefore, the measure is fraught with evil so far as the rural ridings are concerned.

Even in the cities, where daylight saving has been much advocated, it causes a great deal of inconvenience. Take the educational institutions, for instance. They have regular hours for opening and closing. The usual hour for closing is nine o'clock, because at that time it is dark and the children can go to bed and get to sleep immediately, but under daylight saving, if the children retire at nine o'clock, when it is really only eight, it is still full daylight and the children do not sleep. The personnel of the institution is consequently kept awake, but they have to get up in the morning no matter whether they slept on retiring or not. I know as a positive fact that that was a serious objection to the adoption of the measure in some of our cities. I know as a positive fact that our educational institutions object to daylight saving to-day because they contend they cannot compel the children to go to sleep in daylight, and they have a lot of difficulty in keeping them ruly and quiet.

There is the same objection from the mothers. They have to get up in the morning at six, and if you advance the clock they are compelled to get up at five to prepare the meals and get the children ready for school. At night the children want to play in the streets as long as daylight lasts, and the mothers have great difficulty in getting them home and to bed at a proper hour. That also causes a great deal of inconvenience.

What is the reason for wanting this change in the cities? What is the cause of the whole trouble? As my hon. friend the mover of the motion (Mr. Kay) has pointed out it is to allow those who like to enjoy the evening hours to leave off work at an earlier hour. There is nothing to prevent them doing that now, without daylight saving. Let them get up and go to work an hour earlier, and retire an hour earlier at night. It may be urged in reply, "If everybody would do that well and good, but you cannot compel your neighbour to get to his office at eight if he is used to getting there at nine. I would do it if everybody else would." I say that there is nothing to prevent the civic authorities of any city advancing their work one hour; there is nothing to prevent the banking institutions from advancing their opening hour, if they choose to do so. There is nothing to prevent the public bodies in any city or province from getting together and making an agreement that all the public offices shall open at a certain hour; but they should not compel their neighbour to do what he is not inclined to do or what will inconvenience him to a great extent. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, because daylight saving is badly patronized, because it is hypocritical in its nature, because it is antiliberal in its compulsory character, and because it is attended by many evils and inconveniences for the cities as well as for the rural districts I am opposed to it and am strongly in favour of the motion. As the leader of the Opposition has pointed out, the resolution only seeks to express the opinion of the House; and if the Government finds it appropriate to introduce legislation along the line suggested, surely they will see to it that such legislation is confined to those powers which are within the purview of Parliament. For all these reasons I shall gladly support my hon. friend's motion.

Mr. W. D. EULER (North Waterloo): It is not my intention to debate the merits or demerits of daylight saving as a principle, but I find it difficult to appreciate the argument advanced by the hon. member for Lotbiniere (Mr. Vien). He argues in favour of freedom. He says that if the clock is turned forward we are hypocritical —that the clock lies. Does he not know that whether we adopt daylight saving or not the clock lies all the time in most parts of the country? The clock as we have it in this Chamber does not exhibit the time according to the sun. It does so only at certain fixed places; so that that point, it seems to me, is not well taken. My hon. friend speaks in favour of freedom and refers to daylight saving as being a measure for compulsion. There is no law in this country to-day for daylight saving; there is no intention to enact such a law. If there is anything compulsory in what is before us to-day it is the motion of the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) who would exercise prohibition, which is compulsion, and who would prohibit municipalities and others from adopting daylight saving if they wish to—a matter of local freedom, I submit. The hon. member for Lotbiniere declares that the province of Quebec is opposed to daylight saving. My hon. friend says that province is opposed to prohibition. That is the privilege of the province of Quebec. If the hon. member for Lotbiniere, after making his argument in favour of freedom, had said that he was opposed to the resolution as it stands on the Order Paper, then I think he would have been quite consistent. My hon. friend says there is nothing to prevent the city folks from getting up and retiring according to daylight if they wish without changing the hands of the clock. That is perfectly true. On the other hand it is just as true if applied to the people in the rural sections, because they can do exactly the same thing. I am not making an argument for or against daylight saving but I do contend, and in this I agree entirely with the leader of the Opposition, that this Parliament should not have the right to dictate to the people of any city, large or small, with regard to this matter. If the people of the city of Toronto, by a vote of nine to one, declare that they desire to observe daylight saving I do not deem it to be within the province of this Parliament to combat that desire. In my own city of Kitchener the people have voted upon this question and have declared in favour of daylight saving. I know that many of the farmers in the country districts in my riding are opposed to daylight saving; and I think their position would be quite well taken if they resisted compulsion on the part of this Parliament to the enactment of daylight saving. But there is no compulsion on them to observe daylight saving. If they desire to leave their clocks as they are that is quite within their right, and I for one am prepared to defend that right at any time. On the other hand, I think it is just as logical to say that if the great majority of the people of a town or city desire to put their clocks forward at a certain specified time upon the proclamation of the mayor it should remain their right to do so. I do not desire to be misunderstood. I am not arguing the relative merits or demerits of the principle but my point is this entirely—that we should not interfere with a city or of a town if it locally desires to turn the clock forward one hour in the spring and to turn it back one hour in the fall. There is no compulsion in favour of daylight saving now; there should be no compulsion against it. For that reason I am opposed to the resolution.

Mr. L. H. MARTELL (Hants): I submit that unless there is uniformity in a matter of this kind it will tend to create a great deal of confusion. As an illustration of that, we have only to look at what the effect of the law relating to banks and banking would be under daylight saving. We find that the banks are compelled to remain open at certain hours of the day for the transaction of business. Now, let us suppose that in a certain municipality the clocks are put one hour ahead, whereas the farming population allow their clocks to remain at standard time. A farmer drives to town, having business to do with a bank probably in the way of meeting a note or something of that kind and, as he thinks, gives himself sufficient time to do so. But when he arrives at his destination he finds that the bank has closed for the day because the town is running on daylight saving time and doubtless the note he intended to take up has been protested owing to non-payment. I submit it is not in the best interests of Canada to have the towns, or urban centres, adopting daylight saving when it is not carried out in the country districts.

The leader of the Opposition has made a statement with respect to the relative rights of the provinces and of the Dominion as regards the enactment of such a law. The right hon. gentleman is a lawyer of great standing in the country, and has been instrumental in placing many laws upon the statute books. I submit, however, with all due deference to the excellent legal acumen and ability of the leader of the Opposition, that it is a debatable point whether the provincial legislatures or the federal Parliament have the right to enact such legislation as a daylight saving act. In the legislature of Nova Scotia I remember it was a debatable question; and some two years ago, if I am not mistaken, a bill was enacted providing for the exercise by the Lieutenant Governor of such power as he might have, or which could be given to him by the legislature, to put such an act into force. Now, I maintain that this is a debatable question and was so held by the Nova Scotia legislature; and when the leader of the Opposition tells us we are only wasting time by debating a question of the kind, that is only his individual opinion. We have had addreses from one or two men who are probably equal to the leader of the Opposition in legal ability and they do not regard it as a waste of time to discuss such an important matter. The question is an important one, let us not get away from it. It is a matter which affects the people—those who live on the farms of the country and those who labour in our industries. The only good thing that I can say of daylight saving is that it makes the farmer and the labouring man rise an hour earlier in the morning in order to enable the city people to put on their golf and tennis clothes and go out and enjoy the summer evenings. I submit that in the interests of the producers of the country it is fit and proper that we should debate a resolution such as this in order to get the opinion of Parliament; and I hope that opinion will be that the tillers of the soil, the men who bear the burden and the heat of the day shall have laws enacted in this country which will be for their welfare and not simply in the interest of an oligarchy.

Hon. CHARLES MARCIL (Bonaventure): I wish to state on behalf of my constituents that they are unanimously against daylight saving. I have discussed the matter with them on various occasions, and they have refused to agree to the daylight saving proposition. The whole of the province of Quebec, the rural parts especially, and some of the towns, refuse to advance the clock, and it remains at standard time. This remark applies to municipal institutions, and so on. Of course, this action resulted in confusion generally throughout the province. The rural parts of Quebec are a unit against daylight saving. I had the honour to be one of the administrators of the city of Montreal, and, at the request of the commuters, who leave the city and go out to the country in the summer time, and the railways, we agreed to it, but the experience is not satisfactory. Later we received protests from all parts of the city. I know that in my own household I was very much blamed for having granted the request. I think that, under the circumstances, an expression of opinion from this Parliament would go a long way to bring back normal conditions, and if a vote is taken, after the experience I have had, I will vote in favour of the resolution.

[Mr. Martell.]

Mr. O. R. GOULD (Assiniboia): I wish to associate myself with the mover of the resolution and with hon. gentlemen who have supported the proposal which it embodies. I recollect quite well the actual experience when the former bill, which gives rise to this resolution, was introduced, and daylight saving was forced upon the people of Canada. Evidently the debate which took place in this chamber was very, very exhaustive, and many arguments had to be presented before Parliament would allow the resolution to pass. It seems to me that, when hon. members attempt to compare our conditions here in Canada with conditions in France, Great Britain and the older countries of Europe, the comparison is unfair. When daylight saving was introduced in the West and forced upon us, we, as agriculturists, living in sparsely settled districts, met with many difficulties. It worked to our injury as a class in the western country. I am not speaking simply for dwellers in rural districts, but for those in small villages and towns. Later on, it must have been recognized that evils did arise from that legislation, for a form of local option was adopted which permitted municipalities to exercise their choice in this matter. While local option did cure many of the evils existent at the time when the law was federal in its application, many of these evils still obtain in the country. Some of these have been cited in this debate. Others will occur to hon. gentlemen. A few of them were related by one of the members from Nova Scotia, and they obtain all over Canada. It seems to me this is largely a question between city dwellers and rural dwellers, because I have noticed that many of the urban dwellers can see nothing whatever except the idea of daylight saving, and endeavour to force their will upon the rest of Canada. It may benefit the people who claim the privilege of donning their golf clothes late or early in the afternoon; but it is a fact that we who dwell close to towns that in the exercise of their local option have adopted daylight saving, suffer inconvenience, in that often we find business places closed up when we get into the town, at an hour which is early according to standard time. It is no use for gentlemen to argue that it does not affect us, for it does affect us, and injuriously, too. It seems to me that if daylight saving were as beneficial as it is claimed to be, the business people who now favour it would have initiated it years ago. But, in fact, they had to wait until some individual in this House explained to them the benefits that would accrue to them by adopting the daylight saving plan. I do not know whether that Scotch poet, Harry Lauder, had daylight saving in mind when he said, "Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning."

An hon. MEMBER: Don't call him a poet.

Mr. GOULD: It is certain he could not have had the "benefit" of daylight saving in his mind. Whether he spoke as a labourer or moneyed man or rural dweller, certainly the thought occurred to him; and I wish to associate myself with him, and, as one who has had to get up very early in the morning, object to any law to compel me to get up any earlier.

I wish to associate again myself with the sentiment expressed that we do not want any more laws which gives privileges to certain districts, but we want general universal laws. I think the sun rises plenty early enough for us. It was the idea of the Creator when the sun rose at a certain time that we should abide by that and conform to it. When we do that we will find that we have time for a full day's work and no more. I believe the sentiments expressed by those supporting the resolution are the sentiments of those people of Canada as a whole, and I am quite sure the people who have sent our little group down here would stand unanimously by the sentiments expressed in the resolution.

Mr. W. F. MACLEAN (South York): With regard to the point of order raised by one hon. member, I did not understand that the speaker ruled that a name had not been given when asked for. I believe the practice in the past has been—and I hope to see it preserved—that the name should be given when so requested. I do not believe there has been any change in practice. If a letter is read and an hon. member asks the name of the writer, I believe he is entitled to get it, and I do not understand the ruling this afternoon destroys that right.

Hon. MEMBERS: Louder, Louder.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I say that if a member asks for the name of the writer of a letter he is entitled to get it. The impression might have been left in the House this afternoon—although the Speaker's ruling would not justify any such impression—that we are not entitled to have the name, but I hope the right to have the name will be preserved.

In regard to daylight saving, I have not very much to say one way or the other, but I think we ought to have standard time in this country. A more important question is the one which has been raised in this debate: has parliament jurisdiction in regard to that question? The question in regard to measurement of time has been raised in a good many parliaments in Europe, as to the acceptance of the Julian Calendar. I do not know whether we would have the power to deal with the question, but the question is coming up in this House. I understand the feeling in Europe is in favour of its reform, and Cardinal Mercier had charge of the proceedings. These questions of time, while they have not been defined, perhaps, by the British North America Act, will have to be dealt with, and the reform of the calendar will have to be considered. We will have to do what they have been doing in the States, and in other countries, in the way of getting a standard time. We must have standard time in this country if for no other reason than that our railways are a national proposition; they are certainly within the jurisdiction of this Parliament, and it would, therefore, be a mistake if we had several kinds of time in this Dominion. Accordingly, we must have some standard time, and some legislature in this country must have charge of it. I believe this matter is well within the jurisdiction of this Parliament, and it is not wise to have local authorities changing the clock, because it is in the general public interest that our time be standardized. While I think there is good reason for the adoption of daylight saving, I am rather surprised that the farmers in this House have not expressed their views on the subject. I thought the main reason given for its adoption was that it was in the interest of the farmers; and if that is not the case, I think the House is entitled to have the information. Perhaps, the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) would be prepared to express the opinion of farmers in regard to the matter. What I wish to say mainly now is that some legislature in this country ought to have charge of the time; that the law should be uniform, and that the time throughout the country should be standardized.

Mr. R. J. WOODS (Dufferin): Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, the resolution under discussion at the present time is entirely unnecessary. For this reason: I am in touch a good deal with conditions in rural districts and smaller centres such as villages and small towns, and so far as I can understand, public sentiment is at present so strong against daylight saving that there is not much danger of our small urban centres adopting it. They have found it detrimental to the best interests of business affairs in those small centres. Therefore, I have no doubt that what we have known in the past as daylight saving, which has been adopted in many urban centres, will very soon fall of its own weight, and we shall not hear very much more about it.

Mr. R. K. ANDERSON (Halton): Mr. Speaker, it does not appear to me that the question of the merits or demerits of daylight saving is under discussion. That was discussed in this House a few years ago; and we know that the rural sections of the Dominion are not in favour of it, and that some of the larger cities are in favour of it. The hon. member for Dufferin (Mr. Woods) has just said that there is not much danger of rural municipalities and smaller towns adopting daylight saving, and I think the Government will be entirely unwise in passing any legislation prohibiting any municipality from putting daylight saving into force. I was surprised at an hon. member from the province of Quebec speaking in favour of prohibition. The people of Quebec are not in favour of prohibition. This is a prohibitory measure and we already have enough of prohibition in this country. We want no more of it in other lines, and it would be very unwise on the part of the Government to put on the statute books of this Dominion a prohibitory law with regard to something that is not in existence or in force at the present time. I am therefore opposed to the resolution.

Mr. D. W. WARNER (Strathcona): Mr. Speaker, we are discussing something that I deem much more important than some other things that we have been spending time on. I live in a district where we can read a newspaper at half past ten o'clock in the evening without any artificial light, so why should we want to save daylight? I am a farmer, and I know conditions that exist on the farm are such that daylight saving would not be of any advantage. We are supposed to be an agricultural nation; at the present time more than half of our population is on the land, and I should like to see more there instead of less. If we are an agricultural nation, I am quite positive that daylight saving is not to the best interests of Canada. Some things have been said regarding disturbance of work on the farm, and I have heard hon. gentlemen state that the dew will not go off earlier in the morning even if you set your clock ahead. There is no difference with regard to that; but the loss of that hour in the evening makes a difference. When harvest time is on in my district, we are not very often able to go to work with a binder before ten o'clock, and if our men cannot be properly employed in the morning, there is a difference if we have to pay for the extra hour at night. We have a legal time in this country, namely, standard time. While I feel we have no right to say to people: "You should not set your clocks ahead;" I believe we have as good right to say that they can get up an hour earlier in the morning as they have to say that we must disturb our time by setting our clocks ahead. If the banks are closed when one gets to town, there is a difference, —it makes a difference whether the banks close at two or at three o'clock. It does not make the day any better to close the banks at two o'clock instead of at three. We have a legal time for children to go to school; our children are supposed to be in school at nine o'clock in the morning; and if that means eight o'clock instead of nine, we are interfering with what is already legal time as regards school hours.

There is no question that our work on the farm is more or less disturbed by having town time different from farm time. I live close to the city of Edmonton, and if I go into town and find that the stores have closed an hour earlier than they usually do, surely that makes some difference; it disturbs time. In a district where one has to work as long days as they do in that part of the country, we have daylight enough without setting our time ahead. Nature has arranged our time; we have to work with nature more or less on the farm, and if farmers in that district are interfered with, there is an interference with the advantage and benefit of the whole country. We are yet an agricultural country, and I do not think agriculturists anywhere in Canada are asking for the time to be set ahead. People who want to play golf and to have longer time in the afternoon can get up an hour earlier without disturbing us in any way. We do not object to their getting up earlier, but we object to having our time set ahead.

Mr. H. A. STEWART (Leeds): Mr. Speaker, this discussion is somewhat prolonged, but the matter is an important one. I think, however, the wording of the resolution is a little bit unfortunate inasmuch as it tends to develop the debate along two lines. I think that opinion in Canada is against daylight saving, and if the resolution had been confined to that, I am sure there would have been very little opposition to it. But it involves the other feature, of a prohibitory action on the part of this Parliament in a field of doubtful jurisdiction. It does seem strange that we should attempt to prohibit a municipality from adopting daylight saving if in its wisdom it considers it expedient, in its particular circumstances, to do so. I think that the peculiar wording of the resolution has led to this conflict in the debate. If the resolution had been worded somewhat to the effect that in the opinion of this Parliament daylight saving should not be adopted unless it were made universal, then I think we could all agree with it. Great confusion and inconvenience undoubtedly arise because of the adoption of daylight saving in some localities and not in others. Speaking for the constituency I have the honour to represent, which is about half rural and half urban, I am well satisfied that the opinion is strong against daylight saving, and I sincerely hope that it will not be adopted in this Parliament. At the same time, I do not think that Parliament should go so far as to say that it will prohibit any municipality in Canada from taking action along a line which is perhaps well within its jurisdiction.

Mr. JAMES J. HUGHES (King's, P.E.I.): No matter what some people may do with the hands of the clock, no matter what some municipalities may do, and no matter what resolutions some town councils may pass, the men and women who are engaged in farming and in rural occupations cannot leave off work early in the afternoon. They are compelled to work until late. They would be only too glad to quit early if thereby they could make ends meet under present conditions in Canada. For that class whom often, when we want to flatter them, we describe as the bone and sinew of the country, there is no daylight saving. The tendency in Canada to-day is for people to leave the land and flock to the cities, and we believe that that is against the best interests of the country. We all say that, and I suppose we all believe it. One of the tendencies of daylight saving, one of its worst features, is to make young men and women dissatisfied with farm life and rural conditions, and consequently to lure them from the farms and locate them in the towns and cities. This is one of the effects of daylight saving; it emphasizes the difference in conditions between farm life and city life. I think, therefore, that it was a very unfortunate thing indeed that the daylight saving fad was ever introduced in Canada,—because, after all, it is only a fad. If there are groups in the cities, such as golf or other sporting clubs,—or clubs of any other kind, which are of course, quite legitimate,—that desire to exercise the rights and privileges of citizenship and to arrange among themselves to play golf, say, in the afternoon, there is no reason in the world why they could not select any hour they please for this purpose instead of changing the hands of the clock. They could select four o'clock or five o'clock, or three o'clock, or any other hour that would suit them. But why act this childish part of pretending to ourselves that it is five o'clock in the afternoon when we know that it is not so? Those women of the country who have to do their own work, take care of their own households, prepare breakfast and other meals for their men folk, and after breakfast get their children ready for school, find it very hard indeed to rise at any early hour in the morning. Nevertheless, they are obliged to get up at six o'clock, and in some cases perhaps earlier; and it is an unwarrantable hardship to compel them to get out of bed an hour earlier than their accustomed time, simply in order to conform to a condition of things that is not real.

There is something else to be considered, and that is the effect of daylight saving on the convenience of farmers in their relations with the railway service. Throughout the country districts, I believe, the railway stations are closed about four o'clock in the afternoon, and the farmers find this too early, when they have to leave their work to transact any business at the station, either to deliver or take possession of freight. But if they find the stations closed at three o'clock their condition is so much worse. Whatever other people may do, I would ask the railways at least to observe the regular time, and try to manage their business in such a way as to suit the convenience of country people. I know that a great deal of hardship has been experienced by farmers who have driven seven and eight miles to get some special business done at the railway station, only to find that the

5 p.m. station was closed five minutes before they arrived. Sometimes it happens that the station master is just closing the place, and, as an hon. member suggests to me, refuses to do any more business. This is a matter that inconveniences a large number of people. I repeat, the emphasis that daylight saving lays on the difference between country and city life tends to drain the farms of young men and women. Daylight saving is one of the things that tend to make the young people think that conditions in the cities are so much better than they really are, while it increases the feeling on the part of the rural population that they are supporting an idle and pleasure-loving class in the cities. I agree with the hon. member who immediately preceded me, that this resolution is badly drafted. That is unfortunate, because we can hardly support it in its present form, seeing that it interferes with the rights of others. At the same time, I am in favour of the idea of the resolution, and if it stated that in the opinion of the House daylight saving should not be adopted unless it were made nationwide, then I think it would pass. At any rate, I want to put myself right; I intend to vote for it, even as it is. But I would ask the mover of the resolution to change the wording of it, if he can do so.

Hon. J. B. M. BAXTER (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert): Mr. Speaker, I hope that whatever form the resolution may take, it will not be adopted by the House in the form in which it has been proposed. It is a direct challenge to, a direct interference with, powers which under the British North America Act are sacred to the local legislatures. It may be that daylight saving has been dealt with by Parliament or the federal government on a previous occasion; if so, it would be only under the extraordinary circumstances of war, which seemed to give some extension of the federal power. Perhaps it did give such extension, and perhaps not. But take the case of my own province: there we have an act which makes the time of New Brunswick the time of the 60th meridian. It has the effect of giving daylight saving, if you will, for an average of about twenty-four minutes throughout the province. Certain municipalities adopt what they call daylight saving. There is no authority of law; they simply adopt it by resolution or by-law, and it binds no one except their own officials, but usually the community conforms to the wish of the local municipality in that respect. Now, the House is asked to adopt this resolution, and what would the Government do if, in accordance with the resolution, it acted as it naturally would be expected to act? It would introduce a bill to prohibit the legislatures of the respective provinces from varying any form of standard time. That is an impossible thing; the Government could not, I should think, consider for a moment any such legislation. Now, this is not a question of party tactics; it is a question, I think, of the common sense of the House. If every member of the House would like the time to be in accordance with the meridian of the place in which he lives, what is the sense of asking Parliament to pass legislation which it is not competent to pass, forbidding the provincial legislatures to deal with a subject which is entirely within their jurisdiction? That is not the way to get at the problem; it is only a way to make ourselves ridiculous.

Mr. P. F. CASGRAIN (Charlevoix-Montmorency): Mr. Speaker, I also have received numerous letters similar to those read to the House this afternoon by the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay). I have received protests from various parts of the province of Quebec, especially from the district which I represent, the counties of Charlevoix and Montmorency, with regard to daylight saving. Daylight saving as adopted in 1918 was largely a war measure; in the United States, Europe and other countries it was thought necessary to have a measure of this kind in order that the needs of the war could more readily be met. But now that we are in the post war period it would, in my opinion, be a serious mistake to bring in any measure providing for daylight saving. It is true that last year and the previous year some districts, some municipalities, towns and cities, adopted a system of daylight saving. But many unfortunate results have come from its adoption in some of these places. In the city of Quebec the clock was advanced one hour, but in my county, a comparatively short distance away, the time was the standard time. Great troubles and misfortunes have been experienced by different persons on account of these differences in time. I think that, on the whole, the people of this part of the country, particularly in the province of Quebec—and I speak especially of the rural districts, as did the hon. member for Bonaventure (Mr. Marcil) and the hon. member for Missisquoi—are against daylight saving. There are many hon. members from rural districts in the province of Quebec who will bear out my contention that any measure which would put daylight saving in force would be against the will and the wish of the people of those districts.

The resolution now before the House is a good one, but, in my opinion, it might have been drafted in better form. As has been suggested by some hon. gentlemen, it would restrict the power of municipalities, towns or cities which would like to enact a measure of daylight saving. It would have been better had the resolution simply stated that in the opinion of the House it would be better not to introduce any further measures of daylight saving. But the resolution is before us, and, although it is not framed in the best possible terms, I submit, for the reasons which I have given as well as those which have been put forward by hon. members who have preceded me, that we should support the resolution in its present form.

Mr. W. F. CARROLL (Cape Breton South and Richmond): Mr. Speaker, if the mover of this resolution (Mr. Kay) is desirous of getting an expression of opinion as to whether daylight saving is a proper thing for this country, I fear that he has couched his resolution in the wrong language. If the resolution simply stated that in the opinion of this House daylight saving was or was not a good thing for this country, one might vote upon it with the idea of expressing either his support of or his opposition to daylight saving. But in the resolution as drawn you are asked to prohibit local areas from giving expression to their desire to have daylight saving. While I am myself against the principle of daylight saving, I shall have to vote against this resolution, because we in this House have no right to prohibit either the provinces or such local areas as incorporated villages or towns from expressing their view, by resolution in council or otherwise, for or against daylight saving.

The hon. member for Lotbinière (Mr. Vien) said he was in favour of the resolution because he did not like prohibition in any form. Well, if he votes for this resolution he is voting for a prohibition; he is voting to prohibit a city or town or organized district from adopting daylight saving. I think that the hon. member who brought this resolution to the attention of the House would be well advised if he changed its language in some respects and simply asked for an expression of opinion on the question whether we should legislate either for or against daylight saving. I am not, of course, advising my hon. friend to take that course, but I believe if he did he would get more support than he could otherwise obtain.

Much has been said about putting the clock ahead or putting it back. Some hon. gentlemen have said that they did not desire to be placed in a position where they would have to put the clock ahead to meet the views of their friends. Well, I am one of those who think that the very greatest freedom should be given to all in the matter of what time they get up in the morning. If daylight saving were made effective in this country to-day, it would not change the natural inclination of the person who wants to get up at four o'clock instead of at five, or of the person who wants to get up at six o'clock instead of at seven, or at seven o'clock instead of at six.

I rose merely to say, however, that I entirely agree with the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) and other hon. members who favoured the idea that he presented to the House, that no expression of opinion either for or against daylight saving can be had by voting for or against the resolution as proposed by the hon. member for Missisquoi.

Hon. Sir HENRY DRAYTON (West York): Mr. Speaker, I would have thought we should have wanted to turn this discussion to something of importance, to some practical purpose. Surely it is perfectly plain that Parliament is not going to interfere with the provinces which already have their statutes and their regulations fixing the time in their respective districts, some being in advance of and some behind the meridian. I would have thought it perfectly clear that municipalities, creatures as they are of the provinces, are entirely in the hands of the provinces. It is idle to refer to what was done under the War Measures Act. That may have been right or may have been wrong, but it is obvious that any jurisdiction taken under the War Measures Act is something that is past and gone. We cannot now pass legislation upon this subject unless we seek, without the shadow of a right, to infringe upon the provincial prerogative. There is one practical way in which the Government, if it desires, can register its views upon daylight saving. The city of Ottawa has adopted daylight saving to go into effect on the 30th of April, and the only practical thing that can be done with this resolution by gentlemen who have taken their stand upon the subject is to say that the ordinary rules shall not apply, that the House will pay no attention whatever to the daylight saving regulation passed by the city government. That is one practical thing we could do, but I apprehend the view that the Government will be, as I think they have already expressed it, that as this is a provincial and a local matter, the provincial and local time shall prevail.

Mr. MARTELL: Will the hon. gentleman tell me where he finds his constitutional authority for the statement that this is a matter wholly of provincial jurisdiction?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I would point out to the hon. member that we have been a Confederation now for some time, that we have provincial laws dealing with the subject of standardizing time, but no Dominion law, and if any such law was introduced in conflict with what has been the custom and practice of the provinces, it would undoubtedly be an interference.

Mr. WILLIAM DUFF (Lunenburg): It seems to me that we have had a very interesting discussion on this subject this afternoon. We in this House who are laymen can come to only one conclusion, and that is that we are not quite clear whether we should vote for or against this resolution. One thing, however, I think we are satisfied of, and that is that this resolution revolves around the clock. In view of the fact that I am not quite clear about this matter, in view of the fact that many constitutional lawyers and legal men of high standing in this country have said that this resolution has not been properly drawn, and for certain other reasons, before I sit down I intend to move an amendment.

As far as I personally am concerned, and as far as my constituents are concerned, we do not care whether we have daylight saving in Canada or not. Most of my constituents do not go by the clock. They work from daylight until dark, or from before daylight until after dark. We have no six-hour men in my constituency. We have farmers, and labourers and fishermen, who start work before daylight, before they can see the clock, and work until after the sun has set, and they have to light the lamp to see whether it is time to quit.

I do not know very much about farming, but I am told, and I think it is a fact, that farmers in this country cannot work by daylight saving time. They must get up very early, at daylight or before, to look after their work on the farm. They cannot make hay by the clock in the summertime; they have to arrange their work to take advantage of the sun. It would be a nice state of affairs in this country if, when four or five o'clock, all the hired men on the farms were to down tools and say, "In the cities the Civil Service officials have all gone to the golf links or for an automobile ride, so we are going to stop forking any more hay into the barn for to-day."

Somebody has said that it would not be fair to interfere with by-laws or regulations passed by city or town councils. That is all well and good, but my idea of legislation is that it should be based on the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number, and in my humble opinion, when a city or town passes a by-law advancing the clock one hour from the 1st of May to the 1st of September, it is not in the best interests of the great majority of the people in those towns and cities. It may have been done in the past, to allow certain gentlemen to leave off work at three or four in the afternoon and to go to the golf links or for a long motor ride or take some other form of recreation, while we poor people have to slave from daylight to dark, but I say that it is not good legislation.

While we cannot perhaps pass an act to prohibit daylight saving being brought into force in different parts of Canada, as it might interfere with provincial and municipal rights, it seems to be that this House should express the opinion that daylight saving is not in the best interests of the great majority, and I think we should by our votes show to the people of this country that we are standing for the rights of the common people.

What shall we find when daylight saving is adopted in the city of Ottawa? As we leave our work in this chamber in the afternoon—it would be five by the clock—the city officials would have all left their work, but it is a well-known fact that the flags on the public buildings cannot be hauled down until sunset. Why should the poor man who is getting two dollars a day to raise and lower the flag have to stay till sunset when you and I can leave our work at five o'clock and go and enjoy ourselves for the rest of the evening? Even on the farm they tell me that the cows know when it is time to come home to get milked; if you leave them alone they will come in themselves at sunset to be milked.

If we cannot pass a law on this subject, we can at least give a clear expression of opinion. I said at the outset of my remarks that as far as my constituents are concerned we do not care whether daylight saving is in force or not. We do not care very much about the sun, for most of my constituents work by the moon and the stars. Some of them work by bells, getting up at eight bells in the night and working till four bells, and then resting till the bell rings eight times again. We do not require any clock. It is not fair that there should be any distinction in this free country, so that some people can go to work and leave off at a certain time by the clock, while other people have to work from daybreak till dark. I therefore beg to move, seconded by Mr. Turgeon:

That all the words after "that" be struck out and replaced by the following: In the opinion of this House it is not desirable that daylight saving time should be adopted in any part of Canada.

Mr. D. A. LAFORTUNE (Jacques-Cartier) (Translation): Mr. Speaker, this is the first opportunity that I have had to address this House since you were chosen as Speaker. With the consent of the hon. members, I wish to say, Sir, that I was pleased and happy to witness your election to the speakership of this House. I have been your comrade for twenty-five years and more. I have always taken an interest and pride in your career and you have done credit to us wherever you went. You have been in political life for twenty-five years, and unfortunately, I have spent already forty years in the same way. This will convey to you, Mr. Speaker, that I am not without knowledge as to what has transpired in your career as well as in the country at large. I shall restrict myself to these few remarks, as I fear I might be out of order; however, what I have said will prove to you, Sir, that your humble servant was one of those who rejoiced the most at your elevation to the Speaker's chair.

My learned friend who moved this resolution, the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) accused the hon. leader of the Opposition of having altered his views. Well, let us give him the benefit of the doubt and say that he has not changed his opinion on this question. Nevertheless, I must admit he was dangerously near doing so. Another hon. member was less generous towards him, he expressed himself very well, only he used rather a harsh word, when referring to the leader of the Opposition, he said it was but hypocrisy on his part. It was perhaps going too far. Let us give these gentlemen the benefit of the doubt; let us call it "camouflage". The Toronto members are not hypocrites, but they have very odd ideas which makes it rather difficult for us to agree with them.

As an hon. member so well expressed it, we have in the country where I also live two different designations of the hour: the right hon. Sir Robert Borden's time and God's time. There was a great fuss as to which we should adopt. Finally God's time won. People placed more confidence in the latter than in the former, God's time was older and more respectable, we therefore adopted it.

I do not think that amongst all the members of this House but specially the farmer members, there can be found any in favour of this new system. Those who know and understand the economical side of farming cannot possibly uphold this new system, and, I ask myself who is the gentleman that first conceived the idea of altering the time. Let me tell you that he was by no means a genius, and the sooner we abolish it the better. In my own village we were blessed with a good common sense parish priest who rejected this daylight saving system; the mass is held at the usual hour, God's time. It is my humble opinion that the resolution moved by the hon. member for Missisquoi should necessarily be adopted. Most of the hon. members sitting on your left, Mr. Speaker, say this regulation will die a natural death. So much the better; however, there are extremists all over the country, men who are always at variance with others; they hold so-called new ideas—they term this progress—and if we do not check them in their thirst for progress, each session the same question will pop up. Now and then, Mr. Speaker, you will have this question of daylight saving brought up. Why not curb these gentlemen who are always on the look out for proposals which we cannot entertain, that every reasonable being opposes.

It was stated a short while ago that there were men of good common sense in the province of Quebec. That is so, but there are also men of good common sense in the other provinces, indeed a great number of them and we entreat these gentlemen to join and help us. Those who understand the economical side of farming should come forward and support the resolution of the hon. member for Missisquoi. Try, Mr.

Speaker, to have your domestics rise earlier than usual. You will find that it is not an easy task. No, Sir, it is impossible to get them to rise earlier than what is a reasonable hour. Who is the loser in all this? The master. We are forced to submit to the whims of these gentlemen, our employees. If you are not satisfied, Sir, they leave. If they find fault with the old system, they go, and leave you in the lurch. The employers now, are no more masters of the situation, we are governed by the employees. We must submit. If you seek to enforce this new time system on the farm hands, you will not succeed, the thing is impossible. In the morning we cannot start them to work before the usual hour, but in the evening the case is different when six o'clock comes—that is five o'clock—they grab their hat, the pick and shovel drop, everybody stops working, goodbye, it is six o'clock, let us go. In this last instance they do not require to be coaxed. What happens then? Those who understand farming know that the farmer's day does not end with the field work. He goes to supper, takes a little rest while smoking his pipe, but he has to visit the outer buildings, take a look in the stables, in the cattle house, in the pig-sty and in the henhouse; he has to see to everything, look to the doors being closed, the beds made, the cattle properly watered, find out if an animal has not strayed away, finally he has to oversee everything that has to be done. Then if you allow your men to go out too early after supper they dress up, stroll away to the village, and as you are aware in most of the villages there are now moving pictures. The men depart saying: Do not worry, boss, we shall not be long away. That is what they say, but they act differently; they come in late. Do you suppose the work is carried out? No. If the farmer does not go to the trouble to see for himself what is being done, the work is neglected and the men have played you the nice trick of leaving undone what formerly they were in the habit of doing. It is therefore impossible to uphold such a system. Otherwise, close your doors, sell your farms and give up farming, if you do not wish to bring ruin upon yourself. It was clearly established that in the early morning you cannot work in the fields, you must allow the dew to evaporate. No one will contest this fact, the ground is not in a fit condition. You must wait until about nine or nine-thirty and sometimes ten o'clock before starting work in the fields. Well, what are your men doing all this time? Nothing, absolutely nothing. Amongst all the western members, who are practical and business men, there is not one, I am sure, who wants this change in time, for if it were otherwise they would only show proof that they do not understand farming. I have now been farming for the last forty years and have always had farm-hands on my land which comprises an area of about 200 acres. I therefore know what is going on. I have a very good knowledge of the economical way of rearing all kinds of cattle which are to be found on a farm, and I say that to make some success, it is necessary to rise early and retire late.

Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to say unpleasant things to any one, it is not my practice. I am getting too old to pick up new habits, specially when they are not good ones. I asked myself who is the gentleman that invented this new daylight saving system. I do not contend that the idea originated amongst lazy people, but it must have originated amongst those who shun work and wish to be free to seek pleasure after five o'clock—old time. These pleasures conflict with the interests of the farmer as well as those of the employee himself. Why do we meet with so much evil? Why do we witness so many crimes? Why do we see immorality invade specially the large centres? It is because youth is allowed too much time to joy ride. Youth takes advantage of these conditions and craves for pleasure. It does so against its best interests, to the detriment of its health, transgressing the laws of sobriety and heaping upon itself all kinds of misfortunes. Formerly, we watched over the employees. We were able to follow a little their movements and gave them good advice. To-day artisans in cities drop work at six o'clock in the evening. Then after having taken supper they leave, between seven and seven-thirty, to enjoy themselves at the movies, at the theatres, or in doubtful company. At present you are unable to guide or control any one, yet we know what is taking place. Crime in large centres is on the increase from year to year, and where lies the blame? It is mostly due to too much liberty we allow the workmen, and, it seems to me that instead of seeking all kinds of methods to protect these gentlemen, we should as much as possible hold them in check. We are asked why trouble about this legislation? We should not enforce it, it will be a dead letter. True, but it would not be so if everybody were reasonable, if every one would help; unfortunately there are extremists not only in this House but everywhere, even in municipal councils. In the latter men are to be found who specialize and seek by all means possible to create obstacles. It is therefore to prevent these evils that it is necessary that the resolution of the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) should be adopted.

Mr. Speaker, in the country we cannot have any fixed hour which would be convenient to the farmers. When the weather is threatening, do we cease work at six or seven o'clock? We work up to eight or nine o'clock if it is necessary. Rain is threatening, the haycocks are ready to be drawn. If the farm hand refused to carry out his work before the danger had disappeared or the hay had been drawn to the barns, he would simply be dismissed. Let him rest during the morning or through the day, if necessary; but when the danger is near, the rain is coming, at any cost, the crop which is ready must be brought to the barn.

The same thing applies to the cold weather. When we are threatened with frost and the tobacco is in the field in right condition for curing, do we stop work at six, seven or eight o'clock? No, we would work up to midnight if need be; we draw as long as it is necessary to protect ths crop that lies in the field. You therefore, see, Mr. Speaker, under what conditions the farmer labours. The idea of fixing a set hour for farm work should not be entertained.

Those who work in large cities, in trades for instance, are perhaps exceptions. There is no rule without exceptions. Those who are employed and are at liberty to leave work early may be considered lucky; but they are in the minority, and all laws in a community should aim to protect the majority. The latter consists of the farming class in this country. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that it is not necessary to add anything further so as to persuade the hon. western members, and those of all the different provinces who are connected in some way with the farming class, but I specially appeal to the members of the province of Quebec, to put an end to this discussion, an unfortunate one, and to adopt this resolution. I agree with the hon. member of Missisquoi and shall support with pleasure this resolution.

Hon. R. J. MANION (Fort William and Rainy River): Before the debate closes, I should like to correct my hon. friend from Lotbinière (Mr. Vien) in regard to the quotation which he made from my remarks in Hansard. I stated when he was speaking that I thought he was mistaken. Since then I have looked up the Hansard report of the debate on daylight saving on the previous occasion, and I find he has misquoted me entirely. I did not take the attitude that he stated I took. While I am on my feet, I should like to say that I do not agree that we in this House have any right to prohibit any municipality from doing anything in a matter of this kind. Taking the case of my municipality, Fort William, or, at least, the central municipality of my riding—because my riding is about two-fifths rural—I may say that it has had daylight saving for some ten or twelve years, as has Port Arthur, and they have found it very satisfactory. Therefore, I personally do not think this Parliament would be within its rights to tell the city of Fort William or Port Arthur that they must not have daylight saving which they find desirable. I admit, some of the agriculturists surrounding the cities are not in favour of daylight saving; as an hon. member from the West said, they suffer from the inconvenience of sometimes finding the stores closed when they come into the cities expecting the stores to be open. At the same time, while the farmers have a perfect right to take that attitude, the people in the cities should not be ruled by the people in the country on this question. If a city such as my own or any other city in Canada chooses to have daylight saving, to advance the clock an hour, it is the privilege of that city to do so, and it should not be prohibited from doing so either by this Parliament or by the members of the agricultural community. That is my attitude on the matter, and I think it is a much more liberal attitude than that taken by the hon. member for Lotbinière (Mr. Vien). I believe this is a question in which each local municipality should be permitted to do as it chooses.

Mr. H. A. FORTIER (Labelle) (Translation): Mr. Speaker, I had no intention to take part in this debate but after listening to the different speakers, I deemed it my duty to express my views on the present subject. In my opinion, it is more a question of expediency than a constitutional one. Briefly, it may be summed up in this: Shall we have a uniform time in this country? I shall not take up the legal aspect of this question—I did not bring my civil code with me this afternoon—because, it seems to me, there is a more important question which interests all the electors of this country. It is this: by the experience we have had, these last years, in regard to the daylight saving bill imposed by this Parliament, and, by the experience of the years following this legislation, during which lack of uniformity and confusion took place, Parliament did not think proper to continue this custom. It allowed the different municipalities, cities and towns, to act according to their wishes. Is it expedient that we should continue putting up with this lack of uniformity and confusion? I repeat it, I believe that the question of uniformity of time is paramount, and I am in favour of it for the whole country. The motion of the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) has this aim in view. After having heard the opinion given by the Minister of Finance, he admits that Parliament will never pass any further law as to daylight saving and he expresses the hope that there will not be any cities or towns, in any part of the country, altering their time. I certainly respect the authority and freedom of all municipalities. They are perfectly at liberty to alter the time but they should, however, act in concert with other municipalities.

I incline to favour the larger municipality, the whole country, rather than any particular municipality or city. If such municipality or city wishes to take advantage of this right would it be advisable for it to decree a change of time? If we lived under the old order of things of a hundred years ago; if we had no railways, telephones or automobiles, I can understand that the fact of altering the time would be of little consequence. In those days, local intercourse was rather restricted, we then lived somewhat at a distance from one another; it was not a matter of so great inconveniences as at present to alter the time. But to-day, in 1922, we must bear in mind all the modern inventions which bring the neighbourhood in closer touch. If for instance, we arrive by railway in a town where the hour has been changed, must we undergo all the inconveniences which result from the lack of uniformity of time? In my opinion, I believe that the time should be the same all over the country if only on account of this extension of local intercourse. At present the village has not the same restricted horizon as in the past; its outlook, to-day, extends over the whole country. Through this easy access to all parts we are constantly in touch with everybody. On the principle that we should have the same time at home in order that the house be well regulated, I contend that the same should apply all over the country, for the welfare of every one. I, therefore, shall support the resolution of the hon. member for Missisquoi (Mr. Kay) because it seems to me to have for its object to establish uniformity of time throughout this country.

Mr. ALFRED STORK (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, I am going to support the amendment because my observation has shown me that all attempts to interfere with the workings of Father Time have been failures. The only man who made a success of altering time was Joshua, when he made the sun stand still. We have had daylight saving in operation in the past in the province of British Columbia, and I think I can speak for the people who live in that western province when I say that they have not found it to be a success. In a province where we have daylight enough to read a newspaper by at eleven o'clock at night, I think ample time is given for labour, for rest and for recreation, and daylight saving simply makes more confusion. Where we have different times, where the railroad operates on one time and the factory and foundry on another, that does not make for municipal progress. I have particularly in view the cause and the welfare of our children. Children going to school are, under daylight saving, compelled to rise an hour earlier in the morning; they do not go to bed at night at the accustomed time, and as has been pointed out before, the mothers taking care of the children are penalised to that extent.

I remember in British Columbia some years ago a liquor prosecution was on, and the whole trial hinged on the question of time. A charge was laid that a violation of the act took place at a certain specified hour. After a lengthy and expensive trial, the case was dismissed on the ground that standard time was set at Victoria and in the eastern part of the province of British Columbia, and that this infringement had not taken place within the specified time. We have fire insurance policies issued in this country, and if any one who has a fire insurance policy will read it, he will find that it reads that "this policy is for one year from a certain date to a certain date and expires at twelve o'clock noon."

At six o'clock the House adjourned without question being put, pursuant to rule.

Thursday, April 20, 1922

The House met at three o'clock.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

FILLED MILK AND CREAM

Mr. SUTHERLAND:

Is it the intention of the Government to introduce a Bill at the present Session of Parliament, prohibiting the importation into, and the manufacture and sale in Canada of what is termed in the United States, filled milk and cream, described in and petitioned for in a resolution passed by the National Dairy Council of Canada and forwarded to the Minister of Agriculture?

Hon. Mr. MOTHERWELL: If it is found in practice that our pure food or health laws do not protect the public from filled milk or cream, then legislation may become necessary at an early date.

S. S. CANADIAN FREIGHTER

*Mr. NEILL:

1. Has the attention of the Government been called to the fact that the Steamship Canadian Freighter, one of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, recently brought a cargo of Japanese coal to Vancouver, and that twelve hundred tons of the said coal were transferred to Steamship Canadian Prospector?
2. If so, what was the cost of this coal in Japan?
3. What is the estimated cost of transportation of this coal across the Pacific to Vancouver?
4. What is the estimated cost of transferring it by barge from one steamer to the other?
5. Is Cumberland steam coal recognized by the Imperial Navy as being a high class steam coal?
6. At what price could good steam coal from the Cumberland Coal Mines, Vancouver Island, have been obtained and delivered into the bunkers of Steamship Prospector at Union Bay?
7. Has the Government been advised that the mines at Cumberland are only working half time on account of lack of market for their coal?
8. Will the Government take steps to see that the steamers of the Government Merchant Marine hereafter use only British Columbia coal on the Pacific ocean?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. The S.S. Canadian Freighter took on board at Muroran, Japan, 1,000 tons of coal for ballast, as it was impossible to obtain a return cargo for the ship. The Canadian Freighter is an oil burning steamer, and the coal had therefore to be transferred to the Canadian Prospector on arrival at Vancouver.

2. $7 a ton.

3. No transportation cost. It was considered more economical to bring home coal on this ship than to purchase 1,000 tons of ballast. The saving claimed by the management is as follows:

	Per ton	Per ton
Price of ballast, including loading and discharging (approximately)	$3 25
Price of coal at Union Bay, B.C.	7 65	$10 90
Price of Japanese coal	7 00
Cost of transferring coal to Canadian Prospector	2 17	9 17
Approximate saving by purchasing coal for ballast		1 73
or, for 1,000 tons		$1,730 00

4. Approximately $2.17 a ton.

5. No information.

6. $7.65 a ton trimmed in bunkers was the price paid for coal taken by a Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessel at Union Bay, B.C., on March 8.

7. No information.

8. As far as they can possibly do so, steamers of the Government Merchant Marine will hereafter use only British Columbia coal on the Pacific ocean.

CHIEF ARCHITECT'S BRANCH, PUBLIC WORKS

Mr. FOURNIER:

1. What is the name, position and salary of the chief architect's branch representative, Department of Public Works, on Board of Appeal?
2. When was he appointed in the department?
3. Is he British?
4. Where was he born?
5. Was he engaged in any military service?
6. If not, why?
7. Regarding the election of the branch representative of the chief architect's branch on the Board of Appeal, were there any instructions posted and sent outside directing that all the employees were entitled to vote?
8. Did these instructions authorize those who had made no appeal to vote?
9. By whom were they signed?
10. Were these instructions issued by the Civil Service Commission?
11. If so, by whom?
12. Had the said representative made any appeal?
13. Did he have any interview or receive any instructions regarding the disposal of the appeals before they were held?
14. If so, from whom?
15. On what date, month and year?
16. On what date, month and year did the Board hold the appeals of the chief architect's branch?
17. Were there any temporary employees who had left the service, called back to appear before the board?
18 If so, what are their names?
19. What amount of salary did they receive before their appeals were heard?
20. What amount of salary were they granted?
21. How much back pay did each receive?
22. What are the names and nationality of those who were granted their appeals, and where were they born?

23. Were the employees who protested the findings of the board, answered by the secretary of the commission that the decision was definite and final?

24. Were they also refused to have their case taken to the Board of Hearing?

25. Owing to the numerous protests in the service were there any forms of declaration prepared?

26. If so, (a) of what nature? and (b) by whom prepared?

27. Were the employees who obtained these forms, told by the acting chief of the organization branch, Civil Service Commission, that if sufficient discrimination was found they would be called to appear before the full Board of the Commissioners?

28. Were they also informed that they would be questioned by the commissioners under oath?

29. How many employees were brought before the commissioners?

30. How many won their cases?

31. Are there any employees who received back pay to April 1, 1920, and others to April 1, 1919, in chief architect's branch?

32. If so, why should some receive back pay to April 1, 1919, and others to 1920?

33. On what chapter, section or act has the commission based their decision?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. A. J. Barclay, senior construction architect, salary $3,060.

2. June 5, 1911.

3. Yes.

4. Montrose, Scotland.

5. No.

6. He was a married man.

7. Yes.

8, 9. All officials were entitled to vote, and instructions were sent to all employees, and were signed by the chief architect.

10, 11. Yes, by direction of the Civil Service Commission.

12. No.

13. No.

14, 15. Answered by No. 13.

16. For the inside service, June 20th-July 16th, 1921; for the outside service, at various dates arranged by the representative of the Civil Service Commission.

17, 18, 19, 20, 21. No.

22.

Name	Where born	Nationality	Classification applied for	Classification granted
Hennessey, G. F	London, Eng	Br. Canadian	Chief Clerk	Head Clerk.
Lefort, P. A	Montreal	Canadian	Const. Arch't	Const. Arch't.
Taylor, J. G	Banff, Scotland	Scotch	Increase in salary	Head Clerk.
Dube, W. A	Napierville, Que	Canadian	Prin. Acc't Clerk	Sr. Acc't Clerk.
Dionne, J. G	Riv. de Loup, Que	"	Ass't Arch't	Ass't Arch't.
Ralph, J. H	Sault Ste. Marie	"	Elec. Engineer	Elec. Engineer.
Rogers, G. G	Ottawa	"	Ass't Arch't	Prin Clerk.
Dubois, A	St. Johns, Que	"	Sen. Clerk	Sen. Clerk.
Davis, A	Cornwall, Eng	English	Ass't Arch't	Ass't Arch't.
Barrett, A. E	Birmingham, Eng	"	"	"
Chalmers, W. C	Perth, Scotland	Scotch	"	"
Owen, J	Blaneau, Festinoig, North Wales.	Welsh	"	"
Heiser, J. A	Lunenburg, N.S	Canadian	Prin. Clerk	Prin. Clerk.
Wright, Arthur	Ottawa	"	Jun. Arch't	Jun. Arch't.
Thompson, J. W. D	"	"	"	"
Boucher, A	Riviere Ouelle	"	Higher classification.	Jun. Arch't.
Thorburn, D. L	Lindsay	"	Prin. File Clerk	Sen. File Clerk.
Kent, Miss H	Ottawa	"	Sen. Clerk Sten	Sen. Clerk.
Brosseau, Miss B	Montreal	"	Clerk Sten	Clerk Sten.
McGee, Miss K	So. Gloucester	"	"	"
O'Donnell, Miss M	Hull, Que	"	"	"
French, Miss M	Ottawa	"	"	"
Schrybury, Miss J	Levis, Que	"	Clerk Typist	Clerk Typist.
Laurin, Miss L	Alexandria, Ont	"	Clerk Sten	Clerk Sten.
Arthur, Miss E	Summerside, P.E.I	"	"	"
McLean, Miss B	Chatham, N.B	"	"	"
Kenny, T. W	Ottawa	"	"	"
McLean, W. L	"	"	Sen. Clerk	Sen. Clerk.
Tasse, C. D	Sault aux Recollets	"	Senior Messenger	Sen. Messenger.
Scrim, W. H	Ottawa	"	Sen. File Clerk	Jr. File Clerk.
Hearndon, A	Windsor, Eng	English	File Clerk	File Clerk.
Sturgess, A	Reading, Eng	Br. Subject	Prin Clerk	Prin. Clerk.
Cauchon, H	Left the Service			Jun. Arch't.
Moore, H	Redditch, Eng	English	Sen. Ass't Arch't	Clerk of Works.
Morin, H. J	Left the Service		Jun. Arch't	Jun. Arch't.
Hickey, W. J	Ottawa	Canadian	Ass't Elec. Eng'r	Asst. Elec. Eng'r.
Purvis, Mrs. M	Vars, Ont	"	Sr. Clerk Typist	Clerk Typist.
Rouleau, R	Sorel, Que	Fr. Canadian	Prin. Acct's Clerk	Acc't Clerk.
Reid, G. B	Alwyn, Que	Canadian	Jr. Accountant	Sen. Clerk.
Croll, R. O	Ramsayville, Ont	"	Supt. Rideau Hall	Supt. Rideau Hall

Name	Where born	Nationalty	Classification applied for	Classification granted
Brawlet, R. (London)	Glasgow, Scotland	Scotch	Clerk Works 3	Clerk Works 3.
Wright, J. C. (Vancouver)	Liverpool, Eng	English	" 3	" 3.
Curren, Miss A. (Winnipeg)	Ottawa	Canadian	Senior Clerk	Sen. Clerk.
Paririe, P. (Marieville, Que.)	Marieville	Br. Subject	Caretaker, full term.	Caretaker, full term.
Andrews, J. (Calgary)	London, Eng	"	Fireman-Labourer	Fireman-Labourer
Gall, T. (Calgary)	Allva, Scotland	"	Caretaker, full time.	Caretaker, full time.
Bridger, T. (Toronto)	London, Eng	English	Clerk	Clerk.
Wallace, W. (Toronto)	North Gore, Ont	Canadian	Stat'n Eng'r I	Stat'n Eng'r I.
McCartney, M. (Toronto)	Ballymena, Ire	Irish	" I	" I.
Hall, W. (Toronto)	Kincardine, Ont	Canadian	" I	" I.
Pearse, W. R. (Toronto)	Bristol, Eng	English	" I	" I.
Cassiday, P. (Toronto)	Toronto, Ont	Canadian	" I	" I.
Weir, A. (Toronto)	Ballymena, Ire	Irish	Caretaker	Caretaker.
Stringer, W. (Toronto)	Auchnacloy, Ire	"	"	"
Major, E. (Toronto)	Portadown, Ire	"	"	"
Moore, C. (Toronto)			Cleaner helper	Cleaner helper.
Carey, M. (Montreal)	Montreal	Canadian	Sr. Stores Clerk	Sr. Stores Clerk.
Wickham, M. (Montreal)	"	"	Clerk	Clerk.
Harper, W. C. (Montreal)	"	"	Supplies Clerk	Supplies Clerk.
St. John, R. F. (Souris)	Souris, P.E.I	"	Caretaker, full time.	Caretaker, full time.

23. In certain instances, yes.

24. In certain instances, yes.

25. Yes.

26. (a) In cases where employees claimed that there had been misrepresentation of material fact in the presentation of their appeals, employees were allowed to make statutory declaration of such. (b) The Civil Service Commission.

27. Yes, either the Commission or the Board of Hearing, provided misrepresentation was evident.

28. Commissioners or Board of Hearing, yes.

29. None; three cases heard before Board of Hearing.

30. None.

31. Yes.

32. Because of changed or increased duties.

33. Sections 43, 45b, 11, Civil Service Act, 1918, as amended, and regulations made thereunder.

STONY RESERVE SCHOOL

Mr. SHAW:

1. How many Indian children are there at the present time of school age on the Stony Reserve at Morley, Alberta?

2. What provision, if any, has been made for the education of such Indian children?

3. Where are the schools, if any, located?

4. If no such provision has been made, has any application or applications been made therefor since 1st April, 1921?

5. By whom has such application or applications been made?

Hon. Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil):

1. Approximately, 110.

2. No provision since boarding school was closed in 1908 and the last day school closed in 1919.

3. Answered by No. 2.

4. No.

5. Answered by No. 4.

THE CANADIAN NAVY

Mr. RINFRET:

1. What units compose the Canadian Navy?

2. How many officers and men serve on the ships of the said navy?

3. How many men are employed in this branch of the service?

4. What is the total yearly cost of this navy?

Hon. Mr. GRAHAM:

1. The Royal Canadian Navy consists of the cruiser Aurora, the torpedo boat destroyers Patriot and Patrician, and the submarines C. H. 14 and C. H. 15, constituting the fleet; a submarine depot at Halifax to which the submarines C. H. 14 and C. H. 15 are attached; the Royal Naval College of Canada; officers in training in the Imperial Service; the Youths' Training Establishment at Halifax; the Naval Executive Staff at headquarters; the Naval Dockyard at Halifax, and the Naval Dockyard at Esquimalt.

2. Officers 33, men 510.

3. Civil employees 278, officers and men 797.

4. The cost for eleven months ending 28th February, 1922, was $1,791,129.

IMPORTS OF BRITISH GOODS

Mr. MacLAREN:

What is the value of goods, the manufacture or produce of Great Britain, imported into Canada during the years 1919-1920 and 1920-21, through each Customs port in Canada?

Hon. Mr. BUREAU:

TOTAL VALUE OF IMPORTS FROM GREAT BRITAIN, ENTERED FOR CONSUMPTION IN CANADA THROUGH EACH CUSTOMS PORT, DURING THE FISCAL YEARS ENDED MARCH 31, 1920 AND 1921.

Ports	1920 Value	1921 Value
	$	$
Charlottetown, P.E.I.	43,698	118,791
Summerside	30,072	118,791
Total, Prince Edward Island	73,770	237,582
Amherst, N.S.	86,431	171,799
Annapolis	2,632	1,597
Antigonish	3,166	1,191
Arichat	41	2,900
Baddeck	46	.....
Barrington Passage	40	688
Bridgewater	9,865	1,305
Canso	7,300	8,558
Digby	1,758	2,051
Glace Bay	99,617	119,580
Halifax	1,911,702	2,537,030
Kentville	2,690	18,025
Liverpool	664	8,449
Lockeport	59	270
Lunenburg	4,930	6,818
Middleton	1,348	1,393
New Glasgow	85,357	229,497
North Sydney	85,145	117,080
Parrsboro	9,473	289
Pictou	12,335	9,794
Port Hawkesbury	302	324
Port Hood	4,756	4,266
Shelbourne	1,931	13,233
Sydney	348,431	697,160
Truro	610,631	465,568
Weymouth	1,342	2,536
Windsor	12,207	43,914
Yarmouth	29,309	30,286
Total, Nova Scotia	3,333,508	4,495,601
Bathurst, N.B.	2,884	9,588
Campbellton	2,424	2,784
Chatham	10,260	16,467
Fredericton	47,537	70,543
McAdam Junction	93	230
Moncton	177,387	755,358
Newcastle	4,931	8,874
Sackville	2,989	4,321
St. Andrews	2,934	8,274
St. John	2,096,040	4,458,602
St. Stephen	71,210	110,370
Woodstock	946	8,310
Total, New Brunswick	2,419,635	5,453,721
Abercorn, P.Q.	175	.....
Athelstan	498	273
Beebe Junction	158,956	155,700
Coaticook	73,153	243,143
Gaspe	13	.....
Highwater	.....	.....
Hull	575,142	386,278
Lake Megantic	.....	585
Mansonville	187	148
Montreal	46,002,582	76,600,338
Paspebiac	3,398	17,476
Percé	.....	2,894
Port Burwell	.....	.....
Quebec	3,817,731	6,515,251
Rimouski	2,447	9,599

[Mr. Rinfret.]

TOTAL VALUE OF IMPORTS FROM GREAT BRITAIN, ENTERED FOR CONSUMPTION IN CANADA THROUGH EACH CUSTOMS PORT, DURING THE FISCAL YEARS ENDED MARCH 31, 1920 AND 1921—Continued.

Ports	1920 Value	1921 Value
	$	$
St. Armand	45	27
St. Hyacinthe	92,191	177,104
St. John's	267,273	653,685
Shawinigan Falls	59,807	300,592
Sherbrooke	345,343	515,181
Sorel	15,754	5,052
Three Rivers	385,264	702,730
Valleyfield	50,221	86,508
Total, Province Quebec	51,850,180	86,372,564
Amherstburg, Ont	13,643	18,745
Belleville	36,787	162,670
Bowmanville	32,238	19,682
Brantford	599,376	683,767
Bridgeburg	6,546	23,455
Brockville	37,842	87,970
Chatham	66,859	72,726
Cobourg	1,127,256	1,181,877
Collingwood	130,125	120,432
Cornwall	90,060	169,189
Deseronto	34	1,956
Fort Frances	4,026	17,567
Fort William	24,441	65,488
Galt	1,218,960	1,590,961
Gananoque	3,414	7,958
Goderich	114,785	265,671
Guelph	948,486	1,044,110
Hamilton	3,472,526	6,168,518
Ingersoll	5,217	14,376
Kenora	152,031	463,036
Kingston	193,467	372,325
Kitchener	1,603,092	1,657,265
Lindsay	16,957	21,302
London	1,141,240	2,574,740
Midland	39,247	103,075
Morrisburg	25,196	42,681
Napanee	3,333	5,381
Niagara Falls	68,801	234,590
North Bay	411,186	741,444
Orillia	94,677	120,441
Oshawa	96,915	525,032
Ottawa	1,526,896	2,569,563
Owen Sound	14,274	39,748
Paris	418,091	840,782
Parry Sound	1,670	3,179
Peterboro'	1,381,261	1,670,710
Picton	4,833	8,576
Port Arthur	25,702	69,919
Port Hope	10,210	43,047
Port McNicholl	.....	8,728
Prescott	8,014	18,374
St. Catharines	239,581	583,020
St. Thomas	457,977	640,038
Sarnia	20,971	38,388
Sault Ste. Marie	15,592	43,668
Simcoe	48,913	54,612
Stratford	344,822	900,914
Sudbury	125,829	84,142
Tilsonburg	1,333	4,881
Toronto	36,905,525	57,876,667
Trenton	755	30,711
Wallaceburg	6,969	21,573
Welland	57,160	44,120
Whitby	110,938	133,365
Windsor	151,796	475,338
Woodstock	75,628	275,212
Total, Ontario	53,693,503	85,057,705
Brandon, Man.	131,785	197,071
Emerson	143	247
Gretna	15	.....
Portage La Prairie	30,545	56,177
Winnipeg	6,627,197	12,393,266
Total, Manitoba	6,789,685	12,646,761

TOTAL VALUE OF IMPORTS FROM GREAT BRITAIN, ENTERED FOR CONSUMPTION IN CANADA THROUGH EACH CUSTOMS PORT DURING THE FISCAL YEARS ENDED MARCH 31, 1920 AND 1921—Concluded.

Ports	1920 Value	1921 Value
	$	$
Moosejaw, Sask.	58,238	278,952
North Portal	139	25,179
Prince Albert	17,881	23,687
Regina	423,624	2,092,208
Saskatoon	125,052	404,354
Total, Saskatchewan	624,934	2,824,380
Calgary, Alta.	780,943	2,790,566
Edmonton	546,451	1,973,316
Lethbridge	69,501	290,665
Medicine Hat	15,189	26,210
Total, Alberta	1,412,084	5,080,757
Abbotsford, B.C.	520	446
Cranbrook	5,377	36,247
Fernie	23,311	106,786
Grand Forks	298	8,171
Greenwood	1,834	889
Nanaimo	61,273	93,104
Nelson	20,164	52,196
New Westminster	38,177	72,972
Penticton	38,078	68,975
Prince Rupert	18,705	161,454
Revelstoke	102,325	234,425
Rossland	15,823	9,622
Vancouver	4,957,498	9,274,826
Victoria	875,842	1,680,902
Total, British Columbia	6,159,225	11,801,015
Dawson, Yukon Territory	2,494	2,559
White Horse	231	917
Total, Yukon Territory	2,725	3,476
Grand Total	126,359,249	213,973,562

QUESTION PASSED AS ORDER FOR RETURN

Mr. ARTHURS:

1. What were the total Customs collections received by the Port of Parry Sound, Ontario, during each year, from 1911 to 1921 inclusive?
2. What towns or cities in Canada, having equal or less average Customs collections, have public buildings used for Customs purposes?

ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. W. G. McQUARRIE (New Westminster): Shortly before we adjourned for the Easter recess the Prime Minister was good enough to say that he would fix a day for the discussion of the resolution dealing with oriental immigration, and I was wondering whether he could let me know to-day.

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): If a week from Monday, that is the first day of May, would be agreeable to other members of the House, it would be entirely agreeable to the Government.

Mr. McQUARRIE: Could it be made the eighth of May?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Of course, my hon. friend understands that the Government cannot dictate in this matter, but if it meets the convenience of the House, the Government will do all it can to facilitate the motion being reached on that day—the eighth of May.

Mr. McQUARRIE: I know that a great many members desire to speak on this resolution and they have asked that a date be fixed, if possible.

PENITENTIARY ACT AMENDMENT

On the motion of Sir Lomer Gouin (Minister of Justice) Bill No. 25, to amend the Penitentiary Act, was read the third time and passed.

SUPPLY

House again in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Department of Agriculture—Fruit, $157,000.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Before we take up this item I would like to ask the leader of the Government when the railway estimates will be considered?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I will let my hon. friend know later on.

Item agreed to.

Health of Animals—administration and enforcement of the Animal Contagious Diseases and Meat and Canned Foods Acts, $1,710,000.

Mr. TOLMIE: I would like to ask the minister: What is the exact situation in regard to mange in Alberta and Saskatchewan at the present time?

Hon W. R. MOTHERWELL (Minister of Agriculture): There have been cases recently in Saskatchewan. We expect these outbreaks to occur from time to time. We cannot eliminate a contagious disease like mange all at once, but the situation is well in hand.

Mr. CARROLL: The item is quite large and I would like to get some understanding from the minister as to how this money is to be used?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It is a large item. About half a million of the amount is to be expended in connection with the accredited herds. The object is to clean up tuberculosis especially in the pure bred herds and to compensate owners for animals slaughtered under this system. The method employed is thought to be practically the only way of dealing with this matter. We may have been a little late in taking it up, but "better late than never." The amount asked for is the same as last year. I anticipate that we will be able to cover more ground with the present vote, by reason of the fact that cattle have gone down in price, and the chances are that before the session is over a bill will be brought down providing for a reduction in the amount of compensation in proportion to the present value of cattle. Consequently the present vote will cover a larger number of herds than the larger amount of compensation given for animals last year under the conditions which then existed.

Mr. SEXSMITH: What percentage of the value of the stock is given by way of renumeration?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: For pure breds two-thirds of $250. The payment being in proportion to the value of the animal. Not a great many receive the maximum, but some do. In the case of grade animals the maximum compensation is two-thirds of $80.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): Would the minister enlighten the committee as to the working of the accredited herd system, to which about a half a million of the present vote will be devoted. How the system is administered; If operative in the nine provinces? How many herds were inspected last year, and what percentage of those inspected were found to be diseased?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The system is in vogue in all the nine provinces of the Dominion. Naturally, in the older provinces that have been devoting their attention to dairying the greatest degree of tuberculosis is found and the system is taken advantage of to the greatest extent. I have not the exact figures as to the extent of the disease; the proportion varies. Some herds are found on inspection to be entirely tuberculous. When one-half or three-fourths of a herd are tuberculous it is practically the same as if the whole herd were affected, and you might as well clean up the entire lot. Of course a large proportion of an infected herd may still be fit for human food. They may be reactors and therefore subject to elimination, and yet pass inspection at the abattoir. The number runs from one hundred per cent down to a very small percentage.

[Mr. Motherwell.]

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): Is the disease found to be more prevalent in dairy herds than in beef breeds?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes. It is essentially a stable disease and the more animals you have in stables, especially where the stables are unsanitary, the more disease you have. Out on the prairies, where it has been the practice for the cattle to winter out, we have had very little of it. The disease operates quite like tuberculosis among human beings—it is a house disease among humans and a stable disease among cattle. Where the stables are ill-ventilated, even though the condition in other respects may be good, and the animals are kept under dairy conditions, you get a lot of tuberculosis; on the other hand if the cattle are out in the open air, as they were in the West up to lately, you do not have so much of it.

Mr. TOLMIE: In that particular connection, very interesting experiments were carried on by Dr. Rutherford, when he was Veterinary Director General, in feeding tubercular and healthy animals together out of doors, and he found that where the animals were fed on the ground that they readily became infected, and that is one of the reasons why, on our ranches to-day, we find cattle affected with tuberculosis where this system of feeding is followed. The hay is thrown on the ground, and the cattle trample on it and the droppings infect the hay. The germs are taken up by the animals and consumed, and infection takes place through the intestines. If the feeding grounds are changed frequently, where tuberculosis exists in the herd you can avoid it to a certain extent, but it is quite possible for animals to take tuberculosis in the open air or under such conditions as I have described.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The number of animals tested was 48,022, the number of reactors was 4,105, and the number slaughtered was 4,057. That would mean that a larger number of the herds were quite free, than would be the case if the contagion ran through the whole bunch.

Mr. TOLMIE: May I have an answer about the expenditure in the three years?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: We have not the information.

Mr. COOTE: Is any part of this sum to be spent in a campaign to encourage the farmers to raise bacon hogs?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: That activity comes under a later heading in regard to live-stock, not under this.

Item agreed to.

International Institute of Agriculture, $15,000.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What I am about to say would have been more appropriate on the previous item, or indeed, two items back, but I think I should say it. With the diminishing number of animals passing through Canadian abattoirs and being inspected there under the hon. gentleman's department, there will, it seems to me, be opportunity for much less expense in the way of inspection. I have information that, with that diminishing number, particularly in other cities in the East, there are easily double, or nearly double, the number of inspectors that the hon. gentleman under present circumstances need continue.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I presume the hon. gentleman refers to the inspection of the animals as they are killed?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Yes.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It is surprising how very few less inspectors will be required. An inspector is there and he can do a certain amount, and if the inspection is cut in two, you will still require the inspector. In a great body of business, where three or four inspectors are required, if the business were cut down, the number of inspectors might be cut down, not necessarily proportionately, but to some extent. I do not know that we have found it necessary yet to make very much reduction in the number of inspectors.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is the trouble?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: If the number going through the abattoir gradually, constantly and continuously decreased at the same rate, then a certain reduction could be made; but, inasmuch as they are bunched going through, sometimes a great rush and then quite a slack time, you have to keep the necessary number of men for the rush season. But if the reduction in the number of animals continues, I have no doubt we shall be able to make some reduction.

Mr. MEIGHEN: In a small plant in Winnipeg—I can give my hon. friend the name if he desires, but he certainly ought to know it—my information is, that four ought to be sufficient.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Where?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Gordon Ironsides.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: If there are more men there than are required, I know some places where they are required. The hon. gentleman from Lethbridge (Mr. Jelliff) tells of the need of, not so much an abattoir inspector as a veterinary inspector, because of danger of tuberculosis there. If these men are qualified for that work, we can transfer one. But these abattoir inspectors are not necessarily qualified for other work. I will look into that.

Mr. TOLMIE: What is the reason for the increase in the vote for the Institute of Agriculture?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: This is the year that the delegates are sent over to the assembly of the Agricultural Institute. Besides, like all other concerns, this institute is costing more year by year to operate, and the institute has made the request that we supplement the amounts that we have been contributing. The amount that used to be contributed for animals was $1,800. The old grant, up to a year or two years ago, was $1,800 plus $1,200, making $3,000. Now the requirement asked for by the assembly in addition to this is $5,790. Up to the present time we have been contributing more and more as it was required of us. However, the delegates who are going over this year, before they promise any more, are going to make a special report to my department as to whether they think this service is worth more, or whether we are getting any real value commensurate with the expenditure at all. I do not know. It is a very nice thing. It was a gentleman named David Lubin that inaugurated this institute. I would not for a moment make any remarks disparaging of it at all. I simply do not know enough about it to do that, but I have doubts in my mind as to whether the statistics we are getting are sufficiently valuable to us in Canada to make it worth while increasing the expenditure year by year. The institute compiles the crop statistics of the entire world at Rome, and disseminates the knowledge thus gained back to thirty-odd countries. The theory is that those engaged in agriculture will consult the statistics, and, if these show a world surplus of any kind of grain this year, they will be a little bit shy about sowing so much, and may sow less so as not to increase the glut. On the other hand, if the statistics show a shortage, the inference is that the farmers, of their own accord, will sow a little more. That sounds all right in theory, but it does not work out in practice. Farmers, as a rule, do not consult statistics before they start spring operations; they generally sow their land in accordance with what it has been prepared for and what they think will suit the market.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): The minister should say that he is "from Missouri" and have those delegates prove to him the necessity for this institute.

Mr. CHAPLIN: Why not strike out the item?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I think I made it quite plain that the two delegates who are going over this year, will investigate conditions and bring back a special report, with which I shall come to Parliament next year, and say whether this appropriation will be continued or discontinued. I do not know enough about the matter now to make a definite statement.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Is this the trip on which the two delegates are going around the world?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: They are not going around the world.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It is pretty nearly around the world. If the minister will make the appropriation large enough, they will get around the world.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Whenever anyone is going to take any trip, my right hon. friend's imagination seems to get at work. I think, before he got through with Duncan Marshall, he had him down in Mexico. Money is valuable, and we endeavour to kill as many birds with one stone as we can. One of these gentlemen is already on his way overseas, and the last thing I did, before coming to this House to-day, was to dictate a letter instructing him to spend two days in London, to call upon the new High Commissioner there with respect to the embargo question, and, through him, to seek an interview with the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, because I have a feeling there are developments in the air with regard to the embargo question. If Mr. Wilson can supplement the activities of the hon. gentleman who preceded me and other gentlemen with respect to this question, and also attend the institute, we shall be able to cut down the expense of the institute meeting. He will not travel around the world.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Why send two delegates? I am saying this for the benefit of my hon. friend, because I can assure him that, in the short time that he will occupy his post, he will have requests from a number of his officials to send them somewhere, and if he starts out by sending two to an institute in Europe, I do not know where he will end. Why should one not be sufficient?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The proceedings, I understand, are conducted in French, which is still, and likely will continue to be, the language of diplomacy.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Then send a man who speaks French.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: We are taking advantage of the services of one man who has been in the employ of the Quebec Government and who is going over to England anyway. We are getting his services at about half or one-third of what it would cost if we sent him specially for ourselves. A representative of Mr. Caron's department is going over to England anyway, and we are getting him for a flat sum of $500 to go on to Rome and act in the capacity of a delegate. The other gentleman, who is going over primarily to visit Rome and to bring back a special report, cannot speak French. Between the two of them, they will be able to get the information. If our people could all speak French, as I hope some day they will be able to,—and, of course, speak English too—we would not require two delegates. But, as I understand from the records, it has been usual to send two delegates, and I should not like to place on any one person's shoulders the full responsibility of bringing back a report and saying whether this institute is good or not. We are sending over two delegates, one at one-third the expense of the other, and the other with a double errand.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What can the Englishman do that the Frenchman cannot do? Is this Mr. Wilson, who speaks English alone, going over to carry out the mission that Mr. Drury threatened to perform about a year or so ago? Is that not really his only object in going over?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I do not know what Mr. Drury was going to do.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I thought the whole world knew that.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I understand the minister to say that $500 will be the expense to this Government or this department for this one particular delegate at this conference. Why the increase of $5,000? Is the balance of $4,500 to cover the expenses of the other delegate?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Possibly my hon friend was not in the House, but I explained that this sum of $500 is merely travelling expenses, but there is increasing expense in maintaining the institute. There is a permanent body, something like an executive, there the year round, and each country, of some thirty countries in the world, contributes a certain amount towards the maintenance of that permanent body. The request is that the amount be increased to $5,790. As I intimated, we are not going to promise any more increases until we find out whether we are to continue supporting this institute or not. That is why I want a special delegate there.

Mr. GARDINER: What was the total contribution to this institute last year?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It was $9,200.

Item agreed to.

Live Stock, $1,000,000.

Mr. TOLMIE: This appropriation for live stock is one of the most important that have appeared in the estimates of the Minister of Agriculture. I think it is generally admitted now that we cannot hope for a proper development of the agriculture of Canada until we reach a time when farmers generally adopt a system of mixed farming, with live stock playing a most important part. The history of the cultivation of this continent has shown us that, as the valleys were taken up and cultivated from time to time, where a one-crop system was followed, we had exhaustion of the soil resulting, and we found our settlers moving west from the Genesee valley in New York down into the corn belt, from there to the Pacific coast and then finally up into Canada. Let us compare this for a moment with results obtained in Great Britain where a system of mixed farming has been carried on for hundreds of years. Not only have the people of Great Britain produced and maintained in a high state of perfection more breeds of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, of high quality than all the rest of the world combined, but in Great Britain the yield of cereals per acre is greater than it is in Canada. That shows how important it is that we should get down to a system of mixed farming in this country at the earliest possible date.

A brief review of the live stock industry may be of interest on this occasion. We have in Canada about three and a half million horses, a great many of which are light horses. Although the automobile has driven a great many of them out of use, we find them, in many of the western provinces, quite a menace to the pastures, and as we cannot raise them at a profit we have to get rid of them. The enterprising Minister of Agriculture of Alberta even proposed to put them in pickle and send them over to the Belgians for food, but those people refused to have them, and we therefore have no market in that direction. There were some 26,000 head of these light horses in that province alone. The heavy horse is still much in demand, particularly on the farms of Canada, and there will be a good demand for this class of animal for many years to come. The market is getting barer every day, and it behooves breeders of heavy horses to see what can possibly be done to raise these heavy horses to a greater extent to meet the demands of the future.

As to cattle, we have about ten million head altogether, three and a half millions of which are dairy cows. It is an astonishing fact that at our abattoirs, where inspection is carried on and cattle are slaughtered for export and for home consumption, less than ten per cent of the animals slaughtered are good enough for export across the Atlantic. A great many of them are too small, too poor in quality, and altogether unsatsifactory in condition. The farmers thus suffer a tremendous loss by reason of the low standard of quality of the animals they ship to the market. Just the other day in the Toronto market, for example, the cheapest steer that was sold fetched 4½ cents per pound, compared with 10 and 11 cents for the best, and, in one instance, 13 cents for an animal of first class condition. Farmers who send animals to market in poor condition lose heavily, first in the lower price they receive, and, secondly, in the lower weight of the animal as compared with stock in better condition. Farmers crowd animals on the market in the fall of the year, thus making conditions much worse than they would be if their shipments were spread over a longer period. Our 3,500,000 dairy cows last year produced wealth to the extent of some $260,000,000; and in this connection I might remark that I was very much interested the other day to hear, on the floor of the House, the statement that our dairymen could not hope to succeed unless they worked their wives and families in the dairy. I do not think that this statement is applicable to the dairy districts of Ontario or British Columbia. I know that in British Columbia we are able to import our bran and shorts, the rough feeds, such as barley and oats, from the prairies, in many instances get our alfalfa from Washington, paying duty in addition to freight, and are able to make a profit, and, as well, have a hired man to help us. We cannot, however, hope to accomplish this with poor-quality cows. These 3,500,000 cows average only about 4,000 pounds of milk per cow per year. Now, we have certain animals in Canada that have made records of over 32,000 pounds per year, or eight times as much as the production of one of these average cows. This means that the man who wants to produce 32,000 pounds with scrub cows will require to maintain no fewer than eight of these animals, providing housing and feed, and giving them all the general attention necessary in a dairy. At the end of the year the man with the 32,000-pound cow will have made a substantial profit, while all that the other man gets with his scrub cattle in the way of profit is simply the fresh air and the exercise. This shows how necessary it is for us to improve the quality of our animals. And if there is any farmer in any part of Canada who requires more information along these particular lines, if he is anxious to improve his herd and feed it at a profit, all he has to do is to make inquiry of these much-criticised establishments, the Dominion experimental farms.

We have only about 3,725,000 sheep in Canada, which has a larger area than the United States. As against this comparatively small number of sheep in this country, Great Britain has some 27,000,000, the United States 40,000,000, and Australia between 80,000,000 and 90,000,000 sheep. It is true that wool is very low in price, and in view of conditions such as that, there is a general tendency to get out of the sheep business. On the other hand, mutton and lamb fetch a good price, and if the farmers had bought thin lambs last fall and fed them over the winter on much of the cheap food we hear them talking about, they would have been able to do this at a profit, besides obtaining a much larger figure per bushel for their grain.

We have about 4,500,000 hogs in Canada, which is a poor showing compared with the United States. Only last fall a feeder on the Pacific Coast wanted to purchase 6,000 head of hogs for feeding purposes, desiring the supply extended over six or seven months, and he could not secure this number. It is interesting to know that while many of the farmers went out of the hog business because, as they claimed, hogs did not pay when grain was as high as it was during the period of the war and in the years immediately after, the hogs produced a profit every year at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. If the farmers of Canada desire to know how this was done they can obtain this information also absolutely free of charge.

If there is one thing more than another that injures the farmers as a whole in this country, it is the in-and-out system of farming; that is to say, going in at the high price and tumbling out at the low price, and losing both ways. We must be consistent. We must adopt a system of mixed farming carried on consistently, and stand by it through the lean years as well as in the good years; and in the long run the farmer who does that will come out ahead of the game. It is also important that we should make a careful study of the market so that we may dispose of our goods to the best possible advantage. In connection with the Live Stock branch, we have a first class marketing organization that keeps in close touch with the markets throughout the country and also with the export markets, and the farmers can obtain the fullest information from this branch before disposing of their live stock. In my opinion, there are two great requisites for the live stock industry of this country: First, to obtain for our producers the best possible markets, on which they can rely at all times,—because the greatest inducement to the producer is the knowledge that when he has turned out a good article he can dispose of it at a satisfactory figure;—and second, we must improve the quality of our stock. As I have pointed out, there is great room for such an improvement in connection with not only our beef cattle, but also our dairy animals. We must also standardize our live stock product so that it can always go upon the market of the same high quality and in sufficient quantity to interest the buyer. Of the various export markets that we have, the nearest and most convenient is the United States. I have no objection to shipping our goods to that market; in fact, I think we should support any reasonable measure that could improve that avenue to the Canadian farmer. A year ago last January, I had the pleasure of addressing the American National Live Stock Association at El Paso, Texas. That association represented all the range cattle men of the states extending from Texas to California, north from California to Washington, and from Washington, east to the Dakotas. The range interests of the United States were, therefore, well represented. I attended the convention for three days and listened with interest to the discussions, and I came to the conclusion at that time that those men wanted protection. Apparently, from what is going on at Washington, they still want it; and I feel that we are going to be faced with the problem incident to that protection in the United States for some years to come. That, at least, was the opinion I formed after carefully studying the feeling of that convention. They discussed the whole situation and concluded that their export markets in Europe, being now in such a condition that they could not absorb the surplus of the United States, it was best for that country, for a few years at any rate, to consume at home as much of its products as possible. There was one thing that struck me as I listened to the discussions at that convention, and that was that while the American farmer, with the large markets at his door, is a protectionist, the farmer on this side is not so much interested in that question.

Another market that is offering to us is the British and it is a more suitable market, for the reason that there is less chance of any tinkering with the tariff. At the present time, as hon. members are perhaps aware, we can dispose of our live animals at Birkenhead and Glasgow on condition that they are slaughtered within ten days of arrival. This, of course, is not a very advantageous way to sell our live stock. As can be readily understood, with the shrewd British dealer at the other end, and the owner of the cattle three thousand miles from home, with only ten days in which to sell them, the advantage is decidedly on the side of the dealer in England. But the embargo has not yet been removed and we have therefore to sell under those conditions. However, this market is useful at the present time. It may be asked: Why does it not pay us to kill our cattle on this side and send them over as chilled beef? The answer is: Simply because we cannot face the competition of the Argentine. She is able to put chilled beef on the British market at a very much lower price than we can and of as high quality, and the Britisher will pay a great deal more for fresh-killed beef than for chilled beef. So it pays us to ship our cattle on the hoof rather than as chilled or frozen beef.

That brings me to the point: Why do we want the British embargo against our cattle withdrawn? For the reason that in Canada we do not possess either the facilities or sufficient trained men for the finishing of our cattle so that we can ship them to the British market in a fat or finished condition. In 1919 we sent 500,000 cattle to the United States to be fattened. These feeders were taken over by the Americans and put in shape in Pennsylvania and in the corn states and then sent to the British market. In 1920 we sent 312,000 feeders to the States for the same purpose. Until we can get our men trained and install the necessary equipment to feed the stock at home, it will be necessary to look for a market for such stock.

I am very glad to hear from the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) that he has been impressing on the British Government the desirability of lifting the cattle embargo. Perhaps a brief history of this embargo would be interesting. It has been in operation now for about thirty years, having been first imposed on the assumption that in a shipment of cattle from Canada to Great Britain one animal was found affected with contagious pleuropneumonia. That disease had never been known to exist in this country, and it did not exist at the time, nor has it ever existed here since. This animal was traced to the farm from which the shipment originated, and all the other cattle there were found to be absolutely free from the disease and in a general healthy condition. It is now acknowledged that the diagnosis made at that time by the British veterinarians was erroneous. However, the embargo has been maintained for all these years.

I might give a brief resumé of the efforts made to have the embargo removed. I think the honours are about even, inasmuch as every Canadian government, and every federal Minister of Agriculture since the embargo was put on thirty years ago has made all possible efforts to have it lifted. These efforts were abated during the war, but were renewed with increased vigour immediately after the armistice. The withdrawal of the embargo was strongly urged by Sir Robert Borden, who in 1917 was successful in obtaining a promise from the then British Minister of Agriculture to the effect that the embargo would be lifted. About that time or shortly after Professor Roberston, representing the Department of Agriculture, and Mr. Arkell, the present Live Stock Commissioner, also carried on, with the consent of the British authorities, very valuable work in Great Britain along the same lines. A brisk campaign was carried on during 1919, 1920 and 1921. While no advertising was done, and while no attempt was made to make political capital out of what was done by the federal Department of Agriculture, I am quite sure the right hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) will back me up when I say that a continuous campaign was carried on during those years with the British authorities for the purpose of having the embargo removed. In 1921 the British commission appointed to deal with the matter gave its decision in favour of Canada. This was a very important step towards the lifting of the embargo. In addition to this a great deal of very valuable work has been accomplished by various associations in Great Britain. Allow me to mention a few of these organizations: The National Farmers' Union of Scotland; the Central Highland Association of Scotland; the Free Importation of Canadian Cattle Association of Great Britain; the Scottish Federal Meat Traders Association; the Live Stock Traders' Association of Great Britain; the Journeyman Butchers' Federation of Great Britain; the Union of London Meat Traders, whose President, Mr. Edwards, has carried on a very vigorous campaign for many years for the lifting of the embargo. Mr. Henderson, of Coupar Angus, Scotland, also has done very valuable work along the same lines. So it is quite clear that efforts to remove the embargo have been practically continuous on both sides of the Atlantic.

It is rather interesting, then, under these conditions to hear on the floor of this House and to note in a certain section of the agricultural press, that to Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, is due most of the credit for what has been accomplished. One enthusiastic paper in fact crowned him "The Embargo King." It is very doubtful indeed if the results obtained by Mr. Doherty were not overshadowed by the resentment created in Great Britain by his action there. His campaign was looked on as an uncalled-for interference on the part of a provincial minister in what was strictly federal work, and that he acted without any authority or any standing whatever in dealing with what was a strictly federal matter. In fact, the situation became so acute that the British Minister of Agriculture at that time issued a statement to the effect that when he got ready to deal with the embargo question he would do so through the proper channel—the federal government—and not through any provincial minister.

Let me give the committee a quotation from the British Live Stock Journal relating to Mr. Doherty's activities. It is as follows:

Mr. Doherty Departs
Resentment at his visit

The Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, before leaving Liverpool for Canada, on Saturday, said it was practically certain that the British embargo on Canadian cattle would be removed. It was expected that the removal would take place after the Imperial Conference, in London, in June next. All that Canada had to do was to see that all cattle for shipment were free from disease, and this could be easily done. When cattle shipments from Canada were in operation, meat prices were sure to drop, added the Ontario man. Just what is thought of Mr. Manning's dash to England to meddle in this affair is reflected in the Toronto World, the editor of which writes:—

"Resentment is very naturally being expressed on the appearance of Hon. Manning Doherty in England. Mr. Doherty went ostensibly as a private citizen, but it is impossible to disassociate him as a member of the provincial government in this way. Now that the question of the Canadian cattle embargo has already entered British politics it is neither political etiquette nor common decency for a Canadian to butt into British affairs under the circumstances."

Mr. HAMMELL: Mr. Chairman, would the hon. gentleman tell us what that line of argument has to do with the particular estimates we are dealing with?

Mr. TOLMIE: It appears to have a great deal to do with these estimates, because the item under discussion is for $1,000,000 expenditure on live stock. This matter is strictly along these lines.

Mr. Doherty is presumably representing Canadian farmers in England, but he surely cannot refuse to give the English farmer the same right of controlling and handling his own market as the Canadian farmer has.

"There is no discrimination against Canadian cattle in England any more than there is against any other outside cattle, and, consequently the Canadian representation can have no standing in this particular. Premier Drury was misled in allowing one of his ministers to leave the session at this time, especially for the purpose which Mr. Doherty is working on, and a quick cable from this end would be the best method possible for the provincial Premier to take to adjust a situation which is not to the liking of the old country people.

The question of the cattle embargo in any event, should be left entirely in the hands of the federal authorities, and Mr. Doherty's representation, if justified, should have been pressed on the Ottawa administration. The old country has been exceedingly considerate to Canadians who have become domiciled there, but it is an entirely different matter for a Canadian who has no standing to attempt to dictate internal politics in that country."

Without doubting Mr. Doherty's sincerity at all, from what I saw and heard in Great Britain I am of the opinion that so far as the British Government is concerned our case would have been in a much better position had Mr. Doherty refrained from interfering in federal affairs.

It was shortly after the coronation of Mr. Doherty that Mr. Drury, no doubt feeling somewhat envious over his colleague's ascension to the embargo throne, issued a statement at a meeting in Ontario to the effect that the British embargo would be lifted even if he had to go over there himself. I am quite sure he must have been joking. "It's not done," as the Englishman would say, for any one to go over to England and try and compel these men on their own ground to do what they do not want to do. It has become a little out of fashion. The last man that made a success of it, I think, was William the Conqueror in 1066. One has only to see men like the Right Hon. Lloyd George, Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Lord Birkenhead, and a few more of those big guns in action, and then merely to think of Mr. Drury, to really enjoy the humour of the thing.

I think with the minister that there is a good chance of having the embargo removed, but we cannot hope to gain any success in this direction by any such methods as have been followed by any of the gentlemen I have mentioned. We cannot hope to accomplish anything by the creation of "embargo kings." We cannot hope to get anywhere by extravagant articles in the press nor by any cheap bluster. We must meet these men and negotiate with them in an orderly, decent, businesslike way, and I am quite sure that if we do they will give us a good hearing and be glad to deal with us. But if we do not do that, if we adopt the other method I have just outlined, all we can expect is that we shall make a laughingstock of this country and not get anywhere.

There was another criticism launched against the late government in some of the agricultural press to the effect that we were not properly represented at the embargo commission. We were criticised particularly because we did not have a legal representative there. You can quite understand that it was no part of the business of the commission to lift the embargo. That could only be done by an amendment to the Animal Diseases Act of Great Britain. The commission sat for the purpose of taking evidence and coming to a decision. We won one hundred per cent on that decision; we got everything we expected; so I do not see how a more favourable verdict could have been reached. Again, in ordinary business life there are two classes of people I have always carefully sidestepped: the lawyers, and plumbers. I can see no reason why we should have had legal representation before the commission, because we had no legal fight with the government of Great Britain. They were simply giving us an opportunity of presenting our case clearly before them; that we did, and as I say, we got a very satisfactory verdict. So we did not lose anything by not having a legal representative.

While the embargo in Great Britain is imposed on cattle coming from all countries, the excuse has been made by some Britishers that if they permitted cattle to come in from Canada, that would necessarily mean that all other countries would have the same privilege. But it was clearly pointed out to them in the presentation of the Canadian case that this need not be so. In fact, it was clearly proven before the commission that Canadian herds were freer from contagious disease than any other herds in the world. Therefore, it would be a very easy matter indeed to pass regulations on a disease-free basis, so that by naming the various diseases Canadian cattle could easily be permitted to enter Great Britain without allowing cattle from other countries to get into that market.

It might be interesting just to give a few of the points in connection with the arguments used by the British people. In the first place, Canadian stores can be shipped to the United States, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Germany, but we are not allowed the same privilege as regards Great Britain. Since the embargo was imposed thirty years ago, no less than 3,000,000 head of cattle have been landed on British shores from Canada, have been slaughtered under careful inspection, and not one single case of contagious pleuro-pneumonia or foot-and-mouth disease has been found. Why should we not have the same privilege as Ireland? Ireland is clamouring to be given the same dominion status as Canada, but still she objects to the entrance of Canadian cattle to Great Britain. The fact is that in Ireland they had foot-and-mouth disease only a few months ago; they may have some now, whereas the only occasions when Canada had the disease on her shores was in 1884, when a ship called the Mississippi landed at Point Levis quarantine station in the month of May with cattle. Another ship, the Oxenholme, landed there a few months later. Both of these consignments were stopped there and dealt with at the quarantine station, and foot-and-mouth disease never gained a foothold in Canada. Strangely enough, both these shipments came from Great Britain.

The argument has been made that there is a possibility of disease coming in from the United States. That was met by this argument. In Canada, along a boundary of about 4,000 miles, about 1,700 of which is water, we have quarantine stations situated at various points, presided over by fully qualified representatives of the Health of Animals branch who make a careful inspection of all animals coming from the south, and even though they have had three outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease in the United States, the last in the year 1914, when their losses amounted to millions of dollars, not one single case was permitted to cross the line and gain a foothold in Canada. So that the fact that we have been able successfully to protect our boundary line against disease from the United States for many years past, and are doing it today, is a sufficient guarantee of what we can do in the future.

Another point brought up was that once we get access to the British market, the United States might ship their cattle to Canada, and then across to the British market as Canadian cattle. That argument was met by this: it would be quite easy for the Department of Agriculture to brand permanently every animal coming in from the United States, except pedigree animals —which are readily enough recognized, and in any case would not be shipped as stores —and so make it utterly impossible for United States cattle to be shipped across to the British market as ours. The next argument was that there was a great danger of Canadians glutting the British market and lowering the prices. Now the Canadian would be the last one to want that to happen, because he is under heavy expense in sending his animals over there. In fact at the present time if a 1,200 pound steer is picked up in Calgary and shipped to the British market the sum of $55 would have to be paid in freight alone which should be at least a sufficient handicap to export and sufficient protection for the producers of store cattle in Great Britain. Now we admit that the Britisher has every right to protect his own market, but it is well to bear these two or three points in mind. In the first place we have had a distinct promise to the Prime Minister of this country that the embargo would be lifted. That promise has not been fulfilled. We have had a favourable finding by the Embargo Commission appointed by the British Government to inquire fully into this whole embargo question, and in the finding of that commission they not only declared that Canadian cattle were very free from contagious disease but that there was no danger to British herds from contagious disease from this country.

There is one other point I would like to draw to the attention of the minister, and that is that, while it has been clearly shown that there is no danger to British herds from disease from cattle coming from Canada, our cattle are still kept out of Great Britain by the Animals Diseases Act, an act maintained for the purpose of protecting British herds from disease. Before leaving the subject of embargo I would like to take this opportunity to thank the British Embargo Commission, headed by Lord Finlay, for the courtesy extended to the Canadian representatives. They gave us every opportunity to present our case as fully as possible and treated us with the utmost fairness. I also wish to take this opportunity to thank Sir George Perley, the Canadian High Commissioner at that time, and his assistant Mr. Griffiths, for many services rendered. Sir Howard d'Eggville, Secretary of the Empire Parliamentary Association, was another gentleman who did everything possible to make our trip to England very pleasant and gave us every assistance and all the information we required in presenting our case. Hon. Duncan Marshall, who was then Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, presented very valuable and practical information before the commission. Lord Beaverbrook, a Canadian who owns a string of newspapers over there and who has persistently fought for the lifting of the embargo has rendered Canada good service along this line.

While I was in Britain I took advantage of the opportunity to study the situation in the British market for Canadian live stock products. I found that we are faced with brisk competition in that market, the competition coming from Denmark, Sweden, Holland, the United States, Argentina and New Zealand. If we are to obtain a strong foothold and be able to compete with these other countries our goods must be high and uniform in quality and of sufficient volume to interest those men on the other side. The European shipping his bacon to the British market has a decided advantage over us to a small extent in price in that he is able to put his goods on the market so much sooner than we can. He can put his bacon there with a lighter cure and this is preferred by the British consumer. I found the British traders very shrewd people; they are anxious to patronize the British dominions just as long as those dominions can furnish them with goods of high quality and just as cheaply as they can get them from other countries, and they cannot be blamed for this.

While over there I was very pleased to note that there was a strong move to increase trade within the Empire, and that in 1923 an exhibition will be held in London at which an opportunity will be given to all the dominions to exhibit their products and their manufactures, and I sincerely hope that the Government will take advantage of this opportunity to make a good strong exhibit of Canadian products. I understand that the delegates appointed to make the necessary arrangements will arrive here in a short time and I think they should be given every possible attention.

With reference to the other markets offering, I may say that on the Pacific coast there has been a start, even though in a small way, in the shipping of pure bred cattle to Australia, New Zealand, the Hawaiian Islands, China and Japan. This does not give promise of any immediate development, but it nevertheless offers possibilities for the future. With regard to the proposal to send representatives to South America, mentioned by the Minister of Agriculture a day or two ago, I think it is a good move. The representation of the beef men should, however, be spread among the breeds. Not only should the Shorthorn men be represented but also the Hereford and Polled Angus breeders. Mr. L. O. Clifford, of Oshawa, is one of the best breeders of Hereford cattle in the country. Mr. J. D. McGregor, of Brandon, is one of the largest breeders of Polled Angus in the world. On several occasions he has gone to the exhibitions in the United States and carried off prizes. Either of these men would make a very good representative. In addition, the dairy interest should be represented as I pointed out a day or two ago.

A far better plan to promote the development of the live stock industry—and I am fully aware of the difficulties in the way having had a little experience in the Department of Agriculture—would be to use all our pure bred stock at home. As I have pointed out, the quality of our beef cattle on the whole is poor, and the same thing may be said of our dairy cattle. While there are some excellent specimens, and while, perhaps, our cattle are as good as the average in other countries, still there is a great deal of room for improvement; I think everything possible should be done to have nearly all the pure bred stock retained in this country because there is an excellent field here for development.

One other point before I close, and that is with regard to the matter of grants for exhibitions referred to a day or two ago. I think it is very inopportune to cut this grant at the present time, particularly for the smaller shows that qualify under the present regulations of the Government, or as they existed a year ago. There were poor crops last year, and the exhibitions will be on before our farmers have had an opportunity to realize on the crops of 1922. The result is there is a general tightness of money in the country and the receipts of these exhibitions will not be as good as usual. I have already pointed out that notwithstanding what they have done in connection with the live stock business there is room for a great deal more development along this line, and the expenditure of $180,000, such as the minister mentioned the other day, to assist the cattle shows which have a value of from one and a half to two billion dollars is not a very large sum. I understand, too, that these men have not received notification of the change determined upon and consequently they will suffer great hardship in meeting the situation this year when the markets are flat and prices are low and the demands are not very good for pure bred stock. Therefore every possible effort should be made to interest people in exhibiting their live stock, particularly at the present time. Why? Because there never is a time when it is so desirable that there should be good stock as when prices are low. When that is the case there is always the possibility of making a little money out of a good animal but no prospect at all of making any out of a scrub.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I thank my hon. friend from Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie) for his very concise and comprehensive resumé of the live stock situation in Canada, more particularly for his remarks concerning the cattle embargo, with the exception of his strictures with respect to the Hon. Manning Doherty. I was on the farm busy trying to make both ends meet at the time the incident occurred to which he has alluded, and therefore I am not familiar with the facts and cannot say whether his remarks are justified to the fullest extent or not. I can say this, however, that all my relations with Mr. Doherty since I came down here have been both satisfactory and pleasant. So much for that.

The rest of my hon. friend's remarks were excellent and I want to thank him for them. We do not have sufficient speeches of that character. We have not yet realized in the West, and perhaps in other parts of Canada, that, after all, the corner-stone of agriculture in Canada, as elsewhere, is the live stock industry. We are gradually getting to it, not by choice always, but sometimes by compulsion, by the stern necessities of the case, by the climatic conditions and the soil conditions, lack of fertility and otherwise; and a speech such as my hon. friend delivered accelerates the action in that direction. I will not try to improve on it at all, for fear I should spoil it. I will simply try to accentuate one or two points. First, there is the necessity of paying more attention to quality in our live stock, both beef and dairying. Let any man take a trip to any of our abattoirs—the one, particularly that I am familiar with, in Winnipeg—and he will see a lot of fine stock there. But the rubbish which will be found there is distressing, especially in a dry year. They will hardly pay for their haulage to Winnipeg, especially during the recent years. As a matter of fact, I do not think some of them do pay for haulage. But if we can keep such good stock as some of these animals are, get along at all, and not go into debt, then it should pay to keep them.

As regards the dairy interests, the keeping of more and better live stock in some of our prairie provinces is very important, and upon that depends the future of southern Alberta and southwest Saskatchewan. There is no question about that. We must go into live stock, dairying, associated with siloing and the construction of silos. The drought there makes necessary the feeding of cattle in summer and winter, and the only way I know of by which they can obtain the necessary provender is to have an abundance of silage, not only during the winter but also till the middle of summer. That is not a new view in regard to live stock. Forty or fifty years ago, as a youth, I cut corn with a sickle, and fed the animals after school in the dry times, all summer, in order to keep up the flow of milk. If you go round Ontario, you will hardly find any feeding, except in the silo. They have a drought all over Canada, but not for so many consecutive years as in the prairies, and I am just as satisfied as I can be of anything that with due attention to the proper quality of beef and dairy live stock we can succeed. On those portions of the prairie we hear a great deal about the great drought, and it is terrible; unless you experience it you know nothing of it. But the cultivation of fodder—corn, sunflowers, sweet clover and all such plants—accompanied by the construction of silos, will be the salvation of agriculture in that important and unfortunate part of our western prairies. They are just on the balance now. A touch, or almost a breath, would send them the wrong way, but a little nursing will bring them back and put them on the highway to a reasonable development and to prosperity. I am satisfied these remarks will apply to many parts of Canada besides the particular area I have in my mind, and I am thankful to my hon. friend for stressing this feature of agriculture as he has done, if it is only for that particular aspect of the agricultural situation.

My hon. friend referred very briefly to the necessity of markets. There is no use lamenting the loss of the American market. We lost our chance, Mr. Chairman, and I do not know whether we will get it again or not. Every man who has an animal to sell, every hour of the day and every day of the week, thinks of what might have been. I do not want to be pessimistic, but the worse it looks in that direction—and I think it looks pretty bad—the more necessity of looking to the British market and the removal of the embargo. There are other markets, but they are only minor compared with those two great markets. It may be that our American friends will come to themselves later on, as we have come to ourselves, and that some time we may meet when we will both see alike, and may consummate a bargain of a sensible nature. But to-day we might as well realize the position and look elsewhere for the markets of the immediate future.

My hon. friend's references to the in-and-out system of agriculture, especially with regard to hog growing, is apt and timely. We have been going in and out ever since I can remember, but our friends the Progressives will tell you there are other reasons why they went in and out. I am not going to refer to that very much. I think, possibly, if we remained a little bit more steadfast, as my hon. friend suggested, and took the shadow with the sunshine, we would hit it sometime. Jumping in and out continuously, you may miss it every time, but if you stay with it you will hit it sometime or other. I do not want to go into the question of why this is so. We have been doing it for fifty years, and the average man will tell you he is justified in doing so. Sometimes we go out of a thing simply because of anger. We get so provoked when we have something to sell, and cannot sell it, that we throw it to one side and say "I'm not going to bother with it." I do not think that is a wise course, but it is the natural one.

With reference to the embargo question, we have listened to a very interesting and, I think, very thorough, recital. I will not dwell upon the matter now but will only say that I intimated, when we were discussing this matter the latter part of last month, that as soon as the new High Commissioner arrived in London I wrote him on the subject of this embargo. Before he left I had a long conversation with him. He is very much interested in it himself. He does want to be useful to Canada, and he sees no way he could be more useful immediately than by assisting in the removal of this handicap. I immediately wrote him, therefore, suggesting certain measures to secure the entry of our cattle into London, or to the outskirts of London, as that would make an immense market, and, I have instructed the representative of the Agricultural Department to call upon Mr. Larkin as soon as he arrives in England, and discuss the matter with him in the light of the present day events. I have asked him to seek an interview with Right Hon. Winston Churchill, because he is the gentleman who is at present in the limelight on this important question. I observe that he is making speeches indicating the likelihood of some changes on the part of the Government there. They expect to have an open, free-for-all vote on 3rd May on the question. Knowing something of governments, it seems to me they are simply preparing for a change and they are going to throw the responsibility on Parliament to make the change, and I am in hopes Parliament will act wisely with regard to this particular question primarily, and incidentally also with respect to ourselves. In addition to that, I think I would be justified in telling the committee—although I cannot give them anything very definite at this time—that this Government is in cable communication with the highest officials in Great Britain, and has been for the last week, with respect to this important matter. Later on in the session we may be able to place those cablegrams before this House, but it is not in the interest of the movement itself to say very much about it at this particular time.

Now we come to the question of grants to exhibitions. Here we have an illustration of how hard it is for a government to reduce expenditure. We all have to try that out sooner or later. If you go to dismiss some unfortunate civil servant that you think you can dispense with, who is not much good, before nightfall every friend at Ottawa is clamouring on his behalf. Now what are you going to do if you have a heart at all?

Mr. CALDWELL: Put it into cold storage.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I certainly have great sympathy with the representatives of this city in this House. Things are bad enough for the rest of us, but I do not know how they exist to-day.

With respect to these grants, I think I made it quite plain before, on the civil government estimates, that we had in mind cutting these grants in two, on the assumption that the various exhibition authorities had been notified. It was my impression that they had been notified; but I find that they have not been, and it would be rather drastic, without proper warning, to cut those grants in two all at once. I think, however, a very good principle to adopt would be that adopted by the late government with respect to reducing the bonus to civil servants by 25 per cent. I do not know whether, if they had had the opportunity, they intended to continue cutting down the bonus until it all disappeared, or how they proposed to deal with it, but they started all right; instead of taking a hatchet and smashing the bonus all to pieces at one blow, they tempered the wind to the shorn lamb by reducing the bonus gradually. In the first place, I take the ground that the question of grants to agricultural societies is strictly a provincial matter. There may be a few exceptions, winter fairs or something of that nature as regards which I would not care to express an opinion offhand; but, generally speaking, I think this should be a provincial and local matter. I am not going to criticise my predecessor. I think it was Hon. Mr. Burrell who introduced these federal grants with, no doubt, the best of intentions; but that was a day of spending large sums of money; that was a day when small contributions from individuals were hard to get, and there was some justification for his putting his hand into the public treasury and being liberal to these exhibitions which found it hard to finance during the early days of the war, and later. That, however, is no justification to-day for continuing these grants. Some of the exhibitions have now substantial surpluses as a result of these grants. I know a city in Saskatchewan—I will not mention the name; it is not the one that I represent anyway—that receives from this Parliament a grant of $5,000, and, in addition to that, receives $11,000 from the provincial government. Now that we are getting these gilt-edged highways and high-powered cars, people come scurrying into these centres from a hundred miles around and if exhibition day is fine, the authorities take in all kinds of money. They pay their secretaries high salaries and put everybody else in the air who does not get the same amount for his services. Farmers complain, with some ground, that salaries paid in the cities make it difficult for them to compete in the labour market. That is exactly what we are doing ourselves with respect to these exhibition grants, making it difficult for other people to get help when these high salaries are being paid. If we had oceans of money, it might be all right to shovel it out, but we have to cut down expenditure as much as possible. I see my right hon. friend (Mr. Meighen) smiling. He knows as well as I do how difficult it is to rub along. Things may improve, but in the meantime, we must keep close watch on all expenditures. My good friends, the Progressives, sometimes want to know what is the necessity of all this expenditure on statistics and what not, and yet they will come blithely at me and ask me to continue these grants. Well, that is about all they can do, and I presume it is what I would do myself; but this simply means that I have not to take them too seriously when they want this, that or the other item cut down, because you cannot have the money and spend it at the same time. After discussing the matter with my deputy and others, I think that possibly, instead of cutting these grants in half, we shall be able to do with a 25 per cent reduction. The exhibition managers will receive 75 per cent of the grant that has been in vogue in the past, and they should be able to get along lacking the 25 per cent. That is what the Civil Service had to do last year, and I do not know yet what they will have to do this year. That is the principle that has been laid down and it seems to be a rational one. Perhaps, next year, the grant can be cut down another 25 per cent, and the last two cuts will, perhaps, come more easily. I am not criticising the introduction of these grants because I was not here then, and it may have been all right; but, at present, when the sources of revenue for exhibitions are more than they were and revenues much more buoyant, when roads are in better shape, when many more people have cars, and when, if exhibition day happens to be a good one, there is no trouble in financing the affair, this sum of $180,000 could be expended on something else that would be productive of better results. In the meantime, what I have stated will likely be our policy, unless this Parliament says that these grants must be continued as before and it votes the money. That, however, will not be on my advice.

Mr. MILLAR: Before asking a question of the minister, I wish to refer to some advice given by the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie). He referred to the necessity for having good stock and of going into mixed farming. In fact, I think his address all through was very commendable, and I was pleased to hear it. I should like, however, to relate the experience last fall of a friend of mine in connection with dairying. He had taken the advice, given many times, that dairying was going to be the solution. He secured a number of good dairy cattle, and arranged with a company in Regina, large users of milk, to supply them with milk. He was assured that they would take his milk the year round if he started in at a certain period. But, in the course of about three months he was notified that they could take no more milk; the quantity of milk being offered by farmers around Regina was far more than the company could consume. The result was that he had to give up the industry in which he had started in very good faith. Just at that time I was given an opportunity of reading a letter from a gentleman living in Regina, and in the letter, the writer alleged that at the very time that milk was being refused by, well, I will say the Co-operative Creamery Company of Regina, carloads of Klim were being used, the manufactured milk being sold in competition with real milk. I will not say that is correct, but that was strongly alleged, and I wondered if the minister could give us any information as to the extent to which Klim was coming into competition with real milk.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I cannot give the extent of that competition, but I can assure my hon. friend that Klim is, I think, milk spelt backwards. It is really milk, only it is skimmed milk which is then evaporated and put on the market in a powdered condition. It does enter into competition with milk, but it is milk with the butter fat content mostly taken from it and then evaporated. In fact, it is cleaner and more sanitary than real milk, because, as a rule, greater precaution is taken in the manufacture of it than in the actual putting of whole milk on the market, especially in the winter time. It is usually made from summer milk which, as my hon. friend knows, can be got more cleanly than winter milk. There is an impression that Klim is simply chalk or something of that nature. It is not; it is milk, and very rarely is it adulterated. If it were adulterated, it would be illegal to sell it. There is a good deal of it used in the cities, and I am aware that there is a lot of objection to it. It is not very popular; people are afraid to use it, just as they are averse to oleo.

Mr. MILLAR: Can the minister say whether or not it has driven the farmers out of business in the cities?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I do not think so. I do not think it is having any effect on the farmers at all. At least there is no agitation against it that I know of. My hon. friend has spoken of the disposition of milk at the co-operative creameries at Regina. The reason for the situation to which he referred is that they have been giving such good prices for milk that they were simply overstocked and had to cut down a certain number of their new customers, retaining the old ones. I myself have been delivering milk at that creamery for a number of years, and I am informed now that Saturday's and Sunday's milk is being refused, even from old customers, simply because the attractive prices for dairy products, including milk, have had the effect of overstocking the market. Farmers do not like to acquire the necessary equipment to make butter. The simplest way of disposing of the product of a milch cow is to sell the milk straight. Otherwise the farmer has to get separators, smaller cans for delivery, and other necessary equipment, and they do not like to do this.

Mr. SALES: I can substantiate the remarks of the member for Qu'Appelle (Mr. Millar). I know that milk has been refused in Regina this year. I was speaking with the president of the Co-operative Creamery on this subject, and he said that so many dairymen are finding themselves in the hole that they were acting on advice and going into mixed farming. He said that the supply of milk was more than he could handle. I raised the question of Klim, and he assured me that it was more expensive than milk. Klim is used only when there is a shortage of milk. Now it seems to me to be the old, old story, told over again, of the farmer being advised what to do, by everybody that is not a farmer. We were told long ago by a former Minister of Finance, who I believe is now in the other Chamber, of the advantages of mixed farming. We also had advice on the subject of raising hogs and sheep; and the member for Kindersley (Mr. Carmichael) himself has some experience in the matter of sheep raising and the marketing of wool. The trouble is that every time we follow this advice we get it where the chicken got the axe; and we are getting pretty well tired of this kind of advice from people who do not know anything about the subject upon which they are advising. I venture to say that if every farmer were to raise two sows this year, pork would be just where it was before. I have marketed dressed pork in this country at five cents a pound, and I know that no man can carry a pail and feed the young pigs and the mother and get any money out of the business. We therefore get it in-and-out as the minister says; we are caught both ways. If we went into dairying and each man had an extra cow or two, the market would be simply flooded with dairy products, which would not be worth handling. I have only just returned from the West, and I can tell you that eggs are fifteen cents a dozen and butter twenty-five cents a pound, and no man can produce these commodities at this rate and make a profit. That is the situation, and it is no use saying that we must change our farming methods and adopt diversified farming, and do this thing and the other—that is simply useless. We tried the same thing years ago and found it futile.

The minister intimated that some of the Progressive members had approached him with a request for grants for exhibitions, and I heard murmurs of disapproval all around me. One hon. member wanted to know if I was the guilty party. Certainly not. I do not know whether the minister can substantiate his statement.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My hon. friend has not in his constituency an exhibition of the nature referred to.

Mr. SALES: No, I have not; and I have something to say about exhibitions. When I go to these fairs and find that by far the greatest part of the money is spent on horse races, on flying machines, and on midway shows, I begin to doubt the advantage to agriculture of exhibitions of this sort. I think the greatest benefit that the farmer derives from them is the opportunity he and his family have of getting out and meeting their friends. That benefits his morale more than anything else, as it sends him back to his work probably refreshed after a holiday. I do not believe that these exhibitions are worth the money they cost the country. Of course, I know I am running the risk of being criticised when I get back to Saskatchewan, but I will say what I think, nevertheless.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I am with you.

Mr. SALES: This is an opportune season to cut out the exhibitions entirely, for the simple reason that the farmers of western Canada will not be able this year to afford to attend them. They have not sufficient money for this purpose. I would urge the minister therefore to take his courage in his hands and cut the whole thing out for this year.

I should like to know whether the distribution of animals comes under this particular head. If it does, I notice in the Auditor-General's statement that there is $22,680.27 for the purpose, and about half of that is spent in one place in my own province, at Qu'Appelle. Does the minister not think that this is another case of duplication by the federal authorities of what the province is already doing? The Department of Agriculture of Saskatchewan is carrying on work in the distribution of live stock. There are six men putting in a lot of time at $6 a day, with their expenses in addition, amounting in all to $10,143, spent at this particular point, besides some other items at other points in the province. Could not this work be carried on in co-operation with the provincial authorities at considerably less expense? I should be glad to have some information from the minister on the point.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The remarks of the hon. member I agree with, except one. In the first place, I have to thank him not only for the moral, but for the real, support that he has given me in the matter of exhibitions. I speak from memory, but I think that his remarks sound the first note of support I have had in reducing the grants. Again I thank my hon. friend, and when we both go back to Saskatchewan we shall be able to stand together on that question, anyhow. With regard to the question of pork, I think my hon. friend from Victoria (Mr. Tolmie) was quite right in his resumé of the whole situation. Sooner or later we have to adopt some phase of the live stock industry as the foundation and chief corner stone of our agriculture. And we shall do so, not as a matter of choice, but of necessity. All countries that I know of have had to do the same thing. Probably in the valley of the Nile they may not have done so; but, speaking generally, this is the case. I am sure the hon. member will agree with me with respect to the necessity of this.

I should like to refer for a moment to a personal matter with respect to dairying, wherein I think my hon. friend from Saltcoats (Mr. Sales) is mistaken. As I said before, the Co-operative and other creameries are refusing milk; but they are not refusing cream. There is an unlimited demand for cream to manufacture into butter. The British market is getting only two and a half per cent of its butter supply from Canada, so it is evident that there is practically an unlimited market for our butter in Great Britain. Therefore, do not be weary in dairying because your milk is refused. I have never yet heard of butter fat being refused; there is an unlimited demand for it. With regard to milk, I am sure that what I am about to state will be interesting to the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie). Last year I kept an account of milk from one ordinary grade Holstein cow, and in nine months I sold to the same creamery $329 worth of milk. This year at the reduced prices, if that cow keeps up her record to the first of June, she will have yielded me $240 to $250 worth of milk. If you had ten cows like that, Mr. Chairman, you would not feel just so " up against your luck " as some of our farmer friends do at present. Where would the farmers of this province, in which I was born, be to-day if it were not for their dairies? For one dollar they get from any other farm product, I believe they get five dollars or six dollars, if not ten dollars, from the products of the dairy. The real trouble is we do not like dairying. One of the primary reasons for going out West was to get away from chores; but if I were still on the farm—as I was a year ago—I would find myself compelled to drift back into dairying in spite of myself. We have got to make farming go, and the man who won't do chores on the farm to-day is going to be in pretty hard circumstances to-morrow; there is no question about it. I know it is exacting work, there is no end to it; but you have to work at anything that is worth while. I would not like to hear anything said, even on the prairies, against dairying, because if you get the right type of cows—cows that will give something and give it freely—you will find it a pleasant job, as compared with keeping cows of the " boarder " type that my hon. friend spoke of. I remember cows that would give hardly anything, and what they did give came reluctantly. You had to hunt them around the yard and switch their tails around your neck and then they gave only a miserable little drop; but these " christian " cows are liberal milkers, and there is all the difference in the world between the two types.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): The hon. minister asked a moment or two ago: Where would those farmers of his province have been if they had not gone into mixed farming? I should like to ask him: Where are they now?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I was not referring to Saskatchewan, but to Ontario.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Are they any better off in Ontario?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: They are on top of the sod, anyhow.

Mr. WARNER: I want to correct the statement of my hon. friend from Saltcoats (Mr. Sales) in regard to exhibitions. I have been a director of the Edmonton exhibition for something more than twenty years, and I have yet to learn that the grants from the Dominion treasury go to pay for flying machines and midways. We have not been in the habit of spending our money in that way; it has been put into the prize-list and has gone directly into the farmers' pockets. I am in accord with a great deal of what my hon. friend has said regarding the condition of farmers, but I do not believe we will improve their condition very much by cutting off these grants. The midway promoters have to pay a certain amount to the exhibition authorities for the privilege of holding their shows in the exhibition grounds; no money is paid those promoters to add their attractions to the exhibition. I am not justifying the midway, but I want to correct the statement that grants from the Dominion treasury are paid to midway promoters. Neither do we pay for flying machines out of those grants; that expense is met out of other funds. Understanding these agricultural exhibitions as I do, I believe it would be a mistake to reduce the grants made to them. In fact, I think that the grants are far too small. There might be some room for argument as to how much benefit these agricultural fairs are in a general way to agriculture, but we want to discuss this matter from the point of view of bettering agriculture. To my mind agriculture has been largely benefited by these exhibitions.

It certainly does promote the breeding of better live stock by the neighbour of a farmer who is able to show good stock and gain prizes, for naturally that neighbour wants to be able to equal if not surpass his friend's record. I want to leave that idea with hon. members, that we are not paying these exhibition grants out in any foolish way. I am thoroughly familiar with what is done at Edmonton and other places, and I do not want any misunderstanding to prevail as to how the money is used. If the hon. member from Saltcoats knows that these grants are improperly used in certain places, I have no fault to find with him for calling attention to such misuse, but if he would come to Edmonton he would find that we devote these grants exclusively to the furtherance of agriculture.

Mr. SPENCER: Mr. Chairman, we have heard a great deal about the need of getting farmers to engage in mixed farming. I come from a district where we have been engaged in mixed farming ever since that country was settled, and I do not see any difference between the financial status of our farmers and those of any other district. They are all pretty well on rock bottom financially at the present time. We have heard a great deal, especially from the hon. member for Victoria (Mr. Tolmie), about shipping our unfinished stock out of the country instead of finishing them at home as we ought to do. The main reason in my opinion why stock is sent out of the country unfinished is not because the farmers want to sell them, but because they have to. Most of the unfinished stock is sent out simply for the reason that farmers are forced to raise money to meet their bills at a time when stock is at a very low figure. Furthermore, the farmer has to spend a certain amount in preparation for feeding stock in a proper way. In my district, where the farmers mostly go in for mixed farming, they have not had the means whereby to fit themselves to feed their stock, and the chief reason why they have not finished their cattle up to the point they should is that they have been forced to meet their bills in the fall.

The hon member for Victoria also said something about sheep, and that lambs were fetching a good price. I want to point out to him that lambs of the very best quality were sold from my district last fall at $6 per head. If he thinks that is a good price, those who are engaged in raising lambs will differ from him. A good deal has been said in regard to the raising of sheep, and that we do not raise a sufficient number in this country. With that statement I absolutely agree. I do not know of a country in the world where sheep can be raised with such success as in Canada, but at the same time when you are in the position that the farmers in my district are in,—and I take it that that district is like many others in Canada—where your returns from your wool are only sufficient to pay for the shearing of the sheep, there is no encouragement to go into that class of farming.

As far as the hog industry is concerned I am absolutely in sympathy with the hon. member for Saltcoats (Mr. Sales). The only reason the farmers went out of the raising of hogs was because they were starved out of it. Just as soon as the farmers are guaranteed a reasonable profit, not a big one, but a reasonable profit in proportion to the price of the grain they grow, they will go in for raising hogs. But just as long as the packers who control prices can force them to a starvation price when they wish, they are not going into hog raising.

We have also heard a great deal about the cattle embargo. It is something we would all very much like to see removed, and I think if we, as Canadians, were a little more willing to remove the embargo on British goods we might get a little sympathy from the other side.

The Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) has mentioned chores, and I was reminded of the fact that the chores in the country are done when those people who favour daylight saving so strongly, are either in bed or at their club. The chores are done before the daylight saver has thought of going to business, and during the greater part of the year by lamp light. Some of the farmers in my district ship cream, and others are milking only enough for their own needs, and the reason is because they have the greatest difficulty in getting labour to milk. They cannot get men who will put in the long hours necessary on the dairy farm when they can get better wages in the cities.

Mr. McCONICA: I want first to say a word in support of the minister. I have reason to believe that he was approached by some of the Progressives on this matter of grants, and that he could readily substantiate his statement in that regard. I happen to know something of an association in my constituency, or rather, just outside, the members of which had made certain contracts. Later they wrote to me, in distress, that they would not be able to carry those contracts out because financial conditions were unfavourable, and they implored me to see if I could not at least save something on this proposition. I did interview the minister, and I felt rather encouraged with the result of my interview.

I am thoroughly in favour of agricultural exhibitions. I happen to be honorary president of an agricultural society that does not get a grant, but it has done more for our country than many other things on which we have spent money. These grants that are made by the Dominion government are beneficial, not only to the live stock industry, but generally to agriculture throughout the West.

I was much pleased with the remarks my hon. friend made as to mixed farming, but I would point out that in days gone by we in western Canada have often been led up to the mountain tops and shown glorious prospects only to find, when we got down to the valley, that the level pastures were not quite as green as we had expected to find them. Mixed farming is all right if it comes out all right, and raising cattle is splendid if you can raise and finish and sell them at a good price; but when you get them nearly to the point where you want to realize money on them, and then are hailed or frozen out—I have been hailed out seven times in western Canada and frozen twice—how are you going to finish your cattle? That is where the trouble comes in. We very often sell our cattle before they are ready, simply because we cannot do anything else. If it is not the sheriff threatening us, we run short of feed. I have built up good herds of cattle two or three times and have been compelled to sell them for what I could get. I have attempted to fatten cattle during a long and cold winter on feed that was not very suitable to the purpose, and unless you get a very marked increase in the spring over what you paid for them in the first place, you do not make very much money. Mixed farming is all right but take my experience. Why, I sold cream and the price I got last summer was much below the cost of the help to milk the cows. Considering the cost of feed and my own labour I came out with about half of what it would have cost me to get the milking done. That is not a very encouraging prospect.

Now then with respect to sheep. I am a sheep raiser although not in a large way. I went into it three or four years ago. I read in the papers that there was a scarcity of wool throughout the world, that there never would be wool enough to properly clothe the people and I also noticed the skirts were getting shorter and decided something should be done. The first year I sold my crop to a co-operative concern at Regina. I shipped it to them and they said they would give me forty cents a pound in advance and then pay me the balance later. I do not know how much the later payment was; my son got it and deposited it. The next year they wrote and offered me twenty-five cents a pound. Before I got the sheep sheared they said the advance would be only fifteen cents. It did not make so much difference. I sent the wool along with the idea there would be a balance later. When the next letter came instead of sending me a cheque, they stated that they had overpaid me and I must either return the money overpaid or send the next crop. Well, of course, I had spent the money and decided to send the next crop. I sent the wool to them and in my letter to them said: "I am sending you my next crop of wool, and hope it will be enough to pay the debt. If it is not, let me know and I will send you the sheep." Now, this illustrates the difficulties of a sheep breeder. I have not yet heard any more from that firm; perhaps they are waiting for me to winter the sheep. Such experiences as these are not encouraging. I am keeping the sheep. I rather like to associate with them. But that doesn't go as respects hogs; when they get too cheap we unload and quit. In the West we do not raise the kind of feed that is necessary for our milch cows except for about three months in the year. If you try to feed dry feed to cattle six months in the year and make money on it you have a very difficult problem to solve. In that country you cannot tell whether a good steer is an asset or a liability; in fact you can hardly get rid of them. My attempt at mixed farming has not been a success, and the method has not been a success in our country. Out there if we cannot raise grain we are gone. If we can raise grain we can keep some cattle; it is a grain-raising country. I say to you gentlemen that there must be a market for our grain if we are going to make a success of farming in western Canada. Nothing else will do, nothing else will save us. As it is now cattle, sheep, and everything else has failed to save the farmers. In my part of Saskatchewan they are getting poorer and poorer although they are raising good crops. Exhibitions are all right, but they do not put money into your pockets. We need some relief there such as the Government has not yet proposed. We therefore ask the Government to consider the situation very earnestly before this session draws to a close.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I at once still the apprehensions of my friends to the left and tell them I do not propose giving any advice upon farming. Indeed I can go farther and say: Never since I came into public life have I ventured to advise farmers how to farm. But there is a distinction between attempting to do that and coming to a conclusion and expressing it as to public policy in relation to the nation exclusive of agriculture. I rise especially though to say something anent the remarks of the former Minister of Agriculture in relation to the cattle embargo. He made some comment on the action of the Minister of Agriculture for the province of Ontario in proceeding to England and entering on certain activities there on this question. That comment was taken exception to by the minister and the exception was greeted with considerable applause. Some time earlier in the session I heard from the same quarter comment to the effect that whatever progress had been made in the way of removing the embargo we owed chiefly to that same Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Now when I discuss this I am not advising farmers how to farm: I am speaking of something of which I have intimate personal knowledge which I have followed closely for many years—anxiously for the last few—and as to which what I say is based on observations of fact. I have no fault to find with the conduct of any government in the past thirty years in their endeavours to have this embargo removed—no fault to find first of all, because I believe it is in the interest of Canada that it be removed. I believe we have a just grievance while the embargo stands on the present basis and that we are justified in proceeding by legitimate means to get it removed; and I further believe, so far as I know, that all governments have, to the utmost of their power, endeavoured to bring about that result.

The embargo, while it exists in its present form, is unjust to Canada not because Canada is discriminated against in any sense. Canada is not discriminated against in the British legislation, it is equally applicable everywhere; but the embargo was imposed at a time when it was advertised that a case of pleuro-pneumonia had been found among the Canadian herds, and the embargo took the form of a protection of British cattle breeders against that disease. So that from its very origin it implied a reflection on the health of Canadian herds. That reflection was either just or unjust. History has shown that it was unjust—that in the first place there was no such contagious disease in any Canadian herd, that in all the years since there has never been any, but that on the contrary Canadian herds have been freest from disease of any herds in the world. So that, as long as the embargo rests on that origin it constitutes in itself an injustice to this country whether it is applied generally or whether it is not. We came closest to success in persuading the British Government to remove it in 1917. At that time, at the Imperial Conference, the efforts that had proceeded for many years were brought to a consummation. There was obtained at the conference, now recorded in language that is of course indelible, the promise of the British Minister of Agriculture that after the war—although the date was not fixed—the Government would remove that embargo. Consequently, after the war we took the matter up. Mention has been made this afternoon of correspondence that has passed between the present Government and the British Government on this subject, and to the possibility that it may be brought down. So far as I am concerned, I hope the Government will see its way to bring down all the correspondence that has passed ever since the war—yes, before it for that matter—on this subject. There may be some of it that may be considered confidential, some of it the Government may feel it has no right to bring down. If the Government so considers presumably I will make no objection, but I hope there may be none of that character and that the full facts will be disclosed to this Parliament and the people.

After the war we took up with renewed vigour the question of the removal of the embargo, basing our position on what we thought was the firmest ground, the ground most likely to bring us to success, namely the promise of the British Government at the Conference of 1917. While we were engaged at this, the Minister of Agriculture for the province of Ontario proceeded overseas. What he did over there I shall refer to just a little later. Suffice it to say that considerable agitation took place in Great Britain at that time, a by-election was held on the question, with the well-known result that nothing was accomplished, but later on the British Government determined to appoint a royal commission for the purpose of inquiring into the whole question as to the effect of the removal in toto, as to what might be done to accord with the promise, and, in general, as to the basic effects underlying the establishment of the embargo and its continuance. Lord Finlay was placed at the head of that commission. We, so far as Canada was concerned, took the position that we already had brought this question to the point of a definite promise, and that, while the commission might be of value to the British government, we did not propose that our case would be weakened by its verdict, no matter what the verdict might be. Nevertheless, we felt it our duty to go before that commission to present the actual facts with respect to Canada, to show there never was cause, in so far as disease was concerned, from the standpoint of Canada, for the placing of the embargo at all, and to show there never had been since any cause for continuance of the embargo. The case was then under the charge of the then Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Tolmie. That the work was well done is evidenced, not only by the words of Lord Finlay, who, in the most—I would almost say extravagant, but I will say superlative—in the most superlative language stated that the Dominion case had been presented with clearness, conciseness and with strength, not to be improved upon at all.

But if anything else were wanted to show that there was nothing left undone to bring a successful verdict out of that inquiry, it is the fact of the verdict itself. The verdict, in so far as this country was concerned, was, as the former minister expressed it, a hundred per cent successful. The commission found that there had been no cause for the maintenance of the embargo in so far as disease was concerned, that there was no cause for continuance now, in so far as disease was concerned, that Canadian herds were free from contagious diseases, and I think it went so far as to say the freest in the world. Nothing more could have been expected. Considering the subject from the standpoint of protection of industry in Great Britain—that is to say from the standpoint of the British cattle-breeder—certain comment was made as well, but, even in that respect, the verdict, in so far as it was favourable to that protection and against this country, was about all that you could expect it to be. That is what preceded up to that point. Following that correspondence continued, and at the Imperial Conference I took the subject up, and then at the conference of Prime Ministers I rested my case on the promise of the British government, and, resting my case there, I asked, in the name of this country, that that promise be carried out.

Now I desire to say that the principal obstacle I encountered there was the resentment that had been raised in that country by the conduct of the Minister of Agriculture of Ontario. Why was that the case? And what was wrong with his conduct? I do not for a moment say that Mr. Doherty had not a perfect right to go there; that is if he could go there, a Minister of Agriculture, as a private citizen, and do what he could to persuade the people of the injustice of the embargo. Nor do I say for a moment that he did not go over with the best of intentions, that his only desire was to achieve something and to get it done. I am not at all impugning his motives, but I do impugn the wisdom of the way he went about it. The Minister of Agriculture for Ontario proceeded to England, and what did he do? He commenced on the soil of England a propaganda against the policy of the British government, and appealed to the British people to reprimand the government of Great Britain for the conduct that was pursued by that government. Is there any one in this House who disputes that what I say is right? Did he not take part, even, in the by-election, denouncing the policy Great Britain was pursuing in this regard before the British electorate to whom the British Government was responsible? Is there any one who disputes that? There can be no one who disputes it. Even the Prime Minister of Ontario has, in almost these very words, described the conduct of Mr. Doherty in commencing a propaganda in England against the policy there being pursued.

Is there any one who would suggest for a moment that it is a proper course for a minister, a public man in this country, to go to Great Britain, where certainly they have autonomy just as we have autonomy, and to challenge the conduct of the British government before the British people? Is that a proper course? If it is in the minds of any one that it is, just for a moment consider the reverse position. Suppose a British minister should come to this country, and, in a matter of our domestic policy, even though he felt that that policy did an injustice to his own country, should, before audiences in this country, attack the policy pursued by the Government of this country, what would be thought of such conduct in Canada? I ask hon. gentlemen to let that sink into their minds. Is it any wonder that we found over there not only resentment, but a difficulty which the British government faced caused by the feeling aroused in the minds, not only of ministers over there, but of others in relation to the action of Canada. Now I picture the reverse condition. Suppose that, following that, that minister had gone back to England, had been received there by his Prime Minister, and at a public meeting the Prime Minister of Great Britain declared this embargo, or this policy of the government of Canada, had to stop, and that if it did not stop he would proceed to Canada and see what he could do about it. I wonder what we in this country would have thought of a speech of that kind from the Prime Minister of Great Britain. But that is just the substance of the speech of the Prime Minister of Ontario in relation to the conduct of the British government; so that it will scarcely be a matter of surprise that action of this kind, taken by the public men of this country before audiences in Great Britain, published in the press of Great Britain, constituted one of the chief obstacles encountered in securing the implementing of the promise of the government of Great Britain back in 1917.

Now if that is removed—and I think it will be removed, and as time goes on the memory of that will fade—the difficulty it engendered will be removed. I have great hopes that at a not very distant date there will be such action taken as will be an honest fulfilment of the promise made in 1917, and I sincerely hope the Government will proceed, and vigorously proceed, standing on that promise, to demand and to ask for its fulfilment, but in the way we always ask for things, in the way we always assert our claims, and press our position before the authorities of Great Britain. The hon. Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) is the head of the department chiefly interested, and the government of Canada is the instrument and the means of communication. It is for the government of Canada to lay its case before the government of Great Britain and for that government to lay the case before the people of Great Britain, and I only add that whatever may have been the intention—and I do not dispute its honesty or motive in any way—the actual conduct was ill-advised, it was ill-managed and mischievous in its results.

I am going to say one word more before I sit down. I do not propose to discuss the tariff question just now at all. It has been referred to by the Minister of Agriculture; it has been referred to by some others on this side, and I can plainly see an attempt being made to explain the present attitude of the American people and the American government as something that could not exist and the present result as something that could not exist had Canada decided differently in 1911; that is to say, that had the reciprocity pact of that day been accepted by the Canadian people, we would not find ourselves now confronted with this attitude of the American people; we would not find ourselves now confronted with the agricultural bloc and their determined policy, nor with the Fordney Bill, with the Young Bill and now with the McCumber Bill that is about to become law. I just want to ask that that one, single indisputable fact enter the minds of hon. members of this committee; that its significance be pondered over, at least, by those who are inclined to take that point of view. We have had for some years back reciprocity in this country in several articles, notably in one, and for the sake of the argument, the one is just as good as ten. We have had since 1918,—or is it 1917?—precisely the same reciprocity with regard to wheat that we would have had with regard to all that other lines of articles embraced in the pact of 1911, had that pact become law. Consequently, if the attitude of the American people, their conduct to-day, their law that now is in effect and that hangs over us, are in any way attributable to the lack of reciprocity in 1911, then it inevitably follows that it would not apply to those articles in respects of which we have had precisely the same reciprocity since 1917. All I want to say is what is even now in the mind of everyone. It applies to wheat; it applies to everything else as well, on which, rightly or wrongly, we accepted their offer in 1917. I will not proceed further—the time will come for a complete discussion of this subject. The American people are to-day in a certain state of mind by reason of the imports of farm products into that country. They have taken certain action. There may have been a time a while ago when they felt like taking an opposite action. There may be a time a few years hence when they will be exactly in the opposite frame of mind, and a few years further on when they will be in a still different frame of mind. That has been the condition of affairs for the past sixty years. But that that varying state of mind of the American people towards Canada will be affected by any reciprocity arrangement, which they reserve the absolute right to change at any time they like, I do not think any seriously-minded Canadian considers for a minute. That is all I have to say on this subject now. I ask that it be remembered that what they are doing applies to the subjects covered by reciprocity when they are doing it, just as to other subjects as well.

Mr. HALBERT: I want to draw the attention of the committee to one or two matters. In the first place, I want to refer to the long distance roundabout which the ex-Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Tolmie) and the ex-Prime Minister (Mr. Meighen) went to get a slap at the Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture of Ontario. It ill behooves either of the two to go so far around to bring in a subject in order to play politics, as every hon. member knows this was brought in purposely at the present time. We have had this embargo for thirty years and it has been left for the Drury government to do something to have the embargo removed. We heard very little about it until the Hon. Manning Doherty went over to Great Britain to make an investigation in regard to the matter. Yet a great fuss has been kicked up about the Hon. Manning Doherty going over there and interfering with British politics, as it was claimed he had no right to do.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Why, the promise of the British government was obtained long before he was ever heard of.

Mr. HALBERT: Just a minute, please; I did not interrupt the right hon. gentleman. While the Hon. Manning Doherty was in the Old Country, he was received by the British Prime Minister, by Lord Beaverbrook, and others just as were the ex-Minister of Agriculture and the ex-Prime Minister, and he was in just as good company as any of them. Before he left Great Britain he had the promise from Lloyd George, that a committee would be appointed. That was before the ex-Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion reached the Old Country. Mr. Lloyd George told the Hon. Manning Doherty that if the committee reported favourably the embargo would be removed. The whole trouble with my hon. friends is that they are afraid that, perhaps, the embargo may be removed and the Hon. Manning Doherty may get some credit for its removal. They can continue playing politics, but the province of Ontario is going to give the Hon. Manning Doherty the credit for placing the matter fairly and squarely before the British people. The British people defeated their Minister of Agriculture because of his attitude on the embargo, and the Toronto World, from which the hon. member quoted, has passed out of existence. It is because my right hon. friend had fooled the Canadian people on the embargo question that the party which he leads to-day has passed into political oblivion. I think the Hon. Manning Doherty will still be on top of the earth when some of the men who are trying to trample him into the mud have ceased to exert any influence upon public affairs.

Mr. EVANS: There are one or two matters which I should like to bring to the notice of the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell). At the present time, markets are certainly the pressing need of the live stock men of Canada, and we shall most assuredly have to pay more attention to the type of stuff we raise in order to secure the best markets. On receiving a communication some time ago from a packing company, I had my attention drawn to the fact that the type of hog that is raised to-day by the Canadian farmer is not just what it should be for export. We are looking very largely to the British market for an export trade in hogs, and the type that takes best there is something that will conform to the type used in making what they call Wiltshire bacon. I should like to bring to the notice of the Minister of Agriculture the fact that, perhaps, more attention to some kind of education along this line would benefit the country a great deal at this time.

The question of a market for beef cattle is a very serious one with those in the West who are raising cattle for export in large quantities. I believe, with the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie), that the United States market was, perhaps, the most advantageous for the farmers of western Canada, and I believe also that we should have done our best to secure that market. Notwithstanding the feeling that is prevalent amongst the farmers and the agricultural bloc in the United States Congress to-day, I think it was the duty of every government in this country to cultivate friendship and trade with the great republic to the south of us. I believe, notwithstanding all the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) has said, that had we secured that market for ourselves when the opportunity was open to us, the benefits to those on both sides of the line would have been apparent to-day and, perhaps, the Fordney tariff would not be before us as it is. Now there is practically no hope of securing a market in the United States for our live stock, and I believe that, for some time to come at any rate, protection for the farmers in the United States will be the settled policy in that country. So that we are led to look more and more across the Atlantic for markets for our cattle, and the embargo is the principal obstacle in our way to-day. While perhaps some good work may have been done in this matter —and I do believe that some things have also been done that are rather injudicious —there is one fact, which I would bring particularly to the attention of the Government, namely that there is still one avenue of approach to the British government open to us in the endeavour to have the embargo removed. I refer to the increase in the British preference. I am emboldened to make this statement because of the fact that at the Liberal Convention held in this city in 1919 it was a plank of the platform of the great Liberal party that they would increase the British preference to at least 50 per cent. Now this is a concrete proposal that could be put up to the British government, and if a satisfactory arrangement could be arrived at we should be benefited in two ways. I bring this to the serious attention of the Government and would urge them to leave no stone unturned to secure for us the removal of the embargo, if, by increasing the British preference to at least 50 per cent, this object can be attained.

Mr. JELLIFF: We are discussing an estimate of a million dollars to be expended on live stock work. For some time past I have known that cattle and sheep in the very southwestern part of Alberta have been suffering from the depredations of timber wolves, and it had been my purpose to go over the matter personally with the Minister of Agriculture. I hold in my hand a number of letters I received to-day which I put into my pocket with the intention of interviewing the minister and talking the situation over with him. But as this matter may perhaps be appropriately discussed under this item, I shall now deal with it. The timber wolves in the southwest of the province have their breeding and lurking places in the Dominion parks and forest reserves, and they are emerging and playing havoc with the cattle and sheep in that region. I shall read from a letter I received this morning from a friend of mine with regard to bounties. I do not know what our system of bounties is. If I remember rightly, we have no bounty on timber wolves and coyotes. However, I will take the ground that we should have a bounty for the protection of the people who raise cattle and other stock out there. My correspondent says:

> In regard to asking the Government for a bounty to be placed on timber wolves to aid us in getting rid of them, I am enclosing letters from four stock owners, which only represent a portion of the stock owned, but will give you an idea as to what damage the wolves are doing here. The stockmen located along the Waterton river too, seven miles below the Waterton lake, lost 35 head last year. I lost 5 head, 4 head of yearlings in four days. The range along the foothills that the cattle run on is all partly covered by scrub timber and brush, and, the number of cattle stated in these letters—

That is, those that were killed, I take it.

> —were all seen by the owners, so only partly represent the total loss; yet the number is over one hundred for one year from a few men.

One of the letters he encloses is signed by Sam and John Walburger. It reads:

> We have been asked to state the number of calves lost, and yearlings, in the Dominion park, east of the Belly river. Yearlings, 21 per cent, 7 per cent of sucking calves, during the summer of 1921. And would like to state that the sucking calves got away very light.

There is another letter signed by J. J. West, who states his loss as follows:

> Colts year 1921, 3 head, under 1 year.
> Cattle year 1921, 11 head, from calves to two year olds.
> Colts year 1922, 5 head, under 1 year.
> Cattle year 1922, 7 head, from calves to two year olds.

Another man last year lost 14 head, from yearlings up, and 10 head of calves. I will not go into all these letters, because the time is short. I want to impress upon the members of this House, however, and especially upon the minister, that it is quite as important to protect our live stock from the dangers to which they are exposed from wild animals, as it is to take measures to prevent tuberculosis and other diseases. The minister did me the kindness to mention the fact that I had called to his attention the tuberculosis situation in the Lethbridge district. I was very much interested in that matter. I am also greatly interested in the present subject I am discussing, and I will ask the minister to see that provision is made in some way for an adequate bounty to put a stop to the loss which the stockmen in this district experience from wolves. They made an effort themselves, and I see by one of the letters that they donated quite a sum of money for the purpose. But I imagine that their efforts were of no effect, one reason being that the breeding grounds of the wolves are on Dominion property, and I do not think that the stockmen are allowed to go on these reserves with their guns. One of the letters says:

> The stockmen in this district four years ago met and offered a bounty of $60 for each female and $40 for males and $20 for pups. Since that time we have only been called on to pay bounty on seven pups, one female and one male.

So that they do not seem to make any progress through their voluntary efforts, and some arrangement should be made to rid these public reserves and parks of the wolves that are coming out and preying on herds of stock. We are trying to develop a good stock and dairy country in that part of the Dominion. In this immediate neighbourhood, which comes within the district of my hon. friend from Macleod (Mr. Coote), they are developing an irrigation project covering some 23,000 acres, one of the main purposes of which is the encouragement of dairy and stock raising. I take the ground that these people should not be subjected to losses incurred by reason of wild animals preying on their stock. I hope the minister will take this matter under advisement and make such provision as will protect farmers and stock-raisers against these losses. To enable him to deal with the matter I intend to turn these communications over to him.

Mr. COOTE: I wish to back up what the hon. member for Lethbridge (Mr. Jelliff) has just said regarding this matter. The constituency which I represent is bounded almost entirely on the west side by forest reserves, and the ranchers who live in that district, some of whom pasture their cattle on the reserves, are at certain times subjected to considerable losses from the depredations of timber wolves. If the department can do anything to keep down these depredations, I think the money will be well spent. Indeed, I would suggest that if the hon. minister is hard pressed to find the money for this purpose he might well take it from the exhibition grants, which would be making a better use of the money.

I have had sent to me by a constituent a newspaper clipping which he has asked me to present to the House, and I think this is the proper time to do so. It is very much to the point and deals with the campaign for producing a certain type of hog. The discussion this afternoon has wandered over almost every phase of agricultural development, but there is no subject which would furnish more food for debate on these estimates than the hog. This article expresses a view which I feel should be brought before the House. It states, in part:

> Will increased production cause a decrease in the price that will put the hog raiser where he has found himself several times before, following campaigns for greater production?
>
> A factor in the building up of our overseas bacon trade which might bear looking into, in view of the fact that governments in this country are advocating farmers to produce a particular kind of hog, and are therefore parties to the enterprise in a sense, is the manufacturing of bacon in this country. Much has been told regarding the production methods of Danish farmers. Might it not be too that the Danish packer has something on his Canadian competitor when it comes to the production of the kind of bacon the Old Country trade requires? Possibly he has not and on the other hand he may. The matter is worth looking into. Packers in this country are not any more likely to be the super-packers than are Canadian hog producers likely to be superior to the Danish hog producer. We have been frequently told that our production methods are inferior, so often that we have come to regard it as a fact. It might not be a bad thing to look into the curing of bacon as well as into the producing of hogs. If the Danes know something about curing which our packers have not found out, if some of the quality of their finished product is due to better methods in curing and handling, it is important that our packers should know of it. Thus far in this country campaigns for the improvement of Canadian bacon have been confined to encouraging the production of a particular type of hog. Governments have been at this since the early nineties. Why not look into the curing business a little and see if better methods there might not accomplish something? We should be absolutely sure of our ground in all points connected with the problem, with the curing of bacon as well as the production of a particular type of hog.

An hon. member stated this afternoon something about the amount of money there is in hogs. One of my constituents gave me his experience when a similar statement was made to him. He said, "Certainly, I believe there is money in hogs. There is a bunch of hogs: I have put more money in them than I can ever get out. So I am quite satisfied there is money in hogs." I hope the hon. Minister of Agriculture will give some thought to the question of the curing as well as the production of bacon, because the farmer cannot cure the bacon; that is the work of the packer; and I think that maybe the packer needs education in curing bacon as much as the farmer does in producing the bacon hog.

At six o'clock the committee took recess

After Recess

The committee resumed at eight o'clock.

Mr. GOOD: I do not wish to take up the time of the committee, but I must express my regret that two hon. members of this House, the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie), and the hon. member for Grenville (Mr. Meighen), should have dragged into this discussion in the way in which they did, the name of the Hon. Mr.

Doherty, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. I am sure the significance of the attack upon Mr. Doherty and the government of which he is a member cannot have escaped the notice of the House, and I feel sure that the two hon. members in question will, in their better moments, regret having spoken as they did. Mr. Doherty is quite able to defend himself, so I do not propose to go into the question in respect to which criticism was levelled against him. I am sure that if he were here he would be able to present the other side of the question, and there always is the other side. I do not think it matters very much who gets the credit for any particular good act that is done. I, for one, and I think all the members in this part of the House, will be very grateful to anybody who does anything to secure the removal of the embargo. It seems to me rather picayune for anybody, I do not care who he is, to try to gain credit for doing anything in this direction. Mr. Doherty may not have acted strictly according to Hoyle, but I certainly think that he secured some results, and when the history of this agitation comes to be written, I believe that his name and his work will receive a fairly prominent place in the record.

The right hon. member for Grenville referred in his remarks to certain obstacles which he alleged had been created in Great Britain owing to the mission and journey of the Hon. Mr. Doherty. I only wish to point out in that connection that it depends a good deal upon the parties to whom one goes for information as to what kind of an opinion one will receive. The hon. member for Victoria City quoted an article this afternoon from the Toronto World. If he had gone to the Telegram, I am sure he would have discovered something even more emphatic, more sensational and spicy than the article which he quoted. Possibly the hon. member for Grenville may have approached the wrong parties in Great Britain, and have received from them a somewhat biased opinion, one not representative of the average opinion in Great Britain. That is all I wish to say in regard to that matter. I again express my regret that this phase of the matter has been discussed in this House.

With regard to the estimates, I am not in a position to criticise the work of the Live Stock branch. In fact, as the present Live Stock Commissioner has been a personal friend of mine for years, and as I regard him as a man of the highest integrity, I would be disposed to trust a great deal to his judgment, but I do feel more or less inclined to venture this criticism in general. In the Department of Agriculture there is a tendency to devote more and more time and attention to what might be called exhortation to the farmers. This savours of what might be called governmental paternalism, and I, for one, have seen a good many of the evil effects of this kind of thing in Canada. I would suggest to the minister that he go very, very carefully about expanding the work and scope of the department in the way of advising the farmers what to do. This matter was touched upon this afternoon and some rather good advice, I think, was given by some hon. members. I know that a great deal of information which can only be secured by experts is needed by the farmers, and I think that the work of the department ought to be confined more and more to the securing of information which farmers cannot get for themselves, and that less emphasis should be placed upon what I call exhortation. I am not in a position to criticise the amount of money that we are requested to vote for this particular line of work, but I do feel that it is unwise to be continually expanding these activities, and I would suggest to the minister the wisdom of scrutinizing very closely indeed any expansion along that line.

Mr. REED: I have listened with a great deal of interest to the discussion this afternoon. I notice that a great many have spoken of mixed farming. I believe that it is a very wise course for any farmer to take. Many have also spoken of the raising of hogs and sheep. Others have spoken of the dairy and beef cattle industry. All these activities tend to make farming profitable. I would like to express the hope that the minister may deem it wise—we hope he will at any rate—to make a fairly liberal grant to the fair association of the city of Kingston. That association is very much in need of help, and if the minister could see his way clear to carry out my suggestion it would materially promote the work which it carries on.

Mr. CALDWELL: While we are considering the live stock industry I would like to direct the minister's attention to a very great handicap upon the development of that industry in the maritime provinces. That is the lack of abattoir and cold storage facilities for that section of Canada due to the fact that our live stock, even that which is raised for home consumption in the maritime provinces, must be shipped to Montreal to take advantage of the abattoir and cold storage facilities there, from which city the product is shipped back again to the consumers in the maritime provinces. I think, Mr. Chairman, you will realize that with the present very high freight rates such a condition results in too wide a spread between the producer and the consumer, a spread you cannot get away from under present conditions. I have taken this matter up during the last two years with the Department of Agriculture in this city and with different abattoir firms in Toronto and Montreal. Several firms have signified their willingness to establish abattoir and cold storage facilities in the maritime provinces if either the Dominion government or the provincial governments concerned, would guarantee them against loss on their investment for the first three years. The live stock industry will never be developed in the maritime provinces without these facilities, because, owing to the conditions I have pointed out, the farmer cannot get the cost of producing the animal, and the consumer has to pay a high price for the product. That product has to be first brought to Montreal and stored in times of plenty so as to have it available for periods when the farmers do not have a supply to put on the market locally. I would like the minister to take this matter into consideration.

With regard to the grants to agricultural societies I think the minister's suggestion is a very good one. There is an agricultural society in my constituency that has possibly one of the best exhibition plants in Canada. Although the society got the Dominion grant last year it experienced a loss on its exhibition—that is a loss on its whole operations, including the initial outlay and the expense of running the exhibition. The society is looking forward to getting the Dominion grant again this year. Now if this grant were cut off entirely, as some hon. members have suggested, it would mean that this society would have to materially change its plans, or encounter a larger deficit than it did last year. I think with the Dominion grant in all probability the society possibly this year will come out a little ahead of the game. I want to say that I believe our exhibitions down there have been a great help to agriculture. Such an exhibition is a fine stimulus to the farmers to even get together and compare their stock. Whether they get a prize or not, they will go home determined to beat the other fellow next year and it is an incentive to them to produce better stock. I know that these exhibitions alone have wonderfully stimulated the live stock industry in the maritime provinces in the last ten years, and I think it would be very unwise to cut this grant off entirely in one year. I do think, however, the minister would be justified in decreasing the grant gradually, and possibly to the vanishing point, at some future time.

Mr. FORTIER: I approve of the policy of the department in determining to economize as much as possible. That is a sound policy which has been adopted by this Parliament; but I do not think there is any possibility of reduction in the case of the agricultural industry. In that instance we should follow the Progressive policy and give as much consideration as possible to the agricultural movement in Canada. I hope the minister has not pronounced his final decision in the matter of grants to exhibitions which should be encouraged not only this year but in the future. The present is not the proper time to reduce grants to agriculture. Exhibitions have always tended to greatly encourage that industry. We were told during the discussion on the previous item that mixed farming is a good thing to adopt in Canada. That remark applies with special force in eastern Canada and particularly in the province from which I come. I understand that in some parts of the Dominion not much encouragement is given to exhibitions, and probably it is for the reason that mixed farming is not practised in those districts. Grants to exhibitions were given by the late government as well as by the present administration. It is doubtless a good thing to encourage exhibitions in cities, but I would like to see a substantial subsidy given in order to help to establish fairs or exhibitions in the rural districts because it is in those districts that such grants would have the most beneficial effect. The minister also stated in his speech that these agricultural societies are already encouraged by provincial grants. Well, in my opinion agriculture should be fostered by both the provincial and federal governments. It has certainly always been the aim of the federal government to encourage agriculture at all times even when grants were forthcoming from provincial sources. We have seen in the past federal legislation enacted whereby grants of many millions were given by the federal government to different provinces in order to encourage agriculture. Now if grants are to be voted to agricultural societies they should be devoted towards the establishment and development of fairs in the newer districts. I speak especially for the colonization district of the county of Labelle, where no fair of the kind has ever been held in the past. It is only fair and just that if other parts of the province of Quebec, or of the Dominion for that matter, have received federal and provincial grants for the creation and maintenance of fairs that the new districts, and especially the colonization districts, should share in the same privilege. In the county of Labelle, which I have the honour to represent, there is what is known as la region Labelle, the colonization district par excellence of the province of Quebec. The Government has already assisted agriculture in that district by establishing and maintaining a demonstration farm in the southern part. I think it would be only fair and just that in the northern part of Labelle, in the district of Mont Laurier, a demonstration farm should be established and a grant given in aid of an exhibition. It is not the amount of the grant that is of importance; it is the fact that the district is being encouraged by the federal government. I have no doubt that provincial aid will be forthcoming, but if a subsidy were also granted by the federal government it would be appreciated for all time. I hope the Minister of Agriculture will do his utmost towards the establishment of that fair in the county of Labelle.

Mr. STANSELL: I would like some information on one or two points from the minister or his deputy. Some one has remarked that in connection with this vote a great deal of ground has been covered and this question of fairs has been very much in the limelight. I am reminded that most of our large fairs have one day set apart as farmers' day. This is evidently a farmers' day in this institution. Naturally those interested in that industry are greatly concerned over estimates of any thing in connection with live stock or agriculture. I was pleased with the remarks made before six o'clock by the hon. member for North Ontario (Mr. Halbert). He evidently arose to champion a minister of the Ontario cabinet whom he thought was unfairly criticised. This is a very nice thing, I think, because, unfortunately, it is customary to sometimes criticise a little unfairly men in public positions. I am glad the hon. member for North Ontario realizes this, but I must say that since I last heard him campaigning in my county of East Elgin he must have experienced a wonderful change of heart. I do not want it to be understood that I am advocating increased expenditure in any line, because realizing as we do the decreased revenue from many sources—which is bound to occur—the demand for economy is great, and I, for one, am somewhat disappointed that the Estimates presented have not shown more economy than they have. I had not intended to advocate increased expenditures, but I desire to point out that, in connection with these estimates for agriculture, there are increases in very many items; whether they are justified or not I am not prepared to say. Possibly they are. In the estimates of many other departments there was a number of increases. In connection with the Experimental Farm vote there is an increase of over $44,000. Also in the item for entomology there is an increase of $2,000. In the administration of the Plant Diseases and Insect Pest Act, there is an increase of $45,000. No doubt this is very important work and a great deal can be done by experimentation to find out the best method of control of insect pests and plant diseases. But we must recognize that, in spite of the importance attached to that question, after all these are largely controlled by climatic conditions. That is obvious to any one who studies the question, so that the control, so far as we are concerned, can only be partial. In connection with fruit there is an increase of $12,000, and for the administration of the Agricultural Instruction Act there is an increase of $10,000. I understand that this Agricultural Instruction Act was passed in conjunction with the Dominion grant of $10,000,000 to agriculture, which, I believe, expires very soon. In the administration of that act, a commissioner of agriculture was appointed, and, I believe, possibly the remuneration may have come from some such source as that. However, I have inquired, and received the information, through Hansard, that there is no such appointment now, but, in spite of that fact, there is an increase of $10,000 here, making a total increase of $127,360. Yet the vote for live stock is absolutely the same as last year; there is no increase. There are increases in many branches and services of the department. So far as the diseases of plants and the control of insect pests are concerned, there is a direct increase of $45,000, but when we come to the diseases of animals, and everything that can possibly be done under this head for the improvement and betterment of the live stock industry as well as the health of the animals there is no increase. When we are speaking of the health of animals, remember that, because live stock, especially cattle, supply a large proportion of the total food of this country, we are dealing, not only with the health of animals but with the health of our families especially the children. Therefore, I think, this important department is not receiving the consideration it should.

I am only going to point out two particulars that occur to me. Under this vote I understand we have the administration of what is known as the "Canadian Record of Performance." This was established some 17 or 18 years ago in a small way, I believe, under the Laurier regime, and in the opinion, I presume, of many hon. members of this House, that would be a sufficient guarantee of its high standard of perfection. This work is something that naturally grows from year to year and it is a work I have intimate knowledge of. I have been told by many who are taking advantage of the work of this department, and by many on the staff, that the work is not being properly done at present for lack of sufficient inspectors and the lack of staff is attributed to the lack of money. I can hardly overestimate the value of this work. So much has this work been appreciated by the stock breeders that, since Parliament has been in session, a delegation representing various live stock associations met with the Live Stock Commissioner to talk over this question, and, though you may be surprised to hear it, so much did they appreciate this work that, although the money has been granted, and the expenditure has been carried on by the department, these men have given a cash grant of somewhere between five and ten thousand dollars, in order that this work may be carried on. It is an illustration of the importance of the work when these men offer to contribute this sum of money, unasked, to assist in properly carrying out the work. I have only to point out that these men were farmers and, not being members of a certain provincial government, they were real economists, and were willing to tax themselves five to ten thousand dollars to assist in the work. Can the minister inform me whether the needs of this department can be properly met without increasing the amount?

Then there is the subject of the accredited herd, which comes either under this or the health of animals vote in which also there is no increase over the vote of the previous year. I have been told that many who have made application under that system have been refused. Although the accredited herd plan has been established and maintained by the Dominion government, and we have been urged to avail ourselves of it, these applications have been refused because of lack of money. I was told no later than to-day that one man who applied was informed that he was ninetieth on the list and that it would be twelve months before they could send an inspector out to take up the work with him. If this work is worth doing, I submit it is worth doing in a more prompt manner than that, and we should not be compelled to wait twelve months before availing ourselves of this system of getting our herds accredited free from tuberculosis, because the matter is of far too great importance to allow such a delay. In view of this fact and the urgent need for money to carry on these two branches of the work of the Department of Agriculture, and in view of the fact that there has been an increase of about $127,000 in connection with other branches, is the work in connection with live stock, if I refer to it alone, going to be carried on in the manner in which it should be with the grant which we have at present? It is hard for me to understand that there can be sufficient money to increase grants in almost every other branch, the total increase in other branches of agriculture being about $127,000, and yet that the grant for live stock remains just exactly what it was before.

Mr. MARTELL: Coming back to the discussion in regard to grants, I should like to draw the minister's attention to the fact that, in our part of this country, we deem it most desirable that the federal government should aid county exhibitions. In the western portion of Nova Scotia, we have an exhibition held annually for the three counties of Hants, King's and Annapolis. One year the exhibition will be held in Hants, the next year in King's and the following year in Annapolis, and the only grant that the people get for that exhibition is a small grant from the provincial government. The provincial government of Nova Scotia is an excellent government, and I submit probably no other government in Canada, has within the scope of its financial ability, done more for agriculture than has the Government of Nova Scotia. But the demands that are made upon the financial resources of that province in order to encourage all industries, because we have diversified industries there, are so great that it is unable to give a great annual sum to those county exhibitions. The municipalities also encourage county exhibitions, and private funds are subscribed, collections being made from people who are interested. I believe it would be in the interest of the farming and fruit growing industry of Nova Scotia, were the federal authorities to give an annual grant for the encouragement of those county exhibitions. It is all very well to give grants for large provincial or Dominion exhibitions; but the majority of the people, who should be and who are encouraged by those county exhibitions, have not the time, nor have they the means to go to the places where provincial or Dominion exhibitions are being held. If the minister will come down next year to the county of my hon. friend and deskmate, the hon. member for Digby and Annapolis (Mr. Lovett), because I believe the exhibition will be held next year in the county of Annapolis, we will show him what sort of county exhibitions we put on; and when he sees the friendly rivalry that is produced by those exhibitions as regards the question of growing fruit, I am sure he will say that any grant, no matter how large it may be, is not being given in vain. Therefore I humbly beseech the minister, in the interest of fruit growing and of all other agricultural pursuits of Nova Scotia, that he deem it prudent and not against the interest of economy to give us a substantial grant for the encouragement of those county exhibitions.

Before taking my seat, I desire to reiterate the remarks that have been made by the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton, New Brunswick (Mr. Caldwell), as regards the question of abattoirs. We, in the maritime provinces, and particularly we of the western counties are exceedingly anxious to have established in Nova Scotia an abattoir where the people could send their meats and other perishable goods. As the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton said, we are at the mercy of Toronto and Montreal. We of the maritime provinces are an independent people, and we want within our borders the facilities that are to be found in any other section of the Dominion of Canada, particularly when it is in the interest of that great body of our citizenship known as the agricultural class. I have only this to say in conclusion, that I reiterate every word that the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton has said, and I humbly beseech the Minister of Agriculture to lend a willing ear to our request and to respond to the Macedonian cry: "Come over and help us."

[Mr. Martell.]

Mr. LEWIS: I want to assure the minister in the beginning that I am not seeking any grant for exhibitions; I am simply standing on my feet in order to get certain information. A great deal has been said this afternoon and evening in regard to mixed farming. I happen to represent a part of southern Saskatchewan where we believe that mixed farming is going to be the salvation of that district. One hon. member said this afternoon that, if we were not able to grow wheat, we might as well shut up shop; but if we can only grow wheat in southern Saskatchewan, we might as well get out. We believe that, if we can enter into mixed farming, as has been advocated by the Minister of Agriculture, we can get a living off the soil; but there is one thing that is bothering us at the present time. We understand that the Minister of Agriculture is going to establish demonstration farms on a small scale in the dry area of southern Saskatchewan and to encourage growing sunflowers and corn and the building of silos for feed for stock. I also understand that the Dominion government is going to lend sires of pure breeds for dairying purposes, etc. At the same time, the difficulty that we see in the way is this. In every small community we have about five or six farmers who are engaged in mixed farming, and they are the ones who are making good; but, because of low prices of grain last year, many others went into mixed farming, saving all the cream that they could possibly save in order to get a little money, with the result that, instead of their getting the amount of money they expected for cream, butter and eggs, they got about fifteen to twenty cents per pound for butter and about the same per dozen for eggs. The question that we are concerned with is this. If all the people of southern Saskatchewan enter into mixed farming, as has been advocated by many agriculturists as the salvation of our western country, where are we going to find markets? Has the minister any scheme or has he thought of any outlet whereby we can get rid of our surplus stock over local needs? That is the pressing question for us at the present time; and as I look over this estimate, I am not able to see where he has made any arrangement for getting larger markets for the product that will naturally result from people entering into this mixed farming which he advocates. If the minister can assure us that he has some scheme in view, or that the Government as a whole intends to open up larger markets that will give a fair return for the products that we expect to raise from mixed farming, then I believe that our people in southern Saskatchewan, as well as in other parts of the country, will take up mixed farming with a better heart and a greater will.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: A number of questions have been asked me, some of which I failed to answer. The member for Saltcoats (Mr. Sales) asked a question regarding the live stock policy of the Dominion, which in some cases overlaps the policy of the provincial government. A good many people think the two policies might be merged to advantage, and I am of the same opinion. Every new Minister of Agriclture believes that the overlapping can to a large extent be avoided, and something has been done in the past in that direction, although not as much as had been anticipated. Whenever a department takes up any new work the officials are loath to see it disorganized, and you have that spirit to contend with. There is a great difficulty in disestablishing things and starting over again, and the process always takes time. My two predecessors were not sufficiently long on the job to make any great change, and I was going to express the hope that I might hold office long enough to give some effect to the good intentions we have in this matter. However, I will not dwell on that suggestion. If I am so honoured I hope to be able to meet the hon. gentleman's representations and endeavour to abolish the overlapping as far as it is possible to do so. There is no doubt that there is overlapping; the only question is how to solve the difficulty. I met some gentlemen from Saskatchewan last week who were down in the province of Quebec buying a carload or two of dairy cattle which they secured through the instrumentality of the government of Saskatchewan alone. When they wanted to get the head of the herd, however, they were obliged to come to the federal Department of Agriculture, and while they were negotiating for this animal the carload of females were waiting. It did seem to be a badly organized affair. However, after some delay and confusion we were able to start these gentlemen off west rejoicing.

The member for Battleford (Mr. McConica), in his own amusing style, referred to the difficulty involved in the wool business. I do not know whether the hon. gentleman is present or not, but I may be able to explain the question of sending the sheep after the wool to pay the deficit. Some members of the committee know that the British government, before the war was over, secured a large quantity of wool in anticipation of a protracted state of warfare. Among other countries, they bought wool very largely from Australia for several years, and they have been taking the wool off Australia's hands at the high price engaged for during the war, and feeding the market with it as slowly as possible, having regard to the fact that they had to get rid of it at some time. Nevertheless, in spite of the slowness with which they fed the market, they glutted it, with the result that wool is now a drug on the market. The large stocks accumulated in England in anticipation of a long drawn out war had to go on the market, and this created a congested condition from which we have not yet recovered. I may refer to a similar condition in regard to another industry, and it will be a solace to those who are going into mixed farming to find that there is a valid explanation for the extraordinary state of things with regard to butter. Great Britain's stocks of butter were so generous at the close of the war that she finally got rid of them only last July. They were procured at high prices and sold at low prices, and the last consignment went to Belgium, consisting of 1,000,000 boxes of 56 pounds each, or 56,000,000 pounds of butter for which Belgium has twenty years to pay. It is therefore obvious how long it has taken to adjust affairs after the great upheaval due to the war. Now that these stocks have been got rid of, new production will have a better chance of being disposed of in the future than during the last year or two. I am sure that these explanations will be accepted. They are facts, and they indicate, I think, a hopeful prospect, as well as the circumstances that we have reached the bottom in the matter of bad prices. This knowledge, of course, does not put any more money into your pocket just now; but if there is a bad condition of affairs and you can explain it and show that it is not likely to recur, it does hold out some hope for the future.

The member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) brought up the subject of cold storage in the maritime provinces. I was rather surprised myself to find, when making inquiry into a certain condition of affairs in connection with the live stock industry, that there was only one cold storage abattoir in the three maritime provinces, located at Charlottetown. There is a reason for that, but the fact remains that they have only one and want more. Now, apart from any provincial effort which those provinces may make, the only hope I can hold out to my hon. friends is that, in the not too distant future, we may be able to amend the present Cold Storage Act in such a way as to carry out the original intention of helping other co-operative plants than municipal plants, which are the only ones that are aided at the present time. Formerly the act applied to any cold storage plants put up either by individuals or by co-operative companies. Under the provisions of that act, any cold storage company, complying with the regulations, received from the federal government 30 per cent of the cost of erection as an encouragement in the establishing of such plants. About three or four years ago the act was changed to apply only to municipal plants, and scarcely a dollar has been spent since that amendment. When we have a little more money in the treasury upon which we can draw, we hope to revert to the original condition and permit the maritime provinces to avail themselves of the substantial subsidy which is allowed for erecting cold storage plants. In Saskatchewan a number of plants were erected under this system before the change, and it was a great stimulus to this enterprise. Just now, however the treasury would not appear to be sufficiently buoyant to warrant the expenditures that would be entailed in this direction.

My hon. friend from Swift Current (Mr. Lewis) asks a very natural question: What shall we do with all these mixed farming products? Some of my recent remarks will apply the answer so far as wool is concerned. As regards butter and dairy products generally, and also beef cattle—and that is the direction in which I expect the greatest development in southwest Saskatchewan in the future—I might inform my hon. friend that to-day we supply only 2½ per cent of the total imports of butter of Great Britain. There is therefore abundant room for us in that market; we ought to be able to get some share of the other 97½ per cent. True, there are a number of competitors like Denmark and little New Zealand. But it is for us, with improved methods and better cows, to meet that competition squarely and fairly. There is no doubt that while there is a limit to the market for milk, there is really none in sight in our time as regards butter, especially when we realize that we supply, as I have said, only 2½ per cent of Great Britain's total importations of this commodity. With regard to other products, pork, bacon, eggs, etc., we have really never been stuck for a market. It is true that the supply of eggs fluctuates with the season, but with cold storage to take care of them in the spring and ease up the natural glut on the market at that time, it seems to me there would always be a fair market.

With regard to bacon, that is an article of world-wide production, and the surplus goes on to the British market where we have exactly the same competitors as in butter. If we produce a second or third grade article the problem of market will always be present; but if we provide a gilt-edged article in competition with Denmark and New Zealand, then we shall be able to secure the market. But we are not doing it now, for the reason that our bacon is not going on to the market graded, nor is proper attention being paid to the grading of hogs, with the result that we are struggling to retain what share of the British market we already have. We must improve our methods of production and the quality of our goods if we are to secure a greater share of that market.

I do not think my hon. friend from Swift Current (Mr. Lewis), was in the House this afternoon when the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie) and others were discussing the embargo question. There are very good hopes within a reasonable time of that embargo being removed. Of course, we are going to get it removed, and we are getting nearer to that end all the time. I cannot speak positively, but the situation is hopeful; and, after all, in this world we have more or less to live on hope.

The hon. member for Lethbridge (Mr. Jelliff) and the hon. member for Macleod (Mr. Coote) spoke this afternoon about the ravages of timber wolves from the forest reserves in their constituencies. It is true that when the depredations are due to wolves which are supposed to come from the forest reserves of the Dominion, damage claims may be made against my colleague, the Minister of the Interior (Mr. Stewart), who has charge of those reserves; but as far as I am aware no bounties have been given in the past by the Dominion government for the killing of these timber wolves. It is a matter that has always been dealt with by the provincial authorities, and there is no reason why those hunting timber wolves may not go on the timber reserves in search of these animals. I know that in Saskatchewan and Alberta the provincial governments have for many years paid bounties on wolves, I think twenty dollars on each adult animal, and so much less on pups. I think we are too far away from the scene of depredations to engage in a dual system of wolf bounties. If my hon. friends have had anything to do with the administration of the Wolf Bounty Act, they would know that it is a very difficult piece of work. I know that half a dozen timber wolves will do an enormous amount of damage against stock in a very short time, but that is purely a matter for the provincial authorities to handle, even although the wolves are on Dominion land.

The hon. member for East Elgin (Mr. Stansell) uttered what seemed to me to be very justifiable remarks about the smallness of some of the votes. I think most of us will agree that all of these votes are, if anything, too small. But last year, taking the Health of Animals branch there was an increase of some $300,000. Consequently that vote was put at a fairly high level, and it is not necessary to still further increase it this year. And, further, because of our intention to amend the act with respect to the valuation of the animals that are slaughtered, owing to the fact that the value of live stock has come down so substantially since the act was passed, to the extent of at least one-third, we are not justified in giving such a high valuation as obtained two years ago, and therefore we will be able with the same aggregate amount to cover a very much larger field of work. In other words, the vote as it stands to-day is equivalent to a very large increase when you consider the larger number of slaughtered animals it will cover by reason of the reduced indemnity.

My hon. friend from Brant (Mr. Good) states that we should go easy about handing out advice to farmers. I agree with him and accept that advice myself. I think I know enough about farming to be the last man to hand out advice too freely to a farmer, especially to one who has been on a particular farm nearly all his life and knows better than any other man just what that farm can produce. At the same time, there are many other activities in connection with research work, without being too personal or hurting the susceptibilities of anyone by handing out too much advice. When I used to regard those sitting in the seats of the responsible, I took the same attitude, and I think I was justified. We do not mind taking advice from those who know at least as much as ourselves, but there has been a disposition, especially in connection with prairie agriculture, by people who do not know the prairies and cannot understand why we are wedded to grain farming, to advise us to engage in mixed farming. If they were on the prairies they would know how difficult it is to get away from grain farming and to gradually go into live stock. Many have tried it and have been driven out from one cause and another. But every time we gain a step in that direction we are making so much headway, and it will be found that our exports of dairy butter are increasing year by year in spite of setbacks.

I think I have covered all the points raised, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. STANSELL: Was not the increased vote for live stock last year due to the fact that this accredited herd system was then created? My point is that if you carry on the work you must provide the money to do it. At the present time I am told that applications from farmers to have their herds placed on the list are being refused, owing to lack of funds. Now if we adopt a certain system of work, we must either finance it or abandon it.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I had forgotten that matter. The vote of half a million dollars yast year was exhausted before the end of the fiscal year, and we had to ease up on the work. This is only our second year in this work. My predecessor started it, and started it well, but the work has become so popular that neither have we sufficient staff nor sufficient money to handle it; but, as I explained, the result of the adjustment we propose to make will enable us to cover that work in another year. For another thing, a number of changes had to be made in the regulations. The inspection applies only to herds of a certain size. I can assure my hon. friend that we are not lying down on the job, but, of course, when the vote runs out we are limited. Now that the new vote is becoming available, the work is being speeded up. I quite agree with my hon. friend that we must not lag behind in this work.

Mr. STANSELL: My point was this: if the appropriation last year did not carry on the service for more than six months, how are you going to carry it on this year without increasing the amount? Increases are being asked for other departments, so why not for this?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: By reducing the valuation basis we shall be able to cover three herds where formerly we covered one.

Mr. BRETHEN: Will the inspector value the animal at the decreased valuation? I have some knowledge of the way this service has worked out. I have seen herds that were not valued by inspectors at the proper figure. It is a very easy matter for an inspector who is not very well informed as to values to let the owner's valuation slip through rather than criticise it. He would do that to avoid showing his ignorance of values. There is just the possibility that the inspectors will not value the animals at the decreased valuation. Will the inspectors value the animals at the decreased valuation, as the minister thinks they will?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The maximum will be reduced to whatever the House deems advisable, and that sum will then be fixed. It will be the maximum, just as $250 is now, by law.

With respect to the judgment of the inspectors, human judgment, of course, always differs. It is quite natural that the owner of the animal should put a higher value on it than the inspector. That happens frequently, but the inspectors have been instructed to place a fair valuation on the animals, keeping the maximum in mind. If they do not do it, I do not know what we can do. I do not want unnecessarily to bring the Civil Service Commission into this discussion; we have had it bear a good many sins in the past, but as a matter of fact, I have very little to do with the selection of these inspectors. If I had more to do with their selection, I can assure my hon. friend that if there was any delinquency among the inspection staff, if any man was not doing his duty, it would very soon be rectified; but I cannot make any such promises now, as the matter is not in my hands.

Mr. BRETHEN: I have made some inquiries regarding this matter and I understand that the inspectors, as the minister has stated, have been instructed to place a fair valuation on the animals, but there is this proviso: if a man suffers a heavy loss the inspectors are instructed to be lenient with him. In the case of a herd where the value of the individual animal is below the valuation set by the department, it might be a good thing for an owner to lose all his herd. I believe there are cases of that kind.

There is another phase of the matter. An inspector informed me in conversation of an incident in his own experience where a herd of six or seven animals had to be destroyed, and they were so badly infected that none of the carcasses was fit for food, which was very unusual. All these animals went to grease. Now, in the owner's family there were two children suffering from bone tuberculosis, and the inspector made this statement: "Knowing all the circumstances, it was very difficult for me not to associate the condition of the children with the condition of the cattle." I mention that to show that it is one of the most important things this department has to deal with. It is a matter affecting not only the health of animals but the health of the family. I know there are a great many breeders today who are very anxious to get into the accredited herd system because of this danger to their families. I had a man in my room the other day who is very anxious to get his herd under this system, but because it was under the minimum of twelve animals he was unable to come in. I think there should not be that discrimination. Why should a man with only six or eight or nine cows be refused this service? The inspection of a small herd would cost the Government very little in comparison with a large herd of sixty or seventy cattle. Why should the smaller owner be refused this service that is paid for out of public moneys? He is refused, I understand, because of lack of funds and a shortage of inspectors. If that is the case, is this vote high enough? I understand that it was necessary to bring down a vote of $300,000 in the Supplementary Estimates last year for this service. With 250 herds now on the waiting list, how are you going to provide the service this year? Is not the service of sufficient importance that provision should be made for it?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It is quite true that this service is available to the man with a large herd, but not to a herd of less than twelve. That is not an arbitrary number, but we have to fix a limit somewhere, or else you would have the inspectors travelling all over the country to inspect a herd of two or three, or even only one animal. Suppose a man in a remote district had the inspector travel out there, a long way from the railway, at great expense, to inspect only one animal. It might be tubercular, it is true, and might be endangering the health of his family, but you cannot get value for the money expended on travelling unless you fix a minimum for the size of the herd. A man can inspect a herd of forty or fifty at a much less expense proportionately than a smaller herd. Since I have had the honour of taking charge of this department I have had this matter up with the members of my staff, and I have taken the ground that twelve was too high a minimum, but it was pointed out to me that no matter where you draw the line the man just below that number would seem to have a grievance. If you make the minimum six, the man with five cattle will think he has a grievance. There is no way of avoiding that except by setting the minimum at one animal, because you cannot go below that. You have to stop somewhere. I would not like to say that twelve should be the proper number; in fact, my own opinion is that it should be less. I am informed that wherever there are two herds of a smaller number than twelve adjacent to each other we do make the test. I think possibly we might be able to apply the system to three and take care of almost the whole of the herds by this means wherever conditions lend themselves to its being done. I have to thank my hon. friend for bringing my attention to that point because it is a very important one and one by means of which, if properly worked out, we may be able to take care of the situation almost completely.

Mr. JELLIFF: I am not at all satisfied with the minister's attitude on the timber wolf situation. He has spoken very strongly to-day in favour of mixed farming and has referred to stock raising as being the very foundation of our whole farming system. He was very fair in what he said as regards those matters and I approve of it most heartily; but I cannot see the consistency in voting money for the stamping out of tuberculosis and other diseases which afflict our cattle and saying that little or no allowance can be made with respect to the destruction of cattle and especially young cattle, on our far distant ranches by timber wolves. It seems to me that there is a remarkable inconsistency in such a policy as that. I think that all these young animals that are being born out in that northwest country—in the territory immediately adjacent to our own Dominion parks and forest reserves—should have our consideration, and it should be as important to us to save the lives of these animals and protect them from destruction from that cause as from any other cause.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Does not the provincial government give a bounty of $20 for the destruction of timber wolves?

Mr. JELLIFF: I cannot speak authoritatively as to that, but even if such is the case it seems to me to be absolutely insufficient to meet the need. I believe that wherever such aid is granted by the provincial government it might well be supplemented by assistance from the federal government to put an end to the destruction that is now going on and to encourage the very thing which the minister lays down as a desirable policy—the growth of live stock as the basis of successful farming in this country. I am going to call the minister's attention to the facts once more, and again implore him to make some provision to assist us in stamping out this public nuisance which has its origin in the public parks and grounds of the Dominion.

Mr. GARDINER: No one is allowed to enter the public parks of the Dominion carrying fire arms and consequently it is not possible by that means to get rid of the wolves which breed in those particular places. If the minister would take that fact into consideration I believe it would be helpful to some extent in the solution of this question.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: With reference to that portion of the vote to be paid out in connection with the accredited herd system and for the eradication of the disease of tuberculosis in herds supplying milk to cities and towns and villages, could the minister state the amount paid out for that purpose, and also the amount paid out for eradication of disease in pure bred herds?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: If any other hon. member wishes to speak he is at liberty to do so, because it will take a little time to obtain the information for which the hon. member for South Oxford has asked.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: While the minister is looking up that matter I would also inquire—

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I understand a return which has been prepared and will be laid on the table to-morrow contains the information which my hon. friend has asked. Will that satisfy my hon. friend?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: If the item is allowed to pass now we shall be debarred from discussing it later on. Perhaps the minister would allow this item to stand until the information is brought down.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the resolution carry?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: There are some other questions I would like to ask. I was very glad to hear the minister state that the date for the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle is a little nearer than it was. I am sure that will be very encouraging to a great many people. I remember that about a year ago there was a very interesting discussion in this Chamber on the subject and judging from statements that were made at that time, both in this Chamber and outside of it, one would almost have expected to have seen the embargo removed some time ago. I have here the report of a speech made by the provincial treasurer of Ontario at St. Mary's in February last wherein he also referred to this matter of tuberculosis in cattle. When the minister was pointing out that herds of less than twelve were not included in the plan, I notice the provincial treasurer stated that "it has been necessary to kill eighty-four out of eighty-five head at Monteith," so that apparently the large herds have the preference over the small herds. That is the reason I put the question I did to the minister. Because to me it seems a most remarkable state of affairs that herds supplying milk for human consumption in towns and cities are apparently not receiving the same attention that is accorded the pure bred herds which are not supplying any milk for public consumption. In the same speech Mr. Smith stated:

> To Hon. Manning Doherty will go the whole credit if the embargo on cattle is lifted by Great Britain, which is likely to be the case.

The provincial ministers were evidently anticipating at that time the early removal of the embargo and were going to appropriate the whole credit for that removal. Now I am sure it will be pleasant to those who are interested to know that we are a little nearer the date of the removal of the embargo than we were a year ago. I also noticed in a newspaper article references to another man who occupied a prominent place in one of the provincial governments at that time. That man is now, I believe, in the employ of the Government of Canada and is, I understand from the minister, to be employed in developing our live stock trade with Patagonia. The same man is now, or recently has been, in Florida. I refer to the Hon. Duncan Marshall. He has also been paying considerable attention to the removal of the cattle embargo, and probably the minister could inform us as to whether part of his work during the time he is in the employ of the Government will be devoted to having that embargo removed, because I understand he is engaged simply for six months. I was also in a quandary to understand what the minister meant when he stated they were going to have the valuation of these animals for which compensation is being received under the accredited herd system reduced. Where there has been a maximum figure of $250 fixed, that surely does not mean that the same valuation is being placed on the animals after the value of the animals has decreased by one-half. Surely some judgment is being exercised by those in the department. The minister has stated that he has very little control over the matter.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I did not say that. I said I had nothing to do with the selecting of those inspectors.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I misunderstood the minister, and I am glad that he has some control, because we should hold the minister and the Government responsible for the decrease. Under the new Animal Contagious Diseases Act, a good deal of latitude is given the department in the regulations which govern the payment of compensation. The compensation that has been paid in many instances is not anything like compensation for the loss sustained when animals are destroyed, but it goes a long way towards eradicating diseases in herds. I had occasion a year ago to bring this matter before the House in connection with a party who resides in the constituency I represent. Inspectors of the department went on his premises, destroyed 245 animals, and refused to give him any compensation at all. I took the matter up with the minister this session. I realize that he has been kept very busy familiarizing himself with his department, and that it would be practically impossible for him to give the matter the consideration which I think this party is entitled to. A year ago I moved for a return of all papers and correspondence in connection with it. When the return was brought down I had to call attention of the House to the fact that it was not complete. A further return was brought down, and it was not even then complete. I made the statement on the floor of the House, and I want to repeat the statement, that the head of the branch, who is the man, above all others, who is responsible to the minister, who has control over this matter, was not only incompetent and unfair, but was dishonest in the administration of the act. Hon. members will find, on looking up Hansard, that these words are on record last year, and I want to emphasize them and place them on record again this session. Too much money and too many people are affected by the operations of the Health of Animals Branch to allow a statement of that kind to go unchallenged and not to have it investigated. Although this man has suffered a loss for upwards of two years, I was told a year ago by the minister on the floor of this House that he would have to accept the word of his inspector in preference to that of the man who suffered the loss. This man has no other recourse. The matter has already been submitted to the new Government, and they do not see fit to give it any further consideration. The man is absolutely ruined by the loss which he has sustained, and he submits the evidence, but the evidence of the inspector is to be taken in preference to that of this man. It is a nice state of affairs if Parliament is going to delegate to the minister, and the minister delegates to somebody else, the authority in connection with this matter. We are a little too much inclined to throw the responsibility on somebody else, on the Civil Service Commission or something of that kind. Too much of that has been done already during the present session. That commission is responsible up to a certain point. After that the ministers are responsible. In view of the statements I made a year ago, which I repeat again to-day, I say it is up to the Government and to the Minister of Agriculture to see that this matter is properly investigated and investigated to the full. The evidence is in the further return which was brought down last year and will substantiate every word I have stated, that this man was dishonest in the administration of the act. It was quite apparent to any one that the return was not full, in the first instance, in order to conceal a matter in which this officer had failed to do his duty by the party who had been aggrieved. But he says, "It is the duty of the department to save money; we must not pay out money in cases of that kind." I am placing this matter before the minister to-night, because when we pass this item we will not have a further opportunity to deal with it.

There is another matter I desire to touch upon, because I was not here this afternoon, and it possibly may have been referred to already, in connection with the vote of one million dollars for live stock, which I believe is the vote that is now before the committee, although the minister has been discussing the other matter to which I have referred. I would like to know how much of this amount has been paid out for feed for live stock in certain districts, and how much has been paid out for carload lots and how much has ben paid out for male animals that have been distributed by the Government through the country. If these questions have been answered, of course I do not want a further answer, but I would like an answer to the other question with regard to the proportion paid out for the eradication of tuberculosis in herds that are supplying milk for human consumption, and that paid out for pure bred herds.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The amount paid out last year under the accredited herd system was $467,437. Under the municipal system $98,080.33 was paid out. I think those are the figures, although they are blurred in this copy.

My hon. friend, by referring to his speech last year, saved me the necessity of referring to Hansard which I have before me with the speech of the hon. gentleman. He made some very strong statements regarding the Veterinary Director General, who, of course, I am responsible for, and I take the responsibility for what it amounts to inasmuch as I have had to review the work that he did before I came in. Therefore, I am, in a sense, responsible for what he did a year ago, and I accept that responsibility. I do not want my hon. friend to put in my mouth that I am disclaiming responsibility. I go the limit of responsibility. All I ask him to do is to assist me to get the power to do the thing which should go with the responsibility, the power to man my own ship. That is what I have not got, but I am not trying to shirk responsibility.

With respect to the maximum valuation of pure breds, it can be left exactly just where it is, and the inspectors can be instructed to make the valuation based upon the present value of animals, as compared with two years ago. But it would be giving them only that much more latitude. In the first instance, a maximum was wisely put, which he could go below as much as he liked, but which he could not go beyond, and that maximum should be reduced proportionately with the decreased value of animals, so that the inspector can be prevented from putting on too high a valuation at all events. I think it is wise to reduce the valuation proportionately with the decreased value of animals on the market. If I understood my hon. friend aright, I think he made remarks about somebody on this side wanting to claim the credit in connection with removing the embargo. I had not any such thing in mind. If I am fortunate enough to be in my present position when the embargo is removed, I shall reap what others have sowed. My predecessor worked hard in connection with this matter, and if it is my fortune to reap what others have sown, I shall be ready to distribute the credit.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: It was the Hon. Manning Doherty who was to receive the full credit.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I have to plead ignorance regarding the incident in connection with that hon. gentleman. I have to take him as I find him. I was very busy at the time that incident occurred, and I was not as close a reader of the newspapers as I am now, so that the incident escaped my attention. I was not reading many eastern newspapers at that time, and I do not think it appeared in the western newspapers.

As regards the bunch of hogs to which my hon. friend refers, an injustice may have been done. Sometimes justice falls short; we have known innocent men to be hanged, and we may expect a similar fatality to be meted out sometimes to a hog, to the detriment of the owner. All I say is that the evidence is against my hon. friend and his friend. That is, I think, what my predecessor claims, and he, last year, took the ground that, in the absence of contrary evidence, he had to stand by his officials. If, at the instance of every hon. member who chose to stand up loyally for his constituents, as he should do, we threw down our inspectors, we would soon have no inspectors at all. I do not mean to say that, if the weight of evidence warrants our doing so, we should not dismiss an inspector and get another one and make proper restitution to the man who is wronged. Since, however, I have taken charge of this department, I have had an amazingly large number of these old, laid-on-the-shelf claims tried out on the new minister to see if he is easy enough to come across. I was not very long in this position until I had all kinds of representations how to do things and how to save the nation generally, amongst others, these old claims that had been threshed over, some of them repeatedly, in this House. While I admit that, in some cases, an injustice may have been done, I cannot find any injustice in this case, and with the absence of any weight of evidence to the contrary, I must stand by the decision of my officials and my predecessor. Nothing would give me more pleasure than to correct a wrong; and if this man had been unjustly dealt with, it would be a great pleasure to right the wrong, apart from the fact that that would be the ordinary work of my department. I have not, however, found that any injustice has been done. Another gentleman—I will not mention the name—wrote me the nicest letter comprising three or four pages, and it almost persuaded me that he had a case. I never received a finer letter, and I went to my deputy and the Veterinary Director General and I said: "Here is a man who has been grievously wronged." He was the worst humbug of the whole of them; but he nearly put it over me, and I felt I was badly fooled. You cannot go by appearances, nor by the skill with which people present their case, because sometimes the presentation is done rather decently and gentlemanly. My staff protected me on that occasion, and I did not come across because this man was the worst of the lot.

This is the contract that must be signed by all men who claim they are eligible to be recompensed for hogs slaughtered on account of cholera, and this was signed by Mr. Alderson:

> In consideration of the granting of a license to me, I hereby agree:
>
> 1. To maintain my hogs in a clean, sanitary condition.
>
> 2. To sell no hogs except for immediate slaughter.
>
> 3. To notify the veterinary inspector if sickness appears among my hogs.

The fourth is the crux of the whole matter.

4. To forfeit all claim for compensation in case it is necessary to destroy any of my hogs as a result of hog cholera unless it can be shown that the infection came from some other source than from feeding garbage.

In the absence of any proof that this hog cholera came from any other source, and in the fact of the presence of garbage uncooked being discovered in the troughs, what was I to do but ask that this bargain be abided by? I sometimes wonder if we can get away from this proposition of cooking garbage. Those who do not believe in cooking garbage, who do so only under compulsion, who think it only a fake to have to cook garbage and that the Government is simply putting them to a lot of expense in buying a boiler and burning fuel, will, if you let them, cook the garbage in a slovenly manner. They will simply warm it up. This man may have simply warmed up the garbage because the disease germs were not killed. There was no evidence of the disease occurring in any other way, and, therefore, it must have come from the garbage. In the United States, the cooking of garbage is dispensed with. Hog cholera is so prevalent there that some sort of antitoxin is used, with which the animals are inoculated when young, the necessity of cooking garbage being thus avoided, as the antitoxin renders the hogs comparatively immune. Hog cholera is not sufficiently bad in this country to make it necessary for us to go to that expense. The next best thing is to take care of 90 per cent of the source of contagion which is known from actual experiment, to be from this uncooked garbage from hotels and such places. I hope the time will not come when we have to dispense with this matter of cooking garbage, because the whole country would be filled with cholera. I have looked carefully into the correspondence in this case, and I can read some of it; but in the absence of evidence to the contrary, there was nothing for me to do but to abide by the decision of my officials. As regards the charge against the Veterinary Director General that he is dishonest, I am not going to enter an action against my hon. friend. I have not found that to be the case at all. The Veterinary Director General may have his short-comings, as we all have, but I do not believe that dishonesty is one of them.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I am a little surprised to hear the minister dispose of this matter with so much assurance. I would imagine that, before expressing so decided an opinion, he would have taken the trouble to read the return through in full. If he had done so, he would have found that compensation was not withheld because the hogs were fed garbage. The officials departed from that contention, and they finally withheld compensation because the department had not been notified that cholera or sickness existed in the herd. The minister will find that there are affidavits furnished by the man who suffered the loss, by his son and by his general manager, that they were not aware of any sickness in the herd; and if so, it would be absolutely impossible for them to notify the department of sickness. More than that, I should like to ask: Is it reasonable to suppose that, with hogs that were valued in the neighbourhood of some $10,000, anyone who had been engaged in this business for many years would be so reckless as to take chances of having cholera develop in his herd? Who had a greater interest in maintaining the health of the herd, the owner or the inspectors of the department? The owner had everything at stake. He was anxious to continue in business and see that disease did not develop in his herd. He had one of the most up-to-date appliances for cooking the food that was to be found anywhere in the country, and if you look through the return you will find that he was finally notified that he could not receive compensation because he had not notified the department that disease existed in his herd. Why did not the inspector, when he notified his officials at Toronto, request them to inspect the premises that were complained of instead of giving the name of another person? And why did he withhold this from the first return brought down? It was not until he was ordered to bring it down in a further return that the information was tabled. Should the minister get up and attempt to ridicule anyone who stands for the rights of the people of this country? There is a court of appeal to which litigants may have resort, but in this case the Veterinary Director General appears to be the final judge, and the minister quietly accepts any statement he makes, so that the party who is aggrieved, it does not matter who he may be, has no further recourse. Is not that a strange condition of affairs in a country like this, when a citizen can have his rights brushed aside in that manner in the face of sworn evidence that substantiates his claim? All that the man asked for was a board of arbitrators who should go into the matter, and if they decided against him he was prepared to accept their decision. But he did not wish to be shut out on the word of an inspector. What sort of tribunal is there in the Department of Agriculture, in connection with the Health of Animals branch, if people are to receive such treatment and there is no appeal from the decision of the Veterinary Director General? This is too serious a matter to be allowed to pass unheeded, because we are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in this business.

I would ask the minister another question. Does he approve of spending $467,535 for the eradication of tubercular disease in pure bred herds, and only $98,000 in herds supplying milk to the people of the towns and cities? In connection with milk that is supplied to the municipalities only $98,000 is spent for the purpose of eradicating disease, although to-day so much attention is being paid to the children in the schools, who are being advised to drink more milk in order to build up their physique. In view of that fact, is it right or fair that the herds that supply the city people with milk should be discriminated against as has been done in the past? If the minister is anxious to preserve the health of the people, this item should be increased considerably. I am not finding fault with paying out this amount of money for the eradication of disease in pure bred herds, but I say that it is unfair that the herds supplying milk for home consumption should receive such a small amount for this purpose.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It depends on the people themselves. This law was in force for years before any city took advantage of it at all, and I am not aware that there is any city to-day that has made application, which was denied, for the appropriation that is set apart for the inspection of herds supplying milk to municipalities. It rests with the cities and towns themselves to make application for an appropriation.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Is it not provided that only herds of a certain size shall be inspected? I think the number of animals is twelve.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: There is no limit, in the case of herds supplying milk to the cities, as there is in connection with the accredited herd system. It does not matter how small a herd may be that supplies milk to the cities, it is inspected. With the accredited herd system, however, the maximum is twelve.

[Mr. Sutherland.]

Mr. BOIVIN: What conditions must be complied with by a city wishing to take advantage of this provision?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I think I could read the regulations as quickly as I could explain the matter. An Order in Council dated April 16, 1917, provides assistance to dairies under municipal control:

1. The aid of the Department of Agriculture will be given to such cities or towns as are in a position to fulfil their part in the following regulations and shall have secured the necessary provisions under provincial legislative authority for the purpose of agreeing to the present regulations:

2. The Government of Canada will assist any city or town which shall have signified in writing to the Veterinary Director-General its desire to have the aid of the Department of Agriculture in controlling bovine tuberculosis in the cows supplying milk and cream to the said city or town, provided, the said city or town shall have stated in its application for the aid of the Department of Agriculture, as aforesaid that being thereunto duly empowered by law, it will undertake and provide that:

(a) Dairies in which milk or cream is produced for sale therein shall be licensed.

(b) No license shall be issued unless the dairy conforms to the standard.

(c) The standard shall require that the stable shall have ample amount of air space, and at least two square feet of window glass for each cow, and shall be well ventilated, drained, and kept clean and sanitary.

(d) Two years from the date of the first test of the cattle of a dairy the sale within the said city or town of unpasteurized milk or cream from the said dairy shall be prohibited, unless the veterinary inspector can certify that the said herd contains no reactors and in his opinion is free from tuberculosis.

(e) An inspector or inspectors shall be appointed and paid by the said city or town, whose duty it shall be to see that the undertakings and provisions as aforesaid are carried out, and that the cows are kept clean and properly fed and cared for.

3. The Veterinary Director General on receiving notice in writing from any such municipality of its desire to have the assistance of the Department of Agriculture, as aforesaid, shall forthwith make inquiry, and if satisfied that the foregoing requirements are being carried out, shall send veterinary inspectors from the Department of Agriculture to inspect the said cows.

So far as Lethbridge is concerned, we have no inspector. There does not seem to be sufficient reason for his going there, and he was busy elsewhere.

4. The veterinary inspectors shall use the tuberculin test (except as provided for in section 13), and also make a careful physical examination of the cows in order to determine whether they are healthy or not. Dairy bulls shall also be examined and subsequently treated in the same way as cows.

5. Following the examination and test, the diseased cows and reactors shall be dealt with as follows:—

I think that covers the question. There is co-operation between the city and the department. After the city has complied with the conditions and regulations, the department performs its duty.

Mr. BOIVIN: Does this Order in Council apply only to dairy herds that are kept within the city, or to all dairy herds?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It applies to all cows supplying milk; there is no limit as to locality.

Mr. BOIVIN: Is the compensation, for animals owned on farms throughout the country, limited to pure bred stock, or does it apply to other cattle as well?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It is paid to grade animals on a smaller valuation, $80 being the maximum.

Mr. BOIVIN: I gather from the remarks of the hon. minister that at the present time the serum treatment of hogs fed on garbage is being attended with considerable success. I also gather that the cooking of garbage in places adjacent to cities does not eliminate the hog cholera germ, because the cooking is not carried on according to plan.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes.

Mr. HARRIS: He admits that perhaps in the United States the treatment is a success, but that his department purpose to enforce the act by insisting that those engaged in feeding hogs on garbage shall put in more or less expensive cooking equipment. At the same time his department, I understand, is not going to try to discover a suitable serum which would render such equipment unnecessary. I have had considerable experience in the feeding of hogs, having fed about one thousand in York county in the vicinity of Toronto, and having had a rather unfortunate experience with the department in the serum treatment. Officials of the department treated three hundred of my hogs, and practically ruined them, and I was unable to get any assurance from the department as to whether or not it had a serum treatment which would eliminate the necessity of cooking garbage to kill the hog cholera germ. What is the intention of the department in regard to investigating this serum treatment with a view to making it thoroughly effective?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: That is a very proper criticism. I was confronted with that alternative myself, until I found that the inoculated animals are still capable of transmitting the disease, although the animal itself is saved so far as its flesh is rendered fit for human consumption. It occurred to me, why not inoculate all hogs and thus cut out this garbage cooking and do away with the difficulties that my hon. friend from South Oxford and others complain of. It has been a source of a good deal of worry to me, for fear I was doing injustice by not taking such a course. But to inoculate all hogs would be an exceedingly expensive proceeding, besides, there is not a sufficient amount of the disease in Canada to warrant such extensive measures, and, as I have said, after all the disease would still be transmissible. Where the garbage is properly cooked, ninety per cent of the infection from the garbage is eliminated.

Mr. HARRIS: I cannot accept the statement of the hon. minister that the Dominion is free from hog cholera—

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I did not say that.

Mr. HARRIS:—in any greater measure than is the United States. I submit that there is as much hog cholera in Canada as in the United States, and in my view his department should take as deep an interest in its elimination as is being taken by the department of agriculture across the line.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: How much has been paid out during the past year on freight on carload lots of stock shipped out from the various stockyards?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I think my hon. friend has already asked for that information in the return I have referred to. We have not got the particulars here. If the information is not in the returns to-morrow, then another order will get it for my hon. friend.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Will we have an opportunity of discussing the matter after this vote is passed? As a matter of fact, I am informed that there has been considerable discrimination in the matter. Can the minister also give any information as to the amount paid out for hay for shipment to certain districts where feed was scarce?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: We have not that information here. I think I can give it to my hon. friend, although it does not come under this vote, but under another vote that has been passed. I think my hon. friend refers to what we call the free freight for feed in the western provinces, that is, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and a small part of Manitoba. A certain amount has been set aside in order to move feed or animals back and forth, the stockyards bearing one-third of the expense, the provincial government another third, and the federal government the balance.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I am referring to stock shipped out from the various stockyards back to the farms.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Do you mean provision for buying stock at the central markets and shipping it back to the farms?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Yes.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes, there is a very generous provision for that in the payment of caretakers, low freight rates, and so on. We will have the information in a moment.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: What was the amount paid out in that way in each of the provinces?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The shipment for the twelve months ending October 31, 1921, was 8,224 heifers and 7,724 ewes. We have not the figures here by provinces, but I suppose we could get them if for any particular reason my hon. friend would like them.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: To my knowledge there has not been anything paid out in the province of Ontario. A great many animals have been shipped from western Canada to the stock-yards here, and then shipped back again.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: It depends, of course, whether a man desires to make application for this service. In the West there was a good deal of that done, especially during the latter days of the war. The animals would go to Winnipeg and then be shipped back to be fed on Indian reserves, forest reserves, or grazing land, but application had to be made, and I have no doubt that if similar application had been made in this province the same thing would have been done. Probably they were feeding their own stockers or they may not have been short of feed, or perhaps they were not concerned in this policy; there are a dozen other reasons that might account for it. It is entirely within the option of the individual whether he takes advantage of it or not.

Mr. HARRIS: I do not feel quite satisfied with the answer the minister has given to my question whether it is the intention of the department to continue the work that has been under way for some years with regard to the serum treatment of hogs, and the consequent non-necessity of cooking the garbage for feed. I gather that it is the minister's intention to have all garbage cooked before feeding rather than to adopt the alternative of serum treatment. I would ask the minister whether the work which has been going on for the last ten years in regard to serum treatment is not going to be continued, or is the department going to drop the whole of this investigation and burden the country with an army of inspectors to see that the small hog feeders cook the garbage before feeding it to their hogs?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I have no way of disproving my hon. friend's statement as to the amount of hog cholera in this country as compared with the United States, but as we all know, hog cholera was prevalent in the United States for many years before we had it in Canada to any appreciable extent. I am more familiar with conditions in the West. While we had hog cholera in the West to a considerable extent about ten years ago, there is none of it now. I am not so familiar with conditions here, but I have not run across very much hog cholera so far. The fact that only $3,055.06 was paid out last year would indicate that we do not locate very much of it. I would not like to think that my hon. friend's statement was correct, because it would indicate that the situation is very much worse in Canada than I think it is, but the solution would be very much more simple if the facts were as he states. If we could get rid of this cooking of garbage, which is done very perfunctorily, I think, in very many cases I would be delighted, but the alternative is to adopt the serum treatment, which has been recognized as curative to a certain extent, though still leaving the animal capable of transmitting the disease. In my opinion the cases are not sufficiently numerous to justify us in adotping that alternative, and we shall therefore continue for the time being to have the garbage cooked, believing that that is the source of contagion in at least ninety per cent of the cases.

Mr. HARRIS: That figure of $3,055.06, to my mind, is not a fair index of the amount of hog cholera prevalent around large cities. It rather goes to prove that the department has not seen fit in a large number of instances to give the benefit of the doubt to the hog feeder. The regulations provide, as the minister has pointed out, that if the hog feeder does not live up to the strict letter of the law the hogs will be destroyed without any compensation. The figures given by the minister simply bear out my statement that the inspector's word is taken rather than the word of the small hog feeder who perhaps has suffered the loss of all his hogs. It might be better for the industry if the benefit of the doubt were given to the man who is raising the hogs. I know of one area where upwards of 10,000 hogs are being fed on garbage, and it seems to me that the Government would be well advised not to pay so much attention to the army of spies—I hesitate to use the word, but these men are more or less inclined that way, going around the outskirts of the city spying on one man here and another man there—but rather employ one or two experts to follow through this serum treatment so that if possible all this unnecessary expense could be done away with. I am sorry that the minister is taking the view he has intimated. I think he should take as an index, not the amount of money that has actually been paid out by the department in compensation, but the number of cases where the department has found indications of cholera and perhaps destroyed the hogs without any compensation at all.

Mr. THOMPSON: I would like to ask the minister if the act applies to villages, or only to cities and towns? Why should the villages be discriminated against? The milk is supplied in villages in exactly the same manner as in towns and cities, and if they do not come under the act I should like to see the act amended so as to bring them in.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The act when it was passed about five years ago applied only to cities with a population of 5,000 or more, but the provisions have been growing wider ever since and taking in smaller towns. It is a matter for consideration whether we ought to apply the act to still smaller units, but I rather think there is not much dairying done in a small village of from 100 to 150 people. The milk would be supplied by people quite close to the town; it would be just a question of expense.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Referring to hog cholera, I should like to know in how many instances compensation has been withheld during the past year? Is it the intention of the department to discontinue the licensing of garbage feeders? If the department concludes that this is a menace to the industry because of the danger of spreading disease possibly there may be justification for doing that. I would like to know in how many instances compensation has been withheld during the past year.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I understand from my deputy that he has not got that information here. Not more than four, and I think only three, persons wrote to me regarding claims they had before my predecessor and all for the same reason. I could not see my way clear to reversing the decision of my predecessor or the inspectors in any one of the cases. I suppose we could find out just how many claims have been refused. Doubtless wherever the conditions were not observed that course was pursued. There is no use in having conditions unless they are lived up to. The suggestion that we should take the word of somebody else—presumably the owner, or the member, or some other person—rather than the word of the regularly appointed inspector is a novel one to me. If some way of arbitrating the matter was found later on I presume there would be some redress for my hon. friend who thinks the inspectors have been unjust. There is, of course, that procedure but if that were done, I suppose it should only be as a last resort. I have made it as plain as I could that I have no money to hand out to people to satisfy a complaint unless that complaint is well founded. We certainly must observe the regulations. There is no doubt that other persons than those referred to have been refused compensation, but I certainly would not be justified in handing out public money in defiance of the existing regulations.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I am a little surprised to hear the minister refer to this matter in the way he has done—at the allusion he has made to the word of a member of Parliament and his statement in that connection that he cannot hand out money. I can assure you, Mr. Chairman, that nobody is asking him to hand out money when there is no justification for paying it out. As regards the particular case to which I refer I did not know anything about it until almost a year after it had happened. Having made inquiry I think the minister, if he takes the trouble to read the report very carefully, will have good reason to change his views in regard to his inspector. The complainant in this case is a citizen of Canada who has observed the laws of the country fairly well for upwards of seventy years, and I think that having sustained a loss of between seven and ten thousand dollars, something more than the word of the veterinary inspector should be the deciding factor in the matter. I am not going to remain silent and permit the minister to indulge in insinuations with respect to statements made by members of Parliament. The minister may come here with quite a reputation. He will find, however, that members of Parliament have also reputations to sustain, and when they make a statement on the floor of this House charging an inspector in a public department with dishonesty it is time for the minister of that department to cause an investigation to be made into the facts instead of indulging in slurs on the representatives of the people. Let me tell the minister that some of them have just as good a reputation as he himself can boast of.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the resolution carry?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Before the item is carried I would like to have some information with regard to the question I submitted a moment ago as to the amount which has been paid out in each province for car-load lots. My attention was drawn to the question in connection with a load of cattle shipped from the vicinity of Battleford to Toronto and again shipped out from the latter city. Now the minister does not need to get up here and suppose certain things—that people do not make application in certain provinces because they have been distinctly told that these special rates were not available in certain places, whereas they do make application in other cases. I would like to know before this vote passes what amount has been paid out in the several provinces for this purpose, and whether in this respect the people in all the provinces have been treated alike.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I gave the hon. member the aggregate number of animals referred to and I would be delighted to give him the details as to every province, and even more minute information if it was available, but I do not have it here to-night. I would be pleased to give the information in the form of a return, if that would be satisfactory; I want to do anything at all that is reasonable. But my hon. friend has asked questions that would keep a whole set of accountants going one-half of their time if they were insisted on. Some questions have been asked, the answering of which would involve a report so minute and classified in its form as to demand the services of a tremendous staff. We have been criticized for having too many statisticians, too many clerks, too many officers doing clerical work. Well, we would require a good many more such officers if we had to furnish such minute details and classify them according to provinces. I think the information can be got, but it would keep the committee too late if it were insisted upon to-night. However the information is available and if my hon. friend insists the vote can stand until it is brought down; I have no objection to that course being taken. I do not want to restrict questions or debar any hon. member from obtaining information which he deems to be necessary in the public interest.

Mr. HARRIS: May I be permitted to ask one question along the same line? Will the minister tell the committee how many cases of hog cholera were reported throughout the Dominion last year by his inspectors?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I have not that information here.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the resolution carry?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I understand the minister is willing to let the item stand until further information in connection with it is brought down.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Put the question.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I shall not have a further opportunity of discussing this matter if the item is passed. I understand the minister stated a few minutes ago that he had no objection to the item standing.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: That is right.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. HARRIS: This is a very important matter which affects some 30,000 hogs in the Dominion. If these questions cannot be answered now and the passing of the vote will mean we shall be debarred from asking them again later on, I submit the suggestion of the minister should be adopted and the item should stand.

Item allowed to stand.

Seed, Feed and Fertilizer Control, $275,000.

Mr. GARDINER: Does the Seed Grain Commission come under this vote?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes.

Mr. GARDINER: Is it the intention of the department to keep the Seed Grain Purchasing Commission in existence any longer?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I think so. I think the institution is a good one. We have such variations of season in Canada and such a dearth of seed some years in some parts of the country that I do not know exactly how we would get along without it. Some objection was taken to the commission when it was first inaugurated some years ago, but the people have become familiarized with its work. There is no seed merchant that I know that would be able to take care of the enormous requirements of seed that have to be met from time to time, and which can only be met by this commission.

Mr. GARDINER: I am very glad indeed to hear the minister state that he is going to keep the commission in operation for a longer period. Many dealers in western Canada have endeavoured to get the Seed Commission done away with because it interfered with the profits of the seed houses, but I am glad indeed that the minister is going to continue the organization for a further period.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I might tell my hon. friend that, in consequence of the storage in an interior elevator in the West of a larger quantity of seed oats than was required last year, the Seed Grain Commission was able to supply over 300,000 bushels of seed oats for the maritime provinces and places east of here this year. I do not know where they would have got them if it had not been for that source of supply.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I am very glad to hear the minister give utterance to his intention to continue this scheme, and to see that it is receiving the support of hon. gentlemen to my left. Although I never undertook to advise in farming matters, I sometimes had to do with forming the policy, and it so happens that, five years ago, when acting Minister of Agriculture, upon the advice of an official of the department—I claim no originality in the matter—I was successful in establishing the commission. I know that the opposition to the Seed Purchasing Commission was not altogether a disinterested and unselfish opposition, but an opposition, nevertheless, sometimes hard to overcome. There is no doubt that it has rendered great service, principally in putting at the disposal of municipalities, and through municipalities of agriculturalists, dependable seed, and all the more so during years when the getting of that seed was a matter of more than ordinary importance to the country generally. Consequently while not seeking to bring credit to myself, I would like to emphasize the fact that there were some things done under the late administration, with which, it is true, I had specially to do, that turned out to be a lot more popular when there appeared to be danger of their abolition than they were at the time of their establishment.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: What does the feed control include?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: There is an act called the Feed Control Act that has to do with the controlling and inspecting of feeds. For instance, take mill feed; there were many complaints some years ago about its character, such as that it was adulterated with seeds.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Have there been many complaints received with reference to the manner in which the act has been enforced during the past winter and fall of 1921? Has the department had many complaints in regard to mill feeds?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: No, very few complaints. Do you mean complaints from the consumer?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Yes.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My deputy tells me there has been a number during the past season.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: What were the chief complaints with regard to feed stuffs and mill feeds?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Just the one I have already mentioned. There were complaints a number of years ago, and they apparently subsided, but they have broken out again. That is in regard to adulteration of bran and shorts with weed seeds, sometimes not very well screened either.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: It is evidently worse than it was some time ago. I took some little interest in this matter when the act was put through, but still I do not claim any credit for it. Yet I was satisfied in my own mind that the effect would be,—and I pointed it out to the committee—that it would be absolutely impossible to purchase pure mill feeds. To-day, as is well known to all the live stock dealers or feeders, it is absolutely impossible, in the part of the country from which I come, at least, to purchase pure mill feed. They are all adulterated badly—much worse, as has been pointed out, than they were sometime ago. This is too serious a matter to be permitted to continue. There was a distinction made in the act between commercial feeding stuffs and feed stuffs. Feed stuffs were supposed to be pure bran, shorts and other grains. The Grain Standards Act was changed sometime ago, and it was made permissible to mix in this way, but, under the act as it stands at the present time, I think all the millers are practicing the policy that is now in effect, because the containers do not indicate what is in them, more than that the words "screenings not exceeding mill run" are printed on the sack. I think the inspectors are somewhat lax in their duties in not enforcing the act. I would point out to the minister the advisability of having the act changed, so that it would be impossible for the millers to adulterate mill feeds, as has been the practice during the past year or two, because there is no justification for it. These mill feeds are absolutely free from this adulterated article when it is milled, and it only goes in there through an arrangement which they have for piping this stuff back into mill feed and disposing of it in that way. This is a common practice of the millers throughout the country under the act as it stands at the present time, and I have no doubt there will be many more complaints received in the future than during the past year, if this is allowed to continue. For a time they disregarded the law. A law was placed on the statute book in 1920, which prohibited anything of that kind. That was amended and the present act took its place. This act permits the practice, which is now followed, but even under present conditions I do not think the inspectors are carefully observing their duties and enforcing the law, or this policy would not be permitted, because you can go into any feed store in the country and find the containers all have printed on the bottom "screenings not exceeding mill run". That never was the intention of Parliament when the act was put through, although it was pointed out that this was likely to happen under the act. This is happening and the result is that the farmers of this country, whom the minister is so much concerned about, are suffering a great injustice in having to pay a high price for this stuff, instead of getting the pure feed stuffs.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I will look into the matter. I can quite understand, if that proviso is incorporated in the act in any way, or in any regulation connected with the act, that during any time like the present, when bran and shorts are needed, there will be a tendency to label the sacks in that way, but there must be some proviso authorizing it. They must have authority for doing it. I am not familiar with that act, but I will certainly familiarize myself with it. At present, I can see no justification for it in the act. But as my hon. friend says, these articles should be pure and free from weed seeds, unless the adulteration is deliberately done.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: As I pointed out, I believe that the inspectors are somewhat to blame for laxity in enforcing the act as it exists at present. There is a distinction between feed stuffs and commercial feed stuffs. It is quite permissible to incorporate this other stuff with commercial feed stuffs and to sell the mixture as commercial feed stuffs. But dealers are putting in orders, it may be for bran and shorts, and they are getting this stuff back with the words printed "screenings not exceeding mill run." They are not getting what they order, and, consequently, it is the duty of the inspector to make inquiries from the millers to find out whether they are receiving these or not. Complaints which have been received indicate that there is, at the present time, a considerable amount of crookedness in connection with the matter. While I do not like to use that word, I again state most emphatically that it is impossible, in many parts of the country to-day, to purchase the pure article; you have to take the adulterated article.

Item agreed to.

Administration of the Agricultural Instruction Act, $20,000.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: In connection with this item, I noticed a statement in the press—I am not sure whether it was by the minister or not—that one of the reasons why the Hon. Duncan Marshall had been engaged by the Government was to find out whether some provinces had been receiving, under the Agricultural Instruction Act, more than they were entitled to receive; that the amount in the past had been paid out in proportion to the population of the various provinces; that he considered that was an injustice, and that he was inquiring into the matter. Was it in connection with this matter that the hon. gentleman made his trip to Florida a short time ago?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: No, I do not think he would go down there for that purpose. While my civil government estimates were under discussion, I stated quite plainly the primary reason for Mr. Marshall's appointment, and I read the Order in Council to the House. I pointed out that we were having an investigation into the working of the Agricultural Instruction Act with a view to its possible continuance, discontinuance or amendment. Some phases of the act were under discussion when it was first launched, one of them being the basis of allocation, and I think that is a proper subject for reconsideration and further discussion. The present basis may be the best obtainable; but there is no harm in inquiring into the matter in order to see if there is a more equitable basis and also to find out first hand from the various provincial ministers of agriculture just what suggestions or amendments, if any, they would wish to make to the act. I am sorry to report that Mr. Marshall has been ill for the last three or four weeks and has not been able to continue his work. In the course of his work, he had a very bad attack of "flu" and has been in bed for nearly a month, so that we have not received that report yet. In view of the prospects of an early session next year, it may not be necessary to take action this session but we would like to have the act re-enacted this session with such amendments as may be found necessary, so that the provinces will know authoritatively that they can plan their work on the assumption that this work is going to be continued. I hope to be able to have the act re-enacted this session, and it may be found possible to incorporate some of the suggestions made by the hon. member for Saltcoats (Mr. Sales) with regard to removing the overlapping of provincial and Dominion activities. In this way some activities which are now carried on by the Dominion might be set apart for the provinces with Dominion oversight. These are all tentative propositions that could be decided upon only after careful examination into the work in the various provinces, and that work has already been begun.

As regards Mr. Marshall's trip to Florida, since that matter has been brought up so many times, I have no objection to going into it. I do not know why any hon. gentleman should think that I was sending Mr. Marshall or anybody else to Florida for a joy ride or jaunt, for no particular purpose. I have been making inquiries into the matter, and find that the exhibition there has been running for a considerable number of years, I do not know how many. It is, therefore, not an exhibition that has been suddenly organized by the Minister of the Interior for the purpose of permitting one of the staff to go on a joy ride or anything of that nature. I am not sure whether it was organized under the late government; it may have been tried out by my predecessor. In any event, I have a report from an officer in the Interior Department giving some of the results of Mr. Marshall's trip, stating that he addressed a large assemblage there of some 8,000 people and received a large quantity of front-page advertising by way of reports in many newspapers, advertising that would cost $15,000 or $20,000 at ordinary advertising rates. Notwithstanding the doubt that was thrown on the likelihood of receiving any immigrants from that part of the world, I have a number of clippings intimating that many people at that exhibition were farmers, and already, as a direct result of that exhibition and of the address given by Mr. Marshall, some immigrants have arrived in Canada. Therefore, this trip was not entirely fruitless. Two other officials were there in charge of the exhibits, and this was a regular annual event organized years ago and held in the same place as formerly for the same purpose of reaching possible immigrants, many of whom were at the exhibition. My information goes to indicate that, in the immediate neighbourhood, there are about 6,000 Canadians, many of whom, it is felt, would be desirous, if they knew the facts, of returning to Canada, and I think this is a most fruitful ground for doing immigration work.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I have no doubt that many Canadians are to be found in Florida; in fact, many go, during the the winter, to that very delightful spot. In submitting my question to the minister when this appropriation was taken up, I pointed out the minister's evident intention of departing from the old system of allocating the appropriation under the Agricultural Instruction Act in proportion to population and of obtaining some other means of allocating it. This appropriation, which was for a ten-year period as first adopted, will possibly soon be used up. My desire to get some information with regard to this matter has been prompted by the evident disposition on the part of some people to see that the province of Ontario contributes its fair proportion of the expenditure of this country and yet is denied advantages which other provinces are receiving at the hands of the Government. The questions which I submitted to the minister with reference to the item which was allowed to stand over, were prompted by a desire to obtain this information, and the same is true with regard to experimental farms. The other night when I asked for information, we were simply told that Ontario was an old province and that we did not require anything of this kind. Now that we are discussing another vote we are told by the minister that Mr. Duncan Marshall has been employed trying to devise a better system by which larger grants will be given to some provinces than they are receiving at present.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I never made the statement my hon. friend attributes to me. Surely he misunderstood me. As a matter of fact, the question of allocation came up when the act was first introduced, or at least the year after. The question as to whether the allocation should be based on straight population or on rural population is one of the debatable things that may come up, as it has come up before. It is not a new question, and personally I have no strong views upon it; but I take the ground that in some cases the grant might reasonably be smaller than in others. We have nine provinces. Suppose one province had no agriculture at all. That is an extreme view, but it is not an impossible one, because a province might be wholly engaged in manufacturing, mining, or lumbering. In such a case, should we be justified in making an allocation for agriculture where no agriculture existed? As I say, that is taking an extreme view; but just in proportion to the extent to which agriculture is pursued should the allocation be made. Whether a province is very largely engaged in agriculture, or is engaged in the industry only to a small extent, is a consideration that should surely have a bearing on the allocation when it is primarily for agriculture. That is a debatable question and it will be discussed when the matter is under consideration. However, it is not the subject for present investigation at all. The subject for discussion is the probable extension of agriculture, along the lines I have intimated, where we might avoid overlapping.

[Mr. Sutherland.]

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The minister practically denied what I stated, but he concluded by arguing rather in support of the view I have formed of his position. I have been charging the department with a desire to discriminate against provinces on the basis of population, and now he says that a province that is largely engaged in manufacturing should not receive the same consideration as a province almost entirely engaged in agriculture. Well, I presume that, so far as his remarks in regard to manufacturing provinces is concerned, the province of Ontario stands out, if anything, a little in advance of any other province. I do not know whether Ontario is the one the minister has in mind, but you can easily realise where his argument would lead to. If you say that a province that will not derive any benefit from the grant shall not be required to contribute to the payment of it, that is a different matter. But if some provinces are asked to contribute practically one-half of the revenues of the country and are to be denied all the advantages that other provinces receive, then I say that this discrimination is going too far. And that is practically what we were told the other night by the minister with regard to experimental farms. He said that an old province like Ontario can derive no great benefit from these farms. I contend, on the contrary, that there are great benefits which we can get from a proper expenditure. I am not criticising the amount spent, but I should like to know whether we shall have an opportunity of further discussing this matter when Mr. Duncan Marshall's report is submitted to the House, as I presume it will be.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: When the experimental farms were under discussion I did make some of the remarks my hon. friend attributes to me, but I pointed out further that, so far as Ontario is concerned, in the one experimental farm at Ottawa there was more money spent, and there were more activities engaged in, than was the case in any other province in the Dominion. What more does Ontario want?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The experimental farm at Ottawa is not intended to serve Ontario alone. The minister's remark in this regard might apply with equal force to the expenditures in conection with the administration of the Government of Canada which is located in Ottawa.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I would ask my hon. friend what the large representation from Ontario in the late House were doing when they let the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie) neglect that province?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The minister stated the other night that 75 per cent of the value of experimental farms disappeared after they had been in operation twenty-five years. I think those were the words he used. I do not agree with that statements at all.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I do not know whether there is any use in correcting my hon. friend. He gets certain notions into his head and apparently a sledge hammer will not knock them out. This is what I said: In due time another era will dawn when experimental farms will be just as necessary as to-day, when the question of soil fertility will render further experimental work imperative. I hope my hon. friend recognises the distinction. I did not stop at the statement that in the first twenty-five years the experimental farms had rendered 75 per cent of their usefulness. I supplemented that by saying that as time went on a new era would dawn that would require a different line of work altogether, and that probably the farms would be just as useful then as in the first twenty-five years. I distinctly made that addition. I do not want to charge my hon. friend with misrepresenting me, but he is doing so, inadvertently, as I hope.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: If Hansard contains the words I have quoted, I suppose the minister will reconsider the statement he has just made. I think he said that 75 per cent of the value of the experimental farm disappeared twenty-five years after it had been established.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I said that and much more.

Item agreed to.

Progress reported.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: What business will be taken up to-morrow?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: We shall continue in Supply with Agriculture and follow with the estimates of the Department of Interior.

On motion of Mr. Mackenzie King the House adjourned at 10.50 p.m.

INDEX

FIRST SESSION—FOURTEENTH PARLIAMENT, 1922

Abbreviations:—1r., 2r., 3r.,=first, second, third reading. Admn.=Administration. Amdt.=Amendment. Com.=Committee. Dept.=Department. Div.=Division. Govt.=Government. M.=Motion. Neg.=Negative. Qu.=Question. Ref.=Reference. Rep.=Report. Res.=Resolution. Sec.=Section.

Abattoirs. See also Cold Storage; Health of Animals; Meat and Canned Foods
Maritime provinces in, M. 992, 1023

Accountants. See House of Commons; Senate

Accounts. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act; Finance; Public Accounts

Accredited Herds. See Health of Animals

Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834

Acoustics. See House of Commons

Actions. See Escheats Act Amdt.

Active Militia. See Militia; National Defence

Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670

Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 10, 15, 50, 98, 122, 173, 211, 260, 303, 326
Mover (Mr. McMurray) 10; Seconder (Mr. Mercier) 15
Speakers, Messrs: Baldwin, 60; Baxter, 98; Beaubien, 280; Brown, 332; Campbell, 356; Carmichael, 155; Church, 116; Crerar, 50; d'Anjou, 306; Denis (St. Denis), 348; Dickie, 341; Drayton, 195; Evans, 300; Forke, 76; Gouin, 140; Harris, 307; Hughes, 224; Irvine, 211; Johnson (Moosejaw), 112; Kennedy (Edmonton), 142; King (Mackenzie), 38; Ladner, 321, 326; Lewis, 149; Logan, 105; Macdonald (Pictou), 186; MacKelvie, 159; MacLaren, 353; MacLean (Prince), 335; Maclean (York), 63; McBride, 316; Manion, 263; Marler, 243; Meighen, 19; Neill, 169; Pritchard, 250; Putnam, 309; Raymond, 253; Robitaille, 320; Ross, 95; Ryckman, 284; St. Père, 281; Sexsmith, 293; Sheard, 294; Speakman, 80; Stansell, 359; Stevens, 230; Stork, 330; Turgeon; 273; Warner, 349; Woods, 92; Woodsworth, 84
Motion agreed to, 362; acknowledgment of address by Governor General, 746-7

Adjournments. See House of Commons

Adjustment of War Claims. See War Claims

Administration of Justice. See Justice

Administration of Oaths of Office bill, 1r., 6

Admiralty Act Amdt. bill (Deputy Registrar and Deputy Judge) 1r., 245-6; 2r., com., 2822; 3r., 2823

Admiralty Court vacancy at Quebec, 1275

Adulteration of Food. See Food; Health

Advertising. See American Magazines

Aerial Patrol. See Air Service

Aeronautics, control of. See Air Board Act

Aeroplanes. See Air Service

Age of consent. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Agents Provacateur. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Ages, Population by. See Population

Agricultural bloc in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Budget; Customs; United States

Agricultural Commodities. See Farm Products

Agricultural Fairs. See Exhibitions

Agricultural Fertilizers. See also Fertilizers
Inquiry as to legislation, 3041
Speaker's ruling, 1282

Agricultural Fertilizers, Regulation and Sale of, bill. Res. 3043; 1r., 3044; 2r., 3044; ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 3044; com., 3194; 3r., 3195. Senate amdts., 3607

Agricultural Implements, 2185, 2217, 2360, 2464, 2564, 2620
Brantford factories, closing of, 2375
Duties on, reduction, 2115, 2175, 2206, 2217, 2230, 2360, 2375, 2381, 2484, 2534, 2592, 2731, 3118-3120, 3141. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Drawbacks and refunds, 2175, 3122
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston — Last Mountain) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Imported from United States, 2413-14, 2486
By United Grain Growers, 3118-19
International Harvester Company, 2382
Massey-Harris Company, 2175
Price of, 1476, 2188. See also Address; Budget
At home and abroad, 2452, 2620
Protection, 2697
Manufacturers, and, 2575
Raw Materials for, 302, 309, 766. See also Customs Tariff
Raymond, Mr., and, 254, 255, 2705. See also speeches on Budget
Repair parts, 1901
Standardization of parts, 2406
Tariff, and, See Address; Budget; Customs Tariff

Agricultural Institute, 657, 969

Agricultural Instruction Act, 651-2, 994, 1012
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032

Agricultural Labourers. See Immigration; Labour; Unemployment

Agriculture. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Accredited herds, 995, 2556, 2734-43
Diseases, 968. See also under this title, Health of Animals
Valuation, 1000
Animal diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health of Animals
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Bounty to, 1698
Bovine Tuberculosis. See under this title. Health of Animals
Butter. See also Oleomargarine
Accumulation in England, 997
Colouring of, 1778
Imported, qu. 613, 803
New Zealand, from, qu. 614
Protection against oleomargarine, 177. See also Oleomargarine
Vitamines in, 1781

Agriculture — Con.
Cattle. See also Live Stock
Embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 992, 998, 2557
Abattoirs, maritime provinces, 992-3, 1023
Quebec, 1471
Warehouses, 3521
Commissioner of, qu. 609, 645, 3501. See also Marshall, Mr. Duncan
Committee on. See Agriculture and Colonization
Competition, 2698
Conditions and prospects, 16, 53, 78, 81, 85, 113, 150, 231, 252, 300, 2147, 2149, 2153, 2156, 2163, 2216, 2403, 2885. See also speeches on Address; Agriculture Estimates; Budget
Statement by Manitoba Agricultural College, 2332
Contributions to railway tonnage, 1927. See also Freight Rates; Wheat Board
Dairying. See that title
Depression in, 1475, 2147. See also Address; Budget
Department
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Comparison of average salaries, 750
Dominion Apiarist, 592
Estimates, 1018, 1718, 3520
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment of, 3501. See also that title
Salaries and contingencies, 588, 644, 3504
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 590, 3520. See also under this title, Entomology Diseases of Animals. See under this title, Accredited Herds; Health of Animals
Entomology, 813
Exhibitions, 993, 1026, 3521. See also that title
Experimental and illustration Farms, 795, 2557, 3521
Buildings, expenditure on, 1264
M. (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item, 812
Mont Laurier, 994
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Export figures, 2446, 2638
Farm labourers, 79, 87, 251, 1153
Harvest excursions to West, 337
Immigration of. See Immigration
Unemployment. See Unemployment
Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers; Fertilizers
Fruit Industry. See that title
Importance of, 2386. See Address; Budget
International Institute of, 657, 969

Agriculture — Con.
Health of Animals, 967. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Bovine tuberculosis, 2556
Hog cholera, 1007, 1028
Alderson claim, 1004
Tuberculosis, 3521. See also Animal contagious Diseases
Japanese engaged in, 345-6. See also Oriental Aliens
Lecturers, 1023
Live Stock. See that title
Manitoba Agricultural College, statements on, 2332
Markets, 251, 2149. See also Address; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Wheat Board
Military and agricultural expenditures, comparison, 1137
Mixed farming, 2592
Potatoes. See that title
Root Vegetables. See that title
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Seed, Feed, and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Seed Grain, 3522
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718. See also Live Stock.
Unemployment, and, 2158, 2331. See also Labour; Unemployment
Wheat Board. See that title

Agriculture and Colonization, Committee on Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Canadian Council of Agriculture Memorandum ref. to, 377
Constitutionality of Wheat Board, Law Officers' opinion, 940
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900, 2406
Reports
Inquiry as to, 1929
Second and third, 657
M. to concur in, 703, 726, 776
Amdt. (Mr. Meighen) to refer back, 779
M. as amended, agreed to, 786
Third, concurred in, 786
Fourth, concurred in, 865
Fifth, M. to concur in, 2915
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland), 2951; neg. 2969
See Wheat Board, for further proceedings
Standardization of parts of agricultural machinery, 2406

Air Board, qu. 366. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence

Air Board — Con.
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Civil aviation, 1722. See also Air Force
Estimates, salaries, etc., 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1728

Air Board Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Compensation for death or injury)
Res. 2357, 2820; 1r., 2821, 2r., com., 3r., 2826

Aircraft Limitation. See Limitation of Armmaments

Air Force. See also Air Board; Militia, National Defence
Aeroplanes, danger of attack from, 2085-98
Civil Aviation, and, 1047, 1722
Aerial patrol, High River, Alta., 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Camp Borden, 1728
Co-operation with provinces, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, B.C., 1730
Forest patrol, 1047
High River station, 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Railway Belt, B.C., 1730
Gasoline for aeroplanes. See Gasoline
Pensions, Widowed mothers, 1305

Air Service. See Air Force

Aird, Sir John, 1128

Alberta
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian schools. See Indians
Meeting of defeated candidates, 2858
Public buildings, 1254
Second homesteads, 1042
Soldier's Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Alcohol. See also Customs Tariff; Opium and Narcotic Drugs; Prohibition; Special War Revenue Act
Country doctors and, 2177
Retail druggists, for, ques. 1213, 1400; 2114, 2176-7, 2191

Alderson Claim. See Agriculture, Health of Animals

Aldred, Mr. J. E., 1128

Ale. See Liquor; Special War Revenue Act; Taxation

Algoma Steel Corporation, rails, 1689

Aliens. See also Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Deportation of. See Immigration Act Amdt.; Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Enemy property, custodians of 1672, qu. 1904
C.P.R. shares held by, 1672
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu. 3363
Prince Rupert, 3606, 3601
Fisher & Oughton, qu. 1773, 3601, 3606
Thorsch, Mr., qu. 1772
Williams & Manson, qu. 1772, 3601, 3606
Lord Kitchener, news of his death, and, 2155
Oriental Immigration. See Oriental Aliens
Taxation of, 2155
Women of Alien Birth. See Dominion Franchise Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Allan, Sir Montagu, 872. See also Banks, Merchants Bank

Alliances, Political, 2095, 2097. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party
"Morganatic alliance", 2095, 2344

Alpine Club, grant to, 1053, 1387

Alternative Vote. See Proportional Representation

Aluminum Company of America, 71, qu. 728
Cedar Rapids power, qu. 1375

Amalgamation of Departments. See National Defence Bill

Ambassador, Canadian, at Washington. See Canadian Representation

American Bankers' Association, 2189

American Magazines, importation and competition, 3109

Amherst, N.S.
Car repair contracts, 1702
Drill hall, 1238

Ammunition. See Militia and Defence

Anaesthetics, use of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Anderson, Mr. R. K. (Halton)
Budget, 2364. Tribute to Finance Minister; taxation and the cost of living, 2364; tariff; import and excise duties; free trade; origin of protective policy in United States; population, increase Anderson, Mr. R. K. — Con.

Budget — Con.
of; tariff reductions; a two and a half per cent budget; sales tax increase, 2365; party without definite fiscal policy; 2366; revenue and protective tariffs in England and United States; Fordney tariff, 2367; reciprocity with United States; British and American investment in Canadian industries, 2368; home manufacture; trade with Great Britain and United States, 2369; home market; difficulties due to war; debt and deficits, 2370; economy and expenditure; civil service; militia and naval service, 2371; taxation; railways; emigration; dumping clause, 2372; beet sugar; the amendment, 2373
Burlington channel bridge, 2007
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 954
Halifax and St. John quarantine stations, 1241
Halton county
Highways — Dundas Street, qu. 1065
Post offices, 1247
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021-2
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, 3014
Orders in Council, qu. 935
Overseas service — categories, 3317
Penitentiary Act Amdt, 790
Pensions, commutation of, 1281
Public buildings
Rentals, 1259
Water, 1266
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, care and medical examination of patients, 1281
Steel rods, refund of duties, 1774

Andrews, Mr. A. J., K.C.
Winnipeg Strike correspondence, 2042

Anglo-French Relations. See Genoa Conference; Limitation of Armaments

Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168. See also Japan; Limitation of Armaments

Animal Contagious Diseases Act
Administration, 967, qu. 3362

Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill
(Compensation for slaughtered animals), 1r., 1283; 2r., com., 2102; com., 2734; 3r., 2806

Animals, Cruelty to. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Annexation, 2550
"Annexationists of the prairie provinces", 1020

Annual Drill. See Militia

Annuities Branch, Salaries, etc., 776

Anti-Conscription, 22. See also Military Service Act Amdt.

Anti-Dumping. See Budget; Customs; Fruit; Trade

Appeal Cases. See Judges' Act Amdt.

Appeal Judges, Saskatchewan. See Judges Act Amdt.

Appeals from Provincial Courts. See Supreme Court Act Amdt.

Apples. See Fruit

Appropriation Acts
1. Bill No. 26 (Interim Supply — for $53,-901,669.17 for 1922-23). Res., 362, 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599
2. Bill No. 85 (for 1921-22, for $9,623,-792.61 and 1922-23 for $88,517,204.53). Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 1842-3
3. Bill No. 202 (for 1922-23 for $175,766,-646.71). Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3607

Appropriations not required. See Estimates

Archambault, Mr. Joseph (Chambly and Verchères)
Bankruptcy Act, trustees for Montreal district, 1183
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth). See under this title, Immigration-Criminal Code
Health Dept. correspondence relating to drugs, 1289, 1377
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Special Com. Reports, 1988, 2519, 3156, 3280
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Military Service Act Amdt., 642
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289
Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bill (Residence), 1062
Newspaper censors, 1069
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Point of order — relevancy, 1890
Pratt vs. Delphine, 302
Railway Commission, Chief Traffic Officer, ques., 1377, 2215, 2457

Archambault, Mr. Joseph — Con.
St. John harbour, qu., 1401
Trent canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376
Victoria bridge tolls, qu. 1377
War claims, details of estimates, qu. 1288
Welland canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376

Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Archives. See Public Archives

Arctic Ocean, patrol. See Naval Service

Arctic Regions, Mounted Police in, 3497

Arichat, port physician, qu. 1773

Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Armorial Bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601

Armouries. See also Militia and Defence
Fittings and alterations, 1261, 1288
Quebec, in, qu. 1287

Army and Navy Veterans, Oriental immigration, 1514

Arsenals. See Militia

Arthur Young & Company, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification

Arthurs, Mr. James (Parry Sound)
Canadian Transit Company Bill, 1771
Cash Bonus to Soldiers, 403; M., 429
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Fishing schooner race, 3514
Geodetic survey, 1986
Labour Dept.
Nova Scotia strike, 584
Salaries, 575
Temporary clerks, 567
Naval Service, cruisers, qu. 2039
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3440-53
Postal receipts, qu. 938
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3959
Reading of documents, 560
Returned soldier hikers, qu. 3153
Rural mail routes, qu. 3152
Soldiers' settlement, building loans, 3475
Transcontinental railway, 919

Articles. See League of Nations

Artillery. See Militia; Royal Canadian Artillery

Artisans, Immigration of. See Immigration; Labour

Ascension Day Adjournment. See House of Commons

Asiatic Exclusion League of Canada, Oriental Immigration, 1514

Asiatics. See also Immigration; Oriental Aliens
British Columbia in, 171, 183

Assiniboine River Floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Relief measures, inquiry, 3491

Assistant Chief Electoral Officer. See Chief Electoral Officer

Athletics. See Cadet Camps

Atlanta, Ga., Penitentiary, 1278

Atlantic-Pacific, Canadian ports. See British Preference; Steamship Services

Atlantic Sugar Refineries, drawback, 2850

Audibility of Debates. See House of Commons

Audit, Supreme Court pre-audit, 1275

Audit Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt.

Auditor General
Contingencies, 3504
Salaries, 793

Auditor General's Report, 380, 424
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Ref. to Public Accounts Committee, 1462

Aurora, warship. See Naval Service

Australia
Immigration policy, 1536
Preservation of Industries Act, 2411, 2648
Reciprocal trade with, 33, 174, 2110, 2802
Correspondence tabled, 9
Steamship services. See Steamship Services
Trade relations with, 2592

Automobiles. See also Taxation
Duty on, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2232, 2574
Drawbacks, refunds, 2850
Excise sales tax, 2116, 2177, 2186, 2206, 2230, 2260, 2346-7, 2388, 3272-3, 3276
Amended, 2857
Ford car, cost in Detroit and Canada, 2186
Ford Motor Company, 3273
Duty paid by, qu. 3599
Output, 3273
Protection and profits, 2232, 2696
Imports, qu. 1633

Automobiles — Con.
Industry, protection of, 2696, 2730, 3132
Number of, by provinces, 2566
Refund of taxes, 3600
Results of protection of industry, 2696
Theft, penalty, 2831
Value, $1,000, to be admitted free for settlers, 2116

Aviation. See Air Board; Air Force

Bachelor Tax. See Taxation

Backus, Mr. E. W. See also Lake of the Woods Repeal Bill
Lease of timber areas, 2805; qu. 2992

Bacon, production. See Agriculture; Live Stock
Conference on, 1025

Baddeck, N.S.
Public Buildings, 1238
Wharf, 1269, 1765

Baie des Chaleurs railway service. See Gaspé Railways

Baker, the late Colonel G. H., M.P.
Memorial to, 1929
Appointment of Special Com., 2101
Second report, 3490

Baldwin, Mr. W. K. (Stanstead)
Address in reply, 60; congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail, income tax collections, 60; attitude of leader of Opposition, 60-61; conscription, 61; leader of Opposition, 62
Armouries, 1288
Budget, 2250. Public debt; sugar control; railways; economy, 2250; naval service; development of natural resources, 2251; geographical difference; party promises; water power development; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2252; tariff; Progressive party; Hon. Alexander Mackenzie; Sir John Macdonald and protection, 2253; wartime wages and prices; immigration, national spirit; inequalities of taxation, 2255
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1832

Balkan States, credit to. See Loans; Roumania

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C. See Banks; Ministers and Directorships

Bancroft, Mr. L. P. (Selkirk)
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Pensions for lightkeepers, 1496
Selkirk wharf, 2004

Banff, Windermere road, 1051, 1682

Banking and Commerce, Committee on
Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref to, 1210
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210

Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703

Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bills
1. Bill No. 45 (Mr. Jacobs — additional grounds for petition in bankruptcy) 1r., 821; ref. to Com. on Banking and Commerce, 1395
2. Bill No. 56 (Mr. Ethier — court to which petition shall be presented) 1r., 1132; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1662
3. Bill No. 107 (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 2035; 2r., com., 3025; 3r., 3026
Sections and Subjects discussed:
Avoidance of general assignment of book debts, 3025
Court of bankruptcy, 3026
Judges to be assigned by chief Justice, 3026
Senate amendments, concurrence in, 3611
Suspension of payment, notice of, 3025
Winding up Act, 3026

Banks and Banking. See also Finance; Loans; Taxation
American Bankers' Association, 2189
Bank Act, revision. See Address; Budget
Bank balances and real wealth, 2497
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2177, 2329, 2852, 2856, 3258
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Circulation, tax on, 2117, 2626
Commerce, 1085-7
Credit system, 1290. See also Financial Credits
Credits, 1071, 2729. See also Loans
Currency, issue of, 2501
Deposits, ratio to capital, 2728
Gold in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
Grain trade, financing of, 2246

Banks and Banking — Con.
Income tax payments by, qu. 1400
Interest, 1291, 3601
Alleged violation of Bank Act, 2627
Interlocking directorates, 2503
Loans to directors, 1093
Merchants', 1085, 1092, 1121, 3604
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Amalgamation, 2727
Ballantyne, Hon. C. C., 1085
Independent inquiry by Parliament, 2396
Macarow, Mr. D. C., case against, qu. 2305
Merger, 158, 237, qu. 367, 872, 1085, 2727
Montreal Bank and, 1085
Royal Trust Company, and, 1085
Montreal Bank, 1071-85, 1129
Canadian Pacific, and, 64-66
Unemployed and, 87
Montreal City & District Savings Bank, 1087
Municipalities, withholding credit from, 2627
Nationalization of, 2325-8
New banks, starting, 2501
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, property, qu. 1182
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill. See that title
Penny Banks, depositories for money received, 1132
Profits, circulation, interest, etc., qu. 3598
Refusal to advance money to school board, 2627
Royal Bank, 1087
Special War Revenue taxation. See that title
Note circulation, payments on, qu., 1400
System, revision of, 138, 158, 223, 237, 352, 2501, 2506. See also Budget; Irvine

Barclay, Mr. A. J., qu., 963-4

Barkhouse, Captain, 1748

Barnet, Major. See Soldier Settlement Board

Barnjum, Mr. Frank J., Forest Protection, 1049

Battlefields Commission, 119, 771. See also War Graves

Battlefields Memorials. See also War Memorials
Estimates, 2098, 2975

Baxter, Mr. Charles W., Appointment of successor, qu., 2457

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 98. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 98; Conservative party, campaign literature, 99; natural resources of western provinces, 100; maritime provinces, 101; tariff and reciprocity, 102; railway situation; Canadian ports, 104; economy in expenditure; industrial depression, 105
Audibility of debates, 708
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 712
Budget, 2340. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; per capita taxation; expenditure, 2341; Progressives and Government; duties on coal, boots and shoes; platform of 1919; failure of Government to implement pledges, 2343; reciprocity with United States; morganatic alliance, 2344; platform of Canadian Council of Agriculture; the amendment, 2345; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; redistribution; taxation of luxuries; automobile tax, 2346; tariff proposals as they affect farmer and labourer; trade with Germany, 2347
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 3007
Date of coming into force, 3008
Canadian National railways
Government ownership and operation, 1965
Immigration, and, 2165
Intercolonial, 1967
Menus, cost of printing, qu., 1931
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606
Civil Service — Mr. Martell, 3101
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Fines, payment to municipalities, 2832
Half-breed scrip, 3217, 3221
Pool-selling and book-making, point of order, 2973
Customs tariff operation, 769
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, Lunenburg, qu., 1902, 2458, 2584
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, 3468-74
Dredging, maritimes provinces, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born wives, M. (Mr. Euler) 492
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2826

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. — Con.
Fisheries
Deputy Minister of, 2166
Markets, 2166
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2817
Freight Rates
Special Com. on third report, 3577
Sub-amdt., 3586
Harbours and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
Immigration, maritime provinces and, 2165
Interior Dept., salaries, 454
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426, 546
Labour Dept., 494, 495
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu., 3598
Military expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Militia and Defence
Arsenal, Quebec, 2094
Expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) 1117
Monopolies and excess profits, 3276
Monuments, historic sites, qu., 469
National Defence bill, 2809
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt.
Appeal, restriction of right, 3021
Deportation, 3024
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2016
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3441
Railway policy, 1965
Rideau Hall, coal supply, 1757
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. John, in, 736
St. John terminal facilities, 848-9
St. John Valley railway, 3039
Savoy, J. Clovis, qu., 3363
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Insurance, 3253
Spruce bud worm, 815
Wharves in New Brunswick, transfer of, qu., 2305

Beatty, Mr. E. W., President of C.P.R., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. (Provencher)
Address in reply, 280; congratulations to mover and seconder, aims of Progressive party, 280
Boy Scouts, 773

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. — Con.
Canadian National railways — wrecks caused by defective cars from United States, 1708
Immigration — Ukrainians, 3061

Beck, Sir Adam, 63, 71, 92, 123, 124, 134, 633, 1327, 1937. See also Hydro Electric; Maclean, Mr., (York); St. Lawrence Waterway

Beef, Imports of, qu., 610

Beer. See Liquor; Taxation

Beet Sugar. See Budget; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue

Behring Sea Patrol, 1736. See also Naval Service

Béland, Hon. H. S. (Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Minister in charge of the Department of Health)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3479-84
Canadian Red Cross Society bill, 3151, 3386
Canteen funds, disposal, 3329, 3308
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 441
Chaudière Valley floods, 3492
Conservation Commission, 456-7
Election promises, 402
Health, department of
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Estimates, 2017
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
Salaries, 775
Venereal diseases, 2022
Insurance claim of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also under this title Returned Soldiers Iusurance
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, M. (Mr. Archambault) 1289, 1377
Enforcement of Act, 2017
Prohibition and, 2018
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill, 775, 1841, 2823, 3013
Appeal, 3020
Deportation, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3439-64
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1339, 1349-50, 3336
Appeals, 3341
Charges against, 3041

Béland, Hon. H. S. — Con.
Pension Commissioners. — Con.
Discretion, 392
Memorandum of Chairman, 2994
Representation of Quebec, 1350
Pensions
Commutation, 392
European War and active militia, 1353, 1361
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3523
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1307
Pensions, Insurance, etc., Special Com.
Appointed, 496
Final report, 3355
Shaw, Mr., 3326
Returned Soldiers, alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2639
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3358, 3388, 3398, 3437
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1341
Employers' Liability compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Hospitals, 1348
Nurses' salaries, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pensions, 1349, 1353, 1361. See also under this title, Pensions
Royal Commission on Pensions, 388. See also under this title, Pension Commissioners
Staff, 405, 1343
Reduction of, 3602
Salary increases, 385, 388, 401, 405, 551
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281
War service gratuity, interest on, 1347
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept. bill, 3597, 3609
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528

Belgium, free trade and, 2525

Bell Telephone Company, rates increase, 132

Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504

Belley, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Benefit Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt. bill

Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937

Betting. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Beverages, Tax on, 2594, 2857. See also Budget; Taxation

Bienfait, Briquetting plant at, qu. 6$4, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Expenditure and results, 2712-15

Big Bay Point, Lake Simcoe, removal of sunken vessel, 2005

Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765

Big Interests and Liberal party, 242, 2431, 2678, 2682. See also speeches on Budget

Biggar, Colonel O. M.
Resignation from Air Board, 1726. See also Chief Electoral Officer

Biggar, Mr., W. H., K.C., qu. 728

Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63

Bills. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker
For Public Bills See their individual titles;
For private Bills, See Private Bills Discussed

Binder Twine, 257, 265, 2405 2575
Brantford factory, 2375. See also Budget

Binders. See Agricultural Implements

Binette, Mr. Joseph (Prescott)
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
L'Orignal wharf, qu. 1212
Quebec riots, compensation for damage, qu. 1508
St. Lawrence river waterway, communication with Imperial Govt., qu. 1508

Biological Board. See Marine

Bird, Mr. T. W. (Nelson)
Budget, 2704. Political expediency; difficult to modify protective system, 2704; divergence of views of Mr. McMaster and Mr. Raymond; historic Liberalism represented by Progressive party, 2705; revival of Liberal spirit; attitude of Opposition towards Progressives; alleged inaccuracies, 2706; statement as to direct and indirect taxation; tariff a secondary revenue producer; sales tax; free trade and revenue, 2707; inheritance tax; protection and farmers, 2708; labouring man; competition under free trade;

Bird, Mr. T. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian wheat in England; workingman and protection, 2709; small industries and trusts, 2710; Wheat Board; protection and flagwaving; obstacles to united nationhood, 2711
Civil Service salaries, 554
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2786
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 526
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838

Birnie, Mr. Alexander, and others, petition of, 1929

Black, Mr. George (Yukon)
Alien enemy property, qu. 1904
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3483
Civil Service list, qu. 727
House of Commons
Law Branch, qu. 2304
Senate, and,
Chief Accountants, qu. 2583, 2803
Expenditure, qu. 2583
McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation, qu. 2805
Migratory Birds, 1686
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1520
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Committee, final report, 3334
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838
Senate and House of Commons
Chief Accountants' salaries, ques. 2583, 2803
Yukon Territory
Administration of justice, 1275
Suggested union with British Columbia, 1275
Mining and mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radio-telegraph service, 1749
Silver discovery, 1276

Black, Mr. William (South Huron)
Budget, 2448. Disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister; the tariff; jokers in budget; protection with an excise tax; boots and shoes; building materials and agricultural implements; exorbitant prices charged; manufacturers' rebate on raw materials; loss of population, 2449; immigration; railway situation; national railways; change of management necessary; merchant marine; civil service; mem-

Black, Mr. William — Con.
Budget — Con.
bers taking up too much time with speeches; trade relations with United States; export of cattle, 2450; immigration, 2450
Goderich harbour improvements, 2000
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2000

Black, Mr. W. J., Deputy Minister of Immigration
Appointment of, 3500. See also Immigration

Blackfoot Reserve. See Indians

Blake, Late Hon. Edward
Letter to West Durham electors, 2677
Malvern speech, 2655, 2677
Withdrawal from leadership of Liberal party, 2655, 2657, 2677

Bland, Mr. C. H., Civil Service Commission, qu. 1773

Blankets. See Customs Tariff

Blind
Canadian National Institute for, grant, 3540
Soldiers. See Pensions Committee

Blood Indian Reserve. See Indians

Board of Commerce, 1118
Constitutionality of. See Wheat Board
Cost, report, qu. 2583
Salary of secretary, 1715

Board of Pension Commissioners. See Pension Commissioners

Board of Railway Commissioners. See Railway Commission

Boivin, Mr. George H. (Shefford)
Business of the House
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 1698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
St. Malo shops, 1699
Cheque tax, 3261
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Debates Committee, first report concurred in, 1258
Debates, Official, Unrevised Index, 3359
Health of Animals
Hog cholera, 1007
Inspection of dairy herds, 1007
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Unemployment, rail and car repair contracts, 1699

Bolshevism, 1290. See also Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Bona fide Contractors. See Wheat Board bill

Bonds. See also Finance; Loans
Five year maturities, qu. 2993
Non-taxable Victory bonds, qu. 2971
Sale by public tender, 1468
Tax-exempt, 2567, 2725

Bonus. See Civil Service; Soldiers

Bookmaking. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Bootlegging. See Liquor

Boots and Shoes, 3238. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Price and labour costs, 2350
Protection of industry, 207-208
Tariff on, 102-103, 152-3, 159, 2341-2, 2465, 2488-9, 2632, 2685, 3236, 3237
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce duty, neg. 3238

Borden, Camp
Air force and civil aviation, 1728

Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
Appointment to Limitation of Armaments Conference
M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
Imperial Conference of 1918, 1864
Naval defence, on, 1864, 1876
Quebec Harbour, 1475
Report on reduction of naval armaments, 9, 42, 1737, 1743
Withdrawal from directorships, 1089

Bouchard, Mr. George J. (Kamouraska)
Introduction, 1929

Boucher, Mr. Aimé (Yamaska)
Naval policy, 2078
Sorel shipyard, men employed May 1921, qu. 1062

Bounties
Linen yarn, 3128
Steel, 304-5, qu. 3360
Sugar beet industry. See Inland Revenue

Bourassa, Mr. J. B. (Levis)
Levis lightkeepers, qu. 2583

Bovine Tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases

Bowen, Mr. Fred W. (Durham)
Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu. 937

Boy Scouts Association, 772

Boys, Mr. W. A. (South Simcoe)
Big Bay point, Lake Simcoe, wreck, 2005
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Canada Gazette, expenditure Public Works, 1268
Coal, importation for public buildings, 1763
Dredging, 2005
External Affairs, salaries, 412
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Militia-Naval Service, officers, 421
National Defence bill, Air Force, 677
Naval Service
Militia, and, deputy ministers, 421
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Patronage — rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions Board, appeal, 390
Pensions, disability cases, 389
Public Buildings
Coal importations for, 1763
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1267
Expenditure on, 1268
Public works
Appropriations and expenditures, 2002
Estimates, 695, 698
M. to reduce, 695
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1268, 1271
Riley's army, qu. 3364
Soldiers' land settlement, 2132

Brantford
Agricultural implement industries, 255, 2375. See also Budget; Raymond
Meighen, Hon. Mr., speech at, 256

Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner of taxation, salary, 2024

Brethen, Mr. G. A. (East Peterborough)
Accredited herds, 1000
Agriculture — Deputy Minister, 653
Automobile tax, 3276-7
Budget, 2693. United Grain Growers and agricultural implement business; income tax — who pays? 2693; economy; reduction in cost of government; national debt; domestic loans; reciprocity, 2694; sales tax; excess profits, 2695; luxury tax; unimproved land values; automobile tax; protective tariff and automobile industry, 2696; Ford car; protection of agricultural implements, 2697; home market; prices

Brethen, Mr. G. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
fixed in markets of world; ability of agriculture and live stock industries to meet world competition, 2698
Customs Dept., estimates, 763
Grants to live stock associations, 1027
Live stock trade with South America, 647
Manufacturers, protection of, 2696, 3232
Oleomargarine, 3430
Woollen clothing and blankets, 3135

Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Bridges. See also Public Works
Burlington Channel, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Edmundston, 1239-53
False Creek, 3516
Grand river, York, Ont., qu. 1287
Isle Perrot, federal contribution, qu. 1377
Ottawa, lighting, 1267
Quebec, 1068
Red Deer river, 1964
Victoria, tolls, qu. 1377

Bridgetown, post office accommodation, 1245

Briquetting. See Bienfait; Lignite

Bristol, Hon. Edmund (Centre Toronto)
Budget, 2407. Congratulation to Finance Minister; nothing for trade or agriculture, a "stand pat" budget; protection against competitors; wages and production costs in Germany, 2407; German exports to Canada, 2408; protection of industries in Great Britain; Safeguarding of Industries Act; United States tariff, 2409; protection against German competition; equalization of conditions; duty valuation based on Canadian selling price; safeguarding of French industries, 2410; Australian Industries Preservation Act; Tom Moore on German labour conditions; protection of Canadian industries, 2411; industrial development and tariff legislation in United States; iron and steel, comparison of English and American prices; steel rails; Germany underselling United States; nails; protection of Nova Scotia coal and steel industry, 2412; tariff revision long overdue, 2413; western farmer and tariff and freight rates; United States farmer opposed to free trade; tariff against Canadian agricultural products; protection against United States commodities;

Bristol, Hon. Edmund — Con.
Budget — Con.
free trade; agricultural implements, importation from United States; effect of tariff reduction on implement factories; American factories in Canada; trusts and combines; woolens, 2415; free trade means destruction of Canadian industries and home markets; harmony between eastern and western Canada, 2416; deflation; building costs, coal; railway wages and freights; the amendment, 2417
Canadian ships damaged during war, 1183
Welland canal, 2748
Co-operation with the United States, 2751
Grain transportation, 2750

British Admiralty, war claims, 1752

British Board of Trade, relief of distressed seamen, 1676

British-Born
Disabilities under Immigration and Naturalization Acts, 1389-91

British Columbia
Aerial patrol of forests, 1724, 1730
Asiatics in. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Banff-Windermere road, 1051, 1682
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Canada Temperance Act, 1017
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733, 2997. See also that title
Canadian National branch lines, 331
Coal mines in, 178
Coastal services, qu. 3152
Dairymen's Association, 1794
D'Arcy Island, lazaretto, 2021
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1156-63, 1353
United Farmers, and, 1354
Fisheries. See also Quebec Fisheries
Cost and revenue, 2306
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Transfer to, 2042
Freight rates. See Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Fruit industry, 162, 225, 3417-3424
Tariff and. See Budget; Customs
Fuel Oil, 178, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Liquor traffic, 2018. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act

British Columbia — Con.
Natural resources, 328. See also Natural Resources
Old age and mothers' pensions, 1375
Oliver, Hon. John, 322
Criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2236-7
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2017. See also that title
Oriental Aliens. See also that title
Competition with, 171, 173, 183, 316-19, 332, 344
Immigration, 167, 872, 967, 2310, 3104
Res. by Legislature, 1511, 1513
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1509
Population, 1512
Voting, 172
Post offices, revenue from, qu. 824
Potlach Indian Institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Public buildings, improvements, etc., 1255
Railway Belt
Forestry, 1046
Survey, 1043
Railway mail service, 2797
Union for judicial purposes with Yukon, 1275

British Columbia House, London, purchase of, 3537

British Empire Steel Corporation, 200, 1106, 1130. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Business profits tax, qu. 1067
Compensation for loss, 1082

British Goods, Importation. See British Preference; Customs; Trade

British-Japanese Treaty See Limitation of Armaments

British Market. See British Preference; Cattle Embargo; Trade

British Ministry of Shipping
Account, 2975
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976

British North America Act, powers under See Quebec Fisheries

British Preference, 2111, 2201, 2529, 2624-5. See also Budget; Customs; Trade
Canadian Seaports, and, 2688
M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 707
Amdt. (Mr. Lewis) 772; withdrawn, 726
Further reduction of duties, 2113
Goods imported via United States, qu. 375
Sugar, 2116

British Shipping Board, credit, 2975

British Subjects, Wives of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

British Valuation. See Customs, Valuation

Brockville and Westport Railway. qu. 704

Brown, Hon. George, on political pledges, 2482

Brown, Mr. J. L. (Lisgar)
Address in reply, 332; reciprocity, live stock industry, 333; cattle embargo, 334
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. 2735
Automobiles, refund of taxes, 3600
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canals, traffic through, qu. 705
Canned foods, marking, 3050
Civil Service, economy in, 423
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Experimental farms, 808
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Inaudibility of debates, 1751
Labour Dept. — economy, 568
Militia and Defence
Estimates, 587
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Naval policy, 2069
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1674
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1803
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018
Pensions Committee — final report, 3342
Political alliances, 2095
Prince Rupert Dry Dock Co., claim, 3516
Public Works estimates, 696
Rideau canal, 2765, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1207
St. Peter's Indian reserve, qu. 472
Soldier land settlement, 2134
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 449
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1345
Statistics, accumulation of, 580
Wheat Board bill, 3180
Wheat Board — point of order, 2949
Woollen goods, duty on, 3232

Brussels Financial Conference, 1138, 1292

Bryce, Dr. Peter, H., pamphlet, 1224

Bud Moth. See Forestry

Budget. See also Ways and Means
Date of
Announcement, 1721
Inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Debate, on, 2104, 2171, 2216, 2256, 2307, 2358, 2407, 2459, 2519, 2523, 2585, 2640, 2692, 2842, 2859
Amendments
Crerar, Mr., 2473-4; Speaker's ruling 2520-23
Drayton, Sir Henry, 2179, neg. 2912
Divisions
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) neg. 2912
Corrected division list, 2972
Motion (Mr. Fielding) for Ways and Means Com., 2104; agreed to, 2913
Ruling of Mr. Speaker on Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2520-23
Probable time for conclusion of, 2639
Speeches of Finance Minister, 2104, 2842
Speakers, Messrs: Anderson, 2364, Baldwin, 2250; Baxter, 2340; Bird, 2704; Black (Huron) 2448; Brethen, 2693; Bristol, 2407; Caldwell, 2660; Campbell, 2729; Cannon, 2909; Chaplin, 2616; Charters, 2561; Church, 2392; Coote, 2724; Crerar, 2459; 2522; Denis (Joliette) 2887; Drayton, 2127; Drummond, 2272; Elliott (Waterloo) 2348; Fansher, 2229; Fielding, 2104, 2842; Findlay, 2893; Fortier, 2274; Gardiner, 2624; Garland (Carleton) 2300; Good, 2429; Gouin, 2654; Gould, 2711; Guthrie, 2874; Hocken, 2675; Hoey, 2331; Hughes, 2225; Irvine, 2495; Jacobs, 2513; Johnston (Last Mountain) 2220; Kellner, 2280; King (Huron) 2301; King (Mackenzie) 2537; Kyte, 2358; Ladner, 2276; Laflamme, 2895; Lanctôt, 2567; Lapierre, 2628; Lapointe, 2585; Lavigueur, 2398; Leader, 2510; Lewis, 2256; Logan, 2684; Lovett, 2270; Lovie, 2451; Low, 2445; MacKelvie, 2196; Maclean (Halifax) 2859; Maclean (York) 2321; Macphail, Miss, 2384; McBride, 2635; McConica, 2898; McCrea, 2314; McKenzie, 2604; McMaster, 2417; McMurray, 2474; McQuarrie, 2233; McTaggart, 2545; Malcolm, 2387; Manion, 2261; Marcil, 2905; Meighen, 2523; Millar, 2294; Milne, 2239; Morrison, 2699; Motherwell, 2548; Neill, 2307; Prevost, 2577; Putnam, 2282; Raymond, 2373; Robb, 2179; Sales, 2574; Speakman, 2881; Spencer, 2629; Stansell, 2290; Steedsman, 2721; Stevens, 2646; Stewart (Argenteuil) 2216; Stewart

Budget — Con.
Debate on — Con.
(Humboldt) 2597; Sutherland, 2481; Tolmie, 2591; Turgeon, 2188; Ward, 2400; Warner, 2204; White, 2352; Woods, 2183; Woodsworth, 2242
To continue from day to day, 2101
Resolutions, 2218
Amended, 2854

Building
Costs, 2416. See also Housing
Trades
Conference, 582-3
Freight rates affecting, 133

Buildings. See Public Buildings

Bukowinians. See Immigration

Bull Durham Tobacco, comparative prices, 2546

Bureau, Hon. Jacques (Minister of Customs and Excise)
Agriculture Committee Report, Wheat Board, 726
Civil Servants, appeal, 3079
Customs dept.
Drawbacks, 766
Estimates, 762, 1674
Officials, 764
Valuation of imports, 3413
Dominion Elections Act Amdt., 2810
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current and past year, 1675
Export liquor warehouses, 768
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
National Defence Bill, Senate amdts., 2807
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal, 1674
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Public ownership, 1331
Quebec Harbour — Park St. Charles, 1470
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1332
Total trade, statement of, 1376

Bureau of Standards, 235, 1372

Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Burlington Channel, Bridge, 2007

Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008

Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, retirement, 742-3, 1145, qu. 1211. See also National Defence Bill

Business Profits War Tax. See Taxation

Butter. See Agriculture; Dairying Industry; Oleomargarine

By-Elections. See House of Commons

Bylot Island, Mounted Police, 3497

Byng, Lord, Governor General. See References in Address

Cabinet. See Ministers and Directorships
Personnel of, 241

Cables, Submarine, ques. 3151-2, 3360

Cadets. See Militia and Defence

Cahill, Mr. Frank S. (Pontiac)
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1860
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1449
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental railway, 1577
Royal Canadian Navy, 1893
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1208
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798

Calder Act. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Calder, Hon. Senator J. A., 1393

Calder, Senator, United States
St. Lawrence river waterway 1206

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. (Victoria and Carleton, N.B.)
Abbatoir and cold storage plants in maritime provinces, 992
Agriculture
Cold storage facilities, 992-3
Department — salaries, 750
Exhibitions, 993
Fertilizer inspectors, 592
Lecturers, 1023
Saunders, Dr., resignation of, 591
Spruce bud moth, 595, 2668
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2734-8
Blankets, duty on, 3131
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 856
Budget, 2660. Congratulations to Finance Minister; Minister of Justice applauded by Opposition; fallacy of the home market argument; wheat and potatoes; reciprocity with United States; Mr. Chaplin; taxation; inconsistency of

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Prime Minister; sales tax burdensome to people least able to bear it, 2661; duty on clothing and silk goods; failure of budget to carry out Prime Minister's ideas; drawbacks and untaxed exports, 2262; a protectionist budget; tools of production; agricultural implements, prices in Canada and United States; fertilizers and the tariff, 2663; Maine and New Brunswick prices, 2664; cost of growing potatoes; reductions of duty on farm machinery; prospect of Liberals implementing tariff planks, 2665; Finance Minister's disavowal of tariff planks of Liberal platform, 2666; free trade; export duty on pulpwood and round logs; Canadian resources used to develop American industries, 2667; spruce bud moth; import and export duties, payment of, 2668; amendment; tariff revision; recent additions to Conservative party, 2669
Business of the House — concurrence, 1842
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
Directors, 2791
Public ownership, 1939
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3602, 3604
Privilege, question of, 3602
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
New polls to be established, two months prior to election day, amdt., 2815
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, qu. 704
Edmundston public building, 1240
Farm machinery, cost of, 769
Fertilizer Act Amdt., 775, 3041, 3194
Fertilizers
Duty on, 3140-3141
Inspectors, 592
Tariff and, 2664
Transportation rates on, 1022
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways in salmon rivers, 2167
Pollution of streams, 2168
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2818
Fishing Schooner race, 3510

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Forests
Destruction by spruce moth, 1049, 2668
Protection by fire towers, 1048
Gasoline tractors, 2123
Grading machines, 3126
Harness, duty on, 3137
Home brewing, 3141
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2791
Indians
Devon Band, proposed removal, 1216
Expenditure, 1225
Tobique reserve, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Insurance returns, 3254
Manufacturers — free traders, 3140
Militia and defence — annual drill, concurrence, 1842
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
National Defence bill, 745
Naval Service, sale of Niobe, 2065
Penitentiary Act Amdt. 789
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3445-56
Pension Board, staff, 1351
Pensions
Committee on, report, 2996, 3310-24
Commutation of, 1281
Disabilities, 390
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
Potatoes, 2661, 2666
Inspection and sale of, 2744. See also under this title Root Vegetables
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Privilege, Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec Harbour Commission — Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197
Root Vegetables, inspection and sale, 2744, 3486
Potato grades, 3370
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293-6
St. John, N.B., terminal facilities, M. 639, 844, 850
Saw-mill machinery, 3127
Senate indemnity, 3509
Silk fabrics, duty, 2662, 3137
Soldiers
Disabilities of, 392
Insurance, 3321
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1342-8
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Salaries, 1342
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Soldier land settlement, 2133, 3408
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2142
Payment of municipal taxation by Govt., 1257
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Steamship service, St. John and Cuba, 2028
Steel plates, delivery of, 3508
Sydney pilotage district, 3508
Widowed mothers, pensions, 1312, 3324
Woollen goods, duty on, 3129

Calgary
Buildings, rental of, 1254
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Live stock branch, qu. 607
Milk inquiry, cost of, qu. 823
Post office building, 1254
Trades and Labour Council, unemployment, 1082

Calydor, sanitarium, 1279

Cameras, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Cameron, Mr. Alex., qu. 606

Campaign Funds and Literature. See Elections

Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. (Mackenzie)
Address in reply, 356. Financial position of western farmer, 356; railway and freight problems, 357; maritime provinces and Confederation; financial condition of country, 358
Automobiles, protection of industry, 2730
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2729. Liberal pledges and promises; platform of 1919, 2729; statements of Prime Minister at Yorkton, Sask.; the budget a repudiation; the tariff, automobile industry, 2730; Sir John Macdonald's view of protection; guiding principle of national policy; Mr. Meighen and agricultural implement duties, 2731; tractors and farm machinery: cotton and woollen clothing; protection and the farmer; protected interests and campaign funds; betrayal of the people, 2732
Cadet services, expenditure, 1137
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy — Essex) for Special Com. 1426
Dominion lands, surveys, 1037
Experimental farm, Canora, 805

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. — Con.
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment, 2145
Holland, from, 2145
Medical inspection, 759
Indians
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1224
Saskatchewan reserves, qu. 608
Linen yarn from Canadian flax, bounty, 1361
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public Works Dept.
Filing clerks, 693
Officials, 692
Saskatchewan Indian reserves, qu. 608

Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 397

Camp Borden, Air Force and Civil aviation, 1728

Camps, Militia. See Militia and Defence, Annual Drill

Canada Status of, 1337, 2324. See also Speeches on Address; Budget; Limitation of Armaments; Naval Service

Canada-Australia-New Zealand steamship service, 3034

Canada Car and Foundry Company, 1696
Car repair contracts, 1696
Amherst shops, 1702
Port Arthur, 1696

Canada Cement Company, 200, 2297, 2300

Canada Gazette
Expenditure, Public Works Dept., 1268

Canada Grain Act. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry (Mr. Meighen) 1770

Canada-Mexico trade, qu. 606, 699, 700, 2989

Canada-Newfoundland Steamship service, 2027

Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Exemption from Pilotage Dues) — Res. 1335, 1487; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 2819; 3r., 2820; Senate amdts. 3437
2. (Appointment of Harbour Masters) — Res. 1578, 3009; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3010

Canada Steamship Company
Life-saving equipment, qu. 1284

Canada Temperance Act
Expenses under, 3499
Plebiscite, 2024

Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Provincial legislation) 1r., 1017; withdrawn, 2733
2. (Provincial government control of liquor importation) 1r., 2733; 2r., com., 2997; 3r., 3009
Senate amendments
Concurrence, 3614
Non-concurrence in, 3608
Conference, 3613
Subjects and items discussed:
Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 3000, neg. 3006
Carriage or transportation, Amdt. (Mr. Mitchell) 3008
Date of coming into effect, Amdt. (Mr. Shaw 3007; withdrawn, 3008

Canada-West Indies-British Guiana service, qu. 2356

Canada-West Indies, South America service, 2027, 3026

Canada's Contribution. See League of Nations; Naval Service

Canadian Air Board. See Air Board

Canadian Council of Agriculture. See also Progressive Party; Wheat Board
Agricultural figures, 2649
Fiscal policy and proposals, 2508-9
Memorandum on Wheat Board referred to Agriculture Com., 377. See Agriculture and Colonisation Com.
Platform, 2345
Tariff criticisms and proposals, 2509, 2552. See also speeches on Budget

Canadian Deep Waterway and Power Association, 1320. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Canadian Expeditionary Force. See also Pensions; Soldiers Civil Re-establishment Canteen Funds. See that title
First contingent, qu. 1376
Medical inspection, 3317. See also Pensions
Repatriation of dependents, 1711
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and, qu. 2038

Canadian Ford Company. See Automobiles

Canadian Forestry Association. See Forestry

Canadian Freighter. For names of Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels. See Vessels

Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882, 2888. See also Canadian National Railways; Naval Service; Shipbuilding; Steamship Services
Canada-Newfoundland service, 2027
Coal from Japan, 2312, 2406
Cost of, 245, 247, qu. 469. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dominion Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Employees' wages, qu. 3598
Inquiry as to sale of, 3104
Insurance, qu. 605
Lake marine, qu. 3362
Loans to, 3035
Lumber cargoes for Orient, 2311
Ocean and river service, 3507. See also Marine
Ocean freights. See British Preference
Outstanding claims, qu. 606
Ownership and operation of, 3037
Passenger traffic, qu. 939
Potatoes, shipment to Cuba, 2028
Prince Rupert Drydock and Engineering Co. claim, 3514
Shipments by. See St. John terminal; Steamship Services
Ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Subsidized steamship services, 3027, 3506
Welland canal, 2756-9
Vessels. See also that title
Britisher, steamer, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Freighter, qu. 963
Number of, qu. 469
Scottish, steamer, 3514

Canadian Government Railways, 873. See also Canadian National Railways
Deficits, qu. 607
Dining car service, qu. 2040

Canadian High Commissioner. See High Commissioner

Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237

Canadian Manufacturers' Association, 170. See also Budget; Manufacturers
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Tariff, and, 2546

Canadian Mission, Colonel Delphine, 303

Canadian National Institute for the Blind
Grant, 3540

Canadian National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Canadian National Railways. See also Address; Budget; Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation
Accounting, 1908-18
Advances
$7,000,000, — 2779
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Amount required for, 381
Annual report, 1928
Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 873; Canadian Government railways; 873; Grand Trunk system, 877; estimates, 879; freight rates, 879; reorganization, 880; Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882; summaries, 882
Board of Directors. See under this title, Directors
Bond sale in New York, 58
Branch lines, 1472, 1476, 1956
Bengough extension, 2770
British Columbia, 331
Eastern Maine railway, 1293
Hanna-Medicine Hat, 1965
Kamloops-Kelowna, qu. 937, 1134, 2797
Policy of Government, 1135
Business methods, 1692
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and, 3036
Canadian Northern railway, 123
Acquisition of, 2614
Advances to, qu, 471
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Agriculture, contribution to freight tonnage, 1927
Arbitration, 204
Bonded indebtedness, 190, qu. 368
Assumption by Dominion Govt., 2458
Co-ordination, 1907
Deficit, 191, 1907
Electrification of, 1317. See also Electrification
Federal subsidies, qu. 1504
Guarantee bill, 1914, legal expenses, 1667
Indebtedness of western provinces, 229
Insurance, qu. 471
Invasion of Ontario by, 202
Liabilities, qu. 368
Loans and subsidies to, 189-90, 204, qu. 1504, 1921
Mackenzie-Mann
Amounts paid to, qu. 935
Subsidy, qu. 607

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Canadian Northern Railway — Con.
Mileage, qu. 368
Operating deficit, 1905
Responsibility for loans, 204. See also under this sub-title, Loans
Rorketon branch line, 2139
Subsidiary lines, 202
Taking over of, 190, 1907
Canadian Pacific railway, competition with, 65. See also Address; Budget; Railways
Car and locomotive contracts
Canadian Locomotive Company, 2794
Eastern Car Company, 2794
Car repairs. See under this title, Rail and Car Repair Contracts
Carey, Mr., 2858
Coal
Importations, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Consolidation, 6. 11, 28, 72, 73, 89. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2168
Deficits, 1905-69, 1920
Corrected statement, 1919
Dining car and restaurant service, qu. 2040
Menus, cost of printing, qu. 1931
Rivers and Melville, Sask., restaurants, qu. 2038
Directors, Board of, 1924, 2194, 2791
Appointment of, 1936
Connection with supply companies, 2792
Hanna, Mr. D. B., 1924, 1959, 1962
Labour costs, and, 2317
Interested in other companies, 1129
Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 1924
Public ownership, sympathy with, 2852
Representation of employees, 2798
Statement of Prime Minister, 2792
Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46
Edith Cavell road, Jasper Park, 1052
Electrical operation, 1206, 1323. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway; and under this title, Public Ownership
Electrification, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627
Estimates, 1905
Fraser, Mr., right-of-way agent, 1134
Freight
Careless handling of, 1965
Rates. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Quebec and, 1472-5
Special Committee, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Grain leakages, qu. 1401, qu. 1930
Grain shipments, 2194. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Grand Trunk Pacific railway, 189, 196, 203, 342, 1921
Advances, qu, 471, qu. 2037, 3520
$15,900,000, 1969
Branch lines, 3520
British Columbia in, 331
Cost of to the country, 196
Estimated, 205
Subsidiary lines, 203
Grand Trunk railway, 29. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Acquisition, 190, 235, 1922, 2612, 2616
Administration of, 64
Advances to, qu. 471, qu. 2037
$25,750,000, 1969
American mileage, 191, 204
Amount required, 381
Annual statement of Minister of Railways, 877
Arbitration, 128, 205, 2779
Comments of English newspapers, 374, 821
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772
Bonded security, advances, qu. 935
Coal, qu. 606
Deficit, 191. See also Annual Statement under this title
Employees
Pension rights and status, M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
English stock-holders, 64, 123
Financial statement, 1933
Government ownership, 125. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Kelley, Mr. H. B., 205
Mortgage trust deed, legal expenses, 1667
Officials, salaries, qu. 728
Portland terminal, 353, 920. See also British Preference and Canadian Seaports
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Hotels, 2806
Immigration, 1927, 2147, 2165. See also that title
Industrial councils, 1061
Insurance, qu. 471, qu. 610
Intercolonial railway, 106-111, 274, 312, 1967, 2688. See also Logan; Macdonald (Pictou)
Administration, 275
Domination by Canadian Northern railway, 193-194
Employees, enlistment of, 3518
Freight rates, 275, 355. See also that title

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Intercolonial railway — Con.
Gaspé and Bonaventure counties, in, 623
Gulf shore and Caraquet railway, qu. 1504
Local management, 313-314, 192
Management, inquiry, 407-8
Moncton headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Operation of, 107, 192
Passes on, 315
Patronage system, 106
Pension fund, qu. 938
Provident fund for employees, 2769
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Snow-cleaning, 313
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, qu. 2038, qu. 2213
Mail service, qu. 2799
Montreal, employees, 1288
National Transcontinental. See under this title Transcontinental
Overbuilding, 2569
Passenger traffic, qu. 927
Pension fund, qu. 938
Prince Edward Island railway, 1249
Public confidence, 1928
Public ownership and operation, 1907, 1933, 2193. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Purchases in anticipation of requirements, 1912
Quebec Oriental and Quebec Western railways, 623
Quebec terminals, 1475
Rail and car repair contracts, 1912, 1925, 1958, 2399
Board of management and, 1688-1710
Defective American cars, 1708
Steel cars, 1702-6, 1709
Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways
Regional control, 1923, 2196
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, qu. 2584
Revaluation, 1925
Right-of-way and lease agent, qu. 1633
Rolling stock repairs, 1212. See also under this title Rail and Car Repairs
St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 1774
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293, neg. 1296
Securities, qu. 3154
Shops
Moncton, 1709
Rivière du Loup, 1690
St. Malo, 1699
Transcona, 1705, 1708
Steel cars, qu. 2213
Repairs, 1702-1709

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Telegraphs, qu. 3360
Ties, ques. 934, 2209
Purchases of in Quebec, qu. 1659
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Toronto railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Transcontinental railway, 111, 125, 278, 919, 1921, 2493
Cost, 2193
Enlisted men, allowance to, 3518
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472-5
Grain shipments by, 2194
Lease of Eastern division, legal expenses, 1667
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 545, 2194
St. John valley, 3039
Unification, 1907, 1923-5, 2585. See also under this title Consolidation; Public Ownership
Water supply, Ste. Anne-St. Pierre, qu. 2213
Working expenditures, 2779

Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Canadian Northern Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Canadian Pacific Railway, 146, 191. See also Address; Canadian National Railways; Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway; Freight Rates
Advance in price of stock, 129
Beatty, Mr. E. W., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1606, 1856
Coal lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition with Grand Trunk, 64. See also that title
Cost, 2193
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2167
Directors, voting trust, 1936
Electrical operation, 71, 1206. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See that title
False creek bridge, removal, 3516
Freight Rates. See that title
Immigration and, 351
Indian Department, payment to, 3518
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, ques. 2040, 2213
New England states, connection with, 1294
Palais station, Quebec, 1068
Public ownership, 1937, 2329
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688-1710
Rates, See Freight Rates

Canadian Pacific Railway — Con.
Shares held by custodians of alien enemy property, 1672
Success of, 123
Transcontinental railway, opposition to, 2194

Canadian Patriotic Fund bill
Res. 3156, 3366; 1r., 3366; 2r., com., 3477; 3r., 3484

Canadian Press, Limited, 772

Canadian Red Cross Society bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3387; 3r., 3388

Canadian Representation in the United States, 1383, 2026, 2864, 2990
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments Conference. See that title

Canadian Seaports, trade through, 104. See also British Preference; Steamship Services; Trade

Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co., 1677

Canadian Transit Company. See Private Bills Discussed

Canadian Vickers. See Vickers

Canadian Wheat Board. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Canadian Wheat Board Bill. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Res. 3174; 1r., 2r., com., 3179; com., 3379; 3r., 3387
Amdts:
(Mr. Johnson, Moosejaw) 3178
(Mr. Maclean, Halifax) 3180
(Mr. Johnson-Mr. Robb) agreed to, 3383

Canadians
Distressed, relief for, 2027
Emigrating. See Immigration

Canalization. See St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland canal

Canals. See also Railways and Canals; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Chambly, improvements, 3518
Frankfurt, 1189
Georgian Bay, 1184, 1199, 1200-1209, 1319, 1397-8

Canals — Con.
Lachine
Widow of late James Innes, allowance, 2779
Manchester, 1189
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764
Construction of storehouse at Ottawa, 2764
Expenditure on, 2860
Improvements, 2769
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183. See also that title
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges
Improvements, 2768
Roadway, 2768
Traffic through, qu. 705
Panama, Suez and Soo canals, 1203
Trent
Estimates, 2764
Nassau dam, qu. 2457
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Welland, qu. 827, 1184, 1205, 1207, 2747
Contracts for sections 3 and 4, qu. 3600
Co-operation with United States, 2749-51
Estimates, 2747
Amdt. (Mr. Millar) to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758
Port Colborne elevator, claim of Mr. J. A. Jamieson, 1687
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1321. See also that title
Tonnage, qu. 936
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Water power rights, 2747. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Cancellation of Leases. See Dominion Lands

Canned Fish. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Food

Canned Goods, Marking of. See Meat and Canned Foods

Canneries, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Cannes Conference, 1716. See also Genoa Conference
Submarines, 1845

Canning Licenses. See British Columbia Fisheries; Fish and Fisheries

Cannon, Mr. Lucien (Dorchester)
Budget, 2909. Defeat of Tory party; administration facing serious situation; Progressive party; reasons for Cannon, Mr. Lucien — Con.

Budget — Con.
Liberal victory; tribute to Prime Minister; platform of 1919; restoration of constitutional liberty; responsibility for conduct of public officials; responsible government and commission control, 2910; Canadian National Railways; a word to the West; Quebec the friend of the West; provincial autonomy, 2911; railways; Liberalism, hope of the West; division amongst Progressive forces, 2912
Canadian National Railways, public ownership, 1936-42
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, Senate admts., 3615
Limitation of Armaments, 3166
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, payments to, 2772
Militia, arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2092
Naval policy, 2085
Point of order, parliamentary committee, 3354
Public Works estimates, preparation of, 1270
Royal Canadian Navy, 1887-90,

Canteen Funds, undistributed, disposal of, qu. 2215, 3290, 3308, 3328, 3331, 3334, 3346, 3350

Capital Ships. See Limitation of Armaments

Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway, 1183, qu. 1504

Carey, Mr., and Canadian National Railways, 2858

Caribou. See Hudson Bay Railway

Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. (Kindersley)
Address in reply, 155. French language; western opinions, 156; financial and economic outlook in the West, tariff question, 157; freight rates; grain speculation, banking conditions, 158
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, amdt. 1606
Deputy Minister of Finance, 753
Experimental farms, 800

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. — Con.
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. 3486
Justice Dept. — Private secretary, 1669
Kindersley post office building, 1254
Militia, annual drill, 1177
Public buildings, Saskatchewan, 1253
Telephone lines, Saskatchewan, 2012
Wheat Board, 3181

Carroll, Mr. William F. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Transit Company, bill, 1771
Cold storage, 819
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Dominion Elections Act. Amdt. 2812
Fuel oil, 178
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward Island, 1991
Indians, Sydney reserve, 1215
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Labour dept. increases, 568
Labour men and unions, 228
National Defence bill, 743
Nova Scotia Miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499, 532
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt., appeal, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442
Pensions Committee, final report, 3316
Pensions — Royal Commission, 3327
Unemployment situation, 1076
Steel rails contracts, 1076
Sydney steel workers, 1076

Carruthers, Mr. John (East Algoma)
Civil Service — patronage, 3086
Little Current harbour improvements, 2002

Cars. See also Railways
Governor General's, 1688
Repairs. See Canadian National Railways
Shortage of. See Freight Rates

Cartier Square militia stores shed, qu. 2038

Carty, Captain, qu. 1062

Carvell, Hon. F. B. See Railway Commission

Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. (Charlevoix-Montmorency)
Budget, 2670. Congratulations to Prime Minister upon title of Imperial Privy Councillor; Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; budget proposals; abnormal conditions, 2670; principles of the Liberal party; platform of 1919; Opposition amdt. not to be taken seriously; theories and arguments of the official Opposition and Progressive party; the golden mean; moderate protection, 2671; sales tax; inequality of income tax; burden borne by small wage-earners; proposed exemption of heads of large families; tax on cigarettes and cigars; exemptions from sales tax, 2672; cheque tax; leaf tobacco; tariff reductions; automobile tax, 2673; Borden and Meighen Governments responsible for present conditions; Canadian National Railways, management, board of directors, deficits; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; public debt; economy; Purchasing Commission; Civil Service Commission, 2674; reduction in civil service; public works in Charlevoix-Montmorency; Canada's future, 2675 Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1356
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 642
Steamship service, Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Superintendent of Lighthouses, Quebec, qu. 2584

Cash Grants to Soldiers. See Soldiers' Bonus

Cassels, Professor Gustavus, 1292

Cattle. See also Agriculture, Accredited herds, Health of Animals; Live stock industry
British embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Decline in prices of, 77. See speeches on Address; Budget
Diseases of. See Animal Contagious Diseases Bill
Exported to United States, 2450, 2695
Fordney tariff and. See United States, Fordney
Markets for, 977

Cattle Embargo, 93, 334, 361, 970, 973, 979, 985, 989, 992, 1002, 1031, 1283, 2182, 2571, 2597. See also Live Stock Industry
Alleged statement of Hon. Mr. Larkin, High Commissioner, 1020, 1463, 1502
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283
Removal of, 2597

Cedar Rapids power, 71, qu. 728, qu. 1375. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Census of 1921, 20, 56. See also Immigration; Population; Redistribution; Statistics
Agricultural assets and liabilites, 2159
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Appointment of, 1368
Payment of, 1367-9
Irregularities, 1363, 1365, 1367
Population, by ages, qu. 1632
Redistribution, and, 1363-71
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Report of Commissioner, 1366
Verification of figures, 1366

Central Vermont Railway. See Grand Trunk Railway

Chair rulings of. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Chairman of Committees. See Deputy Speaker

Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497

Chambly Canal. See Canals

Champlain, steamship, qu. 1400

Chaplin, Mr. James D. (Lincoln)
Agriculture Dept. — salary increases, 657
Boots and shoes, duty on, 3237
Budget, 2616. Ross rifle, war wagons and equipment; acquisition of Grand Trunk; congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity treaty, 2616; tariff proposals; automobile tax; tax on soft drinks, grape juice, 2617; consumption of farm produce in Canada; discrepancy as to agricultural exports; padded figures; non-agricultural commodities included in statement of exports, 2618; value of home market; agricultural implements, 2619; home and foreign trade in; prices in Canada and abroad, 2620; trend of tariff legislation in United States; Mr. Crerar's prophecy, 2621; farmers' platform; alleged effect of protective tariff; statement that consumer pays $4 for every dollar of revenue collected, 2622; export freight rates, 2623; cost of collecting customs duties; prices of kodaks in Canada and United States; political pledges; speech of late Hon. J. Israel Tarte, 2624
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

Chaplin, Mr. James D. — Con.
Cash bonus to soldiers, 402
Cheque tax, 3260
Dominion lands, temporary employees, 1036
Experimental farm employees, 652
Ford automobiles, 3274
Government printing, 1972
Hamilton-Queenston highway, qu. 471
Harbours and Rivers
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1993, 1997
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Interior Dept., salary increases, 457
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and Defence
Arsenals, 1979
Lindsay, 2086
Quebec, 2091
Military property in Lincoln county, 1980
Pay of staff, 1982
Permanent force, 1983
Staff reduction, 420
Junior clerks, 416, 419
Transport and freight, 1986
Mutual insurance, 3255
Orders in Council, qu. 934
Printing and stationery supplies, 454
Privy Council officials, 410
Public buildings
Maritime provinces, 1244
St. Catharines post office, 1246-50
Rail and car repair contracts, 1709
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls highway, qu. 936
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salaries and officials, 398-9
Salary increases, 386
Welland canal, construction, 2753

Charges of Management. See Finance

Charlevoix-Montmorency public works, 2675

Charlottetown, quarantine station, 2021

Chartered Banks. See Banks and Banking

Charters, Mr. Samuel (Peel)
Budget, 2561. Speech of the Minister of Agriculture; Wheat Board; Liberal pledges; introduction of national policy; the amendment; Government's failure to implement promises, 2561; Mr. Murphy at Milton; Government by Order in Council; business and luxury taxes; profiteers; inaction of Minister of Labour, 2562; sales tax; Civil Service Commission; patronage; the tariff; protection and free trade, 2563; statement of Finance Minister;

Charters, Mr. Samuel — Con.
Budget — Con.
manifesto of Progressive party; tariff changes; agricultural implements; fruit industry, 2564; pessimistic view of present day conditions; reciprocity; rural population; rural school attendance; value of farm lands; farm production, 2565; automobiles; Ontario Government immigration literature, 2566; future of Canada, 2567
Long Branch rifle range, qu. 372

Cheques. See Special War Revenue; Taxation

Chevrier, Mr. E. R. E. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Absence through sickness, 3509
Bonus, 3531
Commission, 3064
Pensions Com., final report, 3337
Senate indemnity, 3509

Chief Architect's Branch. See Public Works

Chief Electoral Officer
Assistant, salary of, 3538
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3603, 3606
Report of Fourteenth General Election, of 1921, 1258
Report, printing of, 871
Residential qualification, 1297

Children
Dependent. See Income War Tax Act
Health of. See Daylight saving; Health
Immigration. See that title
Infant mortality in cities, 2634
Miners of, in Nova Scotia, 529
Oleomargarine, effect on health, 178. See also that title
Pensions to. See Pensions Com. report
Save the Children fund, 3516
School attendance, 2565. See also Education
Soldiers of
Alleged ill-treatment, 2638
Education. See Pensions Com.
Provision for, 3315-16

China
Commissioner of Immigration in, ques. 2026, 2214
Dr. Tsur, Chinese Consul General, 1776
Eggs, importation from, 177
Treaties with. See Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty; Far Eastern Treaty

Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161

Chinese Immigration. See Oriental Aliens

Chippewa electrical development, 72, 1327. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Chisholm, Mr. A. W. (Inverness)
Civil Service, officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Inverness pier, 1766
Margaree breakwaters, 1767

Church, Mr. Thomas L. (North Toronto)
Address in reply, 116. Congratulations to Speaker; standing of different parties, 116; race and religious differences, 118; Speech of Hon. Ernest Lapointe; Battlefields Commission, 119; taxation methods, 120; unemployment and housing, 121; Good roads; public ownership, 122; Hydro-electric, 123, 131; public ownership of railways, 133; work of Sir Adam Beck, 134; radial railways, 134; St. Lawrence river waterway, 135; German trade; Senate reform; Civil service reform, 138; Conservative and Liberal gains and losses, 138-139; combines; ties with mother land; High Commissioner, 139
Alienation of natural resources, qu. 2992
Backus, Mr. E. W., lease of timber area, 2805
Blind soldiers, pensions, 3310, 3358, 3404
Bonds, sale of by public tender, 1468
Budget, 2392. Tariff not a political question; Tories and Radicals; Conservatives and protection; national policy; home market, 2392; the Progressives; United Farmers' platform; Liberals and free trade; protection and the growth of cities and towns ;tariff increase world wide; protectionist budgets of Liberal governments; tariff reduction and sales tax increase; Progressives and big interests, 2393; farmers and other producers highly organized; time for consumers to get together; tax burden on urban population; cigarette and tobacco taxes; railway problem; Canadian Pacific and Crowsnest pass agreement; trade with Germany, 2394; trusts, combines and war profiteers; tax evaders; taxation in Ontario; war time amusement tax; cheque tax; protest of Toronto and other municipalities, 2395; posterity should pay; Wheat Board; cost of living; Bank Act; Merchants Bank, 2396; judges serving on political com-

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Budget — Con.
missions; prison reform; civil service, 2397; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2398
Business of the House, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1462
Cadet corps, 1147, 1973
Canadian battlefields, 119, 771
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3038
Canadian National Railways, 68
Carey, Mr., 2858
Directors' sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian representation in the United States, 2990
Civil Service retirement fund, income tax, qu. 937
Coal, price of, qu. 2039
Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902
Committee speeches, relevancy, 555-6
Criminal Code — poolselling, bookmaking, etc., 2973
Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214
Customs receipts, qu. 470
Daylight saving, qu, 372
M. (Mr. Kay) 946
Disability soldier cases, 3318
Elevators
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, qu. 3152
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 489
Federal subsidies to Ontario, qu. 2214
France, trade relations with, 2990
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2563-94
Railway Act Amdt. bill (suspension of agreement) 3594; amdt. 3595
Special Com. on, third report, 3560-4
Fuel, price of, qu. 1774
"General" Macdonald's army, reception of, 2256
Government office building in Ottawa, 1252
Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375
Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Judges' Act Amdt. 546
Judges and commissions, qu, 366, 2397
Labour dept., policy, 464-5, 559
Lake of the Woods control, 2805
Joint board, qu. 2970
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3365
Life-saving stations, qu. 367
Merchant lake marine, qu. 3362
Merchants Bank case, qu. 367, 2396, 3604
Case against D. C. Macarow, qu. 2305

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1177
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177, qu. 1285
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Cadet services, 1147, 1973
Expenditure and policy
1890-1913, qu. 1285
Annual drill, proposed reduction, 1613
First Canadian contingent, qu. 1376
Ministers and directorships, 1125
National Defence bill, 742
Naval policy, 2043
Naval Service
Navy men, travelling expenses, qu. 3156
Royal Canadian Navy, 1894, 2043
Patronage, appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Penitentiary inmates, qu. 3362
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442-62
Amdt. (Blind soldiers) 3358, 3404
Pensions
Evidence, 3357
Mothers, qu. 1375
Old age, qu. 1375
Pensions Committee final report, 3309
Postal affairs, qu. 368
Post Office, drop letter rate, 1250
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment (Royal Canadians) qu. 1065
Prison reform, 1277, 2397
Inspection by Grand juries, qu. 1773
Jail farms, qu. 1773
Youthful offenders, qu. 1773
Provincial commissions, Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell and Mr. Justice Latchford, qu. 3600
Public buildings
Flags, 1260
Maritime provinces, 1244
Ontario, 1246-51
Rental and purchase of, 1262
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1467, 1482
Railway Act Amdt. bill (special passenger rates) 1460
Rental and purchase of buildings, 1252
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3391
Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu. 3361
St. Lawrence river waterway, 135, 2398
Correspondence with United States, 2357
International Joint Commission report, 2357
M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Toronto
Customs house, qu. 470
Harbour improvements, 1467

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Toronto — Con.
Public buildings, 1246-7
Railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Steam railway freight, qu. 936
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2990
Welland canal, qu. 827
Construction, 1687
Tonnage, qu. 936

Cigars and Cigarettes, tax on. See Budget; Inland Revenue; Taxation; Tobacco

Civil Aviation. See Air Force

Civil Pensions. See Pensions

Civil Service. See also Supply. For individual departments, See their titles. For references generally, see speeches on Address; Budget
Absence through sickness, 3509
Amalgamation of departments. See National Defence bill
Appointments, 337, 2559, 3065, 3098
Members, and, 3074-3077
Recommendations of. See under this title, Patronage
Outside service, post offices, 3073-4
Procedure, 573
Soldiers, 3330, qu. 3361. See also Soldiers
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 733, 1258, 2397-8, 2513, 2801, 2805, qu. 3364, 3531
Announcement by Prime Minister, 1503
Appropriation, 3528
Inquiry as to payment of, 2996
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, nurses, 1342
Withdrawal of from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Calder Bill. See Public Service Retirement Act
Classification, 455, 466, 494, 693, 3067, 3089
Appeals against, qu. 1508
Arthur Young Company, 1490
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904
Board of Hearing, 1491
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Militia dept., 416
Post Office, money order branch, qu. 1285
Printed copies of, qu. 1930
Responsibility for, 1491
Commission
Abolition of, recommended, 2563, 2674-5
Appointments agriculture dept., 2599
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904

Civil Service — Con.
Commission — Con.
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368
Commissioners
Annual salary and travelling expenses, qu. 364-5
Appointment of, 2659
Cost of, qu. 364-5
Employees
Number of, qu. 364
Salaries, 3093
Estimates, 3102
Exemptions, 3078-9
History of and legislation creating, 3065
Jurisdiction, 736-7
Salaries over, 2801
Militia dismissals, 423
Officials and employes, qu. 364-5, 3093
Organization branch, qu. 935
Putnam, Mr., C.V., qu. 935, 3090
Powers of, 553, 554
Report, qu. 826
Salaries and contingencies, etc., qu. 364-5, 386, 3091, 3509
Secretary, qu. 826
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and. See that title
Deputy ministers, qu. 3364
Increase in salaries, 2805
Militia and Naval Service. See National Defence
Dismissals, 3083-3090
Economy in, 401, 423, 2057-61, 2371. See also Address; Budget
Examination, 871
Hours, 2321, 2371,
Income tax department, 1663
Industrial councils, 1061
List, qu. 727
Married women employed in, qu. 1658
Memorandum of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Militia services amalgamation, 418-19. See also National Defence
Overmanning of, 2371, 2450, 3099. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Patronage and, 199, 2563, 3073, 3080, 3094, 3096
Promotions, 576, 3066
Public Service Retirement Act. See that title
Qualifications, 3070
Reduction of, 2674-5
Reform, 138, 3075
Reorganization, 2061. See also under this title, Classification
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490
Sherbrooke post office inspector, 1507

Civil Service — Con.
Responsibility, 3076
Retirement. See also Public Service Retirement Act
Fund, qu. 826
Income tax, qu. 937
Lightkeepers, 1496
Rural postmasters, 3079, 3095-6
Salaries and remuneration, 552, 2243, 2321, 2397, 2513, 2805, 3075, 3081, qu. 3364
Employees receiving less than $600, qu. 1067
Hours and, 2321, 2371
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Paying of. See Interim Supply
Recommendations, 550
Reductions, 2690-1
Salaries of $960 and less, qu. 1660, 1775
Statement of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Tariff Commission, appointment of, 1663
Temporary employees, 1036. See also individual departments
Vacancies, filling of, 792. See also under this title Appointments

Clark, Mr. J. A. (Burrard)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 3601
Messrs. Fisher & Oughton, Prince Rupert, qu. 1772, 3606
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1337
Income tax collections, 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Militia and Defence, expenditure and policy, 1335
National Defence bill, 678
Naval Service — Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Northwest Rebellion, pensions of Mounted Police, 3523
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1523
Quebec Harbour, appropriations for, 1486
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3443-55
Pensions Com., 391
Final report, 3327
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3400
Revenues from imports, qu. 827
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Doctors Lovering and Taylor, qu. 1211
Industrial disputes, 679
Northwest Rebellion, pensions and claims, 3523
Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Vancouver
Drydock, 3542
Harbour work, 1485
Terminal railway, 1485
War, preparation for, 1335

Clark, Dr. Michael, 295

Clarke Trading Co., transport of supplies, 1681

Classification. See Civil Service

Clay Products, 1234

Closure, application of. See Interim Supply

Clothing, duty on, 2186, 2465, 2662. See also Budget; Taxation

Coal. See also Fuel; Mines; Natural Resources; Railways
Anthracite importations, qu. 2356, 2686
Bituminous, 2686
British Columbia, mines in, 178
By products of, 3525
Canadian, 2687
Use of in public buildings, 1759
Canadian National Railways
Imported for, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Canadian Pacific lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition
Fuel oil, 2312
United States Mines, with, 2612
Conservation of supply by power development, 1188. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Drumheller mines, 85
Duty on, 2342
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Freight rates. See also that title
Manitoba from, 1763
Japan from, qu. 963, 2312, 3406
Labour. See also that title
Canmore employers and miners dispute, 1058
District No. 18 Board, 1058
Drumheller mines, 86
Employers and miners' dispute, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Nova Scotia Miners' strike, 1054. See also that title
Oriental aliens, 2312. See also that title
Cumberland mines, in, 2407
Wages in Nova Scotia, 1078. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Lands
Transfer by Canadian Pacific, qu. 2214
United States in, purchase of, 2611
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization Board, 1233, 3524

Coal — Con.
Lightboats, for, qu. 606
Mineral development, 686
Mining industry, protection, 2312
Montreal requirements, 630
Nova Scotia, 2412
Freight charges on, 193, 194
Miners. See that title
Powdered, 2713-5
Price of, 465, 1758, 1774, qu. 2037, qu. 2039
Effect of freight rates on, 132-133
Reduction in, 1490, 1494
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Importation for, 1763
Railways
Canadian National Railways, qu. 926, 2213
Purchases for, qu. 2306
Grand Trunk Railway, qu. 606
Royalties, qu. 375
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316
Smoky river, lease of coal lands, 3465
Supply, control, 71
Transportation. See Freight rates
Waterpowers and, 2182

Coats, Mr. R. H. See Statistics, Bureau of

Cocaine. See Opium

Cocoa and Chocolate. See Customs Tariff

Cockshutt, Lieut. Governor, 1128

Cockshutt Plough Company, Minister of Justice and, 242

Codling Moth. See Entomology

Coinage. See also Currency Act Amdt. bill
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nickel, five cent piece, 1132
Silver, millesimal fineness, 1132

Cold Storage. See Agriculture

Collective Bargaining, 2322

Colonial Status. See Naval Service; Prime Minister's Conference

Combines, 139. See also Address; Budget; Trusts

Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902

Commerce. See Board of Commerce; Trade

Commercial Travellers. See Budget; Income War Tax Act Amdt.

Commissioner of Agriculture. See Agriculture; Marshall

Commissions
Judges serving on, qu. 366, 546, 2397

Committee of Supply. See Supply

Committees. See House of Commons

Commodity Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation

Commodity Tax. See Taxation

Companies Act, Privy Council appeal, legal expenses, 1671

Compensation. See Animal Contagious Diseases amdt.

Compensation for Injuries. See Air Board Act Amdt.

Compulsory Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.

Compulsory Legislation. See Wheat Board

Compulsory Military Service. See Military Service Act 1917 Amdt. bill

Con Rein, sinking of, M. (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 1382, agreed to, 1384

Concurrence. See Supply

Condensed Milk tax on, 2492, 3264-71, 3409

Confectionery, tax on, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857

Confederation, basis of, 154
Maritime provinces and, 228. See also Intercolonial Railway

Conferences
Brussels Financial, 1138, 1292
Building trades, 582-3
Cannes, 823, 1716, 1845
Genoa, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 1292, 1463, 1675, 1715-6, 1845, 2035, 2337
Expenses, 1715
Europe, in, 1336
Imperial, 1864. See also under this title Prime Ministers'
International Labour, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments, 7, 1283, 1731, 1737, 1844-95
Borden, Rt. Hon. Sir Robert, report M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
National Industrial, qu. 1375
Postal, 7, 15
Potato growers, 3367
Prime Ministers', 1624, 1864, 1883, 2042, 2082
Trades Union, Rome, 1060

Conferences — Con.
Washington. See under this title, International Labour; Limitation of Armaments

Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153

Connor, James, dismissal of, 1674

Conscription, 22, 61, 90-91, 2570, 2685. See also Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt.

Conservation Commission, transfer of employees, 3495. See also Interior Dept.; White, Mr. James

Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 1210; 2r., com., 3r., 3042

Consortium to re-establish Russian trade, 1463

Constitutional Development. See Address; Conferences; League of Nations; Naval Service

Constitutionality of Wheat Board. See Wheat Board

Consular Agents. See Trade and Commerce

Consular Certificates. See Customs; Trade and Commerce

Contagious Diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health; Immigration; Penitentiary Act Amdt.

Contingency Vote. See Departments; Estimates; Supply

Coolie Labour. See Oriental Aliens

Co-operative Pooling. See Wheat Board

Co-ordination. See Militia and Defence; National Defence

Coote, Mr. G. G. (Macleod)
Agriculture dept., travelling expenses, 657
Automobiles and parts, imports, qu. 1633
Automobile tax, 3276
Banks
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, etc. qu. 1182
Board of Commerce, cost, report, qu. 2583
Budget, 2724. The amendment; party politics a curse, 2724; the budget a disappointment; national debt; tax exempt bonds; conscription of wealth during war time, 2725; taxation of implements of production; oil and well-drilling machinery; western problems; grasshoppers, 2726; cattle industry; amalgamation of Merchants' Bank and Bank of Montreal, 2727; banking system, ratio of deposits to capital; credit; distribution of products; Wheat Board; tariff a geographical question; treatment of western Canada, 2729
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National railways, freight rates advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 3419, 3423
Dominion notes, qu. 3153
Esquimalt dry dock, 3541
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Grasshoppers, 2726, 3520
Immigration
Child, 2161
Farmers, 3064
Italian, 2171
Policy, 2161
Indians
Blood reserve, 1219, 1224
Land leased, qu. 2969
Education, schools in Alberta, 1232
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Live stock industry, 991, 2727
Macleod post office, qu. 2804
Penitentiaries, inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Ploughs, duty on, 3123
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., Chairman, 2773-5
Langley, Hon. George, statement, 2773
Redistribution, 1370
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Macleod, 2584
Steel bounties, qu. 3360
Tariff inquiry, 1920-21, cost, report, publication, qu. 2215
Threshing machines, 3125
Total trade, 1900-1921, qu. 1633
Tree-planting on prairies, 1051
Unemployment figures, qu. 3362
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
Wheat Board, 2729, 3182, 3189

Copp, Hon. A. B. (Secretary of State)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 1672, 3601
Prince Rupert, 3606
Alleged election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Archives Branch, Dr. Doughty, 702
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Civil Service
Commission, 3102
Examinations, 872
Harbour and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Lusitania reparation claims, 3599
Moncton car shops, 1709
Naturalization Act, Amdt. bill, 3104, 3436
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1992
Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill, 1661, 3025, 3148
Rail and car repair contracts, 1708
Secretary of State dept.
Estimates, 701, 1671, 2977, 3499
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Privilege, correction of report in Montreal Gazette, 1721

Corporation Control. See Railways

Corporation-Owned Railroads in United States, 67-70. See also Railways, Public ownership

Correction of Division List. See House of Commons Divisions

Correspondence, quoting from. See Speaker's Rulings

Cost of Living, 2349, 2359, 2396, 2578. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service Bonus; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Unemployment
Labour Gazette and, 1057
Prices, deflation of, 1216-18
Purchasing power of money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603
Sales tax, and, 2676. See also that title
Tariff and, 2882. See also speeches on Budget
Taxation on, 2364. See also Speeches on Budget
Wages based on, 1303

Cotton Industries
Duties, 2469, 3127. See also Customs Tariff
Wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903

Coughlin Shipbuilding Company, 3542

County Courts, establishment in Quebec, 3496

County Fairs. See Agriculture, Exhibitions

Courtenay Bay, qu. 365. See also St. John Harbour

Courtney, B.C., post office building, 1258

Cow Bay wharf, 1766

Cream Separators. See Agricultural Implements

Credits. See Banking; Finance; Financial Credits; Housing; Loans; Roumania and Greece; Unemployment

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. (Marquette, Leader of the Progressive party)
Address in reply, 50. Congratulations to Speaker, Miss Macphail, mover and seconder of Address; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 50-51; election campaign, 51; negotiations between Government and Progressives, 51; attitude of Progressive party, 52; condition of agriculture; wheat marketing, 53; production costs; transportation costs; freight rates; tariff revision, 54; Sir Lomer Gouin; railways, public ownership, 55-56; immigration, burden of taxation, 56-57; soldiers' re-establishment, 57; Limitation of Armaments; Genoa Conference; economy, need for; burden of taxation, 58; redistribution; proportional representation, 59
Adjustment of war claims, 1672
Agricultural exports, figures used in budget debate, 2638
Agriculture
Condition and prospects, 53, 2156, 2471
Dept., salary increases, 588
Agriculture and Colonization Com.
McCoig, Senator, attendance before, 1901
Wheat Board report, 780. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Alien enemy property, 1672
American magazines, 3113
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102
Audibility of debates, 708
Board of Commerce, 1715
British Columbia, and, 2234-9
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 716
Budget, 2459. Congratulations to Prime Minister; tribute to Finance Minister; difficult and perplexing problems; unsatisfactory financial position; debt and taxation, 2459; railway expenditures; revenue and expenditure; discrepancy between income and outgo, 2460; limit of taxation about reached; economy; new taxation; reorganization of departments and elimination

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
of duplication; new administration buildings; overlapping of Dominion and provincial expenditures, 2461; sales tax, inequitable and unsound; cheque tax; tax on foreign insurance companies, 2462; co-ordination of financial policy; overlapping of taxation; reciprocity with United States; valuation and marking goods; valuation of currency, 2463; trade with Germany; a protectionist budget; no statement of government policy; agricultural implements, 2464; inconsistencies in agricultural machinery schedule; government failure to implement pledges; clothing; boots and shoes; household equipment, 2465; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; tariff platform of 1919; Liberal resolution of 1921; tariff proposals not what country requires; discrimination against United States, 2466; tariff legislation before Congress; American factories in Canada; opposition to protection in United States, 2467; Progressive party unalterably opposed to protection; development of natural resources; home market fallacy; manufacture of rubber goods; cotton; raw material and finished product; protection sectional and selfish; movement of population; exodus of Canadian workmen; maritime provinces under protective policy, 2469; rural depopulation in Ontario; prairie provinces; Vancouver and free port proposal, 2470; agriculture prospers in spite of protection; development of west; prosperity from 1900 to 1912 not due to tariff; export of natural products, 2471; tendency of economic thought in Europe; trade begets friendship; the amendment, 2472; no constructive proposal; amdt. to amdt. proposed, 2473
Business of the House
Budget (amdt. to amdt., Sir Henry Drayton) 2473, 2507, 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2640
Easter adjournment, 820
Empire and Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Government orders, Monday and Wednesday, 1461, 1720
Privilege on Orders of Day, right to raise, 2638

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3036
Canadian National Railways
Deficits, 1920
Canadian Northern, 1907
Immigration, 1927
Public ownership and operation, 1920
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689, 1707, 1925
Revaluation of, 1925
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Civil Service
Commission, 3078
Patronage, 3080, 3096
Cold storage warehouse, Montreal, 819
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3595
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1414-20-29, 1433, 1454
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 3423
Estimates, 762
Officials, 764
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract for steel plates, 1678
Elevators, terminal, administration, 2980. See also under this title, Grain Inquiry Commission
Emigration, record of, 2158
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement. See under this title Crowsnest
Immigration and, 2157
Genoa Conference, 1715
Cannes Conference, 823
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Governor General's cars, 1688
Grain and grain trade. See also under this title Wheat Board
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision, 1933
Russia, competition in wheat market, 2157
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, 2982, 2895
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Immigration
Central European, 2157
Policy, 2156
Railways, and, 1929, 2157

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1394
Intercolonial Railway, maritime management, 193
Interior Dept., economy, 455
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Justice Dept., contingencies, 1668
Labour
Estimates, 579180
Technical education, 459
Liberal party, negotiations with, 34-35, 51
Limitation of Armaments Conference, 9, 3167
Militia and Defence
Co-ordination of services, 417
Expenditure and policy, 1593
National Defence bill, 739-40
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Naval Service
Empire defence contribution, 2081-2
Fleet 420
Policy, 2081
Nova Scotia miners, 508
M. (Mr. Irvine) 542
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation of M. (Mr. Neill) 1821
Ploughs, duty on, 3121-3122
Political inquesting, 404
Population, need of increased, 2158
Privilege, questions of Agricultural figures used in budget debate, 2637
Member's right to raise on Orders of day, 2638
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1652
Public ownership, 1920, 1923
Rail and car repair contracts, 1684, 1707, 1925
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass) 3595
Railway policy 1920, 1923
Responsibility as leader of Opposition, 73
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 835
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 444
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salary increases, 398, 404
Discussion out of order, 398, 404
Speaker, election of, 4
Speaker, Mr., death of father, 496
Steamship services
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canadian Govt. Merchant marine, subsidies, 3032
Revision of, 3034
West Indies, 3032

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1692
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Tariff, immigration and, 2157
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Treaties of peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3490
Union Government, resignation from, 2490
United Grain Growers, Limited, 2489
Terminal elevator, 2983
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2750
Wheat Board, 377, 2922
Fixation of prices, 2588
Proceedings in Committee, 2934
Wheat Board bill, 3186, 3191, 3384, 3386

Crime. See also Criminal Code; Penitentiaries
Foreign immigration and, 1392-4

Criminal Code
Reprinting and revision, 1278, 1717

Criminal Code Amendment Bills
1. Criminal conspiracy and sedition (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 865; com,. 865, 1388; ref. to Special Com., 1395, 1503; report, 1988. For further stages, see Immigration Act Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth)
2. Newspaper ownership (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821
3. Scrip Frauds (Mr. Kennedy, Edmonton) 1r., 1062; 2r., 3211-3217; com., 3217; 3r., 3221
4. Age of consent; automobile theft; bribing police commissioners; carrying animals by railways; carnal knowledge; clerk of peace, Quebec; indecent assault; protection of English hall marks; recovery of penalties from corporations by civil process; retention of fines by municipalities in Ontario (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 1841; 2r., com., 2830, 2973; 3r., 2974; Senate amdts., 3607
Subjects and sections discussed:
Age of consent, 2830-1
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Conveyance of cattle, 2831-34
Feeble-minded person, carnal knowledge of, 2973
Game of chance, 2973
Pool-selling, bookmaking, 2973

Criminal Conspiracies. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Cronyn, Mr. Hume, reference to. See Pensions Committee, final report

Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See Freight Rates

Crude Oil. See Fuel Oil

Cruelty to Animals. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Society for prevention of, 2831

Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214

Cuba
Shipment of potatoes to, 2028
Steamship service to. See that title

Cultivators. See Agricultural Implements

Cumberland, B.C.
Mines, 2407
Voting in, 180

Currency. See also Banks and Banking; Finance; Money
Gold standard, 1291
Valuation for customs, 2113, 2173, 2389, 2420, 2463, 2599, 2641, 2859, 2875, 2884, 2897, 3223-4. See also Customs Act Amdt.

Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, Res. 1132, 3042; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3043

Currie, General Sir Arthur, 1986

Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill (Dumping clause; consular certificates; valuation for duty; currency) 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477

Customs and Excise. See also Budget; Customs Act; Customs Tariff; Imports and Exports; Taxation; Trade
Automobiles, tax on. See Automobiles
British goods imported, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
Collections, New Brunswick, qu. 607
Consular certificates, 2114, 3477, 3522. See also Customs Act Amdt.
Department
Connor, Mr. James, gratuity, 1674
L'Assomption and Montcalm excise officers, qu. 1774
Montreal employees, 1288
Organization, 1674, 2808
Printing, 1674
Salaries, 762
Veit, Mr. A. E., J. M., qu. 1773
Drawbacks, qu. 764, 828, 1067, 2175, 2186, 2662-3, 2840-50, 2895, 3141. See also Budget Speeches; Customs Tariff
Ford Motor Co., 2850
Payments of, 1922, qu. 2356, 2849-50

Customs and Excise — Con.
Drawbacks — Con.
Sugar on, 2850, 3251, 3476-7
Steel rods, refund, qu. 1774
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3410-13, 3477. See also Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Duties
Cost of collecting, 239, 240, 2623-4
Fruit, 164. See also under this title, Dumping clause
Fuel oil on, 178
Militia dept., 1978
Per capita payment, 2691
Rebates of, 2175. See also under this title, Drawbacks
Valuation for, 2172. See also Currency
Excise tax
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu. 1400, 2114. See also Alcohol; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, 2852
Beer brewed for private use, 2856
Beet sugar, 2117, 2855. See also Budget; Special War Revenue
Tobacco, 2115
Canadian raw leaf, 2853
Cigarettes, 2852
German goods, valuation. See Currency; Customs Act; Germany; Imports
Imports and exports
By countries, 2109
Marking and valuation of, 2113, 2174, 2410, 2463, 2879, 2897, 3413. See also Currency; Customs Act; Customs Tariff
Amended regulation, 2854, 3413
Revenue, qu. 827. See also Imports and exports
1911 to 1922, qu. 1661
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Liquor export warehouses, qu. 1211
Liquor imported, excise duties, qu. 828
Marking Act, 2641, 2877-80
Prohibited goods, 3476-7
Receipts, qu. 470
Revenue, qu. 614, qu. 827
Tariff bill, 3476-7. See also Customs Tariff
Tariff resolutions, 2118
Amended, 2854
Toronto customs house, qu. 470
Valuation for Duty. See Currency, Customs Act
Wines and spirits
Exportation of, 2854
In bond, 3229

Customs Tariff, 1907, Act Amdt. bill (Marking of imported goods; duties; amended rates; drawbacks; prohibited goods) Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477

Customs Tariff Items
Adzes, cleavers, etc., 3127
Agate ware, 3118
Anti-dumping clause. See under this title, Dumping
Blankets, 3128, 3132, 3231
M. (Mr. Spencer), 3234, neg. 3235
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3236
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce, neg. 3238
Changes in. See also Tariff revision
Chinese. See that title
Cigarettes, 3107
Cigars, 3107
Clothes wringers, etc., 3140
Coated papers, 3108
Cocoa, 2116, 3106
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Cultivators, harrows, etc., 3120
Dairy tinware, 3118
Drugs, 3114
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3411-13, 3477. See also Customs Tariff Act Amdt.
Fishing hooks, etc., 3140
Flannels, 3137
Fruit and vegetable grading machines, 3126
Gasoline, 3115
Glass bottles, etc., 3117
Harness and saddlery, 3137
Hatters' bands, 3139
Hatters' plush, 3141
Incubators, etc., 3126
Iron and steel tubing, 3118
Linen yarn, 3128
Magazines, 3108
Marking Act, repeal, 3104
Milking machines, 3126
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3113-14
Ploughs, etc., 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Pump parts, 3127
Sawmill machinery, 3126
Settlers' effects, 3140
Silk cloth, 3137
Street rollers, 3126
Sugar, 3107
Threshing machines, parts, 3124
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Customs Tariff Items — Con.
White cotton fabrics, 3128
Window shades, etc., 3127
Wool and cotton yarns, 3127
Wool and woollen goods, 3233
Woollen clothing, 3235

Dairy Cattle. See Agriculture, Accredited Herds; Live Stock

Dairying Industry. See also Address; Budget; Oleomargarine
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, 1794
Butter. See that title under Agriculture
Competition with other countries, 178
Duties on utensils, reduction in, 2115, 2205, 3118
Exports and imports, 209
Grading of products, 655-6
Implements, reduction of duties on, 2115, 2205, 3118
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740. See also Agriculture, Accredited Herds, Health of Animals
National Dairy Council and oleomargarine, 1791
Oleomargarine, 1791, 2205. See also that title

Dalrymple, Mr. J. E., qu. 728

Dandurand, Hon. Senator, 1128

d'Anjou, Mr. Emmanuel (Rimouski)
Address in reply, 306; parliamentary rights of French language, 306; economy in Government expenditure, 307
Military expenditure and policy, 1593

D'Arcy Island lazaretto, 2021

Dartmouth, N.S. air station, 1724

Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dimissal of, 1902, 2458, 2584

Davies, Mr. C. C. (North Battleford)
Wheat Board, participation certificates, funds, qu. 2304

Davies, Right Hon. Sir Louis, K.C.M.G., Deputy of the Governor General, 3610

Daylight Saving, 227, qu. 372
House of Commons, and, 1282
M. (Mr. Kay) for legislation to prohibit, 942, 943
Amdt. (Mr. Duff) 959; Neg. 1314

Deathbed Cases. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.

Debates. See House of Commons

Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306

Debt, Public. See Address; Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Deceased Soldiers. See Soldiers
Insurance claims of heirs, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act
Widowed Mothers. See Pensions

Dechene, Mr. A. M. (Montmagny)
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1801

Deep Sea Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

Deep Waterway and Power Association. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Defence. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service

Deficits. See Canadian National Railways

Deflation of Credit. See Finance

Deflation and Inflation of prices. See speeches on Address and Budget

Delinquents. See Juvenile delinquents

Delphine, Colonel, 303

Delta, Manitoba, protective works, 3545

Demers, Captain, 1492

Demers, Mr. M. J. (St. Johns and Iberville)
Income tax, Montreal office, qu. 607

Demobilization. See also Militia, Annual Drill; War Claims
Estimates, 1171
Expenditure, 1155, 1163, 1171

Denis, Mr. J. Arthur (St. Denis)
Address in reply, 348. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; immigration; Laurier-Fielding tariff, 348
Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Denis, Mr. Jean J. (Joliette)
Budget, 2887. Tribute to Finance Minister; budget proposals generally satisfactory; extravagance of Union Government; acquisition of Railways; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; credits to Balkan states; revenue and expenditure, 2888; Progressive party; compromise and co-operation Canada a hard country to govern; Wheat Board; freight rates, 2889; railway

Denis, Mr. Jean J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
deficits made good by East; free trade, 2890; tobacco industry, protection of, 2891
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Ministers and Directorships, 1113
Solders' insurance, 3321

Denmark, Expedition to Ellesmere Island, 1751

Dennis Building, Halifax, qu. 3360

Department of National Defence bill. See National Defence

Departmental Expenditure. See Supply

Departmental Law officers, 683, 2572

Dependency. See Pensions, Widowed Mothers

Deportation. See Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt.; Oriental Aliens

Depreciated Currency. See Currency; Customs

Deputy Ministers. See Militia Estimates; National Defence Bill; Naval Service
Salaries of, 752

Deputy Registrar. See Admiralty Act Amdt. bill

Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, appointment, 5

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees (Mr. George N. Gordon)
Election of, 363
Rulings and statements of. See also House of Commons; Marcil; Speaker
Amendments
Already covered, 3147-8
Anticipatory, 2973
Increasing charge on revenue, 3404
Member having already spoken, cannot move, 3558
Moved separately, 3401
Previous, 3148
Bills
Casting vote of Chairman, 3473
New sections proposed, 3445
Private
Com. may not refer back, 1747
Relevancy, 1858
Public
Amdt. dealt with by another amdt. on order paper, 2973

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rnlings and Statements of — Con.
Chair
Decision given, final, 3354
Member may not criticise ruling, 555, 2974
Ruling of non-debatable, 1898
Debate
Inaudibility of, 1755
Member speaking given opportunity to answer questions, 1889
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1361
Debates, Official Report of
Insertion of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Decorum, courtesy to member speaking, 2090
Language, "Breach of duty", 3354
Members
Desiring to speak, must rise, 1985
May ask question but not make statement, 2489
May not criticise ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Must put question without argument, 2340
Not in order in discussing ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Speaking, need not answer questions unless willing, 2318, 2619, 2710
Opportunity to answer, 1889
To rise if vote desired, 3456
Ministers
Not required to answer questions, 2777
On item, may discuss general policy, 555
Motions
Amdt. to Amdt. in supply, 1579
Involving charge on revenue, must be made by minister, 3404
Non-debatable
That committee rise, 1181
Supply, in, 1579
Two, amending same item, 1982
Questions to be put without argument, 2340, 2489
Railway Commission, salaries not included in vote, 2776-8
Reference to judges and high officials, 2778
Relevancy, 404, 406, 671, 736, 1470, 1476, 1898, 3141
Cash bonus to soldiers, discussion, 404
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, bill, 1603
Grain Inquiry commission, 2988
Hudson Bay railway, 2780

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rulings and Statements of — Con.
Senate, indemnity, 3509
Supply
General policy of department, 560
No question before com. on which to base discussion, 1900
Relevancy, 1135, 2089, 3527, 3545
Lindsay arsenal, 2089
Militia and Defence items to be discussed separately, 1139-40-42
Penitentiaries, 1279
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Quebec riots, 2090
Rails and car repair contracts, 1698
Railway commission, estimates, 2776-8
Railways and Canals, 1135
Two motions, amending same item, 1982
Vote
Casting of, by Chairman, 3473
Desire for in com. to be indicated by members rising, 3456

Derelicts. See Marine and Fisheries

Desbarats, Mr. J. B. See National Defence

Deserted Wives. See Pensions

Deslauriers, Mr. Hermas (St. Mary)
Aluminum Electric Co., qu. 728, qu. 1375
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773
Boon, Mr. W. R., qu. 728
Canada-West Indies steamship service, qu. 2356
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Canadian National Railways
Electrification, M. 627
Champlain steamer, sale of, qu. 1400
Civil Service
Classification, printed copies of, qu. 1930
Commission, Mr. Putman, 3090
Imperial council, qu. 2803
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu. 1065
Militia and Defence, permanent force, qu. 2637
Montreal Harbour Commission
Paint purchases, qu. 602
Policemen, qu. 2992
Tugs, qu. 600
Occupational diseases, protection against, M., 1378
Personal explanation, Civil Service estimates, 3365
St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, qu. 2804
Veit, Mr. A. E. J. M., qu. 1773

Destructive Insect and Pest Act, qu. 472, 3520. See also Entomology

Detective Firms, American, 670

Detroit River
Armed cruisers on, qu. 2214
Regulation of navigation, 1498. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Deville, Dr. E. C., 1044, 1048

Dickie, Mr. C. H. (Nanaimo)
Address in reply, 341. Women and the franchise, 341; Pacific and Great Eastern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific and railway problem, 342; coal and fuel oil; Japanese and the fisheries, 344; returned soldiers, problems, 345; depletion of British Columbia fisheries, 346; dry dock at Esquimalt; British Columbia tariff views, 347
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1603
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1828
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1523

Digby, N.S., pier, 1760

Digby-St. John Steamship Service, 3035

Dinosaurs, purchase of specimens, 1237

Directors, Board of. See Canadian National Railways

Directorships. See Ministers and directorships

Disability Soldier cases. See Pensions Committee

Disallowance of Ontario legislation, qu. 2805, qu. 2992

Disarmament. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service Conference on. See Limitation of Armaments

Diseases
Infectious. See Penitentiary Act Amdt.
Occupational, of workmen. See that title

Disfranchisement. See Dominion Elections Act

Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027

Divisions. See House of Commons

Dockyards. See also Naval Service
Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752

Doctors. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.
Payments to, 2572
Reported engaged on Newfoundland-Labrador boundary case, qu. 704, 2572

Doherty, Hon. Manning, 334, 974, 987. See also Cattle Embargo
Visit to England, papers, 1283, 1334

Domestic Loans. See Loans

Domestic. Servants, Immigration of. See Immigration

Domicile of Voter. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Dominion Coal Company. See Nova Scotia Miners

Dominion Elections. See Elections of 1921; Proportional Representation

Dominion Elections Act
Abuses under, 184-5
Amendments, qu. 470
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
Enfranchisement of women of alien birth
M. (Mr. Euler) 473, agreed to, 493
Removal from statute books, 184
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1296, agreed to, 1301

Dominion Elections Act Amdt. (Alien women; Domicile of voter)
1r., 1796; 2r., com., 2809; 3r., 3817
Subjects and sections discussed:
Election day, public holiday
Amdt. (Mr. Neill) 2812
Elector's residence, change of, 2809
New polls, establishment of
Amdt. (Mr. Caldwell) 2815
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486

Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, 2419-20. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Contract for steel plates, claim for damages, 417, qu. 704, 1677-80, 1689, 2170
Legal expenses, 3497
Delivery of seel plates, 3508

Dominion Lands
Contingencies, 1037
Estimates, 1035
Forest reserves. See Forestry
Homestead entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries, 1035
Sale of, qu. 376

Dominion Lands — Con.
Sub-agencies closed, qu. 1181
Surveys, 1037
Dr. Deville, 1044
M. to reduce, vote, 1039
Reduction of vote by $30,000, 1044-6

Dominion Lands, Notices of Cancellation of Leases bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3465; 3r., 3475
Senate amdts., non-concurrence; free conference 3613; concurrence, 3616

Dominion Lands and Parks
Canadian National parks, 168, 1051
Visitors to, 1052
Migratory birds, 1684
Wolves, destruction of live stock by, 990, 998

Dominion Notes. See Finance

Dominion Observatory, Ottawa Building, 1265

Dominion Police. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Dominion Public Buildings. See Public Buildings

Dominion Statistician. See Statistics

Dominion Textile Company, 200, 583, 1106, 1130

Dorchester Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Doughty, Dr. A. B., 702

Douglas Credit System. See Finance; Irvine

Doukhobors. See Immigration

Drainage. See Dominion lands

Drawbacks. See Customs

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry L. (West York)
Address in reply, 195. Provincial prejudices; Mr. Macdonald of Pictou; Minister of Finance and railways, 196; financial outlook; election, popular support of parties, 197; redistribution, campaign literature, 198; public works and unemployment; Halifax patronage committee, 199; Minister of Labour and trusts and combines; Sir Charles Gordon; Canada Cement and Dominion Textile Companies, 200; British Empire Steel Corporation, 200-1; position of Prime Minister and Mr. Crerar; railway policy, 201; Canadian Northern in Ontario, 202; railway

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Address in reply — Con.
lines in United States, 204; national ownership, 205; Sir Lomer Gouin and the big interests, 206; proposed King-Crerar alliance; leader of Opposition and insult to Quebec; 207; tariff present and former, 208; reciprocity; Fordney tariff, 209; imports and exports of agricultural commodities, 209; reciprocity, 208-211
Adjournment, item stands, 596
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2822
Agricultural implements, drawback, 3122
Air Board, 1728, 1735
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Alcohol tax, 1213
American magazines, 3110
Auditor General's office, 793
Budget, date of, inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget, 2127. Loans; congratulations to Minister of Finance; financial situation; revenue, 2171; optimism and work; taxes, estimated revenue from; trade agreements; customs and currency valuations, 2172; German competition, 2173; marking of goods; income tax; tariff changes, 2174; agricultural implements, drawbacks, 2175; alcohol for druggists, 2176; beet sugar industry; new taxation, 2177; trade with United States; unemployment, 2178; political honesty; amdt. proposed, 2179
Business of the House
Members, payment of, 3611
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 3010
Pilotage, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3477-86
Census
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Civil service bonus, 3530
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 2831
Fines to municipalities, 2832
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com. 1442
Amdt. 1444. See also under this title
Freight Rates
Customs Act and Dept. of Customs bill, 3477
Customs and Excise Dept., employees, 765

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Customs tariff
Book and coated papers, 3108
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Drugs, 3114
Gasoline, 3116
Marking Act, 3105
Pump parts, 3127
Wool and Woollen goods, 3129, 3130, 3233
Customs Tariff Act Amdt. bill, 3476
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Anonymous letters, 944
Drayton-Acworth report, 126
Elevators, terminal, 2978
Estimates
Accounts chargeable, current or past year, 1675
Discussion of general policy, 767
Exchequer Court, estimates, 1274
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Salaries, 753
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 3011
Fishing tackle, 3140
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3555
Amdt. 3559. See also under this title Crowsnest pass
French trade treaty, 3224
German goods, valuation, 2172, 3227
Grain
Inquiry Commission, 2984-6
Shipment of via Quebec, 1466
Grand Trunk arbitration, newspaper comments, 821
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1765
Health dept. estimates, 775
Housing, 774
Immigration facilities at Quebec, 1466
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Inland Revenue
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Sugar beet, tax on, 3242
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Insurance Dept. 792
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Interior dept.
Economy, 456
Salaries, 452
Typewriters, 455
Justice dept.
Appropriations exceeded, 1279
Contingencies, 1669
Labour dept.
Appointments, 462
Salaries, 548

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
League of Nations, 3174
Secretariat, Canada's contribution, 3990
Loans, 2127
New Canadian, 1133
Special Loans bill, 3476
Meat and Canned Foods bill, 3149
Militia and Defence
Amalgamation of services, 419
Naval Service, 422
War claims, adjustment, 2974
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 3199
Naval service, 1737
New departmental buildings, Ottawa, 3541
Non-productive assets, 1467
Nova Scotia miners, 509, 512
M. (Mr. Irvine 540)
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824
Penitentiaries, inmates, increase in number, 1279
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill, 3043
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3404, 3439-64
Pensions
Commutation of, 390
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Prime Minister, secretaries, 411
Printing plants, tax, 3410
Public Accounts, delay in closing, 1264
Public buildings
Coal for, 1759
Expenditure, 1260
Public Service Retirement bill, 3148
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1465-86, 3195
Quebec harbour, Parc St. Charles Co., 1470
Railway Commission, statement of Mr. Carvell, 2774
Redistribution
Census and, 1363, 1369
M. (Mr. Shaw), 1769
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3389, 3397, 3438
Revenue and Audit Act, 3042
St. Lawrence river waterway, correspondence, 2207
Sales tax collections, 1921-22, qu. 1212
Saskatchewan, export of liquor, 3000, 3002
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Capital expenditure, 1279
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Soulanges canal, 2768
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Cheque tax, 3258
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Supreme Court, pre-audit, 1274

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Tariff Commissioner, appointment, 1664
Transcontinental railway, 917
Transportation Costs, Special Com. See under this title, Crowsnest pass; Freight Rates
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3547
United States, operation of railways in Canada, 192
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822
Vickers, Limited, 2975-7
War claims
Adjustment of, 2974, 2977
Exchange, 1758
War Graves Commission, 774
Weston post office building, 1259

Drayton-Acworth report, 46, 125, 130

Dredges and Dredging. See also Marine; Public Works
Estimates, 2005
Plamonder, 2006
Port Nelson, 2006
Quebec harbour, 1483
Red river channel, 2007
St. Lawrence river ship channel
De Beaujeu bank, 1495
New elevator dredge, 1495
St. Marys river, 2006
Shuswap lake, 2006

Druggists, alcohol for, 2114. See also Alcohol

Drumheller mines, 85, 1058

Drummond, Mr. J. D. F. (West Middlesex)
Beet sugar industry, 2273, 3251
Budget, 2272. Progressives, attitude towards; public debt; duty on beet sugar, 2272; tariff, duty on agricultural implements; farmers not asking special privileges, 2274
Goderich harbour, improvement, 2002

Drury, Hon. E.C., and Drury Government, 63, 125, 127, 134, 334
Lake of the Woods, control. 2991. See that title
Land tax, and, 2491

Dry Docks
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Esquimalt, 347
Appropriation, 3541
Pacific Coast on, 2401
Subsidies to, 2008
Vancouver, 2005, 2008, 3542

Drysdale, Mr. Justice, retirement of, 1275

Duff, Mr. William (Lunenburg)
Air Board, qu. 366
Air Force and civil aviation, 1724
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) bill, 2819
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
Cost, etc., qu. 469
Subsidized steamship services, 3031
Canadian national parks, expenditure, 1681
Canned fish, marking of tins, 3048
Civil Service
Commission, qu. 364
Overmanning, 3099
Patronage, 3094
Rural postmasters, 3095-6
Con Rein, sinking of, 1384
Courtenay Bay works, qu. 365
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) amdt. 959
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation contract, 1677
Fishing schooner race, 1384, 3513
Flags, cost of, qu. 599, 1264, 1268
Halifax terminals, qu. 364
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure, details of, 1272
Ontario, 2000
International deep sea racing
M. for encouragement, 1384, 3513
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1490
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Migratory birds, 1685
Military and naval expenditures, reduction, 1139
National Defence bill, 740
Naval policy, 2052
Naval Service
Aurora, cruiser, 2053
Royal Canadian navy, qu. 366, 1848, 1871, 2052
Navigation off Newfoundland coast, aids to, 1498
Nova Scotia pensioners, qu. 615
Public buildings, flags, qu. 599, 1264, 1269
Toronto harbour works, qu. 365
Tourist traffic, 1683
Unemployment, 1683
War service badge, 1754
Wooden ships, qu. 364

Dumping Clause. See Customs and Excise

Duties. See Customs and Excise; Customs Tariff

Dynevor Hospital, 1218

Easter Adjournment. See House of Commons

Eastern Car Company, car repairs, 1706

Eastern La Have Transportation Company. See Con Rein

Eastern Maine Railway, 1293

Economic Depression, 6, 10, 85, 157, 237-8, 3299. See also speeches on Address; Budget

Economy in Administration, necessity for, 7, 52, 97, 122, 455-6. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Civil Service; Supply

Eddie, Captain, 1493

Edison, Mr. T. A., credit system, 2505

Editorial Committee, 1235-6

Edmonton
Indian school, proposed, 1227-9. See also Indians
Post office building, alteration, 1254

Edmundston
Post office, qu. 608
Public building, 1239, 1242

Education
Indians. See that title
Orientals in British Columbia, 317. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Rural schools in Ontario, 2385, 2565
School boards, refusal of bank to advance money to, 2627
School lands, 339
School system, 2385
Taxes in school districts, 2714

Eggs
Chinese, importation of, 177
Cold storage in, 2562
Exportation, 813
Imported into Canada, qu. 612
Inspection and standardizing, 177, qu. 727, 811-812

Eight-Hour Day. See Daylight Saving; Labour

Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Election of Speaker. See Speaker

Election of 1921
Campaign, 21, 40-41, 51, 61, 99, 140, 198, 265, 288. See also Address; Budget; Proportional Representation

Election of 1921 — Con.
Campaign — Con.
Brantford at, 255, 256
Charlotte, N.B., county in, 1997
Funds, and protected interests, 2437, 2732
Literature, 99
Statements by Sir Lomer Gouin, 140
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 1258
Deposits refunded, qu. 1067
Liberal pledges, cash grants to soldiers, 102, 400. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Maritime provinces in, 315-316
Minority government, 197. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Number of votes cast, 197
Pledges and promises, 243. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Rail and car repair contracts, prior to, 1688
Results, 61, 142, 186, 197, 2282, 2654, 2851, 2909-2910,
By provinces, 46
Returning officer, Carleton, 3538, 3602, 3604
Unit of representation, 198
Voters, failure to vote, 1112
Women, 1113

Electoral System. See Proportional Representation

Electric Power. See also Aluminum Company; Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Campbell river, 1355
Railways and, 1940

Electrical storm in the West, 3493

Electrification of Railways, 133, 630. See also Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
M. (Mr. Deslauriers) withdrawn, 639

Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Elk Island Park, fencing, 1051

Ellesmere Island
Danish expedition to, 1751
Royal Canadian Mounted Police at, 3497

Elliott, Mr. William (South Waterloo)
Budget, 2348. Tribute to Minister of Finance; tariff proposals a step in the right direction; national debt; revenue and expenditure; civil service; United States tariff; development of natural Elliott, Mr. William — Con.

Budget — Con.
resources, 2348; markets, building up of industry at expense of agriculture; high cost of living, unemployment; labour conditions; boots and shoes; labour cost; woollen cloth, labour cost, 2350; woollen clothing, price and labour cost, 2350; permanent tariff commission; claims for tariff protection, 2351
Galt post office building, 1247

Embargo
Cattle. See Cattle Embargo
Manure, exportation of, 1021

Emigration. See Immigration

Empire, British
Foreign policy and defence, 1629. See also Limitation of Armaments; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Empire Day adjournment. See House of Commons

Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058

Employment Service. See Labour

Enemy Debts. See Treaties with Hungary and Turkey

Enemy Property. See Aliens, Enemy Property

Enfranchisement
Indians of. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Women of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

English River water powers. See Lake of the woods

Entomology, 813. See also Destructive Insects
Spruce bud moth, 1049

Escheats Act Amdt. bill (Time in which action must be brought)
1r., 2456; 2r., com., 2826; 3r., 3026; Senate amdts. 3486

Espionage. See Labour; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Esquimalt. See also Naval Service
Dry dock; 347, 596-7
Appropriation, 3541
Royal naval college at 2047, 2203, 2450

Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Essence de l'Erable, qu. 1774

Estimates. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Interim Supply; Speaker; Supplementary Estimates; Supply. For departments, See their titles
Accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1263
Classification and preparation, 569
Comparison with last year, 384
Consideration of, 3526
Details of, 1347
Government economy in, 381-382
Information not up to date, 1267
Items, reading of, 3545
Main
Comparison with last year, 381
Tabled, 363
One-fourth vote. See Interim Supply
Supplementary, tabled, 1258, 3463
War claims, details of, qu. 1288

Ethier, Mr. J. A. C. (Laval-Two Mountains)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt bill, 1132, 1662
Indians, Oka agent, 1217

Euler, Mr. William D. (North Waterloo)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 781
Alien Birth, women of, enfranchisement, M., 473, 480
Canadian National Railways
Canadian Northern deficit, 1906
Public ownership operation, 1948
Re-valuation, 1926
Civil Service, promotions, 576
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 950
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1788
Quebec public utilities, 1912
Railway policy, 1948

European Credits. See Loans

European War. See War

Evans, Mr. John (Saskatoon)
Address, 300. Agriculture in a deplorable state; rates on grain; railway consolidation, 300; tariff and trade prevention, 301; national policy a failure, 302: freer trade relations, 303; protected combines; railway question, 304; tariff views of different parties; returned soldier farmers, 305
Agricultural implements
Dumping clause, 2360
Importation by United Grain Growers, 3118, 3119
Agriculture dept., professional men, 588
American magazines, 3113

Evans, Mr. John — Con.
Apple industry, 3417
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Beef hides, 3138
Blankets, duty on, 3130
British preference and Canadian ports, M. (Mr. Logan) 711
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1963
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1608
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Crowsnest pass agreement
Telegram of Mr. Motherwell to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 765, qu. 828, 1067
Dumping clause, 2360, 3417
Fruit-growers, protection, 3417, 3425
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2795
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Immigration
Medical inspection, 759
Money qualification, 3058
Unrestricted, 3062
Live stock industry, 989
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Naval policy, 2072
Post office salaries, 2801
Railway policy, 1963
Saskatoon post office building, 1253
Soldiers' land settlement, 305, 2132
Steamship subsidies, qu. 614
Welland ship canal, 2758

Excess Profits tax. See Taxation

Exchange. See also Finance
Claim by British Admiralty for refund, 1752
Foreign, 2264
Rate of, 286
Soldiers' money on, 3339, 3348

Exchequer Court of Canada
Admiralty, vacancies, 1275. See also Admiralty Act
Estimates, 1274

Excise Taxes. See Customs and Excise; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue Act

Exemptions. See Income Tax Act; Special War Revenue Act
Pilotage dues, from. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Exhibitions, 2582. See also Agriculture; Live Stock; Trade and Commerce

Exhibitions — Con.
Agricultural. See that title
Canadian National, 2990
Estimates, 2026
France, in, 2031, 2990
Grants to, 649, 977, 3521
London, 2027
Tampa, Florida, 2026

Expenditure. See Finance; Public Expenditure

Experimental and Illustration Farms. See Agriculture

Explosives Act, 1234

Export Liquor warehouses. See Liquor

Exports. See that title under Imports and Exports; Trade

Ex-service Men, representative. See Pensions Committee

External Affairs, Department of
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Doherty, Hon. Manning, 1283
Papers and memorandum, 1334
Salaries and contingencies, 411, 3509
War claims, adjustment of. See War claims

Fafard, Mr. J. Fernand (L'Islet)
Butter imports, qu. 614
Canadian National railways, water supply, qu. 2213

Fair Wage Clause. See Labour

False Creek, removal of bridge, 3516

Fansher, Mr. B. W. (East Lambton)
Beet Sugar industry, 2232, 3246, 3251
M. to reduce duty, 3248
Budget, 2229. Fiscal policy; tariff revision; encouragement of native industries; agricultural implements; sales tax; business profits tax; protected industries, 2230-1; automobiles, duty and tax; beet sugar industry, 2232
Customs drawbacks, qu. 2356

Far Eastern Treaty, 3160. See also Limitation of Armaments

Farm Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Farm Lands, value of, 2565

Farm Products
Consumption in Canada, 2650. See also Budget
Decline in prices, 6, 11, 77, 93, 95, 113, 150, 225, 231. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; Live stock
Fordney tariff, effect of, 209. See also United States, Fordney tariff
Exchange value of, 2576
Importation, 209
Trade in, 226. See also Trade

Farmers
Block in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Address; Budget; Trade; United States
Eight-hour day and, 227. See also Daylight Saving
Geographical advantages, 297-9
Immigration of, 145, 225. See also that title
Income tax returns, 226, qu. 1063, 2241, 2631. See also Income Tax
Labour, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Loyalty of, 526
Need of encouragement, 252
Profits, comparison of, 2333
Protection and. See Agricultural Implements; Budget
Remedial legislation, 157
Representation in Parliament. See Progressives
Sons, exemption from military service, 440, 448-9, 2685. See also, Military Service Act Amdt.
Transportation problems. See Freight rates
Want of confidence in future, 143
Western, 146-7, 357
And wheat marketing. See Wheat Board
Grievances, 2652

Farmers' Movement and Party. See Progressive Party

Federal Civilian Force. See National Defence bill; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Federal Elections Act. See Dominion Elections Act

Federal Representation by provinces, in 1877, qu. 1183

Federal Subsidies. See Subsidies

Feed Control Act, 1011

Female Suffrage. See also Dominion Elections Act
Failure of women to vote, 1113

Fertilizers. See also Agricultural Fertilizers bill
Cost of, 770
Duty on, 3140-3141
Freight rates on, 1022
Ground limestone, 1024
Inspectors, 592
Natural, exportation of, 1019
Tariff and, 2664

Fiduciary Interest. See Ministers and Directorships

Fielding, Hon. W. S. (Minister of Finance)
Agricultural implements, duty on, 3120, 3141. See also under this title, Customs Tariff
Alcohol for druggists, duty on, 2114, 3241
Alleged election promises, Charlotte, N.B. 1997
American magazines, 3108-3111
Appropriation Acts, 363, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Auditor General's office, 793
Auditor General's report
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Referred to public Accounts Com., 1462
Automobiles, 2850, 2853, 3275. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Refund of taxes, 3600
Value up to $1,000 for settlers, 2116
Banks
Circulation, tax on, 2117
Interest rates, 3602
Beet Sugar. See under this title, Sugar
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts, 772-773
British Columbia government, criticism, 2237
Budget, inquiries as to date of, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget Speech, 2104; Financial position of Dominion, 2104-17; economy, income and expenditure, 2104; public debt, 2106; loans, 2107; trade, 2108; trade agreements and negotiations; tariff revision, 2110-14; British preference; trade with United States, 2111; Marking and valuation; currency, 2113; certificate of trade or consular agent; tariff reductions, 2114; new taxation, 2116; financial situation; tariff resolutions, 2118

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Supplementary statement, 2842. Acknowledgement of tributes and congratulations, 2842; attitude of Progressives towards Budget, 2842; step in right direction; Liberal policy as declared in 1921, supported by Progressive members; a policy of moderation; tariff and sales tax, 2843; land and inheritance taxes; tariff proposals; tariff revision of 1897; predictions of bankers and manufacturers; trade revival; reduction in duties, 2844; change in policy of Sir John Macdonald; British preference; Sir Charles Tupper; reciprocity; "no truck or trade with Yankees"; opposition of Conservative party to trade arrangement; Liberal party ready to discuss question; value of United States market; Windsor Hall speech, 2846; industrial condition of Germany, 2847; depreciated currency; value of mark and commodity prices; trade with Germany; treaty of Versailles; valuation of currency, 2848; increased taxation effect of currency valuation on Italian trade; a protectionist budget; downward revision; Progressives would not have been able to do more; direction in which Liberal party is looking, 2849; drawbacks and refunds; Ford motor company; Atlantic Sugar refineries; goods in transit; manufacture for export, 2850; Opposition amdt.; Liberal platform of 1919; verdict of electors; proposed changes in budget proposals; amended resolutions, 2851; tax on confectionery; soft drinks; ale, beer, porter and stout; cigarettes; fertilizers and dried beet pulp; cheque tax, 2852; bond and stock transfers, 2853; beet root sugar; raw leaf tobacco; receipts; cigars; automobiles; depreciated currency, 2853
Business of the House. See also under this title, Estimates; Supply
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473-74, 2522
Civil government items, 374
Daylight saving, 1282
Member interrupting, must ask permission, 255-6
Privilege, right to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Business of the House — Con
Special loan bill, 3151
Supplementary estimates, 3365
Supply, concurrence, 1842
Business profits war tax, 1658, 2024
Canadian battlefields, 772
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3156, 3366, 3477-86
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747, 1771
Cattle embargo, reported statement of Mr Larkin, 1023
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2852, 3258
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 2852, 3239, 3240
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Confectionery, tax on, 2852
Congratulations to on fortieth year of public life, 3279
Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, 1132, 3042
Currency, depreciated, valuation for customs, 2113, 2849, 2853
Customs Act and Dept of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 3222, 3476, 3477
Depreciated currency, 3223, 3224, 3410
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411
German goods, valuation, 3229
Invoices certificates, 3221
Wines and spirits in bond, 3229
Customs drawbacks, 2850, 3141
Customs Tariff
Blankets, 3128, 3131, 3136, 3234
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3238
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Cotton, fabrics, 3128
Gasoline, 3106, 3115, 3116
Glass bottles, 3117
Grading machines, 3126
Hatters' bands, 3140
Invalids' wheel chairs, 3115
Marking Act, 3105
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
Pumping machinery, 3127
Reductions, 3239
Saw-mill machinery, 3126
Silk, 3127
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, claim, 2170
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411.
Estimates. See also under this title; Supply
Accounts chargeable to current year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1269
Items, urgent, 409
Procedure, 409
Tabled
Main, 363
Supplementary, 1258, 2465
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Fertilizers, duty on, 2852, 3141
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Deputy minister, 753
Estimates, 751, 1663, 3495
Legal expenses, railways, 1667
Loans, 771. See also under this title, Loans,
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Fire prevention, 794
Fiscal year, ending of, 1210. See also under this title, Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Fisheries, reduction in duties on, 2116
Fishing schooner race, 3512
France-Belgium trade treaties, 3223
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's office, 751
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure in 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward island, 1989-90
Housing, 774
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imports, marking and valuation of, 2113, 2849, 2853, 3229
Income tax
Cost of collection, 2025
Legislation, 3104
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3278-9, 3359, 3484
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Alcohol for druggists, 2114, 3241
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239, 3240
Home brewing, 3141
Sugar beets, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3143, 3607
Insurance officials, 791
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Bill, 362, 598-9

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Labour and capital, 2117
Liberal platform of 1919, tariff plank, 2529, 2851
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
Loans, 771, 2107
New Canadian, 1131, 1133
Special loans bill, 3476
Merchants' Bank, inquiry, 3604
Nova Scotia miners, 497
M. (Mr. Irvine) 543
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1814
Penny Bank Act Amdt., bill, 1132, 3043, 3148
Pensions to Imperial forces, 864
Personal statement, correction, 681
Private Bills Com., substitution of names, 2355
Public Accounts, closing of, 1210, 1264-66
Public buildings
Flags, 1265
Generally, expenditure, accounts not closed, 1263-66
New, 1256
Public Works estimates, 696, 697, 750
Rail and car repair contracts, 1697
Railways, annual statement, 926
Reciprocity with United States, 2111, 2845-6
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3320, 3392, 3395
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Root vegetables, inspection and sale of, 2744
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786
Co-operation with the United States, 2755
Sales tax, 2116, 2843, 2851. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Save the Children fund, 3516
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 442
Special loans bill, 3476
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Automobiles, 3275
Ford company, 3276
Cheque tax, 3258
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Matches, 3263
Mineral waters, 3278
Receipts, 3262
Sales tax, 2116, 3264, 3269
Amdt. (Mr. Speakman) 3271
Condensed milk, 3268, 3409
Job printing, 3409
Steamship services, 2029

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Sugar
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on beet sugar, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Supply bills, 362, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Supply, concurrence, 1769, 1842
Tariff Commission, 1663
Tariff reductions, 2114, 2844, 2851, 3123
Tariff revision, 2110-14, 2844, 2849
Taxation, increases in, 2116, 2843, 2848, 2851-3
Tobacco, duties on, 2115, 2852-3, 3107, 3239
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
United States
Reciprocity with, 2111, 2845-6
Visit to Washington, 2112
War claims, exchange, 1754
War Graves Commission, 774
Wrangel island, 1750

Filled Milk and cream, qu. 963. See also Milk; Oleomargarine

Films, Educational. See Trade and Commerce

Finance. See also Banks; Budget; Financial Credit; Loans
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Bank deposits, qu. 3155
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Banking conditions, 158
Bonds
And stock, transfers, tax, 2853
Tax-free, maturing, qu. 826
Canada's financial position, soundness of, 2497
Commitments, 208
Credit Systems. See Financial Credit
Department
Charges of management, 770, 1663
Deputy Minister, 751
Estimates, 1662
Expenditure, economy in, 1475
Dominion Notes, qu. 705, qu. 935, qu. 3153, qu. 3154
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1271
Legal expenses, 1667
Paper Control inqury, 1673
Salaries, 751, 3504
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Estimate of wealth and production, 2497
Excise profits and watered stock, 2714
Financial position of country, annual statement of Minister, 2104-2118
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Gold standard and credit system, 219

Finance — Con.
Grain trade, 2246
Loan department, 220
National wealth, 222. See also Natural Resources
Per capita wealth, 2630
Sinking funds, 1663

Financial Conference, Brussels, 1138, 1292

Financial Credit, 208, 219, 221, 2497-8. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money
Banks and, 1290, 2501, 2714
Brussels Conference, 1138, 1292
Community power, use of for private interest, 1291, 2501
Control of, 222, 1292, 2445, 2500
Germany in, 2500
Credit systems, 2634
Attempts to inaugurate
Guernsey Island, 2505
St. Louis Municipal currency, 2506
Definition of Credits, 2503
Douglas system, 220, 222, 2502
Financial organizations, consolidation, 2245-6
Gold standard and, 219, 1291, 2506
Greece and Roumania, qu. 1400
Industrial stagnation and unemployment, 1291. See also Industrial depression
Inflation and deflation, 2502
Loans, 1292. See also that title
M. (Mr. Irvine) for Parliamentary Com., 1289, 1396
National credit power, 1291, 2499
Private monopoly of, 2501
Purchasing power, 1292
Restricted, 2629-30
Scientific inquiry and experimentation, 1289
Sociological laboratory, 1290
Systems, 2282

Financial Depression and Outlook. See speeches on Address; Budget

Findlay, Mr. J. W. (South Bruce)
Budget, 2893. Protection and blind partyism; reciprocity, 2893; Ontario farmer not a protectionist; Progressives in Ontario; Laurier naval policy; tariff reductions; public morality and political honour; pledges and promises; Senate reform, 2894; debt and increased taxation; expenditure; reduction of sessional indemnity; drawbacks; protective budget, 2895
Potlach, Indian institution, 1578
Indians serving gaol sentences, 1721

Fines, payable to municipalities, 2832. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Finney, Colonel John, 1189

Fire
Insurance. See Insurance
Losses, railways from, 628
Prevention, 794. See also Air Service; Forestry; Insurance

First Contingent, training, qu. 1376

Fiscal Changes. See Budget; Tariff resolutions; Taxation

Fiscal Year. See Consolidated Revenue Act Amdt. bill

Fish and Fisheries. See also Marine and Fisheries
Boats admitted as settlers' effects, 2116
British Columbia. See also that title
Depletion of, 346
Orientals engaged in, 167, 171, 344. See also Oriental Aliens
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Salmon traps, 346
Transfer, 2042. See also Quebec Fisheries
Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods Act
Canning and curing licenses, 3010
Deep sea, conservation and development, 2169
Department of Fisheries, 2166
Dry salting, 3010
Estimates, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishermen's supplies, 2690
Fishing schooner race. See International Deep Sea Racing
Fishing vessels, pilotage, 2819
Fishways in rivers, 2166
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
Guardians, salaries, 2166
Hatcheries, 2169
Herring, dry salting, 3010
Herring, in Alaska, 70
Improved methods, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
International deep sea racing. See that title
Licenses. See Quebec fisheries
Lobster, 1399, 2817, 2996
Market, 2166
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu. 3598
Officers and guardians, salaries, 2166
Orientals. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Patrol service, 2166
Boats, qu. 1503, qu. 3598
"Phalarope", qu., 1503

Fish and Fisheries — Con.
Pollution of streams, 2168
Prince county, illegal fishing, qu. 371
Protection service. See Marine; National Defence; Naval service
Publicity and marketing, 2169
Quebec, transfer of, 142. See also Quebec Fisheries
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Rope, twine, etc., duty on, 2359
Salmon, 1399, 2817, 2996
Dry salting, 3010
Sardines, export, qu. 1182
Supplies, reduction in duties, 2116, 2359
Tariff reductions on implements of, 2191
Transportation, 2166
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Fisher and Oughton, Messrs. See Aliens

Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Protection of Salmon and Lobster Fisheries. 1r., 1399; 2r., com., 2817; com., 2996; 3r., 2997
2. Salmon Curing and Herring Drying. Res. 2306, 3010; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3013

Fisheries Protection Service. See Marine; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Fishing Schooner Race. See International

Flag-Waving, 1265, 1386, 2711

Flags
Cost of, qu, 599
For public buildings, 1260, 1264, 1268

Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 634. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Flax
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2834
Canadian bounty on linen yarn from, 1361

Flour
Exports to United States, 209
Insurance on mills, 3255

Flynn, Mr. Harry, and soldiers' bonus, 394, 402

Fontaine, Mr. J. E. (Hull)
Gatineau Point-Rockliffe ferry, qu. 1399, qu. 1661
Old age pensions, M., 1303
Post Office
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving $600, qu. 1067
Married women, qu. 1658
Money Order branch, qu. 1285

Food and Drug Act, administration, 2017

Food and Drugs. See Health; Meat and Canned Foods

Food Inspection, 820

Foot and mouth Disease. See Cattle Embargo

Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214

Foran, Mr. W., See Civil Service Commission

Ford Car. See Automobiles

Ford, Mr. Henry, credit scheme, 2505

Fordney Tariff. See Budget Speeches; United States

Foreign-Born wives of British subjects. See Dominion Election Act Amdt.

Foreign Currency. See Customs, Marking; Currency
Inflation. See Customs and Excise Dept. bill

Foreign Fraternal Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Foreign Loans. See Loans

Foreign Markets. See Trade

Foreign Monetary Standards. See Customs; Currency

Foreign Warships. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill

Foreigners. See also Aliens
Crime and, 1392, 2517
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Immigration. See that title
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1388-94
Textile industries, engaged in, 2518

Forest, Mr. Médard, qu. 2355

Forestry. See also Natural Resources; Research; Timber
Aerial patrol, 1047, 1722
Gaspe, 1733
High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Railway belt, B.C., 1730
Fire losses, 628
Fire towers, 1048
Forest area under federal control, 1048
Protection of timber in West, 1046
Pulpwood and round logs, duty, 2667

Forestry — Con.
Spruce bud moth, 1049, 2668
Tree culture in West, 1046
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu. 615

Forke, Mr. Robert (Brandon)
Address in reply, 76. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 76-77; reciprocity with United States; marketing of farm products, 77; tariff revision; railway problems, 78; taxation burdens; immigration, 79
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2149
Assiniboine river floods, 2004, 3546
Boy Scouts, 773
Cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special com., 1424
Distribution of labour and goods, 2149
Fishways, 2168
Freight rates, 1424
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2004
Immigration policy, 2148
Indians
Education, Elkhorn school, 3537
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2086
Naval policy, 2079
Progressives, patriotism, 720
Rideau canal, 2765
Soldier land settlement, taxes, 2134
Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 469
Transportation, 2149
Woollen goods and blankets, 3234

Fort Churchill. See Hudson Bay Railway

Fort George, 119

Fort Mississauga, 119

Fort Qu'Appelle Sanitarium, 1345

Fort William
Car repair contracts, 1696-1705
Grain overages, qu. 1210
Terminal elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Fortier, Mr. H. A. (Labelle)
Agricultural exhibitions, 993
Budget, 2274. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Government policy; amendment; revenue requirements and taxation, 2274; income tax; suggested concession to heads of families; population, suggested methods of increasing; railways and public ownership, 2275; economy in public expenditure, 2276
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 961

Fortier, Mr. H. A. — Con.
Demonstration farm at Mont Laurier, 994
Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 643
Ministers and directorships, 1123
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1798

Fournier, Mr. C. A. (Bellechasse)
Carty, Captain, qu. 1062
Chief Architect's branch, Public Works, qu. 963
Civil Service Commission, qu. 826
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1904

Four-Power Treaty. See Limitation of Armaments

France
Canadian exhibition in, 2031
Exhibition train from, 2990
Industries, protection of, 2410
Post war conditions, 2643
Trade relations with. 2990. See also Trade
Trade treaty with, 2110

Franchise. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Extension of, 2242
Public ownership, and, 1944

Fraser River Fisheries. See British Columbia, Fisheries

Fraser Valley Railway. See Vancouver and Fraser Valley

Fraternal Benefit Insurance. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Frauds, Scrip, prosecution for. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Fredericton
Military property, 1980
Officers' square, 1980

Free Freight outlay, qu. 704

Free Trade. See Address; Budget

Freight, careless handling of, 1965

Freight Rates. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Railway Commission; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Transportation
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Calgary, free outlay, qu. 704
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Comparison between freight and duty, 2175

Freight Rates — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 146, 176, 350, 1412. See also under this title, Excessive. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Special Com. to inquire into effect upon Railway Rates
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for, 1213, 1402
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1444; neg. 1457
M. agreed to, 1458
Named, 1502
Reports
First, 1657
Second, 1719
Third, 3546
M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of, 3548
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton, 3559; neg. 3586
Amdt. (Mr. Baxter) 3586; neg. 3586
M. agreed to, 3588
Position of Ministers of Agriculture and Interior on, 242
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Excessive, 33, 47, 54, 78, 83, 131-132, 275, 350, 2219, 2314, 2453. See also under this title, Crowsnest Pass Agreement, and Speeches on Address; Budget
Export, 2633
Fertilizers, on, 1022
Immigration and, 2157
Lumber industry, 234, 2311
Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
Quebec, and, 1472, 1473
Railway labour, and, 2315
Regulation by water carriage competition, 1688
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1204. See also that title
Subsidized steamships, 2028
Wheat on, 235. See also Wheat Board

French, early pioneers in West, 2912

French-English Canadians, unity between, 168-9. See also Address

French Language, 155
Civil Service classification, qu. 1930
Parliament in, 155, 244, 306, 356
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1351
Soldier Settlement Board, Sherbrooke, qu. 1658

Fruit Industry, 220, 2564
Apple-growing, 171, 967
Importations, qu. 612
Protection of, 225, 2197
Baxter, Mr. Charles W., appointment of successor, 2457
British Columbia in, 2593. See also that title
Competition with United States, 2903
Dumping clause, 2280, 2310, 2372, 2593, 2641, 2879 2903. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Freight rates. See Crowsnest pass agreement
Fruit Commissioner, qu. 2457
Grape juice, tax on, 2594, 2617
Okanagan Valley, 162. See also British Columbia
Oriental Aliens engaged in, 1535. See also that title
Protection. See Budget; Customs, Dumping clause
Tariff, 2197
Transportation. See Freight Rates
Trees, protection from insects. See Entomology

Fuel. See also Coal; Mines; Natural Resources
Oil, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Importation, 178
Tank at Louise Basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Peat, 1235
Price, 1490, qu. 1774. See also Coal

Further Legislation. See House of Commons

Futures, trading in. See Wheat Board

Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu. 3599

Galicians. See Immigration

Galt post office building, 1247

Gambling. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Game. See Migratory Birds; Dominion Lands and Parks

Games of Chance. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Gaols. See Prisons; Penitentiaries

Garbage Feeding. See Hog Cholera

Gardiner, Mr. Robert (Medicine Hat)
Budget, 2624. New national policy, 2624; fiscal plank; substantial reduction of customs tariff; British Preference; free

Gardiner, Mr. Robert — Con.
Budget — Con.
food stuffs; machinery for conversion of natural resources and raw materials; time to be allowed for industrial readjustment; claims for protection to heard in public; parliamentary committee on tariff; tariff commission, 2625; effects of tariff; exploitation of the people; tariff increases prices but not values; tariff reductions; revenue; land tax; inheritance tax; excise tax on manufactured goods; sales tax, 2626; circulation tax; bank interest violation of Bank Act; withholding of credit from municipality; unemployment; an inequitable budge 2627
Canadian National Railways
Branch lines, 1964
Bridge over Red Deer river, 1964
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Cheque tax, 3260
Civil Service bonus, 1258
Dominion lands, oil leases, 1046
Fishing tackle, 3140
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3486
Port Nelson dredging, 2006
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3438
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Steamship services, 2027
Tar Sands, 1236
Timber wolves, 1001
Venereal diseases, 2022
Wheat Board, 785

Garland, Mr. E. J. (Bow River)
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Aerial forest patrol, High River, Alta., 1048, qu. 1066, 1723
Agriculture Com. report — Wheat Board, 783
Agriculture dept. — Mr. Duncan Marshall, 651, 652
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Boy Scouts, 773
Business of the House — eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
West Indian trade, 3928; amdt. 3031
Canadian National railway, securities, qu. 3154
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half breed scrip) 3216
Dominion lands, surveys, 1038, 1044
M. to reduce vote, 1039

Garland, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Dominion notes, qu. 3154
Dredging, 2006
Fish culture, 2169
Forest aerial patrol, High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Immigration of children, 2148, 3063
Indians
Blackfoot reserve, pasture lands, qu. 2215
Greater production, 1224, 1288
International boundaries, 1033
Mixed farming, 983
National gallery, 2011
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2043, 2067
Royal Canadian Navy, 2043
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 522
Parliament, fall session, 2608
Pensions Com., report, 3349
Post office, ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscriber, qu. 3599
Redistribution, meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 3497
Enlistment in Canadian Expeditionary Force, qu. 2038
Soldiers' land settlement, homestead rights, 2135
Steamship services, 2027, 3028, 3506
Amdt., 3031
Tax-free bonds, qu. 826
Telegraph and telephone lines, Alberta, 2012

Garland, Mr. W. F. (Carleton)
Budget, 2300. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war expenditure; Canada Cement Company; income tax; tariff on agricultural implements; British preference; Mr. Fielding's trip to Washington; trade with United States; civil service dismissals; bonus; superannuation, councils, 2300; sales tax, 2301
Canada-Great Britain postal rate, qu. 3364
Civil Service
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 2300, 3531
Withdrawal from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Commission, salaries, 407
Councils, 2300
Increase to deputy ministers, bonus, salaries, qu. 2805
Remuneration, qu. 3364
Retirement fund, qu. 826
Superannuation, 2300
Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153
Egg inspection, 811

Garland, Mr. W. F. — Con.
Exhibitions, prizes, 654
Experimental farms, 811
Grand Trunk, salaries of officials, qu. 728
Highways
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembrooke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, tree planting, qu. 2039
Mail contracts
Gascons-Quebec, qu. 2213
Lachenaie, qu. 2805
Militia dept. shed, Cartier square, Ottawa, qu. 2038
Poultry inspection, 656, 807
Rideau canal, 2766

Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373

Gascons-Quebec mail contract, qu. 2213

Gasoline, price of, 2106, 2296, 2313, 3115

Gaspé Peninsula
Aerial forest patrol, 1733
Fisheries, qu. 1401
Railways, M. (Mr. Marcil) for papers, 623

Gatineau-Point-Rockliffe ferry privilege, qu. 1399, qu. 1661

Gauvreau, Mr. C. A. (Témiscouata)
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Canadian National Railways
Intercolonial
Pension fund, qu. 938
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Rivière du Loup shops, qu. 1181, 1690
Indemnity of members, 3613
Juvenile delinquents, qu. 469
Lighthouse boats, fuel for, qu, 606, qu. 1183
Lighthouses and wireless telegraphy, qu. 370
Prison reform, 1279
Privilege — alleged statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690
Rivière du Loup arsenal, qu. 1181, 1690

Gendron, Mr. R. M. (Wright)
Dennis building, Halifax, qu. 3360

General Election. See Election of 1921

"General" Macdonald's Army. See also Riley's Army; Unemployment
Government action in regard to, 2458
Reception of, 2256

Genoa Conference, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 2337. See also Address; Budget; Conferences
Canadian delegation to, expenses, 1715, 2864

Genoa Conference — Con.
Cannes conference, documents, 823
Tabled, 865
Correspondence with Govt. of Italy, 1905, 2035
Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 582
Dominion Textile Company, and, 583-4
Money vote for, 1675
Montpetit, Professor, 582
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Submarines, 1845

Geodetic Survey
Estimates, 1033
Ottawa building, 1265

Geological Survey. See also Mines and Minerals
Anthropological division
Potlach institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Camsell, Mr. Charles, 1262
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Estimates, 1233, 1236
Maps, 1237
Publications, 1237
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Specimens, purchase of, 1237

George, Right Hon. Lloyd, 2203, 2337
Empire defence, responsibility of dominions for, 1630

Georgian Bay Canal. See Canals

German, Mr. W. M. (Welland)
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3587-8
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3441
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1319
Trenton Harbour bill, 3494

German Goods, valuation of. See Budget; Customs Act Amdt.

German Mark, decline in value of. See Budget; Currency, depreciated

Germany. See also Budget; Customs Tariff; Imports; Trade
Agents of manufacturers in Canada, 2647
Commercial development, 2643
Competition with, 2114, 2140, 2173-4, 2203, 2412, 2420, 2487, 2878
Credit control, 2500
Exports to Canada, 2408, 2421, 2863
Pocket-Knives, valuation of, 2876
Financial situation, 2499, 2642
Indemnity, payment in goods, 2500

Germany — Con.
Industrial condition, 2499, 2847
Labour conditions in, 3227. See also Labour
Mark, value of, 2417, 2644, 2848. See also Budget; Currency, depreciated
Paper money, 2499
Proposed loan, 2500
Reparations paid to Allies, qu. 375
Tariff wall against goods, 174
Trade relations with, 138, 2183, 2263, 2287, 2347, 2394, 2421-22, 2464, 2487, 2848, 2876
Foreign, 2644
Wages and production costs, 2407, 2499, 2884
War debts, 174
Working hours, 2499

Gervais, Mr. Théodore (Berthier)
Inglis boiler works, qu. 732

Gillen Board. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Girl Guides, grant, 774

Glanders. See Health of Animals

Glass
Customs duties on, 3117
Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Globe, Toronto, imaginary speeches of Mr. Meighen, 207

Goderich Harbour improvement, 2000

Gold
Central reserves and gold held in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code
Refining. See Charges of Management
Reserve. See Finance
Standard, 1291

Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration of, 1372

Good, Mr. W. C. (Brant)
Agate and granite ware, 3118
American magazines, 3108, 3113
Automobiles, tax on, 3273, 3277
Beet sugar industry, 3250
Blankets, duty on, 3234-5
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 722
Budget, 2429. Tariff record of Liberal party; repudiation of tariff plank of 1919 platform; history of fiscal legislation, 2429; inception of protective

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Budget — Con.

policy; position of Liberal party on tariff question in seventies; Liberal convention of 1893; condemnation of protection system; campaign of 1911, 2430; reciprocity agreement; Liberal protectionists; the "great apostacy"; the "interests"; possible explanation of Liberal attitude, 2431; expediency of compromise; geographical considerations; examination of protective system without reference to locality or occupation; social versus individual advantage, 2432; trade a form of co-operation, not competition; protectionist philosophy; political boundaries and tariff walls, 2433; tariffs for revenue and protection; "plucking the goose with the least squawking"; direct and indirect taxes; protection by boundary dather than by tariff; encouragement of infant industries; protection of all industries impossible; favourable trade balance; international trade; cheap foreign labour; real and nominal wages; retaliatory tariffs, 2435; diversified industry; decadence of agriculture; effect on manufacturing industries; free raw material and lower labour costs; free trade and advantage to manufacturers; competition against old established industries, 2436; protective tariffs and monopoly; price-fixing combinations; has protection assisted Canadian manufacturers?; the system corrupting, demoralizing and indefensible; contributions to campaign funds; national existence and integrity, 2437; economic self-sufficiency; sentiment in favour of protection; public opinion distorted; quotation from Mr. J. A. Hobson, 2438; consumers not organized to protect themselves; Canadian Manufacturers' Association propaganda; objects of protection; how has the policy worked out?, 2439; loss of population; indictment of system by United Farmers of Ontario; war profiteering; revenue raising expedients, 2440; excess profits tax; no promise of relief in budget; taxes on consumption; sales tax, 2441; income and inheritance taxes; ability to pay, 2442; property tax; taxation of land value; 2443; increased production; booms and depressions; public works; credit control, 2445

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Business of the House

Estimates, consideration of, 3527

Mondays and Wednesdays, 1720

Business profits war tax, qu. 1657

Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1961

Cattle embargo, 991-992

Chamberlin, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3498

Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509

Coated papers, duty on, 3108

Condensed milk, tax, 3269

Contingencies, expenditures for, 415

Cotton fabrics, duty on, 3128

Debates, inaudibility of, 1755, 1996

Ford motor company, 3273

German importations, value of, 3228

Governor General's cars, 1688

Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2001

Hydrographic survey, 1746

Immigration

Passports, 3064

Salaries, 3499

Income war tax act, 3278

Indians

Medical attention, 1220

Six Nation reserve, 1222

Lambton, loss of, 3507

Live stock industry, 992

Military expenditures and policy, 1144

Naturalization expenses, 1671

Naval defence, obligation of Canada, 1745

Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1836

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3019

Pool selling, bookmaking, etc., 2973

Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515

Proportional Representation, M. for adoption, 1633

Public buildings, Ottawa

Elevator attendants, 1267

Expenditure, 1268

Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1485

Quebec harbour, parc St. Charles, 1470

Rail and car repair contracts, 1705

Railway policy, 1961

Root vegetables bill, potato grades, 3376

Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 843

Senate indemnity, 3509

Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436

Steamship subsidies, contracts, 3034, 3506

Supply, discussion, method of, 1142

Tariff amendments, 3238-9

Telegraph and Telephone lines, 2012

Tools, tax on, 3127

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.
Unemployment
Causes of, 3526
Military expenditures, 1144
Relief, 3526
Wheat Board bill, 3187
Woollen goods, duty on, 3130

Good Roads. See Highways

Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 200, 239, 1128
Genoa conference, 1715

Gordon, Mr. George N. (West Peterborough.)
See also Deputy Speaker
O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C., payments, qu. 2037

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer (Minister of Justice and Attorney General)
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 140. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; statements made in last general election, 140; Order in Council government, 141; Quebec fisheries; results of general election, 142
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
Senate amdts. 3611
Budget, 2654. Fiscal policy, protection and free trade; issue of the election campaign; Liberals not free traders; history of tariff legislation; Hon. Alex. Mackenzie; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech, 2655; principles which have inspired Liberal party; fiscal policy of Government found in speeches of Prime Minister and Finance Minister, 2656; budget proposals in consonance with declarations of leaders, 2657; expenditure and debt; revenue necessities; manufacturing important factor in developing Canada, 2657; late Sir Wilfrid Laurier on encouragement of Canadian industries; progress of manufacturers since 1870; exodus during last ten years; investment in industrial establishments, 2658; grievances of the West; proposals for tariff reduction; strict economy needed; immigration policy; the amendment; no deception of electors, 2659; budget proposals consistent with Liberal promises
Canada Grain Act
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1133, 1841, 1932
Chamberlain, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills, 1841, 2830, 2973, 3607

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt. bills — Con.
Half-breed scrip, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth
M. for reference to Special Com., 1503
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3468-75
Senate amdts. 3615
Exchequer court
Admiralty vacancies, 1275
Estimates, 1274
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
M. for ref. to Special Com., 1502
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 424, 2830
Judges, Quebec, 3497
Justice department of,
Estimates, 1274, 1668
Litigated matters, 1276
Salaries, 451, 4395
Yukon territory, 1275
King v, Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1133, 1841, 1932
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Nova Scotia Supreme Sourt, vacancy, 3437
Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276
Penitentiaries
Estimates, 1276
Inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 545, 787
References to, 21, 26, 55, 206, 207, 239, 242, 243, 1128, 2679, 2682, 2718. See also Budget; Ministers and Directorships
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 3042
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Estimates, 2129
Pensions, 2131
Soldiers' civil re-establishment bill, 3597
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2974
Supreme court estimates, 1274
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux expenses, 1669
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Gould, Mr. O. R. (Assiniboia)
Agriculture department
Officers, 650
Professionnal men, 589
Air force and civil aviation, Saskatchewan, 1724
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bank, loans to directors, 1093
Bee-keeping, 592
Bienfait briquetting plant. See under this title, Lignite
Blankets, duty on, 3129

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Budget, 2711. Congratulation to Finance Minister; grievance of the West and its solution; briquetting plant at Bienfait, 2712-15; farmers and the income tax; excessive profits and watered stock; banks and credit, 2714; liquor exportation from Saskatchewan; banking system, 2716; cheque tax; national debt, 2717; taxation; Sir Lomer Gouin and protection; tariff on implements of production, 2718; inconsistent attitude of Conservatives towards tariff; a disappointing budget; failure of Government to carry out platform of 1919; similarity of Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2720; Liberals will not implement pledges, 2721
Civil service economy, 793
Clothes wringers, 3140
Criminal Code, carriage of calves, 2831
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Defence branches, amalgamation, 423
Departments, economy in, 458, 793
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Elevators, complaint of unfair dealing, 2987
Entomology, qu. 472, 590, 817
Export liquor warehouses, 768, 2716
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Grain Growers' Grain Company, 2489
Grasshopper plague, qu. 472, 590, 817
Harbours and rivers, expenditure, 1272
Harness, hides, prices, 3139
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 546
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization board, 3524
Live stock, diseases, 650
Military district No. 12, 1176, 1602, 1987
Military expenditure and policy, 1148, 1175, 1610
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1175, 1600-10
Customs duties, 1978
Permanent force, 1982
Saving in, 418
Temporary clerks, 587
Transport and freight, 1987
Ministers and directorships, 1091
Ministers, salary increases, 1093
Ocean and river service, 3508
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3017

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Public Works, average salary, 750
Quarantine, 2021
Raw materials, duty on, 3131
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 839
Steamship subsidies, 3506
Woodmen of the World, 1905
Woollen goods, 3137

Government Departments
Co-ordination of, 180-181. See also National Defence
Payment to each other for services rendered, 1724

Government, Federal, responsibility for unemployment, 1069-94. See also Address; Budget; Unemployment

Government, group system of. See Proportional Representation

Government-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Government Printing. See Printing; Publications

Governor General
Cars, 1688
Deputy of the Governor General, 3610
Secretary's office, 751
Speech on opening of Parliament; new appointment as Governor General; world-wide economic disturbances and industrial depression; unemployment; decline in prices of farm products; Customs tariff revision; co-ordination of government railway systems, 6; immigration, 6-7; re-establishment and medical treatment of soldiers; natural resources of western provinces; co-ordination of defence forces; limitation of armaments; Genoa conference; Postal conference; need for economy, 7
Address in reply. See that title
Warrants, 1990
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Expenditure by, 1353
Genoa Conference, 1716
Penitentiaries, 1670
Unemployment relief, 1719
Welland canal construction, 1687
Yukon territory, 1681

Grading of Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Graham, Hon. George P. (Minister of Militia and Defence and Minister of the Naval Service)
Air Board
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Colonel O. M., resignation, 1727
Estimates, 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1731
Air Board Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 2357, 2820
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol, British Columbia, 1730
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Behring sea patrol, 1736
Business of the House
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742-5, 1900
Canadian institute for the blind, 3541
Canadian Northern, Sir Richard McBride, 202
Civil service salaries, 553
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1411-14
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Ford Motor Company, 3277
Government departments, payment to each other for services rendered, 1724
Gwatkin, General, 422. See also under this title, National Defence
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Insurance Act Amdt., 3147
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
Militia and Defence
Adjustment of war claims, 2974
Air force 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Amalgamation, saving, 417-18
Ammunition, reserve of, 2086
Annual drill, 1151, 1179, 1578
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Cadet services, 1972, 1978
Classification, 416
Civil Service Commission, and, 423
Defence forces, 1135
Director of assigned pay, 586
Engineer services and works, 1980
Estimates, 1711, 2974, 3498
Expenditure and policy, 1339
Reductions proposed by Minister, 1578
MacBrien, General, reported utterances of, 1662
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1136-52, 1982
Royal military college, 1985
Schools of instruction, 1985

Graham, Hon. Geo. P. — Con.
Militia and Defence — Con.
Temporary employees, 417
Topographic survey, 1985
Transport and freight, 1987
War claims, adjustment, 2098
Ministers and directorships, 1109
Money, purchasing power of, 1151-3
Municipal taxation, payment of by government, 1257
National Defence bill, 363, 417, 547
National Defence bill (No. 27) 644, 657, 668, 733, 746
Air Force, 678
Concurrence in Senate Amdts. 2806
Militia estimates, 421
Services, transfer to, 1747
Naval policy, 2043-72
Naval service
Estimates, 418, 420, 1735, 1843
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Niobe, sale of, 2043-65
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 2043, 2058, 3365
Postponement of debate, 1972
Reduction of naval armaments, 1737
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Trawlers, 1844
War claims, adjustment, 1752
War medals, 1754
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Parents, support of by children, 1308
Pelagic sealing treaty, 1844
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Pensions
Northwest Rebellion, 3523
Widowed mothers', M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., criticism of, 2778
Rideau canal, 2766
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
Salaries, 775
Royal Canadian navy. See under this title, Naval Service
Royal naval college, Esquimalt, 2048
Salaries Act Amdt. bill, 363, 746
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Special Loans bill, 3358
Supply, discussion, method of, 1142
Survey and map work, co-ordination of, 1986
War claims, exchange on, 1752
War memorials, 2098, 2100

Graham Miss Nora, qu. 599

Graham, Mr., agent at Regina, 682

Grain and Grain Trade. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834
Banks and, 2246. See also that title
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry, 1770
Canadian National railways, grain leakages, 1401, 1930
Canadian Wheat Board, advance, 3541. See also Wheat Board
Car demurrage, 2981
Elevators
Private, 2981
Licenses to, 2838
System of, 114, 233
Terminal, 2980
Excess overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837
Fort William
Inspector, 2983
Port Arthur, and, overages, qu. 1210
Government, 233, qu. 3152
Grain Commission, and, 2980
Maintenance and equipment of, 2978
Quebec, 1466, 1471, 1474, 1483
United Grain Growers, 2983
Freight rates on grain, 146. See also Freight Rates
Grades, mixing of, 2839, 2981
Grain Board. See Wheat Board
Grain Growers and oleomargarine. See Oleomargarine
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, qu. 705, 777, qu. 1181, 2839, 2842, 2982
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Terminal elevators, 2980
Grain leakages on Canadian National railways, 1401, 1930
Handling of. See under this title, Elevators; Transportation
Long hauls to market, 146-7
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision. See under this title, Canada Grain Act
Mixing grades, 2839, 2981
In transit, 2838
Montreal harbour, shipment of grain through, 1489
Oats, price of, 225

Grain and Grain Trade — Con.
Overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837, 2838, 2980
Per capita production, 2159
Price fixed in Liverpool, 1203-08
Production and shipment, 1203
Quebec, shipment of grain through, 1466, 1471, 1472
Russia, competition of, 2157
St. Lawrence river waterway, 269, 1183, 1317, 1325. See also that title
Sample market, 2838
Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., 2989
Screenings, recleaned, 2490
Selling without growers' permission, 2989
Shipment. See under this title, Montreal; Quebec; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Shrinkage and leakage in transit, 232. See also under this title, Elevators
Speculation in, 158. See also Wheat Board Bill
Transcontinental railway, 2194
Transportation, 235, 300. See also Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland Canal
Water by, 69-70. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
United Grain Growers, terminal elevator, 2983
Wheat
Marketing, 2915, 2951, 2969. See also Wheat Board
Production and cost, 2333

Grain Growers Grain Company, alleged contribution to political organization, 2488

Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938

Grand Manan, wharves and breakwaters, 1993

Grand River bridge, qu. 1287

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grand Trunk Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grape Juice, tax on, 2117, 2594, 2617

Grasshopper Plague, qu. 472, 2726, 3520

Gravel, Mr., Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Great Britain
British Preference. See that title
Free trade and, 2526. See also speeches on Budget

Great Britain — Con.
Imports from, qu. 966. See also Imports and Exports; Trade
Income tax reductions, 2860
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368
Merchant Marine, 2379
Protection of industries, 2408-9
Tariff legislation, 2267
Trade with. See British Preference; Trade

Great Lakes, life-saving service, qu. 367

Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great Lakes Tidewater Association, 1319. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great War Veterans' Association. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund Bill; Returned Soldiers
Cash grants to soldiers, policy on, 394. See also Soldiers Bonus
Charges against Pensions Board, 3041. See also Pensions
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration, 2155
Oleomargarine, 1798
Oriental immigration, 1514

Greece
Commission on credit to, 303
Loan, qu. 1400

Grey, Lord, letter to Governor General on military protection, 1136

Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification
Montreal post office, 1633
Post office inspectors, 1507

Grimmer, Mr. R. W. (Charlotte)
Charlotte County, Mr. Todd's election promises, 1997
Grand Manan, Campobello and Deer islands, wharves and breakwaters, 1993-7
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1993
Patrol boat Phalarope, qu. 1503
St. George public building, 1240
Sardines, price for export, qu. 1182

Grosse Isle quarantine station, 2021

Guernsey Island of, credit system, 2505

Gulf of St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Company, qu. 1400

Gutelius, Mr. F. P., 192

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh (South Wellington)
Air Board
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Expenditure, 1725
Details of, 1730
Air Service, forest patrol, 1047
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-68-73
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
British Ministry of Shipping, claim, 1752
Budget, 2874. Amended resolutions, 2874; depreciated currency, valuation of, 2875; trade with Germany; pocket knives; effect of Minister's proposal, 2876; marking of goods, effect of repeal; German aluminum goods; German agents seeking orders in Canada; Canadian valuation of German goods; favourable position of German manufacturers; anti-dumping clause; fruit industry, 2879; marking of goods; government by Order in Council, 2880
Burstall, Sir Henry, 742-3
Business of the House
Point of order, bill ref. to Com., 1395
Saturday sittings, 2032
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2997
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian National Railways, enlisted men, allowance, 3519
Census, completion of, 1364
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Carriage of calves, 2831
Scrip frauds, 1396
(Mr. Woodsworth) 1395
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Criminal Code and Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Demobilization, 1155
Expenditure for, 1163
Vote, 1171
Departmental solicitors, 683
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Women of foreign birth, enfranchisement, 476
Dominion lands and surveys, 1035, 1038
Topographic survey, 1043, 1986
Dominion observatory building, 1266
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women. M. (Mr. Euler) 476
Escheats Act. Amdt. bill, 2829, 3026
Finance, loans, 771
Govt. departments, payments to each other, 1726

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh — Con.
Govt. publications, demand, 1374
Gwatkin, Major-General, 742
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1997
Amdt. to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure, 1269
Ontario, Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1988
Quebec, 1999
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Immigration of farm workers, 3052
Indian Affairs, officials, 683
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 2830
Labour dept., salary increases, 564
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Military expenditures, 1138
Militia and Defence
Ammunition,
Reserve of, 2086
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
Annual drill, 1154, 1155
Artillery ammunition from Great Britain, 1154-73
Liberal attitude in 1920, 1921, and 1922, 1154
Arsenals, Lindsay, 2085
Cadet services, 1972, 1977
Expenditure and policy, 1594
Permanent force, 1983
Reduction of staff, 586
Topograpric survey, 1043, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2976
Ministers and directorships, 1094
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Munitions, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
National Defence, Department of, bill, 659, 738, 1747
Bill should be preceded by resolution, 547
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval policy, 2051
Naval service
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Royal Canadian navy, 1846, 1972
Royal naval college, 2049
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Parliament buildings, 2014
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 787
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Progressive party, attitude towards redistribution, 1364

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh—Con.
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1238
Ontario, 1251, 1259
Public Service Retirement Act, 3025
Public Works estimates, 964, 747
Contingency vote, 748
Reductions, 698
Quebec harbour advances, 1473
Redistribution and the census, 1364
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1340
Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717
Steamship services, 2020, 3505
Survey and map work, proposed co-ordination, 1033, 1986
Toronto harbour improvement, 1474
War claims, adjustment
Naval service, 1752
Vickers, 2976
War medals, 2977
War memorials, Vimy, 2100
Warlike stores, sale of, 1171
Wheat Board, 2968
Wrangel island, 1751
Yukon territory, 1034
Radiotelegraph service, 1750

Gwatkin, Major-General, 421, 422, 742, qu. 1211. See also National Defence bill

Halbert, Mr. Robert H. (North Ontario)
Campbell, Mr. Alex., qu. 606
Cattle embargo, Mr. Doherty, 989
Customs tariff, ploughs, 3231
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., qu. 704
Hatters' plush, duty on, 3141
Labour dept., employees, 566
Lake of the Woods bill, 2309
Lindsay arsenal, 1979
Military expenditure and policy, 1179
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1179
Expenditure and policy, 1597, 1617, 1984
Permanent force, 1984
Plough parts, duty on, 3123, 3231
Riordon Company, taxes, qu. 607, qu. 927
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3373-4

Half Breed Scrip, Frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Halifax. See also Naval Service
Dennis building, qu. 3360
Fortifications, 1581
Ocean terminals, qu. 364
Ocean tonnage, 2008

Halifax — Con.
Patronage committee, 199
Port of. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Public buildings, expenditures, 1244
Quarantine station, repairs, 1238, 2021

Halkett, Mr. Andrew, 3051

Hamilton
Post office building, 1246-51, 1258
Queenston-Hamilton highway, qu. 471

Hammell, Mr. W. J. (Muskoka)
Parry Sound lighthouse inspector, qu. 827

Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375

Hanna, Mr. D. B., 192-3, qu. 471. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Hanna-Medicine Hat line, 1965

Hansard. See House of Commons, Debates

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. (York-Sunbury)
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Business of the House, Saturday sittings, 2033
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway Co., 1183, qu. 1504
Coal
Anthracite, importations, qu. 2356
Public buildings, for, 1763
Defence, deputy ministers, 419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Edmundston public building, 1239, 1251
Election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Experimental farms, 795
External Affairs, contingencies, 3509
Graham, Miss Nora, qu. 699
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
High Commissioner, 414
Indians, Devon band, removal, 1215
Insurance premiums, tax, 3256
International operation of railways, 192
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Justice department, contingencies, 1669
Labour investigators, 462
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647
Matches, tax on, 3262
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and defence
Military property at Fredericton, 1980
Transport and freight, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1987

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. — Con.
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nova Scotia
Coal strike, 461
Supreme court vacancy, 3436
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Pension Board, appeals, 391
Post Office Dept.
Printing and stationery, 691
Reorganization, 2800
Rural delivery, 2800
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1991
Public buildings, Maritime provinces, 1243
Public Works estimates, 693
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Reid Newfoundland railway, 2027
Root Vegetable bill, 3369
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 735
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Acquisition by Canadian National railways, qu. 1774
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, survey, 2768
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Salary increases, 391
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Sorel shipyard, qu. 605
Statistics, Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Steamship services, 2029, 3506
War trophies, director, 702
Wharves in tidal waters, qu. 2209
White slave traffic, suppression of, 3497

Harbour Masters. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Harbours. See St. Lawrence River Waterway. For individual Harbours, see their titles
Advances to. See Montreal, Quebec and Harbour Commission bills

Harbours and Rivers
Alberta, 2004, 3547
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Esquimalt, 3541
Estimates, 1269, 1765, 1988, 3541
Expenditures on, 1465
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Little Current, 2002
Manitoba, 2003, 3545

Harbours and Rivers — Con.
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289. See also Montreal Harbour Commission bill
New Brunswick, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Provincial wharves, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765, 3545
Expenditure, 1921-22, 1269
Ontario, 1999
Port Arthur and Fort William, 3541
Prince Edward Island, 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1283. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
St. John
Expenditure, qu. 1401
Improvement, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Shuswap lake, wharf, 3547
Toronto, 3541

Harding, President, 69
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 133, 1184

Hardy, Hon. Senator, A. C., 2695

Harris, Mr. Joseph H. (East York)
Address in reply, 307. Liberals and Progressives, 307; immigration; railway policy; 308; manufacturers and raw material, 309
Aliens, taxation of transient, 2155
Customs department, secretaries, 764
Foreigners, 2155
Hog cholera, garbage feeding, 1007-9, 1028
Immigration
Policy, 2154
Undesirable, 2154
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Com., final report, 3350
Public buildings, Ontario, repairs, 1250

Harvest Excursions, 337

Hatfield, Mr. Paul L. (Yarmouth and Clare)
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Rural postmasters, 3080

Hatters' Bands, Plush, and bindings, 2855, 3139, 3141

Hawaian Islands, Japanese immigration, 1515

Health. See also Immigration; Indians; Tuberculosis
Department
Estimates, 2017
Salaries, etc., 775
Diseases, infectious of prisoners. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Honey, 2017
Housing, and, 121. See also Housing
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021. See also Immigration
Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Quarantine, 2021
Unemployment, 86-87
Venereal diseases, qu. 935, 2022

Health of Animals. See Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases

Hearst Publications, 3111

Herring,. Dry-salting. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Hides, price of, 2623, 3138

High Commissioner in London, 58
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Cattle embargo, and. See also that title
Alleged statement on, 1020, 1463
Income and taxation, 139
Salaries, etc., 413

High Cost of Living. See Cost of Living

High River, Alta.
Aerial Forest patrol, 1050, qu. 1066, 1723

Highways, 63, 75, 122
Banff-Windermere, 1051, 1681
Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63
Dundas Street, Halton county, qu. 1065
Edith Cavell, 1051
Grand Circle tour, 1683
Hamilton-Queenston, qu. 471
Indian reserves, 1216
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Ontario, qu. 372
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembroke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, treeplanting, qu. 2039
Road materials, investigation, 1234
Road projects, submitted, qu. 2040
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls, qu. 936
Soulanges canal road, 2768
Tourist traffic and, 1682
Transcontinental, 319, 2636

Highways — Con.
Transportation, 1939
Unemployment relief, 1082
Windermere road, 1051, 1681

Hikers. See Macdonald's Army; Riley's Army

Historic Sites, 119. See also Battlefields Monuments, qu. 469

Hocken, Mr. H. C. (West Toronto)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 785
American magazines, importation of, 3108-09, 3112
Budget, 2675. Expected modifications in budget proposals, 2675; taxes on cheques, confectionery and cigars; sales tax and cost of living; dissatisfaction of Agrarian party with budget; tariff record of Liberal party; pledges and promises broken, 2676; reduction in agricultural implement duties; protection and the maintenance of industries; record of Conservative party; inconsistencies of Liberals; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech; his letter to West Durham electors, 2677; unrestricted reciprocity; commercial union; Mr. Fielding's disavowal of tariff items of Liberal platform; concealment of views on public questions; reciprocity; government created by big interests, 2678; big business behind Sir Lomer Gouin, 2679; Proposed coalition of Agrarians and Liberals; national railways; responsibility for railway building, 2680; effort to form Liberal-Progressive government; progressives and reactionary factions in government; Minister of Marine and Fisheries; conflicting opinions in Liberal ranks; national railways; speech of Minister of Justice; full value for support of big interests; protection; diversified industries, 2682; relief from burdens not to be had through tariff reduction; feeling between East and West; rural depopulation of Ontario; agricultural conditions; manufacturers in unsatisfactory position, 2683; amenities of rural life, 2684
Canada's credit, 1919
Canadian National railways, deficits, 1919
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1298
Empire-Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Finance, deputy minister's salary, 752

Hocken, Mr. H. C. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Income taxes, qu. 705
Labour dept.
Mr. Harrison, 575-6
Promotions, 576
McDonald, Mr. John N., qu. 3361
Military expenditure, 1137
Military hospitals, expenditure, 1261
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Flags, 1265
Water, 1266
Public works estimates, 747, 748, 1261
Reciprocity, Mr. Putnam, 2286
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 833
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1314
Welland canal, and, 2754
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 388, 398
Toronto Suburban railway, qu. 2456
Welland ship canal, 2754

Hodgins, Mr. A. L. (East Middlesex)
Animal contagious diseases, 2103
Telegraph and telephone lines, 2013
Water powers, surveys, 1051

Hoey, Mr. R. A. (Springfield)
Budget, 2331. Financial obligations; precarious position of agriculture; Canadian workman, purchasing power; unemployment, 2331; Western Canada; statements prepared by Manitoba Agricultural College staff; wheat production and cost, 2332; farmers' profits compared with those of other businesses, 2333; probable permanency of conditions; rural discontent; the solution, 2334; drastic tariff reductions; lower freight rates, wider markets; tendency to lean on government, 2335; protection and the agricultural industry; Fordney tariff; opportunity for reductions in Canadian tariff; Genoa Conference; Mr. Lloyd George and spirit of nationalism; source of revenue; development of basic industries, 2337; the amendment, 2338; broken promises; tariff commission; redistribution; party system of government, 2339
Census, completion of, 1365
Cost of living, 1175, 2331
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Immigration statistics, 756-7
Labour dept., salaries, 551

Hoey, Mr. R. A. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1175
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1175
Quebec arsenal, 2097
Ministers and directorships, 1111
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Winnipeg river, bridge, 2011

Hogs
Cholera. See also Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases bill; Health of Animals
Compensation, 1028
Extermination of, 2594
Grading, 2594

Holiday on Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Holland, immigration from, 2144

Holland, Lee, order for deportation of, 1283

Holland, Major, death of, 2821

Holstein Cattle trade with United States in, 2695

Holt, Sir Henry, 1128

Home Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Home . Markets. See Budget; Markets; speeches on Address

Homesteads. See Dominion Lands; Immigration; Soldiers' Land Settlement
Re-entry, 1041

Honey, 2017

Honorary Advisory Council of Industrial and Scientific Research. See Industrial and Scientific Research

Horse Power. See Electric Power; Water Power

Horse Racing, Federal control of, 2596

Horses. See Live Stock

Hose, Captain. See Naval Service

Hosmer, Mr. Charles R., 1128

Hospital Ships
Claim by British Ministry of Shipping for loss, 2975
Exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act

House of Commons. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker
Acoustics, 1053, 1751, 3544, 3612. See also under this title, Audibility of Debates
Adjournments
Easter, 546, 820, 823
Empire day and Ascension day, 1760, 1769, 1905
To discuss matter of urgent public importance
M. (Mr. Irvine) Nova Scotia miners, 497; withdrawn, 545
Audibility of debates, 385, 411, 658, 708, 1053, 1578, 1721, 1751, 1755, 1996, 2831, 3544, 3613
Bills, money, to be preceded by res, 547
Business of the House
Budget debate, probable date of conclusion, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Further legislation, 2996, 3041, 3103, 3151, 3364-5
Government orders, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1460, 1719
Private members', 1719
Public accounts, closing of, 1210
By-elections. See under this title Vacancies
Chamber, acoustics. See under this title, Acoustics; Audibility of Debates
Committees, Select Standing, 8, 323. For proceedings and reports, See titles of the several Committees
Changes in, 497, 545, 596, 871, 1398
Powers of, 326
Criminal Code, reprinting of, 1717
Debates
Audibility of. See under this title Acoustics; Audibility of Debates Official Report of Committee
Appointed, 325
First report, 1132, 1258
Second report, 3359
Incorporation of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Tabulated statements in answer to questions, 1132, 1660
Decorum
Conversation, 1755, 2640
Courteous bearing to member speaking, 2090
Deputy Speaker, election of, 363. See also that title
Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5
Divisions
Budget
Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar), ruling of Mr. Speaker on, 2523

House of Commons — Con.
Divisions — Con.
Budget — Con.
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton), neg. 2912
Correction of division list, 2971; Corrected list, 2972
M. (Mr. Fielding) for Com. of Ways and Means, agreed to, 2913
Crowsnest Pass Agreement
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) and amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1457-8
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, amdt. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1163
Freight Rates, amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) to M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of third report of Special Com. on Transportation Costs, 3586
Lake of the Woods Regulation bill, 3435
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) neg. 1131
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and Importation, discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1840
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) and amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) 1577
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) neg. 843
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) neg. 450
Estimates, 2026. See also that title
Discussion of particular item on M. to go into Com. of Supply, 1337
Expenditure, qu. 2583
Expense of sittings and cost per hour, 1476, 2170, 2635
Hansard. See under this title, Debates, Official Report of House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088. See also Ministers and Directorships
Indemnity
Payment of, 361
Proposed reduction, 2513, 2690, 2895, 3613
Internal Economy Commission, 8
Members
Attendance of, 2513
Deceased
Baker, the late Colonel G. H., memorial to, 1929
McGibbon, Mr. Peter (Argenteuil) 39
New
Election and introduction of Bouchard, Mr. Georges (Joseph) 1929
King, Hon. J. H., 496
Ouimet, Joseph Rodolphe, 323
Private, business of, 1719

House of Commons — Con.
Members — Con.
Speeches, length of, 2450, 2635
Ministers and directorships. See that title
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473, 2507
Speaker's ruling, 2519
Non-debatable
That Com. rise, 1181
Oleomargarine (Mr. Neill) time fixed for discussion, 1719
Redistribution, M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion, 1719
Supply in, 1579
Orders for returns. See under this title, Returns
Orders of the Day
Right of member to raise qu. of privilege, 2638
Pairs. See under this title, Divisions
Petitions, Birnie, Mr. Alex. and others, 1929
Privilege
Baxter, Hon. Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3492
Caldwell, Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Copp, Hon. Mr. — Correction of report respecting War claims, 1721
Crerar, Hon. Mr. — Budget debate, agricultural figures quoted in, 2637
Deslauriers, Mr. — Correction of speech, 3365-6
Fielding, Hon. Mr. — Clerk Assistant, 687
Gauvreau, Mr. — Statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Hoey, Mr.—Denial of newspaper reports. 2458
Johnston, Mr. (Last Mountain) — Charge that Progressives are delaying budget debate, 2692
Kay, Mr. — Wheat Board, 872
Maclean, Mr. (York) — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Right of member to raise qu. on orders of the day, 2638
Questions
Lengthy answers to, 1660
Tabulated statements in official report of debates, 1132
Returns
Inquiry for, 1283, 1988, 2042
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Rules, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Senate, and, expenditure, qu. 2583
Sergeant-at-Arms
Parliamentary messengers, qu. 1376, 1335

House of Commons — Con.
Sittings
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Saturday, 1905, 2032, 2458
Suspended, 3611-14
Wednesday at 3 p.m., 49
Wednesday evenings, 1905, 2033, 2170
Speaker. See that title
Speeches, length, 2450, 2635
Staff
Chief accountant, salary, qu. 2583, qu. 2803
Chief of stationery division, 3608
Law branch, 2304
Organization, 3221
Amended, 1335
Reading room, assistant curators, 1335
Stenographers and messengers, pay, qu. 1376
Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Supply
Amendment to amendment, 1579
Discussion of particular item of estimates on M. to go into Supply, 1337
Motion, movers of, 1579
Motion for, latitude in discussion, 2238
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459

House of Commons and Senate Act Amdt. bill. See Ministers and Directorships; Salaries Act Amdt.

Housing, 121, 219, 774, 3524. See also Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Building costs, 2417
Returned soldiers, for, 271, 3304, 3314, 3321-22, 3329, 3332. See also that title
Shortage of, 1072
Unemployment, and, 3524

Howe, Hon. Joseph, 1387

Hubbs, Mr. John (Prince Edward)
Alcohol tax, retail druggists, 1213

Hudson, Mr. A. B. (South Winnipeg)
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444
Immigration-Criminal Code bills, 3283
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3199, 3210

Hudson's Bay Company
Northwest country and, 148
Supplies to northern Indians, 1712

Hudson Bay Railway, 2602
Completion of, 2779

Hudson Bay Railway — Con.
Hudson Bay
Navigability and fishery resources of, 2781, 2779-99
Port Nelson, 1970
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1208, 1325
Senate committee, report, 2781

Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993, 3314

Hughes, Mr. J. J. (King's P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 224. Reciprocity and class legislation, 224; immigration and unemployment, 225; Prince Edward island markets and government inspection; income tax, administration of Act, 226; sales tax; daylight saving; eight-hour day and farmers, 227; labour unions; railways and the maritime provinces, 228
Administration, economy in, 3077-8
Budget, 2225. Financial situation, debt, expenditure, economy; borrowings, 2225; the amendment, 2226; income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227; sales tax; extravagant war expenditures, 2228; Wartime Elections Act, 2229
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1925, 1956
Canned goods, inspection of, 3049
Civil Service Commission, 3076
Civil Service, economy, 2060
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1989
Income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227
Military expenditures and policy, 1143
Militia, annual drill, 1144
Montague, P.E.I., post office building, 1264
Railway policy, 1956

Humane Society, Criminal Code Amdt., 2831

Humphrey, Mr. L. W. (West Kootenay)
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1526
Pension Board, charges against, 2994
Postal revenue, qu. 2040
Remuneration of railway employees — Mr. McCrea, 2316

Hungary, Treaty with, 3359, 3490, 3547. For Bill, See Peace Treaties

Hutterites. See Immigration

Hydro Electric, 632, 1326, 1937, 2327, 2747. See also Electrification; Maclean, Mr. (York); St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Commission, 1937
Difference with Ontario Government, 1080
Power development in Ontario, 63, 71, 131, 1950
St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1188-9. See also that title

Hydrographic Survey, 1736, 1746. See also Naval Service

Hyndman Commission. See Grain Inquiry Commission

Ice-breakers
Claim of Canadian Towing & Wrecking Co., 1677
Repurchase of, 1490
Thunder Bay, at, 1677
Vickers company contract, 320

Iceland, immigration from, 2144

Immigration, 6-7, 56, 79, 80, 82, 88, 145, 164, 182, 236, 282, 297, 311, 336, 348, 2243, 2254. See also Address; Budget; Census; Labour; Oriental Aliens; Unemployment
Advantages, 2516
Agents,
Bonus to, 3062
Promises by, 3058, 3063
Agricultural labourers, 297, 2143, 2161, 2193, 2514, 3053-5
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2147
Alien enemies, 2146
Asiatic. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Attitude towards the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
British, 2144, 2150, 2515
Artisans, 2258, 2516
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Buildings, repairs, etc., 1757
Bukowinians, 2159
Canadian National railways, and, 1927
Canadians emigrating, qu. 1182. See also under this title, Emigration
Central European, 2154-8, 2166, 2477
Child, 2144, 2148, 2153, 2161, 2163, 3063
Chinese, 2026. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Commissioner at Canton, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

Immigration — Con.
Classes prohibited after May 9, 2514
Crime, and, 1392-4, 2517
Deportation. See Immigration-Criminal Code Bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Aliens trafficking in drugs, 2019
Desirable, 3057
Domestic servants, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Doukhobors, 167, 2160
Eastern Canada, 2165
Eastern Europe, 80
Emigration from Canada, 2260, 2372, 2516, 2865. See also Population
Canadians, qu. 1182
Exodus from Canada, 2478, 2516
Losses through, 2516
Record of, 2158
Europe, from, 308. See also under this title, Central European Follow up policy, 2160
Foreign-born and crime, 1392-4, 2517
Galicians, 2159
Great Britain, from, 2480
Growth of wealth under, 13
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment of, 2145
Holland, 2144
Holland, Lee, deportation of, 872, 1282
Household workers, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Hutterites and Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Icelandic, 2144
Industrial centres, from, 236
Inspection, 2143
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 171
Italian, 2171
Japanese. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Land, speculation in, 2152-9
Language qualification, 2515
Literature, Ontario Government, 2566
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2151, 2153, 2518
Manitoba Liberal Convention, res. 2478
Maritime provinces, and, 2165
Meals for immigrants, qu. 2971
Medical inspection, 2021, 2143
Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Emigration to Mexico, qu. 732, 2160
Mentally unfit, 2145
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148, 2208, 3058
Montreal Board of Trade res. 2517
"Nomination system", 3056
Oriental, 319, 2143. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Asiatic, 173, qu. 732
British Columbia in, 167

Immigration — Con.
Oriental — Con.
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction of, qu. 1289, qu. 1399
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Oriental Aliens, 319. See that title
Poland, 2145
Policy
Criticisms, 2579
Minister's statement, 17, 2143, 2476, 2481
Physically fit, 3055-6
Printers, 3055
Problems of, 350
Qualifications, 2479
Quebec, facilities at, 1465
Racial groups, 236
Assimilation, of, 2517
Rate of, 269
Reception of the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
Regulations, 249-250, 2148, 2215, 2513-14
Res. of Manitoba Liberal Convention, 2478
Restricted, 167, 2513-14, 3056
St. John immigration buildings, 2027
Scandinavian, 2144
Shandro's plan, 2153
Sifton, Sir Clifford, and, 268
Undesirable, 1389, 2154
Ukrainians, 3061
Unemployment, and, 151, 182, 225, 1071. See also that title
Union of Canadian municipalities resolution, 236, 2155
United States, from, 658, 2147, 2150, 2162, 2477. See also that title
Work, lack of, 251. See also under this title, Unemployment

Immigration Act
Disqualification of British-born under, 1389-91

Immigration Act Amdt. bills
1. Trial by jury, deportation, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 864
Ref. to Special Com., 1388-94, 1502
Additions to Special Com., 1719
Special Com. reports, 1988, 2519, 3104, 3156. See also Criminal Code bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
Final report, 3280
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to refer back, 3282-83
Amdt. neg. 3286
M. (Mr. Archambault) to concur
M. agreed to, 3286
(Subjects and sections discussed)

Immigration Act Amdt. bills — Con.
Trial by jury — Con.
Arrest without warrant, 1390
Assumption of powers of government, 1391
British subject, naturalization of, 1391
Decision of immigration authorities, 1389
Deportation of British subject without trial, 1390
Domicile, 1389
Enemy aliens, 1389
Foreigners, 1392
Organized Government, disbelief in, 1389
Overt acts and thoughts, 1390
Prohibited or undesirable classes, 1389
Repeal of provisions of 1919 Act, 1392
Retroactive legislation, 1391
Trial by jury, 1388
2. Intending Immigrants to make written application. (Mr. Neil) 1r., 2207

Immigration and Colonization
Department
Civil government estimates, 3499
Contingencies, 3051
Deputy Minister, qu. 2970
Estimates, 1711, 2026 2143, 3499
Representative at Canton, China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214
Salaries, etc., 754, 3502

Imperial Conference. See also Conferences; Prime Minister Conference
Naval defence, 1864

Imperial Convention of Teachers, grant, 1673

Imperial Council, qu. 2803

Imperial Defence. See National Defence bills

Imperial Forces, pensions. See Pensions

Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237

Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, 2517

Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Imported Goods, marking of. See Budget; Customs; Imports

Imports and Exports. See also Budget; Customs; Germany; Trade
Agricultural figures, 209, 2618-19
Automobiles and parts, qu. 1633. See also that title
British goods, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
By countries, 2109
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Duties, 2668. See also Customs

Imports and Exports — Con.
Exports
Decrease, 2579
Fiscal years, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu. 1376
Restriction of exports, 2883
United States, to, 209. See also United States
1911-1922, qu. 1661
Germany, from, 2421, 2644. See Germany
Marking, 2113, 3476-7. See also Customs
Meat, of, qu. 610
Quantity, and, value of, 2182
Revenue from, qu. 827
Statement for last three years, 2109
Structural steel, qu, 1931
Valuation, 2113, 3413
For duty, amended regulation, 2854

Income Tax. 2174, 2220, 2691, 2693. See also Address; Budget; Taxation; Ways and Means
Administration of, 226, 2024
Aliens, non-residents, 1301
Amount collected, qu. 366
Average, by classes, 2298
Banks, payments by, 1400
Branch, appointments to, 1663
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Civil Service retirement fund, qu. 937
Classification of taxpayers, 1063
Collections, 60
In 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Manufacturers, from, 60
Commercial travellers, 2174, 3484. See also Income War Tax Act Amdt.
Comparison with systems of other countries, 2227
Exemptions, 2275
Farmers, and, 352, 2714
Great Britain, reductions in, 2860
Inequalities, 2672
Inquiry for legislation, 3103
Montreal office employees, qu. 607, 1288
Payments by grades, qu. 3362
Revenue and classification of taxpayers, 1063, qu. 1399
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Winnipeg, qu. 1340
Riordon Paper Company, qu. 927
St. John, N.B., office, qu. 826
Systems in other countries, 2227
Widows and widowers, 2174

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
Res. 3478; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
Sections and subjects discussed:
Banks not entitled to deductions, 3485

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill — Con.
Sections and Subjects discussed — Con.
Exemptions, 3359
Children, 3484
Forms, 3486
Non-resident aliens
M. (Mr. German) 1301, agreed to, 1303
Taxation of American citizens, 3485
Travelling expenses of trainmen and commercial travellers, 3485

Indecent Assault. See Criminal Code

Indebtedness. See Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Indemnity of Members. See House of Commons

Index, Unrevised Edition. See House of Commons, Debates

Indian Act Amdt. bill (Enfranchisement of Indians; Ownership of land)
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3191; 3r., 3194

Indian Affairs, Department of
Estimates, 1214, 1712, 3536
Salaries, etc., 681

Indians
Agents. See also under this title, Reserves
Oka, 1217
Sturgeon Falls, qu. 1285
Agitation and unrest, 1223
British Columbia, 1713
Lands, 330
Legal expenses, 3536
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1220, 1224
Complaints, 1223
Destitute, relief for, 1712-14
Edmonton school, proposed, 1227-9, 3536
Education, 1227, 1715, 3536
Edmonton school, 1227-9, 3536
Elkhorn school, 3537
Morley school, 1218, 3536
Red Deer school, 1229
Round Lake school, 3537
Stony reserve, qu. 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.
Expenditure, 1216, 1225
Field and garden seeds, 1712
Food allowance, 1220
General expenses, 1226, 1712
Greater production campaign, 1216-20, 1224, 1288
Half-breed scrip frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code
Health, 1220, 1230
Hospitals and medical attention, 1218-24, 1713

Indians — Con.
Janse brothers, land in Ermineskins reserve, 1713
Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225
Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and northwest, 1218
New Brunswick, 1215
Nova Scotia, 1214
Number in Canada, 685
Ontario and Quebec, 1216
Potlach Institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Indians serving gaol sentences for, 1578, 1721
Reserves
Blackfoot, 1224
Greater production, 1288
Pasture land, qu. 2215
Blood, 1219
Land leased, qu. 2969
Devon band, proposed removal, 1215
Ermineskins, 1712
Keeseekoose-Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Oka, Indian agent, 1217
St. Peters, qu. 472
Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Six Nation, 1220-1
Stony, 1218
Education, qu. 965, 1227, 3536
Sydney
Medical attendance, qu. 2216
Proposed transfer, 1215
Tobique, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Settlers. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Smallpox and other diseases, 1714. See also under this title, Health
Treaty No. 11, 1219, 1227
Tuberculosis, 1714
Yukon, 1226

Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372

Industrial Conference. See National Industrial Conference

Industrial Depression, 6. 10, 52, 85, 105, 210, 212, 218, 219, 223, 235. See also Address; Budget; Trade

Industrial Disputes. See Labour
Investigation Act, 1054, 1058. See also Nova Scotia Miners

Industrial Re-establishment. See Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment

Industrial Warfare. See Nova Scotia Miners

Industries. See also Address; Budget; Trade
Basic and secondary, 2384
Boot and shoes, cost of labour, 2350

Industries — Con.
Canadian, encouragement, 2658. See also Budget
Exhibitions of industrial products in France, 2031
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1289, 1396
Home, 2149, 2229. See also Budget
Key, 2379
Infant, encouragement, 2434
Manufacturing, 2377
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Protection and maintenance of, 144, 2677, 2409-11
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1318
Subsidizing, 2402
United States, branches in Canada, 2389, 2546
Woollen, cost of labour, 2350

"Industry and Humanity", reference to, 253, 534

Infant Mortality, 1380, 2634

Infectious Diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Inglis Boiler Works, qu. 732

Inheritance Tax. See this title under Taxation

Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill (Excise duties changed). Res. 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Sections and subjects discussed:
Alcohol for druggists, 3241
Beet sugar, 3246
Amdt. (Mr. Fansher) negatived, 3252
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239
Home brewing, 3141, 3142, 3252
Molasses, 3242
Raw leaf tobacco, 3241
Sugar, 3242

Inquiry for Returns. See House of Commons, Returns

Insect Pests. See Agriculture; Destructive Insect and Pest Act; Grasshoppers

Inside Service. See Civil Service

Inspection and Sale of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Insular Dominions. See Limitation of Armaments

Insurance
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 605
Canadian National railway, qu. 471, qu. 610

Insurance — Con.
Claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance
Fire prevention, 794
Foreign companies, tax, 2462
Fraternal benefit societies, 3143
Mutual companies, 3477. See also Special War Revenue
Premiums, tax on, 2117
Returned Soldiers, 3306, 3313. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers Insurance bill
Beneficiaries, 3328
Returns. See Special War Revenue bill
Soldiers, etc., 791
The People's Insurance Act, Great Britain, 1304
Unemployment, 1069-84
Sickness, and old age, qu. 1375
Woodmen of the World, 1905

Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3143; 3r., 3148; Senate admts. 3607

Inter-Allied Permanent Committee on Disabled Soldiers, 3403

Intercolonial Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Interest, 1921. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money

Interim Supply. See also Estimates; Supply
Committee, 378, 598
One-fourth vote suggested, 373
Position of Opposition last year, 378-385

Interim Supply Bill. See also Appropriation Acts
Res. 378; 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599

Interior Department
Canadian National parks, 1681
Conservation Commission employees, transfer to, 452-3
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Estimates, 452, 1033, 1270, 1680, 3517
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Migratory Birds, 1684
Nelson, Mr. Frank, salary, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
Statistics, 1366
Topographical maps, qu. 1632
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275

Interlocking Directorates, 2503. See also Ministers and Directorships

Internal Economy Commission. See House of Commons

International Boundary Commission, 1033

International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373

International Deep Sea Racing, M. (Mr. Duff) 1384, 3510

International Disarmament Conference. See Limitation of Armaments

International Harvester Company, 2382

International Institute of Agriculture, 969

International Joint Commission, 70. See also Electrification; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Report on St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1185, 1191, 1193, 1197, 1199, 1206, 1315, 1396, 1469
Welland canal, 1688

International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070

International Operation of Railways. See under Canadian National Railways, Grand Trunk lines in United States

International Opium Convention, qu. 1066

International Waters. See Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence

Intoxicating Liquor. See Canada Temperance Act; Liquor

Inverness Pier, 1766

Invoice Certificates. See Customs Act Amdt.

Ireland-Halifax cable, qu. 3360

Iron and Steel Industry. See also Steel
Structural steel importations, qu. 1931

Irrigation
Preservation of forests and, 1723
Southern Alberta, 761

Irvine, Mr. William (East Calgary)
Address in reply, 211; death of Prime Minister's brother; congratulations to Mr. Speaker, important matters contained in Speech from Throne, 211; industrial problems; social evolution, 212; complicated political system, 213; Labour party, 214; party system of government, 215; origin of parties, 216;

Irvine, Mr. William — Con.
Address — Con.
official Opposition; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 217; co-operation in government; production, consumption and unemployment, 218; unemployment insurance; industrial disturbance, 218; housing; gold standard and credit system; 219; protection and wages; home markets, 221; credit systems, 222; trade competition, 223; industrial problems — British labour party, 224
Agriculture and unemployment, 3058
British Empire Steel Corporation, 1082
Budget, 2495. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; taxation; public debt; chasing the financial blue-bird; colossal lie upon which budget is based; credit proposal to meet expenditures and debt; panic of national leaders, 2496; soundness of Canada's financial position; bank balances and real wealth; estimate of wealth and production, 2497; difference between production and consumption; average income of Canadian bread-winner; purchasing power, 2498; credit question at centre of national problems; Germany's industrial and financial position, wages, working hours; paper money, 2499; payment of indemnity in goods; proposed German loan; control of credit, 2500; the banking system; starting a new bank; issues of new money; issue of currency by Govt.; interest; private monopoly of social credit; indebtedness of Canada, 2501; inflation and deflation; under consumption; shut off interest taps of financiers; the Douglas system, 2502; definition of credit; ability to produce and deliver goods; a social asset; banking and interlocking directorates, 2503; regulation of prices, 2504; schemes proposed by Mr. Henry Ford and Mr. T. A. Edison, 2505; practical attempts to inaugurate credit system; island of Guernsey, 2505; St. Louis municipal currency; the gold basis; collapse of financial system; investigation of banking system, 2506; taxation of consumer; the amendment; attitude of Opposition; amendment to the amendment, 2507; attitude of Progressives; Farmers' platform; fiscal policy of Canadian Council of Agriculture; speech of leader of Progressive party; tariff proposals of Canadian

Irvine, Mr. William — Con.
Budget — Con.
Council of Agriculture, 2509; tax on unimproved land values; inheritance tax, 2510
Debate, M. for adjournment, 2448, 2451, 2455
Business profits war tax, 2024
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Government railways, deficits, qu. 607
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1953
Canadian Patriotic Fund Act, 3478-84
Customs department, estimates, 769
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Financial credit, M. 1290
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Gold in central reserves and chartered banks, qu. 2971
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393, 3285
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022, 3060
Labour department
Employment specialist, 461
Statisticians, 462
Wage investigators, 463
Labour and unemployment, 3060
Loans, five year maturities, qu. 2993
Mackenzie-Mann subsidies, qu. 607
Military expenditure and policy, 1150, 1617
Ministers and directorships, 1120
Non-taxable bonds, qu. 2971
Nova Scotia miners
M. to adjourn House to discuss, 497, 539; withdrawn, 545
Quarantine. immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3456
Pensions Com., final report, 3345
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1745
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Shoe industry, protection, 3238
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1617
Tariff against France, 2032
Unemployment
Insurance, 1081
National Conference, 1082
Public works and highways, 1082
Relief, 2023
Situation, 1080
Standing committee, 1082
War, causes and effects of, 1618

Isle Perrot bridge, See Bridges

Italy
Genoa Conference, correspondence, 1905, 2035
Immigrants from, 2171
Trade, effect of currency valuation, 2849

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. (George Etienne Cartier)
Air Board, 1722
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Archives branch, 703
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (petition in bankruptcy) 1395
Budget, 2513. Immigration, restrictive regulations; certain classes of immigration prohibited after May 9; agriculturists; farm labourers and domestic servants, 2514; discrimination in favour of British immigrants; language qualification; attempt to secure farmers bound to fail, 2515; artisan class should be admitted; immigration of the last ten years; exodus; loss of a million people; advantages of immigration; immigration into the United States, 2516; resolution of Montreal Board of Trade; curious notions in regard to immigration; Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire; assimilation of races; foreign-born and crime, 2517; Miss Macphail's objection to sheepskin coats; foreigners engaged in textile and other trades; government by Order in Council, 2518
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, amdt., 3000, neg. 3006
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, appointment of, 1368
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3498
Cigars and cigarettes, tax, 3240
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Criminal Code revision, 1717
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 477
"Foreigners and crime" propaganda, 1392, 2517
Grecian and Roumanian loans, qu. 1400
Immigration, 2513-2517
Department of, 3500
Deputy Minister, Mr. W. J. Black, qu. 2970, 3500
Dutch, 2144

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. — Con.
Immigration — Con.
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Meals for immigrants, 2971
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1391, 1392
Insurance premiums, taxation, 3254-5
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Palestine, mandate over, 1716
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Steamship subsidies, qu, 614
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974

Jamieson, Mr. J. A., claim of, 1687

Japan
Army reduction, 1610
Coal, importation from, 2406. See also Coal
Immigration from. See Oriental Aliens
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights and disabilities of Canadians in, qu. 1289, 1511, 2208
Treaty with, 1510. See also, Limitation of Armaments

Jasper Park, Edith Cavell road, 1051

Jelliff, Mr. L. H. (Lethbridge)
Air force and civil aviation, High River, 1734
Customs tariff, woollen clothing, 3235
Irrigation, Southern Alberta, 761
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Live stock, loss through wolves, 990, 1001
Rotary rod weeders, duty on, 3121
Sales tax, 3272
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, salary increases, 406

Job Printing. See Special War Revenue, Sales Tax

Joggins, breakwater, 1767

Johnson, Mr. R. M. (Moosejaw)
Address in reply, 112. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; position of Progressive party, 112; agricultural conditions, 113; marketing of grain, 114; tariff; natural resources of western provinces; public ownership of railways, 116
Agriculture, retirement of Dr. Saunders, 590, 3522
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103, 2737

Johnson, Mr. R. M. — Con.
Canada Grain Act
Constitutionality of, 2837
Overages, 2838
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3009
Canadian National railways. Bengough extension, 2770
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 472, 2951. See also under this title, Wheat Board bill
Advance to, 3541
Customs, dumping clause, 3419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472
Goderich harbour, grain shipment through, 2002
Government publications, 1374
Grain companies, default of, 2837
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 427
Justice dept, estimates, 1668
Labour dept.
Temporary clerks, 567
Wage investigators, 462-3
Lignite Utilization Board, 3526
National Defence bill, 2808
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Public buildings
Heating, 1759
Western provinces, discrimination against, 1254
Quebec harbour advances, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity, 590, 3522
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, Fort Qu'Appelle sanitarium, 1345
Threshing machines, 3124-25
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2762
Wheat Board bill, 3177, 3180, 3182, 3188, 3384
Amdt. 3178

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred (Last Mountain)
Accredited herds, diseases, 968
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2220. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity; financial situation, 2220; revenue and expenditure; debt; war obligations; profiteering; failure to tax wealth; tariff reductions; sales tax, 2221; income tax; immigration; increased production, 2222; markets; trade with United States; Wheat Board; amendment, 2223; failure of Government to propose progressive policy, 2224

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 469
Cultivators, etc., duty on, 3120
Customs Act, valuation, 3415
Dominion lands, sale of, qu. 376
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Immigration
Deputy Minister, 757
Officials, 760
Implement parts, duty, 3120
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Militia and Defence, pay of staff, 1982
Ministers and Directorships, 1120
Ottawa public buildings, 1252
Ploughs, etc., duty on, 3121
M. to reduce, 3121
Printing Bureau, plant and publications, 1971
Privilege, Progressives and delay in budget debate, 2692
Redistribution and the census, 1370
Rural and urban population, qu. 376
War memorials, 2101

Joint Industrial Councils. See Labour

Jones, Mr. George B. (Royal)
Canadian National railways, coal importations, qu. 2213
Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938
Le Blanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773
St. John terminal facilities, 848

Judges. See also Bankruptcy Act Amdt.; Exchequer Court; Justice; Supreme Court
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Admiralty, local judge in, 1274
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment at, 3496
Judges Act, Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Nova Scotia Supreme Court vacancy, 3436
Political commissions, on, 2397
Provincial commissions, on, qu. 366
Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Salaries, 2512, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Judges Act Amdt. bill (Saskatchewan Court of Appeal
Res. 424; 1r., 429; 2r., com., 546; 3r., 547
Senate amdts., 2830

Judicial Districts. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill

Justice
Administration of
Exchequer Court, 1274

Justice — Con.
Administration of — Con.
Litigated matters, 1276
Pecuniary Claims, 1276
Penitentiaries, 1276
Supreme Court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Civil Government, 1668
Estimates, 1274, 1668, 3495
Minister of, directorships and, 242-3. See also Ministers and Directorships
Pecuniary claims convention with United States, 1276
Prisons and penitentiaries, inspection of by Grand Juries, 1279
Salaries and contingencies, 451
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, expenses, 1669

Juvenile Delinquents
Prison farms for, qu. 1773
Special schools for, qu. 469
16, 17, and 18 years old, qu. 1773

Kamloops
Model city, 318
Post office building, 1255

Kamloops-Kelowna Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Kamouraska, vacancy, 1459

Kay, Mr. W. Fred (Missisquoi)
Agricultural implements
Standardization of parts, 2406
Appearance of Senator McCoig before Com. on Agriculture, 2406
Agriculture and Colonization Com. reports
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900
M. for concurrence in fifth report, 2915
Wheat Board, 657, 703, 726, 776, 865, 1929
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial to, 2101
Daylight saving, M., 942-3
Privilege, Wheat Board, 872
Reference to, 1282

Kelley, Mr. Howard G., qu. 729

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. (East Edmonton)
Air force and civil aviation, 1723
Animal contagious diseases, compensation, 2806
Budget, 2280. Congratulations to Minister of Finance, 2280; attitude of Progressives to old parties; little change in policy indicated by budget proposals; new taxes; principle of taxation; depression throughout the country, 2281; position

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. — Con.
Budget — Con.
of the farmer; workingman and business man; labour and capital; public debt; credit system, 2282
Canteen funds, undistributed, qu. 2215
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3216
Immigration regulations, compliance with, qu. 2215
Soldier land settlement, 2141
Soldiers' pay, exchange on, qu. 826
Winnipegosis wharf, 3545

Kemp, Sir Edward, ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169

Kennedy, Mr. Donald M. (West Edmonton)
Address in reply, 142. Constituency of West Edmonton, 141-142; conditions in western Canada; tariff question, 143; protection of industries, 144; immigration, 145; Wheat Board; freight rates on grain; Crowsnest pass agreement, 146; soldier settlers, 147; railways, western provinces, natural resources, 147-8; half-breed scrip, 148
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Banks, income and note circulation taxes, qu. 1400
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Scrip frauds) 1062, 1395, 3213, 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for steel plates, 1680
Edmonton bridge, 2007
Harbours and rivers, Alberta and Saskatchewan, 2005
Indians, 1232
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515
Public buildings, furniture, etc., 1758
Public Works dept., average salary, 749
Rural mail contracts, subletting, 2801
Steamship subsidies, fair wage clause, 3506
Steel industry, 769

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred (Glengarry and Stormont)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2737
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Liquor, export of, 3005
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, wheat carriage, 3039
Customs
Drawbacks, 769
Officials, 765
Valuations, 3416

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred — Con.
Dairy Grading Act, 652
Director of Commercial Intelligence, 700
Immigration figures, 758
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Railway finances, qu. 471
Sugar beet industry, 3245

Kennedy, Hon. William C. (Minister of Railways and Canals)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3035
Canadian National railways
Annual statement, 873
Branch lines, Bengough extension, 2771
Canadian Northern, advance to, 1905
Consolidation, 1963
Deficits, 875-86
Corrected statement, 1919
Directors, 2791
Appointment of new board, 2772, 2794
Representative of employees, 2794
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Grand Trunk Pacific
Advances to, 3520
Branch lines, 3520
Intercolonial, employees' provident fund, 2769
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, 1135
New board of directors, appointment, 2772, 2794
Rolling stock, repairs, 1212
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Transcontinental, allowance to enlisted men, 3518
Canadian Transit Co. bill, 1772
Canals. See also under this title, St. Lawrence
Rideau, 2769
Soulanges, 2768
Trent, 2764
Welland, 2747
Construction, 1687
Port Colborne elevator, Jameson claim, 1687
Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See under this title, Freight Rates
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
Freight Rates, M. for Special Com., 1213, 1402-3, 1502
Gaspe railways, 627
Governor General's cars, 1688
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 1970, 2798
Ottawa-Kingston highway, 2794
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689

Kennedy, Hon. William C. — Con.
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
Motherwell, Hon. Mr., alleged statement, 2774
Representation of labour, 2776
Railway estimates, 407-8, 1133, 1905, 1933, 2747
St. John valley railway, 3039
St. Lawrence river waterway, surveys, 2768
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2768
Shipbuilding, cost of, 3508

Key Industries Act, 2424

Kindersley, post office building, 1254

King, Hon. J. H. (Minister of Public Works)
Big Bay point, sunken vessel, removal of, 2006
British Columbia govt., reply to criticism of, 2237
Courtenay Bay, 2014
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Introduction, 496
National gallery, 2011
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1547
Public buildings
Appropriations and expenditures, 1921-22, 1259
Calgary, 1254
Coal for, 1758
Edmundston, 1240
Flags, 1264
Furniture purchases, 1757
Galt, 1247
Generally, expenditure, 1260
Halifax expenditures, 1244
Hamilton, 1246-51, 1258
Heating, 1758
Kamloops, 1255
Maritime provinces, 1243
Montagu, P.E.I., 1264
Ontario, 1245
Ottawa, 1252
Dominion observatory, Geodetic survey, 1266
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
New departmental, architects' designs, 3541
Water, 1266
Parliament buildings, 2014
Architects' fees, 2014-16
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
Tower, 2016
Quebec, 1245

King, Hon. J. H. — Con.
Public Buildings — Con.
Rentals, 1259
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
St. Catherines, 1258
St. John quarantine station, 1240-1
St. George public building, 1240
Saskatoon, 1253
Swift Current, 1253
Toronto, 1246-7
Victoria, 1255
Weston, 1260
Public Works
Dredging, 2005
St. Marys river, 2006
Drydocks,
Esquimalt, 3541-2
Vancouver, 1255, 2005, 2010
Harbours and rivers, 1988
British Columbia, 2005
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1991
Provincial wharves, 1992
St. John, 2014
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
Inverness pier, 1760
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Ontario, 1999
Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Quebec, 1998
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2005
Selkirk, wharf, 2004
Shuswap lake wharf, 3547
Winnepegosis wharf, 3545
Public Works dept.
Employees transferred, 696
Estimates, 692, 747, 749, 1238, 1270, 1755, 1988, 3541
River guaging and metering, 2011
Roads and bridges, 2007
Edmonton, bridge, 2007
St. John, N.B.
Harbour improvement, 2014
Terminal facilities, 849-50, 851
Telegraphs and telephones, 2012
Humbolt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Yukon radio-telegraph service, 1750

King, Mr. J. W. (North Huron)
Budget, 2301. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressives from Ontario; fiscal policy; small percentage of land under cultivation; drift towards the cities; infant industries; reciprocity with the United States; tariff proposals, 2302; friendly relations between Canada and United States, 2303
Grand Trunk railway, employees pension rights and status, 2041

King, Mr. J. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie (Prime Minister; Secretary of State for External Affairs; President of the Privy Council
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Address in reply, 38. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 38; welcome to Lord Byng; late Mr. Peter McGibbon; Miss Macphail, 39; remarks of the leader of the Opposition; followers of Mr. Meighen in present Parliament, 40; campaign literature and election results, 40-41; natural resources of western provinces, 41; treaties; Imperial Conference, Limitation of Armaments, 42; customs tariff revision, 43-44; position at Liberal Convention, 44; railway situation; government ownership, 45-46; marketing of wheat, 46-47; railway freight rates; party formation and names, 47; negotiations with Progressive party, 48; Liberal administration, 48-49; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) and Mr. Motherwell, 49
Ammunition, artillery, shipment from Britain, 1154, 1156, 1163, 1165, 1172
Annual drill, 1155, 1165
Demobilization expenditure for, 1155-65
Annuities, 776
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Assiniboine river floods, 1842
Auditor General's report, 424
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 2803
Banff-Windermere road, 1681
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Ethier) 1662
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Board of Commerce, 1715
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
International disarmament conference, papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
British Columbia house, London, purchase, 3537
Budget, 2537. Conflicting amendments evidence of wisdom of budget proposals, 2537; taxation, re-adjustment of; speeches of Progressive and Op-

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Budget — Con.
position leaders; extreme points of view; amendment to amendment; a protectionist budget; repeal of protectionist legislation; reduction of duties; effort to carry out Liberal policy; protection versus free trade not the issue, 2538; tariff revision; amendment; no constructive suggestions; Sir Henry Drayton's tariff proposals of 1920, 2539; platform of National Liberal Conservative party; trade with the mother country; disregard of political honour; promised revision of tariff, 2540; pledges of Liberal party; Liberal Convention of 1919; chart, 2541; statement of policy last session; budget consistent with campaign utterances; no deception of electorate, 2542; Mr. Meighen's London speech; Liberal handbook, 2543; tariff revision on basis of revenue; duties on instruments of production and necessaries of life; pledges fulfilled; tribute to Finance Minister; stability and confidence, 2544
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Customary procedure, 7
Debates on naval service estimates, 1899
Easter adjournment, 546, 821, 823
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, adjournments, 1769, 1905
Estimates, 569, 2167, 3527
Govt. orders on Monday and Wednesday, 1460
Legislation to be introduced, 2996, 3041, 3102, 3103, 3365
Mines and Minerals Com., 1398
Mondays and Wednesdays, 49, 1719, 2169
Order of, 374
Private members', 1719
Prorogation, 3365
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Quotations from anonymous letter, 1480
Saturday sittings, 2033, 2458
Wednesday sittings, 49
Evening, 2169
Canada Grain Act, Manitoba Court of Appeal decision, 1770
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts. 3613-4
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Coal importations, from Japan, 2406
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National parks, 1681
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation of system, 2585
Co-ordination, 73
Directors, sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian representation in the United States, 1384
Canadian Wheat Board bill. See under this title, Wheat Board
Cattle embargo, alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1463
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., claim of, 3498
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 871
Civil Service
Appointments, 573-4
Bonus, 733, 1258
Appropriation, 3528-36
Inquiry as to payment, 2996
Economy, 424
Salaries, 552
$960 and less, 1660
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Coal
Importation from Japan, 2406
Mined by Orientals, 2407
Con Rein sinking, 1384
Contingencies, vote for, 415
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half-breed scrip) 3220
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth) 865, 1719
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting, 1717
Crowsnest pass agreement. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, 2458
Death of brother, Dr. MacDougall King, 211, 224, 230, 276
Debates, Official Report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeau, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Deputy Speaker, election, 363
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1334
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion Lands, cancellation of leases bills, Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1236

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Estimates, classification of, 569, 2167, 3527
External Affairs
Salaries, 412, 3509
Secretaries, 411
Fielding, Hon. Mr., congratulations to, 3279
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1293
Freight Rates (Crowsnest pass agreement)
Special Com., ref to
M. (Mr. Kennedy), Essex) 1213, 1432-8, 1453-4
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Reports, 3546, 3560
"General" Macdonald's army, 2256
Genoa Conference, 582, 823, 1715
Cannes documents tabled, 865
Correspondence tabled, 865
With Italy, 2035
Reported subscription to consortium, 1463
Grand Trunk Arbitration
British newspaper article, 374, 822
Grand Trunk railway, pension rights and status of employees
M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
High Commissioner
Alleged statement re cattle embargo, 1463, 1502
Office of, 414
House of Commons. See also under this title, Business of the House
Organization, amendment of, 1335
Sittings suspended, 3611-14
Staff, 3221
Immigration
Chinese, 3437
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 1711
Oriental. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864, 1388, 1394, 1719
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Indians
Estimates, 1712
Potlach institution, 1578
Number serving gaol sentences, 1721
Interim Supply bill, 379
Interior dept., printing and stationery, 1680
International Disarmament. See under this title, Limitation of Armaments
International Labour conference, 3437, 3490
Report and printing of, 3601
Japan
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights of Canadians in, 1289, 2208

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Labour dept. estimates, 564, 569, 577
Lake Huron marine allowance, 1930
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3206, 3211, 3435
League of Nations
Permanent secretariat
Canada's contribution, 2990
Expenses, 3173
Protocols of proposed amdt. to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171
Limitation of Armaments, 786
Papers, 1283
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Res., 3157
Treaty tabled, 9
Liquor importation, 733. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 639
Ministers and directorships, 1098
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Munitions, shipment from Britain, 1154-65-72
National Defence bill, 547, 662, 680
Natural resources transfer to western provinces, 1017
M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence 1509
Provincial governments, correspondence with, tabled, 1769
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval defence, 1873-1899
Naval service
Gift of ships to Canada, 2051
Royal Canadian navy, 1873-1899
Newmarket, speech at, 35
Norris, Premier, statement on freight rates and natural resources, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 536, 597
Occupational diseases, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 1381
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3427-35
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill), time for discussion, 1719
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
Immigration
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1554, 1573-6
Japanese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Parliament, fall session, 3608
Pensions, Insurance, etc.
Special Com., appointed, 496-7
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Prime Ministers' Conference, 5
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, reported statement of Lord Lee, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Proceedings tabled, 8
Prime Ministers' secretaries, 411
Privy Council
Estimates, 410
Private secretaries, 410
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1655
Public buildings appropriations, 1259
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec fisheries, 8
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Railway Commission, Hon. Mr. Motherwell, 2774, 3491
Redistribution, 733
Bill to be introduced next session, 3608
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719, 1769
References to, (Sir Henry Drayton, "jilting Quebec") 206, 1365, 1754, 2969. See also Address; Budget
Regional Bureau of the International Catalogue of Scientific literature, 3528
Returned soldiers. See also under this title, Pensions; Soldiers
Announcement of Govt.'s policy, 2637
Unemployment of, 2458. See also under this title, Unemployment
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Industrial disputes, and, 666
M. (Mr. Woodsworth), 834
Macleod detachment, reported removal of, 2585
Russian relief, 3516
St. Lawrence river waterway
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Correspondence with United States Govt., 2357, 2583, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
International Joint Commission, report, 2357
Treaty with United States Govt., 2207, 2760
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Soldiers' bonus, 396
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 431, 437
Speaker, Mr.
Bereavement of, 496
Congratulations to, 3489
Election of, 1

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Steamship services, 2027
Tariff commissioner, appointment of, 1666
Tourist traffic, 1682
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Unemployment. See also under this title, Returned Soldiers
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Federal, provincial and municipal obligations, 1073-9
Insurance, 1073
Relief, 1719
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1073-9
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
War memorials, 2099
Washington conference papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
Wheat Board, 378, 783, 2921, 3179
Concurrence in report of Special Com., delay, 2306
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Wheat Board bill, 3190, 3383
Wrangel island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208
Yukon territory, administration of, 1681

King-Crerar Alliance, negotiations, 48, 206. See also references in Address

King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision. See Canada Grain Act

Kingston
Election petition, 2692
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Klim, competition with milk, 981

Knives, German production of. See Budget; Customs Act; Currency; Guthrie; Stevens

Knox, Mr. Andrew (Prince Albert)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal royalties, qu. 375
Customs tariff, ploughs 3230
Easter adjournment, 546
Experimental farms, 800
Hudson bay railway, 2750, 2779
Mines dept., field work, 690
Natural resources of western provinces, 457-8
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted Police, 3523

Knox, Mr. Andrew — Con.
Port Nelson, examination of masters and mates, 1491
Rideau canal, 2769
Riordan Company, taxation, qu., 372
Royal Canadian Mounted Police pensions
Inadequate, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1495
Welland ship canal, 2750

Kodaks, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Kootenay, Burlington channel bridge, 2007

Kyte, Mr. George W. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
American magazines, 3109
Budget, 2358. Congratulations to Finance Minister; testimony of opposition to wisdom of Minister's proposals, 2358; tariff an issue no longer, burden of taxation; revenue tariff; sales tax; the workingman; cost of living; articles which do not pay the tax; interpretation of customs law; fishermen's rope; lumber; technical ruling of officials; agricultural implements, 2360; revenue tariff; England's tariff policy; protective duty counterbalanced by excise tax; origin of protective tariff in United States, 2361; manufacturers and war profits; propaganda of Canadian manufacturers; alleged reconstruction committee, 2362; election campaigns of 1896 and 1911; reciprocity with United States; increase of population under Liberal and Conservative rule; immigration, 2363
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia, civil pensions, 3499
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Rail and car contracts, 1693, 1694
Unemployment at Sydney, rail orders in advance, 1691

Labour. See also Civil Service; Housing; Immigration; Industrial Disputes; Oriental Aliens; Returned Soldiers; Shipbuilding; Unemployment
Administration, 1058
British labour party, 224
Bureaux, 3314
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Wages, qu. 3598
Canadian National railways
Representation on Board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors

Labour — Con.
Canadian Pacific, conditions on, 2315
Capital and, 2117, 2191, 2250, 2282. See also Speeches on Budget
Coal. See also N. S. Miners
Canmore and Drumheller, miners' dispute, 1058
Competition with foreigners, 2154, 2435
Orientals, with, 317, 345. See also Oriental Aliens
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Conditions, 2350
Cost of living, 1175, 1303, 2331. See also that title
Costs, 2317, 2349-50
Cotton industry, wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903
Lower, 2436
Department
Annuities branch, 776
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu. 937
Classification, 494
Director of Technical Education, 578
Estimates, 1053, 1719, 1970
Officials and economy, 464-5
Printing bureau, 1970
Salaries and contingencies, 458, 493, 548
M. (Mr. Stevens) to reduce item, 562, 579, agreed to, 581
Statistical branch, 1366
Technical education, 459, 460, 578
Temporary clerks, 548
Wage investigators, 462
Departments employing organized and unorganized labour, qu. 2303
Distribution of, 2149
District No. 18, board, 1058
Economic injustice to, 2323
Eight-hour day, 184, 2311. See also Daylight Saving
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Espionage, 670-9
Exodus of workmen, 2469
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Farms, on, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration
Genoa Conference. See that title
Germany, conditions in, 2411. See also Germany
Hours, 2317. See also under this title, Eight Hour Day
Housing, 219. See also that title
Immigration of farm workers and domestics, 2480, 3053-4. See also Immigration
Industrial centres, 236
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1054, 1058

Labour — Con.
Industrial disputes, Mounted Police and, 667, 679. See also Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth)
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Report, printing of, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1053, 1057
Leaders, 2118
McAdoo award, 1707
Mounted Police and, 670. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth): National Defence bill
Nova Scotia miners. See that title
Occupational diseases, protection against M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 829, 1378, withdrawn, 1382
O'Dell, Mr., on cost of labour in boot and shoe industry, 2350
Old age pensions, 1303. See also that title
Organized, 2321, 2324
Oriental, 2330. See also Oriental Aliens
Party, composition of, 214
Public ownership and, 130
Quebec harbour commission, wages of employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 2315
Canadian National, 2315
Representation on board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors
Canadian Pacific, 2315
Costs, 2317
Wages, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Railway Commission, representation on, 2776
Skilled, protection of, 2379
Specialization of, 2149
Strike-on-the-job, 1054
Strikes, 2320, 2322
District No. 18, miners' strike, 1058
Nova Scotia miners. See also that title
Gillen board, 1054
Railway employees, 2324
Winnipeg, 841, 1068
Cost of trials, qu. 1182
Literature, 837
Trades Union Conference, Rome, 1060
Unemployment. See also that title
Agriculture and, 2158, 2331
Calgary Trades and Labour Council, 1082
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Relief, 1719, 1970, 2022, 3526
Situation, 1069
Steel workers, Sydney, 1076
Trades and Labour Congress, and, 1081

Labour — Con.
Unions, 228, 2295, 2317-8, 3059
International, 2317
Unorganized, 2628
Unrest, 14, 17, 90. See also Address; Budget
Wages
Average income, 2498
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, qu. 3598
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Germany, in, 2407
Investigators, 462
Protection, and, 2298
Quebec Harbour Commission, employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417
Shops, 1707
Real and nominal, 2435

Labour Gazette, 1053-7
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu. 1903

Labrador Boundary, qu. 704, 2572

Lachenaie, Que., mail service, qu. 2805

Ladner, Mr. L. J. (Vancouver South)
Address in reply, 321, 326; four parties in politics, 321; Liberal party in British Columbia; Hon. John Oliver, 322; national railway, 326; returned soldier problems, 327; natural resources of prairie provinces, 328; British Columbia claims, 329
Belgium, trade with, 3223
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3538
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 720
Budget, 2276. Tribute to Minister of Finance; Budget of sixteen years ago; promises and policy of Liberal party, 2277; the amendment; tariff changes; British Columbia industries and protection, 2298; danger of Japanese competition; results of protective policy; weakness of budget; trade with Germany, 2279; sales tax; dumping clause and fruit industry, 2280
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Canneries, inspection of, 3048
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1448
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3191
Labour estimates, increase, 495
Oleomargarine
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Importation, 654

Ladner, Mr. L. J. — Con.
Oleomargarine — Con.
Manufacture and importation of, 1797
Regulations under Act, qu. 1902
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824, 3014
Appeal, 3023
Penalty, whipping, amdt., 3015, 3020
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1528
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-56
Pensions Com., final report, 3339
Potlach Indian institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1650
Vancouver dry dock, 1255, 1484, 2010
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822

Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225

Laflamme, Mr. J. N. K. (Drummond-Arthabaska)
Budget, 2895. World war and its consequences; motion and amendment; opposition arguments; Liberal platform of 1919; pledges and promises, 2896; Agrarian party; amendment to the amendment; standard of public life; currency valuation; dumping clause; marking of goods, 2897; insufficient reasons given for vote to defeat Government, 2898
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1944
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1566

Lafortune, Mr. D. A. (Jacques-Cartier)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 959

Lake Marine. See Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Grain; St. Lawrence river Waterway

Lake of the Woods
Control board, 2025
Joint board, 2805, qu. 2970

Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921, Repeal bill
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3199; 3r., 3435

Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507

Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch (Laprairie-Napierville)
Annual drill, 1154
Budget, 2567. Beer tax; war and taxation; tax free bonds, 2567; commercial patriotism; national railways, 2568;

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch — Con.
Budget — Con.
responsibility for overbuilding of railways; proposal to sell system to Canadian Pacific; freight rates, 2569; public ownership will lead to ruin; war and conscription, 2570; preparation for war; naval service; militarism; cattle embargo; public debt, 2571; parliamentary counsel; Hon. C. J. Doherty, reported engagement in Labrador - Newfoundland boundary case; payments to, 2572; departmental lawyers; co-ordination of law branches, economy, 2573
Civil Service classification, appeals, 1508
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract, 1678
Farm labour, cost of, 1163
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Lawyers, employment of by department of Justice, 1678
Manure, exportation of, 1018
Military expenditure and policy, 1153
Militia and defence
Military districts, 1775
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Militia council, qu. 2039
Naval council and officers, qu. 1774

Lands. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Accessible for homesteads, 87
Location of. See Criminal Code, Scrip frauds
Percentage under cultivation, 2302
Private ownership of, 1927
Public. See Natural Resources
Right of Canadians to hold in Japan, 2209
Settlement, 182-3. See also Soldier Land Settlement
Speculation in, 2404. See also Immigration
Undeveloped, settlement of, 236
Unimproved values, tax on, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation
Unoccupied, 2603
Western, cost to the immigrant, 2157

Langley, Hon. George, statement respecting Railway Commission, 2773

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. (Nipissing)
Budget, 2628. Congratulations to Finance Minister; the great unorganized body of wage-earners; clerks, book-keepers, commercial travellers and office assistants; cheerful acceptance of burden of citizenship; union government; day of reckoning; debt; curtailment of expenditure, 2628; restoration of pur-

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
chasing power; adjustment of tariff to financial exigencies; retail trade and prices, 2629
Georgian Bay canal, 1199
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1199
Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu. 1285
Postmaster, qu. 1285
Sudbury mail contract, qu. 1285

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest (Minister of Marine and Fisheries)
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Budget, 2585. Congratulations to Finance Minister, 2585; leader of Opposition; amendment; no violation of Liberal platform; political pledges and honour, 2586; a Liberal budget; no political party in favour of free trade; campaign bogeys; an academic question; protection an economic heresy; national as opposed to individual interest; geographical considerations, 2587; United States farmers and protection; Wheat Board, fixation of prices; financial and economic consequences of war; tariffs of Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Spain, 2588; Government tariff proposals, 2589; Liberal platform of 1893; reciprocity; not free trade but freer trade; revenue tariff; protection and revenue features of tariff legislation; exaggerated statements as to Canada's condition, 2590; hatred and class war; the future; fair play for the government, 2591
Business of the House, questions, 1660
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bills
Harbours and harbour masters, 1578
Pilotage dues, 1487, 2819, 3009
Coolie labour on British ships, 2043
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Co.
Contracts, steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., settlement of, 2170
False Creek bridge, 3516
Fisheries. See also under this title, Marine and Fisheries
Department of, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2167
Marketing, 2109
Protection service, 678

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2306, 2817, 2996, 3010
Fishing schooner race, 1387, 3510
Genoa Conference, expenses, 1715
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864
International deep sea racing, 1387, 3510
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 428
Lambton steamer, loss of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Limitation of Armaments, 3169
Marine and Fisheries. See also under this title, Fisheries
Biological board, 3051
Capt. Demers, 1492
Department, estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Icebreaking, 1677
Life saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Marine agencies, 1496
Marine signal service, 1499
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, Capt. Eddie, 1493
Ocean and river service, 1494, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1496
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
Port Dalhousie, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Dredges, 1494
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3045, 3149
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, amdt. to amdt. to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091
Montpetit, Prof., 582
Montreal Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Revenue, 1465
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488, 3199
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2067
Transfer of services to Marine and Fisheries, 3611
Navigation, Rainy river lights, 1499
Pilots and pilotage, administration, 1499
Fees, regulation of, 1500
Prince Rupert Dry dock and Engineering Co., claim, 3514

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Quebec fisheries, 377
M. (Mr. Marcil) 619, 622
Quebec harbour
Parc St. Charles Co., Limited, 1470
Revenue and expenditures, 1471
Quebec Harbour Commission
Papers, 1584
Political patronage, 1477
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464-86, 3195
Fair wage clause, 1469
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3399
Steel plates
Contracts, 1677
Delivery, 3508
Trenton harbour bill, 3493
Vancouver
Ballantyne pier, 1485
Drydock, 1485
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 1929, 2821, 2996

Larkin, Hon. P.C. See High Commissioner

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu. 2355
Lightkeepers, qu. 1904, qu. 2215

Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu, 366, qu. 3600

Laurier, Sir Wilfrid. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Canadian military responsibilities, 1629
Canadian Northern loan, 1957
Canadian ports and German submarines, 2089
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Monument, qu, 936
Naval policy, 1849
Old age pensions, 1305
Railway administration, 202
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1333, 1398

Laurier-Fielding Tariff, 141, 144, 208, 290. See also Address; Budget

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. (Quebec County)
Budget, 2398. Tribute to Finance Minister; extravagance and mismanagement of former government; public debt; unfair treatment of province of Quebec, 2398; no confidence in public ownership of railways; transcontinental railway; Champlain market station; St. Malo repair shops; car repairs, 2399; St. Charles river improvements; wharf at Ste. Pétronille;

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. — Con.
Budget — Con.
wharf at St. Grégoire de Montmorency; expenditure and economy, 2400
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1474

Law, Bowman B., M.P., the late, memorial tablet, 2835

Law Officers
Departmental, 1678, 2573
Opinion of. See Canada Grain Act, constitutionality

Leader, Mr. Harry (Portage la Prairie)
Accredited herd system, 2739-41
Animal Contagious Diseases Act, qu. 2739, 3362
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Budget, 2510. Finance Minister's proposals disappointing; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; better trade relations with United States; apology for having voted against reciprocity; rejection of treaty a disaster; live stock industry; little difference between two old parties; origin of Progressive party; promises and performance of Liberals; the amendment; broken promises of Conservatives; Mr. Meighen's declarations on tariff policy; salaries of Ministers and judges, 2512; proposed reduction in indemnities of Senators and Members; Civil Service bonus; shortening of session; absence of members from House, 2513
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2003
Health of animals, tuberculosis, 3522
Immigration, Hutterites, 3060

League of Nations. See also Limitation of Armaments
Article X of the Covenant, 3170
International Labour Conference, 1060
Permanent secretariat, 2026
Canada's contribution, 2990
Protocols of proposed amendments to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171

Leases, Cancellation of. See Dominion Lands

Leblanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773

Lee, Lord, of Fareham, 1852. See also Limitation of Armaments

Legal Expenses, 1668. See also Justice; Law Officers
Companies Act, appeal, 1671
Departmental counsel, 1678, 2572-3
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., damage claim, 1677
Employment of outside lawyers, 1678
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, 1669

Legal Officers, concentration of, 683, 2572-3

Léger, Mr. A. T. (Kent, N.B.)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu. 2209
Experimental farms, 806, 808
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495
Migratory birds, 1685
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1792
Richibucto repair works, qu. 375
St. John income tax office, qu., 826

Legislation. See also House of Commons; Senate
House of Commons, 2026
Printing, 1972
Senate, 2026

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe. See Speaker

Lemieux Agreement with Japan, 1459

Lepers, Number of, 2021

Lesueur, Mr. R. V. (West Lambton)
Sugar beet industry, 3243-4

Letter Carriers. See Post Office

Letters, Anonymous, quoting from, 943-944

L'Evénement, Quebec, 1480

Levis
Gravel, Mr., resignation from Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477
Lightkeepers, qu., 2583

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. (Swift Current)
Address in reply, 149. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; common platform in politics, 149-50; real conditions in the West; Great War burdens, 150-151; unemployment; wider markets, agricultural and economic conditions, 151-152; tariff and protection; natural resources of western provinces, 153-154; consolidation of railways, 155
Blankets, duty on, 3233
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) Amdt. 722

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. — Con.
Budget, 2256. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressive party and government; fiscal policy; free trade; similarity of Liberal and National policies, 2257; forty-four years of protection; tariff for revenue; reductions in tariff and increases in sales tax, 2258; economy; Welland canal; St. Lawrence river waterway; emigration and race suicide; cigar and cigarette duties; automobiles; luxury tax, 2260; British preference; reciprocity with United States, 2261
Canadian National railway, public ownership, 1954
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canned fish, marketing, 3049
Cattle embargo, 1020
Cigars and cigarettes, duty, 3239
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1368
Dominion Election Act, residential qualification, 1301
Dominion lands, 1036
Experimental farm, Swift Current, 796, 3521
Grand Trunk Pacific branch lines, 3520
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment of Judge, 3496
Indians, education of, 1230
Mines dept., field work, 690
Mixed farming, dairying, 996
Naval service, 1737
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1676
Paper cups, 3115
Pilotage dues, 1500
Post Office estimates, 692
Proportional representation
M. (Mr. Good) 1645
Public Works estimates, 692
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689
Railway policy, 1954
Railways, branch lines, 1688, 3520
Residential qualification, 1301
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldier settlement, land purchase, 2140
Swift Current
Experimental farm, 796, 3521
Post office building, 1253
Tractors, duty on, 3123
Welland canal construction, 1688, 2260, 2749

Liberal Convention of 1919. See also Address; Budget
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 397, 429

Liberal Convention of 1919 — Con.
Old age pensions, 1305
Platform, 25, 2529, 2541, 2896, 2910
Tariff, 2466, 3235
Mr. Fielding's disavowal, 2666
Res. of 1921, 2466
Position of Mr. King, 44-45

Liberal Party
Administration of railways before 1911, 189
Appointments, 138
Big interests and, 242. See also Big interests; Ministers and Directorships
Caucus, 1338
Fiscal attitude, 2430. See also Address; Budget
Gains and losses, 138-9. See also Elections of 1921
Government, 188
History of, 2430, 2548-9. See also Speeches on Budget
Interpretation of Liberalism, 26
Opposition in, and Estimates, 378-385

Library of Parliament
Joint Committee on, 211, 326
Salaries, 3517
Staff, 3091-2

Life-Saving Service. See Marine and Fisheries

Lights and Light-Keepers. See also Marine and Fisheries
Fuel for lightboats, qu. 1183
L'Assomption and Montcalm, qu. 1904, qu. 2215
Lévis, qu. 2583
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677, 3508
Maintenance and repairs to lighthouses, 1498
Parry Sound inspector, qu., 827
Pensions of lightkeepers, 1496
Salaries and allowances, 1497
Superintendent, Quebec district, qu. 2584
Wireless telegraphy, qu., 370

Lignite. See Coal

Limitation of Armaments, 7, 10, 20, 42, 58, 1143, 1174, 1179. See also Military Policy; Militia and Defence; National Defence
Air service, 1731
Approval of treaties signed at Washington, 786, 3157
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert, 1283
Report of, 1737, 1743
Canada's representation, 43

Limitation of Armaments — Con.
General Smuts, 1283
Naval armament, reduction of, 1737, 1844-5. See also National Defence; Naval Service
Naval holiday, 1737
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Sherman, General William T., 1336
Submarines, 1845
Treaty tabled, 9

Lindsay Arsenal. See Militia and Defence

Linen Yarn
Bounty, 1361
Dominion Linens, Limited, 1362
Duty, 3128

Ling, Mayor. See Nova Scotia Miners

Liquor. See also Alcohol; Canada Temperance Act; Inland Revenue; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, tax on, 2117, 2852, 2857
Beverages, containing 2½ per cent proof spirit, 2857
Bootlegging, cost to country, 2282
Confiscation of, 2997
Export, 2716
Warehouses in Saskatchewan, 767-8, qu., 1211, qu. 1660, 2997
Government, sale of, 1017
Importation, 733. See also Canada Temperance Act
British Columbia into, 1017
Excise duty on, qu. 828
Saskatchewan into, qu. 2037, 2303
Quebec government, and, 71
Sales tax on ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2852, 2857

Little Current
Harbour improvement, 2002
Tugboat, 3086-7

Live Stock, 333, 971, 2511. See also Accredited herds; Address; Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases Act; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals
Animals, cruelty, to. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Associations, grants to, 1027
Bacon, 1025
Bovine tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Carload and free freight policy, 1029
Commission men, 1031
Competition, 2695, 2698
Destruction by wolves, 990, 998

Live Stock — Con.
Estimates, 1018
Exhibitions, 3521. See also Agriculture
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Fordney tariff, effect on, 2453-4. See also that title
Garbage feed, 1029
Grants to exhibitions, 3521
Hog cholera, compensation, 1028
Hogs, grading, 1025
Industry, 334. See also Cattle Embargo
Marketing in United States, 94
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
National live stock records, 1026
Pure bred sires, 1032
Sheep-raising, 2592
Stallion clubs, 1031
Stockgrazing and feeding, 3522
Stockyards, 1030
Trade with South America, 647
Tuberculosis, 2595

Lloyd George. See George, Lloyd

Lloyds, steel plates, delivery, 3508

"Loafing-on-the-Job". See Industrial Disputes; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Loan Companies, 2299
Proposed taxation of, 2299
Renewal of loans, 1476

Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; Com., 3142; 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Loans. See also Finance; Special Loans bill, 2107, 2171
Domestic, 2694
Five-year maturities, qu. 2993
German, proposed, 2500
Grecian, qu. 1400
Morgan, Messrs, J. P., & Co., 1131
New Canadian, $100,000,000, announcement of, 1131, 1133
New York, 2107-27
Roumanian, qu. 1400
Soldiers, to. See Soldier Settlement
Special Bill. See Special Loans bill
$100,000,000, 1292, 1131

Lobster Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Lobster Fisheries. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Local Council of Women, Hamilton, Oleomargarine, 1835

Logan, Mr. Hance J. (Cumberland)
Acoustics of Chamber, 708, 3612
Address in reply, 105. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 105. Intercolonial railway, management and operation, 106; history of the Intercolonial; 107; separate operation necessary, 111
British preference
And Canadian seaports, M. 493, 707, 725
Goods imported through United States, qu., 375
Budget, 2684. Mr. Hocken's flirtation with Progressives; official Opposition; Bourbons; decline of Conservative party; optimism should give place to despair; the amendment; platform of 1919; changed conditions, 2684; public promises; conscription of farmers by Union Government; tariff; not sufficient time for investigation; boot and shoe industry; problem of unemployment, 2685; leader of Progressive party; revenue necessities; transportation; income, inheritance and land taxes; no question of free trade or protection; revenue tariff; incidental protection; not a protectionist budget; anthracite and bituminous coal; suggested duty on anthracite; bituminous coal duty, 2686; distinction between revenue and protective tariffs; importance of Canadian coal industry; imports; valuation of imports for duty purposes, 2687; British preference and Canadian seaports; direct shipments; transportation question as it affects the maritime provinces; South African railways, 2688; Intercolonial railway; sales tax; exemptions, 2689; fishermen's supplies; economy; civil service salary reductions; indemnity of members; equality of sacrifice; Opposition and budget; compromise on tariff issue; reciprocity; a united Canada, 2691
Canadian National railways
Intercolonial, 106-111, 2688, 2689
Employees, enlistment, 3519
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702, 1925
Revaluation, 1926
Transcontinental, enlisted men, allowance, 3518
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Coal
Anthracite and bituminous, suggested duty on, 2686
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Public buildings for, 1759

Logan, Mr. Hance J. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Lignite Unitilization board, 3525
National defence, 422
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 523
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1310
Prison reform, 1278
Rail and car repairs, 1702, 1708, 1925
Unemployment
Canadian coal miners, 1759
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702

Logan, Mr. R. S., 728

Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372

Long Sault. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

L'Orignal wharf, 1212

Louisburg quarantine station, 2021

Lovering, Dr., qu. 1211

Lovett, Mr. L. J. (Digby-Annapolis)
Bridgetown post office accommodation, 1245
Budget, 2270. Waste of time in useless discussion; slow progress of Nova Scotia, 2270; freight rates and trade restrictions; reciprocity; emigration; sectional interests, 2271; public debt; financial chaos; taxation; tariff reductions, 2272
Civil Service patronage, 3084
Rural postmasters, 3080

Lovie, Mr. W. J. (Macdonald)
Bovine tuberculosis, Carman, Man., deputation, 2743
Budget, 2451. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions not sufficient; handicap upon agriculture, 2451; farmer cannot pass on taxation; manufacturer beneficiary of protection; agriculture the basic industry; implements sold cheaper in foreign countries than in Canada; agricultural depression, 2452; injustice of protective tariff to farmers; freight rates reduction; marketing of wheat; export markets; reciprocity with United States; effect of Fordney tariff on live stock industry; potatoes and poultry products; garden truck; Kubanka wheat; freight rates; statement of Mr. Sandford Evans; wheat and commodity prices, 2454; war profiteering;

Lovie, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
income tax; religious institutions penalized, 2455
Civil Service bonus, 3535

Low, Hon. Thomas A. (South Renfrew)
Budget, 2445. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff views of Mr. Good; serious problems confronting government; effort to reduce expenditure, 2445; the tariff; the home market; agricultural production; ratio of exports to domestic consumption; agricultural implements; reciprocity agreement; railways, 2446; freight rates; history repeating itself; cheap transportation for the West; national ills and financial burdens; progressive immigration policy, 2447; settlers from the United States, England and northern Europe and countries

Lucas, Mr. W. T. (Victoria, Alta.)
Canada Grain Act, car demurrage, 2981
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1861
Elevator overages, qu. 609
Immigration, Mr. Shandro's proposed colony, 2159
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1519

Lumber. See also Tariff resolutions; Timber
Cargoes for the Orient, 2311
Dressed on one side only, duty, 2360
Freight rates on, 175, 234, 2311. See also that title
Japanese, acquisition of timber in British Columbia, 2310
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Orientals in industry. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)

Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599

Macarow, Mr. D. C. See Merchants' Bank

Macbrien, General, 1151, 1169, 1179, 1617
Reported utterances, 1662
Topographic survey, 1986

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. (Pictou)
Address in reply, 186. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker and previous speakers, 186; results of election, 186-7; Mr. Meighen's political campaign, 186-8; responsible government once more restored; public ownership of railways, 188; Canadian Northern and government railways 190; Grand Trunk lines

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. — Con.
Address — Con.
in United States, 191; Intercolonial railway management, 192; deficits on railways, 194; financial burdens, 195
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 783
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (pilotage) 1487
Canadian National railways, 190
Coal
Importations, qu., 926
Purchases of, qu., 2306
Insurance, qu., 471, qu., 610
Operation, 66
Public ownership, 1924
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3480
Civil Service classification, 494-5
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1440-2
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion notes and gold reserve, qu., 705
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3570
Grand Trunk, coal for, qu., 606
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 427, 429
Labour dept., temporary employees, 566
Naval defence, 1743
Naval service
Reduction in, 1743
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
Rail and car repair contracts, 1706
Redistribution of 1914, 1369
Reference to, 2536
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
War claims, loss of hospital ship, 1753
Washington disarmement conference, 1743
Yukon territory
Administration, cost of, 1681
Population, and expenditure, qu., 2456

Macdonald, "General", army of, 3315
Reception of, 2256

MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772

MacInnes, Mr. W. W. B., Immigration Commissioner in China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

MacKelvie, Mr. John A. (Yale)
Address in reply 159. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; boots and shoes, tariff on, 159-160; statements of Mr. Meighen and Sir Lomer Gouin, 160; Tory party, 161; tariff revision, 162; fruit-growing in British Columbia; protective tariff and fruit; railway situation, 166; immigration; Orientals in British Mackelvie, Mr. John A. — Con.

Address — Con.
Columbia, 167; natural resources; soldiers' re-establishment; attitude of Sir Lomer Gouin, 168; unity between French and English-speaking Canada, 168-9
Budget, 2196. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; fruit-growing industry; Liberal platform of 1919, 2197; promises and performances; British preference, 2198; reciprocity; dumping clause, 2199; fruit growing industry, 2200; taxation; retrenchment; militia expenditure; cadet training, 2202; naval service; German trade and competition, 2203; the amendment, 2204
Cadet training, 2202
Canadian National railways, Kamloops-Kelowna line, 1134
Customs, dumping clause, 2199, 3422
Dominion lands, sub-agencies closed, qu., 1181
Entomology, codling moth, 814, 816
Fruit growers, protection, 2197, 2200, 3422
George, Rt. Hon. Lloyd, 2203
Interior dept., publicity agent, 454
Militia, expenditure and policy, 2202
Naval college, Esquimalt, 2047, 2203
Naval service, 2203
Royal Canadian navy, 2047
Oriental Aliens, M., (Mr. McQuarrie) 1534
Telegraphs and telephones, Okanagan district, 2008

Mackenzie and Mann, 189. See also Canadian National Railways
Loans to, 189-190
Subsidy, qu. 607, qu., 935

MacLaren, Mr. Murray (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 353; national railway system; Grand Trunk railway and Portland terminus, 353; Intercolonial railway, 354; natural resources of Prairie Provinces, 355; returned soldiers, 356
American magazines, 3110
Biological Board, 3051
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, steamship services, and, 3033
Canadian National railways, Intercolonial employees, 3519
Canadian Red Cross Society, 3387
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

MacLaren, Mr. Murray — Con.
Canned goods, marking, 3048
Cold storage, 3521
Edmundston public building, 1240
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1273
Immigration
Medical inspection, 3052
Officials, 756
Imports of British goods, qu., 966
Inter-allied permanent commission, 3403
Military expenditure and policy, 1149
Militia estimates, 588
Naval policy, 2053
Negro point, breakwater, 2013
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3403, 3442
St. John Ambulance Association, 3387
St. John harbour, 2013
Submarine cables, qu., 3151, qu., 3360
Tracadie lazaretto, 2021
West Indies subsidies steamship services, 3033

MacLean, Mr. A. E. (Prince, P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 335. The Prime Minister and Prince Edward Island, 335; Progressive and Liberals; potato trade, 336; harvest excursions; civil service; railway situation in Prince Edward Island, 337; Intercolonial railway; tariff; natural resources and Prince Edward Island, 338-9
Census enumerators, 1366
Civil Service Commission, 364
Hog cholera, 1029
Illegal fishing, Prince county, qu., 371
Migratory birds, 1684
Rail and car repair contracts, 1710
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Theshing machines, 3125
Tormentine reef, buoy, 1490
Unemployment, Canadian National railways, 1710

Maclean, Hon. A. K. (Halifax)
Budget, 2859. Amended resolutions; effect of taxation on trade; depreciated currency; Germany, trade with; debt and revenue necessities, 2859; income tax expenditure, reduction of, 2860; economic problems and proposed remedies; Progressive party not an occupational group; class organization; restriction of output; consequences of the war; European recovery; interdependence of nations; international trade; international politics, 2862; German rehabilitation; reparation payments; restriction of German exports, 2863; Canadian representation at Genoa Conference; reciprocity with the United States; tariff legislation of Congress; Canadian representation at Washington; business conditions, 2864; emigration; reconciliation of adverse interests; Maritime Provinces commercial relation with rest of Canada, 2865; Ontario and Quebec, industrial development; Prairie Provinces, 2866; British Columbia; depression of trade; exchange value of commodities; primary products low in price; manufactured products abnormally high, 2868; wages, labour conditions and production; deflation of manufactured products; effect of taxation on prices; amendment, 2869; Liberal platform of 1919; tariff revision vertically and horizontally; chart and compass; Prime Minister's utterances at convention and in campaign, 2870; protection and free trade, 2871; United States competition; compromise on fiscal policy; tendency in United States towards reduction of tariff, 2872; imports and interests, 2873

Maclean, Hon. A. K. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Ownership and operation of, 3036
Subsidized steamship services, 3029
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1420-6. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Freight Rates, Transportation costs, Special Com., Third report, 3456
M. for adoption of, 3548-55
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143, 3145
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Naval policy, 2055
Naval service
Royal Canadian navy, 2055
Royal Naval college, 2055
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against western provinces, 1254
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464
Rideau canal, 2764
Welland ship canal, 2763
Wheat Board powers, 781
Wheat Board bill, 3175, 3180, 3380, 3385
M. Com. rise, neg., 3383

Maclean, Mr. William F. (South York)
Address in reply, 63. Public ownership of utilities; hydro-electric developments, 63; public ownership of railways, 64;

Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Address — Con.
competition of C.P.R. with government-owned railways, 64-66; corporation-owned railways in United States, 67; water transportation, 69-70; electrical developments, 71; transportation and marketing of wheat, 72; co-ordination of government railways, 73; railway grades and duplication; community centres, 75; goods roads, 75-76
Alien enemy property, 1672
Blake, Hon. Edward, 2655
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 723
Budget, 2321. Mr. McCrea and organized labour, 2321; war profiteering; pulp and paper industry; speculation in paper stocks; collective bargaining, 2322; farmers and strikes; the farmers' bloc in United States Congress; economic injustice to labouring population; railways, public ownership; consolidation of national railways, 2323; strikes of railway employees; organization of capital, labour and industry; Canada's status; federation of dominions with written constitution; court of last resort; the war and defence, 2324; scientific methods of destruction; race aggression; transportation; bill of rights of Canadian public services; nationalization of transportation communications, banking, marketing, waterways, finance, 2325; post office, express, telegraph and telephone services, cables; community centres, 2326; St. Lawrence river waterway; water-borne competition with railways, 2327; national banking system of United States; watered stock; co-ordination of railways, 2328; opposition to public ownership from Canadian Pacific Railway; new taxation; soft drinks; cheque tax; immigration, 2329; Oriental labour; redistribution, 2330
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
New board, appointment of, 2722
Shares held as alien property, 1672
Census
Completion of, 1365
Enumerators, 1366
Cheque tax, 3259
Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 175-6. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 632
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 491
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3564
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Hydro-electric Commission and Ontario Govt., 1080
Hydro-electric power developments in Ontario, 1937
Manufacturers and profiteering, 3275
National Defence bill, 680
Prison reform, 1278
Privilege — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Public ownership, 1933
Quebec fisheries, 622
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass agreement) 3595
Railway policy, 1933
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Returned Soldiers'
Bonus, 3290
Early announcement of government's policy, 2637
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3392
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1326
United States, co-operation with, 2752-55
Sugar beet industry, 3249
Toronto and York county, representation, 1365
Traffic charges on boat services, 182
Unemployment situation, 1080
Water-power rentals, 2747
Welland canal, 2747
Co-operation with United States, 2752-55
Wheat Board, 2967

MacLennan, Mr. Justice, Admiralty Court at Quebec, 1275

Macleod, Alberta
Post Office, revenue, building, qu., 2804
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, detachment at, 2584

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. (Southeast Grey)
Alleged statement, denial of, qu. 3221
Annual drill, 1174

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. — Con.
Budget 2384. Liberal party and protection; no material gain in budget proposals; argument of Mr. Raymond; basic and secondary industries; effect of protection, rural depopulation, 2384; protection of industries at expense of agriculture; rural schools; United States farmers demanding protection; unsatisfactory school system; farmers' credits; high transportation costs; taxation of all for the benefit of the few, 2385; proof that farming does not pay; importance of agriculture in development of Canada; trade and national greatness; high protection and revenue; the manufacturer the principal beneficiary, 2386; infant industries; cotton and woollen goods; discrimination against goods used by common people in favour of luxuries; direct and indirect taxation; national expenditure, 2386
Immigration
Child, 2153
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2153
Policy, 2153
Military expenditure and policy, 1174
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 533
References to. See Address; Budget
Rural population, movement towards cities, 2153, 2384
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Supervisor of expenditure, 405

McAdoo Award, 2315, 2317. See also Canadian National Railways

McBride, Mr. T. G. (Caribou)
Address in reply, 316. Oriental question in British Columbia, 316-17, 319; soldier settlement, 318; unemployment; transcontinental highway, 319; Oriental immigration, 319
Budget, 2635. Length of speeches; free trade; tariff on farm implements and mining machinery; dumping clause, 2635; transcontinental highway, 2636
British Columbia and Progressive party leader, 2239
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3039
Loan to, 3036
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1746, 1770
Chinese, arrival of at Vancouver, 3437, 3604
Civil Service
Bonus, 3533-5
Commission, 3072

McBride, Mr. T. G. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt., branding of cattle, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 2635, 3419
Debates, inaudibility of, 1053
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases, bill, 3465
Dredging, Shuswap lake, 2006
Elevators at Vancouver, 2980
Experimental farms, 804-5
Fuel oil, tariff against, 1761
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2984
Housing, 774
Hudson bay railway, completion, 2797
Immigration, Chinese, 3437, 3604
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, qu., 937, 3797
Kamloops post office building, 1255
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3507
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, 1978
Lindsay arsenal, 2088
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce item by $110,000, 2091
Milking machines, 3270
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1531
Pensions Com., report, 3351
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 3196
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Shuswap lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547
Soldier land settlement, 2142
Steamship services, 2027
Telegraphs and telephone lines, 2008
Woollen blankets and clothing, 3135

McCoig, Senator, leave to attend Agriculture Com., 1900, 2406

McConica, Mr. T. H. (Battleford)
Agricultural exhibitions, 984
Agriculture Com., report, Wheat Board, 748. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Budget, 2898. Amendment; political promises; tariff revision, 2898; tribute to Finance Minister; old and new taxes; reciprocity, 2899; Sir George Foster's trip to Australia and China; treaty of 1854; abrogation; efforts at renewal; trade routes; acquisition of railways in United States, 2900; trade complications; wheat market; manufacturers of Eastern Canada, 2901; purchasing power of West; position of the farmer; changed conditions, 2902; self-

McConica, Mr. T. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
contained country or world power; production costs in United States; hothouse industries; competition with United States; fruit industry; debt; financial problem of the United States after Civil War; work; opportunities multiplying; high protection, 2964; substantial reduction of tariff; congratulations to Prime Minister, 2905
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1856
Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1609
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract, 1678
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 428
Live stock industry, 985
Mixed farming, 985
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 525
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Soulanges canal, 2769
Welland ship canal, 2743, 2753
Wheat Board, 3183
Point of order, 2935
Wheat Board bill, 3381

McCrea, Mr. Francis N. (Sherbrooke)
Budget, 2314. The railway situation; high freight rates; deficits, 2314; Government ownership; international labour unions; McAdoo award; eight hour day; labour costs in general, 2317; remuneration of railway employees; specialization of work; strikes; thrift and industry, 2316; reduction of labour costs necessary; incorporation of labour unions; formation of labour board; walkouts and lockouts should be made illegal; arbitration for settlement of labour disputes, 2319; civil service, 2320
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1857
Organized labour, 2321-2

McDonald, Mr. Angus (Timiskaming)
Multigraph machines in departments, 1508
Population by ages, qu., 1632
Quebec Harbour Commission, wages of employees, 1465
Unemployment, 2318

McDonald, Mr. John N., qu., 3361

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Bonus, 1503, 3529

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. — Con.
Civil Service — Con.
Commission, 3071
Ottawa, Gas Company bill, 1657
Pensions Com., final report, 3331

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. (Solicitor General)
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2822
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Baddeck wharf, repair to, 1765
Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765
Budget, 2604. Group representation in Parliament; Progressives; duties of citizenship, 2604; public men; tribute to Finance Minister, 2605; Liberalism in Nova Scotia; one change of government in fifty years; Hon. George Murray, 2606; Right Hon. Sir John Thompson; opposition criticisms; responsibility of former government for public debt, 2607; methods of collecting revenue; new taxes; war debt; extravagance; unfit men mobilized; patronage, 2608; Ross rifle; purchase of military equipment; amendment; no suggestion to offer; Liberal platform of 1919; trade with United States, 2610; reciprocity; transportation facilities; purchases of railways in United States; seaports at New London and Portland; purchase of coal lands in United States, 2611; competition with Canadian mines; taking over of Grand Trunk, 2612; Liberal opposition to proposal, 2613; Canadian Northern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific; verdict of the people, 2614; campaign promises made good; record of Liberal party; administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 2615; time to restore prosperity, 2616
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2837
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill
First reading, 1017
Withdrawn, 2733
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, (No. 132) 2733, 2997
Date of coming into effect, 3007
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation, 916
Public ownership, 1939
Criminal Code Amdt. bill., 2831
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2809
Concurrence in amdts., 3486
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Dominion franchise, 1300

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. — Con.
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3473
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2826, 3026
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486
Grain trade, alleged abuses of, 2840
Harbours and rivers, Nova Scotia, 1765
Interruptions, point of order, 558
Lake of the Woods regulation bill, 2991, 3202
Opium and Narcotic drugs, prosecutions, 2017, 3019
Public buildings, Ontario, 1248-51
Statutes, arrangement with Mr. W. J. O'Connor for revision, 1718
Sydney-Whycocomagh steamship service, 2031
Transcontinental railway, 917
Wheat Board, point of order, 2933

McKillop, Mr. Hugh C. (West Elgin)
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3362

McLachlan, Mr. J. B. See Nova Scotia Miners

McMaster, Mr. A. R. (Brome)
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Audibility of debates, 411
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Boy Scouts, 773
Budget, 2417. The Tariff a tax; German competition; purchasing power of the mark in Germany; working hours and conditions; production costs; Mr. Bristol's speech "made in Toronto"; prosperity of the United States; tendency towards free trade, 2418; Nova Scotia coal and steel industries; Dominion Iron and Steel Co.; watered stock; free trade in Australia; western farmers and protection; congratulations to finance Minister; inflation and depreciated currency; German competition, 2420; German imports and exports; cheap labour; international hatred and bitterness; treatment of French Canada after siege of Quebec, 2421; spirit of international peace and comity; trade with Germany; German rehabilitation necessary for stabilization of world conditions; fiscal policies of Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, 2422; free trade Great Britain; the big industries; the Safeguarding of Industries Act; history of free trade movement in England; the carrying trade of Great Britain and the United States, 2424; budget proposals; sales tax, 2425; cumulative payment by consumer; tariff reductions; Liberal McMaster, Mr. A. R. — Con.

Budget — Con.
party and tariff; revisions of 1904 and 1907, 2426; reciprocity agreement of 1911; Liberal platforms of 1893-1919, 2427; abuses of protection; price-fixing by manufacturers; tyranny of the trusts; collars and silk stockings; the new feudalism; the amendment, 2428; Liberal party stands for progress and freedom, 2429
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Depreciated currency, 2420, 3411
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3467-75
Empire defence, Canada's responsibility, 1629
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 483
Essence de L'Erable, qu. 1774
German valuation of goods, 3227
Girl guides, 774
Immigration figures, 758
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
MacBrien, General, utterances of, 1662
Militia and defence, expenditure and policy, 1628
Ministers and Directorships, M., 1084, 1128
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Point of order, reading of documents, 560
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1648
Public Accounts Com., first report, 1460
Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Root Vegetables bill, 3376
Sales tax, 3265
Special War Revenue, flour, 3265
Voting when paired, explanation, 1462
Wheat Board, 2957, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3189, 3380
Amdt, 3384; agreed to, 3385

McMurray, Mr. E. J. (North Winnipeg)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech moved, 10. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Miss Macphail; Lord Byng, 10; abnormal conditions at home and abroad; financial burdens; state-owned railways; agriculture unprofitable; tariff revision, 11; natural resources of western provinces, 11-12; seat for Hon. Mr. Stewart; unemployment; returned soldier problems; forest and mineral wealth, 12; immigration; wider markets, 13; War-time Elections Act; labour troubles; harmony between races, 14

McMurray, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068, qu., 1182
Budget, 2474. Serious financial conditions, 2474; national debt; railroad deficits; legacy of the war; no constructive proposals; shifting the burden; production of wealth; Canada's future, 2475; immigration policy of former Liberal government; development of the West; prosperity interrupted by war; aggressive immigration policy needed, 2476; immigrants from central Europe; settlers from United States, 2477; exodus from Canada; statement of Lord Shaughnessy; declaration of Manitoba liberal convention; qualifications of the immigrant; criticisms of immigration policy answered; conditions in West improving, 2479; immigrants from the British Isles; foreigners and Canadian national life; the labour argument; policy of the United States; Canada's problems less than those of other countries, 2480; probable results of active immigration policy, 2481
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1439
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 3205
Natural resources, prairie provinces, 1017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1527
Winnipeg strike, cost of trials, qu., 1182

McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation of, 2805

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. (New Westminster)
Asiatic immigration, qu., 732. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
British Columbia fisheries, M., 851
Budget, 2233. Progressive party' attitude towards Government; tariff reductions, 2233; reciprocity; British Columbia, protection of farms, mines and fisheries, 2234; free trade; immigration; unemployment; the amendment; pledges and moral code of the Liberal party; "political trickery"; Hon. John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, criticism of by Vancouver Sun; alleged purchase by provincial government of warehouse site from President of Liberal Association; Vancouver World; resignation of provincial Attorney General, 2237; Minister of Public Works; national debt, 2238

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, coal mined by Orientals, 2407
Carriage of mails, qu., 825
Census enumerators, payment of, 1367
Civil Service bonus, 733
Patronage, 3084
Salaries $960 and less, qu., 1660, qu., 1775
Condensed milk tax, 3269
Exhibitions, grants to, 1026
Indians, New Westminster agency, 3536
Oliver, Hon. John, criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2026, 2236-37
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018, 3016
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
M. for exclusion or, 1509
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 169, 622. See also under this title, British Columbia Fisheries
Small manufacturers, 2710
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798
Widowed mothers, pensions, 3293

McTaggart, Mr. Neil H. (Maple Creek)
Budget, 2545. Congratulation to Finance Minister; budget proposals disappointing; speeches of leaders; debt, taxation, idle factories; unemployment; abandonned farms; readjustments in economic structure; downward revision of the tariff; failure of protection, 2545; sales tax; suggestion from Canadian Manufacturers Association; protectionist budget; revenue; investment of American capital in Canadian industries; abuse of Customs tariff by United States companies, 2546; duty on cigarettes, cameras; comparative prices in Canada and United States, 2547; tariff reduction; ability to compete with outside industries; Progressive party, 2548
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Customs revenue, 770
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Saskatchewan, liquor export, 3006

Machinery. See Agricultural Implements

Madawaska customs collections, qu., 607

Magazines, American, imports of, 3109

Magna Charta, 1388

Mail Carriers. See Post Office

Mail Contracts. See Post Office

Mail Services. See Post Office; Railways; Steamship Services

Malcolm, Mr. James (North Bruce)
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 719
Budget, 2387. Tariff and taxation proposals of Minister of Finance, 2387; consideration given to all sections of country; sales tax; stamp and stock transfer taxes; automobiles tax; the tariff, 2388; United States tariff; reciprocity; British preference; American branch industries and export trade; marking and depreciated currency acts, 2389; income tax; effect on capital; confiscation; enterprise should not be discouraged; immigration, 2390; emigration; the farmer and industrialism; problems of prairie provinces; markets; transportation costs; fiscal policy, 2391
Goderich harbour improvement, 2001
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Soldier Settlement Act, 1919, Amdt., 2035

Management, Charges of. See Finance

Manion, Hon. Robert J. (Fort William and Rainy River)
Address in reply, 263. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; speech of Mr. Raymond, 263; different tariff policies of Liberals, 264; election campaign, 265; record of Union Government, 266; defeat of Union Government, 267; immigration; national debt and railway problem, 268; natural resources; St. Lawrence river waterway, 269; race and creed bigotry, 270; soldiers' re-establishment and pensions, 271; housing; tariff and protection, 272; railway rates, 273
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2261. Congratulations to Finance Minister; loans; Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2261; resolution moved by Minister of Finance while in opposition; the tariff, 2262; farmers and the budget; trade with Germany, 2263; foreign exchange; protective legislation in the United States; tariff for revenue; free trade not possible, 2265; sectional demands; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; St. Lawrence river waterway; the home market; sales tax, 2266; Great Britain and tariff legislation; 2267; free trade

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
and protection, 2268; advisory tariff board or commission; cheque tax, 2269; receipt tax; the amendment, 2270
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, claims qu., 606
Canadian National railways
Grain leakages, qu., 1401, 1930
Orders in anticipation of requirements 1698
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3481
Canadians emigrating, qu., 1182
Census, remarks by Mr. Johnston (Last Mountain) 1370
Civil Service Commission, 3087
Cost of living, 1057
Daylight saving, 948-9, 961
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1366
Dominion lands and surveys, 1037, 1039
Election pledges, cash bonus to soldiers, 403
Empire and Ascension days, 1760
Employment offices, 1058
Fisheries estimates, discussion, 2166
Forest protection, 1048
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 1999
Health, department of, 2017
High Commissioner's office, 414
Immigration
Estimates, opportunity for consideration, 2162-4
Physically fit, 3055-6
Policy, 756
Immigration dept., labourers, 3054
International Labour Conference, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1057
Labour, technical education, 460
Militia and defence
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Expenditure and policy, 2092
Officials, 586
Staff reduction, 422
Naval service staff, 418, 422
Navigation lights in Rainy River, 1499
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017, 3016
Prohibition, and, 2017
Parliament buildings, tower, 2016
Patronage, rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 788
Pension Board, 392, 1350
Regulations, change, 2995
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1361
Widowed mothers, 1311
Pensions Committee, final report, 3302-3

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Point of order, general policy, 556
Public building, location of services in, 1757
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1698
Returned soldiers, alleged treatment of children of, 2638
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3394, 3400
Revenue and protective tariffs, 719, 2265
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1200
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Grain transportation, 2758
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 445
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Estimates, details of, 1347
Expenditure, 1340
Hospital staff, 1345
Salary increases, 387
Soldiers' disabilities, 392
Unemployment relief, 1352
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers, land settlement, 2023
Statistics, co-ordination of work in, 1366
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1697
Tariff, permanent advisory board or commission, 2269
"Tories and militarists", 1598
Unemployment
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Situation, 1074
Vancouver and Fraser Valley bill, 798
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2758
Wheel chairs for invalids, 3115
Wrangel island, 2208

Manitoba
Agricultural College, western agricultural conditions, 2332
Court of appeal decision on Canada Grain Act, 1770, 1841, 1932-3. See also Wheat Board
Flags on public schools, 1265
Forestry in, 1046
Harbours and rivers, 2003
Liberal Convention, res. on immigration, 2478
Natural resources, control of, 24, 1018. See also Western Provinces
Norris, Premier, on freight rates and natural resources, 1017, 1213
Unemployment conference, 1069
University of, percentage of students of foreign extraction, 2151, 2157
White Mud river fishway, 2167

Manufactured Goods, tax on. See Customs Tariff

Manufacturers. See also Canadian Manufacturers' Association
Eastern Canada in, 2901
Income tax paid by, qu., 1063-4
Production of wealth by, 2378
Progress since 1870, 2658
Propaganda, 2362
Protection of, 55, 102-3, 144, 153, 303, 343, 2435-2440. See also Speeches on Address; Budget
Sales tax. See Special War Revenue

Manure, exportation of, 1018. See also Fertilizers

Maple Products. See also Health

Maple Products Act, administration of, 2017

Maps, Topographical. See Dominion Lands and Surveys

Marcil, Hon. Charles (Bonaventure)
Air force and civil aviation, 1733
Budget, 2905. Twenty-two years of parliamentary life; interest in the West; 2905; Liberal party and western development; a united Canada; hardships of pioneers, 2906; conditions and advantages of the western railways; market for the farmers; employment for the workingman; reciprocity; opposition of manufacturers; 2907; trade relations with United States; tariff reductions; British preference; development of St. Lawrence waterway; better understanding between East and West; the amdt., 2908
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Sub-amendment (Mr. Crerar), 2473
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Canadian representation in the United States, 1383
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Census enumerators
Appointment of, 1371
Payment of, 1368
Census figures, verification, 1366
Civil Service
Commission, 3072
Patronage, 3074
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Debates, official report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
Fisheries, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
French-Belgian treaty, 3223

Marcil, Hon. Charles. — Con.
Gaspe railways, M. for papers, 623
House of Commons staff, stenographers and messengers, qu., 1376
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Insurance claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349
Meat and canned foods, 3047
Montreal Harbour Commission, Capt. Landry, 1481
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 3019
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444
Pension Commissioners, Quebec representation, 1350-1
Pensions, widowed mothers, 3293
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1656
Quebec fisheries, 377, M., 493, 616
Receipt tax, 3262
References to, 1298
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3395
Root Vegetables, potato bags, 3377
Rulings as Acting Speaker:
Member moving res. has right to close debate, 540
Member withdrawing motion, 545
Relevancy, 3539-40, 3542
Res. involving charge on revenue, 3476
Supply, point of order, 1337
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Marcile, Mr. J. E. (Bagot)
Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703
Dominion Elections Act, qu., 470
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, qu., 377

Marconi Company, 1736, 1749

Margaree breakwater, 1767

Marine and Fisheries. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdts.; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Fish and Fisheries; Naval Service. For vessels, see that title
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Biological Board, 3051
Demers, Captain, 1492
Deputy Minister of Fisheries, 2166
Derelicts, removal, Windsor, N.S., 1493
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166, 3507
Examination of masters and mates, 1490

Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Life-saving
Equipment, qu., 1284
Services, 1494
Stations, qu., 367
Lighthouse and coast service. See that title
Little Current tug boat, 3086
Marine agencies, 1495
Marine signal service, 1499
Meteorological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Newfoundland coast, 1498
Rainy river lights, 1499
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 1676, 3507
Expenditure, 1494
Murphy, Capt. Frank, compensation, 3508
Relief of distressed seamen, 1676
Steel plates, 3508
O'Hara, Captain, 1490
Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Exemption from dues. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Publicity and marketing division, 2169
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Removal of obstructions from navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, maintenance, 1494
Select Standing Com. on, changes, 1398
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Sorel shipyard
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, 1062
War claims, adjustment of, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, etc., 1493
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Lambton, 1497

Maritime Provinces
Coal fields, 108, 2611. See also Coal
Condition prior to Confederation, 107
Intercolonial and, 107, 192. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Natural resources, 340. See that title
Public buildings, 1243
Railways, 131
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316

Mark, value of. See Currency, depreciated; Germany

Marketing of Wheat. See Wheat Board

Markets, Foreign, 221. See also Trade
Necessity for, 2149. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Reciprocity and. See that title
Restricted, 343

Marking Act. See Customs

Marking of Goods. See Budget; Customs Tariff

Marler, Mr. Herbert (St. Lawrence-St. George)
Address in reply, 243; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; unity of purpose in government; elections and the province of Quebec, 244; government by co-operation; railway situation, 246; merchant marine, 247; tariff revision, 248; Liberal tariff views; immigration, 249, 250
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 246-247
Insurance, qu., 605
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 486
Mines and Minerals, Com., on, 1398
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-55
Pensions Committee
First report, 726
Final report, 3286, 3348
Adoption of, 2253
Meetings, 3335
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3393
Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Speech on tariff before election, 240
Vickers, dry dock, qu. 936

Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647, 754, 1012, 1032. See also Agriculture
Cattle embargo and, 1032

Martell, Mr. L. H. (Hants)
Agricultural exhibitions, 995-6
Barkhouse, Capt., 1748
Biological Board, Mr. Halkett, 3051
British Empire Steel Corporation, taxation, qu., 1067
British Preference and Canadian seaports, 719
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, passenger traffic, qu. 939
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771
Canned lobsters, inspection, 3048
Civil Service
Inside service, 580-1
Overmanning, 3081, 3100
Patronage, 3087

Martell, Mr. L. H. — Con.
Coal transportation on national railways, 1763
Cold storage, 818, 996
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 951
Departmental law officers, 683-4
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1163
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Fisheries Protection service, 678, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Food inspection, 820
Income tax, qu., 366
Indians Sydney reserve, medical attendance, qu., 2216
Labour department salaries, 549
Legal costs, 2772
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. Halifax, payments to, 2772
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1491
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Ocean and river service, 3507
Select Standing Com., on, 1398
Wrecks, investigation, Capt. Demers, 1492
Meighen, "the King-maker", 35
Military expenditure, 1137, 1141
Militia dept., officials, 741
Motion transferred, 942
National Defence bill, 665, 737
Nova Scotia miners, 524
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drugs bill, 3022
Parents, support of by children, 1310
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2015
Pelagic Sealing treaty, 1844
Pensions
Limitation of time for application, 2995
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445-62
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim, 3504
Removal of derelict in channel at Windsor, N.S., 1493
Royal Canadian navy, 1855, 1890
St. John terminal facilities, 849
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1343
Steamship services, freight rates, 2028, 3032
Welland ship canal, 2749
West Indies steamship services, 3032
Wheat Board, 3182
Windsor, N.S.,
Lease of wharves to C.P.C., 2749
Wreck at, 1493
Women and the franchise, 483

Massey-Harris Company, 1106, 2175. See also Agricultural Implements

Masters and Mates. See Marine and Fisheries

Matapedia Valley. See Quebec Oriental Railway

Match Industry, Occupational diseases. See Labour

Matches
Bill respecting, 1r., 3598
Tax on, 3262

Maybee, Mr. M. E. (Northumberland, Ont.)
Baxter, Mr. Charles, successor to, qu., 2457

Meat and Canned Foods Act, administration of, 967

Meat and Canned Foods Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3044; 1r., 2r., 3050; com., 3050, 3149; 3r., 3150

Meat Inspection, 226. See also Animal Contagious Diseases; Cattle Embargo

Meat Products. See also Live stock

Meats, Cold storage. See Agriculture

Medical Advisory Board. See Pensions Committee

Medical care. See Indians

Medical Examinations. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act

Medical Inspection. See Immigration

Medicines. See also Opium and Narcotics
Duties, reductions in, 2116

Mediterranean of America, 1202. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur (Leader of the Opposition)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 19. Congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail; New Prime Minister; Limitation of Armaments conference, 19-20; census returns; expansion of trade, 20; Liberal speeches and campaign literature; Sir Lomer Gouin and Mr. Mitchell, 21; natural resources of western provinces, 22; tariff revision, 24; Liberal platform; speeches of Sir Lomer Gouin, 26; Hon. Walter Mitchell; the Prime Minister on the tariff, 26-27; Mr. Raymond, 27; Mr. Marler, 28; public ownership; 30; wider markets; Minister of Agriculture, 32; reciprocity pact; reduction of freight rates, 33; Liberal administration; negotiations with Progressives, 34; Mr. Crerar, 34-35; Newmarket speech; Union Government negotiations, 35; Mr. Gardiner's statement, 36; responsible government, 37; Orders in Council, 37-38
Agricultural implements, duty, 3119
Agriculture Com. report, 726, 776, 1929. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Agriculture dept., Mr. Duncan Marshall, 645
Air Board, 1722
Details of expenditure, 1728
Estimates, 1722-35
Alien property, custody at Prince Rupert, 3606
Alpine Club, 794, 1053
Archives, 702
Assiniboine river floods, relief measures, 3491
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 10, 2802
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Birthday, congratulations on, 3102
Borden, Sir Robert, correspondence, 373
International disarmament conference, 1283
Budget, 2523; Tribute to Finance Minister; financial position; debt; taxation and fiscal policy; moderate protection, 2524; free trade principles; the Netherlands, Belgium, 2525; Great Britain; abandonment of protection would mean disaster to Canada; ability to compete abroad; reciprocal trade; peculiar situation of Canada; United States an intermediary between us and the outside world, 2526; east and west routes of trade; reciprocal arrangement with United States; rejection of Reciprocity treaty; Fordney tariff, 2527; American farmers and competition in home market, 2527; free trade in wheat; results seen in United States tariff legislation; amendment, 2528; Liberal pledges broken; brazen apostacy; British preference; microscopic reduction in duties; Liberal platform of 1919, 2529; Finance Minister should have declared his position; tariff; general reduction and detailed adjustment, 2530; voters betrayed; contract broken; revised policy of Liberal party; declaration of Prime Minister; promised reductions in duties on food, 2531; clothing, building materials; failure to implement pledges, 2532; responsibility of Progressive party; invitation to Government to abandon pledges; grant to returned soldiers; Mr. Crerar's position, 2533; amendment to amendment; failure of Progressives to achieve their desire; responsible government; agricultural implement duties; 2534; Opposition votes for government; freight rates; faults of the budget; German and Austrian trade; exchange; inflation of currency; marking of imports, 2535; Government by Order in Council; dumping clause; possible tariff reductions; sales tax; Mr. Raymond and agricultural implement duties; Hr. Macdonald (Pictou) and steel and coal duties, 2536; special platforms for individual constituencies; Government's difficulties of their own creation, 2537

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Budget — Con.
Budget amendment, 2338
Building trades, 583
Business of the House, 373
Amdt. to amdt., (Mr. Crerar) 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742, 1900
Debates, Official, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Decorum, 2090
Delay in proceeding with, 7
Further legislation, inquiry, 2996, 3102, 3365
Government orders on Mondays and Wednesdays, 1461, 1720
Privilege, right of member to raise on orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Supplementary estimates, 3364
Wednesday, hour of sitting, 49
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (Pilotage) 1487
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts., 3614
Canadian National parks, 1053
Canadian National railways
Accounting, 1918
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Canadian Northern, 1907
Deficits, 1918

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Estimates, 1907-54
Minister's annual statement, 912
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 394, 2533
Liberal pledge, 400
Relevancy, 404
Cattle embargo, 985
Alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1022, 1463
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368, 1372
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Chinese customs tariff, 3168
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service Act, 1368
Civil Service
Classification, Arthur Young Co., 1491
Economy, 2057
Marine and Fisheries department, 1491
Militia services, organization of, 423
Reorganisation of, 2061
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1491
Russell, Mr. T. A., superannuation of, 1667
Coal for public buildings, 1758
Committees, changes, 497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Half-breed scrip, 3103, 3211, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth Special Com., second report, 1988
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 104-11-21-24-49-53. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 2535-6, 3119, 3413, 3421
Estimates, 763
Valuation for duty, 3225, 3414
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Defence, preparation for, 1621. See also under this title, National Defence
Demobilization, military hospitals, 1262
Deville, Dr., 1044, 1048
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283, 1334
Dominion Elections Act, 470
Dominion Iron & Steel Company
Contract for steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., 2170

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Dominion lands
And surveys, 1044
Homestead re-entry, 1042
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, bill, 3466-75
Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1235-6
Election campaign, 21, 187
Election of Speaker, 2
Election promises, 21
Liberal handbook, 400
Ellesmere Island, 1751
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 479
Estimates
"Appropriations not required," 1269
Information not up-to-date, 1267
This year's accounts charged to previous years, 1715
Exemption of farmers' sons, 440
Experimental farms, expenditure, 1264
Extra-territorial rights, 1068
False creek bridge, 3516
Finance, deputy minister, 751
Fire prevention, 794
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Freight rates. See also under this title Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3589
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3589
Special Com., ref. to, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213
Third report, 3589
Gasoline tax, 3116
Gaspé railways, 627
Genoa conference, expenses, 1715
Geological survey, co-ordination of survey work, 1236
German goods, valuation, 3225
Government departments, payments to each other, 1724
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50
Grand Trunk Railway
Arbitration, British newspaper article, 375
Financial statement, 1933
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure for 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward Island, 1270
High Commissioner
Alleged statement of, 1022, 1463
Office, 414
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1503, 1988
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Immigration dept., 3051
Black Mr., appointment, 3500
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 755
Work of, 760
Immigration of Hutterites, 2160
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Income tax
Comparison with systems in other countries, 2228
Naturalization, and, inquiry as to legislation, 3103
Non-resident aliens, M. (Mr. German) 1303
Income War Tax Act. Amdt., 3359
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3192
Indian Affairs
Estimates, 681, 684, 1712
Indians
Agitation and unrest, 1223
Complaints, 1223
Expenditure, 1216
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Six Nation reserve, 1222
Soldiers Settlement Board, 1222
Stony reserve school, 1229
Insurance department, 792
Interim Supply bill, 380
Interior Department
Conservation Commission employees, transfer, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
International Labour Conference, 3437
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 424, 428
Justice dept. salaries, 452
Labour department
Duplications, 577
Salaries 550
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 2991, 3200, 3207, 3435
Lawyers, employment in Justice dept., 1679
League of Nations, 3162, 3171, 3174
Limitation of Armaments, 43
Loyalty of western Canada, 1023
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Com. on Agriculture, 1900
Marine and Fisheries
Life-saving service, 1494
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Steamers and icebreakers, 1490
Marler, Mr., and railway situation, 28, 247
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment, 3501
Meat and canned foods, 3045, 3050

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, proposed reduction of vote, 1620-9
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2091, 2096
War claims, adjustment of, 417
Mines department
Additional officials, 689
Estimates, 686
Ethnologist and ornithologist, 687
Ministers and directorships, 1104
Montreal Harbour Commission, 1489
National Defence bill, 663, 674, 734, 738, Senate amdts., 2807
Natural resources, transfer to western provinces, 41-42
M. for correspondence, 1509
Naturalization Act Amdt. bill, 3436
Naval defence, 1862-1900
Naval policy, 2056-81
Naval service, 1738
Empire defence, contribution to, 2081
Niobe, sale of, 2065
Royal Canadian navy, 1741, 1862-1900, 2056
Empire defence, needs of, 1741
Minister's proposals, criticism of, 1741
Staff, 418
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 503, 524-539, 544, 597, 1054
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Ocean and river service, expenditure, 1494
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3426-32
Orders in Council, government by, 663, 2535-6
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1561, 1567, 1575
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Parliament buildings, lighting, 1755
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Peace and war, 1621
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1350, 1351
Charges against, 3041
Representation of Quebec, 1351
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1353
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3522

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Ploughs, duty on, 3123, 3125
Amdt. (Mr. Johnston, Last Mountain, 3230
Political alliances, 2097
Political promises — Mr. Hoey, 2338
Portage la Prairie exhibition, qu., 1391
Post Office estimates, 691
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504
Prices, deflation of, 1216
Prime Minister, private secretaries, 410, 412
Prime Ministers' Conference, 1629
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, 1742
Lord Lee, reported statement of, 1742
Report, reference to, 5
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Privy Council, increases, 410
Promises of Union Government, 2339
Public buildings
Coal for, 1758
Flags, 1264, 1268
Generally, expenditure, 1262
Heating, 1758
Maritime provinces, 1243
Ontario
Alleged neglect by former government, 1249
Appropriation and expenditure, 1245-59-60
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
Water, 1266
Public expenditures, 1249
Public Works
Classification, 693
Estimates, 692, 697, 699, 747
Public buildings, 1755. See also under this title, Public Buildings
Salaries, 749
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493 622
Quebec Harbour Commission
Inquiry for papers, 1283
Political patronage, 1477
Resignation of former commissioners, 1477-8
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1477
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission
Chairman, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 3491
Freight rates, 193

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Railway estimates, 409
Railway policy of Government, inquiry, 407
Railways, annual statement of minister, 921
Raymond, Mr., and the tariff, 255, 2536-7
Reciprocal trade with Australia, 10, 2802
Inquiry for correspondence, 9
Reciprocity with the United States, 2845
Redistribution, 733, 3611
Census, and, 1364, 1367, 1371
Resolution should embody bills, 3179
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 734
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 673
Estimates, 2129
Ruling of Chair, 3354
St. John quarantine station, 1241
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 844
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Secretary of State, estimates, 701
Seed grain advances, 1053
Seed grain commission, 1011
Soldier land settlement, 3294, 3296
Estimates, 2135
Homestead rights, 2135
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2139
Taxes, collection of, 2135
Soldiers' bonus, 393, 394, 400, 404, 436, 2533
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1262
Medical treatment, 392
Parliamentary Com., 393
Salary increases, 385
Unemployment relief, 1352
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment bill, 3597, 3609
Sorel shipyards, dismissal of employees, 1283
Speaker, Mr., bereavement of, 496
Speaker's election, 2
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 580, 1366
Statutes, revision of, 1718
Steamship subsidies, 3505
Steel, structural, importation, qu., 1931
Stefansson expedition, 1750
Supply. See also under this title, Estimates
Concurrence, 1769
Method of discussion, 1142
Motions in, 1579
Latitude in discussion, 2238
Supreme Court estimates, 1274
Tariff Commissioner, appointment of, 1663
Tariff revision, 2540
Tourist traffic, 1682

Meighen, Right Hon Arthur — Con.
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Trade and Commerce officials, 700-01
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490
Trial of Indian Lebeaux, expenses, 1669
Unemployment
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Canadian coal, use of by railways, 1759
Insurance, 1080
Policy of government as to, 3491
Relief, 1719
Situation, 1079
Welland canal, 2750
United Grain Growers, agricultural implements, 3120
United States, discriminatory legislation 1303, 2527-8
Washington conference. See also under this title, Naval Service
Empire naval defence, 1744
Papers, 1283
Welland canal, 2750
Western provinces, natural resources. See Natural Resources
Wheat Board, 2915, 2924, 2953, 3175, 3184. 3190, 3381, 3386. See also under this title, Agriculture Committee
Concurrence in report of special Com., delay, 2306
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3495
Winnipeg strike, Mr. Alfred J. Andrews, 1069
Wrangel island, 1750
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275
Radiotelegraph service, 1749

Melchior, Dr., on value of German mark, 2645

Mellish, Mr. Justice, 1275

Melville, Sask., railway restaurant, qu., 2038

Members. See House of Commons

Memorials, War. See Baker, Lieut. Col.; Battlefields; Historic Sites; War Graves Commission; War Memorials

Mennonites. See Immigration

Merchant Marine. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Merchants' Bank. See that title under Banks and Banking

Mercier, Mr. Paul (Westmount-St. Henri)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, seconder, 15. Change of government; Baron Byng of Vimy, 16; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; encouragement of agriculture, commerce and industry, 16-17; immigration; labour, 17; financial burdens; political parties, 18
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786, 1333
M. (Mr. Church) 1396

Meredith, Sir Vincent, 1128

Messengers and Stenographers, qu., 1376

Metal File Cabinets, 1252

Metals. See Mines and Minerals

Meteorological Service, magnetic observatory, 1501

Mexico
Postal rate to, qu., 3364
Trade with, 699, 700, 2989

Mewburn, Hon. S. C. (East Hamilton)
Ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Hamilton post office building, 1246
Military expenditure and policy, 1152, 1579
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1152, 1579
Expenditure and policy, proposed reduction, 1579
Services co-ordination, 416
National Defence bill, 665, 666, 737, 744, 745
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, industrial disputes, 667
Royal commission on pensions, 386

Michaud, Mr. Pius (Restigouche and Madawaska)
Audibility of debate, 385
Criminal Code Amdt., fines, payment, 2832
Customs revenue, qu., 607
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Edmundston
Post office, qu., 608
Public building, 1242
German reparations, qu., 375
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
St. John terminal facilities, 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Welland ship canal, 2753

Migratory Birds, 1684

Military Forces, preparedness. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Servicee

Military Hospitals, 1261, 1341, 1344, 3287-9, 3345. See also Pensions Com. report; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1339-48

Military Service. See also Pensions Com.
Medical inspection, 3317

Military Service Act, powers under, 780

Military Service Act, 1917, Repeal bill (Mr. Woodsworth
1r., 424; order for 2r., stands, 493; M. for 2r., 639; Mr. Speaker rules bill out of order, 644

Militia and Defence. See also National Defence bill
Adjustment of War claims, 1155, 2098, 2974
Air force, 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Ammunition, 2085
Shipment from Great Britain, 1156-63, 1337
Small arms, 1979
Annual drill, 1137, 1139, 1144, 1146, 1151, qu., 1285, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2835
Amdt. (Mr. Power) to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1174, 1578
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Expenditure for 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries
Fittings and alterations, 1261
Quebec, qu., 1287
Arsenals
Danger of attack by aeroplanes, 2085-98
High explosive shells, 1170
Lindsay, 1165, 1171, 1979
Site, purchase of, 2087-8
Quebec, 1165, 1171, 1978-9, 2085
Amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091; agreed to, 2098
Amdt. (Mr. McBride) to reduce vote by $110,000, 2091; neg., 2098
Customs duties, 1978
Rivière du Loup, qu., 1181
Burstall, General Sir Henry, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Cadet camps, 1147, 1973, 2202
Militarism, 1974
Cadet services
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce vote by $100,000, 1972; agreed to, 1978

Militia and Defence — Con.
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by, $21,000, 1978
Defensive forces, 1135
Demobilization expenditure, 1155, 1163
Department
Estimates, 415, 586, 1578, 1610, 1972, 2974, 3498
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Salaries and contingencies, 415, 586, 1985
District auditors, 1145
Engineer services and works
M. Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Expenditure
Policy and, 1174, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2202. See also under this title, Arsenals, Naval Service
Reductions proposed by minister, 1578
Reduction of, 1135
1890-1913, qu., 1285
1911-22, qu., 1287
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
General staff, 1145
Generals, 1145
Gwatkin, General, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Lindsay arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372
Lord Grey on military protection, 1136
MacBrien, General, 1151
Reported utterances of, 1662
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Military districts, 1580, 1775
District No. 12, 1602
London, 1983
Toronto, 1983
Military holiday, 1146, 1338
Military hospitals, 1341. See also that title
Militia council, qu., 2039
Montreal ordnance stores building, 1245
Munitions. See also under this title Ammunition
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-63
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Ordnance arms and lands
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Pensions. See also that title
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Permanent force, 1136, 1147, 1152, 1580, 1982
Estimates, 1982

Militia and Defence — Con.
Permanent force — Con.
Expenditure, 1140
Royal Canadian Artillery, 1982
Strength of, 1136
Ten years' service or more, qu., 2637
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065
Quebec arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Rental of buildings, 1764
Royal Military College, 1985
Schools of instruction
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1985
Service overseas, 1140-80
Shed on Cartier square, Ottawa, qu., 2038
Staff, 661
Pay of, amdt., (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $10,000, agreed to, 1982; amdt (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item by $25,000, neg., 1982
Tobin, Lieut. Col., and 29th Battalion, 1975
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Training camps, qu., 2584
Transport and freight, 1986
Amdts. (Mr. Hanson) to reduce by $60,000 and (Mr. Spencer to reduce by $10,000, 1987
War claims, adjustment of, 1155, 2098, 2974
Warlike stores, 1137, 1154-63
Sale of, 1171-3

Milk. See also Dairying Industry
Competition with Klim, 981
Condensed, tax, 2492, 3264-5, 3271, 3409
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Herds supplying. See Accredited herds
Paper caps for bottles, 3114
Products, taxation, 3263-4

Milking Machines, 3270

Mill Feeds, adutleration of, 1012, 2490. See also Grain and Grain Trade

Millar, Mr. John (Qu'Appelle)
Agricultural implements, price of, 1476
Agriculture
Condition and prospects of, 1475, 2163
Plant pathologist, 593-4
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2736
Banks, interest rates, 3601
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Budget, 2294. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war indebtedness; failure

Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Budget — Con.
to meet larger proportion of cost during the war; public debt; revenue and expenditure; encouragement of basic industries; agriculture bled white, 2294; monopolies and political contributions; labour unions; extracting profits from the consumer, 2295; insufficient tariff reductions; agriculture languishing; price of gasoline; Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Meighen on the tariff, 2296; the tariff and mergers; increased prices of textiles; white lead, protective duty added to price; sales tax, the poor man hit, 2297; free food, boots and shoes; protection and wages; average income tax by classes; cost of fostering home industries, 2298; income tax, introduction of; loan companies, 2299
Canadian National railways
Branch lines, 1476, 2772
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Census
Completion of, 1363
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Civil Service, overmanning, 401
Dairy industry, 980
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Estimates, 401
Expenditure, necessity for economy in, 401, 1475
Export liquor warehouses, Saskatchewan, 767, qu., 1211
Legality of, qu., 1660
Fish culture, 2169
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Fort William-Port Arthur terminal elevators, qu., 1210
Hudson bay railway, completion of, 2784
Immigration
Foreigners, loyalty of, 2163
German, 3052
Policy, 2163
Indians
Education and health, 1228
Round lake school, 3537
Liquor
Export warehouses, 767, qu., 1211, qu., 1660, 3001
Importation into Saskatchewan, qu., 2037, qu., 2303
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Loan companies, renewal of loans, 1476
Parsons, W. Reuben, qu., 3362

Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Quebec harbour advances, 1475
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1198
Grain transportation, 2756
Saskatchewan liquor export. See under this title, Liquor
Soldier land settlement, land purchases, 2139
Terminal elevators, overages, qu., 1210, 2837
Welland canal
Estimates, amdt. to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758; neg., 2764
Grain transportation, 2756
Wheat Board bill, 3385, 3181
Woollen goods, duty on, 3136

Milling Combines, 304, 2633. See also Wheat Board

Milne, Mr. Robert (Neepawa)
Agriculture dept., officials, 654
Budget, 2239. A six country; new fiscal policy needed; amendment; no solution; loss of faith in political parties, 2239; economy; tariff inconsistencies; unfairness as between manufacturer and farmer; free raw materials and protected product; sales tax, 2240; farmers and the income tax; agriculture the mainstay of the country, 2241
Fishways in White Mud river, 2167

Milton, speech of Hon. Mr. Murphy, at, 2562

Mineral Resources Bureau. See Imperial Mineral Resources

Mineral Waters, tax on. See Taxation

Mines and Minerals. See also Coal; Geological Survey; Natural Resources
Assay office, Vancouver, 1236
Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237
Clay products, 1234
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Lignite Utilization Board, 3524
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Mineral rights. See Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt.
Miners' strike, district No. 12, 1058
Mines dept.,
Estimates,, 685, 1233
Salaries, 685
Statistical branch, 1366
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Ore dressing plant, 1236

Mines and Minerals — Con.
Publications, 1234-6
Resources, 12
Investigation of, 1234
Reduction in vote, 1236-62
Road and materials, 1234
Select Standing Com., 1398
Tar sands, 1236
Yukon, mineral discoveries, 1276

Ministers and Directorships, 241-243
M. (Mr. McMaster), 1084; neg., 1131
Bank directors, 1091
Bank of Montreal, 1129
Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
Borden, Sir Robert, 1089
Directors of large corporations, names, 1128
Government's attitude, 1095-1117, 1124
Great Britain, practice in, 1089-99, 1107-1128
House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088, 1100, 1111, 1113, 1129
Interlocking directorates, 1086, 1100, 1115, 1129
Judges' Act, 1088
Merchants' Bank, 1085, 1096, 1121
Practice in other countries, 1090, 1096, 1101, 1114
Tariff beneficiaries, 1088
White, Sir Tomas, 1089, 1102

Ministers of the Crown
Salaries, 1093, 2895
Trips to Europe, 14

Minority Candidates. See Elections

Minority Government. See Elections

Minors, sale of drugs to. See Opium and Narcotics

Miscou-Shippegan Islands, service, 2029

Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 46, qu., 471

Mitchell, Mr. Walter (St. Antoine)
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3002
Carriage or transportation, amdt., 3008
Canadian National railways
Deficits, 1910
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Public ownership and operation, 1907
Rails and car repair contracts, 1694, 1709, 1961
Reference to by Mr. Meighen, 21, 207

Monckton Papers, purchase of, 1673

Moncton
Intercolonial headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Railway shops, 1709

Money. See also Banks and Banking; Currency; Finance
Gold standard, 1291
Purchasing power of, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603, 2629. See also Address; Budget
Mark, German. See Germany

Money Bills. See Appropriation; Supply

Montpetit, Professor. See Genoa Conference

Montreal (city)
Bank of. See Banks
Canadian National railways' employees, 1288
Census figures, 1366
Clerks of the peace. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Cold storage warehouse, 819
Customs and excise employees, 1288
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392-4
Income tax office, qu., 607, 1288
Merchants' Association, 1392
Ordnance stores building, repairs, 1245
Post office employees, 1288
Post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, staff, 1342
Suburban steam service, 135
Wages of workmen, 1465

Montreal (port). See also British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu., 2631
Employees, qu., 2992
Expenditure to date, 1488
Facilities, 1472, 1473
Grain shipments through, 1489
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Revenue, 1465
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-1209, 1315-34

Montreal Gazette
Canadian National railways, 1923
King-Crerar alliance, 206
Montreal Harbour Commission, resignation, 1481

Montreal Harbour Commission, 1289, 1335. See also Quebec Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Harbour master, Capt. Landry, 1481
Paint purchased, qu., 602
Policemen, qu., 2992
Resignation of commissioners, 1478-81
Tugboats, qu., 600

Montreal Harbour Commission Advances bill
Res., 1335, 1488; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 3r., 3199

Monty, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill

Monuments. See also Battlefields; War Memorials
Historic sites, 119, qu., 469
New Brunswick, historic sites, qu., 469
Parliament hill, qu., 936

Moore, Mr. Tom, and immigration, 3053

Moosejaw public building improvements,

Morgan, J. P., & Company, 1131, 1133

Morganatic Alliances. See Alliances

Morin, Mr. L. S. René (St. Hyacinthe-Rouville)
Canadian Northern railway, qu., 368
Wheat Board, 2926

Morphine. See Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Morrison, Mr. John (Weyburn)
Budget, 2699. Comparative prices of wheat and farm implements in Saskatchewan and North Dakota; shifting burden of taxation, 2699; exports of farm implements; competition in foreign markets; protection of industries; customs tariff inadequate to raise revenue, 2700; excise duty on manufactured goods; expense of running the Government; to much overhead, 2701; comparative development of Canada and the United states; freight rates and Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702; export rates on manufactured goods and agricultural products; prices of hides, wool, boots and shoes and clothing; exchange value of wheat and commodities, 2703
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1425-6
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Sales tax collections, qu., 375
Saskatchewan liquor exports, 3005
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 435

Morrissy, Mr. John (Northumberland, N.B.)
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Provincial wharves, 1992

Mothers, Widowed, pensions to. See Pensions

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. (Minister of Agriculture)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Accredited herds, 649, 999
Diseases, 969
Valuation, 1003
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1012
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 1282, 3041, 3043, 3195
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1013
Agricultural lecturers, 1024
Agriculture department
Deputy Minister's salary, 653
Employees, 651
Estimates, 644, 1718, 3504, 3520
Lynton, Mr. T. J., 588
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 645, 651, 1013
Officials, 654-5
Professional men, 589
Salary increases, 588, 657
Saunders, Dr., 590
Alderson claim, hog cholera, 1004
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102, 2734-43, 2806
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2548. Fulfilment of election pledges; Liberal platform of 1893, 2548; tariff pledge; British preference; reciprocity, defeat of, 1911; free trade, 2549; unrestricted reciprocity; cry of annexation; opposition of manufacturers to proposal, 2550; Canada's tragic mistake; protection; infant industries; protection for the farmer, 2551; not a protectionist budget; a substantial step in right direction; Liberal platform of 1919; revision of Progressive platform, 2552; excise duty on manufactured articles; revenue, 2553; free trade and revenue duties; motor cars; Mr. Crerar's pre-election statements; gradual reduction of tariff, 2554; elimination of protective feature; Regina speech; time inopportune for drastic action, 2555; Department of Agriculture; accredited herds; tuberculosis in cattle, 2556; cold storage; experimental farm system, 2557; staff; Civil Service Commission, 2559; patronage, 2560
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 2998
Carvell, Hon. F. B., 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Cattle embargo, 970, 979, 1021
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 998, 1024, 2557, 3521

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. — Con
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2834
Dairies, inspection of, 1006
Dairy produce, grading, 652, 656
Dairying industry, 982
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology
Botanical section, 816
Insect pests, 815
Exhibition grants, 649, 979
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 804, 812, 1014, 2557
Illustration farms, 3521
Fertilizers
Inspectors, 692
Manure, exportation of, 1021
Grasshoppers, 3520
Health of animals. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Contagious diseases, 967
Hog cholera, 1008
Compensation, 1028
Tuberculosis, 2556, 3521
Hogs, grading of, 1025
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2784
International Institute of Agriculture, 969
Klim, competition with milk, 981
Liquor, export of, 2998
Live stock industry, 978
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Grazing and feeding, 1719, 3522
National live stock records, 1027
Provincial governments, overlapping, 997
Stockyards, 1030
Wolves, destruction by, 998-999
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Mixed farming, 998
Oleomargarine, 654
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1804
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3358, 3425-32, 3487
Pure bred sires, 1032
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement in regard to, 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Root Vegetables, sale and inspection of, 1282, 2724, 3142, 3194, 3369, 3486
Rust investigations, 594
Saskatchewan liquor export, 2998
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Spruce bud moth, 595
Wheat Board, 377, 2940
Wheat Board bill, 3382
Wool industry, 997

Motor Cars, Theft of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Motor Trucks for transportation, 134

Mounted Police. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Moving Pictures. See Trade and Commerce

Mowing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3363

Municipal Prison Farms, 1277. See also Prison Reform

Municipal Taxation, payment of by Government, 1256

Municipalities
Unemployment relief, 1069

Munitions. See Guthrie; King, Mackenzie, Militia and Defence; War

Munro, Mr. E. A. (Fraser Valley)
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1793
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1537

Murdock, Hon. James (Minister of Labour)
Building trades, 583
Canmore and Drumheller coal miners' dispute, 1058
Civil Service, report of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 554
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1054
Cost of living, 1058
Employment offices, 1058
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour department
Classification of employees, 494, 575
Director of technical education, 578
Economy and work, 465
Estimates, 1970, 3526
Outside employees, 493, 494
Permanent and temporary employees, 460-1
Staff and salaries, 458-9, 562, 575
Statistical work, 580
Wage investigators, 462
Labour Gazette, 1058
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, M. to reduce item by $100,000, 1972

Murdock, Hon. James — Con
Militia and Defence — Con.
Clothing and necessaries, M. to reduce item by $21,000, 1978
Engineer services and work, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., M. to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item by $10,000, 1982
Nova Scotia miners, 46, 1054
Labour department officer, 585
M. (Mr. Irvine) 505
Printing Bureau, 1970
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1701
Unemployment relief, 1074, 1719, 2022, 3526
Policy of government, inquiry, 3491
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Whitley councils, 1061
Winnipeg strike, correspondence with Mr. Andrews, 2042

Murphy, Hon. Charles (Postmaster General)
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Militia expenditure and policy, 1582
National Defence bill, 677
Post Office department
Employees
Bonus, 2801
Salaries, 691, 2801, 3504
Estimates, 1711, 2799
Inspectorates, reorganization, 1507
Outside service, 2799
Railway mail service, 2800
Reorganization, 2800
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800, 2801
Subletting, 2802
Yukon, parcel post, 2802

Murray Bay-Tadoussac service, 3035

Musk Ox in northern Canada, 2785

Mutton, imported, qu., 610

Mutual Insurance. See Insurance

Nanaimo, B.C Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Nanton, Sir Augustus, 1128

Narcotic Drugs. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289

Nassau Dam, qu., 2457

National Battlefields Commission. See Battlefields Commission

National Debt. See Public Debt

National Defence. See also National Defence bills
Department of
Ashton, Major General, 661
Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, 661, 742
Canadian air force and civil aviation, 1722
Currie, Sir Arthur, 659, 743
Elmsley, Major General, 661
Gwatkin, Major General, 742
MacBrien, Major General, 661, 742
Morrison, Sir Edward, 661
Naval students in armories, physical drill, 1741
Services, co-ordination, 91, 97, 1747

National Defence, Department of, bills respecting
1. No. 15. 1r., 363-4; order for 2r., discharged, 547-8
2. No. 27. Res., 644, 657; 1r., 2r., com., 681; com., 733; 3r., 787; Senate amdts., 2806
Sections and subjects discussed:
Air Service, 658, 677
Amalgamation of services, 658
Appointment of officer to exercise powers of deputy, 737
Controller, 741
Defence Council, 746
Deputy Minister, 737
Desbarats, Mr. J. B., 737
Federal laws, enforcement of, 680
Holder of position abolished may be appointed to another, 741
Militia, 658
Naval Service, 658
Officers, retirement of, 661, 742
Officials, 736
Orders in Council, 661
Powers of Minister and deputy, 746
Regulations, 746
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 658
Secret service, 670-9
Services included, 733

National Gallery, 2011

National Industrial Conference, unemployment insurance, qu., 1375

National Livestock Records, 1026

National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

National Railways. See Canadian National Railways

National Status. See Canada

National Transcontinental Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Nationalists, 187
Conservative alliance with, 2095. See also Naval Service
Naval policy and, 1849, 1877

Natural Resources. See also Forestry; Mines and Minerals
Alienation of, 2245, 2992
Coal lands, 3465, See also Coal
Development, 269
Foreign ownership of, 2243. See also United States
Investigation of mineral resources, 1234
Northern Canada, in, 2779-99
Water powers, 1051. See also that title
Western provinces of, 88, 89, 100, 116, 154, 168, 223, 229, 339
Aerial patrol, 1722
Agreement with Government of Manitoba, 1018
Claims of prairie provinces, 1017
Conference with premiers, 1017
Tabled, 1769
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Transfer of, M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence, 1509

Naturalization. See also Dominion Elections Act

Naturalization Act, 1388, 1390
Disabilities of British-born under, 1389-91
Expenses, 1671, 2024
Further legislation, inquiry, 3103

Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Residence (Mr. Archambault) 1r., 1062
2. Method of application (Mr. Copp) 1r., 3436

Naval Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval College. See under Naval Service, Royal Naval College

Naval Defence. See Naval Service

Naval Fortifications. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval Service. See also Marine; National Defence
Aurora, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1898. See also that title

Naval Service — Con.
Canadian navy, members stranded, 3365
Cruisers and destroyers, expenditure, qu., 2039
Department
Deputy Minister. See National Defence
Estimates, 1843, 1862, 2043
Reduction in, 2371
Naval council and officers, qu., 1774
Salaries, 418, 1735, 1745
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, officers, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 665, 678, 1736, 1740, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Hydrographic service, 1736, 1746
Naval college, 2047, 2203, 2458
Naval defence
Contribution of dominions, 1742
"Five trawler policy", 1741-5
Naval policy, 2043-84
Naval volunteers, 2058
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1305
Protection of fur seals, 1844
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, qu., 366, 1843, 1862
Aurora, cruiser, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Debate postponed, 1742-5, 1900, 1072
Dreadnoughts, contribution of, 1876
Esquimalt naval station, 1740
Estimates, 2043
Gift of ships to Canada, 1880-7, 2050
Halifax, protection and service at, 1740
Naval reserve force, 1739
Naval volunteer force, 1740
Niobe and Rainbow, 1736
Patricia, 1736, 2051
Patriot, 1736, 2051
Policy adopted, in 1913, 1876
Resolution of 1909, 1873
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Submarines, 1845
Training, 1740
Travelling expenses, qu., 3156
Trawlers, 1740
Units, cost, etc., qu., 965
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827
Royal Naval college, Esquimalt, 2044
Closing of, 2047, 2203, 2458
Tidal surveys, 1736
Transfer of services to Minister of Marine and Fisheries, 3611
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
War service badge, 1754

Navigation. See also Marine
Aids to, 1498
Detroit river, 1498
Life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Rainy river lights, 1499
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Schools of, 1492

Navy. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; National Defence; Naval Service; Royal Canadian Navy

Neill, Mr. Alan W. (Comox-Alberni)
Address in reply, 169. Congratulations to preceding speakers; Miss Macphail, 169; comparison of parties; British Columbia and protection, 170; Mr. Crerar, 170-171; Orientals in British Columbia, 171; personal position and platform, 172-3; unemployment; wider markets, 174; railway rates, 175; the tariff; free trade and protection, 176; Chinese eggs, 177; butter and oleomargarine, 177-8; coal mines in Vancouver Island; fuel oil importations, 178; Hon. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Clements; vote in Cumberland district, 179; railways and government ownership, 180; necessaries and luxuries, 182; immigration, 182-3; Asiatics, competition with; soldier settlement, 183; inheritance tax; eight hour day; old age pensions; removal of Dominion Elections Act from statutes, 184
British Columbia
Coastal services, qu., 3152
Fisheries, cost and revenue, 2306
Fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 860
Post offices, qu., 824
Public buildings, 1258
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2307. Free trade and protection: a question of geography, 2307; the tariff, a compromise; economic position of British Columbia; support of government during session; expenditures in Vancouver and Victoria; rural constituencies neglected, 2309; political arguments for Conservative members; fruit industry and dumping clause; Oriental aliens; exclusion of, 2310; acquisition of British Columbia timber areas by Japanese; immediate action demanded; the workingman and the Neill, Mr. Alan W. — Con.

Budget — Con.
eight hour day; lumber industry and freight rates, 2311; protection of coal mining industry against fuel oil; importation of coal from Japan; fishing industry; reduction in gasoline practically no benefit to fishermen; dairy industry; fruit industry; dumping clause; industries of Comox-Alberni, 2313; country districts suffering injustice; views of constituents, 2314
Canadian Freighter, Japanese coal imports, qu., 963
Civil Service reform, 3100
Courtney post office building, 1258
Criminal Code, carriage of calves under three weeks' old, 2831
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1438
Debates, official report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Election day a public holiday, 2812
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1354, 1439, 1602-6
Amdt. 1156, neg., 1163
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3012
Fuel oil, British Columbia, qu., 728, 2312
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
House of Commons, accoustics, 3544
Immigration
Methods, 3057
South-eastern Europe, from, 3057
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Intending immigrants to make application) 2207
Indians, medical attention, 1219
International Labour Conference, qu., 824
Japanese in British Columbia, 2310. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 521
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M., 1777, 1836
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3016
Oriental Aliens
Japanese, acquisition of timber areas in British Columbia, 3210
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1539
Paper mills, 3113
Pensions Com., final report, 3332
Point of order
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rule 19, offensive words, 1361

Neill, Mr. Alan W. — Con.
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1469
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt., 3407
Special War Revenue Act
Sales tax, 3269
Stumping powder, 3268
Statistics, co-ordination of, 581

Neill, Mr. C. E., 1128

Nelson post office revenue, qu., 2040

Neutrals and Non-Combatants. See Limitation of Armaments

New Brunswick
Floods, 3492
Harbours and rivers, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce vote, 1998
Immigration and, 2165
Public buildings, 1239
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293, qu., 1774
Salmon rivers, fishways, 2167
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1344
Wharves
Provincial, 1991
Tidal waters in, qu., 2209
Transfer of, qu., 2305

New London, Conn., seaport, 2611

New York Central Railway, 128

New Zealand
Butter. See Oleomargarine
Government ownership of railways, 181

Newfoundland
Canada-Newfoundland steamship service, 2027
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Reid-Newfoundland railway, 2027
Trade between Prince Edward Island and, 226

Newfoundland-Labrador Boundary
Reference to Privy Council, 1276
Doherty, Hon. C. J. reported engagement of, 2572
White, Mr. James, technical adviser, 3495

Newmarket, speech of Prime Minister at, 34-35

Newspapers
Censors, 1069
English, comment on Grand Trunk arbitration, 374, 821
Extracts. See Speaker, Rulings

Niagara Power Development, 134. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway

Nickel. See also Coinage

Nickel Coin Blanks, qu., 3152

Nickel Currency. See Currency Act Amdt.

Niobe and Rainbow, 1736. See also Naval Service

Non-Taxable Bonds. See Bonds; Finance

Norman Dam. See Lake of the Woods

Normand, Hon. Dr., references to. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Norris, Hon. T. C., Premier of Manitoba
Natural resources, 1017
And freight rates, reported statement on, 1213

North Sydney quarantine station, 1238, 2021

Northern Islands and Waters
Patrol. See Naval Service
Policy respecting, 1750

Northwest Rebellion
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, pensions. See Pensions
Smith, Mr. Leo, pension to, 3523

Notices of Cancellation. See Dominion Lands

Nova Scotia
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Air station at Dartmouth, 1724
Coal industry, protection of, 2412
Coal strike, 461. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1269, 1765
International deep sea racing. See that title
Liberal party in, 2606
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Pensioners in, qu., 615
Public buildings, 1238
Shipbuilding, 1387
Supreme Court, vacancy, 3436
Unemployment, 1075-6

Nova Scotia Miners, qu., 605, 1054. See also Labour
Inquiry, 597
McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
M. (Mr. Irvine) 497, 539, 545

Noxious Gases and Chemicals, use of. See Limitation of Armaments

Observatory. See Dominion Observatory

Occupational Diseases. See Labour

Ocean
Ports, 1464-86
Tonnage, 2008
Vessels
Quebec, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-95, 1205

Ocean and River Service. See Marine

O'Connor, Mr. James, Snowflake, Man., dismissal, 1674

O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C.
Payments to, qu., 2037
Revision of statutes, 1718

Official Report of Debates. See House of Commons

O'Hara, Captain, 1490

Oil. See also Natural Resources
Duty on oil drilling machinery, 2726
Fuel Oil, 344, qu., 728
Competition with coal mining industry, 2312
Importations, 178
Tank at Louise basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Leases, speculation in, 1046
Mackenzie and Peace river, cost of surveys, 1044

Okanagan Valley, fruit growing, 163. See also Budget; Customs, Dumping clause; Fruit

Old Age Pensions, 184, 1070, qu., 1375. See also Pensions
And mothers' pensions, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303-5

Oleomargarine, 2205. See also Agriculture; Butter; Dairying
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, res., 1794
Children fed on, 178
Competition with butter, 177
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Great War Veterans' Association, 1798
Importation and Manufacture, qu., 613, qu., 1506
Discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) 1720, 1776, neg., 1840

Oleomargarine — Con.
Local Council of Women, Hamilton, 1835
Materials, importation of, qu., 704, qu., 727, 3270
National Dairy Council, and, 1791
Regulations under Act, qu., 1702
Retail Merchants' Association and, 1797

Oleomargarine Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res., 3358, 3425; 1r., 3435; 2r., 3487; com., 3489; 3r., 3489

Oliver, Hon. John, Premier of British Columbia. criticism of by Vancouver Sun, 2236, 2237

One-Fourth Vote. See Interim Supply

Onion Grades, 2744. See also Root Vegetables

Ontario
Alienation of natural resources, qu., 2992
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Flags on public schools, 1265
Harbours and rivers, 1999
Historic battle sites, 119-120
Hydro Electric Power Commission. See that title
Public buildings, 1245
Appropriations not required, 1259
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1258
Rural population, loss of, 301. See also Budget; Population
Taxation of, 131
Water powers. See Lake of the Woods

Ontario Athletic Commission, cadet camps, 1973

Ontario Temperance Act. See Canada Temperance Act

Opium and Narcotic Drugs. See also Health
Chinese, 2018
Cocaine, 2019
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1377
Enforcement of Act
Prosecutions, 2017
Japanese, 2017
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Morphine, 2019
Oriental traffic in, 1529, 2017. See also Oriental Aliens
Production and export of, 2019
Prohibition and, 2017
Smuggling, 2020

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1841, 2823; 1r., 2826; 2r., com., 3013; 3r., 3025; Senate amdts., 3607

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. — Con..
Sections and subjects discussed:
Appeal, restriction of right, 3020
Dealing in drugs, 3013
Deportation, 3013, 3024
Penalties, 3013, 3014, 3020
Whipping, 3015

Opposition. See also Progressive Party
Attitude of, 60-61. See also Speeches on Budget
Position of. See Interim Supply
Representation in Parliament, 40
Status of leader of, 73

Orchards, protection of. See Entomology; Fruit Industry

Orders in Council, qu., 935
Canadian National railways, management, 192
Government by, 38, 141, 660, 662, 2518, 2536, 2562, 2880
Intercolonial railway operation, 107
Number passed, qu., 934, qu., 935

Ordnance Lands, local improvements fronting, 1681

Orient, trade with, 85. See also Trade

Oriental Aliens, 967
Australian legislation, 1536
Birth rate, 317
British Columbia in, 167, 171, 316, 332, 855
Resolution of legislature, 1513
Restrictive legislation, 1510
Canadians, disabilities in Japan, 1511, 2208
Chinese, 1510, 2026 3437
Arrival of at Vancouver, 3604
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Coal mined by, 2407
Coolie labour on British ships, 2042
Demands for exclusion of, 1513
Education, cost of, 317
Fisheries, engaged in, 345, 855
Franchise and, 483, 485
Fruit growing and, 1535. See also Fruit Industry
Gentlemen's agreement, 1511
Immigration, 319, 2161. See also that title
Chinese. See also under this title, Chinese Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776
Inquiry for opportunity to discuss, 967, 1461, 3104
Japanese
Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776

Oriental Aliens — Con.
Rights of Canadians in Japan, 1511, 2208
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148
Written application by intending immigrants, 2207
Japan, treaty with, 1511
Japanese, qu., 1399, qu., 1459, 1510
Acquisition of timber limits in British Columbia, 2310
Competition in British Columbia, 2279
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also that title
Labour, competition with, 317
Land occupation by, 1534
Number in Canada, 1512
Motion (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1509
Amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) for "effective restriction", 1567; agreed to, 1577
Canada's right to legislate, 1550
"Effective restriction", 1567
Opium and Narcotic drug traffic, 1529, 2017

Osler, Sir Edmund, 1128

Ottawa
Cartier square Militia dept., shed, qu., 2038
Daly building, purchase of, 1252
Daylight saving, 1282
Dominion observatory and geodetic survey building, 1265
Local improvements fronting ordnance lands, 1681
New departmental buildings, 3541
Noon gun, 1756
Ottawa Gas Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed
Ottawa-Kingston highway, qu., 1904
Parliament buildings, 2014. See also that title
Proposed donation of Rideau canal to, 2764
Public buildings, 1245, 1252, 1265, 1755
Char service, 1756
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, including roads and bridges, 1267
Rental of buildings in, 1252, 1764
Rideau hall, maintenance, 1756
Telephone service, 1757
Water, 1266

Ouimet, Mr. Joseph Rodolphe (Vaudreuil-Soulanges)
Introduction of, 323

Outside Service. See Civil Service

Overages. See Grain and Grain Trade; Elevators

Pacific and Great Eastern Railway, 342

Pacific Naval Powers. See Limitation of Armaments

Pairs. See House of Commons, Divisions

Palais Station, Quebec, 1068

Palestine, mandate over, 1716

Panama Canal, 191, 1326-9. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Panet, Mr. L. C., appointment as Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5

Paper Control Inquiry, 1673

Paper ror magazines, taxation, 3108

Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197. See also Quebec Harbour Commission

Parent, Mr. George (Quebec West)
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Civil Service examinations, 871
Insurance premiums, 3253
Labour dept., organized and unorganized labour, qu., 2303
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Quebec bridge, 1068
Quebec riots, qu., 1508
Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370

Parents, support of by children, 1310. See also Pensions; Widowed Mothers

Paris Agency, 2025

Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Parliament
Fall session, 3608
Opening of, 1
Prorogation of, 3616
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183

Parliament Buildings
Architects' fees, 2014
Cost to date, 2014
Estimates, 2014
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
House of Commons Chamber, accoustics, 1751, 1755, 1996, 3613. See also that title
Lighting, 1755
Tower, 2016

Parliament Hill monuments, qu., 936

Parliamentary Counsel, 2572

Parliamentary Guide, 2024

Parliamentary Procedure. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Parliamentary Restaurant
Com. appointed, 326
Loss in, 184

Parry Sound
Lighthouse inspector, qu., 827
Postal receipts, qu., 938

Parsons, Mr. W. Reuben, qu., 3362

Party Representation, 214

Party System of Government, 2339. See also Address; Budget

Party System of Politics, 117-118, 214, 215. See also Address; Budget

Passenger Rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Passport Office, 2066

Patent Record, 2026

Paternalism. See Pensions Committee

Patricia, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriot, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriotic Fund. See Canadian Patriotic Fund

Patronage, 2608. See also Budget; Civil Service; Speeches on Address
Appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Census enumerators, appointment of, 1368, 1372
Civil service, 1663
Civil Service Commission, 2559, 2563
Intercolonial railway and, 106
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Peace River block, 330

Peace Treaties. See Limitation of Armaments; Treaties

Pears, Vice Admiral Sir Edmund, 2061

Pearson, Mr. John A., Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Pearson Institute, Toronto, 3457

Pease, Mr. E. L., 1128

Peat. See also Fuel; Natural Resources
Committee, 1505
Deposits, experiments and production, qu., 1505
Investigational work, 1235

Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276

Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844

Penitentiaries. See also Justice; Prisons
Appointments, 1277
Death of inmates, qu., 3362
Dorchester, prison reform, 1278
Estimates, 1276
Supplementary, 1670
Infectious diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Inmates
Foreign and native, 1279
Increase in number, 1277, 1279, 1670
Inspection by grand juries, 1743. See also Prison Reform
Kingston, overcrowding, qu., 3362
Patronage, appointments, 1277
Population, increased, 1277, 1279, 1670
Prison reform. See that title
St. Vincent de Paul, employees and number of convicts, qu., 2804

Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, (Infectious diseases) 1r., 545; 2r., 787; com., 787; 3r., 967

Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1132, 3043; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3148

Penny Banks, depositaries for money received, 1132

Pension Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3402; 1r., 3405; 2r., com., 3439; com., 3459; 3r., 3463; Senate amdts., 3612
Sections and subjects discussed:
Application for pension, 3445
Blinded men, 3456
Bonus payments continued, 3451
Deserted mothers, 3439
Disability at or prior to discharge, 3452
Disability attributable to, incurred or aggravated during military service, 3453
Pension to widow, 3447
Power to cancel pension of prostitute, 3451

Pension Act Amdt. — Con.
Sections and subjects discussed — Con.
Residents in Canada, 3446
Time within which application must be made, 3445
Total and helpless disability, 3446
Widowed mother, 3439

Pension Commissioners, Board of
Amalgamation with Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept., 1339-40
Charges by G.W.V.A. against, 2994, 3041. See also Speeches on Address
Memorandum of Chairman in reply, 2994
Royal Commission to investigate, 3156, 3304, 3312, 3327, 3336, 3345, 3352, 3355-6
Expenditure, 1349
Imperial pensions, 1347-51
Medical examinations, 1343
Salaries and contingent expenses, 1339, 1349
Secondary boards, 1350
Staff, 1351

Pensions. See also National Defence bill; Railways
Civil, 1711
Commutation of, 390, 1281, 1349
Crimean war, 3315
Disabilities, 390
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Fabre, Madame, 2024
Fenian raid, 3315
Grand Trunk railway employees, 2041. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Imperial Forces, M. (Mr. Ladner) 864, 1347-51
Increased, 184
Investigation. See under this title, Roya Commission
Lightkeepers, 1496
Maternity benefits, 1070
Mothers, qu., 1375
Deceased soldiers, of, M. (Mr. Power) 1313
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Nova Scotia, payment in, qu., 615
Old age, 184, 1070, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303, agreed to, 1305
Returned soldiers, 320, 327. See also Returned Soldiers
Royal Commission on, suggested, 386. See also Pensions Board
Sickness, 1070
South African war, 3315
Total expenditure on, 1349

Pensions — Con.
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
M. (Mr. Power) 1305, 1313
Widows, 1070
Wrenick, Mrs., 3457

Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment of Returned Soldiers
Special Committee appointed, 496-7
Change in names, 596
First report, 726
Final report, 3286
M. (Mr. Marler) for adoption, 3286
Amdt. (Mr. Shaw) to refer back, 3308; Withdrawn, 3349
Recommendations, expenditure under, 3522

Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Dues, exemption from, 1500. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill
Fees to pilots and regulation of, 1499

Pleuro-Pneumonia. See Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals

Ploughs, duty on. See Agricultural Implements

Pocket-Knives, Competition, 2646, 2876. See Budget; Currency, depreciated; Customs Act; Germany

Police Commissioners, bribing of. See Criminal Code

Political Alliances, "Morganatic", 2095. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party

Political Contributions, by Monopolies, 2295. See also Election of 1921

Political Patronage. See Patronage

Polls. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Pollution of Streams, 2168

Pool Selling. See Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Population. See also Budget; Census; Immigration
By ages, qu., 1632
Drift towards the cities, 2153, 2302
Increase under Liberal and Conservative govts., 2362, 2365
Loss of, 2439-40, 2449
Rural. See under this title, Rural
Ten years, in, 2516
Need of increased, 2148-58, 2275

Population — Con.
Oriental in Canada, 1512. See also Oriental Aliens
Rural, 2564-5
Decline in, 2153, 2156, 2158, 2384, 2439-40, 2449, 2683
Loss in Ontario, 2369, 2683
Movement to cities and towns, 2153, 2302, 2403
Urban, and, qu., 376
Infant mortality and, 2634
Slow growth of, 2158
Yukon territory, 1681

Pork Imports, qu., 611

Port Arthur
Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co. claim, 1677

Port Dalhousie, 1493

Port Hood breakwater, 1768

Port Nelson, dredging, 2006

Portage La Prairie
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2004
Exhibition grant, qu., 1931
Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Porter, Mr. E. G. (East Hastings)
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3457
Trenton harbour bill, 3494
Wrenick, Mrs., pension, 3457

Portland Terminus, 2611
Competition with Canadian ports, 104, 2611. See also Grand Trunk Railway; British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)

Ports, United States in preference to Canadian, 353-4

Postal Conference, 7, 15

Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Post Office
Department
Appointments, 3073
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving salary of $600, qu., 1067
Estimates, 1711
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu., 3599
General superintendent of postal service, 1711
Married women employees, qu., 1658

Post Office — Con.
Department — Con.
Money Order branch, qu., 1285
Outside service, estimates, 2799
Postal employees, 3075
Printing and stationery, 1741
Salaries and contingencies, 69, 3504
Drop letter rate, 1250
Letter rate, Canada-Great Britain, qu., 3364
Mail, carriage of, qu., 825
Mail contracts
Canadian National railways, qu., 2038
Canadian Pacific railway, and, qu., 2040, qu., 2213
Gascons-Quebec, qu., 2213
Grand Anse, qu., 938
Lachenaie, qu., 2805
Richmond and Wolfe, qu., 1505
Rigaud-St. Rédempteur, 1776
Sudbury, qu., 1285
Money orders tax, 2857
Montreal
Employees, 1288
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599
Post offices and business done, qu., 1065
Postal receipts, qu., 938
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm, 1775
Sturgeon falls, qu., 1285
Post offices in British Columbia, qu., 824
Railway mail service, 2797
Reorganization, 2799
Revenue, qu., 2040
Richmond and Wolfe post offices, qu., 1507
Ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscription, qu., 3599
Rural mail routes, qu., 3152
Savings banks, reduction in interest rate, qu., 1932
Sherbrooke inspectorate, qu., 1507
Subsidized steamships and carriage of mails, 2028
Toronto, revenue, qu., 368, 1250

Potatoes
Conference of growers, 3367
Cost of growing, 2665
Duty on, 239, 2601
Grading machines, 3126
Market for, 225
Marking and grading. See Root Vegetables
Prices of, 94
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Shipping cost. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Trade with United States, 336. See also Budget

Potlatch Institution. See Indians

Poultry Industry, 226, 807

Power, Mr. C. G. (Quebec South)
Admiralty Court, vacancy at Quebec, 1275
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
Fishing schooner race, 3510
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. (Halifax) payments to, 2772
Militia
Annual drill, amdt. to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1173, 1174, neg., 1631
Engineer services and works, 1980
Expenditure and policy, annual training, 1611
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3443
Pensions
Mothers of deceased soldiers, M., 1313
Widowed mothers, M., 1305, 1312
Point of order — not permissible to read evidence to controvert member, 3540
References to, 1339
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3396
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 398

Power Development. See Electrification; Hydro Electric; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Prairie Provinces
"Annexation of", 1020
Forestry in, 1046
Natural resources. See Western Provinces

Pratt vs. Delphine, 302

Preference, trade. See British Preference; Trade; United States

Premiums, Insurance tax on. See Special War Revenue

Prescriptions, refilled. See Opium and Narcotics

Preservation of Industries Act, 2648

President Harding, St. Lawrence river waterway, 1326

Press. See also Canadian Press; Newspapers
Censors, 1068

Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3503

Prevost, Mr. Jules E. (Terrebonne)
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937
Budget, 2577. Tribute to Finance Minister, his difficulties and responsibilities; the Prevost, Mr. Jules E. — Con.

Budget — Con.
tariff, 2577; proposals in harmony with Liberal policy; new taxes; inheritance of debts from former governments; effort to lower cost of living; economy, 2578; national debt; militia or naval expenditure; expansion of external trade; decrease in exports; restoration of normal conditions, 2579; Canadian market insufficient for natural products and manufactured goods; trade with Great Britain and the United States; Fordney tariff; transportation; interior systems of communication, 2580; direct intercourse with foreign countries; duty of the department of Trade and Commerce; consuls and trade agents; information; trade commissioners; qualifications, 2581, fairs and exhibitions; serious problems; the future; new political groups; development of Canadian national spirit, 2582
Civil Service Commission report, qu., 826
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, 1298
Imports and exports, 1911-1922, qu., 1661
Militia and Defence
Annual drill
Expenditure 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries in Quebec, qu., 1287
Expenditure 1911-22, qu., 1287
Stationery, purchase of by Government, 1288

Pribyloff Islands, protection of fur seals, 1844

Prices. See also Budget; Cost of Living; Finance; Trade
Price-fixing combinations, 2428, 2437
Regulations of, 2504

Prime Minister's Bereavement, reference to death of brother. See King

Prime Ministers' Conference, 42. See also Naval Service
Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168
Correspondence, 1068
Empire naval defence, 1629, 1883, 2082
Canada's contribution, 1742
Resolution respecting, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Report, 5
Tabled, 8
Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Prince County, illegal fishing, qu., 371

Prince Edward Island
Harbours and rivers, 1270, 1988
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Natural resources, 339
Potato-growing, 225, 337
Public lands, 229
Railway, 229, 337, 1249. See also Canadian National Railways

Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065

Prince Rupert
Alien property, custodians of, 3601
Post office building, 1257
Post office revenue, qu., 2040
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Rental of buildings, 1257
Vessels constructed at, qu., 606

Princess Mary, marriage of, 39

Printers, immigration of, 3055

Printing. See also Printing Bureau; Publications
Canadian National menus, qu., 1931
Customs and excise, 1674
Joint Committee on, 211, 326, 1132
Public archives, 1673

Printing Bureau
Government printing, 1373
Government publications, distribution of, 1971
Legislation, 1972
Plant
New, 1970
Repairs and renewals, 1970
Statutes, 1972
Supreme Court reports, 1274

Printing and Stationery
Criminal Code, 1717
Interior, 1680
Post Office department, 1711
Statutes, 1717

Prison Reform, 1277-8; qu., 1773, 2397
Atlanta penitentiary, 1278
Dorchester penitentiary, 1278
Inspection by grand juries, qu., 1773, 2397
Jail farms, 1277-9; qu., 1773
Youthful offenders, qu., 1773

Prisoners, Contagious diseases of. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Pritchard, Mr. John (North Wellington)
Address in reply, 250. Congratulations, etc., parliamentary groups and class representation, 250; manufacturers and the tariff, 251; agricultural conditions, 252
Experimental farms, 806, 810

Private Bills, Committee, 374
Bouchard, Mr., substitution for Mr. Stein, 2035
Vien, Mr. substitution for Mr. Ouimet, 2355

Private Bills Discussed
Canadian Pacific Railway Company Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1606, 1856
Canadian Transit Company, 1746, 1770
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490, 3495
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co., 1353, 1439
Amdts. (Mr. Neill) 1156, neg. 1163; 1354, neg. 1357; 1602, neg. 1606
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 1577
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental Railway Company, 1577
Niagara River Bridge Company, 1486
Ottawa Gas Company, refund of fees, 1657

Private Bills Undiscussed. See Journals of the House

Private Secretaries. See Privy Council

Privilege, questions of. See House of Commons

Privy Council
Appeals, 139
Salaries and contingencies, 410

Proclamation. See Canada Temperance Act

Progressive Party, 295. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Council of Agriculture; Crerar; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Alleged split, denial, 2458
Alliances of, 2095-7
Attitude towards Government, 2233, 2507, 2842
Big interests and, 2393-4
Budget debate and, 2692
Canadian Pacific, and, 130
Class legislation and, 224. See also Address; Budget
Liberal negotiations with, 34, 48, 51, 240-1
Oleomargarine, attitude on, 2380. See also that title

Progressive Party — Con.
Ontario in, 2301, 2893-4
Origin of, 2512
Platform, revision, 2552
Redistribution, attitude towards, 1364-70

Prohibition. See also Canada Temperance Act; Liquor
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017

Property, alien enemy. See Aliens

Proportional Representation, 59. See also Dominion Elections
M. (Mr. Good) for adoption of alternative vote method, 1633
Residential qualification, 1301

Prorogation of Parliament, 3616

Proscription. See Criminal Code (Scrip frauds)

Protection, 143, 228. See also Address; Budget
Boots and shoes, 102
Manufacturers and, 2435-40. See also Budget
Policy of, 1088
Tariff and, 170, 2110. See also Tariff

Protocols. See League of Nations

Provinces. See also Natural Resources. For individual provinces, See their titles
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Unemployment relief, 1069
Western. See that title

Provincial Rights, infringement. See Lake of the Woods bill

Ptomaine Poisoning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Public Accounts. See also Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Committe, report, 1460, 3359
Date of closing, 1264-66
Non-productive assets, 1467

Public Archives
Estimates, 702, 1673, 2025
Monckton papers, purchase of, 1673

Public Buildings, 1755. See also their respective titles; Public Works; Supply
Alberta, 3545
Appropriations and expenditures for 1921-22, 1259-60
Chambers, Mr., 1244
Char service. See Ottawa

Public Buildings — Con.
Coal, importation of, 1759
Estimates, 1238, 1258, 1755
Expenditure, accounts not closed, 1262-66
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Flags, qu., 599, 1264
Generally, 1260-5
Heating, 1755-1758
Immigration, repairs, 1757
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
New, 1255, 2461
New Brunswick, 1239
New departmental designs, 3541
Nova Scotia, 1238
Ontario, 1245-59, 1258, 3544
Alleged neglect of, 1248
Ottawa, 1245-52, 1265, 1755. See also that title
Parliament buildings. See that title
Penitentiaries, 1277
Quebec, 1245
Rental and purchase of, 1764
Calgary, 1254
Ottawa, 1252
Prince Rupert, 1257
Waterbury, Mr., retirement of, 1244

Public Debt, 2106, 2225, 2370, 2496, 2501, 2895. See also Address; Budget; Finance; Loans
Taxation and, 2459

Public Expenditure, 1249, 2276, 2860
Capital expenditure on harbours and rivers, 1472
Comparison by departments, 1137
Debt, and, 2557
Dominion and provincial overlapping, 2461
Economy in, 1475. See also Address; Budget
In 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
Income and, 2104
Reduction of. See Address; Budget; Militia and Defence; Naval Service

Public Harbours. See Harbours

Public Health. See Health

Public Lands. See Dominion Lands and Parks; Natural Resources

Public Ownership. See Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res. 1661, 3025; 1r., 2r., com., 3025; com., 3148; 3r., 3149

Public Services, nationalization of, 2324, 2328. See also Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways

Public Works. See also Public Buildings; Supply
Bridges. See that title
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, ques., 1902, 2458, 2584
Department
Carty, Captain, 1062
Chief Architects' Branch, qu., 963
Estimates, 1238, 1755, 1988, 3531
Estimates branch, 1270
Expenditures, 1249
Minister, selection of from British Columbia Government, 2238
Salaries, etc., 692, 747
M. (Mr. Boys) reduce item, 695, 699
Harbours and rivers. See that title
Miscellaneous, 2008
New public buildings, 1256
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Public buildings. See that title
Roads and bridges, 2007
Burlington, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Unemployment relief, 1082
Yukon territory, expenditure in, 1275

Publications, Government. See also Editorial Committee
Co-ordination and economy, 1374
Demand and distribution, 1344, 1971
Geological survey, 1237
Mines, 1234-6
Printing and translation, 1373. See also Printing Bureau
Printing, unnecessary, 1374

Publicity Agent. See Labour

Pulp and Paper Industry, 2322. See also Natural Resources; Paper Control
British Columbia in, 175
Export duty on pulpwood, 2667

Purchasing Commission, 2674
Coal, for public buildings, 1758
Estimates, 2025
Goods purchased, origin of, 2042
Suggested abolition of, 2674
Warlike stores, sale of, 1173

Purchasing Power of Money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service; Cost of Living; Money

Putman, Mr., C. V., qu., 935

Putnam, Mr. Harold (Colchester)
Address in reply, 309. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 309; Progressives and the party spirit, 310; leader of the Opposition; immigration; tariff; railway problems, 311; Intercolonial railway, 312; elections and campaign literature, 315

Budget, 2282. Election issues and results; congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions; no time for drastic changes; Liberal platform of 1919, 2283; interprovincial trade; geographical, physical and climatic difficulties, 2284; reciprocity with the United States, 2285; tariff reductions, 2286; trade with Germany; sales tax; the amendment, 2287; political pledges and promises, 2288; Liberal platform of 1919; record of the Opposition party, 2288; Union government; public honour; War Time Elections Act; tariff commission; intercolonial railway; promise of Mr. McCurdy to restore headquarters to Moncton, 2289; the Progressives, 2290
Canadian National railways, ties, qu., 934
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Civil Service, returned soldiers, 3088
Condensed milk, tax on, 3265
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425-34
Rural postmasters, 3080

Quadruple Pacific Treaty, 3160

Qualification of Voters. See Dominion Elections Act

Quarantine. See also Health; Immigration
Detention at Partridge Island, 2021
Estimates, 2021
Immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Stations
Grosse Isle, repairs, 1245
Halifax, repairs, 1238
North Sydney, repairs, 1238
St. John, repairs, 1239-40
William's Head, improvements, 1255

Quebec (City)
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Arsenal, 1979, 2085, 2091
Customs dues, 1978
Canadian National railway terminals, 1475
Champlain market station, 1475, 2399
Newspapers, political policies of, 1480

Quebec (City) — Con.
Palais station, 1068
Plains of Abraham, 1467
Riots, 676, 3089
Compensation for damage, qu., 1508

Quebec (Port). See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Appropriations for, 1486
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert and, 1474
Elevators, 1471, 1483
Grain shipments through, 1466, 1471
Harbour Commission, 1283, 1464. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Parc St. Charles Co. Ltd., proposed payment to, 1469
Political patronage, 1478
Revenue and expenditure, 1471

Quebec (Province)
Attitude of towards Opposition, 168-9, 187, 206-7, 290. See also Budget; Speeches on Address
Attitude towards West, 2912
Board of Pensions Commissioners, representation, 1350
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Census figures, 1366
Chaudière valley floods, 3492
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Election issues and results, 245
Fisheries, 142
Transfer to province, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493, 616, 623
Order in council tabled, 8
Request for order in council, 5
Harbours and rivers, 1998
Harmony with, 14, 270, 291, 362, 2421
Public buildings, improvements, 1245
Public expenditure in, 1468
Public ownership and, 71. See Address; Budget
Superintendent of lighthouses, qu., 2584
Unfair treatment, alleged, 2398

Quebec and Western Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé Railways

Quebec Battlefields Commission, 119

Quebec Chronicle, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission
Gravel, Mr. 1477
Inquiry for return, 1283
Tremblay, General, 1477
Watson, Major-General Sir David, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission bill (Further advances)
Res. 1464; reported, 1486; 1r., 1486; 2r., com., 3195; 3r., 3198

Quebec, Oriental and Atlantic Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé

Questions. See their several titles. For rulings, See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Questions Passed as Orders for Returns
Accounts branch, Dept., of Militia and Defence (Mr. Vien) 2994
Animal diseases, compensation for, (Mr. Sutherland) 940
Armouries (Mr Baldwin) 1288
Army Service Corps (Mr. Lanctôt) 1905
Auditing, payments for, (Mr. Vien) 2993
Bankruptcy Act, Montreal district trustees (Mr. Archambault) 1183
Binder twine and rope (Mr. Gordon) 1905
Blackfoot reserve, greater production (Mr. Garland, Bow River) 1288
British Columbia fisheries (Mr. Neill) 2306
Calgary, Government office buildings, (Mr. Shaw) 939
Canadian National railways, coal purchase (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Canadian Northern, payments from, 1914 (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry), 615
Chief Architect's branch employees, (Mr. Fournier) 1067
Civil Service
Appeals against classification (Mr. Lanctôt) 1508
Bonus and statutory increases (Mr. Lanctôt) 939
Number and salaries paid, 1912 and 1922 (Mr. Séguin) 1832
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers (Mr. Chisholm) 1508
Permanent employees, 1920-1922, (Mr. Demers) 706
Coal importations
Canadian National by, (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Government, by, (Mr. Logan) 939
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., amounts paid to since 1855, (Mr. Lanctôt) 472
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, amounts paid to since 1914, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 615
Halifax dry dock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
Harbours, improvements and expenditures, (Mr. Church) 828
From 1900 to 1921 (Mr. McBride) 372

Questions passed as Orders for Returns — Con.
Homestead pre-emptions, areas, (Mr. McTaggart) 732
Hotels owned and operated by Canadian National railways (Mr. Coote) 2806
Military districts (Mr. Lancôt) 1775, 2305
Militia and Defence
Buildings occupied (Mr. Lanctôt) 2305
Officers and men at headquarters (Mr. Lanctôt) 1775, 2305
Ministers' trips to Europe (Mr. Lanctôt) 1402
Multigraph machines (Mr. McDonald, Timiskaming) 1508
Montreal
Canadian National railways, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Customs, Income Tax, Post Office, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Drydock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Parry Sound customs collections (Mr. Arthurs) 967
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm (Mr. Séguin) 1775
Richmond-Wolfe (Mr. Tobin) 1508
Prince Rupert dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec Harbour Commission, advances to Sir Henry Drayton) 615
Railway systems, purchase of bonds (Mr. Baxter) 828
Rental of public buildings (Mr. Lucas) 615
St. John drydock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
School lands, sale of (Mr. Spencer) 1661
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Pensions, 615
Stationery, purchase of, (Mr. Prevost) 1288
Trade agents (Mr. Prevost) 1661
Transcontinental railway, amounts paid, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 165
Vancouver drydock, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
Victoria, drydocks, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
War
Advances to Imperial Government (Mr. Vien) 1288
Material furnished British Govt. (Mr. Vien) 1067

Race and Religious Differences, 14, 270, 291-2, 362, 2421

Race Disqualification. See Dominion Elections Act M. (Mr. Euler)

Racing, Fishing schooners. See International

Radial Railways. See Hydro-Electric

Radiotelegraph Service, 1749

Radium. See Nanaimo and Esquimalt Railway

Rail Contracts. See Railways

Rails, Steel, bounty on, 304-5

Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. bills
1. Return Tickets. (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821; 2r., ref. to Railway Com., 1395
2. Special passenger rates (Mr. Church) 1r., 1460; 2r., 1719
3. Transportation Costs. (Crowsnest pass agreement (Mr. Kennedy, Essex.) 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597

Railway Commissioners, Board of. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways
Applications to, 201-202
Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 937
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
Statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2773, 3491
Chairman of, 233. See also under this title, Carvell
Chief Traffc Officer, qu., 1377, qu., 2215, qu., 2457
Coastal boat service, and, 182
Commodity rates, 234
Drayton-Acworth report, 125
Freight rates, 234, 276, 2773. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Intercolonial rates, 193, 312
Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
Official report of proceedings, 2776
Rates. See also Freight Rates
Grain on, 300
Increases, 131
Recommendations to by Drayton-Acworth report, 126
Tenure of office, 2777

Railway Transportation Costs, Special Committee on. See Freight Rates

Railways. See also Canadian National Railways; Speeches on Address; Budget
Advances to, qu., 471
Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 872
Branch lines, 1688
Canada Car Company, 1696

Railways — Con.
Canadian in United States, 312
Canadian National railways. See that title
Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment, No. 1, 1060
Car demurrage, 2981
Car repairs, 1688, 2399
Car shortage, 166
Caraquet and Gulf shore, qu., 1504
Carriage of mails by, qu., 825. See also Mail Contracts
Co-ordination of, 2328. See also Address; Budget
Deficits, 2314, 2890
Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46, 1921
Duplication and waste, 125
Eight-hour day and, 228, 2316-17
Electric and steam locomotives, 630, 1188
Electrification of, 70, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330, 1940
M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Expenditure on in last 25 years, 111
Exploitation, 2245. See Budget; Speeches on Address
Freight and commodity rates, 131, 175, 233, 234, 261, 273, 357. See also Freight Rates
Coal on, 193
Legislation, qu., 934
Tonnage into Toronto, qu., 936
Government-owned, administration in United States, 67
Harvest excursions, 337
Labour conditions, 2315. See also Labour
Loans and subsidies to, 1921
Mileage in 1877, qu., 1183
Nationalization of, 235. See also Address; Budget
New Zealand, 181
Overbuilding of, 202, 2569
Paralleling of existing lines, 203
Passes in maritime provinces, 315
Passenger rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills
Increase, 132
Policy, 201, 1905, 1920, 1933
Prince Edward Island, cost of, 229
Problems. See Address; Budget; Freight Rates
Provincial obligations, 229
Public ownership, 2570. See also Budget; Canadian National Railways; Freight Rates; Speeches on Address
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Shipping facilities. See St. John terminal facilities

Railways — Con.
Steel rails
Bounty on, 304-5
Purchase of, 1912
South Africa, 2688
United States, purchase in, 2611. See also Canadian National Railways; Grand Trunk
Vote for, saving in, 384
Wages, 2317, 2417. See also Labour
Water transportation competition, 69. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Western provinces, indebtedness for, 229

Railways and Canals. See also Canals
Department
Estimates, 1133, 1687, 1905, 1933, 2747, 3035, 3518
Salaries and contingencies, 407, 1133
Governor-General's cars, 1688
Loan to the Canadian Goverment merchant Marine, 3035
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Welland ship canal. See that title under Canals

Rainbow. See Naval Service

Rankin, Mr. J. P. (North Perth)
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1770
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 791

Rates, Special. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Raymond, Mr. W. G. (Brantford)
Address in reply, 253; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Liberal party and big interests, 253; Mr. Church and Toronto; Mr. Meighen's reference, 254; election campaign, 255; Mr. Meighen's election manifesto, 255-6; attitude of Brantford manufacturers, 257-258; binder twine industry; liberty of the franchise, 258; War Time Elections Act; manufacturers and taxation, 258; basic and key industries, 259; tariff policy to build up country, 260; transportation rates, 261; national railway system; Liberal party and big interests, 262
Budget, 2373. Tariff; "Liberal protectionist"; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2373; amendment; duties of members; Liberal party and protection; free trade, 2374; agricultural implements; reduction of duty on; Brantford factories closed; binder twine factory, 2375; basic industry argument; manufacturing industries and Raymond, Mr. W. G. — Con.

Budget — Con.
production of wealth, 2377; United States competition, 2378; key industries; Great Britain's mercantile marine; world trade; protection for the skilled labourer; United States tariff; capital, 2379; Progressive party and oleomargarine; Wheat Board, 2380; revenue tariff giving incidental protection; duty on binders, 2381; International Harvester company; principles of the two old parties; history of Liberalism; Toryism and tyrannical power, 2383
Customs duties on agricultural implements, 3230-1
References to, 27, 255, 263, 2384, 2536, 2705

Receipt Tax. See Special War Revenue Act Amdt.

Reciprocal Trade. See Reciprocity

Reciprocity. See also Trade
Australia with, 9, 33, 2900
United States with, 33, 53, 77, 94, 102, 208, 224, 278, 333, 2201, 2234. See also Address; Budget; United States

Red Cross. See Canadian Red Cross; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill

Redistribution, 59, 198, 283, 2330, 2339, 3611. See also Proportional Representation
Announcement of Prime Minister, 3608, 3611
Census, completion of, 1363-71
Former, 1369
Inquiry, 733
M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion of, 1719, 1769
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Progressive party, attitude towards, 1364-70

Re-establishment. See Pensions; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Reed, Mr. William S. (Frontenac)
Mixed farming, Kingston fair, 992

Refills. See Opium and Narcotics

Regina, Speech of Hon. Mr. Motherwell at, 2555

Regional Bureau, International Catalogue of Scientific Literature, 3528

Reid-Newfoundland Railway, 2027

Relief Work. See Canadian Patriotic Fund; Unemployment

Rental of Buildings. See Public Buildings

Reparations. See Germany; War Claims

Repatriation Expenses, 3503

Representation. See also Census; Proportional Representation; Redistribution
Unit of, 198

Research. See also Industrial and Scientific Research
Promotion of, 235. See also Natural Resources
Research Council, lignite plant, 1233

Residence Qualification. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Resources. See Natural Resources

Restaurant. See Parliamentary Restaurant

Retail Merchants Association of Canada
Oleomargarine, resolution on. See that title
Oriental immigration, 1513

Retirement Fund. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement

Returned Soldiers. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Pensions; Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2638
Blind, 3358
M. (Mr. Church) 3404
Pensions, 3310
Cash bonus to. See Soldiers' Bonus
Civil Service salaries, 549
Disabilities, 386 See also Pensions
Government's policy, early announcement of, 2637
Housing, 271. See also that title
Insurance, 3294. See also Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.
Pension regulations, 327
Repatriation, 3403
Special Committee on. See Pensions
Tubercular, 318. See also Hospitals
Unemployed
Hikers, qu., 3153
Inquiry as to Government's policy, 2458
Unemployment, 3290, 3304, 3307, 3331, 3335, 3339, 3345-7, 3356. See also that title

Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3388; 1r., 2r., com., 3402; com., 3437; 3r., 3439

Returning Officers. See Baxter; Caldwell

Returns. See House of Commons

Revenue, 2171-2. See Address; Budget; Consolidated Revenue Act
Expenditure and. See Public Expenditure
In 1877, qu., 1211

Revenue Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act

Revenue Bills
1. Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477
2. Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. bill
Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477
3. Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
Res., 3278; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
4. Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill
Res., 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
5. Special War Revenue Act, 1915, Amdt. bill
Res., 3252; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477

Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, statement of, 2489-2490

Richibucto, repair works, qu., 375

Rideau Canal. See Canals

Rideau Hall, fuel, maintenance, etc., 1756

Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366, qu., 3600.

Right of Appeal. See Opium and Narcotic Act Amdt.

Riley's Army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's army

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand (St. James)
Canadian National railways
Canadian Northern, subsidies, qu., 1504
Public ownership, 1942
Canadian navy, qu., 965
Cost of living, purchasing power of the dollar, 1177
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, M., 1296
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22; qu., 1376
Military expenditure and policy, 1176
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177
Expenditure and policy, 1584

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand — Con.
Montreal Gazette editorial comment, 1584
Montreal post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Peat, deposits and experiments, qu., 1505
Railway mileage, in 1877, qu., 1183
Railway policy, 1942
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183
Revenue and expenditure in 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1195
Topographical maps, qu., 1631

Riordon Company
Income tax, 60
Collections, qu., 372; qu., 607; qu., 927

Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu., 3361

River St. Lawrence ship channel. See Marine and Fisheries; St. Lawrence

Rivière du Loup
Arsenal, qu., 1181, 1690
Car shops, qu., 1181, 1690

Roads. See Highways; Public Works

Roads and Bridges. See Bridges; Highways; Public Works

Robb, Hon. J. A. (Minister of Trade and Commerce)
Budget, 2179. Reforms long overdue; the amendment; tariff reductions; Liberal platform of 1919, 2180; war time extravagance; restoration of confidence; economy; markets; Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington, 2181; trade with Great Britain and United States; cattle embargo; imports and exports, quantity and value of; uniform development; coal and water power, 2182; tariff policy; German trade; marking of goods, 2183
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Car demurrage, 2981
Complaints of unfair dealing, 2987
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian Wheat Board, advances, 3541. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Payment of, 1369
Registration of Canadians, 1363

Robb, Hon. J. A. — Con.
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1363
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Elevators
Licenses to private, 2838
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Government publications, 1373
Demand and distribution, 1374
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50, 2982
Implements, agricultural, duty on, 3120
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1372
Linen yarn bounty, 1361, 3128
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429, 3488
Pratt vs. Delphine, 303
Redistribution and the census, 1363-71. See also under this title, Census
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 1366
Steamship services, 2027, 3505
Canada, Australia, New Zealand, 3034
Canada, West Indies, South America, 3026
Freight rates, 2028
Quebec and north shore ports, 3034
St. John-Cuba, 2028
Trade and Commerce department
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3505, 3541
Officials, 700
Trade commissioners and agents, 2989
Trade with Mexico, 700
Wheat Board, 50
Wheat Board bill, 3174-5, 3184, 3188, 3380, 3383, 3386

Robb, Mr. W. D., qu., 728

Robertson, Hon. Senator, 505
Statement on Civil Service, 555

Robertson, P. L. Company, refund of duties, qu., 1774

Robinson, Mr. E. W. (Kings, N.S.)
Root Vegetables bill, potato grading, 3373

Robitaille, Mr. Clement (Maisonneuve)
Address in reply, 320. Public ownership of railways; Wheat board; returned soldiers' pensions, 320

Rockefeller Foundation, 61

Rods. See Steel

Rome, International Institute. See Agriculture

Root Vegetables, Sale and Inspection of, bill
Res., 2743; 1r., 2747; 2r., ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 2972; com., 3142, 3194, 3367; 3r., 3487

Ross, Mr. A. E. (Kingston)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Militia expenditure, policy, 1587
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3450
Pensions Com., final report, 3343
Soldiers' civil re-establishment
Hospital staffs, 1345
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Venereal diseases, qu., 935

Ross, Mr. Thomas E. (North Simcoe)
Address in reply, 95. Congratulations to Miss Macphail; decline in prices of farm products, 95; soldier settlers, 96; re-establishment; economy in administration; increase in sessional indemnity, 97

Ross Rifle, 2609, 2616

Roumania, loan to, qu., 1400, 2888

Round Table, 3170-1

Routhier, the late Sir Adolphe, 1275

Royal Assent, 722, 1988, 1995, 3617

Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370, 1982

Royal Canadian Mounted Police. See also National Defence bill
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 675
Barracks, Fairmont, improvements, 1255
Buildings, 2129
Canadian expeditionary force, in, qu., 2038
Detachments in Arctic regions, 3497
Discontinuance of, qu., 377
Enlistments from A and B squadrons in Canadian expeditionary force, qu., 2038
Estimates, 2129
Income tax office, Hamilton, 1253
Indians, relief to destitute, 1715
Labour espionage and, 670
Lethbridge, Drs. Lovering and Taylor, qu., 1211
Macleod detachment, removal of, 2584
Naturalization, investigations, 1671, 2024
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act, reports, 1289, 1377
Pensions, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Removal from British Columbia, 173, 184, 327, 522

Royal Canadian Mounted Police — Con.
Salaries, 775
Secret service, 670-9
Unorganized territories in, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to confine to, 829; neg. on div., 843
Winnipeg strike, 671
Zaneth, Corporal, 671

Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Royal Military College, 1985

Royal Naval College, 2047, 2203, 2458

Royal Trust Company, 1085

Rubber Goods, manufacture, 2469

Rubber Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Rulings. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Rural Depopulation, 301, 2470. See also Address; Budget; Census; Population

Rural Mail. See Post Office

Rural Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Russell, Mr. T. A., 1663, 2695

Russia
Competition in wheat market, 2157
Consortium to re-establish trade, 1463
Public ownership, 1942
Re-establishment of business in, 1463
"Save the Children Fund", 2516
Wrangel Island, 1751

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. (East Toronto)
Address in reply, 284. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 284; economy in government; Mr. Church's record, 285; protective tariff; Great Britain and the tariff, 286; protection for farmers, 287; Liberal tariff and election campaign, 288; speeches of Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, 289-90; Sir Lomer Gouin and Quebec attitude, 291; sectionalism in politics, 292
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2093
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Canadian National railways, consolidation, 1962
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Dominion lands and surveys, 1038

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. — Con.
Dominion Textile Company, 584
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Mines department, economy, 688-9
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2014
Public buildings, heating, 1761
Sales tax, 3269
United States tax on German goods, 3411

Ste. Agathe Sanitarium, 1342

Ste. Anne Hospital, 1342

Ste Anne de la Pocatière, water supply, qu., 2213

St. Catherines Post office building, 1246-50

St. Charles Park. See Parc St. Charles

St Charles River Improvements, 2400

St. George, N.B., public building, 1240

St. John, N.B.
Cold storage, 3521
Courtenay bay, 2013
Harbour, qu., 1401
Improvements, 2013
Immigration buildings, 2027
Income tax office, qu., 826
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Port. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Quarantine station, 1239-40, 2021
Terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 639, 844; withdrawn, 851

St. John Ambulance Association, 3387

St. John and Quebec Railway
Acquisition by Canadian National, qu., 1774, qu., 1293
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293; neg., 1296

St. John River
Pollution of by United States mill owners, 2168
Wharves on tidal waters, qu., 2200

St. John Valley Railway, 3039

St. Lawrence River Ship Channel
De Beaujeu bank, dredging, 1495
Elevator dredge, 1494
Maintenance and operation, 1494
Pilotage dues, 1499
Self-propelling hopper barge, 1495
Sorel shipyard, 1494. See also that title

St. Lawrence River Waterway, 70, 121, 134, 137, 269, 2266, 2327, 2398. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Quebec Harbour Commission; Transportation; Waterpowers; Welland Ship Canal
Calder, United States Senator, 1206
Climatic conditions, 1187
Coal, conservation of supply, 1188
Co-operation with United States, 2750, 2767
Correspondence with United States Government, 2207, 2583, 2755, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
Cost, 269, 1191, 1195-99, 1203-07, 1315, 1320, 1329
Deep Waterways Association, 1206-8
Electric power development, 1188, 1205, 1317, 1319, 1321, 1326, 1397
Export of power, 1203
Niagara river, 1322, 1327
Electrification of locomotives and railways, 133, 1188, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330. See also Electrification; Railways
Finance, 1189, 1195, 1318, 1320
Finney, Col. John, 1189
Freight rates, 1204
Georgian bay canal, 1199, 1204, 1209
Grain production and shipment, 1203
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, 1319
Harding, President, 133, 1184
History of project, 1185
Imperial Government, communication with, qu., 1508
Industrial development, 1318
Information available, 1195
International Joint Commission, 1191, 1199, 1206, 1315-21, 1469
Report, qu., 377
Distribution of, 2357
International partnership, 1191, 1199, 1209, 1315, 1332, 1396
Land adjacent to development, 1200
Long Sault, 1199
Manchester ship canal, 1190
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1314, 1396
Navigation, 1195
Negotiations, inquiry, 786
New York state commission, 1197
Progress report, 2969
Ocean steamers, 1193-95, 1205
Opportunity for further discussion, 1462
Opposition to project, 1184, 1193, 1199, 1202, 1206, 1209
Proposed bond issue, 1318, 20
Public ownership, 1189, 1318-31
Support of western states, 1184

St. Lawrence River Waterway — Con.
Surveys and investigations, estimates, 2765
Taschereau, Premier, 1191
Ten Eyck, Congressman, letter re acquisition of land adjacent to development, 1200
Traffic through Panama, Suez and Soo Canals, 1203
Transportation, 1186, 1201, 1208, 1315, 1325, 1327
Treaty with United States, 2207, 2760, 2767. See also Welland Ship Canal
United States and, 1396
Water power, 629, 1188, 1197, 1199, 1205
Welland canal, 1205, 1207

St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Co., 1400

St. Louis, Municipal currency, 2506

St. Malo Car shops, 1699, 2399

St. Père, Mr. Edouard C. (Hochelaga)
Address in reply, 281. Immigration, 281, 282; Public ownership of railways; Race harmony, 284; Tariff; unemployment, 282; Wheat Board, 283
Canadian Navigation Company, qu., 1284
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu., 1903
Parliament hill monuments, qu., 936
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827

St. Peters' Reserve. See Indians

St. Pierre water supply, qu., 2213

St. Thomas-Niagara Falls Highway, qu., 936

St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Sabotage. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Strikes

Safeguarding of Industries Act, 2409, 2423-4

Salaries. See Civil Service

Salaries Act and the Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. bill; 1r., 363; 2r., com., 746; 3r., 787

Sale and Inspection of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Sale of Agriculture Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers

Sales, Mr. Thomas (Saltcoats)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103

Sales, Mr. Thomas — Con.
Binder twine, 257, 2575
Budget, 2574. Sales Tax; Canada a dear country to live in; burden on the poor man; automobiles, 2574; protection; binder twine; success of a free trade industry; agricultural implement manufacturers; successful competition in other markets, 2575; infant industries; farming conditions; distribution and marketing; exchange value of farm products; intermediary between producer and consumer, 2576; bleeding the victims white, 2577
Canada Grain Act, 2838
King vs. Manitoba Grain Co., decision, 1132
Licenses to private elevators, 2838
Canadian National railways, restaurants at Rivers and Melville, Sask., qu., 2038
Customs
Dumping clause, 3420
Officials, 764
Dredging, Saskatchewan, 2006
Elevators
Excess overages, qu., 1401
Private, 2981
Terminal, 2839
Exhibitions, 982
Experimental farms, 799, 807
Grain Commission, 2839
Grain, selling without growers' permission, 2989
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2008
Mixed farming, 981
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2761
Saskatchewan Elevator Company, 2989
Welland canal, grain transportation, 2761
Wheat Board, 3181
Wheat Board bill, 3386

Sales Tax, 2297, 2425, 2661, 2843. See also Budget; Special War Revenue; Taxation
Automobiles, 2177
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2177
Exemptions, 2672, 2689
Dried beet pulp, 2858
Fertilizers, 2858
Increase, 2365
Lumber, 2177
Regulations, 2858

Salmon Canning. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Foods

Salmon Fisheries. See Fisheries

Sanitarium. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Sardines, export of, qu., 1182

Saskatchewan
Aerial patrol, 1724
Canada Temperance Act Amdt., 2997. See also that title
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian reserves, qu., 608
Liquor
Export of, 2977
Warehouses, qu., 1211; qu., 1660
Importations, qu., 2037; qu., 2303
Public buildings, improvements, 1253
Second homesteads, 1042
Wheat marketing, 115. See also Wheat Board

Saskatchewan Court of Appeal. See Judges Act Amdt. bill

Saturday Sittings. See House of Commons, Sittings

Sault Ste. Marie, Algoma Steel Co. rail contracts, 1704

Saunders, Dr. C. E., resignation of, 590, 3522

Savard, Mr. Edmond (Chicoutimi-Saguenay)
Canadian National railways, right of way and lease agent, qu., 1633

Save the Children Fund, 3516

Savoy, Mr. J. Clovis, qu., 3363

Sawmill Machinery, 3126

Scandinavia
Immigration, 2144
Trade relations with, 2990

Schools. See also Education
Closing in West, 152
Lands, 339. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Nova Scotia in. See Nova Scotia Miners
Refusal of banks to advance money to, 2627

Scientific Research. See Research

Scott, Mr. Frank, qu., 728

Scrip Frauds. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Sea-Going Vessels. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Seals, destruction by. See British Columbia Fisheries

Seaports, Canadian. See British Preference

Secondary amendments. See House of Commons; Speaker

Secord Case. See Criminal Code (Scrip Frauds)

Secret Proceedings. See Prime Ministers' Conference

Secret Service. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Secretariat. See League of Nations

Secretary of State department
Adjustment of War claims, 1672, 2977
Estimates, 601, 1670, 3499
Public archives, 1673

Sedition. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seduction. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seed Grain
Advances, 1053
Freight on, 3522
Purchasing Commission, 1011

Séguin, Mr. P. A. (L'Assomption-Montcalm)
Forest, Mr. Médard, customs officer, qu., 2355
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu., 1774
Employment and dismissal of, qu., 2355
Lightkeepers, qu., 1904, qu., 2215
Postmasters, 1775
Tobacco experimental station, 1776

Select Standing Committees. See House of Commons

Selective Conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Senate
Amendments concurred in:
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 3607
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 3607
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3607
Loan Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
National Defence Department bill, 2806
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act bill, 3607

Senate — Con.
Amendments concurred in — Con.
Trust Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
Amendments, non-concurrence:
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3611
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Dominion Lands, Cancellation Leases bill
Concurrence, 3616
Conference, 3614
Chief accountant, salary, qu., 2583, qu., 2803
Expenditure, qu., 2583
Free conferences with, 3613, 3616
Indemnity, proposed reduction, 2513, 3509
Reform, 138, 2894
Salaries and contingent expenses, 2026

Senate and House of Commons Act. See Salaries Act Amdt.

Senn, Mr. Mark C. (Haldimand)
Corn-borer, destruction by, 818
Grand River bridge, York, Ont., qu., 1287

Sergeant-at-Arms. See House of Commons

Serums. See Accredited Herds; Agriculture

Sessional Indemnity. See House of Commons; Members

Settlers. See Immigration

Sexsmith, Mr. Edward J. (Lennox and Addington)
Address in reply, 293. Change in administration; agriculture; railway problems, 283; soldier settlement, 294
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2812
Soldiers bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447

Sexual Offences. See Criminal Code

Shaughnessy, Lord
National railway scheme, 89-90, 127
On immigration, 2478

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. (West Calgary)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 782
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
Blankets, duty on, 3136
Boots and shoes, M. to reduce duty, 3238
Calgary, post office building, 1254
Canada-Australia, steamship service, 3034
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3003
Date of coming into effect, 3007; Withdrawn, 3008
Canadian National railways
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, 2584
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal lands, transfer of by Canadian Pacific Railway Company, 2214

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt bill, fines, 2832
Expenditure, comparison by departments, 1137
Explosives Act, 1234
Freight rates, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444-8
Grain companies, security of, 2837
Indians
Education, 1227, 3536
Stony Reserve school, qu., 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Military and other expenditures, 1137
Militia and defence
Expenditure and policy, 1590
Permanent force, 1983
War medals, 2976
Ministers and Directorships, 1126
Naval service, 1738
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 3022
Pensions Com., final report, 3305
Amdt., 3349, 3358
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1742, 1745
Railway Commission, Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2775, 2779
Redistribution
Inquiry as to intention of Government, 3611
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719
Reply to leader of Opposition, 3611
Royal military college, 1985
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Alberta hospital, 1345
Tariff commissioner, 1665
Tariff, reciprocal arrangement with France, 2032
Tourist traffic, 1683
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2989
War memorials, 2101
Wheat Board, 3182
Wrangel island, 1751

Sheard, Mr. Charles (South Toronto)
Address in reply, 294. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; defeat of Meighen Government due to taxation, 294; Progressive party; railway problem, 295, 296; immigration; tariff and protection, 297
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, docking of horses, 2833
Soldier Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 386

Sheep Industry. See Agriculture; Live Stock

Shelburne wharf, 1768

Shellfish. See Meat and Canned Foods

Shells. See Ammunition

Sherbrooke
Post Office inspector, qu., 1507
Soldier Settlement Board employees, qu., 1658

Sherman, General William T., war, 1336

Shibley, Mr. A. D., Secretary-Treasurer of Union of Canadian Municipalities, 1392

Ships and Shipbuilding. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Labour; Limitation of Armaments; Marine; Naval Service; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Steamship Services; Unemployment; Vessels
British Ministry of Shipping, claim for hospital ship, 1752
Canada Shipping Act. See that title
Canadian navigation companies, life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Coolie labour, 2042
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., steel plates, 1677
Drydocks. See that title
International deep sea racing. See that title
Nova Scotia, 1387
Pilotage dues, 1499. See also Canada Shiping Act
Registration of, 1493
Sorel shipyard, 2169
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605, 1283
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, qu., 1062
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steel plates, cost of delivery, 3508
Vickers Company, elevator dredge, 1494
Wooden ships constructed at Victoria, B. C., qu., 364

Shuswap Lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547

Siberia, Service of Mounted Police, in, qu., 2038

Silk Fabrics, duty on, 2662, 3137

Silver. See also Coinage; Mines and Minerals
Coins. See Currency Act Amdt. bill
Discovery in Yukon, 1276
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code

Simpson, Mr. T. E. (West Algoma)
Dredging, St. Mary's river, 2006
Good roads, Ontario, qu., 372
Lambton, wreck of, 1497, 3508
Rail and car repair contracts, 1703
Receipt tax, 3262
Sales tax, workmen's clothing, 3272
Sault Ste. Marie wharf, 2006
Unemployment
Insurance, 1075
Rails and car repair contracts, 1704

Sinclair, Hon. J. E. (Queen's, P.E.I.)
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1990
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3375

Single Tax, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation

Six Nation Reserve. See Indians

Slaughter Houses, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Smuts, General, International Disarmament Conference, 1283

Socialism, 1290

Soft Drinks, tax on, 2329, 2617, 2852, 2857. See also Taxation

Soldier Land Settlement, 83, 96, 147, 183, 252, 294, 305, 318, 327, 345, 3294, 3298, 3307, 3333, 3338. See also Address; Budget; Pensions Committee
Abandoned farms, 2132
Building loans, 3475
Cost and results, 2159
Estimates, 2023, 2131
Expenditure, statement of, 2132
Foreclosure, 2132
Homestead rights, 2132
Inflated values, 2133
Land speculation, and, 2136
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
Revaluation of land, 2136-42
Taxes, collection of, 2134

Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bills
1. Mineral rights. (Mr. Malcolm) 1r., 2035
2. Consolidation of Indebtedness. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil)
Res. 3358, 3405; 1r., 3409; 2r., com., 3475; 3r., 3476

Soldier Settlement Board, qu., 608
Amounts loaned, etc., qu., 469
Estimates, 2023, 2131-43
Comparison with last year, 382

Soldier Settlement Board — Con.
Loans, 147
Sherbrooke office employees, qu., 1658
Six Nation Indians, 1221

Soldiers. See also Pensions Returned Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Bonus, 394, 402, 1618, 2533, 3337
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg. 450
Exchange on pay, qu., 826
Homes, establishment of, 1348
Insurance, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill
Land settlement. See that title
Pensions, 271. See also Pensions

Soldiers' Aid Commission, 3315-16

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 168, 271, 1617
Building requirements, 1261
Calydor sanitarium, 1279
Department, decrease in activities of, 1340
Doctors, 1343, 1351
Employers' Liability, compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Expenditure on, 266
Reduction of, 1339
Hospitals, 1262, 1341, 1344, 1348
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 396, 1339, 1349. See also Pensions
Ste. Agathe sanitarium, 1342
Ste. Anne hospital, 1342
Salaries, 385, 1339
Reduction of vote, 1339-46
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Staff, reduction of, 3602
Tubercular patients, treatment of, 1344
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
Fishermen, to, 1346
Vocational training, 1281, 1340
War Service gratuity interest, 1346

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department bill (Report of Re-establishment and Pensions Committee)
1r., 3597; 2r., com., 3609; 3r., 3610

Soldiers' Re-establishment and Pensions Committee. See Pensions Committee

Sorel Shipyard
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605. 1283
Estimates, 2169
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed in May 1921, qu., 1062

Soulanges Canal. See Canals

South America Steamship service. See Steamship Services

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Marcil Rulings and statements of
Acoustics of Chamber
Member speaking from centre of Chamber, 632
Member speaking from front seat, 3286
Agreement between Whips as to 11 o'clock adjournment, 173
Amendments, 3284
Imposing tax, cannot be moved by private member, 722
Secondary amendments (amdts. to amdt.) 2473-4, 2519
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial, 1929
Bills
Introduction by unanimous consent, 3597
Military Service Act Amdt., 644
Money, must be preceded by res, 548
Private
No sponsor, first reading postponed, 2102
Refund of fees, 1577, 1657
Reference from Com. of Whole to Special Com., 1395
Repealing legislation, 644
Second reading on day of introduction, 1460
Trade or money, to be preceded by res., 1282
Chair to be addressed, 2415
Clerk Assistant, correctness of record, 1843
Committees
Leave to sit while House in session, 1988
Motion in advance of report of, 1901
Refund of fees, 1577
Special, members opposed to principle of bill not to be chosen, 1502
Congratulations to on 25th anniversary, 3489
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting of, 1717

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Daylight saving, discussion in order, 944
Debate
Closed by mover, 835, 1295, 1836
Relevancy
Criticism of British Columbia Government during Budget debate, 2238
Hon. John Oliver, quotation from Vancouver Sun, 2236
Debates, Official Report
Insertion of documents, 942
Decorum, conversation in Chamber and lobbies, 2640
Election of, 1, 4
Kingston election petition, 2692
Language, "False" or "falsely", 3603
Libellous statements reflecting on honour of Canada, 822
Letters, anonymous, 944
Library of Parliament, 3517
Salaries, 3517
Members
Customary to speak from seats, 632, 3286
May speak only once on motion for 3r., 3487
Must address Chair, 2415
Must address other members in third person, 165
Payment of, 3611
Speaking, not to be interrupted, 2361
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar on Budget) 2473-4, 2519
For concurrence in, notice required, 703
In advance of report of Com., 1901
Non-debatable, 865
Notice given in Votes and Proceedings, 378
Ministers and Directorships, seconder, 1084, 1094
Private members, involving expenditure, out of order, 844
Re-drafted, in order, 844
Newspaper extracts, 821
Orders of the Day
Arguments not permissible, 822, 1721, 1842, 2256, 2995, 3492, 3601
Member may make personal explanation or ask question, 3602-3
Question not debatable, 3602
Reading newspaper extracts, 303, 374-5
Right of members to raise question of privilege on, 2638

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Pairs, 1463
Petitions, irregular, 1929
Privilege
Member may make personal explanation or put question, 3602-3
Member must confine himself to question, 3366
Must affect honour of member, 3493
Right of member to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Prorogation of Parliament, 3610
Questions
Argumentative, 2805-2806
Discretion of Ministers respecting, 1775
Standing as orders for returns, 1660, 1775
Reading of letters, 948
Resolution
Adopted, binding on Government, 639
Affecting civil rights of provinces, 829
Money, should originate with Government, 639
Must be positive, 644
Royal Assent, 1988
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Senate, free conference, 3613
Sergeant-at-Arms to prevent disorder in lobby, 3606
Supply
Concurrence, 1843
Discussion of particular item on motion, 1337
Redress of grievances before going into Com., 1337
Tedious repetition, 944
Unanimous consent, 703, 726, 3597
Bill, introduction of, 3597
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459
War memorials, 2100
Wheat Board, point of order, 2935, 2949

Speaker, Mr., Bereavement of, 496, 596

Speakman, Mr. Alfred (Red Deer)
Address in reply, 80. Co-operation necessary; agricultural prosperity, 81; tariff for revenue; taxation forms; immigration, 82; unemployment; soldier settlement, 83
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2881. Alleged selfishness of prairie provinces; Budget as it affects the West; protection, 2881; tariff and cost of living; textile industry; protection and prices; price of agricul-

Speakman, Mr. Alfred — Con.
Budget — Con.
tural products set by export market; policy of give and take, 2882; tariff as means of taxation; commodity tax fundamentally wrong; restriction of export market and reduction of prices, 2883; excise duty on protected goods; depreciated currency; cost of manufacturing in Germany, 2884; agriculture and lower costs of production; transportation; marketing; compromise; reciprocity, 2885; attack on the Progressive party; the amendment; political morals, 2886; idealism in politics, 2887
Dredging, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, 490
Estimates, reclassification, 455
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Imperial Mining Resources bureau, 1237
Indians
Education, 1715
Red Deer school, 1229
Militia, purchasing agents, 587
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1833
Pensions
Committee
Expenditures, 3523
Final report, 3297
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Promotions and salaries in Civil Service, 577
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Sales tax, 3269, amdt., 3269
Soldier settlement
Board, qu., 608
Revaluation, 2141
Special Com., work of, 2141
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406

Special Loans Bill
Res., 3252, 3358; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3476-77

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill
Res., 3252, 3409; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Subjects and sections discussed:
Automobiles, 3272-3
Cheques, stamp tax, 3258
Condensed milk, 3264-3271, 3409
Drawbacks, 3263
Excise tax of two and a half per cent, 3263
Insurance premiums, 3253
Lumber, 3263
Matches, 3262
Receipt tax, 3262

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Con.
Subjects and Sections discussed — Con.
Sales tax, 3409
Condensed milk, 3264-71, 3409
Exemptions, 3263, 3410
Job printing, 3409
Taxation under, 2116, 2857. See also Taxation

Speech from the Throne. See Address

Spence, Mr. David (Parkdale)
Egg inspectors, qu., 727
Entomology, 913-14
Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur, 406
Militia expenditure and policy, 1592
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Root Vegetables bill, 3142, 3194, 3367
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, royal commission, 406
Stamp tax on cheques, 3260

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. (Battle River)
Agriculture, condition of, 2158
Banks, circulation, interest, qu., 3598
Blankets, duty on, 3128, 3132
M. to reduce, 3234
Budget, 2629. Congratulations to Finance Minister; public men, 2629; Mr. Fielding and the Liberal platform of 1919; conditions in Canada; restricted credit; purchasing power; home market; per capita wealth; labour troubles; after affects of war; statement of Mr. W. Bell; private financing of public production, 2630; capital investment in agriculture and manufacturing; foreign and home markets; returns from agricultural and industrial enterprise; farmers and the income tax; agricultural products; prices and cost of production, 2631; prices of hides and boots and shoes; woollen goods; profits of textile industries, 2632; profits of milling industry; food, shelter, and clothing; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) on the tariff; driving capital out of business; conscription of wealth, 2633; no radical taxation proposed; credit system; urban development and infant mortality, 2634
Calgary milk inquiry, qu., 823
Canadian National railways
Dining car service, qu., 2040
Mail contracts, qu., 2038, qu., 2213
Canadian Pacific railway
Bill, 1608
Mail contracts, 2040

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. — Con.
Census, agricultural assets and liabilities, 2159
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1423
Dominion notes, qu., 935
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Farming industry, 809, 2158, 2159
Grain, per capita production, 2159
Grain Growers' Grain Co., alleged contributions to political organizations, 2488
Immigration
Central European, 2158
Land speculation, 2159
Pamphlets, 759
Policy, 2158
Imported liquor, excise duty, qu., 828
Income tax-payers, qu., 3362
Livestock industry, 984
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 590
Militia and Defence
Transport and freight, amdt. to reduce item, 1987
Mixed farming, 983
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 515
Population
Rural, decline in, 2158
Slow growth of, 2158
Post office saving banks, interest, qu., 1932
Soldier settlement, cost and results, 2159
Steamship services, 2027
Welland canal, qu., 3600
Wheat Board, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3380

Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, cadet camps, 1973

Spruce Bud Moth, 595, 815, 2668. See also Entomology

Stamp Tax. See Special War Revenue Act

Standard of Living. See Oriental Aliens

Standard of Valuation. See Customs

Standard Time. See Daylight Saving

Standards, Bureau of, 235, 1372

Stanfield, Dr., Bienfait briquetting plant, 1234

Stansell, Mr. J. L. (East Elgin)
Accredited herd system, 995, 999
Address in reply, 359. Definition of party names; farmers and protection, 360;

Stansell, Mr. J. L. — Con.
Address — Con.
defeat of late government; economy; cattle embargo; railway situation, 361; racial differences, 362
Agriculture dept., estimates, 994
Budget, 2290. "Grit and "Tory"; suggested identity of Liberal and Progressive policies, 2290; tribute to the Minister of Finance; attitude of Progressives, 2291; sales tax; income tax, 2292; constructive criticism; tariff and the masses; protection; adjustment of tariff to changing conditions; revenue, 2292; encourage maximum production; sales tax; increase of burden upon consumers, 2293; income tax,; taxes passed on to consumers, 2294
Canned milk industry, 3264
Civil service patronage, 3087
Commissioner of Agriculture, qu., 609
Experimental farms, 809
Freight rates, Special Com. report, 3596
Live Stock industry, 994
Ministers and directorships, 1124
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1825
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3597

State-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Stationery. See Printing and Stationery

Statistics. See also Census; Population; Trade
Concentration of, 580
Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Dominion Statistician, Mr. R. H. Coats, 1364-71

Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717

Steamship Services, qu., 614. See also Trade and Commerce
British Columbia coastal, qu., 3152
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canada-Newfoundland, 2027
Canada-West Indies-British Guiana, qu., 2356
Canada-West Indies-South America, 2027, 3026
Charlottetown-Pictou-New Glasgow, 3506
Charlottetown-Victoria-Halliday's Wharf, 3506
Competition with railways, 182
Freight rates, 2028
Halifax-Canso-Guysboro, 3507

Steamship Services — Con
Mails, carriage of, 2028
Miscou-Shippegan Island, 2029
Mulgrave-Arichat-Petit de Grat, 2029
Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Newcastle-Neguac-Escuminac, 2029
Pelee Island and mainland, 3034
Pictou-Mulgrave-Cheticamp, 3050
Port Mulgrave-St. Peters-Irish Cove, 3507
Quebec Natashquan-Bras d'Or, 2029, 3034
St. Catherines Bay-Tadoussac, 2029
St. John-Bay of Fundy-Minas Basin, 3507
St. John-Bear River, 3507
St. John-Cuba, 2028
St. John-Digby, 2030
St. John-St. Andrews, 2030
St. Stephen-Deer Island-Campobello, 2030
Sydney-Bras d'Or lakes, 2031
Sydney-Whycocomagh, 2030, 3035
Vancouver-Howe Island, 2027
Victoria-Vancouver-Skagway, 2027

Steedsman, Mr. James (Souris)
Budget, 2721. Inconsistencies of the tariff; implement duties; opportunities for manufacturing in British Columbia, 2721; prairie farmers paying tribute to manufacturers and fruit growers; cost of wheat production beyond market value; farming unprofitable, 2722; survey of conditions in West; boot and shoe industry, 2723
Tractors, 3124
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu., 615

Steel. See also Railway estimates; Rail repairs
Bounties, 304-5, qu., 3360
British Empire Steel Corporation. See that title
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for ship plates, 1677, 2170
Drawbacks, 2175
Industry, subsidies to, 1692, 1696
Plates, 1677, 2170
Delivery of, 3508
Prices, 2411-12
Rails
Competition with Germany, 2412
Contracts for, 1688
Price of, 1680-1709, 2412
Purchases of, 1913
Unemployment, 1077
Rods, refund of duties, qu., 1774
Steel plates, 1677
Damage claim of Dominion Iron and Steel Co., 1677
Settlement of, 2170
Structural, importation of, qu., 1931

Stefansson Expedition, 1750

Stevens, Hon. H. H. (Vancouver Centre)
Address in reply, 230. Death of Prime Minister's brother; debate on address opportunity for vigorous discussion, 230; importance of aids to agriculture; marketing of wheat, 231; Wheat Board, 232; elevator facilities, 233; freight rates on commodities, 234; bureau of standards, industrial and scientific research, 235; immigration, 236; Bank Act, revision of; unemployment, 237; the tariff question; customs taxes, cost of collecting, 239; tariff, platform of Liberal Convention; speech of Mr. Marler, 240; survey of ministers, 241; Minister of Justice and big interests, 242; minister and directorships, 242-3
Air board, 1722
Air Force and civil aviation
Customs aerial patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol in Railway Belt, 1730
Archives, book binder, 703
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2640. Tariff announcement will allay alarm of manufacturing interests; cheque tax, 2640; discriminatory tax on confectionery; repeal of anti-dumping clause; fruit; marking act and depreciated currency clause, 2641; German situation; depreciated currency, 2642; post war industries and commercial development of Germany; position of France; reparations; physical suffering; Germany's budget deficits; issues of paper currency; unemployment; comparison of conditions in 1915 and 1921, 2643; Germany's foreign trade; adverse balance; Canada's imports from Germany; purchasing power of the mark; internal and external value; Mr. Maynard Keynes; Dr. Melchior; situation in France, 2645; Austria, Hungary; prohibitory tariffs in central Europe; German exports to Canada; pocket knives, 2646; German goods, method of distribution; agents of German manufacturers in Canada, 2647; sale of brokers' goods; enormous profits of German manufacturers; congratulations to Prime Minister on recently bestowed honour; Australian Preservation of Industries Act; direct and indirect taxation, 2648; inaccurate statements issued by Canadian Council of Agriculture; Mr. Crerar's figures

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
as to agricultural exports, 2649; consumption of agricultural products in Canada, 2650; taxation of capital; income tax — who pays?; per capita payment of customs duties, 2691; grievances of western farmers; technical and not fiscal problems, 2652; the tariff; business profits and taxation; United Grain Growers; watered stock, 2653; business principles enunciated in Grain Growers' report, 2654
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian National railways, deficit, 1919
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1858
Cash grants to soldiers, Liberal pledge, 399, 433
Chinese immigration
Agent in China, 2026, qu., 2214
Estimates, 2026
Civil service bonus, inquiry, 2996
Coal, Canmore and Drumheller miners' dispute, 1058
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053, 1054
Congratulations to Mr. Fielding, 3279
Customs Act, depreciated currency, 2642, 3224, 3410
Dredging, 2005
Shuswap lake, 2006
Dumping provision, 2641, 3412
Employment offices, 1058
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Fisheries, salmon canners' license fees, 1748
Ford automobile company, 3274
Forests, depletion of, 1046
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway, 1577
Fruit growers, protection, 2641, 3423-4
German valuation of goods, 2642-48, 3226
Government publications, 1373
Grain Inquiry Commission, qu., 705; qu., 1181, 2842
Harbours and rivers
British Columbia, 2005
Quebec, 1998
Hides, price of, 3138
Immigration
Commissioner of at Canton, China, qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Foreigners admitted as farmers, 1068
Industrial and scientific research, 235, 1372
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Interior dept., economic adviser, 455
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Job printers, taxation, 3264

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Labour department
Employees, 460, 468
Estimates, 571
M. to reduce item, 562, 579
Salary increases, 562
Liquor importation, 733
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Agriculture Com., 1901
McInnes, Mr. W. W. B., qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Marine and Fisheries
Eddie, Capt., 1492
Ice-breaker, repurchase of, 1490
Lightkeepers, salaries, 1497
Navigation schools, 1492
Steamers and ice-breakers, 1490
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 754
Mennonite emigration, qu., 732
Mexico, trade with, 699
Militia and Defence
Purchasing agents, 416-17
Training camps, qu., 2584
National Defence bill, 739
National Liberal-Conservative platform, trade, 2540
Naval Service
Royal Canadian navy, 1882-91
Royal Naval college, closing of, qu., 2458
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted police, 3523
Nova Scotia miners strike, 1054
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 775, 3017
Oriental aliens, and, 2018
Prohibition, and, 2018
Oriental aliens
Immigration
Chinese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1548, 1573
Pilotage dues, 1500
Point of order
M. in advance of report of Com., 1901
Right of member to complete speech, 3540
Unfinished statement of member ruled out of order, not debatable, 3603
Post office, railway mail service in British Columbia, 2799
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission, Hon. F. B. Carvell, statement, 2777

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3393
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldier settlement, 2024
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 433
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Pension Board officials, 404
Salary increases, 386
Special War Revenue Act, exemptions, 3263
Standards, bureau of, 235, 1372
Steamship services, 2027
Atlantic and Pacific, Canadian ports, 3026
Unemployment
Relief, 1061, 2022
Employment offices, 2023
Tariff and, 3527
Vancouver drydock, 2005, 2008
Vancouver Harbour Commissioners bill, 2996
War, payment of cost of, 2405
Wheat Board, 2931
Point of order, 2933
Proceedings in Agriculture Com., 2931
Special Com. report, delay in concurrence, 2306
Women, the franchise and, 485
Yukon radiotelegraph service, 1749-50

Stewart, Hon. Charles (Minister of the Interior; Superintendent General of Indian Affairs; Minister of Mines)
Alpine Club grant, 1053
Assiniboine river floods, 3491
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Budget, 2216. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; review of agricultural and industrial conditions from introduction of national policy, 2216; prosperity following change of government in 1896; reciprocity; depression of 1914; agricultural implements; tariff reductions; public debt; war conditions, 2217; railways, 2218; tariff proposals; markets; freight rates, 2219; United States, trade with; taxation; sales, income tax, 2220
Canadian national parks, 1501
Chinese. See also under this title, Immigration; Oriental Aliens
Arival of at Vancouver, 2026, 3604
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Deville, Dr., 1045
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Dominion lands
Homestead re-entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries of staff, 1035

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Dominion Lands — Con.
Surveys, 1037
Expenditure, 1045
Mackenzie-Peace river districts, 1044
Reduction of vote by, $30,000, 1044
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases, bill, 3151, 3465-74
Senate amendments, 3615
Editorial Committee, 1235
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Emigration, record of, 2160
Explosives Act, 1234
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Forestry, 1046
Spruce bud moth, 1049
Tree planting on prairies, 1051
Geological museum specimens, 1237
Geological survey
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Immigration, 3054
Agents, bonus to, 3063
British artisans, 2208
Chinese, 2026, 3604
Doukhobors, 2160
Hutterites, 2160, 3060
Italian, 2171
Medical inspection, 3052
Mennonites, 2160, 3060
Ministers' statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2208
Policy of department, 3051-2
Reception of immigrant, 2160
Shandro, Mr., proposed colony, 2159
Unemployment, 2143, 3058
Immigration and Colonization, estimates, 754, 758, 2143, 3499
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 2991, 3192
Indian Affairs Dept., estimates, 681, 685, 1214, 3536
Indians
Blood reserve, 1221
Devon band, proposed removal, 1216
Education, 1227, 1231, 3536
Edmonton school, 1231, 3536
Stony reserve, 1228, 3536
Expenditure, 1216
General expenses, 1226
Greater production, 1224
Health, 1228
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Potlach institution, 3192

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Indians — Con.
Six Nations, 1221
Enfranchisement, 2991
Soldier Settlement Board, 1221
Sydney reserve, proposed transfer, 1215
Interior department
Employees, transfer to, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and supplies, 454
Salaries, 452
International boundaries, 1033
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
Mines and Minerals
Clay deposits, investigation of, 1234
Estimates, 685
Investigation of resources, 1234
Reduction of vote, 1236-62
Officials, 687
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Tar sands, 1236
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1565
Amdt. "effective restriction", 1567, 1574
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Public buildings expenditure, 1262
Research council, 1233
Seat for, in Quebec province, 12
Seed grain advances, 1055
Soldier settlement, 2024
Estimates, 2131-42
Land purchases, irregularities, 2140
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3405, 3475
Water powers, surveys, 1051
Wheat Board bill, 3189
Yukon territory government of, 1034

Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace (Humboldt)
Budget, 2597. Progressive amendment, 2597. Amendment; does not express progressive view; budget proposals; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2598; the average citizen and public affairs; taxation; revenue; debt; economy; reciprocity with the United States; direct taxation; freer trade; marking and valuation of currency acts, 2599; tariff reductions; agricultural implements; sales tax; undue burden on people with small incomes, 2600; political pledges; constructive criticism; income tax; business profits tax; inheritance tax; land tax; estimated revenue from, 2601; conditions of Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace — Con.

Budget — Con.
western farmers; need of wider markets; Wheat Board; transportation; Hudson Bay railway; branch lines, 2602; purchasing power; re adjustment of taxation; immigration; unoccupied lands, 2603
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2602, 2789
Insurance premiums, tax on, 3255
Macphail, Miss, alleged statement of, 3221

Stewart, Major Duncan, qu., 823

Stewart, Mr. H. A. (Leeds)
Brockville and Westport railway, qu., 704
Canadian Ford company, taxes, qu., 3599
Canadian National railways, passenger traffic, qu., 927
Condensed milk, tax, 3271
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Militia and defence, cadet services, 1978
Nova Scotia miners, McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1791
Returned Soldiers Insurance bill, 3391-2

Stewart, Hon. John A. (Lanark)
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu., 1400
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 913
Minister's statement, 912
Public ownership and operation, 1956
Rail and car repair contracts, 1914, 1958
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1427-32
Genoa Conference, 582
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific railways, qu., 2037
Intercolonial railway management, 408
Labour department
Director of technical education, 577
Policy, and building trades, 582
Publicity agent, 466
Supplies clerk, 585
Public Works estimates, 698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1694, 1700. See also under this title Canadian National Railways
Railway Commission, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2777
Railways
Administration, 408
Co-ordination, 408
Freight rates, legislation, qu., 934
Policy, 1956

Stewart, Hon. John A. — Con.
Railways and Canals dept., salaries, 1134
Rideau canal, 2764
Soulanges canal, 2768
Trent canal, construction and betterments, 2764
Unemployment, car repair contracts, 1690
Welland ship canal, 2747

Stewart, Mr. T. J. (West Hamilton)
Hamilton post office building, 1251
Mineral waters tax, 3278
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1835
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Stock, Transfer, tax, 2117

Stockyards. See Live Stock

Stony Reserve. See Indians

Stork, Mr. Alfred (Skeena)
Address in reply, 330. Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways in British Columbia, 331; oriental question, 332
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 962
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3013
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1516
Prince Rupert post office building, 1257

Strike-on-the-Job. See Nova Scotia Miners

Strikes. See Labour; Unemployment

Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu., 1285
Postmaster, qu., 1285

Submarine Cables, qu., 3151-2, qu., 3360

Submarine Construction. See Limitation of Armaments

Submarines, 1845. See also Naval Service

Subsidies. See also Steamship Services
Canadian Northern, 189-190, qu., 1504, 1921
Federal, Ontario, qu., 2214
Provinces to, 330
Steel companies to, 1692-96. See also Steel

Sudbury mail contract, qu., 1285

Suez Canal, 191. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Sugar
Atlantic refineries, refund, 2850
Beet industry, 2177, 2232, 2273, 2373, 3246, 3251
M. (Mr. Fansher) to reduce duty, 3248

Sugar — Con.
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on, 2116-7, 2232, 2273, 2853-5, 3267. See also Budget Speeches; Inland Revenue

Superannuation. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Supervisor of Expenditure. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Supplementary Estimates. See also Estimates;; Supply
Tabled, 1258

Supply. See also Interim Supply
Committee of, 378, 385, 429, 451, 493, 548, 598, 644, 681, 747, 791, 873, 967, 1018, 1040, 1133, 1163, 1214, 1339, 1361, 1489, 1578, 1662, 1722, 1747, 1843, 1905, 1933, 2010, 2043, 2129, 2747, 2834, 2975, 3026 3051, 3495

Supply, Committee of Amendments
Cash bonus to soldiers, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg., 450-1
Defence Forces, remarks of Mr. Clark on motion for Supply, 1335
Bills. See Appropriation Acts
Concurrence, 1769, 3489, 3547
Estimates. See that title
Procedure, motion to reduce vote, 1579
Subjects and items discussed
Agriculture, 588, 644, 1018, 3504
Cold storage, 818, 3521
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology, 813
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 3521
Fruit, 967
Health of animals, 967, 3521
Livestock, 971, 1018, 3521
Seed, Feed and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718
Air Board, 1722
Air Force and Civil Aviation, 1722
Annuities, 776
Assay Office, Vancouver, 1236
Auditor General's Office, 793
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts Association, 772
Canada Temperance Act, 3499
Canadian National parks, 1051, 1681
Canadian National railways
Advances
Canadian Government railways ($7,000,000) 2779

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Advances — Con.
Canadian Northern ($42,800,000) 1905, 1933
Grand Trunk ($25,750,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($15,900,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($800,000) 3520
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Representation in United States, 2026, 2990
Canals
Chambly, 3518
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764, 2769
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges, 2768
Staff and repairs, 2779
Trent, 2764
Welland ship canal, 1687, 2747
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service
Bonus, 3528
Commission, 3064
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Customs and Excise, 762, 1674
Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027
Dominion lands, 1035, 1051
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Employment offices, 1058
Exhibitions, 2026
External affairs, 411, 3508
Finance, 770
Charges of management, 1663, 3495
Paper Control inquiry, 1673
Tariff commissioner, 1663
Forestry protection, 1046
Geodetic survey, 1033
Geological survey, 1233, 1236
Genoa Conference, 1715
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's Office, 751
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2982
Harbours and rivers. See also under this title. Public Works.
Nova Scotia, 1269, 3545
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Health, 775
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
High Commissioner's office, 413
House of Commons, 2026
Housing, 774

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Immigration, 754, 1711, 2143, 3051
Adjustment of war claims, 1711
Chinese, 2026
St. John immigration building, 2027
Salaries, 3499
Indians, 681, 1215, 3536
British Columbia, 1713
Destitute, 1712-14
Education, 1715, 3536
Field and garden seeds, 1712
General expenses, 1712
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Insurance, 791
Interim. See Interim Supply
Interim Supply bill, 378, 598
Interior, 452, 1033
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Migratory birds, 1684
National parks, 1051, 1681
Printing and stationery, 1680
Yukon, administration of, 1681
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint Industrial councils, 1060
Justice, 451, 1274
Civil government, 1668, 3495
Exchequer court, 1274
Litigated matters, 1276
Supreme court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Labour, 458, 493, 548, 1053
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Unemployment relief, 1970, 2022
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
League of Nations, Permanent Secretariat, 2026
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677
Live stock, 971, 1018, 3521
Marine and Fisheries, 1676, 3051
Deep sea fisheries, conservation, 2169
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2166
Investigation into wrecks, 1492
Life-saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1405, 1677
Salaries and allowances, 1497

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Marine signal service, 1499
Meterological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3514
Registration of shipping, 1493
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Salaries of officers and guardians, 2166
Sorel shipyard, 1494, 2169
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
War claims, adjustment, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, 1493
Militia and Defence, 415, 586, 1163, 1578, 1601, 1922, 2974, 3498
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Annual drill, 1163, 1578, 1610
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Cadet services, 1972
Civil government, 415, 586, 3498
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, 1978
Customs duties, 1978
Engineer services and works, 1980
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., 1982
Ordnance building; Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1982
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Royal Military College, 1985
Salaries and wages, 1985
School of instruction, 1985
Staff, pay of, 1982
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Transport and freight, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2098, 2974
Mines and Geological Survey, 1233, 3524
Mines and Minerals, 685, 1234
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval Service, 418, 1735
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Hydrographic survey, 1746

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Naval Service — Con.
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Salaries and contingencies, 1745
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Paris agency, 2025
Parliamentary guide, 2024
Passport office, 2026
Patent record, 2026
Penitentiaries, 1670
Pensions, 3522
European war and active militia, 1349
Madame Fabre, 2024
Post Office, 691, 1711
Outside service, 2799
Printing and stationery, 1711
Printing Bureau, 1970
Privy Council, 410
Public Archives, 702, 2025
Public health, 2017
Public Works, 692, 747, 1238
Dredging,, 2005
Harbours and rivers, 3541
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Manitoba, 2003, 3545
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1269, 1765, 3545
Ontario, 1999
Prince Edward Island 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Miscellaneous, 2008
Public buildings
Alberta, 1254, 3545
British Columbia, 1255
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Generally, 1260-4
Immigration buidings, 1757
Lighting, etc., 1755
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
Ontario, 1245-68, 3544
Ottawa, 1265
Parliament buildings, 2014
Rents, repairs, etc., 1238, 1265, 1764
Rideau hall, 1756
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Halifax, 1238
St. John, 1238-45
Williamshead, 1255
Quebec, 1245
Saskatchewan, 1253

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Public Works — Con.
Telephone service, 1757
Roads and bridges, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Railway Commission, 2773
Railways and Canals, 407, 3518
Arbitrations and litigation, 2772
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan, 3035
Canadian National railways, 1933. See also that title
Canadian Northern advance, 1905, 1933
Canals. See under this title, Canals
Governor Generals cars, 1688
Grand Trunk arbitration, 2779
Hudson Bay railway, 1970
Intercolonial, 2767
Port Colbourne elevator, 1687
Railway policy, 1905, 1933
Salaries and contingencies, 1133
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 775, 2129
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Secretary of State, 701
Civil government, 1670
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public archives, 1673
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Seed Grain advances, 1053
Senate, 2026
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 385
Capital expenditure, 1279
Employers' liability compensation, 1348
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Pensions
European war, active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Salaries, 1339
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
War service gratuity, interest on, 1346
Soldier settlement, 2023, 2131
Statutes, reprinting, 1717
Steamship services, 2027, 3026, 3505
Supplementry estimates, 1662
Taxation, business profits, income, 2024
Trade and Commerce, 699, 3541
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Dominion Bureau of statistics, 1363
Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373
Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration, 1372

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Trade and Commerce — Con.
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Linen yarn bounty, 1361
Printing of publications, 1373
Steamships services, 2027, 3026, 3505. For individual services see that title
Terminal elevators, 2978
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2989
Unemployment relief, 1061, 3524-6
Victorian order of nurses, 772
War Graves Commission, 774
Water powers, 1051
Wheat Board, 3541
Yukon territory, 1034, 1275

Supreme Court
Cameron, Mr. E. R., K.C., estimate and expenditure, 1274
Decision. See Wheat Board
Estimates, 1274
Library, 1274
Reports, 1274

Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill (Appeal from provincial courts of final resort) 1r., 2456; 2r., com., 3r., 2974

Survey and Map Work. See also Interior Department
Co-ordination of, 1986

Surveys. See also Dominion Lands; Geodetic; Geological; Topographic
Water power resources, 1051

Sussex public building, 1239

Sutherland, Mr. Donald (South Oxford)
Accredited herds, diseases, 1001
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1011, 2490
Agricultural implements, duty, 3134
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1012-1013
Air Force and civil aviation, 1731
Alderson claim, 1002-3
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Blake, late Hon. Edward, 2657
Budget, 2481. After war conditions; tribute to Finance Minister, 2481; election promises not carried out; breach of faith; the amendment; leader of Progressive party making excuses for Government; Hon. George Brown and violation of political pledges, 2482; statement of Prime Minister; Liberal declarations in favour of free trade;

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Budget — Con.
Finance Minister chastises colleagues; opposing views in government party, 2483; a policy to suit every constituency; tacit understanding between Progressives and Liberals; public statements as to fiscal policy of Liberal party; Mr. Fielding and protection; duty on agricultural implements, 2484; reciprocity agreement; attitude of United States towards Canada; proposed duties under reciprocity, 2485; importation of agricultural products from the United States; world tendency to increase tariff barriers; valuation of currency, 2486; trade with Germany; labour costs; marking of goods; United States legislation to prevent unfair competition; industrial development of the West; sectionalism; two-party system;, 2487; Progressive party, origin and policy; record of the old Tory party; Union government tariff policy; Wartime Elections Act; tariff concessions to western Canada; Grain Growers' Grain Company contributions to political organizations, 2488; resignation of Mr. Crerar from Union government; statement of Mr. Rice Jones; Mr. Crerar's salary as president of United Grain Growers, 2489; oleomargarine; recleaned screenings; adulteration of mill feed, export duty on dairy produce; Mr. Rowell and Mr. Clark on tariff proposals of Union government; protective policy; Premier Drury and land tax, 2491; tax on unimproved land values; free trade; sales tax; condensed milk, 2492; railway situation; debt; inheritance from former Liberal government; Transcontinental railway, 2493; dumping clause; value of German mark; economy in administration, 2494; amendment, 2495
Cattle
Embargo, 1002, 1031
Free carriage of, 1029
Freight on, 1010
Stockyards, 1030
Condensed milk tax, 2492, 3266
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1437, 1455
Customs revenue, qu., 614
Drainage tiles, 3270-1

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Experimental farms, number of, 797, 801, 805, 813, 1015
M. to reduce item, 812
Farm tractors, duty on, 769
Feed Control Act, 1011
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Freight on hay for stock, 1007
Health of animals, Alderson claim, 1002-3-5
Hides, price of, 3139
Hog cholera, 1009
Alderson claim, 1005
Immigration
Bonus to agents, 3062
Unemployment and, 3058
Imports into Canada, qu., 610; qu., 612; qu., 613
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3050
Militia and Defence
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2091
Quebec and, 1982, 2087-97
Expenditures and policy, 1981
Military properties, 1981
Naval Service, co-ordination with, 420
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item, 1982
Milk herds, tuberculosis, 1006
National Defence, department of, 1732-4, 1981
Naval policy, 2073
Royal Canadian navy, 2073
Oleomargarine
Importation of materials, qu., 613; qu., 704; qu., 728
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1816
Materials for, 3270
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3432, 3487
Parliament buildings, purchase of furniture, 1756-7
Pensions Board investigation, 3156
Pensions Committee, 3348-9, 3357
Final report, 3351
Sales tax, 3270
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447
Stallion clubs, 1031
Standard of living, 3139
Sugar beet industry, 3267
Wheat board, 2947
Wool, duty on, 3132-35

Sutherland, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366

Swift Current post office building, 1253

Sydney, N.S.
Pilotage district, 3508
Reserve. See Indians

Sydney, N.S. — Con.
Steel workers, unemployment, 1076
Unemployment contracts for steel rails, 1688

Tadoussac-Murray Bay steamship service, 3035

Tampa Exhibition, 2026

Tar Sands. See Mines and minerals

Tariff, 1290. See also Budget; Customs; Trade. For items discussed See Customs Tariff
Amended resolutions, 2854
Australia, preferential treatment, 2110
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2230. See also Budget
Book paper for magazines, 2855
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Changes, 2174, 2851
Cigarettes, 2855
Commission, proposed permanent, 2269, 2339, 2351, 2625
Commissioner, 1663
Salary, 3504
Comparison with Laurier-Fielding tariff, 208
Dumping clause, 2184, 2197. See also Speeches on Budget
Duty on boots and shoes, 159-160
Fordney. See United States
France, 2032
Fruit, 2197. See also that title
Fuel oil, 344, 1761
Immigration and, 2157
Inquiry, 1920-21, cost, etc., qu., 2215
Legislation, history of, 2184, 2429-30, 2655
Liberal policy. See Liberal Convention of 1919
Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Prohibitory Central European, 2646
Reduction, 2111, 2114, 2286, 2844
Resolutions, 2118. For items See Customs Tariff
Amended, 2851, 2874
Bill, 3476-7
Revision, 2110-14
Former, 2426
Necessity for. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Shoe manufacturers and, 141. See also Boots and Shoes
Tractors, 2115. See also Budget
Unemployment and, 3527
Valuations for duty, 3413-15

Taschereau, Premier, and St. Lawrence river waterway, 137, 1191

Taxation, 2496. See speeches on Budget; Revenue Bills
Amusement, 2395
Automobiles. See under this title, Sales tax
Bachelor, 82
Bank circulation, 2117
Beer, ale, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Bond and stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Bonds held in United States non-taxable, 1133; qu., 2971
Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner, salary, 2024
Burdensome, 2242, 2248, 2600, 2661. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Urban population on, 2394
Business profits, qu., 1657, 1658, 2024, 2172-9, 2281, 2562, 2653
Administration of, 2024
British Empire Steel Corporation, qu., 1067
Canadian Ford Company, qu., 3599
Cheque tax, 1036, 2117, 2177, 2269, 2329, 2462, 2640, 2676, 2852, 2856, 3258
Protests against, 2395
Classification of income tax-payers, 1063
Condensed milk, 2492, 3264, 3271, 3409
Confectionery, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857
Commodity tax, 2883
Consumer of, 2507
Customs. See Customs Tariff; Tariff
Debt and, 2459. See also Public Debt
Direct and indirect, 2386, 2402, 2648, 2707
Effect on trade, 2859
Estimated revenues from, 2172
Evasions, 2395
Excess profits, 2441, 2695
Express money orders and travellers cheques, 2856
Garbage collection tax in Ontario, 1256
Income, 2442, 2686. See also that title
Administration of, 2024
Banks, payments by, qu., 1400
Forms, 3485
Members of provincial legislature, 3486
Railway men and commercial travellers, 3485
Revenue and classification, 1063; qu., 1399-1400
Inequalities, 2255
Inheritance tax, 184, 2442, 2510, 2601, 2626, 2686, 2708, 2844
Insurance
Foreign companies, 2462
Premiums, 2117, 3253

Taxation — Con.
Land values, 2191, 2405, 2443, 2492, 2510, 2626, 2686, 2695-6, 2844,
Estimated revenue from, 2601
Loan companies, 2299
Luxuries, 2260, 2561, 2696
Modification of, 230. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Municipal, payment of by Government, 1256, 1257
Mutual insurance companies, 3477. See also under this title, Insurance
New, 2116, 2177, 2329
Non-taxable bonds, 1133, 2971
Overlapping, 2463
Per capita, 2341
Post Office money orders, 2857
Principle of, 2281
Property, 2443
Provincial, payment to British Columbia govt., 1714
Receipts, 2270, 2853-7
Riordon Company, qu., 372; qu., 607
Sales tax, 2220, 2843. See also Special War Revenue bill
Ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2260. See also Automobiles; Budget
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2117, 2641, 2676
Exempted goods, 2126
Beet pulp dried, 2852
Fertilizers, 2852
Goods on which tax was collected, 1921-22, 1212
Increase, 2393
Mineral waters, 2117
Soldier settlement, municipal taxes, 1257
Special War Revenue Act. See that title
Stocks and bonds, 2856
Stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Telegrams and cables, 2117, 2178, 2856
Transient aliens, 2155

Taylor, Dr., qu., 1211

Technical Education. See Labour

Telegraphs. See also Wireless

Telegraphs and Telephones
British Columbia, 2008, 2012
Canadian National lines, qu., 3360
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Lower St. Lawrence and maritime provinces, 2012
Prince Edward Island, 2012
Public buildings, Ottawa, 1757
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2007, 2012

Telegraphs and Telephones — Con.
Telegrams and cables, tax on, 2117, 2178, 2856
Yukon, cost of, 1275, 2012

Telephones. See Telegraphs and Telephones

Temperance. See Canada Temperance Act

Ten Eyck, Congressman, 1396

Terminal Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Terminal Facilities. See St. John

Territorial Waters, Fishing beyond. See Fisheries Act Amdt.

Territories, Unorganized. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Textile Industry, 2882. See Speeches on Budget
Foreigners engaged in, 2518
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Profits, 2632

Thompson, Colonel Andrew, soldiers' bonus, 403, 432

Thompson, Colonel J. T. C. See Pensions Board

Thompson, Mr. T. H. (East Hastings)
Dairy inspection, 1009
Dairy produce, grading of, 655-6
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Three Rivers Clerk of the Peace. See Criminal Code

Threshing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Thunder Bay, icebreaking, 1677

Thurston, Mr. John J. (Victoria, Ont.)
Immigration, travelling expenses, 757
Militia and Defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
River-gauging and metering, 2011
Trent canal, Nassau dam, qu., 2457

Tidal Fisheries. See Quebec Fisheries

Tidal Survey. See Naval Service

Timber. See also Lumber
Acquisition of British Columbia areas by Japanese, 2311
Gaspé, in, 625
Illegal cutting on Tobique reserve, 1233
Lease of Ontario areas, 2805; qu., 2992
Protection of. See Forestry

Tobacco
American Tobacco Company, 2547
Bull Durham, comparative prices, 2546
Cigarettes, duties on, 2394, 2547, 2852-3
Cigars, duties on, 2115, 2853, 2857
Duties, 2115, 2394, 2546, 2891
Experimental station at L'Assomption, 1776
Imperial Tobacco Company, 2546
Industry, protection, 2891
Raw leaf, 2115, 2673, 2853

Tobin, Mr. E. W. (Richmond and Wolfe)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu., 1659
Oleomargarine, importation and manufacture, qu., 1506
Richmond and Wolfe
Post offices, qu., 1507
Postmasters, qu., 1508
Rural mail routes, qu., 1505

Tobin, Lieut. Col., Vancouver, letter of, 1975

Tobique Reserve. See Indians

Todd, Mr. W. F., election promises in Charlotte, N.B., 1994

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. (Victoria City)
Accredited herd system, 2738
Agricultural exhibitions, 650
Agriculture
Cattle embargo, 973-4
Dept., Mr. T. N. Lynton, 588
Live stock industry, 971
Livestock trade with South America, 648
Salaries, 656
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734-43
Bovine tuberculosis, 2738
Budget, 2591. Duration of previous Parliament; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2591; tariff and agricultural implements; trade relations with Australia; agricultural conditions; mixed farming, 2592; wool and sheep raising; dumping clause; British Columbia fruit industry; United States competition, 2593; tax on temperance beverages; fruit juices; grading hogs for the British market; extermination of hog cholera, 2594; United States system of dealing with disease; eradication of bovine tuberculosis, 2595; horse racing, Federal control of and revenue from, 2596; cattle export; embargo; new taxes; amendment, 2597;
Cold storage, 818
Entomology, orchard protection, 816

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. — Con.
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1156, 1161, 1353, 1355, 1604
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Experimental farms, British Columbia, 796
Fisheries dept., 2166
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Fruit growers, protection, 2593, 3424
Health of Animals
Diseases, 968, 2594, 2738
Tuberculosis, 2594, 3521
Hog cholera, 2594, 2738
Horse-racing, federal control, 2596
Immigration of Japanese, 1289, qu., 1459
Marine and Fisheries
Examination of masters and mates, 1491
Lightkeepers' salaries and allowances, 1497
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1785
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2825, 3017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1567
Oriental immigration
Japanese, 1289, qu., 1399, qu., 1459
Patronage, civil service, 3083
Victoria post office building, repairs, 1255-8

Topographic Maps, qu., 1631

Topographic Survey, 1043

Tormentine Reef, buoy, 1499

Toronto
Campaign advertisement, 198-199
Cheque tax, 2395, 2329
Customs house, 198-9, 1246-51
Harbour improvements, qu., 365, 1187, 1467, 1471, 1474, 3541
Imperial convention of teachers, 1673
International yacht race, 3513
Post Office, qu., 108-9, 368
Building, 1246-51
Revenue, 1250
Power plant, public ownership, 123
Prison reform, municipal farms, 1277
Railway facilities, 66
Viaduct, qu., 1660
Railway grades, reduction of, 74
Rate increases, 131
Representation of, 1365
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1343
Steam railway freight, qu., 936
Street railway
Public ownership, 1937
Service, 63
Toronto Suburban railway, qu., 2457
Transportation commission, 130
Unemployment, 86

Toronto Electric Light Company, 123

Tourist Traffic
Banff-Windermere highway, 1681
Highways, 1681. See also that title
Visitors to Canadian National parks, 1052

Town Planning, Banff, 1052

Townsend, United States Senator, 1206

Tracadie Lazaretto, 1240, 2021

Tractors, 769, 2354, 3123. See also Agricultural Implements
Value $1,400 and less to be free, 2115

Trade and Commerce, 2108. See also Customs and Excise; Exports; Imports; Speeches on Budget; Tariff
Agreements and negotiations, 2110, 2172
Agricultural implements, in, 2620-1. See also that title
Australia, with, 9, 174-5. See also Steamship Services
Austria, with, 2535
Bills to be preceded by resolution, 1283
British Preference and Canadian seaports. See British Preference
Canada-Mexico, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Canadian ports by, 104. See also British Preference
Channels of, 336-7
Competition, 223. See Speeches on Budget
Consular agents, repeal of Act of 1921, 3222, 3477
Consular certificates, 2114, 3222, 3477
Department
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3541
Salaries, etc., 699
Elevators, terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Exchange value of commodities, 2868
Expansion, 2021
Export. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu., 1376. See also Imports
Foreign. See also Germany
France-Belgium, 3223
Freight rates, effect on, 276
Germany, with, 138, 2203, 2279, 2535, 2859. See also Customs; Germany; Speeches on Budget
Great Britain, 2540. See also British Preference
And United States, 2369
International, 2862
Interprovincial, 2284

Trade and Commerce — Con.
Italian, effect of currency valuation on, 2849
Mexico, with, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Necessity for revival, 105. See also Budget; Industrial Depression; Speeches on Address
Potatoes. See that title
Russian, consortium to re-establish, 1463
Southern Pacific dominions, 2990
Steamships Services. See that title
Total
1876-77 and 1921-22, statement, 1376
1900-1921, qu., 1633
Statement, 1376
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2114, 2581, 2989
United States with, 2223, 2449-50. See also that title
West Indies. See St. John Terminal Facilities; Steamship Services

Trades and Labour Congress
Oriental immigration, 1514
Unemployment insurance, 1081

Transatlantic Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Transcontinental. See Canadian National Railways

Transportation, 2580, 2611. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Commodity and freight rates, 234
Costs. See Freight Rates
Farm products of, 231
Fish, 2166
Loss of, 175
Maritime provinces in, 106-111, 2687-8
Nationalization, 2325. See also Canadian National railways
Problems. See Budget; Speeches on Address. See also that title
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 269
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1203-8
Tonnage rates, 234
Water, 1939

Trawlers. See Naval Service

Treaties. See also Conferences
Anglo-Japanese, 168
Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161
Far Eastern, 3160
Four Power. See Limitation of Armaments

Treaties — Con.
France-Belgium, 3223
Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Tabled, 3359
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Japan, with, 1511
Lemieux treaty with, 1459
Limitation of Armaments, 3158
Peace treaty with Germany, Lusitania claims, 3599
Pelagic Sealing, 1844
Prevention of use of noxious gases and chemicals, 3159
Protection of neutrals and non-combatants at sea, 3159
Quadruple Pacific, 3160
Versailles, 2848

Treaty of Peace with Hungary and Turkey bill
1r., 3490; 2r., com., 3r., 3547

Tree Planting. See also Forestry
Provincial highways, qu., 2039

Tremblay, General, Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Trent Canal. See Canals

Trenton Harbour bill
Res., 3436, 3493; 1r., 2r., com., 3494; 3r., 3495

Trépanier, Alderman, of Montreal, 1392

Trial by Jury, 1388. See also Criminal Code Amdt.

Trusts and Combines, 2395, 2414. See also Address; Budget
Minister of Labour and, 200

Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Tsur, Dr., Chinese-Consul General, 1776

Tuberculosis. See also Health; Hospitals
Bloc areas, 3521
Bovine, 2556, 2595, 3521. See also Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Indians, 1225, 1228
Returned Soldiers. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers' Insurance; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Tupper, Sir Charles, and maritime union, 107-108

Turgeon, Mr. Onésiphore (Gloucester)
Address in reply, 273. Congratulations; maritime provinces and the Intercolonial, 274-276; government ownership of railways, 277; tariff questions, 278; natural resources of western provinces, 279
Budget, 2188. Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington; Fordney tariff; relations with the United States, 2189; public debt; income and business profits taxes; economy; British preference; duties on farm implements, 2190; fishing industry; lumber; alcohol for medicinal purposes; sales tax; taxation of land values, 2191; Liberal platform of 1919; capital and labour; immigration, 2192; railways; Transcontinental; opposition of C.P.R., 2193; board of directors; grain shipments, 2194; public ownership; Intercolonial, 2195; regional control of Canadian National railways, 2196
Canadian National railways
Board of directors, 2194
Hanna and Mitchell, Messrs., salaries, qu., 471
Public ownership, 2193
Transcontinental
Grain shipments, 2194
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 2194
Canadian Pacific railway, cost, 2193
Civil Service patronage, 3082
Immigration, agricultural workers, 2193
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Single tax, 2191

Turkey, Peace Treaty with, 3359, 3547

Turtle Mountain Forest reserve, qu., 615

Ukrainians. See Immigration

Ultra Vires, Canada Grain Act, 1132

Undesirables, deportation of. See Criminal Code; Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Unemployment, 1290, 2331, 2627. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Housing; Immigration; Labour; Returned Soldiers
Agricultural conditions and, 2158
Banff-Windermere road, 1052, 1682
Canada, number in, qu., 3362
Cities, in, 86

Unemployment — Con.
Continuance of, 237
Credit system, 219
Economic causes, 1081, 3526
Employment offices, Co-ordination Act, 1058, 2022
German competition and, 2178. See also Germany
Farm labourers, 2331. See also that title
Housing, 219. See also Housing
Immigration and, 225, 2143
Importations and, 210
Insurance, 88, 218, 1070, 1081
Land settlement and, 182-3
Military expenditures, 1144
National conference proposed, 1082
Nova Scotia miners, 1759. See also Labour
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Policy of Government, inquiry, 3491
Proposed order steel rails to relieve, 1691
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1912
Relief, 1061, 1719, 1970, 2022; qu., 3152
Camps, 86
Expenditure for, 86, 2023
Report of Ontario Government commission, 218
Returned soldiers, 2458, 3311, 3329-30. See also that title
Hikers, qu., 3153
Riley's army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's Army
Seasonal, 87-88
Soldiers, 3524. See also Returned Soldiers
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, relief, 1347, 1352
Standing Committee, proposed, 1082
Toronto, aid to, 121, 199
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Unemployment situation, 1069-84
Welland canal, 2750

Unimproved Land Values, tax. See Taxation

Union of Canadian Municipalities
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392
Immigration, 2155

Unions. See Labour

United Farmers of Alberta
Loan system, resolution, 220

United Farmers of British Columbia, 1354
Oriental immigration, 1514

United Farmers of Ontario, 63
Platform, 2393
Protection and, 2440

United Grain Growers' Limited, 2489, 2653
Agricultural implements, 304, 2693, 3119
Crerar, Mr., and, 2489
Political organizations, contribution to, 2488
Report, 2654

United Mine Workers. See Nova Scotia miners

United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, 1902

United States. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Air Service, 1726
American Bankers' Association, resolution, 2189
Amicable relations with, 91
Bonds held in, non-taxable, 1133
Canadian exports to, 209. See also Exports
Canadian-owned railways in, 312
Canadian representation in, 2990
Coal and steel industries, 2419
Coal, importations from, 124, 1759. See also Coal
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Duty on Canadian apples, 164. See also Fruit
Duty on Canadian potatoes and wheat, 239. See also Root Vegetables
Emigration to, 2516. See also Immigration
Factories in Canada, 2413-14, 2467
Farmers, competition with, 2527
Farmers' bloc, 69, 210, 988, 2323. See also under this title, Fordney
Flag, 1265
Fordney tariff, 53, 93-94, 209, 272, 343, 2112, 2178, 2189, 2219, 2336, 2367, 2409, 2527, 2580
Effect of, 2454
Grand Trunk mileage in, 191
Immigration from, 236, 2147. See also that title
Comparison, 3056
Figures, 758
Years' residence in Canada, 236
Imperial pensioners in, 1347
Importations, duty on, 208-209
Importations of British goods through, qu., 375
Income tax, non-resident aliens, 1304
Industries developing Canadian resources, 2667
Insurance companies, tax. See Special War Revenue Act
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368, 2546
Iron and steel industry, 2412-13
Magazines, imports, 3109

United States — Con.
Medical inspection of immigrants for Canada, 2022
Military expenditure, 1622
Oriental immigration, 1515
Pecuniary claims convention with, 1276
Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844
Railway difficulties, 67-70, 129, 1917-18
Railways
Lines in Canada, 204
Purchase of, 2611
Reciprocity, 77, 102, 2111, 2201, 2285, 2368, 2463, 2485, 2511, 2527, 2616, 2694, 2846. See also Address; Budget
St. Lawrence and Welland canals, 2749
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1184, 1315 1396. See also that title
Treaty, consideration of proposed, 2207
Steel prices, 2412
Tariff discrimination, 2466
Tariff legislation, 113, 988, 2487, 2620-1, 2864. See also under this title Fordney
Trade, 2111, 2178, 2610,. See also under this title, Reciprocity
Cattle, 2695
Relations, 2908
War operations, 1336
Washington
Hon. Mr. Fielding's trip to, 2112, 2189, 2300
Wrangel Island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208

Unopposed Motions for Papers
Algoma Indian lands, timber leases (Mr. Simpson) 942
Appraisers, Paris and London, (Mr. Parent) 1068
Avignon, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Bonaventure
Mail contract (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Caisse, Mr. J. J., Montreal post office (Mr. Marcil) 828
Canadian Expeditionary Force, 112th Battalion band instruments (Mr. Martell) 372
Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk insurance (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 828
Canadian Northern bonds (Mr. Stevens) 2458
Canadian ships, damage during war (Mr. Bristol) 1183
Caraquet and Gulf shore railway (Mr. Hanson) 1183
Carleton, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Cattle embargo, Hon. Manning Doherty (Mr. White) 616

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Civil Service bonus, (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 828
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal (Mr. Baxter) 2584 Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract (Mr. Caldwell) 616
Extra-territorial rights (Mr. Meighen) 1068
Fisheries
Establishment of independent department (Mr. Martell) 372
Transfer to British Columbia (Mr. McQuarrie) 2042
Fort Edward lands (Mr. Martell) 372
Genoa conference (Mr. Boys) 1905
Grand Trunk Railway Company 1921 loan, (Mr. Putnam) 828
Griffenhagen and Associates report (Mr. Séguin) 1633
Holland, Lee, deportation (Mr. Meighen) 372
Hudson Bay, St. John parish patents (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 829
Hudson, Govt. cutter (Mr. Baxter) 3600
Immigration
Foreigners admitted as farmers (Mr. Stevens) 1068
Western lands, on, 616 (Mr. Stevens)
Indian agency, Bear river, N.S., (Mr. Lovett) 828
Inverness Railway and Coal Co., (Mr. Chisholm) 372
Kootenay flats (Mr. Humphrey) 286
Legal costs, payments (Mr. Martell) 2971
McQuarrie, John C., dismissal of, 377
Mail contract, Rigaud-St. Rédempteur (Mr. Ouimet) 1776
Migratory Birds Convention, infraction, (Mr. Martell), 377
Nanaimo County judge (Mr. Neill) 2042
Nautical assessors (Mr. Church) 1633
Newspaper censors (Mr. Archambault) 1068
Nova Scotia
Barristers, payments (Mr. Martell) 707
Miners, McLachlan correspondence (Mr. Stewart, Leeds) 616
Order of Grain-Baggers (Mr. Stevens) 2806
Page, Mr. H. W. A. claim (Mr. Neill) 2042
Palais station, Que. (Mr. Parent) 1068
Parc St. Charles Company (Mr. Marcil) 372
Paspebiac post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post Office department (Mr. Séguin) 3600
Purchasing Commission, origin of goods (Mr. Raymond) 2042
Quebec
Bridge (Mr. Parent) 1068

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Fisheries (Mr. Marcil) 616
Harbour Commission (Mr. Meighen) 372
Sardines for export (Mr. Grimmer) 1183
Shigawake post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Sorel shipyards, dismissals, (Mr. Hanson) 377
Tobacco experimental station L'Assomption (Mr. Séguin) 1776
Tug Pekin (Mr. Maclean, Prince) 1289
Victory bonds, (Mr. Putnam) 942
Winnipeg strike (Mr. McMurray) 1068
Yukon territory
Royalty on minerals (Mr. Black) 616
Transfer of mineral claims, (Mr. Black) 616

Universal Postal Union, 3173

Universities, Physical drill and military training, 1615

Unrestricted Reciprocity, Hon. Edward Blake on, 2677

Urban Population, loss of. See Immigration; Population

Vancouver
Anti-Japanese riots, 1511-16
Assay office, 1236
Ballantyne pier, wages of workmen, 1465, 1469
Board of Trade drydock, 2009
Customs aerial patrol, 1730
Drydock, 1255, 1484, 2005, 2009, 3542
Board of Trade telegram, 2009
Expenditure in, 2309
Free port, proposal, 2470
Harbour, 1473. See also Vancouver Harbour Commission bill
Mounted Police barracks, Fairmont, 1255
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building repairs, 1255
Railway duplication at, 74-75
Shipment of grain from, 235
Sun, criticism of Hon. John Oliver, 2237
Unemployment conference, 1069
Unemployment relief camps, 86

Vancouver, Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 798

Vancouver Harbour Commissioners Act Amdt. bill (Port Warden and Shipping Master) 1r., 1929; 2r., com., 2821; 3r., 2996

Vancouver Island coal mines, 178

Vancouver Sun, criticism of Hon. John Aliver, 2236-7

Vegetables. See also Root Vegetables
Dumping clause, 2372. See also Speeches on Budget
Production of near Montreal, 1019

Versailles, Treaty of, 2848

Vessels. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Aurora. See Naval Service
Britisher, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck of, qu., 1210
Canadian Farmer, 2311
Canadian Freighter, qu., 963, 2311
Canadian Inventor, 2312
Canadian Prospector, 2311
Canadian Winner, 2311
Champlain, qu., 1400
Con Rein, 1382
Foreign ships of war, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
James Whalen, 1677
Lambton, wreck of, 1492, 3507
Mildred McColl, 3598
Niobe, sale of. See Naval Service
Ocean-going, 1471. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Patrician. See Naval Service
Patriot. See Naval Service
Pekin, 1289
Phalarope, patrol boat, 1503
Plamonder, dredge, 2006
Quebec, in and out of, 1471
Scottish, 3514

Vickers Company, 320, qu., 936
Claim, 2975
Elevator dredge, 1494

Victoria, B.C.
Drydock, 2009. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Govt. expenditure in, 2309
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1497
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building, 1255
Wooden ships constructed at, qu., 364

Victoria Bridge. See Bridges

Victoria Memorial Museum
Geological specimens, 1237
Potlach institution, 1377. See also Indians

Victorian Order of Nurses, 772
Unemployment, relief of, 86

Victory Bonds. See also Finance
Exempt from taxation, 263
Five year maturities, qu., 2993

Vidal's Point Park, 1052

Vien, Mr. Thomas (Lotbinière)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3467
Senate amdts., 3615
Duty on apples, 164
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1161
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Military expenditure and policy, 1145
National Defence bill, 661
Mounted police, 675
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Point of order, Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Royal Canadian Navy, 1868-89
Soldiers' bonus, 440
War, advances to Imperial Government, 1288
Wheat Board, 2969

Vimy Memorial, 2098

Vitamines, 1781

Voters, qualification of. See Dominion Election Act; Euler; Rinfret

Wabana Ore, 2412-13

Waddington, Mr., 398

Wage Cuts. See Nova Scotia Miners

Wage Investigators. See Labour

Wages. See Labour; Unemployment

Wallace, Mr. J. A. (Norfolk)
Tuberculous cattle, 2742

Wallace Shipbuilding Company, 3542

War. See also Militia and Defence
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Canadian and United States armies, operations, 1336
Claims, adjustment of, 1155, 1672, 1677, 2098, 2977
British Admiralty, 1752
Details of estimates, qu., 1288
Hospital ship, claim for loss, 1082, 2975
Militia and defence, 2974
Naval service, 1752
Repatriation, dependents of soldiers, 1711

War — Con.
Conscription and, 2570. See also that title
Conscription of wealth, 2725
Debts, 90, 174. See also Address; Budget; Public Debt
Demobilization, expenditure for, 1155, 1163, 1171
Equipment, 2616
Expenditures, 2228
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
Foreign ships, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Imperial War Graves Commission, 2099
Indebtedness, 2294
Kemp, Sir Edward, 1169
Laws of. See Limitation of Armaments
Medals, 1752, 2975
Mewburn, Hon. S. C., 1169
Mobilization of unfit men, 2608
Munitions, shipment of from Great Britain, 1154-63
Newspaper censors, 1068
Overseas ministry, 1169
Pensions. See that title
Preparation for, 1335. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service
Profiteering, 2221, 2247, 2395, 2440, 2455. See also speeches on Budget
Reparation claims, Lusitania, 3599
Results, 91, 2588, 2861-2, 2895
Scandals, 90
Taxation and, 2567. See also that title
War memorials Commission, 2098

War Finance Corporation, 54

War Graves Commission, 774, 2098

War Measures Act, 662, 663, 1362

War Purchasing Commission, sale of warlike stores, 1171

Ward, Mr. W. J. (Dauphin)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2738
Apple-growing industry, 3419
Boy Scouts, 773
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 863
Budget, 2400. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reactionary and mysterious budget, 2400; the tariff; protection and indirect taxation; drydock on Pacific coast; purpose and principle of protection; invisible government; Canadian manufacturers a Bourbon; free trader when purchasing; pro-

Ward, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
tectionist when selling; raw material and finished product, 2401; subsidizing of one industry means penalizing of another; immense wealth and dire need; results of indirect taxation; cumulative effect of tariff taxation, 2402; agricultural conditions in western Canada; rural depopulation, 2403; railway situation; land speculation; expenditures on agriculture contrasted with amounts paid to manufacturers; exports the source of wealth, 2404; Professor Ely on taxation; national debt; speculators and unearned increment; tariff from cradle to grave; land tax; payment of war costs; binder twine industry, 2405; basic industries, 2406
Canadian National railways
Directors, employees, represented, 2794
Yorkton branch line, 2139
Experimental farms, 811
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2168
Generals Burstall and Gwatkin, retirement, qu., 1211
Income tax, cost of collection, 2025
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Rideau canal, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, estimates, 2130
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Soldier land settlement, 2136
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, employees, 3602
Supply, opportunity for members to speak, 1985
Welland ship canal, 2764

Warlike Stores. See Ammunition; Militia and Defence

Warships and Torpedo Boats, qu., 827

Wartime Elections Act, 14, 258, 350, 352, 473, 2229, 2289, 2488. See also Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Warner, Mr. D. W. (Strathcona)
Address in reply, 349. Progressive point of view; farmers not asking for special privileges, 349; excessive freight rates; immigration problem, 350; protective tariff and the manu-

Warner, Mr. D. W. — Con.
Address — Con.
facturers, 351; banking system, 352; Wartime Elections Act, 350, 352
Agricultural fairs, 651
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2204. Tariff, disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister, 2204; small reductions; oleomargarine; dairying industry; protective duties on woollen goods and shoes; income tax; lack of purchasing power, 2205; british preference; agricultural implements; sales taxes; automobiles and the tariff, 2206
Canadian representation in United States, 2025
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1429
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Exhibition grants, 983
Experimental farms, 809
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2797
Indian education, Edmonton school, 1231
Northwest rebellion pensions, 3523
Oleomargarine, Manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1829
Pensions Com. final report, 3338

Washington
Canadian representation in. See Canadian Representation in United States
Conference. See International Labour Conference; Limitation of Armaments
Visit of Finance Minister to, 2112, 2181, 2189, 2300

Water-Borne Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Water Powers, 71, 124, 2182. See also Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Aluminum Company of America, Cedar Rapids, 71; qu., 728; qu., 1375
Canals, on, 2747
Development of, 223
Electric energy, 133. See also Electrification
Exportation from Niagara district, 137, 1188
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Joint board, 2805; qu., 2970
Regulation Act, 1921 Repeal bill, 2991, 3199, 3435
Niagara river power development, 137, 1188
Railway electrification, 1940. See also Electrification

Water Powers — Con.
St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, on, 629
St. Lawrence river, M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1205, 1314. See also that title
Surveys, 1051
Welland canal, 2747

Water Transportation, 70, 73-74. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Canals in United States, 68

Waterways. See Canals; International Joint Commission
St. Lawrence river, 1183. See also that title

Watson, Major General Sir David, 1477

Ways and Means, Committe of, 362, 599, 1842, 2104, 2854, 3104, 3246, 3409, 3476, 3604, 3607
Amended resolutions, 2854
Interim Supply bill, 599
M. for (Mr. Fielding) 2104
Resolutions, 2118; amended, 2854
Supply bill, 3607

Wednesday Sittings. See House of Commons

Welland Ship Canal. See Canals

West Indies
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Subsidized steamship services and freight rates, 3026, 3032
Trade with. See St. John Terminal Facilities

Western Provinces. See Budget; Natural Resources; Speeches on Address
Agricultural depression, 1475
Flags on public schools, 1265
Marketing of grain, 114. See Wheat Board
Natural resources, 7, 12, 22, 41, 148, 279, 328, 1017. See also that title
Interest of other provinces in, 23, 340, 355, 1017
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against, 1254

Weston post office, 1259

Westport Railway. See Brockville and Westport

Wharves. See also Harbours and Rivers; Public Works
Baddeck, 1269
L'Orignal, qu., 1212
Provincial, New Brunswick, transfer, qu., 2305

Wharves — Con.
Provincial wharves and tidal waters, 1991
Sault Ste. Marie, 2006
Selkirk, 2004
Tidal waters in, 1991, qu., 2209

Wheat. See also Agriculture; Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Competition with Russia, 2157
Cost of production, 114
Dumping of. See Customs, dumping clause
Duty on, 239
Early seeding in West, 115
Exports to United States, 209
Fordney tariff and, 210.* See that title under United States
Free trade in, 2528
Freight rates on, 300. See also Freight Rates
Kubanka, 2454
Marketing, 46-47, 53, 115, 151, 231, 2453. See also Budget; Speeches on Address; Wheat Board
Prices of, 152
Shipments through Vancouver, 235
Transportation, 233. See also Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
United States demand for, 333

Wheat Board, 31, 283, 338; qu., 472, 1118-20. See also Agriculture and Colonization Com.; Budget; Grain and Grain Trade; Grain Commission; speeches on Address
Agriculture Com. report of:
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland) to M. for concurrence in, 2951; neg., 2969
Concurrence in report, delay, 2306
Canadian Council of Agriculture memo, 377
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Fixation of prices, 2588
Kay, Mr. privilege, 872
Participation certificates, qu., 2304
Re-establishment of, demand for, 72, 115, 146, 152, 158, 232

Wheat Board Bill. See Canadian Wheat Board Bill

White, Mr. James
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276, 3495

White, Mr. J. F. (London)
Budget, 2352. Congratulations to Finance Minister; election pledges, promises and arguments; tariff proposals; proposed permanent tariff commission, White, Mr. J. F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
2352; western agriculture; freight rates; climatic conditions; Wheat board; agriculture and protection; importation of farm produce; wider markets; free trade; farm tractors; tariff and manufacturers' profits; trade with Germany; unemployment, 2354
Experimental farms, 810
Lake Huron, marine allowance, qu., 1930
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 406

White, Sir Thomas, resignation of directorships, 1089, 1102

White Lead, duty on, 2297

White Slave Traffic, Suppression of, 3497

Whitley Councils, 1061

Widowed Mothers, Pensions. See Pensions' Committee

Wife Disertions. See Pension Act Amdt. bill

Wilson, Mr. G. C. (Wentworth)
Highways, approved, qu., 2040

Windermere Road, 1051, 1682

Windsor, N.S. removal of derelict in channel, 1493

Windsor, Ont., Canadian Transit bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Wines and Spirits. See Customs Act Amdt. bill

Winnipeg
Strike, 1068
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 671-9
Trials, cost of, qu., 1182
Unemployment, 86

Winnipeg River. See Lake of the Woods

Winnepegosis Wharf, 3545

Winter Ports in Canada. See Intercolonial Railway

Wireless Telegraphy. See also Radio
Lighthouses and, qu., 370
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu., 1063

Wives, Foreign-born, of British Subjects. See Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Wolves, destruction of livestock by, 990, 998-999

Women
Alien born. See Dominion Elections Act
Representation in Parliament. See Macphail, Miss
Voting in last election, 185

Wooden Ships, qu., 364

Woodmen of the World, 1905

Woods, Mr. R. J. (Dufferin)
Address in reply, 92. Congratulations to Miss Macphail, 92; changes in political parties; attitude of Progressive party; greater markets for farm products, 93; tariff revision; farmers not concerned with politics, 94
Budget, 2183. Tariff; history; classification; reductions; sales tax; added burden to consumer; dumping clause, 2184; free raw materials and high duties on finished products, protection on farm implements, 2185; duty on clothing, woollens, etc.; automobiles; Ford car; effect of 25 per cent duty; drawback system; farmers and protection, 2186; speeches of the Prime Minister in 1920; manufacturers free traders in raw materials; protection as it affects the consumer, 2187; agricultural implements, 2188
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1582
Expenditure and policy, 1582
Sales tax, 3264

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. (Centre Winnipeg)
Address in reply, 84. Economic disturbance, 84-85; demand for markets; home market; unemployment, 85; unemployment insurance, 88; production, factors of; equipment; transportation question, 89; tariff revision; national debt and taxation; war fortunes and war scandals, 90; Defence department; relations with United States; war legacies, 91; reconstruction, 92
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2242. Conservatives and Liberals, origin and policy; extension af franchise to ordinary people; agriculture and business interests not identical; labour view; sales tax unduly burdensome to family man, 2242; civil service pay;

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
immigrants to pay taxes and feed the railways; an administration bankrupt in ideas; no economic changes proposed; drifting and borrowing; "mortgaging the homestead"; foreign ownership of natural resources, 2243; concentration of wealth; railway exploitations; alieniation of lands and resources, 2245; mergers and watered stock; consolidation of financial organizations; grain trade and, 2246; the Great War and profiteering; financing, 2247; burden of taxation; repudiation; capital levy; income tax, 2448; profits and property rights vs. human welfare; labour and capital, 2250
Cadet camps, 1973
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, employees' wages, qu., 3598
Canadian National railways
Directors, representation of employees, 2798
Steel cars, qu., 2213
Civil Service, 3075
Bonus, 3533
Industrial councils, 1061
Patronage, 3097
Salaries, 2243
Criminal Code Amdt. (Sedition and Criminal Conspiracies) 364, 865, 1395, 3104
Debates, inaudibility of, 1755
Disarmament, 1143
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Immigration Act Amdt. (Bill 16) 364, 864, 1388, 3104
Immigration, British artisans, 2208
Immigration-Criminal Code bills
Report of Special Committee, 3281
M. to refer back, 3282
Income tax, taxpayers, qu., 1399-1400
International Labour Conference, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour
Industrial engineer, 494
Mounted Police and, 670-1
Military policy and expenditures, 1143
Military Service Act repeal bill, 424, 639
Ministers and Directorships, 1127
Mounted Police in unorganized territories, M., 829, 841
National Defence bill, 670
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 516; qu., 605

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Oriental labour on British ships, 2042
Post Office employees' salaries, 2801
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1486
Railway Commission, representation of labour, 2776
Russian relief, 3516
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Unemployment
Relief, 3526
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1069-84
Unemployment Service Council, 2803
Winnipeg strike, Andrews correspondence, 2042

Wool. See also Agriculture; Livestock
Blankets, duty on, 3128
Duty on, 2415
Prices of, 985, 997
Woollen clothing, prices and labour cost, 2205, 2350, 2632. See also Speeches on Budget

Workmen. See Labour

Workmen's Compensation Act, 88, 1381

Wrangel Island, 1750, 1751
Russian title to, 2208

Wrecks. See Marine and Fisheries; Ships and Shipbuilding

Yacht Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

York County, Ont., representation, 1365

Yorkton, Sask., Speech of Prime Minister at, 2730

Young, Arthur and Company, qu., 365, 1490

Yukon Territory
Administration of
Cost, 1681
Justice, 1275
Expenditure, 1275
Expenses, population, qu., 2456
Government of, 1034
Mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Telegraph line, 1749
Union for judicial purposes with British Columbia, 1275

Zaneth, Corporal, 671