REPORT.

EACH of our four last Reports had something new to tell, and this the Report for 1870 is no exception to them, for in it we have to tell of a great step in advance that our institution has made. We have moved two miles out of town; have purchased a valuable property of 14 acres for little more than the price of the former site of an acre and a half; and instead of the old ricketty building that could accommodate only 40 boys and our confined workshops, we have erected a handsome and substantial home for 100 boys, and roomy comfortable workshops for our four departments of labour. In our last Annual Report we spoke of this move as a possible thing, and gave a list of subscriptions collected chiefly by W. Cunard, Esq., to the amount of $11,000, for a new building to be built in or out of town. At the Annual Meeting held in the beginning of 1870, the question was submitted to our friends, and after long and thoughtful discussion it was unanimously decided that a move should be made, that not less than eight or ten acres of land should be bought, and that substantial wooden buildings large enough to accommodate all the boys that we would likely have at any one time during the next quarter of a century, should be erected. This being done, it was left to the committee to select the new site; and so all-important was it that this should be the best possible, and so many considerations had to be taken into account that three months were spent in making inquiries, and visiting the different spots suggested. Members of Committee who had no intention of speculating in real estate came thus to know the price of almost every field that could be got into the market, both in and around the peninsula. Doubtless the knowledge will be of great value to them and thus they shall have something additional to the usual reward of virtue which nobody will grudge them. To detail the experiences of some of our members on their expeditions, especially after a heavy snow storm, when neither dykes nor ditches were visible, the little or no results of a hard days walk, the fancy prices asked by "sons of the soil" for patches of dry scraggy moor, would make a most interesting Report, but as we are practical men we must pass all that by, and merely state the actual fact that came out of it all. After considering everything, wood and water, soil and situation, roads and nearness to town, the price and our means, the present and the future, we bought those 14 acres on the Quinpool Road, near the head of the North West Arm, which every one can now see crowned by our new spacious and stately Home. The price of the property was $11,200. We sold our old site for $8040; and to make up the difference we thought of selling the front three acres of the new property, with the new pretty house that goes with them, as we could easily get $4000 for the lot. But it would be a great pity thus to decapitate our little estate. We may soon need the ground for ourselves or some other charitable institution, and the house is now occupied for the winter by our master tailor and cabinet maker and their families. Besides, if we sell, we can have no guarantee as to what sort of buildings or dens of evil may be put up right in our front. But sell we must unless the means to pay what we owe for the land are otherwise obtained, for it would be wrong in the Committee to allow a debt to hang long over the School.

Next, as to our new buildings, we estimated in the last report that $13,000 would be needed for them. That sum would include every thing. The work is now done and we find that our estimate was correct, but as we have received less than $12,000 we have still something to do before we can say that they are out of debt. No one who goes over the buildings, and sees all that had to be done, and how thoroughly it has been done will think the outlay extravagant. Not to speak of the work-shops, in the main building—which is a striking and handsome edifice, without any attempt at ornamentation—we have the advantage of four stories. In the basement are the bathroom, dining room, kitchen, pantry, &c. Half of the ground floor is the schoolroom; and the other half the committee room or library; and the rooms for the Superintendent, his family and servant. Immediately over the schoolroom is a room of the same size, not needed for much now but which will eventually be required for dormitories for 34 boys; and the other half of the story is divided off into a sick-room, Mr. Ayres (the master shoemaker's) room, the clothes room, &c., &c. Then in the top story are the dormitories of our 43 boys, and there is accommodation in it for about 30 more. A further description is unnecessary, as those who will not take the trouble to go out and see will not be likely to take the trouble to read. We can assure visitors that they shall be amply repaid not only by the sight of our large family heartily engaged in healthful work or play, and by the sight of our model kitchen, and all our simple furniture, but by the view—the finest on the peninsula—that is to be had from the top of the building. We believe that were it only for this view, a visit to the new Industrial School will be the fashionable walk or drive next summer, and we hope to supply visitors with cake and good milk, and should all go well — with ice creams also. We are sure too, that the first reflection of visitors will be, why should this noble present of the good people of Halifax to their outcast and erring boys, be burdened with a debt of $1000 or $1200 ?

While speaking of our new building, three names that were on our committee of last year come before us for special grateful notice. Alas that in the case of two of them — the late A. K. Doull and John Brookfield, only memories should be now left to us! With regard to the third, we may say, that we owe our new home to Mr. Cunard. We had thought of it and longed for it, but had not faith to make the venture and appeal to the public for the means. He came forward and took the matter in hand, and when a man gives $2000 himself to a good object, he has a right to ask others to assist. He carried the subscription book round and got over $11,000 subscribed, and would undoubtedly have brought it to the desired point of $13,000 had he not been called away from the city just at the time. We proceeded with the work in the hope that the balance would be sent in, which hope has not yet been fully met, but we still hope.

No other member of the committee did so much for the new building as the late John Brookfield. His great experience as a builder made him the fittest person to superintend its erection, and the knowledge that he had undertaken the duty gave every one confidence that it would be well looked after, and that all the work would be honestly done. Quiet and unobtrusive in manner, few really understood the noble pious character of the man, but all appreciated his modesty, his sense, and his sterling uprightness. The poor lost a friend, the labouring classes a generous and considerate employer, and the community generally, one of its most valued and respected members when the stroke of sudden death removed John Brookfield from our midst.

Public testimony has already been paid again and again to our dear brother A. K. Doull, who was lost with so many others of our citizens in the City of Boston, but when we remember the kind of man he was, it cannot be paid too often, and it would ill-become us who sat at the Board with him for years, and who thus knew the deep loving interest he took in the School, to let this Report go from us without a tribute to his memory. He was always ready not only to undertake his share in the ordinary expenses of the School, but to further everything that would be for the comfort, the well-being, or the enjoyment of the boys. He never voted against receiving any applicant; and if there was no money, would offer it himself rather than that should stand in the way. He was as anxious that the boys should have their fun, their foot-balls and cricket matches, their pic nic and Christmas dinner as if he were a boy himself; and in that he showed not only his own sunny and genial character, but true knowledge of boy nature, and human nature too. We understand that by his will he has left $2,000 to the Institution, and it is our intention to keep the fund sacred, and devote the interest annually to pay for three boys who shall be known as the "Doull boys." Thus he, though dead, shall yet speak, and for long generations to come,—it may be, poor little fellows rescued by this means from a life of hopelessness shall have cause to bless his name.

NUMBER OF BOYS, &c., DURING THE PAST YEAR.

The Special Report that we have thus had to make about our grand move and extension, all the financial details of which will be found in the statements of the Treasurer that are appended, obliges us to shorten our story of the ordinary working of the school for the past year. And yet it is to the full as interesting as ever, to all who look beyond the merely sensational to the object we have in view,—the education of our boys for the life of time and of eternity. We have to chronicle a year of quiet steady progress.

We began 1870 with 42 boys, a larger number than we ever had before. We begin 1871 with 43. Our average for 1870 was about 43, and for two months we had 46 on our roll. Sixteen were admitted during the year — four of them from the City Prison, ten from the streets on $40 or $20 guarantees, by benevolent people, Sunday Schools, &c., and two extreme cases on our free list. Fifteen went out from us in the same time; five of them to farmers' comfortable homes in Pictou County where they are doing well; six to work at their respective trades in the city, five of whom are in regular employment; one was taken by his mother to the States, with our approval; one was removed by his parents without our consent; one ran away, but we learn that he is at work and doing well in Windsor; and one that we took from the Orphans' Home for a short time, and who was subject to epileptic fits, we had to send to the Poor House. We leave those facts to speak for themselves.

Mr. Grierson still keeps up correspondence with many of the boys who are scattered abroad; and it is pleasant to read in their letters of their affection for their old home and companions. At the Christmas dinner, several from Truro and the city put in an appearance, and are always welcomed.

Of our present number, 8 are being taught shoemaking, 9 tailoring, 6 cabinetmaking, 14 make up kindling wood, 5 are engaged in domestic work, as errand boys, and to drive the horse: for since we moved we had to add a horse, truck, express waggon, &c. to our establishment; and No. 43 is little Dan, who lies in his crib by the kitchen fire, knitting or reading, or working in his head abstruse questions in Mental Arithmetic. All who have visited the School know Dan, and will be glad to learn that life is beginning to return to his limbs, and that his case does not now seem so hopeless as it once did.

The profits from the various trades have been greater than in the preceding year, as the following table shows:

Profit in 1869.	Profit in 1870.
Shoe Shop $597 41	Shoe Shop $658 48
Cabinet Shop... ..183 35	Cabinet Shop 361 60
Tailors' Shop.....191 28	Tailors' Shop 219 97
Kindling Wood....208 85	Kindling Wood 324 19
News & errand boys 390 74	News & errand boys 379 19
Total profit $1571 63	Total profit $1943 43

The consequence of this increase of profit from the boys is that last year's income met the expenditure; but we began the year with a deficit of $1100 owing (1) to the income of the preceding year being $500 short of the expenditure as was pointed out in the report; and (2) to the fact that the amount raised two years ago for the payment of old debts was more than $600 less than required, the old debts having turned out to be greater than our then treasurer estimated. We have still that load round our necks, but our position otherwise is satisfactory, as will be seen by examining the accounts submitted by our present Treasurer, W. S. Stirling, Esq., for whose valuable services during the past year we are most grateful. There is nothing we would like so much as to have that $1100, and so far be square with the world. Our stock in hand would then probably meet all other liabilities: and we think from the improvement in the work done by the boys that hereafter our ordinary income will be sufficient to meet the ordinary expenditures.

EDUCATION, EMPLOYMENT, &c.

What was said on this head in last year's Report would do for this. The School Commissioners have given us a well qualified teacher for four evenings in the week, and we have in our new home a splendid school-room, and the trustees of the school formerly held in St. John's Church have kindly given us the use of their old benches. Mr. Grierson assists the teacher, and the improvement is all that we could expect. But we know that this is the smallest part of the education that boys need to fit them for the duties of manhood;—and that the true idea of education involves not only instruction but the right discipline of the whole man, the developing under wise, patient, firm and loving guardianship of all our powers of body, mind and soul. We know that there is no institution in which this can be done so well as the Christian family; and that every substitute for it is at the best but a makeshift for it; and that therefore the more closely we can imitate it, the more truly successful we shall be. Perhaps the great reason why boys from large reformatories have not succeeded when they went out into life so well as was expected has been that too little allowances had been made for their individual characters, that their natures had been cramped into one set pattern instead of being educated, that there had been too much drill and uniformity, and too little of family freedom and variety. Our Superintendent instinctively understands all that; and so any one who spends a day on our grounds will find that, though Mr. Grierson's authority is undisputed, and that he is regarded as father and master, there is no more of rigour nor of restraint than in any well-ordered family. No one dreams of going beyond bounds without his permission, and his yea or nay on the point is final; but at no assemblage of boys in the Province is there more heartiness and variety and naturalness of manner than with them. We don't pretend that they are better than others of the same ages; but we think that they are not any worse; and that when they go out into the world they'll do as well on the average as those who have had the blessings of a Christian father and mother and home, and much of the same start, as far as fortune is concerned, as our boys. Considering our raw material, we are saying a great deal when we say so much; and reverently we bow before God and acknowledge that their and our hearts are in His hand, and that only through His blessing have we had any measure of success.

The general health during the past year has been good, as usual, owing in great measure under God to Dr. Slayter's unremitting attention. We tender hearty thanks to him for his services, which are entirely gratuitous; and also to Dr. A. C. Cogswell, who never charges us anything for dentistry cases, and who shews his interest in the school in many ways.

With regard to their employments, the move out of town will make some differences. We shall lose some sources of revenue, and therefore have to cultivate others. It would not pay to let them act as errand or news boys, and we shall miss the ready money that used to be thus brought in. Our friends who employed them in either of those capacities must excuse us for the sake of the greater good of the boys. We can keep up the carpet-shaking in the spring, and be in even a better position for that work; and we hope to do something at gardening, and at keeping cows. These will be better for them, both now and for their future lives, than running errands, the risks of which we have always felt to be very great. Our kindling-wood department must be greatly extended. The orders for this article have increased so rapidly that there has been the greatest difficulty sometimes in supplying them soon enough; and at the time of our moving there was unavoidable delay in a few cases; but we have now got into our new groove, and expect everything to go on smoothly.

CONCLUSION.

The great subject of congratulation this year is that we have now room enough for all that are likely to be sent to us. The Act empowering the Stipendiary Magistrate to sentence young offenders to the School for such terms as he saw fit was passed, and the Town Council have set aside the sum of $400, enough to pay for ten—should so many be in at one time under sentence. There was some hesitation to voting the amount on the part of one or two city fathers, who seemed to think that it was a great stretch of generosity to vote $40 towards making a good citizen out of a young vagrant or thief, but all right to take double the amount from us to keep him in Rockhead. We had thought that if moral or social considerations had no influence, economical ones would, and so purposely fixed the sum at a low point in the Act, a lower point than it is in any other place where the need of such institutions is felt. Thus, the Quebec local Legislature in virtue of a Dominion Act empowering it, offers $1.50 per week or $78 a year to any proper Reformatory that will charge itself with the care of young criminals. And in consequence of this and of hearing of the history and success of ours, some christian gentlemen in Montreal sent for our reports, and we learn have commenced to establish a similar institution. In St. John, N. B., we are also glad to know that one has been established on the model of ours, and though a smaller one, is succeeding well. We wish it every success, as we also do to the proposal on the part of some of our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens to get up one for boys of their creed. It has been said there's no worse use you can put a man to than to hang him, but there is; you may refuse to give him a chance for life in youth; you may take advantage of a petty fault to degrade him for ever; you may make him into a curse to the community, and destroy his own soul, under the plea of high-sounding phrases. It costs us $60 a year, in addition to what is made by their work, to keep, educate, and teach a trade to each boy. When we take them from the Police Court for $40, it is easy to calculate on which side the debt of gratitude exists.

We need say no more of the past year. We may well thank God and take courage. As to the future, while we have accommodation for 100 boys, our present revenue will not allow us to take in more than 44, and we have an actual debt of past years on us of $1100. We ask the friends of Him who was poor for us, who loves us and would not have us perish, to come to our help, for it is to His help. Come and visit our School, and see what we are doing; give your sympathy, and we shall be grateful, your counsel and we shall welcome it, your money and you shall have abundant interest and sure returns.

P. S.--Since this report was read and adopted at the annual meeting, we have received the $1100 to pay off our old debt. All that we need now is the remaining $1000 for the new buildings, and $800 for a steam engine, barn, &c.,—all of which we are sure of receiving in good time, if we may judge of the future from the past.
