Robbers Loot Maine Bank and Get Away With $750 in Silver--Japan's Great Naval Review Next Month Will Be Great Event.

Hornblower has signed and sent the following to Governor Folk of Missouri:--"The signed citizens of New York, with regard to party, invite and urge you for the sake of good government and in order to keep in office a fearless and faithful public servant, to come on and speak for Jerome."

Many well known residents of New York are being asked to sign this and most of them are readily doing so. At a meeting of the W. M. B. Association last night it was decided to endorse the democratic ticket with two exceptions. Mr. Jerome's name being substituted for that of Mr. Osborne for district attorney, and that of William E. Ryan, the municipal ownership league candidate for the assembly in the ninth district, being endorsed.

PHILLIPS, Me., Oct. 21--Robbers blew open the vault of the Phillips National Bank early today and secured $448 in silver and copper. For some reason, no attempt was made to gain entrance to the main safe. This contained about $1400 in currency. The thieves escaped and there is no clue.

TOKIO, Oct. 21--It is officially announced that the grand naval review will take place on Monday next. Great enthusiasm over the event prevails in Tokio and Yokohama. Seventy-five special trains will be run between the two cities on the day of the celebration.

Brown had arrived from Fredericton only some ten days before the accident.

PULPWOOD IS NOW DUTY FREE
Burlington, Vt., Oct. 20--A decision sustaining the finding of the board of general appraisers of New York that there should be no assessment on roamed pulpwood, brought into the United States from Canada, was handed down today by Judge H. S. Wheeler, of the United States district court.

The decision was made in connection with a test case brought about by a suit instituted by the United States against C. W. Pierce, who in fact represented one of the largest pulp importing concerns in the United States. A shipment of roamed wood pulp from Canada to Mr. Pierce was taxed 20 per cent by the assessors of this district but the consignee disputed the legality of the action and placed the matter before the board of general appraisers at New York.

This board supported Mr. Pierce's contention that the material was not taxable but placed the matter before the United States district court for final decision. The fact that the appraisers are upheld in Judge Wheeler's decision means that full restoration of duty must be made, not only to Mr. Pierce, but to all other importers of roamed pulp also, who have been assessed since this suit was instituted.

SUIT DISMISSED
Ottawa, Oct. 20 (Special).--In the exchequer court today E. L. Newcombe, K. C., deputy minister of justice, moved for an order dismissing the petition of right in the case of the Atlantic and Lake Superior Company vs. the King. In this case the applicants sued the crown for $1,500,000 for an alleged breach of contract to guarantee the interest coupons upon certain bonds issued by the applicant company at the time the company alleged that by reason of such failure to guarantee it met with a loss on the English market of ten per cent on the sale of their bonds in the year 1902. The crown defends the action, denying the agreement entirely.

The action proceeded to trial but was adjourned to enable the crown to examine the books of the company. These books were not produced and on the 22nd September last an order was made directing the production of the books and the deposit of security for costs by the applicant company. In default of which the crown might move to dismiss the action. This order not having been obtained the court on Mr. Newcombe's motion declared an order to be entered dismissing the action with costs against the company.

FREDERICTON NEWS
FREDERICTON, Oct. 21 (Special).--Flags are flying at the principal hotels and public buildings here today in honor of the centennial of Trafalgar. This evening the Sons of England will celebrate the event by a public meeting in Church Hall. The speakers will be Dr. Inch, J. S. Crockett, M. P., and Major H. F. MacLeod.

A large bull moose was seen near Morrison Mills yesterday afternoon. The animal descended the hill to the river and had a drink of water and walked leisurely back to the woods.

WILL HOIST THE FLAG.
Work is being rushed on the erection of a flagpole on the Court Block, in order that the flag may be raised while the Prince is here. It will be a very interesting function and will enable the people of Indianatown to join in welcoming the Prince.

A procession will be formed at City Hall, and will march to Indianatown, where Ald. Holder will read an address. A quartette composed of Ald. Christie, Macrae, Lewis and Hemen will then sing "Hail to the Admiral," and the Prince will reply. The mayor's clerk will read a historical paper on the Court Block, and Ald. Christie will recite the various steps taken by the council during the past five years in the erection and the improvement of the appearance of the Block, including the famous seed sowing episode in which he and Dr. Crockett, and the Prince will then sing "Raise the Flag," and the Prince will proceed to perform that pleasing duty. The procession will then march three times around the Block, and return to City Hall, where the city engineer will tell the Prince the story of his moose hunt on the site of the Court Block in the fall of 1912.

It has not yet been ascertained whether the Ludlow is for or against Sunday excursions. If she is in favor of them it is probable that the ferry receipts tomorrow will be largely increased. No chairman has as yet been appointed.

Mr. Peter Binks says he has not yet heard from the fair of Nations, though he spends all his time there. His attachment to some of the booths is creating considerable talk.

There is a rumor that a corner in enterprising local speculation. He is said to have secured control of two hundred and it is further asserted that there are only three hundred in the town. This is swif-

BIG FAIR WILL CLOSE TONIGHT

The Fair of Nations will close tonight, and indications point to a banner attendance this afternoon and evening. The inhabitants of Indian town, and the people of the surrounding districts, are expected to be present in large numbers. The fair will close at 10 o'clock tonight.

At the "Petit Trianon," as the French booth is called, interpreters will be on hand for the benefit of those who do not understand the language of "gay Paris." The very fetching costumes in this booth have elicited many favorable comments.

At the "Old Colonial Days" the fortune teller will hold forth as usual, and the Indian princess will have a few more very pretty articles to dispose of. Refreshing drinks and creams can be obtained in the garden of Marie Antoinette's palace.

At Scotland, England and Ireland visitors will be as warmly welcomed as on the previous nights, and their money will be gratefully taken. They will have ever, receive full value.

The gala girls and the oriental beauties will be as eager to please as if it were not the closing night and the wants of the visitors will be attentively looked after.

At the Domestic Science booth, there is an opportunity for those who do not had time to get their Sunday cooking done, to purchase some very choice cookery. This booth will be closed at 10 o'clock.

Many are of the opinion that there are no more wares to be procured in New Brunswick, but despite the heavy loads of the last few days there are still some good bargains to be had at the booth over which Lady Tilly has as ably presided.

The fancy work booth, directly in front of the main entrance, has kept the ladies of Carmarthen street church busy almost constantly and as a result their stock is much depleted. It is likely that they will dispose of all that is left at the grand clearance sale tonight.

Lady Tilly and Mrs. W. W. White request all the ladies who have taken part in the fair to meet them in the tea room this evening at eight o'clock.

Many of the ladies have become much attached to their cosy little residences in the risk during the time the fair has been running, and one lady remarked last night that she would be very sorry to see her work dismantled.

CHATHAM, N. B., Oct. 21 (Special).--William Purcell, an employe of the Miramichi Pulp and Paper Company's mill, was killed this morning about seven o'clock while going to his work.

He was walking along the track when he was overtaken by the engine belonging to the mill, knocked down and dragged about twelve feet. He lived only about three minutes after being rescued. The engineer saw the unfortunate man on the track, blew the whistle of the locomotive and put on the brakes but the deceased took no notice of the whistle and the wheels of the engine slipped along as the track was wet. Mr. Purcell was about fifty-eight years old and leaves a widow, a son, and a daughter.

Blazed Trail Stories
Stories of the Wild Life

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE.

THE RIVERMAN.

I first met him one Fourth of July afternoon in the middle eighties. The saw-dust streets and high board sidewalks of the lumber town were filled to the brim with people. The permanent population dressed in the stiffness of its Sunday best, escorted gingham wives or sweethearts; a dozen outsiders like myself tried not to be too conspicuous in a city smartness; but the great multitude was composed of the men of the woods. I sat chair-titled by the hotel, watching them pass. Their heavy woolen shirts crossed by the broad suspenders, the red of their waists or leather slings of their belts, their short kersey trousers "staged" off to leave a gap between the knees and legs. By spliced "cocked boots"—all those were distinctive enough of their class, but most interesting to me were the feet that peered from beneath their little rounded hats tilted rakishly askew. They were all slightly alike, those eyes. Some were black, some were brown, or gray, or blue, but all were steady and unshakable, all looked straight at you with a strange humorous blending of aggression and respect for your own business, and all without exception wrinkled at the corners with a suggestion of the blue eyes suddenly harder than I knew, for all at once a laughing pair of the blue eyes suddenly met mine full, and an ironical voice bellowed, "Say, bub you look as interested as a man killing snakes. Am I your long-lost sister?"

reversal. The log came instantaneously to rest, quivering exactly like some animal that had been spared through its paces. "Magnificent!" I cried. "Hell, that's nothing!" my companion reproached me, "anybody can bill a log. Watch this." Roaring Dick for the first time unfolded his arms. With some appearance of caution he balanced his unstable footing into absolute immobility. Then he jerked a corner. This was the real thing. My friend uttered a wild yell of applause which was lost in a general roar. A long pole-pole shot out, bit the end of the log, and sawed it to the boom pile. Another man stepped on the log with Darrell. They stood facing each other, bent-kneed, alert. Suddenly with one second their committed to bill the log from left to right. The spear grew hot. Like squirrels treading a cage their feet twinkled. Then it became apparent that Darrell's opponent was gradually being forced from the top of the log. He could not keep up. Little by little, still shoving desperately, he dropped back to the slant, then at last to the edge, and so off into the river with a mighty splash. "Clean billed!" commented my friend. One after another a half-dozen rivermen tackled the unrepentant Dick, but none of them possessed the agility to stay on top of the pole set for them. One boy of eighteen seemed for a moment to hold his own, and managed at least to keep out of the water even when Darrell had apparently reached his maximum speed. But that expert merely threw his entire weight into two reversing attempts of his feet, and the young fellow dove forward as abruptly as though he had been shied over a horse's head. The crowd was by now getting uproarious and impatient of volunteer efforts to humble Darrell's challenge. I wanted the best, and at once, I began, with increasing insistence, to shout a name. "Jimmy Powers!" I vociferated. "Jimmy Powers!" And then by shamefaced bashfulness, by profane protest, by muttered and comprehensive curses I knew that my companion on the other pile was indicated. A dozen men near at hand began to shout. "Here he is!" they cried. "Come on, Jimmy!" "Don't be a high banker!" "Hang his hide on the fence." Jimmy, still red and sweating, suffered himself to be pulled from his elevation and disappeared in the throng. A moment later I caught his head and shoulders pushing toward the boom pile, and in a moment he stepped warily aboard to face his antagonist. This was evidently no question to be determined by the simplicity of force or the simplicity of a child's trick. The two men stood hunched, face to face, reaching each other narrowly, but making no move. To me they seemed like two wrestlers sparring for an opening, one on the other side of the log, then slowly the other. It was a mere courtesy of salute. All at once Dick tried three rapid strokes from left to right as though about to roll the log, leaped into the air and landed square with both feet on the other slant of the boom. Jimmy Powers felt the jar, and acknowledged it by the spasmodic jerk with which he counterbalanced Darrell's weight. But he was not thrown. As though this daring and hazardous manoeuvre had opened the combat both men sprang to life. Sometimes the log rolled one way, sometimes the other, sometimes it jerked from side to side like a crazy thing, but always with the rapidity of light, always in a smother of spray and foam. The decided spot, spot, spot of the reversing blows from the caulked boots sounded like picked fringes. I could not make out the different leads, flints, parries, and counters of this strange method of boxing, nor could I distinguish to whose initiative the various evolutions of the log could be ascribed. But I still retain a vivid mental picture of two men nearly motionless above the waist, nearly motionless below

M. R. A.'s ANNUAL OCTOBER FURNITURE CLEARANCE COMMENCES AT 8 O'CLOCK ON MONDAY MORNING BUYERS WILL SAVE FROM 20c. TO 45c. ON EVERY DOLLAR

It is Helpful To Business To Have A Clearance Once In A While, particularly in the line of furniture; therefore we plan holding a bargain time once a year. Each season factories stop making certain patterns of chairs, tables etc., and under such circumstances it is always desirable to "close out" these particular lines, not because they are unsalable, but because no more of them can be purchased. Then again odd pieces accumulate, sets are broken and the furniture man soon finds his premises littered with "remnants."

Sale Furniture Will Be Found On The Second Floor of our Market Square building. It will be plainly ticketed, so that visitors can inspect and compare the goods and their prices. Every item in the reduction list is worthy of much more money than will be asked, but there must be some particular inducement to the people in order to clear our floors of these fragments of a very large stock. Those who call earliest will undoubtedly share the cream of the fine array.

MARKET DEPRESSED

Many Difficulties in Financial Circles Retard Operations-- Prices Generally Fractionally Lower--Trading Mostly in Broken Lots.

(Montreal Witness, Thursday.) There is little hope that there will be any change in the financial situation for some time to come, and it is only on account of support of the strong banking interests that the market value of securities is prevented from breaking. There are many difficulties in the way of a progressive market, and the outlook will, sooner or later, compel a more liberal attitude towards the stock market. As the country grows the stocks of the various industrial concerns will be more and more followed by the public in general, and will naturally look after some of the more sound and interest-bearing stock which will carry a reasonable amount of safety. This altogether aside from speculation as it is generally understood, the market price of securities, should, under normal conditions, reflect the state of the country, but violent speculation in many of the more unworky stocks has entirely distorted this rule, and it is very often that a good sound dividend stock will be quoted at a much lower rate than an unproductive stock, and for this speculation and "operator" are responsible. With property abounding everywhere industrial houses should be working full swing and selling the opportunity for profit, which they are no doubt doing, but during the past few years there has been a sudden burst into a more than usually active era, and the old properties, plants and machinery have been found to be totally inadequate to handle the work. This has created the necessity for re-equipment which has to a certain extent retarded immediate progress, although there can be no doubt of the ultimate results. Not a few financial authorities hold that the big savings deposits in this country are being carefully hoarded by depositors with a view to carrying out individual schemes for betterment, there being many opportunities in which a young country like Canada is naturally prolific. There is certainly little investment buying at present on the local market and stocks continued depressed during this meeting's session. Prices as a rule were fractionally lower with the earlier trading in New York. Detroit sold down at 85 on a turn over of 100 shares. Iron common was also lower at 22 at the opening, but recovered its point towards the close of the hour. Havana was higher at 25 on a fair turnover. Mackay common sold at 45. South was quiet but slightly improved. There was some trading in broken lots but the market was generally dull and uninteresting.

COMMENT ON STOCK MARKET. Hurry in Money Likely to Occur Around November 1st--The President's Trip.

(Boston Transcript, Thursday.) There was early trading in the stock market and some free selling. London put out from 10.00 to 10.50 shares in New York and trading worked in bear side for a while, getting leading stocks of 10 to 1, and even more in some cases. Rally was complete, however, and some money was easier, at 4 1/2 per cent and the Bank of England discount rate was not changed.

There is a general feeling in the market that the President's trip to Europe will be a relief to the market, and that the stock market will be more active during his absence.

Tales of the Town

Was It Tainted Money? A city liquor merchant is turning over in his mind a problem. He wanted some cheese the other day, and went to a store, selected one to suit him, and paid for it. The cheese was for his customers. The other merchant, after the cheese had been bought and paid for, told him he must send for it. He explained that he had no one to send, and that he thought it was customary to deliver goods, but was again informed that this particular cheese would not be delivered. Wondering a little, but not thinking much about it, he went out and sent a truckman after the cheese. The latter brought it, but brought also the information that he had been roughly lectured for delivering goods to a run-down place. There a light dawned on the liquor dealer. He hastened to the telephone, called up the other party, and proceeded to offer some general remarks that had no particular relation to the matter. He finally wanted to know, if he returned the cheese, if he could get his money back. He was gravely informed that it was a cash transaction, and the deal was closed. What puzzles him now is the question of the relative responsibility of the man who sells goods to a liquor dealer and the man who delivers them. If it is right to sell, is it wrong to deliver? If it is wrong to deliver is it right to sell? At last accounts he was still, in a maze of perplexity. 'Twas Cruel to Laugh This is an incident that did not appear in the newspaper accounts of the Fair of Nations. It was on the morning after the opening night of the show, about 1.30, and everyone had apparently gone home, for not a soul could be seen, and the watchmen left to watch the treasures in the various booths were making their rounds. Suddenly from the inner regions of one of the booths a strange noise was heard resembling the nasal efforts of an adult pouter. Curious to know from whence the noise emanated, the "guardians of the nations" tipped into the booth, with thoughts of burglary uppermost in their minds. Great was their surprise, however, to see two recumbent figures locked in the arms of Marcellus and gazing peacefully as if they had a perfect right to it. "Who are they?" asked watchman No. 1. "Search me," said No. 2. "Let's wake them and see." "All right, fire ahead." The sleeping beauties were forthwith aroused and a closer inspection with a strong light revealed two well-known figures. They were rather befuddled and very much surprised when they found out where they were and although they could not give a very coherent explanation, it was presumed they had inhaled too freely of the strange tea or coffee, or perhaps it was something else, but anyway they had inhaled, and feeling "stirred" had gone to sleep. At the suggestion of the watchmen they wandered forth into the chilly night to seek their own downy couch in their own domains. The watchmen laughed at the wobbly figures disappeared in the distance. Probably if the nocturnal guardians had been wearing the same brand of heads as were the sleepy ones at that time they would have retained from any veritable demonstrations of mirth. Instead they would have remembered the plaintive wail of one of the minor poets—(very minor)—who gravely informs: "It is no time for mirth and laughter. 'Tis the cold, grey dawn of the morning after."

ABOUT THE POLLARDS The following is from the Montreal Daily Star, August 20: "Master Teddy McNamara as 'Wag' and Miss De- phine as 'Molly' were the stars of the bright and happy star last night in the Grand Opera House. The theatre was crowded and every sort of small people on the stage was greeted enthusiastically by the large audience, which demanded more encores. The small players, with their own blending of humor and seriousness, their lack of self-consciousness, and their evident delight in their work gave a performance which for spontaneity and charm might well be studied and followed by players of more years and experience."

SMART STYLES FOR LASSES

"BEST BIB AND TUCKER" FOR THE LITTLE ONES

The little school frocks which first engage the attention of mamma have been to a great extent accumulated. The finer frocks of mink, fur coats, hats and the down and down included in the phrase "best bib and tucker" are now the consideration.

School gowns are to a great degree bought ready made, as the shops which cater exclusively to juvenile wear admirably achieve the simple styles necessary. But the dressmaker's costume is commonly very expensive when purchased in this shape, and it is almost a shame that the style may be too widely represented.

Upon the little wool frocks, which are more made with the becoming white gimpes, narrow velvets and satin ribbons, there are bands, divided sometimes with smart coxettes. The velvet is most often black, but upon the small frocks the satin trimmings may match a stripe in the plaid, a green and brown and white plaid, for example, being trimmed with green ribbon.

Admitted the Confusion of Riches in Beautiful Materials and Trimmings, Brilliant Plaid Stuffs Continue to Be Favorites for Young Children's Wear and Are Set Off by Narrow Velvets and Satin Ribbons Matching a Stripe in the Plaid.

Practical Suggestions Offered by Charming French Models in Corduroy and Velvet, Which Display Many of the Exquisite Colorings Seen in Costumes for Grown-ups—Silk Frocks Have Coats to Match, the Poke Bonnet Being of Similar Material.

Rabbit Skin is the Popular Fur for the Very Small Child and the Dress Hat for Little Maids is Built of Supple Felt or Velvet Mingling With Silk, Satin and Lace, Wreaths of Tiny Flowers and Tulle Framing Rosy Faces in a Fascinating Manner.

BY MARY DEAN.

Dark velvet covered the turn-over collar and cuffs. The coat garments for girls at the miss age are far smarter for fine street wear than a costume which needs to be covered with a separate coat. But since the bralette and suspender support arrangements are no longer thought very smart, sewers are put to their wit's end for ways to keep the skirts up. One is to have suspenders of wide tape or ribbon, the blouse with an outside belt finish going over these and buttoning on to the skirt belt.

Calhams, in combination with silk or velvets or treated to some hand-made trimming or other, is now a smart gown material suitable for all ages. A number of other soft and beautifully hanging laines are used in colors allowed the youthful. But, of course, frocks in such materials need to be covered with coats as they have not the solidity necessary for a smart street effect. A coat dress of cloth, velvets, corduroy, tweed, etc., made in the coldest weather by knitted or chambray underjackets and topped by becoming furs, is to be the smart winter garment for misses as well as grown-ups.

The model of the coat is also an important point for the waitline in either blouse with empire shortness or not shown at all. A hip length box model, with sleeves which seem almost small in comparison with recent models, is the most stylish silhouette.

In the matter of furs naturally there are some skins prohibited socially, such as broadtail, silver fox and others of this description. The smaller children will wear anything which is soft and delicate, and sets in the woolly lamb fur, ermine and rabbit skin will make charming the finest frocks.

EARLY THOUGHTS OF YULETIDE GIFTS

Some Really Novel Suggestions for Utilizing Natural Colored Linen and Crash in Acceptable Gifts—The Shamrock a Popular Design in Appliqued Effects.

A favored peep inside starlings where yulemas are now in progress for the Yuletide eates, reveals endless charming conceits in natural colored linen and crash. Fascinating in the extreme are some of these novel gifts which are being evolved from this inexpensive material, and to the girl who makes her presents by hand they offer many hints.

So practical and simple that one wonders it has not been thought of before is a linen coat hanger. Working aprons, all with each pocket covered with cheese cloth completely conceals the ordinary nickel rack, the handle of which is tightly wound with jimmie tape. To finish this a piece of linen the length of the rack and a little over two inches wider than the buttonhole part of the nickel loop, is buttonholed all the way around the edge with mercerized linen. The stamping for this buttonholed edge could be accomplished by a girl herself with the aid of the end of a spool of thread and a pencil marking off the semicircle.

Just inside the buttonholed at intervals of two inches, two strips form a narrow strip almost an inch in length. Buttons being added to these strips. A small hole in the center of the linen allows it to slip down over the wadded shoulder rack. Tape is then employed to lace through the slit of the linen under the wadded rack, thus securing the buttonholed cover in white rather than in its natural color. Heavy linen may be utilized for this same purpose, and with the lacings of wash ribbon the entire cover can be removed occasionally and laundered.

Applied effects so popular in the world of fashion are also being used on these crash and linen novelties. For instance, a lamp shade in one piece like a circular whole which one blossom on each side shows a huge poppy applied with whole silk, one blossom on each side. This flower could be easily cut from scarlet linen, using a poppy from the colored print as a pattern. The edges of the shade are finished with red gimp and the whole thing is thrown over a circular asbestos shade, falling in pretty ripples as it nears the edge and fitting tightly around the collar.

On sofa pillows and table covers of THE COUNTRY ROAD from the busy fields of farmer folk it starts on its winding way. Down over the hill and across the brook Where the snowdrops love to play. And the pond that shows its face, And up to the bridge by the water's edge, And the church with its spire so high. You would never think that the country road From the hill to the more could be So long to a boy with an errand to do And another boy to see. You can never dream how short it is From the farm to the frozen pond. Nor how very much farther it always is To the schoolhouse just beyond.

O, the country road! at the farther end It runs up hill and down and the rippling brook. To the tiling, rushing town. But, best of all, when you're tired and sick, If the water is cold and the wind is keen, If you follow it back it will lead you home To the woods and fields just beyond. St. Nicholas.

THE QUIET HOUR The world's discordant notes evermore ring round about my ears, and weary me, when I find the peace and solace of this hour. O, quiet hour, my tender speech, I wait up to thee my watchful arms I reach. In life's bewildering strife and danger, when I'm in the midst of a battle of this kind, I'll be a soldier and soldier for my peace. Give to me, O, my dear, my dear, my dear, What'er it be, I shall be satisfied. —London Christiana World.

MACARONI AS A NOURISHING FOOD

Various Ways of Cooking This Appetizing Food So That It Will Have a High Food Value—Some Choice Italian and English Recipes.

The wholesome, nourishing qualities of macaroni have never been fully appreciated by the American housewife and she has yet to learn of the many appetizing ways in which it can be served at the family table. As a nourishing food it offers much the same nutrition as white bread, but unless eaten to excess it is less apt to cause indigestion than the so-called staff of life, and flavor depends largely on the manner in which it is cooked. Whether it is offered alone or in combination with some vegetable or meat.

To prepare macaroni properly, boil it rapidly for thirty minutes in boiling salted water. Drain and let it lie in cold water for one hour. Then add a second draining and it is ready for use.

French Macaroni—One-half pound of macaroni prepared as above, one-half pound of finely chopped ham, one-half pound of egg cheese. Cut the macaroni in small pieces, chop one onion fine, add a piece of butter and pour over all one pint of sour cream. Bake three-quarters of an hour.

Creamed Macaroni—Cook two-thirds of a cup of macaroni in boiling salt water until tender. Drain and place in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with one-third of a cup of grated cheese. For the sauce, melt in a double boiler one tablespoonful of butter and add slowly two tablespoonfuls of flour, one pint of hot milk, salt and pepper. Stir constantly until it is a smooth gravy and pour over the macaroni and cheese.

Macaroni Combined With Fish—Clean two well-washed fresh haddock, place them in a buttered baking dish, cover with buttered paper and cook in a moderate oven for ten minutes. Divide the white portion of the fish into flakes, taking care to remove all skin and bones. Boil three ounces of macaroni in salted water, drain and cut into small pieces. Make a cheese-potato sauce in a moderate oven, add two slices of onion, fry until browned for two or three minutes and finally stir in one large tablespoonful of butter. Moisten the ingredients with a cup and a half of milk and stir quickly until the sauce is smooth and thick. Season with salt, pepper and grated onion. Butter a baking dish and cover the bottom with macaroni, then some of the sauce strained, a layer of fish, then more macaroni and sauce, and so on, until the dish is filled. Cover the top with fish, dry bread crumbs and bake in a quick oven until they are a warm brown.

A third English dish combines macaroni with canned pineapple. Break up some macaroni in small pieces and simmer until tender in milk flavored with sugar and lemon rind. Open a small tin of pineapple chunks, turn them into a saucepan, add a little sugar and a little macaroni for ten minutes or so. Arrange the macaroni in the form of a border on a hot dish, crossing and recrossing the pieces. Turn the pineapple into the center.

Ital. cavetti, pour the soup over it, and, if desired, some thin custard, and serve hot.

The Italians mix the macaroni with beef and flavor with garlic. Chop two pounds of meat very fine, add one of tomatoes which have been freed of seeds, three onions chopped, one-half pint of water, and cook slowly for three hours. After the macaroni has been boiled and drained, put it into a cooking dish, accompanied with cheese.

Macaroni a l'Espagnole—Make a sauce from the tablespoonful of flour one tablespoonful of butter and one cup of stock or thin beef soup. Season with salt and pepper and cook for five minutes. Add one layer of cold chopped meat, one layer of boiled macaroni, a sprig of dried basil and chopped onion, and continue this order until the dish is full, having the macaroni last. Pour the sauce over all and bake in a hot oven forty minutes.

Here is a delicious recipe with mushrooms which can be prepared in a cooking dish. Boil the macaroni as directed in this article, and bring to the table on into small pieces. Boil one onion, chop fine, and add one-half cup of butter and one-half cup of mushrooms, one-half cup of macaroni, one-half cup of onion, one-half cup of mushrooms, one-half cup of onion, one-half cup of mushrooms. Make a fire under the butter and stir the onion and mushrooms until they are tender. Add four ounces of macaroni and season with pepper and salt. Stir in some grated cheese and serve.

Another chafing dish recipe is a variety of macaroni. Place in the bottom of a chafing dish one-half cup of butter, three eggs whipped light, one-half cup of milk, one-half cup of cream, one-half cup of salt, one-half cup of pepper, one-half cup of onion, one-half cup of macaroni, one-half cup of onion, one-half cup of macaroni, one-half cup of onion, one-half cup of macaroni. Add two ounces of macaroni, which has been boiled and drained. Lay the macaroni in a layer on the butter and stir until the cheese is quite melted. Serve on a platter.

Macaroni Served with Oysters—Drain and wash twenty-five oysters, make a sauce from a baking dish place a layer of macaroni in the bottom of the dish, and cut up the oysters into small pieces. Next put in a layer of macaroni, then a layer of oysters, and so on, until the dish is full. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Add a little salt and pepper to the oysters. Lay the macaroni in a layer on the butter and stir until the cheese is quite melted. Serve on a platter.

Again the old heraldic pomp Of autumn on the hills, Low lyrics from the hills, And a rich star in the sky, That o'er the moon glows.

Again the tapestry of haze Of autumn's golden glow, Shrouding the horizon ways; The serene, reverent call Of wild geese winging by.

Again the voice of the wind Attuned to one note—Hush, Here, where hushes let behind, O love, would it not seem A new approach to paradise, To dream and dream and dream, O' my darling, in the woman's Home Companion.
