CHINESE AFFAIRS.

It is Said Russia Will Insist on the Signing of the Agreement.

LONDON, April 1.—The correspondent of the Globe at Shanghai, in a despatch dated Saturday, March 20, says he understands that the Yang Trevieroys and Yuan Shi Kai, the military governor of Shan Tung, are prepared to despatch one hundred thousan troops to Sian Fu to rescue the emperor from the hands of the reactionaries and escort him to Pekin, if a little pressure and promise of more support is forthcoming from the powers interested in the open door. The correspondent adds that the suggested expedition would prove popular in Central and Southern China, would result in the destruction of the anti-foreign elements, and would lead to the establishment of a progressive sovernment at Pekin.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Information has reached here to the effect that the Russian government, being seriously perturbed by the course of China in not signing the Manchurian agreement, largely because of the protest made by the several powers, has conveyed a distinct and unmistakable indication to China that if this course is persisted in there may be an interruption of diplomatic relations between Russia and China and a termination of the present intercourse between them. This is little short of an ultimatum that China must sign or take the consequence of a termination of the fresent intercourse between them. This is little short of an ultimatum that China must sign or take the consequence of a termination of the fresent intercourse between them.

THEVES LOOT A TRAIN.

NEW YORK, April 1.—The Allentown fast freight train of New Jersey, which left Somerville, N. J., at 8.30 o'clock last night, was boarded at White House station by a gang of thieves, who broke open a freight car containing valuable merchandise which was thrown off along the route as the train was travelling at fast speed. The rothery was discovered when the train stopped at Hampton Junction, fifteen miles west of White House station. The Hampton Junction switching crew was sent back over the route covered by the freight on a special train to search for the stolen goods. Between Hampton Junction and White House the crew found several cases of champagne and valuable merchandise scattered along the tracks. The thieves had picked up much of the plunder and gotten away with it.

There is also certain to be a big development in light railways in outlying portions of the colony."

LONDON, April 1.—From a statement bade by Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, in the house of commons today, it appears that the South African war has relieved the British Chartered South Africa company of financial liability in regard to the Jameson raid, the colonial secretary admitting that the claims of the Transvaal had not passed to Great Britain as the result of conquest.

THAT $4 BILL.

The debate on the new $4 bill in the nouse of commons last week gave the nembers an opportunity for a little the bill had on its face a picture of and suggested that the government might have selected some Canadian public work, as, for example, the Victoria bridge at Montreal, to which had given $500,000 to assist the Grand Trunk to carry trade to Portland. Mr. Fielding asserted in reply that it was a picture of the Canadian lock, with a C. P. R. steamer passing through. Col. Tisdale disputed Mr. Fielding's statement and said he knew ed on the bill was the American lock To prove it he produced one of the bills. The opportunity was too good to be lost, and the colonel was at once called upon to lay the document on the table. The speaker came to his rescue, however, and Mr. Wallace a diversion by enquir ing if the government would withdraw the bill from circulation. Mr. Fielding replied that they would consider the natter. Mr. Bennett, as a parting shot, suggested that the issue be limated to $10,000, which seemed to be the standard amount in the transactions of this government.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO S. A. HOME.

The Salvation Army Rescue and Ma-ternity home acknowledges with thanks the following donations for the month of March:

The Robertson Raft Company will build a 19,000,000 foot raft for shipment to Shanghai, Chian. This will be the largest ever built, and if it arrives at its destination in good shape will mean a small fortune to Captain Robertson. This last raft Captain Robertson thinks he will be able to get off about the middle of next year. It will take a 500 ton steamer to tow it and the trip, it is estimated, will occupy about 60 days. A vessel this size will be able to carry enough fuel for the trip, and the logs when they arrive at their destination will be worth about $30 a thousand feet. The cost of towing will be about $20,000, so you can see there will be an enormous profit in the undertaking.

When I think of it, the boy-spirit takes possession of me, and I want to get back to first principles—back to nature—back to the old days and the old delights. Do you remember the nook we called Grizzly Gulch? I have but to shut my eyes and I am there. The little brook ripples down, the branches of the birches and alders meet overhead until their leaves make a cooling gloom, and we are shut in from the world. Just a tiny thread of sunlight flickers on the little pool beside the big smooth stone where we sit. The birds sing in the branches over us, and windswayed leaves whisper wonderful tales in our ears. And out yonder are the fields, and the river, the cattle and sheep on the hillsides, the farmhouses, the winding roads, and, over all, the blue of the sky, barred by driftling threamers of summer cloud. I thought of it all this morning—and of the wigwam in the edge of the woods, where the odor of fir and pine trees fills the air, and the squirrels from a lofty perch peer quizzleally down at the dogs, and dare them to come up. Discovered After 6,000 Years.

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—Jewelry 2,000 years older than the oldest preserved by living man: jeweled bracelets of a queen who began to be forgotten 4,000 years before the Christian era, this is the find reported by Professor W. M. Flinders-Petrie in a letter received yesterday in this city by the secretary of the Amn. Exploration Society. The discovery was made at Abydos in one of the chambers of the tomb of King Zer. This monarch was the immediate successor of King Mena, who stands in the dim history of ancient Egypt as the founder, in 4,700 B. C. of the United Egyptian empire.

Course on Representative Churchmen.

On Sunday evening the Rev. J. do Soyres concluded his course upon "Representative Churchmen," dealing with the Evangelical party and the Keswick Movement. He described the influences at Oxford in 1841, when the intellectual and spiritual forces acting on young men were those of the Tractarians, led by Newman and Manning, and the school of Arnold and Whately. The Evangelicals at that time had lost their power for the time in the English church, and were only represented by eloquent preachers in many places.

When Harford-Battersby went to Balliol College, in 1841, he was greatly attracted by Newman's preaching at St. Mary's, to which he attributed throughout his life a great deepening of seriousness in the university, and by Archdeacon Manning (as he then was), who by one sermon on John xviil: 37, decided him to enter the ministry. He began his ministerial life as a High Churchman at Alverstoke, a suburb of Portsmouth, and labored for three years in that difficult sphere. Eut he found himspif gradually estranged from the sacramental teaching of his colleagues, and finally moved to Keswick, as curate to Frederick Myers, the author of a book once greatly read, entitled "Catholic Thoughts." Succeeding in a few years, on Myers' death, to the vicarage of Keswick, Mr. Harford-Battersby commenced a remarkable ministry. He realised the need of union in prayer and work, and while strictly loyal to the rules of the Angilcan church, embraced every opportunity of co-operating with other denominations, especially the Methodists and Plymouth Brethren, who were numercus in Cumberland.

He organized large union acetings for devotional purposes, which led at last to the Keswick conventions, meeting for a week each year in the poonth

FUNERALS YESTERDAY.

The funeral of the late John Douglas, whose remains were brought from Windsor, N. S., on Saturday, took place from the residence of Douglas McArthur on Paradise row yesterday afternoon. A large procession followed the remains to the place of interment in Fernhill. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Revs. Dr. Morison and Fraser, There were no pall-hearers.

The deceased was born in St. John in 1827, and took up his residence in Windsor, N. S., eighteen years ggo, where he has served several terms in the town council. He was at one time the Nova Scotia agent for Bureau Veritas, and inspected ships built or reclassed in that province.

FREDERICTON.

FREDERICTON, N. B., March 31.—
The well known legal firm of Black, Bliss & Nealis is in financial difficulties. This announcement has caused intense surprise, as the firm was generally supposed to be very prosperous and financially sound. The firm did a very large business, especialty in conveyancing and in handling money for sinvestors. Besides city and county business, they had important business connections at St. John, Halifax and in England. They were solicitors and agents for the Odell and Coster estates, and had large and influential clients. The clients will lose heavily, so report says, and it is rumored that heavy defalcations have taken place, extending over a period of several years. A few days ago John Black, senior member of the firm, gave J. D. Hazen, M. P. P., a bill of sale of his household effects for $1,200 to secure advances, and W. B. Chandler of Monoton holds similar security from Fred St. John Bliss, the other member of the firm. Hugh J. Nealis was only a nominal member of the firm. The Banks of British North America, Nova Scotia and Royal Bank of Canada lose heavily, the three being out to the extent of about $20,000. Black was secretary-treasurer of York county and Bliss was solicitor and handled the rents of the University of New Brunswick. It is stated that the accounts of both the county and university are correct and have not been tampered with.

It is impossible to ascertain exactly, or even approximately, the liabilities, correct and have not been tampered with.

It is impossible to ascertain exactly, or even approximately, the liabilities, but report places them at the vicinity of $40,000. The firm had invested quite heavily during the past two years in Yukon properties, which as yet have yielded no returns.

Mr. Bliss has been confined to his house for several days by illness and connot be seen. It is stated on his behalf that the deplorable condition of the firm's affairs was learned by him only a few weeks ago, as Black managed and controlled the financial part of the business. Short Story of the Day.

THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT.

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT."

Jack Waring was bashful, but it was a question if he was any more bashful than Ethel Talcott. They could not speak to each other on even the most trivial subjects without stammering and blushing, but Jack persisted in calling, despite the apparent disconfort his visit caused both. Everybody could see that he was desperately in love, and it was a saying among their friends that if Jack could ever summon up the courage to propose, Ethel would be too bashful to refuse him, whether she loved him or not. She had just come out at the beginning of the season, about the same time that Jack who had just graduated from college and entered his father's business, of which he was the prospective heir, first began to attract the attention of designing mothers and attractive daughters. Perhaps it was while avolding them that he met Ethel, who had found that there are ways of keeping out of sight when a ballroom was crowded with other girls who were enjoying themselves. Anyway, some common chord of sympathy made them embarrassed friends from their first meeting.

Although Jack was bashful he called

They could get along fairly well when there were others in the room with them, but when left to themselves they suffered. Unlike most courted rather than avoided the company of Biblet's little brother, Gus, and Jack soon became such friends with him that he felt called upon to remember his birthday. This he did by sending than an elaborate box of outleing blocks, which Gus dragged into the and insisted that the donor teach him how to build with them.

What shall I build? Jack asked.

"Build mie a big hotel like the one Ethel and I were at inst aummer."

Jack deedlestly draw his chair to the anythology of the control o ing up the two figures to make the change.

"Take care whom you're handling like that!" exclaimed Ethel, grasping him by the wrist and striving 60 pry his fingers' loose from her figure.

There was a struggle full of the abandon gayety of the nursery, to to which the blocks had brought them back far from the formalities and embarrassments of social life. Gus jumped into the struggle to help Jack, and in the general mix-up the hotel was wrecked worse than any house that was ever built on sand. The clatter brought them back to themselves again, but the nursery spirit remained with them. They once more had the trank fearlessness of children and could look one abother in the face without blushing.

"Now, you must build me something."

again, but the nursery spirit remained with them. They once more had the frank fearlessness of children and could look one another in the face without blushing.

"Now, you must build me something else, you two," whired Gus, over the ruins of his hotel.

For are hour they built and rebuilt all kinds of houses to the infinite delight of the boy, who watched and criticized. At least they disagreed about what should be built.

"Let's build a cottage," said Jack.
"No, let's build a church," said Ethel. "I want you to build both," said Gus. So, as there were plenty of blocks to build both, they started a race to see who could finish first. But it was a peculiar thing that Jack built with his left hand and Ethel with her right, while each leaned on the hand that was supposedly disengaged. But an observer tess interested in the building than Gus might had noticed that young people, whose faces were carefully averted.

"Jack's cottage is done first," cried flus, sprawling forward with his cardboard figures. "And here you both are going in the front gate."

"But we should go to the church before we go to the cottage," said Jack, gallantly. "Don't you thing so, Eth-gailantly. "Don't you thing so, Ethel?"

A gentle squeeze of the hand was the only response.

"Then it is settled," he exclaimed, in a trembling voice, glancing at the back of an averted head. "First to the church and then to my cottage."

Another pressure of assent.

Just what would have happened next, in spite of the presence of Gus, will never be known, for his mother, who had entered the room unnoticed, suddenly exclaimed:

"Well, bless my heart, is this a nursery? Bless you, my children."

They both sprang to their feet in confusion, but Jack still clung to Ethel's hand. Her mother looked from one to stammer:

"That's right, we want your bless." ammer: "That's right—we want your bless

"That's right—we want your blessing."

"Engaged!" exclaimed the mother.

"Well, I never. And that boy in the room all the time! Talk about bashful people!"

"Never mind that," said Jack, suddenly grown as bold as brass, as he planted his first kiss on Ethel's lips. "The question is, do we get the blessing?"

"You'll be able to tell better after you are married," said the mother, as she pushed them ahead of her toward the study, where her husband was sitting, pretending not to ovenhear.—P. M. Arthur, in the Ledger Monthly.

"Snubbed!" exclaimed Jack, having a boldness for his pasteboard representative that he never would have presumed to have for himself.

"But you don't know him yet. He's the checklest man on the beach, at heart;" and he moved his representative with his bow fit front of the midd with the parasol.

"And she's the haughtiest girl at the beach," said Ethel, as she again snubbed her cavaler.

"Try from behind the hotel where the hammock is and folks ain't lookin'," volunteered Gus.

"Great head!" exclaimed Jack, picking up the two figures to make the change.

Dr. Ray's subject in Coburg street church last evening was "Making Excuses." Gathering his thoughts from the 14th chapter of Luke, he showed wherein it is applicable to the business man, the man of property, and the man domestically inclined. Christ accepted none of these evuses in the carly man, the man of property, and the man domestically inclined. 'Christ accepted none of these excuses in the early days, nor does He today. If you want to find civilization go where the word of God has been taught. If you want to find an ideal home go where the spirit of Chaist enters into the family circle. Dr. Ray was attentively listened to by a large audience, his remarks being very interesting. By request Miss Murray sang "The Cloud Rift," the rendering of which proved very pleasing. This young singer will assist at the continued meetings every evening excepting Saturday during the week. All are invited.

PARKS' COTTON MILLS.

PARKS' COTTON MILLS.

PARKS' COTTON MILLS.

This afternoon the Common Council will probably have to deal with a petition asking the city to assist the Parks' cotton mills by a guarantee of bonds. The Telegraph of this morning says that the six aldermen comprising the by-law committee, discussed the matter Saturday afternoon, on the conclusion of other business, and that the majority favored the idea, and instructed the recorder to prepare a bill. This is not the Star's information. Some members of the committee had left the room before the matter was brought up. Those who remained did not deal with the proposition seriously. They had no authority to instruct the recorder to prepare a bill.

If Mr. Skinner has prepared a draft he has done it on the request of individual aldermen, who desired to have the case presented in that form, in order that it might be dealt with in a more practical way. Members of the council seem by the Star express a strong desire to retain the cotton industry, but do not see their way clear to support the proposition for a civic guarantee.

A small dynamo attached to the engine furnishes electric light for night work. It is expected that about fourteen thousand tons of hay will be pressed by the machine while here. Work will in all probability begin tonight.

He is not in any way violent, but seems determined to burn his clothing. By engaging him in coversation the jailers are enabled to keep him fairly quiet, but he has to be continuelly watched. As there is only one attendant in the jail his presence there causes much in convenience. Nothing in regard to his disposal has yet been done, but the jailer has not given up hope and expects that he will be removed some time this week.

DOING A GOOD WORK.

Never were the above lines sung witt greater fervor than by the motley as sembly in the Glad Tidings Hall of Saturday evening. not over ten years of age, and the whole-souled manner in which these ittle people, many of whom had, perhaps, very seldom seen the inside of a Sabbath school or church, until the Glad Tidings Mission was started, sung the words of this beautiful hymn, would immediately assure a listener of the value of the work being done. The occasion was the regular free Saturday night concert, and the capacity of the hall was taxed to the utmost to find room for the representatives of the varied classes of residents in that section of the city. But Rev. T. J. Deinstadt and his capable assistants were fully equal to the task. The concert opened with the singing by all present of the hymn from which the above lines are taken, after which Mr. Gardner, the superintendent, led in an appeal to the Almighty for guidance in their work, concluding with the Lord's prayer, in which all joined. That these concerts are thoroughly enjoyed by both young and old is fully proven by the manner in which they wince their pleasure. The programme on Saturday evening was a good one, as are all the programmes given at these concerts, and the attention accorded to the different performers shows both the respect commanded and freely given to the gentlemen in charge, and the desire of the audience to enjoy the various solos and readings as much as possible. No stamping of feet is allowed in the hall, nor, in fact, any method of applanding, except by the clapping of hands. And how those children did clap when any piece particularly pleased them. The performers, too, showed a willingness to oblige the audience, and often were compelled to respond to encores. Anyone who does not comprehend the good work that is being done by the Glad Tidings Mission need only attend one of these Saturday night concerts or the special evangelistic meetings held on

THE SIGN OF THE CROSS.

In the course of his sermon in the B. Kenrick said that to make the sign of the cross with recollection and devotion was to compress into one brief action many prayers and readings on the passion. The speaker concluded by pointing out its significance and helpfulness, as used on the forehead, the lips or the breast. He spoke also of the sign of the cross being made when saying the creed and receiving absolution and at other times. It was a holy and a blessed sign. Men might yell glory in it and fix their eyes upon it in prayer and make it fipon their persons, for it brought them near to Jesus and reminded them of His saving passion. He was their salvation and their only hope, and to His cross they must cling if they would be saved.

W. A. Erb and Mrs, Erb, formerly of Apohaqui, but who have been living in Chicago for the last ten years, arrived in St. John on Saturday and are spending a few days with relatives at 220 Duke street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Erb have many friends in St. John and Kings county, who are glad to welcome them home again from the west.
