Girls in Business

Having had many inquiries recently for an explanation as to the reason so many young women now-a-days hold positions of trust and management, not only in Government offices at Washington and elsewhere, but in private concerns of all kinds, and receive large salaries...

Carried out instructions

Every sailor has his story of the misadventures which landlubbers make over the names of things at sea, which always seems to be exactly the opposite of what they are on land.

The Girl on the Farm

The farmer's girl does not generally realize the advantages she has for self-improvement, over the society girl, or those situated in other positions of life. The freedom and independence of farm life afford opportunities for study which, if rightly employed, would develop our young girls into the professional women workers of our times.

Route of Hudson Bay Railway

The fact that the survey of the railway to be built to Hudson's Bay has now been practically completed, and that most of the engineers engaged in the survey have this week returned to civilization, has caused renewed interest to be taken in this scheme, which is destined to divert freight traffic from Montreal, and give a thousand miles of railway transit on cattle and grain shipped from Calgary and Edmonton to Liverpool.

Use Deadly Gas to Cure Ship of Rats

Rats by the bushel met death on board the Elder Dempster liner Borna at Quarantaine yesterday. So infested with rodents had the Mexican liner become that before loading any of the thirty-two thousand bushels of barley she is taking to Vera Cruz on this trip it was necessary to delay work for the day to exterminate them.

A Story of Granite in Britain

The unemployed in Great Britain have just had an object lesson, which may, to some extent, account for the defeat of Mr. Gibson Bowles, the Government candidate in Glasgow. It seems that granite is required for the contemplated naval docks at Rosyth. The contractor for the work has to undertake to pay trade union wages to the men he employs, and if he uses products of British industry in the construction of the docks, he is bound to deal only with such firms as pay wages to their employees on the same scale, whether the material is raw, manufactured, or only partly manufactured.

The Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. March

Hampton, March, 23.--The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. John March, was quietly celebrated Monday, March 22nd, at their home on Railway avenue, a number of recent deaths in the respective families of the celebrants, the critical illness of the widow of their eldest son, and special circumstances preventing the attendance of the family of their second son who resides in the United States, rendered a more pronounced demonstration impossible.

Are you Subject to Colds

Then don't load your stomach with cough syrups. Send healing medication through the nostrils--send it into the passages that are subject to colds and snoring. Easy to do this with Catarrh-o-ome, which cures a cold in ten minutes.

Which Foot Walks Faster

You may think this a very silly question to ask, but it isn't. If you will take a pavement that is clear, and walk briskly in the centre, you can find, before you have gone fifty yards, that you have veered very much to one side. You must not make any effort, of course, to keep in the centre; but if you will think of something, and endeavor to walk naturally, you will not be able to keep a correct line.

Take Father Morrissey's "No. 10" (Lung Tonic) And Be Sure

that it will cure your cough, cold or lung troubles. It is the very same medicine which the priest-physician himself prescribed so often and so successfully during his lifetime, and thousands are the cases it has cured.

Take it—or give it to the children—with confidence, because it is absolutely free from opium, morphine or any other harmful drug. Many cough medicines are loaded with these dangerous ingredients, but Father Morrissey would not use anything that was not perfectly safe even for a baby.

"No. 10" contains nothing but Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams—combined as only Father Morrissey knew how to combine them. Keep a bottle in the house as a safeguard against all troubles of throat and lungs. Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c.

AT THE OPERA

By James Douglas

I am a snob. I am an innocent. I am easily taken in by myself and by other people's emotions. I can enjoy the most preposterous nonsense and the most ridiculous humbug. Vainly I struggle against my innate or veytionalty. Hopelessly I strive to conquer my ingrained Philistinism. It is useless. I am a simple soul, addicted to platitudes and inured to commonplace. I am utterly unable to see through the shams of life. I am duped by everything and everybody. I am as trustful as a child and as credulous as a heathen. I bow down to wood and stone every day of my life.

For instance, I know I ought to despise the opera. My best friends despise it, and then try to teach me to look down with lofty contempt on its infantile follies and banal peculiarities. They implore me to regard it as one of the shams of society. They beg me to boycott it in the name of art and in the name of democracy. I smile feebly at their entreaties, and I weakly protest that I like the opera. It amuses me. It is all they say it is no doubt, but its grace and its glamor and its glitter and its garnishment delight my foolish eyes. I fear I cannot sneer well. I am a native of Vanity Fair, and I cannot tune my fiddle to the high pitch of Tolstoi. I cannot soar to the moral altitudes of Shaw.

The other night I went to see Tetraxini, in Traviata or Traviata in Tetraxini. We were four, two brave men and two fair women. We were in a box in the pitier. Now let me say candidly that when I go to the opera I am a snob. It is the only frame of mind which enables you to enjoy the opera. The charm of sitting in a box at the opera is due entirely to your conscious superiority to your neighbors. You can indulge in the luxury of believing they believe in your person of importance. You can gloat over their envious glance and their reverent regard. You are magnificent by position. The man who opens the box for you treats you as if you were an American millionaire or a German princelet or an Italian count. Being a very humble and obscure person, this illicit pride fills me with a secret ecstasy. I begin to wish I had been born great. I assure myself that I should have cut a fine dash as a king or a grand duke. It is easy to dramatize yourself when you are in the right place among the right people. I like to look across the stalls at the other great ones in the other boxes. Perhaps they are the genuine article. Perhaps their blood is blue. Perhaps they came over with the Conqueror. Perhaps they nobnob with Burke and play bridge with DeBrett. Even if they are like myself, they do not look like me. They have the air or aristocracy. Whether they have any right to it does not matter.

What about Tetraxini? Have I forgotten her? Bless my soul, I fear I had. But let me pull myself together. I must pretend to know Traviata by heart. I must assume familiarity with every tone of the music. For you see, I am a musical snob. I should be ashamed to admit that I do not know a word of Italian.

I should blush to own that I am unmoved by the anguish of Tetraxini, or the agony of Alfredo and his admirable father. I, therefore, pump up my emotions and stir up my admiration. I conceal my secret conviction that my supper party is dull. I stifle my amazement at the robust vigor of the dying soprano. I choke my vulgar sense of humor and my low instinct of derision. Ah, how pathetic it all is! How natural! How realistic!

But my transports of counterfeit rapture are frozen by the cynical brutality of my friend. Our pet name for him is the Butterfly, but he is a butterfly with a sting. He is a hybrid butterfly, a cross between a butterfly and a wasp. He laughs at Alfredo. "What a getup!" he whispers. "Shame!" I retort. "A most romantic costume."

The butterfly sneers. "He looks like a Byronian Lara got up for riding rabbits!" I abuse the Butterfly, I tell him he has no imagination. I pity him. But he is obdurate. He even mocks at the ballet. He avows his preference for the Alhambra and the Empire. He sighs for five minutes of Guerrero, or two minutes of Dorgere.

You are sound-deaf and music-blind, I cry. "I am," he replies. "I hate music. It bores me to death. Why should I pretend to like what I dislike?" You perceive that the Butterfly is also a snob. He is ashamed to play the game of pretence. He is afraid to adopt the taste of others. He revels in his own defects. He glories in being impervious to the vocal gymnastics of Tetraxini. Now I like to watch her throwing notes up to the roof one after the other until the air is glittering with beautiful noises. I can see the notes chasing each other like swallows, darting and curving and circling and swooping. She is like a juggler who tosses colored chubs into the air. I do not know what is the meaning of the dancing sounds, but I amuse myself matching them with moods.

Whether I make the moods for the music or whether the music makes the moods for me is a matter of no moment. It is pleasant to be gay and amorous, and wistful and tender, and sorrowful and despairing and brokenhearted by turns.

Then the audience is very nice to look at. And between the acts it is jolly to listen to the subdued murmur of voices. It is silky and soft like the wash of the waves or the froth from the leaves. The voices are the cultivated voices of the wellbred people. They blend like the instruments of the orchestra. The sharp sword of a violin cuts into the low susurus as the lights are lowered. The glowing riot of color dissolves into shadowy vagueness, broken here and there by a white shoulder or a glowing lira. I like the twilight of the gods. It is as delicate as a sunset. Why should we refuse to appreciate the light of Nature? The opera, after all, is as real as moonshine, for it is a phase of the life we live.—London Leader.

Wisdom of the Ancients

Man's genius is a deity.—Heraclitus.

More worship the rising than the setting sun.—Pompey.

It is not places that grace men but men the places.—Agesilaus.

A fair exterior is a silent recommendation.—Publius Syrus.

There is no sound more pleasing than praise of one's self.—Xenophon.

They that do not prevent crimes when they might, encourage them.—Cato.

I have never repented that I held my tongue but often that I spoke.—Simonides.

The way to the realm of the dead is easy; one can go there with his eyes shut.—Bion.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

I would rather have a man that lacks money than have money that lacks a man.—Theophrastus.

Of all speeches none is so dishonorable for a general as "I should not have thought of it."—Iphicrates.

Thou wilt find rest from vain fancies if thou doest every act in life as if it were thy last. Marcus Aurelius.

What is gained by philosophy? To do without being commanded what others do from fear of the laws.—Epictetus.

Any one thing in the creation is sufficient to demonstrate a providence to a humble and graceful mind.—Epictetus.

I had rather excel others in the knowledge of what is excellent than in the extent of my power and dominion.—Alexander the Great.

Man's felicity consists not in the outward add visible favors and blessings of fortune but in the inward and unseen perfections of the mind.—Anarcharsis.

LUNG TROUBLE

Promptly relieved and permanently cured by inhaling Catarrhazone

Mrs. Biny Brown of Tennessee, N. S., was cured by Catarrhazone of lung trouble and catarrh after hundreds of other remedies failed.

If your lungs are weak: if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhazone. It is especially adapted for these diseases and cures every time.

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but, after restoring without benefit to poultices and numerous other remedies, she tried Catarrhazone.

"I used Catarrhazone Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour and soon recognized that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhazone seemed to go just—here it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold or catarrh can exist if Catarrhazone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhazone. By means of the Inhaler the local symptoms such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrous tablets, which are taken after each meal, purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhazone.

Complete outfit costs $1. Small size, 50c. At Druggists, or N. C. Pabon & Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Move off a Cold

Cough mixture "dope" a cold—but don't cure. Above all else, keep the bowels regular and stimulate the eliminative organs. More valuable than any cough syrup are Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They clear the system of every trace of cold—the dull headache, aching limbs, and cough disappears. Take the pills before retiring, they work while you sleep, and by morning your cold is broken and passes quickly away. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills in 25c. boxes.

Drugs Used by Famous Authors

Erratic indeed are the ways of genius—ways which have often resulted in pitiful endings, particularly in the case of men whose works are to be found amongst the world's standard literature. Take the case of Edgar Allan Poe, for instance, the centenary of whose birth was recently celebrated. Poe was the son of a man of whose habits seem to have descended from father to son. Before he reached the age of thirty the intemperance of the famous poet, critic, and romancer had cost him several lucrative appointments; and to his fondness for brandy—for that was the intoxicant for which he had the greatest weakness—he added a passion for opium.

In fairness to Poe's memory, however, it should be added that he was intemperate only at intervals. He strove hard to break himself of the drink and drug habit, but periods of sobriety were interspersed with fits of reckless indulgence and months of poverty.

Ten Wine-glasses of Laudanum
Poe reminds one very much of Thomas DeQuincey, whose devotion to opium contributed in no small degree to his notorious eccentricity and dreaminess. He had acquired the habit first in 1804, when he resorted to laudanum to cure an attack of neuralgia, and to such an extent did it grow upon him that he was known to take at times as much as 12,000 drops, or about ten wine-glasses, a day. He was constantly struggling to reduce his appalling quantity, and managed after a while to keep himself within moderate bounds, with occasional opium debauches.

Amongst DeQuincey's eccentricities, by the way, it might be mentioned that he was haunted by an idea that he was being pursued by his various and no doubt much-tired landladies.

Another man whose works are to be found amongst the classics, and who contracted the habit of eating opium, was Samuel Taylor Coleridge, the poet and philosopher, who tired so many avocations before he discovered his forte. In his early youth he apprenticed himself to a cobbler; and about eighteen years before his death, even after his writings had secured for him world-wide fame, he actually conceived the idea of becoming a Unitarian minister. Afterwards he worked as a journalist for the Morning Post, and ultimately returned to his old love, poetry and philosophy.

The "Kendal Black Drop."
It was when Coleridge was about thirty that he came under the influence of what was henceforward to be the curse of his life. His health had never been robust; rheumatism and neuralgia had tortured him; and, by becoming his own doctor, he had recourse to the anodyne of opium. Little by little the habit grew, and the "Kendal black drop" at length enslaved him. It injured his constitution and dulled his imagination; it enfeebled his will and went far to destroy his sense of truth and honor. Few things are so pathetic as his own lament over the deterioration of his nature, in his "Dejection, an Ode."

Thomas Shadwell, a dramatic writer of some note in the seventeenth century, died through an overdose of laudanum, while Walter Savage Landor was said to be addicted to the use of it. Lord Byron's exile was less a result of his excessive relief for shattered nerves in doses of morphia, and Sheridan indulged in the same habit.

Killed by Coffee Drinking
Richard Savage, who claimed to be the illegitimate child of Lord Rivers and Countess Macclesfield, ruined himself by dissipation, after producing works which have placed him amongst minor English poets, while Dryden's eccentricity took the form of having himself flogged at frequent intervals and eating raw meat. The latter, he said, strengthened his imagination.

Both Dumas and Balzac showed no inclination to gass the wine bottle. On the other hand, Voltaire drank huge quantities of coffee when engaged in writing. As a matter of fact, over-indulgence in that beverage during a protracted literary effort was the real cause of his death. Schiller also drank coffee to thaw the frost out of his wit, but he fancied himself bibbing the infusion while seated with his feet in hot water. This, he believed, stimulated his imagination in sluggish moods, and he refreshed it during work by copious draughts from a flask of Rhenish wine.

TEACHER, PARENT AND CHILD
 When the parents have started the five-year-old boy off to school on some fine morning in September, often, as we so frequently hear, "to get him out of the way," the entire responsibility of his intellectual development is given over to the teacher. The latter is expected to take full charge of this little bundle of activities, overcome all the bad habits already formed, counteract all the wrong influences of the home and street, and store his mind with golden knowledge, in order that he may be able to make an "easy living" when he goes forth into the grand struggle for money, place and power.
 We do not mean to imply that every home develops wrong habits during the first five years of the child's life, or that every child comes in contact with harmful influences at home and on the street during the time that he is getting his school education. We have seen homes that approached the ideal. In such homes, those first five years were not passed without some effort on the part of the parents to arouse the interest of the child in things that are good, beautiful and elevating; to train his observation; to impart some idea of the aim of the school life that was soon to follow; and to implant a desire to be a good, honest and industrious man, when the little fellow should arrive at the stage of manhood.
 That some of the greatest men that ever lived hardly knew the looks of the inside of a school house goes to prove conclusively that education is not a matter that is entirely dependent upon a long school training. Lincoln did not attend school two years; Franklin not a great deal longer. Joseph Howe enjoyed the privileges of four or five summers at a very inferior school. The education that these men received was the very best kind. It was the result of a strong desire. From this we learn a valuable lesson—desire is the first requisite. Without that, little will be accomplished, no matter how long the period of school life, or how well equipped the school.
 Is that desire an inborn characteristic or can it be developed? By whom can it be best developed? Where? At home or at school?
 A good teacher never ceases to be a student; neither does a good parent. Teachers should study books, and study Nature, and study the Child. Surely the parent should also. They haven't the time? There have all the time there is. Men who make the plea that they haven't the time, have time to read of the suicides, murders, scandals, political blunders, etc., contained in many of the daily papers. There is time for all these things; but no time to study; no time to observe the tendencies and characteristics of their children; no time to thoughtfully guide them to a realization of the great benefits of education; no time to take an interest in their games, their stories of play and school; no time to encourage them to be respectful and obedient to their teachers; no time to arouse their ambition to keep pace with their comrades; no time to lead them to value Truth and Honor above all other considerations of life. As we suggested above, this definition does not apply to all parents; but it applies to far too many.

 April First!
 Now catch April fish!
 Went out like a lamb—cold roast lamb.
 Apparently the boss of the job is monarch of all he surveys.
 About the surest thing in prospect for next year is the same board of aldermen.
 Women never feel really well acquainted until they have had a good cry together.
 The hens have commenced business again, but prices continue at the non-laying basis.
 "Crushing reply." Standard. "A lame defence." Telegraph. St. John papers on Provincial Sec'y. Flemming's speech.
 This year the ladies' spring hats are of a true beehive pattern. By swarming time these hats will be out of fashion, and therefore available for housing the bees!—Rural World, London.
 The month of March has gone into the records of the eternal procession of the seasons as something quite unique. Conditions for lumbering good, no bad storms, good hauling, very little cold weather and prospects of the frost coming out rapidly, and spring ahead of the regular schedule.
 Industry is not "working" for somebody and then going home at night with folded hands. It is doing "on the side" in spare moments the work that will fit one for life later on. Try it in faith. The dark places will disappear as the years pass, and later on you will look back and say: "I made the right choice, when I was twenty—I can see it now in the result."—Minneapolis Journal.
 A reverend gentleman writes to the Citizen protesting that the editor of an undenominational daily has no business to express opinions on theological subjects. And yet not a week goes by that that reverend gentleman does not arrogate to themselves the right to express opinions on political and other public questions with the greatest freedom and assurance. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways.—Citizen, Ottawa.
 Mrs. Gaybird burst into the village postoffice all out of breath.
 "Anything for me?" she asked in anxious tone.
 The postmaster shook his head.
 "Nothing," he said.
 "Good gracious," exclaimed Mrs. Gaybird, "I was expecting a letter from my husband as to when he was coming home."
 "What, I'll ask Mirandy," said the old man. And he called to his wife in the kitchen: "Say, Mrs. Gaybird's called to know if there's any mail—see she's lookin' for a letter or something from her husband as to when he's comin' back. Is there anything for her?"
 "Yes, there is," called back the postmistress. "He says he'll be to home this comin' Friday."—New York Times.
 A correspondent writes to a Pacific contemporary an amusing extract of wit which he recently heard in a railway carriage on a journey between Compiegne and Reims. There were several passengers. One believed himself to possess a fund of humor which he intended to expend on a priest who got in at one of the intermediate stations. Bestowing a patronizing look on the clergyman he said: "Have you heard the news, Monsieur le curé?" "No, my friend, I have been out all day and have not had time to glance at the papers. Then said the traveller, "It is something dreadful; the devil is dead." Indeed, replied the ecclesiastic without the smallest surprise or displeasure. Then seeming deeply touched he added: "However, I have always taken the greatest interest in orphans. Will you accept these two sons?" The wit, we are told, retired as gracefully and as quickly as he was able.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The N. B. Southern train was detained two hours by snow, Wednesday, at Spruce Lake.

There seems to be a demand for tenement houses in town, with a limited supply. Suitable rents are very scarce.

R. C. Hanson has been appointed school inspector for Sunbury, Queens, and part of York. He is a native of Bocabec, Charlotte County.

Dr. Taylor has introduced a bill to exempt the Maritime S. S. Company from municipal taxation, for a period not exceeding fifteen years.

One ton of coal will go as far as a ton-and-half if you keep a quantity of chalk at the back of your grate. It is incombustible, and throws out terrific heat.

An Eastport young man, A. H. Damon, has recently become into considerable of a fortune through the will of a friend, Mrs. Caroline W. Parker, widow of the late Dr. Rupert W. Parker, of Hingham, Mass.—Sentinel.

At a recent meeting of the Maine Mercantile Co. at Eastport, officers were elected for the ensuing year. It was voted to advance the price of sardines fifteen cents a case, the advance to take effect March 30.

The Dramatic Club, in connection with the Real Granite Division will appear before the public during Easter week with the play "Millie the Quondam." The proceeds will be given to the building fund of St. Marks church.

Arthur E. Griffin was fined $301 by Judge Hill at Portland last Saturday for having in his possession 301 short lobsters. The attorney for Griffin appealed and he gave $500 bonds for his appearance at the May term of the Superior court.

Bustace Church has been appointed police magistrate of the town of Milltown, with civil jurisdiction, in succession to J. W. Richardson, resigned. G. Herbert Lamb has been appointed a member of and chairman of the board of health for the town of St. Andrews, in place of G. K. Greenlaw, resigned.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Deer Island and Campobello Steamboat Co. was held Monday afternoon. The old board of directors was re-elected as follows: Jos. McVay, W. A. McVay, F. R. Rose, F. Todd, H. E. Hill, H. F. Barpee and A. I. Teed. The annual meeting of the directors will be held at a later date.—Courier.

It is expected that the new hotel will be opened for guests about May, 1st. M. B. Frauley, the owner, will have it first class in all its appointments. The lessee, Mr. Lawrence Murray has already had enquiries from parties as to hotel accommodation for the summer. Mr. Murray is acquainted with the needs of the public, and will make a pleasant and obliging landlord and will spare no pains in securing the comfort of his guests.

An act in aid of the Canadian Antimony Company, Limited, has been presented to the legislature. The Company ask that no royalty be imposed upon the antimony mined from their properties at Lake George for a period of twenty years. The exemption is made upon the condition that the company install a smelter and reduction works together with a complete mining equipment, and that fifty thousand dollars is expended in developing the work within one year of the passing of the act, and that the annual outlay for labor, material and supplies be not less than sixty thousand dollars.

After the first of April any dealer who sells any prepared medicine without the formula of the preparation on the label, the registered number of the preparation or a stamp on the package to show that the medicine was manufactured before the act came into force, will be subject to a fine. The result is that every dealer has to secure a great number of stamps from the inland revenue department at two cents a hundred, and stick them on all the packages of medicine to be taken internally, which have not a registered number or the formula on the label. The wholesale houses have already combined with the regulation and the goods being sent out now bear the government stamp. The retailers are still at work getting their stock labeled. It is necessary for each druggist and dealer to take stock and send a list to the inland revenue department when the requisite stamps are supplied.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

A meeting of the Fishermen's Union will be held in Courts hall, April, 2nd.

The new horse added to Rankine McLarty's fine string, is all right and one of the good "uns."

We understand that the act relating to truancy is to be enforced by the Council. This will be a step in the right direction as a very large number of children are not attending school.

The Armstrong bridge was washed out during the heavy rain Sunday. Dr. Taylor M. P. P., notified the Public Works Dept. and steps will be taken at once to make necessary repairs.

Malted clams, the latest sea food product, are to be manufactured at Eastport. The Kerr Malted Clam Co., have leased a factory and will put up this palatable sea food for Armour & Co. of Chicago.

Trouble is being experienced with the sewers in some places. The pipes not being low enough have frozen, causing the water to run over the streets, making gulleys, which make dangerous walking, especially at night.

The financial return of the town of St. George shows a total valuation of $273,400, the rate of taxation being $1.52. The outstanding debentures amount to $,000. A note for $1,700 was given last year. Against these liabilities the town's assets are placed at $11,584.22.

E. M. Lawrence of Lubec, has been granted, it is said, a patent on a flaking machine, to be used in connection with the manufacture of sardines. Mr. Lawrence's is reported a great improvement over the present slow and laborious hand method.

The E. A. Holmes Packing Co. will make considerable alteration in their large plant during the present spring, one of the chief improvements to be the installing of a new and larger boiler, made necessary by their rapidly increasing business.—Eastport Sentinel.

Resolved: That a lawyer is justified in defending his client, having knowledge of his guilt. This question was before the Debating Club Monday evening, and was decided in favor of the affirmative side, led by A. C. Tov, who had as supporters Rev. H. J. Lynds, Dr. Taylor, H. K. Lawrence, H. McKenzie and T. R. Kent. Leo McGrattan who championed the Negative side, was seconded by Dr. Alexander, K. B. Wathan, S. L. Linnott and T. McIntyre. Edward McGrattan, officiated as judge.

Things were lively in the vicinity of the Chinese laundry, Saturday night. Driven to desperation by constant annoyance the proprietor of the establishment charged on the crowd with a club, which he welded with telling effect on innocent and guilty alike and in return was hit in the face by a stone. Hostilities were suspended on the arrival of the Marshal. If let alone the Celestial is a harmless creature, but the aim of his tormentors seems to be to get him angry, and he is then a lunatic. The Marshal has taken the case in hand and in future will enforce order in this rather risky section of the town.

The manager of the lumbering concern at L'Etang went to St. John some days ago to get funds for payment of bills contracted here. He has not returned, and the impression among his creditors seems to be that he has flown to the "land of the free." About twenty men were employed on the job, and have not been paid. Storekeepers in town, who furnished supplies have not had any returns. Quite an amount of manufactured lumber is on the ground, also a lot of logs. It is reported that parties in St. John are responsible for the bills, and an effort will be made to enforce payment.

St. Andrews Beacon: Hon. Wm. Patterson, Minister of Customs, after listening to an appeal on behalf of St. Andrews, on Thursday last, stated that he would have pleasure in restoring it to its former status as a customs port, the change to take effect April 1, 1909. He issued instructions that the outposts of West Isles, Campobello, North Head and Grand Harbor, be attached to St. Andrews. These outposts, together with St. Andrews, have formed part of St. Stephen port since 1897. Mr. Patterson told Mr. Todd and the gentlemen from St. Andrews who presented the matter to him, that he was glad to hear that there was a possibility of more prosperous times for this port. If its restoration to its former status would contribute in any degree to its prestige or advancement he would gladly grant this boon.

In the Home

We are not angels; we are only men and women, and we share the imperfection of manhood. We are not perfect apples; we are speckled apples—all of us. We do not care how deep and sweet and tender and accordant love may render the whole life, it cannot but happen that in the close contract in the every day openness and disclosures of the home, our bad points will come out. No family is made up of perfectly straight sticks, but crooked ones. And when they are piled together in the closeness of home life the crookedness will appear. The man and the woman married most utterly, married along the whole line of their natures, must yet find some point where there is not complete contact. There is dissimilarity of education. Before musicians can pour forth perfect harmony they must bring their instruments into perfect tune. Before two hearts can perfectly strike together, they must be keyed to the same note, that cannot be altogether done before marriage. The exact self does not appear in courtship. It is the best self, the self dressed in the best ward-robe of manners and the sentiment and sacrifice, that appears then. After marriage the self puts on its common habits for what it is. Then each real self must adjust itself to each real self; the must each bear and forbear, then must any incompatibility be met and mastered by mutual charity which suffereth long and is kind, which never faileth.

A falling tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the Heart its pulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or falling Stomach, Heart or Kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt, clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days, soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by all dealers.

Visit of King Edward the Peace Maker

While Great Britain is being roused by a play representing a German invasion, and while the two countries are feverishly building Dreadnoughts at a great rate, King Edward has made a state visit to Berlin that is taken by all the newspapers as intended to promote peace and good-will, and to show all the world that Germany and Great Britain are fast friends. The editorials that treat of the peace visit seize the opportunity to rehearse the British grievances against England. The British press hope Germany will calm its fears of being "isolated" or "hemmed in," but the London Times, in its peace editorial, warns the Germans to take notice that while the Powers have no desire to isolate Germany, they are also resolved to prevent her from isolating any one, or of "claiming hegemony." The other Powers are determined to prevent this as threatening the peace of Europe. The Pall Mall Gazette (London) thinks that no royal visits can lessen two dangers which threaten England, "the persistent and unjustifiable increase of German naval armaments" and Germany's "restless nervousness and querulousness" when she observes Great Britain's relations with the other Powers.

Added to Peace Changes

The point of view taken by the laboring and proletarian classes is best expressed in Lloyd's Weekly News (London), in which occurs the following comment:

"With a firm foundation of personal regard and friendship to build upon, King Edward and the Kaiser will, one may hope, add something to the chances of that peace we believe both so earnestly desire.

Germany, even more than Great Britain, is in need of easement of the financial strain of preparedness for war. We need as much as Germany opportunity for industrial and social legislation and diplomacy. And the King's visit will undoubtedly do something to make these things possible.

The way in which the German Government regards the visit is plainly set forth in the Norddeutsche Zeitung (Berlin), the official organ of Prince von Auelow. Indeed, we seem to hear the voice of the astute and eloquent Chancellor himself when we read in its comment on the visit of the King and Queen to Berlin that "there is no sentimentality in politics, and that a patriotic policy is that which a state adopts in pursuing such political course as best serves its own interests. It is on this line, and on this line only, that in a friendly state of relations between two peoples lies the best security for the general peace. As there are now, no actual political misunderstandings, whether general or particular, between the two governments, both nations may indulge sincere and tranquil satisfaction over the happy auspices with which the royal visit takes place.

Spoken Well and Truly

The Standard (London) thinks the Chancellor has spoken through his mouthpiece well and truly, and that while the main importance of the visit lies in its "purpose of proclaiming to the world the good relations existing between the government and people of Great Britain and Germany, at the same time the two countries are really competing with each other in the building of war-vessels. To quote further:

"There is no excuse on either side for imputing a sinister method or mischievous counsels to the other. But there is—nor will any good be done by disguising it—a fundamental reason why mutual understanding cannot at once ripen into friendship. No advantage is to be gained by ignoring the fact that Germany is building year by year, against the British Navy. We do not call on our neighbors to halt in their preparations—that would be a casus belli, and this country, from mere motives of strategic policy, will never provoke a war. Again, we do not complain because the annual charge on the estimates has to amount steadily upward. That would be unmanly. On the contrary, we accept the situation.

Don't Cough! It's Dangerous!

"Father Morricey's No. 10" will stop the Cough and Cure the Cold

Are you one of those who say, "O, it's only a little cold," and let the cough hang on, doing nothing for it? If you are, just think a minute. It is true that most colds, if left to themselves, will leave you after a while—but they leave you with the delicate lining of throat and lungs weakened—an easy prey to the next cold. Every cold you neglect makes it easier to catch the next one, and harder to get rid of it, and it doesn't take many such colds to give you Catarrh or some serious lung trouble.

"Father Morricey's No. 10"—Cough Cure and Lung Tonic—is a preparation of roots, herbs and Balsams that will prevent all this. It promptly clears away the mucus, removes the irritation and inflammation that causes the coughing, and heals and strengthens the delicate membranes. Besides, it tones up the whole system and gives you strength to resist the next attack.

Trial bottle, 5c. Regular size, 50c. At your druggist's, or from Father Morricey Medicine Co., Ltd., Clatham, N. B.

Acts of Polley

The other German papers do not by any means confine themselves to the diplomatic commonplace of the official Norddeutsche Zeitung, and the Kaiser's favorite Berlin daily, the Tagblatt observes that "the acts of England's policy in the future will contribute more to dispel distrust than any fine words now spoken on either side. It would be folly to expect that "the Germanophobes of Great Britain will immediately be put to silence by the reception of the royal visitors," remarks the Conservative Berliner Neueste Zeitung. All the efforts made by Germany to produce friendly relations with England, bitterly exclaims the Deutsche Tageszeitung (Berlin), remain and are likely to remain, as they have ever remained, unsuccessful. The Reichsbote (Berlin) speaks more specifically when it says, "We cannot get over the fact that the mustering of a formidable fleet in the North fails to make a peaceable impression on Germany.

In a far more just and judicial tone the Vossische Zeitung (Berlin) observes, in discussing the significance of the royal visit:

"Attractive as would be the prospect of a complete understanding between Germany and England. It would be silly to mistake aspirations for facts. For a long time utterances have reached us from England which aroused no very agreeable feeling Germany. For months Germany has been the butt of malicious attacks in the press, the policy of Germany has been criticized with mean suspiciousness and this especially since the rise of the Balkan imbroglio. The presence of the King of England in Berlin may tend to dissipate the clouds of misunderstanding but this fact would strike us as a little more credible if the announcement and chronicle of the visit had been made with greater enthusiasm by the British press.

Fortify now against the Grip—for it comes every season sure! Preventive—the little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—offer in this respect a most certain and dependable safeguard. Preventives, at the "sneeze stage" will, as well, also surely head off all common colds. But promptness is all-important. Keep Preventives in the pocket or purse, for instant use. Box of 48 for 25c. Sold by all dealers.

The Woman who Gives Advice

She is a very wearisome woman the one who gives advice.

She does not wait until you ask for it or she thinks you need it.

She has it in store, and if you happen along, she pours it out on you.

It usually happens, too, that she pours it more freely when you can't use it, don't want it, wouldn't have it, and wish she would keep still.

She has sharp eyes as a rule. They are not bright and pretty, but restless little beads, that look as if they were threatened with a pin point, which pricks at every glance.

If she looks, it is to criticize; if she listens, it is to suggest; if she speaks it is to relate her experience and explain her way.

You would meekly suggest that you always would like to come by your knowledge from experience; but she seems to be doubtful if so unimportant an individual will ever have any of the happenings that touch.

She means well, oh, bless her, yes, but she is very "wearing" to mortals who come in her way, and have mislaid their wings.

WUJING SLEEP.

A Prescription That Worked Well in Philadelphia.

A haggard looking man strolled into a downtown drug store the other day and asked the druggist for help. He said he had trouble in getting to sleep when he retired. No matter how sleepy he might be during the day or how much sleep he might have lost, the moment his head touched the pillow he would awake and lay thus for several hours. Once asleep he was very hard to waken, but he had to be up at a certain hour, and in consequence of his peculiar affliction he was losing more sleep than he could stand. The druggist regarded him quizzically a few moments and then replied:

"My dear man, you don't want medicine. What you want is something to change the trend of your thoughts. Do as a friend of mine did. He was troubled the same way and found that the old folks' plan of imagining sheep passing a barrier and counting them was out of date, so he began trying to name all the states in the Union. He soon got them so he could classify them alphabetically. Then, when they no longer interested him, he started on the counties of his state. He now has them at his tongue's end, classified up to the fourth letter. Now he is starting on state capitals and their locations. Then he will take up county seats. A moment's glance at an atlas during the day shows him when he is wrong, and the beauty of the plan is that he rarely has to think along these lines longer than ten minutes before he is sound asleep. To make it short, the study of geography is a good narcotic."

A BOY HUNT.

Chased From Hedge to Hedge by a Big Pack of Weasels.

The following extract from an interesting book may be of interest to our friends. It is "From My Life as an Angler," by William Henderson, published in London in 1870.

"About this time, while rambling in the picturesque lane leading from Merinton to Winstone with two other boys, an adventure occurred sufficiently startling to two little fellows from nine to ten years old. We were busily engaged in picking wild strawberries, which clustered in the hedgerows, when we saw at about a hundred yards distance a pack of at least twenty weasels running from hedge to hedge and evidently scenting out foot-steps. It flashed upon us that we were being hunted. So, springing over the nearest hedge, we ran across a pasture field and, standing upon the farther bank, looked back toward our assailants. To our dismay we saw the whole pack, with noses to ground, steadily tracking our course. The word was given, 'Run, run!' and off we scampered across another field to take up our position on another hedge. Still the pursuit was going on, and the creatures were evidently gaining upon us, so with a wild shout we fled to the village, which, happily for us, was not far off. I have frequently heard of persons being attacked by weasels, but was never hunted by them on any other occasion."

"The above must have occurred about the locality being the north of and Forest and Stream.

Shooting the Steenbuck.

Many of the poor Boers in the Transvaal by whom all the shooting that is done is for the pot and not for sport, have perfected a system of shooting with the assistance of oxen. A steenbuck has no fear of cattle and will lie still even if they graze right up to him. The hunter gets together a few cattle and with his gun walks behind them in such a way that he cannot be seen from the front. Great care has to be exercised to drive the oxen so that they may seem to be grazing naturally. The hunter must be ready to shoot without having to alter his position. The slightest movement is noticed by the buck.

Peculiarities of Long Island.

The class in geography in one of the Brooklyn schools was asked by the teacher, "What are some of the peculiarities of Long Island?"

The pupils tried to think, and, after awhile, a boy raised his hand.

"I know," said he.

"Well, what are they?" asked the teacher.

"Why," said the boy, with a triumphant look, "on the south side you see the sea and on the north side you hear the sound."

Fatalism Exemplified.

She—I hope, dear, that you are not going to worry about my exceeding my allowance this time.

He (brightening up)—You don't mean to tell me, dearest, that there isn't any necessity for it?

"Certainly not. What's the use of worrying about something you can't help?"

The Fleck She Lost.

"You're not looking well, Mrs. Giles. Surely you have lost a lot of flesh lately, have you not?"

"I have that. I've lost my husband. He weighed nineteen at 'em when he died."—London Telegraph.

Modern Modesty.

"You say a modest woman. Just what do you mean by that?"

"Well, a woman who costs her husband less than $2,500 a year is modest as prices go."

Times Change.

Mrs. Benham—You used to say that you would give your life for me. Ben-

THE PENGUIN.

Comically Serious in Mating—Its Wicked Flippers.

It is probable that penguins pair for life, although nothing definite is known on the subject. When mates are chosen the process is as interesting as it is striking. As in the case with so many creatures, the males fight with each other for the females, might being right in the penguin code. The birds have regular fighting places, and on such battleground was found under an overhanging ledge. The results of innumerable encounters were present in the shape of great quantities of loose feathers surrounding the little fighting ring, which itself was clear of all debris. Although the beak of a penguin is so formidable a weapon when used on thin skinned enemies, yet their own skin and blubber are so resistant that they can inflict no injury by it means. The customary mode of fighting is really a kind of boxing, or "flipping," it might be called. The two combatants proceed to the fighting place and then walk cautiously about each other, jockeying for an opening and ready to take instant advantage of a false step or move on the part of the opponent. All, however, is solemn and decorous, consistent with the rest of the life of these strange little beings.

When at last each secures a good grip on the neck or body of the opponent the real fighting begins. As elements of the life of penguins spent on the open sea, where they pursue and capture fish, swimming with great swiftness by strokes of the flipperlike wings, it can well be imagined that the strength of their wings is very great, and when the two fighters begin to labor each other with rapidly vibrating flipper strokes each resounding whack must make a considerable impression even on the protecting coat of blubber fat. No one has ever recorded the finish of such an encounter, but it is not probable that they result fatally. The weaker of the two must soon succumb under such severe punishment and yield the field and the victor's mate to his stronger rival. The strength of the wing strokes can be tested by allowing a penguin to take hold of one's coat sleeves or, better, the back of the hand. The third or fourth stroke will draw blood, and one is soon fully satisfied as to the penguin's ability in this respect. The tough skin and the loose, rolling blubber beneath, besides breaking a fall and protecting the bird from the icy waters in which it lives, sometimes subserve another most important purpose.

THE WEST POINT CHAIN.

It Was Nearly a Mile in Length and Weighed Almost 200 Tons.

From an ironmaker's point of view the greatest achievement during the Revolutionary period was the making of the great West Point chain. This massive chain, which has probably never had an equal since the first hammer struck upon the first anvil, was stretched across the Hudson river at West Point to prevent the British fleet from making a second attack upon Kingston and Albany. It was nearly a mile in length and weighed almost 200 tons, many single links being as heavy as an ordinary sized man. To complete it in six weeks sixty men hammered day and night at 25-cent forges, and the cost of it was placed at $400,000. "The great chain is buoyed up," writes Dr. Tacher, "by very large logs, pointed at the ends to lessen their opposition to the force of the current. The logs are placed at short distances from each other, the chain carried over them and made fast to each by staples. There are also a number of anchors dropped at proper distances, with cables made fast to the chain, to give it greater stability." No British ship passed this iron barrier. With its aid West Point became the strongest military post in America—so strong that treachery was tried where force of arms had failed. When Benedict Arnold was plotting the surrender of West Point he wrote Andre and said, "I have ordered that a link be removed from the great chain and taken to the smith for repair." The chain, however, remained in place till the end of the war, and links of it are still to be seen in the museums of Albany, West Point, Newburg and New York.—Exchange.

Quincy Sore Throat.

The following mixture will generally quickly bring relief in case of a quincy sore throat: Thirty grains of chloride of potash, three drams of tincture chloride of iron, four drams of glycerin and enough distilled water to make four ounces. The dose for an adult is one teaspoonful every hour until relieved. To avoid the constipating effect of the iron a good dose of some saline laxative should be taken.

Method.

"He occasionally says things that are wonderfully apropos," said one student.

"Yes," answered the other; "he's like our parrot at home. It doesn't know much, but what it does know it keeps repeating until some circumstance arises that makes the remark seem marvellously apt."

Classical Music.

"What is your idea of classical music?"

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "as I understand it a classical piece is something that is very hard to play written by somebody whose name is very hard to pronounce."

More Than One.

Edgar—What is better than a kiss?

The Melancholy Dance.

Dances seem more prone to commit suicide than any other people. About 250 Dances per 1,000,000 die yearly by suicide.

Ainwick Castle.

Ainwick castle, according to the observations of a learned antiquary, owes its origin to the Romans. It is one of the largest Gothic buildings in Britain, containing about five acres of ground within its outer walls, flanked with sixteen towers and turrets.

Habitual Criminals.

About 48 per cent of all the crime committed is the work of habitual criminals.

Horse Chestnut.

Horse chestnut is a totally misleading word. Here "horse" is a corruption of the Welsh word "gwra," which means hot or pungent. So, too, is the expression "horse laugh" and "horse-play."

The Strongest Men.

The porters in Constantinople are said to be the strongest men in the world and after them the Chilean miners and the bearers of northern China.

Hairbrushes.

To clean hairbrushes take a cup of cornmeal and fill the brush, rubbing gently with the hand. As it absorbs the grease and dirt shake it out and use fresh meal till the brush is cleaned thoroughly. This is better than ammonia, as there is no water to injure or loosen the back of the brush.

Sandy Soils.

The temperature of countries with sandy soils is higher than that of those with clay or compact soils.

Cucumbers.

Cucumbers are native to the East Indies and are grown in Kashmir, China and Persia. They were much esteemed by the ancients and are common in Egypt, where a drink is prepared from them when they are ripe.

Bible Criticism.

The higher criticism is the criticism of the literary forms and contents of the Bible; the lower criticism is the criticism of the text of the Bible. The higher criticism endeavors to decide, with regard to the writing in question, what its authorship is, its authenticity, its credibility, etc., while the lower criticism is concerned with what might be called the mechanism of the text, no attention being paid to anything else.

Cutpurses.

Cutpurses are so called because in the past the purse was worn about the neck by a long cord that the thief had to cut.

The Orchard Orchards.

The largest orchards in Europe are at Warden, near Berlin. They extend without a break to about 13,000 acres. They yield about 48,000,000 pounds of apples and pears every year.

A Well Toothed Family.

While the average man is satisfied with a maximum of thirty-two teeth, a Turk near Balkans, in Asia Minor, boasts of forty-five, all perfect. He belongs to a well toothed family, his mother and a sister each having the same number.

Whistling.

Whistling will do much toward the development of a robust physical frame.

Cattle Plague.

The worst attack of cattle plague known in Great Britain was from 1865 to 1867, when 124,532 cattle died and 110,183 were slaughtered. On this occasion the plague was imported from Russia.

Wiring a Piano.

Wiring a piano requires one mile of the very best steel wire. Five hundred single strings are necessary.

Garlic.

Garlic came from Asia and has been used since the earliest times. It formed part of the diet of the Israelites in Egypt and was used by Greek and Roman soldiers and African peasants.

A Tiny Dwelling.

What looks like a doll's house or the abode of a pygmy is to be seen in a town in New South Wales. The front of this tiny dwelling is five and a half feet across and the depth is six feet, while the entire height of the perpendicular walls is the same. Oddly enough, this house is inhabited, and the occupants find it quite comfortable.

Vegetables.

Many of the vegetables we daily use on our dinner tables were in use in Bible times. It is known, for instance, that asparagus was grown 200 years before the birth of Christ, while lettuce was cultivated as far back as 550 B. C.

Wrecks at Sea.

The decrease of the world's shipping by wreck and breaking up averages 725,000 tons yearly.

Table Forks.

Table forks have been in general use just 600 years. The original fork was designed for the purpose of facilitating the eating of fruit. A member of royalty, King John IV, is said to be the inventor of the fruit fork.

Turns Red to White.

The filtering power of charcoal may be demonstrated by pouring red wine

Throat Coughs

Ask your doctor about these throat coughs. He will tell you how deceptive they are. A tickling in the throat often means serious trouble ahead. Better explain your case carefully to your doctor, and ask him about your taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Who makes the best liver pills? The J. C. Ayer Company, of Lowell, Mass. They have been making Ayer's Pills for over sixty years. If you have the slightest doubt about using these pills, ask your doctor. Do as he says, always.

LEPREAU
We regret to have to record the death of Mrs. George Winn of Pocomoocan, who passed away on Friday March 26th. Deceased who was formerly Miss Edith Wright of Lepreau, was only nineteen and leaves a husband and one child. She was universally esteemed by her neighbors and her death will be felt with keen regret by a large circle of friends. The sympathy of the community will be extended to her sorrowing relatives and husband.

The weather has been very wet lately and the ice is out of the tide river and that in the upper river is getting shakier, so it may go out at any time.

The mill that was operated by J. A. Gregory at the Railway bridge here has been dismantled and removed to the site formerly occupied by the mill that was burned last summer, and will be re-inforced by a second boiler, operated there this season.

The clam digging this season has not been carried on so strenuously as last winter as owing to there being no competition the buyers will only pay seventy five cents per barrel instead of the dollar paid last winter. There not being much inducement today very few are doing so and those only putting in idle time until other work starts.

Other fishing is nearly at a standstill very few lobsters being caught. The proper season for taking lobsters in Charlotte Cove should be from Oct. 1st to March 31st, and none taken under ten and a half inches.

The husband and relatives of the late Mrs. George Winn of Pocomoocan desire to express their grateful thanks for all the kindness and sympathy extended to them in their bereavement.

Have you a pain--of any kind, anywhere? Stop just a minute and think! It matters not whether it be womanly pains, head pains, or any kind of a pain, one of Dr. Shoop's Little Pink Pain Tablets will surely stop it in 20 minutes. Formulas plainly printed on the 2c. box. Sold by all dealers.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury
as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system.
