JUDGE NOYES

Condemned by Mass Meeting of Nome Miners.

Seattle, Aug. 29, via Skagway, Sept. 3.—The Nome bar has forwarded a petition to President McKinley asking for the removal of Judge Noyes. The petition bears the signatures of 50 prominent men of Nome. It denounces Noyes as being weak, vacillating and dilatory in his action and negligent and careless about the court business. It concludes by denouncing him as being wholly incompetent to fill the position. At a mass meeting held the night Noyes left Nome at least 1000 people attended and there was only one vote against condemning Noyes.

No resistance was offered but a workman named O'Connor in the employ of McIntosh was shot in the thigh by the invaders because he did not dress fast enough. Thirteen of the parties have been arrested. There has been prolonged litigation over the claim.

NEWS OF TWO CREEKS

Happenings on Eldorado and Bonanza and at the Forks.

The arrival of the steamer W. H. Isom is looked forward to with a great deal of interest by a number of merchants of this city if there is any truth in current reports. That steamer is believed to be a model from which another boat is to be built and that by local capital. It was said on the street this morning by very good authority that several prominent merchants have agreed to build a boat on her lines and ship their cargo for next year via the lower river on their own steamer. Should the report prove true it will mean the divergence of several thousand tons of merchandise which this and previous years have come by way of Skagway and the White Pass Route. Future developments of the scheme will be looked forward to with considerable interest.

Perkins and Bates. Next Friday is the time set for the Perkins-Bates ten-round contest. Sports are divided in their opinion as to the ability of the men, but say that they will make a rattling good go under any circumstance. The match is to be pulled off at the Savoy under the direction of Arizona Charlie who will make special arrangements for receiving a big crowd. The time is set for 8 o'clock, which will give the onlookers an opportunity of witnessing the event without being compelled to stay up all night for the purpose.

THE SCARCITY OF WATER.

It was reasonably expected that the output for this year would be from twenty-five to fifty per cent more than last year, owing to the large amount of development that was anticipated and other causes. Last year's heavy snow fall and the rains of the early summer held out promises of a better season than ever before, but these promises have not been fulfilled, and there is a good reason why. While in parts of the United States timber is being reserved, and in some instances timber trees are being planted out in order to induce a heavier rainfall for agricultural purposes, here, where water is of at least equal importance to the mining industry of the district, all the timber is being cut down. The timber scaler has done much, the forest fires have done more to lay the hills absolutely bare. The latter have cleared off the moss which held so much moisture. Consequently, although both the snow-fall and the rainfall was over the average, we have no water. When the thaw set in all the water came down the creeks in a rush, and was soon gone. This water question is by far the most important of any in a consideration of the future of the district. It is due entirely to a lack of water that the output will be so much below the reasonable estimates formed after last season's clean-up. Elaborate preparations were made for operations this summer for sluicing after the gravel was taken out; but with these larger concerns and many smaller ones work had to be stopped because of the scarcity of water. Yet some engineers hold that there is plenty of water in the district if only it was properly handled. They argue that with one diverting the water in one way and another in a different direction, and each following his individual caprice within his rights, there is a great deal of waste, and instead of doing good to all, the streams are doing little or nothing for anybody compared with what they might be made to do if properly handled.

At this stage and with the experience of the season now closing, it would be well to give serious consideration to what has been done in other places to ensure a working supply of water for mining purposes. There is no doubt that a company of large capital could be found to supply water to all the mines, and this would be the salvation of the whole district could such a concession be drafted liberal enough in its scope to induce such large capital as an investment, and at the same time be hedged about with every protection for the miners who would be the forced customers of such a company. The rate such a company would charge, for instance, should be definitely fixed as it is in municipalities where franchises are granted for a public water supply, and the company itself should be under the control of the government just as any public corporation to whom is granted a valuable franchise for a public consideration. There is no doubt, as has been before stated, that the many millions needed for such a vast enterprise would readily be obtained upon a government franchise, and the result would be the working of many low grade gravel beds that under existing conditions it would not pay to touch. But if it would be profitable for a company to do this, why should not the government itself do it. Its first essay in this line of public works, the telegraph line from here to Bennett, paid from the start. There were many capitalists seeking a franchise to build this line, yet the government undertook it as a matter of public utility. The supply of water on the creeks is a matter of more supreme importance; to the district and to the Dominion itself. How many times the revenue from the Klondike would be doubled by a liberal supply of water under government control to all the creeks, can scarcely be estimated. That a government issue of bonds for such a special purpose would be snapped as a good investment, there is no question, and such a scheme would prolong the life of the camp indefinitely. This grand opportunity awaits some capable engineer to prove to the government its feasibility and practical importance.

AGRICULTURE.

An exhibition of vegetables made at a local shop recently calls for more than passing notice. From the size and quality of the vegetables shown several conclusions may be drawn. Not only is the Klondike able to furnish all the vegetables required for the consumption of our population, but almost without exception they are of superior flavor. There is no longer any necessity for importing fresh vegetables of any kind. Gardening has come to a regular and profitable feature of Klondike industry and it merely requires that the scale of operations be increased, to do away entirely with shipments of vegetables from the outside.

It has also been proven by actual experience that oats, barley and wheat can all be grown and successfully harvested. Splendid samples of these grains were produced last year and a number of tracts of ground are to be found around Dawson at the present time covered with the different grains and ready for the scythe.

The profusion in which the various wild berries grow attest the possibilities of the country from a fruit standpoint, and the luxuriant growth of grass in all our creek and river valleys will afford grazing for thousands of head of stock. In short, with the lapse of time we have come to learn that the Yukon territory is capable of producing nearly all the necessities of life and not a few of the luxuries.

If, as the Nugget confidently expects will prove true, the mineral resources of the territory continue to be developed as has been the case in the past, there will be a wonderful increase in the number of people who will gain a livelihood in furnishing produce for the Dawson markets.

Afloat on the Yukon.

Judge C. A. Sehlbrede of Skagway was seen on the beach yesterday opposite the barracks giving a fresh coat of paint to the Northern Light, the boat in which he and Mr. W. A. Reed also of Skagway are making the trip to St. Michael.

During their stay in Dawson which has lasted ten days they have had a deck put onto their boat which adds to its appearance and makes it more seaworthy. They expect to start this afternoon for St. Michael which point they expect to reach in about three weeks.

STROLLER'S COLUMN.

For real exhilaration there is nothing that excels a horseback ride especially when care is manifested in the selection of a horse. The Stroller took a horseback ride a few days ago and has taken nothing since but the greatest care in sitting down, rising up and walking. He knows now what Old General Deblitty means when he talks of aching in every bone.

A pony that has the reputation of being "safe" was procured from Orr & Tukey who winked at each other when the application was made and the information imparted by the Stroller that not for five years had he "sot" a saddle. The contemplated voyage extended to Gold Bottom and returns and as 40 miles is a fairly good day's journey it was necessary to make an early start. Very soon after setting out the Stroller became aware that the pony was the anchor brand in that it had a tendency to stay in one place. It seemed to be afraid to go to Gold Bottom lest it would never get back and in the afternoon it seemed to be afraid to come back lest it might have to make the trip over again. This antipathy was, however, overcome to some extent by the use of a long, lithe willow branch. But the willow developed another peculiar trait that was not rechecked in good saddle horses ten years ago. The pony could canter with the grace and ease of a gazelle but when it stopped, it stopped like a pile driver and the Stroller would go on, stopping on all fours several feet in advance. On leaving Dawson the Stroller was solemnly informed that the new government road was completed the entire distance to Gold Bottom. Perhaps it is for crows and balloonists, but for travelers who remain with the earth's surface several miles yet remain in the virgin state and for several long stretches it is necessary to hop from one niggerhead to another, the landing place usually being in the mire between them. If no preventing Providence stays the hands that wield the ax, pick, shovel, plow and scraper, the missing gaps in the Hunker road may be supplied before the curtains of winter are pinned down.

THE PONY WOULD STOP LIKE A PILE DRIVER AND THE STROLLER WOULD GO ON.

A suspicious looking man has just reached town on horseback and you had better detail a man to watch him while you telephone to Dawson and ask if the theft of a horse has been reported.

That is what a member of the Gold Bottom police detachment said to Corporal Paddy Ryan two minutes after the Stroller had arrived and but for the latter's acquaintance with the officer in charge there is a glaring possibility that the constables' advice would have been acted upon.

The trip home was very much enjoyed by the Stroller for the reason that the constant jolting and jarring had paralyzed everything below the belt, rendering that portion of his anatomy insensible to pain. But the next time he has business at Gold Bottom that he can not conduct by telephone he will go in an automobile—provided, of course, the missing links in the government road are supplied in the meantime.

Dr. F. P. Jackson of Gold Run, is in receipt of a letter from a doctor friend of his in Chicago and the latter states that he had but recently presided an floor manager of an event, the occasion of which was the presentation to Dr. L. O. Wilcox, a former well-known physician writes that Dr. Wilcox informed him that he (Wilcox) will not come back to the Klondike; that he has $70,000 which he took from one claim; that he is building a fine residence on the North Side and that he is engaged by wealthy men to look up mining property for them of a mining expert.

There many Dawsonites who will be surprised, to learn that Dr. Wilcox is so well fixed in Chicago. With a good job, a fine house on the "North Side," $70,000 and a brand new boy the to-quacious ex-partner of Humboldt Gates should be very happy indeed.

Of course the writer of the letter did not see the fine residence on the "North Side," neither did he see any part of the $70,000, but he saw the boy and Wilcox told him about the remainder of his assets, therefore there can be no doubt about it.

The following is printed verbatim as received by the Stroller. It came through the postoffice and with the exception of the title, "The First Love," and the signature, that of one of the Klondike sour doughs, it is reproduced as received:

One bright morning in the month of May the sun was high in the horizon the snow was fast melting from the hill sides and my partners and I were busy cleaning up our winter work, when long trips a Dawson bell. As the fair ones in 1899 were far between like the Governor's drinks of South Carolina. I took the advantage of my chance and it did not take me long to get over to where she was, and soon got acquainted with her. We had a little chat. She asked me down to her home in Dawson then bid me goodbye. I went to work as happy as a lark in new snow having thinking she was the sweetest little girl this side of Moose hide. Everything went well until Sunday morning for I had promised her that I would be down town to see that afternoon, and here I was without clothes except my rubber boots, overalls, shirt, wet socks and an old white hat that wore down in the mine.

Not being a man that would get left very easy I soon got clothes from my partners. As I am six feet and one inch in height and weigh a bout one hundred and fifty pound the coat an overalls from one of the partners was a very neat fit for he was a man of about the same stature he was a little taller but not so heavy set his shoes was too small for me for I wore No. 12 but that was the other partners size so I got his he was a little sweet off duckyman except his feet.

Thinking I was about ready for my

Whither are we drifting? A late telegram from Whitehorse relates that a conductor on the White Pass railroad was discharged for smuggling. It does not say whether he was smuggling opium, whisky, silk, passengers or excess baggage. If it was the latter he was beating the company out of 12 cents per pound between Skagway and Whitehorse and he deserved to be fired. The Stroller has no sympathy for a man who will defraud a young and struggling corporation out of its just dues. No wonder the W. P. & Y. R. has to crush the tar out of its 'long-shoremen when its other employees steal from it. If this sort of thing keeps up the railroad company must of necessity and in self-defense raise the rate on excess baggage to 75 or 20 cents per pound and at the same time make a corresponding cut in 'longshoring rates. Besides, if the discharged conductor was defrauding the Canadian government by his smuggling, the chances are that he was not whacking up with the company which would have been content with 98 per cent of the booty. There is no doubt in the mind of the Stroller but that the "con" man was acting the Berkshire or Jersey Red else he would have been promoted rather than discharged. The Stroller has no sympathy for a fellow that butts up against the real thing by taking it all and not whacking up, and the discharged "con" will know better by the time he gets another job. The swine method may succeed for a time,

A POLITICAL SUGGESTION.

Why is it we hear nothing these days about incorporation? Surely the city of Dawson has now reached the point, where with advantage to her citizens she can govern her own affairs without calling upon the Yukon Council for administrative action. That body has enough on its hands to look after the welfare of the territory without dabbling in local matters. There is plenty of good material here for every purpose and leaving out the great good possible to be attained by wise legislation, a city election would give us an interest in our own affairs which is viewed at present with indifference and apathy. Here's to the first mayor of Dawson! May he be honest, efficient and prone to stylish dress.

HERSHBERG, CLOTHIER

Journey after getting all their clothes but alas! I had no dry socks and there was none in camp so I slipped their shoes in with out socks and was off.

Thinking of nothing but the fair one I seen no water nor mud holes I must have been a pretty sight when I arrived at her home. She was there and met me with a smile like that of a Mississippi coon. She waved me to a seat in the front room after I had been seated there a while I crossed my legs and the overalls kept slipping up and my under ware was not not long before I noticed where my overalls had got too they were half way to my knees and there I was with my nude calls. At the time I wished they had been out in a pasture.

I would not pull my overalls back in her presence so I excused myself by telling her that I had a little business in town to tend to before I could go out and told her that I would be in town in two weeks.

She followed me to the door and watched me until I got to a round the corner of the block and I walked all that distance before I could pull my overalls down.

I got back to the hill that night and worked hard for two weeks and got my share off the dump in a sack it was a long sack and well filled. I got to town at the end of the two weeks and bought me a new outfit of clothes after that I seen my love often and my puke: we did not due a thing to it we could tie a new knot in it every week.

One day I called at her house she was there and so was her old sweetheart he was not in the best of humor for I think he tied the last knot in his puke.

At my arrival he took his departure and then she told how it happened. Through an absent minded way she called him Bartholomew and he got red headed and left, or that was my name. Thinking I was all solid then she got sweeter every time I seen her and we kept company for a year or more until one day I meet my rival his name was Jack. ten day after that we had a quarrel and I have not been back for she called me Jack.

but like the slumber brand of hootch, it lays out its victim in the end. "Con," you are a chump and when the Stroller meets you he will not allow you to weep on his bosom.

Sensitol is a chemical used in finishing pictures and photographic work. Goetzman is a photographer and is rather sensitive on some things. Yesterday his telephone rang and when Goetzman said "hello" the man at the other end asked the question "Have you any sensitol?" "D— little," replied Goetzman, "but it is a good thing for you, whoever you are, that you asked that question by telephone, as no man can intimate to my face that I have no sense at all unless he is a very large man. Give me your name and weight and I may call on you."

And Goetzman hung up his trumpet with a bang that jarred the innocent but perplexed party at the other end of the line.

Ex-Japanese Minister in Dawson. Prof. C. C. Georseon, M. S., formerly minister of agriculture to the Emperor of Japan, and now special agent in charge of Alaska investigations, paid Dawson a visit during the latter part of last week.

The professor, accompanied by Captain Galpin, made an inspection of the farms and gardens in the neighborhood of Dawson, and afterwards visited the chief mines at work on Bonanza and Eldorado.

Mr. Georseon left for Washington, D. C., on Monday to report to his government the results of his investigations in Alaska, and will recommend the further development of agriculture in Alaska, as he has demonstrated obviously that grain and vegetables can be grown most successfully at Dawson and along the banks of the Yukon.

PETER JACKSON, PUGILIST
Something About the Colored Heavy Weight.

Might Have Won Championship Belt Had Not John L. Sullivan Drawn Color Line.

The death of Peter Jackson at Roma, New South Wales, on July 23, news of which reached this country only last week, removed the greatest representative of the negro race as ever had in the prize ring, as well as one of the greatest fighters this country has ever seen. George Dixon is the only other colored pugilist that can be compared to Jackson, but the latter could, of course, never aspire to anything higher than the championship of his own class, while Peter was very near the top of the heavy-weight ladder. Jackson and Dixon were very much alike in that both were always willing to fight and above the average in intelligence. This made both of the not only the idols of their own race, but gave them many friends among other followers of the ring. Jackson's death has been expected for more than a year and it was directly due to the fast life which champions of the ring usually lead.

According to the records Jackson was born at Porto Rico, West Indies, July 3, 1861, which would make him less than a month over 40 years of age at the time of his death. Bob Fitzsimmons, who also comes from Australia, is just about a year younger than was Jackson. The former is still in fine physical condition, while Jackson has been a wreck for several years. Jackson's ring career began in Australia in 1882. He had a number of fights there and came to San Francisco in April, 1888, with a clean record of victories to his credit. His first fight in this country was against George Godfrey, from whom he won in nineteen rounds at San Francisco. After beating Joe McCallife and Patsy Carthiff at San Francisco he started on a tour of this country, meeting any one who cared to stack up against him. During this trip he fought at Virginia City, Nev.; Chicago, Buffalo, Hoboken and New York city, although none of the fights were against men of any note and none of them lasted over four rounds. In October, 1893, he went to England, and between October 3 and November 11 fought eight battles against some of the best men in Great Britain, winning all of them in short order. The last one was Jim Smith, and he won this in two rounds. Returning to this country in January, 1890, he fought his way back to San Francisco and sailed for Australia, where he met and defeated Joe Goddard at Melbourne in eight rounds. This fight came off in October and the following May he was back in the United States for his memorable fight with Jim Corbett.

This was the high-water mark in Jackson's career. Corbett was coming into prominence as a candidate for championship honors, and in comparison with Jackson he was a novice. The battle was the longest that has ever been fought between two heavy-weights of any prominence and both at once sprang into notice as opponents of John L. Sullivan for the championship. Sullivan drew the color line and took on Corbett, giving the latter the chance to earn his title to the belt, although the latter fight did not take place until the following year. Jackson challenged both Sullivan and Corbett, but John L. stuck to his statement that he would not fight a negro and Corbett managed to sidestep the black in one way or another. Had Jackson fought Sullivan instead of Corbett there is but little doubt that he would have held the championship instead of "Pompadour" Jim. The refusal of Sullivan and Corbett to meet him soured Jackson to a considerable extent on this country and he again went to London, where he was better appreciated.

His former trip to London had gained for him the regard of the English sportsmen, and he was greeted with open arms on his return. Most of the English pugilists declined to meet him, his only fight of any prominence being with Frank Slavin, whom he knocked out in ten rounds, but this made little difference to the London sports. They treated him as though he were an equal, and he soon became one of the notables of the largest city in the world. He wore the finest of clothes and a silk hat and frequented the most fashionable sporting resorts. He was wine and dined, and the fast life finally began to tell on him. Stories reached this country from time to time that Jackson was on the decline, and when he finally did return here after a stay of several years abroad it was at once seen that the stories as to his health had not been overdrawn. Jackson, who had formerly been one of the best built and proportioned men in the ring, with the exception of his abnormal reach, had wasted away. He thought that the climate here would restore him to his former vigor, and such seemed to be the case for a while. He could not, however, regain his old-time strength, and when he was finally matched for a fight with a fifth-rater his showing was such that his friends knew that he had seen the last of the ring. He had fresh days, and had not friends come to the rescue would have had to go to a charity hospital. As it was they kept him supplied with enough money to make him comfortable, and as he evinced a strong desire to return to his home in Australia subscription was made to get the necessary money. A little over three months ago he left for that country. It was at one time reported that he was on the road to recovery, but such proved not to be the case, and the reports brought over by the steamers of late were that he could not last much longer. The news of his death was, therefore, no surprise.

ANOTHER EXPOSITION

St. Louis Will Invite Nations to Participate in 1903.

No sooner is one world's fair, as they are now generally called, nearly over but another is started, and the next one projected is one at St. Louis in 1903. The Nugget has received from the management printed matter telling of the plans and scope of this international exposition and is pleased to give it space. It is to open April 30th, 1903, which will be the one hundredth anniversary of the purchase by the United States of Louisiana from the French government, and to be a celebration of that memorable event.

There must be many people unaware or who have forgotten that this purchase embraced some territory that what is now the state of Louisiana, but the Louisiana purchase embraced what is now Louisiana, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana and Oklahoma; 12 states and one territory. This vast territory was purchased from France for $15,000,000, which no doubt in those days seemed a vast sum. Today, however, the taxable wealth of the territory is more than 400 times the amount France received from it. The value of the land under cultivation is $3,193,461.29; its farm products including live stock $1,876,184.43; its mineral products $259,909,138; and its total taxable wealth to the enormous sum of $5,616,642,829. And all this in one century's growth.

To celebrate the history of this growth the exposition has exactly $15,000,000, the amount of the Louisiana purchase money to expend on the exposition. One-third of this is a government appropriation, one-third an appropriation by the city of St. Louis, and the remaining $5,000,000 has been subscribed by citizens.

The exposition will present in a special degree, and in the most comprehensive manner, the history, the resources, and the development of the states and territories lying within the boundaries of the Louisiana purchase, showing what it was and what it is; what it contained and produced in 1803; what it contains and produces in 1903.

It will make it plain that the prophecy of 1803 has been more than fulfilled and show that a veritable empire now lies between the Gulf of Mexico and Puget Sound, within the limits of the territory Jefferson obtained by the Louisiana purchase. It will show the history, resources and development of the colonies and possessions of the United States, including Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, Samoa and the Philippines. It will embrace a similar portrayal Cuba and any other country which may enjoy the special and exceptional protection and guardianship of the United States.

It will depart from the plan of all past expositions and make life and movement its distinguishing and marked characteristics. To this end it will definitely be an exhibition of man as well as the works of man; at the presentation of manufacturing industries in actual conduct as well as of the machines out of action; at the exhibition of processes as well as of completed products. It will comprehend man in his full 20th century development, exhibiting not alone his material, but his social advancement. It will show humanity at rest as well as at work, presenting man in his hours of recreation, his exercises, his games and his sports. It will illustrate the modern home with the infinity of comforts and conveniences that have been brought into common use within the century the St. Louis World's Fair will commemorate.

It will embrace in its scope a comprehensive anthropological exhibition, constituting a congress of races, and exhibiting particularly the barbarous and semibarbarous peoples of the world as nearly as possible in their ordinary and native environments.

With such a width of plan and breadth of scope the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will undoubtedly take rank among the marvelous international exhibitions of the past half century. THE THEATRES THIS WEEK

Ralph E. Cummings Appears at the Standard

Where "Pudd'n head Wilson" is the Drawing Feature—"Sapho" the Attraction at the Savoy.

"A magnificent production" was the verdict of every one who attended the Standard theater last night and saw Ralph E. Cummings and the Standard Stock Company play Frank Mayo's dramatization of Mark Twain's great book "Pudd'nhead Wilson." The theater was crowded to the very doors and standing room was at a premium before the rise of the curtain on the first act and throughout the play the immense audience was kept in a state of pleased expectancy and the applause which greeted the players at every turn was thunderous, shaking the house to its very foundation.

It seems an impossibility for Ralph E. Cummings to make a move, walk across the stage, or speak a word without promoking a hearty laugh and as "Pudd'nhead" he appears in the best character he has yet assumed in Dawson.

All T. Layne as York Driscoll appears in the part which is his strong suit, that of an elderly man.

W. C. Bohman takes the villain's part as Tom Driscoll and carries it very successfully throughout the play.

Wm. Mullen as Howard Pembroke makes a very successful lawyer and his speech before the jury is very fine.

Robt. Lawrence as Chambers shows the strong though subdued spirit of the master while he is a slave in bondage. It is afterwards proven that he and Tom Driscoll were changed when babies and he regains possession of his rights on his father's plantation.

Fred C. Lewis makes a capital sheriff.

Harry O'Brien and Pat Dundon as Luigi and Angelo the French twins, assume their parts in the easy graceful manner of the true Frenchman.

Vivian displays her ability as Rowley and receives lots of appreciative commendation for her clever work.

Lucy Lovell is also a popular actress and holds her own as Roxey.

Julia Walcott makes a big hit in her interpretation of the character of Patsy.

The balance of the cast includes George Troxwell as Swan, Chas. Moran as Campbell, Harry F. Cummings as Judge Robinson, Robt. Caskie as Deacon Jasper, Jack Stequist as Eph and Daisy D'Avara as Hannah.

The story is one of Southern life during the days of slavery and has for its foundation a crime which an innocent person is suspected of having committed. It follows the unraveling of the mystery and the final triumph of right over wrong through the agency of the science of palm reading in which Pudd'nhead has become a master during his 16 years of forced idleness as a lawyer through want of a client. The action of the play is lively and interest never wanes for a moment.

The scenery which has been specially prepared for this play is excellent and adds greatly to its effect.

Prologue—Dave Wilson's law office, Dawson's Landing, Mo. Time, 1836.

Act 1—Dave Wilson's law office, Dawson's Landing, Mo., 16 years later.

Act 2—Interior of Wilson's law office, Dawson's Landing, Mo. Scene 2, the old Wilson mill.

Act 3—Dave Wilson's law office.

Act 4—Dave Wilson's law office the next morning.

The Orpheum theater is not running this week and many of the specialty artists appear at the Standard so that there are two good shows combined in one this week.

The Savoy Stock Company, under the direction of Harry Sedley, is producing at the Savoy theater this week the original adaptation of Daudet's famous novel "Sapho." The theater opened its week's engagement to a large and appreciative audience, which was fully justified by the excellence of the play which is being produced.

Lawyers and Civil Service Men Meet on the Diamond

Latter Win Game by Score of 15 to 6—Many Brilliant Plays Were Overlooked by Both Sides.

If the lawyers by their victory a couple of weeks ago in a game of baseball with the doctors were incited, at all to have been swollen up with their greatness, yesterday's game with the Civil Service must have taken several kinds of conceit out of them, for they were walloped all over the diamond and outplayed at every point. The game brought out several new players who gave evidence of acquaintance with the game in years gone by. Senkler who after the first inning pitched for the lawyers played a great game covering every point possible and taking in every chance that came his way. Smith was behind the bat and made the rooters howl whenever he put the ball down to second, retiring three men by the play. Wilson on first never overlooked a bet and Ridley at second did equally as well. For the Civils there were many stars. Harrison and Bennett made a good battery and Ellbeck, Donald and Hinton covered the bases well. With a little more practice and some substitutions the Civils could put up a game that would make the Gandolfos scratch to win out.

In the tossup the Lawyers took first bat. Smith opened the game and with the first ball passed over the plate found the leather, smashing it clear out into the woodyard, scoring a home run. Ridley took his base on balls and Wilson died at first on a light grounder to pitcher. Hulme reached first on a bad fumble of Harrison's and both he and Ridley scored on a wild throw of catcher to second. Senkler and Walsh both expired reaching first and the side retired with three scores to their credit.

Bennett duplicated Smith's home run, Watt pounded air, and "Randy" McLennan surprised himself with a three bagger, placing the ball straight through center, and scoring on Donald's safe hit to first. The latter stole second and third but died in attempting to repeat the burglary on the home plate. Harrison hit safe, scoring on Boyes two bagger, the latter coming in on Hinton's drive to short. McLaggen drove a hot one to left field bringing in Hinton, only to die a moment later by Smith's splendid throw to second. Civils piled up five runs.

The Lawyers received a goose egg in the second, going down and out in one, two, three order.

In the Civil's half Ellbeck dropped a fly into Hulme's hands, Bennett died on first and Watt took his base on a dead ball. "Randy" McLennan slammed out another two bagger, bringing Watt in. Donald went out on first leaving "Randy" rooted to third. One run.

In the third another goose egg was entered against the Lawyers. Ridley reached first on a safe hit and Senkler got his base on balls, but before they could score, Wilson, Hulme and Walsh had each pounded the atmosphere.

Harrison hit safe to center, followed by Boyer and Hinton who both fanned and McLaggen drove a liner to left field bringing in Harrison. McLaggen for the second time died in trying to purloin second. Smith at the plate can give the professionals pointers on how to throw to second. One run.

Both sides took ciphers in the fourth. Black hit lightly, the ball striking in front of the plate. In some manner he hurt his finger which had previously been injured and he made the fatal error of stopping to examine it. (Voice from Captain Walsh: "Go on! Damn your finger.") McKay made a safe hit but died on his base by McCrea and Smith failing to find the sphere.

Ellbeck dropped a light one between first and the pitcher's box which was well fielded by Wilson. Baseman and batter raced for the base, the former winning by a neck. Bennett and Watt both fanned.

In the fifth Ridley went out on a fly to first. Wilson followed with a drive to center good for two bags and Hulme pounded the air. Senkler made a safe hit, moving up to second on Walsh being given his base on balls. Black took first on a dead ball, forcing Wilson as the bases were full. McKay hit safe but it lacked steam and Senkler died at home on the forced play. One run.

"Randy" fell down failing to find the leather after three tries. Donald drove a hot liner to Senkler and died on first. Harrison sent a peach to left field, making the run good, and Boyes expired on a high fly to Black. One run.

In the sixth McCrea fanned, Smith got his base on balls, stole second and third and later committed a horrible theft on the home plate. Ridley went out on a dead ball and Wilson fanned. One run.

In their half of the sixth the Civils piled up four runs, McLaggen, Bennett and Watt scoring and "Randy" distinguishing himself with a home run.

Hinton went out on first and Ellbeck and Donald fanned.

In the seventh Hulme struck out, Senkler took his base on balls, scoring on Walsh's sacrifice. Black took his base on balls and McKay dallied with the atmosphere. One run.

The Civils took a goose egg in their half of the seventh. Harrison made first safely but died reaching second on a throw by Bennett from the plate. Boyes died at first, Hinton made the base on the catcher's muff of third strike and McLaggen took his base on a dead ball. Two men were on bases and Ellbeck drove a hot one straight down the line into Wilson's hands.

In the eighth the Lawyers got but three men to the bat. McCrea fanned, Smith went out on a foul to catcher and Ridley died reaching first.

The Civils scored three times in their half. Bennett made first on the catcher's muff of third strike, reaching third on a passed ball. Watt went out on a foul to Smith, and Bennett died trying to steal home, Smith and Senkler having the runner between them. "Randy" banged out another two bagger, Donald followed and Harrison placed a safe hit in center field, scoring later on a wild throw to second. Boyes went out on a fly to first. Three runs.

Another goose egg was given the Lawyers in the ninth. Wilson hit safe to center field and Hulme took his base on a dead ball, but both failed to score. Senkler went out on a fly to third, Walsh fanned and Black dropped a beauty into Watt's hands.

The line up was as follows:
Civil Service—Bennett, c; Watt, 1 f; McLennan, ss; Donald, 2b; Harrison, p; Boyes, r f; Hinton, 3b; McLaggen, c f; Ellbeck, 1b.

FOLLOWING THE HOLIDAY

Business Has Been Remarkably Brisk at C. B. of C.

If any one entertained the idea that Dawson is "a dead one" the delusion would have been shattered by a visit to the Canadian Bank of Commerce this forenoon. Long before the hour for opening this morning hundreds of men were congregated on the sidewalk in front of the big financial institution and when the front door was opened the rush was so great that a Nugget reporter who, by the way was a resident of Tacoma in 1893 when bank failures were of almost daily occurrence until there were none left to fail, imagined that the report had been circulated that the C. B. of C. was "shaky." He lingered around fully an hour but as the door did not close bearing the notice "This bank has suspended payment temporarily. All depositors will be paid in full," he elbowed his way in and, after viewing the surging crowd for a few minutes inquired of Assistant Manager Percy Stevenson what was the matter.

"Nothing at all," said Percy. "You see yesterday was a holiday and we were closed. Today we are just doing the ordinary business of two days; but I must say that this is the greatest rush I have ever witnessed on any day succeeding a holiday in Dawson. It does not look as though Dawson is on the wane; does it?"

Another and longer look convinced the reporter that those doing business with the bank were but its regular customers, merchants, miners, freighters, steamboat men, all classes were awaiting their turns at the various windows while Teller "Artie" Maynard was using his brain and fingers in a manner that would be the envy of a three shell man, and yet "Artie's" mistakes are so few that he is reckoned as infallible. It would, without the reckoning of the day's business this evening be difficult to estimate within perhaps $100,000 of its volume but that it is immense was proven from the hundreds and hundreds of men who transacted business at the various windows of the bank today.

Police Court.

Magistrate McCauley occupied the bench in the police court this morning and transacted a large grist of business.

A. R. Slobson was found guilty of fighting while in an intoxicated condition and was fined $5 and costs.

John Warner was found guilty of being drunk and obstructing the public thoroughfare on First avenue in front of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He wanted to fight the arresting constable and it took two men to get him to the barracks. He said that he was a good fellow when sober but when he got drunk he didn't know what he was doing. He asked leniency from the magistrate. Ten dollars and costs or 30 days at hard labor was the sentence imposed on him. A friend came to his rescue and paid his fine.

Eighteen months is a long time to be a total abstainer and a man who keeps from the flowing bowl for that length of time is justified in filling himself up to the brim. That is evidently what James McDonald thought when he arrived in town Thursday from Stewart where he has been for the last 13 months as he immediately proceeded to have a glorification and got on a glorious jig. His case was dismissed with a caution.

Joseph G. McKinnon was before the magistrate charged with stealing sundry articles of staple groceries, hams, etc., the whole amounting to about $430, from the store of Gross & Johnson on Third avenue. The case will be heard tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

They Are Surprised.

Swaggers arriving in Dawson express surprise at the style of dress employed by both the men and women they see on the streets. Many of the new arrivals are dressed in heavy coats as though they expected to be required to wade through mud, climb over logs and scramble through brush and briars on Dawson's streets. Ladies arrive in short skirts and high laces but it is noticed that they are soon discarded for more conventional apparel. Dawson is in more ways than one a transition to chechakos.
