SCHOOL BOOKS
THE Subscriber has since his entering into the stationery and book business commenced by his father, endeawoured to furnish and keep up a supply of suitable School Books; and while he has kept in view the difficulty experienced by Teachers, in changing from one book to another, ocessioned by a want of uniformity in the series of works in use, he has studied to improve those formerly used; and in adopting new ones, has been guided by the leading members of the Board of Education, and some of the best teachers who have given their sanction to his publications. Many of the books imported from the Mother Country, being found to be too expossive, and the reprints from the neighbouring provinces, not only incorrect, but badly printed, it was thought than attempt to print some of them at home, might meet with success. In order to be able to sell the books at a price within the reach of the bulk of the people, a large number of each work has been printed of these books in general use. The Irish national

JAMES YEO.

Port Hill, April 9, 1851.

We personally know something of the sea, of sailors, and of their life both ashore and float, in the forecastle and the cabin, both abroad and at home. We know also, that there is a marvellously prevalent notion among landsmen that a sailor's life is the most romantic of all lines and that he is birectly a proposed to the lines and that he is birectly as the sailor's life is the most romantic of all lines and that he is birectly as the sail of the lines and that he is birectly as the sail of the lines and that he is birectly as the sail of the lines and that he is birectly as the sail of the lines and the lines are the sail of the lines and the lines are the lines are the lines are the lines and the lines are the lines a landsmen that a sailor's life is the most romantic of all lives, and that he is himself a very romantic personage individually. We know that the mere name of 'sea,' 'ship,' or 'sailor' excites emotion in the breast of novel-reading lads, and adventurous youth in general. There seems to be an inherent witchery in the very idea of the 'glad waters of the dark blue sea;' but this has been stimulated a thousand fold by the popular songs of Dibdin and others, portraying sailors in such colours that they cannot recognize themselves, and also by certain modern fictions, which, however admirable as works of art, convey anything but a correct notion of the real art, convey anything but a correct notion of the real work-day life of the gallant, but plain, honest fellows who man England's wooden walls. In the books in question, everything which can throw a charm over the sea—everything which tends to impress the reader with a vague idea that sailors are a separate race of mortals with most faccinating abspectation in which the tals, with most fascinating characteristics—is skilfully dwelt upon; but the stern, homely, matter-of-fact, modwelt upon; but the stern, homely, matter-of-fact, monotonous life they lead is carefully kept in the background, or alluded to in a very slight and deceptive manner. Can we wonder, therefore, that boys of ardent imaginations are absorbingly attracted by such an idealized profession? So enthralling is the love of the sea thus generated, that a good authority declares that he has known youths, who could not bear the creaking of a block used in hoisting sugar to the upper floor of a grocer's warehouse, without their imaginations being fired with vivid dreams of ships and the ocean! Once let a stripling become impressed with a longing for the sea, no matter how generated, and the very means you adopt to check his diseased fancy will only strengthen and confirm it. Yet his case is precisely analogous to that of a youth falling passionately in love with a maiden whom he has never seen!

We can give a case in point in which we were personally concerned. About eight years ago, we ourselves were guilty of writing a sea-novel, a copy of which fell into the hands of a boy, a first cousin of ours. He told us that he had read it over and over till he knew it by heart, and nothing would serve his turn but he must go to sea. His parents were distressed and we had a long interview with him, and did our utmost to disabuse his mind of the committee which our own book alone had created. All in vain! He would believe his own wild impression from our fiction rather own book alone had created. All in vain! He would believe his own wild impression from our fiction rather than our sober, truthful vive soce advice. He went a short first voyage on liking, and on his return frankly told us, that had he known what a hard, harsh life a told us, that had he known what a hard, harsh life a sailor's really was, he would never have quitted land. 'But,' said he, 'I shall be laughed at, if I give it up now! I am a sailor for life, and all through that book of yours!' He was then regularly apprenticed to a merchantman, but the mate treated him so cruelly, that he deserted to a man-of-war, and, if living, he is pro-

The two great classes of boys who go to sea are those who have imbibed romantic notions concerning it, and long to realize them; and those who are sent by their friends as a means to reform them of bad habits. Of the two, the latter class generally make the best sail-ers; the others are too much disgusted at the reality, too heart-broken at the utter annihilation of all their fine dreams, to take kindly and well to their rough calling. There are of course numerous exceptions in both classes; and of the former many cling to the sea, and learn to become good sailors out of sheer des peration and stubborn resolve to make the best of a bad bargain, rather than acknowledge themselves to be vofully deceived

Let us not be misunderstood. We ourselves enthusiastically loved the sea when young, and we love it yet, but in a very different degree. It is a noble profession, that of the wild waves mastery, but it is empha-tically one of the hardest, worst paid, and most prosect right down prosaic and we know what it is to lay out on a yard in a hurricane. We say, moreover, that sailors themselves are, with very few exceptions, the most prosaic and matter-of-fact among mortals. You may sneer at this; but one week, one day, nay, even one hour of actual sea service would perhaps convince you that we are speaking advisedly. Let truth be spoken above all things. A sailor's life brings him in occasional contact with sublime manifestations of the Divine power, but he little regards them. His duties absorb all his attention, and there is no time for sight-seeing and reflection, nor is sentiment of any kind allowed to be indulged in on shipboard. On the other hand he will for weeks and months lead the dullest and most unexciting life conceivable. Day after day, the same monotonous round of commonplace duties are exacted with iron discipline.—Work, work, nothing but work, and not a minute spent in idleness. It is all very pleasant to you, young gentleman, to sit with your feet on a parlour fender, and gloat over picturesque and highly wrought descriptions of nautical manœuvres, but highly wrought descriptions of nautical manœuvres, but we can tell you, that not one of these is felt to be but ordinary work by those who actually perform then. There is nothing very delightful in the hourly act of nunning up and down ladders like a bricklayer's labourer, and hauling rough ropes, till your back feels ready to break and your heart to burst; there is nothing peculiarly elevating and chivalrous in the act of picking oakum, and making spun yarn and sinnet—and sailors are steadily kept at these and similar labours in the intervals between shifting sails; nor is there any inexpressible charm in the act of scraping and oiling masts are steadily kept at these and similar labours in the intervals between shifting sails; nor is there any inexpressible charm in the act of scraping and oiling masts and yards, and washing decks and tarring rigging.

Now suppose, young friend, that your parents have at length yielded to your frantic entreaties that you may be a sailor, and that you are regularly apprenticed to an East Indiaman. The dream of your life, the cherished prayer of your heart, is fulfilled. You set your foot on the snowy decks with thrilling feelings—proud and glowing aspirations and anticipations. The ship sails, and for a day or so you are too sick to do any duty, and too much a piece of mere lumber in everybody's way during the hurry of departure; so you are unceremoniously kicked below, to rough it out as you may. On the morning of the second day you find yourself included to the first mate's watch, which happens to be the morning watch—4 A. M. to 8 A. M.—and are called on deck. You stagger up, feeling very queer, very weak, very miserable. It is a fine summer morning, with a steady breeze, and the ship is calmly gliding along on a tautbowline. You have no heart to look much about you, but you see that every soul on deck is at work. You sit down on the booms, greatly exhausted, and the next moment a rope's end is smartly laid across your shoulders, and the mate, with an oath, asks you whether you ers, and the mate, with an oath, asks you whether you have shipped to sit for a figurehead, and the sailors chuckle, and the ship boys wink and grin, and put out their tongues. You rub your shoulders in amazement, and think of your poor mother at home, and burst into tears. The mate calls you a snivelling milksop, and sets you to scrape the tar off a seam of the deck recently payed, with a mysterious admonition, that if you don't mind what you are about you will receive a liberal al-lowance of 'beans and bacon!' You don't know what beans and bacon! You don't know what beans and bacon means on shipboard; but you do know that your soft white hands are very sore with grasping the shaft of the rough scraper, and very pitchy in a few minutes, and you mentally think, there is very little romance in the operation. Four bells strike.—6 A M -and the word is given to rig the head pumps, and wash down the decks. The sailors roughly call you to bear a hand; and you have to pump away, and to take off your shoes and stockings, and paddle with naked feet among the cold water surging over the decks. Then comes the cold stopping part; and you are set to have stopping the holy-stoning part; and you are set to haul about the bibles'—as sailors profanely call the large stones—and to kneel and rub away with 'prayer-books'—small hand-stones—till you fancy it is just the sort of work your mother's kitchenmaid is used to, and you are thankful none of your friends see you engaged at it, and you are very certain there isn't a bit of romance in it. This asts till eight bells, and you then go to breakfast with what appetite you may.

Four hour later you are summoned on deck again; and the sailors push and knock you about and one orlers you to do this, and another to do that, and allower at you for awkwardness and stunidity, and you wear at you for awkwardness and stupidity, and you are perfectly bewildered and frightened, and a picture of misery. The busy mates sees you; and—' Hallo you, sir!, cries he, skulking again, are you? I'll polish you! Take that bucket of slush, and lay aloft and rub down the royal mast. And mind what you do, for my eve is on you!' my eye is on you!'

You have a bucket of tar and grease and a bunch of You have a bucket of tar and grease and a bunch of oakum thrust into your clammy hands, and are hurried aloft. How you ever get to the royal masthead, you have no subsequent recollection. You are too dizzy to know what you are about; but the mate, whom you think is a demon, is nothing of the sort. He is only doing his duty. You have shipped to become a sailor, and he is begining to make a sailor of you. You hardly know yourself by this time, who you are nor what you are; but you feel in every bone of your body and every tingling muscle that you have found no romance in a sailor's life yet.

DUELLING.

Lord Mark Kerr, who distinguished himself at the battle of Fontenoy, was a good but eccentric officer, and a terrible duellist. His debut was very remarkable. He was a lad of slight, effeminate appearance, apparently void of any spirit. His father, the Marquis of Lothian, having brought him to London, to join his regiment, the Coldstream Guar's requested the colosel, who was his particular friend, to watch over him, to see that he submitted to no improper liberties, and to instruct him in the way he should go, in case he had the misfortune to be insulted. Those were the days of hard drinking "prodicious insulted. Those were the days of hard drinking "prodigious swearing," according to my Uncle Toby, and much brutality of manners. The pacific young scion of nobility soon became a butt at the mess, a stop-peg to hang their practical jokes on, until at last a captain of some years' standing actually threw a glass of wine in his face. He still said nothing, that quietly wind his face with his perfect handkerships, and touch no forwiped his face with his pocket handkerchief, and took no fur

Lord Mark arrived punctually, ate his breakfast with perfect composure, and spoke but little. At length the commanding officer broke ground. ** Lord Mark," said he, "I must speak to you on rather a delicate subject; but, as your father's friend, I am compelled to wave ceremony. Captain L.——yesterday morning publicly passed an affront on you, which both your own honor an! the credit of your regiment require you to notice." "What do you think, sir, I ought to do!" quietly inquired Lord Mark. "Call on him for an explanation," rejoined the colonel. "It is, I fear rather too late for that," replied the young ensign. "I shot him at eight this morning; and, if you will take the trouble to look of the front window, you will see him on a shutter!" "A thousand pardons, my dear young friend," said the colonel; "I shall never window, you will see him on a shutter!?' "A thousand par-dons, my dear young friend," said the colonel; "I shall never again presume to meddle in your private affairs. I see you un-derstand thoroughly how to regulate them."

COMPETENCE.

COMPETENCE.

There are many who are making haste to be rich, who need to be reminded that a compotence is all that man can enjoy. Beyond the attainment of this 'golden mean,' every acquisition becomes mere avarice, by whatever name it may be gilded. As long as man is actually in pursuit of the true medium of competent enjoyment, so strongly expressed by Agur in his prayer, he is happy, and that happiness is not only a natural concomitant of his efforts, but the real blessings of Providence upon his laudable industry. But as sony as he steps beyond this mark, securulates for the sake of the accumulation, he loses his peace of mind; the light of his quietness is extinguished in anxiety, and his happiness is gone forever. Henceforward carking care, heart consuming solicitude, and fears and terrors, without number and without end, embitter his whole existence. He may succeed in what he undertakes, but it is at the expense of all his cheerfulness of heart on earth. He may reach the goal of his endeavours, but it is at the expense of overy noble feeling, of every softening emotion. A varice,

BOOKS IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

BOOKS IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

So multitudinous are the works published in the present days that very few are aware of the value often attached to a single volume during the middle ages. Those who have free access to the literary treasures of the nireteenth century will hardly credit the fact, that the time was, when the donation of a book to a religious house was considered as giving the donor a claim to eternal salvation, that the gift was regarded as one of such great importance, that the offering was made upon the high altar, amid every circumstance of pomp and pageantry; and that the prior and convent of Rochester once weat the length of pronouncing an irrevocable sentence of eternal we against my one who should purloin or conceal their Latin translation of the physics of Ar.stotle. In point of fact, so great was the labour expended by pious and holy men of old on the transcription of books for the good of their fellow creatures, that in many cases whole lives were spent in this manner. Guido do Jars began to copy, on vellum, and with rich and elegant decorations, the Bible in his fortieth year, and he was in his inneitelt, year before he finished it. Thus did the suns of half a century rise and set, ere this good man, a mid the retirement of his monastic retreat, accomplish the task which, at a tolerably advanced period of human existence, he had set himself to execute.

When a book was to be sold, it was usual to assemble the chief persons in the district, in order that they might witness the transaction, and be prepared to teatify that it had actually taken place. Among the royal manuscripts, there is a work thus marked:— This book of the acntences belongs to Master Robert, Archdeacon of Lincoln, which he bought of Geofficey the chaplain, brother of Henry, vicar of Northelkingaton, is the presence of Master Robert dece, Master John of Lirling, Richard of Luda, clerk, Richard the almoner, the said Henry and his clerk and others: and the said archdeacon gave the said book to God and St. Oswald, and to Peter,

About 796, Charlemagne granted an unlimited right of hunting to the abbut and monks of Sithin, with the view of their making of the skins of the deer killed by them gloves, girdles, and ing of the skins of the deer killed by them gloves, girdles, and covers for their books.

So scarce, in the beginning of the tenth century, were books in Spain, that one and the same c.py of the bible, of St. Jerome's Epistles, and of some volumes of ecclesiastical offices and martyrologies, often served different monasteries.

The modern reader may well be permitted to smile, when he is told that when, in 1072, Archbishop Lanfranc gave his constitutions to the monks of England, one of his injunctions was, that at the beginning of Lent, each person should receive from the librarian of his convent a book, and that a whole year should be allowed him to read it. Nor is it less curious to be made aware, that when John de Pontissara, bishop of Winchester, in 1299, borrowed of his cathedral convent of St. Swithin, at Winchester, 'Bibliam bene Glorsatam,' that is, the Bible, with marginal annotations—in two large folio volumes
—he was obliged to give a bond, drawn up with great solemnity, for its due return. In 1925, Roger de Tusula, dean of York, lent several Latin Bibles to the University of Oxford, on condition that the students who perused them should deposit a cautionary pledge; and previous to the year 1306, the library of that famed university itself consisted only of a few tracts, chained, or kept in chests, and in the choir of St. Mary's

The prices of books, during the middle ages, were certainly The prices of books, during the middle ages, were certainly commensurate with the inferences which might be drawn from their scarcity; and, in numerous instances, were so excessive, as to be almost incredible. In 1174, Walter, prior of St. Swithin's, of Winchester, and aftewards abbot of Westminster, gave twelve measures of barley, and a pall, on which was embroidered, in silver, the history of Birinus converting a Saxon king, to the monks of Dotchester, in Oxfordshire, in return to Bede's 'Homilies' and St. Austin's 'Pealter.' About 1400, a copy of John de Meun's 'Roman de la Rose' was sold, before the palace gate at Paris, for forty crowns, or £33 6s. 6d. And in Edward Ilt.'s reign, one hundred merks—equivalent to 1000—were paid to Isabella de Lancaster, a non of Ambresbury, for a book of romance purchased from her for the king's use.

THE LIFE OF A NEWSPAPER.—A Western editor with some poetry and a good deal of truth says:—

"The little rill, as it gurgles from its fountain, at the foot of the hill, is so iraignificant that you may stop it with your foot, or step over it without changing your course; but when several hundred of these unite, they form a flood that drives a thousand looms and spindles with almost lightning speed, and makes the ponderous forge hammer "hop like a parching pea."

Just so it is, with the small sums due us. Each one by itself is insignificant, and easily managed, at any time, by that same good friend; but these same items, if collected together and poured into our pecket, would create a power, that would make our Press work, with as much energy as would Page's great electro-magnetic battery. great electro-magnetic battery.

The subscribing parties then bind themselves, that in case Prince Louis Benaparte should get himself elected as Emperor for life, they will not recognise him as such, till he should, among other thing, formally renounce all pretensions to the continuation or founding of a dynasty; and that in the event of his declaring himself hereditary Emperor, they will protest against it; and consult as to the ulterior measures which it may be necessary to take. They then hold out the tempting assurance to the legitimist party, that should Napoleon be removed from his position by revolution or death, they will use all the means at their disposal to restore the legitimate heir of the crewn, the Comte de Chambord.

TERRIBLE STEAMBOAT CASUALTY-250 LIVES LOST.—
The steamer Atlantic, at two o'clock this morning, came in collision on the Lake with the propeller Oglensburgh, and suak in half an hour. The Atlantic had on board 500 passengers, 250 of whom a were lost. The remainder encoceded in getting on hourd the Oglensburg with aching on but their night clothes, and were throught in here this morning. TWO DAYS LATER.

The Steamer Northern Light from San Juan (8th.) with 300 passengers and $150,000 in gold dust, arrived at New York on Sunday morning. She reports San Juan healthy and the river in guod navigable condition: also that the markets are dull and well supplied, except flour, of which there is none on sale.

The Northern Light brings two days later intelligence from San Francisco, from which we learn that through the intercession of Mr. Dillon, the French consul, amicable relations had been restored between the Americans and foreigners in the district of Mariposa, and all parties had returned and were quietly pursuing their business at the minre.

A rumour prevailed at Sacramento on the 16th, that Georgetows had been destroyed by fire. The report requires confirmation.

Feyers at Martinique.—From St. Pierre, Martisique, Juy, 26, we learn that 45 persons a day were dying of the yellow fever, including some of the most distinguished personages, one of whom was Licut.—Colonel Castabray, who had seen fifty years of service, and commanded under Napoleon in twenty-eight campaigns. The island has been deluged with rains, attended with considerable dumage by landslides, and carrying away of cane and other ground productions.

Charlottetown, Aug. 30, 1882.

TO THE HON. GROWN CLEES,

If, an I showed you in my last, the revenue of the Island increased in a bearting that does not fail to the lot of every scountry, and soil as a bearting that does not fail to the lot of every scountry, and soil as a bearting that does not fail to the lot of every scountry, and soil as a bearting that does not fail to the lot of every scountry, and soil as a bearting that the soil and state revenue of the season of th

IT is the intention of the Sons of Temperance, we understand, to hire the Steamer Rose, for a public Pleasure Excursion, accompanied with music, up the River, on Friday next, at 3 o'clock, P. M. The proceeds are to be applied to the liquidation of the expences, the Sons have incurred in the formation of their Brass Band. When it is considered that this is the only regularly constituted Band that we possess, and that its services have never been withheld on every proper occasion, and often given gratuitously, we trust they will be successful, and that their appeal to the sympathy of a generous public, will not be in vain.

Launched.

From the shipyard of Mr. Thomas Seage, Cascumpec, on Thursday, the 19th instant, for James Yeo, Esq., a superior copper-fastened, juniper-built Ship, to class six years, named the Lady Seymour, 1000 tons. Will sail for Bristol on or about the 30th September. For Freight or Passage, apply to James Yeo, Esq., Port 11:11 Hill. On the Brothers, Wheatly River, a very superior built Brig of 224 tens, old measurement, called the Scotia, for model and workmanship this vessel is considered by competent judges to be one of the best over built on the Island.

The American Schooner Golden Rule, Bartlett, master, from Gloucester, United States, captured a few days since by the Cutter Telegraph, and brought into this port, has, we are pleased to learn, been released through the elemency of Vice Admiral Sir George Seymour. We understand, that on the arrival of the Admiral at this port, the American Captain waited on His Excellency and expressed his contrition for his conduct, and stated his all was vested in the vessel. Seeing something like forgiveness in the countenance of the venerable veteran, he came on shore and engaged the professional services of John Longworth, Eq., to draw up a memorial to Sir George Seymour, which was soon after presented him. On the following day, a note was received from Sir Alexander Bannerman,—with whom the Admiral had conferred—to Lieutemant Chetwynd, the officer in charge of the prize, to release her. Fortunately for Jonathan, his vessel had not been handed over to the Court of Vice Amiralty on the arrival of the Admiral here.—Isl.

H. M. Sloop Basilisk, Hon. Capt. EGERTON, returned to this port on Saturday tast, from a cruize round the westers shoree of the Island – having previously landed His Excellency Vice Admiral Sir G. F. SEYMOUR at Pictou—and having delivered Despatches to His Excellency the Lieut. Governor, proceeded immediately to see.

FREEHOLD PROPERTY

THE FARM lately occupied by the Subscriber of 100 acrea, them of 60 of which are within fences, and in a good state of cultivation, with the buildings thereon, consisting of a Cottage, a large Barn and other Out-houses, a Well of excellent water is in the year. This valeable Property is pleasantly situated within a few chains of the Public Wharf at Green's Shore, commands a beautiful view of Bedeque Harbour, Northumberland Strait, and New Brunswick in the distance; a large supply of mud suitable for manure is on the prem'ses and a great quantity of Seaweed can be obtained on the shore; it would form a pleasant residence for a genteed family, or for any person wishing to carry on Agriculture, Shipbuilding or Mercantile pursuits. There are Packets running weekly between the above-named Wharf, FOUR WATER LOTS Nos 1, 2, 3, & 4; each containing 3500 square feet, with privilege to build to the channel, a distance of 200 feet. A good Dweling-House, Stable and Granary, a well of excellent water with a pump therein, are attached to Lot No. 1, and a Dwelling-House stands on Lot No. 4.

ALSO, on the opposite side of the street, TWO LOTS—Nos. 5 & 6—0 75 by 100 feet each. On No. 5 stands a Dwelling-House.

ALSO, on the second street from the Wharf, and fronting North,

5 & 6—of 75 by 100 feet each. On No. 5 stands a Dwelling House.

ALSO, on the second street from the Wharf, and fronting North, TWO OTHER LOTS—Nes. 7 & 8 of the same dimensions as the last. All the above cited lots are well calculated for business stands either for Mercantile or Mechanical purposes.

ALSO, FIFTY ACKES OF LAND situated on Township No. 25, formerly 'Maxfield's Property,' all within fence, and mostly under cultivation, with a New Saw Mill in excellent working order and a good Mill House. This Property is situated in the heart of a flourishing settlement, and commands two good Mill Streams capable of driving a large amount of Mill Machinery.

ALSO, on the same Township, and part of said 'Maxfield Property,' FOUR FARM LOTS of each 96, 82, & 53 acres, unimproved, and 50 acres, 25 of which are cleared; these lots all front on the public Road.

ALSO, all that well-known FARM AND BUSINESS STAND at Indian River, Township No. 18, late the property of William Wallace, of 44 acres, held under lease for 999 years, at an annual rest of One Shilling per acre, with the Buildings thereon, consisting of a DW ELLING HOUSE, BARN, STORE, GRANJARY and other Out-Buildings. A well of excellent water is in the yard.

and other Out-Buildings. A well of excellent water is in the yard Twenty acres of this farm are within fence and under good cultivation; the situation of this property gives to it many valuable advantage either for business or mechanical purposes, it being at the junction of the Indian River, Malpeque, and St. Eleanor's Roads, near to a School and to the Catholic Chapel and in the midst of a flourish the companier.

of the Indian Kiver, Malpeque, and St. Leanor a Rodus, near to a School and to the Catholic Chapel and in the midst of a flourishing and wealthy community.

ALSO, at Seven Mile Bay, Township No. 27 near the Catholic Chapel, about 30 miles from Charlottetown, TWO FARMS of 120 acres each, on one of which there is a new House partly finished, a large New Barn, 30 x 44 feet and other out-building; these Farms are beautifully situated, fronting on the Strait of Northumberland, with a gradual descent to the shore where an abundance of Seamanure can be easily procured. About 70 acres of each of these farms are cleared and under good cultivation, and each has a piece of Salt Marsh attached to it from which about 6 stacks of hay may life eat; the remainder of the land is covered with wood suitable for Lumber, Fuel or Fencing. A Post Road runs through these Farms enhancing their value.

COFFEE AS A FUNIDATOR.—The Medical Gazette.—good authority on such a subject—says that such is the power of absorption by coffee that it is one of the most powerful means not only of rendering animal and vegetable effluvia innocuous, but of destroying them. In proof of this the following experiment is given:—"A room in which meat is an advanced degree of decomposition had been kept for some time, was instantly deprived of smell, on a coffee rouster being carried through it, containing a pound of coffee newly roasted. In another room, exposed to the effluvium occasioned by the clearing out of a dung-pit, so that sulphuretted hydrogen and ammonia in great quantity could be chemically detected, the stench was completely removed within half a minute, on the employment of three ounces of roasted coffee: whilst the other parts of the house were permanently cleared of the same smell by being simply traversed with the coffee roaster, although the cleansing of the dung-pit lasted for several hours longer. Too Much for the General.—Many persons who have visited the Presidential Mansion at Washington, will recollect Jemmy Maher, who has been the gardner there for many years. General Jackson had heard rumors that Jemmy was accustomed to get drunk, and be uncivil to the visitors at the White House, so, one bright murning he summoned him into his presence to receive his dismissal.

"Jemmy," said the General, "I hear bad stories about you. It is said you are constantly drunk, and you are uncivil to strangers."

Jemmy. was puzzled for a reply; at last he said—

"General bedad, I hear worse stories about you; but do you think, I believe them! No, by the powers! I know they are lies."

A FRENCH WINDFALL.—An old man who, with his wife, had lived for many years in the Hospice des Vicillards, at Tours, purchased, four years ago, a pair of trousers from a soldier, and wore them until within the last few days. The wife then began to unsew them, and discovered fastened in the hand a piece of paper. "Ah," said the husband, glancing at it, "it is an assignat of the old republic! It is of no use!" "Well," answered the wife, "as there is a little engraving on it, I will paste it to the wall." The day after a person came in, and on seeing the note, exclaimed, "What! do you paste bank-notes of one thousand francs to the wall?" "One thousand francs! Good heavens!" cried busband and wife together, "why, isn't it an assignat?" "No, but a note of the Bank of France for one thousand francs, which sum any banker will give for it." The note stuck too tightly to the wall to be removed, so the visitor out out the brick, and sent it to a banker in the town. That gentleman saw that the note was a perfectly good one, and he sent it, still attached to the brick, to the Bank of France. It was paid at once. The note is dated in 1829. "Galignani's Messenger.

To Professor Holloway.

Sin,—I desire to bear testimony to the good effects of Holloway's Pills. For some years I suffered severely from a pain and tightness in the stomach, which was also accompanied by a shortness of breath, that prevented me from walking about. I am 34 years of age, and natwith-standing my advanced state of life, these Pills have so relieved me, that I am desirous that others should be made acquainted with their virtues. I am now rendered, by their means, comparatively active, and can take exercise without inconvenience or pain, which I could not do before.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF THE GRAYEL, AND A MOST DANGEROUS LIVER COMPLAINT.

Copy of a Letter addressed to J. E. Heydon, Eng., Stdney, New South Wales, dated February 25, 1851.

Sin,—A Mr. Thomas Clark, a settler at Lake George, was for a considerable time seriously afflicted with a complaint of the Liver, together with the Gravel. His medical attendants, after trying all their skill, candidly told him that his case was hopstess, and any further efforts useless. In this situation, and when expecting every day would terminate his existence, a friend recommended him to try Holloway's Pills, and as a ferlora hope he did so, the first dose gave him considerable realist, he therefore persevered in taking them according to the directions, and is now restored to perfect health. He will feel great pleasure in confirming this statements, or even make an affiliavit to the same effect, should it be required.
