ST. ANNE DE BEAUPRE.

AN OLD, BUT ALWAYS NEW, TALE.

Famous Shrine.~An Historic Resume.

ANNA T. SADLIER.

Morethan two centuries ago, Monsig nor de Laval, the illustrious Bishop of Quehee gave this remarkable testimony as to the devotion towards St. Anne, then existing among the people of New France. "We comfess," he says, "that nothing has more effectually assisted us the special devotion manifested by the colony. In 1665, the Venerable Marie de l'Incarnation, wrote as follows from Quebec: "Seven leagues from here," she wrote, "is a village called Petit-Cap, where is a church of St. Anne; our Lord has wrought great wonders there in layor of the mother of the most Blessed Virgin. The paralytics walk, the blind recover their sight, the infirm, whatsoever their infirmity, are restored to health." So wrote the saintly religious in the latter part of the seventeenth cenabout 1648, the parish of St. Anne may be said to have had its origin, when the ed chapels. They were, indeed, its first pastors. There is a tradition, tolerably well authenticated by the finding of certain remains that many years subsequently to this date a chapel had existed. The tradition further asserts that at a remote period some Breton seamen, in fulfillment of a vow made when in peril of a ship-wreek, had constructed at Petit-Cap, some distance from the present Basiliea, a rude frame building as a shrine to St. Anne. In 1858 a pions habitant, in gratitude for some favor received, gave the ground for the building of a church, the corner stone of which was laid by M. d'Alleboust, Governor of New France, and the site of the church solemnly blessed by the Vicar-General of Quebec, M. Vignal. It was begun by M. Thomas Morel, at that time cure, and completed by M. Filon. Cures are recorded from the very beginning, the first being that of a laborer, Louis Guimont, who, suffering from a malady, went in a spirit of faith to place three stones in the foundation of the new church. He was instantly cured. These and many other authenticated prodigies are related in a pamphlet, "The Miracles of Anne," published some ten years after

by the cure, Thomas Morel, In 1668, Father Henri Nouvel, a Jesuit missionary, received from the Cathedral Chapter of Carcassonne, in France, a relie of St. Anne, a portion of a finger-bone. Scarcely was the church creeted when pilgrimes began to flock thither. The savages were no less numerous nor no less devout than their French-Canadian brethren. The pions traditions of the spot were borne to them in their distant settlements by Jesuit Recollet; and they came from the far extremities of the Guli of St. Lawrence, and from the shores of the great Lakes. On these occasions multitudes of canoes covered the surface of the water, in the neighborhood of Beaupie, and such was the ferver, we are told, of the children of the forest, that they were known to drag themselves on their knees from the landing-place to the church, no inconsiderable distance. In 1787, the church was almost entirely rebuilt, pilgrimages became more numerous than ever, and for nearly a hundred years cures and prodigies of various kinds were multiplied. A few years ago, it became necessary to rebuild once more. This time the bishops of the province called upon the faithful of their respective dioceses to assist in their work. The result is the truly magnificent temple, which has replaced the rude frame building of the Breton Mariners. In 1876 His Eminence Cardinal Taschereau, amid a great concourse of priests and people, solemnly transferred the relies from the old church to the new, the church wardens carrying a conopy of crimson and gold over his head, while the elders of the parish bore the picture, which so long had hung above the main altar, and others disputed for the privilege of carrying one of the crutches or other ex-voto. The hearts, which had been presented by the bishops of the several dioceses, were also transferred, to hang before the new shrine of the Saint, as they had done pefore the old. In this year of 1876, on the 7th of May Our Holy Father declared St. Anne to be the special Patroness of the Province of Quebec, without detriment to the title of St. Joseph as Patron of all Canada. It was the good fortune of the writer to visit St. Anne's on two occasions, the first being that of a public pfigrimage, which is well worthy of description, the second privately, when there was more opportunity for detailed observation. One bright and warm July morning we boarded the steamer, which was waiting at the wharf, in Montreal, to convey the swarm of human beings then on board, and many who joined us at various points along the route, I learned that the pi grims numbered fourteen hundred. They were a motley collection: support them the prize of the chief benefactors of the church in the respective dioceses. tion; among them the crippled, the blind and the deaf. One might suppose of Canada. Three of the principal fami-

that every form of human misery was there represented. The St. Lawerence was gloriously blue and bright as we set

OVER ITS BROAD BOSOM.

The vivid sunlight of a typical summer pescription of a Pilgrimage to the day lay on the wharves, the custom house on the ancient church of Notre Dame de Bon Secours, which was the irst stone edifice erected in Montreal. with the figure of Mary looking out over the waters. Villemarie was a city worthy of its name, that morning, with the towrs of Notre Dame rising boldly into rivalry with the verdure-clad Mt.

Between four and five we reached Quebec and a market boat soon carried us off, and in less than two hours, landed us at St. Anne's. We went straight to the in bearing the burden involved in the convent, where the feminine portion of our party were hospitably received. The the special devotion manifested by the inhabitants of these countries towards the good St. Anne, a devotion which we depend of the gray distinguishes the good St. Anne, a devotion which we de Paul are familiarly called in Canada. the good St. Arme, a devotion what we are confidently assured distinguishes them amongst all other people."

This devotion has increased proportionately with the growth of that infant the strength of the vice when the strength of the stre looked out from the upper gallery of the convent upon the vast expanse of the St. Lawrence, the low-lying shores op-posite, misty with distance, and the hills of the Laurentian chain extending southward as far as the eye could reach, and there was nothing to be desired in beauty of prospect. The village of St. Anne proper consists of but a single street, extending along the river bank, and on the slope of the mountain, the people numbering some one hundred and fifty mry. So it may be written now nearing families, give a total of eight hundred the close of the ninetcenth. Somewhere, communicants. These simple inhabitants know little or nothing of the great world. They keep the primitive customs of Fathers of the Society of Jesus said Mass | earlier days, and poverty, drunkeness. and administered sacraments in improvis- and crime, are almost unknown amongst them. The church, recently created a Basilica of our Holy Father, is the centre of life in that little village of Beaupre, and many of the houses bear some outward sign that they are prepared to offer hospitality at very moderate prices to pilgrims. The church, the presbytery. and the sacristy, occupy a conspicuous portion of the village street. In the rear of the latter is a species of sloop, where pious objects and mementoes of the spot are sold. On the op-posite side of the street is the chapel of processions which stands upon the site of the former church. It is constructed peating the night prayers out of the pictures, more quaint than beautiful, usually representing escapes from shipwreek, or the like. One, consisting of a group of miniature portraits of the queen of France and her children kneeling before St. Anne, is probably of SOME ARTISTIC VALUE.

The altar is extremely ancient. The chapel itself being on a height, bears some resemblance to the Scala Sancta of St. Anne d'Auray. The presbytery is a handsome cut-stone building, erected by the Redemptorist Fathers, who have style. The lateral chapels, that is to an commercial life, where one might sup-say, the decorations, as well as the altar and statue in each, are owing to the generosity of individuals, or of communities. That of St. Francis Xavier is of the Jesuits, another of the Oblate Fathers, another of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, another of the diocese of Three Rivers. The Stations of the Cross, each one a line basso-relievo, are given by families or individuals. In the sacristy, among other objects of interest, is an engraving presented by the cele-brated French Canadian writer, the Abbe Casgrain, to the Redemptorist Fathers who are in charge of the parish of St. Anne's. It is a very aucient engraving, and as the quaint device inscribed upon it declares it the true portrait of Frant Didae Pellettier, a lay brother among the Recollets, who died in odor of sanctity in the mission of New France, in 1669, and whom God has honored by various miracles. Over the high altar hangs the well-known picture of St. Anne, attributed to Le Brun. It represents the Eternal Father, with St. Anne and the Blessed Virgin, having two pilgrims at their feet. Below are the arms of the donor, the Marquis de Tracy. at that time Viceroy of New France. The picture was given in gratitude for a narrow escape from shipwreck. A silver lamp, which also dates back to those primitive days, was presented by M. de la Chenaie another of the worthies of the French regime in North America, and a silver reliquary, by Monsignor de Laval. A crucifix of massive silver remains in eternal remembrance of the Cid of New France, the Sieur d'Iberville, the most distinguished of a family of heroes, who won their laurels both by sea and hand. In the sacristy is still shown the chasuable worked by the royal hands of Anne of Austria for this sanctury d'outre mer. It is richly wrought in gold and silver, red being the groundwork. The vandal hand of time has touched it but lightly, although the brilliant court, within whose circle it was fashioned, has faded almost into a myth. This, with two pictures painted by Luc Lefrancois Recollet. who died in 1655, and presented to the church by the Bishop of Petra, are lies of the parish are represented by gor geous stained windows in the chancel. Thus the old and the n w are ever blended at St. Anne's, and names and memories remain interwoven with it which are also imperishably connected with the history of Canada; for, amid the hosts of pilgrims that have worshipped there, came Laval, the baron-bishop of the proud line of the Montmorencys, who sacrificed the splendors of a luxurious life at court to evangelize the children of the forests; came de Tracy and de Fontenac, d'Iberville and d'Ailleboust, with the devout chieftains of the Huron or Algonquin, as well as the Jesuit heroes, who have made the very name of New France immortal, and the Recollets, who, so brief their stay, though so hard and perilous their lives, have seemed to guide, shadow-like, through early Canadian annals. The Basilica contains two sacred relics of St. Anne, the first, a portion of the finger-bone already mentioned. It is wrapped in a precious veil, which is declared to be neither of wool nor linen, but of a tissue between the two, and enclosed in a rich reliquary. guarded by angels in gilt, and adorned with real precious stones. The second relic was brought from Rome by Rev. lechasse. In the central nave stands the statue of St. Anne, of great height, and placed upon a pedestal, so as to be seen dintinctly from all quarters of the short. distinctly from all quarters of the church.

One rarely enters the Basias here. Now I invite you to give your church. One rarely enters the Basilica at any hour of the day without finding in prayer at the base of the statue some of the afflicted, and by their carnestness of mien, and the fervent clasp of their uplifted hands, one realizes that faith is there. Never did that calm, majestic figure of St. Anne appear more impressive than in the dusk of an August even-ing, when we answered the 'summons to night prayer, usually recited aloud at half-past seven. The church was dim, except for the light of the sanctuary lamps, and the faint reflection of a dving sunset, playing in ghostly fashion through the naves. It was still; only the subdued voice of the religious, in the pulpit re-

BROKE THE SILENCE.

The worshippers were few, compared to the multitude who thronged the edifice evening my most distinct and most solemn recollection of St. Anne's.

I have said nothing, as yet of founterial spirit entirely prevailed, and the hard hands of toil are clasped at the feet of the Mother of Mary. They come from brilliant scenes, where life wears its holiday garb, and hands that have only touched the roseleaves of existence, are uplifted, too, in supplication. Miracles are seen on ous as scarcely to create a surprise. The account of authentic cures are published every month in the Annals of the good St. Anne. Deaf mutes recover speech and hearing, the lame walk, and the blind see. Nowhere has the power of God been more abundantly manifested. Truly, "God is wonderful in His saints," and as if to confound the unbeliever, with his favorite objections of faith cures and nerves and imagination, children in arms, toddling little ones are constantly the object of the good saint's protection In September, 1887, the crown of gold, the gift of Leo XIII., was solemnly placed upon the statue by His Eminence, the Cardinal, in the presence of a great multitude. The faith of the people seemed at that moment recompensed Two hundred odd years of devotion to this glorious patroness, in which the Dominion of Canada has outrivalled la nouvelle France, was then sealed with the approbation of the highest authority upon earth.

During the last ten years there have been at this Shrine 984 organized pilgrimages; 777,694 pilgrims; 675,445 Communions, and 25,014 Masses.

The number of pilgrims during 1890 was 105,672, and of these 20,000 were from the United States. In the same year there were 108,575 Communions and 3,696 Masses.

Most of the pilgrinuges take place in June, July, August and Setember. Over 60,000 pilgrims visited the shrine in last July and August.

Movement of Remains.

The translation of remains of the three Jesuit fathers, Jean de Quen, Francois Du Perron and Jean Liegeois from Belmont cemetery to the Ursuline chapel will take place about the middle of May with great ceremony. The bishops of the ecclesiastical provinces of Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa will be present.

PARNELL'S DELEGATION. AN EPISCOPAL CONDEMNATION.

A Pastoral from the Archbishop—Father Dowd's Address on the Subject.

On Sunday last at High Mass, in all the Ir.sh Catholic churches, a brief pas-toral from His Grace Archbishop Fabre was read, exhorting the fathful to ab-stain from attending the proposed meet-ing in favor of the Parnell movement on the 8th of May next. His Grace inthe 8th of May next. His Grace instructed the pastors of the churches to make the necessary comments, so that his meaning might be perfectly understood. The reading of the document in St. Patrick's called forth the following remarks from the Rev. Father Dowd, P.P., the venerable pastor of that church. He said: My brethren, I hope what I have to say will not give pain to a single member of the congregation. In any case I only discharge a duty that I owe first to my Archbishop, and in the next place to you. Our Archbishop forbids certain meetings announced by the journals, and as dear to me as my own life. I wish our Archbishop is read to day in all the special attention to the remarks and explanations I have to place before you :-Since some time there has been a movement in Montreal on the part of a few persons of little influence to introduce he delegates of Mr. Parnell into the city Some days ago the individuals concerned in this project took a step in advance by fixing the 8th of May next for the holding of a public meeting, at which several delegates of Mr. Parnell are to appear in order to explain and advance the object of their mission. It is well known that the object of the mission to America of those delegates is to collect funds in order to carry on, with success, the warfare commenced by Mr. Parnell in Ireland against

I took away with me that of the population of the country at large Paraiament : against the great majority against the immense majority of the priests of Ire and; and against the unanimous decision of the bishops and tains, one in the square outside the church, of cut stone, surmounted by the statue of the saint; the other, more primitive, in front of the ancient chapel.

The Basilica is 200 feet in length by 100 in breadth and gives the impression of living with varied infirming every week of living water. Numberless beings, stricken with varied infirmities to which humanity is subject have come thither to be made whole. Thousands of pillishop, the fact is plain; the delegates of Mr. Parnell come here as the agents being water.

It is to ask you to give them your money in order to main-tain and extend the spirit of faction amongst the minority they represent. They ask your money to enable them to keep the wounds of poor Ireland open and bleeding as long as possible. Coming to us for so wicked a purpose, we cannot and will not receive them. The advice of your Archbishop is generally sustained by that of the most enlightened and patriotic of the friends of Ireland in Canada, even in the United States. Therefore, my dear brethren, I exhort you in the name of the Archbishop to abstain from attending the meeting in question, and to refuse to encourage in any way the unpatriotic and irreligious mission of the Parnellite delegates. I am unwilling to enter into any of the details of the miser able case of Mr. Parnell; but, so un guarded and so wicked are the expressions used, in reference to the

in the matter, and by persons the least qualified to judge, that I must say one word about it. It is true that all the hishops of Island, without a single exception, condemned Mr. Parnell. What was the reason of this condomnation? The reason of it was, the repeated commission of a crime of the blackest dye made public in a court of justice, admit-ted by the silence of the culprit himself, and tollowed by not one word of regret or repentance. For this crime the bishops, as the organs of the church of Ireland and the official protectors of its morality, declared Parnell to be unfit to hold the place of honor as a leader over a Catholic, a chaste, and a religious people. Could they doless? Could they condone, even by their silence, such a crime without insulting the brave sons and wounding the pure hearts of the daughters of Ireland? it be said that the bishops exceeded their jurisdiction in condemning this odious crime? Are they not by their sacred office the guardians of the Ten Commandments, one of which proclaims: Thou shall not commit adultery. No they did not step beyond their authority but they did stand firm in the position God placed them in, and they grandly executed their sacred trust for the honor remarks by again charging you to abstain from attending the projected meeting and from taking part in any other proceedings that would place you in opposition to the judgment of the bishops of Ireland. You are now happy; you are united together in the bonds of holy peace and harmony. Watch over those bleesings and keep far from the limits of your city that accursed rancour and division city that accursed rancour and division which this Parnellite mission wishes to transplant from poor afflicted Ireland into your midst. Fray for the bishops of Ireland that God may always guide with wisdom, and pray for our brethren at home that like our ancestors they may always reverence and obey their bishops, who have to account for their souls.

A NOTABLE CONVERSION

To the Catholic Church-Mr. and Mrs.

Parsons Lathrop Received. Mr. George Parsons Lathrop and his talented wife, Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, have joined the Roman Catholic Church having been baptized in New York on March 19, by Rev. Alfred Young, C.S.P., and confirmed two days later by Archbishop Corrigan. Mr. Lathrop is well known in literary circles in Boston, where he resided for a dumber of years. His wife is a daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, one of Concord's most brilliant literary stars. In a letter to Mr. James Jeffrey Roche of this city, Mr. Lathrop reviews briefly the reasons for his change of faith, and these doubtless, operated to influence his wife. After assering that no suggestions had ever been made to him in the matter, he says: "The attempt to inform myself about the Church began with the same candor and receptiveness that I should use towards any other subject upon which I honestly desired to form a just con-clusion. Notwithstanding that education had surrounded me with prejudice, my mind was convinced as to the truth, the validity and supremacy of the Roman Catholic Church, by the clear and comprehensive reasoning on which it is based. And, while the reasoning of other religious organizations continually shifts and wavers, leaving their adherents—as we now see almost every day—to fall into rationalism and agnostic denial, the reasoning of the Church, I found, led directly into sublime and inspiring faith. This union of solid reasoning and luminous faith I cannot discover elsewhere. In carefully examining the matter I with a confident appeal to the intellect; and her replies to attacks made by adversaries impressed me as remarkably calm, thorough, free from malice or abuse, and imbued with a profound spirituality; strongly contrasting, as I hardly need remind you, with the prevailing tone of those who resist or disparage her divine claims."

In closing, Mr. Lathrop said: "The Church revealed itself to me as broadly liberal and gentle towards all mankind; been known. Moreover, the present or end in that pagan acceptance of death as an impassable barrier, which one meets in Protestant denominations. It links together religious souls of all periods, whether now on earth or in the world beyond, by a communion which is constant and transcends time. Those with whom our mundane lives have been joined in bonds of personal affection, or by the higher interests of the spirit hose whose visible presence God has taken from us for a time—do not cease, in the Catholic Church, to be still one with us, in heart and soul. Neither, in this communion, are the saints forgotten merely because their human careers were ended ong before our day. The Church retains all, living or dead, in a great company which connects earth with heaven at every moment. This is what one might naturally expect, if Christianity and the spiritual are supreme,"

SUNDAY OBSERVANCES

ARCHBISHOP FABRE'S MANDEMENT

Some Serious Words on the Lack tention to Sunday Duties.

A pastoral letter on the better o vance of the Sabbath from Archbi Fabre was read and commented upon all the Roman Catholic churches on S day morning at Grand Mass. The let produced a great deal of effect, and it forming the subject of monversation in all Catholic families. Norspecial place of amusements on Sunday are expressly and formally forbidden. The letter is a very lengthly one and is replete with copious extracts from the Bible on the observance of the day. His Grace says: One of the duties which our pastoral charge imposes upon is, and one of the most rigorous, is that of watching over and preserving intact the faith and the faithful observance of the rules of Christian morals amongst the flock confided to us. If, for vain motives, we neglected? to raise the voice to point out the dangers which may threaten the faithful under this double aspect, we would be responsible before God for all the harm which might result to the souls: we would incur justly the wrath with which the Lord threatens the mute and pusillanimous guardians, who leave an entire liberty to the enemy. It is that we may not deserve such a terrible reproach, and also for your spiritual wel-fare, that we come to-day, our dear brethren, and point out certain abuses. and even certain disorders against which we cannot speak too strongly, because they tend to nothing else than to destroy in your souls the reign of the Catholic faith, and in society itself religious habits, which are the safe-guard of public morality, which have been transmitted to you by the profoundly Christian spirit. to you by the profoundly Christian spirit of your fathers. In the first place our dear brethren, we must remind you in a solemn manner to-day of the Third Commandment of God, explained by the Second Commandment of the Church, and which orders you to sanctify the Lord's Day. Though, by natural right, man, who owes to God all that he is and all that he has, is held to consecrate ex-clusively to His worship a certain por-tion of the time which is granted him on earth, a positive Divine law from the observed that expositions of doctrine were presented by the Catholic Church which should in a special manner belong which should in a special manner belong to the Lord. This was the seventh day, in memory of that having created the world in six days, the Lord rested on the seventh. This day is called the Sabbath, that is to say, rest, and God gave it as an authentic sign of the alliance which lie contracted with men for their sanctifica-tion." Then follow Biblical extracts, and His Grace says much of the severity which existed under the law of Moses regarding the observance of the Sabbath. Christians are thus worthly justifying, in my estimation, those titles of Catholic and of mother church by which she has always spend the day in religious observance. spend the day in religious observance. "What is specially forbidden on that active and incessant spirituality of the Church does not stop short with this life, of the day and to the respect due it; to of the day and to the respect due it; to spend it in profane and dangerous amusements; to change a day of prayer into a day of sin and scandal; this is what most offends the Lord, and the disorder which most excites his wrath against men." After an extract from St. Antonin His Grace proceeds: "Will Sunday then be reserved for all the bad which could not be done during the week? Must the Lord's days be converted into those of Satan; must the solemnities, the exterior practices of piety, be soiled and confounded with public amusements filled with danger, judged and condemned in themselves as being the cause of the spiritual ruin of a great number? No, our dear brethren, and your religion revolts against this idea. you wish, we are sure, to conserve for you and your country a reputation for piety and morality so justly acquired and we may count on the generous support of all to remove from amongst in all the deplorable abuses which in these latter times have sought to obtain a footing here. We, therefore, again denounce aud condemn absolutely on Sunday the clandestine trade in intoxicating liquors, frequenting saloons and reunions more or less numerous, in which young men and fathers of families, victims of the plays of chance, pass long hours in forgetting their duties, their souls, their God, and exposing themselves to the loss of their conscience and their honor. We prohibit equally on Sunday those picnics, pleasure excurs honor. We prohibit equally one Sunday those picnics, pleasure excur-sions, organized for the public, with view to speculation, and which, like are perience proves, are mostly always occasions of licentiousness, drunkenness rows and other guilty acts. We parallary deplore that kind of amusementately introduced in Montreal and which, by the advertising of moffensi which, by the advertising of money concerts and promenades; the crow invited, at great cost of advertising, public place, there to witness dam perilous exploits, and acts contrary morals, in a word all that is seen in a dishonest circuses, and these special are not only given without scripted. IMPETRATION OF THE MASS.

THAT CHRIST REMOVED

SHORT SERMON FOR BUSY PEOPLE.

"He hath made a memorial of his wonderful works."-Psalms. While the saintly Bishop Cheverus was in Boston, he preached once in a Protest-ant church at the request of its pastor, ant course at the request of its pastor, a learned and good man. His subject was "The Read Presence." At the con-cusion of his discourse the Protestant minister crossed to where the holy prelate was kneeling and in a we-struck tones said: "If what you say be true and you receive daily the Son of God, you must be a very god!" The bishop naively re-lates that he kept silence. If all that you read and hear about the Holy Mass be true, dearly beloved, it would seem that we should maintain a discreet silence when questioned about our appreciation of its priceless blessings. The moment when a Catholic realizes the value of the Mass marks an epoch in his spiritual life. His attendance at Sunday Mass is more devout and loyal; a desire to assist at daily Mass is awakened, and if not efficacions throughout the entire year, is so at least during advent and Lent. He can appreciate the sentiments that inspired the Saints to endeavor to hear as many Masses as possible. Devotion becomes strong and substan-Abundance of graces develop his soul's life a swiftly as the warm spring sun quickens the throbbing earth.

First, if you regard the Massasa personal as Someonther to the priest or the faithful who really concur in its oblation : it has all the effects of any good work and from its airmity these effects are in the and sins, it is liable to be hindered in its effect by the obstacles raised by the divine justice. The more numerous and quests being granted. Insomuch, then, and conditions of prayer for others, the individuals does not always infallibly obtain its effect.

The most powerful effects of the Mass, personal action of Christ. For as your know the priest is an instrument while Christ, in this as in the other sacraments, is the Principal from whose dignity and gersonality all the power of moving God that the Mass possesses is derived. It is well to remember that Christ does not ment in the Mass-His power of acquiring ment ended with His earthly life. In the Mass He simply applies for our benefit the morits that he carned. Nor does the Mass directly forgive sin or even increase the sanctifying grace in our own soals as do the sacraments. It would be untrue to say for example that if a sinner assisted at Mass and possessed or conceived attrition that he would thereby be justified. But as far as direct action or benefit to man is concerned the Mass is effective, inasmuch as t possesses the power of propitiation and impetration. For it appeares the Divine wrath aroused against man, either because of sins not yet remitted or because of the unpaid punishments due to remitted sin. These impel God through vindictive justice either to inflict evils upon us or at least to refuse us further and fuller spiritual aids. By placetting God's anger the Mass renders Him inclined to bestow benefits upon us. For the most part these are spiritual, although oftentimes when conducive to our salvation we receive temporal favors likewise.

Through the Mass, therefore, sinners' hearts are touched and they receive the grace of true reportance and reconcilia-tion with God. We receive abundant helps in our strugg'e against the tempta-tions that surround us; either in the shape of more efficacious graces to enable us to resist, or even such aids as will lessen the assaults and even do away with them. At Holy Mass the pure young girl in the tresh innocence of her soul can pray for and obtain the grace of prudence that will enable her to escape the pitfalls all around her; God's protect-

The sinstained will feel the gentle insistence of the True Cross, what is probably one of the largest pieces in the world is now the largest pieces in the world is now the largest pieces in the world is now the largest pieces. them advance in the spiritual life, di-recting their thoughts to works of charance; to increase their future glory. They will learn by future experience spiritual and temporal necessities. Those who go daily to Mass can testify that to the Heavenly Father not only through His delegate, the priest, but also that when He is really present. He intercedes Himself for men, is an additional as urance that these benefits shall be bestowel. It must be remembered, however, that we cannot always infallibly secure To this end, do no brethren, you cannot this or that petition for which we ask in receive too much instruction upon the Mass. For although the prayer of Mass. It is indeed a complete memorial Christ is infallibly sure of a hearing, yet of the worderful things the Lord has the conditions required in praying for done. Even for those who assist at it, though in a state of mortal sin, while it can bring mither merit nor satisfaction, it has abundant power to obtain graces by intercession.

Since the power of impetration is much affected by the worthiness of the one interceding as well as by his past offences, and sins, it is hable to be hindered in its the choir of the Virgins. Speaking upon the subject of the "Promotion of Good Citizenship," he made some remarks that might well be laid to heart by that, happily small, class in Canada who by way of brief description may be said to follow in the train of the "noble thirteen." Principal Andrews said:-Another great question is the Catholic question. Many good Americans say that no Catholic can be a good citizen. People who declaim against Catholics might say that the constitution was a compact with the devil, as the aboliand bloodshed. I am not prepared for that. Are you? Roman Catholic 'ecclesiastics have declared that every man's first duty was to the spiritual power. Well, what of that? I was brought up in Western Massachusetts and my good father always taught me that my first duty was to God. Protestantism has always taught that doctrine. The "invincible ignorance" which the Episcopal coachman of the Queen City once said would save its people from utter condemnation seems as rampant as ever. In connection with the discreditable action of this " County Lodge" the press tell an amusing story to the effect that at the same meeting at which Mr. Clarke was "condemned" a service of plate was presented to the Past t'ounty Master for the latter's supposed antwerving devotion to the cause of aggressive Protostantism. But it so happens that this noble champion is an ablerman in Toronto and was one of the council who voted for the very proper resolution in honor of the late Father Laurent. The fanatics are even compelled to laugh at themselves.

Lord Knutsford's Bill in Parlism To Support International Obligations,

London, April 27.—In moving the second reading of his bill known as the Newfoundland Coercion bill in the House of Lords to-day, Lord Knutsford, secretary of state for colonial affairs, contended that the bill did not interfere with local questions in Newfoundland no with the independence of the Colonial with the independence of the colonial legislature. He also said it was a matter of Imperial obligation that the arrangement affecting the fishing rights of France should be as binding upon the colony as upon the Empire. The Government, he added, desires to meet the wishes of the colonies so far as is consistent with international obligations. Lord Knutsford added that the measure took the colony by surprise. colonial Government, he said, never held out any hopes that they would basis of arbitration and they could not expect the French Government to accopt general arbitration. If the colonists made that the sine qua non, the Imperial Government would go on with the billin its present form. The second reading of the bill would not take place in the House of Commons before Whitsuntide (week of May 15), thus giving ample time to consider any amendment which might be suggested. Lord Knutsford hoped reasonable counsels would prevail and thus maintain harmony all round. He said that if before the bill reached the House of Commons the Colonial Legislature passed an act which in the Government's opinion was sufficient to secure the observance of the modus rivendi of 1891, and to enforce the decision of the arbitration commission on the lobster question, and regarding the treatics existing between England and France, the Government would not proceed with as rapidly as possible. The Government But difficulties of an international character required careful handling, and the passage of the Colonial set should not be delayed until the terms proposed by the Imperial bill were set-The Government saw no difficulty in giving Newfoundland representation on the Arbitration commission. In fact, the Government had requested the colony to name a delegate to act on the present arbitration commission, but the colony had refused to do so.

A reporter passing St. Paul's shortly after the urs of Mass to begin noticed a number of ladies stanling upon the sidewalk near the church conversing in a most excited manner. They were approached and asked the cause of their apparent perturbation. The answer was astonishing: "Why, Mrs. Smith has been poisoned and is dead." The ladies had each a different tale, and that the proper version of the affair might be given the reporter hurried to the residence of Mr. J. C. Smith on Is abelia street. Mr. Smith said :- "I was not in town at the time and do not know the particulars, but Miss Mabel, Gardner will ted you all about it. She was a witness to the whole dreadful affair." It was then made public that Miss Smith, Miss Told, and a servant girl had been poisoned and had a marrow escape from death, it is supposed, through eating canned tomatoes.

CONSPIRACY UNMASKED.

Charles Tupper's Article on the North American Review. NEW YORK, April 25 .- The May numer of the North American Review contains two important articles on Canada, one from the pen of Sir Charles Tupper. "The Wiman Conspiracy Unmasked," the other by Lord Lorne, en-titled "Canada and the United States." In concluding his article, Sir Charles Tupper says:—

"Brought face to face in the recent campaign with the electors, Sir Richard Cartwright declared that the Opposition would not take the United States tariff, and repudiated his own heachman, Farrer. Mr. Laurier went further and denied that their policy of unrestricted reciprocity involved discrimination against England. But the ugly fact remained that Mr. Wiman, convicted by the letters of Mr. Farrer and Mr. Hitt of being engaged in treasonable conspiracy to subvert British institutions in Canada, still implored for moral support from Congress and the people of the United States for the Laurier-Cartwright party, and the Government were sustained by a larger majority than they had at the previous general elections. To com-plete the discomfiture of the Opposition, this was followed by the publication of a letter from the Hon. Edward Blake, one of the most able and respected members of the party, who, rather than bind him-self to their policy, had ceased to be niversary will be celebrated, on account their leader, and now declares that his too of the joy of seeing our beloved Pontiff left to us by God for this new was because he was 'unable to fight refusal to go into the battle with them was because he was 'unable to fight under false colors.' Mr. Blake, who today represents the great body of the Opposition, who, with few exceptions, are loyal to British institutions, has rudely torn the 'mask' to which Farrer alluded from the faces of the conspirators, and the delusion of unrestricted reaprocity may be regarded as dead and buried.

LOTD LORNE ON ANNEXATION. The Marquis of Lorne is a firm believeer in the the resources, prosperity and future of Canada, and in the loyalty of the Canadian people. In interesting pa per on the relations of Canada and the United States, he writes :-

Opening of Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 28.—The Hon. John Carling, minister of agriculture, has been called to the Senate. Hon. Senator Lacoste has been appointed speaker of the Senate. As previously announced in the public press Mr. Peter White will be the next Speaker of the House of Commons and it is also definitely settled that the Deputy Speaker will be Dr. Grandbois, of Temiscounta, Quebec. These appointments, it is almost needless to say, will give general satisfaction. Dr. Grandbois was one of the Government whips from Quebec and very popular. All is now in readiness for the opening of Parliament to-morrow. Both chambers have been thoroughly renovated and put in order, the stall of officials and messengers have nearly all arrived and re-ported for duty, and all that is now required to set the parliamentary mahinery in motion once more is the presence of the members and the formalities. There have been some alterations and repairs for this session. In the Commons n new floor carpet has been laid, and the western corridor has been recarpeted. The lavatories throughout the building have been rem stelled with the latest sanitary appliances. In the Senate lob-by the old crimson carpet has been relaid, the desks in the chamber removed and the whose thoroughly cleaned.

The business urmorrow will be confined to the swearing in of members and the election of a speaker. The former ceremony will take place in the morning and the latter in the afternoon. The Governor General will not be present but will be represented by the Deputy-Governor. The formal opening will take place on Thursday. A large number of invitations are being issued for the columns advancing upon Manipur show that the British troops are now within 10 miles of imphal, the capital of Manipur. A body of cavalry sent forward en recon aissance has regained the main body of the British troops and report that the troops found the country ahead to be deserted. The British force will attempt to take Imphai by assault at 5 o'clock to-morrow morning, unless the capital surrenders before that time. It is re-ported that the Maharajah has fled from Manipur, and, previous to his departure, he caused the town to be fired. Manipur is said to have been destroyed. Sinla, April 24.—The British column advancing on the Manipuri, under General Lockhardt, resched a large native settlement in the Behagri valley. The British force halted when within sight of the settlement and sent scouts forward to inform the Manipuri that the British generals were awaiting proposals of peace from the insurgent tribes. The rebels refused to answer and the British troops were ordered to advance. The British column pushed forward and burned twelve villages which had been occupied by the rebels.

A Complicated Affair. Quite a stir has been created in politic al and legal circles in consequence of its becoming known that Dr. Mousseau M. P. for Soulanges, and a man from the same county named Bray had been committed to stand their trial at the next term of the Court of Queen's Bench Pierre Bray was a pensioner at St. Poly carpe, receiving an annual sum of $30 from the Ottawa Government for services in the militia during the war of 1812. On the 25th of June, 1890, the old soldier died, and on the 4th of July following his son, Lewis Bray, affixed his futher's signature to the document necessary to draw the sum of money in question, and Dr. Monsseau certified to its authenticity. It appears that Mr. Bain, ex-M.P. for Soulanges, had informed Bray that the money could not be rightfully drawn, since his fat' or was dead; but he did not heed the advice of his member, and hence his present difficulty.

On Sunday, April 5th, the census for Great Britain and Ireland for the decade 's101 took place, and, at all events as for as Irelan I is concerned, undoubtedly will show a sad diminution of the population. THE WHANGO TREE.

A NONSENSE SONG.

The woggly bird sat on the whango tree,
Nooping the rinkum corn,
And graper, and graper, alas! grew he.
And carsed the day that he was born.

Now the whongo tree had a bubbly thorn,
As sharp as a unonic's bill,
And it stuck in the woggly bird's umptum,
for he dependent the smart did thrill.
And weepadge, the smart did thrill.
He tumbled and cursed, but that wasn't the worst,
For he combin't at all get free,
And he oried "I am gammed, and unjustibly

MOVING MOUNTAINS.

A most curious event is said to have happened in the year 1571, in Hereford-shire, England. On the 17th of February, which was Saturday, at six o'clock in the evening, the earth began to open and a hill with a rock under it, making at first a loud bellowing noise, which was heard several miles off, lifted itself up to a great height and began to travel, bearing along with it the trees growing on it, sheepfolds, sheep and cattle that happened to be grazing on the hill at the time. It left a gap in the ground about fifty vards broad and one hundred long. The size of the hill was about twenty acres at chapel standing in the way, removed a yew tree planted in the churchyard from the same force it thrust before it highways, sheepfolds, hedges and trees. Tilled ground was made pasture, and pasture was turned into tilled grounds. The hill continued to move by fits and extent at Blackmore moved bodily a distance of some five bundred yards. The messagel tences upon it were but little distincted, but it knocked down a church and sunder, dwellings on another field; crossing the highrend to Herne, blocking writers of the period, and gave rise to no end of hightion respecting property rights. In the royal archives is an exact account of three events which are described under the heading "Prodigies of Nature.

WILLIAM TELL.

The Government of the Canton Schwytz has ordered the suppression of the legend of William Tell in the history books in use in the cantonal schools. All good Swiss will observe this decision with displeasure. The Canton Schwytz is very wrong; at least it should have consulted the opinion of the country.

William Tell certainly existed. That patriot was a poor peasant of whom the popular imagination has made a hero, and with reason. It is proved that he was one of the leaders of the Swiss revolution of 1308, that he was the son-in-law of Walter Furst. He was present at the battle of Morgaten, 1315, and died in 1354 at Burglen, being treasurer of the Church of that borough: of this there is no doubt. The only history contested by some historians is that of the apple. This is the tradition:

Having refused to salute the hat which Gessier, governor of the country for the Duke of Austria, had caused to be elevated on the square of Altorf, he was, they say, condemned to die unless he succeeded in hitting with an arrow an apple placed on the head of his son. He did succeed, but, nevertheless, guarded Gessier accompanied him. During the crossing, a violent tempe-t having arisen. Tell was unbound and put to the rudder. He saves the bank, and arrived close to the shore, he icaps on a rock, and thrusts the back back with his foot, Being ambushed in a marrow pass leading to Russnacht, he killed Gessler with an arrow shot iron, a bow which, with much trouble, he had managed to bring with

This beroic deed is not impossible, and Januasionished that so much bitterness should be snown in denying a page of our bistory, transmitted from generation to generation for centuries, and which was us horror. The proof of the general displeasance is the subscription opened to raise a statue to him, and which has already restined the sum of 30,000f ($1.200.) I would add that William Tell is the here of a drama by Schiller, and of Rossini's tirest opera —Translated from La Pente Reene Suinse.

THE STORY OF ST. GENEVIEVE.

Many, many years ago a little shepher-dess tender her flock in a country we call France, but which was then known as Gaal. That beautiful land had passed through many grievons trials, and its people had once being heathen; but for more than cour conturies it had been under the sway of Rome, and its inhabitants were mostly Christians, speaking the Lam tongue, and having the manhers and customs of their conquerors. All their towns were given Latin names, and the city we know as Paris had then the Roman same of Lutetia. It was a fine town, a though by no means as large as a basis mee become. The barbarians of Europe did not at all approve of the Conversion of the Gauls to Christianity and civilization; and partly for plunder and conquest, and partly to show their long distain, they would at every opportunity sweep down unon the people who had once been barbarians like themseites, and heave an awful trail of carnage behind them. It was at a place now called N uterre, about two miles from Lateria, that the little shepherd girl was bern. The name by which she was christened was one so difficult to pro-sweet child, and from her babyhood seemed destined for some singular and holy career. When she was about seven the good Bishop Germanus stopped at Namerre on his way to Britain, and all of the villagers flocked around him to listen to his words and receive his blessing. Among the crowd his discerning eyes found one little face; and, calling Genevieve to him, he bade her sit down down by his side, and gave hersome kind advice and a copper medal marked with more than ever that she was one set apart to do God's will in some uncommon

In the year 451 that terrible man who called himself the Scourge of God-Attila, the Hun-led a host of his savages and made a descent upon Gaul, with Paris for his goal. Now, there was not in all the world an enemy dreaded like Attila; and the people of Paris were panicstricken and started to run away, carrywith them as many of their household effects as they could stagger under. But little Genevieve begged them to stay and d fend the city; and, taking her position on a bridge over which they were hastening, she told them that if they would go back and pray to God, He would keep Attila away and save their city. They were so indignant at her persistence that they wished to throw her off the bridge into the river. But at that moment a messenger came from St. Germanus, bringing a present to the child in whom he had been so interested; and the people, loving and respecting to good Bishop so much, turned back as she commanded. It was not long before news came that the Romans, calling to their aid the Goths and Franks, had met Attila and his hordes at Chalons, and driven them out of France.

Sometime after this the Franks, who had helped the Romans to save Paris, made an attempt of their own to take the base. Passing along, it overthrew a the city, and were actually pounding about standing in the way, removed a away at its walls. They might have withstood the assault, but the pangs of hungar became fierce, and starvation is the gathers so that the heading conceals as deadly to a garrison as the pikes of a them. The dado rail (which is indisthe west side to the east side, and with hungar became flerce, and starvation is savage foe. Again Genevieve, a taller pensable) is supplied with a correspondgirl now, went to the rescue of her people. Alone, in a small boat, she rowed the curtain dado is hung upon these. It down the Soine, past the painted warriers has a pretty and graceful effect; but it did not succeed in saving Paris; for while seen, but the difficulty of shaking the she was in the country the Franks at last dust out of them regularly and frequentseized the town, and the first news she heard was of its capture, and that many of its best citizens were to be put to death. As to Genevieve berself, Hilperik, the it up, and there it stayed. These curious Frenkish leader, had heard of that mystenth-convol/sions are alluded to by many erious maiden, and had forbidden the gate-keepers to let her into the city; but she put on a veil and walked in unsuspected, and made her way all alone into the presence of Hilperik. She made her demands known, and the great man in spite of himself and guided by a higher power than he acknowledged, granted them. Happily the citizens were not put to death, and mercy was shown to all. So it is not strange that when Holy Church numbered Genevieve among its saints the people of Paris, which she had saved three times, took her for their patron. She lived to be an old woman; but before she died she saw the son of Hilperik become the Christian Clovis. and the walls of the Cathedral of Notre Dame begin to rise; then, with a prayer on her lips, she passed to her reward. A beautiful church-the Church of St. Genevieve, sometimes called the Pantheon-has been raised in her honor, and she has given a name to two religious orders. Her tomb is in the chapel of St. Genevive. attached to the Church of St. Etienne du Mont, and easily accessible to devout travellets.

-Francesca, in Ave Maria.

What is Heaven? It is not a locality which really makes heaven. It is not streets of palaces, broende robes, golden crowns, which constitute the royal possessions of the blessed in the kingdom of God. Nor is it anyas a prisoner, he was sent to Russmacht, thing in the order of natural perfection a strong castle on the Lake of Lucerne. and felicity which constitutes the essential beatitude of the saints, although all this natural beatitude actually accompanies and completes the supernatural with the systems and bacon on it, and glory and beatitude which is their highest | serve at once. and supreme good. This supreme good consists in the immediate vision of the Essence of God subsisting in the three Divine Persons. It is something unspeakable and inconceivable by us in this moral state. Faith gives us an obscure apprehension of it, and grace awakens a longing for it in the depths of the soul. But in the popular description of heaven, and the meditations of ordinary Christians on the future happiness which they hope for, it is almost entirely the natural accompaniments of celestral glory and bentifude which are in it upon, and chiefly in meta) hencal sanguage, analogies derived from this present world and human life. Hence, it is so difficult to explain in popular language the idea of the state of endless happiness, much better than anything to be found in this world, and yet infinitely inferior to the state of absolute and divine beatitude which is the inheritance of the adopted sons of God.

The Tomb of Plus IX. The Italian Catholic union, on the invitation of Count Acquaderna, has constituted a commission for collecting in Rome offerings for the completion of the monument to Pius IX in the Basilica of San Lorenzo outside the walls. It is desired to have the monument completed for the centenary of the birth of the great Poutiff. The commission has taken the name of Commissione Romana in-caricala per il Centenario di Pio IX., and has elected as its honorary president the Commendatore Filippo Tolli, who has accepted the post. The commission is composed of many well-known Roman gentlemen.

Show yourself kind and affable, never familiar; familiarity is generally followed by contempt.

Sympathy has in its own right a singular power of soothing the moral sufferings of the forlorn or unfortunate.

Mortily yourselves every moment of French form, Genevieve. She was a worth, yourself, to atone for your sins.—Mgr. d'Orleans de Lamotte.

HOUSE AND HOUSEHOLD.

A FANCY SCREEN.

A straight piece of India silk is required, upon which is traced and embroidered a design in quaint colours. It needs very little stiffening when ready to be made up, and is simply sewn into a light bamboo stand sold for the purpose, when is often enamelled cord pink, or any colour that will correspond with a cross. From that time the child felt the silk. Should the frame be made of real bamboo it will look better left the rich brown colour natural to it. An India silk sash is draped acr ss the top and down the sides, and bows and twists of ribbon are added where necessary, to make the work look as it it is tied to the frame.

WASHING BLANKETS.

In washing woollen blankets, to avoid shrinkage, do not have the different waters of widely different degrees of heat, and do not apply soap directly to them. The best way is to dissolve two tablespoonfuls of borax in hot water, and add the solution to a tub half full of very hot water; put in the blankets and let them remain one hour, stirring often and rubbing with the hands, but never on a washboard. Squeeze them out of this suds, prepare another water of the same temperature, containing but one tablespoonful of borax, and enough fine white soap to make a nice suds; immerse the blankets, and repeat the same process of cleaning as at tirst. Afterwards rinse through two clean waters of the same temperature as the others, and

ROOM DECORATION,

Paper dadoes, and even dadoes of matting or straight ones of any sort, are (says Florence Fenwick Miller in the Illustrated London News) becoming less fashionable than "curtain" ones of soft silk, which are the latest idea. These are with a series of little rings placed amid ing supply of tiny hooks beneath it, and officer in charge of the southern district the curfain dado is hong upon these. It has a pretty and graceful effect; but it portunities, became a successful sheep having in that time moved a distance of and called upon the people outside the over a mile. A like circumstance is reported to have occurred in Dorsetshire and ISS. A field of over three acres in 1858. A field of over three acres in the state of the st ly is much against them practically.

For washing the hair, says The Ladies' Home Journal, a small piece of kitchen soap put in very hot water until a thick white sud is achieved, is best. Use this first water to cut out the dust, and after that, wash the soapy water out of it thoroughly with clear water that should be very hot, holding your head over a basin and letting it be poured from a small pitcher. Dry the hair first with towels, and then do not braid it while it is damp, but have it either fanned until it is dry, or, if possible stay in your room and let it hang loose until it is free from all moisture. Do not be induced under any circumstances to use a fine comb up on it; it is death and destruction to the hair and not good for the scalp. If there are obstinate spots of dandriff, rub in a little vaseline and brush that place well the next morning.

THE KITCHEN.

COMPLICAR 3.

24 oysters, 4 lb, bacon, 2 lb, buttered toast, I teaspoonful pepper. Cut the bacon in thin, small slices, and roll each piece up. Drain the oysters from their toast, iquor, and place the liquor in a small saucepan. Take six small wooden skewers four inches in length. On each skewer place a piece of bacon, then an oyster, then another piece of bacon, until there are four oysters and four rolls of bacon on the skewer. When each skewer is prepared, place them in a quick oven and bake seven or eight minutes. Cut the toast into longer, narrow strips, and boil the oyster liquor, pour a little over each piece of toast, sprinkle over a little pepper. Place the foast on a very hot dish, and on each strip place a skewer pounds of the flour in a large basin, and prinkle over it the salt. Place the yeast in another basin, and moisten it with tepid water. Pour the yeast and water into the centre of the dry flour, and stiraltogether with a spoon. Cover the basin with a clean towel, and set it in a warm place to rise for two hours. the end of this time sprinkle over the half pound of flour which remains, and knead all well until the doug.: leaves the sides of the basin clean. Turn the dough then out on a board and knead it a little longer. Cut it now into four or six vieces. Make each piece up into a small i af, place it on a tin, and again set it by the fire to rise for half an hour. Bake the loaves then in a rather quick oven for three-quarters of an hour.

The Arms of Ireland.

The ancient times Ireland had a coinage of her own, nullified about 1825 by an act of Parliament, when the coin of England became current in Ireland. The Irish coin had a bust of the reigning sovereign, and on the obverse a harp surmounted by a crown with the word "Hibernia" over it. Ireland had been noted from all time for the number and excellence of her bards and ministrels. who were wonderful performers on the harp, which came to be known as the national instrument. Up to 1172 Ireland was an independent nation, and her banner bore a rising sun, which gained the poetical title of "the sunburst." Henry VIII. changed the arms of Ireland by placing three harps on her heraldric shield. This design is found on the Irish coins of Edward III., Richard III. and Henry VII., and was really the armorial bearings of Ireland from the reign of Richard II. to Henry VIII. The harp is surmounted by a crown to show that Ireland, subject to England, had been a monarchy,

Sir Francis Murphy.

From Melbourne comes the announcement of the death, in his eighty-second year, of Sir Francis Murphy, the first of the four Irish speakers who have presided over the Parliament of Victoria. A native of Cork he studied medicine in Trinity College, Dublin, and then crossed the Channel and became a memgathered to form a heading, and provided ber of the Royal College of Surgeons, with a series of little rings placed amid London. The Mummy Pea. The present mummy pea, which is exciting so much attention in some quarters, was first introduced into Europe in 1871. The previous one made its appearance in England many years before, along with the mummy wheat, the seeds having been discovered by Sir Gardener Wilkinson, an Egyptian explorer, in a vase supposed to be 3000 years old. The peas were removed from the vase by Mr Pettigrew, the librarian, to the British museum, and by him given to various friends to plant and rear, a feat successfully accomplished. The produce was said to be edible and of excellent flavor. consequently the earlier mummy pea became pretty generally enlivated. kind, however, we more particularly allude to here is the one introduced in Europe in 1871. An officer in the British army (Major General Alexander Anderson) happened during the year to visit the tombs of Pharoalis, and, in the course of his explorations, to come across some seeds of peas and wheat in the hands of the mummies, which he carefully preserved until he reached Europe. He gave seeds of the pea to a friend in Guernsey, and others elsewhere. The Guernsey friend succeeded in raising plants from the seeds, which flowed very freely. This, then, is reputed to be the origin of the mummy pea, which has found its way into hundreds of gardens 32 lb. flour, 1 oz. yeast, 12 pint tepid; during the current year. The upper part, cut off with a foot of the mainstem attached, makes a lovely object when placed in a vase, and on that account the mummy pea is sure to be largely grown in the future.

South American Civilization - A Terrible Condition of Affairs.

PANAMA April 24.—Mail advices from Chili say 500 Government troops and 800 revolutionists were killed in the battle of Poso Almonte, in which the Government forces were defeated. Five thousand men were engaged. Two hundred and thirty-four wounded men were taken to Valperaiso. The Government forces lost all their artillery. The cavalry, 700 strong, took no part in the combat, but fled with the routed information fled with the routed wit fled with the routed infantry. The soldiers, it is alleged, while drunk, violated the bodies of slain women. Providence Attorney-General, and died a leadbeef sold at $10 per pound.

The Peruvian consulate is daily be-sieged by hundreds of Peruvians seeking provisions for themselves and their families and the means of returning to the north. The officers and crews of the rebel vessels state they have bound themselves not to lay down arms until they hang President Balmaceda in the principal square in Santiago.

A correspondent at Sarahoa writes that on the morning of February 3, upwards of three thousand workmen collected at Pozo Almonte in order to proceed to Iquique and make a formal represent ition respecting the searcity of provisions. Shortly after they reached the works Manager William Johnson gave them ten barre's of biscuits and 1,000 tins of preserves, which were distributed among the strikers. They remained there that night, and on the following day, sent some of their leaders to Negreyros. There more men were to be collected.

Suddenly, however, a train appeared, loaded with Government troops, under Martin Larram. Without halting or parfeying the troops opened fire on nine nundred defenceless workmen, women and children. Shortly afterward the torces muched forward and killed all the men. Meanwhile, the men from the Negreyros works with the commissioners from Ramirez, returned to their houses. Otherwise they might also have fallen victims. Some who escaped from the slaughter took refuge in the nitrate fields, but were subsequently followed up and killed. After these deeds had been committed some 890 men, were arrested and of this number eighteen were mudered. The Chilian Government and the Chilian rebel authorities have both shot several persons. Among the number was Animbal, a Government officer. who was shot when the rebels retired from Ovalle. It is impossible to tell where these proceedings will terminate. It is stated that when the Government lishments they passed.

Appeal to the House of Lords-Effect of Sir W. Whiteway's Address.

LONDON, April 25.-A statement was read by Sir Wm. Whiteway, Premier and | with regard to the next general election Attorney-General of Newfoundland, on Thursday at the bar of the House of Lords. Sir William detailed the objections of the Newfoundlanders to Lord Knutsford's coercive bill, and concluded with the following proposals, which he North Kill, enny, all the Tory votes polisaid ought, in the opinion of the delegates and the people of Newfoundland, he contest Cork, no one now doubts that to be accepted by the Imperial Government of the 3000 Tory votes in that contest of the 3000 Tory votes in the 3000 ment as a solution of the existing diffi-culties:—"That the Newfoundland dence of another kind was farnished on Legislature pass immediately an act and Thursday hight in the House of Comthorizing the execution for this year of mons, where the Paraellites supported the modus vivendi and of the award of Mr. Balfour's Irish Land bill although the arbitration commission, together this was stremously opposed by Mr. with all the treaties and declarations McCarthy's followers. If this understandunder instructions from the Queen-incouncil. That further progress of the Knutsford bill be deferred until the passage of the above act, and that the present arbitration agreement shall not be allowed to operate beyond the lobster question without obtaining the prior consent of Newfoundland, in which case the colony shall be represented on the commission. That Newfoundland desires that the agreement be for unconditional arbitration on all points that either party can raise un-der the treaties. If this can be a:ranged between Great Britain and France, Newfoundland will ask to be represented upon the Arbitration Commission, and will pass an act to enforce the execution of awards of the commis-

Sir Wiliam Whiteway added that the Newfoundland delegates regret that up to the present moment these proposals have not only not been accepted, but that no hope has been held out that they ever will be accepted. Their adoption, he said, would immediately cause the excitement in Newfoundland to subside. The Newfoundland Premier added that if the Knutsford bill became law it would have to be enforced upon a resentful people, but if the proposals of the Newfoundland delegates were adopted every good object of the bill would be easily and pleasantly attained. The enactment of the bill would leave a rankling wound in the hearts of the colonists, and would establish a precedent which would ever give a feeling of insecurity to every selfgoverning colony. "In offering on behalf of the Colonial Legislature," continued the Premier of Newfoundland, "to enact laws providing for the honorable fulfilment of obligations of an exceedingly odious kind we are animated by a spirit of patriotism and devotion to the empire. Persistence in the passage of the bill, therefore, will be a poor return for the faith in Parliament which animated the Newfoundland Legislature in sending us to the bar of the House of Lords."

The Newfoundland delegates have received many encouraging promises of sup-port from peers and members of the House of Commons. Sir William Whiteway considers the prospect of the acceptservatives is strong against pressing the Knutsford bill.

Irish in Australia.

The suggestion of the Pall Mail Gazette that "it would not be unprofitable to trace all the disaffected Irish who have gone to distant lands there to distinguish themselves," has prompted a colonial correspondent to jot down the names of a few of the "Irish rebels" of forty years ago, who emigrated and achieved distinction in the Australian colonies. Perhaps the two most noteworthy were Wilson Gray and the Hon. R. D. Ireland, Q.C., both of whom were imprisoned by Lord Clarendon, the Balfour of the era. Wilson Gray, the brother of Sir John Gray, of the Freeman's Journal, became the founder and leader of the Liberal party in Victoria, sat for Rodney in the sions were recently so scarce in Iquique that $20 was paid for a can of milk, and beef sold at $10 per pound.

Provithrice Attorney-General, and died a leader of the Australian Bar. Among the other Irishmen who followed Sir Charles Gavan Duffy into exile in Australia, after the betrayal of Sadlier and Keogh, were Hon. Edward Butler, who became Attorner-General of New South Wales under Sir Henry Parkes: Hon. R. S. Anderson, Minister of Justice in Victoria: Hon. Michael O'Grady, Minister of Public Works, and Judges Bandon and Macoboy, of the same colony. Victoria, in fact, has had two ex-hish "rebels" as her Prime Ministers-Sir Gavan Duffy and Sir Bryan O'Loghlen. He was one of the representatives of Queensland at the acrossan was the only Catholic on the Federal Council in 1889, and is the only one, we believe, on the present Councia. He was described by the author of "Problems of Greater Britain" as "one of the shiewdest men in the colony, a subtle reasoner, a quiet, incisive speaker, and for some time the leader of the Northera Separation party." He was a supporter of the movement for the liberation of the land of his birth, and gave great help to Mr. John Dillon, M.P., during his mission to Queensland.

ROME SHAKEN.

A Tremendous Explosion in the Holy City Causes Great Damage.

Rome, April 23.-At about 7 o'clock this morning a tremendous explosion shook this city to its foundation, spreading terror and dismay on all sides. The people rushed affrightened from their homes into the streets. Houses rocked and pictures fell from the walls, thou-sands of panes of glass were broken, crockery was shattered, furniture was overturned, chimneys crashed down on the roofs and in some instances toppled over into the streets. The cupo'a of the house of parliament immediately after the explosion shock violently and then collapsed with a crash which added still further to the feeling of horror which had spread throughout Rome. All the thoroughfares were strewn with bricks, stones, splinters and other debris buried there by the force of the powerful con-cussion which had caused Rome to totter on its foundations. People of all ages and conditions were rushing, pale with fear, about the streets. Rents and cracks appeared in the walls of the houses, the daster feil from the ceilings and general desolation prevailed. In many instances people were thrown from their beds by the shock. The general opinion prevailed that Rome had been visited by an earthquake and that a second shock might reduce the city to ruins. Finally, when something like order had been restored, the real cause of the explosion became known. It was discovered that convention which is at present sitting in Sydney, draiting the constitution of the proposed Australian Federation. Ms. kilometers from Rome, had expleded, and that it had caused enormous damage to the neighboring fort, which was filled with soldiers. The officer in command of the firt heard a rumbling sound pie vious to the final explosion, and, hastily ordering the soldiers to leave the fort, he succeeded in averting a terrible disaster. As it was, several peasants who were in the vicinity of the scene of the explosion were killed outright, and a number of others were more or less injured. The explosion created great

ALARM AT THE VATE AN.

All the windows of the Pope's library were broken and a number of precious relies were destroyed. In addition many valuable panes of colored gass in the principal wintex- of St. Peter's Basilie were smashed to pieces. The handdows were damaged. In fact, the damaged done at this church was so great that the building has been closed to the inaugurated. Much of the destruction wrought by the explosion is irreparable. as the valuable works of art which have been destroyed cannot be replaced. Many of the stained glass windows shattored were the works of celebrated artists who flourished hundreds of years ago, and though in some the windows can be replaced in many other cases their historical and artistic value are destroyed for ever. Many valuable relies in the monastry of St. Paul have also succemb d to the force of the explosion. The Pope had just concluded the celebration of a row mass and was engaged in prayer when the explosion shook the Vatican buildings. So severe was the shock that His Holiness tottered and would have tallen had not one of the attendants sprung forward and caught the venerable prelate in his arms. His Holiness has now recovered from the shock he experienced. The investigation made by the military authorties into the origin of the explosion shows that it was l caused by the accidental explosion of some shrappel shed. A tew of the people who were injured at the time of the explosion and who were taken to the hespitals have died from the effects of the injuries they received.

Sad Drowning Accident.

Sr. Joux, N.B., April 24.-While a rowboat with a dozen young people was returning from a dance on the west side of the harbor early this morning the spring tide drove it athwart the bow of the steamship "Dominion," and despite all efforts two young lodies were drowned. A third young lady was rescued in an exhausted state. Strange to say all the young men of the party escaped. There are strong rumers of cowardice on the part of the men, but they are denied by the steamboat hands, who took part in the resene. below last week by the Government to hunt for smuggled whiskey, returned to port on Saturday night from a bootless errand, although she had a strong force of mer aboard. It appears that they landed on Isle-au-Coudres, and discovered a very large store of contraband cigars and liquors of all kinds, valued at $60,000, but that they were prevented from seizure by the Island population, who were armed to the teeth, and being well primed with whiskey defied the officials. The only capture affected was one barrel of rye whiskey.

Good News From the Prairies

WINNIPEG, Man., April 26. — Telegraphic reports received from points along the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway as far west as Calgary and between the boundary and Prince Albert are to the effect that two-thirds of the seeding has been done, and that early sown wheat is up two or three inches. Considerable spring pleughing has been done. The area of wheat sown exceeds that of former years by from 15 to 20 per cent, oats by 10 to 15 per cent, and barley by about the same acreage as last year. The season is from two to three weeks earlier than last year and the ground is in excellent condition.

Huascar as well as the Blanco Encalada." President Balmaceda's fleet, after administering this severe lesson to the insurgents, returned to Valparaiso without having sustained any damage. Further news received from Chili is to the effect that the warship Florence, which up to the present has been loyal to President Balmaceda, has gone over to the insurgents. It is also stated that the President is in dread of being poisoned. To such an extent does this feeling prey upon his mind that he will not partake of any food which has not been prepared by his own mother. The latter, conse-quently, prepares all of the President's

An Extraordinary Proceeding.

Loxbox. April 25,- Mr. Gladstone has decided to support the Divorce Reform bill, introduced in Parliament by Mr. Hunter. This fact has amazed the Liberais, who believed he would oppose any extension of diverce as a matter of religious principle. The bill entitles a wife to dissolution of the marriage tie in the event of adultery or four years' desertion on the part of the husband. The bill will be debated May I and will prob ably pass, but when carried to the House of Lords it is certain to be rejected, as the bishops will combine against it-
