The Sackville Meeting.

Sir Albert Smith charged Sir Leonard Tilley with being a self-seeking politician; he had stepped out of an office in 1873, worth $8,000 a year only, to accept one worth $10,000, and he had pocketed in all $117,000 of public money for his services, &c. If Sir Albert's charge arises from a well founded conviction that Sir S. L. Tilley is a selfish and grasping politician, always sacrificing principles and party to secure his own ease and comfort, the Conservative party ought to seriously consider the advisability of securing another leader. We propose to show that Sir Albert is mistaken in his present estimate of Sir S. L. Tilley. To do this, we summon to support our position a witness whose authority and credibility Sir A. J. Smith will scarcely call in question, that witness being Sir S. L. Tilley himself. In 1878, he attended a complimentary dinner tendered Lieutenant-Governor Tilley, at the Victoria Hotel, St. John, and he participated in the speaking and delivered a most flattering eulogy on Sir S. L. Tilley, complimenting him on his distinguished public services, on his worth as a public man, and on his fitness for the high and honorable position he then held. With that speech on record, and considering Sir Leonard Tilley has committed no act since except to become Finance Minister, how dare Sir A. J. Smith now accuse him of always being actuated by the basest of all passions—cupidity. We will also summon Sir A. J. Smith to give evidence respecting Sir S. L. Tilley at a much later date—in 1877. At that time Sir A. J. Smith appears to have had the highest opinion of Lieutenant-Governor Tilley as a public man and a statesman and to have displayed unusual regard for the latter's welfare and comfort. In December of that year he wrote him:

"Before leaving for Ottawa, which I shall do on Monday next, I propose to carry out a purpose I have had in contemplation for some time. * * * It is this. What are your personal wishes as regards the future? Do you desire to return to political life, or would you prefer to continue in the position you now occupy. I need not say how successful you have been as Governor; all persons unite in bestowing the highest encomiums on your administration as such and your administration as such and your administration as such. I am quite sure will meet with universal approbation, &c."

If Sir Leonard Tilley was the greedy self-seeker he was depicted by the Dorchester Knight last week, there was an invitation to accept $20,000 more of the people's money, and to avoid all the struggles and uncertain issues of politics. His reply, however, does honor to his patriotism and his disinterestedness. Said he, in reply, in a letter dated 21st, Dec. 1877:

"My re-appointment would secure to me, should my life be spared, five years more of rest and quiet and freedom from political strife, matters of some consideration I admit to a man in his sixtieth year; but considering the readiness shown in certain quarters to charge me wrongfully with being influenced by selfish motives for not standing by my old colleagues to the last, I AM the more CAREFUL not to let myself be placed beyond the reach of my old political friends at St. John from personal considerations. Say I am susceptible on the point, possibly too sensitive, but let the consequences be what they may to me personally I cannot take a step that my judgment has failed to approve."

As your Minister of Finance in Ontario makes some charges against the administration of which, I was Finance Minister, the terms upon P. E. Island was admitted to the Union, the redistribution of the debt of the Province, and the payment of $500,000 a year to New Brunswick in lieu of export duty and other acts for which I claim some credit, * * * you see I cannot approve the policy of your Government. I feel I ought to be free to defend my personal acts from erroneous statements and inferences, and to justify my financial policy. This I cannot well do as long as I hold my present non-political position."

In the face of this evidence before the country, with the proofs furnished by himself that Sir S. L. Tilley refused his offer of another term, and $50,000, and that he preferred the chances of defeat and of an enforced retirement from public life, probably forever, rather than consult his own ease—what man can for one moment believe Sir Albert Smith's infamous slurs? Nay—further. How reckless and wild, Sir A. J. Smith has grown when he ventures to-day to charge the same man as a base money grabber, whose three years ago he wanted to elevate to the high position of Lieutenant-Governor! Will not any reasonable man rather believe that Sir A. J. Smith is animated less by conscientious feeling of public duty, than by envy and malice and hatred to a successful opponent, one whom he cannot meet fairly on the public issues of the day and whom he therefore seeks to destroy by calumniating his private character and fudgily robbing him of what is dear to any honest man—his reputation.

Where was Sir A. J. Smith's professed friendship for Sir S. L. Tilley when the latter refused to accept the Lieutenant-Governorship and to get out of the way? Did he rejoice that at the charge of Government his friend Sir Leonard Tilley had at last secured an honorable and distinguished position? No! After stobbing at all our false professions of friendship, his dagger was the first at Sir S. L. Tilley's throat; with a tongue of envy and venom, he has never since lost a chance to malign and defame him.

Sir S. L. Tilley has we presume received $117,000. But what of that? That sum merely represents the salary he received extending over a period of many years, probably every dollar of which has been expended in maintaining his official position as Lieutenant-Governor or as Minister. Great as it may seem, Sir Albert Smith did not think three years ago it too great, for he offered to increase it $2,000 a year. He is a man of liberal and hospitable instincts, and if he has a dollar he spends it royally. He has not hoarded up his money and laid it out in usury. He has consequently no ships afloat, no bank stocks and no mortgages. He is undoubtedly a poor man, as most of the Conservative leaders are. He had a profitable business in 1856 which promised to make him wealthy and to attend to it, he had determined to abandon it. In his absence the people of St. John re-elected him, and forced him again to the front. In consequence, he gave up his business and his prospects of a competency for himself and his family, to devote himself to public affairs. When such a man after many years of public service finds himself poorer than when he started, is it not an handsome and ungenerous that he should be reproached with receiving the ordinary salary the country pays to its servants? Such contemptible attacks as these degrade political life and render it objectionable to men of the highest qualifications and position, giving room in our legislatures to demagogues, pot-house politicians, and those statesmen who derive their power from their breeches pocket.

The Post respectfully asked Sir A. J. Smith to answer a number of questions on public matters, such as the "Glendon," the "Northern Light," the Bay Verte Canal, the Cape Railway, &c., &c. They were very proper questions for a public man, who was instructing the people, to answer. What was the character of Sir A. J. Smith's answer? Simply that the Post was a "patriotic newspaper devoted to getting $50,000 for a quarter of an acre of land." As Sir A. J. Smith could not deny the blunders and mistakes he had made on these subjects and others, we are bound to admit he made the best answer in his power. But even this $50,000 land shows the folly of pursuing political life as an engine to gratify his personal malignity, instead of using it sincerely as a trust from the people to be employed only in their interests. The facts tell against Sir A. J. Smith. In 1867, Sir A. J. Smith's land. He offered to sell it for $175 or about 60¢ per acre. Sir A. J. Smith refused to pay it, and at his instigation the Government resisted payment for thirteen years, during a portion of which time the Government was finally brought to terms, when it paid not only the original $175, but a sum approximating ten thousand dollars additional for the tax-payers.

It is only usual for public men on such occasions to reply to proper questions respectfully asked, and when Sir A. J. Smith either ignored questions asked by hearers, or he gave childish and insulting replies, it shows he is no longer capable of taking a fair and dignified position in public affairs.

In his speech Sir A. J. Smith said the Post had promised the Conservative party "would build the Cape Tormentine Railway." He asked: "Why don't they do it. They have millions of surplus." As a matter of fact the Post never made any such promise. A glance at our files shows just the contrary. The Post predicted, in 1877, Sackville would lose the Railway altogether if Sir Albert did not cease his shilly-shallying and commit the country to the work. Therefore, Sir Albert's statement is a pure fiction, invented to serve the occasion. When the Railway is built, beyond question it will go to Amherst, the Engineer appointed by Sir A. J. Smith, to make an "impartial" location, but reported and located it at that place.

Sir Hector Langevin, in his speech at Toronto on Thursday evening, drew the following contrast between the position of Canada now and what Canada was at the time of Confederation: "In 1868," said he, "the exports were $57,000,000; in 1881 they were $93,000,000. The imports of 1868 were $57,000,000; in 1881 they reached $89,000,000. The bank capital in 1868 was $30,000,000; in 1881 it stood at $60,000,000. In the first year of Confederation the circulation of the bank was $8,000,000. It was to-day $20,000,000. In 1868, the assets of the banks were $71,000,000; to-day they amounted to $181,000,000. The deposits in the Savings bank in 1868 were $1,142,000; in 1881 they were $11,500,000. The post office revenue in 1868 was $1,000,000; to-day it was $7,000,000. The number of letters which circulated through the post office in 1868, 800,000; in 1880-81 the number was 14,000,000. The railway mileage in 1868 was 2,562; in 1881 it was three times that figure, or 6,891. During the last decade the population had increased by nearly 200,000, and now the National Policy was not only employing our capital and our workmen, but bringing our expatriated fellow-country-men from the United States."

The President.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 6.—The following was sent to-night to Morton, Minister at Paris, and to Lowell, Minister at London: The President left Washington at half-past six this morning and reached Long Branch twenty minutes past one. He seemed to have the journey well though the heat was very oppressive. After arrival, he was for several hours restless, showed signs of great fatigue and complained of his back and a bruised feeling. The pulse rose to 124 and temperature to 101.6. At this hour, half past ten, he is sleeping and the fever is abating. The surgeons regard the symptoms as the necessary result of the journey and expect a favorable change within the next two days. He earnestly desired to leave the White House and his weary eyes welcome the sight of the sea. The developments of the next sixty hours are awaited with solicitude.

(Signed) BLAINE, Sec'y.

—The great advantage of Farming over commercial pursuits is evidenced in the startling fact that not over 10 per cent. of commercial men succeed in business.

Not very many years ago, Hunt's Merchants Magazine, an authority on commercial matters in America, found reason to conclude that not more than five men out of a hundred engaged in commercial pursuits could continue them successfully for a life time. And in 1840, General Dearborn, long the Collector of the Port of Boston, told the country that, as the result of twenty years' observation, that not more than three out of every hundred individuals who embarked in trade were successful.

A list of names of wholesale houses to the number of 100, taken from a Chicago directory of 1870, embracing the first four names that occurred in the alphabetical classification of 25 different wholesale interests, was submitted to Dun's people, who were asked to decide how many of the firms which it contained, had come to grief up to June last. The result of this test was the following:

1. Number of the 100 firms that failed or compromised, either under the original firm name or as successors, 55.
2. Number of the 100 firms that have never failed or compromised, either under original firm name or as successors, 45.

Of 55 per cent. of the firms in the wholesale trade, possessed, it is presumed, of ample means and brains, failed during the limited period in question, it is fair to suppose that the shifting process applied to the remaining 45 during the remainder of a business lifetime would leave but few who would hold out to the end. Should the selection be made from retail and wholesale merchants alike, there seems little reason to doubt that in a business lifetime not more than 3 per cent. would avoid failure. The consideration of this question of business reverses has so depressed the nerves of the Grocers' Bulletin, as to induce that journal to declare, that since these financial depressions have been looked for at least every twenty years, the business man stands as good a chance of being elected President of the United States as he does of continuing it business throughout his lifetime without failure.

An old farmer of Pictou county, N. S., has been overhauling his accounts to see if Mr. Blake's statements about the increased price of everything are correct. He finds a difference in favor of horse-shoeing of 25 cents per set in favor of the present time. Mowers are cheaper now than in 1878, and rakes not dearer. Nails, which cost him then six cents, now cost him four cents. Scotch blankets, which cost him then $6.50 a pair, are now replaced with as good from Nova Scotia makers at $5, and all other necessities required by a farmer, he finds nothing to grieve at. Clearly, those old Scotch farmers of Pictou take nothing for granted, even though Mr. Blake affirms it.—Mail.

PERSONALS.—Sir Leonard Tilley left St. John for Ottawa yesterday morning to present arrangements for the Princess Louise will leave Liverpool for Canada in the Allen steamer sailing on Thursday, Oct. 20th.—Hon. McLellan, President of the Council and Acting Minister of Marine and Fisheries, is on his way to Ottawa, where he will take up his residence.—Rev. Lachlan Taylor, the great traveller and lecturer, died last week at Shaw's Hotel, Covehead, P. E. Island.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER is busy in British Columbia, where he has received in the most cordial manner. He has replied, at length, to special addresses presented to him in Victoria in a general address to a public meeting in that place. In his address he clearly laid the policy of the Government relative to British Columbia and defended its action generally. Sir Charles is now on the mainland, inspecting the work progressing on the section of the Pacific Railway under construction there. He returns in four or five weeks.

The weather the past week has been very favorable to hay-making and a great amount of work has been done. Reports come in from country districts that the potato crop has been seriously injured by the rot, and the rust and weevil have affected the wheat crop.

This schooner is a very fine vessel, and with weather, may be counted good. She was commanded by Capt. W. Tower, of Rockport, who is an old and experienced Captain, one who has been in the coasting trade for over 25 years, and as master has been very successful. The cattle remain under quarantine regulations, but a strong effort will be made to have the term quarantine made as short as possible, so that the cattle may be in St. John before the severe weather sets in.

(From the Moncton Times.)

The Poor—Our Sackville contemporary, the Poor, which stands in the front rank of Maritime weeklies, has lately received several very complimentary notices from the press of St. John and elsewhere. It is always filled with well-written editorials and fresh local news, supplied by a well-organized staff of correspondents in various parts of Westmorland and Albert.

LEGAL.—On Tuesday, before Commissioner E. Geo. Harshman, Sheriff, was tried Tait, assignee of Smith & Barnard vs. Timothy Outhouse; W. J. Gilbert for Tait, H. A. Powell for Outhouse. The demand was for $10.40 for back tally on deals. The defence was that an order had been given in payment which had not been presented in time. The judge ruled that the plaintiff's husband had ordered deals out. Nonsuit being moved for, the Commissioner expressed his opinion Plaintiff made out no case, but was willing to allow Mr. Gilbert to take responsibility of a verdict, which he took. It will be appealed.

THE best joke of the season has been perpetrated by the London, England, Telegraph, which ascribes Canada's prosperity and increase of population to "the beneficent rule of the Marquis of Lorne, aided by the excellent management of that most sympathetic of officials, Col. De Winton." On this the Kingston News shrewdly observes: "The Marquis has undoubtedly contributed as much to the prosperity of the country as he has to the increase of population."

The late Convention held at Yarmouth was the largest ever held, 300 delegates being present. The following officers were elected:—T. H. Rand, Esq., president; A. Simpson, of P. E. Island, and J. W. Brass, of St. John, Vice-Presidents; Rev. E. M. Keirstead and Geo. Gates, Secretaries; W. C. Saunders and Asa T. Morse, Treasurers. A resolution was passed unanimously against College Consolidation.

At the Teachers' Institute held at Hopewell Hill on Thursday, Mr. W. J. Jones was elected President, R. Colpitts Vice and J. T. Steeves, Secretary and Treasurer. The occasion was an interesting one, several valuable papers were read and addresses delivered.

MONCTON SUGAR REFINERY Co. met on Tuesday. J. L. Harris was re-elected President, C. P. Harris, Treasurer; and J. Mackenzie, Secretary, and the following directors: J. L. Harris, J. C. Lamb, C. B. Record, Geo. W. Chandler, Josiah Wood, J. B. Elliot.

THE SKY was yesterday afternoon much darkened by the smoke. The same appearance was noted on Tuesday over a large portion of New England and is supposed to have originated from the great wilderness fires in Ontario.

THIS GREAT REGATTA at Toronto takes place to-day. Hanlan is being denounced for his backdown from the single sculls. Ross is the favorite, though Courtney is advancing in favor.

—It appears that the aggregate trade of Canada in the year ending with last June stood up about $200,000,000. In the fiscal year 1879 that trade amounted to $151,800,000. It appears also that the export trade last year exceeded the imports in value.

—A company is talking at Halifax to attempt to raise the old French frigate "Danville" sunk in Bedford Basin years ago. She was raised and sent down in fighting trim, and it is thought there must be valuable material enough to make a first-class gunboat.

—The post office at Truro was burglarized on Wednesday night, the 31st ult., the burglar entering through a window. The Very Latest News.
"Have you heard the latest news?" said one city swell to another. "No; no; tell me what it is." "Well, I have at last got rid of my misery by one trial of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I know you are even worse than mine were. I couldn't pass without telling you to get a bottle of your druggist. I guarantee it will fix 'em completely." It is true, prompt and complete, taking the course out at once. Sold everywhere. Beware of substitutes and imitations.

Jured of Drinking.
"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor, which he prostrated him so that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It altered all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor, made his nerves steady, and he has remained in a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups. I know of a number of others who have been cured of drinking by it." - From a leading R. N.
Official, Chicago, Ill. 2nd me.

Cataract.
From C. W. Thomas of Brattleboro, Vt.
"For ten or twelve years past I have been troubled much of the time with cataract of the eyes. I tried many of the best remedies, but they did me no good.
I was finally cured by the use of Hop Bitters. I tried many of the best remedies,

The Very Latest News.
"Have you heard the latest news?" said
one city swell to another. "No; no; tell
me what it is." "Well, I have at last got rid of my misery by one trial of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I know you are even worse than mine were. I couldn't pass without telling you to get a bottle of your druggist. I guarantee it will fix 'em completely." It is true, prompt and complete, taking the course out
at once. Sold everywhere. Beware of substitutes and imitations.

Jured of Drinking.
"A young friend of mine was cured of
an insatiable thirst for liquor, which he
prostrated him so that he was unable to do
any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It altered all
that burning thirst; took away the appetite
for liquor, made his nerves steady,
and he has remained in a sober and steady
man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups. I know of a number of others who have been cured of
drinking by it." - From a leading R. N.
Official, Chicago, Ill. 2nd me.

Cataract.
From C. W. Thomas of Brattleboro, Vt.
"For ten or twelve years past I have
been troubled much of the time with
cataract of the eyes. I tried many of the best remedies, but they did me no good.
I was finally cured by the use of Hop
Bitters. I tried many of the best remedies, but they did me no good. I was finally cured by the use of Hop Bitters. I tried many of the best remedies, but they did me no good. I was finally cured by the use of Hop Bitters. I tried many of the best remedies, but they did me no good.

dies, but they did me no good. I was a great public convenience.

COLLISION. - The bark "Onaway," Smith, master, of this port, collided with the Cunard Line steamer "Palmyra," of Liverpool, and lost her bowprit and anchor. She arrived at Glasgow on Saturday. A cable received yesterday states that the ves-

St. Nicholas for September is to hand.
This interesting illustrated monthly is always a welcome visitor in our household, youngsters being eagerly on the look out for it as the date of its receipt draw near. It is published by The Century Co.,

In Ottawa, on the 3rd inst., the carriage in which Mr. J. L. Black, of the Clerk, was driving along Dalhousie street, was struck by a train on the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway, and she was instantly killed. Mrs. Hildon, who was with her in the carriage, was seriously, but it is thought, not fatally injured.

A lad named Angus McMillan, who lately left Spring Hill to work in the juggins, met with a very severe accident last week. He was engaged driving, when the horse he was driving, while he was catching his leg broke it very badly, forcing some of the bones through his trouser leg.

The brig "Yankee," of Parrsboro', arrived at Halifax on the 3rd inst., from Belfast, bound to Parrsboro', reports that on August 21st in lat. 43 deg.
30 min. long. 65 deg. 30 min. the vessel encountered a terrific hurricane carrying away the mast to the deck with the yard sails and all the gear attached and also the main topmast.

An inhuman action is reported at Quebec from Port Rouge. A farmer was troubled with a bulky horse, and in order to get him to move he maintained his

The publishers of Rev. Dr. Robinson's "Spiritual Songs" for the Sunday School, have just issued a little book containing only the lyrics of that work to be sung in the Sunday School. The new edition is prettily bound in flexible red cloth, and costs but 20 cents. The complete edition of 100 songs, bound in covered with red cloth, with red edges, costs 40 cents to schools in quantities. It is sold at the sale of the publisher, who has mounted up into the score of those sands since its issue a year ago. (THE

DRAMATIS PERSONAE.
SIR HALBERD DE LAZER, Chief of the Clan, Grand Seigneur of Whistlerland.
HAROLD GORGEOUS, his attendant.
ESQUIRE WILL GORGEOUS, a faithful retainer, Seigneur of Tusky.
ESQUIRE JOHN WATERFORD, Seigneur of Salem.
AROUS MACWANE, Seigneur of Bute, sometimes called "Polled Angus."
HAROLD GORGEOUS, his attendant.
ESQUIRE REUBEN, surmised the chaste, an aged warrior.
SIR HENDERSON, a Councillor.
PAULO MORET, a shrewd Surgeon.
CAPTAIN D. DEADEYE, "Cumberland Boy."
JACINTY CARTER, Post Grand Inspector General of Unjust Balances.
JOHANN STYLAR, an Independent Seigneur, forced by the Clans.
ESQUIRE SAMPSON, Landlord of the International Temperance Inn.
THOMAS OF PICARDY, the Knight's Jester, a "Prophet without honor," etc.
SIR SHYSTER, an Attorney and follower of the Knights, etc., etc.

SCENE 5. - The Inn. Present, the Company.
SIR HALBERD. - What! Edouard do you keep no liquors here?
Our meeting will be dry without some rum.
ED. - The Scott Act is in force. I do not sell.
Besides I know you held the meeting here.
Because it is a temperance house and Paulo Moret, Picardy and Shyster and all the rest are Prohibition views.

SIR HALBERD. - Hold meetings with out rum? Preposterous!
Free rum in by-gone days gave me my power.
In streams it flowed from every tavern bar.
It is an ally of tremendous worth.
I've paid oceans of it in my day.
Ill omens were our meeting here, indeed.
Without some spirit of the olden time.
Shyster, my faithful Squire, bid thee away.
And fetch a bottle of the best you can.
SIR HALBERD. - I cannot go for you must know full well That through the spring and winter I look a prominent position and held forth
At temperance meetings many a time and oft,
And though I was not chosen to conduct
The temperance law-suits, as I should have been, I read it in a copy that I borrowed, for I had thrown the paper up, before.
Squire Gorg. - Oh yes! Oh yes! Oh yes!
Howe Goodness. - I never heard about that.
Reuben. - Why, there was enough
about it in the papers.
HAROLD. - I don't read newspapers.
What I know about these things Mr.
MacWane tells me.
SIR HALBERD. - I really wish Josiah would arrive.
Where can he be. Will Gorgous, will you go
And beg of him to come without delay.
Gorg. - I will find him, and I think I have enough influence to bring him.
SIR HALBERD. - Miss some others who supported me At last election. (Aside.) Can it be that they Have turned from me because I ne'er repaid
The sums they spent for me in that campaign.
Well, I must see to it and bring
him.
(Aloud.) Well, friends, suggestions are in order now.
Or, Captain Dick, we'll hear another song.
Capt. Dick. - I've paid out all my music, and have an empty locker.
Shyster. - I have something to offer.
I am not much of a poet and don't claim that this is all my own.
My partner, Shark, and the young men around our office all helped to make it up. That's the way we do with all that we write for the Bangs-grit. This poem is very simple and demands no exegesis - SIR HALBERD'S SONG.
Victoria, by the Grace of God, Of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ire-Land, Queen, Defender of the Faith our Knight
Sir Halberd, whom we all admire.
For that whereas, the said Sir Hal-berd was the Minister of Marine, And (see Ford's letter at the time.) Delighted our said Lady the Queen.
And whereas also, Sir John A. is now in power, we deemur, For that the Grits and Mr. Blake We very much would prefer.
And whereas also, the said Sir Hal-berd, Proprietor, forthwith, an address In re the matters which pertain Unto the people's happiness.
He'll call on John A. to show cause, If any such there be, why he Should not have judgment signed against Him, in contempt, by said B.
Wherefore it is considered that Sir Halberd and his leading men Do counsel, aid, assist, abet, Own, et al armis, their end and then, Witness whereof, we and each And every of us will attend, Laying aside all business and Excuses, to attain this end.
Witness Sir Halberd, Knight, and Chief Of all the Grits of Whistlerland.
Shyster & Shark, attorneys for The said Sir Halberd and his band.
SCENE 6. - A Shiretown Railway Station. Present: Sir Halberd and eight others.
SIR HALBERD. - The train is due ere long, and yet there are Some faces missing I did expect To find in welcoming my dear friend Blake.

SIR HALBERD. - I liked your campaign speech, all but the Anti-Confederate part of it. I was a strong Confederate once.
SIR HALBERD. - Oh yes, I know, and you opposed me too.
But when you found that you were always wrong
And I was right, you changed your mind.
SIR HALBERD. - You know, Sir Halberd, we've a common foe in Joseph L.
To tell the truth, when I first turned the case was this - not that I loved Sir Halberd more than I loved J. L. less. But never mind, I am for you now, and all the Tingleys will do just as I do.
Shyster. - Speaking of that, Sir, I expect to come out some day in the Baptist interest. I shall count on you and the Tingleys to support me rather than the eccentric Charlie-nap, who will probably oppose me.
SIR HALBERD. - I will support the man who seems to me to be the most sensible. I am for the man who is down on the Post. We want friends in the Local Government, which will do nothing for us now.
We got up a petition to have Reuben retained as postmaster up above, but fell all that George Read was appointed through Joseph L., who seems to me to be the most sensible. Then the Post, look at the stand it took in the matter, and look too, at that shameful article about Squire Gorgous and skim milk for the cheese factory.
Squire G. - It was most contemptible. I read it in a copy that I borrowed, for I had thrown the paper
up, before.
Chorus. - Oh yes! Oh yes! Oh yes!
Howe Goodness. - I never heard
about that.
Reuben. - Why, there was enough
about it in the papers.
HAROLD. - I don't read newspapers.

ROSE-BELFORD'S
Canadian Monthly,
AND NATIONAL REVIEW.
EDITED BY G. MERCEUR ADAM.

1881. Tenth Year of Publication. 1881.
As one of the founders of THE CANAdian Monthly, and having been more or less connected with it since its first appearance in 1872, the present writer feels it just to state in emphasizing the fact that with the next issue the publication will enter upon its nineteenth volume. That the periodical still lives and makes progress, however slow, in view of the mutability of literary tastes in Canada, something, at least, to be thankful for. With a publication of this character, and with a field limited at best, and encroached upon by foreign serials, it was hardly to be expected that, if it were to prosper, its progress would be rapid.
That it has attained itself and won a creditable reputation, it has been said, is matter, at any rate, for commendation.
These now connected with it feel, however, that the time has come when they may reasonably expect that from now onward the progress of the Magazine will be more marked, and that a heartier support will be given to the undertaking, justifying the continuance of efforts made, not only for its precatious on old lines, but for its enlargement and improvement, and above all for its communication (as formerly) of its writers. With the development of national thought, with increasing interest in native literature, and the return of "better times," it is believed that these expectations will be realized, and the desire of Editor and Publishers believed in the future, the friends of the publication can make this matter assured.
Individually, each can aid in bringing about the desired result. The press, too, can be very helpful. Whatever is accomplished, to the favour and interest of a Canadian public, the publishers again commend their enterprise.

THE EDITOR.

A GREAT CAUSE OF HUMAN MISERY Is the Loss of MANHOOD

We have recently published a New Edition of Dr. Culver-well's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine, and of course without surgery) of the various debility, mental and physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excess.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 5 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of medical medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture shall be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The "Bard of Hope," whose fervid strains So tender and so grand Are prized and loved on Britain's plains, And many a foreign strand—
The Scottish bard, whose song of flame Recites the gallant story Of Caledonia's martial fame, And England's naval glory—
The poet gifted and refined, By nature and by art,
Whose bright creations charm the mind—Whose pathos thrills the heart—What bosom sighs not for the woes Of Poland's ancient realm?
When Campbell sings how Freedom's foes, That nation did o'erwhelm!

What heart laments not for the fate Of "Gertrude" sweet and mild, And hers who mourned a slaughtered mate, "O'Connor's lovely child?"
Who grieves not for the lovers twain That perished in "Lochyle?"
Who melts not at the thrilling strain Of "Eric's" and "Erlie?"
The noble songs he left behind Shall cease to echo never—His name and memory shall be shrined In countless hearts forever.

Too Much Religion.
He was on his way eastward from Leadville. He had on a ragged old suit, a bad hat, and he had been taking his meals about thirty hours apart to make his money carry him through.

"Yes, I like the country out that way," he replied to the query.
"The climate is good, the scenery is fine, and some of the people are as honest as needs be. The trouble is knowing how to take bad ones."

"I should think that would be easy."

"Yes, it looks that way; but I had some experience. I am the original discoverer of the richest mine around Leadville. Yes, I am the very man, though you wouldn't think it to see these old clothes."

"You don't own it now?"
"Not a bit of it. I'll explain. I was poking around on the hills and found signs. I collected some specimens for assay, staked off a claim, and went off to the assayer's. It was two days before he let me know that I had struck the richest ore that had ever been discovered, and then he hurried by to my claim. Hang my buttons if it hadn't been jumped."

"How?"
"Why a gang of sharpers had found the spec and built up a pole shanty and hung out a sign of the first class mine, and then they True as shooting, they had, and the law out there is that no man can sink a shaft within 200 feet of a church building. They saw me counting, and when I got there they were holding a revival. There were six of them, and they got up one after another and told how wicked they had been, and how sorry they were, and—would you believe it?— they had the cheek to ask me to lead off in singing. I went to law, but they beat me. Three days after the verdict the First Baptist Church burned down, and before the ashes were cold the congregation were developing a mine worth $3, 000,000. You see, I didn't know how to take them."

"Was there any particular way to take them?"
"You bet there was. I ought to have opened on that revival with a Winchester rifle, and give the corner $50 for a verdict that they came to their death from too much religion."

Little Hands to Begin the Battle Alone.

I was walking one of Detroit's beautiful avenues on a lovely afternoon last week. In front of an ivywreathed doorway sat an old lady knitting. A small, thin, little girl ran through the hall and down the steps into the street, carrying her doll. Her curls had fallen over her eyes, and she stumbled and fell. I had her in my arms in an instant. The smile that revealed her pretty dimples and snow-white teeth told me that she was neither hurt nor frightened.

"What is your name, little one?"
"Ain't got any."

"Haven't any name? Is that sunny on the porch?"
"No, ain't no name."

"Well, what does grandma call you?"
"S'talls me Puss, but s'talls 'e lat puss, too."

"But what does mamma call you?"
"S'te don't call me nuffin—s'te done 'ay off."

"Go on, say 'ol' where?"
"To see papa."

"And where is papa?"
"Up dere."

And she pointed to the sky, rosy with the sunset's glow.
"When did mamma go?"
"B'row was on 'e ground, and s'te went in a sleigh without any bells on 'e horses, and mamma c'ied."

I am not ashamed to own that tears filled my eyes as I kissed the child and turned away, for I, too, had my graves in childhood—

"Why do you have two wives?" was asked of a Wobegon chief by Governor-General Lord during his tour. The chief replied that by having two wives he could show more children on the ground at the meeting and receive more money. The Toronto Globe reporter, who heard it, says:—"I have heard the objection raised to the existing system of paying the Indians that it discourages Christianity by offering a premium on the Pagan practice of polygamy, but I never saw a more striking exemplification of the fact than was contained in this brief and sententious reply."

The creditors of the Glasgow Bank have now received 90 per cent of their claims. Of 1,819 shareholders, only 269 remain.

Others are ruined. Nearly 600 gave up all they had, and began the world again. To the trustees of the relief fund, which exceeded $1,950, 000, there were 883 applications for aid.

How It Happened.

There was a railroad excursion from Jackson County yesterday, and among the crowd was a man who called to the office of the Ontario Police to make a statement. When the Chief was ready to hear the details the man began:—

"I was just coming out of the depot when I met a fellow with a squint in his left eye. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Well, he held out his hand and said, 'How do you do, Judge Perkins?' I kinder held out my hand, and said I was party well, thank you. I'm no more Judge Perkins than you are, but I thought I'd draw the fellow out a little. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Well, we shook hands and walked for the corner, and he asked me if I ever absorbed. I said I did, and he said, 'I do, too. I've absorbed some beer. Are you following?'"

"Yes."

"My friend said his name was Collins, and that he was in the mule business. Then we absorbed some more."

"Yes."

"He asked me if I didn't remember of leaving him $2 in Toledo in 1866, and hang my buttons if I wasn't fool enough to remember! I wasn't in Toledo in '66 or anywhere near it, but I saw a pretty good chance to make $2, so I said I didn't think I'd found one. He looked good enough to fly right to heaven! Then we absorbed some more."

"Yes."

"Well, the chap wanted to pay me back the $2, and I also wanted to hold it off. He hands out this $20 bill for me to change, and he gave him back $14, and was to hand him $4 more at the depot to-night. Then we absorbed some more."

"It's a counterfeit bill."

"You bet! I'm a gone-up man! Farewell old Jackson County!"

"What do you mean?"
"I mean that $7 of that $14 was to buy school books, and the other $7 was to buy porous plaster and a new dress for a school teacher out there. I have been done for and lost low. Do I return to face the music? I do not. Do I jump into the river and sleep in the arms of death? I do, and don't you forget it.
I want a chew of tobacco, a few instructions as to the best place to jump, and I'll trouble earth no more."

But he didn't jump. He had $22 to meet this sun. Do I jump into the river and sleep in the arms of
death? I do, and don't you forget it.
He was picked off. He was picked off the station, and when asked his name he replied:—

"No use, old feller—no use. If I went you do dozens in Chicago in 1877 you can't get a back now—won't have it—won't take it."

The growth of the Methodists as a sect has probably been without precedent in rapidity. Their first "preaching circuit" dates from 1759, at Bristol, England. But before that an unused foundry in London was so used. The worship in Methodist chapels in England to-day is divided into that of the Liturgical and non-Liturgical. Wesleyanism comprehends both, and in many Wesleyan chapels the service differs but little from that of the Episcopal Church. A writer of authority says:
"With strong confidence in the accuracy of our statements, we compute Methodism as five millions in connection with the Bristol conference, and fourteen millions with the American. The ecclesiastical property of the connection in Great Britain may be calculated at eleven millions, and in America at eleven millions, sterling. It is in Great Britain almost exclusively preferred by the lower middle class, the well-to-do tradesman, and the artisan, and the manufacturer, but not the rich of the manufacturer; for, as Mr.
Barbauld pertinently remarked, in the case of the wealthy, the carriages of the second generation always convey them to the parish church."

PROF. W. MATTHEW WILLIAMS says:—"I have taught many to swim, and my first lesson is to balance the body. The easiest formula for attaining this power is to keep the hands down and look at the sky, while the chest is expanded as much as possible by throwing the shoulders well back, in military attitude. Any man or woman of ordinary physical gravity who can do this can float and breathe, but to do it simple as it is, requires practice or training—physical training of the muscles, and cerebral training in order to acquire that command of all the faculties without which there can be no treading of water or other device for keeping the mouth and nostrils in the air."

Wicked for Clergymen.
Rev. Washington, D. C., writes:
"I believe it to be all wrong and even vicious for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quick doctors or false stuff called medicines, but a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."
—New York Baptist Weekly.

Mr. MARCUS KALISH, of Germany, taking the privilege of the offered by the municipality of the town of Rimouski to manufacturers, has purchased four acres of land within the town for the establishment of three large manufacturing factories.

A locomotive, and another for that of agricultural implements.
