Peacants.

Rome, Jan. 22.—A serious conflict occurred at Termini, a scaport town of Sicily, between gendarmes and persants. About 600 peasants, men and women, proceeded deliberately to seize and equat upon lands belonging to the commune, claiming the soil as their own. The authorities ordered the intruders to depart, but the latter paid no attention to the notice. Then the gendarmes were called upon to cject the squatters. The peasants resisted, and a fierce struggle ensued. The gendarmes fired upon the peasants, killing eight of them and wounding twenty. A number of the peasants were taken prisoners and the others fied to the interior, swearing vengeance upon the gendarmes and the authorities.

Denmark, offended by his allusions to the Franco-Russian intrigue at the Copenhagen Court, has now become alarmed in consequence of the sensation caused by King Christian's unexpected decision not to attend the Princess Margarer's wedding. The Danish Foreign Office and the Danish ambassadors are taking unusual pains to let the world understand that the unpleasantness of the weather is King Christian's sole reason for bains to let the world understand that the unpleasantness of the weather is King Christian's sole reason for chauging his mind, but in this city the excuse is regarded as ridiculously inadequate. Numerous notes have passed between Berlin and Copenhagen during the past week as to the Chancellor's speech before the Parliamentary commission, and the German Foreign Office has made explanations without end, but Denmark's suspicions have not been luiled. The explanations of the Danish diplomats as to the necessity they feel for the spending of 56,000,000 marks in fortifying Copenhagen and for pushing their line of deiense close against the Schleswig frontier are received here with lack of confidence.

What Egan Says.

London, Jan. 23.—James Francis Egan, the released dynamiter, says the system the released dynamiter, says the system pursued toward the political prisoners at the Portland is most brutal. It is believed the dynamiter Callan was released from Portland some days ago. Egan says Callan had not attended the prison chapel for a few days past and that the cell usually occupied by him was empty and he was not in the hospital. Egan himself is of the opinion that Callan was released quietly and given a free berth to America.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Standard says Egan's release is intended to prevent the Redmondites from breaking loose in the debate on the Home Rule Bill. The Government decided that the danger to be feared from them if released to interfere with the course of justice was more important than the danger incurred in setting loose the murderous ruffian Egan and in letting others of his class know that they can look to politicians to override the sentence of a judge.

magnificence of the New Union Passenger Station at Detroit.

The new Fort street union station, in Detroit, which has just been opened, is for the joint use of Canadian Pacific, Flint and Pere Marquette, Detroit, Lansing and Northern and Wabash Railways. It embraces, of course, all modern ideas for the comfort and convenience of passengers. It is on the grandest avenue in Detroit a few blocks from the center of the city, convenient of access from all parts thereof by street car system. It is only one short block distant from the Michigan Central station, so that the transfer between the two stations for passengers is entirely unobjectionable. The building itself cost almost $200,000. The main building of the Fort street union depot, Detroit, Mich., is 166 feet by 118 feet, three stories and an attic in height, with a corner tower 100 feet high.

The general waiting room is 70 feet square and 29 feet in height, being two stories high. The principal features of this room is the six columns, 2 feet 3 inches in diameter and 28 feet high, covered with Scagliola, at a cost of $1,500. The Tanks Burst and Their Contents Become Ignited.

Scores of Spectators Enveloped in s Flood of Flame-Sixteen Deaths Result-A Score Fatally Injured-Fifty Bore Painfully

St. Louis, Jan. 22.—A wreck which in its consequences is one of the most appalling and disastrous that has occurred in years occurred at Wann Junction, or Alton Junction, Ill., yesterday morning. The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Southwestern Limited passenger, consisting of an engine and four coaches, which left here yesterday morning for the east, ran into a switch half a mile north of Wann Junction and crashed into a train consisting of seven tank cars standing thereon. The result was a fire and afterwards an explosion which cost nine persons their lives and probably fatally injured nineteen others, while 50 more are suffering from painful burns.

Scens of the Disaster.

The southwestern limited leaves St. Louis at 8:05 a.m. and is due at Wann at 8:48. Wann is a flag station of the Chicago and Alton and the Big Four Railways and is about four miles this side of Alton. There are no side tracks, but about half a mile beyond, at a small village known as Alton Junction, are several switches. The tender of these switches, R. Grattan by name, is also a barber, and combines his tonsorial duties with those of attending to the numerous switches at that point. Upon him is laid the blame by the railway efficials and trainmen for the accident and its frightful consequences, and officers are now searching for him, as he fled during the excitement following the dual accident. dual accident.

and officers are now scaroning to him to he field during the excitement following the dual accident.

The limited train consisting of an engine and tender, a combination baggage and buffet car and three coaches, reached Wann twelve minutes late. It reached Alton Junction running at the rate of 40 miles an hour, the engineer being desirous of making up the lost time as soon as possible. A switch was turned so as to send the flying train into one of the sidetracks. On this track, on a few yards distant from the switch, were seven tank cars filled with refined lubricating oil consigned from Beardstown to the Watters-Pierce Oil Company, of this city. As soon as he saw the danger, Engineer Ross called to the fireman, Dick White, to jump for his life. He then reversed his engine and applied the air brakes. But he was too late. The engine crashed entirely through two of the tank cars, splitting them in half and was then forced on and entirely over the others.

A SEA OF FLAMES.

The oil from the wrecked tanks at once caught fire and a sea of flames instantly surrounded the engineer, who had jumped just as the pilot of the engine struck the first tank. Throwing his hands to his face the brave man struggled to the embankment at one side of the track, but as soon as he reached it he sank to the carth a crisp and blackened corpse. The fireman, who jumped from the cab the instant the engine struck the switch, escaped with a few slight bruises. The engineer's action in reversing his engine and applying the brakes slackened the speed of the train sufficiently to provent any scrious injury to the passengers, of whom there were about 60. Several were bruised by being thrown violently against seats or the sides of the canches, but none were seriously hurt.

In the baggage department of the first car were the mails, eleven pieces of baggage and a corpse, and these were all burned in a few moments. The corpse was that of a Mrs. Morrison, and was being forwarded from the southwest to Boston, Mass. The flames spread to the other coa

A minute later there was a deafening report that shook the earth for half a minute and spread one sheet of SEETHING BURNING OIL in all directions. For those within the circle of 100 yards there was no escape. Their clothing was burned and literally fell from their bodies. Panic reigned for a short time, until the uninjured recovered their presence of mind to care for the afflicted. Two barrels of linseed oil were taken from a grecery store and then applied to the wounds by several physicians who happened to be on the ground. Every house in the little village was turned into a temporary hospital, and every doctor in Alton and its vicinity was summoned. As soon as possible a train was made up, and Alton and its vicinity was summoned. As soon as possible a train was made up, and twenty of the sufferers were brought here to St. Joseph's Hospital.

"The Advertiser" advocates Conti-nental Free Trade, free trade with Great Britain, free trade with the world.

"The Advertiser" looks forward with hope to Canada's future as that of an Independent Canadian Nationality, in equally friendly alliance with the United States and with Great Britain, believing that such a status would be best for Canada, best for Great Britain, and promotive of the best attainable relations with the United States. As to Imperial Federation, sometimes spoken of, the ADVERTISER as yet has seen nothing proposed that bears any stamp of practicability, and in any case infinitely prefers ader and more really hopeful scheme of a federation of the English-speaking peoples of the world. Towards this conummation a large stride would be taken by a Confederation of the English-speaking people of the North American Continent.

"The Advertiser" advocates prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor; and all expedient general legislation and persuasion in the meantime.

"The Advertiser" is an advocate of equal rights for Women, whether as regards the franchise, or equal wages for equal work.

"The Advertiser" is a believer in Christian Union, and considers the time has come when the various Christian denominations should come closer together. These bodies which are now nearest should unite first. Under the present system there is an unjustifiable waste of men, means and effort. The ADVERTISER will endeavor to promote the movement for Christian union not alone by direct appeal and argument, but by seeking to present the best rather than the worst side of each

"The Advertiser" advocates Obligatory sary and practicable. Nothing would so much purify electoral contests. Nothing would so much enforce the idea that the franchise is a duty, not a chattel.

A CORRESPONDENT, in another column, asks for information regarding the clean-ing of the sidewalks. There is a city bylaw enacting that the sidewalks must be cleared by owners or occupants four hours after the fall of snow. The snow plow risitation does not relieve parties affected from the responsibility of cleaning the walks. Thus everyone who fails to clean off is liable to a penalty. Something will have to be done, if limbs are not to be broken in traversing the ups and downs of the sidewalks as they at present exist in

THE Hamilton Spectator pays a very poor compliment to Lord Stanley when it de-clares that "the late visits of the Governor to several Ontario towns were undertaken simply to mitigate the monotony of a life at Rideau Hall, the salmon streams being at the time quite inaccessible." THE HIGHER COURT JUDGES ON THE LONDON ELECTION SCANDAL.

The London Free Press again revives its assertion that the ADVERTISER is guilty of unchristian conduct because it prefers to take the views of six superior court judges in regard to the London Seat Steal in preference to that of its editor, Judge Elliot. After berating the ADVERTISER for standing up for the rights of the majority of the citizens of London against the grossly partisan decision by means of which Mr. Hyman's seat was stolen from him, the Free Press says:

"Our contemporary keeps a standing column of puerile denunication, which it prints every little while to keep alive bitter feelings—a most Christian-like part! It will print it again to-morrow most likely, and again and again on every pretext. But a better way would be to produce the reasoned judgment of the six judges, or any one of them, in opposition to the rulings of Judge Elliot. They cannot produce it, for it is not in existence."

The Feed Press has an edd view of the

The Free Press has an odd view of the mission of a public newspaper. It would fain try to make its readers believe that the ADVERTISER, in discussing this subject, has departed from strict regard to the proprie ties of journalism, but it takes good care not to reproduce the short explanation of which it complains.

The Advertiser is a newspaper. It will continue to print the news. It will discuss public topics on their merits. It will prevent the Free Press, or any other agency, from misrepresenting the facts regarding he London Seat Steal or any other question in the final decision of which the people must be the arbiters. No doubt, the journalistic defender of the rascally transaction would be pleased if not another word were said on the subject of this scandalous out rage. It would regard silence as a Christian-like part, forsooth! Our view of Christianity is that it does not call for the condoning of wrong-doing. The great Exemplar on all occasions has set us the example of condemning that which was wrong or unjust in season and out of season. While a great wrong remains unrighted, it is a duty incumbent upon every honest citizen to bear that in aind, and to permit no side issues to be raised that shall becloud the real question. In a word the issue is whether or not the men that Judge Elliot decreed should decide the election were entitled to vote. The Free Press calls the facts of the case peurile denunciation." That absurd contention we pass by, leaving our readers to judge by the record.

But to the testimony. Our contemporary very foolishly sets up Judge Elliot's decision against that of Chief Justice Armour, Chief Justice Hagerty, Mr. Justice Street, Mr. Justice Falconbridge, Mr. Justice Burton and Mr. Justice Maclennan, and it challenges us to show that the decision of these independent men, sought for in the first instance by both political parties, is less worthy of respect than that of the man who edited the Free Press during last campaign. We leave it to the intelligent electors to pronounce upon that point, premising that the facts on record do not support the contention, while the invariable practice in all courts of British origin is that the lower court judgment can never be set up in opposition to that of the superior court. Judge Elliot set it up under protection of the Dominion Franchise Act, but he had no precedent, and we hardly think that any other judge can be got to follow his ex-

The votes counted by Judge Elliot, in order to secare the seat for the minority candidate, were those of men who had been struck off the list by Revising Officer Fraser, after three days' trial. Our contemporary says these men could have proved their right to vote if they had been given another cpportunity. There is no ground for this assumption. We have printed a list of the names, and have again and again challenged the owners to say wherein they were qualified. They ould not qualify before Revising Officer Fraser, and they could not say over their own signature that they had any legal right to vote.

But Judge Elliot decided that, bogus voters though they were, the to remain on the lists and nullify the votes of legal voters. He said they had not proper notice. These men had two notices. The first Revising Officer Fraser said was not sufficient, and, in accordance with the law, he decided that they should be given another notice. They were given another notice. Their cases were heard, their names were struck off by the same process as was applied to the names of every person whose right to vote was atevery person whose right to vote was at-tacked and not established. Yet Judge Elliot, finding after election day that the votes were needed to secure a seat for his patron, resolved to count them. Prior to this, however, Revising Officer Fraser had refused to hear the cases because Judge Elliot told him that the original notice was bad and could not be amended.

Our contemporary rashly asks us to state the decision of the superior courts. Well, Chief Justice Armour, Mr. Justice Street and Mr. Justice Falconbridge unanin.ously agreed that the original notice was sufficient, and decreed that the revising officer should, "pursuant to the Electoral Franchise Act, forthwith proceed to hear and dispose of the objections."

Mr. Fraser, as we have pointed out, obeyed the mandamus. What was it but a A LEARNED correspondent gives us a theory regarding the phenomenally cold spell that we are passing through. He was not what Mr. Carling and his friends spell that we are passing through. He says that the strongly ozonic or very dry state of the atmosphere is the cause of the present very cold weather. Moisture tempers extremely hot or cold weather. The prosent winter has been, thus far, over a great portion of this continent as well as of Europe, a very dry one. There seems to be no humidity to speak of, either on the lower or upper strata of the air, and the cold waves from the arctic regions havefull sweep, untempered by moisture across the temperate zone. interfere, as the decree of the other court had already been carried out. Chief Justice Hagarty held that "the amendment allowed by the revising officer" as granted and acted on by him, "was with-in his power, and that the notices so amendsufficiently comply with the statute.' The chief justice went further. He said: "I think on the whole that the unamended notice shall be held sufficient."

Mr. Justice Burton said: "Speaking for myself, I cannot say that I feel any doubt as to the sufficiency of the notice of objection, read as a whole." Mr. Justice Maclennan said: "We are requested to give our opinion upon the validity of the notices, and in deference to the request I have considered them, and I have no hesitation in saying that I consider the notices sufficient." This judge also gave a severe rebuke to those who have contended that Judge Elliot's narrow, contradicted, illogical, inequitable judgment is worthy of respect, when he remarked: "The object of the proceedings of the revising officer is to purge the roll of persons not entitled by law to exercise the fran chise, and the attainment of that object should not be bridled or defeated by technical objections or by a narrow construction of the legislation, but should be promoted as far as possible without violence to the language of enactments. It would be an intolerable scandal if in an ordinary action in the High Court such an objection as we have here under consideration could be allowed to defeat the rights of any of the parties and I do not see why it should not be equally so in a proceeding concerning the franchise." That, indeed, is the verdict of the six judges of the superior courts from which we have quoted; but waiting to decide in accordance with the invariable rule in the courts, held differ Our contemporary need no longer be in ignorance of what the superior court judges have said in opposition to its judicial editor. It cannot get away from the fact that these disinterested jurists unanimously condemn the finding of Judge Elliot, as indeed must every fair-minded citizen who investigates the subject free from prejudice. ROYALTY ON THE FENCE.

The engrossing social question in England to-day is, "Shall or shall not the hoop-skirt again be revived?" The opposition to the recent tendency of the fashions is becoming stronger. Nearly 8,000 women have joined Mrs. Stannard's Anti-Crinoline League, and it is confidently predicted that the number will reach 10,000 before the impulse of indignation has spent itself. Unfortunately we have not had an opportunity of estimating the quality of the membership, but as none of the numerous British princesses have joined the league, it may be presumed that few society women properly so called, have given it their adherence. The Queen and the Princess of Wales were appealed to, but on Seturday refused to interfere or to express an opinion. The first drawing room of the London season will be held by the Princess of Wales on behalf of the Queen early in March, and if any of the ladies attending it should wear crinoline the royal seal will have been affixed to the new feshion, and it is much to be feared that it will be followed generally. A London cablegram points out the significance of the fact that ome makers of iron are preparing machinery for the manufacture of crinoline wire or hoop upon a pretty large scale, and if fashion shall favor them they will make fortunes out of their enterprise, as their fathers did 30 years ago. The subject is also discussed in the weekly trade reports and on Change in a confidential manner calculated to inspire uneasiness in the gentle breasts of Mrs. Stannard's fair leaguers. "It seems probable," says one large firm of iron brokers "that some modification of the petticoat may cause a revival of this branch of business for the caging of women of fashion and also create a spuri in old hoop iron for the distention of pooreskirts." Despite these prognostications we have faith in the good sense of women rebelling against the revival of any such monstrosity in dress as the hoopskirt of 30 years ago. Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick's Visit

Comes to a Close by a Lunch at the London Hunt Kennels—A Call at the College.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick will doubtless retain pleasant remembrances of London's hospitality, as during their two day's stay here they were handsomely entertained. Saturday aftermoon they were dined at "Glemmore," the London Hunt kennels, by Major Smith and Mr. George C. Gibbons, president and master, respectively, of the clab. They were driven to the pretty resort in Adam Beck's four-in-hand and stopped at Hellmuth College on the way. Here they were received by the principal, the staff and pupils in the drawing-room. An address of welcome was read by Miss Glancy, and a bunch of roses was presented to Mrs. Kirkpatrick by Miss Arnold. In acknowledgment the Lieutenant-Governor made a happy address, and with the permission of Principal English granted the fair pupils a holiday on Monday. The latter were presented individually to the distinguished visitors, who were afterwards shown through the institution.
A company of twenty sat down to a splendid luncheon, prepared by the matron at the kennels, Mrs. Bowman. The following were present in addition to the Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and the former's A. D. C.: Major Smith, Mrs. Niven, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. Lucas
(Hamilton), Miss McDonough, Miss Macbeth, Mr. George Harris, Miss Harris, Captain Denison, Mr. J. B. Kilgour, Mr.
Adam Beck, and Dr. George H. Wilson.
The visitors from the Government House pronounced themselves highly pleased with the home of the London Hunt and its beautiful surroundings. They returned to the residence of Mr. George B. Harris, whose guests they have been, and subsequently departed for Toronto on the evening C. P. R. train.

THE STREET RAILWAY AND THE SNOW.
Ald. ### THE SCHOOL QUESTICN

Argued Before the Dominion Privy Council.

J. S. Ewart Presents the Potition o. th Catholic Minority-Premier Green. way Unrepresented.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The petitiess of the Roman Catholic minority in Manitoba asking for remedial school legislation were heard yesterday morning before the Privy Council. Sir John Thompson presided and the entire Ministry, except Hoz. F. Smith, were present. Premier Greenway, of Manitoba, was not represented by counsel.

Mr. John S. Ewart, Winnipeg, appeared for the Roman Catholic minority. He is a Protestant in religion and a Liberal in politics. He championed the cause of his clients in a very eloquent manner. Mr. Ewart dealt with the events anterior to Confederation, especially in relation to in politics. He championed the cause of his clients in a very eloquent manner. Mr. Ewart dealt with the events anterior to Confederation, especially in relation to the minorities in the different Provinces, the compromises effected in arranging the terms of union, and in distinguishing the jurisdiction of the Federal anthorities in reference to education. This being a local question was assigned to the Provinces. But the Protestant minority in Quebec and the Catholic minority in Ontario would not listen entirely to that. Hence, while power was given the local authorities, two limitations were imposed—first, that they should not prejudically affect any right existing at the union; second, that if they did affect any rights created by themselves they should have no power to take them away, except subject to an appeal to the Governor-General in council.

Manitoba entered the union in 1870, and the same arrangements made in reference to the Province's plenary powers in regard to education in Manitoba were given with the two limitations. It is contended that only one limitation shall not affect the rights of the union, and if it does an appeal shall lie to the Governor-General in council. This was argued at great length before the Privy Council in Epgland and in behalf of the Manitoba Government; but that body refused to accede to the argument. Lord Watson said the right to determine whether the Province has exceeded its powers is one thing, but undoubtedly what was contemplated here is not cases of excess of power by the Provincial Legislature, but cases where acting withing their power they had not done what the minority considered just. Subsection 2 would suggest this: That the Dominien Legislature were under the impression there might be provision within the power of the Provincial Legislature which would affect the rights of these persons without affecting the minority prejudically in the sense of sub-section 1, so as the power of the Provincial Legislature which would affect the rights of these persons without affecting the minority prejudically in the sense of sub-section 1, so as to make them ultra virus.

Mr. Ewart enlarged on the argument he previously addressed to the sub-committee. He contended there could be no appeal from the Privy Council. There is no precedent nor analogy for such a proceeding. He said he would not be disconcerted could he discover no precedent. The British North America Act was an original production, and in an original production, and in an original production we necessarily find some original thing. But we never on that account refuse to give language its true meaning, and insist that every original production is in reality old and stale—an ultra vires act—and that when an appeal was given the statute must necessarily have intended that the appeal should have been from an in ra vires act.

He pointed to the fact that the appeal must be from a statute which affects rights and privileges, or anything else.

In reply to the argument that if an apprivileges, or anything else.

privileges, or anything else.
In reply to the argument that if an appeal lies to the Privy Council there is no peal lies to the Privy Council there is no precedent for such proceeding, he said he would not be discover dould he discover no precedent. He proceeded to give several analagous powers. He instanced that the Dominion statute, which transferred all local railways, even though subsidized by the Provinces from Provincial to Dominion jurisdiction.

Mr. Ewart instanced the right of disallowance, which is an appeal of a very special kind. He referred to the 95th section of the Confederation Act, providing that the Provincial law in reference to immigration and agriculture only has effect that the Provincial law in reference to immigration and agriculture only has effect "as long and as far only as it is not repugnant to any act of the Parliament of Canada. If, in the matter of cutting thistles," said Mr. Ewart, "the Local Legislature must bow to the Dominion Parliament, are we surprised with reference to education—perhaps the most important subject in the whole field of legislative action—an appeal should, under well defined circumstances, be vested in the Federal Parliament?

Mr. Ewart read the statutes to show that an appeal could be taken with regard to rights which arose after the union, and quoted the rules relating to the construc-tion of statutes to establish the point. Among others he instanced the case of our own Supreme Court Act. It provides that the appeal shall lie to the Su-preme Court from all final judg-ments of the highest Provincial courts. No one ever thought of limiting the power given by this statute to cases which had arisen before the passage of the act. He then proceeded to argue that the Roman Catholics had been injured by the recent statute, and said that at the time of the passage of the statute there were 80 Roman Catholic school districts in Mani-toba. In 68 of these the Protestants did

Roman Catholic school districts in Manitoba. In 68 of these the Protestants did not number a handful. In eight of the remainder there were both Protestants and Roman Catholics, and, in fact, enough of each for two schools. In four districts only could it be said that the population was not only mixed, but so sparse as to create a difficulty in establishing separate schools. The existence of these four, he argued, was the pretext for passing the School Act. The absence of ten good men from a city, argued Mr. Ewart, might afford ground for the destruction of the whole population, but surely the presence of four ground for the destruction of the whole population, but surely the presence of four bad ones would not be thought to supply a satisfactory reason for the same comprehensive action. He then contended that not only had his Excellency in council the power to hear an appeal, but that he could not refuse without disregarding his constitutional duty. Supposing the appeal had been given to the Supreme Court instead of the Privy Council, would anyone have contended that the Supreme Court bad any discretion to refuse to hear the had any discretion to refuse to hear the appeal and to do that which justice should appeal and to do that which justice should require?

Authorities were then quoted showing that no one invested with judicial functions could refuse to exercise his powers upon proper application being made. He further urged the undeviating policy of the Dominion Parliament during the past 30 years should have much weight in determining the Privy Council to grant the appeal. He referred particularly to the New Brunswick school case, in which the Dominion Parliament had no more jurisdiction than it had in reference to home rule in Ireland, and yet on two occasions—in perspiration, and labor produces it in profusion. It is then when the skin is moist and the pores open, that treatment of old chronic rheumatic and neuralgic aches and pains may be the most successful. St. Jacobs Oil will penetrate to the bone. It will find the scat of the trouble, stimulate the muscles to healthful action and will soothe the disordered nerves.

I approaction being made. He further the undeviating policy of the Dominion Parliament during the past 30 years should have much weight in determing the Privy Council to grant the appeal. He referred particularly to the New Brunswick school case, in which the Dominion Parliament had no more jurisdiction than it had in reference to home rule in Ireland, and yet on two occasions—in 1872 and in 1875—by everwhelming majorities, it expressed sympathy with the Roman Catholic minority in that Province, even going so far as to vote an address to her Majesty, praying that she would be graciously pleased to use her influence with the Legislature of New Brunswick to procure such a modification of the act as would remove the grounds of discontent. In conclusion Mr. Ewart asked that a day be appointed by the Privy Council for the hearing of the appeal of the Manitoba mirority.

Shocking Brutality Fracticed by Ship-wrecked Sallors.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—The Times has the following from Colon:
For 27 days without food and water, the passengers and crew of the sloop Juane have existed. They were sent today to Senor Fondex, the Spanish consul at Colon. The survivors are Capt. De la Tor, with a crew of three and thirteen passengers. Nine passengers had perished. They had rations for four days, pupples for three days and fasted twenty days. The water also gave out. When the wretched passengers were strong enough to speak they nearly all denied cannibalism, but two of them not only admitted it, but went into details.

As each one grew weaker and weaker, finally no strength remained with which to throw the dead bodies over-board, and the decaying corpses remained with the living and were taken ashore with them. Among other things found was a woman's arm, broken off just below the elbow, which had been picked almost to the bone. They had been unable to throw away this last evidence of their terrible acts.

Instead of being softened by their terterrible suffering the men grew more brutal

IN HONOR OF SATOLLI. Dinner to the Apostolic Delegate to the United States.

United States.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Bishop Keane, rector of the Catholic University, where Mgr. Satolit's permanent headquarters are established, gave a special dinner to-day in honor of the designation of Mgr. Satolit as permanent apostolic delegate to the United States. The guests included Dr. McGlynn and his friend Bishop Moore, of St. Augustine, Fla., and the faculty of the University. The speeches at the dinner, which were all delivered in the Latin tongue, were both animated and interesting. Bishop Keane, speaking of the apostolic delegate's mission to the United States, said the relation of this office to the church in the United States seemed very similar to the change that took place when a territorial government was elevated to the dignity of a state government in any portion of the Union. A territory is governed by a bureau, a state is governed by a tion of the Union. A territory is governed by a bureau, a state is governed by a constitution of its own. Thus far the church in the United States has been in the territorial category. Now it approaches the dignity of a regular government.

Mgr. Satolli, in reply, referred to the Pope's love for the American people, in evidence of which he cited his own appointment as permanent apostolic delegate to this country.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Eucoessful Meetings at Brigden and Zurich.

Brigden, Jan. 22.—A very successful meeting of the West Lambton Farmers' Institute was held here Friday. There was a large attendance of agriculturists and stock breeders in the afternoon, when several papers were presented by the farmers of the county, and others by the deputation from the Ontario Agricultural College, consisting of Messrs. Shuttleworth, McCrae and Carlisle, all of whom gave very interesting addresses in the several departments. In the evening a large public meeting was held, and these gentlemen again gave addresses. Mr. Carlisle presented "College Life at the Experimental Farm;" Mr. Shuttleworth "Feeding Stock" and Mr. McRae gave "The Sunny Side of Farm Life." The village choristers added to the pleasure of the evening with some good singing.

Timely Rescue of a Drowning Man and Wite Near Bedloe's Island.

Wite Near Bedioc's Island.

New York, Jan. 22.—Engineer Charles Miller, of Bedioc's Island Lighthouse, and his wife attempted, about 5 p.m. Wednesday, to walk on the ice from the New Jersey shore to their home. When half a mile from their destination Mrs. Miller went through the ice. She screamed and her husband went to her assistance, after shouting to Lieut. Frank Webster, of Company A, Sixth Infantry, who was skating a mile away.

Seeing that Webster had heard his cry, Miller threw away his overcoat and, dropping on his stomach, dragged himself towards the spot where his wife was immersed. He managed to grasp her cloak as she was sinking under the water. The thin ice then broke and Miller found himself in the water beside his helpless wife.

Lieut. Webster had now skated to within a few yards of them. All around him the ice was surging and eracking. Webster yelled to some soldiers on Bedloe's Island for aid, then seizing the overcoat Miller had disearded threw himself flat on the ice, drew near to the hole and flung the garment towards them. Mrs. Miller caught one and of it and was drawn to the firmer ice, which, however, was ominously oracking. Capt. Wetherill and Privates Giney, Buerger, Rodenstein, Lynd, Waleur and Petrie, of the Sixth Infantry, arrived at this moment with a long rope and the imperilled man and wife were pulled out of the water. Then Webster was rescued. His and Miller's hands were frozen. The three sufferers were carried to the island, where they received medical treatment. Lieut. Webster had now skated to with

"Husband and Wife," one of the merriest of satirful comedies, which has a fine record of £0 nights in London and 50 nights in New York, will be presented at the Grand tenight by a strong company of comedy players, under the management of W. H. Fitzgrald and Charles A. Biglow. The plot is a sfollows: A number of strong-minded wives are members of the club called "The Tiger Lilies," the object of which is the complete subjugation of men. They make speeches and hold committee meetings while their husbands do the housework, look up the references of the servants and mind the babies. By a frolissome and more or less ingenious widow, the husbands are incited "to be men." They thereupon form a rival club called the "Dandelion," and invite the adorable widow to sup with them, sing with them, and join in a friendly game of poker. Their clubroom adjoins that of the Tiger Lilies, who look through the keyhole, and then they discuss divorce proceedings. Then both clubs are raided by the watchtul police, who are in search of a gambling establishment that is in reality situated on the floor above. In the next act all the personnages appear in a police court. The husbands and wives are prisonors, and the frolicsome widow is a disinterested witness, whose charms captivate the justice, and whose evidence liberates the entire crowd. The later declare a truce to hostilities, and the wives consent to surrender ever after.

The Port Stanley Lease.

The adjourned meeting of the London and Port Stanley Railway shareholders to resume consideration of the proposed lease to the Cleveland syndicate if being held in the mayor's office at the time of going to press. There are present: The mayors of London and St. Thomas, Wim. Bowman (secretary), F. E. Leonard, Ald. Dreaney, J. C. Judd, John McClary, Ald. Shaw, Joseph Jeffery, Ald. Taylor, Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald, Ald. Carrothers, Robert Pritchard, Mr. Miller, of Cleveland, I. F. Hellmuth, C. H. Ivey and T. G. Meredith. At the last moment the result is in doubt, an argument being in progress between Mr. Ivey and the mayor. The latter insisted on the amendments to the lease. Mr. Ivey said he conceded the limitation of the expenditure to $56,000, but would not consent to the clause requiring first class cars.

The argument girew very heated between the mayor and Mr. Ivey, and when Mr. Miller attempted to speak the mayor choked him off. Mr. Ivey was irritated by the mayor's behavior and almost threatened to throw the whole thing up. He positively refused to submit to any amendment save the $56,000 limitation for repairs.

At the time of going to press the lease has just been signed.

"Robert, indeed! I would as soon question my own honesty as his; besides, no one has a key to it but myself." Sir William asserted, confidently.

Lady Linton breathed freely now, for it was evident that he had no suspicion of her. "Trying!" he repeated, bitterly; "you are very sympathetic, Miriam; you are as cold as ice."
"Well, William, you know well enough that I never approved of your marriage. It was a great blow to both mamma and me that you should marry so out of your element; and therefore you cannot expect me to be so heart-broken over the mysterious disappearance of your wife as I might if you married—Sadie, for instance."
"I wish you wouldn't throw Sadie Farnum at me upon every occasion; I never had any intention of marrying her," retorted Sir William, with an angry flush.
"More is the pity; I could have loved her dearly as a sister," responded Lady Linton, in an injured tone. "But," she added, after a thoughtful pause, "it seems you were mistaken in thinking that your wife was collecting proofs of her marriage with the intention of coming here to claim her position. If that had been here long ago."
"Yes—oh! I cannot understand the bottom of this mischief, it will be a sad day for that individual i" cried the baronet, with stern emphasis.

e released from the anxiety she had uffered on his account for the last year.

Spring came, summer passed; a year had ome and gone since the disappearance of er brother's young wife, when one day here came an official-looking document ddressed to the baronet, and bearing the halifornia postmark.

reached a crisis before he gets it—the injured and beautiful little savage will have accured her divorce, and my brother will be free, long before he will know what has been done. However, I will do my duty, and forward it to him instantly."

With a lighter heart than she had known for months, the crafty woman carefully resealed the document in a way to defy suspicion that it had been tampered with, inclosed it in another envelope, directed, and marked it "important," and dispatched it by the very next mail to her brother.

Three months passed and she had heard nothing from him. She began to feel auxious as to how he had received the news of what Virgie was doing, when three came another similar-locking document, bearing the same postmark as before.

"The deed is done!" she cried, joyfully, the moment her eyes rested upon it. "I do not even need to open this to be assured of the nature of its contents."

She was filled with triumph over the success of all her plans thus far, and yet she could not forget Virgie's threat that a day of retribution would surely overtake their proud family.

But she determined not to worry, for the child might not live long enough for her to carry her threat into execution. Virgie, herself, might die, and a hundred other things might happen to prevent.

Her brother might never consent to marry again—she feared he would not—and poor Sadie Farnum's reviving hopes would again be crushed; but, if he did not, she felt sure that her son Percy—and a noble young fellow he was, too—would very likely to inherit Heathdale, while Lillian would doubtless receive a handsome dowry when he came to marry.

"I do not believe I will send this to William," she muttered, as she turned that precious document over in her hands, and feasted her eyes upon it. "I will at least wait unril I hear something from him regarding the other; these priceless papers might be lost on the way, and this—

"Oh, William, I wish you would try and rise above this trouble," said his sister, out of salp ness yet for you it, truly, it looks to me as if your wife had been guilty of willful deartion in thus hiding herself from you, and I believe there would be a great deal of happiness yet for you if you would be freed from her entirely, and then bring some good, gentle woman here to make your home pleasant for you."

It was the first time that she had everbeen able to gather courage sufficient to make this proposition; but she was wholly unprepared for the storm of wrath which the suggestion brought upon her head.

Sir William came and stood, tall and stern, before her, his face almost convulsed with mingled pain and wrath, his eyes having dangerously;

"Miriam Linton," he began, in a supressed tone, "never dare to open your lins on such a subject to me again. I married my darling for better or worse, until death should part us, and only my death or hers will ever break the tie-at least with my consent—that blinds us."

He turned abruptly and left the room as he ceased speaking, more angry with her tran he he had ever been before.

Lady Linton was thoroughly startled by what he had seid, and she knew she should never dare suggest such a measure again to him; but she will have a series her, that the injured wife should seek a legal separation from him.

She imagined that this might be the reason of Virgie keeping so quiet just at present, and she was all the more willing and glad to have her brother go away from home, as he proposed doing, because she knew that he would have to be notified whenever any such proceedings should be instituted, and she feared if he were there to receive them he would at once post off to America again, and upset all her plans by bringing about a reconciliation at the last moment.

So in less than a week Sir William left England for Egypt and the Holy Land, and lady Linton experienced a feeling of inte

It was even as she hoped.

Virgie had kept her word; she was about to repudiate her husband for his supposed faithlessness to her, and Lady Linton's lips carled in a smile of exultation as she read the paper notifying her brother that proceedings for a divorce were about to be instituted in the courts of San Francisco, by Lady Virginia Heath against Sir William Heath, of Heathdale, England.

Take one more step and you reach the top, not of the wall, but the top of the foundations of the wall, and St. John cries out: "The twelfth, an amethyst!" This precious stone, when found in Australia, or India or Europe, stands in columns and pyramids. For color it is a violet blooming in stone. For its play of light, for its deep mysterics of color, for its uses in Egyptian, in Etruscan, in Roman art it has been honored. The Greeks thought this stone a preventative of drunkenness. The Hebrews thought it a source of pleasant dreams. For all lovers of gems it is a subject of admiration and suggestiveness. Yes, the word amethyst means a prevention of drunkenness. I begleave to ask a question concerning the practice of clearing the sidewalk of anow in sections. In some places there are holes cut through just the width of a gaterial, and way, and these occur every few yards and range from ten to fifteen inches deep. Provided a person should fall in one of the top of the foundary or holes and injure themselves, who would be responsible, and could damages be claimed? If so, from whom?
