A Party of 50 Start From Kalamazoo Next Week-Effects of the Rush on Canadian Trade.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Dr. Luella Day, of this city, a bright, good-looking woman of 37, has abandoned her practice, and will seek her fortune at the Klondike. Her party will follow a number of surveyors, who will lay out a route for a telephone line from Dyea to Dawson City. She will sail from 'Frisco Feb. 1. Each of the party will carry 55 pounds of baggage. Dr. Day will carry her medicine chest, which will weigh 28 pounds. They will have 16 dogs to draw their provisions in sledges. Dr. Day says she expects to be six weeks on the road from Dyea to Dawson, and will stake out a claim and gather her own nuggets. When she is accoutered for the overland trip she will appear in a sealskin cap with flaps that fall down over her shoulders, a sealskin jacket that will reach to her knees, a pair of sealskin pajamas, and a pair of rubber boots that reach above the Fifty-Seven Pairs of Slippers knees. She will also carry a fur-lined sleeping bag, which is like a pillow case, with a running string at the open end. When she sleeps at night she will be in the bag with the running string pulled taught and tied.

Two St. Thomas Boys Charged With the Theft-Their Arrest Brought About by a Billy Goat.

[St. Thomas Journal.] Walter Boulding and Robert Wilson have been arrested on the charge of stealing 57 pairs of slippers from Mr. W. H. Tallman, shoeman, corner Tal-

Willard's party mal would hardly have been able to bring such a thing about had not the east, where, unlawful and felonious act previously been committed.

Walter Boulding is a cockney, who keeps a junk shop in the Lindop block, west end, and lives on New street. Robert Wilson and William Robinson also live on New street, and are neighbors of Boulding. The latter formerly boarded with Boulding, but now boards with Robinson. The latter had been in Boulding's house, and saw a bureau drawer full of slippers, and as on Nov. 30 last a case containing 57 pairs of slippers had been stolen from Mr. Tallman, it did not take Robinson long to

A search warrant was got out, and the police visited Bouldin's house a couple of days ago, but only one pair of slippers were found. Robinson had threatened to get even with Boulding the way he did and Boulding got the goods The police, however, secured suffi-cient information to justify the arrest of Boulding, and a warrant was issued yesterday and he was arrested yesterday afternoon by P. C. Smith. During the night he turned himself inside out to Constable Palmerston. He confessed that he committed the robbery, implicated Robert Wilson, and said that the booty was stored in the old St. Thomas pipe foundry. Constable Palmerston promptly arrested Wilson, and a search was made of the pipe foundry, and a bag containing 23 pairs of slippers found. Boulding contended that the remainder of the slippers were in the old foundry, and he was taken over there by the chief and Constable Palmerston, but the slippers could not be found. He then said that he had burned the remainder of the slippers, but this story the police do not believe.

Boulding secured the services of Mr. S. Price to defend him at the police court this morning. County Attorney Donahue prosecuted. Boulding pleaded guilty and was remanded till Wednesday for sentence. Robert Wilson was remanded till Wednesday for trial.

RHEUMATISM'S PANGS.

[From the Chatham Banner.] Everyone in the village of Wheatley knows Mr. Peter Sippe, who has been a resident of the place for upwards of twenty years, and who during the whole of that period up to last year was a constant sufferer from acute dition. Her appetite became better, rheumatism, complicated by other and color returned to her face, and the troubles until he was worn almost to a chadow. He took part in the historic bat-Culpepper, etc., and at one time rode patches through the enemy's lines. On another occasion he was on horseback for four days and five nights, and it is little wonder that such hardships left him, as they did thousands of others, with a wrecked constitution.

acked with diarrhea, which assumed a chronic form. This, of course, greatly weakened him, and he fell an easy prey to the pains and terrors of rheumatism.

To a correspondent of the Banner, he said: "I never expected to be any better in this world, as I had tried scores of medicines which brought me no relief at all. Sometimes for weeks at a time I could not lie down or sleep, and could eat but little. I was not only troubled with rheumatism, but at times was subject to fainting spells, and at other times everything appear-ed to turn black before my eyes. I would often feel sick at the stomach, at which times food would prove loathsome to me. My kidneys also troubled me greatly, and my nervous system seemed completely shattered. Tongue can scarcely tell how much I endured during these long and weary years. About a year ago I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it was a grand day for me that I began their use. After I had used a few boxes my pains had decreased, and I was considerably better. Later, through a continued use of the pills, I could eat, sleep, and felt as able to work as I had done twenty years ago. I now feel well and strong, and if any of my old comrades see this and are afflicted I would urge them to try Dr. Williams' Pinks Pills."

ANAEMIA CURED.

[From the Orangeville Sun.] Some months ago, Maggie, the fifteenyear-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sweeney, of John street, of this town, began to fail both in health and spirits. Her face was almost as white as chalk, her appetite very fickle, and her limbs began to swell. Notwithstanding her growing weakness, she persisted in attending school, until one day her teacher advised her to go home, and not return until she felt better. At the same time the teacher, who knew the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases, advised her to take them. The advice was followed, and Mrs. Sweeney told our reporter that almost from the outset there was an improvement in her daughter's consevere headaches that had made her

Among those who speak of this wonderful medicine in terms of gratitude is Mr.

He says: "A year ago I was taken with a pain in my hip, which gradual ly worked down to the knee, where At first I thought it an attack of rheumatism and treated it with the medicine ordinarily used for that trouble, but with no benefit. The knee began to swell and the pain became excruciating. I wasted away to a mere shadow, and was no better than a cripple. I then consulted a physician, bu still got no relief. Then I went to a hospital at St. John. The physician who examined me there said my trouble was consumption of the blood, and that it might be necessary to amputate my leg. Thoroughly discouraged, I returned home. Then my mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using two or three boxes I found the pain greatly diminishing, and by the time I had taken seven boxes, the limb had regained its normal condition, the pain had all disap peared, I had gained greatly in flesh and was as well as ever I had been in my life. I feel very grateful, for I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved me from a life of helplessness."

HEADACHES AND DIZZINESS.

Mrs. C. C. Bailey, of Martinville, Que., says: "After several years of ontinual suffering, I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and have reason to bless the day I began cannot control? Have you lost their use. Prior to beginning the use of the Pills I had been under doctors' care, and had tried other remedies, but with no effect beyond occasional tem-porary relief. I suffered from extreme headaches, dizziness, loss of appetite and palpitation of the heart. I got so weak that frequently I could scarcely move about, and my whole nervous system appeared to be in a state of complete prostration. When I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I doubted very much if any medicine I could sleep better, and that my nervous troubles, were growing less. My illness had seen going on for about four years so that I did not anticipate that it would be easily eradicated, especially as doctors' treatment had failed, but after I had taken about a dozen boxes, I was again in the full enjoyment of health. I think people using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should pay strict attention to the directions. and not always expect a cure from one or two boxes. Had I been so unreasonable I would not today be enjoying the good health I have, and I hope this message may benefit some poor discouraged sufferer."

A provincial election is at hand, the result of which will be of the utmost importance in its relation to the progress of temperance legislation. This importance is not lessened by the fact that a plebiscite on pational prohibition will shortly be taken. Even though we win in that vote, it will be some time before national prohibitory law action towards carrying out this policy can be brought into operation. Fur- as may be found most expedient in their law will largely depend upon the sympathy and support of the provincial government and legislature, which will have much to do with the important matter of law enforcement. In the meantime we must depend upon the legislature about to be elected for further needed measures for the curtailment of intemperance. It is deeply to be regretted that the present legislature has fallen short of Mutiny on fully representing the advanced temperance sentiment of Ontario. It was elected immediately after the province had declared in favor of prohibition by a majority of 81,769 votes, and we had Seven Sailers Shackled-A Fierco a right to expect that this declaration against the liquor traffic would have called forth a response in effective re-strictive legislation. It is true that some progress was made. The license law was improved and made more restrictive. The improvement, however, was not at all what friends of temperance had a might to avect. There is some improvement reported this week in general wholesale trade at Toronto. The more seasonable wea-

The increased demand extends to almost all the disposition to cut prices not being so apparent. Quite a number of small failures have occurred this week, but the comparison is favorable with former years. The railways are still doing a big business in dividends; prices of securities have advanced. For the third week of January, the gross earnings of the Grand Trunk were $443,851—an increase of $46,892 as compared with the corresponding week of last year. The Canadian Pacific earnings for the same week were $396,-000-an increase of $81,000. Large exports of farm produce continues, and the result is low rates of exchange, with easy money market.

Another advance has taken place in wheat, which is in good demand, and coarse grains are higher. Prices of dressed hogs also show an advance. DISPUTE IN RE RITUALISM. The Church of St. Helbertas, Bishopsgate, this city, is now the focus of a tremendous contest among the parishioners, owing to the ritualistic observances there. The rector, who is an old man, lives at Hastings, and he appointed a curate, who introduced holy water, the confession, the stations of church was turned into "a ritualistic bear-garden." The malcontents howled for two hours, declaring "the church was being used for a dirty confessional and for debauching." "liars," "drunkards," were among the choice epithets exchanged. Eventually a resolution was adopted supporting ritualism; but the fight will be continued, and the police will be called in upon the next occasion.

Elections, March 1.

Dissolution of the Ontario Legislature Gazetted.

Only a Month's Campaign and Everybody is Pleased.

Hon. Wm. Harty Nominated for Kingston City.

DISSOLUTION DECREED. Nomination, Tuesday, Feb. 22. Election, Tuesday, March 1.

This is the announcement which the Ontario Gazette will make in its issue of Saturday. Polling will take place four weeks from Tuesday. A proclamation dissolving the house will appear in the Gazette, and the writs will issue on Wednesday, Feb. 2. As the campaign is already well under way, the announcement of the decisive date will have a quickening eft upon the energies of the opposing forces, and the struggle will wax hotter as time goes on. The interval hetween now and election day will be made the most of by the parties, but that a well-informed electorate will go to the polls is assured from the fact that the issues have been exhaustively dealt with, both on the platform and in the house during the recent session. THE MUSICAL PART. In several constituencies an excellent use is being found for the available vocal talent. # Prohibition Debate at Kingston

Divinity Doctors Differ on the Propriety of a Dominion Prohibitory Act,

Combat the Evils of Intemperance.

Grant Take Opposite Sides.

Various Phases of the Subject Set Forth Before a Mass Meeting.

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 28.-Last night, a representative audience gathered in the city hall to listen to the stirring eloquence of Rev. Drs. Lucas and Grant on the prohibition question. The building, holding 1,200, was crowded, standing room not being possible.

The topic of debate was "That a law passed by the Dominion Parliament prohibiting the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor would promote temperance and public and political morality."

Dr. Lucas took the affirmative. He said: For centuries past the traffic in Intoxicating beverages has been the fruitful source of discussion and irri-tation both inside and outside of legislative halls. The bitterness and the wrangling respecting it have been almost endless. It has been estimated that more than five hundred acts of parliament in Christian countries have een passed to regulate it, but we seem to get no nearer to a satisfactory solution of the difficult problem. Even those financially interested are daily knocking at the doors of our lawmakers for some new regulation or some new law for the betterment of their trade. We never have been able to adjust it, and apparently never can adjust it, so as to quiet the public mind and please all classes. It is not so respecting any other occupation or trade. I am of the opinion that the very fundamental principles of the traffic are wrong. I mean that the beverage use of intoxicants is contrary to the unwritten laws of nature, and refully study the quescontrary to the written laws of

WORSE THAN WAR.

There seems to be a universal agreement that the traffic is bad. It was a Gladstone, who said originally that it had done more harm to humanity than War and pestilence and famine com-bined. A dealer in Manitoba said from behind his own bar, when there was considerable excitement over a suicide, in which drink was the cause, "Gentlemen, it's a damnable business, but there is money in it." It is not wonderful, therefore, that we should at least desire to prohibit it. It is our right and our power to prohibit which makes a license of any value. He would be a simpleton who would pay us $150 for a license to sell if we have no power to prohibit him from sening.

When he pays us for the license to sell when he pays us for the license to sell it is with the express understanding that we prohibit others from selling. Where we have authorized by law one man to sell we have prohibited 499 other men from selling. Now if we have prohibited 499 men from seling, and the 500th man not only admits that we have the right to prohibit, and in justice to him ought to prohibit, those 499 men from selling, then I should like to ask if we have not the power to prohibit, in justice to ourselves and our children, that 500th man if we

The use of gin had become so alarming in England that it became necessary, in the estimation of all good citizens, that something should be done to check this evil. The object sought was to wean the people from spirit drinking by cheapening beer and cider. Any householder on giving bonds and paying two guineas could get a license to sell. One

This grand old remedy, Shiloh's Consumption Cure, used throughout the world for half a century, has cured innumerable cases of incipient consumption, and relieved many patients in advanced stages. Give it a fatthful trial, and if you are not satisfied, beturn the bottle to your druggist, and get four money back. As the Best Means to gentleman supporting the measure did so because he thought it would preserve the morals of the people from contamination. He believed that these very numerous places of sale would tend to keep the people from the public houses, and thereby promote their morals and their comfort. The Duke Rev. The chancellor of the exchequer argued that the measure would conduce to the comfort and health of the peapie, but especially to their morality, in removing from them the temptations to be met with in the common

I want to call attention to the opinions expressed on that occasion by two of the most noted statesmen of that day. Lord Brougham said that the measure would be the means of reducing adulterations. Lord Somerset said the bill would substitute good beer for the abominable adulterations. What's that you say, my lord? "Adulterations! Abominable adulterations!"
Some persons will tell you that abominable adulterations are the direct and natural and certain result of prohibition, and yet here are two of the most noted English statesmen of 70 years ago telling us of their anxiety to put an end to abominable adulterations, in a country where, if the word "prohibition" was in their dictionary at all, was not thought, even by the sincerest philanthropists of that day, to have even the remotest reference to the liquor traffic. SUDDEN DEMORALIZATION. Defended in both houses and having the support of the leading philanthropists and statesmen of the day, the bill became law. Astonishing results fellowed. The friends of the measure were surprised by the sudden and gendemoralization. Rev. Sydney Smith, who had expected beneficial resuits, wrote to a friend only two weeks some money for the poor, but would after the law came into force: "The give me the opportunity of explaining new beer bill has begun its operations. Everybody is drunk. Those who are zens, I am told of papers which throw not reeling are sprawling. The sov- sneers, slanders and other kinds of mud ereign people are in a beastly condi-tion." The demoralization was so general and continuous that both Lord Wellington and Lord Brougham frankly confessed to a change of opinion before a year had elapsed. Not long

Lord Francis Edgerton said he considered the bill as promotive of enormous evils, and that no bill had ever been more productive of drunkenness and immorality than this. An Oxford magistrate said that this beer bill had brutalized the English laborer, and had frightfully extended the evils of moral debasement. We will throw a new picture on the canvas, and look at something a little brighter than the picture just described. In 1854, what is known in Britain as the Forbes Mackenzie act was applied to Scotland. This act prohibits the sale of liquor on the Sabbath. The prohibition principle was enlarged to the extent of one-seventh of the time formerly granted the licensee. GLASGOW AND EDINBURGH.

The speaker was closely followed, his points being well punctured with ap-

No wonder, then, that I hesitated a ward Island prohibition could not be little when Mr. Lucas called out in the sustained. He concluded: fight with all at once." Against a giant who had from his youth fought for prohibition on innumerable platforms, what could the man do who had never been on the stump? A TOUCH OF THE ANIMAL. I think that you understand my position. Let us all thank God that drunkenness is a decaying vice in Canada, thanks to true temperance workers, and the thousand-fold influences of Christian civilization. Should, however, prohibition be attempted, it least and British Columbia the most, the latter, where there is no prohibition, consuming nearly twelve times as

They show that Col. Aranzabe, of the Spanish forces, had known for some time that Aranguren was in the habit of visiting his mistress a hut in the Tapeste hills, and on Wednesday he ordered three columns of troops, reinforced by cavalry, to surprise the insurgent chief, with the result that the latter was shot and killed, with one of his companions. The troops also captured two women, and the father of Aranguren's mistress, who is described as the dynamiter of the band. Aranguren's body was brought to Havana, delivered to the military authorities, and, after identification, was sent to the morgue. About 4,000 people have since visited the morgue, among them being many ladies, the uncle of the deceased, Jose Maria Aranguren, and his nephew, Nestor Aranguren. It is further stated that the mistress of Aranguren and another woman, who were both wounded when the insurgent chief was captured, have since died of their injuries. Aranguren, it is stated, was shot while he was writing. His remains will be quietly buried today.

The girl drew back with a cry of right. The wildcat eyed her with the ming eyeballs, all the while angrily lashing its sides with its bristling tail. It was a situation to frighten the boldest. The child felt that nothing short of a miraele could save her from an awful death.

She turned and ran down the road, screaming at the top of her voice. The wildcat bounded after her, and when near enough clawed savagely at her dress. The terror-stricken child beat the cat in the face with her slate until the animal drew back, snorting with

For a moment the animal crouched on its stomach. Then, panther-like, it leaped at the girl. Fortunately for the child the cat had miscalculated the distance and fell just short of the quaking child. Pluckily Bertha brought her school slate again down on the cat's head. The blow was a hard one, and it smashed the slate. The fragments fell about the cat's neck, while the frame entirely circled it.

For a moment the cat seemed to be disconcerted. Then it leaped upon Bertha and bore her to the ground. The infuriated animal tore at the child's throat, but a heavy muffler and a thick coat collar saved her from serious in-

The attack would have been fatal for the child if a dog owned by a woodman had not at that moment rushed into view. The dog attacked the wildcat, and in less than two minutes drove it into the woods. Little Bertha scrambled to her feet and ran home. Now when she goes to school she is always accompanied by a dog.

A Mountain Lion Sprang Upon & Horseman.

A telegram from Phoenix, Ariz., says: Mountain lions are more numerous this year than ever before in Central Arizona, and are descending to the valleys to avoid the intense cold of the mountain tops. Scores of lion skins have been brought by hunters before the county officials to get the $20 bounty. The lions are rarely to be feared by though often as large as the

The most determined efforts are being made to exterminate them, because they kill horses and colts. Cattle are seldom molested by them.

As a rule the lions are treed and slaughtered with the aid of bloodhounds. John Skelly, a Verde Valley cowboy, who brought a superb skin, says that as he was riding along a trail fifteen miles north of the mouth of the Verde late last Friday night, a lion sprang upon him from a large rock that jutted at the trail side, and bore horse and rider to the ground. The beast paid no attention to the man, but tore at the horse's neck.

Skelly, uninjured by the fall, pressed the muzzle of his revolver to the very ear of the beast and shot him dead. Then he shot the horse, which had been fatally clawed. R 25

Goat Saved the Life of His Puppy Friend. A Susquehanna, Pa., dispatch says: Farmer Wainwright, of the Cascade, has a pet goat and a pet puppy which are bosom friends. Together they ramble through the neighborhood during the goat's spare moments when there are no oyster cans, door scrapers or other edibles for it to nibble. The singular behavior of the goat on Friday afternoon attracted the attention of the family. It ran to and fro, bleating piteously, and seemed half distracted. Some one suggested that the animal should be followed. The goat seemed to appreciate the fact that it was understood, and led the way to the rear of the yard, where the puppy was found in a pit ten feet deep, almost in its last struggles.

The puppy was rescued and restored to the goat, who greeted it with the Condest caresses.

80 B Wolf Set a Trap for the Farmer's Chicks.

Jim Wakely, of Great Bend town-snip, Susquehanna, N. Y., walked into the county commisssioner's office recently with a wolf's skull, claimed the usual bounty and told this remarkable The wolf, captured when a cub, had ered the most reckless of men who risks his life by putting his head into the mouth of a savage lion. The men who perform this foolhardy act are few and far between. There are tens of thousands of men who daily do a much more rash and dangerous deed. They are the men who overwork and neglect their health. No man can do this with impunity. The inevitable result is serious illness and premature death. One of the most common results of care-lessness in regard to health is consumption. There is one, and only one, unfailing remedy for this dread disease. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has a record of thirty years, during which time it has cured 98 per cent. of all cases of bronchial, throat and lung affections. It acts directly on the digestive and nutritive organism. It creates a healthy appetite for food, facili-tates the flow of digestive juices and pro-motes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve-tonic. In cases of nervous prostration it builds up the nerve abres and gives sound, refreshing sleep.

But he had one evil habit of which it was impossible to break him-he was fond of chickens When the wolf's food was brought to him, he would scatter it about him and then lie down with his head in his forepaws, feigning sleep. Soon the hens would surround him to eat his food, and woe to the one that came within reach of his paw. She was devoured in a minute

For this crime the wolf was condemned to death. Wakely fired a charge of shot at the wolf, but only wounded him, and the beast ran to the woods. The farmer and his two men followed the wolf two miles and shot him in the hind leg. He crawled into a thicket, and the hunters, thinking he was dead, went home.

The next morning the wolf came to the kitchen door of the farm-house when the family were at breakfast, and scratched for admission. The farmer's son was delighted. He and the wolf were great friends, and to-gether they had a happy time all day. Wakely resolved to spare the wolf for the boy's sake, but the very next morning the beast set his trap for the chickens and devoured two. Then he was filled with lead. He had grown nearly to the size of a Newfoundland.

All concede that the federation itself is an excellent institution, but that its value and effectiveness as a force in labor's advancement is abridged and practically destroyed by the extra-conservative character of its officials.

Famous Light Brigade.

One of Its Few Survivors Wins | return, and we retreated as best we $1,000 From Chicago.

The Incident Recalls the Famous Charge and the Survivor, Who Lives in the World's Fair City, Tells Once Again Its Deathless Story-Personal Bravely Amounted to Obeying Orders.

One of the "noble six hundred." who lives in Chicago, has won a verdict of $1,000 from that city for injuries due to a defective sidewalk.

Jeremiah Ryan is the name of the survivor of the Light Brigade. While be himself in a known, the exploits of the six hundred are familiar to everyone who has been a schoolboy at any time during the last forty years. Most of them recited Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade," and everybody has certainly heard it declaimed a dozen times. To print it would be ridiculous, for nearly everybody knows it by heart and can tell how the gallant little band was led to death through the mistake of a leader who himself died while on his fool's

Four days before last Christmas Ryan celebrated his sixty-second birthday. This would make him 19 years of age at the time when with his comrades he charged the whole Russian army. A man must be 21 before he can enlist in the British army. But when the war in the Crimea broke out Ryan, like other young Irishmen, was anxious to go to the front and do some fighting.

A recruiting station was opened at Limerick for the Fourth Light Dragoons, en English regiment, which, like most of the others, included a good many Irishrien in its ranks. Ryan was only 19, but he and some other youths of his age declared that they were 21, and so were allowed to enlist.

When the reigment left for the Crimean peninsula all of the men thought that they would have an easy time of it, and that the Russians would be easily beaten, But instead the hardships endured were . sightful. Cholera broke out, and thousands of men died from the disease. The men, unused to cold, were forced to sleep in tents in the open air during a Russian winter. Often the wind would tear the tents from their pegs and leave the soldiers without even that much covering, and this in spite of the fact that the intensity of the cold was so great that no one might dare to touch any metal substance in the open air without the penalty of leaving his skin behind him. The battle of Balaklava, fought Oct.

25, 1854, included the storied "charge of the Light Brigade." In talking of this the other day, Ryan said:

"After the battle of Alma we marched to Balaklava and occupied the heights with ease. This was south of Sebastopol. and had a port that would enable us to keep a constant communication between fur armies and fleets. We had a long and hard march over the snow, which was thick on the ground, but as hard as a rock, and not much worse on my horse's feet than would be the asphalt pavements. Preparations were made for an attack on Sebastopol. The attempt began on Oct. 17, but it failed, although we fought hard, but the ships could not get near enough to make their guns effective. "The battle of Balaklava was brought on by the Russians on Oct. 25, when they tried to drive us from the heights we occupied. It was a good, hot fight, and the cavalry did most of the fighting on our side, and as I was in the cavalry I got my share. I remember the charge of the Light Brigade best. although it did not seem much at the time. This Light Brigade consisted of 607 men. They were picked from the various regiments, all young and energetic men and good fighters. Here were 118 men from the Fourth Light Dragoons, 104 of the Eighth Hussars, 130 of the Thirteenth Light Dragoo!s, and 145 of the Seventeenth Laneers. I was among those from the Fourth Light Dragoons.

"In his poem Tennyson, with the licanse of a poet, makes it appear that we all knew we were going to certain death. As a matter of fact, we knew nothing of the kind. We did not have the slightest idea what we were going to do. We merely obeyed orders, and had no thought that we were about to charge the whole of the Russian army. There had been a heavy fall of dense, damp snow, the ground was hard. Under Captain Nolan we charged in two at quick pace. We did not know here we were going, and the enemy, being behind a bluff, were not in sight. We had not gone more than twelve hundred yards before the whole line of the Russians opened a flood of smoke and flame upon us from the mouths of thirty cannon. Then wa could not have fallen back if we wanted to. Men and horses fell under the fire. One-third of us fell to the ground, dead or dying. Another third of the men were wounded. The horses, well trained, huddled together and carried us onward toward the Russians. Another battery opened fire upon us, and to the oblique fire by the cannon was joined a volley of musketry from the Russian infantry. the Russian guns. We could not fight much, for we were huddled close together in a solid mass for our protection. The overlooking the harbor, and was the man men in the middle of the ranks dared who engaged Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, not draw their sabers, for they could not cell friend from fee. Those on the out work as a mason on the job. e fought and cut down the Russians ip our way. Then the order was given to could. Some of the horses broke with their riders and carried them back to our lines. Slowly we fought our way back surrounded by Russian infantry and

"But while we were fighting to regain our own lines the Russian gunners returned to their guns, and, angry that we had only just ridden over them, and thinking of nothing but revenge, they fired at the mass of fighting soldiers, and this time they killed more Russians than Englishmen, for there were more Russians an Englishmen in front of the guns. Meanwhile the Eighth Hussars and the heavy brigade came to our rescue and helped us cover our retreat.

"A wretched lot we were when we returned. They made heroes of the survivors, but the dead and dying were left where they fell. There were 607 of us when we followed Captain Nelan in the charge. Of these 198 came back, and some of these received wounds from which they died shortly afterward. I myself received two cuts in the hand and another just above the end of my sock. But these were light wounds, and I escaped much better than most of the men. There were not more than a dozen who came through that charge unscathed.

"We did not know what was going to happen when we went into the charge. But we were rather sore about it when we returned, though those who got through were too happy that they had escaped to make much fuss about it. It has been written of as a great expedition, and so I suppose it was. But we do not deserve any great credit for bravery. Almost any man would have done the same. We were all dare-devil fellows, caring little for our lives and fond of the excitement of battle. And then, when the band plays and everybody cheers and yells you are so carried away by the excitement that you think of nothing but the joy of fighting. It is great sport. Better than any other in the world.

"Afterwards we heard much about it, when the world sung our praises. Some Frenchman said that our exploit was 'magnificent, but it was not war.' It seems that it had been the intention of Lord Ragian, our general, that the cavairy should aid in regaining the heights surmounted by the redoubts taken by the Turks, or in default of this to prevent the Russians from carrying off the guns at those points. He had no intention of having this work done by 600 men. The Light Brigade was to have been only a part of the forces. But Captain Nolan, who carried the message, did not understand it nor did the lieutenant-general, Lord Lucan. The Earl of Cardigan put the order into execution and Captain Nolan himself led us and died with my other comrades for his own mistake, or that of others."

Ryan came to New York from England in 1856, and for eighteen years was with the Adams Express Company in that city. Then he moved to Chicago, where he has since lived. He was injured Jan. 4, 1897, by a fall caused by a defective sidewalk at Oakley and Austin avenues, and was confined for several months in the county hospital with a broken kneecap. As a result of his injuries he has been unable to pursue his business which has lately been that of a peddler.

SIR FRANCIS GRENFELL.

Sketch of the British Commander in Charge of the Nile Forces-Has Won Distinction. Sir Francis Grenfell, who is in command of the British forces that are now advancing up the Nile and have already reached Khartoum, possesses, by experience, an intimate knowledge of the counthrough which he is leading his soldiers. He was an officer in the expedition of 1882 and 1884, and was a sirdar of the Egyptian army from 1885 to 1893, a period which included the command of the forces at Suakim in 188).

Sir Francis' rank is that of majorgeneral. He is now 57 years old, and has been in the military service of his country since 1859. The general had some experience, too, in Africa. He was a deputy assistant adjutant-general at headquarters in the Zulu war of 1879, and was present in the engagement at Ulindi. He won distinction in that action and was given a medal with clasp for gallantry. In the Egyptian war of 1882 he was assistant and jutant and quartermaster-general, and was mentioned in the dispatches from the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. For his service there he was given third class Medjidieh, medal with clasp, the Khedive's star, and was made aid to the Queen. He won Circle of Bath and clasp in the Nile expedition of 1885-86. He fought in the action at Giniss, and for his conduct there he was promoted to the first class of Medjidieh, was made Knight Circle of Bath and given the third class of the

He also took part in the war with China (1857-58), was midshipman on the Calcutta's launch when it was sunk at the destruction of the Chinese flotilla in Fatshan creek, on June 1, 1857, and was present at the capture of Canton in the same year and at the taking of the Peiho forts in 1858. For these services he was awarded the China medal and the Fatshan, Canton, and Taku clasp. During the China war of 1860 he served as lieutenant in the Chesapeake. In 1862 he commanded a small arm party of the Imperieuse at the relief of Sing-poo and the capture of Kahding. As commander of the Growler in 1870 he rescued an English vessel from pirates in the Congo river, on which occasion he was severely wounded, and afterwards received the special approval of the admiralty.

As captain of the Iris he served in the Egyptian war of 1882, receiving the Egyptian medal, the Khedive's bronze star, and the third class of the Osmanieh. Sir E. H. Seymour wears also the Royal Humane Society's medal for having in 1860, when a mate, at Rhio straits, China, jumped overboard to save a marine who had fallen into the sea. From January, 1887, to July, 1889, he was A.D.C. to the Queen, was made C.B. in 1887, his name figuring among the jubilee honors, and was promoted to be K.C.B. in the diamond jubilee year. From September, 1892, to April, 1894, he was second in command of the Channel squadron. On the latter date he was appointed Admiral Superintendent of the Naval Reserves, a post which he has held until now.

A Car of Instruction.

Acting in accordance with the new law which makes it obligatory for all railroads to use air brakes on all their trains, the Grand Trunk has fitted out a car of instruction, in which its engineers and brakesmen are trained. Other roads in the United States are expected to follow the Canadian road's example, and good results are sure to follow.

The car of instruction has room for classes of fifteen at a time and it makes two trips a day over the road. The car is the best that could be turned out by the builders. Its inside dimensions are 9 by 9.6 by 62.9 and its weight is 111,468 pounds. The equipment consists of an eight-inch pump, nine and one-half-inch pump and all connections. The main reservoirs can be operated as one or separately. Twenty sets of brakes are in the car and fifteen sets of air signals, with a full complement of pipes located overhead. The car is in charge of Frank W. Morse, superintendent of motive power of the Grand Trunk Railway.

When Sir Charles Gavan Duffy became Minister of Lands in the colony of Victoria part of his duty was the naming of new towns. He bestowed on two of them the names of his old London friends Cobden and Carlyle. Their reception of the news was characteristic. Richard Cobden wrote a pleasant and modest little note in reply, but Carlyle contented himself with a pessimistic hope that the new Australian town which bore his name would have a much less miserable existence than that which had been meted out to its godfather. The fates of the two towns were utterly dissimilar. Cobden is now one of the most flourishing and populous centers in the western district of Victoria. Carlyle, on the contrary, has faded off maps and gazetteers, and is practically non-existent. Surveyors' pegs, indicating the boundaries of ghostly streets and squares, are all that remain to tell of the town that was named after the Sage of Chelsea.

A Pastorate 150 Years in One Family. There are not many churches which can claim the distinction of having had five successive pastors all members of one family. Such, however, is the proud boast of the Selkirk United Presbyterian church, for ever since its opening day, more than a century and a half ago, those ministering there have been related to one another. The Rev. Andrew Moir was the first pastor, and his great-grandson, the Rev. John Lawson, has occupied the pulpit now for forty-seven years, the connecting links between the first and the last having all been members of the same family. - Westminster Gazette.

77 Victoria St., Toronto Dear Sirs: I take great pleasure ie advising you, that the Crescent Bicycle awarded me as first prize in you "Educational Prize Competition" of last week reached me safely yesterday. It is a beauty and here allow me to thank you for your promptness in the matter. It was I might say, almost beyond my expectation to receive a prize of any kind, for the reason, that I have several times entered the prize competitions of other concerns, each time to come out a loser. Everything was misrepresented, and if I was awarded anything it cost more than its value for Everything was misrepresented, and if I was awarded anything it cost more than its value for boxing and packing. However, after investigating the methods employed in your Competition, I came to the conclusion that a gentleman like Mr. Hewitt Bostock, M. P., President of your Company, could not afford to be associated with any business that was not conducted on honorable business principles, and through this I became a competitor. The Chart is just what I wanted, and I am sure when the public get to know what your Chart System means in the study of history, its sale will be enormous. Wishing you the success you unquestionably deserve with such a valuable Historical work, I am dear sirs. Sincerely Yours,

G. M. VERRALL.

Ye Good Olde Times.

How They Lived in New England 70 Years Ago.

Beventy years ago Saturday aftersoon was always a half-holiday. It was a blessed time for the children, those few hours they were permitted to spend in play, but they knew they must improve them to the best advantage, for on the approach of sunset, every kind of sport must cease, and every plaything be carefully put away. The holy Sabbath then began, and ended at sunset on Sunday. Besides the morning and evening devotions at the family altar, and besides the often lengthened grace said before and after each meal, Saturday evening was spent in religious exercises. The head of the household called together the members of it, old and young, read and commented upon the Holy Scriptures, catechized them upon points of doctrine, and thus sought to prepare their minds for the solemnities of the following day. Sunday school children of the present, with all the time and thought and money that is expended upon them, do not have the thorough, intelligent knowledge of the Bible that was obtained on those Saturday evenings.

The Sabbath day was kept with puritanical strictness. The food consumed was chiefly prepared on the day previous, and dishes were left unwashed, beds unmade, and all labor not absolutely necessary, deferred until after sunset. The meeting-house, often on a hill three or five miles distant, was filled, morning and afternoon, with devout worshipers; all who were not detained at home by sickness or some equally important hindrance. The pulpit was placed as high as are the galleries of today, and the minister looked down from this inconvenient height board helped to convey his words to the

On returning home from meeting, how eagerly did the little, ones, especially, watch the declining sun! The moment it sank below the horizon, the Sabbath day was at an end, and they ran out to play; women resumed their domestic avocations, some of the more industrious even beginning the weekly washing that it might be finished early next morning. Men discussed business or politics, and arranged for the work of the morrow, and a fire was kindled in the parlor, in anticipation of the incipient or affianced lover who was sure to make his appearance that evening. man's Journal.

Many a woman who rides a bicycle is still ignorant of the importance of correct ankle action, and thereby misses much ease and grace in riding. A writer from Lynn to the Shoe and Leather Review urges that the best expenditure of strength is missed if the ankles are not properly used, and they cannot be unless the boots or shoes are made correctly. It should be borne in mind primarily that a rider's heels are to be kept down. This prevents an obtrusive knee action. If one rides with a high seat it is of course impossible to have the heel lowered when the pedal is at its lowest point, but directly it begins to rise the heel should be below it and continue there until the lowest point is again reached. Button boots, he says, are preferable to laced ones for bicyclists, because for one thing buttons do not come undone, as laces do, . .

Children as Sweethearts. I often wonder if mothers of little doing when they jest with them about their "little sweethearts" and "beaux." There is so much of this kind of talk upon his congregation, while a sounding the hearing. While boys and girls are young they should be comrades, playmates, friends, but the possibility of a tenderer relation existing should never for a moment enter the heads of the innocent children. When Mabel's mother speaks of twelve-year-old Jack as her "beau," and the little girl flushes with self-consciousness or with anger, the irreparable wrong has been done. The chorister, with a tuning the jolly boy who was "great fun."

The bloom has already begun to come the bloom has already begun to come off the peach. The longer boys and girls are kept in ignorance of the fact that they can be anything but dear friends the happier they will be. They cannot help knowing that growing men and women love and are given in pew, were kept in order by divers and seems very far off to them, and those marriage, but the "grown-up" period who love them should keep them children as long as possible. A true story. [By Nora Archibald Smith.] The captain's cat, was an able seaman. He had shipped before the mast when but a kit, had learned to obey perfectly, could be depended to keep it in roughest weather, and was "never, never sick at sea."

Naturally apt at climbing the rigging, he had soon learned the ropes, so that he could tell them with his eyes shut; but as he grew older and graver he seldom came on deck save when in port, feeling that the lower part of the ship really required, and repaid constant supervision. His home was the Germanic of the White Star Line, and a scupulously kept and well-appointed vessel she was; but she would have been considered seaworthy, had she harbored no rats and mice, so Tom had quite enough sport to suit even the keenest huntsman. So, comrades, let us foot it free and was the first facinating scent of the quarry, the crafty lying-in-wait, the breathless pursuit, the delicate tiptoeing in dangerous places, the rapid, velvet-footed descent on laden shelves. and lastly, the swift pounce like the click of a steel spring which sealed the victim's fate. It did not always seal his fate, however. For the hunter being in small need of food and apprehensive lest the supply of game both ankles. He continued piping, sit- | run short, frequently let the prey go ting where he fell, amid a hail of bul- when once he had it fast, and saunter ed away as one regretting his recent over-excitement.

Tom was devoted in his own way which was entirely a feline way, to his master, the captain; devoted to the steward, who allowed him to drowse on the cushions in the diningsaloon and wander in and out at his pleasure; devoted to the cook, who feasted him on chicken and fish and cream, and anything else his catship fancied; but more than any of these alone, and more than all of them together, he adored his dear, dear, ten housand times dear Germanic. had sometimes fancied in his kitten days that he would have preferred a home on dry and steady land, but in ed with dock cats in New York and Liverpool, and in the more protracted sian and Angora and Manx beauties, who were traveling to and from foreign lands, he had learned that his lot was indeed a happy one. No infant pulled his waving tail; no maid neglected him in his mistress' absence; no cook cut off his rations when out of temper; no dog flew out at him from unexpected quarters; his owner never moved away; his family never had reverses, culminating in ar absence of chicken for the weekly menu; he was safe, sheltered and serene. So keen was his appreciation of the joys of his condition that even when the ship was safely anchored, he rarely left it, save for a half hour at a time, apparently regarding it as something in the nature of a gigantic As Tom was a cat of age and conthronged the docks on both sides of of one of her voyages, and after the

During the few days the vessel remained in he commonly went on shore both morning and evening, returning punctually for meals and turning in early at night. The steward always saw for himself on each voyage that the cat was safely on board before the rush and confusion of departure began, although Tom was really so correct and methodical in his habits that it was most unusual for him to require a reminder of sailing time.

One never-to-be-forgotten morning however, pussy went on shore rather earlier than common, knowing that the ship was to leave New York at noon and that his play-time would consequently be shorter than usual. Arch ing his neck, purring and rubbing himself against the few early-risen and friendly legs he met on the deck, he made his way to a quiet spot, behind a mountain of freight, where he was accustomed to meet a few land cats whose society he specially favored. No one was there at the moment; yesno-yes, there seemed to be a sound of heavy breathing from a pile of rags in the corner. Tom cautiously drew near and saw stretched out upon them a thin and haggard cat whose fine fur, curling whiskers, long tail and delicate limbs plainly showed her birth and breeding, despite her present wretched condition. There something vaguely familiar about her, thought Tom, though it seemed impossible that he could ever really have known so miserable and dirty a creature. She opened her blue eyes and looked at him, giving at the same time accomplished Angora, who only six months before had come to New York on the Germanic.

He hurried to her side, and with

of such a passenger.
The Germanic's officers saw with surprise the noisy tugboat chasing them, but when it came alongside. when explanations were shouted, and the cat, carefully enveloped in a bag, was tossed into a sailor's waiting arms, there were cheers and hurrahs from crew and passengers, and to the deafening music of the two steam whistles, Tom flew down the companion-way of his beloved Germanic.-Interior.

Well Made

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists of today, who have brought to the production of this great medicine the best results of medical research. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, containing just those vegetable ingredients which were seemingly intended by Nature herself for the alleviation of human ills. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach and digestive organs and creates an appetite; it absolutely cures all scrofula eruptions, boils, pimples, sores, salt rheum, and every form of skin disease; cures liver complaint, kidney troubles, strengthens and builds up the nervous system. It n-tirely overcomes that tired feeling, giving and languor. It wards off malaria, ty-phoid fever, and by purifying the blood it eeps the whole system healthy.

lood's Sarsa-Is the best-in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Bold by all druggists. $1; six for $5.

Grain receipts were quite good today. Of course, wheat and oats were the leaders in quantity. The demand for all kinds was active, and prices were well maintained. There was a little excitement over some loads of wheat, not because of any special value, for the stock was no better than ordinary; the usual prices were $1 40 to $1 42, the outside quotation being paid in a few inonly. Balley was much higher, the price paid being 70c.

Eggs took a big drop; receipts were very heavy. Butter was lower.

The meat supply was good, and prices of beef and lamb steady. Dressed hogs had a wider range; $5 75 to $7 was the price for light. A few young pigs and some chickens only live stock offered-prices unchanged. Vegetables steady.

heavy; $5 to $7 was the range.

Annual Meeting of the Local Organization.

A Summary of the Council's Good Work During the Year.

A Crusade Against Furs and Feathers -The Sweating System-Officers Elected-The President's and Secretary's Addresses,

The fourth annual meeting of the Local Council of Women was held in the "Y" rooms, Dundas street, yesterday afternoon and evening, and at each of the sessions the attendance of members was large. The president, Mrs. H. A. Boomer, presided.

Reports from the officers of the local council and from affiliated societies all indicated an increasing interest in the various branches of philanthropic work undertaken by the ladies, and the result of the year's efforts was particularly gratifying. A general review of the work done by the local council during the past year was contained in the report first presented, that of the secretary, Miss McDonald. It stated that three public 2.000 Wheat ....... 13.000 meetings had been held, and also eleven executive and committee meetings, besides several sub-committee meetings. One new society had affiliated with the council—the Women's Christian Association. This, it was felt, would strengthen the council very materially. Congratulatory reference was made to the election of a lady high school trustee and the hope ex-pressed that next year would see two of them elected. The aid of the W. C. T. U. in this matter was appreciated. At the instance of the local council the license fee on the sale of cigarettes was raised last year, with a view to making their sale to youths and children difficult. Similar legislation was enacted in West London, and township and county authorities in-terviewed for the same purpose.

Through the council's efforts the city would shortly have a covered patrol wagon. Amendments to the shops act, since effected, were discussed with the Trades and Labor Council. Pauper immigration was also considered, but dropped when Mr. Gibson's bill was introduced in the legislature. The sum of $104 was raised for the India famine fund. A committee had been appointed to look into lotteries. The ladies who represented the women's a particularly good investment. specially interested themselves in the children's wing of the proposed hos-The school children had subscribed over $300, and the hospital bazar was very successful. From time to time various questions and resolutions were sent by the national council for deliberation and approval:

shortly wait upon the Children's Aid re affiliation. The following committee for the Victorian Order of Nurses was named: Mesdames Boomer, Tilley, Yarker, English and Robinson. In the address of the president, Mrs.

Boomer, a review of the work already done and an outline of the many important lines of work ahead of the council, were given in a very interest-ing manner. Warm praise was bestowed on the council's first past president, Mrs. English. Reference was made to the federation of the national and international councils. Some of the objects to be striven for by thecouncil are to bring about the abolition of the sweating system, to suppress unwholesome literature, and to suppress the traffic in birds' wings and feathers.

New Stock

That of the London Street Railway Company

The stock of the London Street Railway Company was listed for the first time on the Toronto stock exchange yesterday, and the brokers and bankers were pleased with the way the security took. There was quite an inquiry, and as a result the standing of London was discussed in financial circles more than any other city. The stock was in demand, and sold at the opening at 175%, and before the market closed Maria Edge, postmistress of Edge Hill, says: "For nearly two years I suffered agonies from acute indiges-tion and dyspepsia. I could eat practically nothing without its producing the severest pain. The doctors could do so little for me I about gave up hope of recovery. I was induced as a last resort to give South American Nervine a trial. Two bottles wonderfully helped me. SATURDAY MORNING. It was 12:40 when the last bylaw was sealed and signed by the warden and clerk, and the labors of the January session of the county council were brought to a close. The session was a busy one. The discussed at length. The chief ob-jection raised was to giving the comjection raised was to giving the committee power to enter into any arrangement with the city committee regarding the extent to which the county would become shareholders. Motions and amendments were put. Mr. G. B. Campbell pointed out that to send the committee without power was of no earthly use. No agreement was to be binding until the council had voted on the report of the committee. If it were necessary to call a special meeting for the purpose there would be no objection. "Mr. Keith," she repeated, dubiously, as she came forward to receive Hervey's bow and inquiry; "he-yes, I have no doubt he will see you; but he is far from well. You will excuse the liberty I take, as an old woman, Captain Trent"—glancing at the card—"if I' ask you not to let me summon Mr. Keith if-if it is unnecessary, or-" Hervey read the real anxiety in the pleasant face-to read such thoughts as these were not impossible to him now-but he could not guess how rarely had visitors lately brought any pleasure to Royden.

"Indeed," he said, in what Phoebe called "his nice way," "I would not ask to see Mr. Keith at all if I felt that I were bringing him worry or anxiety. Let me assure you that it is quite the Miss Henderson smiled, partly in relief, and partly in acknowledgment of the courtesy of Hervey's manner. "I will take your card," she said, and left him alone in the long room. Only a few minutes passed before Royden entered, and at that moment Captain Trent experienced the greatest shock he had felt through all his life, though he little guessed how long the effect of this sudden shock was to hover about him, and have its share in deepening the growing seriousness of his own thoughts and feelings. "Good gracious, Keith!" he faltered, incapable of hiding this pained astonishment, "have you been so ill?" "I have not been ill," said Royden, quietly, as he took Hervey's outstretched hand; "I mean, not worse than I am now. If an illness is my doom, it is in the future, not the past." 'Sit down," said Hervey, losing every trace of his old affectation, as he drew forward a large armchair, and, taking a seat himself to insure Royden's taking his, tried to remove his frightened gaze from his companion's face—so fashioned hospitality to see him off.

"How are all my old friends, Captain Trent?" inquired Royden, seeing much of the change in Hervey, for his glance, though weary and feverish, had its old, keen power, and wondering a little "All well," said Hervey, trying to talk easily; "I have come as a messenger from one of them." "Are Mrs. and Miss Trent in London The question was cool and easy, and the listener could not detect its mo-

"Yes," rejoined Hervey, with unconcealed indifference; "indeed they are." "And your other cousins?" "Phoebe," replied Hervey, feeling his way gradually to the message, "could not be better, I fancy; she enjoys three days for every one she lives this sea-"That is pleasant for her."

"But Honore," resumed Captain Trent, not succeeding in his effort to be quite at ease, "does not seem well or No answer, and Royden's eyes were fixed upon the sunny grass beyond the open window. But even Hervey could see that some thought had deeply shadowed them.

"And she bade me," continued Hervey, his voice taking an earnestness which the memory of her words had brought; "see you, Mr. Keith, and tell you this message; I must say it in her own words—it will be easiest and best. She said: 'Will you tell him that I have a great longing to see my own cousin, Gabriel Myddelton, and I beg him to help me, if he can. That was her message, Keith, just as she intrusted it to me. What answer may I

"You shall take her Gabriel's own answer, if you will," he said, speaking sadly, after a slight pause. "He will be grateful for this message from the only one of all his house who has ever spoken kindly of him, or doubted his guilt. He will be very glad of it, especially if you deliver it yourself, as you have done to me." "But how would that be possible?" Would you go to him, if it were

"Yes-certainly. I would fulfill Honore's wish to the letter." "Then, if you will stay with me tonight, I will give you an address in Liverpool where, tomorrow, you will find Gabriel Myddelton, where his wife is waiting to receive him."
"His-wife!"

"His wife," repeated Royden, quietly. "For some time she has been staying here with an old friend of hers, the lady whom you met just now; but yesterday she went to Liverpool to await the vessel in which her husband sailed from America. His life is safe on English ground now, and he is glad to

"How did he know?" faltered Captain "I telegraphed to him the very hour his innocence was proved. I hoped to go and greet him when he landed, but I could not."

Hervey sat in silence, his thoughts growing tangled. "This is all so strange," he said, when at last one of those thoughts found words. "Can Gabriel Myddelton really be landing in England today?"

"And married?" "And married, Captain Trent. Even with that brand upon his name, he found one who would link her life with his, and who-but that her health failed and he entreated her to save it for his sake-would never have parted from him."

"And she has been here?" "Yes, visiting me for some time; we are very old friends, and Miss Henderson and she are very old friends, too. I should have gone with her, as I said, if I had been better; I hoped Miss Henderson would go instead, but she would not consent to leave me. "Indeed I have not, although he was never very fond of me." They talked a little longer, but never alluded to those old days in Statton; and presently dinner was announced. Captain Trent was ready next morning for the earliest train to Liverpool -industriously and anxiously was he fulfilling this trust confided to him-but, early as it was, Royden came down into the hall as the horses drew up at the door.

"You will find no difficulty, I think," he said, with a grasp of his hot fingers. "I am very glad you are going, and your cousin will be glad, too." "Honore, you mean?" "No; I mean Gabriel."

"Have you any message for Honore?" inquired Hervey, hoping that he should not need to tell her how Mr. Keith was looking. "No," he answered, without a change

The moment he met his cousin face to face he knew him. It was the face from the picture at Abbotsmoor; it was the face, though so much changed, of the boy-cousin Hervey could remember playing with and always envying as the heir of Abbotsmoor and of old Myddelton's money. Involuntarily he held out his hand and welcomed Gabriel in tones that were unusually warm and genial for Captain Hervey Trent. Of course Gabriel did not recognize him at first, and, when he did, his welcome seemed much colder than Hervey's; but this was only due to the reserve which had grown upon him during his twelve years' banishment. Beside his manner, that of Alice seemed almost cordial. Perhaps much of her timidity had left her, now that she felt her husband near her once again, and in safety; but perhaps it was in contrast to Gabriel's dreamy

THE TEMPERANCE AND GENERAL LIFE

The above company held its annual meeting at its head office, Toronto, on Tuesday, Jan. 18. The report referred to the splendid progress which the company is making. The cash receipts from premiums, and interest amounted to $195,161 98, an increase of $23,407 30 over the income from these sources in 1896.

payments to policy-holders for death claims, for matured endowments and for cash dividends and surrender values were larger than in any previous year, as would naturally be expected from the larger business and increasing age of the company. The following statement was made with regard to death claims: "Our average ratio of death losses for the past twelve years has been 3.24 lives per 1,000 in number and 3.77 per 1,000 in amount in our temperance section, and it has been 4.02 lives per 1,000 in number, and $4.91 per $1,000 of the annumber, and $4.91 per $1,000 of the annumber. nual average of our total business for J. Bell, claims than has ever been recorded by any other company on a similar amount is emphatically true with regard to the experience in our temperance section."

The company's assets increased from $507,365 50 at the end of 1896 to $574,-

"It is interesting in these times of great depression in real estate values to note that we have never foreclosed a mortgage or purchased a dollar's worth of real estate." The company's liabilities, according to the report, had increased to $474,-140 61. In this connection the report refers to the general tendency of all com-panies to adopt a higher standard of valuation, which means larger and therefore stronger reserves, and adds: "For the business of 1897 we have valued our reserves on the basis of a 4 per cent earning power, instead of a 41/2 per cent standard, as at present G. The year closed with an aggregate business consisting of 6,314 policies on 5,917 lives for $7,260,786. Of these 4,525 policies, for $5,473,046, were in the temperance section, and 1,369 policies, for $1,787,740, in the general section.

The report recommends a dividend to policy-holders on the basis of pre-vious allotment and a dividend to shareholders of 5 per cent on their paid-up capital, and refers in complimentary terms to the company's agents and officers, and says: "We believe that ours is the only company that has year by year for the past seven years sent its preliminary and completed returns to the government on the first day of the new year." # RUNNING SORES.

There is nothing that will so waste and wear away the health as a running sore. Burdock Blood Bitters heals and dries up sores and ulcers, no matter how large or of how long standing, by cleansing the blood of all impurities and sending rich pure life-giving blood to the diseased part, thereby supplanting the decaying tissue with healthy healing flesh.

Mr. Stephen Wescott, Freeport, N.S., found (Burdock Blood Bitters) a wonderful blood purifier and gives his experience as follows: "I was very much run down in health and employed our local physician who attended me three months, finally my leg broke out in running sores with fearful burning. I had thirteen running sores at one time, from my knee to the top of my foot. All the medicine I took did me no good, so I threw it aside and tried B. B. B.; when one-half the bottle was gone, I noticed a change for the better, and by the time I had finished six two bottles my leg was perfectly boxes $2 50, or will be sent on receipt of price by the Dodds Medicine Co., healed and my health greatly improved."

In Labor's Realm.

The Stubborn Battle of the British Engineers,

American Miners Win a Great Victory in the Labor Field.

The strike of the British engineers, which appears to have ended in a defeat for the men, has proved one of the most stubbornly contested industrial battles in the history of England. The strike was begun on July 13, in London, where the eight-hour day and the rate of over- saved two lives at Rondeau last sumtime pay were the points in dispute. Many of the employers conceded the eight-hour day, but others were stubborn and instituted a lockout.

A general strike followed, involving 100,000 men and paralyzing the machine building busines throughout the country. The sympathy of the press look, will deliver addresses. and public has been with the strikers, The strike continued so long that the nation became greatly excited over the delay in the completion of the new war ships, caused by the strike, and over the advantages which Germany and the United States derived from the long conflict.

City and County Committees Again Discuss This Question.

Mayor Wilson Says He Will Oppose the Hospital Plans,

Which the Medical Profession Approved Of-County Council Will Be Recommended to Appoint a Committee to Consider the City's Proposition.

The committees appointed by the city and county councils to consider the proposed new hospital met each other last night in the county chamand little, if anything, was accomplished. The county committee seemed to have been very much "fogged" by the scheme. They had been consider-and found that the county had paid to the city for maintenance of patients of St. George's Royal Arch Chapter, from $1,600 to $2,600 a year. If a new joint institution could be built it could be managed with greater advantage both to the city and county on a good paying basis. Paying patients had een taken from Huron county at the same rate as from Middlesex, and this the mayor thought an injustice to Middlesex. About one-fifth of the patients entering the hospital came from the county, and if the county took a fifth interest in the hospital, and came in on an equal footing with the citizens, it would be satisfactory to the city. The cost per patient per week now was $6 30. Last year the county paid $1,900 to the hospital. Warden Elson said he would be pleased to see a more modern hospital be treated in the latest and most scientific manner. If the plans they had considered were not adopted the council would be at sea in the matter. He would like to see the plans first, and then the council would know just where they were at. Mr. Elson asked if it was the intention of the city to proceed on the plans as approved by the hospital trust.

In reply, Mayor Wilson stated that it was a question to be decided by the the county (if they cared to go in in December, and which a majority of ton, presided. An important innovation was made. The young people deown part he would oppose the plans
own part he would oppose the plans
own part he would oppose the plans
own part he would oppose the plans with the city), the city council and the freeholders voted in favor of and the delegates, except those taking lieved a building erected on the plans could not be heated for less than five are erected must be erected on the for their board while in the city, and times what it cost to heat the present part in the programme: Rev. Dr. tered, and was sure the present site Carman, general superintendent of the would have to be used. Approved plans had been submitted to the people upon which they had expressed an opinion. He had no objection if more economical plans could be procured. The mayor pointed out that the city council had the say regarding what port of patents granted this week to hospital trust were the ones who manbuilding should be erected, but the aged it.

Mr. Hodgins thought it would be better for the city to go on with the plans, and then let the county consider what they would do either regarding the taking of shares or terms upon which the county patients could be treated. For his part he was inclined to believe that it made little difference whether the county paid interest on money invested by or put in a lump sum to the hospital. In either case they would have to pay pro rata the cost of maintaining the patients. The county paid 6 per cent interest on a capital of $25,000, and the cost of maintaining county patients was too high. If they took shares in it, he failed to see where the benefit was, because if they paid say 3 per cent on $50,000, a rental, and then the proportionate cost of maintaining patients it would amount to about the same as now. If the county invested $25,000 in the new hospital, it would want a guarantee that the building would be continued for a certain num-ministration of the state of th out of them. If the county put in $25,-000 they would be exactly on the same footing as the citizens. Mr. McLeod looked at the matter pretty much in the same light as Mr. Hodgins. It would be injudicious to erect a building greatly in excess of the present requirements, and looking forward twenty years. That would only be a burden to both city and county patients alike. The county, he bught, would be willing to pay reasonable rates for county patients. Ex-Warden Leitch explained the feeling in his part of the county regarding the matter. They were opposed to the expenditure of money in the new hospital, on the ground that they could not avail themselves of the privileges, not matter how much accommodation there was.

Mr. Hardy asked what representation the county would have in case the county took shares, and in answer Dr. Wilson replied that it would depend entirely upon the agreement made. Ald. Taylor pointed to the fact that the city had given the county voluntary representation on the hospital trust. He spoke of the present site as a most suitable one. His feelings as a citizen were that he did not come begerected, where suffering humanity could ging a grant from the county, but wished to know just what the council was willing to do, and hoped a good strong committee would be appointed, with power to consider the question of plans. The hospital was of mutual benefit to city and county. Mr. Thomas Duffin was fully in accord with Mr. Hodgins' suggestion. He advocated taking shares if they could be made on reasonable terms. Ald. Stevely stated that the bylaw, which had passed the second reading creased hospital accommodation on the present site, and whatever buildings present site. As regards the plans spital trust and approved by them, the city was not bound to adopt them, but it was usually customary when a plan was prepared and estimates based on it, to carry out the plan. If the county council see fit to appoint a say $25,000 or $30,000 towards building a hospital, they should then have some say as to the plans that should be adopted for a new building.

Mr. Morgan pointed to the fact that the time was arriving when something would have to be done. He favored the appointment of a committee to consider the matter.

Mr. G. B. Campbell had no objection to the appointment of a committee with power to confer with the city regarding the selection of the plans. If that committee recommended the county to take shares, it was for the whole council to say what the amount should be, and the terms upon which it would be made. Much more was said regarding the scheme, and the general opinion was that the council would have no objection to appointing a committee with power regarding the plans, and it was

UNIQUE RECORD

Of a Strong Financial Institution-Facts Worthy of Consideration.

When one is called upon from time to time to note weaknesses in men or in methods of business which bring trouble to great financial institutions, it is done with sincere regret, but when The Advertiser can with full confidence speak in terms of high commendation of any enterprise depending upon large public confidence and administering large trusts, it does so with sincere pleasure. It is because of its clean record, and its strict adherence to right principles that reference is here made to the Temperance and General Life Assurance Company as one of the leading Canadian financial institutions which is worthy of the confidence of the public. The statements in its annual reports are clear, clean-cut, explicit, and exhaustive, and are marked by a strong individuality, which bears evidence to the strength that is behind the company. They point to steady progress along lines that are absolute ly safe and perfectly sure to bring the pest results to its patrons. They indicate great care in the selection of its risks on lives, and, if possible, greater care in the making of its investments, as will be seen from the following statement: "Our average ratio of death losses for the past twelve years has been 3.34 lives per 1,000 in number, and $3 77 per $1,000 in amount, in our temperance section, and it has been 4.02 lives per 1,000 in number, and $4 91 per $1,000 of the annual average of our total business for the same period. We believe this is a smaller loss ratio from death claims than has ever been recorded by any other company on a similar amount of business for so long a period. This is emphatically true with regard to the experience of our temperance section. The high character of our investments prepared under the direction of the years in succession we have been able is indicated by the fact that for four to report having closed our books promptly on the last day of the year without a single dollar of interest in arrears, or a single dollar's worth of real estate on our hands. It is interestcommittee to act with a committee in real estate values to note that we ing in these times of great depression have never foreolosed a mortgage or purchased a dollar's worth of real es-

It is certainly a unique record for a company to be able to speak of such a record of mortality and such a record with regard to its investments. These, together with its well known regard to economy in the management of its affairs, make it in all respects a company worthy of the fullest public confidence, and one especially worthy of the support of all total abstainers, who, by insuring in it, get the advantage of being classed with abstainers only for
