

FATAL STRIKE RIOTS AT BUCKINGHAM, P. Q.;
TWO DEAD; SEVERAL MORTALLY INJURED*Detectives Fire Point Blank Into Charging Mob Killing Two of the Leaders—Militia With Machine Guns Rushed from the Capital.

Buckingham, Que., Oct. 8.—A terrible affray took place this afternoon between 200 former employees of the James MacLaren Company's mill and 22 policemen, who were guarding a band of 17 strikebreakers. Two strikers were shot dead and several severely wounded during the fighting, and the police were finally driven from their posts.

The dead are Thomas Belanger and Xavier Theriault. Belanger was the leader of the strikers and the president of the union formed a month ago to fight the company. He belonged formerly to St. Jerome, and was married only three months ago. He was about 30 years old.

Theriault had lived many years in Buckingham, and leaves a widow and eight children.

The injured strikers Felix Paquette, shot through the abdomen, and not expected to recover; Baptiste Clenow, shot in the arm and head; Felix LaCelle, shot in arm; Adelard Hamelin, four shots in arm; Edward Miner, shot in leg; Xavier Tremblay, shot in arm and leg; Isidore Renaud, shot in back; Louis Gervais, shot in wrist.

How Trouble Started.

Herbert Verrier, Montreal, of the police contingent, was shot. It is feared fatally. Other policemen badly wounded are the chief of the Buckingham force, Frank Kiernan, his brother James, Peter Pecard, Detective Leyotte and some others.

The labor trouble began a month ago, when 500 men asked for an increase of 25 cents a day. Most of them had been receiving $1.25. The MacLaren Company, which is one of the biggest lumber concerns in Canada, responded by closing the mills, and saying that because of the low water and the consequent high price of operation a cessation of work was not in the cards. Business was suspended for a month, and during that time 300 of the strikers drifted away to the shanties, and the balance remained as a solid guard to keep the mill from working. Joe Bernardin's house was rented as headquarters, and the men watched the MacLaren property. The scene of the strike was a scene of lawlessness. The company would make no concession, and reconciliation became more remote as the time went on.

This morning it was rumored that John Vallée, the firm's manager, had brought strike-breakers into the town, and the men became more vigilant. They saw the newcomers about 7 o'clock, and at once called a meeting of the union. It was decided to stop operations at all hazards. Belanger, the leader, went home and bade his wife a pathetic good-bye, saying he might not return again. She begged him not to risk his life, but he answered that justice was on the side of the men.

Police Were Overpowered.

At 1 o'clock the strikers, some armed with rifles, marched four deep along the shore, so as not to be on the MacLaren property. The seven men were bringing logs down the St. Lawrence River. The strikers sent spokesmen to propose to the MacLarens that the strike-breakers should leave. The police answered that peace would have to be observed, and said no threats would be heeded. The messengers returned, and as soon as they joined the main body the firing began. No riot act was read. Both sides deny firing the first shot, and each claims that it fought in self-defense. Albert MacLaren and his brother Alexander faced the invaders with revolvers, and helped the police until the numbers of the union men overpowered them. The scene of the conflict was at the end of Buckingham's main street and three-quarters of a mile from the mill.

Shot Through Heart.

Belanger was well in the lead of his men, and an easy mark for the bullets. Those who were near him say he re-night Storm—Ships in Stiff Battle.

Ayr, Oct. 9.—A tornado struck this town about 12:30 a.m., sweeping everything in its path. Lovely shade trees by the score were snapped clean off, brick chimneys were toppled over, roofs were deprived of shingles, and electric and other wires badly tangled. The mills west of the town at Nithvale, were partly unroofed, the roofs being carried about a hundred feet away. The track of the storm was of short width, striking the town at the southwest and running in a northeasterly direction. Though its duration was short, the storm was very fierce, and the worst experienced for years.

Lakes Storm-Swept.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—Reports from Sault Ste. Marie today say that the Lake Superior country is being swept by a northwest gale and snowstorm, and that navigation is both difficult and dangerous owing to snow. Steamers coming up from Lake Erie report that last night's storm was very severe. The passenger steamer Western States arrived two hours and a half late from Buffalo, and reported a terrific battle all the way across the lake with a 50-mile gale.

The steamer A. Weston, bound down with lumber and towing a barge, was forced to tie up here last night by the refusal of the crew to continue working if the boat passed Detroit. The Weston's wheel was broken, and the boat could make between five and six miles an hour, and the crew refused to venture out on Lake Erie in the storm with the boat in that condition. The captain complied with their demands.

FALLING WALL
CRUSHED TROLLEY*Three Passengers Severely Injured in Bad Accident at the Capital.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The front wall of the Gilmour Hotel, which was recently destroyed by fire, fell on a passing street car this morning, and completely demolished it. There were only three passengers in the car and they are badly injured. How they escaped with their lives cannot be explained, because the car was smashed to pieces.

The motorman had his legs broken, and the conductor was also injured. The street was blocked for about three hours.

Those who were injured were: Alexander Potvin, foreman of the hook and ladder company, No. 8, who lives at 758 Gladstone avenue; two bones in his neck were broken, and he received internal injuries. The last rites of the church have been administered and he is not expected to live. William Campbell, contractor, Hintonburg, was badly injured. He is supposed to have fractured his skull.

Miss Nellie Thompson, of 57 Munro street, is supposed to have an arm broken.

GRAIN BLOCKADE GROWSSidings Jammed With Loaded Cars
From Winnipeg To Lake Superior.

Fort William, Ont., Oct. 9.—Various congestions of wheat-laden cars on the C. P. R. between Winnipeg and Lake Superior now amount to a grain blockade. Sidings everywhere are filled with loaded cars, which the company is unable to move. Only about 150 cars per day are arriving here, compared with 300 daily in the corresponding time last year. Conservative estimates are that one-third less grain will be sent forward before the close of navigation than was shipped in 1905, although a fortnight ago, vessels were hopeful the business out of Port Arthur and Fort William this fall would exceed all previous records.

NEWFOUNDLAND IN TOWERING RAGE;
CLAIM LIBERTIES ARE CRUSHED*Dissatisfaction Over the Fishery
Modus Vivendi Rapidly Growing.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 9.—Popular anger against the modus vivendi arranged by the United States and British Governments relating to the Newfoundland herring fisheries is growing. There is a general feeling that the compromise arrived at was a backdown on the part of the British ministry.

Archbishop Howley, the Roman Catholic primate, speaking yesterday at a parish festival, declared the modus vivendi a shameful betrayal of the colonies' interests, and advocated agitation throughout the colony against it. He urged an immediate calling of the Legislature, spirited protests to the throne, the dispatch of delegates to England and to Canada, and an appeal to all autonomous British colonies to join in resisting what he termed "an unbridled invasion of colonial rights."

Attorney-General Morris, speaking at the same function, said that the colonial government was unaware of the terms of the modus vivendi, but it had done everything within its power to protect the colony.

Today the Telegram, the Premier's organ, ascribes the modus vivendi to the sacred function of timid Downing street bureaucrats, and expresses the hope that the Newfoundland Government will show the spirit of determination, and teach little Englanders like Lord Elgin and Winston Churchill the same lesson that the colonists of Natal taught them when they tried to ride rough-shod over that colony a few months ago.

The Herald prints a letter of Congressman Gardner, who represented the Americans' fishing interests at Washington, published last July, wherein Mr. Gardner is quoted as admitting that American vessels have no right to ship Newfoundlanders in their crews. The paper then observes that, in view of this letter, the British Government's action in granting such a concession is incomprehensible.

TWO THIEVES

Up for Sentence—Other Cases Dealt With.

James C. Lytle and Thomas Duckworth, who were found guilty some time ago on a charge of stealing $140 from Duckworth's employer while he was in a state of intoxication, appeared at the police court this morning for sentence. James Lytle, who has previously been of good character and whose downfall has been due to drink, was sentenced to two months in jail with hard labor. Duckworth who has told several different stories since his arrest told another this morning which looked far from possible to the court. He was sentenced to five months in the Central Prison.

Ralph McMullen, the young man who was caught attempting to steal from a roommate some time ago, and who had also against him a charge of stealing a valise from the G. T. R. station in Toronto, appeared for sentence and was sent to the Central Prison for twelve months. McMullen has several times been convicted of dishonest actions, and the magistrate pointed out when passing sentence upon him that he has evidently made up his mind to follow a criminal career, and has started young, being only 17 years of age.

Richard Johnston was fined $20 or two months for assaulting his wife. Maurice Baldwin appeared to answer to a charge of breach of bylaw and was discharged on suspended sentence. The charge was that of leaving some wagons on Queen's avenue, where they obstructed the highway.

Four first-time drunks appeared and were allowed to go.

One citizen appeared to pay his dog tax.

Two abusive language cases were to have come up, but the charges were dropped.

LEADERS SUBPOENAEDMessrs Scott and Oliver Called as Witnesses in London Election Case.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, and Hon. Walter Scott, premier of Saskatchewan, are to be called as witnesses in the London bribery cases. Subpoenas were sent through the local police department Sunday night to Ottawa at the instigation of Mr. Eric Armour, who has been associated in the crown work at the hearing. Mr. Scott is in Ottawa at the meeting of the provincial premiers. It is alleged that these two Liberal leaders were in the constituency three weeks before the bye-election of June, 1905. "Tom" Lewis will be recalled, while it is also said that nearly every member of the Liberal organization in London will be subpoenaed.

ACCUSED OF BIG STEAL

Montreal, Oct. 9.—A reward of $500 is offered for information leading to the apprehension of James Stewart Cathar, defaulting teller of the Bank of British North America. Chief Carpenter holds the warrant for the arrest and on it the amount alleged to have been stolen by Cathar is put down at $5,500. This represents a sum supposed to have been stolen on one occasion. The total amount involved is said to be about $25,000, extending over a period of several months.

The coroner also said that his investigation would also reveal evidence to show that the murderer is a prominent witness in the case.

A NEW PARTYOrganized With Purpose of Promoting Maritime Union.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 9.—A new political party is being formed in New Brunswick, having in view its prime object maritime union. The party will be independent, having a leaning towards the Liberal side of politics. The intention is to have a ticket in every county in the province to support its interests. A ticket is already formed in King's County. Dr. McVey, of Rothesay, and Mr. Freeze, of Sussex, are two of the candidates. It is also understood that two politicians in St. John have formed themselves into a ticket, and will contest this constituency in the interest of the new party.

GREAT WORK DONEMany Improvements Still Being Made on St. Lawrence.

Quebec, Que., Oct. 9.—The Dominion marine and fisheries department have done great work during the season of navigation just drawing to a close, that will eventually prove very valuable to the shipping interests of the lower St. Lawrence route. Hon. L. P. Brodeur has done much to help the shipping interests at home and abroad. In the Straits of Belle Isle a new light-house and fog alarm system have been installed with water connection, and at Forteau Bay and Greenley Island similar work will be completed this fall and in operation next spring. A new light-house, waterworks and fog alarm system in course of erection at Belle Isle will also be finished this fall, likewise similar aids to navigation at Cape Bell and Cape Norman. At Cape Anglich, Newfoundland, extensive works are being constructed, including a fog alarm system and keeper's dwelling, that will be finished next year. The new station at Cape Ray and the light-house systems at Cape Magdalen and Martin River are completed.

Bishop I. O. Stringer and Rev. A. E. O'Meara are in Toronto at present, having come from the Yukon to attend the semi-annual meeting of the board of management of the Missionary Society of the Church of England, which will convene on Thursday morning in Cronyn Hall, this city.

WOULD RUN CITY
BY COMMISSION*Mayor Said to Favor Plan of That Nature.*COUNCIL TO ACT AS SENATE*Ex-Mayor Wilson Points Out How London's Business Could Be Better Managed.

According to a statement made by ex-Mayor John D. Wilson, who visited the city hall today, it is the intention of Mayor Judd to move for a change in the manner of city government shortly.

"I have reason to believe," Dr. Wilson said, "that his worship has been convinced that the present system of government by the council is not satisfactory, and that he will shortly make a move in the council to have a commission appointed."

Mayor Judd was away in Toronto today, and he could not be seen. Ald. Forristal is again acting mayor.

Dr. Wilson has advanced ideas on the matter of civic government, and he believes that it is time for a change.

Too Many Boards.

"It has been my experience as mayor of the city that there are too many boards," Dr. Wilson said. "There are altogether too many spending bodies, and the result is that the city's business is not run as it should be run. The mayor and aldermen have not the time to run the city's affairs as they should be run. No matter how good and how honest they may be, they have their own affairs to look after, and it is too much to expect that they will devote the time to city business which properly belongs to their private businesses."

Water Commission a Farce.

"I also consider the water commission a farce, and I say this as one who spent two years on the commission. To say that three men can meet for ten or fifteen minutes every two weeks and run the business of the waterworks properly is ridiculous. It can't be done."

"My idea, and I think the mayor thinks along similar lines, would be to amalgamate the council, board of health, water commission, etc. I would have five commissioners appointed and paid good salaries, so that they would be able to devote their entire time to the business of the city, and I would have the aldermen elected as a sort of senate which would have final powers over the commission."

The doctor thinks that under such a system of government the city's affairs would be better administered, and the money of the taxpayers would go further.

It is pretty well agreed that the majority of city business is done by the officials, and that the different civic boards simply authorize or excuse automatic expenditures. The council does not manage it. It is not the time, the mayor daily signs bundles of checks for expenditures which it is impossible for him to inquire into, and it has happened around the city hall that his worship has authorized the payment of hundreds of dollars of which he was not aware.

It is proposed that the present council will not take kindly to the scheme for a commission. It is claimed the aldermen are not the class of men who will willingly curtail any of the powers enjoyed by them at present, but of course, there is every room to believe that quite a number will be found who will hold up both hands for any scheme which will be to the city's advantage.

Too Much Politics.

Dr. Wilson was very outspoken today, and he did not hesitate to declare that there is too much politics in London's civic government.

"I know it by experience," he said. "It was the same on the school board. I have known of instances in which a teacher was to be appointed, and before a decision could be come to it was necessary to inquire how her father voted. This, to me, is ridiculous."

Dr. English, of the board of education, was present, and he claimed that things have been different the past couple of years. When asked if it was not a little peculiar that the majority of male teachers in this city are of the same shade of politics, Dr. English laughingly declared that of the male teachers who apply for positions, the good ones are on his own side of the fence.

Dr. Wilson concluded by asserting that he would have no hesitation in voting for the taking over of the London street railway if the proper men were placed on a board of five to run the city's affairs.

Death of Archbishop Bond;
Anglican Primate Passes*Head of the Church in Canada Dead at Montreal in His Ninety-First Year.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—Archbishop the Most Rev. William Bennett Bond, D.D., LL.D., metropolitan primate of the Anglican Church in Canada, passed away this morning in his 91st year.

Rev. Dyson Hague's Appreciation.

Rev. Dyson Hague, rector of the Memorial Church, who for many years prior to his removal to London was a resident of Montreal, and a warm friend of Archbishop Bond, paid the following tribute to the deceased:

"Archbishop Bond was undoubtedly the foremost man in the Church of England in Canada today. He was the grand old man of the church. His career was unique. No other man probably in the history of the Church of England from the days of the apostles has had so extraordinary and unchecked a career. He has passed through every possible phase of church advancement, and today, at the age of 92 years, he leaves a name that is as great as it has been unstained."

"Archbishop Bond began as a lay reader; then became a catechist, then a deacon, then a curate, then a priest; then a rector, then a canon, then an archdeacon, then a dean, then a bishop, then an archbishop, and finally the metropolitan primate of the church in Canada."

"He was of sound and unchangeable evangelical convictions, and no man in the Canadian Church has so consistently and courageously preached, through the course of many years, the simple gospel of Jesus Christ."

"No man wavered less. From the start he took a firm stand for the old traditional principles of the Church of England, and from that stand he never

IT'S RIDICULOUS,
SAYS MR. TOOTHE*No Truth in the Story of Midnight Conference With Tom Lewis.

The Toronto News, which has printed more "fake" material about the London election case than all other journals combined, publishes a sensational story of a midnight conference between R. M. C. Toothe, Charles Toome and Thomas Lewis, and adds: "It is understood that Tom Lewis intimated his willingness to tell the story of the bye-election as he knew it, if he were released from the alleged pending action for perjury, and if his relatives employed under the Dominion Government in the customs and postoffice were not thrown out, as has been threatened if he told his story."

Mr. Toothe says that the story is for the most part a fabrication. He saw Tom Lewis for a short time on Saturday night, but it was on private business. It appears that both of them have financial interests in the Ironquits Hotel. The tale of a midnight conference lasting until 1:30 a.m. Sunday, as related in the News, is described by Mr. Toothe as ridiculous. He refused to say anything to the News reporters who were in the city and they merely guessed at things.

DEVASTATED BY FIREFlames Destroy Vast Tract of Cali-

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—The changing of the wind saved the town of San Fernando from certain destruction from the mountain fire, which raged intermittently early Friday morning, until late yesterday afternoon. Sixty square miles of steep and valley lands, it is estimated, were burned over last night, and until the subsidence of the flames, yesterday afternoon, and it is said that in all 250 square miles have been devastated.

WORK OF THE WINDTelephone Wires Suffered Severely By Last Night's Storm.

The storm of last night did considerable damage in this section. Throughout the city trees were blown over or branches snapped off, and many sidewalks were blocked during the night and this morning.

Local "phones" suffered severely through trees and branches falling across the wires and breaking the connection. Several long distance lines were also put out of business in the same manner by the storm.

Messages from outside places in this section say that the wind was very strong for several hours, and that much damage was done to fences, buildings, etc.

The lighting wires of the London Electric Company were in several places crossed with other wires, and a great deal of trouble was caused the company, but though many lamps were in darkness throughout the night, the majority were kept burning. The company reports the damage done as small.

The London Street Railway kept its cars moving, despite the fact that it is working on only half capacity, as a new commutator is being installed at the power house.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Provincial Conference met at 10 o'clock this morning. At 11 o'clock Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Messrs. Aylesworth, Fielding and Le-mieux entered the committee room, but as the provincial representatives had not adopted the resolution framed by the subcommittee yesterday evening, the Dominion ministers retired. The conference saw no prospect of being ready to meet the Dominion earlier than the afternoon, and probably not until tomorrow.

It is said that British Columbia is holding forth today and that the other provinces are fairly well satisfied. Premier McBride is insisting upon special terms for his province, because of the increased cost of administration on account of difficulties connected with the Government. There is talk from that province of a commission being appointed to look into its position, so that better terms may be secured.

W. L. Borden gave a luncheon at 1 o'clock in the senate restaurant.

ONE OF THE BEST OF TEA-MEETINGS

Anniversary Services of First Congregationalists Have Fitting Finale.

The inspiring anniversary services held on Sunday in connection with the First Congregational Church were followed last night by a tea-meeting and entertainment, that was pronounced by many one of the very best in the history of the church.

Tea was served in the schoolroom, and a large number of people enjoyed an excellent supper prepared by the Ladies' Aid. After tea the audience assembled in the auditorium of the church, the platform and choir gallery having been prettily decorated for the occasion. The body of the church was well filled, when Rev. D. S. Hamilton, B.A., the pastor of the church, took the chair, and introduced what proved to be a bright and enjoyable programme throughout.

Mr. Hamilton had just returned from Toronto, where he spent Sunday, preaching at the Sunday school anniversary of the Northern Congregational Church, in the morning, and at Bond Street Congregational Church Sunday evening. In the course of his remarks as chairman, Mr. Hamilton stated that this was the 69th anniversary of the Congregational Church in London, organization having taken place in 1837. It was the 30th anniversary in the present edifice, and it was the fifth anniversary of its own pastorate. He expressed gratitude to God for any progress made and for the happy relationship that had existed between people and pastor throughout these five years. He also paid tribute to the friends of other churches, who have come to participate in the annual gathering, and to Rev. J. B. Stiles of Bond Street Church, Toronto, who had preached such able and inspiring sermons on Sunday.

The addresses of the evening were all exceptionally bright, interesting and encouraging. Rev. E. B. Lancelotti brought greetings from Dundas Street Church, and recalled the fact that when the Dundas Center people had suffered the loss of their building a few years ago the First Congregational Church had opened its doors to their Methodist neighbor. He also spoke concerning what the church should stand for, and effectively urged continued effort to realize high moral and religious ideals. Mr. B. S. Black, B.A., of Forest, brought greetings from the Congregational Church of that vicinity, and spoke of the satisfaction he found in looking forward to the ministry as his life work.

The chairman spoke in the highest terms of the work done by Mr. Black at Forest during the summer, and expressed the hope that after graduation he would return to take charge of some church in the vicinity of London. Mr. Black returns shortly to Queen's University, where he will complete his course, and will also resume his work as tutor-in-Latin in the university. Mr. J. D. Nasmith, of the Northern Congregational Church, Toronto, presented the greetings of that church, and referred to the time when Mr. Hamilton was a boy in the Northern Sunday school, and afterward a teacher in the school, previous to his departure for college to study for the ministry.

Rev. W. H. Clavis, of the Southern Congregational Church, spoke cheerfully of the progress the First Church had made, and dwelt upon the satisfaction to be found in Christian work. The programme of addresses was interspersed with musical numbers, the opening piece being a well-rendered anthem by the choir.

The Imperial Male Quartet, composed of Messrs. Pink, Fitzgerald, Moule and Webster, delighted the audience with several quartets and solos, and were again and again warmly encouraged. They were generous in responding, and this was greatly appreciated. Every member of the quartet possesses fine vocal talent, and the voices harmonize in a most pleasing manner.

Mr. E. N. Harding was very cordially received, and effectively rendered two solos.

Mr. G. E. Gosling, the esteemed organist of the church, presided at the organ during the evening, and played with skill and effect.

The chairman explained that Rev. Dr. McCrae, president of the Ministerial Alliance, had sent a letter of regret at his inability to attend, owing to another engagement.

A cordial vote of thanks was tendered to all who had taken part in the programme—to the ladies, who had decorated the church, and to all the ladies who had worked so faithfully to make the anniversary a success.

The National Anthem was then sung, and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Mr. Lancelotti brought a most successful and enjoyable evening to a close.

LORD'S DAY ACT LIKED IN WEST

Rev. Mr. Shearer Says It Is Highly Appreciated by All Sects.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Rev. J. G. Shearer, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, has returned from a two-month trip through the west.

In connection with the work of the Lord's Day Alliance, he said: "There has been a steady growth from the beginning. There are now 150 local branches in as many cities, towns, and villages in the four western provinces. Rev. W. M. Rochester, the new western secretary, with headquarters at Winnipeg, will give all his time to these four provinces. In addition to the attention that Mr. Moore and myself may be able to give, this trip was to introduce Mr. Rochester to his co-laborers and to his work. Most of his time will be given to British Columbia and Alberta.

"The passage of the new Lord's Day act has given a great impetus to our work, and is highly appreciated by the great mass of people in the west. It will be more pleasing as the number of immigrants from foreign countries increases, although already some of the new-comers, especially Americans, are showing their appreciation of our quiet Canadian Sabbath and of the thorough-going way in which our laws are enforced. It is really a revelation to them. What staggers them is that one Northwest mounted policeman can control a whole district."

In fact, Mr. Shearer was so impressed with the efficiency of the Northwest police system that he would like to see the force introduced into all the border districts of Canada.

Rev. T. A. Moore was also seen. He said: "I have just returned to the office after attending to the duties of secretary at the general conference, and from my correspondence I am gratified to find many pleasing incidents have occurred during the past month. In four different parts of the province barbers have been forced to close on Sunday or have been punished. More than 12 shops have closed up because of the efficiency of the Alliance. Sunday excursionists on boats from New York have been prevented from landing at various points on Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence. A number of new branches have been organized."

The annual meeting of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance will be held in Toronto on Friday, Nov. 9.

ONCE A SOCIAL CRIME

To Travel From Canada To England By Canadian Steamers.

London, Oct. 8.—The over-seas edition of the London Mail says: It is not more than five years ago that a Canadian would almost blush himself socially if he went to England by a Canadian steamer. New York must be the starting point for all people with a social standing and a bank account. Only laboring people, ministers, students, artists, and those with a "pass" sailed from Montreal or Quebec. Yet in five years we have changed all that.

Today there are four steamers running from the St. Lawrence to Liverpool which are equal in comfort to any steamers in the world of equal tonnage—12,000 to 14,500. Two of these, the Allan liners Victorian and Virginian, are turbiners, the Empress of Britain, have the latest type of reciprocating engines. Each of these vessels can average seventeen knots, and can cover the distance between Quebec and Liverpool in seven days. The Virginian has made 422 knots in twenty-four hours, and the Empress of Britain on her first trip accomplished 452 knots. As the total distance is 2,510 knots, it will be seen that six days of favorable work should bring the vessel from one harbor to the other. With such a service as this it is not surprising that Canadians should be rapidly coming to the point where they do not think of going via New York between May and October.

Take a Hyomel Treatment Four Times a Day and Be Cured

Hyomel has performed almost miraculous cures and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy for that distressing complaint, catarrh, on to do just what it claims.

The Hyomel treatment is simple and easy to use. It destroys all catarrh germs in the air passages and enriches and purifies the blood with ozone. When using Hyomel the air you breathe seems like that from the mountains, high above the sea level.

DEATH OF SARNIA'S OLDEST CITIZEN

Mrs. Lacroix Passes Away in Her 95th Year—Robert S. Oliver's Funeral.

Sarnia, Oct. 8.—The flag on the town hall is at half-mast out of respect to the late Mrs. Gilbert Lacroix, the oldest resident of Sarnia, who died on Saturday in the 95th year of her age. Mrs. Lacroix had been a resident of Sarnia for over 30 years. She had lived for the last 30 years at the home of her grandson, Thomas Avis, where she ended her long and eventful life. Over a hundred years ago Mrs. Lacroix's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laforce, left Montreal for the west. They came to the St. Clair River and located where the town of Sarnia now is situated, but soon they were driven away by Indians, and went to Detroit, the nearest white settlement. Later they returned to this neighborhood and settled in what is now Moore Township. On Jan. 16, 1812, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Laforce while they were at Maumee River, between Detroit and Toledo. When the little girl was 4 years old she was brought to Sarnia with her parents, and resided here ever since. At the age of 20 years she married Gilbert Lacroix, who died about 20 years ago. Her brother, Louis Laforce, who is at present a resident of Corunna, was the first white child born in Sarnia. At one time Mrs. Lacroix was an extensive landholder in Sarnia, owning the property now bounded by Pitt, Cornwall and Davis streets, and running back from the river 100 acres. She is survived by two sons, Henry and Gilbert Lacroix, and two brothers, John Laforce, of Sarnia, and Louis Laforce, of Corunna, besides numerous grand and great-grandchildren.

Mr. Henry Gough died at his residence, 134 South Brock street, this morning, from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Gough was 65 years old. In June he came to Sarnia from Strathroy to reside. Deceased had been reeve of Metcalfe Township for nine years, and a county councillor for Middlesex for three terms. He leaves a wife, eight sons and one daughter. Deceased was a member of Napier Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and of Strathroy Chapter, R. A. M.

Right Rev. W. L. Mills, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, occupied the pulpit of St. George's Anglican Church Sunday morning.

The annual meeting of subscribers to Sarnia General Hospital Trust will be held at the board room of the hospital on Oct. 15, when the yearly reports will be presented and trustees chosen.

Mr. Elmer W. West, who graduated in finance in the banking house of Thomas H. Cook, of this town, and was recently appointed to a prominent position on the bank of Toronto, here, has returned to the old stand as manager of the banking and financial department of Mr. Cook's business.

Nearly 200 members of the Masonic brotherhood attended the funeral of the late Robert S. Oliver, who died last night, buried today in Lakeside Cemetery. The funeral, which was under Masonic auspices, was one of the largest seen here in years. R. W. Bro. Judge MacWatt conducted the services and the cortege was headed by the Sarnia band. Following were the pallbearers, who were members of the Masonic order: Messrs. James Alcock, Capt. Wiggins, Wm. Oldham, Fred C. Watson, Robert Kerr and Paul Wenino. W. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Ellis acted as marshal.

The police are looking for a slippery thief who steals in Sarnia and disposes of his plunder in Port Huron. A few days ago the unknown man stole a dog from Frank Smiley, of Sarnia, and traded it to Charles Groves, of Port Huron, for a gold watch. The dog was notified and Deputy Sheriff Henry Radtke found the dog and returned it to Mr. Smiley at Sarnia. The watch and man cannot be found.

THE MANUFACTURERS

Their Progress Through the West Has Been One Round of Pleasure

Reports of the progress of the Canadian Manufacturers through Western Canada are of the most glowing character. Not only are the excursionists pleased with all they have seen, but the people in the various cities en route to the Pacific have vied with one another to do honor to the visitors. But perhaps one of the most important events of the tour was the monster banquet in Winnipeg, which concluded the convention. The event was social, industrial and political at the same time. The speakers were men of eminence and the addresses were bright and interesting. The Royal Alexandra management got the best of everything for the occasion, and among the "trimmings" none was more of value than the beautiful Sheraton design Gourlay piano which stood at the end of the banquet hall and was used during the evening. About the instrument was the pleasant legend, "Gourlay, Made in Canada." The comments concerning the beauty of the case and the mellowness of the tone were all most favorable, and one of the delegates was so delighted with the instrument that a few days after the banquet he bought it. When an expert manufacturer knowing the trade, buys a Gourlay it shows that the character of the instrument is equal to its reputation among amateurs, and that the general public cannot go far wrong in following so good an example.

HAIL SIR THOMAS AS "GOOD FELLOW"

Chicago Sportsmen Cheer Lipton to the Echo—George Ade on Sport.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—With a warmth of genuine affection seldom exhibited at a public banquet, Sir Thomas Lipton was wined, dined and applauded to the echo at the dinner given for him by the mayor and people of Chicago at the Chicago Athletic Association.

The occasion was made a thorough "Lipton night," and before the last cheers of the rousing welcome had died away every sportsman of the 500 who toasted Sir Thomas wished success to the popular baronet who is always trying, not with great success, to bear away the America cup.

The big city dinner was given in the gymnasium on the fourth floor of the Michigan avenue clubhouse, and the decorations and atmosphere were nautical. The background of the speaker's table was formed of a marine scene strongly suggestive of a yacht race on the lake which surges almost a stone's throw from the east windows of the room.

Flags of every nation hung from the oaken beams of the dining hall and from every pillar dangled life preservers garnered from the yachts belonging to Sir Lipton's multitude of Chicago admirers.

Pre-eminence in the scene of decoration was the shamrock of Erin. It appeared on escutcheons with a golden ground and bordered in emerald; it shone forth from the banners that flanked a big picture of the guest which hung over the speaker's table, it flecked the menu, in which a medley of Americanisms and Gallicisms were used in naming the dishes.

Last of all the trefail was emblazoned upon the "Lipton buttons" presented to every guest. Banners of the emerald Isle were entwined with the Stars and Stripes in every nook and corner of the dining-room.

William J. Hynes, toastmaster, and Mayor Dunne sat beside Sir Thomas at the banquet board. A consignment of speechmakers native to Chicago or brought in from other points was on hand to assure Sir Thomas that he is "to the good," as one of the songs put it. The speakers Mr. Hynes called on were the Rev. Francis N. Perry, Mayor Dunne, "The Good" John J. Allen, of Mississippi; George Ade, and J. Hamilton Lewis.

"Sportsmen all," Sir Thomas put it. Scarcely had the oysters been "discussed" before Miss Laura Herblison, in fetching costume, appeared on a balcony decorated with ours and nautical emblems, and to the accompaniment of rousing cheers and waving of flags, sang: "He's a Jolly Good Fellow, etc., etc., Which Nobody Can Deny."

By the time Miss Herblison had finished the banquet room was in an uproar and every one who could stand and move was shouting and waving of flags. The refrain, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow, etc., etc., Which Nobody Can Deny," was being sung by the guests.

"Everybody Loves Your Blooming Mug," after which Toastmaster Hynes made the formal introduction of the guests. "Chicago and many of its representative citizens," said he, "have sought the opportunity of manifesting the respect and warm regard in which our guest is held by the people of this city, irrespective of their nationality. There is no hall in Chicago large enough to accommodate one-half of Sir Thomas' friends."

"Sir Thomas is equivalent to a born Chicagoan inasmuch as his life is an epitome of Chicago's development. Should he bring one of those rare four-leaved shamrocks with him, whatever move he makes, we will second the motion."

George Ade "treated of" the topic of American sports. "As I understand it," said he, "we are giving this dinner to glorify international sport, and that is why we have chosen as our guest of honor the best international sport on record. It is quite proper that we should throw our bouquets at one who is a generous patron of sport."

"Americans are becoming an outdoor people. Formerly we were represented as pursuing the almighty dollar. Hereafter we must be represented as pursuing the silver trophy hung up by some foreign dignitary. Twenty years ago poker was our national pastime. Today it is played only by the old, the decrepit and those who need the money."

"As a nation we have betaken ourselves to the bounding billow, the grassy golf links, and the blood-stained boulevards. It is only natural that, in devoting ourselves to outdoor amusements and athletic sports, we should be more or less imitative of the mother country, and yet there are marked differences between the manly games as played here at home and worked at in Great Britain."

"This is surprising in view of the fact that we are supposed to be one people, and up to about a month ago used the same language."

"With your permission, gentlemen, I should like to call attention to some of these differences. In the first place, in spite of our best efforts the English always have excelled us in long distance running. The only time we ever won an important road race was in 1914, when the visiting team pursued the local champions all along the Atlantic coast without overtaking them. In the previous contest, about 40 years earlier, they outran us."

"Take it on the water. The English crews invariably have won the important rowing matches. Why? Because the motive power in rowing is merely brute strength. America has won the great yacht races. Why? Because in a contest between two sailing boats the motive power is wind."

"Football is not the same here as in Great Britain. They have perfected over there what is known as noiseless football. Instead of 'roosting' so that they can be heard a mile away the spectators sit quietly along the sidelines and send telegraphic messages of encouragement to the players. Last spring I witnessed a championship football game at the Crystal Palace.

There were 80,000 spectators present. Twenty west side boys on a vacant lot can make a better game than was made by the 80,000 that day. If we ever got 80,000 infuriated partisans together at a football game in this country somebody would have to send Secretary Taft to intervene.

"The game of football itself is essentially different in America. We have taken the old-fashioned Rugby and by elaborating the tactics and changing the rules we have made it an intellectual contest. In England they play football with their feet. Over here we play it with our heads."

"Golf is not the same in Chicago as it is at St. Andrews. Golf in Scotland is a long and silent journey devoted to prayer and meditation. In Chicago the object in playing golf is to get back to the nineteenth hole."

"Could any two games be more dissimilar than baseball and cricket? Over here we call a score of 1 to 0 a good ball game. In England at a cricket game the spectators want their money back unless one team makes more than 1,000 tallies. Cricket is a game providing healthful exercise not only to the player but also to those who are trying to keep score. It is a good game. Next to chess, I think it is the most exciting game I ever witnessed. As a matter of fact, I did not see all of the game. I saw part of the game. I would have seen all of it, but I had bought my steamship ticket and could not wait over another week."

"You can see for yourselves, gentlemen, that each country has its peculiarities and that in our athletic pastimes we have not merely copied from Great Britain. However, I believe both nations agree upon one proposition, viz.: that our guest of honor this evening is a royal good fellow and that he is the real inspiration of that beautiful American sentiment, 'The Lord loveth a cheerful loser.'"

THE LONDON ELECTION CASE

Any protest against the illegality of the London election inquiry at Toronto is interpreted as a defense of wrongdoing and an attempt to screen it.

Had the Liberal managers in this city been disposed to suppress the story which is now being unfolded, they might have done so by placating Collins, who would have held his tongue for a pecuniary consideration. If they had connived at corrupt practices in the Hyman-Gray bye-election they would not have scrupled to buy the silence of any man whom they believed had knowledge of illegal acts. The presumption is entirely in their favor, because they refused to listen to Collins' threats. After defying this man to do his worst they cannot justly be reproached with a desire to cover up rascality.

In the same spirit they have hitherto declined to raise the question of the illegality of the present action. It is plain that the proceedings at Toronto are outlawed by the election act, and that the flimsy device to bring the case within the meaning of the criminal code by a charge of conspiracy would be ruled out if defendants' counsel chose to test it. The indisposition of the responsible heads of the Liberal party to shelter evildoers is no reason why the attorney-general's department should with impunity set law and justice at defiance. This is an entirely separate question. A provincial detective has been instructed to swear that corrupt acts were committed in this city as the outcome of a conspiracy hatched in the city of Toronto. This oath was taken to bring the case within the purview of the police magistrate of Toronto. So far as the evidence goes, the charge is based upon falsehood. If wrongs were committed in London, they do not justify a wrong by the men who control the administration of justice in the Province. Liberals have a right, without incurring the reproach of defending election crimes and criminals, to protest against the violation of the law for which the Attorney-General's department is responsible in the present instance.

THE FIRST OFFENDER AND THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE.

A Montreal correspondent, who has investigated the case of Wm. Walker, the youthful burglar, who, while being arrested, shot at and injured a detective, and was in turn himself seriously injured, puts a somewhat different view of the matter before the public. Walker, it appears, is the son of respectable parents, though he has turned out bad. His first offense was committed at the age of 17 or 18 years, when he and several youthful companions burglarized a store. For this he was sent to the penitentiary for four years. He behaved well in the penitentiary, and his father and Presbyterian pastor, after he had served over one-half of his sentence, succeeded in convincing the late Minister of Justice (now the chief justice of Canada) that there was a future for the boy. He had, moreover, a good home, and employment if he were released on ticket-of-leave. Last year he was given his liberty solely upon these representations and through no other influences. This, the Montreal correspondent asserts, is a true statement of a case of executive clemency which has been twisted into an attack on the exercise of the prerogative of mercy by the crown, and about which many ugly insinuations have been made by some newspapers which ought to know better.

It is true that the young man has since turned out bad, as his recent conduct has demonstrated. But under any system of dealing with persons who have lapsed into wrongdoing we must expect occasional failures. Perfection either in the making of laws or in their administration is not to be expected by reasonable people. The marvel is that there are not more lapses than have been recorded under the act dealing with the conditional liberation of wrongdoers. It has been an experiment, and despite the pessimism of some police officials, who in some instances have been far from helpful to the ex-convict, struggling hard to regain the confidence of his fellows, it has proved a very great success. The author of the measure, the late Hon. David Mills, had in view as a central idea the giving of the convicted person—the comparative novice in crime—a chance under humanitarian influences of getting a start in life. It was known that very many erring ones were not criminals by instinct, and that if they are shown that even the state, the austere dispenser of justice, is willing to help in their rehabilitation, and to give them a chance, they will be powerfully stimulated to lead an honest and creditable life. And so it has turned out. The official statistics prove it beyond a doubt. As given by Major Archibald, the Dominion parole officer, at the late national prison conference, they are most convincing. Since 1899, when the act respecting the conditional release of prisoners went into force, 1,360 persons had been released on ticket-of-leave. Of those thus paroled, 83 had their licenses canceled for non-compliance with the condition on which they were issued. That is to say, the licenses were canceled, not because their holders had been guilty of any new crime, but had failed to report regularly to the authorities, or had otherwise broken the regulation drawn up for their supervision. For example, the license of young Walker, whose case is now the subject of comment, was canceled, because soon after it was issued he went to the United States, and a warrant was issued for his extradition in case he should be located, and now that he is in trouble for a second time, he will have to serve not only his new sentence, but the unexpired term of his old sentence.

The noteworthy point is that of the 1,360 persons who had been liberated on parole up to June last, but 32 had their licenses revoked because of subsequent conviction. This is a record which goes a very long way to prove the success of a system that is intended to make it possible, where a sentence has been unduly severe, as is often the case, to give the comparative novice in crime a chance to retrieve himself, and to show the wrongdoer that justice is not vindictive—that the state desires to help up the man who is down. This is the spirit of the parole act. It is in this spirit, we feel assured, that successive ministers of justice have advised his excellency to exercise the prerogative of the crown. And it is in this spirit that the Dominion parole officer is instructed to carry out its provisions, and to aid in every way in his power the paroled prisoner to again become a self-respecting, self-sustaining citizen. To pick out a case of failure, and to found on it an indictment of the whole system and of its administrators, is most unworthy and unfair.

Even the Montreal Gazette, that rock-ribbed Tory organ, rebukes Mr. Foster. The London Free Press and the Toronto Mail, along among Canadian newspapers, wield the whitewash brush.

Robert Glocking resigned his position as secretary of the Ontario Labor Bureau because he took his office seriously, and the Government did not. His successor is John Armstrong, of Toronto, whom nobody ever took seriously, and who may be relied upon not to cause the Government trouble by being too much in earnest.

The C. P. R. is certainly on Easy Street. It has redeemed all the bonds on its lands and has now over 16,000,000 acres unencumbered, which are rising steadily in value. Furthermore, the interest on the money which has accumulated by the sale of lands is equal this year to one per cent on the ordinary share capital of the company, and has been turned over to the lucky shareholders as a bonus.

Cadbury, the English chocolate millionaire, in establishing his model town on the outskirts of Liverpool, has made it a rule that every child shall be within five minutes' walk of a playground. Most communities have sinned against the health and happiness of the children by neglecting such opportunities. There is a moral in this for the city of London.

The adverse vote in East Elgin will have no corresponding effect upon the harbor improvements at Port Stanley, and Port Burwell. These public works were undertaken because a progressive government considered them necessary. They were initiated before there was thought of a bye-election. To represent them as a bribe was unjust to the Liberal party. Not to complete them would be unworthy of the same party.

A New Yorker and his wife were recently traveling in England. In London the wife bought a shawl in the Quadrant, and insisted on wearing it to her hotel across her shoulders. SNAKE IN HEN'S NEST.

[Washington Post.]

Mrs. H. M. Tolson, of Stafford County, Va., had a bad scare yesterday. She went to her henhouse and saw what she supposed was a black hen lying dead in the nest. She attempted to take it up, but as soon as she touched the object she discovered it was a large blacksnake coiled up in the nest. The snake had eaten all the eggs it could find and also swallowed a china nest-egg. Mrs. Tolson made a rapid retreat. The snake measured nearly six feet. It was killed.

A little boy steals from his morning play,
And under the blossoming apple tree
He lies and dreams of the things to be,
Of battles fought and victories won,
Of wrongs overturned and of great deeds done.
Of the valor that he shall prove some day.
Over the hills and far away!
Over the hills and far away!
It's oh, for the toll of the lonesome day!
But it mattered not to the soul aflame
With a love for riches and power and fame!
On, O man, while the sun is high—
On to the yonder joys that lie,
Yonder where blazeth the noon of day,
Over the hills and far away!
Over the hills and far away!
Over the hills and far away!
An old man lingers at close of day.
Now that his journey is almost done,
His battles fought and his victories won,
The old time honesty and truth,
The trustfulness and the friends of youth,
Home and mother—where are they?
Over the hills and far away!
Over the hills and far away!

CONTENTMENT.

[Punch.]

Give me a lawn that cools my feet,
Close grown, and fresh and soft and clean;
A clump of trees to check the heat,
A flush of roses on the green.

An ancient stream that flows thereby,
With all its thousand smiles displayed,
A hammock, swinging not too high,
Well hung within a magic shade;

Three little maidens with hair of gold,
Whose laughter scarce disturbs my dream;
A jug of cider, icy cold,
A dish of strawberries and cream.

And for a guardian of our ground,
Well tried through many changing years,
A fond and faithful little hound,
With bandy legs and spreading ears—

And let the world go ringing past;
Let others range from shore to shore,
These simple pleasures bind me fast:
Give me but these, I ask no more!

PEN-PORTRAIT OF HEARST.

[North American Review.]

As a journalist, though keen, enterprising and resourceful, he is a burning disgrace to the craft; as a politician, though shrewd and at times even sagacious, he is not more scrupulous than the basest of those whom he has stigmatized as criminals; as a partisan, though earnest and efficient in appealing to the masses, he is a traitor; as an officeholder, he is pre-eminently a shameful neglect of his duties; as an agitator, his efforts consist in revealing the incitements of evil passions, as a dual personality, though possessed of many engaging qualities, he is so utterly devoid of character, so unsteady in even his own recklessness, so faithless to his professed ideals, so scornfully disregardful of moral responsibility, so addicted to detestable practices in efforts to gratify his ambitions, so sinfully persistent in stirring the cauldron of discontent, envy and hatred, as to be a living and glaring reproach to American civilization.

HOW EASILY THINGS GO WRONG.

[By George McDonald.]

Alas! how easily things go wrong!
A sigh too much and a kiss too long,
And there follows a mist and a weeping rain,
And life is never the same again.

Alas! how hardly things go right!
'Tis hard to watch on a summer's night,
For the sigh will come and the kiss will stay,
And the summer's night is a winter's day.

And yet how easily things go right,
If the sigh and the kiss of a winter's night
Come deep from the soul of the stronger ray
That is born in the light of a winter's day.

And things can never go badly wrong
If the heart be true and the love be strong;
For the mist, if it comes, and the weeping rain,
Will be changed by the love into sunshine again.

KILLARNEY COLONY SUCCEEDS WELLImperial Commission Appointed to Investigate Reports on Settlements.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 9. — The final report of the commissioners appointed to carry out a scheme of colonization in Canada of crofters from Scotland has been presented to the Imperial Parliament. The commission was appointed in 1888. Funds were furnished by the Imperial Parliament. Two parties were sent out, 30 families of 183 persons, to Killarney, Man., in 1888, and 49 families, of 282 persons, to Saltcoats, Sask., in 1889. The total number of farms in Killarney included in the settlement scheme is 56 and in Saltcoats 72. The report says: "In the early years of the settlement in Killarney the sums advanced were not repaid in accordance with the agreements entered into by the settlers. Difficulties occurred, arising from inexperience on the part of the crofters and their want of knowledge of agriculture, and of the climate of the country. These difficulties passed away, and the settlers became more contented and prosperous, and they have repaid the entire balance remaining to their debt. The settlers were offered a rebate. "The homesteaders have now received, or are in course of receiving, titles from the crown for the 160 acres of land on which they are settled. In many cases they have purchased additional land in the ordinary way. "The settlement in Saltcoats was not successful from the commencement. The settlers did not seem disposed to adapt themselves to the regular and routine work of agriculture, and most of them abandoned their land. For some years it was not possible, for various reasons, for the commission to realize, at a satisfactory price, the land thrown upon its hands in Saltcoats. It has now, however, been sold for a sum practically sufficient to cover its indebtedness. "Had the settlers in Saltcoats remained on their homesteads they might ultimately have achieved the same measure of success as those in Killarney. They were led away by bad advice, and many of them did not realize the fortunate position in which they were placed or the opportunities opened to them. They preferred to give up the land and to work for other people at weekly wages rather than to persevere in their new life. The majority of the Saltcoats settlers have been able to make comfortable homes for themselves and their families in other parts of the country. It is only fair to add that the results might have been more satisfactory, both in Killarney and in Saltcoats, had the commission been given the opportunity of formulating its own scheme and of personally selecting the families sent to Canada under its provisions. The scheme was arranged before the commission was appointed. The settlers for Killarney were dispatched prior to that time, and the families which formed the Saltcoats settlement subsequently were also selected and practically on their way before the meetings of the commission commenced."

THE PILGRIM FATHERS

Interesting Ceremonies in Memory of the Famous Company.

Delfshaven, Oct. 9.—Great solemnity marked the unveiling of the Old Reformed Church here of a bronze tablet in memory of the Pilgrim fathers' departure in the Speedwell 300 years ago.

Modern American pilgrims, who reached Delfshaven shortly before the ceremony, and Hollanders, who came from Rotterdam and other places to witness the inauguration of the tablet, found upon reaching the quay upon which the old church is situated, thousands of people lining both sides. The old church was brilliantly illuminated. Five hundred seats in the church had been reserved for Americans and other visitors. The pulpit, which was hidden by a painted screen covered with eagles, bearing the American flag and the loan from the Dutch arms, was decorated on top with a reproduction of an ancient painting representing Delfshaven at the time the Pilgrim fathers departed in the Speedwell.

The audience listened to an address in the same church in which the Pilgrim fathers of yore were addressed before starting on their long voyage. Col. L. A. A. van der Meer, general at Rotterdam, chairman of the meeting, explained the meaning of the ceremonies.

Rev. William Elliott Griffiths, of Ithaca, N. Y., who had been charged by the Congregational Club of Boston with the presentation of the memorial tablet to the Reformed Church at Delfshaven, read letters of regret from prominent Americans. Dr. Griffiths delivered an address describing at length the history of the Pilgrim fathers in three countries, and dwelling on the pilgrims in which they resided and the pilgrims had visited, as well as on the relics of the past which still mark their existence. Dr. Griffiths explained the influence of the life of the Pilgrim fathers and expressed gratitude to Holland for the hospitality shown them.

The national hymn of the Pilgrims' three homes—England, Holland and America—were then sung by all present, first "God Save the King," then "Wilhelmus van Nassau," and last "The Star-Spangled Banner."

A SWITCH IN OFFICIALS.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—In local C. P. R. circles there are all kinds of rumors about changes among the superintendents. That there is some movement on foot is evident from the fact that General Superintendent Timmerman has been in Montreal for some time, and a number of superintendents have been called there today. There is one thing conceded among them, and that is the western division will be divided. It is understood that a new superintendent will be appointed for the Soo line and the Bruce section.

CUBAN REVOLT HAS VANISHED

Former Peace and Quietness Completely Restored to the Island.

Havana, Oct. 8.—The reports received by the provisional government show that the pacification of Cuba is practically complete, with the exception of the Province of Santa Clara, where matters are rapidly nearing a settlement.

The only trouble known to exist is at Alquizar, Province of Havana, where the Liberals and Moderates are about equally divided, and irritation has been caused by the reinstatement of a Liberal mayor.

It is believed that the 30 rural guards there will be able to keep the peace. The disturbance at Buja was suppressed last night. The disorderly former insurgents have left the town, and the marines sent there report that the Liberals' celebration of their victory passed off without any further disturbance.

None of the men cut with machetes were seriously injured. A closer examination of the rifles surrendered by the insurgents show that very few of them are fit for anything but the scrap heap.

Governor Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon took up their residence at the palace today.

ESCAPED PRISONERS RESCUED

In Making Break for Freedom Are Nearly Drowned.

New York, Oct. 8.—A Boston dispatch to the Herald says that after being tossed about all night on an old frail, metallic life-raft, by a high and heavy sea, encountering a squall, and being swept rapidly through the outer harbor by a fast receding tide, Charles Jones, of Scotland, and Herbert Lenson, of Boston city, escaped prisoners from Deer Island, were abandoning all hope of ever seeing land again, when they were picked up yesterday morning four miles east of the Graves lightship by Capt. Watson S. Dolliver, of the pilot boat Louise, who happened to be in the outer harbor on the outlook for incoming vessels.

That the two escaped prisoners were discovered was purely good fortune, as both were practically exhausted and unable to do anything to attract the attention of passing craft.

According to a preliminary report of the interstate commerce commission the gross earnings of the railroads of the United States, covering approximately 219,000 miles of road, will probably show for the fiscal year ended June 30 an increase of 10 per cent over the $2,073,000,000 earned in 1905.

GLEEFULLY SEES HIS 7 WIVES DIE

King of Annam Has Them Tortured to Death—Shoots Aged Prince.

Paris, Oct. 9.—Thanh Thai, king of Annam, according to stories reaching Paris from Indo-China, has again been guilty of such atrocities that the French Government may be compelled to adopt rigorous disciplinary measures.

The malls report that in August the king was seized with a homicidal mania, ordered his seven wives to be executed and looked on with delight while they were slowly tortured to death.

A few days later the king shot down a prince who was 70 years old, a member of the council of the royal family, highly esteemed and the last surviving son of King Minh Mang.

When the French resident called to remonstrate with Thanh Thai, the latter declined to permit him to enter the palace. The king wanted to come to Paris, as the king of Cambodia did, but the French press declares that such a fiend shall never be allowed to visit France.

The city council of Birmingham, England, has increased the number of women health inspectors from four to twenty, because of the excellent results achieved in the homes of the poor and in the factories. In the same city the policemen have been taught the principles of "first aid."

CHAPTER XXXVI.
Friends in Adversity.

"Lady Teasdale," said Margherita, gently, "you are very, very good and kind to me. I will tell you all—or nearly all," she added, truthfully. "We are going to leave England and live abroad—in Italy, perhaps—for a time. We have lost a great deal of money, and are very poor; we shall be able to save there, and shall spend no more than what is necessary, and I hope in time will be able to pay back all we owe. But my father-in-law is very angry with us. He talks of disinheriting Keith, and leaving all his money to his daughters. I have written to him, but he is very angry indeed."

"Not with you, my dear! Surely he knows that you have not been extravagant!" Margherita hesitated. "He is angry with me because I will not blame Keith. Lady Teasdale, but Keith is my husband; we are one."

And then Lady Teasdale took the opportunity of slipping the packet of I O U's into her young friend's hands, with a lame explanation, which to Margherita at first was somewhat incomprehensible. But her face flushed as Lady Teasdale finished.

"It is you," she exclaimed, "it is Lord"

A SIMPLE DRESS FOR MORNING (4104).

The practical mother is always on the lookout for designs which are simple enough for everyday dresses, for she appreciates not only their increased wearing qualities, but their appropriateness. The small child, who wears white dresses, suits one a day, and this means no small amount of laundering, which is a point to be considered. The dress sketched is just the thing for such wear as this, being suitable to any of the washing fabrics, albatross or cashmere. The tiny yoke relieves it from absolute plainness and might be trimmed with feather stitching, a narrow, embroidered insertion, or washable braid. For a child of 3 years only 2 yards of 36-inch material are needed.

ament, when the reaction of some stirring period has lowered all the moral barometer, and when the terrible question, the "Cul bono" of life is continually rising up and finding no response in the dull and empty chambers of the mind.

This morning he had been a little cheered by a most kind and sympathetic letter from his sister Florence—a letter full of pity uncolored by blame, Florence and he had always been the two members of the family most congenial to each other, and Florence (where her jealousy was not aroused) was neither of a censorious nor naturally of a selfish disposition. She was the only one of the Grange party who refused altogether to join in Mr. Ronaldson's fierce condemnation of his only son, and her sympathy was by no means devoid of balm to Keith's sore spirit. But, when Margherita had left him to go to Lady Teasdale, he had sunk again into one of his brooding fits, and he did not look up as she re-entered.

When, however, half timidly, she put the notes into his hand, relating what had passed between her friend and herself upstairs, he started up as if he had been stung.

"It's an insult!" he said; "I don't want charity. I shall send them back to Teasdale. They will be redeemed in time."

"Ah, Keith, my dear, why should we be so proud? Would we not do the same for a friend? Would it not be a pleasure?" He fell back into his chair, silent and miserable. It was bitter enough to accept so great a boon even from so old and intimate a friend as Lord Teasdale; had he guessed it proceeded from him to accept it. And Margherita, whose wife intuition divined this, and who was not without some of the wisdom of the serpent, took care not to disturb the conversation, she told him of Lady Teasdale's offer regarding the portrait.

"So you see, spose you, you have an order already? Ah, you will get on, you see, if you only give yourself up to your painting. You will have many more orders in time."

"Perhaps I may, if they are all portraits of you, Margherita," he said, smiling sadly. "Every one loves you I think. Not that I wonder at it."

Her eyes sparkled. "I will be your model, caro mio, and you shall paint a grand, big picture, and send it up to the academy next year—a picture of a Capri coral girt, and we will go there, and you shall put in the real rocks and sea. Ah, how happy we will be! We will hire a little house, and live there together, Keith, my dear."

She bent down and laid her lips up on his head. He was silent, perhaps because the tears were standing in his eyes; but he took her hand and held it in his own.

"Sposo mio," she said after a moment, "tell me, how much money do you owe Colonel Stockton?"

"About two hundred, I think."

"We must pay him, dear."

"How can I, Margherita? I have overdrawn at the bank—I am in debt up to my eyes—I haven't a farthing."

"There is no one else—of that sort—to whom you owe money?"

"No one else, I have done my best to pay all my debts of honor. The poor tradespeople will have to go to the wall."

"We will pay them in time, caro mio. The house is well sold, and when we get the money for that and the furniture, we can pay off most of them. I will go round and tell them all before we leave that they must wait till then."

"You, Margherita! No; if anyone has to swallow dirt, it must be I, not you."

"No, dear, let me go. It is much worse for a man. They will all be civil to me; they will not say nasty things to me, nor make me swallow dirt."

Depressed as he was, Keith was bound to laugh, and seeing this, she laughed in sympathy.

LITERARY NOTES.

The first number of Putnam's Monthly appears this month. The regular contributors to "The Critic" are retained for the new magazine.

Young's Magazine for October has seventeen stories, which, while treating life from a realistic viewpoint, are far removed from commonplace. Humor is judiciously sprinkled among the pages, both in fiction and in "At the Sign of the Cross" and "On Broadway and Off."

The October St. Nicholas brings the first of the new series of fairy tales by Frances Hodgson Burnett, "The Troubles of Queen Silver-Bell" will be the fairy queen's recital of her troubles in Fairyland and of how these troubles came to be written. "How Winnie Hatched the Little Books" will be the story in the November number, followed in December by "Racketty Packetty House"; and there will be more of the series in following issues.

"Duncan Polite" was a good story. Its sale in Canada for a first novel was almost phenomenal. "The Silver Maple" by the same author, is a better story, and should have immense popularity. The hero, Scotty MacDonald—whose other name was Ralph Stanwell—is a fine type of young Canadian manhood. No less interesting are the humorous characters Old Farquhar, Danny Murphy and Weaver Jimmie—who appear and reappear in various chapters. The Westminster Co., Limited, publishers, Toronto.

A dainty bit of book-making is a recent publication by Thomas T. Crowell & Co., New York, entitled, "All the Year in the Garden," and compiled by Esther Matson. It is a daily calendar of apothegms in prose and verse in praise of gardens, that will greatly entertain and please the gardenmaker and the lover of the "out-of-doors." The editor has delved deeply into ancient and modern garden lore, and the 150 pages, culled from scores of leading writers, prove, indeed, a worthy investment. Beautifully printed and bound, this handsome little nature book will make a most attractive present or addition to one's library.

While the October Century brings to an end Anne Warner's rollicking story of travel, "Seeing France with Uncle John," new chapters of A. E. W.

Mason's "Running Water" carry Sylvia to her father in England, tangle the thread of the plot. Then there are six short tales: Edna Kenton's "The Doll Lady," Grace Ellery Channing's "A Perseus Generation," another of Harvey J. O'Higgins' tales of the New York firemen; Grace Lathrop Collins' "Justina's Playmate," Charles Bryant Howard's "A Voice from the Dark," and Edith Wyatt's "The Perfect Woman," a humorous tale of the editor of a "woman's department."

In the October Canadian Magazine the article by Hon. Ernest N. Warner on "Civil Service Reform in Wisconsin" will attract many readers, especially such as are looking for information as to the various phases of political reform. Some time ago Professor Leacock wrote an article on the decline of poetry, and now Susan E. Cameron, a Montreal educationist of standing, takes up the cudgels on behalf of the poets. She belabors the professor rather severely. There are two "Celebrities" this month: Agnes Maule Machar, novelist, poet and painter; and Mrs. Herbert Chamberlain, who is a daughter of the late Lieut.-Col. Williams, of Port Hope. Other illustrated articles follow, with the old Government House at Fredericton, the work and character of the late Bishop Bompas of Selkirk; and an account of the modern methods of securing "Purity in Domestic Products." The stories by two native writers, are especially worthy of mention.

"The World's Christmas Tree," (Charles Edward Jefferson) is a powerful plea by this vigorous speaker and writer, for the true spirit of Christmas is found in this dainty gift book. The author views as in a vision the present method of observing Christmas, and finds that "the human race has crystallized into a countless number of little circles, and from hand to hand around each circle the presents pass. 'I shall give something to you and I wonder what I shall get from you!—this is the unspoken thought.' Meanwhile the world falls, needs more of men are being forgotten and neglected. 'The World's Christmas Tree,' as Dr. Jefferson sees it, is the tree of Opportunity. Each person is privileged to hang something upon it for the benefit of mankind. 'What the world needs,' he says, 'is faith and hope, and love, justice and sympathy and temperance, science and truth and courage, patience and fidelity and kindness. These are the things which have been needed from the beginning, and they were never more needed than now.' Publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., New York.

Among Duffield & Company's publishers, New York, fall announcements are George Brandes' "Reminiscences of My Childhood and Youth"; "Job," (Geronimo's Story of His Life), an autobiography of the famous Apache outlaw, "Chinatown," by Valda, by Irving; a holiday edition of Frankfort Moore's "The Jessamy Bride"; "Misrepresentative Women," by Harry Graham; "The World's Painters Since Leonardo," by James W. Pattison; "The Pilgrim's Staff," a selection of the best devotional verses by Fitz Roy Carrington; new edition of "The Star of Bethlehem," a Christmas play, by Professor Charles M. Gayley.

Among the same firm's new fall books for children are "Little Nemo in Slumberland," "Boys and Girls, from George Eliot," "The Punch and Judy Book," by Helen Hay Whitney, with pictures in color by Charlotte Harding, and "Mother Goose: Her Book," with colored pictures, by Harry Smith.

GERMANY MENACES BRITISH EMPIRE

Donald Macmaster, K. C., Former Canadian Lawyer, Thinks She Will Seize Colonies.

Montreal, Oct. 8.—The remarkable rise of the Germans from an agricultural people into an industrial nation is a matter of the gravest import in world politics, and these are those who see in it a serious menace to the integrity of the British Empire.

Mr. Donald Macmaster, K.C., who arrived in Montreal recently from England, where he ran for Parliament as one of those who speak with the greatest concern, if not with alarm, on the problems arising out of this industrial revolution.

"Indeed," he said to an interviewer, "I think the time will certainly come when Germany will fight Great Britain for the possession of her colonies. Nobody will dispute the view that there is going to be a day when the struggle between the British people and the other industrial nations will be greater than now, and we must look forward to the day when British people in all parts of the world will have to stand together in sentiment, trade and defense."

"Now, here is a startling fact. Germany is increasing at the rate of 90,000 to 1,000,000 people a year; that is shown by the census. They now number from 65,000,000 to 70,000,000 people. What are they doing in twenty-five or thirty years?"

"We must look at this from an imperial point of view. We must look to the day when we shall be right up against Germany in hot competition, not only in trade, but in national and physical force. Just listen to what a diplomat said about Germany the other day: 'Germany's strength rests precisely in the fact that an extraordinary increase in her population provides her with an almost inexhaustible military supply.'"

"Germany will look abroad more than ever for a market for her goods, and as the markets of the world become shut up she will turn her attention to the British colonies, and will probably try to wrest them from England by force of arms. That she can secure their markets for her trade, you must remember that Germany is England's imitator, and that England won her colonies very largely by force of the sword."

NEWFOUNDLAND A FINE COUNTRY

Cod-Fishing, Sealing and Pulp-wood Industry Are Chief Occupations.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—A. B. Morine gives some interesting facts about Newfoundland. There is no fruit grown there except berries, and hardly as much cultivated land on the island as might be found between Hamilton and Toronto. The island is a very mountainous. St. John's is a city of about 20,000 population, while the remainder of the 220,000 residents of the island, with the exception of a few towns, live in little settlements. Newfoundland is the poorest of the British colonies, and also the most backward. There have been no grants of land for the development of the island, as has been the case in Nova Scotia.

The total area of the island is about 42,000 square miles, or a little smaller than England and Wales, yet it is by no means to be despised as a colony. Along the shore line there are numerous bays, and through the island run many small rivers. There are also many small lakes, and three-quarters of the island is water. The principal business of the island is cod fishing, and in this the exports amount to about $10,000,000 annually. Seal oil and seal hides are also dealt in, while there is plenty of white marble. Gypsum is found there, some lumber and much pulp wood. A great deal of this last named product is exported to England by the Harnsworths for their extensive pulp wood plants there. The lumbering interests are carried on by Canadian capital, but will never be any more extensive than at present. The pulp wood interest, however, promises to develop greatly on account of the proximity of the island to Ireland, about 1,400 miles distant, and affording good opportunity of shipping it to the old country.

The climate of the island is cool in summer, so degrees being a very warm day, while the winter is warm, zero degree being considered very cold. This is due to the currents in winter, and the presence of the icebergs in summer. The island is a sportsman's paradise, both for game and angling. In seal fishing the seals are gathered by thousands on the ice, where the females bear their young. Ships, 20 or 30 in number, are absent from two to three weeks, and on their return bring back with them between two and three hundred thousand seals, which, together with the fat from which the oil was taken, would be valued at about $1,000,000. This money earned on the ice cannot, according to the laws of the island, be taken away from the fishermen to pay old debts, but is used to keep them through the winter and give them a start in the spring.

One of the most important reasons why the island should be annexed to Canada is the fact that should it, at any time, come into the possession of a foreign nation, that nation could control the export commerce by being in command of the passages to both the north and south of the island. The total import and export trade of the island amounted to about $5,000,000. The imports amounted to about $12,000,000, and this one-half came from England and one-quarter came from the United States and Canada.

Paris, Oct. 8.—Not long ago the authorities of the University of Paris took the liberty of digging up the remains of the great Cardinal Richelieu to see how he was getting along. When he died in 1642 he was buried in the Church of the Sorbonne, the chapel of the University of Paris, which he founded in 1635, and which, as I told you the other day, is now the largest educational institution in the world.

His tomb is one of the most admirable pieces of mortuary marble. The grain of the stone is so fine and pure that it looks like ivory, and age has given it a ripe, yellowish color. The effigy of the great cardinal lies in a semi-recumbent posture, his head being supported by a figure representing Religion and another figure, representing Science, weeps at his feet. The Countess Julie, his famous niece, who appears in Bulwer's play, is said to have been the model for the figure of Science, and the guardian of the tomb, told us that it was her portrait.

The sarcophagus was designed by Lebrun, and the carving was done by Girardon, two of the most famous artists of the seventeenth century. All of the members of the Richelieu family who have died since the cardinal built the Church of the Sorbonne have been buried within its walls, so that it is a sort of family tomb. Most of them have state monuments and fulsome epitaphs, although only one of them has ever distinguished himself. That was the Duke of Richelieu, who was a member of the cabinet of Louis XVI. and an ambassador. The present generation furnished one member of the chamber of deputies, who is said to be a very respectable citizen, but has never done anything to talk about.

The doctors who opened the cardinal's tomb found that his flesh and bones had crumbled into dust, but the skull remained almost perfect. They took it out and photographed it, and then transferred the contents of the coffin to a lead box, which was placed in a hollow stone and walled in under the tomb.

LORD AMHERST SELLS BOOKS

Robbed by His Lawyer, English Baron Disposes of Literary Treasures.

London, Oct. 8.—Were it not for the financial misfortune which has overtaken Lord Amherst of Hackney—his lawyer absconded with half a million dollars of his money a few months ago—the libraries and collectors of England and America would never, during his lifetime, have been given an opportunity to purchase his famous literary treasures. Which is another exemplification of the truth of the old adage that it is an ill wind which blows nobody good.

With Lord Amherst the collection of rare books and manuscripts has been the hobby of a lifetime. He began it 50 years ago, "before," as an English journal regretfully remarks, "American competition had arisen and when it was still possible for an English collector with money, taste and knowledge to buy the finest books of all epochs." But it is the increase in prices created by the advent of the American millionaire which will enable Lord Amherst to obtain for his collection many times what its acquisition cost—sufficient to enable him, to make good what he lost, to raise the lawyer stole from him and leave a handsome margin over for his own pocket—between $400,000 and $500,000, it is estimated.

It is rumored here that for his seventeen Caxtons, eleven of which are in perfect condition—just as they were when they left the press of the first English printer—J. Pierpont Morgan has paid $150,000.

Lord Amherst is 71 years old. He owns 10,000 acres, and his country seat, Dillingham Hall, in Norfolk, is a grand place, rich in art as well as literary treasures. He was created a baron in 1892, and for ten years before his elevation to the peerage was a member of Parliament. It was through his study of Egyptology that he met the lady who became his wife, the only daughter of Admiral Milford, an authority on Egyptian history. They have six children, but no son, and by special attainder, the estate and title will descend to the eldest daughter, who is married to Lord William Cecil. Each of the girls was trained in some useful profession, so as to be able to support herself, should the necessity arise. That necessity has never arisen, but though some are married, they still continue their work as hobbies. One of them, the Hon. Mrs. Evelyn Cecil, has made such a success of horticulture that ten years ago she received the freedom of the Worshipful Company of Gardeners, one of the ancient London guilds, and later was presented with the freedom of the city of London. Another daughter is a taxidermist, and others are experts at poultry farming, bookbinding, pet dog breeding and enameling.

RAILWAY TO BUILD $20,000,000 DEPOT

The Chicago and Northwestern Announces Plans for Station Covering Three Blocks.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—A railway station that will take its place among the great transportation centers of the world is to be built by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway in Chicago.

The plans for the station, which will be located on the west side, between Madison, Lake, Canal and Clinton streets, were made public yesterday by W. A. Gardner, vice-president of the road.

Although the agents of the railway have been extremely active during the last six months in buying right of way, the reports of the purposes in view were gleaned from unofficial sources, and Mr. Gardner's statement was therefore the first authoritative announcement of the company's intentions.

With two-thirds of the property acquired and the remainder in process of acquisition, the work of clearing the ground and constructing the building will begin next spring. Within two years from now it is expected that the railway will be opening from this station on a reorganized and up-to-date system of tracks.

The big railway structure, with its twentieth century atmosphere, will invade one of the oldest sections of the city. Dozens of buildings which date from the Chicago fire will be razed to make way for the new structure to go will be the old Grant House, in West Madison street, known to Chicagoans of a generation ago as one of the city's leading hotels.

The Northwestern Company is prepared to expend on this improvement of its Chicago facilities between $17,000,000 and $20,000,000. Mr. Gardner stated that the company already has expended $2,000,000 in buying the ground on which the station will stand, and in acquiring strips of land along its new right of way. The remainder of the land yet to be purchased will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000. From $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 will be expended on the station and the construction of the new passenger terminals.

From an architectural point of view the station building, it is promised, will surpass anything of the kind in this country.

PALACE SCARES LONE WOMAN

Though Living in Luxury Missouri Old Lady Pines for Less of It.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 8.—From among stately trees that shade an estate several acres in extent rises the imposing gables of a magnificent $75,000 building known in Kansas City as the Margaret Klock Armour Memorial Home for Aged Couples. The home is almost a palace and a matron and servants labor faithfully to supply the wants and make comfortable the solitary inmate, who is mistress of all this grandeur.

It was not the original intention that the home should be the exclusive refuge of Mrs. Isadore Hatfield. This condition is due to peculiar regulations that were made for its maintenance by its founder.

The late S. B. Armour, founder of the big Armour packing plant in Kansas City, conceived the idea of establishing a permanent charity, and the result was the home dedicated to his widow, who supplied a large additional sum to complete and furnish it. The dedication was the occasion for an impressive ceremony, but afterward the aged couple came out. This was due to the fact that couples must not be less than 45 years of age and that an entrance fee of $500 must be paid.

Finally, Isadore Hatfield and his wife bought an entrance to the home and reigned supreme until about a year ago, when Mr. Hatfield died. Since then no others have come to live in the big house among the trees.

"Yes, it's pretty grand here," said Mrs. Hatfield, "and the matron and everybody are good to me, but oh, I'm so lonely among all these big halls. I wish I had company here or I could go to some little place where it wouldn't be so kind of awesome."

SUBDUED BY CRITICS

London Manager and Star Finds Ideas Not Acceptable to Press.

London, Oct. 8.—Arthur Boucher, lessee, manager and star of the Garrick Theatre, has bowed to the London critics. When he announced that "Morals of Marcus" he announced that no tickets would be issued to the critics for first performances thereafter at his theater. Criticism was not due, he believed, until a play had been given a chance. At the end of the first week, when he invited criticism of his production, only one paper noticed it.

"In justice to the author and actors playing in 'Morals and Marcus' I would ask you in your courtesy to allow criticism of this play to appear in your columns," is the way the actor-manager concludes a letter expressing regret if he has caused the press to take offense.

BULL KILLS NEWLY-WED

Gores Youth and Wife of 17 Who Elopéd, Just After Ceremony.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 8.—Just as they left the home of the clergyman in Richmond Falls, who had married them, Frederick Gordon, aged 19, and his 17-year-old bride, who eloped yesterday, were attacked by a bull and gored to death. A red dress which the young wife wore is believed to have angered the bull and been the cause of the tragedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon had cut across a meadow to catch a train which was to take them on their wedding trip, out of reach of their parents, who it was feared, would pursue them. They did not see the bull until it charged them. Escape was impossible and Gordon attempted to drive away the bull by kicking it. The horns of the animal were plunged into his side, however, and he was borne to the ground. The bull gored him repeatedly and trampled him until life was extinct.

Mrs. Gordon looked on, so terrified that she was unable to move. Leaving the dead youth, the bull attacked her. She was powerless to attempt to escape and was caught on the horns, gored into the air, gored again and then hurled into the air, where she fell into an adjoining field. She was injured so badly that she died a few hours later.

LID OFF OLD LONDON

British To Be as Naughty as They Please When New Mayor is Installed

London, Oct. 8.—The elevation of a new lord mayor to the civic throne, who the ensuing year is to be Sir William Treloar, naturally turns the thoughts of London to its annual rate show on Nov. 9, a day on which they are permitted by ancient law to indulge in many extravaganzas, which would not be permitted them on any other day of the year.

It is a day on which a Londoner cannot be looked upon as anything short of a thief or a violent man. He can do almost what he pleases, the policeman looking smilingly on.

It is not the magnificence of the lord mayor's show which Londoners enjoy, for truly of late years it has seemed to have lost all of its original splendor. It is for the fact that they get out of it. Undoubtedly the difficulty of securing some fresh idea with which to make the lord mayor's show different in its main features from its predecessors increases as the years roll by. For some time past interest has been created by a rumor that this year's show might differ from those of recent years.

It is now definitely stated that the show will contain no cars, but their places will be taken by an entirely new feature, which should prove one of the most interesting, as it is the most original that has been seen here in years. This will consist of the representation in costume of seven centuries of city civic life, the idea being carried out by a group illustrative of the lord mayors of each century, with his sheriffs and high officers.

Each group will be dressed in the correct costume of the period and will consist of ten persons, so that the total number of people in the seven groups will be seventy. Such historic lord mayors as Fitz Alyn and Dick Whittington will be included.

HERE'S A BIG MONEY CHANCE IN LONDON

Buy City Debentures and Have Your Money Invested Right.

The city of London is still holding tight to $142,000 worth of debentures. Not that the city wants to hold them, but the money market is so tight there is no sale for them.

Acting Mayor Forristal said today that he thought wealthy citizens of London should buy them.

"They are gilt-edge investments," he says, "and they will bear a good rate of interest."

It is several months since the city tried to sell these debentures, but the offers received were not up to what was expected. The city wanted $9.5, but the brokers could do nothing better than $9.5.

Now, Ald. Forristal, who is the finance minister of the city, thinks citizens should help the city out, and at the same time place their spare funds in a good investment.

TAKEN FROM PARENTS

Five Children Turned Over to Aid Society in a Month.

The Children's Aid Society held a well-attended meeting in the city hall yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Cameron presiding.

The inspector submitted his monthly report of matters coming under his notice since the society's last meeting. The report dealt at length with the details of 24 cases, affecting the welfare of 55 children.

During the month the society has removed three white and two colored children from wretched and degrading surroundings. In both cases evidence was produced before the police magistrate to show that the children were growing up without salutary parental control and education, and in circumstances exposing them to idle and dissolute lives, and the magistrate delivered the children to the guardianship of the society, he being convinced that the parents were not fit and proper persons to have the care and control of children.

It is only in such extreme cases as these that the society takes action to remove children from their parents. In all other cases it makes an effort to better the home conditions and tries to prevail upon the parents to take better care of their offspring.

At present the society has eighteen children in its shelter home on the Wharfside road, South London, and four Roman Catholic children in the Mount St. Joseph orphanage. Since the last meeting six children have been placed on trial in carefully-selected foster-homes.

The treasurer, Mr. J. I. A. Hunt, stated that the society had not much more on hand than would carry it over the present month. Several methods of making collections sufficient to meet the society's expenses for the next five or six months were discussed, and the matter was referred to the finance committee to report at the next meeting.

BURIED WITH IRVING.

London, Oct. 8.—The weird suggestion made by Robert Ross, that another person was buried with Sir Henry Irving in Westminster Abbey, has been written: "A young actor of my acquaintance who bore the honored name of Siddons was buried in her portrait by Reynolds. "Since the burial of Irving he has never been seen, though I saw him in the funeral cortege. All his friends remember a curious exclamation in his manner for a few days before the ceremony, and I cannot help thinking that, in a moment of enthusiasm, realizing that that would be his only chance of burial in the abbey, he took advantage of the bowed and observant heads during the prayer of committal and crept beneath the pall into the great actor's tomb. I have been assured that mysterious sounds were heard for several days after the burial."

The wire swung around in the strong wind for a few moments, until an employee of the company managed, with the aid of an umbrella, to fasten a string to the live wire, and hold it fast until the repair crew reached the scene.

REAL ESTATE HAS BOOMED IN LONDON

77 More Transfers in Last 9 Months Than in Same Period of 1905.

Real estate returns compiled by the assessment commissioner's department show that during the month of September there were 102 transfers, aggregating a total consideration of $169,090. The properties were assessed for only $110,170, so that the assessed value was only 68.8 per cent of the real.

During September of last year there were 103 transfers, and the consideration totalled $143,296. The assessed value was $108,108, or 78 per cent.

For the nine months ending Sept. 1, 1906, there were 958 transfers, against 881 in 1905 and 988 in 1904, for the same period.

In 1904 the total consideration for the nine months was $695,359; in 1905 it was $1,138,871, and in 1906 it was $1,564,355.

The assessed value of the properties sold in 1906 was $1,129,294, or only 72 per cent of the real value.

It is seen from the above figures that this year there were for the period mentioned 77 more sales than in 1905, and 260 more than in 1904.

STRIKE RIOTS AT BUCKINGHAM

celved the first shots. One bullet went through his heart, another through his head. Therrean was killed about the same time. The battle raged furiously for some time, and it was the police body had been larger the destruction of life might have been more terrible.

The strikers were in a desperate mood. Militia were ordered from Ottawa, and 111 men came and took possession of the streets about midnight. But long before that all signs of riot had disappeared.

Alexander MacLaren says the industry was started at the earnest solicitation of leading merchants of Buckingham. The pay roll was about $5,000 a week, and times became dull after the mill stopped. Before operations began he was sure that all danger of trouble was over, and was astonished at the turn events took. He and his brother Albert are so disheartened over the fatalities that they have no desire to start the mill again.

The guard who guarded the mill was supplied by the "Thies" detective agency, Montreal, brought here by the MacLarens. They also summoned the militia, through Mayor Vallée, and Magistrate Pearson, who drove to Ottawa for the purpose. The force came under Col. Hodgins, D. O. C., by special train, and the men were on sentry duty all night. No disturbance took place.

The strikers are quiet, and discuss the affair in a calm manner. They purpose electing another leader to take the place of the dead man, but in view of the mill owners' decision to cease work no serious riot is anticipated.

The inquest into the deaths will be started at 8 this morning before Coroner Rodrigue.

ABSDURD, SAID SIR JOHN BOYD.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Sir John Boyd, chancellor of the high court of Ontario, last night characterized as absurd a story that had been given currency to the effect that he proposed to retire from the bench.

A SMALL PILL, BUT POWERFUL.—They that judge of the powers of a pill by its size, would consider Farmie's Vegetable Pills to be lacking. It is a little wonder among pills. What it lacks in size it makes up in potency. The remedies which it carries are put up in these small doses because they are so powerful that small doses are required. The full strength of the extracts is secured in this form, and do their work thoroughly.

ISSUE CALL TO FOREIGN FIELD

Mission Board in Convention, Says Young Women Workers Are Wanted.

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 9.—Clergymen and missionaries from all parts of the world are here to attend the annual meeting of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, known this year as the "Haystack Centennial Meeting," which opened here today. Part of the sessions will be held in North Adams, and part in the adjoining town of Williamstown, where 100 years ago, in the shade of a haystack, a few men formed the plans which resulted in the inception of the foreign missionary movement. A monument marks the spot where the haystack stood.

Treasurer Wiggins' report states that the receipts of the board have far exceeded those of any previous twelve months. The total receipts were $913,153, and the disbursements $852,680. Secretary Barton in his report declared that the Turkish Government during the year to prevent the erection of new school and hospital buildings.

The most serious political conditions faced by any of the missions of the board at present are in South Africa, India, China and Africa, as well as in other countries.

"Stirred up by adventurers," said Dr. Barton, "and aggravated, it may be, by measures resorted to by the Government to depress this degree of independence, companies of rebels have been formed who have seriously clashed with Government troops, resulting much in the loss of life, and in the destruction of two stations of our board."

Of the need of new missionaries, Dr. Barton says: "We are today in desperate need of reinforcements in Turkey, India, China and Africa, as well as in other countries."

The report of the prudential committee says in part: "The men and women we are sending to the front are breaking down to an alarming extent. In the need of reinforcements, by the delay, and we cannot longer without reinforcements in certain fields without imperiling the work of decades."

"We particularly need young women, thoroughly trained, and intelligently, in a college of good quality."

WHAT A TRADE MARK DOES

Protects the Buyer Against Deception and Also Keeps Up the Standard Fixed By the Makers.

"Why don't you sell to the general clothing trade?" was the question asked the president of Semi-Ready, Limited, on the occasion of his last visit to New York. "Because we have found it difficult to prevent deception by the salesman in the ordinary clothing store in one city in Canada, where we tried the experiment the merchant used the Semi-Ready tailored garments to attract trade to his store and then cajoled or persuaded the prospective buyer into taking some nameless, hot-iron shaped ready-made coat which would lose its shape in a few days. Semi-Ready tailoring can only be had in one store in each town or city. The trade mark protects the buyer, and the Semi-Ready Company alike."

McLean Bros. are the exclusive Semi-Ready agents for London and district, 146 Dundas street.

HAS TWO WIVES; ONE SERVES

But Both Are Fond of Charlie and Will Stand by Him.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Madison, Wis., says: Charles R. Sager, 28 year old, his wife, who is the mother of his two small children, and another woman, to whom he was married unlawfully, have been living in the same house since last May, the lawful Mrs. Sager acting as servant in the home of which her rival is mistress. Sager, who is an insurance solicitor and custodian of the buildings of the University of Wisconsin, voluntarily made this confession in court yesterday. Everyone concerned is content with this arrangement of their domestic affairs. Both women resenting it when the court interfered.

"Charlie is a good, kind man, and we shall stick by him through thick and thin," said the Mrs. Sager, after the man in the case had been sent to jail. "Shan't we, Bessie?" she asked the first Mrs. Sager.

"We will surely stick by him," said the latter.

All persons concerned with Mrs. Sager No. 2 were examined in court yesterday. While being examined in court on the charge of having assaulted a bartender, Sager astonished Judge Donovan by voluntarily telling his story.

ESCAPED JAIL BENEATH SKIRT

How Notorious Criminal Skipped Out With Aid of Clever Wife.

Winchester, Oct. 9.—Trembling and bent with age, Madison Shockley, perhaps the most noted common thief in Indiana has ever produced, is once again within the walls of the Michigan City Prison, from which he probably will never emerge alive. Shockley is now 70 years old and his health is broken.

Shockley's record is a remarkable one. He has just started his sixth term of penal servitude. He has escaped from prison three times and in various counties in the state has slipped from the county jails as though he had a key. No jailer ever felt safe until he saw Shockley on his way to prison, and then the troubles of the prison officials began.

A unique and one of the most remarkable escapes on record was that of Shockley from the Randolph County jail during the civil war, when Shockley made his way to freedom concealed beneath his wife's skirts. Shockley was in his prime then and was as agile as an acrobat. As usual, Shockley was in the jail, still weeping and walking slowly. Beneath the bell-shaped skirt was the prisoner, walking on his hands and knees. When the sheriff went to give the other prisoners their evening meal he discovered Shockley's absence.

Shockley was first sent to Michigan City four years in 1881. He escaped in March, 1884. In 1887 he was sent up as Daniel Rice for a term of seven years, but escaped from the prison in November of that year. He was retaken, however, in the following June. He was sentenced on a burglary charge from Miami County again in 1874. In 1881 he was convicted for a fourth time, in Winchester. He received an eight-year sentence in 1890 and escaped in August, 1892, only to be retaken a few months later.

He was convicted here recently for the first time on a charge of house robbery, and on account of his enfeebled condition this probably will be his last term. His spirit is as daring as of old, however, for during his stay in the jail here this summer he made two unsuccessful efforts to get away.

Shockley often went under the aliases of Daniel Rice and Solomon Hunt. His forte has always been larceny, and he probably has a longer record in this line than any other criminal in the state.

During the past 25 years he has been a tower of strength in his own defence. By no means a scholar, unfamed as an orator, with no pretensions to brilliancy, by the doggedness and steadfastness and sanity of his administration, he made a name that is greater than that of many brilliant men. Always wise in judgment, clear in utterance, intensely spiritual in ambition, he has been a truly apostolic man.

"Archbishop Bond's influence was felt far beyond the range of his own parish. The Roman Catholics of Montreal joined with the non-Episcopalian Protestants in presenting him on the occasion of his jubilee with a tribute of their devotion and esteem. He was the kind of man that makes any church honored, and the Church of England in Canada is poorer of a chief of its great men."

The church will indeed thank God for what he has been, and all Christians may pray that a man like him may be raised in this age to hold aloft the banner as firmly as he.

Archbishop Bond, of Montreal, immediately succeeds as bishop of Montreal; but it will have to be determined who will be his successor in the primate's office.

"Well may we close with words most fitting. 'He being dead, yet liveth.'"

May Affect Board Meeting.

Immediately on receipt of the message from Montreal announcing the death of Archbishop Bond, His Lordship Bishop Williams telegraphed to Bishop Carmichael, asking if the funeral could be fixed for Friday, to enable the bishops and other attending the meeting of the Anglican General Mission Board here on Wednesday and Thursday, to be present. Should the funeral be held on Thursday, as intended, it may be necessary for the mission board to adjourn on Wednesday until Friday or Saturday. FAMOUS NEW STORY.

The advertiser has purchased from the publishers, Messrs. Bobbs, Merrill & Co., the publication rights of Anna Katharine Green's famous story of "The Woman in the Alcove." This is the best book ever written by America's greatest writer of detective stories, and it will shortly be commenced in these columns. Many readers will recollect the publication of "The Filigree Ball" about three years ago, by The Advertiser, and the intense interest it created during its publication. "The Woman in the Alcove" was one of the largest sellers of recent novels, and both these stories were written by Anna Katharine Green.

The Methodist Ministerial Association was to have held its monthly meeting yesterday, but as many of the members were out of the city it was decided to hold only an impromptu session. Rev. Arrangements were made for holding reunion services on Thanksgiving Day, at the First Methodist Church. The services will be attended by the congregations of all Methodist churches in this city. Rev. David Rogers has been requested to preach.

COL. CULVER IN CORK

Former U. S. Consul Here Gets Warm Reception in That City.

The "Constitution," of Cork, Ireland, contains the following reference to Col. Culver, who was until lately United States Consul in this city, and who was transferred by his government to Cork, when the office in London was abolished:

"Yesterday the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor received an official visit from the newly-appointed United States Consul at this port, Mr. Henry S. Culver, who was introduced by his predecessor, Mr. Edwin Norton Gunsaulus. The Lord Mayor hospitably received his visitors in his room at the municipal buildings, and was accompanied by the town clerk (Mr. F. W. McCarthy), and the secretary (Mr. D. P. Giltinan). The city flag was hoisted in honor of the occasion. Mr. Gunsaulus, who has gained many friends during his comparatively brief stay at Queenstown, is leaving, at his own desire, to occupy a similar position at a port with which his family are connected, and carries with him the best wishes of all with whom his duties brought him into contact. Mr. Culver comes from London, in Canada, where he also filled the position of United States Consul. He expressed in warm terms his admiration of the city and harbor, and looks forward to a pleasant sojourn among the people of the city. The Lord Mayor cordially welcomed him on the part of the citizens, and assured him of their desire to make his stay as agreeable as that of any of his predecessors."

VAUDEVILLE BILL IS A FINE ONE

Star Acts Please Londoners and Win Applause—Mr. Bennett Entertains.

With the swing and dash of the advanced Bennett ideas, the new vaudeville theater in this city was opened last night. The house was packed from pit to gallery, and the audience was treated to one of the finest bills ever seen in London.

The handsome theater, finished in white and gold, was resplendent with myriads of electric bulbs. The furnishings were of the richest, and the uniforms of the attaches added a metropolitan air to the playhouse. The audience was composed of the most discriminating of local theatergoers, and all lavished applause on the different acts.

Honor Is Due.
Considering that it was the first time the stage fittings had been used, the vaudeville worked along with commendable smoothness, and the stage crew deserves credit for the manner in which the acts were handled.

Manager Driscoll's plans for the opening night show that he is wide awake and astute, and the comfort of his patrons is his first consideration. It is a foregone conclusion that he will be a very popular manager before many moons.

The feature act of this week's bill is the sketch of Miss May Duryea and Mr. Charles Deland. It is a neat little playlet entitled "The Imposter," in which the two artists find scope for no ordinary amount of histrionic ability, and in which are to be found some clever situations and sparkling dialogue. The ambition of a young lady to become a trained nurse causes her to become a bet in the club that he will make her tired of the work, and he feigns illness and becomes her first patient. She deceives him at his own game, however, and by acting a part, turns the tables on him. The superb Bennett settings were seen to good effect in this act, as they were also throughout the evening.

A Real Funny Man.
Al Lawrence, that prince of fun-makers, was heard for the first time in London. He is a gentlemanly talker with a brand new monologue, bristling with legitimate jokes that proved side-splitters with the audience, except occasionally when it took some time to consider them. They were handed out with maxims gun rapidly, and when a joke was lost on the crowd Lawrence would jolly his hearers.

"I'm four jokes ahead of you now," he remarked once, when an exceptionally good one got by.
Webb and Connolly made good with a very fine musical playlet, in which Miss Webb won hearty applause.
Doherty's poolies proved a most acceptable act, the fuzzy little canines going through innumerable tricks.
As a ventriloquist, Whittle is all the way.
The Columbians have a splendid musical fantasy, entitled, "A Bit of China," in which a human doll makes a tremendous hit, and Demoria and Bell are as good as the best in a very pleasing musical skit.

Prof. Stevens' splendid orchestra rendered a specially prepared programme for the occasion. It was an "Old Folks' Medley Overture," and it was rendered in dashing style.

Guests Entertained.

At the conclusion of the performance the directors of Bennett's Theatrical Enterprises, the four house managers, and a number of others, were entertained at a dinner given in the Teumseh House. The affair was most pretentious, and proved very enjoyable.

Among those present were Major Beattie, Messrs. T. H. Smallman, John Pringle, George F. Driscoll, James Alox, Gus Greening (Hamilton), M. Lynch-Staunton (Hamilton), Alf Talbot, R. A. McVean, E. C. Horne (architect, New York), Charles Mills (architect, Hamilton), Thomas Jones, Charles Haystead, Al Lawrence, D'Arcy Hooker and others.

President James C. Duffield was unavoidably absent, and the chair was oc-

The Popular Bennett.

A lengthy toast list was carried out, the keynote of the speeches being goodwill towards General Manager Bennett and best wishes for his success in his new and important ventures.

Some very nice things were said of the affable gentleman who came to London two years ago an unknown quantity, and who in that time turned a losing house into one of the best-paying theatrical propositions in Canada, and who also succeeded in associating himself with some of London's most solid and respected citizens in the establishing of a chain of theaters which it is predicted will yet extend its links from Halifax to Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett accepted in a modest manner the compliments showered upon him, thanking all for their kind words, and especially thanking the public for their appreciation of his efforts to furnish them with clean, wholesome amusement.

The party broke up at an early hour after the toastmaster, Mr. Pringle, had been duly honored.

A feature of the dinner was a very clever skit composed by Al Lawrence, the monologist, and which contained hits on many of the guests. Some of the jokes were pointed enough, but all were keen in good part.
Mr. Hooker, manager of the Columbia Phonograph Company's local branch, also favored with some of the latest records, and Prof. Stevens won applause for several piano solos rendered in his own brilliant manner.

LECTURE ON MISSION WORK

Rural Dean Dixon Tells of What Is Being Done in Nova Scotia.

Rev. Rural Dean Dixon, of Wolfville, N. S., addressed the students at Huron College last evening on missionary work in the Maritime Provinces. Principal Waller introduced the speaker, who, after sketching the history of the Church of England in Nova Scotia, described some of the old churches of Nova Scotia, many of which were built of timbers brought from Boston in 1749. Among the churches mentioned was the notable St. Paul's of Halifax. Rural Dean Dixon also gave a splendid description of the parochial system, which is modeled on that of New England, and which is more democratic than that of Western Canada, in that the people elect the clergymen and both wardens. The first services were held in Annapolis Royal on its capture by Governor Nicholson of Massachusetts in 1710.

At the conclusion of the lecture Rural Dean Dixon gave a brief history of King's College at Windsor, which was founded in the year 1787 by royal charter, and is the oldest colonial university in the British Empire.
Mr. Dixon entered Huron College in the year 1877, and as one of the first students of the institution wished it every success. He said he hoped that in a few years the Western University would be placed upon a firm and permanent basis.

"THE MEN WHO WIN"

Lecture by Rev. D. E. Martin at Wesley Hall.

Rev. D. E. Martin delivered an interesting lecture, entitled "The Men Who Win," in Wesley Hall, last evening, before a large audience. Among other things upon which Mr. Martin placed special emphasis was the necessity of spiritual life in a successful career. He drew some interesting pictures of men who had made great names for themselves and left behind them unimpeachable records in the annals of time. Another essential to which Mr. Martin referred was courage, which, he said, in the lives of truly great men, was never wanting—courage to stand fast against all obstacles and temptations which beset them in life, and courage to be true to their convictions, no matter what others say. He referred to patriotism as another great essential. A man must be enthusiastic about the resources and possibilities of this great country, which is astonishing the world by its progress. "The men who are to win," said Mr. Martin, "must be patriotic, enthusiastic and courageous."

AUDIENCE BY STORM

Besses o' th' Barn a Revelation—Artistic Treat at the Grand.

The Besses o' th' Barn Band, that famous old English organization, known the world over as the finest brass band in existence, attracted a fair-sized and highly appreciative audience to the Grand last night. The music-loving element of London was well represented, and to say that the band pleased is to put it mildly, indeed. The applause was incessant, and Bandmaster Alexander Owen, though he may have been a little disappointed at the size of the audience, could not but be pleased with the result of the reception. A fatted him. In the house were many Englishmen, who well remembered the little bandmaster across the big pond, and he was greeted with a shower of "Hello Alox" the moment he put his feet on the stage. Though they listened with breathless appreciation while the different numbers were being rendered, during the intermission even the balcony kept up a constant flow of very audible eulogistic remarks, and words of encouragement.
The band came direct to London from Jamestown, N. Y., where on Sunday night it played to 5,000 people. In Chicago at the White City it played to 40,000 people recently. From London it goes to Hamilton for one night, then to Massey Hall, Toronto, for the balance of the week, and on Sunday it will be at the Hippodrome, New York, for an extended engagement.

Besses o' th' Barn Band is remarkable in that it does not contain a single reed instrument, all being of brass. And the quality of the music was such as to inspire all who heard the musicians to the very heights of appreciation.

A feature of the programme was the trombone solo, "The Death of Nelson," rendered by Mr. T. Bowring, assisted by the band. From the sobbing dirge of the sad lament, the music rose to the heights of magnificence, and as in the thunderous melody the audience heard the words, "England this day expects that every man will do his duty," the applause for several minutes was deafening.

A selection from Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance" found great favor with the audience, as did also Rossini's "Italiana."
A cornet solo rendered by Mr. T. G. Moore was one of the most artistic musical treats it has ever been the privilege of Londoners to hear. He chose for his number the "Maid Song," arranged by Owen, and he was given a couple of recalls for his effort.

The sweetness, softness and depth of tone of the brass instruments surprised the audience, and it was freely remarked that it was no wonder France went wild over that band. Those who failed to hear the organization can rely on it that they missed an artistic musical treat.

CHEAPEST OF ALL MEDICINES.—Considering the curative qualities of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, it is the cheapest medicine now offered to the public. The dose required in any ailment is small, and a bottle contains many doses. If it were valued at the benefit it confers it could not be purchased for many times the price asked for it, but increased consumption has simplified and cheapened its manufacture.

Wm. H. Newman, of the New York Central Railroad, held the record this year for directorships and trusteeships. He represents the Vanderbilt interests in 106 corporations. Frederick Underwood, president of the Erie road, holds 72 directorships and trusteeships.
