

PERE MARQUETTE WANTS LEASE OR WILL SUE CITY FOR BRIDGES

Interesting Story Affecting
L. and P. S. R. Given Out.

MAYOR STEVELY WAS IN DETROIT

In Consultation With General Manager Cotter—Big Fight
Likely To Be Begun.

The suit against the city for the bridge erected last season and the one now in course of erection on the London and Port Stanley Road, will be commenced shortly.

That is the impression about the city hall.

The Pere Marquette has practically completed the work, and according to the promise made by General Manager Cotter, of the Pere Marquette, some time ago the city will be asked to pay for the bridges or stand a suit.

Mayor Stevely was, it is understood, in Detroit yesterday in conference with the officials.

The matter will be brought to a climax as soon as the Pere Marquette knows exactly what the bridges have cost the company. That should not be three weeks, it is thought.

Already the city has been semi-officially notified that the suit was impending, and that the company was willing to talk settlement.

The Pere Marquette is satisfied that the city must pay for the bridges and is confident that it will win the suit against the city.

The exact amount is not known, but it is said to be in the neighborhood of $35,000.

The Lease.

The question of the lease will play a very important part in the settlement of the suit, it is said.

It is known that the Pere Marquette is willing to lease the road for a term of years.

It is also known that the company some time ago was willing to pay $15,000 per annum rental, with the additional 10 per cent of the earnings over a certain sum.

It is further known that the company is not now willing to pay that sum of money for the lease, owing to the competition that is being offered by the Southwestern Traction Company.

However, it is semi-officially stated that the company is willing to execute a reasonable lease of the road, and will allow the city a fair rental for the property.

Effects of Competition.

"I understand that the company will not agree to the former offer of $15,000 a year for the road," said a city hall official this morning. "The competition with the Traction Company has affected its value, of course. However, I was given to understand that the company would give a good rental for the property if given a lease for a long term of years."

"The figure was not made known to me, but I gathered from what was told me that the amount would be almost the same as the present rental."

The company would not press the suit against the city for the cost of the bridges, provided the term of the lease was such as to give them a reasonable guarantee that the amount would be made up before the lease expired if the business showed any increase at all.

No Lease, a Suit Will Follow.

"If the Pere Marquette does not get the road, then there will be a suit for a big sum of money."

"What is City Solicitor Meredith's opinion?" was asked.

"He thinks the company has no claim against the city," said this official, "but I do not agree with him."

The Bridges.

The first of the bridges to be built is the one at Port Stanley. It is in the process of construction and will shortly be finished. The bridges over the Thames was finished last season.

The new bridges were made necessary by the increase in the traffic, necessitating heavier engines than formerly, and especially on account of the amount of coal being hauled over the road.

The Pere Marquette will make many improvements in its service, and on its property, if given the lease," said a prominent railroadman this morning. "It cannot afford to go much with only four years more to run. The company could make the road worth while if given a chance. The P. M. is the only road that has made Port Stanley boom. The company is the only one that has made the road pay for the city. The P. M. R. has killed Port Burwell as a summer resort and the same would happen to Port Stanley if another company but the P. M. got hold of it. It would cut off all lake freight and all that. This matter will have to be settled before the summer is over."

MRS. COL. LEYS HAS PASSED AWAY

Death of One of London's
Most Estimable
Ladies.

Mrs. Carrie T. Leys, relict of the late Col. F. B. Leys, ex-M.P.P. for London, died this morning at the family residence, 111 Elmwood avenue.

Mrs. Leys, who had been ailing for some years, was about on Tuesday last, when she was taken very ill, death ensuing this morning after 10 o'clock.

Before her marriage she was Miss Thompson, of Detroit, the daughter of a well-known philanthropic citizen of that place.

During her life in this city she was known for her many works of charity, and was a sincere friend of the poor of London.

Mrs. Leys was interested in many charitable enterprises, and in her death the unfortunate and the sick of London lose a sincere and earnest friend.

She was a devoted member of Knox Presbyterian Church, South London, and always took a deep interest in church work.

No good object ever failed to meet with a generous response from her, and no needy person ever applied to her in vain.

Deceased is survived by four children, two sons and two daughters, Dr. Fred T. and Mr. Allan S. Leys, of Detroit; Mrs. Fred L. Evans, of this city, and Miss Leys at home.

One son, John, died some years ago. Her husband, the late Col. Leys, died in September, 1905.

The funeral will be strictly private.

IMPERIALS BEAT WATSON'S BOX FACTORY

In a Good Game of Baseball Last Night.

The Imperials defeated the Watson's box factory team in a splendid game of ball last night, the score standing 5 to 0. The game was a much better one than the score would indicate, the losers having been left with eight men on bases in five innings.

The base running of Matthews was the feature of the game. Matthews was a runner, and he was a runner. Matthews was a runner, and he was a runner.

Batteries—Imperials, T. Chadwick and G. Craig; Watsons, A. Sharp and N. Chadwick.

Umpire—H. Tupholme.

RIVERS ON A RAMPAGE

Leaves Give Way Near St. Louis—
Great Damage Done.

St. Louis, June 19.—One drowned, the breaking of levees here, and the flooding of thousands of acres of land and frenzied efforts by railroads and towns to save property, marked yesterday's rise in the waters of the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers. The gauge read 34.8, and still rising, and rivermen believe the crest will surpass the weather bureau predictions of 35 feet.

The drowning was that of Max Richter, 17 years of age, who was seized with cramps while trying to repair a boat in which he had gone to view the flood.

EXODUS TO EUROPE

Six Hundred Steerage Passengers
Must Wait for Next Vessel.

New York, June 19.—About 600 more steerage passengers than the Holland-America steamship Potsdam could accommodate made an effort to sail on her yesterday morning from her pier in Hoboken. They were kept outside the gates and the police dispersed them. The line will provide passage for them on the North German Lloyd steamship Bremen, which sails today, and will board them meanwhile.

While the police were keeping the crowd in order an ambulance from St. Mary's Hospital drove down on the pier and a rumor got around that there was a riot of steerage passengers. What had happened was that Mrs. Anna Fingelax's child was found to be dying.

DIES ROCKING GRANDCHILD

Aged Woman at Benton Harbor, Mich., Killed by Gas.

Benton Harbor, Mich., June 19.—Asphyxiated by gas while rocking her 15-month-old grandchild to sleep was the fate of Mrs. Mary Murphy today.

While toddling about, the child accidentally turned on the gas of a heater in the room unnoticed by the aged woman. The baby then climbed back into the cradle, and as she rocked the tot to sleep Mrs. Murphy was gradually overcome by the escaping gas.

Mrs. Murphy was dead when found, but doctors succeeded in saving the child's life.

Probably be arranged very shortly by the Pere Marquette officials and the city council when this matter will be discussed.

That conference will probably take place after the notice for the suit has been entered.

DROWNING ACCIDENT AVERTED CLOSE CALL AT GODERICH CAMP

While Fording River Officer Stumbled on a Stone and Was Swept Away—Private Abbott of Woodstock Heroically
Saved Man and Won Golden Opinions for Himself.

[By Our Own Man.]

Goderich, June 19.—A drowning accident was narrowly avoided today at the militia camp, and but for the presence of mind of Pte. Robert Abbott, twenty-ninth Regiment, whose home is in Woodstock, a color-sergeant whose name cannot be learned would have lost his life.

Both men were fording the river, when the sergeant's foot slipped on a stone, and he was carried away by the current.

Young Abbott swam after him and held him above water until a boat arrived and took both to shore.

Lieut. Col. Oliver spoke very highly of young Abbott's pluck while the regiments were on parade today.

Col. Peters Inspects.

Lieut. Col. Peters, D. O. C., today inspected the different regiments' cooking utilities, supply boxes and sanitary arrangements. Everything was found in a satisfactory shape, with the exception of one regiment's supply boxes, which did not meet with the colonel's approval.

The highest score on the ranges today was made by Pte. Lewis, Twenty-sixth Regiment. His score was 68 out of a possible 70.

Boys Are Improving.

The different regiments were out today on brigade work.

Improvement in the men's work can be seen daily.

Sunburnt faces and necks is the order of the day. The men in parade being exposed to the sun from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Twelve companies were lectured by instructors, and did their shooting at the firing line today.

Sergeant-Major James, of the Twenty-seventh, was in orders today, being promoted to warrant officer. He was formerly a member of the Seventh Fusiliers, London.

The highest score on the ranges today was made by Pte. Lewis, Twenty-sixth Regiment. His score was 68 out of a possible 70.

Chief and His Driver, Gordie Gray, Have a Bad Few Minutes
Dodging the Heavy Apparatus in the Dark at Maitland Street Last Night—Loss About $500.

The offices of the Dominion Coal and Wood Company, at the corner of Maitland and Nelson streets, were destroyed by fire between 10 and 11 o'clock last night.

The loss will be about $500, which it is understood is covered by insurance.

Messrs. S and M. Leff compose the company, and in addition to a coal office, the building was used as a grocery store and boarding-house.

It is said that ten Italians have been using the upper story and cooking for themselves.

Proprietor Away.

There was no one in the building last night, when the fire broke out. Mr. Leff was in the country, it is said, and Mrs. Leff had gone out to call on a neighbor.

The fire had spread from the store to a shed and a pile of wood, and in a couple of minutes more, two more lines of hose were at work on them.

In half an hour the fire was out, though it gave trouble just as the men were leaving by breaking out in a new spot.

An overheated stove is blamed for the blaze.

Chief in Bad Box.

The brigade was held at the Maitland street crossing of the Grand Trunk, until the crew cut the cars, and in the darkness and dust the chief had a terrible time keeping his shell of a buggy from being crushed between the cars.

Only the good work of the drivers prevented a bad accident.

When at last the crossing was opened up, the central hook and ladder, the hose wagon and the chief, with his driver, made a gallant rush for the scene of the fire, and in one minute had a line of water playing on the flames. East London company arrived a moment later.

Good Work.

The fire had spread from the store to a shed and a pile of wood, and in a couple of minutes more, two more lines of hose were at work on them.

In half an hour the fire was out, though it gave trouble just as the men were leaving by breaking out in a new spot.

An overheated stove is blamed for the blaze.

Hon. Mr. Fielding Explains His Plan—Mr. Foster Makes Objections.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 19.—In the Commons this morning, in answer to a question by Mr. Blain as to whether Judge Cassels had adjourned with the Government's consent the marine department investigation until Sept. 2, Hon. Mr. Fielding said his lordship was master of his own court, and could himself decide how and when to proceed with it.

Hon. Mr. Graham informed the House that the bill chartering the Dominion Power Development Company of Fort William would come before the private bills committee on Wednesday next. The bill is opposed by the Association of Municipalities, and by the Ontario Government, as being an infringement of provincial rights.

On the second reading of the Government's measure amending the bank act, by providing for the issue of additional circulation to meet the demands of the crop movement, Mr. Fielding explained that the experience of last fall showed the imperative need of providing for a temporary expansion of the circulation from October until the end of the year. The special issue of bills allowed would amount to 15 per cent. The effect of the bill would be to add about $2,500,000 to the circulation for crop-moving purposes.

Mr. Foster thought the Government had not shown necessity for so drastic a change in the bank act, and amendments should be deferred until the regular decennial revision of the act.

Many Buildings in Ruins and Several Persons Injured.

St. Louis City, Iowa, June 19.—Several persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, by two houses and a half-dozen barns destroyed, by a tornado, which struck the eastern outskirts of St. Louis City late yesterday afternoon. The residence of Mrs. Maud E. Green, of Greenville, was wrecked. The three persons in the house—Mrs. Howe, Charles Eakam, her nephew, and H. Charles Youhill—were badly injured, and the latter died. The home of Fred Demarville, of Morning-side, was torn to pieces.

Mr. John McNeill, of Sault Ste. Marie, says the crops in his vicinity have been so affected by the heavy white frosts of last week, that the farmers will sustain a heavy loss.

Taft on the first ballot. Taft by 702 votes; Taft by unanimous choice of the convention.

Such is the record of the culminating day of the Republican national convention of 1908, effected amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm, and after a nerve-racking continuous session lasting nearly eight hours. With president named, another platform enunciated, there remains only the nomination for vice-president to complete the great work.

Tonight the whole city is given over to wild exultation in honor of the new candidate, whose name goes echoing through the country.

WOODS' FAIR J. M. THOMSON

Londoner's Impressions of the Camp Plenty of Room for Drill, No Ranges

Humorous Incident Recalled—
Goderich Is a Peculiarly Laid Out Town.

(By Our Own Man.)

Goderich, Camp, June 17.—The long-talked-of change of the camp from London to some other place has been fulfilled. Goderich has been the lucky place chosen. After an all-day journey on the train the troops arrived in Goderich.

It is not much of a place to see. On the south the river cuts its way through to the lake between very high cliffs. On one side of the river the town of Goderich is situated, on the other side is the camp. When you arrive at the station you wind your way through a small part of the town to the old Cambria road, the most dusty road in all Canada. Following the road along we soon come to the river and descend by a winding way to almost the river bed, then by a long circuitous route up the other side and we are soon on the top of the plane on which the camp is situated.

The Camp.

The camp lies in between the river on the south and the lake on the west. Some of the corps' guides' tents are situated almost on the edge of the cliff that overlooks Lake Huron.

The camp is about half a mile from the town directly across the river, over which there is no bridge. To reach the town by the road is about three and a half miles. The engineers are constructing a pontoon bridge across the river to shorten the way to the town.

The camp is on what is known as the old Attain farm. There are probably three or four hundred acres in this farm. This land is very little good other than a camp ground. Even pastures do not grow very well on it.

The lay-out of the camp is very much the same as at London. The corps of guides is situated on the edge of the cliff; then come the artillery; next the First Infantry Brigade; then the divisional headquarters and then the Second Infantry Brigade.

Barns Made Use Of.

The barns belonging to the farm are used by the army service corps. Over here at about a half-mile from the main camp, the ovens are set up, all rations are kept, and the hay for the horses is pressed here and distributed. One would hardly believe what work it has entailed moving the camp out here.

The water supply had to be provided for. A large water tank was erected about fifty feet above the camp grounds. A pipe was laid out into the lake about 20 feet and from there water is pumped up to the tower, a rise of about 200 feet from the lake below.

Then from there it had to be piped over the grounds.

Plenty of Room.

There is plenty of room here for drilling. In the present drill, one company requires so much territory, especially in extended order, a company may be stretched all over a 100-acre farm and its maneuvers are carried out by signs and whistle only.

The ranges are the worst part. They have no ranges here at all, and only some two targets, at about three miles on the other side of the town. The regiments will have to be content with miniature ranges this year.

Funny Incidents.

Many funny things happen in camp. Goderich is built like a cart-wheel. The court house is situated in the center and the main street runs all around in a circle.

The first night here some of the boys went down town and walked around for a time and started to come home. They kept on walking and I heard one of them say that times before they realized that they were lost. They had been walking around this main street all the time and forgot the corner to turn off at.

ODDFELLOWS END CONVENTION MEET IN HAMILTON NEXT YEAR

Election of Officers Was Completed Yesterday—Delegates Were Well Pleased With the Treatment at the Hands of the City and People of London.

At the closing session of the C. O. O. F. yesterday afternoon, it was decided to hold the next annual convention at Hamilton, commencing the third Tuesday in June, 1909. The selection was made unanimously. The most important work of the afternoon session was the election of officers.

There were some keen contests for the positions, although a majority of the most important offices went by acclamation.

The new list of officers are as follows:

The Officers.

Grand Master—W. T. Junkin, Penelon Falls, re-elected by acclamation.

Deputy Grand Master—W. Irwin, St. Thomas, re-elected.

Grand Secretary—R. Fleming, Toronto, re-elected by acclamation.

Grand Treasurer—W. H. Shaw, Toronto, re-elected by acclamation.

Grand Medical Referee—Dr. H. S. Bingham, Toronto, re-elected by acclamation.

Grand Chaplain—Rev. J. Lindsay, of Evelyn, re-elected.

Grand Lodge Representatives—Dr. Adam Thomson, Galt, and Dr. J. A. White, Lindsay.

Grand Auditors—W. L. Young, Markdale; Charles Mussion, Toronto.

Committee on Laws—C. Bradford, Hamilton; J. W. Boyd and R. Wray, Toronto.

Committee on Finance—J. S. Tice, Sterling; C. H. Denton, Tillsonburg.

Executive Committee (elected)—Dr. Adam Thomson, Galt; Dr. J. A. White, Lindsay.

The D. D. G. Ms.

Immediately following the election of district deputy grand masters took place. The selection was made in twelve of the districts, the Windsor district being left vacant for the time being. The grand master will appoint him shortly. The new appointees are:

Brighton District—James Harria, Bannockburn.

Belleville District—A. Van Loonen, Kingston.

Chatham District—Solomon Manning, Highgate.

Galt District—Robert Hammond, Galt.

Hamilton District—Wilmot Hall, Dundas.

Lindsay District—C. W. Hughson, Lindsay.

Montreal District—Dr. W. Opzomer, Montreal.

Owen Sound District—E. W. Geddes, Hepworth district.

St. Thomas District—G. A. Mason, Woodstock.

Toronto District—H. C. Cardinal, Toronto.

Windsor District—George Hicks, Windsor.

The newly-elected officers were then installed by a very impressive ceremony by Past Grand Master Mark B. Thomas, of Toronto.

Sketch of Work.

A brief sketch of the work of organization done during the year was given by Chief Organizer W. T. McNichol, of Toronto. He pointed out that 24 lodges had been instituted in the Canadian west, and he hoped that this number would be largely increased during the coming year. Mr. McNichol explained his plan of campaign, and hoped, with the co-operation and assistance of the lodge members, that the coming year would be the banner year for the lodge.

Bros. C. M. Andivison, of Regina, Sask., and C. A. Weese, of Saskatoon, Sask., spoke on behalf of the western lodges, and declared them to be enthusiastic on working lodges. He spoke hopefully of conditions in that country and assured the convention that the western lodges would show a large increase this coming year.

Reports.

The committee on the redistribution of districts reported only one change, Most Albert Lodge being transferred from the Lindsay district to the Toronto district.

The committee on laws reported that the new constitution, after being amended had been adopted by the convention.

The committee on appeals reported that no business had come before that body for settlement.

By a unanimous vote of the convention, the appropriation for the grand secretary's office was increased from $2,450 to $2,900. The work of the grand secretary was declared to be highly satisfactory by several delegates.

A question of representation to the grand lodge was discussed, and the old rule was amended after a long argument. The old basis of representation was 2 delegates to 50 members enrolled. The amendment calls for 2 members for every 75 members enrolled.

Vote of Thanks.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the mayor and council of the city of London for their courtesy during the convention.

The majority of the delegates left for their homes in the evening, although many remained until this morning, and will spend the day sight-seeing.

The convention has been a very busy one and on the whole, a most satisfactory one.

The amendment of the constitution was highly satisfactory to the delegates, and settles a vexed question for a long time.

The question of rates was the only question not satisfactorily settled. Many members thought that a raise in rates is imperative, and that it must come sooner or later. It was pointed out that such a question could be settled here at this convention than next year.

However, it will be discussed again at the next annual meeting.

The convention closed by singing the National Anthem, and "Auld Lang Syne."

Tillsonburg Man Committed for Trial On Charge of Burning Queen's Hotel

Damaging Evidence Against Wm. Buckbrough Is Flatly Contradicted By Witnesses.

Tillsonburg, June 18.—As a result of the investigation into the fire which on May 20 destroyed the Queen's Hotel here, Chester Buckbrough was committed for trial on a charge of arson and will appear at the next assizes in Woodstock.

John Mero, proprietor of the hotel, stated that on the morning of the fire shortly after he had been aroused by the cries of fire he saw Buckbrough standing on the back steps of the hotel.

He admitted that there had been hard feelings between him and the accused on account of witness having him fined.

This trouble originated on Feb. 13, when Buckbrough came into the bar and insulted the bartender, telling him he would have to get out or lose his job.

Witness had told Buckbrough to leave the hotel and then the man had become so abusive that "he (Mero) had called the police and had him arrested."

Made Threats.

Buckbrough was fined and placed on the Indian list and had repeatedly made threats that he would be even with Mero.

Mr. Mero said that on the night previous to the fire he had locked the doors at midnight and turned off the electric switch.

There was no oil or anything kept in the house that would cause a fire. The electric wires had been all inspected only a day or two before the fire.

Witness was awakened early in the morning by his wife calling fire.

When he got up the fire seemed to be at the foot of the main stairs, which fell in a few moments. Witness took Bernard, the Toronto traveler and got him to the back stairs.

Bernard Ran Back.

He saw the flames and ran back to where he had been. He was then cut off by the fire. Witness took another man named Proctor down the back stairs and both got out safely by the back door.

Then he saw Buckbrough standing on the back steps. When Buckbrough saw him he went away and went around to the front of the building.

Asked where he thought the fire started witness said to the best of his knowledge it was in the apartment under the staircase.

Damaging Evidence.

Balliff Crossett, of Tillsonburg, testified that he had heard Buckbrough say on the morning of the fire that he had set the hotel on fire. He had heard Buckbrough say at different times that he would get even with Mero.

W. Sheldon, an employee in Becker's livery stable, and W. Hawthorne, testified that they had heard Buckbrough using profane language against Mero on different occasions, particularly in the morning of the fire, when he had said he hoped that Mero would burn with the building.

The Defense.

Opposed to this testimony was that of C. Smart, the nightman at Becker's livery stable, which was immediately in the rear of the hotel.

Smart said that Buckbrough had spent the night previous to the fire in the livery stable.

It was his custom to sleep there. He slept in a chair and when witness arose at 1 o'clock to attend to a horse he was still there. He had come in about 11 o'clock in a drunken condition and was very sleepy.

At 2 o'clock witness also got up again and Buckbrough was still there.

Smart did not get up any more, but went to sleep. He admitted that it would have been very easy for Buckbrough to go out without his knowing it, as the front door was open.

Buckbrough had awakened him in the morning and told him about the fire. Buckbrough was sober at this time.

William Barkie, an electrician, testified to having inspected the wires and found them all right two days before the fire.

Buckbrough has applied for bail, but it has not been granted.

TAFT THE MAN.

The Republican nominee for president is a big-brained, big-bodied man, with a fund of experience qualifying him for the great office to which he will in all probability be elected. He has been in succession a newspaper reporter, professor of law, lawyer, assistant prosecuting attorney, collector of internal revenue, judge of the Ohio supreme court, solicitor-general of the United States, United States circuit judge, president of the Philippine commission, civil governor of the Philippine Islands, secretary of war, and a roving ambassador of his country to the world at large. He is steeped in the work of government; his whole career has been a preparation for the presidency.

Taft has been derisively called "Roosevelt's candidate." The whole power of the President's office has been employed in his behalf, and the White House pulled the strings at the nominating convention, but undoubtedly Roosevelt acted in what he conceived to be the highest interests of the party and the country. The two men are in thorough sympathy in their political ideals, and it is natural that Roosevelt's favor and support should be thrown to one who will continue his public policies. Mr. Taft, however, is anything but the puppet or shadow of another man. He has given an impression of virile self-assertion. The weightiest tasks of state have been laid on his broad shoulders, and in every instance he has shown to advantage.

The platform laid down by the convention attracts little attention. An attempt is made to placate the trade unionists by an anti-injunction plank, which may mean anything or nothing. There is a mild suggestion of a need for tariff reform, the usual demand for an elastic currency, and the advocacy of Government regulation of railways and corporations. On the whole, it appears that the presidential conflict will rage around personalities, not issues. Undoubtedly Bryan will be the Democratic candidate, but it is difficult to see how he can improve on the Roosevelt programme represented by Taft, unless he has the courage to come out squarely against protection, as Cleveland did, and make the tariff the dominating issue.

MINORS AND TOBACCO.

Mr. Aylesworth's bill prohibiting the use of tobacco by minors under 18 years of age, which has just passed the House of Commons, will go some way towards lessening what is generally regarded as a serious evil. The majority of the provinces have legislation of some nature bearing on this subject, but it is found that all the provincial acts differ as to age conditions. Another defect of the provincial acts is that none of them makes it an offense on the part of a young person himself to purchase or consume tobacco. Moreover, it is a point which has not yet been settled whether or not legislation of this character is not ultra vires of the provincial legislatures, as an encroachment on the domain of criminal law. In view of this and of the expressed feeling of parliament on the subject of the use of cigarettes by minors, the Government determined that there should be some legislation of general application to the whole of Canada.

The act makes it an offense punishable by fine to sell or to furnish to a young person of either sex, under the age of 18 years, tobacco in any form for the consumption of that young person, himself or herself, and also makes it an offense on the part of any person to sell, give or furnish to a young person under the age of 18 years, any cigarettes or cigarette papers for the use of that young person or otherwise. This prohibition accordingly is upon the furnishing to a young person under 18 years of cigarettes for any purpose, and equally upon the furnishing to such person for his or her own consumption of tobacco in any form. This prohibition may be enforced by the infliction of a penalty upon the young person who commits any offense against the enactments of the measure. For the first offense the penalty is a reprimand; for the second, a fine not exceeding $1, and for the third or subsequent offense, a fine not exceeding $4.

This, it is thought, is as far as it is proper to go in the way of punishing the child himself who commits an infraction of the act. The act gives authority, under the law, to any constable or policeman to seize upon and summarily forfeit any tobacco he may find upon a young person under 18 years of age, about to smoke or actually smoking in any street or public place. There is also a clause covering the case of automatic machines for the sale of cigarettes or tobacco in any form which may be used by persons under the prohibited age, and a provision exempting persons employed by a tobacco dealer from the prohibitions of the act. The provision as to the presumption of age throws the burden upon the person accused, if he or she appears to be under the age of 18 years, to prove to the contrary.

SASKATCHEWAN'S LICENSE LAW.

The Saskatchewan Legislature has passed a liquor license act which has the hearty support of both political parties, the Opposition leader, Mr. Haultain, being among the members who approved the Government's measure. The act limits the number of licenses to one for each 300 of population. In Ontario the limit is three for the first thousand, and one for each six hundred thereafter. But conditions in the west are different from those in this part of the Dominion. In Alberta (where the limit is one for 500) population is so scattered that even under the limits fixed many municipalities will go without licenses, while in Ontario any municipality with a population of 250 is entitled to one tavern. The result of the Saskatchewan limit will be to prohibit the cross-roads or wayside tavern, secure rural prohibition, and confine the liquor traffic to cities and towns under police surveillance and control. Ten o'clock is fixed as the hour for closing bars, and the sale of liquors on holidays is prohibited. The act does away with the licensing of clubs.

The important feature of the bill is that relating to local option. Saskatchewan legislators feel they can trust the people and believe that the majority should rule. Consequently a simple majority of the electors of a municipality is sufficient for local prohibition. In this respect the people of Saskatchewan have an advantage over those of Ontario, thanks to the Whitney Government.

Taken as a whole the Saskatchewan liquor license act appears to be the outcome of a genuine desire to deal with the question of the liquor traffic as to effectively advance the best interests of the cause of temperance reform. The Government and Legislature have given every evidence that they are strong enough to deal with this most important question on its merits, and are therefore entitled to credit.

Taft and Roosevelt being kindred spirits, Roosevelt modestly predicts that Taft will make an ideal president.

Probably the Ottawa Opposition will raise the cry that the Government is persecuting Tory officials in the marine department.

The newspaper apologists for Mr. Foster don't attempt to describe the transactions for which Mr. Foster has been justly pilloried.

The Anglican Synod of Toronto has declared in favor of the three-fifths clause. It is only fair to the synod to presume that it more anxious to help Whitney than the liquor traffic.

The Conservative press has made the amazing discovery that there is a patronage list at Ottawa. Perhaps a search warrant might locate one at Toronto, too. The London asylum accounts look like it.

The party that has no patronage to dispense can easily show "Down with the patronage system!" The party that voluntarily relinquishes the patronage in its own hands is the one which proves its sincerity.

The Whitney Government will receive full credit from its opponents if it goes in for civil service reform. But the Whitney Government is too much enamored of the spoils system to take any such step.

A STRONG CUP.

Guest (in cheap restaurant)—See here, waiter, I thought I told you to bring me a strong cup of coffee.
Waiter—Well, what's the matter with that cup? You couldn't break it with a axe.

A QUEER THEORY.

[New York Sun.]
May it not be that vice and disease have given us the greater part of our art? Suppose Hearn and Nietzsche were both eye diseased? For that very reason they saw the interior world with greater vividness than the average mind—that poor average mind that understands nothing but cakes and ale. Homer and Milton were both reputed to be blind. Tasso was crazy. Coleridge was a drug fiend (he wrote "Kubla Khan," is it said, "under the influence"). Shelley was a ghost seer.

Plaubert was an epileptic; Leopardi was an invalid all his life, as was Herbert Spencer; Amiel had what the French psychologists call "dubila" (will paralysis), which diseases inspired the greatest confessions of Nietzsche; he was crazy, Strindberg has been "put away" many times, De Maupassant died a hideous death, Schopenhauer and Comte both tried suicide, Keats was a compulsive, Berlioz a drunkard, Poe was never quite sane (what marvelous treasures the "unbalanced" have!); and, in fact, the history of genius is one long train of social, sexual, physical and moral irregularities. As for Whitman, George Sand, Beethoven, George Eliot, Tschakowsky—basta!

HER RESPONSIBILITY REALIZED.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]
Mrs. J.'s patience was much tried by a servant who had the habit of standing around with her mouth open. One day as the maid waited upon the table her mouth open as usual, and her mistress said:
"Mary, your mouth is open."
"Yassum," replied Mary. "I opened it."

HERSELF AS HEE.

[Detroit Free Press.]
Robert Barr, the Canadian novelist, was entertained at dinner by a North Woodward avenue, a few nights ago. The men adjourned to the smoking room and the hostess lingered to give orders to the maid.
"Oh," said the young girl, "I was so proud to have been able to wait on Mr. Barr. He is the first famous man I have ever attended."
And then, in a burst of maidenly enthusiasm, she exclaimed:
"Perhaps some day I may be called to wait on Shakespeare."

FIRST MARRIAGE IN PRINCE RUPERT.

Board of Werks Would Force Paving On Carling St. From Talbot To Ridout

Claims That the People Do Not Know What They Want—Other Matters.

The question of initiating an asphalt pavement on Carling street between Talbot and Ridout streets, came up at No. 2 committee's meeting last night, and it was again decided to initiate a street asphalt pavement on that street by a two-thirds vote of the council.

Ald. Stewart pointed out that a permanent pavement was a necessity there, and as the council had the power, it should exercise it. The pavement was being held up, because the council paid attention to every petition that came in. He was in favor of initiating the pavement, and he moved that the council be recommended to initiate it at once.

Carling's Creek.

Dr. Niven, chairman of the board of health, appeared before the committee about the Carling Creek matter. The creek was in a disgraceful condition, and should be filled. He had been agitating this for a year and a half, and was willing to continue the agitation until the work was accomplished. The board of health had done all it could do, and it thought the responsibility should now be accepted by the council. He pointed out that the filling would improve the value of the property in that district, and would open up a new street, and would prevent any outbreak of disease from the creek. Several owners of property along the creek were ready to build houses just as soon as the creek was filled.

Is Private Property.

Mr. Joseph Hamilton also spoke on behalf of the property owners of that district, and asked that the creek be filled. The creek was in a very unhealthy condition and something should be done. Mayor Siewiey pointed out that Carling's Creek had always been looked upon as private property.

Ald. Saunders thought that something should be done.

Ald. Stewart was under the impression that this property was private property, and in order that the city's rights be discovered he moved that the matter be referred to the city engineer to find out who owned the property and what were the city's rights in regard to it. This motion was carried.

Wellington Street North.

A deputation headed by Mr. A. J. Morgan, the city engineer, appeared and urged that Wellington street north be improved right away. Mr. Morgan pointed out that the street was in a disgraceful condition, and that the city's rights in the street were private property. He could not understand why the city should wait until the street railway should be moved.

The improvement on Wellington street north depend upon whether the tracks on that street will be moved or not," said Mr. Morgan.

"That is what the council seems to think. But it is not so, because the tracks are not going to be moved. We have settled that by our petition."

The matter was allowed to lay over until the question of the north end extension is settled, when President Ever-

G. Munro was best man, and little Misses Katherine Pillsbury and Betty Barrow made very pretty bridesmaids. Miss Burton, who arrived from England ten days ago, was given away by A. R. Barrow.

OLD-FASHIONED BREAKFAST.

[Richmond News-Letter.]

How dear to my heart is that scene of my childhood,
Which fond recollections recollect to view;
The damask-clad board, with its lavishly-laid food,
Delectable fare my young appetite knew.

The crisp, fried potatoes, seductively brown,
The rampart of toast, with the marmalade high in the rear,
Ambrosial breakfast, where now thy remembrance?

The old-fashioned breakfast, our forefathers' breakfast,
The long-ago breakfast of vanished renown.

Those rich-tinted waffles, how toothsome and tender,
Their dimpled delights on those mornings of yore;
How oft to their delicate charms I'd surrender,

How sweet the libation I'd over them pour,
How calm the content that would softly unfold me,
As each melting mouthful slipped lusciously down.

And how I'd have sorrowed had anyone told me
That opulent breakfast would lose its renown,
The old-fashioned breakfast, our forefathers' breakfast,

The long-ago breakfast of vanished renown.

How bleak is this modern repast of the morning,
It differs far from the feast of my dream,
That succulent fern the bare table adorned.

I yearn to devour with sugar and cream,
I'm weary of hard, predigested and shredded,
On health-giving sawdust I look with a frown.

The pangs of dyspepsia are less to be dreaded,
Oh, bring back the breakfast of ancient renown;
The old-fashioned breakfast, our forefathers' breakfast,

The long-ago breakfast of vanished renown.

But is there no hope? Must I ever continue
On flakes of dried science to nourish my brain?
While "vigor" and "force" feed my muscle and sinew,

My poor, patient palate petitions in vain.
Dear meal of my childhood, with what rapture I'd hail thee,
Could I but before thy abundance sit down!

With keenest enjoyment I'd haste to assail thee,
Thou memorial breakfast of blessed renown;
The old-fashioned breakfast, our forefathers' breakfast,

The long-ago breakfast of vanished renown.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

"How many servants does your mother keep?" asked the lady who had just moved into the neighborhood.
"None," replied little Janet; "but we hire lots."

THE RESURRECTION

OF COLMAN M'RAY

After Ten Days Passed in a Hypnotic Sleep—Fiancée Sees Him Dig Up.

Washington, June 18.—"Is it not a fact?" At least 5,000 people asked that question at Luna Park when Colman McRae was resurrected. McRae was literally dragged from his grave where he had been in a hypnotic sleep for ten days, and brought to consciousness in plain view of a struggling, panting mob, which, in spite of scores of stalwart guards, dispersed until the young man had been fully restored to normal condition of life.

By actual count 1,280 persons heaved down the tube to McRae's grave between the hours of half past 6 and a quarter of 8 o'clock. Many times that number formed a huge semi-circle around the little corner where the grave was. Every brilliantly lighted "attraction" was practically deserted after 8 o'clock. The one drawing card was the young man asleep in a pine coffin five feet deep in the ground.

Sweetheart at Graveside.

At 8:50 o'clock guards roped the crowd back. The task of opening the grave began. The crowd pushed and fought with the intensity of their curiosity. The closely packed mob shoved up to the brink of the opening. A score of stalwart guards stretched iron chains and forced the people back with riot measures.

Not the least of the attraction was the young man's fiancée, Miss Eugenie Hamilton. She was the only person other than the gravediggers allowed inside the ropes. She was apparently indifferent to remarks directed at her. Her eyes were riveted on the rapidly deepening hole from which McRae was to be released.

Bundha Kuppawrow got into the grave when it was sufficiently large to permit. He scattered the torn shreds of a green leaf on the youth's face, which appeared through the hole in the coffin lid. Then the coffin was split open with axes.

It was solidly made and put to flight any theory that McRae had been getting in and out of it every day. Examination of the coffin showed this to be impossible.

Crowd Witnesses Restoration.

The restoration took place in a little theater near at hand. Whether or not the audience thought it was being fooled, an enormous crowd paid 25 cents apiece for the privilege of entering to see what happened. As large a crowd awaited outside.

McRae was carried into the theater by a back door on a stretcher, stiff and covered with clay. It was plainly seen that his beard which is light and fuzzy, had grown during his imprisonment. His eyelids were blue, but beyond that he looked healthy.

An army surgeon, who had followed the stretcher in, felt his pulse. He said it was much accelerated, and that the sleeper's condition indicated exhaustion.

Claim for Damages.

Flock & Flock, on behalf of the Canadian Express Company, notified the city that the firm intended suing for $150 damages done to a horse and wagon owing to a defective street.

The matter was referred to a point solicitor to defend the street railway company to be named co-defendants. Allan Swanwick, 397 Rectory street, was given permission to tap the Rectory street sewer, provided he build his own drains and pay sewer rental.

Petitions for curbs and gutters on North Oxford were referred to a point 150 feet west of Helmuth, and on north and south Grosvenor, between Wellington and Waterloo streets, were found to be sufficiently signed and will take the usual course.

The petition for a cement walk on East Talbot street, between Oxford and Sydenham streets, for a tile sewer on St. James street, between Adelaide and William streets, was found to be lunch awaited him. Although ravenously hungry, he could eat but little. Here it was that two reputable physicians examined him, privately for their own satisfaction. They found his heart action indicated great exhaustion. Lack of other symptoms puzzled them. Beyond the condition of his heart he did not show any evidence of his "ten-day rest underground."

Medical Puzzle.

Here are the questions the medical men are trying to solve:

"Heart and pulse uneven.

"Signs of weakness and exhaustion.

"Pulse beats exactly similar to those of the Hindoo who mesmerized him."

"Actions upon 'coming to life' evidently genuine.

"Not a sign of dampness nor the slightest mold on the man's clothes or shoes."

"Frightfully Hungry.

McRae did not talk much. He mumbled at his food and said:

"I'm frightfully hungry. I would like some soup and oysters and beef-steak."

When the men who were present at his burial asked him if he remembered them, he said:

"Certainly, I remember each one of you. But it seems like a thousand years ago. When I felt myself going I tried to stop myself, and then I felt a great shock and have been falling ever since."

The physician at the park took charge of McRae and administered medicine to strengthen the heart.

By the time the last car left for Washington, McRae had been bathed, shaved and clothed in a brand new suit of blue serge. With a large roll of money in his pocket he was heading for the place in Washington where one can get the largest meal.

Professor Schuster asserts that animals lack moral feeling entirely, none of their acts being immoral or moral, in the broad sense, and that they have no trace of a sense of shame or of honor. Their courage, he declares, is a mere impulse of nature."

THE CRIMSON BLIND

BY FRED M. WHITE

"Please let me finish," Chris went on, excitedly. "Reginald Henson is driven back on his last trenches. He has to get the ring for Lord Littimer. He takes out the ring after all these years, never dreaming that Van Sneek would dare to play such a trick upon him, and finds out the forgery. Did you ever see that man when he is really angry?"

"He is not pretty then," Rawlins said.

"Pretty! He is murder personified. Kindly try to imagine his feelings when he discovers he has been deceived. Mind you, this is only a theory of mine, but I feel certain that it will prove correct. Henson's last hope is snatched away from him. But he does not go straight to Van Sneek and accuse him of his duplicity. He knows that Van Sneek stole the ring for sheer love of the gem, and that he would not dare to part with it. He assumes that the ring is in Van Sneek's possession. And when Van Sneek threatened to expose part of the business to Mr. Steel, Henson makes no attempt to soothe him. Why? Because he sees a cunning way of getting back the ring. He himself lures Van Sneek to Mr. Steel's house, and there he almost murders him for the sake of the ring. Of course, he meant to kill Van Sneek in such a way that the blame could not possibly fall upon him."

"Can you prove that he knew anything about it?"

"I can prove that he knew who Van Sneek was at a time when the hospital people were doing their best to identify the man. And I know how fearfully uneasy he was when he got to know that some of us were aware who Van Sneek was. It has been a pretty tangle for a long time, but the skein is all coming out smoothly at last. And if we could get the ring which Henson forced by violence from Van Sneek—"

"Excuse me. He did nothing of the kind."

Chris looked up eagerly.

"Oh," she cried, "have you more to tell me, then?"

"Nothing authentic," Rawlins said; "merely surmise. Van Sneek is going to recover. If he does it will be hard for Henson, who ought to get away with his plunder at once. Why does not he go and blackmail Lord Littimer and sell him the ring and clear out of the country? He doesn't do so."

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

MISSIES' TUCKED SHIRT-WAIST.

Paris Pattern No. 2443

All Seams Allowed.

This dainty, trim-looking little tailor-made shirt-waist is developed in black-and-white striped Madras. Three tucks on either side of the centre-front closing, as well as the wide tucks over the shoulders, stitched to nearly the bustline, give ample fullness to the front. The back is slightly gathered at the waist line, holding the shoulder tuck in position. The full-length sleeves are gathered into straight, stiff cuffs of the material, fastened by ties, and the model may be worn with any style of linen collar preferred. It is an excellent pattern for linen, plaqué, or any of the striped or figured fancy shirtings. Chambers, Victoria lawn, and Indian-head cotton, also develop well in this style. The pattern is in 3 sizes—10 to 12 years. For a waist of 10 years the shirt-waist requires 4 yards of material 30 inches wide, 3 3/4 yards 27 inches wide, 2 3/4 yards 26 inches wide or 2 yards 42 inches wide.

Price of pattern, 10 cents.

because the ring is not yet in his possession."

"Then you imagine that Van Sneek—"

"Still has the ring probably in his possession at the present moment. If you only knew where Van Sneek happened to be."

Chris rose to her feet with an excited cry.

"I do know," she exclaimed; "he is in the house where he was half-murdered. And Mr. Steel shall know all this before he sleeps tonight."

CHAPTER LI.

Heritage Is Willing.

Bell's sanguine expectation that Van Sneek would be ready for an immediate operation was not quite correct. As the day wore on the man seemed more feverish and restless, which feverishness was followed by a certain want of strength. After due deliberation Dr. Cross suggested that the operation should be postponed for a day or two.

"The man is out of our hands," he said. "You have identified him, and you desire that he should remain here. It is pretty irregular altogether. And I hope I shan't get into trouble over it. Still, in such capable hands as yours—"

Bell acknowledged the compliment with a smile.

"Between Heritage and myself," he said, "we shall pull him through, eh, Heritage?"

The other doctor nodded brightly. For some little time he had been directly under Bell's influence, and that had meant a marvelous change for the better. He had lost a deal of his hesitating manner, and was looking forward to the operation with the keenest interest.

"However, I will put you all right," Bell said. "I fancy the time has come when we can confide to a certain extent in Marley. And if the police approve of Van Sneek being here, I don't see that you can say any more."

Cross was emphatically of the same opinion. Later on, in the course of a long interview with Marley, Bell and Steel opened the latter's eyes to a considerable extent.

"Well, I must congratulate you, sir," he said to Steel. "I'm bound to confess that things looked pretty black against you at one time. Indeed, I should have been fully justified in arresting you for the attempted murder of Van Sneek."

"But you never deemed me guilty, Marley?"

"No, I didn't," Marley said, thoughtfully. "I argued in your favor against my better judgment. I gather—even now that there is a great deal for me to know."

"And which you are not going to learn," Bell said, drily. "When we have Van Sneek all right again, and ready to swear to the author of the mischief, you will have to be satisfied."

"That would satisfy me, sir. And I'm glad that cigar-case mystery is settled. You'll let me know how the operation goes on?"

Steel promised to do so, and the two returned to Downend Terrace excited and disturbed.

"Do you know I have had a visitor?" he exclaimed.

Bell started slightly. He looked just a little anxious.

"I'm going to guess it at once," he said. "Reginald Henson has been here."

"You are certainly a wonderful fellow," Heritage said, admiringly. "No body else could possibly have guessed that. He came to see me, of course."

"Oh, of course," Bell said, drily. "Naturally, he would have no ulterior motive. Did he happen to know that we had a kind of patient under the roof?"

Heritage explained that Henson seemed to know something about it. Also, by singular coincidence, he had met Van Sneek abroad. He expressed a desire to see the patient, but Heritage's professional caution had got the better of his friendship for once. Henson had given way finally, saying that he hoped to call again later in the day.

"It's a good thing you were firm," Bell said, grimly. "Otherwise there would have been no need for an operation on Van Sneek. My dear Heritage, it's quite time your eyes were opened to the true nature of your friend. Henson watched Steel and myself out of the house. He wanted to see Van Sneek; he has probably known from the first that the latter was here."

"Matter of philanthropy, perhaps," Heritage suggested.

"A matter of murder," Bell said, sternly. "My dear fellow, Van Sneek was nearly done to death in yonder conservatory, and his would-be assassin was Reginald Henson."

"I was never more astounded in my life," gasped Heritage. "I have always looked upon Henson as the soul of honor and integrity. And he has always been so kind to me."

"For his own purposes," no doubt. You say that he found you a home after your misfortunes came upon you. He came to see you frequently. And yet he always harped upon that wretched hallucination of yours. Why? Because you were the Carfax family doctor for a time, and at any moment you might have given valuable information concerning the suicide of Claire Carfax. Tell Heritage the story of Prince Rupert's ring, Steel."

David proceeded to do so at some length. Heritage appeared to be deeply interested. And gradually many long-forgotten things came back to him.

"I recollect it all perfectly well," he said. "Miss Carfax and myself were friends. Like most people with badly-balanced intellects, she had her brilliant moments. Why, she showed me that ring with a great deal of pride, but she did not tell me its history. She was very strange in her manner that morning; indeed, I warned her father that she wanted to be most carefully looked after."

"Did she say how she got the ring?" Steel asked.

Heritage did not answer for a moment.

"Oh, yes," he said, presently. "She said it was a present from a good boy, and that Reginald Henson had given it her in an envelope. I met Henson close by, but I didn't mention the ring."

"And there you have the whole thing in a nutshell!" Bell exclaimed.

"Nothing of this came out at the inquest, because the ring story was hushed up, and Heritage was not called because he had nothing to do with the suicide. But Henson probably saw poor Claire Carfax show you the ring, and he got a bit frightened, and he kept an eye upon you afterwards. When you broke down he looked after you, and he took precious good care to keep your hallucination always before your eyes. Whenever he came to see you he always did that."

"You are quite right there," Heritage admitted. "He mentioned it this afternoon when I said I was going to take part in the operation on Van Sneek. He asked me if I thought it wise to try my nerves so soon again with the electric light."

"And I hope you told him he was talking nonsense," Bell said, hastily.

"There, let us change the subject. The mere mention of that man's name stifles me."

Morning brought a long letter from Chris Henson to David, giving him in detail the result of his interview with John Rawlins. There was a postscript to the letter which David showed to Bell with a certain malicious gleam.

"A nasty one for our friend Henson," he said. "What a sweet surprise it will be in connection with the gentleman the next time he goes blackmailing to Longdon Grange."

Bell chuckled in his turn. The net was drawing very close about Henson.

"How is Van Sneek today?" David asked.

"Much better," Bell replied. "I propose to operate tonight. I'm glad to hear that your mother is going to be away a day or two longer."

Heritage appeared to be ready and eager for the work before him. A specially powerful electric light had been rigged up in connection with the study lamp, and an operating table improvised from the kitchen. More than once Bell looked eagerly at Heritage, but the latter stood the scrutiny bravely. Once the operation was successfully through, Heritage would never suffer from hallucinations again.

"I fancy everything is ready now," Bell said, at length. "After dinner tonight and this thing will be done. Then the story will be told—"

"Mr. Reginald Henson to see you, sir."

A servant looked in with this information and a card on a tray. There was a slight commotion outside. The vision of a partially-wrecked bicycle on the path, and a dusty figure in the hall with his head in his hand.

"The gentleman has met with an accident, sir," the parlormaid said. Henson seemed to be knocked about a great deal. He was riding down the terrace, he said, when suddenly he ran over a dog, and—

"What sort of a dog?" Bell snapped out. "What color and size?"

Henson was utterly taken aback by the suddenness of the question. He gasped and stammered. He could not have told Bell more plainly that the "accident" was an artistic fake.

"You may stay here till you feel all right again," David suggested.

"Stay here for the night," Bell growled, sotto voce. "Stay here till tomorrow morning and hear some-thing from Van Sneek's lips that will finish his interesting career for some time. Medical treatment be hanged. A clothes-brush and some soap and water are all the physic that he requires."

Presently Henson professed himself to be better. His superficial injuries he bore with a manly fortitude quite worthy of his high reputation. He could afford to smile at them. But he feared that there was something internal of a sufficiently serious nature. Every time he moved he suffered exquisite agony. He smiled in a faint kind of way. Bell watched him as a cat watches a mouse. And he could read a deeper purpose behind that soft, caressing manner. What it was he did not know, but he meant to find out before the day was passed.

"Haden't better send him to the hospital?" David suggested.

"What for?" was Bell's brutal response. "There's nothing whatever the matter with the man."

"But he has every appearance of great pain," he said.

"To you, perhaps, but not to me. The man is shamming. He has come here for some purpose, which will be pretty sure to transpire presently. The knave never dreams that we are watching him, and he hugs himself with the delusion that he can take his story for gospel. Fancy a man in the state that he pretends to be in sending his card to you! Let him stay where we can keep an eye upon him as long as he is under our observation he can't do any mischief outside."

There was wisdom in what Bell suggested, and David agreed. Despite his injuries, Henson made a fair tea, and his dinner, partaken of on the dining-room sofa, was an excellent one.

"And now, do not let me detain you as you have business," he smiled. "I shall be quite comfortable here if you will place a glass of water by my side. The pain makes me thirsty. No, you need not have any further consideration for me."

He smiled with patient resignation, the smile that he had found so effective on platforms. He lay back with his eyes half closed. He seemed to be asleep.

"I fancy we can leave him now," Bell said, with deep sarcasm. "We need have no further anxiety. Perfect rest is all that he requires."

Henson nodded in a sleepy fashion; his eyes were closed now till the others had left the room. Once he was alone he was alert and vigorous again.

"Ten minutes," he muttered, "say, a quarter of an hour. A touch, a spot of water, and the thing is done. And I can never be found out."

GAY GOWNS AT THE COLISEUM

Tony Ladies Persuaded To Take Off Their Hats—British Minister Interested.

Chicago, June 18.—The old, vexatious question of whether or not they should remove their hats presented itself to the women who attended the Republican national convention.

Most of the women fortunate enough to obtain tickets of admission to the Coliseum held that it was not necessary to bare their heads. But that was before a number of statesmen had intimated in whispers which carried well that the hats of the women constituents interfered with their view of the proceedings.

At last the matter was put up to Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, her hat being as large as the largest, with a feather on it extending beyond the brim. An usher asked her if she would remove it and thereby set an example to the other women. Mrs. Longworth replied that she did not think she would, inasmuch as it was the business of statesmen to hear and not to see a convention. Then Congressman Longworth, being of the opposing faction, took a hand and said, "O, I think I would."

Mrs. Longworth again said that she thought that she would not, and again her husband gently persuaded, with the result that in the end she acquiesced. Almost simultaneously many other women on the platform removed their head coverings and the proceedings continued unobstructed.

Interested in Proceedings.

This was the first time Mrs. Longworth ever attended a national convention, and if her expression signified anything she enjoyed it greatly. She was so interested, so animated, and so sweet that every one who saw her had something pleasant to say of her charming manner, and a half dozen policemen pulled off their caps as she passed.

Mr. Longworth took great pains to explain the proceedings to her. Everything connected with the convention interested her and once, when the name of Secretary Root was mentioned, she joyfully joined in the applause. When patriotic songs were played she stood up and applauded roundly. No attempt was made to give her an ovation when she entered, but she held the undivided attention of all the women and many of the men, too.

Wu Ting-Fang Goes to Sleep.

The Chinese minister, Wu Ting-Fang, occupied space allotted to the diplomatic corps. The upper part of his costume consisted of a sort of coat in dark red silk. The trousers, wrapped tightly around his legs, were of blue. On his head he wore a tight black cap topped with the red button which is the insignia of his rank.

While the thousands present were on the alert to catch the words of Senator Burrows' opening speech, Wu Ting-Fang that in the nicest possible little naps. Mr. Wu usually alive to everything going on, was entertained extensively the day before, with the result that he was weary when he awakened this morning and just simply couldn't keep awake. Once in a while he straightened up, and tried to read a pamphlet, but without success. His head, in its black silk cap, dropped forward, and Mr. Wu was off again into the celestial kingdom of nod.

Eyes on Foreign Diplomats.

Especially conspicuous at the opening session was the allotment to foreign diplomats, where sat Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, M. and Mme. Jusserand, Viscount de Chambrun, and the Baroness Preuschen von und zu Liebenstein, wife of the naval attaché of the Austro-Hungarian embassy, and the sole representative of that country here.

When M. and Mme. Jusserand appeared a ripple of excitement ran through the assemblage. Longnettes were leveled at the modest little wife of the diplomat, and she was found to bear the most rigid inspection. Her costume consisted of a carefully cut coat suit of soft woolen cloth in French gray, the jacket opening over a lace blouse. About her neck hung a long gray feather boa, and on her head she wore a chip hat of cream white, trimmed in dark red roses.

The British ambassador and Mrs. Bryce arrived shortly after the French ambassador and the four of them exchanged greetings. Mrs. Bryce wore a gown of sage green made of soft silk, with bands of white lace on the bodice. Her hat was of yellow straw, trimmed with pink roses, and made a color scheme extremely becoming to her ruddy English complexion. Mrs. Bryce is much taller than Mme. Jusserand.

Notables Sit Together.

The Baroness Preuschen von und zu Liebenstein wore a beautiful costume of soft white cloth and a white hat trimmed with pink roses, M. and Mme. Jusserand and Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, in company with the Greek minister, occupied adjoining seats. Immediately after their arrival Sen-

"Few tailors make as good a garment as Progress Brand, but none at the price—none better at any price."

The chief reason why custom tailors can't give you the same value for the money as you get in Progress Brand, is because they won't go to the same expense in perfecting the details of every garment.

Progress Brand Suits and Overcoats are sewn with "Gilt Edge" Silk—the best pure dyed silk, which costs about twice what the usual tailors' silk costs.

Progress Brand Garments are made with finest Irish Linen Duck—thoroughly shrunken. Non-shrinkable Linen Tape stays the edges and prevents the coats from wrinkling in front. This tape costs three times as much as ordinary tape.

The makers of Progress Brand use more Haircloth and canvas than any other manufacturer of clothing in the country.

It is only by buying in enormous quantities, that the makers of Progress Brand can use these expensive materials and still sell the finished garments at from 20% to 30% LESS than the tailors would have to charge for the same quality.

Add famous designers—skilled workmen—a model tailorey—and you can readily see why Progress Brand Clothing, AT ITS PRICE, stands matchless in Canada.

ator Kean joined them, and pointed out the various locations where interesting events were to occur. All during the session the British ambassador sat low in his chair. He scarcely spoke a word to anyone, and watched the proceedings with earnest attention.

M. Jusserand, however, frequently referred to John Barrett, who sat directly behind him, and asked questions, gestulating the while, and Mr. Coromilas, the Greek minister, who speaks English and is a great scholar, showed great interest in the affair.

Viscount de Chambrun, secretary of the French embassy, whose brother, Count de Chambrun, married the sister of Nicholas Longworth, also occupied a seat in the same session, as did several of the other young diplomats who are stopping in Chicago on their way west.

Some of the Gowns Worn.

One of the handsomest costumes worn was that of Mrs. Julius C. Burrows. It was of sage green and white striped silk trimmed with bands of white broadcloth braided in green silk, over which she wore a semi-long coat, loosely fitting, of Irish lace mounted over fine net. Her hat was of white chip with a loosely laid fold of cream colored chiffon about the crown, with long white willow plumes sweeping almost to her shoulder on one side.

Mrs. Duff Haynie, of Chicago, wore a gown of light blue striped silk, and a rich lace coat unlined except for a layer of soft net, and a white hat with white plumes and a soft band of yellow chiffon about the crown. Mrs. J. R. Thompson wore a white suit with tiny black stripe and a white hat.

TO CARRY THE CROPS

The G. T. Pacific Line From Saskatoon to Winnipeg May Help.

Montreal, June 18.—Mr. F. W. Morse, vice-president and general manager of the G. T. P., has left for the west to look over the new route as far as completed and decide as to opening a portion of the line for traffic. It is pretty certain that the line will be engaged in carrying a share of this year's harvest from Saskatoon to Winnipeg, but it is quite likely that before the autumn is far advanced it will be in operation from Edmonton east.

There is, however, no prospect of G. T. P. trains getting into Port Arthur this fall. Mr. Morse will be away a few weeks organizing and preparing. Before leaving for the west Mr. Morse had a conference with a delegation from St. John, N. B., with regard to the Atlantic terminal of the new transcontinental road. TAFT TO TAKE TEDDY'S PLACE

Mad Demonstration.

The close of his speech for nomination was the signal for loosing the long-pent-up feeling. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, and Ohio Taft supporters, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstration.

"Taft, Taft, W. H. T.," came in a roar from the Ohioans.

Megaphones seemed to spring from concealed places and swell the Taft tumult into thunder. A huge silk banner bearing the familiar features of the statesman-secretary was swung before the delegates, awakening a fresh whirlwind of enthusiasm.

All semblances of order had been abandoned, and the delegates' arena was a mad confusion of gesticulating men; the gauds of the states were snatched up by the Taft enthusiasts or borne under by the storm of disorder.

Uproar Lasted Twenty Minutes.

The band was inaudible, a mere whisper above the deafening volume of sound. For ten, fifteen, twenty minutes this uproar continued. It was a repetition of the scene of yesterday when the name of Roosevelt threw the convention into a frenzy, repeated in intensity and almost in duration.

But there is a limit to the physical resources of throats and lungs. Re-lays had not been established, and at last the deaf voices died down to a hoarse shout, and at last subsided.

A Lull.

This lull now gave the opportunity for the speech seconding Taft's nomination, by George H. Knight, of California, whose big, round face beamed with the sympathetic multitude, whose splendid baritone voice swelled forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid. Now there was another lull in the Taft movement, while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination.

Before the Balloting.

It was late in the afternoon before the convention, sweltering from the extreme heat and weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence, and the decks were last cleared for the decisive act, the balloting.

But no, just as the last swell of oratory, the seconding speech for La Follette died away, like a cyclone from a clear sky, burst a La Follette demonstration which swept the convention from its very bearings. It was the same opening wave of sound that had greeted Roosevelt yesterday and Taft today, a little while before, intense and maddening, and with the vitriol of genuine enthusiasm. It seemed as though Wisconsin had suddenly peopled every foot of the galleries.

Roosevelt Again.

The delegates sat calm and waiting, except the frantic Wisconsin men, but the convention for the time being was in the possession of the galleries. Now a singular transformation occurred—La Follette's whirlwind veered from La Follette to Roosevelt. A banner bearing the Roosevelt portrait, and waved from the gallery, was the signal for the change, but in the confused babel of voices there was no distinguishing where the La Follette ended, and those for Roosevelt began.

Master Stroke.

Amid this pandemonium and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action to again make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the roll call of States to begin for the vote on president.

Such a call under such circumstances of intense confusion has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions.

A ballot was taken to nominate a candidate for president while the convention was cheering frantically for a man whose name had not been presented to the convention. The votes were being counted for Taft while the people were shouting for Roosevelt.

The delegates, however, cast their votes uninfluenced by the clamor of the crowd. More than this, the first states on the call, Alabama and Arkansas, had been relied upon by a few Roosevelt enthusiasts to start the stampede for the president, but they were held by their instructions, while the stampede raged all about them.

Mad Uproar.

The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas, but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm and they lapsed into silence to hear the roll call. A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in the lead.

It Is Taft.

When New York was reached the Taft column was 427.

Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or 20 more than enough to nominate. Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge. For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Jos. B. Foraker, of Ohio, 16 votes; for Chas. W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, 40 votes; for Jos. G. Cannon, of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robt. La Follette, of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Chas. E. Hughes, of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Hughes, of Pennsylvania, 63 votes, and for Wm. H. Taft, of Ohio 702 votes.

A Great Shout.

A great shout went up as Mr. Lodge concluded his announcement, and with accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes, and the other heroes, joined in a common tribute for the candidate for the party.

General Stewart Woodford, for Governor Hughes, leaped upon a chair, announced to make the nomination of Taft unanimous. Senator Penrose, for Knox, and Congressman Boutwell, for Cannon, and Henry, of Georgia, for Foraker, and Wisconsin, for La Follette, seconded the movement for the unanimous nomination of the candidate. The vote was given with a ringing cheer and then with shouts of exultation over the new candidate the convention adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

WHAT IS HEALTH?

The ordinary conception of the term "health" is freedom from disease, but it means this and more.

You may not actually be in the grip of disease, and yet be far from healthy. Your system may be weak and run down, and your vital organs unable to perform their functions.

A person in this condition easily falls a prey to disease germs, which always attack the weak places. Psychine, Dr. Slocum's great Health Remedy is Nature's Greatest Tonic. It builds up the entire system as no other remedy can, and renders it proof against these terrible disease germs that are so deadly in their operation. Bacilli or disease germs cannot live in the system with Psychine.

PSYCHINE CREATES AN APPETITE and is the greatest of digestants. It is a boon to run-down, tired, and overworked women, for these

LIFE IN EVERY DOSE!

when the nomination of vice-president will be made.

Platform Struggle.

Earlier in the day the battle over the platform had occupied the close attention of the delegates and spectators. The platform, as framed by the committee on resolutions, was read by its chairman, Senator Hopkins, of Illinois, while the delegates, reflecting the views of the supporters of Senator La Follette, was presented by Congressman Cooper, of Wisconsin.

It was on one hand the sledge-hammer blows of the Wisconsin men against the combinations and monopoly, and on the other hand, the warning of Hopkins against the "socialistic doctrines of Wisconsin."

The platform was adopted by an overwhelming vote after many separate planks in the Wisconsin plan had been buried under adverse votes. It was not until four hours had been spent over the platform that the convention was ready to proceed with the nominating speeches for president.

First came the nomination of Speaker Cannon by Representative Boutwell, of Illinois, seconded by Representative Fordney, of Michigan, which awakened a welcoming yell for the "Grand Old Man" of Illinois.

The nominating speech for Vice-President Fairbanks by Governor Hanly, of Indiana, was made amid intense confusion and constant interruption.

Smarting under these discourtesies toward the governor, Mayor Boothe, of Indianapolis, began his speech, seconding the nomination of Mr. Fairbanks with a cutting allusion to "the steam roller" which was crushing out all opposition.

The convention gave an enthusiastic welcome to the name of Hughes as Gen. Woodford presented the governor's candidacy in fervent words.

The name of Senator Foraker was placed in nomination by Judge M. C. McCoy, of Ohio, and seconded by the eloquent negro delegate from Georgia, W. O. Eimers, the latter winning a true ovation as he closed the splendid tribute to Foraker in the name of two million black voters.

The call of Pennsylvania brought the Keystone State delegation to their feet in a wild demonstration for Senator Knox.

A little later Wisconsin followed with its enthusiastic tribute to Wisconsin candidate, Senator La Follette.

The speeches concluded, the time for balloting arrived, with the results already given.

The Vice-Presidency.

The New York State delegation, in caucus tonight, with marked enthusiasm decided to cast its entire vote (78) for Representative James S. Sherman, of Utah, for vice-president.

State Chairman Woodford announced that he had assurances of the support of Sherman of the delegates of Colorado, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine, Iowa and Idaho.

An Ideal President.

A Washington dispatch says: Immediately upon receiving news of the nomination of Taft for the presidency, President Roosevelt said:

"I feel that the country is indeed to be congratulated upon the nomination of Mr. Taft. I have known him intimately for many years, and I have a peculiar feeling for him because throughout that time we have worked for the same object with the same purpose and ideals. I do not believe there can be found in the whole country a man so well fitted to be president. He is not only absolutely fearless, absolutely disinterested and up-right, but he has the widest acquaintance with the nation's needs within and without and the broadest sympathies with all our citizens."

He would be an emphatically practical of the plain people as Lincoln, yet not Lincoln himself would be freer from the least taint of demagoguery, the least tendency to arouse or appeal to class hatred of any kind. He has a peculiar and intimate knowledge of our people—the farmer, of the wage-worker, of the businessman, of the property-owner.

"Words do not find themselves at a time like this. I do not deny that I am very happy," was all Mr. Taft would say tonight.

Dr. S. L. Dawson, the veteran King's Printer, is to retire, it is reported, and will be succeeded by C. H. Parmelee, M. P.

PSYCHINE WILL FORTIFY YOUR SYSTEM AGAINST SUMMER HEAT, CHILLS & FEVER.

Life was a burden. Now enjoys life.

Miss Ella Muriel Wood of Brownsville, Ont., says: "Two years ago I was going into a decline, I could hardly drag myself across the floor. If I went for a drive I had to lie down when I came back. I was too weak for anything. My father urged me to try Psychine, and I must say the results are wonderful. Instead of a little pale, hollow-cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day full of life. I can now enjoy any sports or an evening party with anyone, whereas a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home."

Drama of University Swimming Pool—Man May Die.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 18.—In his efforts to escape being seen by a number of young women who had entered the swimming pool in the gymnasium of the University of Pennsylvania, Charles R. Saunders, a student, was seized with a paralytic stroke. He had run from the edge of the pool to the top of the marble stairs leading to the locker-room when the seizure came. He fell to the bottom of the steps and is not expected to recover.

The out-of-door exercises of the graduating class were held on the campus outside the gymnasium. Half way through the programme a heavy shower of rain fell, and the audience sought shelter in the gymnasium. A party of young women unacquainted with the building made their way to the swimming pool. Saunders and a score of other students were grouped on the tiled edge of the pool, resting. Suddenly the doors opened and a crowd of bewildered young women crowded into the room. Then seeing the bather they shrieked and made a hurried exit.

Most of the students dived at once into the water, but Saunders started to run up the marble steps that led toward the locker-room. As he reached the top of the landing the students in the water were surprised to see him halt suddenly, then topple to the bottom.

He was picked up bleeding and unconscious. Dr. G. T. Lukens was called and he declared Saunders was a victim of a paralytic stroke, induced by overexcitement.

Saunders is a resident of Philadelphia, is 21 years old, and was a special student in the Wharton School of Finance.

GONE TO PHILADELPHIA

Toronto Young Man Absconds—Sum of $1,000 Missing.

Toronto, June 18.—The police of every city and town in Canada, and all the large cities of the United States and Philadelphia have been notified to be on the lookout for a young man who is badly wanted by the Toronto police.

On Tuesday afternoon this young man, who has been employed as a clerk by a large firm in the city, left his office to make a deposit of $1,000 in a bank, but as he did not return to the office, inquiries were made, and it was learned that he had not deposited the money at the bank.

The police were notified on Tuesday evening, and at once took steps to capture him. It was at first supposed that he had gone either to Montreal or Vancouver, to sail to England or China, but it was also thought that he might have gone to Philadelphia and wires were sent all along the route. He is well-known in society circles in the city.

HYDE PARK.

Hyde Park, June 18.—An unusual crowd attended the annual Presbyterian picnic, which was held in Springbank Park last Tuesday. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by young and old, including a number of visitors from the city and vicinity.

The sidewalk committee decided to have their gravel bed on Friday. Quite a number of the farmers have offered help and teams.

A benefit concert and strawberry festival in aid of the sidewalks for the village will be held in the town hall Thursday evening, June 25. Excellent talent has been procured.

The unveiling of the late William Larway's monument, erected by the Woodmen of the World, will take place shortly.

Mr. Sam Lewis has had a handsome new veranda erected, which adds very much to the appearance of the house.

Mrs. Wm. Hodds (nee McCandless) of London, has been visiting friends here this week.

Our village still continues to grow rapidly, both in size and appearance. The two new houses being built by Mr. J. McDowell will add to the appearance.

Loudy Kerr Was Good and Bad
—Gianelli Twirls Excellent Ball—Dauber Hurt.

THERE isn't a whole lot to say about that little affair at Tecumseh Park last night. The Yankees had a walkaway and won by 6-0.

One Gianelli, late of London, was on the slab for the Yankees, and he tied the locals in knots trying to find him. Loudy Kerr officiated for the locals, and when he was good he was awful good. When he was bad he was so bad that he should have been spanked.

Struck Out Ten.
At that Loudy struck out ten of the opposing batsmen, and had he displayed more gray matter he would have been let down much easier in the matter of hits than he was.

Only seven innings were played, but they were plenty, for the Londons looked pitifully weak without Keenan at third. Bird showed conclusively that he can't cover that corner, and tonight one Bertrand O'Rourke, late of the city league, will attempt to do things around the bag.

Playing Great Ball.
The Yankees have been playing great ball lately, and it was scarcely expected that London, with its crippled team, could do anything with them.

Jack McHugh played first for London, and he got away with the trick in nice style, although he has about twenty pounds of surplus beef that should be gotten rid of. Big John managed to get one of the two hits corralled off Gianelli's delivery, too. Dauber, the local backstop, was unfortunately enough to get one of his fingers lugged up on a throw from left field, and may be out of the game for some time.

W. F. A. Team Will Have Struggle
To Overcome the North Enders

Sporting Editor Advertiser:
Kindly insert the following in this evening's paper and oblige, yours truly,
JOHN H. SMITH,
Manager North End Football Club.

W. F. A. team take notice: The North Enders will be on the grounds Saturday at 3:30 p.m. sharp, and will be ready to give them a warm reception. As the North Enders are tied for the honor of our City League championship, they no doubt will make our splendid W. F. A. team feel themselves to the utmost to maintain its present high reputation. All lovers of the good old game of soccer should attend this match and encourage the players by their presence. The following will be the North Enders' lineup: P. Smith, Bamford, Hall, Platt, Findlay, Plumbo, Clarke, Prescott, Green and Williams. Spares, Allan, White and Slade.

CURRENT SPORTING GOSSIP

REPLYING TO A LETTER from a late member of the English Amateur Athletic Association, in which Lord Alverstone, the president of that body is eulogized to the skies, the Toronto Telegram says in part:

"CANADIANS NO MORE DOUBT Lord Alverstone's integrity than they doubt his stupidity. His lordship's honesty is as obvious as his inability to keep an outfit of sharp-tongued Yankee diplomats from 'going through him' for everything he has in his clothes."

"CANADIANS TAKE INTEGRITY, conscience and good intentions for granted. The rulers of the A. A. A. of England will need something more than integrity, conscience and good intentions if they are to evade the gold brick that is being prepared for them by the smart Yankees who are handling the anti-Longboat game for the U. S. A."

"CANADIANS ARE FEARFUL, with a fear born of past experience, of England's tendency to toady to the Yankees, that Longboat will not be allowed to start in the Marathon. 'If Longboat's entry is refused, the rulers of the Amateur Athletic Association of England will display their integrity, exhibit their good intentions and follow their conscience. They will also prove that they have been gold-bricked, film-flamed and otherwise taken in and done for by sharp Yankee traders on England's unwillingness to offend the U. S. A.'"

"THE TELEGRAM for once is right. The C. A. A. U. in the first place showed that it was weak in the knees in not sending the Indian at its own expense. It now looks as though Tom Flanagan would have his own troubles in getting the redskin started. Diplomacy in dealing with Americans is one thing. Justice to one Canadian-born is another."

LONDON NEEDS A BRACER in the form of a third sacker as good or better than Keenan.

THE LIST OF PRIZES for the regatta on July 1 is rapidly climbing upward. All indications point to a most successful day's racing, and one of the best moves the committee in charge has made is to offer one of the handsomest of the trophies to the winner of the singles.

AS ARCHIE McMAHEN puts it, "One man in four may be pulling his loaf, while the other three are loafing. It is in the singles that the real oarsmen are singled."

BOTH LOCAL BOWLING clubs are progressing nicely in their tournaments, and the first rounds will be completed either tomorrow or Monday, weather permitting.

Next Wednesday six rinks of Woodstock bowlers will visit the London Bowling and Rowing Club greens.

"BILLY" ROBINSON, the Geers of the local turf, is hitting nothing but the high spots at the matinee races this season. There is no more popular reinsman in the city than the self-same "Silent Man," and nobody begrudges him the honors he is taking at the matinees.

HOW ABOUT THIS ABBY JOHNSON?

Sporting Editor Advertiser:
Please publish the following and oblige:
Abby Johnson, the well-known baseball player, has been doing some pretty good running lately (for the Olympic games). Last Wednesday he clipped off six miles in one hour, from Hyde Park to London. The same day he reports having caught the biggest fish of the season. Frank Henry has posted $50 with Harvey Steel that he can chop 15 minutes off the above record. Go for it, Abby. R. C.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
GAMES THURSDAY

Washington Blanks Detroit—Naps Beat Athletics—St. Louis the Highlanders.

Detroit, June 18.—Joe Cantillon arrived in town with his crowd of Washington Senators, and with big Bill Burns, his left-hander from the coast, strong and eager for his struggle against the Champs after a good, long rest. He was there again and the Tigers could do nothing against him yesterday. Seven times they hit, but he, assisted by some good and some lucky fielding, was able to hold them away from the plate. Even the raising of Jennings' suspension and his subsequent coaching did no good. But two men reached third base. Steyer on the other hand, proved easy. The local south-paw started well in the first inning, but in the second they got to him. A Texas leaguer, the box, winning Cobb tried for and failed to get by. Pickering on first and then the slaughter came. Two more hits followed, and with the bases full McBride smashed out a triple that netted three runs. He scored a moment later when Steyer failed to cover the bags. Suggs followed Steyer in the third and for five innings pitched good ball. He retired to let Mullin hit in the seventh, and Summers, who took his place, likewise pitched well ball.

Providence, June 18.—Toronto got away with the first game of the series today. The visitors landed on Cronin in the second inning for a triple, double and a single, besides which Cronin gave three passes and Hoffman made a costly error. Moffitt, who started in the box for the visitors, was struck on his pitching arm by Abstein's bat, and had to quit the game. Kiley succeeded him, and although the Grays pounded him for ten hits they were well scattered. The score:

BUFFALO DEFEATS SKEETERS

Erratic Playing Was the Cause of the Defeat.

Jersey City, June 18.—Jersey City misplayed an error, won of the boxmen, and Jimmy Murray's hits were the cause of the Skeeters' defeat by the Eltons in the first game of the series here today. Three pitchers were used up in trying to stop the march of the husky herd toward the pennant. One of them, Pfannkuefer, was compelled to quit on account of an accident, and before his successor, Manser, had located the plate the Buffalo team had scamped five runs across the pan. Then Manser was given the high heat, and the center fielder of the Skeeters got fairly well off him. The score:

BOOKIES' BUSINESS DOOMED

Opinion of Rev. Dr. Shearer Expressed Before Toronto Synod.

Toronto, June 18.—Dr. Shearer's statement before the Toronto Synod yesterday has caused considerable interest here. Dr. Shearer, who is general secretary of the moral reform, is confident that legislation is coming soon.

"Betting in any form with bookmakers will ere long be a thing of the past at the Toronto race meet," he said today.

Dr. Shearer says an amendment to the criminal code on gambling is now in the hands of the Dominion House, and may be dealt with before the House prorogues. He feels there is not a very strong opposition to the amendment, as many bookmakers and many race horse owners are alien, and that the members of the racing associations and those interested are very few, when compared with the many who are working aggressively against gambling of any kind at the Woodbine.

Dr. Shearer considered it most encouraging that the bill had passed the legislature of Louisiana, as that state has been for many years the leading gambling place, Louisiana lottery tickets being known all over America.

CHAINED UP MAIL TRAIN

Florida Sheriff Indicted by Grand Jury for Misfit Attachment.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 18.—Chaining a passenger locomotive to the track and guarding it with a shotgun, thus delaying the mails is the charge contained in an indictment returned by the Federal Grand Jury against Deputy Sheriff I. C. Hunter of Pinetta, Fla.

Hunter was arrested by a deputy United States marshal and brought before United States Commissioner Locke. He gave bond for his appearance before the December term of the United States Court.

A telegraph operator employed by the Valdosta Southern Railway, which passes through Pinetta, running from Valdosta, Ga., to Madison, Fla., upon being discharged took out an attachment against the company for certain back wages which were due him. The

Instead of serving the writ upon the station or other small property, the amount of debt involved being only a few dollars, Hunter attached a passenger train carrying the mails. He chained the engine to the track, and locked the chain with a padlock. He then stood guard over his capture until the claim was adjusted, warding off the train crew with a shotgun.

The postal authorities got busy as soon as the matter was brought to the attention of the department.

AERIAL RACERS
HAVE LIVELY TIME

The Contest Carried Under War Conditions—Started in a Storm.

Bochum, Prussia, June 18.—The long distance balloon race under conditions of war has resulted very successfully. There were four starters, the participants being aeronauts who had not previously competed in a race in the air. Two of the balloons reached Javaria, near the Russian frontier, a distance of 42 miles, in fifteen hours; another descended at Gweritz, a distance of 50 miles. The fourth balloon failed to take off, and the conditions which exacted that three persons occupy the basket of each balloon, one of which should be landed during the course of the voyage, and proceeding on its journey, which must end with in Germany.

A terrific wind rendered the start most difficult, while a severe rain increased the weight of the balloons, yet all landed in the best of condition, with sufficient ballast remaining to continue in the air for a longer period.

A Failure.
A dispatch from Milan says: Leon Delagrave, the French aeronautist, made his first experiment yesterday before thousands of spectators, who included the prefect and the mayor, but the tests were not very successful, owing to several accidents to the motor of his aeroplane.

He made four ascensions, on one occasion remaining in the air for 4 minutes and 35 seconds. In this experiment his machine was about eight feet from the ground.

The spectators warmly applauded his efforts.

Dundas Center Methodist Choir Picnic

The annual picnic of the Dundas Center Methodist choir was held at the Springbank yesterday afternoon and evening. One of the features of the occasion was a baseball match, alto and basses vs. sopranos and tenors, during the progress of which some of the ladies demonstrated the fact that they belonged to the professional class. Victory rested with the altos and basses by a score of 12 to 5.

After these strenuous efforts every one adjourned to the supper table, which was groaning under the supply of good things provided by the re-center Methodist choir and the weight of responsibility was very quickly transferred from the tables to the occupants of the benches. After doing full justice to the excellent repast, games were again the order of the day, and the sports were closed with a tug-of-war between the choristers and the mosquitos, which resulted in a draw. A start was made for home at 9 p.m., after one of the pleasantest outings in the history of the organization.

Two Motions for Weekly High Court

Chancellor Boyd is scheduled to preside at the weekly sitting of the high court for London tomorrow.

Two motions have been set down for hearing.

Alex. McNeill vs. Wm. Hodgins—Motion under vendors' and purchasers' act, to clear title. Mr. McNeill is proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, this city, and recently sold the Junction House at Lobo to Mr. Hodgins.

McPherson & Perrin for motion. Melvin Meads vs. James B. Stanley—Motion for order dismissing claim, on ground of no cause for action.

Meredith, Judd & Meredith for motion. Mr. Stanley has asked for a declaration as to the ownership of certain lands in Lucan. Mr. Meads alleges that such action is embarrassing and frivolous.

Mr. Munro Receiver for a Railroad

Mr. R. J. Munro, formerly in the Grand Trunk offices of this city, is a visitor in the city this week. Mr. Munro is at present acting as receiver for the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway, with headquarters at Milwaukee. This is the railway that is said to have caused the failure of the Sovereign Bank. This bank had a lot of its money tied up in the company, and when it went into the hands of a receiver, it carried the Sovereign Bank with it.

Too Extravagant.

"I am in Milwaukee at present, acting as receiver for the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway," said Mr. Munro to The Advertiser. "The company went down because the management was too extravagant in its construction work. It is supposed to be the road that caused the downfall of the Sovereign Bank. However, we hope to bring the road out of the difficulties with which it is encountered. It runs through a thickly populated rich country, and is bound to pay when once it is in operation. We have 25 miles yet to construct, and we are hurrying along with it as fast as possible."

Big Grist in a Local Division Court

One of the largest division courts that has been held in this city for some time was today conducted by Judge Elliott.

Among the cases was a jury action in which the Lipper Manufacturing Company, an American concern, sued the Wright Hat Company, of this city, to recover $52.63, alleged to have been due on goods sold and shipped.

The action was dismissed, the defendant proving that the goods in question had been held for a long time in the customs, pending the arrival of proper invoices, which were not forthcoming, despite the fact that the defendant wrote asking for them.

An interesting legal point was involved in a note case, in which Mr. U. A. Buchner appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. McKillop for the defendant.

It was alleged that a man named Shaw, of Woodstock, had given his note for $101 in order to make good a theft on the part of his son. The note had been given to one party, and he in turn had turned it over to another.

According to law a note given under a felony is void, but whether this would be the case when the note had been taken by a third party who supposedly knew nothing of the circumstances, given, is something Judge Elliott found too difficult to decide offhand. Judgment was reserved.

Water Works Vote on Monday Next

Property owners are reminded of the vote on the waterworks bylaw Monday.

All owners of property of $400 and over are entitled to a vote in as many wards as they have property in.

From all appearances the bylaw will be carried by an overwhelming majority. The question has been dragging along for years, and the people are now disposed to settle it permanently.

School Exams Are at an End Today

Joy reigns in the hearts of about six hundred and fifty Collegiate Institute pupils who, as soon as they finish their examinations this afternoon will not need to worry about books any more until Sept. 1.

The last of the examinations for promotion from one form to another will finish this afternoon about 4 o'clock, and as far as high school pupils are concerned, they are free after that time. For many weeks the students have been studying hard and have been writing off an examination every Friday afternoon. The pupils are by no means sorry that the last exam has arrived and many of them leave on their holidays tomorrow morning.

STEEL—HARRIS

A Very Pretty June Wedding in Lobo Township.

On Wednesday last, June 17, Spruce Dale, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Harris, con. 12, Lobo, was the scene of a very pretty and picturesque wedding, when their daughter, Laura E. was married to Herbert Steele, of the same township. The ceremony was performed on the lawn, in front of the house, at high noon, under a beautiful arch of evergreens, with floral decorations, by Rev. E. J. McEwen, of Poplar Hill. The bridal party moved to their place in the strains of the wedding march, played by Mr. Ewart D. Evans, of Strathroy, cousin of the bride, who also rendered at the proper time, two suitable vocal solos.

Miss Maggie Harris, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, pretty little Muriel Glass, of Poplar Hill, was flower girl. The groom was supported by his brother, Joseph R. Steele, of Stoney Creek.

The bride looked charming, gowned in white lousine silk, trimmed with guipure lace and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses with white satin ribbons.

The bridesmaid was gowned in cream elotene with embroidered chiffon lace, and carried a bouquet of carnations with pink satin ribbons.

OUT-MANEUVURED BY GOVERNMENT

Opposition Don't Exactly Know Where They Are—Hold a Caucus.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Ont., June 16. — The members of the Opposition held a caucus this morning to discuss the situation in respect to the election bill and other matters of contentious legislation now before Parliament. While desirous of getting away from Ottawa as soon as possible and avoiding any further onus for waste of time in obstruction, the Conservative members generally expressed the idea that they were being outmaneuvered by the Government, which had gradually got a good portion of its legislative programme and of supply for this year through without, at the same time, meeting the demands of the Opposition on the election bill.

In the minds of the latter there is a general feeling that they do not know just exactly where they are at, and that in the matter of political diplomacy Mr. Borden has been no match for Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

It was decided that brakes should be again put on legislation passing through the House and on supply, and a committee of Opposition members was named to confer with Mr. Borden on the situation, and possibly also with a similar committee to be appointed from the Government side, with a view to arriving if possible at some agreement satisfactory to both sides, so that an early prorogation might be reached.

Local Items

—Mr. T. G. Meredith and family spent on the Victorian this week to spend some of the summer in Europe.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Radcliffe left for Stratford today to spend two weeks before Mr. Radcliffe returns to conduct the summer school.

Closing Exercises.

The closing exercises at the Sacred Heart Academy were celebrated this morning, and the prizes presented to the winners by Father Tobin.

Mardi Gras Queen.

Several members of local lodges have asked the Secretary, McCann, of the old boys to lengthen the time for the accepting of nominations for queen of the Mardi Gras in order that the lodges may take up the matter and decide on entries. This will probably be done by the Old Boys.

Constable Logan.

The many friends of Mr. Robert Logan, the popular and efficient constable at the G. T. R. station, will regret to learn that he is confined to his home through illness.

The Pay Car Here.

All morning long a stream of railroad employes have been wending their way from all parts of the city to the Clarence street crossing, where the pay car arrives this morning. Before the pay car leaves this evening more than $50,000 will have been paid out in checks.

Ladies' Aid.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of Chalmers' Presbyterian Church, had a very pleasant picnic at Springbank on Tuesday afternoon. Different forms of amusement were indulged in, including a nailing contest, races and baseball. All returned home on the 8 o'clock train, feeling that a very enjoyable day had been spent.

Summer School for Sisters.

A summer school for the Normal training of Roman Catholic Sisters will be held in this city at the Sacred Heart Convent from July 6 to Aug. 8. Mr. S. J. Radcliffe will be the principal, and will be assisted by Prof. Coleman, faculty of education, Toronto University, and Mr. Pendergast, inspector of Separate Schools, Ottawa. Principal Merchant will conduct a similar school in Ottawa this summer.

A Musical Meeting.

There will be a meeting on Monday night next of all the members of choirs of the good old days when London was known from one end of the country to the other as the great musical center of the west. The idea is to get all the singers together and have them attend one of the leading churches during the Old Boys' Reunion. Every member is requested to be on hand, as it is impossible for the secretary to get in touch with everybody.

Big Hailstones.

Mr. W. H. Abbott, of this city, received a letter and newspaper clipping from his brother, Dr. Charles Abbott, who is located at Minden, Nebraska. When they have a hailstorm in Nebraska, it is a real storm. The cut in the newspaper shows a group of hailstones, every one of them as large as oranges. Some of them measured 8½ inches in circumference. All were larger than an ordinary baseball. The storm hit the Omaha Boosters' special train. Dr. Abbott reported that a tornado swept through that state on June 5, causing a very Closing Organ Recital.

Mr. Jordan will be pleased to receive requests by postcard not later than 10 o'clock, for the organ recital of the recital to be given in the First Methodist Church next Tuesday evening. The assisting soloists are Mrs. (Dr.) Kingsmill, soprano; Miss Lillian Bomer, who will play Saint-Saens' concerto for piano and orchestra, Mr. Jordan playing the orchestra part of the organ. Mr. Maurice Poirer will also assist.

Electric Lights.

"At almost every meeting of the council we receive petitions for electric lights," said Ald. Moorhead, "and it now seems that we can do nothing in the appropriations for No. 3 contract there was a money set aside for this purpose, and as a result we can do nothing. I have done my best to get lights in certain localities throughout the city. They are needed badly in some places, but we can do nothing. The London Electric Company will not erect the lights on a three-month contract. It seems that there will be no new lights this year."

DEATH OF MISS MCPHERSON

Estimable Westminister Lady Passes Away at St. Thomas.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Thomas, June 19. — A most estimable lady passed away last evening at the residence of her brother, A. Macpherson, 101 Wellington street, in the person of Miss Mary Macpherson, of Westminister. Miss Macpherson had been a sufferer from heart trouble for years, but lately her condition became more critical. Ten days ago, on the advice of her physician she came to the city to visit her mother in the hope that the change would prolong her life. She rallied to some extent, but it appears that recovery was impossible.

She is survived by her mother with whom she had resided, and the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. W. H. Mureh, St. Thomas; Mrs. Angus A. McIntyre, of Yarmouth; Miss Jane Macpherson, of Westminister; Hugh Macpherson, and Arch Macpherson, St. Thomas; Colin Macpherson, of Calgary; Duncan Macpherson, of Aldborough, and Daniel, John and Douglas, at the old home in Westminister.

LITTLE FELLOW MAY DIE

Three-Year-Old Boy Run Over by Wagon His Father Drove.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Thomas, June 19. — The 3-year-old son of Leon Dancy, three miles east of Aylmer, was riding behind his father in a gravel wagon, when the little fellow fell off the loaded vehicle passing over the boy's abdomen. The lad is still alive, but only slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

NO VOTE AS YET ON THE RATES

I. O. F. Still Discussing Matter — Testimonial To a Londoner.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, June 19. — The I. O. F. supreme court will not likely vote before tomorrow on the question of what rates are to prevail in the order. There was discussion all morning, S. C. R. Stevenson strongly urging that vote on advanced rates be taken now, as it would cure the society of its disorder.

A committee was appointed this morning to prepare a testimonial to Henry Pratt, of London, Ont., who assisted in the initiating into the order of the late Dr. Oronhyatekha.

New York June 18.—Noon.—Though London was strong for Americans this morning, the market sold off from the opening here and then grew dull. B. and O. and L. and N. were conspicuously weak spots. Traders argued that the good news was out, and if the market didn't go up it ought to go down, and they sold stocks. The market is professional and looks like to noon, 187,000.

CHOICE OXFORDS

Women's Oxfords this season are lighter in weight and appearance than heretofore.
Toes more pointed, but not extremely so.
Some heels are quite high;
others medium. Both are good form.

There are many new features in the style of tying and the cut of the uppers.
Altogether, Women's Low Cut Shoes are daintier and more handsome than ever.

With the short summer dresses they'll be very much in evidence this summer.
We've the season's choice productions in Oxfords, and are pleased to show them.

Hazel-Rose

The popularity of the new toilet lotion, Hazel-Rose, has encouraged a host of imitators, who endeavor to sell some article of their own manufacture when Hazel-Rose is wanted and asked for.

This toilet luxury is a secret and scientific combination, and differs entirely from any other lotion. It is healing and sootheing, and keeps the face and hands delightfully smooth and velvety; prevents tendency to wrinkles, improves and beautifies the complexion. There is a charm about the use of Hazel-Rose that you do not find in any other preparation for the skin. Only 25 cents.

Magistrate Sympathizes With Bathers

Two young men appeared before Magistrate Love this morning, charged with swimming in the river at the foot of Richmond street.

Both had on bathing suits.
"I think it is a hardship not to be able to have a swim in the daytime as long as one is properly attired.
I must go by it until it is changed. I will dismiss you both, as I am satisfied
you meant no harm."

The proprietor recognized it as one that had been hanging in front of his shop
but a few minutes before.

McDermid was promptly taken to the station and will appear before Magistrate
Love tomorrow morning.

Indian Lister Had a Narrow Escape

"What are you drunk again?" said
Magistrate Love to Joseph Tait this morning. "You are on the Indian list and know you should not drink. Where did you get it?"

"From a man," said Tait.
"Who was he?" asked the court.
"I don't know," said Tait.
"I don't believe you, and will send you down to jail for three months for not telling me," the magistrate replied.

Later, however, Tait begged hard, and the court consented to reduce the term to three weeks, warning him that if he ever comes up again he will go down to the Central Prison for six months.

John Foley, the big one-legged man, who walked from Iowa to this city, and immediately upon his arrival here imbibed too much, promised to go to St.
Thomas if let go.

"Will you go on the traction line or walk?" asked the court.
"I'll go right down and catch a freight," said Foley as he was told to go.

Death of Jonathan Burtwistle.
The death of Jonathan Burtwistle occurred at his residence, Tempo, after a brief illness, on June 17. He came to this country from England, with his father, the late Richard Burtwistle, nearly sixty years ago and had resided continuously on the old homestead where he died. He was in his sixty-ninth year and leaves a family of three sons, George R. Samuel H. and Osmond, besides one sister, Mrs. E. J. Ling, of Lobo, and one brother, Richard Burtwistle, of Na-braaka. His wife predeceased him eight years. Interment at St. Thomas cemetery, Saturday afternoon.

Coldstream Women's Institute.
The summer meetings of the Coldstream branch of the women's institute will be held on June 25 at the town hall, when two delegates, Miss Lucie Campbell and Miss N. B. Hall, who are sent out by the Ontario department of agriculture, will address the audience at 8 o'clock sharp. The subjects for addresses are: "The Judicious Housekeeper and Homemaker" and
"The Use of Food to the Body." All ladies are cordially invited. The evening session opens at 7:30, when addresses on "The Influence of Women" and "Sanitation and Hygiene" will be given. The programme will be interspersed with music. All are welcome. Lunch will be provided by the ladies and served on the lawn between the sessions.

REYCRRAFT-LEITCH
Wedding of a Popular Couple in St.
Andrew's Church.
Miss Catherine Leitch, of Glenora, and Mr. John Edward Reyecraft, of Mosa, were united in marriage at St.
Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, by Rev.
Dr. Ross. The couple were unattended. After a short wedding tour
Mr. and Mrs. Reyecraft will make their home in Mosa, where Mr. Rey-craft owns a farm.

Seventh Regiment To Go Full Strength
"There is no doubt that the Seventh will go to Quebec at full strength, as nearly all the men have signified their intention of taking the trip," Col. Reid told The Advertiser this afternoon. "The employers of the city have practically, without exception, granted the requests of those asking for two weeks leave, and seem to be as keenly interested as the men are in upholding the honor of London's crack regiment on such an occasion as the tercentenary review offers."

"The news that the whole Nineteenth Infantry Brigade, composing the Seventh Regiment, the Twenty-fourth Regiment of Essex, the Twenty-fifth Regiment of Kent, and the Twenty-sixth Regiment of St. Thomas will be under the command of Col. J.

W. Little, of London, as brigadier, is most welcome to the men. Major
Walter Smith will be brigade major.

On Monday evening the Seventh Regiment will be inspected in the armories by Sir John Carling, honorary colonel of the regiment. Following inspection Major Hayes will be presented with a silver service.

In connection with the Quebec trip tenders are being called for for the supplies at Quebec.

Anti-Tetanus Serum Proved Failure

After two days of the most intense suffering, Frank Clery, died in Victoria Hospital early this morning from tetanus.

On June 8 Clery, who was engaged on the new breakwater at Port Stanley, fell on a pile of stones and broke his leg.

He was doing well until Wednesday when tetanus developed, and notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts on the part of the physicians in attendance he died.

The case is the second in London within five years, and presented many interesting features from a surgical standpoint, as it was the first time that the recently discovered antitetanus serum had been used.

As soon as tetanus developed an order was wired to Detroit for antitoxin serum, and although it arrived promptly it was ineffectual in relieving either the intense pain from which Mr. Clery was suffering, or in curing him.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

P. C. Lucas Is Always "On the Job"

Michael McDermid, a young man who claims London as his home, was standing at the corner of Dundas and Clarence streets this morning about 10 o'clock, when he happened to see P. C. Lucas coming down the street.

The officer noticed that McDermid had an overcoat on his arm, and was allowed to go on promising not to do it again.

Roy Brooks allowed a horse to wander at large, but explained that the fence had got broken. He was allowed to go.
The case of W. H. Horton, charged with a breach of the motor vehicle act, was adjourned for a week.

ley, English picnic, July 14. No

HENDERSON-JOHNSTON
Wedding at the Home of Mr. and Mrs.
Morgan, Kincardine.

On Tuesday evening, June 16, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, Kin-cardine, was the scene of a most pleasing event, when their granddaughter, Clara E. Johnston, one of Kincardine's most popular young ladies was married to John W. Henderson, of Lucknow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Murray, of Knox Church, in the presence of a large number of guests. The bride was gowned in cream silk crepe de chene, trimmed with Irish lace and insertion over cream taffeta silk.

The presents were very beautiful, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The groom's gift to the bride was $25 in gold.

Besides the Kincardine friends there were present Miss Jennie and Mr.
Tom Johnston and Miss Margaret
Hodgins, London; Miss C. E. Hueston, Londesboro; Misses E. and N. Jackson, Chesley; Miss Pearl and Mr. J.
Johnston, Smith's Hill.
