CHSR begins Fundraiser

Campus/Community Radio station CHSR FM is going to the public for financial support. Their annual public fundraising drive will take place this fall between October 20th and the 29th.

"Every year we have fewer real dollars to do what needs to be done" says Station Manager Jeff Whipple. "Most of the funding comes from the students on campus, but we're hoping that members of the community will once again show their support."

Starting on Friday, 20th, CHSR FM will be asking listeners to dial a special pledge line and donate to the station. The lines will stay open from 8:00 a.m. until midnight for the next ten days. The station will be offering gifts and prizes for those who pledge their support.

"We've got keychains, coffee mugs, records and lots of other things to give away." says Program Manager Steve Staples. "All we need is for the listeners to donate a few dollars". Many of these prizes are donated by the local business community.

The station broadcasts 143 hours per week from studios on the third floor of the Student Union Building, using the volunteer efforts of over 100 members. Finding volunteer staff usually isn't a big problem. . . but money is. It costs over $100 000 a year to run the station and unlike commercial stations they can't rely on advertising to pay the bills.

Much of the equipment is old. Some of it very old. Many of the programmers are using tape recorders and mixing consoles older than they are.

Whipple says things are so bad that worn-out records can't be replaces, and various pieces of equipment lie around waiting for repairs the station can't afford. And without the help of listeners things are only going to get worse.

"Some of our most important equipment is really beginning to show it's age. The main operating console which produces the signal that listeners hear is almost 25 years old. It affects our signal quality and should have been replaced a long time ago."

The station had been planning to replace the board next summer but Whipple says they have only raised about half the necessary $40 000 to complete the job. Without a successful fundraising drive that project may have to be shelved, leaving the station with a board that needs constant maintenance just to keep it on the air.

"We are searching for ways to bring in more money." says Whipple, "The public fundraising drive has worked reasonably well for us before, and has been extremely effective in other cities with campus/community stations." "Listeners in Fredericton and Oromocto have been very supportive over the years and they seem to like what we have to offer. We're counting on them to dial and donate."

It all began almost 29 years ago in the basement of Memorial Hall. . . .

CHSR FM started out as little more than a mass of wires running to Jones House where small speakers in every room carried the first "broadcast" of Radio UNB. CHSR has grown over the years into a major musical force in the city, broadcasting alternative sounds 143 hours a week.

Science 1960 was the year. student Barry Yoell had returned from a conference in Toronto with an idea: he would start a student radio station at UNB. What followed were months of preparation be a group of students, led by Yoell.

The groups hard work paid off. At precisely 6:15 p.m. on-January 22, 1961 "Radio UNB" went on the air.

circuit broadcasts from Memorial Hall, and expended the service into more of the residences as years went by.

A major technical coup of the time was the introduction of Radio UNB to the Maggie Jean residence downtown

Radio UNB's next move was to become CHSR 700, broadcasting as a carrier current AM station. Transmitters in various locations used the electrical wiring of residences as the antenna system, allowing for a limited range AM signal on campus. Listeners could even pick it up on Windsor Street if the wind was right!

CHSR staff watched anxiously as the new Student Union Building went up. In 1971 CIISR moved to it's new home in the SUB. The station continued to expand.

But a new idea was taking hold: FM broadcasting.

In the late seventies a group of CHSR staff decided it was time to take CHSR into every home in the city. In a referendum held in the spring of 1979, 78 percent of students voted to support CHSR FM. The funding for the changeover was secured, and a low power FM licence application was prepared for the CRTC. It was a two year project that stretched from the referendum to the first citywide broadcast of CHSR FM.

In the fall of 1980, CHSR got the word - the licence had been granted. Volunteers worked long hours to get ready for the transition. New equipment was installed, a broadcast tower was crected on the roof on Magee House and programming was expanded and fine tuned. All of this was accomplished in just eleven weeks!

On January 22, 1981 at 6:15 p.m., CHSR FM went on the air - twenty years after the first broadcast of Radio UNB

Since 1981 CHSR FM staff have continued to work hard to improve programming for listeners.

In the past 29 years, more than 1500 people have volunteered their time to the station. Many of them have gone on to work professionally in the media. Notable station Alumni include Peter Downie, host of CBC TV's "Man Alive", CFNB Operations Manager Dave Morell, CKHJ FM Program Director Tom Blizzard, former CBC Network Producer and now UNB Director of Public Relations Armand Paul, and many others too numerous to mention.

CHSR FM has many ideas for the future. The installation of new equipment in to stations Master Control Room is at the top of the list. Programming ideas are continually being hatched and developed, and the station is rife with energy and creativity.

With a solid base of almost one hundred volunteers, the station continues to provide a valuable and exciting service to the community.

The Board's decision to accept SMT's proposal to increase their rates, which amounted to some 18%, was made in June. In addition, SMT wanted to phase out student discounts (20%). Because of opposition presented by a student by the name of David Burgess, and the Board's feeling that it would be too "big a jump" to phase out student discounts all at once it was decided that it would be phased out over a period of three years.

it was curious that the leaders of the struggle to preserve the environment and to redress a potential nuclear holocaust were all of the older generation when the younger people were somewhat displeased with the way things were handled in the past. One of the guests answered with a clarity that must be seen as profoundly significant. Quite simply, he argued, his generation was more acutely aware of the hopelessness of certain situations. Hardened into a fatalistic inertia by the sheer magnitude of international problems - the only attitude that can make sense to him and his fellow age-mates, was one of live and let live. The sixties children believed change was possible. The tragedies of the seventies and eighties and the growing pressures of a more competitive socio-economic climate have made these people a very pessimistic and highly pragmatic bunch. It makes sense to me. Students don't march, they don't run for public office they don't rally to causes or sing wonderful Bob Dylan songs about Mr Jones because they don't believe that Mr Jones (archetype of authority and the establishment) will change. In fact, they believe that like them, Mr Jones has no choice; he just can't do nay better. I walked with the "happy campers" who marched down to the New Brunswick

EDITORIAL

CBC'S Morning Side Programme decided a few days ago, to give some attention to a generation of people being ignored by the station - namely the 17-25 age-group. Hence, they aired an interview with three youngsters from across Canada who discussed questions of apathy, education and the environment. Commendably, the host of the programme admitted some bewilderment at the way in which this generation has shown itself to lack the aggression or distinctiveness of previous generation - particularly the sixties bunch. He seemed puzzled, for instance, that youngsters of that age were not at the forefront of movements that seek to right the wrongs of older generations. For him,

A PRAGMATIC GENERATION

Legislature yesterday afternoon and I was struck by the attitudes of those who choose not to march. "This won't help, we're wasting time. They won't listen." The mock legislature was further evidence. Wayne Carson, in his inimitable smooth and calm fashion was able to handle the role of government leader successfully simply on his ability to replicate the "we can't do anything about it, there is nothing we haven't tried" attitude adopted by our politicians. The oppositions was made to look unreasonable and ignorant. The fact is that students believe this. They believe that change is impossible. Are they right?

Perhaps, if the Polish people believed this in the 1980's, there could have been no change; nor would here be reforms in Hungary or in the Soviet Union. If the Filipinos did believe this, Marcos would still be in power; and if the blacks in South Africa believe this, we are all wasting our time crying down apartheid. But there may be a difference between the countries listed above and Canada. The element of suffering is markedly less, hence the threshold of pain has not yet been touched. Yet the student leaders are arguing that things are really, really bad. In a few years time, education will be impossible for many at the tertiary level. Perhaps then, the struggle is for then and not now. In the mean time, it is clear that the breathing room given the politicians is allowing them to master the rhetoric of appeasement and subtle change while the public looks on, causeless and uncertain.

Surely, the challenges for this generation of young people are different and the way to handle such challenges is to realize that people are far too informed these days to be overwhelmed by absolutist rhetoric. The enemy is no longer a clear target. The challenge lies then in identifying the enemy and seeking to make people aware of the dangers that this enemy represents. The CBC announcer/host could not grasp that the world has become more accessible to more people and views are no longer as easily streamlined in a single direction by a handful of media sources. With this onslaught of ideas, problems and world crisis, one is unable to easily take an effective stand. Above all, for some curious reason, those with power are seen to be entrenched and immovable. "My marching down to the legislature won't move Brian Mulroney. How can it?" Who am I?" Somewhere, somebody in power is laughing at the dismantling of student power in North America. But the way back to advocacy and militancy is far more complex than many would imagine. There is still, however, a peer mentality that remains extant. While it would be hard to get people to march on a Peace Rally these days, hundreds of students will converge on the promise of free booze. The pleasure factor has just become more honest. At Woodstock, many equated drugs, booze and sex with peace and love. Today, we are more cynical and honest: "We came for the drugs and booze; let's not pretend about all that peace stuff!"

The tragedy in California is big news. It is frightening to see such a catastrophe in a major city in North America. Such major tragedies are normally linked with far-off places like India and China, where hundreds die daily. The frailty of humanity and the vulnerability of human technology are all brought to question by this tragedy. People have responded with much good will and community spirit; but some very fundamental questions have to be answered about the implications of continued habitation in that part of California before the World Series continues.

Just a word to the Engineers. We do apologize for failure to publish any releases on their week, however it must be made clear that no student organization has automatic right to unpaid publicity in the Brunswickan. We try our best to give voice to the student related issues that we deem news-worthy, and we regard each constituency of this university as equally important. A very careful distinction must be made between what constitutes news and what amounts to publicity. News takes priority and unfortunately, news generally emerges after the event. We did send a photographer to the coaster derby and a reporter to the Buners' concert at the cafeteria. The latter was very poorly attended although the band was quite good. The absence of Engineers--the 1/6th of the UNB population-was notable despite several ads published in the Bruns about the event. My central point is that the Brunswickan is committed primarily to news worthy material and no student organization has automatic right to unpaid publicity in the paper.

And fo those c molasse waiting it.

Here I am, sitting, freezing my butt off on a Wednesday night, writing mugwump while watching 18 guys run after a little white ball and chase bases. How can anyone like baseball that much -- to play in below zero weather??

Can you believe this? Can you actually believe what is happening? This is not fair, we're supposed to have at least another 8 weeks of fall yet. And no one's prepared. One needs a few weeks to get psyched; to prepare your mind and attitude for the dreary, snowy 4 months that lie ahead. (Not to mention I need time to get my snow-tires put on!). The leaves haven't even fallen off the trees yet and that dreaded white fluffy stuff is already starting to plague us. Ski season may start yearly this year!

The Annual Media Bowl. CHSR Bunnies of Death = CHSR Bunnies Are DEAD! Saturday we, The Brunswickan Barbarians are going to skin those puny rabbits alive. And of course, we will emerge victorious once again for the 16th time. Join us up at the Social Club at noon for pre-game warm up and then cheer us on as you witness the makings of Rabbit Stew!!

What about the earthquake in San Francisco! Who hasn't heard about it? Well, you couldn't miss it. It was the only thing on every channel for about 5 hours after it happened. I have never seen soo many stupid people. I certainly wouldn't be hanging around the bridge or jumping up and down on a freshly formed crack in the pavement to see what would happen next. I knew God wanted the Red Sox in The World Series.

Speaking of California; how many grads can actually afford to go on the grad class trip?

And where were all the engineers and the Engineer Pub last Saturday? At any other university engineers stick together. Guess they're not as close knit a faculty here at UNB as they say they are.

Did you know that the Student Union(SU) gets their toilet paper from the Soviet Union (SU)? Well, I'm informed that toilet paper in the Soviet Union is supposed to be very abrasive - and so is the paper in the SUB. Hmmm, SU and SU. Think about it!

Latest Student Union proposal: a muzzle for Wayne Carson. Apparently, he never stops talking during council. He wouldn't be in the Law faculty by any chance?

REAL MEN

Macho is in! But then, I guess it was never out. Once ostentiously displayed in turned-up collar, partially rolled up sleeves, cigarette behind the ear fashion, today the tough image comes in baseball cap, construction boots or fast car form. The Marlboro Man has traded in his horse for a four wheel drive, but still needs his cigarettes. He lives for hunting season as much as for baseball and beer. "Real men" show no emotion, are independent, hate quiché, play hard and love hard. But are these "real men", really men?

The male image has undergone some tough times lately, and rightly so if the above is what being male is all about. The women's movement has seen through that nonsense more perceptively then have many men themselves. Forced to reexamine our own roles, values and characteristics, we have been cast adrift from our formerly secure and exclusive moorings.

We once boasted of greater physical strength, and pain threshold, to maintain positions of dominance. By now, of course, everyone knows that women outlive men by some seven years on average, and that child-birthing requires a pain tolerance that most men could never imagine. So much for a pretence of authority established on these bases. The add insult to injury, today women drive trucks, fly aircraft, race cars, and tend to restore a human touch to practices such as medicine, law, even business. Not only is the exclusive male domain shrinking, but the manner in which we did things in the past is also being challenged.

There are still those, however, who insist on maintaining an aggressive and domineering male image. The world of sports is full of this, producing a "win at all cost" mentality. It is also frequently the driving force behind the business world, where "business is business" is adequate rationale for cut-throat competition. But this "old boys club" view, with its aggressive "profits at all cost" and "never get angry, get even" mentality has left in its wake a devastating toll on both the human and physical environment. The call to be a successful family man has taken a much neglected backseat to the drive to be a successful businessman, and the belief that profit is the only motive is now a real threat to our physical survival. To what extent is the dominant male way of doing things responsible for the mess we find ourselves in? Perhaps the traditional male character needs desperately to be tempered.

That is certainly the case in an area where it rears its ugly head. The notion of man "the protector" becomes a sham when we consider the increasing statistics of domestic violence, sexual exploitation and child-abuse. Neglect and irresponsibility governs much male action. That is also evident in the so-called "abortion issue", a real misnomer because it is not an issue. It is a life and death struggle begging for a life-affirming resolution. Neither is it exclusively a "women's issue". Just as two decide to "tango", two are responsible for the outcome. Ought men to be excluded here, willingly or unwillingly? It is understandable that an unwed pregnant woman does not wish to pay the price of single parent welfare misery for moments of unguarded intimacy. To prevent such means that men must also wake up to the realization that perhaps it is not OK to engage in the pleasure and shirk the responsibility. The locker-room "tally sheet" of successful weekend "scores" is no longer something about which to boast. To assume that "boys will be boys" and that such activity is part of carefree youth or of enhancing the virile male image is blindly succumbing to a hedonistic philosophy that is tearing at the very fabric of the family, still regarded in most quarters as the corner stone of society. To accept the notion that sexual encounters are a pleasant and expected ending to an alcoholenduced evening of "fun" will result in anything but positive human relationship building, something desperately needed to put an end to the sexual abuse and neglect of women and children.

Word of the Week: Encephalo Plaegic - paralyzed from the neck up.

Maybe it's time to take a hard look at the consequences of certain male behavior. Genuine concern, feeling and willingness to take responsibility for our actions ought perhaps to be first and foremost in our minds. That may not grease the wheels of business, nor conform to modern day consumerism and individualism. It may, however, help alleviate some of the misery we encounter in our lives.

Modeling becomes important here, but one must be careful in selecting the image one wishes to attain. The tendency is to emulate the modern day "gods" of celuloid, rock music and sports, but their susceptability to eccentric lifestyles or drug habits--mind altering or physically enhancing--have made them bitterly disappointing.

There was once someone, however, who did come through. People didn't like what he said and did, and crucified him. They claimed he didn't fit in, which is what many still say today. But maybe, just maybe...

OUR DOOR IS ALWAYS OPEN

October 20,1989 8 The Brunswickan Faith and culture form basis of STU symposium October 26-28 Event is first of its kind in Canada ----

In New Brunswick, Moncton schoolteacher Malcom Ross is the focus of an inquiry by the New Brunswick Human Rights Commission after complaints that his anti-Semitic writings violate the Human Rights code. In Cole Harbour, Nova Scotia, a confrontation between black and white students leads to charges being laid under the Criminal Code.

In Winnipeg, a 54 year old Cree Indian woman is humiliated when she awakes from an operation to find hospital staff treating her like a sideshow exhibit. Her surgeon had laced coloured beads onto the stitches closing her incision.

By Melynda Jarratt

In communities all across Canada, incidents of overt discrimination such as these are becoming more commonplace everyday. Yet not all Canadians are willing to accept injustices based on culture or religion as the inevitable result of life in a multicultural society.

A national symposium to be held next weekend at St. Thomas University is a part of a series of community initiatives that represent a step in the right direction for interfaith dialogue in Canada, claims Dr. Abdul Lodhi, Director of the Atlantic Human Rights Centre and co-organizer of the symposium along with Dr. Thom Parkhill.

"For the first time on a national level, a symposium will address the role of religion in the promotion of multiculturalism," said Dr. Lodhi. In his view, the symposium Interfaith Dimensions of Canadian Multiculturalism signals a willingness on behalf of Canadians to share in the humility it will take for all of us to live together in peace and with justice. "This event is also significant because it will formulate the basis of a 'Code of Etiquette' for our multicultural society," Dr. Lodhi said. He explained the 'Code of Etiquette' is actually a set of guidelines for conducting day to day relationships within our culturally and religiously diverse society. These quidelines are expected to evolve over a period of time; he added.

Studies at STU, the long term objective of the symposium is to set the basis for a Canada that is characterized by both religious diversity as well as mutual respectability and acceptance.

"The symposium will identify sensitive areas in the Canadian multifaith milieu, such as education for example," Parkhill said. "Once these areas are identified, the next step is to address issues of religion and culture. By doing so we will lay down the building blocks of mutual respect and justice between people of many faiths and cultural backgrounds "

Public lectures are slated throughout the two and one half day symposium. They feature well known figures in the areas of religion, multiculturalism, and human rights, including Dr. Lois Wilson, President of the World Council of Churches and former moderator of the United Church of Canada. Dr. Wilson will deliver a lecture on Thursday evening, October 26 at 7.30 pm entitled, "Canadian Pluralism- A Two-Edged Sword".

(This is part of a lecture to be presented this Thursday, October 26 at 2.30 pm in the Ted Daigle Auditorium at Edmund Casey Hall, STU).

Canadians have moved a huge cultural distance since the 50's. The widely postulated and widely accepted beliefs that some peoples were superior, or were "Canadian" religions while others were not, that those who were unemployed, or underemployed, deserved their status, are no longer acceptable mores in current Candian society.

We have in this decade, learned that living in a multicultural society is a lot more than the tolerance of ethnic food and ethnic dance, and that all Canadian citizens cry out, and deservedly so, for equality. Not equality for the next generation, or in some future century, but equality now. These Canadians are responding to promotion of a Multicultural policy that promises to treat all Canadians as full and equal. In the past, we have judged certain religions to be valid in Canada, and others were not acceptable here. This was even reflected in the laws of the Provinces that governed the taxation of places of worship. Our frame of reference is widening. In this current broader framework, can we be satisfied with the dialogue that is taking place between Canadians of different belief systems?

While the ways in which we have looked at religions has changed, the entire matrix of Canadian society has also been changing. To understand each other, we must communicate with each other, and to communicate with each other with even a modicum of hope of sucess we must know who to speak with, and how to speak with them. In this regard we cannot divide the lives of people into artificial compartments, and issues in our society such as changing sexual mores have to be taken into account.

There is a new skin colour on the Canadian face. It is no longer the pink hues of the past, but increasingly the world's palette of brown is making its presence felt. And the browning of Canada is not a temporary summer tan, but a permanent feature that is growing as our immigration inevitably increases from the continents of Asia and Africa. As the generations mix, first in our large cities, and then, inexorably across this land, what was foreign, and often despised or slandered, is now next door, and the person next door is increasingly beoming the parent of one's own grandchildren. Not only must we now dialogue differently, but we must also recognize that the people we wish to dialogue with are not people to be perceived as others, but as ourselves.

Scheduled for the Edmund Casey Hall next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the symposium brings together men and women of different religious and cultural backgrounds from universities, government and nongovernment organizations. According to Dr. Parkhill, Chair of Religious lectures or workshops.

Nine separate workshops will be spread over the duration of the symposium. Covering a wide variety of topics ranging from issues with a distinctly Canadian context to issues with a global scope, such as the UN Declaration on the Elimination of Religious Intolerance, the workshops will provide an opportunity for a healthy and meaningful exchange of ideas.

The national symposium on Interfaith Dimensions of Canadian Multiculturalism continues St. Thomas University's practice initiated in 1979, of hosting a conference in conjunction with Fall Convocation.

Interested persons who wish to attend the workshops are encouraged to register by phoning the Atlantic Human Rights Centre, 452-0549. There is no registration fee for the

I have been involved with the Engineering the Undergraduate Society as a council member for three years and thus have been involved in the organization of Engineering Week for three years as well. This year the EUS Vice-President External submitted articles and photographs to the Brunswickan to be printed before Engineering Week but they did not appear. Was it a big surprise that the articles did not appear? No not really. Even if certain things change from year to year at the BRUNS one thing does not. Engineering events will not be covered except in the form of paid advertisement. This seems to be true for many of the clubs and societies on this campus. Lee Ann Johnson President SSEE.

Even if this was just an Brunswickan. After all, a student newspaper is here to serve the needs of the students, not the editorial staff. When is the Brunswickan going to start doing that?

Even if Engineering Week appears in this edition, it is a little too late as it is almost over. We requested that an article be printed last week, wrote the article ourselves, and ensured that at least 1000 students at Head Hall would be interested in it. What does it take to get something printed in the Brunswickan?

Face The Facts Dear Editor

Regarding your article on the "sex" pamphlet. The people who are upset at the terminology used in it should open their eyes to see the real meaning of this pamphlet, which is the threat of AIDS. In using this terminology they got across the point, in terms that everyone will understand. For example, if they were to use the proper term for anal sex, which is sodomy, most of the people would not understand what is meant or would not bother to take the time to look it up in the dictionary and find out. This means that there is one way people don't know if AIDS is transmitted through this practice.

These people who are so upset should grow up and face the facts as AIDS is becoming a growing concern for everyone.

You people keep saying that you are struggling and fighting for your lives, when all you have to do is be secretive about your sexuality, as most heterosexuals

Why do you find it necessary to flaunt it in public places. (example: concert or newspaper). I will not disagree the point population Leave the top of that some gays were born that way the hill once in a while! (even though I have never seen a shred of proof), but who is to say that some people do not choose to be gay? Just like child molesters deliberately choose the younger ones. These people with their nice homes in the suburbs, (example: an MP's friend) that think they are making radical contributions to human rights offend me. Because at the same time, there are others who truly make a difference and usually wind up dead because they speak out in public. Those are the true people who are fighting for their lives. Do not get me wrong, some types of persecutions of homosexuals are not right. It is just that they can always get out of it by denying their performance, while the less fortunate cannot.

Dear Catherine

You know it is astounding to have brought us, or any other think 1 (one) student showed up. couple, by continuing your term And this young kid Canadian to the full. You have the option contraceptives failed, and you are played so beautifully, so of choosing the family your child abortion, you will always be wondering what your child would have been doing if he/she was alive. If you had continued your pregnancy and then gave up your child for adoption, you could easily find out.

The Brunswickan 11

The next time you (or any of your friends) find that your pregnant, please, I beg you, scriously consider allowing your Since you chose to have an child to live, no matter what pressure anyone else puts on you. By doing so, you will be giving your child a chance to bring joy and happiness into a home.

DISTRACTION

BrunsLog 6789.12

It was 3:00am in the morning and all the bars were closed in Woodstock. Luckily I had my emergency thermos of Barbarians. I had cruised through the border crossing like a breeze, a silent breeze, after all I didn't want to disturb the guard.

My trusty steed has failed me so I have to rest for the night. Damn North American trucks, can't take a little abuse.

The Daily Gleaner: Last night a Mac Truck ran the border crossing at Woodstock severely damaging the Canadian Customs Building in the process. There were no injuries and the assailant escaped on foot. He is believed dangerous. Authorities believe the incident may be tied into the recent Columbian escapade.

It's almost noon as I enter the city limits of Freddie Beach. In just a couple of short hours I'll be playing for glory in the Media Bowl. I cruise into the Bruns office to pick up my next assignment. "Marks, where the hell have you been, and where the hell is my story" yelled Jennifer the Distractions editor.

"Why Jennifer my love"

"Can it Marks, you've tried that one before, along with your sick mother, pregnant sister and kidnapping attempt by various world intelligence agencies. Now where were you?"

"Well I had to come by way of Frisco, hey it wasn't my fault by the way. And it was terrible, CHSR had a hit squad after me. By the way I need more money for my expense account, or how about a credit card." BBRRRRINNNNN NGGG.

"Marks here. Ahh Dr. D. What's shakin? Listen I really can't accept the job as president, I'm much too busy you want to speak to who? Kwame; who's that, sounds like a communist spy.

2:00pm it's Media Bowl time

The air is crisp and clean, there's a bit of steam rising from the ground. Perfect football weather. Oops the game started, better put my thermos away. Wow! spectators, must be at least 1500 of them. Cheering too. There's my team, the guys in the red. Hey QB throw me the ball. Got it, two defenders left, deke'em to the left, touchdown, yea. Here comes the ref, probably wants the ball back. Here ya go, great play huh. What do you mean I can't use my hands zebra. Red card, no thanks I only play with a full deck.Red Shirts, you mean this isn't the Media Bowl?

C.I.A.U. Reports

The University of New Brunswick soccer team was penalized two points last weekend for using an ineligible player. The player tried to claim diplomatic immunity however C.I.A.U. regulations are quite specific in this manner. This places UNB in second place.

"Oh no, it's the Canadians," joked an American climber as our car pulled into North Conway.

At least we hoped he was joking. But with Americans, it's often hard to tell. "Don't worry, it's just good-natured banter," I was assured.

"Yeah, really," said someone else, ambiguous to the extreme.

However, our rating in the New Hampshire popularity stakes was the least of our worries. The White Mountains were shrouded in cloud, and a steady drizzle had already ruled out the possibility of a quick afternoon climb. And if the rain persisted throughout the night, we knew that the Whitehorse Slabs would be treacherous in the morning.

New Hampshire boasts some of the finest rock climbing in the eastern United States. The granite cliffs of Cathedral and Whitehorse are literally criss-crossed with hundreds of routes: from beginners' climbs to routes which require a high level of commitment, physical fitness and expertise.

Cliffs on the white Mountains were first recognized for their rock climbing potential in the late 1920's by members of the Boston-based Appalachian Mountain Club. Using European climbing equipment, all the major cliffs were climbed in succession, beginning in 1928.

Now, the town of North Conway is a mecca for rock climbers in eastern North America. Fredericton-based climbers have been visiting the imposing granite cliffs since 1982, repeating some of the more popular routes.

And this year was no exception. A group of eight climbers, most of whom had attended a basic climbing course offered by the UNB Rock and Ice Club, spent Thankgiving romancing the stone in Mew Hampshire.

Saturday morning dawned sharp and clear. Although it had rained during the night, we optimistically figured that the slabs would have had time to dry off.

We were wrong. It was wet. Very wet. this was particularly upsetting to us because slab climbing relies almost exclusively on friction: Climbers are very rarely afforded the luxury of a handhold. Maximum friction is usually achieved by getting as much rubber on the rock as possible. Recent technological advanced in the manufacture of climbing boots have led to the development of a super-sticky sole which bonds to the rock as if it were coated with molasses. But on slimy, lichen covered rock, it can prove almost impossible to get a decent foothold.

Nevertheless, after taking a few undignified and painful slides, the lead climber made a belay atop the first pitch of out 800 foot odyssey. The other climbers followed, held in comparative safety by a top rope.

Because of the risks involved, lead climbing is very different to seconding. In the event of a fall, the leader has to rely on the specially designed camming devices, chocks and nuts which were jammed into place on the way up. These devices are usually wedged in obvious fault lines and cracks in the rock--although the leader often has to be quite creative when pacing protection.

But on th slabs, there are very few places to wedge protection. Instead, climbers clip into pre-drilled bolts which are dotted about all over the crag. In theory this sounds fine, but in practice the run-out between bolts can be 150 feet (or a rope's length). Sighs of relief can usually be heard once a climber "clips" a bolt.

As we climbed higher, the rock started to dry. Far beneath us, Echo Lake became visible, its light blue water set in stark contrast to the russett hues of New Hampshire's much vaunted foliage. Around us, the jangling of climbing hardware made us aware that we were not alone.

Do I really WANT to be up there?

By early afternoon, we had begun our descent. Everyone had enjoyed the experience and there was a sense of achievement on having completed a fairly lengthy multi-pitch climb.

"It was awesome," said Pete Lloyd, a third year biology student. At one point, Pete had taken the sharp end of the rope to lead his first pitch.

"Man, that was exciting," said Pete. "It's a whole different ball game, this leading business. The adrenaline started pumping and, oh man, it's something else."

Like Pete says, leading certainly isn't boring. And it isn't for the fainthcarted. Anyone who has hung off a desperate move while trying to find protection knows that leading can be frightening.

But there is a difference between "good" fear and "bad" fear. Good fear makes you think... it gives you the courage to back down from a climb you know is beyond your ability, or, for that matter, the concentration nccessary to make a difficult move.

' On the other hand, bad fear causes panic, an elevated pulse, and irrational behaviour--suck as "going for it" when your KNOW you shouldn't. Preemptive fear is your brain's way of saying: "try this if you like, but I'm going to hide in the basement."

However, held securely on a top rope, beginners can afford to take a few chances.

And the dialogue between climber and belayer can often be colourful.

Sherry Pellerin, a fourth year computer science student, taught those American climbers within earshot a few choice expressions as she floundered beneath an overhang on Cathedral Ledge.

"I don't like overhangs," Sherry groaned. "I want to come down. Look, can I be lowered?"

But her belayer wasn't sympathetic. "I'm not going to lower you," he said, holding her tight on a top rope. "Besides," he grinned, "you called me nasty names this morning."

"I can't reach that hold. My goddamn pony tail is in the way. This is crazy... Is my left foot in a good position. It turned out out that her left foot was in a good position. As she stood up, her belayer hauled in a few more feet of rope--enough to get her over the crux.

Nature's War

Violent Colours light up the Fall As the army of conifers Stands guard Over all

Maple Foot Soldiers and cedar generals The battle is waged And lost By perennials

Explosions Of orange, yellow and red While the rake clears away The wounded The dead

And though many have died Still many remain So be here next year For the conflict Again

Jeff B.

I gracefully glide Across the sky, Feeling no need For caring.

As I roam through The heavens so blue, I notice one thing missing.

The peace, the love The wonderful touch of A friend's arm Around me.

I looked down My feet touched the ground And reality struck Me hard.

There's no-one there Who actually cares If I can fly. Happiness...

Happiness is more than joy; It is a feeling that many people share; You do not have to look everywhere... It is like a special toy.

Sometimes it's there in front of you; Sometimes it is not, it is hidden in the blue. In my own words, I say that happiness... Is more than love or tenderness.

It can comfort you or either it hurts; I find my happiness by going into church... Happiness has it's good times; And sadness has it's hard lines.

So let the happiness in to your life; Happiness does not happen overnight... But when you achieve it, it is such a delight; I compare happiness to the sun, it's as bright as the sun. Happiness can be a lot of fun...

For your own happiness you must fight.

Price of Pleasure

We are close. And as we speak, Our eyes share our feelings, And our hands Reach out And reassure. We embrace. And as we touch, Then you leave. And as I think Of what we had shared, I remember The Price Of Pleasure. We are distant. And as I watch, I falter. And I ask myself: Is Pain the price of Pleasure? Understanding, I gain strength. And we are close. Again.

BOB DYLAN Oh Mercy (MCA Records)

Before and in between parts of his summer tour, Bob Dylan spent some time in New Orleans with producer Daniel Lanois (U2, Peter Gabriel, Robbie Roberston) putting together an album, featuring such noticeable back-up musicians as Cyril Neville and the Neville Brothers' percussion section, Rockin' Dopsie, and Mason Rufner. Rumours anticipated another Dylan masterpiece.

As well, Dylan's summer tour, which I was lucky enough to take in at Old Orchard helped to increase excitement. He delivered his most powerful vocals in a couple of years, along with a slashing and fire-spewing set of mostly oldies that surprised a lot of people.

Oh Mercy takes the improved voice and pairs it with some amazingly quiet music, which hasn't occured since Infidels. There are many pace with a combination of country sounds (via Lanois' dobro) and a nice r'n'b beat circa.1952-3. The song sets up Dylan's love: "We banged the drums slowly/and played the fifes lowly/ You know the song in my heart", though it leaves some speculation concerning the identity with such ominous lines as "far away in the stormy night/ concerning Dylan's visions and far away and over the wall/ you are there in the flickering light/where teardrops fall". Perhaps this is the same love Bob asked us about in "Tight Connection to My Heart" (1985). Both "Ring the Bells", and "Disease of Conceit" are lessons that have followed the traditions begun in '79's Slow Train Coming and continued through Shot of Love (81), Infidels(83), and Empire Burlesque (85). Dylan's message is simple : do what is going to maximize the good, and create the most love. The middle songs, "Man in the Long Black Coat" and "Most of the Time", are the strongest on the album. The former is sung in a haunting, whisper-like voice, that is accompanied by similar music. It is the story of a stranger who appears in a town and then disappears with one of . the local girls. It brings reminiscences of both the prophetically eeric lead character in Pale Rider, (starring Clint Eastwood) and the masterful lyrics of "Knocking on Heavens Door" (1973), combined with the morality that Dylan has been singing about throughout the Decade. "Most of the time" is Dylan's most personal song on the album, reminding me of the Some have accused Dylan of beat, that being "Everything is being aloof and too much of a broken", written in a style 'rock star in the last few years recalling such classics as (notable Joan "give me a "Subterranean Homesick Blues" newsworthy cause" Baez, and a certain writer in Rolling Stone "Where Teardrops Fall", the magazine), but this song

What begins in "Most of the time" as an inquiry into loving others, is brought fully in the open with "What good am I?". Whether it is confronting an unjust situation, or showing mercy and compassion, he asks I don't do what I should?"

saying that this is Dylan's finest since Blood On the Tracks (1974); but, I must go even further and say that this album is his best since Highway 61 Revisited (1965). What makes this so successful is the fusion of the several Dylan approaches to music and writing in the last ten years.

The album kicks in right away with the opening out "Political World", a survey of why Dylan switched his focus to the spiritual side of life in 1979. His observations are a collage of different situations, though the first lines set the tone and pursuit for the next nine songs: "We live in a political world/Love don't have any place". The music propels the songs much like the Shot of Love sessions in 1981. Only one other song songs he was writing in 1974. manages to pick up such a "wild" paralleling the opening song.

BUBU OUT

Last Saturday night, the Burners, a five man band out of Calgary appeared at the UNB Engineering Pub. They played before a small but enthusiastic crowd of about 150 people.

The Burners music consisted of an interesting blend of original and cover music with styles eminiscent of George Thoroughgood and the Georgia Satellites.

"Above the Weather," an original tune, had a very bluesy eel to it, while "Nobody," very much reminded us of the Boss, Bruce Springsteen. The band obviously felt very comfortable with these varied styles and did heir utmost to whip the crowd nto a veritable frenzy. Indeed heir cover version of Johnny Be Good, was one of the strangest ever heard, but perhaps their best une of the night was their own Hollywood Saturday Night, one hat had the place rockin'.

VP Activities Stephane Comeau wasn't very pleased with he turnout at the event (Don' nake me say it!- Ed.), but "Al ast it was better than the Rand eters," he said, referring to oncert which bombed last yes I think that everybody like u and," he said, "Too bad ther eren't more people."

This week, the UNB Film Society will be screening Eric Rohmer's 1983 film "Pauline at the Beach." This film, the third of Rohmer's "Comedies and Proverbs" series, is a morality play set on the beaches of Deauville. It centers upon the sexual exploits of six characters whose misadventures turn this film into a full-fledged bedroom farce.

Paulinc, an innocent teenager, spends the summer at the beach with her older, sexy, experienced cousin, Marion. Marion acquires a lover, Henri, and encourages Pauline to do likewise. She pushes Pauline towards Pierre, one of her own admirers from the beach, but Pauline instead finds her own lover the teenager Sylvain. Meanwhile, Henri had been amusing himself on the sly with a candy seller from the beach. It is the discovery of this affair which sets in motion the series of misunderstandings which cause the characters to play elaborate games with one another, deceiving each other as well as themselves. The only character free from these deceits is Pauline, who as an innocent, remains uninvolved in the lies perpetrated by the actions of the other. It is from her clear, viewpoint that Rohmer tells his tale. He makes Pauline the moral center of the film, around which the other characters practice the duplicity which is second nature to them.

Although moral in tone, Rohmer has produced a witty and intelligent film, making his point by satirizing the mores of contemporary society. The hypocrisy of the older generation is cleverly contrasted against the wide-eyed innocence of the younger.

As part of the Film Society's commitment to local cinematic efforts, the short film, "The . Traveler" will also be screened. This film, directed by Blair MacIntyre and produced by the New Brunswick Filmmakers' Co-op, offers a wryly humorous look at a number of narrative cliches.

Films will be shown in. Tilley Hall, Rm. 102, Friday and Saturday, 8:00 pm. Memberships available at door.

FULLIBLE TO CUDUES ORNA DREW EXPRESSES SOME DISAPPOINTMENT IN TNB'S MOST RECENT PRODUCTION CRIMES OF THE HEART

Crimes of the Heart, Beth Henley's Pulitzer prize-winning play centered on the reunion of ree sisters occasioned by the illness of their patriarchal trandfather, opened last week at TNB. The bitter-sweet black southern comedy deserves better treatment.

First, the kitchen, the setting for the entire three acts, contained an inordinate number of cupboards. I know Southern women have a heritage to preserve which may necessitate keeping several sets of dishes, but this, besides being ridiculous, gave the room an uncomfortably cluttered look. The gazebo, attached to the kitchen but outside the house, had an appropriately Southern feel; I waited in vain, however, for somebody to use it as a

all. finally, the reproduction of the St. John river valley, described in the designer's notes as "the embodiment in spatial terms of the presence, of the past. . ." was more disruptive than metaphoric, reflected directorially in an awkward attempt at "closure"; disjointed sections of the piece were segued together as the play progressed.

My main quarrel, however, was with the characterization of Babe Botrelle, played by Clarice McCord. That much mugging requires wearing white face. All the subleties of character get lost if Babe is played as though she were simply another ditzhead doing a Gina Davis. I tried not to filter my analysis through the grid of the movie, but I sorely missed trysting place, or as anything at Cissy Spacek's quietly zany Babe. Marianne McIsaac was wonderfully funny as the neurotically repressed Lenny, but she was acting against the wind. When the three sisters occupied the stage together, the resulting histrionics bordered on hysteria, which is unfortunate, because the performances interfered with viewer speculation as to how they got that way.

The play was, among other things, about the effect of patriarchal power on the lives of southern women of a certain race and class. I'm sorry that TNB's production failed to convey that. I expected more from the writer and director of Blood Ties.

It is then that both teams hope to improve upon last weekend's showing in Halifax where the host Dalhousie squads captured first place in both the women's and men's divisions. Each UNB team finished second. Lady Harrier Michelle Cormier placed second overall in the women's division. She was closely followed by fellow Harrier Felicia Greer who was fourth. Lucy Smith of the Lady Tigers finished first overall. Rounding out the top ten were three more UNB runners. Tracey the dominant team thus far this title.

Shanks was eighth, Gisele Gallibois finished ninth, and Heather Eagle placed tenth. The Lady Harriers' point total was 33 while Dalhousie runners managed a 22 points over the five kilometre race.

Rod Clarke placed third in the 10 KM men's race to lead the Red Harriers to their second place showing. They had a 50 point total while Dalhousie had only 36. The race was won by Allen

U Rowing

by Chantelle Hanley

On Sunday, Oct. 8, the UNB/STU Rowing Club was represented at the Head of the Connecticut River Regatta in Middletown, Conn. Out of the 18 race categories, ranging from eights to single sculls, UNB entered 12 events. Being the only Canadian crew -at the regatta. The crews were very en-ergetic both on and off the water. Surprisingly (not really), UNB cheered the loudest and longest whenever the black crew uniforms were visible from shore. The American crew eventually joined in on the cheering but, by then, UNB's spirit could not be matched. The novice men's and women's crews were especially boisterous around the dock area and this served UNB well; not only did it improve our morale, it made the whole regatta fun for all the crews. However, the fun on the docks did not make the races any easier. The 3.5 mile (approx. 5km) is a gruelling race against the clock but, as is tradition at UNB, the crews placed very well capturing 2 golds, 1 silver, and 3 bronze medals. The gold medals were awarded to Lynn Christiansen for the Novice Women's Single Sculls and to the Youth Women's Four with cox (Tania Gillis ion are guarene university are not an and in anality and the unit in anality of the manual for the second second

Red Devils Pre-season

by Tim Lynch

The UNB Red Devils have now played three exhibition games so far this year. Their record is a healthy two and one in the win-less column.

The Devils won their preseason opener over the Mt. Allison Mounties last Thursday. The next day the team dropped a 7-4 decision to the McGill Redmen in Montreal.

pulled out a 6-2 victory over the Mary's Huskies in Halifax.

Ottawa Gee-Gees in the nation's capital. The Devils overcome a 2-0 deficit and scored five thirdperiod goals en route to the victory. Murray Nystrom led the team with a pair of goals while Hugh Hospodar, Dom Deluca, Gord Christian, and Dan Altherr each added one.

The battle for pre-season campus bragging rights is set for PM tonight at the Aitken 7 Centre. That's when the Devils and their cross-campus rivals, the St. Thomas Tommies, square off. Last year, STU finished second to Moncton in the AUAA playoffs while the Devils failed to make post-season play. The Devils' first league game is next Saturday Last Saturday, the Devils at 7:30 PM against the St.
