There will be a notable golfing event next month in Brantford, in aid of the Red Cross. Mr. George Lyon, Canadian champion and the well-known professional George Cumming, Toronto; Michael Thompson, Hamilton; and W. M. Pevsman, Lambton, have most generously consented to come here and play an exhibition match. This will be easily the best exposition of the game ever seen in this city, and will provoke intense interest.

Unconfirmed reports that Prince Edward and Wales, heir apparent to the British throne, seeks the hand of Princess Yolanda, the eldest daughter of King Ferdinand of Italy, have excited widespread discussion throughout Rome. The rumor is a surprise to Italians generally, for it had been supposed that the British Prince would marry one of the daughters of Emperor Nicholas of Russia, but there are many incidents that have led the Italian people to believe that Prince Edward will marry the Princess Yolanda.

Quite a serious accident occurred recently to Miss Margaret Wilson, the eldest daughter of the President of the United States, while on a visit to Miss Blanche Bates, the well-known actress, at her farm in Ossining, Miss Wilson and Miss Bates were driving to a picnic at the Croton-on-the-Hudson residence of Mr. Holbrook Blinn, when the shaft of the carriage broke and the horse ran away, throwing the occupants out upon the highway with great violence. Though very much bruised and suffering greatly from shock, both ladies are recovering, and Miss Wilson was recently able to return to her home in Washington.

The only son is one of the tragedies of the war. The obituary columns of the newspapers record the deaths of many only sons. The "Times" announcements on one day alone recorded the deaths of 11 officers who died of wounds, six of whom were only sons, and on the same day the provincial papers mention fifteen only sons killed and wounded. Not merely only sons but many only heirs have fallen early in the war.

In many cases, such as those of the Marquessate of Lincolnshire and the baronies of Knaresborough, Fife, Ribblesdale, Rosendean, and Stanforthham the title will be extinct unless royal prerogative is exercised.

This war has stirred up the dormant mysticism that is in every one of us. In some it might more justly be called superstition. In Paris, witches and wizards are making a fortune. Their clientele has increased incredibly for the last two years, says "Pennyton" in "The Sketch". Some sorcerers' salons are, indeed, frequented by a fashionable crowd that might be the ornament of any court. Women go there mostly to know of the fate of the beloved at the front, but also to buy charms to send to him—mostly precious birthstones or masses of wood, the effectiveness of philtres (both fatal and love factors) is as firmly believed in now as it ever was; and the scarcity of men has caused so much rivalry among some women that the "witch" who undertakes to spoil "the other woman's" looks by causing her, through the power of magic (!) to lose her teeth, her hair, or her complexion—such a witch is never out of a job! And she can afford to laugh at war tariffs!

General Sir Sam Hughes, who has been in England for the past fortnight, was recently the guest of the Duke of Devonshire, at his Derbyshire seat, Chatsworth. He is famed for his magnificent library, his statue and picture galleries, and is one of the six English residences of the Governor-General designate for Canada.

Mr. Norman Andrews is visiting his aunt on the Rideau Lakes.

Mrs. Lett and family have returned from Cobourg, where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. Lett, who has joined the London Battery, will return this week. Many friends will be sorry to hear that Mrs. Lett is breaking up house-keeping and will spend the winter in Toronto.

Mr. George Watt left this week for Muskoka where Mrs. Watt and family have been summering. Mr. and Mrs. Watt expect to leave next week for Algonquin Park.

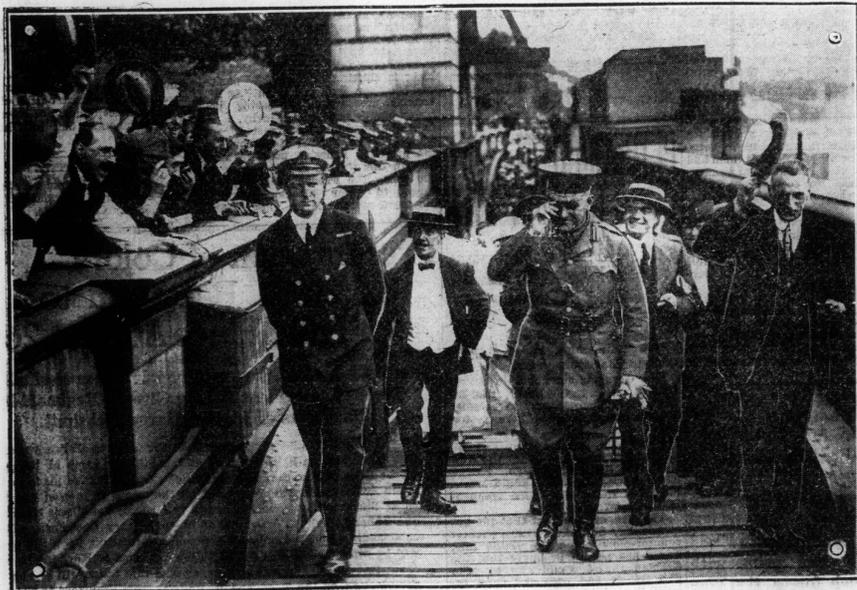

Miss Helen Kippax returned this week from Port Dover and has now left for Muskoka.

During the past week no less than twenty-five wives of Brantford soldiers have left for England, to spend the autumn and winter there.

Miss Louise Coles, of 27 Sarah St., just returned from a three weeks' holiday at Springfield, Boston and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Yule and children of Mt. Forest are spending a holiday with Mrs. Yule's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Percy, 93 Brant Ave.

Three Good War Poems

THE UNSEEN LEADER (KITCHENER)

Can you not see, he is dead,
The strong, the mighty leader of the host,
Can you not hear his leading,
Though with silent tread,
He comes and goes where he is needed most.

His will directs the army yet
Whose life was born within his valiant soul,
He to them now his own strength can beget,
Sustained are they, amid death's awful toll.

'Twas best that he should leave our sight,
Now he is free, immortal spirit-man,
Untrammelled and unseen, yet full of might,
He leads on to the victory he began.
Marion Read.
Brantford, Aug. 17, 1916.

A Mother's Prayer.

"I had fainted unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living."

To Thee alone O Lord we come,
The mothers of this land,
We crave Thy heart's deep sympathy,
And the power of Thy hand.
Give us Thy peace, that wondrous peace,
Which passeth every telling,
Our every care to Thee made known,
Each phantom fear dispelling,
And Lord, increase our faith we cry:
Faith in Thy love and power,
Faith which lays hold on Thy great name,
And finds its strong tower,
And to our faith add courage too,
Which can make us strong to bear,
To the convulsions strength that the Lord is God,
And must triumph everywhere.

Oh Thou, who hast built a mother's heart,
And furnished it all with love
Are Thy bottles full with the secret tears,
Unknown save to Thee above?

For our hearts are away with our soldier boys,
In trench, or in camp, or field,
Our Father, we ask in the name of Thy Son,
Be Thou their defence and shield.

We cannot tell where our loved ones are,
Thou knowest the goings of each,
Not one is too small for Thine eye to see,
Nor too far for Thy love to reach.

Oh turn their hearts in this time of need
To the Saviour who died on the tree,
And let them not be ashamed to confess,
He died for a sinner like me.

So we leave our children with Thee,
O Lord,
Thou curest for every one,
And with subject heart, let each mother say,
Father, Thy will be done.

THE FOG-PIPE

Once upon a time a giant made himself a pipe. He made it so big that a coach and four could have driven around inside of it, but, alas! he'd stolen the wood from a forest where the fairies dwelt and they were pretty angry.

"We'll bewitch his pipe!" they cried, "then all manner of queer things will show in the smoke and frighten him when he puffs it forth."

Now the giant burnt queer things in his giant pipe, bushes and bushes of dead leaves, the trunk of a tree, peat from the bog—anything in fact, he could find to fill it. And the very first time he smoked it after the fairies had bewitched it, all manner of queer things did indeed appear. Hazy trees glimmered out of the great puffs of smoke, misshapen animals and goblins. But, do you know, that giant was so big he wasn't afraid of anything. He liked it. It soon became his favorite pastime to watch the strange smoky shapes that rose from the bowl of his pipe.

The fairies held a meeting. "The only way to punish him," they said, "is to take the spell off. Then he won't have the queer smoke shapes to tickle his fancy and make him laugh."

And so the next time the giant smoked his giant pipe nothing came forth but clouds and clouds of smoke, with never a tree shape or a goblin in it. Again and again he smoked it, hoping against hope for the queer smoke-shapes, but nothing appeared, and with a sigh of disappointment the giant made himself invisible and strolled down into the world of mortals he loved to watch. But—he'd forgotten to make the smoke invisible too, and as he strolled down into the valley clouds and clouds of mist rolled from the giant's invisible pipe and filled the valley. Through it trees and houses loomed in queer new shapes, the figures of mortals, seemed misshapen and the delighted giant strolling among them, invisible himself like his pipe, puffed forth more and more clouds of visible smoke.

"It's better than the trees and goblins that came before from the pipe," he thought to himself. "And the best of it is that whenever I want entertainment all I need to do is to stalk around in the mortal world and fill it with mist. Everything looks queer through it—even the cows and sheep."

And so, after that, the giant never lacked for entertainment and mortals called the strange smoke from his pipe—fog. You yourself can see it most any time and when you do you can be pretty sure that mighty giant is close at hand, invisible like his pipe, puffed forth clouds of visible fog-smoke.

TELEPHONES AUTOMATIC AND BELL Day-Night Material 276 Editorial 402 Business 130

Saturday, August 19th, 1916.

THE SITUATION

The persistent and well-planned offensive of the Allies in the Somme conflict still continues with excellent results. For the second time in three days, the French and the British launched a general assault on the eight mile front from Pozieres to the river, and more important gains are recorded.

The Russian invasion of Hungary has become a reality. Some of the troops of the Czar have now penetrated five miles into that country, although fierce fighting still continues in the mountains.

The French are maintaining their strong offensive northeast of Verdun. Not only have they completed their capture of the village of Fleury, but in addition they have captured two strong field forts.

The Austrians, by reinforcements from various garrisons, are making a last desperate effort to save Trieste, but the Italians are showing no weakness in their continued advance upon the place.

The official British report states that the Turkish loss was more than nine thousand in the recent unsuccessful attempt on the Suez Canal.

THE TORONTO DONNYBROOK

Toronto is supposed to be the Ontario seat of learning, superior knowledge and all that sort of thing. If you don't believe it ask any Queen Cityite or notice their demeanor. Then ask one of them to name a native son or woman of Toronto who has achieved any prominence in the world of politics, or literature or anything of that sort and the silence is impressive.

A despatch from the Old Land announces that Opposition leader Rowell entertained "London journalists to tea." Meanwhile it is anything but tea which his mixed up followers are dishing up in Toronto.

There is nothing like a family row when it comes to letting out the truth. Sir Allen Aylesworth, formerly Minister of Justice in the Laurier cabinet, in referring to an editorial attack upon him by the Globe, said in a speech last night: "The editorial in question opened with the old, old trick of representing an opponent as saying something he had no intention of saying, and then battering that statement to pieces. And in this instance the writer knew that he was misrepresenting, for in the news columns of his own paper had appeared an impartial and accurate account of the remarks I made."

This is the leading Grit organ exposed by one of the leading Liberals of the Province. The Guelph Mercury (Liberal) alleges that the Ontario Conservative party is "short of leaders." At the same time, with Rowell absent in England giving pink teas, the Mercury might say who is leading the Grits.

The Kaiser has designed a memorial card to be sent to the relatives of German sailors lost in the naval battle. The New York Sun thus describes it: "On the card is a picture of Christ, holding out both hands in blessing over a sinking ship. Surrounding the figure of Christ are the words: 'Which stilloth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves and the tumult of the people.'"

Water Works Notice The Commissioners, to meet the wishes of the Terrace Hill residents have changed the lawn watering hours for the section North of the Grand Trunk Track and East of Clarence Street and South to Court Street. The water for lawns or gardens to be used from 7 p.m. to 8.30 p.m., and the balance of the city from 5.30 p.m. to 7 p.m., excepting on laws of 5,000 feet and over on one hour earlier in each instance. The morning hours remain the same. FRED W. FRANK, Secretary.

EXTRA SESSION OF PARLIAMENT By Special Wire to the Courier. Lisbon, Aug. 18, via London, Aug. 13.—A decree has been issued convening an extraordinary session of parliament on August 22.

Death claimed another Niagara octogenarian in the person of Mr. Henry C. Woodruff, St. David's, Ont., aged 84 years.

A NOTABLE SPEECH BY THE RIGHT HON. GEORGE FOSTER.

Canadians, no matter what their politics, appreciate to the full the magnificent oratory of Sir George Foster. He illuminates every subject upon which he essays to speak, and during these war times, it is not too much to say that his deliverances have been of classic worth. It will therefore come as a source of gratification to everyone to know that he is equally appreciated in the Mother Land.

Elsewhere in this issue, the Courier republishes verbatim an address which he not long ago delivered at a luncheon of the Royal Colonial Institute.

In periods of impressive lucidity, he showed that the "old world has passed away," and then dwelt with cogent force on the duties and the responsibilities associated with that fact. In turn, he exemplified the new and tremendous task of the British Empire family, the basic truth that trade is subsidiary to production, and the attitude which should outcrop to our Allies, neutral nations and the enemy.

In the last named regard, he exclaimed: "There are things I do not propose to forget. Do you?" and then he voiced the opinion that for this generation at least, there should be an absolute exclusion of all things German from within the Empire. "Give them a good long time to repent, but be sure they do repent, and in sackcloth and ashes, before they ask to be admitted into the community of decent civilizations."

Is there a man or woman, with red blood in their veins, who will not breathe a hearty "Amen" to that? This whole deliverance of Sir George, perhaps the most notable in his brilliant career, is worthy of careful perusal, every word of it, and the thoughts and the aspirations which he expresses should sink deep into the hearts and the minds and the purpose of every reader.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

If the weather man doesn't soon let up on those words, "Decidedly warm" a coolness will supervene between himself and the general public. But perhaps that is just what he wants.

It is a mighty good thing for the morale of the rest of the Province that Toronto bye-elections do not take place more frequently.

TORCHES USED AS CLUBS

(Continued from page one.) First fight, but arrived on the scene when the second row was at its height. He stood very near to Powless, and saw the latter struck by a club wielded by Percy Martin, who followed up with a fistful attack upon the victim. Powless rallied and regained his feet, but was again struck down by someone. The witness was standing very near the platform at the time, and Powless was upon it when attacked. Witness believed it was the first blow struck by Percy Martin, which caused the injuries resulting in Powless' death. Took Him Home.

Richard Powless was a witness of the fight, and later assisted James Powless home. He did not see the latter struck, but was told by him that he had been injured. Next morning the witness sent for Dr. Mott, and at the instructions of the latter, took the injured man to the hospital. James Powless was unconscious all morning.

At Fight Between Counsels. Mr. Brewster demurred at this point of the proceedings, urging that the witnesses called had been on the one side. "Call someone besides Hills," he demanded. Crown Attorney A. J. Wilkes returned that in this inquiry there were no sides, and asked counsel for the defence to name any witness whom he desired to call.

"I cannot call witnesses at this inquiry," replied Mr. Brewster. "No, but you can name them and have them called by me," countered Mr. Wilkes, who offered to summon the accused man to take the stand on his own behalf. Mr. Brewster expressed indifference as to whether this was done, and it was not. On the request of Louis Stander, a member of the jury, Eva Martin, wife of the accused, was called, her evidence being the sole testimony in direct support of Percy Martin.

Had Struck His Host. Mrs. Percy Martin was present during the entire evening, but saw nothing of her fight. She stated that upon Samuel Hill's return to the grounds, he had demanded his supper, and commenced to use bad language, and that she saw George Loft attacked by three men.

Of the crowd which had rushed into the grounds, she could distinguish only Geo. Hill. Percy Martin at this time was on the dancing floor, and later joined his wife in the house, taking no part in the fight, to the best of her knowledge.

The jury left the room at this point, and after a very few moments' consultation, returned, bringing in an open verdict against a person or persons unknown.

The members of the jury were: James Liddell, foreman; Thos. Poulton, Wm. Cleator, Charles Ludlow, Fred Chalmers, Harold Cressor, Edward James, Louis Stander.

PORTUGAL VAST MANOEUVRE FIELD

Country Is Preparing With All Its Forces to Take Part in War.

ORGANIZATION OF STAFF.

Recruits Being Drilled Rapidly, and Munitions Rushed.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, Aug. 19.—"Portugal to-day is a vast field of manoeuvres," said Major Norton Mattos, the Portuguese minister of war, in a recent interview with the correspondent of the Journal, publication of which has been delayed until to-day for military and diplomatic reasons.

"Portugal being in a state of war with Germany and Austria," continued Major Mattos, "wants to take part in the war in the most direct form and in a fraternity of arms."

"We are preparing with all our forces to take this direct part in the fight. The mobilization of the army was received with enthusiasm, and we are continuing to raise men."

"Our first concern was for the organization of the staffs. We have now about 1,500 officers, and this number will be increased by the convocation which has just taken place of all the men from 18 to 30 years old who are in a condition to bear arms. This will form a corps of militia officers."

"As to our troops, you can go through our garrisons, our forts and military camps and everywhere you will see our recruits exercising in intensive fashion."

"Regarding munitions, our effort is similar. A great part of our national industry is in the service of the army. Already we have settled the urgent problem of transports and trucks, and soon we will be ready."

215TH OBTAINED JUST ONE NEW MAN YESTERDAY

Many Rejected This-Week—Men on Furlough Are Returning.

One new recruit was signed yesterday evening at the recruiting office of the 215th battalion on George St. in the person of Holley Rudolph. Several other prospective recruits are in sight, and Pte. Tutt and his henchmen entertain expectations of landing some of them to-day.

A number of members of the 215th returned to the city yesterday and this morning after spending a time on farms throughout the country, helping in the work of harvesting. As their furloughs are now at an end, they will journey to Niagara and rejoin the battalion there.

A large number of applications for enlistment have been received by the 215th this week, but in the majority of cases the applicants were rejected, either by Pte. Tutt, because of obvious unfitness, or by the medical officer upon examination.

Canadians in Somme Battle

London, Aug. 19.—It is reported that the Canadians recently transferred from the Ypres front took a large part in to-day's attack on the Somme front, together with the Australian and New Zealand corps.

The Berlin statement to-day reports the arrival of several new British divisions, while a semi-official communication issued in Paris says that the Germans have been obliged to call 22 new divisions to the Somme. These troops, it is stated, have been withdrawn from other parts of the Western front.

The German divisions on the Somme have been badly smashed up, it is asserted, and withdrawn, while six others, after a rest, have been recruited to strength and sent to hold weak sections of the line.

ADVICE TO TOURISTS

When a motor car owner starts on a long tour he has so many things to look after that it is probably natural for him to forget some of the things which in the end are most important.

"No doubt the most trouble with batteries in touring is caused by overheating. This may be due to lack of water in the cells or using the starter and lights too little to offset the continual charging."

"Before starting on a long trip, a car owner should have his batteries tested to see that the specific gravity is up to the proper point and then he should see that every cell is filled with pure distilled water. If the use to which the battery is put is far above normal, the battery may be likened to a man who eats heartily but gets little exercise. Illness follows and if the condition continues battery apoplexy is sure to result. An over-heated battery heats up rapidly and if the driver does not give it sufficient exercise to balance the feed he gives it, he should check the temperature with a dairy thermometer from time to time, particularly when making long runs on warm days or when doing a great deal of continuous dry driving. The temperature in the battery should not be allowed to exceed 120 degrees Fahrenheit. 100 degrees is a danger point and shows necessity for immediate action and remedy. If the battery is being over-heated, the remedy is to exercise it by keeping the lights

AUSTRALIA WAS SPY-RIDDEN

German Espionage System
Worked There Prior to Outbreak of War.

TRADERS AND
SCIENTISTS USED

Finally German Consul Arrived Who Plotted Actual Disloyalty.

Australians will be surprised to learn that for many years past the Commonwealth has been subjected to a most penetrating and systematic scheme of espionage. Just when the system was inaugurated is not known, but it probably dated from the period when the German Government began to pay huge subsidies to German steamship companies to assist them in cutting into the Australian coastal and overseas trade. There is good reason to believe that these companies were never simply traders, but were charged with a mission to inform Berlin regularly of our naval and military dispositions, the development of our defence activities, the exact whereabouts and strength of our fortifications and the charting of our ports and coasts and channels. They had every opportunity to do so, and no doubt they carried out their work very thoroughly. On Common-wealth day the spy system was initiated by a series of missions despatched by Germany under the guise of harmless scientific investigators. In our innocence we received these German savants with the greatest hospitality and afforded them every facility to transact their covert tasks. Not infrequently, indeed, Australia gave the scientists free railway passes so that they might travel inexpensively over all parts of the Commonwealth. How many permanent spy agents they appointed during their travels can only be guessed. German colonists are everywhere. The next significant development was the arrival in Australia of a German Consul-General (the last) invested with special authority from the Kaiser to restore the full rights of German citizenship to every German settled in Australia (and his descendants) who had become a naturalized Australian. This high official was no sooner established in Sydney than he got into touch with his fellow-countrymen in all the States, and earnestly advised them to obey the Kaiser's will. All they had to do to assure reinstatement as complete Germans, whether naturalized Britishers or not, was to register their names in a special book which the Consul-General had brought from Berlin for the purpose. Many ignored the request, preferring to remain loyal to the land of their adoption; but several hundreds complied, and journeyed from all parts of Australia to sign the book. Herein, if Australians had only known it, was a speaking hint that Germany had already resolved to make war on Britain, and that she was laying crafty preparations in advance to facilitate her conquest of the Commonwealth. Australia, to be brief, was to be attacked simultaneously from within and from without, to be assailed on her seaboard by German warships and military forces and to be betrayed internally by a legion of recently suborned German settlers whom, because they had been naturalized, we should not suspect. Meanwhile the business of spying out the land proceeded steadily. A concrete illustration will indicate the thoroughness of the system. Prior to the outbreak of the war a German missionary was stationed in a remote district of north-west Australia. He was a spy. The discovery was made owing to one of his reports to Berlin falling into the hands of the Defence Department. This report is a most interesting document. It consists of a series of detailed answers to an exhaustive category of searching queries. As for example: How many Germans are resident in your district? What is the population? What are the food resources of your district? How many persons could your district supply with food, and for how long? How are the Australians in your district disposed to Germany? What are the facilities of transport? How many persons could be transported from point to point in a given time? And so on. On the surface, some of these questions appear innocent enough, but General Legge, after an elaborate study of the document, reported to the Minister of Defence that the questions had a purely military significance, and solicited exactly the sort of information which he, as a professional soldier, would most desire to acquire where he commanding an expedition destined to invade a foreign country. It is a relief to know that this German missionary will make no reports to Berlin. The man, however, was merely one of a host of spies who operated freely before the war; and there can be no sort of doubt that the German Government to-day knows as much about Australia as Australians themselves, and has every district in the Commonwealth mapped out accurately ready for invasion.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—Third Quarter, For
Aug. 20, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xix, 23-41.
Memory Verses, 23, 30—Golden Text,
I Tim. vi, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Paul is now on his third and last missionary tour. As he returned from his second tour he left at Ephesus his two fellow workers, Priscilla and Aquila, whom he had brought with him from Corinth. He then proceeded to Jerusalem and thence to Antioch, where he remained for some time before starting on this last tour (xviii, 18-23). We cannot think of him turning anywhere without seizing every opportunity to speak of Jesus Christ and His sufferings and glory. Having passed through Galatia and Phrygia, nourishing and strengthening the disciples with bread from heaven, he came again to Ephesus (xix, 1). During his absence Priscilla and Aquila had been busy at something more than tent making, for a Jew from Alexandria, eloquent and mighty in the Scriptures, had come to Ephesus, and because of the fire that was in him he spoke boldly in the synagogue and taught diligently the things of the Lord, but he did not know of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. These two faithful ones expounded the Scriptures more fully to him concerning some things, and then he was led to go to the disciples there, whom he was able to help much, and he mightily convinced the Jews, from the Scriptures, that Jesus is the Christ (xviii, 24-28). There is many a Priscilla who is qualified to instruct more fully many an Apollos, but the latter are not always as teachable as this one seems to have been. The crown of glory is a special reward for those who feed others with living bread, and it is not eloquence that is needed, but just a willingness to receive the message from the Lord and deliver it in His name, as the disciples received the bread from the Lord's hands when the 5,000 were fed and passed on to the people what they received from Him. They neither made it nor brought it, nor increased it, nor in any way improved upon it, but were simply channels or messengers between Him and the people. Our Lord Himself only said what His Father told Him to say, as He has told us in John xii, 49, 50, and thus He honored His Father, and the Father wrought through Him.

This gives no opportunity to show what we know or what we can do and is therefore very humbling to the pride of man, and many will not submit to it. But there is no other way by which we can be true messengers of God. If the message is ours He will not assume any responsibility concerning it, but if it is His message He will see that His purpose and pleasure are accomplished by it (Isa. lv, 11). When Paul came to Ephesus Apollos had gone to Corinth, and Paul began to inquire as to what the believing brethren in this matter, he taught them more perfectly and became God's channel to them of the gift of the Spirit, so that they spoke with tongues and prophesied (xix, 25). Every true believer is a temple of the Holy Spirit, and when any one receives the Lord Jesus the Spirit takes up His abode in that person, but there is a difference between being indwelt by the Spirit and filled with the Spirit (John xiv, 17; I Cor. vi, 19; Acts ii, 4). The Spirit abides in the believer, and we cannot pray, as David did, "Take not Thy Holy Spirit from me" (Ps. li, 11), but we may be filled and refilled as the need arises for special service.

For three months Paul spake in the synagogue at Ephesus, boldly disputing and persuading concerning the Lord Jesus and the kingdom of God, and when opposition drove him out he continued in the school of Trannus for two years or more until all in the province of Asia (where he was forbidden to speak on his second tour, as in xvi, 6) heard the word of the Lord Jesus. Some very special miracles were also wrought by the Lord through Paul (xix, 8-12). Wicked men tried to do wonders, even some in high religious standing, using the name of the Lord Jesus as they heard Paul do, but they fared badly indeed, while through Paul the word of God grew mightily and prevailed (xix, 13-20). Having sent Timothy and Erastus into Macedonia, where he hoped to follow them, he continued in Asia, completing three years there (xix, 21, 22; xx, 31), as we shall see in our next lesson. Why he was forbidden to go to Asia on his second journey and now permitted to spend three years there we may perhaps learn some day.

The rest of our lesson chapter is occupied with the record of the riot of the silversmiths, whose craft was suffering because of the exaltation by Paul of the Lord Jesus. Their cry in verse 27 concerning Diana, "whom all Asia and the world worshipeth," makes us think of the coming anti-Christ, whom all that dwell on the earth shall worship (Rev. xii, 8), but the kingdom shall be the Lord's (Dan. vii, 14, 27; Obad. 21). Until then we must expect that opposition to the truth will steadily increase and people give heed to lies and doctrines of demons (I Tim. iii, 1-5; I Cor. x, 4; I Thess. ii, 8-12). But the Lamb will overcome (Rev. xvii, 14).

OLD COUNTRY NOTES

Should Irish paper only be used by the Irish? That was the question raised in a highly important debate at the Newry Urban Council in connection with another matter. The main facts are these: Cavan sent out a round letter to many district councils within the county of that name to solicit their co-operation to secure an All-Ireland Conference on Home Rule—a very daring thing for one in council to do. The proposition came before Newry. In Newry there are two parties, as elsewhere, one ultra-patriotic and another not quite so ultra-patriotic to put it mildly. The request from Cavan was read. Then there was a long pause. Tired of controversy one member suggested that the matter should drop there. "Agreed, agreed," sounded a chorus of voices. But a more analytical member, studying the parchment, discovered to his horror that it was made in another country—England. If it had been in Scotland, perhaps the indignation would not have been so marked. But England—the discussion that followed showed that at present at least it is best in Newry to be out and out Irish.

In view of the special importance of satisfactorily gathering Ireland's hay and corn crops, commanders of units in possession of draught horses or mules have been authorized to arrange, as far as is compatible with the efficiency of the unit and military transport requirements for the temporary loan for harvesting, of horses and drivers to farmers in the vicinity of their stations who may require such help. Weekly payments will be required at the rate of 4s. (£1.00) per diem for each horse for a working day of eight hours, farmers supplying, without charge, forage, and where necessary stabling. Horses will only be sent out with their own drivers, the drivers to be paid by the farmers at regulated wages.

GRAY-DORT OUTPUT SOLD
That the Gray-Dort Motor car has reached a position of confidence in the minds of motor-buyers, is evidenced by the fact that, despite the unprecedented output of the company this year, the entire stock has been sold out for the past two weeks. Mr. Archie Tweedle, the local Gray-Dort dealer, has not been able to secure a car and is to-day anxiously awaiting the advent of the 1917 model, which he expects about Sept. 1.

Announcement was made in the British Commons that the government is in receipt of information from the United States Embassy in Berlin that Patrick Moran, an Irish prisoner of war who was shot, had refused to join the battalion which Roger Casement tried to form.

THE CONTEST OF THE WEEK

Habits of Species Should Be Observed Carefully by Cultivators.

We must study weeds in order to successfully combat them. A knowledge of their habits, growth and distribution is essential before any progress can be made in their eradication.

Annuals are those which spring up and mature their seed in one season such as wild mustard. If this weed can be prevented from maturing so that no seeds will be formed it is evident that it must soon be exterminated. As the roots do not live over winter a supply of seed is necessary that it should persist. However the seeds of many of the most noxious annuals are encased in an airy covering. This enables them to resist decay for years. The only need sunshine, rain and moisture to enable them to germinate. There are many forces at work fighting for the life of the weeds, each of which must be understood and overcome before victory can be attained. Biennials require two years to complete their growth and produce seed. Of this class the burdock is an example.

Most of these weeds have a strong tap root growing deep into the soil. During the first year the plant stores up large quantities of starch. In this root, which is utilized the second year in producing seed. Being productive from the seed only one cultivation that will prevent maturity will be effective. This, however, is not so easy as these weeds often take possession of fence corners and places where ordinary implements of tillage do not reach. The only satisfactory way to deal with them is to cut the tap root off below the crown, say three inches, with a sharp spade or spud.

Perennials live and produce seed for many years. They are of two classes, the ordinary perennial that reproduces itself only from seed and the creeping or running perennial which in addition to producing seeds also sends up new plants from the parent stem.

An example of the first class is the ox-eyed daisy, of the second, the Canadian thistle and couch grass. The roots of the latter contain a large number of latent buds, and whenever the soil is stirred in moist weather they spring into life. If a root is broken or cut during a warm moist time, each of those roots will send out a new plant, hence it follows that during such times land infested with those weeds should not be worked.

Hoar crops and summer-fallowing that is improperly done is more likely to increase than destroy the weeds. The cultivator should be done when the weather is dry and warm. Work the land so as to bring the roots of these plants to the surface or keep them under the ground by means of some other crop, such as clover or buckwheat.

Certain farm crops are conducive to certain kinds of weeds. In some instances fall wheat and rye appear to be excellent friends of cockle and pigeon weed; spring grains of wild oats, mustard and foxtail; meadows and pastures, of curled dock, ox-eyed daisy and plantain. Keeping this fact in mind, it will be readily seen

WHY WE HAVE HUNG THE CHALMERS MONOGRAM OVER OUR DOOR

We have made up our minds to give our patrons the biggest possible large automobile value for the money.

First of all we studied the situation from every angle.

A quality car that was built in Canada—that was what we wanted.

After considering all the principal factories, we were convinced that the Chalmers Motor Company of Canada, Limited, met our specifications.

We found the Chalmers factory at Walkerville, Ontario, one of the finest equipped in the industry, the personnel of the management all being men that have been long identified with the motor industry in Canada.

We found the factory equipped to make immediate deliveries, and to render beneficial service to Chalmers owners throughout the Dominion.

The 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers combines excellent value and reasonable price. More than 20,000 of these cars have been sold in Canada and the United States since last November.

C. J. MITCHELL, Dealer
55 DARLING STREET

These cars have seen over a million miles of road service, with an almost perfect service record.

You already know the Chalmers plans for 1917; how seven body styles have been built around the 3400 r.p.m. principle.

The five-passenger car remains the same. A better car could not be made at the price.

Then there is the seven passenger 1917. Under her tilted bonnet is the same 3400 r.p.m. engine that has put a Chalmers in every county from Halifax to Vancouver.

These are the facts. After we analyzed them we decided to hang out the Chalmers monogram in Brantford.

Our Service Department will be maintained for the benefit of our customers, and all Chalmers owners will receive courteous and prompt attention at all times, regardless of whether the car has been purchased through us or elsewhere.

We will have a line of 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers. Drop into our garage—we will be glad to show you these cars and demonstrate them.

INVIGORATING LAURENTIANS

(1) Chute Aux Iriquois, Labelle. (2) On Lake Joseph, Laurentians.

ONE does not need to be wealthy to enjoy the luxury of a very pleasant holiday amongst some of the most beautiful scenes in the world, for amongst the Laurentian Mountains you can be accommodated at a nice boarding house or hotel at extremely reasonable rates. The Canadian Pacific Railway serves the real pleasure haunts of the Laurentians. Shawbridge, Piedmont, St. Agathe, St. Margaret, Val Morin, Ste. Anne, St. Jovite, Mopt. Tremblant, Labelle, Annunciation, Nominings, Barrette, and Mount Laurier, are all on the line that crosses this enchanting district for a distance of 158 miles. The atmosphere amidst these resorts is bracing and healthy, and to look on the wonderful profusion of lake, river, woodland, and mountain scenery is in itself a vigor restorer. In any of the holiday places you can enjoy a comfortable rest, or you may ramble out amongst the romantic valleys and mountain slopes, feeling so happy that you forget what time it is, and perhaps return late for lunch or dinner. The waters of the rivers and lakes are clear and refreshing, and as they have gauded bottoms they are suited to the temperaments of the most critical of swimmers and bathers. Fishing, canoeing, motor-boating, tennis, golf, mountain climbing are amongst the chief sports. But if you do not wish to indulge in any of these you may sit on the shaded verandah of your hotel and enjoy yourself chatting with good steady minded Canadian folks, many of whom will be of your own frame of mind.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

THERE are two great obstacles to preventive medicine which is the real medicine, and these are poverty and ignorance. The greatest cause of poverty—that is, real downright need—is sickness. Sickness causes at least one-third of the world's poverty. Several other things, including alcohol, account for the other two-thirds.

Money in the form of higher wages helps in a large measure to obviate poverty and the sickness which oftentimes lies at its door. Perhaps the most noted health man in America at the present time is Colonel (Dr.) Gorgas, the man whose energies succeeded in making the PANAMA ZONE inhabitable by white people. Colonel Gorgas asserts that two diseases carried by the mosquito—Malaria and Yellow Fever—drove the white man from the easy living tropics to the inclement north. His enterprise is allowing him to return there in ignorance; that is, with the knowledge of what is good for one's health! This column is out against ignorance of this character.

The writer hopes that everyone who sees this paper will read this column. Especially is it desired that the children shall become interested in it, for they, after all, are the portion of the population who are most susceptible to education. The older ones, more set in their ways, will not perhaps take all that is set down here as gospel—although it more nearly approaches gospel than anything else found outside the Good Book—but the children will perhaps gain some good from it. By the way, there is some good public health advice, none better, found in the Old Testament: read Exodus and Leviticus.

Following an outbreak of communicable disease in a home the room occupied by the sick person should be thoroughly cleaned. The floors should be scrubbed with soap and hot water and the walls wiped with a solution of 1 in 2,000 bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, or cresol 1 in 20. Unless the circumstances seem to the Medical Officer of Health to demand it the room need not be fumigated by means of formaldehyde or sulphur.

It is well known that outbreaks of diphtheria and other diseases, including scarlet fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis and typhoid fever, are influenced by carriers, persons who are quite well and have not recently suffered from the diseases, but who contain the germs of the disease in their throats and noses of from one to four per cent. of healthy persons. Among the scarlet fever patients in the Willard Parker Hospital, New York, 4.5 per cent. of diphtheria carriers were found, and in one-half of these the bacteria were virulent, as shown by reaction in guinea pigs. No local treatment is entirely satisfactory in exterminating the germs of the disease. Some of the persistent cases were those with deep pockets in the tonsils, and the complete removal of these tonsils usually give satisfactory results. Carriers of diphtheria bacilli do not themselves contract diphtheria, but they are a common source of trouble to others.

QUESTIONS.
A.B.: Q.—How shall I get rid of vermin in a child's head?
A.—The hair should be washed with soap and warm water, dried, and then soaked in gasoline or coal oil with a towel tied about the head overnight. Next morning the hair should be carefully combed with a fine-tooth comb dipped in acetic acid or vinegar to remove the nits. One, or at most two treatments like this will usually clean the matter up.

Q.—How much Antitoxin is safe to give to a child seven years old?
A.—The quantity of Diphtheria Antitoxin required for any case depends upon the severity of the case. There is practically no danger from any quantity from 5,000 to 30,000 units. Don't hesitate to use plenty of it, it is supplied free by the Provincial Board of Health.

The Reward of Consistency

MODEL D 45

In all branches of business and industry the big successes have been won by the firms and individuals who settled upon the right policy and then stuck to it.

This principle has been rigidly adhered to from the start by the McLaughlin Motor Company. It is the reason for the McLaughlin's great success. It is the reason for the present overwhelming demand for McLaughlin motor cars.

The McLaughlin Motor Company first made the Valve-in-Head motor principle was right. This we stuck to it. We were sure we were right because all the laws of common sense and engineering science told us so. And we stuck to it because an ever increasing encouragement from the public enabled us to do so.

The public is always right in the long run. Surely and too surely the people have found out the superior power, flexibility and economy of McLaughlin Valve-in-Head motors.

The measure of the "swiftness" with which they have found out is revealed in the present overwhelming demand for McLaughlin Valve-in-Head Motors. It is a demand that is country-wide, and which climaxes in an ever-increasing tidal wave.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR IS SATIRIZED

Mr. G. K. Chesterton Holds Him Less Respectable Than a Burglar.

NO EXCUSE FOR HIM.

If He Will Not Save a Woman from Torture, He Is Worse than the Torturers.

(By G. K. Chesterton, in "To-day," London, Eng.)

As a partisan of radical reform, I complain of the Conscientious Objector because he concentrates on himself a limelight of modernist martyrdom, to the neglect of many respectable classes to which I refer to do not mean this in the least as a cheap, exaggerated gibe at the expense of the Conscientious Objector. On the contrary I mean it as a serious and sympathetic truth on behalf of the burglar. There goes on day after day a clockwork of criminal procedure which crushes and cuts to pieces a long stratum of poor men and women and a whole section of the poor men of England, without an instant's consideration for any of their dim traditions, their incessant sense of injustice or their almost inevitable types of revolt.

The Blasphemer of Nationality. Nobody talks admiringly, or half-admiringly, about his courage and firmness in facing the law and the majority; though the virile valor of a common burglar is enough to sink a whole fleet of Mr. Ford's Pacific ships. Nobody makes a hero of him, though he quite unquestionably is a hero, if we are to separate the fact of isolated audacity from the principles to which it is applied; and that is the moral case for the burglar, which is a moral case for the burglar, which is a moral case for the burglar, which is a moral case for the burglar.

Faith in Property. I believe in private property, but I know the real case for it much too well to pretend that it is as obvious as the abstract right of self-preservation. It is surely a much more mystical and disputable proposition to say that there is something in a man's head, which makes him point confidently to a stone and call it his, than to say that he has some sort of right to ward off the stone before it smashes the very head with which he thinks. It is surely more doubtful whether I may keep a quadruped in order to eat it, than whether I may resist the quadruped when it is trying to eat me. And when comes, then, the case for his holding property, while my neighbor has nothing to eat, the case for his holding property, while my neighbor has nothing to eat, the case for his holding property, while my neighbor has nothing to eat.

Because we believe in private property, we speak, without mercy and without memory, the man who does an illegitimate but a natural thing. We only begin to excuse him on the ground of his peculiar opinions, when he does an unnatural thing; a thing as unnatural as any perversion of sex.

Spiritual Loyalty. For this is the matter upon which there appears to be some misapprehension, among the Pacifists and semi-Pacifists, regarding the sentiments of people like myself, who claim that their sympathies are popular and really revolutionary. I think the misapprehension which I mean haunts the mind of men like Mr. Bertrand Russell when they write about the Conscientious Objector. They seem to think, and even to suppose, that we think, that the professor of non-resistance is a doubtful case, a figure on the borderline between the lawful and unlawful, a man whom we regard as an honest Jacobite after the '45, one technically disloyal but spiritually very loyal. We do not admit that idea, and we should have regarded an honest man who denies self-defence, and the defence of others, is not one of the first and most excusable, but, on the contrary, of the last and least excusable, of the list of the enemies of society. If a man truly and seriously convinces me that he must not strike a blow to save a woman from torturers, I do not (strange as it may seem) think he is too good for his world; I simply think he is as bad as the torturers. The point is very obvious; yet it seems to be strangely overlooked.

The War of the Future. Therefore when I ask to have the case of my friend the burglar sympathetically considered before the case of the Conscientious Objector, I do it on the perfectly simple ground which I think the burglar the better man of the two. I think quite seriously that he has kept intact more of the traditions of the best Christian civilization, though it be in a distorted form; for his excuse against a top-heavy society is itself a sort of ill-instructed self-defence; and is immeasurably more moral than a slavish veto upon any kind of self-defence. And with this, there enters an even wider objection, which the real revolutionist must entertain against the non-resistants position. It is one much too wide in this space; for it concerns all the prospects of that last struggle of all free men against the Servile State, which will most certainly be the future war of the world. I think, however, that I can quite sufficiently summarize it in a sentence. As a revolutionist, I object for many reasons to the new privileges of the Pacifists; but chiefly because a Conscientious Objector to war must mean a Conscientious Objector to revolution.

PRINCE OF HESSE DIED OF WOUND

Mystery Surrounding the appearance of Kaiser's Nephew Cleared Up.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The circumstances of the death and mysterious disappearance of the body of Prince Maximilian of Hesse whose relatives evoked the aid of the Pope in an effort to obtain this information, as disclosed by a writer in the Parisien. The writer asserts that the Prince was shot in the groin during an engagement between a Saxony detachment and an English unit near Godewarsvelde, in northern France, early in the war.

The Prince was found by Trapp monks and taken to their monastery where he died soon after. The monks were ordered to evaluate the monastery, and Father Bernard, visited the cloister on the following day and found that the body of the prince was missing.

Later, the prince's family appealed to the Pope to obtain information to the disposition of the prince's body but without success. The Parisien writer says the body was buried in a humble cemetery in Hesse, that it was kept two days in a house there, was once interred but exhumed at night and finally buried in a coffin costing 30 francs which were advanced by a poor man out of pity.

Prince Maximilian was 29 years old, and the son of the youngest son of Emperor William of Germany. Previously it had been stated that he was fatally wounded in an engagement near Mont Descauts on October 12, 1914, and that the body was buried in a monastery. He was a sub-lieutenant in a regiment, and was a nephew of Alexander Frederick the landgrave of Hesse, the second and non-reigning branch of the Hesse family.

Hon. Valentine Winkler, Minister of Agriculture in the Manitoba Cabinet told the Winnipeg Tribune that Manitoba's wheat crop will be smaller than the lowest estimates made early in the season.

PRINCE OF HESSE
DIED OF WOUNDS

Mystery Surrounding Disappearance of Kaiser's
Nephew Cleared Up.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The circumstances of the death and mysterious disappearance of the body of Prince Maximilian of Hesse whose relatives invoked the aid of the Pope in an effort to obtain this information, are disclosed by a writer in the Petit Parisien. The writer asserts that the Prince was shot in the groin during an engagement between a Saxon detachment and an English patrol near Godewaersvelde, in northern France, early in the war.

The prince was taken by Trappist monks and taken to their monastery where he died soon after. The monks were ordered to evacuate the monastery, and Father Bernard, visiting the cloister on the following day, found that the body of the prince was missing.

Later, the prince's family appealed to the Pope to obtain information as to the disposition of the prince's body but without success. The Petit Parisien writer says the body reposes in a humble cemetery in Hazebrouck, that it was kept two days in a home there, was once interred, but exhumed at night and finally buried in a coffin costing 30 francs, which were advanced by a poor man out of pity.

Prince Maximilian was 20 years old, and the son of the youngest sister of Emperor William of Germany. Previously it had been stated that he was fatally wounded in an engagement near Mont Descaux on October 12, 1914, and that the body was buried in a monastery. He was a sub-lieutenant in a regiment, and was a nephew of Alexander Frederick the landgrave of Hesse, the second and non-reigning branch of the Hesse family.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Manager Griffiths of the local American league club, announced he had traded Pitcher Boehling and outfielder Moeller to the Cleveland club for Outfielder Smith and Infielder Leonard. Cleveland paid $8,000 for Leonard last fall, and farmed him to the Columbus team of the American Association. He recently was recalled by Cleveland because of the good showing he made at third base for Columbus. Boehling and Moeller leave immediately for New York to join the Cleveland team, and Smith and Leonard are expected here in time to get into the local line-up in tomorrow's game.

Admit a Loss

Berlin, Aug. 18, via London, 4.52 p.m.—Attacks by the French last night on an extended front in the Verdun region, east of the Meuse, were repulsed all along the line except at Fleury, where fighting is still in progress, the War Office announced to-day.
"On the right bank of the Meuse," says the official statement, "the enemy attacked in the evening on a wide front between the Thiaumont work and the Chapire Wood. He also attacked repeatedly in the western sector of the Mountain woods. At Fleury village the fighting still continues; otherwise the enemy assault has been frustrated everywhere.
"A French biplane was forced to descend on Wednesday near Nesle by our anti-air craft guns."

NEW CABINET MAN

Harold Tennant, brother-in-law of Premier Asquith, has been promoted from the Undersecretaryship of War to the Secretaryship of Scotland, which gives him Cabinet rank. Tennant is a remarkably clever individual, sharing some of his sister, Mrs. Asquith's intellectual attainments. He is very ambitious, and is credited with a consuming desire to become premier of the country. He has been in Parliament for nearly a quarter of a century, and before that acted as private secretary to his brother-in-law.

Will Meet a
Union Committee

By Special Wire to the Courier.

New York, Aug. 18.—The Board of directors of the New York city railways company agreed to-day to meet a committee of employes and union leaders this afternoon to discuss with them their charges that the company had violated the agreement which ended the recent car strike here.
After having been informed yesterday by General Manager Frank Healey that he was without power to act in the matter, the committee gave the directors twenty-four hours to agree upon a conference, virtually threatening a renewal of the strike if the board refused to listen to their grievances.

SOMETHING ABOUT

KUROPAIKIN

Gen. Alexei Kuropatkin, the famous Russian general, has been appointed Governor-General of Turkestan. Kuropatkin is best known through his connection with the Russo-Japanese War, where he was Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces. He has been blamed before the Battle of Mukden. It shows hundreds of Russian officers drinking in a huge marquee, most of them being dead drunk. The next day these drunken officers lead their men against the cool and calculating Japanese. Knowing these facts it is not any wonder that the Czar prohibited the sale of vodka at the outbreak of the present war. Kuropatkin wrote the book on the Russo-Japanese War, which did much to restore whatever prestige he had lost. Several months ago he succeeded Gen. Ruzsky as Commander-in-Chief of the army operating in the Riga district. Kuropatkin is regarded as a very competent officer and an able administrator.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

BY ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:—
I am twenty-three years old and live in the country. I am keeping company with a young man a few miles away. He says he loves me dearly. I think I love him, but I don't think it would break my heart if I lost him. He swears and uses tobacco, and sometimes gets drunk, and his influence is bad.
I am writing to a fellow out west who is writing with the intentions of coming back some day for me. I have written to him for eight years and he always talks about coming home, but hasn't come yet. I don't feel like waiting much longer. Please tell me what to do.

BROWN EYES.

My friend, but wait until you are sure of yourself before you plan to marry any man.

QUEBEC BRIDGE

NEARLY FINISHED

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 18.—It is expected that between September 14 and 16 the great centre span of the Quebec bridge will be floated into position. This will pave the way for the opening of the structure early next year.
I think you had better take yourself in hand and learn that it is no longer good form to be timid. With the emancipation of woman comes the bravery that is more to be desired than the timidity of the olden days. Be up-to-date! If you love the man be brave enough to overcome so silly a fear—and for your own sake overcome it. Anyway, whether you decide to marry him or not.

THE PASSING OF A PIONEER

Unique and Interesting Figure
Removed by Death of Woodstock Centenarian.

MAURICE EGAN
BORN IN IRELAND.

Came to Canada in 1831 and to Woodstock in the Year 1834.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Maurice Egan, senior, passed away at his home on Buller Street last evening in the one hundred and second year of his age. The end came peaceably and naturally. There had been a gradual lessening of vital energy for a few days, and a change sufficiently marked to serve as a warning to his friends. But there was apparently no specific illness and fortunately no pain. The protracted spell of hot weather had weakened the vital processes, and he sank almost imperceptibly into the last long sleep. His mental faculties were active almost to the very last. A little over a week before he died he wrote for his newspaper and read it. During the last days he discussed with old friends, and even joked with them. He seemed to realize that he was nearing the end of the journey, but he faced it without fear. "I'm stuck in the mud now," was his greeting to an old acquaintance, and then he smiled quietly.

To another he apologized for not having recognized him immediately, saying that his eyesight was not so good as it used to be. There was no complaint from him. He died as he had lived in, the simple faith that whatever was decreed for him was for the best. He was deeply religious by nature, but he could relish his joke even in the shadow of death.

Maurice Egan was born at Spike Island, in the Cove of York, Ireland, on the 14th of March, 1816. He left there with his family when nine months old, to live in Chatham, England, where his father, James Egan, was in the British service of the Royal Engineers. He attended the military school in Chatham. In 1827 he came to Canada with his father and mother, landing in Quebec, where he lived three years. In 1834 the family moved to Woodstock. At that time the only buildings here were about a dozen log houses and a Baptist meeting house. The old Episcopal Church (Old St. Paul's) was in process of erection. The property, comprising about three acres, where the C. P. R. station now stands, was cleared by him.

Shortly after arriving here his father was granted 100 acres of land in Zorra by the British government. Both he and his father served in the rebellion of 1827-28. In 1840 he left Woodstock for Hamilton, driving all the way—it was the only means of transportation those days. From there he went to Toronto by boat, where he was engaged in business. Leaving Toronto for Kingston, he was soon after married. Returning to Woodstock in 1845 he found many changes in the place, the court house and other buildings of interest having been erected in the mean-

New Bill Before British Par-

London, Aug. 19 The new ship-

According to the provisions of the

Mr. Egan celebrated the one-hun-

March 14th, 1916. The Sentinel-Review at that time made the following reference to him:

"Maurice Egan of Buller St. will celebrate the hundredth anniversary of his birth on Sunday. He is Woodstock's oldest citizen in a dou-

His mind is clear and active. He maintains his interest in the more

Kate, who has been her father's faithful nurse, companion and friend during his declining years, at home. John, another son, died in California at the beginning of the present war. One brother, James, is a resident of London.

The funeral will be held on Friday

SWEDEN CLAIMS AN ADVANTAGE

Diplomatic and Exporting Circles in London Think They Scored on Britain

By Special Wire to the Courier.
London, Aug. 19.—Swedish diplomatic and exporting circles here regard as a victory for Sweden in her opposition to British blockade measures the promulgation of the new British order covering exports to Sweden, under which a Swedish trade commission guarantee against re-export of the goods and their products is required.

According to these authorities Sweden informed Great Britain early in the negotiations on the subject that she was quite willing to give government backed guarantees in regard to anything shipped from the United Kingdom in recognition of the right of Great Britain to regulate the destination of her own products, but at the same time positively declined to give officially or permit her citizens to give any undertaking covering imports from other nations.

The Swedish law against Sweden giving such guarantees individually was so strictly enforced that British exporters appealed to their government which instituted the negotiations which have been concluded by recognition of the Swedish contention through recognition of the Swedish trade commission guarantees.

pire of to-day and that, ultimately, greater Empire of the future, and build for that; and even we will have our reward as we go on, and future generations will rise up and call us blessed. These neutral countries are no doubt important commercially; but they have not spilled an ounce of their blood; they have not spent a dollar of their money in all the terrible hell of war which on thousands of miles of front has harried the sons of the Empire and left its long trail of fearful consequences to be borne and combated by many a generation to come. Neutral countries are reasonable; if they are not they ought to be. And this one consideration can be urged with just force before neutral countries: "You have not paid in blood or money; we have. And we who have suffered have now to reconstruct ourselves; and if we reconstruct ourselves we must be allowed to say how. Whilst dealing reasonably with you we must be just to our own."

Then with reference to our attitude towards the Allies. What is bringing this war to a successful finish? Gradually, little by little, after long delays, the Allies are now able to work in unison. They've pooled their issues; put themselves into it regardless of sacrifices, worked together. But think of the tale of the war. There lies Belgium torn, bleeding, outraged, looted. There lies Serbia, a country without a people. There lies Poland, in a vortex of want pitiable in the extreme. A large part of France has been devastated. When the war is over these nations are to be built up, and it is absolutely necessary to the Allies that their trade relations towards each other shall be placed upon a more favoured basis of treatment and co-operation than that of the neutral.

The Enemy: Let Him Repent
Lastly we must define our attitude towards the enemy. Does that need many words? Sometimes I think No; sometimes I think Yes. Make no mistake; right in your midst, in cherished Britain and in every outpost of the Empire, there are men, and not a few, who will meet you with this statement: "When the war is over we cannot, of course, cherish hatreds. The world is, after all, one family. We shall need what Germany can give. Germany must be allowed to regenerate and rebuild. Let things when peace comes go on as before." There are men, not a few, who are striving for that to-day, and who will strive for it to-morrow. And you have to be up and wide awake in order to counteract that influence. I am not an apostle of the doctrine of hate. But I have a memory. I propose to keep it. I am not going to forget what the Germans have done in ignoring sacred pacts, in tearing up treaties, in outraging the humanities, in wholesale looting, cruel and ghastly barbarity, and in that, worst of all, treachery to the sacred claims of friendship and hospitality, under cover of which they wrought their infamies. These are things I do not propose to forget. Do you? The revelation that has been made of the German heart and the German purpose in these two years of war is my sufficient guarantee for demanding, that, for this generation at least, German goods, German wares, German partnerships, German businesses, and Germans themselves shall be excluded from the pale of the British Empire. Give them a good, long time to repent, but be sure they do repent, and in sackcloth and ashes, before they ask to be admitted into the community of decent civilizations. Up to that time justice to ourselves and to our Allies designates our attitude.

A final word. To win this war we had to get together, think together, work together, and fight together. It has been worth it all, and is leading to certain success. After peace comes there will be all the greater necessity for getting together, working together, thinking together with one common ideal and one common purpose. Let me impress upon you again the burden of the trust that has come into our hands. We cannot divest ourselves of it. It is a trust we hold for British traditions, British history, and British civilization, which for a thousand years and more has been a great uplifting influence in the world. The world is young yet, and there is just as much need of this great civilizing influence in the future as there has been in the past. On our shoulders lies the responsibility. If we do our duty the Empire trust will be conserved. If we fail in duty, the splendid promise and needed realization may easily pass away and be as an idle vision. (Loud cheers).

VON MACKENSEN! THE NEW CHIEF

Organizer of Eastern Drives Now Reported Commanding in West.

SOMME DRIVE IS SERIOUS.

Germans Realizing It Must Be Stopped or Disaster Will Come.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
New York, Aug. 19.—The Journal yesterday had the following from Paris:

A complete reorganization of the German forces on the west front from Flanders to Alsace has been effected. It was learned to-day from an authoritative French military source, Field Marshal Von Mackensen, who commanded the German campaign in Russia a year ago in May, and subsequently through Serbia, is now in supreme command except only over the forces of the Crown Prince at Verdun.

One Supreme Command.
The reorganization of the western front has been modelled after that recently accomplished on the eastern front where Field Marshal Von Hindenburg was placed in supreme command over all the German and Austrian forces with the exception only of those in southern Galicia directly under the Austrian crown prince, Archduke Charles.

Reinforcements Coming.
Reinforcements of all available reserves from the training camps in the interior of Germany have been brought to the Somme front and a great addition in heavy guns and other artillery has also been made to the defensive apparatus. This was done at the urgent instigation of General Von Mackensen, who now has his personal headquarters behind the German lines on the Somme, probably at Cambrai.

Closely associated with Von Mackensen and acting directly under him have been assigned Generals Von Arnim and Von Gallwitz. These two men were Von Mackensen's chief lieutenants in the Russian campaign of 1915.

SEALING PAYS OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

Kentucky Man Claims One Ship Gathered in $15,000 Worth.

New York, Aug. 19.—Sealing in the ice fields off Newfoundland has been very profitable this year, says Dr. Reverdy V. W. Estill of Louisville, Ky., who has returned from a five weeks' trip to the sealing grounds. Dr. Estill says the Steamer Fortzelli, which he sailed gathered about $15,000 worth of pelts and oil. The Fortzelli was the hospital ship of the fleet of ten sealers and was the first to carry a medical officer as the sealers formerly depended upon the services of a drug clerk or male nurse to care for cases of snow blindness, cuts, ice bruises or beri-beri.

QUIET, SAYS BERLIN.
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Berlin, Aug. 18.—Via London—Today's army headquarters statement regarding operations on the eastern front records no operations of major importance. It says:

"Apart from a minor but lively engagement west of Lake Nobel (60 miles northeast of Kovel) which has not yet come to a conclusion, only unimportant advance post encounters took place."

THORPE RECALLED
Milwaukee, Aug. 18.—James Thorpe, Indian outfielder, obtained by Milwaukee American Association from the New York Nationals last spring, was recalled to-day. He will report at the end of the season.

NORWAY TAKES ACTION
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Berlin, Aug. 19, by wireless to Staville.—Norway has taken official action regarding armed merchantmen, according to an Overseas News Agency message, which says:

"The Norwegian minister of justice has instructed the police in Norwegian ports to find out whether incoming merchantmen are armed and, in case they are, to order an investigation by the military authorities before giving such vessels permission to leave."

Your Dollars Go a Long Way

—In the Hands of The Belgian Relief Committee.

NEVER before has relief work been done on such a huge scale, or with anything approaching the efficiency with which it is being carried on in Belgium. Faced with the appalling task of feeding a starving nation, the Belgian Relief Commission has done magnificent work.

Scores of the ablest and highest salaried business men of the English speaking world have given their time free, to perfect the organization and carry on the work.

Operating expenses are phenomenally low. Business methods are applied to every feature of buying, shipping and distributing food—and accounting for every dollar.

The result is that millions of Belgians are being fed at an average cost of around $2.50 per family per month! Compare that with your own meat bill and you will begin to realize what it means.

But even this provision is possible only through the generous and sustained contributions of thousands of people. Canada has been doing nobly, as she should. Many have been regularly giving enough to feed one—or several—Belgian Families. How many can you afford to support?

Whatever you feel you can give, send your subscription weekly, monthly, or in one lump sum, to Local or Provincial Committees, or

The Dominion Steel Products Company, Ltd.

Public notice is hereby given that under the First Part of Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, known as "The Companies Act," letters patent have been issued under the Seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, bearing date the 25th day of July, 1916, incorporating Willoughby Staples Brewster and George Davey Heyd, barristers-at-law, Belle Roberts Brewster, married woman Mae Forestell, McGraw, stenographer, and Roy Thomas McGraw, contractor, all of the City of Brantford, in the Province of Ontario.

(a) To carry on the business of manufacturing, selling and dealing in all kinds of articles made of steel, iron, brass, copper, tin, lead, zinc, nickel, and other metals, and in all kinds of machinery, machine supplies, tools, shells, guns, munitions and implements of war, and all articles and commodities in which steel, iron, brass, copper, tin, lead, zinc, nickel, and other metals form a part:

(b) To buy, sell, manufacture and deal in machinery, implements, conveniences, provisions and things capable of being used in connection with the manufacturing and other operations which the company may carry on, or be interested in or required by workmen and others employed by the company;

(c) To buy, sell or deal in all such articles and goods as the company may consider capable of being conveniently dealt in relation to its business and to manufacture and establish, equip, maintain and operate factories for manufacturing articles, articles in goods for any or all of the above mentioned purposes;

(d) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable or being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights.

(e) To enter into any arrangements with any authorities, municipalities, local or otherwise that may seem conducive to the company's objects or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges or concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain and to carry out, exercise and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions:

(f) To purchase, take or lease or exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any real or personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business and in particular any machinery, plant and stock:

(g) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, tramways, bridges, viaducts, wharves, manufactory, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences, which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests and to contribute to subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof;

(h) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having any objects alike or in part similar to those of the company;

(i) To prosecute, amalgamate with, or enter into any arrangement for sharing of profits, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or about to carry on business similar to that of the company, or to invest any of its money or other assets in such contracts or otherwise assist any person or company having business engagements with this company or indebted to it, and to invest any of its money or other assets in the shares of any other company carrying on a similar business;

(j) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 44 of the Act to subscribe for, receive, purchase or otherwise acquire the shares or securities of any company carrying on a similar business or to accept the same in whole or in part payment or discharge of the price or consideration of the sale, lease, concession or other disposal of any property, rights or debts which may be held, enjoyed by or due to this company; and such shares or securities to hold, vote upon, sell, re-issue or otherwise deal with as this company may see fit;

(k) To purchase, lease, exchange or otherwise acquire and possess and deal in all movable and immovable property which the company may deem necessary or useful for its business operations, including trade marks, industrial designs, patents, patent rights, licenses, franchise or other rights and privileges of any kind whatsoever;

(l) To issue shares of the company in preference preferred, in payment for property acquired by, or with the approval of the shareholders for services rendered to the promoters in connection with the incorporation or organization of the company or for franchise, options, contracts or other rights, benefits or privileges;

(m) To do all or any of the above things authorized by the letters patent as principals, agents, contractors or otherwise and either alone or in conjunction with others;

(n) The powers in each of the

SAVAGES HAD LANGUAGE ALL COULD KNOW

Indians in America Years Ago Knew a Universal Code.

"The problem of a universal language, the need of which has been realized in this war," says a Cambridge professor, "was really solved centuries ago by the savage inhabitants of the Western world."

Should an Indian from northern Alaska go to Patagonia, he could by means of this universal language converse with his southern brethren almost as easily as he could with his neighbors at home. That would also be the case if he visited Central America or met the tribesmen of Western prairies and mountains.

When this language was invented no one knows, but every Indian learns it in addition to his own. Recently two chiefs of different tribes met in the Geographical Society rooms in Washington and held a conversation that lasted nearly three hours, and yet neither one knew a word of the other's language.

Another sign for death is to hold the tips of the fingers of one hand against the palm of the other, and let them gradually slip downward, and at last drop beneath the palm.

Most people think that the Indian word of greeting, "How," is merely the abbreviation of the question, "How are you?" But that is not so. The word is really "son," which means "brother" or "friend."

When he comes up and greets you with his seemingly inquisitive "How," he is not asking after your health, but telling you that he is a friend.

Plans can be seen and all information obtained at the office of the architect, 321 Colborne street.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
GEO. W. HALL, Architect.

Pure, Clean MILK?

You get nothing else from us. Pasteurization makes it as clean and pure as deep spring water. Did you ever stop to think about the old cans and half-washed bottles in which milk is often delivered? Not here, though, because every bottle leaving our building is sterilized.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN HOMESTEAD WEST LAND REGULATIONS.
THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section or smaller Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.
Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live upon six miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.
In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.
Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 60 acres extra cultivation. Free-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead bid patent, on certain conditions. A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $100 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 80 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rot, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.
