NOTHING HAPPENED

At All Sensational at the Meeting of the Yukon Council Last Night.

MESSRS. PRUDHOMME AND WILSON

Take the Oath of Office and are Duly Seated at the Board.

DISAPPOINTMENT IN CHUNKS

For Those Who Had Listened to a Diplomatic Whisper—The Influence of an Attorney.

There was a fine air of expectancy pervading the court room, also an unusually large number of spectators, last evening when Councilman Arthur Wilson read his oath of office and kissed the book before Commissioner Ogilvie, Justice Dugas and Gold Commissioner Senkler, the occasion being the first meeting of the Yukon council in which the newly elected members participated.

Mr. Prudhomme was introduced to the commissioner by Secretary Brown after Mr. Wilson took his seat at the council board, and read, in his turn the oath appertaining to his newly acquired position. This done he kissed the book and took his seat beside Mr. Wilson.

If there were those present who expected Patrick Henry speeches or a display of election fire works they went home sadly disappointed, as nothing more vivid than the necktie worn by Mr. Prudhomme was there to attract the attention or keep in mind the fact that great things were expected.

So far as anything more than is ordinarily of interest was concerned, nothing occurred, and the meeting might be marked "Flat, stale and unprofitable." That is, unless one were sufficiently well acquainted with matter, public and politic, to see beneath the surface of things; when, indeed, the meeting became filled with quiet interest.

Early in the day it was whispered ever so diplomatically that a member of the council would interrogate the chairman of a recently appointed committee regarding a certain investigation which was to have, and may have, been made, and everyone who had heard this was there filled with expectancy, notwithstanding the cold, and when the time arrived for the members of the council to ask questions, it was thought that the hour had struck for the mine to be exploded, and when Mr. Wilson rose from his chair saying that he wanted to ask for some information, people held their breath and the newly elected member stated that being a new member, and not familiar with what the council had been doing, he supposed that the best way to find out was to ask questions. He wanted to know if the commissioner had any information as to when the royalty was to be removed, or if he could give any information on the subject at all. Mr. Ogilvie replied that he had not heard anything of the matter beyond what was public property. If he became possessed of any desirable information which he was at liberty to disclose he would furnish it.

The audience took another breath and waited, as it was seen that Mr. Wilson had further questions to ask.

"I should like to ask," he said, "what is being done about trails to the creeks, especially Eureka creek. That creek has been turning out well of late, and I wish the council would take up the matter of a trail, as it is badly needed."

The commissioner replied that two of the government engineers were away and the third was kept busy surveying claims for purchasers. Just as soon as the services of a surveyor could be had, the several proposed routes would be examined and the best one selected, whereupon the trail would be built.

Mr. Wilson sat down and those who had assembled to hear something sensational sighed bitterly over their disappointment and one whispered to a neighbor that, "it didn't come off because all the influence a certain attorney could muster had been brought to bear and had succeeded in preventing the expected interrogation."

Law books which had been open and waiting on the council board, were closed and put away, their contents not being required, and everyone knew that the meeting, which but a few hours before had been so full of bright promise, had gone into history, productive of nothing out of the common run of business, and the disappointment froze in large chunks on the back windows.

Justice Dugas presented the draft of an ordinance regulating the killing of game, seasons for hunting, penalties for refractions, etc. In view of the fact that many hundreds of moose and cariboo have been wantonly slaughtered each year, the passage of a restraining law has become of vital importance if the game of the country is not to be exterminated and the introduction of this ordinance has been waited for with more than ordinary interest.

Justice Dugas in introducing it said that he wanted it distinctly understood that he was not accountable for its legality, as its sections were merely the incorporations of his own opinions, and were subject to change and amendment.

In fact, he himself would probably move to amend some of the sections. The ordinance, which is too long to publish in full at this time, was passed through its first and second readings.

The important sections of the ordinance will appear in full in tomorrow's issue of the Nugget.

Nome Mail Steamers Arrives Arrested

The first winter's mail from St. Michael arrived at 10 o'clock this morning and consisted of eight sacks of through mail and two from intermediate points along the river. Mr. B. S. Downing, superintendent of down river mail, reports this consignment to have come up river along the shore ice at lower river points, consequently the trip was made slowly and with no inconsiderable amount of danger.

From now on, however, it is expected that lower river mail will come through flying and another one is expected to arrive in a few days. The last relay was made by Mail Carrier McGonigal from a point 40 miles below Eagle City with a crack dog team of six selected malamutes. Thirty-eight miles a day was made on the run to Dawson and the last 30 miles of the journey was covered today before 10 a. m.

The Eagles "at Home."
The open social of Sunday evening which the Eagles have announced is for gentlemen only, and the visitors will be made welcome as soon as the business can be pushed through.

Nearly all the professional talent in Dawson are members of either the Dawson or some outside Aerie, and will assist in the entertainment. Messrs. Post, Dolan, Breen, Onslow, Mullen, Lawrence, Layne, Quigley, Hart, Friemuth, Warnock and many others have already consented to appear.

Some of these cannot be present until after the concert in the Savoy; but the Eagles are not all early birds and the late game will be as good as the early part of the evening.

The market is being searched for good things in the line of refreshments and that the inner man will be as well cared for as the intellectual will be entertained is assured.

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—A cablegram received at military headquarters here announces the departure from Manila on November 2 of the transport Logan. The vessel carries 278 sick soldiers, 30 general prisoners and eight insane persons.

Fazon in New Mexico.
By a late mail George Butler of the Pioneer, received a letter from Harry H. Fazon who let here in very bad health during the summer. Mr. Fazon is in Las Vegas, New Mexico, and his letter states that his health is fully restored, but that he will not return to Dawson before next summer.

Deputy Sheriff Seamore this morning was looking for large game. He had warrants for the arrest of Nels Peterson's steamers the Eldorado and Bonanza King.

This is rather out of Mr. Seamore's special line, as he says he has arrested almost everything else but steamers, and while the proposition was something of a novelty to him, he was not looking for a chance to shirk his duty.

Just what he will do with his prisoners was something of a perplexity. He could not take them to jail, of course, but then his duty was plain. He must serve his warrants, and then let the admiralty court do the rest.

The Eldorado is about nine miles above Selkirk, and the Bonanza King is in the slough just above town. The warrants are issued in the course of suits brought by the captains, pilots, engineers and others for wages.

The Bonanza King has been arrested and is now in custody of the sheriff, and the Eldorado will be served with a warrant from Selkirk if she does not get warning and leave in the meantime.

Nels Peterson is supposed to be in Seattle, but no telegrams addressed to him thus far have brought an answer.

Major Wood Ill.
Major Wood's absence from the council meeting was explained this morning by the news of his severe illness. He is confined to his bed by a dangerous and painful attack of pleurisy.

Capt. Starnes is said to be slowly recovering.

A postal card received by the Nugget this morning and bearing the post mark of Segeberg, Holland, says:

DAWSON ELECTRIC

Company Will Construct Fifty Miles of Railway Next Summer

ON KLONDIKE, BONANZA AND HUNKER

Franchise for Same Granted by Parliament Two Years Ago.

ENGLISH CAPITAL BACKS IT.

Mr. L. R. Fulda, Resident Representative of the Company, Outlines Its Intentions.

The application by L. R. Fulda to the Yukon council last night in behalf of the Dawson Electric Company, Ltd., for a franchise to construct, maintain and operate a railway system in the Klondike district is by no means a new move on the part of Mr. Fulda and his associates. Two years ago the company received a franchise from the Canadian government to do just what the time is now considered ripe for carrying into effect.

The Dawson Electric Co. is but one branch of the big syndicate of which the A. E. Co. is another branch, and the construction and operation of the car line will be separate and apart from the mercantile branch of the company's business the same as its mining business is separate from its other interests.

The first and strongest incentive to the company to construct a transportation line of the proposed kind is the fact that it owns on Coal creek, 22 miles up the Klondike river, a vast coal field from which Dawson's fuel supply is certain to come before the elapse of any great amount of time; and, as the franchise already granted to the company by parliament gives to it permission to construct, operate and maintain a system of railway in Dawson and in the surrounding 50 mile radius a line will be constructed not only to the Coal-creek mines, but branches will also be laid up Bonanza and Hunker creeks and on other creeks if the prospects as to the permanency of the country justify the expenditure. Already the Coal creek, Bonanza and Hunker routes have been surveyed and are partially cleared and with but slight deviation, the lines will be constructed on these routes. The company has well and carefully considered the proposition, a number of the heaviest stockholders, nearly all of whom are wealthy Englishmen, having visited Dawson and looked carefully but quietly over the field during the past summer, and as soon as the working season opens in the late spring, work will be instituted in earnest and during the coming summer in the neighborhood of 50 miles of road on the creeks above mentioned will be constructed, equipped and put in operation at an expense of from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

"Our company realizes," said Mr. Fulda to a Nugget representative this morning, "that to place our coal on the market, it must be sold in Dawson at the price or even less than it now

RESULTS ACCOMPLISHED.

It is a noticeable fact that very few cases of ill treatment of dogs have occurred of late. The organization of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has exerted a moral effect sufficiently strong to bring about a marked change. Most men who on occasion will abuse a dumb animal do so rather from thoughtlessness or as a result of momentary impatience, rather than through any natural cruelty. In such cases it requires, ordinarily, nothing more than moral suasion of a very mild type to induce the wrong-doer to turn from the error of his way.

The wide-spread publication of the facts with reference to the organization of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been sufficient in itself to accomplish the very best of results. It has served as a reminder to those who might be inclined to ill-treat the animals which serve them so faithfully that possible prosecution is before them, with the effect of reducing offences of this nature to a minimum.

The suggestion of vesting the officers of the society with special constabulary authority will, if carried out, serve to add to the efficiency of the work which the organization has already accomplished. There are always certain cases where moral suasion is of little or no avail. There are some men who respond to no influence aside from absolute compulsion. They observe laws when they are compelled to and on no other occasions. For the proper treatment of such cases, a reasonable degree of authority may well be placed in the society. There need be little fear that such authority would be abused and the influence which such action would give the organization in successfully carrying out its mission are too obvious to require comment.

"LA BELLE'S" BOOK.

"The Scarlet Life of Dawson" is the title of a volume from the pen of La Belle Brooks-Vincent, whose somewhat thorny experiences in Dawson are well remembered by everyone who was in the country two years ago. The book as a whole is a tissue of exaggerations and a travesty, so far as the portrayal of actual conditions in Dawson is considered.

Whatever justice there may have been in Mrs. Vincent's complaint of ill-treatment received in Dawson, the reader who is informed concerning the other subjects of which she treats, must certainly look askance at the whole narrative. According to the pictures drawn by the voracious La Belle, the ancient cities of Sodom and Gomorrah in the very heyday of their youth could not approach Dawson in respect to downright original sin, either in quality or quantity.

The average "sour dough" who reads the book will wonder how so many deeply interesting and highly fascinating incidents could have occurred in the town without his knowledge.

The only explanation that can be advanced must be a tribute to the fair La Belle's power of imagination.

Some time ago we advanced the suggestion that original ideas are anything but a leading feature of our contemporary, the News. We are prepared now to admit an exception. In last night's issue of the News appeared a learned discussion of Yukon weather in the course of which was the following: "Everybody dresses in winter for winter weather, and in summer for summer weather." Now here, indeed, is discovered a profundity of wisdom and a depth of discriminative power which is marvelous to behold. We take it all back. The News has been illumined with an original idea, the scintillating glimmers of which will go glimmering down through the ages. Centuries hence we can imagine how seekers for examples of "classic but primer" English will turn to the files of the Daily News and read therein the fact that way up in the neighborhood of the north pole in this closing year of the nineteenth century, "Everybody dresses in winter for winter weather, and in summer for summer weather."

Yes, the News, for once at least, has conceived an original idea.

Dawson is well supplied with clubs and other social organizations and a season of lively social events is already assured. No matter how low the mercury may drop, it detracts nothing from the joys of the dance.

The Tramp Printer.

In the morning he used to sit humped over the primer case throwing in a handful. When the editor came to work it was customary for the others in the shop to show the editor some obeisance; the foreman to walk to the editorial desk with the proof of an ad; the job printer to hammer busily with the planer on the form of a "Rooms to Rent" card, which was ever being made ready for the press; two lean compositors to shake their cases as though they had been working for hours; the cub to change legs on the job press and clatter the throw-off with more business than a bird pup. But the tourist—the typographical tourist—at the primer case paid no homage to rank; made no unmanly, obsequious demonstrations before potentates and powers. He kept on rattling the type in their boxes as though nothing had happened. After a whispered dialogue between the foreman and the editor explaining the stranger's presence, it was the editorial privilege to approach the throne.

If it was winter, the editor might saunter out to the stove and back up to it with palms outstretched. Then he was permitted by the tourist to ask: "Where are you from?"

After receiving a reply, the editor was expected to ask:

"Well, how's work there?"

To this the answer required by an unwritten, yet inviolable law of the craft, was:

"Damn rotten."

Thereafter the editor might resume his work, or inquire about old friends, or take up the regular order or proceed to unfinished business, for the tramp printer had been duly and formally installed and the opening services were closed. To the layman all this pomp and circumstance in welcoming the tourist may seem empty and idle.

Yet the arrival of the tramp printer at the country office 20 years ago meant to the craftsmen there what the return of Lentulus with victorious legion meant to Capua; what the delegation from the grand lodge, ready to give out the new password and exemplify the work, means to the brethren; what the visit of an ordaining bishop to convey the apostolic succession means to churchmen, and what the coming of a new star means to an astronomer.

For the tramp printer brought the light into dark places. If there was a new ink-reducer in vogue, the tramp knew it, and could make it. He showed the foreman how to set the disc of the jobber, and print in colors. The tramp could make paste that would never sour, and tableting glue that would stick and neither crack nor melt in all eternity. He could whittle out a line of wood letter, or make slugs. He could tie a string to the end of a folder table and cut two folios from a quarto as fast as the "devil" could fold. He could make rollers that would print a hair line of script, or bring out the dapple in the flanks of the iron-gray stallion for the livery stable job.

He could cut out reprint with his rule for the copy book when the old man was away, and he could go to the nonpariel case and set up a piece of poetry for the first column from memory. He was a guide, philosopher and friend to the editor. And in the

A Statement of Facts

William Shakespeare in all probability was the greatest student of human nature known in the world's history. When he wrote the few words: "The coat doth off' proclaim the man;" he said more than can be found in many sermons. The well dressed man is the successful man, and his clothing is a reflection of his prosperity. A man is never poor who is well dressed, for he has credit in the opinion of the onlookers. back room he revived the world, the flesh and the devil.

Peter B. Lee, "Old Slugs" Biggsby, whether have they gone? Those old-style faces, with the hair lines all over them, with their condensed Gothic noses, with their wrong-foot eyes, with their mouths blacksmithed full of fine-cut to justify with their double pica cheeks. Poor old typographical errors; they were cast before the days of the point system, and they have been thrown into the hellbox of oblivion.

Yet they did their work well. They fulfilled their mission in the world. The tramp printer's labor-saving devices, perfected and carried to their ultimate conclusions, have become great inventions of this printing craft. Archimedes said if he had a proper lever he would move the world. The lazy tramp printer who first rolled a cylinder over a form of types had found the Archimedean lever.

That lever has moved the world farther in a century than it had moved before in a thousand years. Its unknown inventor was as surely inspired, was as surely working a divine purpose toward man as he who chiseled the law upon the stone at Sinai. For that printer's lever has twisted away the scepters of kings and has put royal power into the hands of the people. That lever has pruned the world from ignorant selfishness to intelligent human brotherhood.

The tramp printer, whose humble habitation has become a mechanical sanctuary in a score of years, is a lowly instrument with which to do miracles. But so was poor, blind Bartimeus. Miracles are not done with princes.—Emporia Gazette.

Moon Views From the Grant Tomb.

Persons of romantic temperament have discovered that the best place in New York from which to watch the moon rising in the east is the porch of General Grant's tomb. Standing, as it does, away from all other buildings, at the highest part of the Riverside drive, with the beautiful Hudson river flowing softly along a hundred feet below, the noble edifice in which lies the hero is as full of poetical charm as the Alhambra itself. As the moon rises one can see the rays touching column after column of the mausoleum, throwing into deeper shadow the recesses and giving the whole building an ethereal aspect which is strikingly beautiful. Young couples who are strolling along the drive make it a point to go up to the tomb to watch the moon rise, and the idea is becoming so popular that the charm of solitude at least has certainly departed.—New York Letter in Pittsburg Dispatch.

His Supposition.

A philanthropic lady of Pacific Heights, one of the sort of superior slum raisers shown up in "Fables in Slang," met on one of her tours a little boy who was swearing roundly. She seized him at once and gave him a good shaking, adding: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself! I never heard such language since the day I was born!" The boy into whose desolate home she had just been bringing light pulled himself loose. "Yes'm," he said, "I s'pose dere was a good deal o' cussin' de day you was born."—San Francisco Wave.

He Took the Hint.

"It is my aim in life," he said, "to make men happier."
"Why not women?" she asked.—Chicago Post.

California Oil Wells.

A letter received from California by the last mail speaks in glowing terms of the rosyate hues of the state's prospects, owing to the recent extensive discoveries there of oil fields.

The writer, who is well posted in the history of commercial interests in the state says that many fortunes have been made there since the discoveries became extensive, and that California must naturally now take a foremost place in the manufacturing world, which has, up to the present time been barred against it by the high price of fuel.

The Weather.

The early winter weather record was broken last night when the official instrument at the barracks marked 52 below zero. Cheap thermometers around town registered all the way from 50 to 60 below last night, but in most cases they froze up and retired from business soon after passing the 45 mark.

Riot With Negroes.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 6.—A riot occurred in the third election district of Wilmington this morning. The district has a large negro vote. The officers were nearly half an hour late in opening the polls, and they found about 100 negroes assembled in line waiting to vote. As the doors opened they saw a white man, James McHugh, who had gotten in ahead of them, attempting to vote. This infuriated them, and, rushing in, they assaulted McHugh and the inspector, James Dugan, cutting both seriously. Policeman Sheer was also cut in attempting to restore order. The negroes destroyed the booth, and the registration books disappeared in the melee. Elsewhere the election was quiet in the city.

Philippine Campaign.

New York, O Nov. 6.—Secretary Root found it necessary some days ago to issue special instruction to Major-General MacArthur, governor general of the Philippines, regarding the conduct of the campaign in Luzon, says a Washington dispatch to the Herald. These instructions were due to dissatisfaction over the successful operations of the Filipinos. Gen. MacArthur's policy was to scatter the troops over a wide range of territory, carrying out in this way the policy initiated by Gen. Otis. Filipinos assembled in sufficiently large numbers to make vigorous assaults upon American garrisons, who in some instances suffered distinct reverses.

The war department is understood to have directed Gen. MacArthur to prevent further successful operations by collecting his troops in sufficient force to destroy any bands with which they may come in conflict. No important insurgent operations have occurred for some days, and it is believed the execution is responsible for this.

Gen. MacArthur's friends say he is handicapped by the absence of troops in China, but the Fourteenth infantry left Taku on Saturday for Manila. Other regiments will follow and Gen. MacArthur will have about 70,000 men with whom to inaugurate against the insurgents.

DAVIS TALKS AT HIS HOME

A Dawson Property Owner Regales His Friends.

With His Views of the Klondike and Her Past, Present and Future—Will Return.

Joseph Davis who owns the Bank Saloon and Cafe building, corner First avenue and Third street, and who left here with his family to spend the winter in his old home in Helena, Montana, has been interviewed by the Herald of that city, which says:

Judge Joseph Davis, former chief of police of Helena, Mrs. Davis and their youngest daughter, Flora Louise, arrived this afternoon from Dawson City, and are at the Helena. Judge Davis expects to remain in Helena with his family through the winter, but will return to Dawson next summer. He sold out some of his mining and realty interests there, but retained part of his property, and will return to Dawson when the summer mining season opens. The judge and his family left Dawson September 21, going up the river by boat to Whitehorse rapids, and from there to Skagway by railroad. They arrived at Seattle a week ago. Louis and "Tip" Judge Davis' sons, remained at Seattle, from where they will go in a few days to San Francisco. From that city they will leave soon on a trip around the world. They will all across the Pacific, finally arriving at New York, from where they will come to Helena.

Life in the far north appears to have agreed with Judge Davis, who is looking stronger than when he went away. Judge Davis left Helena, August 5, 1897, and arrived at Dawson after the hardships that accompanied the trip before the railroad had been built, or the line of boats put on the river. He immediately engaged in business, and prospered, acquiring considerable property in Dawson, and a number of good claims in the district tributary to the camp.

"They told me that I would starve," said Judge Davis to a friend this afternoon, "but I got through that first winter all right, and have had no reason to regret since that I went north. What do I think of Dawson?" repeated Judge Davis. "I think it is all right. There are now about 14,000 persons in the camp. I believe it will be pretty dull there this winter, owing to the fact that many of the larger concerns have abandoned winter mining, so operations may be conducted in the summer much cheaper. I do not expect to mine myself this winter for the same reason. The fact that many of the mines will be closed down will make things a little dull.

"The placer mines of the Klondike have by no means been worked out. I should say that the developed mines alone of the district will hold out two or three years. It is but a question of time, in my opinion, when quartz mining will be carried on extensively. At present there have been no quartz mines developed to any material extent, but we all believe that the ledges exist and that they will be developed some day.

"It's a pleasure trip from Seattle to the Klondike now," added Judge Davis. "There are no hardships to undergo, and one who cares for scenery, certainly gets plenty of it either way. When we walked in we didn't have time to appreciate the scenery, but it's different now."

A Sharp Trick.
New York, Nov. 6.—Honduras, says a Washington dispatch to the Herald, has played a sharp trick on the Pears brothers, in whose behalf the United States has been endeavoring to collect an indemnity of $10,000 for the murder of their brother, Frank Pears, in February, 1899.

Several months ago Honduras proposed to pay $5,000, if this sum would be satisfactory to the United States, but Secretary Hay decided that it was not sufficient, and reiterated his demand for the satisfaction of the entire claim. The latest demand was taken under consideration by the Honduras government. A few days ago the department was informed by Honduras that the Pears brothers were not in sympathy with its efforts to obtain indemnity, and that they had entered into negotiations with her for a time for a concession which she had finally refused to grant.

This action of the Pears brothers is decidedly embarrassing to the State department. The department is not pressing the claim for indemnity entirely for the benefit of the Pears brothers. It is deemed advisable in the interest of future protection of American life and property in Honduras that that government should be taught not to permit the death of Americans and the escape of their murderers. It is likely, therefore, that another demand will be made for a settlement of the claim.

Early Temperance Society.

The increase of drunkenness in many parts of the United States led to the formation of societies intended to counteract this evil, and, as American intemperance was mainly the result of dram drinking, a pledge against the use of spirits was adopted. The movement spread to this country, and the British and Foreign Temperance Society was formed on that basis, and many local societies came into existence in 1829 and 1830. In the latter year the government passed the mischievous beer bill, and before the end of the year 24,000 beerhouses were licensed. "Everybody is drunk," wrote Sydney Smith; "those who are not singing are in a beastly state." The natural result was an increase of drunkenness, and those who had engaged in the crusade against spirits had to face the obvious facts that people drank. Hence a new pledge against all intoxicants was introduced. The abstainers were zealous propagandists, and after a time the temperance societies that adhered to the cold anti-spirit platform died out or adopted the more thoroughgoing basis, and the temperance movement became what it is today—a crusade against all intoxication.

The only exceptions are the Church of England Temperance Society and some other sectarian organizations, established at a much later date, which have a "dual basis"—one section of "total abstainers," desirous of promoting temperance. The earliest instance known to me of the use of the word temperance is the title of the Young People's Temperance Society of Hector, in the state of New York, formed August 22, 1829, whose pledge is against "intoxicating liquor."—Notes and Queries.

A HUMAN LIFE.

A ship that throbs along in dire distress
Till lost in oceans of forgetfulness.
A tangle of sweet flowers, whose petals turn
To ash of unfulfillment in an urn.
A wisp of tangled threads, whose parted ends
No deft hand joins, no endless effort mends.
A play whose fickle players merely greet
And go and leave the story incomplete.
A bud that opens brilliant at the dawn,
Flings sweet perfume a moment and is gone.
A breath between a cradle and a bier,
The blending of a smile, a sob, a tear.
A book whose pages turn with each new day
Till time has read the tale and cast away.
A mask worn till a passing play is done
To cloak a wrath and hide a skeleton.
A lie, whose ghostly semblance is concealed
Till in a shroud its untruth lies revealed.
A thing that shapes the sod for a brief day
And dies and leaves its faithful slave mere clay.
A story that is told ere 'tis begun,
A song that only whispers and is done.
A thing that chains the lightnings and that str
The deep, the elements its messengers.
Lord of the sea and sky, a ruler proud
That quakes at storms and trembles at a cloud.
That comes and goes on wings unseen, a germ
That grows to fill a grave and feed a worm.

LOG JAMS.

The Force They Exert and How They Are Broken Up.

"A log jam is one of the most formidable problems we have to encounter in our line of business," said a Mississippi lumberman. "How they begin is difficult to explain. A few dozen logs will become wedged for an instant in a narrow part of a stream and in less time than it takes me to tell it hundreds of others will come swooping down and pack themselves in an intricate, close knit span, reaching from bank to bank, and almost as solid as a rock. The force they exert is something marvelous. During one jam in my section I saw a lot of logs plunge under the edge of the blockade, and a few seconds later they pushed their way up through the very middle of the pack, tossing timbers as big around as a man's waist into the air like so many toothpicks. The noise they made as they drove through the mass was simply deafening. It sounded as if the solid earth was being torn up by its foundations. When the logs passed under the jam, they were evidently caught in such a way as to still further obstruct the imprisoned stream and were hurled upward with all the irresistible energy of millions of gallons of rushing water.

"The breaking of a jam is a very ticklish operation and seems to be largely a matter of instinct with old rivermen. The lines and angles of strain in such a blockade are so complicated that the best engineer in the world is apt to go wrong in indicating the proper point of attack. A veteran lumberman, on the contrary, will often take a long look at the mass and then point out the 'key log.' The key log is the timber on which the strain centers, and when it is blown out or pried out, the pack, in almost every instance, will break up of itself. I had an old fellow in my employ a few years ago who could locate a key log nine times out of ten. He couldn't read or write, knew nothing about engineering and was unable to explain how he arrived at his conclusions. He said it 'came kinder nach'ral.'" — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SHAKESPEAREAN PARTS.

The Melancholy Dane is the Longest of Them All.

The longest part in any Shakespearean play is Hamlet, who is before the audience almost constantly. Hamlet is a constant talker, and it is surprising that in the circumstances he says so many wise things. He has to his share 1,569 lines. Richard III is another long part, as the character speaks 1,161 lines, and next comes Iago, with 1,117 lines. Henry V has 1,063 lines.

One would suppose from seeing the representation or from looking over the play that Othello had more lines than Iago, but it is not the case, for the valiant Moor has only 888 lines. Coriolanus has 886, the Duke in "Measure for Measure" 880 and Timon 883. Antony in "Antony and Cleopatra" does not seem a very long part judging by the appearance of the prompt book, but in reality he has 830 lines.

Brutus in "Julius Caesar" has 727, Falstaff in "Henry V" 719. Macbeth appears a long part judging from how much he is on the stage in the representation, but in fact he has only 705 lines. Romeo has 618, which is only a few more than the King in "Hamlet," who has 551. Cassius in "Julius Caesar," although a first class part, has but 507 lines.

The female parts in Shakespeare's plays are not very long. The actress who plays Portia has 589 lines to study. Rosalind has 749. Cleopatra has 670 and Juliet 541. Desdemona has only 389. Beatrice has 309. Only 20 of Shakespeare's women have more than 300 lines each, and some of the most famous of the great bard's feminine creations have comparatively little to say. Cordelia in "King Lear" has only 115 lines. Kate in "Taming of the Shrew," although so conspicuous and voluble, has but 229, while Lady Macbeth has but 211.—Baltimore American.

Girouard Said Nit.

The day that Councilman Girouard left he made a statement to the effect that his business at Ottawa was not, as was stated in the Nugget, in connection with the O'Brien claim for reimbursement of money expended on the tram.

Last night at the council meeting, however, it came out that his business at Ottawa, in part, at least, was precisely what it was stated to be in the Nugget report at the time.

THE PRESENT FOGGY WEATHER

Believed to be the Cause of Considerable Sickness.

Is Supposed to Come From Open Places in the River—More Dense This Year Than Last.

How to account for the prevalence of the heavy, damp fog which for several days past has hung like a pall over Dawson is a question which several people who have nothing more important with which to occupy their minds are discussing and endeavoring to explain. Those who were here last winter all agree that the fog now is much more heavy, damp, and disagreeable than was that of last year when it only prevailed when the mercury went under 40 degrees below zero. Now, even at 25 below, the fog is so dense as to be impenetrable for more than a few rods.

One theory advanced, and it is probably the proper one, is that in the immediate vicinity of Dawson there are more open places in the river this year than last and that the damp vapor arises therefrom and will continue to arise all winter or until the open places freeze over. The open space which many supposed would remain open during the winter, has closed up by solidly freezing over. However, there is a large area of open water near Moosehide on the north and another large open area a short distance above Klondike City on the south. From these open places dense volumes of fog persistently roll heavenward, and, no matter whether the wind is from the north or south, this fog is blown directly over the city. Last year the only open water in the vicinity was near Moosehide, and the only times it then enveloped the city was during the most severe weather and when the wind was blowing from the north.

There is a general belief for which there is every apparent ground, that the prevalence of so much sickness in the city at present, hard colds and cases of pneumonia, are due entirely to the presence of the heavy and damp fog, for never before in the history of Dawson has there been so much sickness at this season of the year and such general prevalence of severe colds, many of which border on pneumonia and other lung complications.

There is no doubt but that if, when the river closed it had made a more complete job of it than it did, the winter would be much more pleasant as well as healthful to the residents of Dawson.

Is Cold all Over.

Mr. G. P. Wells, the expert engineer and machinist who has charge of the machinery department of the A. E. Co., is not in love with Dawson winters, having spent much of his life in Southern California.

"Where the orange distills its perfume And the rose speaks of love and of light."

Mr. Wells denies that he has cold feet. He does not stop at that; he is cold all over and that is why he is arranging to start for the outside at an early date. He will first go to California to visit his people, after which he will make a trip through the east in the interests of the machinery department of the A. E. Co., selecting and purchasing a stock for next season.

The Call Was Misunderstood.

A story which has not yet become frayed at the edges was being told by a Dawson man yesterday who said it had come to him in a letter. The yarn runs this way: "A man who had been afflicted with a strange feeling of apathy from early youth, and who had often wondered at his antipathy to work, often spending hours laboring with himself mentally in an effort to convince himself that labor was a good thing, was plowing in a field one day when he became filled with a desire to argue the question some more, as he felt the old repugnance growing strong within him.

"He hung the lines over the plow handles and in order to facilitate matters, lay down flat on his back and with his hands locked beneath his head fixed his eyes upon the drifting clouds above and began the old battle with himself for the thousandth time.

"After a time he saw plainly the letters 'P. C.' formed by the sailing white clouds above his head, and at once their significance became clear to him. Like the old revolutionary leaders of the United States, he left the plow standing in the furrow and departed out of the fields, but before he had traveled far he met a neighbor whose mind was given to the practical consideration of things, and who asked the man where he was going.

"I have had a call," said he; "I am going to preach the gospel. Do you see those letters there in the heavens. They appeared to me as I lay resting in my field a few minutes ago, and they signify that I have been called to preach Christ."

"Preach nothing!" exclaimed the friend; "I bet you were lying down and letting the plowstand idle. I'll tell you what those letters stand for; they stand for 'plow corn,' and you'd better get a move on you before the season is over," and the man who had been called returned to the plow.

Many Shots Fired.

At a late hour last night as Patrolman McIntosh was making his round on Third avenue he was startled by a number of revolver shots seemingly fired at the rear of Bartlett Bros. building, or from within. The shots were evidently fired from a revolver as they came in too rapid succession to have been fired from any other description of gun.

So far the police have heard nothing of the matter and the affair is a mystery.

DAWSON ELECTRIC.

costs to freight it down with teams and that in order to reduce the cost of transportation we must have cheaper and much more extensive facilities for handling our coal."

Just what power the company will employ in the operation of its system has not as yet been determined upon, but it will probably be electricity.

Regarding the coal property which the construction of the transportation line is intended to develop, it has been proven to the eminent satisfaction of the company that it has an unlimited supply of first-class article of fuel for which there is destined to be at once, or as soon as it can be placed on the market, a heavy and a steady demand, and it is to bring about the development of this vast property on which, in the work of opening up, $125,000 has already been spent, that the railroad will be constructed.

Ordinance No. 6, of 1899, respecting the appointment of commissioners for taking affidavits was amended as follows, the amendment, as a matter of urgency, passing its third reading last night:

1. Section 2 of ordinance No. 6, 1899, being an ordinance "to provide for the appointment of commissioners or taking affidavits," is hereby amended by adding thereto the following words: "And may revoke the commission or commissions of any such persons, and such revocation shall operate as a revocation for all purposes."

2. This ordinance shall be retroactive.

There will be a special meeting of the council Saturday at 3 p. m. for the purpose of reorganizing committees and considering the draft of the game law submitted by Justice Dugas.

COMING AND GOING.

Quite an enjoyable hour was spent at the police canteen last evening by members of the force and their guests.

The council has been petitioned for an exclusive franchise for a tramway to be built around Frazier Falls on the Stewart river.

This morning in arguing a motion for the continuance of a case before Justice Dugas, the opposing council asked that an attorney's fee be fixed by the court. Attorney Wade said he thought he should be entitled to $5.

Sheriff Eilbeck and his son Jack have moved into a cabin at the foot of the hill at the north end of First avenue. Jack's opportunities to make for himself a reputation as a chef are all before him, and his and his father's friends are waiting impatiently for invitations to the Christmas dinner for which it is whispered he is making preparations.

Standard Librarian Horkan's long, narrow, all-utilized-place of business is crowded these days from the front door to the further stool at the west end of the lunch counter which is presided over by specially imported chefs. The alley is the only thing that checked Horkan in his made career as an expansionist.

Yesterday George McMillan smoked his pipe with all the surplus breath he could muster, while he walked from one end of the town to the other. A friend who followed behind carried the bowl of the pipe in his overcoat pocket, but this made no difference to George in the enjoyment of his smoke until he found it out. The stem filled all his requirements.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Business in the police court was quiet this morning, the case of Earl W. Schlecht, who tried to end his life yesterday because he was in love with another man's wife, was before Magistrate McDonnell, but was remanded till this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

This afternoon Miss Nellie Lewis will be given an opportunity to explain how it happened that she was very drunk and so disorderly this morning that her conduct became the object of note; so much so in fact, that a guardian of the law took her to the police station from the Bonanza saloon where her riotous mode of conduct was marked in many ways not in keeping with the peace and dignity of the community.

The Billiard Player.

Wednesday night at the Regina Club billiard tournament two matches were played, the first between Mm. McKay and H. G. Wilson, the latter being handicapped by 60 points. He played 200 points against his opponents 140, and lost with the score standing 140 against 139. The average in this match was 1.64 as against 1.63.

The next match was played between E. C. Senkler and E. B. Condon. Mr. Senkler was to play 160 points against Mr. Condon's 145; being handicapped by 15 points, he won the match with a score of 160 to 78. The average was 1.95 to .95.

Last night two match games were played when Wm. McKay and Dr. Wills were pitted against each other at 140 to 125. McKay won, having scored 140, while the doctor had four to go, the respective averages being 1.75 and 1.53.

The second game was between Judge C. A. Dugas 110, and A. Scott 106. The judge scored his 110 while Scott was endeavoring to pass the 88 mark, the averages being 1.20 and .96.

Six Months for Nichols.

Convict George James Nichols was before Justice Dugas this morning to receive sentence for having escaped Wednesday from the escort.

Nichols was only gone about two hours before he was recaptured, and notwithstanding his tearful plea, he was sentenced to six months imprisonment in addition to the two years he already doing for house breaking.

He said, in his plea for mercy this morning that he had suffered from an intense headache since his arrest, and was half crazy. At that time he went away he did not believe he knew what he was doing.

This afternoon the case of the Queen vs. Clinch, a theft case, is being tried before Justice Craig.
