

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC. 11, 1908.

Editorial Notes.

We omitted last week to make mention of the new serial, 'A Prophet in Babylon,' now running in this paper. The story is a high-class one and of absorbing interest throughout. It is such a story as no one can fail to be benefited by reading, and we feel sure its publication will add very materially to the pleasure and profit of our subscribers.

We wish to call attention to a way which our subscribers can be of assistance to THE ACADIAN. It costs considerable money to issue a newspaper, and money, therefore, is a necessity. On our books a great many small in themselves but the aggregate make a very valuable amount. We have sent a number of accounts recently, and are receiving them as well as indebted will oblige very much making prompt payment.

It is now plainly apparent that an individual at present residing in this town, who hitherto has devoted his spare moments to scribbling long personal items for neighboring journals and other literary work of like merit, has secured free entry to the editorial columns of the Western Chronicle, of Kentville. His references to THE ACADIAN are evidently not intended to be regarded as complimentary. We have devoted some attention to looking into the past record of this facile scribe and will have something of interest to communicate concerning him anon.

Some years ago the Wolfville Board of Trade made an effort to have a letter-box provided at the railway station here, but for some unknown reason their undertaking failed of accomplishment. We are inclined to believe that the matter was not entrusted to skillful hands at that time, and beg to suggest that another attempt be made. The providing of this convenience would be very much appreciated by business men especially, and there is no reason why it should not be furnished. Such towns in the valley as Digby, Annapolis, Middleton and Kentville have enjoyed this privilege for some time, and certainly Wolfville has just as reasonable a claim. Let another effort be put forth.

Not a little interest is being manifested in the query as to whom is to be Wolfville's new post-master. It is understood that there are more than a few who are hungrily looking for the position. If the interest of the public were the supreme issue we do not see how better could be done than to appoint Mr. A. V. Rand as the successor of his worthy father. Mr. Rand has had a splendid training for the work and would be an admirable post-master. The suggestion is especially reasonable because not many years ago a number of citizens who now ought to have influence with the government of the day circulated a petition which was largely signed, asking for his appointment in view of a possible vacancy.

It is stated in the press, that any person who does not hold a University degree can not hereafter be principal of a County Academy in this Province. This regulation, which is announced in the October Journal of Education, has been decided upon by the Council of Public Instruction on the recommendation of the Advisory Board and will have a far reaching effect on the High School work of the Province. For many years the highest work done by the County Academies had been overlapping the first work of the universities and henceforth this overlapping will cease. This practically brings the Provincial Universities into the public school system. Ontario has Provincial University of her own and requires University degrees for a head master's license, but apart from this Nova Scotia is the only Province that has adopted such a regulation.

The forty fifth annual convention of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association is to be held at Middleton next week. The meeting begins on Monday at a o'clock in Morrison's Hall, and there will be three sessions on Tuesday, closing at noon on Wednesday. W. T. Mason, of the Central Experimental Farm Staff, Principal Canning, Prof. Smith and Prof. Shaw, of the Nova Scotia College of Agriculture, will be present at the meetings. The commercial side of fruit growing will be a strong feature. R. J. Grabau, of Stellville, Ont., Howard Digby, of Halifax, the managers of co-operative associations, and Dominion Fruit Inspectors, are expected to take part in these discussions. Tuesday evening will be given to a popular music meeting addressed by the Lieutenant Governor and other prominent public men. All interested in fruit growing are invited to attend and assist in making the convention profitable.

Beware of Frequent Colds.

A succession of colds or a protracted cold is almost certain to end in chronic catarrh, from which few persons ever wholly recover. Give every cold the attention it deserves and you may avoid this disagreeable disease. How can you see a cold? Why not try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy? It is highly recommended by Dr. M. W. White, of Butler, Tennessee. Several years ago I was bothered with my throat and lungs. Someone told me of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I began using it and it relieved me at once. Now I cannot get my colds and coughs. For sale by Rand's Drug Store.

Conception of Life and Death.

Dr. Charles Minot, of Harvard, who has just written a book on the problem of longevity, says that we have very little information that is satisfactory from a scientific point of view. There seems to be a fundamental principle that every animal should live long enough to reproduce its species, and that there is some relation between the age of a species and its prolificacy; but the hypothesis that reproduction is the cause of the termination of life does not necessarily follow. There is another general rule, as, for example, the elephant. But there are many exceptions to this principle, for parrots sometimes live to be a hundred, while a dog is old at fifteen. There are insects which live for many years, like the seventeen-year locusts, and there are other insects of the same size whose lifetime occupies only a few months. A recent theory is that advanced by Weismann, which is to the effect that the duration of life is governed by the extent to which the body is used, that an active species is shortened than one of lethargic temperament, because the body really wears out. Dr. Minot disputes this, and shows that at death all parts of the body, however, reveal a cell change in the body. The living material, having acquired its differentiation, passes now in one part, now in another, then in a third, to a yet further stage, that of degeneration. The result of degeneration or atrophy, as the case may be, is that the once living protoplasm loses its vital quality, and becomes dead material; and necessarily the functional activity ceases. In our author's judgment, therefore, the duration of life depends upon the rate of this mysterious process called cell change, or cytomorphosis.

The problem is to retard cell-change. Dr. Minot is not able to offer a solution, but he does not hesitate to criticize the theories of Metchnikoff, Osler, and others. Dr. Osler's ideas on the subject are pretty well summed up in the phrase, 'A man is as old as his arteries,' and perhaps most doctors agree that the prime cause of senility is the hardening of the walls of the arteries. This condition, called arterial sclerosis, interferes directly with the circulation, and thus every function of the body is affected. In the old, many alterations can be traced to the natural changes in the arteries, by which these acquire hardened and inelastic walls that prevent the proper response of the artery to the heart beat, upon which the normal, healthy circulation largely depends. This undoubted condition has led many to declare sclerosis of the arteries the initial factor in senility.

Prof. Metchnikoff says that our bodies suffer from what he calls 'disarrangements,' by which he means the imperfect adaptation of the structures within us to the performance of the functions of the body as a whole. The most prominent of these 'disarrangements' is that of intestinal fermentation poisoning the system. The Metchnikoff theory is that certain cells go to work upon the poisoned parts and cause still further damage. These cannibalistic cells are called phagocytes, and are held responsible for grey hair, and the red pigment, which would otherwise have remained in the hair, having located, as he believes, the real internal enemies to long life. Prof. Metchnikoff gave to the world what he believed was a still more powerful agent of benevolent tendencies—sour milk. The lactic acid, he holds, and with him agree such other noted investigators as the German Biologist, and the Italian Kovighi, prevents intestinal fermentation, and thus the copious drinking of sour milk is offered as a substitute for Ponce de Leon's fabled spring.

Dr. Minot has no admiration for the sour milk cure. He considers it merely as an optimistic substitute for the various forms of philosophy and religion which many millions of people have found healthy in their declining years. Another odd theory as to the fundamental nature of the senility is that advanced by a Russian, Prof. Muhlmann. He notes respiration in connection with the production of warmth in a child's body, and in the body of an adult, and finds that the diminution of surface in proportion to the bulk of the body is characteristic of the old. His view is that as we get old we do not have surface enough left, and the implication is that if we maintained the stature of pignoles we should live longer. This theory, as well as the others that have been offered so far, seems more or less fantastic to Dr. Minot.

He condemns them all because they spring from the common assumption that senility is a disease, and death a terror to be avoided at any cost. He insists that death is not a curse, but an inseparable condition to the highest blessings we enjoy. Death is not a universal accompaniment of life. In many of the lower organisms death is not the inevitable end. When it occurs, it is due to some accident, some external cause. Our existing science, according to Dr. Minot, teaches us that death has been acquired in the course of evolution. If in the past we are obliged to pay for our complex organization, for the differentiation that has been carried so far in the human race.

The street authorities have had a each basin placed on Bonanza street, which should be a great improvement as during past winters this street has been flooded during nearly every freshet.

Father Morrissey is Missed.

THE KINDLY MINISTRATIONS OF THE FIRST PHYSICIAN WILL LONG BE REMEMBERED.

One man departed this life in March last who is sadly missed—a man whose place there is none worthy to fill. There is none like him.

Father Morrissey was a saintly man. He lived with only one thought and purpose—to do good and promote the happiness of his fellows. His time—his talents—his goods were at the disposal of anyone who needed them. White man or Indian, Catholic or Protestant, Christian or heathen, all were welcome to his services at all times.

Goodness was his most striking characteristic. It was as George Eliot says, 'a sweet habit of the blood.' It bubbled up in his heart, sparkled in his eye, shone from his face, and fell from his lips in kindly counsel to all who sought his advice.

A great physician was lost to the profession when Mr. Morrissey took orders. Ignorant or thoughtless persons speak of his 'marvellous' cures, but there was nothing marvellous about his success as a physician. He succeeded by the same methods as other physicians. His medical training was as thorough as that of most (the studied medicine as well as theology at Rome) and in addition, he had the keen insight of the born physician. His power of diagnosis was remarkable, and so was his knowledge of the curative properties of herbs and balsams, of which most of his remedies were compounded, though, when necessary, he used the most expensive drugs.

So effective were his treatments that his fame spread throughout Canada, as far as far west as Vancouver, and even from the Western States, people came to him after being given up by other physicians, and were cured.

Personally Father Morrissey was the most congenial of companions, never ruffled and always pleased to welcome to his hospitable home those whom he loved to call his friends. His modesty was excessive, and nothing displeased him more than to have his own merits the subject of conversation. He always steadfastly refused to take any remuneration for his medical services, ever when most strongly pressed to do so, but helped and cured for the love of R. Truly, there was none like him.

EXPERIENCE IS BETTER THAN ARGUMENT

The world-wide fame of Mother Seigel's Syrup is based on the evidence of men and women whom it has cured of indigestion, biliousness, constipation, headaches, sleeplessness, flatulency, nervous depression, anemia, and other diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Compounded of roots and herbs, Mother Seigel's Syrup contains digestive ferments and gentle tonics for the stomach, liver and kidneys. These qualities render it invaluable to all who, through an unhealthy nervous system, sedentary occupation, worry, overwork, or climatic changes, lack the vitality or strength to enjoy life. It is the only good food, well digested, can supply. When you are tormented with indigestion, so that you can't eat, can't work, can't think, can't sleep, you should at once give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial. Tens of thousands of people testify to the curative qualities possessed by Mother Seigel's Syrup because it has cured them. Frods by their experience!

Here is some proof:—Mr. Charles Butterworth, Mahon, Inverness Co., N.B., writing on August 15th, 1896, says: 'About eighteen months ago I took a severe cold, while at work near Marble Mountain, C.B. I neglected my health, and my system became deranged. I had frequent headaches, a rattling cough and a sore side. While visiting a friend at Lake Umbagog, I was induced to take Mother Seigel's Syrup. In a short time my cough vanished, and apart from obtaining a cure, I increased my weight by thirty pounds.'

Price, 50 cts. a bottle. Sold everywhere. A. J. White & Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Where there is suffering from piles, Zam-Buk should be applied! There is no other cure!

Our Readers Should Note These Cases. Zam-Buk should be applied! There is no other cure!

The best is that in practically all cases of piles where the use of Zam-Buk is persevered with complete cure—not mere relief—is the result.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, of 253 Hochelaga Street, Hochelaga, Montreal, says:—I suffered from blind, itching, and protruding piles for years.

It hampered me, the burning, smarting pain, the throbbing, the aching, the overpowering feelings of dulness and dark despair which this ailment brings, the shooting spasms of agony—all were so terrible that only sufferers from this awful ailment can understand!

But as this case was, Zam-Buk tri-umphed, and Mrs. Hughes says:—I needed a little perseverance with Zam-Buk certainly, but in the end it cured!

Mrs. E. Boxall, of Scott Street, St. Thomas, says:—For months without cessation I endured great pain from bleeding piles. For as many months I tried everything which I thought would give me ease, but in the end, disappointed and still suffering, I gave it up.

Then it was she heard of Zam-Buk and she adds:—Although I feared Zam-Buk would be like the ordinary remedies—useless—I am glad it was not. It soon proved itself to be very different. It rapidly gave me relief, and after a time complete cure was effected. I would like to let all sufferers from piles know what a grand thing Zam-Buk is.

So one could go on quoting cases and it is by working such cures that Zam-Buk has earned for itself its great reputation.

Now if you suffer from this terrible painful ailment, just be guided by the foregoing cases!

For internal piles melt a little Zam-Buk and thoroughly soak a wad, made of clean but old linen. Then apply to the part. If the piles are external, application of Zam-Buk is still more simple. Do it upon retiring. Next morning you will be well satisfied!

Zam-Buk is a cure also for colds, sores, and chapped cracked hands, ulcers, festering sores, blood-poisoning, eczema, bad leg, ring worm, scap, sores, scalds, and all skin diseases and injuries.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c a box, or may be obtained direct free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price 1/2 boxes for $1.25.

You are warned, however, against cheap and dangerous imitations sometimes offered as being 'just as good.'

Gold medals have been awarded for the exhibit of British Columbia apples, the Nova Scotia Government collection of fruit, and the Ontario Government's collection of fruit, at the Colonial Fruit Exhibition, London.

Medals were also awarded to P. A. Parker, Berwick, apples; W. H. Woodworth, Berwick, apples; H. A. Blanchard, Upper Dyke, apples; J. H. Cox, Cambridge, apples; H. D'Almeida, Wolfville, apples; E. A. Archibald, Wolfville, apples; R. S. Eaton, Kentville, apples.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy.

On this recent Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountain shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing cough, and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It is with perfect freedom given to even the youngest babe. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by A. V. Rand.

Muscular Pains Cured. 'During the summer of 1903 I was troubled with muscular pains in the instep of my foot,' says Mr. E. P. Foster, of Toronto, Ont. 'As time went on, the pains increased, and I was unable to walk. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was recommended to me, and I tried it, and was completely cured by one small bottle. I have since recommended it to several of my friends, all of whom speak highly of it.' For sale by Rand's Drug Store.

Her Skin was Blotchy.

Sealey likes pimples covered her face and ruined her complexion.

A Speedy Cure. 'When my skin had always been so clear and ruddy, I found it very mortifying to see pesty and pimply patches coming over my face,' writes Mrs. S. T. Ungerer, a well-known resident of Wheeling.

'Great red blotches came on my chin, grew dry and scalded off. I think at such was at fault. Certainly my blood was poor because my lips were white and I had unpleasant fullness and ringing in the ears.

Noticing in the papers such strong recommendations for Ferrone as a blood and strengthening medicine, I decided to use it. From the first tab I took there was an improvement. I felt better and had such a good appetite, improved in color and the rosy flush slowly returned to my cheeks. Finally the blotches began to leave and the skin grew soft and smooth. I have gained some in weight, look the picture of health and feel as if I had never been ill.'

There is no nourishing tonic so sure to build up and strengthen as Ferrone. It contains concentrated...

well-known system with the elements it lacks. Health, vigor, happiness—these are the direct results of using Ferrone regularly.

Warships Travel Slowly.

The reason of this is not want of power to go faster, but a question of fuel. The difference in consumption of fuel between say, twenty knots and ten knots speed is extraordinary.

is due to the greatly increased resistance of the water at high speeds. For instance, a torpedo-boat can steam ten knots an hour with only 110 horsepower, but to do double that speed, she must use 1,100 horsepower. In the case of a first class cruiser it takes five times as much power to drive her at twenty as it does at ten knots, and an Atlantic liner will require at least seven times as much power for the higher as for the lower speed. In the water of coal it is found that covering sixteen knots in an hour a vessel will consume ten times as much as covering eight knots. Consequently, a warship doing a long voyage at her best speed would need five or six times as much coal as she would burn on the same voyage at a lower speed.

TEMPERANCE AND PROHIBITION.

In his speech in the House of Commons on the English License Bill, the Hon. David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of Exchequer, said: 'Wherever you get those poor creatures gathered together whose brains are shattered, wherever you find human beings huddled together in loathsome squalor and wretchedness; wherever you find men living in conditions of vice and crime... drink is the prime agency in the creation of all this unsightly mass of pain and degradation; and I say this Government would fall subject in its duty if, through any base fear of any force or combination of forces, it were to shrink from doing all in its power to cut out from the social organism this most malignant growth that drains the vitality of the nation.'

This is an utterance worthy of a real statesman, and reveals the high moral purpose animating many of the men, the number of which steadily increases, who have exposed the great temperance reform.

Arctic and Antarctic explorers have alcoholic liquors. The British Antarctic expedition, undertaking explorations in South Polar regions, in charge of Lieutenant Shackleton, of the British navy, is a strictly abstinent expedition. A London paper, commenting on the supplies for the long and perilous voyage, says: 'A most interesting point is Lieutenant Shackleton's firm determination to carry no alcohol, save a very small quantity for strictly medical purposes, and that to be administered by the medical officer alone, and that under most exceptional circumstances only. He knows well the danger resulting from the use of alcohol, and that under most exceptional circumstances only. He knows well the danger resulting from the use of alcohol, and that under most exceptional circumstances only. He knows well the danger resulting from the use of alcohol, and that under most exceptional circumstances only.'

Records have been recently published in Savannah showing that colic was raised and manufactured in the neighborhood of that city as early as the year 1748 in sufficient quantities to be subject of official notice.
