DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF HANTSPORT AND VICINITY

HANTSPORT HAPPENINGS

Mr. John Dunlop, a recent graduate of Exeter College, Oxford, arrived in Hantsport last week and will spend the holidays at the home of his mother, Mrs. McCaughin, Prince street. Mr. Dunlop received his B.A. at Exeter College. In the School of Juris Prudence he received the degree of B.C.L. with second class honours, also winning a Pugsley Scholarship. Mr. Dunlop intends attending Harvard University next year.

Rev. Z. L. Fash, pastor of the United Baptist church, is enjoying several weeks vacation. On Sunday he filled the pulpit of the West End Baptist church, Halifax. The Rev. Dr. Sidey, who is home on a vacation following a successful campaign in Truro, supplied in the Baptist church on Sunday, the subject of his discourse in the evening being "Fundamentalism". Dr. Sidey dealt with the question in a very eloquent manner.

Among over one hundred students at the Summer School at the Normal College, Truro, who wrote original essays, only three received recognition through the press, two of those being the Misses Florence Blackburn and Mary Macumber, of Hantsport, whose essays were published in the Truro News.

Mrs. (Capt.) Young and family left last week on a motor trip to Truro, where they are guests of Mrs. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gay.

Mrs. Sweetly and Mrs. Davis with their children, who were occupying one of the Avon cottages, were summoned to their homes in Boston by the illness of their mother and sister, Mrs. Wheaton, who underwent a serious operation at the hospital there. Mrs. Wheaton is a daughter of Mrs. J. Barker, Hantsport.

Miss Alice Baird was a recent guest of Miss Hilda Fullerton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bradshaw had for their guests recently Mr. and Mrs. M. Roper and party, of Kentville.

Misses Merle and Kathleen Yeaton returned home last week from Evangeline Beach, where they spent two weeks.

Mrs. McCaughin and daughter, Miss Ida Dunlop, and Miss Ellen McCaughin spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. Dunlop, Windsor. Mrs. McCaughin returned recently from a trip to Parrsboro.

Dr. and Mrs. Sidey have for their guest Mrs. Leo Woods, of Seattle.

Mrs. Keye, of Moncton, is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. S. McDonald, who is quite indisposed.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Forsythe, Mr. and Mrs. George Currie and Mr. John Folker motored to Halifax on Saturday.

Mrs. R. P. Harvie, Centre Burlington, is visiting her father, Capt. McCulloch.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Forsythe, who have spent a month at the home of Mr. Forsythe's mother, Mrs. E. N. Forsythe, left on Monday for their home in Quincy, Mass.

Mrs. L. V. Marsters is visiting relatives in Dartmouth.

Mrs. T. Patton had for her guest last week Miss Mabelle Trask, of Boston.

Miss Mary Eagles, of North Carolina, is the guest of her friend, Miss Elmira Borden.

Mrs. Thorpe, of Kentville, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Harvie.

Miss Mabel Mailing, of St. John, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mailing.

Mr. Harris Wellwood, of Newport, spent Sunday with his parents here.

Miss Macumber, of Kempton, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Macumber.

Miss Ida Harvie returned to Hantsport on Saturday after spending several weeks with relatives in Bridgewater.

Mr. Alfred Stevens, of the United Fruit steamer, Mayri, is spending a vacation at his home here.

Mrs. B. Roper, of Boston, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Hewitt, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Flemming.

Mr. and Mrs. Sykes, of Halifax, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. Lester. On their return to the city they were accompanied by Miss Leta and Master Russel Lester.

Miss Annie Beazley is visiting relatives in Halifax.

Capt. and Mrs. A. McDonald returned home on Monday from Moncton, where they have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith.

Messrs. Vaughan Taylor, Everett Newcombe, Grant Davidson, Ellsworth Morris and Cecil McDonald left Monday in C. McDonald's motor boat for Kempton where they will camp for several days. They will also camp at Parrsboro, Blomidon and Evangeline Beach before returning home.

The S. S. Rotundus underwent inspection at the Hantsport wharf on Monday.

Capt. Lawrence's many friends are pleased to learn that he is recovering from his recent illness.

Mr. Chas. Dunbar spent Sunday at his home here.

The United church held their picnic at Evangeline Beach on Wednesday, July 22. The day was everything that could be desired. The large number attending were conveyed in cars and busses.

SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN UNDER AUSPICES OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The grand concert staged in the Empire Theatre on Thursday evening last, under the auspices of the local Women's Institute, was an unqualified success from every point of view. The outstanding feature was a number of readings by Miss Edythe Burnham, a graduate of the Gurnee School of Expression, Boston. Mrs. Grace Oulton, soprano, of Stellarton, always a favourite with Hantsport audiences, rendered a solo which was heartily applauded. She responded with an encore. Miss Mabelle Trask, of Boston, a former resident of Hantsport, who possesses a magnificent contralto voice, delighted the audience by the rendition of several solos, receiving tumultuous applause. Miss Claire McDonald was the accompanist for the evening. The following program was rendered:

- Piano duet—Misses Claire McDonald and Phyllis Davison.
- Readings—
- (a) The Song My Paddle Sings.
 - (b) The Princess.
 - (c) Cicely and the Bears.
- Miss Edythe Burnham Solo and encore—Mrs. Oulton.
- Readings—
- The Romantic Age
 - That Old Sweetheart of Mine.
 - The Minuet.
 - Miss Edythe Burnham
- Readings—
- The House With Nobody in it.
 - Vespers.
 - Miss Edythe Burnham
- Male quartette—Messrs. I. Pulsifer, John Folker, Hugh Rolph, W. Pulsifer.
- Solos—
- (a) To the Sun—Pearl Curren.
 - (b) Trees—Rasbach.
 - (c) Rain—Pearl Curren.
- Miss Mabelle Trask
- Miss Trask responded with the following encores:
- The House that Jack Built
 - The Toy Balloon.
 - Little Brother's Lullaby.

SUBJECTION OF WEEDS

In a statement of "Effective Methods of Controlling Weeds" Mr. E. S. Hopkins, Dominion Field Husbandman, brings out three salient and important points. The first is that the most effective method of controlling weeds is thorough and frequent cultivation of the land. The second is that the basic principle in killing weeds which have underground growth, and the third, the longer the delay in eradicating the weeds the greater the amount of work that will eventually be necessitated. One other point made by Mr. Hopkins in giving definite advice as to the subjection of couch grass, mustard and other weeds, that cannot be too much emphasized is that it is important to use at all times clean seed grain, clover and grass seed.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

"Did you give the penny to the monkey, dear?"

"Yes, mamma."

"And what did the monkey do with it?"

"He gave it to his father, who played the organ."

DUNTING IN THE GOOD OLD STYLE

The Freeholders of Newbiggen-by-the-Sea rode and perambulate the boundaries of Newbiggen Moor of which they are the Lords of the Manor. According to ancient custom, "nuts and raisins" were distributed along the route and a Freeholder was duly initiated by "dunting" on the Dunting Stone which according to local history has been in use as such, between four and five hundred years. The photograph shows the process of "dunting" one of the new Freeholders on the old dunting stone.

EDITORIAL

Hantsport has always boasted of its good schools, which have been well managed and loyally supported by citizens. Those who today have in charge this important community interest are alive to the importance of the work. Their endeavor to furnish the best possible educational opportunity for the youth of the town in an economical manner as is consistent with competent service deserves the appreciation of ratepayers generally. At present certain improvements are to be made which will improve greatly the conditions of the school building and render it fully up to date. Good schools for many reasons form one of the very best possible assets which a town may enjoy, and money spent for that purpose is well invested. Given the advantages which an efficient school furnishes the young life of the community is well started on the road to successful living.

The authorities have recently had installed at the town boundaries signboards suitably worded which give visitors information as to the scope of our municipality. This is a very worthy work and will be duly appreciated by residents. It is well that our town should be "put on the map" in this way and the publicity will be to our advantage. Hantsport has nothing to hide and should be proud of. Her people are proud of the native beauties which they possess and the manner in which the affairs of the town are carried on. We have industries which are a credit, business concerns which cater well to the demands made upon them. We enjoy modern advantages and have a tax rate which is low as compared with that of many similar towns. Our one fault is that our people are too unassuming. Some day they will realize their advantages and make the most of their opportunities. The town limits will be extended and the sign-boards will be newly located. There will be a strengthening of the posts and a lengthening of the cords. We have a vision of good things in store for Hantsport on the Avon.

MRS. (CAP T.) McCULLOCH

The community was extremely shocked on Friday morning to learn of the passing away of Mrs. (Capt.) McCulloch, after an illness of a day's duration. Although a semi-invalid for about two years, her health of late had seemed somewhat improved. On Thursday she complained of feeling ill when a physician and trained nurse were summoned. All was done that loving hands could do but she passed peacefully away on Friday morning at 5 o'clock.

The deceased was a most estimable lady, a consistent Christian and a great friend to the needy. Her good deeds will live after her for "she hath done what she could". Mrs. McCulloch will not only be greatly missed in the home, but also in the community. She was a faithful adherent of St. Andrew's Anglican church, where she was a regular attendant until stricken with illness about two years ago.

FRENCH PITTY MONKEY AND RIDICULE SCOPES CASE

The Paris newspapers more and more are enjoying the "extraordinary case at Monkeyville", which offers them an opportunity to poke fun at Americans because of their fears of being identified with monkeys.

An article in the Paris "Soir" upholds the cause of the monkey, with the idea that they more than men, are to be pitied in view of the Darwinian interpretation of the Darwinian theory. The day on which the monkey is definitely proved the ancestor of man will not leave him proud of this descendant, says the writer, who advances the theory that the real force behind the prosecution of John Thomas Scopes is the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

—Under amendments to the Customs Act assented to June 25, 1925, smuggling is punishable by imprisonment and heavy penalties without power of remission, and where the value of the smuggled goods is $200 or over it is an indictable offence. On conviction for indictable offence the terms of imprisonment may be imposed up to ten years and not less than one year.

Pat was ferrying a professor across the loch. The professor thought he would test Pat's knowledge so asked him if he knew anything about geography. "No," says Pat. The prof. said, "Then that's half your life gone!" "Do you know anything about physiology?" "No," replied Pat. "That's three-quarters of your life gone," commented the professor. "Do you know—," and then a squall struck the ferry, capsized it and both men were in the water. "Do you know anything about swimming?" said Pat. "No," replied the professor. "Well, then," said Pat, "that's the whole of your life gone."

Gossip originates and is spread by persons having empty minds and by those who talk and think in superlatives. To take the trouble to deny or explain a malicious statement demotes one to the level of the gossiper. The evil effect of gossip is much over-estimated. To dwell upon it is decidedly old-fashioned. The modern mind treats it with fine scorn.

WORLDLY GOODS

Love sure is a wonderful thing, but try to live on it!

If you ever laughed at a married life farce in your life, you're going to laugh at Agnes Ayres' latest production for Paramount, "Worldly Goods", for it's a genuine comedy in every sense of the word, with just enough drama and loads of heart-appeal.

Sophie Kerr wrote the story from which the picture was adapted by A. P. Younger. It first ran serially in the Ladies' Home Journal and was later published in novel form. To say that the book was successful is putting it mildly, and to say that the picture is the book brought to life just about describes the screen version of the story to a "T".

Pat O'Malley plays opposite the star, and Victor Varconi and Edythe Chapman are others prominent in support. O'Malley's role in the picture is that of an automobile salesman whose ideas are just about as high as the price of his cars. He wins over Eleanor Lawson (Miss Ayres) with his "line", and married life looks like one sweet song to them until the bills start rolling in and the collectors begin arriving in groups, and they just won't take a smile and soft words for payment.

Such is newly-married life! But all's well that ends well! At the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday.

A BOX FULL OF FOUR LEAF CLOVER

(From the Evening Mail) Everybody knows that to the finder of a four leaf clover comes good luck. Then how much good luck must be in store for Miss Nellie King, Grand Pre, who sent to The Mail today no less than ONE HUNDRED four leaf clovers which she picked herself, at Grand Pre, on July 22. Here's to Nellie! The fewers who preside over the lovely fields at Grand Pre must have something very special in store for her, and we shall confidently expect to hear of her some day through some stroke of happy fortune that will be worth at least a newspaper column and her picture. The clovers are perfect specimens; not one withered or doubtful petal among them. They are the real thing in four leaved clovers—the clover that makes fragrant the summer air in the beautiful land of Evangeline these days. We thank Miss King for sending along her box with the harbinger of good luck and heartily hope that the old adage may come true in her case.

"Search me!" shrieked Ecuador. "Well, what do you know about that? 'Oh, you're in Scotland wi' my ain folk!' Hullo, you old son of a gun!" all its repeated, indeed, in a high voice and with a deranged look.

"I can hardly believe you're home," said Margaret. "And how are you, Ecuador?"

"I'm a wee bit tired, lassie. It's been these last days—to have my legs on, and to sit on the porch holding a bit stick and thinking—"

"And that indeed was the employ he engaged upon next afternoon, or evening (watching the mosquito wheel and fall and recover against the fading gold away westward toward the Pacific), where there was a dust to which, and the familiar sight, in its place, of loving horses and riders. There were two riders. They came by side, rocking down the road, with a wake of dust at heel. Angus stopped his humming of:

"...oh, but I'm longing for my ain folk."

"You should call it the Miggle mine, then," said he, and looked perturbed. It had a double significance in his ears, and in Margaret's too, it seems, for she blushed.

Piccolo gave him a glance that he misread, as he was to discover. At the moment Bill considered that Piccolo thought him "fresh". How this tale of a treasure hunt swings into a tale of love! Movie lifted the glass at his elbow of elderberry wine—to toast the property.

"We had to have a name for the claims," said Angus. "I hope I did right. It just came to me how you took it, Bill. The way you lifted the rock and sang out: 'This is it!' On the spur of the moment I filled in the name on your paper for the claim ye made for me as 'This is It!', and gave them that name at the record office in Kokanee. I hope you like it."

Movie bowed, delighted.

"Why," he said, "I'm tickled. Tickled! It will please me always to know I've got a name in it. Thank you—Angus."

"Yes," said Angus. "Piccolo told me to put down Tremaine as his partner, half-owner; and I've put you down as mine."

"Me!" said Movie Bill. "You!"

"Ay," said Angus. "Me and you."

Movie Bill stared, unable to speak.

"And," said Piccolo, "seeing that Scotty said he was going to call his claim 'This is It!', he was tickled at what I suggested, Miss MacPherson, for mine—I mean, my mine. You see, I like a lady's name for mine. There is the Molly Gibson, and there is the Milly E. and the—"

"Crazy Jane," said MacPherson, chuckling.

"Well, well," said Piccolo. "I suggested for my claim to your father the Miggle."

"Oh!" said Margaret.

She had no more to say, but the accent of that brief ejaculation supplied the lack of much speech.

And thought Movie Bill: "That's what Pic's brain wave was when the old man put his hand on his shoulder as they stood conferring like owls, I remember."

"Piccolo and I talked it all over," said Angus, "while we were pacing it out afresh."

"I don't know how to thank you," said Movie Bill, in a low even voice.

"You found it!" said Piccolo, in a note so much like that of Ecuador's natural voice that at the first effort the parrot, repeating, caught it to a nicety, shrilling:

"You found it!"

"The bird agrees," said Angus.

"It is ratified," Ecuador says goes. Come out to the veranda," he went on. He glanced at his daughter.

"You look awful hot, Margaret."

"Oh, it's the range, dad. We should get a coal oil stove for the summer."

"Of course it's the range," said Angus, and preceded them toward the house.

They sat down, and then Margaret turned to Piccolo.

"What was this about twig, grasshopper?" she asked.

"It is too long to tell, miss," said he. "It will take a long time to tell."

"Say Llanfairpwll—" he began.

"Oh, stop there!" cried Angus. "That's never heard," Angus advised. "You a mine owner now, or part owner."

"I forgot," said Movie Bill. "Let me think of the 'Two some mine—' or 'some I should say, for you've got Tremaine in, I gather."

Piccolo looked at Angus and smiled.

"Movie Bill jumped to the conclusion Margaret had been made a part is enough at a time. Give the bird a chance. Have a heart, to speak the speech of this section of God's Country."

"Ecuador, say Llanfair," said Piccolo. "Go to hell!" remarked Ecuador.

That made Piccolo blush, Margaret being present. But she laughed, and looked at Movie Bill to see how he enjoyed the fun; and found his eyes on her with so tender and serious an expression that she knew. But there! It is not a love story. It is only the story of the 'This is It!' So it can end now.

Piccolo said:

"Well miss, and Scotty, I'd better git."

Movie Bill rose.

"Bide a wee," said Angus.

"I should go too," said Bill.

"You have nothing to call you," said Angus.

"I'll have to ride over with Piccolo," answered Movie. "so as to bring back the pack-horse he's riding."

"Oh, he'll find his way back to the stables," he said.

Piccolo. "You need not hurry off for me."

Movie Bill sat down again. Piccolo went for his horse, and riding round to the front, hat in hand—

"So-long all, then!" he said.

"So-long. See you later."

He rode off south on the long white road among the rolls of the open land he loved.

Angus rose. The bats wheeling round made Ecuador perturbed. He sneezed anathema at them so that no one could speak.

"I'll just take the bird in and put the bandanna over him for the night," said Angus; and he went indoors leaving, as a "dissolve" in the twilight, Bill Allardyce and Margaret alone.

And, as Piccolo said—So-long all! Finis.
