When Mr Kent was preparing to ascend the first rong o his political ladder he enunciated the opinion that " the merehant's and the planters' interests are one, that whatever tends to elevate the one must raise the other, and that which depresses the one must depress the other." Shortly after when attempting the second rong he was opposed by the mercantile body, his cry was Down with the merehants! We can do without the merchants !'It is peculiarly the good fortune of Mr. Hayward, that he need not descend to such inconsistency ;- from the day of his first election as a representative to the present hour the merchants of Harbor Grace bave been his stedfast friends and supporters, he is in fact their own representative, their agent, and their organ of secret communication with the minisry, corrupt or incorrupt as thepcase may be.

Our views however, of the Government and their agent, plsin and truthful as they are cannot be altered one iota by the repetition of demonstrations such as have recently takenplace, and we repeat the burden of our argument, that if the ministry cannot stand without being sustained by a purchased majority of the Assembly, they should fall; but we believe that they might be not only sustained for the present bnt more firmly established for the future if they yielded to the peoples just demand, discarding all such time serving favorites as the person just triumphantiy returned, and relying only for support upon sound political principle economy and even handed justice. Away then that influence to the highest pitch of zeal, is with the senseless cry, that the late opposition was ridiculous, there was a twofold object in view, one became a failure but the other has the listless or unwilling to the polling booths, and been amply attained ;- Henceforth our views that bedridden invaleeds had the honor of transmust be changed, there is no hope for a people "ALEXANDRIA, October 25, hedged round and circumvented by influences which they have no means of counteracting "with bated breath and wnispering humbleness" we may henceforth appeal to the Government the order of the day that men were turned off of our hard-wrong tribute.

THE HON. JOHN KENT

You and the party which supports you have effected much good for the people of this Colony since you came into power. It is needless for me to enumerate the benefical measures you have passed into law. They deserve and obtained the grateful consideration of the people. The intelligent men of all parties have confidence in your wisdom and sense of justice, and are inclined to make allowance for some aberrations, which WE regret to be under the necessity o again they, attribute more to the difficulties of your Official position than to yourself personally.

ON THE DEATH OF A FRIEND.

BY MILNES.

I'm not where I was yesterday, Though my home be still the same, For I have lost the veriest friend Whom ever a friend could name; I'm not what I was yesterday, Though change there be little to see, For a part of myself has lapsed away From Time to Eternity.

I have lost a thought, that many a year Was most famaliar food To my inmost mind, by night or day, In merry or plaintive meod; I have lost a hope, that many a year Looked far on a gleaming way, When the walls of life were closing round, And the sky was sombre gray.

For long, too long, in distant climes My lot was cast, and then A frail and casual intercourse Was ail I had with men; But lonelily in distant climes I was well content to roam, And felt no void, for my heart was full Of the friend it had left at home.

And now I was close to my native shores, And I felt him at my side, His spirit was in that homeward wind, His voice in that homeward tide; For what were to me my native shores, But that they held the scene Where my youth's most geniel flowers had And affection's root had been? [blown,

I thought, how should I see him first, How should our hands first meet : Within his room,—upon the stair,— At the corner of the street? I thought, where should I hear him first, How catch his greeting tone?-And thus I went up to his door. And they told me he was gone!

O, what is life but a sum of love, And death but to lose it all? Weeds be for those that are left behind And not for those that fall And now how mighty a sum of love Is lest forever for me! No, I'm not what I was yesterday, Though change there be little to see.

NEWFOUNDLAND A FRENCH COLONY

The following correspondence respecting Newfoundland has taken place between the Foreign Affairs Committe, of Grey's-inn-lane and the Colonial and Admiralty-offices:-

TO THE CO LONIAL SECRETARY.

Oct. 5, 1858. Sir,-We beg to call your attention to an aggression of France on the coast of Newfoundland which is not the less alarming because it was predicted twelve months ago by the inspectors of the fisheries.

The Commander-in-Chief of the French nava force stationed off Newfoundland has given what is practically a notice to quit their habitations to the inhabitants of St. George's Bay. We can find no warrent in any existing treaty for such an act, since England possesses the full severeignty of Newfoundland, while France posseses only such liherty of fishing as is positively granted to her by treaty.

But Article 11 of the abrogated treaty of 14th January, 1857, contains a provision granting in_ definite power to the French officers, and the recent aggression leads us to suppose that orders have been given by the Emperor of the French to act as if the treaty were actually in force. We therefore beg you to be so kind as to inform

Whether you have received a copy of the notice served on the inhabitands of St. George's Bay, and, if so, whether you have any objection to make that notice public?

2 Whether the matter was been brought before her Majesty in Council, with a view to obtain from France satisfaction for the injuary committed, and security against its repetition.

C.F. JONES, Secretary.

copy of a notice to quit their habitations stated to have been served on the inhabitants of St. George's Bay, Newfoundland, by the French Alexandria, and northward to the Dardenelles, Naval Commandant on that coast, and I am di- This, together with the land line to connect Conrected to inform you that Sir E. B. Lytton has not acceived a copy of any such notice.

CARNARVON.

TO THE ADMIRALTY. 5th October, 1858.

Sir,-We have been informed by the Commander-in-Chief of the French naval force stationed off Newfoundland has officially served on Ocean, following the coast of South Arabia to Loans or Debts, and to all other cases where the inhabitants of St. George's Bay what is prac- Kurrachee, near the month of the Indus. This Policy may be required for a temporary purpose tically a notice to quit their habitations, and that that notice has been made directly, and not that plans exist, and are under the consideration through any officer of the British Government ed to you a copy of the notice, or of the address to him on the subject from the Chamber of com

2. Whether the notice has been laid before her Majesty in Council, in order that her pleasure may be taken as to the mode in which this aggression on the part of France is to be resisted?

C. F. JONES, Secretary.

REPLY.

Admiralty, Oct. 13, 1858. Sir, -I am commanded by my Lords, Commissioners of the Admirality to acquaint you that your inquiry ought more properly to have been addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign offairs.

H. CORRY.

RESPONSE TO THE ADMIRALTY. October 19, 1858.

Sir,--We requested to be informed whether a British Admir al had reported to your office that which had taken place on his station between himself and other subjects of the British Crown. We further asked whether you had taken mea_ sures to acquaint the Queen in Council, of a viclation of her sovereignty by a Foreign Power, and of the demand for protection addressed to her by those who are called on by that Power to depart trom their allegiance and transfer it else.

You tell us that ], "an enquiry ought more properly to have been addressed to her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs."

We did not ask what were the rights that Englad had ceded to France on the coast of Newfoundland. We did not ask whether the French Government had been called upon to disavow and dismiss the officer who had committed a breach of the peace between the two Thursdays, and Saturdays,

But we gave you an opportunity of showing General Post Office, the efficiency of the airangements made by your, St John's, 18th May, 1858department for the protection of Newfoundland and of proving that, as a loyal subject and sworn servant of her Majesty, you had referred to her sovereign authority a matter which most nearly concerned that prerogative of peace and war which, for the protection of the people, the Constitution places in the hands of the Crown, and does not allow to be delegated to a department or a subject.

This opportunity you have not accepted, and we are therefore, compelled to believe that, so far as you are concerned, the rights and liber- regularly lubricated with or dressed with Holloties of Newfoundland are as defencless against way's Ointment. In the nursery it is invaluable the abrogated treaty of 14th January, 1857, as as a cooling application for the rashes, exceriathe maritime rights of England are against the authorised Declaration of Paris of the 16th Ap- tion for aleviating the torture of a "broken

NATIONAL TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION -It admits no longer of any doubt that telegraph lines must connect the mother country with her dependencies; and, from the circumstance that we live in an island, and that the intervening land is occupied by nations with whom we may at any day be at war, such telegraphs must be submarine and under our own control. It is understood that Government are Is Edited and published every Wednesday seriously entertaining the question of laying morning, by George Webber, at his office, Downing-street, 20th Oct., 1858. a cable from our shores to Gibraltar in one stretch, a distance of 1,100 nautical miles and thence to Malta, there to join the Malta-Corfu Donnelly, Esq. A cable is now on its way to Candia, to be laid southwards to stantinople with the landing-point at the Dardanells, is promised to be compleated next month. There will still remain the link between Corfu and Candia unfinished; but through Germany and Turkey our electric connection with Alexandria will be complete. As is well known, the guarantee of the Home Government has enabled a company to raise the necessary funds for constructing a line across Egypt, down the Red Sea'to Aden, and along the bottom of the Indian is promised to be accomplished in eighteen months. We shall do no more than indicate throughout the whole term of Life. of Government, for extending the Indian system We request you to be so good as to inform of telegraphs from Tennasserim to Singapore, whence one branch is to go to Sarawak and the Philippine Islands and thence to Hong Kong; 1.
