SPEECH OF THE HON, MR. CARRON ON THE REBELLION LOSSES BILL

The hon. speaker would not follow the The hen, speaker would not follow the example of some hon, gentlemen who had spoken, and world try travoid any expre-sions that might be exciting. If the d it tend with great attention to one hon, gin tleman whom he was glad to see again among them, and he had interned with great attention to his cloquent and hong speech, but which had not much in it that had im "attention to his elequent and long speech, but which had not much in it that had im-mediate reference to the question before the House. He proceeded to comment on the remarks of the hon, member with reference to the union. He, anlike the heat member, had onoised the union when it was propos-ed, but had since considered it his duty to try to make it work. Then hon, member hid drawn no flattering picture of loyal Canadians and their laws; he had charactur-ize I the former as greedy of salaries, extra-vagant and averse to changing their laws. It was true, there were some of their laws he would not change for those of Upper Canain or any other country. He con-sidered the union could not now be broken with benefit to the country' and he con-sidered the present the fine when the coun-try was going to reap advantages from the union. As long as the hon, gentleman and his friends were in office, there were no com-plaints heard from them against Resposible Government; and he must say they had held office whon it was very difficult. The Government; and he must say indy bid held office when it was very difficult. He was averse to discussing the question again as it was altogether impossible to say any thing new; but for the safe of hon, gentle-Then who were not then in the house he would briefly go over the quistion again - The hon, speaker here proceeded with the The hon speaker here proceeded with the history of the question. He argued that the present bill only give effect to restric-tions and a report of the commissioners of the last Administration, which they were bound to do both in honor and justice, the Legislator of the country having been, pledged to it. He forther argued that the reason was past, and that it was only the intention of the government to poy-the just losses of innocent individuals. It was impossible to torture the meaning of the bill as to say that because an amendment was returned, that it was the intention to pay rebels. Without that restriction only pro rebels. Without that restriction only pro-per persons would be paid. He called upon hon, gentlemen to point out to him the dif-ference between the present bill and the other. It was not the intention to ply rebels, but he did not say that the commis-sions would be invested with any extraor-dinary powers as a tribural, but that it would not be sufficient for any man to say intention to pay rebels. He regretted the full sions which had been made to the noble-man at the first bad been made to the noble-man at the bead of the government, in last the first day of September, one grage unbecoming the dignity of the House. times have changed. Light has come into the world-and the masses of industrious worth are beginning to think-they can no longer be led blindly. When a revolution is proposed, or a "League" is to be formed, ot a panie created, the first question which arises in the minds of the working multitude is, Who are the Leaders -the Movers, the Actors in this new Drama? And if they find that the scheme has originated with, and is pushed forward by a lot of worthless characterless spendthrifts, who have never done anything but prey upon the fruits of their industry. " If they find that the Revolutionists are nen who have merely signalised themselves, by running up large bills with tradesmen and merchants which they have peither the will nor the ability to pay; that their renown has arisen from the large and numerous swallowings of "hot stuff" at the expense of the " Land that they are in fact a bloated, soaking nuisance Or if they discover that the men in society. who would lead them are the hungry cormorants -the garbage-gleaners of tyranny and oppres-

The whole history of panic-making would dwindle into a mere shred, compared with the Tory hullabuloe about the Indemnity Bill. The lies and alarms which > have been sedulously manufactured and sent booming through the Province, were sufficient to have produced an earthquake. The meanest, lowest species of rascality, and the most flagrant atrocities of common ruffianism. sanctioned by high names, have been put in requisition to overthrow the Constitional Government of the ountry, and to perpetuate the accursed ascendency of High Church Toryism, or at least pro-rogue its ignominy. And what has been the result? The people of the Province looked up from their labor calmly, and acrutinized the novement. They at once discovered that it was composed of the filth and dregs-the idle and the profligate-who exist only by fraud and cunning duplicity-they saw the howling mass goaded on by the very men, or the sons of the very men who had for years shackled the sinews of industry, and ruled and ruined the Province : and seeing this, they quietly resumed their labor, each muttering to himself, " My soul come not

In consequence of the entire absence of erim nal cases at our Court of Assize last week, we were disappointed in our anxious wish, to hear a spriemen of Judge Sullivan's cloquence. His place, we are opposed to alarms of every kind, and, in the second place, we came to the conclu-sion that the rumors that were raised, and the preparations that were made for the reception of lordship had no subject to speak upon ; and thereore, his Address to the Grand Jury, was short and comparatively uninteresting. He complicholera, in every town and village in Scotland mented them very highly on the beauty and ferin the years 1832-34, did not prevent, but rather increased the virulence and mortality of the desease. was more numerously signed than any oth-r that ever left this county. Men of all lasses and creeds put down their names : Ministers of Religion, Justices of the Peace District Councillors, Officers of Mulitua, and indeed, all interested in the support of peace and good order, displayed their enthusiasm by coming forward and giving their names. The officials of this District knew that the Address was in progress, but none offered to sign it except the Sheriff. We are una-ble to say with certainty just now whether he others are those disturbers of the peace who have signed petitions to the Queen to recall Lord Eigin. We can state with cer-minity that our Address to his Excellency tonis the agreet majority of the names of the adult msle population of this District.— The address for the town was got up in six hours, and is signed only by freeholders and househoulders over 21 years of age; as it was circulated the day the deputation left, mercis, and after the County Address was signed, and it does not contain the reigna-tures of as many persons as it otherwise would. The aggregate number to both Addresses will be given in our next. We, believe that a deputation from Lennox and Addington, with an address to Lord Elgin, signed by ndearly two-thirds of the inhabi tants of that county, left Kingston, in commonstrous proposition about the assassina-tion of Emperors, Princes, &c., which we at foom the Divingham Lengal We eut from the Birmingham Journal. Among the new songs announced in London Is one (words by Carpenter, music by Gower, on the incident in "Dombey and Son," where little Paul talks to his sister Fiorence of he emotious produced by the sounds of the sea:-PAUL.

What are the wild waves saying, Sister, the whole day long, That even amid our playing, I hear but their low long song, Not by the sea-side only--There it sounds wild and free, But at night, when 'tis dark and lonely, In dreams it is still with me ! To which Florence replies : Brother, I hear no singing-'Tis but the rolling wave, Ever its lone course winging, Over some ocaen cave ; 'Tis but the noise of water, Dashing against the shore, And the wind from some bleak quarter, Mingling with the roar. > THE FIRST KISS. BY MISS M. J. E. KNOX.

"Nay, ask me not-how could I bring My lips to rest on manhood's brow, A maiden may not lightly fling Her timid nature off-and thou, Caress'd as thou art wont to be, What were a kiss of mine to thee ?

"And then would'st that I had press'd Another cheek as soon as thine, Should I allow my lips to rest (Even lightly as on hallowed shrine

The trembling lips of devotee) On thine, as pledge or love to thee." But then some words of gentle sound

Were whispered to the maiden's heart; She could not bear his love to wound-The hour had come when they must part And she was young, and fond and true ; What could the gentle maiden do ? The spell is broken-she has laid

Her trembling lips against his check ; On hers there is a deeper shade Of Crimson, but she does not speak :

Her voice is hushed-her voice is still-'Tis given, half without her will.
