CHAPTER XIX. WHO IS SHE. (Continued.) 'Yes,' he said, 'I must. I'll see it when I come back.' 'Where are you going?' said Sir Talbot. 'To the bank' Harold glanced across at Lillian. 'That depends upon Lillian,' replied Harold. 'She looked up. 'Upon me?' 'He nodded, as if he did not want to pursue the subject before their visitor; but Sir Talbot, who of late seemed to have lost his old acuteness as he had gained in frankness and generosity, laughed. 'Of course! How stupid of me. Yes, you must go, Lillian. Such a serious piece of business!' 'What is it?' she asked, with the smile that always shone upon her face when she turned it to the old man. Sir Talbot laughed. 'Tut, tut, and I meant to have kept it a secret until I could hand you the check book! We are going to open an account for you, my dear.' 'For me—an account! How do you mean?' she asked, with a puzzled smile. Dawson Slade looked up with a politely impassive face, but with a gleam of watchful curiosity in his drooping eyes. Sir Talbot laughed again, and drawing her hand toward him, caressed it. 'Now for a confession of my great weakness,' he said—'indolence! My dear, I can't bear to examine bills. At present your little bills—and they really are absurdly little—come to me. My dear, I'm too lazy even to pay bills—you must pay them yourself; and so that you can do so without inconvenience, and in proper form, I am going to pay a sum of money into the bank in your name, and you will have your check book, like any other capitalist. That is all.' 'Miss Woodleigh, I congratulate you,' said Dawson Slade, with a smile and a bow, but with the same curious look on his face. 'There is no more pleasant occupation in life than writing checks. Ah, believe me, it is a delightful business altogether. I remember,' he went on, with a meaning smile—'I remember my first banking account—with what a delicious feeling of importance I marched down to the bank, and with what a respectful gravity they ushered me into the manager's den! Miss Woodleigh, I shall never forget the moment I signed my name in the great book with this silver clasp!' She understood now, and the smile flickered and fell from her face. Sir Talbot laughed at what he took for Lillian's dismay. Dawson Slade leaned forward, with hands carelessly clasped. 'Let me reveal the formalities, Miss Woodleigh,' he said, airily. 'First, as I say, you go into the bank parlor and shake hands with the manager; be sure you do that—it is a most important part of the ceremonial! Then the manager will ring a bell, and a grave-looking clerk will bring in the wondrous book wherein are written names of the bank customers. The manager will open this volume, hand you a brand-new quill pen with a bow and say, solemnly: "Favor me by writing your name, as you usually write it, Miss Woodleigh." You see, why this ceremony? Simply that they may know your signature. The book, with your name written in our own hand, is passed round among the clerks; who examine it—probably with a microscope—and as armed are able, in nine cases out of ten, to detect a forged check. The manager then hands you a check

Book—and, presto! you can sit down and write checks on the spot as fast as you like, and as long as you have any money left.' 'Very well described!' laughed Sir Talbot. 'So you see, Lillian, what a terrible ordeal you have to go through!' 'Words spoken in jest! If the old man could only have guessed at the truth! 'It is wonderful,' said Dawson Slade, leaning back, but still watching the lovely face opposite him; 'it is wonderful how many forgeries succeed, considering the care that is taken to render them abortive. I suppose, if they never succeeded, those rash and weak-minded individuals would be few and far between who risk penal servitude by writing names that don't belong to them!' 'Were the words as idle as they were carelessly spoken?' 'Nothing could be more gracefully airy than the tone and manner in which Dawson Slade threw them off; but as if he had been uttered in the stern voice of a warning angel, they struck home to the listening girl. Harold rose, and pushed his chair back. 'Well, Lillian,' he said, and there was a touch of impatience in his voice, 'will you venture on this formidable undertaking this afternoon? Shall I order the phaeton?' 'Take time, Miss Woodleigh!' exclaimed Dawson Slade, holding up his finger playfully. 'Let me recommend a few hours' preparation!' Harold looked from one to the other, as if the decision were of more consequence than it seemed. She rose, and smiled hesitatingly. 'Isn't it too hot for a drive?' she said. 'Will to-morrow do as well?' 'Certainly, certainly!' said Sir Talbot. 'Whenever you like, dear!' She breathed a short breath of relief, and, about to leave the room, turned in time to see a thoughtful smile on Dawson Slade's handsome face. As if she had suddenly changed her mind, she glided back to Sir Talbot and laying her hand on his arm, said: 'I will go to-morrow, for certain; directly after breakfast, if that will be convenient.' Sir Talbot drew her toward him, and patted her back—just as if she were a little, willful, wayward child. 'Go when you like, my darling—your time is yours! After breakfast be it, Harold shall drive us over—eh, Harold?' But Harold had disappeared, and by this time was sitting astride a chair in his room, puffing furiously at a favorite pipe. Now Harold was one of the best

Harold was conscious of an idea that Dawson Slade was somehow mixed up in this indefinite mystery. He watched Lillian's face on the night of the theatricals, and had seen it flush and pale under Dawson Slade's glance as it had never done before. Who was this Dawson Slade, and was it possible that he and Lillian had met before? A hundred times the plain, blunt question trembled on his lips, but something about Lillian, that air of silent and self-absorption, kept the question back. Once he felt inclined to ask Dawson Slade himself, but he had a suspicion that that gentleman's answer was not to be relied upon. Then came the question of pride. Harold would wake in the middle of the night sometimes, and ask himself, with a savage frown: 'Does she think I want to marry her for Sir Talbot's money?' and then he would turn about till morning, smarting with self-torture, and vowing that he would leave the Hall to go—to Jericho, anywhere out of her sight. As he smoked his pipe this afternoon, he recalled the conversation at the luncheon with a puzzled brain. 'Confound it,' he murmured, 'I'm not jealous. If this man, Slade, loves her better than I do, and—and she cares for him, I would not stand in their way. But there has been no love. Lillian is not the girl to fall in love at first sight. First sight, that is it! What on earth it is that makes me think they have met before I can't say. But I've got the feeling, anyhow. He is a handsome fellow, and clever, too. But Lillian is not the girl to be overcome by a man's beauty, or his cleverness, and yet she seems to watch his face and hang upon his words, unless I am much mistaken. Confound him! Why did he think proper to cut in about the bank? Anyone would think that he was warning her against committing forgery. Like his impudence! But, hey, they don't call that impudence; it is wit and esprit—and the fellow has a bushel of it. Her—her portrait, too! If I had asked her to let me paint her portrait—supposing I was able to do it—she would have refused—refused with that cold, little smile, which seems to say: 'Stand off, sir; thus far and no further.' Tut! he broke off, jumping up: 'I am getting jealous; it must be indigestion. I had better go down and watch him paint the portrait. No! I can't do that. He shall have a clear field; she shall not think that I persecute her for Sir Talbot's money.' And having worked himself into a heat, Harold pitched his pipe on one side, caught up his hat and went on to the stables. 'I'll go for a gallop,' he muttered. 'If it is indigestion, Noll will soon shake that out of me.' Noll was a great, bonny Irish hunter, which Harold had brought over from Connemara when it was a long-legged, ragged colt, giving little promise of becoming the strong, long-winded horse he now was. 'Do one good to have another tussle with Jones,' he said, with a smile; but he turned Noll's head into another direction, however, and Lillian, from her own window, saw him tearing along the High Road as if for dear life. Dawson Slade, on his way back to the Grange, saw him, also, and smiled. 'Driven the giant out of doors!' he murmured. 'Is he jealous already?' (To be continued.)

Job Printing Executed

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

When the first peek-a-boo waists began to appear last spring I found the usual crop of masculine trowsers against them in the magazines and newspapers.

Some were on the grounds of morality, but several were on the grounds of health.

Think of that from a man. I shouldn't think they'd dare to.

Why do I say that?

Well, I'll tell you why. Ask any doctor if it isn't just as unhealthy to be too heavily dressed as too lightly and see what he says.

How any man would dare to protest against the wearing of unduly thin clothes in spring, when he himself of friends nature and common sense every bit as much by wearing such absurdly thick clothes in summer is more than I can understand.

I was out on the street with a man on a very hot day recently. Coatless and in his sheers gown I was fairly suffocated by the heat.

What must he have suffered in a shirt about the thickness of my winter shirtwaists and a coat quite as heavy as what many women wear in January.

Several years ago, as perhaps you may remember, a crusade was started to make it proper for men to appear in their places of business and on the streets without their coats.

Unfortunately it was a good opportunity for ridicule and men can never endure ridicule. Talk about women being convention bound. Anyone with any common sense at all knows that women aren't a circumstance to men in that particular.

As you doubtless remember, caricatures and the name "the shirtwaist man" frightened most men away from this move towards common sense and the movement died. Now it doesn't seem to me it would have, despite men's cowardice, if women had given it their enthusiastic support, and I wish another one could be started and have the thorough backing of my sex.

Now don't say you don't approve of any such movement because you think it looks horrid to see a man on the street without his coat. There is nothing that you have any reason to object to in a man wearing a negligee shirt. It is simply because it is an unaccustomed sight and not in any way an objectionable one that you would feel that way about it.

I wish every girl who reads this would say to her father or brother or men friends the next time she sees any of them obviously suffering from the heat, "Why don't you take off your coat? I think it looks all right."

Yes, probably they will look horrified or laugh at you the first time.

But if enough girls say it to them enough times they will probably begin to consider the matter.

Yes, of course, it would take years maybe a generation or two to get men to do such a tremendously radical thing as to take off their coats.

But if it made them sweeter tempered and more reasonable—and of course anything that added so much to their comfort would do that—don't you think it would be worth every several generations of effort?

need to be tied, turn the goods around and stitch backward for half an inch.

Use thumb tacks for fastening the ironing sheet to the board. They will hold it more firmly than pins and are more easily removed than ordinary tacks.

When making cream of onion soup use half a bay leaf, a bit of minced parsley and a bit of mace for seasoning. It will be found exceedingly tasty.

When you sprinkle the clothes for ironing, cover the basket with a big heavy blanket, and the clothes will keep moist and not mould even in the hottest weather.

Black goods that have grown grayish can be often freshened by wiping off with alcohol. This is particularly good for black hats and does not hurt crepe if properly applied.

Liver is delicious cooked as follows: Cut slashes in the liver and thread into them thin slices of bacon. Season with salt, pepper and thyme and bake for an hour or so.

A cork full of thumb tacks kept in the work basket will be found invaluable when cutting out garments, as the tacks hold the patterns securely and do not wrinkle the goods.

An easy remedy for a skin of large pores is to wear at night a mask of cotton batting or of chamols, wet with distilled water. This has a sure effect if persevered in.

For mending table linen, save those long even threads which have been drawn from linen in hemstitching. Wind them on an empty spool and put aside until a table cloth needs mending.

If it is difficult to rid a frying pan of the smell of fish or onions, a little oatmeal should be sprinkled over it and the pan shaken over the fire until the oatmeal begins to scorch.

Most housekeepers know the difficulty of making cream of tomato soup. To lessen danger of curdling, add a pinch of soda to the scalding milk and pour slowly into the hot strained tomatoes.

Why Men Climb Mountains.

Sir Martin Conway Says It is a Hereditary Instinct.

Sir Martin Conway, explorer, mountaineer and author, who was recently a guest of the British Authors' Club, discussed the problem why people should want to climb mountains.

The problem, he said, had never been solved and never would be. The most one could say was that in some persons it was an hereditary instinct. He took it that it was the desire to look over on the other side that was the real secret and compelling force which induced people to climb mountains.

Among the Buddhists mountain-climbing was the chief element in obtaining sanctity. Buddhist saints derived much of their sanctity from the report that they had climbed such and such a mountain. Mountains had always been regarded as the home of secular creatures, such as demons, fairies, gnomes, or dragons. In the Himalayas the belief was generally spread abroad that on one big peak here was a palace of crystal inhabited by royalties among the fairy folk.

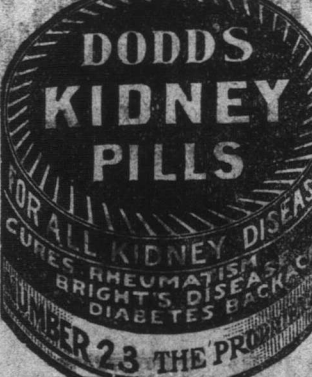

On another, he was told, when the louds formed the fairies were cooking their bread. According to the inhabitants, a man once went up a third peak and when he returned had lost his reason because the fairies had taken it away. "They warned us," observed the speaker, "that if we went much farther the same thing would assuredly happen to us, if it had not already happened and was not the cause of our coming."

Sir Martin described one of his adventures in the Bolivian Andes. "I was 'chivried' with considerable velocity from one mountain which I had essayed to climb with theodolite, and I was glad to escape with my life. I was pursued fifteen miles by the enraged population of the neighbouring village, and if they had not been good enough to throw stones, which hit my rifle, I should have come away in a very different condition.

Why the Gentlemen is Wanted.

A notable change has taken place in American business methods within the past decade. Increasingly, men of large affairs are asking, when a young man is recommended for a big job: "Is he a gentleman?" This is significant in two ways; it means that the big business men are themselves gentlemen and like to deal with men who talk their own language, and that American business methods have grown to be such that the gentleman has an advantage.

There was a time when a man who was a hustler could be a cad if he liked, and it did not hurt his chances much, but that time has passed. The big business men of to-day want young men who are tactful, intelligent, independent yet unassuming; who would know how to talk to a diplomat, and be at home in a good club; who could be trusted to behave kindly, honorably and discreetly in any situation of life; who in short have as their ideal the old, never-changing ideal of the gentleman. Not everybody can define it, but everybody knows it at sight. The gentleman, in short, can work along the line of least resistance; and that is why he is wanted.—From the July 'Book-Keeper'.

The Reason That Snowflakes Melt

so quickly is because they are thin—and the warmth of the earth and air quickly "cooks" them.

Same way with Quaker Oats. Being milled in very thin flakes, Quaker Oats is quickly Cooked all through. So different from thick, heavy, pastry porridge!

That's also why Quaker Oats does not overheat the blood--flakes so thin--starch completely cooked--porridge easily digested.

Scilly Cove News.

The local fishery to date is a complete failure. Boats average about 5 quintals each for the year.

The schr. Little Gem, Capt. Nath. Piercey, and schr. Walter B. Capt. Ananias Piercey, arrived from the Straits fishery on Tuesday, 2nd inst., with 220 and 300 qts. respectively.

With the advent of the summer holidays all our teachers have paid us a visit.

Miss Ethel King, C. of E. teacher at Bonaventure, T.B., is spending her holidays with relations here.

On the 2nd inst. a party chiefly composed of visiting friends spent an enjoyable outing at Island Pond.

The accident occurred at noon and was caused by the discharge of a bullet from his own revolver while in the hands of a friend of his named Porsier.

On the 4th inst., closely following the above outing, the sporting fraternity organised a picnic of visiting teachers and business proprietors by boat to a favorite resort two miles eastward.

Needless to say every one enjoyed the day to its fullest, and with colors flying was greeted with continued "hurrahs!"

A "Finch Party" at night closed the day's entertainment. August 5th, 1910.

DREAMING OF HOME. It comes to me often in silence. When the firelight splutters low— When the black, uncertain shadows Seem writhing of long ago: Always with a throb of heartache That thrills each pulsing vein, Comes the old, unquiet longing For the peace of home again. I'm sick of the roar of the cities, Of the faces cold and strange; I know where there's warmth and welcome, And my yearning fancies range Back to the dear old homestead With an aching sense of pain; But there'll be joy in the coming, When I go home again. When I go home again! There's music That may never die away, And it seems the hands of angels On a mystic harp at play Have touched the strings with yearning sadness. On a beautiful broken strain, To which is my fond heart wording When I go home again. Outside of my darkened window Is the great world's crash and din, And slowly the autumn shadows Come drifting, drifting in. Sobbing, the night wind murmurs— To the splash of the autumn rain; But I dream of the glorious greeting When I go home again.

Queen Victoria's Idea of a Gentleman.

The following are prominent points in a confidential memorandum drawn up by the late Queen Victoria, "for the guidance of the gentlemen appointed to wait upon the Prince of Wales" (afterwards the late King Edward VII.):— The qualities which distinguish a gentleman in society are: 1. His appearance, his deportment, and dress. 2. The character of his relations with, and treatment of others. 3. His desire and power to acquire himself creditably in conversation, whatever is the occupation of the society with which he mixes. "This memorandum shows how, if gentlemen were to be appointed to wait on the heir to the Crown, endless trouble was taken to see that the best possible choice was made, and that the persons chosen were adequately aware of their responsibility and duties."

Actress as Politician.

Miss Evie Greene, the popular London actress who was married to Lieutenant Arbuthnot recently, has proved herself quite an eloquent politician of advanced views. Asked on one occasion how she would remedy the evil of unemployment, she promptly replied, "Send a strong-minded woman to Parliament and she will soon show you the way." Naturally she was accused of being a Suffragette. This Miss Greene denied. "But," she said, "I should like every hard-working woman who pays rates and taxes to have a vote, as apart from the silly little woman who has no mind beyond her house and her children."

Dr. Crippen's Father Broken Down by His Son's Arrest, Does Not Believe Him Guilty.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 2.—Bowed down by years and broken by the ordeal of his son's flight and arrest on suspicion of having killed his wife, M. A. Crippen, father of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, presented to-day the most pathetic figure of the case that has engrossed the interest of two continents. "I have not the money to go to Hawley, but if I had, I would gladly go and be of whatever consolation I might be to him," says the suspect's father. "I have not received any word from him, and do not expect to. It is hard to have to be alone and suffer, but I don't think it will last long. I am not long for this world now, and since this trial has come to me, I have not had a single day of good health. "They cannot prove anything on Hawley; they cannot even prove that Belle Elmore is dead. Why should I believe him guilty? I know that he would not do such a thing. It passes belief. I may never know the truth, as I don't feel I can stand this worry much longer. I feel as if I would like to go away alone and die. I did my best to educate Hawley and his son. I did the best I could, and now in my old age I am alone and overwhelmed by this disgrace."

Locating Ships in a Fog.

Two Italian naval officers have invented a device which they claim will do away with all danger of ships colliding in a fog. The visible portion of this invention, which is called the 'system of radio telegraphy,' consists of a recorder having the form and appearance of a compass dial. Near the latter is a thumb bar that influences the dial indicator, which manipulated causes the indicator to revolve over the dial's surface and mark the point of the compass from which an approaching ship is coming, giving its exact location and distance away. About the skipper's ears are strapped a pair of the ordinary wireless telegraph receivers, by which means he is able to hear the sound given off by the wireless apparatus of the approaching ship. The operator manipulates the thumb bar until the wireless sound is at its highest pitch, when a reading of the dial face and indicator gives him the exact position of the vessel or shore wireless station from which the sound comes. For this instrument to be effective, of course, it is necessary for the approaching ship to be equipped with wireless apparatus and have it sending off the waves at the time the test with the instrument is made on the other ship.—The Pathfinder.

Another Threatened Horror.

Fashion, one reads in an exchange, has now decreed that young women shall wear their "wrist watches" on their ankles. That is a peculiarly cruel decree, and may lead to some controversy and confusion. Why not their ankle watches on their wrists? A cruel Ontario editor advances the horrible theory that this new fad is merely another excuse for lifting the skirt. The man who is guilty of this crime resides in Ottawa and is employed on the Free Press of that city. Young women who are properly annoyed by the atrocity that we have thus traced to him will no doubt, be able to bring him to a proper sense of his shame by writing him their personal views on the matter. Meantime, let it be recorded with a sense of relief that thus far the ankle watches have not invaded the Maritime Provinces. Nevertheless, let us not carelessly exult very much in advance. Thirty or thirty-five years ago we used to say we should never have the potato bug, but a few years after that we had used tons of Paris green in stopping the ravages of this invader. So the ankle watches may come too, but, if they should be introduced, it would be well to have the wearers licensed for a small fee at City Hall, like other attractions or nuisances.—St. John, N. B., Telegraph.

Archbishop Howley

Thanks the People for the Loyal Reception Accorded Him on His Arrival Yesterday.

His Grace the Archbishop who arrived from his long trip abroad by the S. S. Siberian yesterday, preached in the R. C. Cathedral last night. His Grace who is looking well after his travels was given such a whole-souled reception that he said he could not refrain from expressing his thanks to the people on the very first opportunity. He was happy to be back amongst them once more, and the sight of the dear, familiar faces of his children filled his heart with joy. He thanked them all for the very loyal and whole-souled reception, and hoped that God would spare them all as well as himself many years to work together for their spiritual and temporal welfare.

During the exposition of the Blessed Sacrament at Benediction which would follow after the short sermon, he asked that the whole congregation would thank Almighty God for his goodness and mercy in preserving him during his extended travels in foreign lands. He had visited many countries and seen what the world considers the most beautiful works of Nature and Art, but from the bottom of his heart he could sincerely say that no sight warmed his affections so deeply as that of our rock bound coast of Newfoundland on approaching the Harbour yesterday. Therefore he rejoiced him once more to be back in the dear homeland amongst his beloved people and to continue as their chief pastor to work for their spiritual and temporal welfare as long as God spared him. While in the Eternal City he had the extreme consolation and pleasure of an extended interview with the Holy Father, His Holiness Pope Pius X., who now so worthily occupied the Chair of St. Peter. Words cannot express the deep gratification the visit had given him. His Holiness enquired most intimately concerning the Church in Newfoundland and the flock committed to his (the Archbishop's) care, and desired him to impart to the congregation on returning the circle of his love and solicitude. His Grace then dwelt in touching terms on the bond of union that existed amongst all the Catholics throughout the world who recognized and acknowledged the successor of St. Peter as their Spiritual Father, and concluded by intimating that on some future occasion he would give the congregation more particulars and details of his interview with the Holy Father, and would also when a larger number of his flock would be present, after due notice impart the Papal Blessing, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed.

Consumption of Tea.

Britain and her colonies still consume more tea per head than any other nation in the world. The annual consumption of tea per head of population in France was shown to be one ounce; in Germany, two ounces; the United States, seventeen ounces; Holland, twenty-four ounces; Canada, seventy-four ounces; the United Kingdom, ninety-eight ounces; while the average for the last ten years in Australia reached 116.3 ounces, or 7.3 pounds, per head.

Nutritive Hypophosphites

When a person feels "blue"—"all tired out"—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares overstudied, etc. Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.

Boy's Narrow Escape.

Were it not for the grit and pluck of his twelve year old brother Frank, the name of Master Eddie Skiffington would be added to the long list of drowning fatalities this summer. The boys, who are sons of Watchman Skiffington, were playing around on a fish stage at Quidi Vidi yesterday when Eddie fell in the water at the stage head. Frank, when he heard his brother's cry for help, jumped overboard and catching a firm hold on Eddie's hair held him above water till the father came half a minute afterwards and rescued them both.

Guards at Topsail.

The Methodist Guards attended service yesterday morning at Topsail, making a very attractive appearance as they marched from camp to the little church. They also attend Divine Service in the afternoon when a short but highly appreciative and instructive sermon was preached by the Pastor. Next Wednesday they will have their field day, and on Thursday they will go to Bell Island. Return to town will be made on Saturday next.

WHALING NEWS.—The Cachelot captured three whales between the time the Invermore was at Emily going north, and the date of her return south to Hawke's Harbor. She has now 22 fish landed.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

Be advised in the choice of your Soap. Some soaps are dear at any price because they hurt your hands and ruin your clothes. But Sunlight Soap is a pure soap, and, therefore, a harmless soap. It does all the work in half the time, at half the cost.

A Revolution in Wheat Farming.

TO THRESH STANDING GRAIN. It is announced, in unqualified terms, from Wichita, Kansas, that Curtis Baldwin, a farmer living near Nickerson in that State, has invented a machine for threshing grain in the fields, and that it works. This announcement is to be classed as "important, if true." If the reported invention can accomplish all that is claimed for it, it is in a high degree revolutionary and important. There have been two trials, it is reported, of the machine made from Curtis Baldwin's plans, one in a field of wheat, and one in a field of oats, and it is declared that the grain was satisfactorily threshed in both cases. It is further declared that with this machine one man can do the work of which twenty-five men are required at present, and that one machine and four horses will supplant several machines and many horses under the present methods of harvesting. The following is the description given of the work done: "By threshing the standing grain in this manner, the use of binders, reapers, wheat stackers, pitchers, stackers and threshing machine crews are eliminated. The machine, according to Mr. Baldwin, will solve the problem of the shortage of harvest hands and the spoiling of grain in the stack. The mechanism of the thresher is simple. It resembles a header and the horses are driven behind the machine. In place of the header sickle there is a cylinder 10 inches in diameter. The heads of the grain are driven against this cylinder by the driving blast of the exhaust fan. The grain is then carried back to a cleaner, where it is separated from the chaff, which is carried by an elevator to the sacker. The fan and elevator are run by a gasoline engine. The machine is made of steel and weighs about 2,500 pounds. It takes the same size swath as a header, but travels faster because it does not depend on a barge."

Rev. G. W. Ridout.

The Rev. G. W. Ridout, who has been on a visit to his native land, will be leaving for Philadelphia by the s.s. Siberian this evening. During his visit Mr. Ridout had had a busy time and has renewed many old memories and associations. He has preached in four of our largest city churches, and all his efforts were marked by zeal and earnestness.

Before he began his sermon at Wesley Church last evening he read the following tribute to his country, and we feel certain that all our readers will appreciate the rev. gentleman's sentiments:

Tribute to Newfoundland.

After many years of absence it has been my happy privilege to return again to my native land, and as I have had opportunity to view the advances made, the marked improvements, the almost phenomenal developments of the city of St. John's and the Colony generally, I feel like using the language of the Queen of Sheba, "Behold the half was not told me." I left St. John's the year after the fire (1833), at the time the city was just feebly recovering itself; debris and ashes lay everywhere, but in some parts new buildings and stores were in course of erection. Within seventeen years a new city has arisen with stores the equal of many in greater places, public buildings as fine as can be found in any city, churches whose architectural beauty and general equipment are the equal of those found in any of the American cities, and homes which for beauty and location and comfort are as fine as can be desired by any people. Then the business life of the city and Colony has so changed. Now you have not only one thing to depend upon for the development of business but many. Once it was the fisheries only, now you have the fisheries, of course, but also the railroad, saw mills, mines, pulp and paper manufacturing, shipping and many other profitable enterprises, so that to-day the Newfoundlanders have a dozen ways of earning his livelihood, and many of your more ingenious men may not only make a living but may become rich. Let it be declared to all men that Newfoundland is no longer the rock-bound island, the home of the fog and iceberg and the codfish, and native who know nothing save the winds cold blast, the tug and tear of the canvas upon the bonding mast and the catching and curing of the cod, but let it rather be known that in these latter years a country has grown up—a country of whom every son and daughter might well be proud. Newfoundland—a country rearing sons and daughters of character, of brain and brawn; a country gathering up millions of money from its mines, its forests, its lakes and seas; a country where education and religion is given a conspicuous place, and where Britain's flag proudly waves over a domain almost untouched by the waves of modern crime. Newfoundland is no longer an isolated island, but her railroad now brings her in touch with the whole American continent, whilst the numerous cables puts her in touch with the whole wide world. Whilst the sons and daughters of Newfoundland are to be found in every country, some of them in high places of trust, many of them preaching the Gospel, and many more honorable citizens of other lands, yet let me say that it is my conviction that the young men of enterprise and push who stay right at home will not be without their reward. Canada and United States may have some golden offers, but Newfoundland is only in the morning of a great era. There will be a greater to-morrow and those who devote themselves to the country's development will become enriched themselves. A great future awaits this land of ours and may God grant His blessing to all who labor to bring it to pass. And in conclusion let me say of Newfoundland:—

My native country thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love.
I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills,
My heart with rapture thrills
Like that above.

The Telegram extends to Mr. Ridout its heartiest good wishes, and trust that in his good work in his adopted land he may have abundant success.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Gentlemen,—In June, 98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

Yours truly,
A. E. ROY,

Bruce Inspected.

The S. S. Bruce returned to Port aux Basques at 4 p.m. yesterday having had her boilers inspected at Sydney on Saturday under the Canadian Marine Law. The Gloucester made a trip to Sydney and back to Port aux Basques while the Bruce was undergoing inspection.

KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

The Shamrock Dismasted Again.

Special to Evening Telegram.
COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 6. Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock, on which King Alfonso of Spain is aboard as a guest of the owner, was dismasted to-day. A stiff breeze was blowing and a heavy rain falling. Ill luck for the second time follows Sir Thomas in entertaining royal guests upon his racing yachts. King Edward having been a guest upon the Shamrock II when the Challenger for the American Cup was dismasted and wrecked by a sudden squall on the Solent, May 22, 1901. King Edward had a miraculous escape from injury when the topmast and then the heavy steel boom gave way in the squall. The wreckage—steel cables, heavy blocks and sails—coming down all over the deck of the yacht.

The British Challenges.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Aug. 6. Two of the British challengers for the International Motor Boat Race for the Harmsworth Cup, belonging respectively to the Duke of Westminster and Daniel Hanbury, were shipped to New York on the steamer Minnetonka which sailed to-day. The Duke of Westminster's boat has an engine of 400 horse-power. During its trials a short time ago it was sunk. With Hanbury's entry the Zigorella, it will carry the colors of the Motor Yacht of Great Britain. The race will be run August 20 over the Larchmont Yacht Club course.

Back From Fogo.

The s.s. Fogota, Capt. Barbour, returned from the northward at 7:25 yesterday morning, having made all the ports of call between Greenspond and Change Islands. Fine weather prevailed all the trip. There was quite an improvement in the fishery at Wadhams, Pickford's Island and Musgrave Harbor in the early part of last week but it did not hold out.

Killed at Boston.

Michael Bennett, of Holyrood, was killed in an explosion at Boston last Saturday. His brother James had a telegram from a sister at Halifax telling of the sad event. Deceased, who was 26 years of age, was a railway engineer. Particulars of the accident have not been received.

Miss Winnie Moore came to St. John's on Saturday from Carboneau on a visit to Miss (Nurse) Her, Le-Marchant Road.

Catholic Junta Renounces Demonstration

Special to Evening Telegram.
SAN SEBASTIAN Aug. 7.

The Government's rigorous measures and the formal renunciation by the Catholic Junta of the threatened demonstration in this city insured comparative tranquillity to-day, and a largely attended bull fight was the chief incident of the day. From daylight the streets were patrolled by cavalry, infantry and gendarmes, while heavy bodies of soldiers were held in readiness in the barracks. The gravest incident occurred last evening when groups of Catholics assembled shouting: "Death to Spain, long live the Pope." Thousands of indignant people rushed towards the manifestation, and only the personal intervention of the Governor at the head of a platoon of police prevented a riot. Nearly 1,500 arrests were made. Many amusing scenes were witnessed. Priests leading trudging ranks of peasants took to their heels when they found the city in possession of the military. The peasants, all their courage gone, were disarmed and easily persuaded to return to their homes.

Gloucester's Annual Tribute.

Special to Evening Telegram.
GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 7. Gloucester paid her annual tribute to the memory of her dead fishermen to-day, when thousands of flowers were scattered upon the waters of the harbour with fitting ceremony. The exercises were preceded by a parade of school children and others which was formed in Town Hall Square and ended at Stage Port Park where the roll call of the fishermen was read. The roll call showed that 43 fishermen have died during the year.

The Vatican Optimistic

Special Evening Telegram.
ROME, Aug. 7. The feeling at the Vatican to-day is optimistic. Hope is entertained that an understanding with the Spanish Government will soon be reached. It is pointed out by the Vatican that Premier Canalejas must be grateful to the Papacy for restraining its followers from disorders which might have led to civil war.

Spanish Outlook Favourable.

Special to Evening Telegram.
PARIS, Aug. 7. The San Sebastian correspondent of the "Echo de Paris" says there is a feeling in Government circles that negotiations with the Vatican will now take a new and favourable turn.

Alfonso Reassured.

Special Evening Telegram.
COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 7. King Alfonso appeared re-assured by the cheerful news to-day from San Sebastian. It is understood that the Pope has written him an important autograph letter on the subject of the clerical conflict. The King made his customary round of calls to-day.

A COOL PROPOSITION And a Sure One.

The Body Does Not Feel Heat Unpleasantly if it Has Proper Food—

Grape-Nuts

People can live in a temperature which feels from ten to twenty degrees cooler than their neighbors enjoy, by regulating the diet. The plan is to avoid meat entirely for breakfast; use a goodly allowance of fruit, either fresh or cooked. Then follow with a saucer containing about four heaping teaspoonsful of Grape-Nuts, treated with a little rich cream. Add to this about two slices of crisp toast with a heaping amount of butter, and one cup of well-mashed Postum. By this selected food the bodily energy is preserved, while the hot, carbonaceous foods have been left out. The result is a very marked difference in the temperature of the body, and to this comfortable condition is added the certainty of easy and perfect digestion, for the food being partially predigested is quickly assimilated by the digestive machinery. Experience and experiment in food, and its application to the human body, has brought out these facts. They can be made use of and add materially to the comfort of the user. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Tim Shannahan on Autos and Motor Bikes

"Would make a horse laugh to watch the speed of the automobiles in this town. You'd swear the occupants were really in a hurry, but keep your eyes peeled and chase them and you'll find them sound asleep in a high chair an hour afterwards. This simply high comedy to take a side glance at the expression on the wrinkled countenance of the lady passenger, something between the anxious look of a captain in his first spring in charge at the ice, and the scrutinizing peer of an auditor on Municipal accounts. The man or woman who apex a New Yorker get up in this town, deserves the pity of the citizens, and is not in keeping with the general tone of the town. You can't get too busy, you're not allowed, for its no trouble to find a cold wave of the "take your time" blend that will cool your ardour around here. We will be many years yet before we will be able to lay claim to being a fast city. We, as a people, will have to learn a great deal about cities and city life, and until that time arrives we should not be pestered out of our lives with automobiles going mad, driven in a great many cases by drivers who might have had some experience driving a "sculling oar." Everything is lovely on the Bowery, till one fine day some poor old woman will be killed, the papers will have scare headlines, and a post mortem examination will be reported as being held. Then there will be the usual growl and the thing ends, and the poor old woman will soon be forgotten. Now the safety of the citizens demands that drivers should know their business, and Shannahan demands that the Council attend to this matter immediately. We are living in a quiet town and if we are to interest tourists it is only by our quaintness that we can do it. We are not a busy people, as busy people are gauged in big cities, for every one knows you can lose a morning waiting for a cash-keeper to come, who has gone out to get a shave. Until we wake up we should not be placed in the dangerous position wherein we run the risk of spending two months in a cot down in the General Hospital. Motor bikes and the men who get on them should be locked up in some midway barn, away out in the country, either that or ship them off to Coney Island on exhibition, 't would be a paying experiment for the colony and we'd likely get a special prize for their discovery of a lost relic of by-gone days.

OLIVER CROMWELL.

A Socialist of the 17th Century.

BY JOSEPH E. RAY.

Two hundred and fifty years ago there passed into "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns" England's first great social reformer—Oliver Cromwell. All his great victories had been won on September 3rd—his fortunate day—and it was on September 3rd that fate removed him from the activities of a strenuous and tumultuous life. By many students of history, Cromwell is looked upon more as a revolutionary than as a socialist; but he was a socialist long before he became a revolutionary. From his early youth socialism ran through the veins of all his thinking, and only when he found it impossible to disseminate his socialistic propaganda by word of mouth did he resort to canon and sword. What is most remarkable about the Protector's socialism is that it should have had its origin in the mind of an aristocrat, for it is a well known fact that the blood of the Cromwells had been "blue" for many generations. Est Oliverius Cromwellius genere nobili atque illustri ortus, wrote Milton. Oliver's godfather had luxuriously entertained the first of the Stuarts at the great court of Hinchinbrook, young Oliver, who was then four years of age, doubtless being present on the occasion. We are not unmindful of Tolstol; nevertheless we are accustomed to look for the rise of social reformers, not among the aristocracy, but among the discontented working classes who have begun to furnish the House of Commons with a party of reformers destined to play a great part in the future social progress of Great Britain.

Cromwell's Inspiration.

The personality of Cromwell has always been a mystery to psychologists. By some he is considered a type of religious fanatic acting under the firm conviction that he was "called of God" to destroy the enemies of "pure religion and undefiled," and to bring low the men of high degree who, he thought, were promulgating incontinence in public life, and Romanism in religious seminaries. That he was profoundly religious is evident not only from his letters, but from his acts. His nature was saturated with Biblical theology extracted from the chronicles of the older dispensation rather than from the Sermon on the Mount. Had Cromwell been as familiar with the Beatitudes as he was with the Psalms, it would be difficult to understand his wholesale massacres of priests on the ground that all they were not Puritans. Less religion and more rationalism would have prevented hatred of him on the part of the Presbyterians, and Ireland would not have perpetuated the legend of tyranny which is summed up in the peasants' saying of the Curse of Cromwell.

The basis of Cromwell's inspiration is to be found in his unswerving belief that God was the author of all his projects; that the Word of God was ringing in his ears day and night continually. He was a type of his age, an age that has been well depicted by Frederick Harrison: "In the lifetime of Oliver Cromwell the society in which he lived had absorbed to the depths of their souls a Biblical conception of life. Their Bible was literally food to their understanding and a guide to their conduct. They saw the visible finger of God in every incident of life; they heard the authentic voice of God in every turn of existence. They saw Satan in everything evil, and heard the voices of devils in all that was harmful, vicious or unjust. If they took counsel of each other of their own judgment they literally believed that God and His angels prompted every thought. If one seemed to them just and useful, he was beloved of God; if one seemed to do harm, he was hated of God. If they were undecided, they sought God; if they felt confidence, they had found God. If they felt hopeless, they had lost God. Now that which in our day devout men and women come to feel in their earnest moments of prayer, the devout Puritan felt, as a second nature, in his rising up and in his lying down; in the market place, and in the home, in society and business; in Parliament, in council, and on the field of battle."

To prosecute a battle without a conviction that the Lord had authorized it would have been impossible to Cromwell. After his success at Naseby he wrote to the Speaker:—"Sir, this is none other but the hand of God, and to Him alone belongs the glory, wherein none are to share with Him." At the battle of Dunbar he stood on the field in the presence of his men and sang the 17th Psalm through to revive their drooping spirits. And after cruelly putting to death men, women and children in St. Peter's Church, Drogheda, he could still believe that God had made him the instrument of such bloody work. "It hath pleased God to bless our endeavors," he writes.

Was Cromwell's Work Enduring?

It is questionable whether the social and religious revolution of which Cromwell was the dynamic left a permanent impression upon English life. The fields, lanes, and streets of England had been stained with the blood of her noblest sons. It was a terrible price to pay for an unsuccessful attempt to push Puritanism down the throats of the aristocracy, or to attempt the establishment of a social system which the more advanced people of this generation are not yet prepared to embrace. A country cannot be ruled by any little Parliament of "holy men." The profligacy of the Restoration was the reply to Cromwell's patriarchal exhortations.

That Cromwell's socialistic spirit had exercised its influence was apparent in the demands of his army. Republicanism, sovereignty of Parliament, annual or biennial elections, extensions and equalisation of the suffrage, local self-government, codification of the law, complete religious liberty, and equal political rights were part of the socialistic propaganda presented to Parliament with all the urgency of a Royal proclamation. At one period it was feared that Cromwell's training of his army would lead to his own annihilation, for their socialism swelled into plots to assassinate both Charles and their stalwart leader.

One Act of Parliament must be looked upon as permanent: the death of the old Monarchy. For one generation the Stuarts returned, but the old feudal rights and political power had departed forever. The Church of England reappeared, but minus the influence of Laud and Charles. Parliamentary government, equality of rights, equity in law, all date from the memorable year of 1649.

It is quite true that England rejected Cromwell's system of government, namely, that it should rest with a Single Person and a Parliament, the Parliament making all laws and doing all supplies, co-ordinating with the authority of the Chief Person, and not meddling with the executive; but it is a great compliment to Cromwell that the American people have adopted it. More than a century after the Protector's death the founders of the United States revived and established his ideal, basing it upon popular election, a thing which, in 1654, was impossible in the British Isles.

Know How To Keep Cool?

When Summer's sun and daily toil heat the blood to an uncomfortable degree, there is nothing so comforting and cooling as a glass of Horrible Accident at Bay de Verde.

Mrs. Geo. Coish and her two little children, aged 12 and 5 years respectively, met with a horrible experience at Bay de Verde last Friday which ended in the death of the younger child, who was practically broiled to death. The other girl and the mother have a fair chance of recovering. Two of Mr. Thos. Moore's men were boiling cod oil in the factory when the boiler exploded and burst the end out of the building just as Mrs. Coish and her children happened to be passing that way. They were struck by pieces of the boiler and knocked prostrate, a deluge of boiling oil falling on them at the same time. The two men who were working in the factory were not hurt and made their escape through the side opposite to which the boiler and oil were driven. The cries of the victims soon drew a crowd to the spot, and everything that sympathy and kindness could suggest was done to relieve the sufferings of the victims of such an unprecedented and horrible fate. Dr. Pickard, who was early on the scene, applied emollients and bandaged up the wounds, but in doing so realized the younger child could not possibly live as the flesh was eaten from her poor little body by the boiling oil. She lingered in terrible agony till yesterday morning when her pure soul winged its way to Him who said: "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." The terrible casualty has caused a deep gloom over the whole community of Bay de Verde, and deep sympathy is expressed on all sides for Mrs. Coish and family.

Emperor of the British

The Mayor Wishes to Obtain an Expression of Public Opinion.

Dear Sir,—I received the enclosed letter a couple of days ago, and I ask if you would kindly publish same in the columns of your paper with a view of eliciting from the public an expression of opinion thereon and oblige.

Yours respectfully,

W. J. ELLIS, Mayor.
St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 4th, '10.

22nd July, 1910.

Dear Sir,—The Daily Express has suggested that His Majesty King George should, on the day of his Coronation, proclaim himself Emperor of the British. It is not necessary for me to elaborate on this point for the purpose of explaining the situation to you.

Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand have ceased to be Colonies. They are not under the Parliament of the United Kingdom; they are free and independent, making their own laws, ignoring ours; the sole remaining link between them all being the person of the Sovereign.

What we suggest is that King George at the moment of his Coronation should take to himself and for his descendants the title, rank and dignity of Emperor of the British. The King will not do it if he thinks such an action on his part will be contrary to the wishes of his people, and I shall be glad if you, as Chief Magistrate of one of the Empire's great cities, will let us have your views on the subject either by letter or by cablegram. I am, sir,

Faithfully yours,

(Sgd.) P. D. BLUMENFELD,

Will Play the Brilliant.

The Star football team has decided to accept the challenge of the football eleven of H.M.S. Brilliant sent them last week. The contest will take place next Wednesday night on St. George's Field and will no doubt be witnessed by all the lovers of football in the city. The Brilliant's eleven are said to be a husky lot and have already distinguished themselves on the field in Canada and England. Their names are Barnes, Burry, Jones, Loft, Peck, Molyneux, Harrison, Hatley, Kearns, Elkington and Ashton.

Fell Over Cliff.

A boy named Hiscock, son of Mr. Edward Hiscock, of Carbonar, fell over the cliff at Cox's Cove, Venison Island, Labrador, last week while searching for bakeapples. He was seriously wounded in the head, and his recovery for three days was doubtful. Dr. Shankel, on the Invermore, attended him at Venison Island when the ship was coming up, and when he left him had good hopes of his recovery.

RAILWAY APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. J. Pumphrey has been appointed Locomotive Foreman at Bay of Islands, in the R. N. Co's. service, and Mr. A. Hartley has been given the position of Travelling Engineer in place of Mr. Pitt, deceased.

BARGAINS in Furniture Show-Room, 3rd FLOOR:

This, the largest Furniture Showroom in the city, is now a panorama of Bargains in useful household goods, new and up to date in every particular—Bedroom Suites, Bedsteads, Springs, Mattresses, Couches, Chairs, Rockers, etc. We have also just added to 3rd Floor Extension A NEW DEPARTMENT, embracing many of the lines recently carried at our central store (now vacated). This department will be specially devoted to Crockeryware, Glassware, China-ware, Household Requisites, Fancy Goods, Pictures, etc. It is next to impossible to tell in detail of all the money saving opportunities to be found on this vast floor; but large as it is, every available inch is utilized in the display of useful, merchandise, unmatched in variety and value, novelty and beauty of styles. You can only tell by coming. A close-range study will reveal bargains, the like of which are unknown elsewhere—prices in some cases below the cost of production. It but emphasizes the buying and selling power of this store, its helpfulness to St. John's shoppers, the broad, just and liberal system that shares every advantage with you. Drop in any time this week and spend a pleasant and profitable half hour going through. It will be a pleasure to us to show you around and point out where you save.

Where to Buy FURNITURE—Why at the Big Furniture Store, of Course

Our immense business gives us buying facilities which enable us to offer you bargains you can never obtain elsewhere. We have a lot of special values that once gone cannot be repeated. So come at once!

As prices have advanced to take effect in October, we would advise all those who possibly can to take advantage of the low prices as they are at present, and so save anywhere from 10 to 15 per cent., which will be the advance in a few weeks.

When in Doubt Buy of Us.

F. McNAMARA, QUEEN STREET.

Clearance Sale,

HENRY BLAIR'S,

COMMENCING SATURDAY AND LASTING FOR ONE FORTNIGHT ONLY.

We have made up our minds to make this

THE GREATEST SALE OF THE YEAR.

All Summer Goods are offered at ENORMOUS REDUCTIONS, and besides that, to put the utmost interest possible into SALE, we have made

A Great Reduction on the Price of every article of Dry Goods in Stock

—said Reductions being confined entirely to Cash Purchasers. Owing, therefore, to the multitude of bargains thus offered we have found it would be impossible in a Newspaper Ad. to give any sort of a description of Goods Reduced or Prices, and have considered it best to compile a Circular which we are issuing and distributing on Saturday. It will give you a Good Idea of the Value being offered (as also will our windows), and you cannot afford to miss seeing it. If you should not get one in the Distribution ask for one at the store. We can assure you the low prices at which Goods are offered in it will attract more interest to this than to any sale of the year.

Anybody who is a keen shopper knows that our prices on many classes of Goods are lower than procurable anywhere else. Our prices Saturday will be much lower even again than usual. If you are wise you will avoid the rush and do your Saturday purchasing early and start early Regatta Week and make your purchases at

BLAIR'S Great Holiday Sale.
