MR. CUSTOMER—
Probably you've economised by doing without your usual suit and overcoat during Fall of 1914. Are you going to have that down-and-out look in Spring 1915? The Allies have millions of men on the firing line, each requiring thirteen pounds of wool every six or eight weeks. The British Government are keeping British Mills turning out army contracts.

Spring quotations for woollens are sky high. We have on hand a particularly fine range of Serges, Tweed Suitings and Overcoatings. Order now as you will have to pay considerably higher in the Spring.

CHAPTER XXV.

For a moment he forgot that he was disguised, for the moment his face flushed, his hand clinched, his lip curled with scorn and contempt, but the next, as Howard Murpoint's eyes met his smilingly and unconsciously, he remembered all, and stepped aside.

In doing so he pressed rather heavily against a lady. With a low and hurried "Pardon me!" he turned and looked upon Violet Mildmay!

This time it was the blood left his cheek, and he staggered.

Violet thought that her long train had inconvenienced the tall old gentleman.

"I am very sorry; but the rooms are so crowded," she said, in her sweet, gentle voice.

The tears sprang into Leicester's eyes, his heart leaped as if it would spring from his body, his arms were half extended; but, with another smile, Violet had passed on.

Then a great and terrible feeling of loneliness and desertion came upon him, and he crept back into a corridor all dazed and dreamy.

Round him were the promenaders, about him the exquisite music floating through the perfumed air, the voices of the guests; about all the serene, soft, falsely sweet tones of the villainous schemer; and within him the consciousness that Violet—the woman he loved best in all the world—was near him!

CHAPTER XXVI.

For the first few moments Bertie's sensations on reading Lord Lackland's letter were anything but distinct, then gradually, as he realized the blow which the earl's duplicity had dealt him, indignation predominated.

He had been basely deceived and betrayed, and his betrayal was rendered all the more bitter by the foretaste which he had been allowed to have of his happiness.

He wandered listlessly down to his club.

In the smoking-room, to which he repaired, he found Fitz extended at full length, sipping a brandy and soda.

He determined on the spur of the moment to confide in him.

"Hello, Bert," said Fitz. "What have you done with my nag?"

"Taken him to the stable," said Bert. "I suppose you half feared that I had bolted?"

"No," said Fitz. "What is in the wind? No mischief, I hope."

"Fitz," said Bertie, seating himself beside the good-natured Fitz, "I'm in trouble."

"No!" exclaimed Fitz. "I thought that nothing ever troubled you, Bert."

"Something does now," said Bertie, gravely. "It's about Lady Boisdale—Ethel."

Fitz shook his head gravely.

"I was half afraid there was something on there, Bert, between you and Ethel. I've noticed it for some time, and I thought perhaps you'd speak. I wish you had, because I could have told you that there was no chance for you."

Bertie colored.

"No," said Fitz, heartily. "Nothing would give me greater pleasure; but it can't be, Bert. Look here, one secret is as good as another. There's nobody listening, is there? I'll tell you something," and he sighed deeply. "Ethel and I are as much slaves as any nigger going. We can't marry where we like, and we can't do as we like. People think because I'm the eldest son and she's the daughter of the Earl of Lackland that we can do just as we like. Bert, it's a mistake. We're tied hand and foot. We must marry money. Why? And he looked sadly at Bertie, who stared in astonishment. "Why? Because we haven't a single penny ourselves. We Lacklands are as poor as church mice. There isn't an inch of land, there isn't a brick or stone that isn't mortgaged, and we young ones, Ethel and I, must bring it all right again by marrying money. She'll have to marry some retired tea-dealer, and I—well, I know where I'd marry, and marry money, too; but I can't. The angel—for she is an angel, Bert—is too great, too grand, too good for me. You know, Bert, that there is no man under the sun I'd like to call brother more than I would you, but it can't be. Take a cigar and some liquor and give it up as a bad job, for it can't be. Ethel would never marry you without the earl's consent, and he never will give it."

"But," said Bertie, "he has given it."

"What?" said Fitz, with surprised astonishment.

"Given it and taken it away again. Read that," said Bertie, and he handed the earl's letter to Fitz.

Fitz read it, and his eyes opened their widest.

"But—but," he said, "do you mean to say that the earl gave his consent to your marrying Ethel—don't be offended, old fellow, I know you are worthy of her if any one is—without striking a bargain?"

"N—no," said Bertie, as the earl's words concerning the private fortune of Ethel recurred to his mind. "No," he informed me, very unnecessarily, that Ethel's fortune would be retained or forfeited."

"What!" exclaimed Fitz, springing up, with angry astonishment. "Do you mean to tell me that her money is gone? That she is robbed of the rest of us?"

"I tell you nothing but what I heard," said Bertie, calmly.

"It is gone," said Fitz, white with passion, "of course it is gone! Idiot that I was to think he would spare that when he has taken all else! He has spent—squandered the poor girl's fortune, and then sells her, bargains her away to the first comer. It is shameful. It is unendurable; and, by Heaven, I will not endure it!"

"The bargain is off," said Bertie.

"I tell you nothing but what I heard," said Bertie, calmly.

bitterly. "You forget that the earl has thought better of it. He has recalled his consent."

"Yes, because he has received a higher bid! I know him!" said Fitz, sternly. "He would sell her to the highest bidder as if she were a horse or a piece of furniture. When did this occur?"

"This morning," said Bertie, and then he placed Fitz in possession of such of the facts as he himself was cognizant of.

"I see it all," said Fitz, pulling at his yellow beard in a frenzy. "That Howard Murpoint has been at the bottom of it. But have you noticed how thick the earl and he have been lately? I begin to hate that fellow. Do you remember the old time down there at Penruddie, when he was a regular bore?"

"Shall I ever forget it?" said Bertie, softly.

"Oh, no! poor Leicester!" said Fitz. "Well, we said there was more in the captain, as he called himself then, than appeared at first sight; and now look at him! He's the heart and soul and the whole machinery of the Mildmays, his name is good on 'Change for any amount, and now—now he has taken an interest in us. Bert, there's mischief brewing, mark me if there ain't. Who is this Mr. Smythe you saw him with this morning?"

"A millionaire, one of his city friends, a nab and an idiot," said Bertie, calmly.

"Then that's the fellow Ethel will be sold to," said Fitz, with calm despair.

"No," said Bertie, rising, white and passionate. "I'd shoot him first."

"Shoot him and be hung?" said Fitz, groaning. "You can't prevent it. Howard Murpoint is cleverer than us all, and if he has set his heart upon Ethel's being sacrificed to this Smythe fellow, why, sacrificed she'll be."

"I will help it," said Bertie. "I do not believe Ethel will ever consent."

"She will," said Fitz. "I'll tell you why. They'll represent that if she marries the fellow, she'll save the family; and Ethel has such straight ideas of duty that she'll consent to sacrifice herself."

"Never!" said Bertie. "I would sooner see her in her grave. I would sooner tear her from them by force."

"I'll tell you what," said Fitz. "You had better get her away by cunning." Bertie thought for a moment.

"My honor—"

"Bide you do it," said Fitz. "She will sacrifice herself for a mistaken idea of duty. Nothing will save her unless—"

"He hesitated. Bertie's blood raced through his veins.

"Fitz," he said, "give me your consent, and I will do it. You know I love her. You have been more of a parent to her than her father. Save you consent, and I will snatch her from their clutches."

"I consent," said Fitz, "with all my heart, and I should think you less than the man you are if you didn't."

"I'm a mithering of her," said Bertie, rising and walking to the window. "Will she ever forgive me?"

"Try her," said Fitz, rising and walking toward him. Try her. She loves you, Bert, I know, and—"

"What's the matter?"

"Look here, quick!" exclaimed Bertie, who had started suddenly. "Look there—among the crowd now crossing the road! Isn't that the very figure and walk of poor Les? Heavens above! How like it sent every nerve of me thrilling," and he sank into a chair, staring out of the window still.

"I didn't see him," said Fitz. "Poor fellow! you were great friends. Was it anything like him in the face?"

"No—too old," said Bertie, with a sigh. "Poor Les! Poor Les!"

Then he fell to walking the room, and drank his soda and brandy like one parched with thirst.

That night Ethel was taken to Coombe Lodge, and Bertie, who had called at Grosvenor Square, was told that the family had left town.

Meanwhile Fitz remained, and the conversation he had with Bertie had served him to courage.

They say that one marriage makes nine, by example, and Fitz, seeing that Bertie had been brave enough to declare his love, determined to do so also.

That night there was another conversation at Lady Merival's, and Fitz new that the Mildmays would be guests.

He had an invitation, and he determined to go, though such things were not in his way, hoping to find an opportunity of declaring his long love for Violet.

The night was hot, and Fitz felt burning uneasiness and fear, for he feared Violet as much as he loved her.

He knew within his heart of hearts that she was too good for him, and yet he could not deny himself the pleasure or pain of putting the matter to the test.

Lady Merival's rooms were not too crowded. Her ladyship had mercifully asked no more than her rooms would hold, and Fitz, as he entered rather early in the evening, could see that the Mildmays party had not arrived.

"Just my luck," he murmured. "Of course, now I've plucked up courage, she won't come. Serve me right. I know she's far too precious for me."

He sauntered to a corner and sat down beside an Italian, who had a series of sketches to show and tried to get poor Fitz to speak to him.

But the Italian only knew "Yes" and "No" in English, and Fitz only knew "Macaroni" in Italian, so thus the conversation did not afford much amusement to either party.

Presently, as the rooms grew fuller, a tall gentleman with white hair and wearing spectacles approached the two, and, bowing to the Italian, asked permission to see the sketches.

He spoke in Spanish, a language as strange to Fitz as Italian, so after a few minutes, Fitz rose and left the Italian and Spaniard together.

The Spaniard looked up wistfully. "Do you know that gentleman?" he asked.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrets With Him About It

A trained nurse says: "In the office of my profession I have met many points in favor of Grape-Nuts that I unhesitatingly refer to all my patients."

"It is delicate and pleasing palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to be given with milk or cream, babies or the aged when delicate teeth renders mastication difficult. For fever patients or those on diet I find Grape-Nuts and water very nourishing and refreshing."

"This recipe is my own idea, made as follows: Soak a teaspoon of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water an hour, strain and serve with beaten white of an egg and a dash of fruit juice for flavoring. It affords a great deal of nourishment even the weakest stomach can take without any distress."

"My husband is a physician, uses Grape-Nuts himself and many times for his patients."

"Personally I regard Grape-Nuts with fresh fruit as the ideal breakfast one—well or sick."

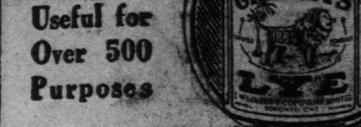

In stomach trouble, nervousness, indigestion, etc., a 10-day trial of Grape-Nuts will usually work toward nourishing and rebuilding. In this way end the trouble, given by Canadian Postum Co., St. John, Ont.

ZEPPELIN DESTROYED.

LONDON, Feb. 18.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
The French Government reports ten hostile counter-attacks repulsed in Champagne, and enemy positions on a front of eight hundred metres captured. Near Beausjour the French captured two hundred prisoners, making satisfactory progress at other points.

The Russian Government reports extremely desperate fighting at certain parts on the right bank of the Vistula.
In Galicia the enemy were repulsed with severe loss. Further east fourteen hundred prisoners and three machine guns were captured near Wrszkow. A series of impetuous attacks were repulsed with heavy loss, one battalion being almost entirely bayoneted and survivors captured.

A Zeppelin has come down on fire, at the Danish Island of Faroe. The officers and crew were interned.
HARCOURT.

ALLIES ARE READY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.
British and French destroyers will meet all threatened steamships, flying the flags of the Allies, and escort them into port, according to cable messages received by officials of steamship companies with offices in this city. Receipt of these messages officials of the British and French lines announced to-day, made them confident that Germany's sea decree, which went into effect to-day, will have little effect upon shipping to and from ports in England and France.

THE CROWNING INFAMY.

LONDON, Feb. 18.
The Copenhagen correspondent of the London Daily News wires from Hamburg: It is learned that the German submarines which are to engage in a blockade of the English Coast, have received detailed instructions how to act. These instructions state that the blockade of Britain gives the submarines the right to regard all merchantmen, found within the blockade area for the purpose of

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE.

Agrees With Him About Food.
A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients.
"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing.
"This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the best white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice for flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.
"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients.
"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick."
In stomach trouble, nervous prostration, etc., a 10-day trial of Grape-Nuts will usually work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding and in this way end the trouble. Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Investigating Dastardly Assail.

The coward who lay in ambush and hit Head Constable Peet in the head with a large stone, putting that officer out of commission, is at large. The police are diligently investigating and hope to round up the culprit who merits the severest punishment. As a result of the assault Officer Peet is confined to his room.

CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL.—On Sat- urday afternoon, if the ice is suitable, the annual children's carnival will be held at the Prince's Rink.

conveying anything to Britain, an enemy ship, engaged in illegal operations. The submarines are to approach merchantmen, if possible without being seen, and torpedo them immediately, without the slightest examination regarding their nationality, or in any way concerning themselves as to the fate of the crew. Neutral vessels which break a blockade have no rights at all, according to international law, and it is understood that the desire is that crews of torpedoed ships shall perish, so there may be left no evidence regarding the fate of ships. The German authorities believe that the disappearance with all hands of many merchantmen will produce most terrifying effects. It is reported that the Kaiser will arrive at Wilhelmshaven to-morrow. The general belief is that he is going to Heligoland to direct the blockade personally. In a few weeks, rumor says, he may go even further than Heligoland.

ADRIATIC RUNS BLOCKADE.

The steamers sunk were the Highland Bree, 4,842 tons; Petaro, 2,810 tons; Hemispher, 2,220 tons, and the Semantha, 1,811 tons. The three-masted schooner Wilfred M., 199 tons, was also sent to the bottom by the cruiser.

SHIPPING LITTLE AFFECTED BY GERMAN SUBMARINE THREAT.—RUSSIAN RETREAT AND LOSS OF BUKOWINA.—BRITISH AND FRENCH TAKE OFFENSIVE WITH THE OBJECT OF RELIEVING PRESSURE ON RUSSIANS.—B.C. REGIMENT COMES EAST.

OTTAWA, To-day.
The Thirtieth British Columbia Regiment, comprising part of the Second Canadian Expeditionary Force, will be in Ottawa to-morrow morning and be inspected on Parliament Hill by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and Major General Hughes. The regiment will complete its training at Halifax before leaving for England.

LONDON, To-day.
No incidents so far as is known have yet marked the opening of Germany's submarine blockade of the British Isles, although it has been in force for nearly twenty-four hours. Nor has the British Government thus far announced its promised retaliatory measures. Precautions, however, are being taken on this side of the North Sea although the German Government warned German people not to expect any sensational developments for some days. The regular cross-Channel passenger service have been somewhat curtailed and altered, otherwise the sea-home trade of the country is proceeding much as usual. The White Star steamship Adriatic, from New York on Feb. 10, crossed the Irish Sea during the night, but did not resort, as did the Lusitania some days ago, to the use of the American or other neutral flag to evade German submarines. Other ocean liners and freight steamers are maintaining regular schedules. A fleet of freight steamers left Denmark for England with provision aboard. It was to keep track of these, it is believed, that the German ships, one of which was destroyed by fire yesterday and another which was reported wrecked to-day on the Danish coast, have been active. In England, Germany's reply to the American note of protest against interference with neutral ships, is creating more interest than the threatened blockade. There is a great deal of curiosity as to what the States will say in response. Even Germany's victory over the Russians in East Prussia and Poland, and the claim that the Germans have taken 64,000 prisoners, take second place to these diplomatic questions between Germany and neutral nations. In Germany, however, this second victory of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in the Province, which he had long made a military study, is being celebrated with great enthusiasm, and the expectation there is that the Russians will take a long time to recover from this blow, even should they succeed in making a stand on the Niemen River as they did last autumn. It is evident, however, that the Russians are far from being beaten. According to their reports battles are in progress not far from the East Prussian frontier, and troops are being rushed from the interior to check the German advance, which is being made on a front of some 200 miles in extent, across the provinces of Villa and Grodnov. In the Carpathians, heavy fighting continues, the Russians claim to have repulsed all Austro-German attacks, while in Bukovina the Austrians with their German supports are pushing across country. They have occupied Kolomoia in Galicia, about sixteen miles north of the Bukovina frontier. It is again reported, this time officially, that they are in possession of Czerowitz, the capital of Bukovina. The Allies, in the hope of relieving the pressure on the Russians, have taken the offensive along the western front. Although French and German accounts differ as to the result of this, it is evident the French and British have been able to make gains at some points which they say to-night have been maintained. The Germans have voluntarily evacuated the village of Norroy, to the north of Pont a Mousson, which they had captured last week after a severe fight.

GERMAN SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, To-day.
A despatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen, dated Thursday, says Emperor William, with his brother, Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, and Admiral Von Tirpitz, left Berlin to-day for Wilhelmshafen, Heligoland and other naval stations, to direct the arrangements for blockading England. It is reported that the Germans have built 120 big mine laying submarines, during the last six months, each with a carrying capacity of one hundred mines.

REPORTED MURDER OF 5,000 GERMAN SOLDIERS.

PARIS, To-day.
A report is current here, but not confirmed, that a mutiny occurred at Ghent in the beginning of the month, in which about 5,000 men, including thirty officers, were involved. According to the report, the mutineers were bound and sent in the direction of Brussels, Malines, Antwerp and Namur.

Bruce Will Leave To-Morrow.

The S. S. Bruce will likely be ready to leave Port aux Basques this evening, but on account of ice and weather conditions will not get away until to-morrow.
The ship will be brought along under her own steam with the Meigs ahead with a taut cable. She will be escorted by means of a jury rudder, and the Home will follow closely in her wake. As there is a considerable quantity of slob ice around the coast, the ships are not expected here until about Tuesday next, and after arrival the Bruce will have to wait about ten days before she can be docked, as the repairs to the Prospero will likely occupy two weeks more.

How German Threats Have Failed
 Now that we have entered upon the period during which Germany threatens to isolate the British Isles by submarine warfare and to starve the British into submission, the opportunity is suitable for recalling other German threats against Britain and how far they have proved effective in some six months and more of warfare. It will be remembered that the "contemptible little" British Army was to be wiped out in the German avalanche which was to overwhelm France and which was to be left as an army of occupation in France and the active army was to have smashed the mobilized Russian Army long before Christmas. The Kaiser did not dine in Paris in the fall, nor did he take his Christmas dinner in St. Petersburg, nor even in Warsaw. Later the Kaiser threatened to hack his way through to Dover and dominate the Straits of Dover, the gigantic Krupp guns. The contemptible little British army has grown into a big and formidable one in France, and his chances of reaching Dover and dominating the Straits are less than they ever were. Again, a considerable German army was to be transported to Britain and the country denuded of its few effective troops, which were to be overwhelmed on the continent, was to be an easy prey to the marauding Huns. Sufficient time has elapsed to slip along to enable big armies to be organized not only for the continent, but for the British Isles. There were the threats of the Zeppelins which were to work wonders on land and sea. British men of war were to be pulverized by dropping bombs and of war still ride the waters and people still sleep securely in London. The German small steam cruisers were to paralyze British shipping, but British shipping still continues to move, and there are few German cruisers left to harass shipping. The greatest threat of all, however, was that celebrated in advance in every German naval mess, when Germans drank to "Der Teufel in der See." This was to give the German Dreadnoughts an opportunity to dispute the British right over the sea, and reduce the British Navy to impotence. "Der Teufel" has not yet arrived and although the months going by are allowing Britain to increase her Dreadnoughts to such a pitch that within a few months, the Dreadnoughts, added since the commencement of the war will be more formidable than the whole German Navy, still "Der Teufel" is put off, and the German Dreadnoughts are kept secluded at their bases. This true, a squadron of British cruisers ventured from their base and indulged in baby killing at Scarborough and Whitby, but they took good care to flee from danger of pursuing British cruisers. The second raid proved costly to them. Their chief anxiety was to avoid fighting, but they speed away as best they could they lost their best armoured cruiser and had two of their battle cruisers badly smashed. There was also the policy of attrition by which British Dreadnoughts were to be picked off singly and the British Navy reduced by torpedo boats and mines to a strength below that of the German Navy. This threat has also signally failed. The Dreadnought strength of the British Navy is far superior absolutely and relatively to that of Germany than it was last August. As this policy has failed, submarine warfare is declared against non-combatants in the British mercantile marine. This mode of warfare was to begin yesterday, and neutral mercantile non-combatants have been told they would have to take their chances. The next few months will show whether there is more in the threat than there has been in the forms of German bluff we have just reviewed. Though some ships, some crews and some passengers may suffer from this policy of piracy, in the main it will not prove more effective than the other threats. The chief element in the threat is bluff.

At Edinburgh Castle.
 Information was received yesterday by James Baird, Ltd., that the Newfoundland Battalion had been removed from Fort George to the Barracks at Edinburgh Castle. This will be quite a change for our boys. The Castle is situated on a great rock which dominates the city of Edinburgh, and is a more interesting old time fort. Edinburgh is the most beautiful city and is known as Modern Athens. The old parts of the city will be attractive to our boys and near at hand is Holyrood Palace and an eminence known as Prince Arthur's seat. It will prove a fine change for our soldiers.

THE RUSSIAN RETREAT.
 LONDON, To-day.
 A Petrograd despatch to the Times says, West of the Niemen operations have not yet gone beyond preliminary skirmishes, while in Bukowina the Russians simply have withdrawn comparatively small forces in order to shorten their lines.

EVACUATED ALL BUKOWINA.
 LONDON, To-day.
 The Russians have evacuated all of Bukowina, according to a despatch to the Times from Bucharest.

THE SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.
 BERLIN, To-day.
 No immediate news from the submarine campaign against Britain is expected in naval circles here, because several days must elapse before the submarine fleet can return to its base and report the results of operations. No news is expected from England regarding destruction to ships.

THE DUTCH PROTEST.
 THE HAGUE, To-day.
 The critical situation brought about by the German naval demonstration has greatly impressed Governmental circles here. A reply to the Dutch protest against the proposed submarine blockade has not yet been received, but it is expected momentarily. Work was continued in all Government offices until late last night and between the Ministers. No real uneasiness is felt as to Holland's position, but every precaution has been taken by all branches of the defensive force in view of possible eventualities.

FRENCH STEAMER TORPEDOED.
 DIEPPE, To-day.
 A German submarine torpedoed this morning without warning the French steamer Dnorah, from Havre for Dunkirk, at a point 136 miles off Dieppe. The Dnorah did not sink but was towed into Dieppe. No mention is made of the loss of any of the crew. A plate on the steamer below the water line was stove in by a torpedo. Nevertheless the Dnorah managed to keep afloat by hard pumping.

RUSSIANS SUCCESSFULLY WITHSTANDING ASSAULTS.
 PETROGRAD, To-day.
 German armies are continuing their terrific attacks upon the 300 mile Russian front between Niemen and Viatka Rivers, but it is officially claimed here that the troops of Grand Duke Nicholas are successfully withstanding assaults. In the Carpathians, being indications that the Austro-German attacks are weakening, the Russian troops have in turn opened an offensive and have gained a number of successes with their counter-attacks. On the northern frontier Russian reinforcements have been sent to the region of Augustowa and Plock over new military railways, which have been constructed since the war began, and it was asserted to-day that the armies of Field Marshal von Hindenburg are now confronted by 300,000 fresh Russian troops who will take offensive as soon as the German losses compel him to slacken their attacks. Claims made by the German war office that 84,000 Russians were captured when they retreated from East Prussia were branded as absurd by Minister of War Sukhomlinoff, reiterating the claim that the Russians effected their withdrawal from German territory without severe losses either in men or equipment.

Wedding Bells.
PHIPPAUD-LARKIN.
 St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday night, at 10 o'clock, when Miss Kitty Larkin and Mr. Ronald Phippaud were united in the holy bonds of matrimony; the ceremony was performed by Rev. CHAPTER VI.

Our next meeting was at George's and the entire spirit of gathering was favorable to visit and public alike. "The usual hour" to the beginning of our meetings was 4 p.m. To the diligence of Mr. McCann, and to the kind interest displayed by His Lordship Bishop Power, we attribute largely the success of our meeting at George's. These gentlemen called upon us at our hotel and gave much good counsel as to what procedure was best to adopt, and the result was we had a splendid gathering and unbounded enthusiasm, and few names which brought the total number of sixty-seven. The meeting was held in the "Court House" which is quite a modern and up-to-date building, and is a splendid auditorium, which to speak Bishop Power's words, "is a very noble building" and among others present we were pleased to see Mr. O'Reilly, who well known to the reading public as the correspondent of St. George's and who has done much by the use of his literary talent to create a healthy public spirit, which seems permeate the people.

At the close of the meeting, His Lordship Bishop Power, delivered kindly address, and assured the part of his support in every way, and I pressed upon the people the duties of the hour, and the gravity of the Empire's position. The party left George's greatly encouraged, and while, as we have said, there was certain amount of unpopularity the work before us, we were fully sure that the majority of the people were awakened to their duty.

The meeting was presided over by Magistrate McDonnell, and one of speakers which had passed that a generation ago in connection with temperance work, reminded the speaker who had received the speaker very kindly at that time, and had treated him well. The chairman in his closing remarks, made a very good hit by saying, that he remembered the visit in question, and that he had been interviewed by the speaker, but he did not remember of having "traded him." The weather was fine, St. George's was very noble, and but at the suggestion of Magistrate McDonnell, the pipers were called across the ice to Sandy Point, where they discoursed their music which suited in many people crossing over to St. George's for the purpose of attending the meeting in the afternoon. In comparing St. George's as we did during our last visit, there was much improvement to be seen on the sides. At that time there was a railway across the country, and Sandy Point was the principal settlement of the place, and what is now St. George's was then known as South Side; but now the railway along this beautiful spot, and the old homesteads have been built, churches, schools and convents have been erected; and quite a new town has grown up where we then called the forest. From all that we heard of St. George's we were pleased to find that all the people are content, and that no such things as poverty, in the sense as we now have in the city, exists.

As our readers know, St. George's was partly settled by French Protestants, many of which are descendants of the Acadians, which had been deported from Grand Pre, in the Bay of Fundy, on the shores of Nova Scotia, in the Bay of Fundy. These people still retain their nationality and their mother tongue. We were so pleased to notice the little change when we met, conversing in their French tongue; and what added to The Appreciative Guest.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

The question as to whether it is good taste for a guest to praise an article of food or to admire an ornament in a hostess' home came up the other day. Someone said it was not good taste. Perhaps it isn't. But even if it isn't, I'm sure it is something better, more cordial and more human than good taste.

Of course I don't mean at a formal dinner or party, but at any friendly gathering where one is one's hostess' friend as well as her guest.

Hospitality Versus Appreciation.

A hostess is supposed to show hospitality toward her guests. I think there is a corresponding virtue required of a guest, I don't know just what to call it, appreciation comes the nearest. A good hostess gives graciously, a good guest receives graciously. And I consider it a part of such gracious receiving to frankly express appreciation now and then.

The ideal breeding which holds up a varnished insensibility as the perfect manner, is not an American ideal, and we do ourselves and the big hearty hospitable country in which we are lucky enough to live an injustice when we adopt it.

If You Like the Salad, Say So.

Don't be afraid to tell your hostess that you like her salad, if she sang for you, or hired someone else to sing, you would praise the performance. Why should you not praise this display of another talent?

If you admire some ornament say so. Few things give the average person more pleasure than to admire his possessions. He loves them not only for themselves but because they are his, and any praise of them makes him feel like a cat having his back rubbed.

A lumpish, unresponsive, unappreciative guest is one of the most dismal things in the world. When you get through entertaining one of them you feel as if you had been carrying a mill stone around your neck.

The only thing worse in the world than entertaining one of these well-bred "icebergs" is—well what's the only thing cuter than a kitten?

Questions and Answers.
Question: "I would like your opinion on if it is right for a young man to keep already company with a girl for one year and a half and not tell her his intentions or ask her to marry him at some future time, though both are old enough to be married and both seem to think lots of each other. Would it be proper for the father to speak to the young man?"
Reply: I think it would be an excellent thing for the father to follow the good old custom and ask the young man his intentions. Whether the young man would feel that way about it is another question. However if he wishes to marry the girl he should have no reasons to resent that inquiry, and if he doesn't he has no right to monopolize her time. I think we could, with advantage, go back to some of our good old fashioned customs in this matter.

Question: Apropos of my talk on the value of speaking and writing properly several people have asked me to mention some good books to study.
Reply: Woolley's "Handbook of Composition" has been valuable to me. Sherwin Cody's "Art of Speaking and Writing the English Language" has been recommended to me. This is in four volumes on various subjects.

Horatio Harbour, Port Rexton, T. B. The total number who enrolled for the second contingent to date is 1,159. Yesterday forenoon at the C. L. B. Armoury the volunteers went through free, section and squad drill. In the afternoon gymnastic exercises were conducted, also a squad had musketry practice at the South Side Range.

At eight o'clock this evening medical examining will be continued and all those who have enlisted so far but who have not visited the doctors should come forward. It is desirable that outport volunteers should bring extra clothing.

Mother! If Child's Tongue is Coated

If cross, feverish, constipated, bilious, stomach sour, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative to-day save a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailments, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation, nervous, sour bite and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Machine Gun Tested.

Yesterday afternoon one of the quick fliers, recently presented to the Newfoundland Regiment by Mr. W. D. Reid, was taken to the Butts at Nagle's Hill, and tested by Sergt. Major Lavoye in the presence of His Excellency the Governor, Hon. J. R. Bennett, Mr. B. G. Reid, Mr. F. Rioux, Hon. J. C. Crosbie, several of the volunteers and others.

The gun was mounted, and after the sights had been adjusted by instructor Lavoye the first shot was fired by His Excellency at the 75 yards range. Several others of the party also tried their skill at different ranges, the gun being shifted rapidly by the volunteers, at the word of command.

The demonstration proved that the gun is as effective as represented, both with regard to accuracy and rapidity, and will be quite a valuable acquisition to the arms of the Newfoundland Regiment.

M. C. L. I. Debate.

"Is a Government justified in regulating the price of foodstuffs in times of peace, as well as in times of war?" was the question debated at last night's session of the Methodist College Literary Institute, and after an interesting discussion the voting resulted in a tie.

The leaders for the affirmative were Messrs. G. Soper, J. Bowden and P. H. Cowan; whilst the negative side was supported by Messrs. B. F. Horwood, G. Rabbits and B. Edgewood.

The arguments brought forward showed that the several debaters had made a close study of the subject, and the explanation of the different theories advanced proved highly interesting.

At the close Mr. Alex McDougall, by request, addressed the large gathering present complimenting the Institute on the excellent work being done for the intellectual advancement of its members.

And in the papers read
Each day how some brave British boy
Hath done a gallant deed;
His name is writ forever on
The scroll of deathless fame!"
Then surely, sonny, you, you, YOU
Should go and do the same!

"Of course it's not all honey for
The boys who fight with French.
Up to the waist in mud and ice;
With death all round the trench;
It's wonderful how they contrive
To keep their nerve and grit!"
Oh, sonny, how they'd welcome you
To do your little bit!

So I propose to stay.
I'd be a mug to volunteer
All for one bob per day!"
Oh, sonny, if you funk the job.

But—dare you look them in the face
When they come home again?"

Gefman officers and men captured in the Zeppelin airship which was brought down by the Russian guns after it had dropped bombs on Liban, are not being treated as prisoners of war, but as state criminals. They will be tried before a military court on charges of attempting murder. The Petrograd "Novoe Vremya" maintains that this is the logical and necessary treatment to be accorded to any soldiers of belligerent powers who infringe upon the Hague conventions by attacking undefended places.

THE HINDU.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Autor of "At Good Old Swah." The Hindu is the principal inhabitant of India. He is an illustration of what happens to the white man when he moves into a hot climate and neglects to progress for 5,000 years.

Once the Hindu was white and tall, but that was in the remote B. C.'s, long before the Chicago Union Station was built. Now he is brown and about the size of the leader in a pony ballet. He dresses in nineteen yards of white cloth, eighteen yards of which he wraps about his head, and he lives in a mud hut in the middle of a rice field as large as a New York millionaire's ballroom.

There are more than 200,000,000 Hindus in India and their principal aim for centuries has been to raise enough rice to last until the next harvest. Now and then they do not succeed by a large majority and then the female returns in India, make the European war look like a harmless pastime.

The Hindu is a very religious man. He refrains from meat and strong drink and kills no living being because of his beliefs. Unfortunately the tigers of India are not religious and have no faith in vegetarianism. They eat about 60,000 Hindus a year—which is about the number of Americans who perish annually because of a misplaced faith in J. Barleycorn.

Thus, what the Hindu gains in temperance he loses because of his tender care of the tiger.

The Hindu is also famous for his caste system. Unlike the English system this is not merely social but compels the Hindu to put away vain thoughts of progress. Ambition is therefore missing in the Hindu dictionaries and the race has gone ahead in the last thousand years like a pyramid on an up grade.

When the Hindu goes to school he absorbs vast quantities of education in a surprisingly short time and spends the rest of his life planning revolutions. When he does not go to school he becomes a grandfather at the age of twenty-five and is harvested a little later by the pruning hook of time. He is a study in contentment and in steadfast adherence to the glorious principles of the past and is an illustration of what every country would produce if it were not for the fool reformers with their hair-brained notions about new laws and things.

The vessel, when struck by a torpedo fired by a German submarine, had on board 2,600 refugees from Belgian and French coast towns. The report says the attack was committed by a German submarine without warning or stopping. It asserts that the attack was made on an undefended merchantman carrying women and children and old men who were refugees.

The attack, it is contended, was without military or naval utility and was only "the murder of inoffensive individuals."

The meeting was presided over by Magistrate McDonnell, and one of the speakers which had passed that way a generation ago in connection with temperance work, reminded the chairman that he had received the said speaker very kindly at that time, and had treated him well. The chairman, in his closing remarks, made a very good hit by saying, that he remembered the visit in question, and that he had been interviewed by the speaker, but he did not remember of having "treated him." The weather while at St. George's was very cold indeed, but at the suggestion of Magistrate McDonnell, the pipers were conveyed across the ice to Sandy Point, where they discoursed their music which resulted in many people crossing over to St. George's for the purpose of attending the meeting in the afternoon. In comparing St. George's as we saw it during our last visit, there was much improvement to be seen on all sides. At that time there was no railway across the country, and Sandy Point was the principal settlement of the place, and what is now St. George's was then known as the South Side; but now the rails run along this beautiful spot, and splendid homesteads have been built, and churches, schools and convents have been erected; and quite a new town has grown up where we then beheld the forest. From all that we could learn of St. George's we were pleased to find that all the people are comfortable, and that no such thing as poverty, in the sense as we note here in the city, exists.

As our readers know, St. George's was partly settled by French Peasantry, many of which are descendants of the Acadians which had been deported from Grand Pre, in the Minas Basin, on the shores of Nova Scotia, in the Bay of Fundy. These people still retain their nationality and speak their mother tongue. We were interested to notice the little children whom we met, conversing in the French tongue; and what added inter-

A Desperate Bluff.

When General von Kluck was defeated in his attempt to carry the city of Paris in one supreme rush, it was pointed out in these columns that Germany was beaten, and that she had an opportunity to make peace on more favorable terms than she could ever get again. Events have justified that inference. But no man could have foreseen that in a bare six months Germany, blind, furious, futile and despairing, would be fighting like a cornered rat, and screaming like a smacked baby.

Without exception, the world's most tremendous bluff was the German war machine. Every threat is a bluff; and that was a threat which terrorized the world for forty years. Admiral von Tripitz announces a blockade of the British and French coasts by means of submarines. In defiance of the laws of war and the rights of neutrals, merchantmen have already been sunk, without ascertaining whether they contained the property of neutrals as international usage and common humanity require.

But if this desperate bluff had anything behind it, why has the German submarine not sunk a single one of the thousands of transports which have been carrying men and supplies to France? As Germany has ruthlessly disregarded every single one of the laws of war established by the Hague convention, and observed immemorably by all but savages, no consideration of humanity prevented her making a successful attack at a point so vulnerable. If her power were so small in this connection, where a genuine military advantage was to be obtained, why should the world be terrified by attacks upon unarmed merchantmen, having no more military advantage than the bombardment of Yarmouth or Scarborough?

These measures are not military, but political. The German people had been flattered to the top of their bent. They had been promised victory in six weeks, and they are facing starvation in six months. Something desperate has to be done to give them the impression they are getting value for their money. The Hohenzollern dynasty is tottering, and the conscript is beginning to think. The last development is a desperate bluff, indeed. But the world will realize that it is not an evidence of strength, but a confession of weakness. The history of humanity and civilization does not record a spectacle so humiliating.—Wall Street Journal.

Redemptorist Father Dead.

The many friends of Rev. Fr. McCandlish, who visited here with the Redemptorist Fathers in 1913, will learn with regret of his death which occurred at Montreal a few days ago, death being due to pulmonary trouble. Father McCandlish was a comparatively young man, being only about 40 years of age. He was one of the best pulpit orators of the Redemptorist Order and his sermons at the Cathedral and St. Patrick's, during the Mission of 1913 will long be remembered by the Roman Catholic citizens of St. John's. The deceased priest also gave missions in many parts of St. George's Diocese where his eloquent and instructive sermons are still bearing fruit.

COMPROMISE OFFERED ON SHIP PURCHASE BILL.

Washington, Feb. 11.—A compromise proposal designed to extricate the administration Ship Purchase bill from the deadlock which has blocked its passage in the senate, and to avoid an extra session, was put forward to-night by house Democrats through Representative Kitchen, of North Carolina, chosen majority leader in the next house.

The new plan, which proposes the passage of the bill as a temporary emergency measure, was developed at conferences on the house side of the capitol. As announced by Representative Kitchen, the committee promise contemplates the passage through the house next week of the compromise bill suggested by Senator Gore, with an amendment that will terminate the government's activities in the shipping business two years after the close of the European war. Despite President Wilson's announced determination to stand by the bill now before the senate in its present form, Representative Kitchen, the house leader, anxious to avoid an extra session, proposed to put this measure before the senate, and give the president an opportunity to accept it in the event of the total failure of the pending bill.

Household Notes

The best thing I know for dancing in comfort is to gum a tiny bit of velvet inside the back of each shoe. It prevents the shoes slipping, and you needn't have the discomfort of buying shoes somewhat too tight for you to prevent it.

When cooking canned string beans try the following method to avoid their having a starchy taste. Put them on to boil in cold water. After they have boiled for a short time pour the water off and put boiling water on them to finish the cooking.

Never stand a sauce-pan in the damp sink—have a piece of board on which to set it. In cleaning sauce-pans of any kind, remember the outside needs as much care as the inside. A sooty pan means wasted fuel and messiness in handling.

Frying pans should be rubbed with clean tissue or kitchen paper, and not washed every time they are used. Take special pains with lids. Remember that the steam of cooking condenses on the pan lid, and drips again into the contents of the pan.

Either is a very good thing to remove grease stains from wearing apparel. Another method is to dip the garment in tepid water, then place it in cold water to which a little borax has been added. The article should be soaked for several hours and then dried quickly.

The ironing board cover pinned on is not so convenient as a slip. Make it from partly worn sheets. It should be just large enough to slip over the board easily with tapes which will tie over the end. When it becomes soiled it is only a moment's work to slip on a fresh cover.

If anything boils over on a kitchen stove, wipe it up with newspapers. It is always wise to keep a pile handy. They give as good a polish to windows, silver, brass and tinware as leather does. As they absorb grease very quickly, they are invaluable for wiping frying-pans.

It is a good plan to tell the cook to save every bit of left over fat. Have her put it in the refrigerator, and each morning devote a few minutes to the going over of all foods and throw away only what you think cannot be used. There is mighty little that cannot be used in some way.

When choosing bacon, the lean should be firm and bright and the fat quite white. Bacon which looks dark has probably lain in the shop for some time. Do not purchase a very large piece. If it is too fat, it cooks wastefully, and if it is too lean, it is apt to make rashers which are hard when fried.

ANOTHER WARNING.

But if American lives are destroyed in sinking British ships, or if American ships are sunk, it will not do for Germany to plead that she could not distinguish between the right and wrong use of the American flag. It is our business to notify Germany that we do not recognize the possibility of error in submarine attacks upon neutral shipping. It will not do for Germany to insist that British action in declaring the North Sea a military area warrants any extreme whatsoever as a counter blow. Great Britain is not sinking merchant ships. She is not sinking their crews or their cargoes. She has not taken any ships into port since the war began without first instituting the search which the customs of naval war demand. Neither the Lusitania incident nor any other incident of the kind which may happen in the future will absolve the commander of a German submarine from the obligation to make a search of an intercepted merchant ship before sinking her. The sacrifice of American lives and American property could neither be explained nor condoned as an error. The administration would regard it very differently, and the sentiment of the vast majority of Americans would stand solidly behind the administration.—Brooklyn Eagle.

EXTRACTS FROM B. I. S. REPORT.

On St. Patrick's Day your President had the good fortune to attend the banquet of the Charitable Irish Society of Boston. He extended our congratulations to that body on its 177th anniversary.

Early in the year your Society was called upon to record its sympathy in the great disaster which marred the annual success of the seal fishery of our country. At a special meeting, as you may remember, we testified to the relatives of the sufferers our condolence in their severe loss and moreover from our funds we allocated the substantial sum of Two Hundred Dollars to the public subscription list of the Colony, besides donating the receipts of Mr. J. L. Slatery's lecture, "Home Rule and Why," and a further subscription from members of $291.20, the gross sum leaving our rooms being $550.40.

In August last we shared in the deep and universal calamity suffered by the whole of Christendom at the passing of His Holiness Pope Pius the Tenth. The Chair of St. Peter had no worthier occupant in any age and it was with heartfelt sympathy we tendered His Grace the Archbishop our official resolution of condolence. Your officers furthermore attended the solemn Requiem Mass for the late Pontiff held at the Cathedral on August 20th.

As the months slipped by we lost not a few good members to "that bourne from which no traveller returns." Your officers had the sad privilege of attending the funerals of Messrs. E. J. Rawlins, C. Nickerson, John Cormack, Henry Vaughan and James Cormack. The Rev. Father Clarke who passed away in Dublin last summer is another member whose loss we deeply deplore. In the person of Mr. E. J. Rawlins there has left us one who figured prominently in the executive work of the Society and for many years filled ably and well the onerous office of Chairman of Schools. And not even did the Grim Reaper cease to pursue his dark work amongst our secular members but he also took from us our worthy and esteemed Patron, Most Reverend M. F. Howley, Archbishop of St. John's. Many and sincere were the condolences conveyed to the Administrator but none could be more heartfelt, none more genuine than those of the Benevolent Irish Society. His Grace had been one of our oldest members, for many years our Patron, always our friend, and your officers performing the customary duties at the catafalque never officiated with a deeper sense of loss nor more poignant memories.

Looking at the brighter side of the year we have to chronicle the participation of the Society in the rejoicings consequent upon the victory achieved in the cause of Ireland by the passing of the Home Rule Bill. As instructed by you, a congratulatory telegram was sent to Mr. John Redmond and was planned to have the Hall suitably decorated on the assent of the King being given to the measure. Some of the proposed decorations were utilized during the visit of the Duke of Connaught and were favourably commented on by the distinguished visitor. Later however the outbreak of war precluded your executive from commencing their original intention. The Christian Brothers report most favourably on their branch of the work. It is an accredited fact that the boy educated under this capable staff of teachers is a much desired item in the commercial index of our business world, so much so that the demand exceeds the supply. Our rooms are overflowing with bright intelligent youths and the new extension to the Holy Cross Schools was an urgent necessity.

Another phase of the good work of our schools is exemplified in the constant influx of new members. Of the twenty-four candidates who were admitted to membership during the past year over half are young ex-pupils of our class rooms. Such nominees have been of a very high standard and their admission augurs well for the future of our body. After all the success of an institution lies in the personnel of its members and herein we have sought to lament but everything to commend.

Concerning the Treasurer's Report which evoked such genuine satisfaction at the Preliminary Annual Meeting little need be said. It speaks for itself. Our income for the past year has been $5,484.21, whilst our expenditure has totalled $5,278.73. Thus we have a balance on hand of $205.48. Another feature of the financial statement, namely the steady reduction of our debt, may be mentioned as further proof of the effective manner in which our finances have been handled. The funded debt which last year amounted to $16,400 has, this year, been reduced by $1,000.

In the tragic event of the year your Society has done its part. We allude to the Great European War. When the call came for volunteers from our island, the Irish Society responded nobly and up to the present twenty-four of our members have enlisted for Foreign Service. We owe a big debt to those noble boys who have gone forward so readily and given their all to the cause of Empire; and we understand it to be the deep and sincere wish of every member to give our volunteers an honorary place on the roll of the Society and let us trust, welcome everyone of them back to Terra Nova as deserve to be welcomed the trust of her sons.

Wedding Bells.

DOWNEY-WALL.

A very pretty wedding took place at Seaton, at the R. C. Church, on Feb. 9th, when Mr. James W. Downey, of Smithville, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Theresa Wall, of Little River. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mgr. Sears. The bride looked charming in white silk with hat and veil to match. The bride was attended by Miss Katie Downey, while John Wall, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After the ceremony the happy couple returned to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding dinner was partaken of. After the dinner was served the newly-wedded couple drove to their future home at Smithville, where a sumptuous repast awaited them, and another most enjoyable time was spent. To Mr. and Mrs. Downey we wish many years of happiness in their future home.—Com.

Billy Sunday

His language jars the pariahs' soul, his methods jolt some souls a n d cut, he springs a slinky rigmorle — b u t Billy Sunday gets results. He uses club and monkey wrench to knock the sinners off their pins; he he mourns' bench, and makes them shake their scold sins. "This Sunday isn't orthodox," the old line clergyman declares; "for like an auctioneer he talks and mixes argot with his prayers. He isn't ladylike at all, and his successes perplex me; I talk to empty pews and small, while he makes legions bend the knee." Still Billy follows up his plan, with Peter's fiery zeal, endowed, he talks to you as man to man, and speaks the language of the crowd, you hear his voice like trumpet ring, and know, while truths around you whiz, religion is your biz. No doubt you go to fear and scoff, or while some idle hours away, but when he reels his sermon off, you join the push, and kneel and pray. Perhaps he isn't as refined as you would like, but what's the odds? He makes old Satan get behind, and makes men tired of phoney gods.

Give Us Strength.

This makes a total of 65 out of the 73 who volunteered, the remaining eight have withdrawn owing to objections on the part of their parents.

Quench not the martial valor that arise

Within thy offspring when the bugles call

'Tis the ancestral battle blood that cries

"Go serve the Flag round which thy brothers fall,

Go aid it to prevail, 'tis Freedom's Flag to all."

"Thy arm may wield the sword that saves it from the foe

Where ends the final charge for Britain's glory, Go!"

When from the field of fame our boys return

In victory and the pride of duty done

Oh, too fond parent of a would-be MAN

How will you prize the safety that is won?

Shall you be prouder of your neighbor's son

Than of the flesh and blood you call your own?

Shall he despise the craven love that baulked

His son's desire to fight for England's throne?

Immortal mother of the Macabees,

Thy spirit to the mother soul impart

Thy strength is needed in such days as these

When sorrow blights the hope of woman's heart;

O motherhood sublime! as thine must be

The sacrifice that brings us victory!

BRITAIN'S MEN AND THE WAR.

(London Chronicle.)

Colonel F. N. Maude, in the "Nineteenth Century and After," reckons that, taking our male population of the requisite age, our enlistments have already drawn within a fraction of two-thirds of the total men available—i.e., almost exactly the same as the French law of compulsion, the strictest in Europe, would have given us." This calculation may be rather too high; but it remains the case that the proportion already obtained by voluntary enlistment is much higher than most people realize. Nothing like so many men could have been raised by compulsion without dislocating and arresting most of the industries of the country. For the great advantage of voluntarism (which some people too conveniently ignore) is that on the whole it takes those who can economically be spared, and leaves those who, cannot, whereas conscription, save in special industries, is necessarily blind. It is in this fact, scarcely less than in the scantness of our fortress, that we owe the successful continuance of our industries; and we ought not to forget it.

How to Grow Hair.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called Salvia and is being sold with a guarantee to cure dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, Salvia makes a most pleasant dressing. Sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle for 50 cents.

TERRIBLE EFFECT OF BRITISH GUNNERY.

Strong testimony as to the terrible and deadly character of the British gunnery in the recent battle in the North Sea is afforded in the composition of the large body of German prisoners. Practically every large vessel and most of the smaller vessels on board their vessels, scores of men leaped overboard and were picked up. Their ships, swept by shot and shell from the British guns, were unfit towards the end to do more than trust to their engines taking them out of the action. The experiences of these men confirm the statements that the large German vessels and many of the smaller ones sustained damage which will keep them off the sea for a long time. Indeed, it is questionable if some will ever appear again. The loss of life on board was so great and the scenes during the action were so terrifying that the men regarded the ships as doomed.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylax, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylax Soap, 25c. a cake.

The God at Essen.
 (London Chronicle).
 "The Holy Spirit has descended upon me. As the German Emperor I am the instrument of the Most Holy. I am the sword and the rod. Woe and death be unto those who resist my will and who do not believe in my mission. Woe and death unto all cowards and enemies. The German God demands their destruction."—The Kaiser to his Army in East Prussia.

Of all of the gods that man ordains (in man's image made) Which one is the Lord of Hosts who sendeth invincible aid, Who lendeth the ear not in vain, when his suppliant millions have prayed But he grindeth the face of the foe and breaketh his bones with the rod? Who but the "German God?"

II.
 And who is that god's right arm—say who is his rod and his sword, Who chaneth his psalm, and forgeth ahead with his miscreant horde? I answer you, "He that hath made him—even the Lord of his Lord: And he giveth his helmet his God—his smile, his imperial nod—Lo, you, the 'German God!'"

III.
 And where is the seat of that god—of the Lord of the lordliest host? At Essen, at Essen he dwelleth and launceth his insolent boast. And raineth unmeasured destruction on peoples of inland or coast. Iron and Blood is his watchword on ways foreordained to be trod—Lo, you the "German God!"

IV.
 At Essen, at Essen the Cyclos hath tolled while an age hath gone by (Europe, ye caught not the glance of that subtle malevolent eye?); And the creatures he fashioned have swarmed through the earth and the sky: He hath winged them with terror through heaven, on earth with the thunder hath shod—Lo, you, the 'German God!'"

V.
 Yet, there are other gods. And what if their hosts with innumerable feet, Moving from East and from West shall march on that deity's seat? The glint of his steel they will darken, his sword to a ploughshare will beat, And over his vaults of destruction will draw a green mantle of sod! Then, what of the "German God?"—EDITH M. THOMAS.
 New York, 1914.

Limit to Germany's Millions.
 Westminster Gazette.—We do not wish anyone to underestimate the difficulties which lie in front of the Allies, but, if we look over the whole field, we may draw much encouragement from those which must confront the enemy, who has now nearly a thousand miles of trenches to man, and is faced with the imminent possibility of large increases in the numbers opposed to him, and very complicated questions in at least one of the countries which make up this coalition. We deeply mistrust all calculations which assume that is possible for Germany or any of the belligerent nations to bring into the field all the men of military age enumerated in the census of the population. Even at the last pinch millions must be left behind to supply the armies, provide munitions of war, and keep the civil population clothed and fed.

ADVICE TO GERMAN AMERICANS.
 (New York World).
 Representative Bartholdt and his associates are doing Germany no good, and they are doing themselves much harm, by their pernicious pro-German propaganda. When they threaten to carry Germany's case to the polls and make the German cause an issue in American politics, they are playing with dynamite. The American people will not tolerate such a campaign of alienism, and the chief sufferers will be the so-called German-Americans who plot it. Germany is the only country engaged in this war which has officially undertaken to manipulate American opinion. It is the only belligerent which maintains a lobby in the United States to incite public sentiment against other belligerents which we are friendly. The only foreign element in this country which is assailing the President of the United States and seeking to bulldoze the Government of the United States is the German element, and that sort of thing can be easily overdone. When the representatives of German-American societies publicly pledge themselves in effect to oppose all candidates for office who will not sacrifice American interests to German interests, they are straining American patience to the breaking point. Long after this war is over Mr. Bartholdt and his associates will have to live in this country. Few of them will voluntarily return to Germany to help pay the cost of the conflict. Their real interests are all in the United States, and the sooner they reconcile themselves to being Americans the better. This country once had an alien law on its statute books. It might be very reluctant to enact a similar statute, but every day such German-Americans as Richard Bartholdt are breaking down this reluctance.

The Dragoons and Artillery!

It will be admitted that the uniforms of the contesting armies overwhelm one with new ideas from a fashion point of view. There will be no monotony in the models of 1915. Canvas covered helmets and bushes are worn by the Dragoons, Guides, Hussars and Artillery Officers, hence canvas will be utilised in the fashioning of hats for summer wear. Frogging will come into its own again for decorative purposes, inspired by the grey frogged tunics of the Hussars.

The war affects the styles, and the Dry Cleaning process reduces the cost of ladies' apparel.
