

The Sound of Wedding Bells

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER V.

He bends over Mrs. Fermor's hand, glances at the graceful, languid figure on the couch, and then takes the chair which Mrs. Fermor has indicated, and in taking it turns it so that his side is almost presented to the said figure.

"First," he says, and at the depth of his musical voice Mrs. Fermor starts again, "permit me, madame, to apologize for a visit so late, and I am afraid you will think, so unceremonious."

"Not at all," murmurs poor Mrs. Fermor, weakly, and glancing timidly and imploringly at the inert figure, is Dulcie going to maintain that attitude during the whole of the interview? Is she going to take no part in it? It would seem so. Dulcie appears sublimely unconscious of the glance, and fans herself with delicately suggested dearness and abstraction.

"But," continues Sir Hugh, stroking his crush hat absently, "I am afraid I shall have to leave Rome early to-morrow, and I thought that so possibly early an hour would be more inconvenient than even this late one."

"I—I am an early riser," says Mrs. Fermor, hesitatingly. "I always have been, but perhaps my niece would not have been up," and she looks at "my niece," but Dulcie does not make any sign.

"And," says Sir Hugh, "the business is so important that I deemed it unwise to delay."

"Very kind," murmurs Mrs. Fermor.

"The fact is," he says, "that I have just received a communication from my lawyer, conveyed to me by his confidential clerk, who has been following me about the Continent for the last fortnight, and only discovered, I may say, ran me down here to-night."

"Ran you down! Oh, yes; I understand," says poor Mrs. Fermor.

Why didn't Dulcie sit up and come forward?

"My lawyer," goes on Sir Hugh, keeping his eyes fixed steadily on the old lady, "has sent me a copy of Mr. Trevenion's will"—here he takes out a roll of parchment from his pocket, but seeing the look of helpless vacancy that at once settles upon Mrs. Fermor's expressive countenance, he adds, kindly, "but I need not trouble you by reading it; I can give you the gist of it in a few words. Perhaps you know all about it already?"

"No, indeed," says Mrs. Fermor, "that is really what we do not know. We have an idea."

"Ah," he says with rather a sigh; he had hoped to have been spared the necessity of going into details. "Well, as you know, Mr. Trevenion and my father, the baronet, were very old friends; he married into the family, so that I was, in a remote way, a relation of his."

"So I have heard," murmurs Mrs. Fermor.

"I was, perhaps, almost the only friend Mr. Trevenion possessed—I mean that he was a particularly reserved and solitary sort of man, and I was the only one permitted to share his confidence; in a word, Mrs. Fermor, I was always taught to consider myself Mr. Trevenion's heir."

"We always understood that, did we not, Dulcie?" says Mrs. Fermor, addressing the silent figure in desperation.

Dulcie merely nods her head, and leans further back in the soft cushions.

Sir Hugh keeps his eyes fixed in their steady avoidance of the sofa and goes on:

"I may say, in justice to myself, that I have often ventured to remind Mr. Trevenion that he possessed relations who were more nearly connected with him by ties of blood, and have more than once begged that he would not neglect their natural claims to his consideration."

"Extremely disinterested," says a sweet, murmuring voice.

"I beg your pardon," says Sir Hugh, turning to the sofa; but Dulcie meets him with a little stare; "I thought you spoke; pardon," he says.

"It appears, however, that all my representations were, to a certain extent, in vain. I say to a certain extent, because a day or two before his death he spoke of one of his relations, and made a reference to her in his will," and he touched the parchment. "That relation was your niece, Miss Dulcie Dorrimore."

CHAPTER VI.

Mrs. Fermor wipes her lips nervously, and nods.

"My dear Dulcie, had you not better come nearer, where you can hear Sir Hugh more distinctly?"

But Dulcie shakes her head.

"Thanks, auntie, I can hear here quite well enough," she says, with the most exasperating sweetness.

Sir Hugh frowns, and smooths out his opera-hat.

"That reference," he continues, "was, as you know, in relation to Miss Dorrimore's—matrimonial prospects," he falters slightly, and Dulcie eyes him with a smile of great enjoyment.

"In a word," he says, desperately, "Mr. Trevenion left me the whole of his estate, charged with an injunction. He—he—it was his wish that—in short, that I should marry Miss Dorrimore."

Mrs. Fermor blushes, and nods her head.

"It is very awkward," she says.

"It is," he assents, emphatically. "It is about the most absurd will that ever was made."

"Thanks," murmurs the sweet, low, tantalizing voice.

Sir Hugh colors under his bronze, and he turns his head reluctantly.

"I mean for—for you, of course," he says. "As a matter of justice the money should have been left to you."

"Thanks," softly, and more exasperatingly.

"Or," he continues, as if stung with it, "it should have been left to some one else without this ridiculous condition."

"It is very embarrassing," says poor Mrs. Fermor, trembling, for she sees, what he does not, the flash in Dulcie's eyes, the rising color in her cheeks.

"But that is not all," he says. "Of course, Mr. Trevenion knew that he could not compel Miss Dorrimore to marry me—"

"Or you to marry Miss Dorrimore," puts in the voice.

"Exactly," he says, quietly, but with a sudden hush; "consequently he made these conditions—if Miss Dorrimore declines to marry me I am to take the whole of the property, and there's an end of it. If I decline to marry Miss Dorrimore, the property goes to various charities."

"Oh!" exclaims Mrs. Fermor, aghast, and not very charitably; "that would be a great pity."

"I think so," he says, curtly and emphatically.

"Couldn't Miss Dorrimore and Sir Hugh Falconer, both being of the same minds, share the money?" puts in the sweet voice.

Sir Hugh shakes his head.

"That is specially forbidden," he says; "there is to be no compromise."

He pauses, and looks at Mrs. Fermor, who falls into a nervous fit of dejection.

"I—I didn't know all this," she says; "what is to be done? Dulcie, do you quite understand?"

"Perfectly," says Dulcie; "and Sir Hugh knows my decision already."

Mrs. Fermor wrings her hands.

"My dear, my dear!"

Sir Hugh smiles, grimly.

"There is no cause for alarm, Mrs. Fermor. It is not in Miss Dorrimore's power to decide and settle the matter so hastily. Mr. Trevenion, probably knowing something of your niece's impetuosity, has provided against any precipitant decision. He has willed that no decision shall be given for six months."

Dulcie laughs, softly.

"Six months hence! It is a long time to wait, but there is no need for Sir Hugh to feel apprehensive."

Sir Hugh bites his lip.

"He specially provided against a sudden engagement. He wished us to know something of each other, and there is a clause in his will which makes that knowledge obtainable—I'll read it. No, I can explain it more easily. In a word, then, he desires that Miss Dorrimore may take up her residence at Holme Castle for six months, and—and to learn something of the family which he wishes her to enter."

Mrs. Fermor begins to tremble and grow moist about the eyes at once. Dulcie turns pale and sits up with sudden alacrity.

"And where may Holme Castle be?" she demands.

"Holme Castle," he replies, "is in Walsingham—"

"In Walsingham," echoes Dulcie, "and to whom does it belong? Who lives there?"

"It belongs to me," he says, quietly.

"It is the family seat. At present my mother and two sisters live there; they have lived there for years, since my father's death."

Dulcie stares at him.

"And—I am to go and live with them for six months!" she exclaims, in a low voice, pregnant with astonishment.

He inclines his head.

She leans back and a ripple of low, soft, silvery laughter floats from her lips. Then she sits up suddenly, before Mrs. Fermor can express her horror.

"And suppose I decline to do that?" He shrugs his shoulders and looks—well, hurt, and wounded.

"Well," he says, "I must confess that I did not foresee such a contingency. If you knew my mother, my people, I think—"

She colors, and for the first time her eyes droop.

"I—I did not mean that I would decline," she says, rather falteringly. "I am sure they are very nice people."

"Thanks," he says, imitating her former tone.

And she colors again.

"But they may not like me."

"Can there be a doubt on that point?" he says, with fine sarcasm, which makes her rosy red and flashing again.

"And I may not like them."

"It is possible," he says; "at any rate you can try the experiment. I imagine Mrs. Fermor would join me in advising you to follow this small wish of your uncle's at least."

She sits waving her fan to and fro, the color coming and going in her face; then she rises suddenly and paces the room, an exquisite picture of natural grace and agitation. Suddenly she stops near the moek and anxious figure, and lays her hand gently on the trembling shoulder.

"And—and aunt?" she says. "Am I to leave her? No!"

For the first time there is a touch of feeling in her voice and in her eyes, and it makes the beauty of her face wonderfully soft and strangely charming.

Sir Hugh's eyes drop beneath that touching glance.

"Certainly not," he says. "Mrs. Fermor, I trust, will accompany you."

Dulcie looks down at her.

"Well, aunt?"

Mrs. Fermor touches the white, slender hand resting on her shoulder.

"Certainly you must go, my dear; and it is very kind of Sir Hugh to include me. I—I should not like to be parted."

"Certainly not," says Sir Hugh; then he starts, for the sweet, defiant laugh breaks out.

"And yet twenty times a day you have told me, you surely old dear, that I am bringing your gray hairs—you haven't one in your head—in sorrow to the grave!"

Mrs. Fermor smiles apologetically at Sir Hugh, who smiles under his mustache.

"Then I take it that you accept?" he says, putting the will in his pocket.

"Not at all," says Dulcie, with delicious promptitude.

"Oh," he says.

"No," she retorts. "Aunt and I will consider it, and let you know."

"When?" he asks, curiously.

"Some day, say months hence," she says, with a twinkle in her eyes.

He rises grim and solemn, his handsome face expressing finely-trained patience.

"My dear Dulcie!" murmurs Mrs. Fermor.

"Well, to-morrow morning, then," she says, grudgingly.

He sighs.

"Very good. May I wait upon you to-morrow to hear your decision."

"Thank you very much," says Mrs. Fermor. "You—you have been very kind, and—and patient, Sir Hugh."

"Not at all," he says, meaning that he has. "And by the way, I forgot to mention that the will provides that, in case Miss Dorrimore accepts the invitation to Holme, a sum of money is to be handed to her—to defray expenses, for pocket-money, and that sort of thing."

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—General Alexiev's appointment as supreme command of the Russian army will be followed by a general re-organization, in which old Generals will give place to new ones. The first definite news of re-organization was received at the Russian Embassy front to the German foe. The confidence of the troops is being restored by the removal of four Generals. The despatches said the situation was rapidly clearing. The Cossack Government is not considered serious any longer, although it is not over. The Government is in no shape now, officials said, to question the nature of a revolution, and can present a united front to the German foe. The military situation is said to be progressing satisfactorily, and the armies are fulfilling their task of keeping many Germans as possible on the Russian front. This is indicated by a report that Germany now has not troops than ever on the Russian line. During the last four days Russian troops have regained four miles of territory on the northern front.

RUSSIAN DIFFICULTIES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 17.—The troops which rebelled with Korniloff have nearly all returned to their former positions. The 1st Cavalry division, now under command of General Bloytzeff, is on its way back to the front. It is expected that the situation as regards General Kaledines will be cleared up to-day. News papers report that the General has telegraphed the Government that he does not intend to revolt, but that the Government is said to have declined to the contrary. Kaledines went to Novo Tcherkask from Rosiev with a guard of Cossacks and junkies, while his adherents guarded the road over which he travelled. In reply to an order from Premier Kerensky that he be arrested, the Cossacks said they could not do so as the General was to speak at the Cossack Congress at Novo Tcherkask to-day. Hearing that Premier Kerensky had forbidden the Cossacks' Congress and had arrested General Kaledines from his position as Hetman of the Cossacks.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. General Alexeeff's appointment to supreme command of the Russian armies will be followed by a general re-organization, in which old Generals will give place to new ones. The first definite news of re-organization was received at the Russian Embassy to-day in despatches from Petrograd. The confidence of the troops is being restored by the removal of former Generals. The despatches said the situation was rapidly clearing. The Cossack Government is not considered serious any longer, although it is not over. The Government is in good shape now, officials said, to quell any thing in the nature of a counter-revolution, and can present a united front to the German foe. The military situation is said to be progressing satisfactorily, and the armies are fulfilling their task of keeping as many Germans as possible on the Russian front. This is indicated by a report that Germany now has more troops than ever on the Russian line. During the last four days Russian troops have regained four miles of territory on the northern front.

RUSSIAN DIFFICULTIES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18. The troops which rebelled with Korniloff have nearly all returned to their former positions. The "savage" division, now under command of General Boletzeff, is on its way back to the front. It is expected that the situation as regards General Kaledines will be cleared up to-day. Newspapers report that the General has telegraphed the Government that he does not intend to revolt, but that the Government is said to have evidence to the contrary. Kaledines went to Novo Tcherkask from Rosiev with a guard of Cossacks and junkers, while his adherents guarded the road over which he travelled. In reply to an order from Premier Kerensky that he be arrested, the Cossacks said they could not do so as the General was to speak at the Cossack Congress at Novo Tcherkask to-day. Hearing that Premier Kerensky had forbidden the Cossacks' Congress and had also relieved General Kaledines from his position as Hetman of the Cossacks, the delegates protested to the Premier, declaring that as the Hetman was elected, he could not be dismissed by the Government. Premier Kerensky replied that he did not prohibit the Congress, but had a right to depose the Hetman, whose election had not been confirmed by the Government. The Commander of the Moscow military district has issued an appeal to the Cossacks, declaring that as they are the natural champions of freedom and order, they should arrest General Kaledines and dishonor and send home the new Cossack forces which have been raised without the consent of the Government. Otherwise, the appeal says, the Cossacks will be treated as traitors and foes of the nation's liberties. Petrograd and the neighboring district is quiet, but there are indications of continuance of Bolshevik activity. For the present, despite the ferment, the Government seems to have the situation well in hand. The best disciplined troops in Petrograd are reported fully reliable, whereas the Bolshevik regiments are not in condition to carry out any systematic operations against the Government if they have a mind to do so.

BRITISH SUCCESSFUL RAID.

LONDON, Sept. 17. The text of the official statement follows: In the course of the night successful raids were carried out by English and Scottish regiments against the German positions south-east of Gavrelle, east of Ephe, and in the neighborhood of the Arras-Douai railway. Several prisoners were taken and two machine guns were captured. Many of the enemy were killed in their dugouts. Dumps and trench mortar emplacements were destroyed with explosives. The hostile artillery showed some activity during the night east of Ypres.

SEAPLANE BOMBS HUN DESTROYED.

LONDON, Sept. 17. A British naval seaplane on Saturday dropped bombs on German destroyers and trawlers along the Belgian coast between Ostend and Blankenberge, near Zeebrugge, hitting one destroyer and sinking at least one trawler, says an official statement issued by the Admiralty to-day.

REPULSE GERMAN ATTACK.

PARIS, Sept. 17. German forces last night attacked the French positions in Apremont forest in the Ardennes. The official statement issued to-day by the French War Office says the attack failed after a battle. There was a violent artillery duel west of Craonne and Massiges.

WILSON'S INTERFERENCE.

BERLIN, Sept. 17. A delegate to a convention of the league of German municipalities has issued a call to German citizens to rebuke President Wilson for his attempted interference in German domestic affairs by participating actively in the forthcoming war loan.

CONSULAR OFFICE DESTROYED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. The destruction of the American Consular Agency at Dunkirk, France, by a German bomb, is announced.

DISORDERS IN ARGENTINA.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17. Railroad strike disorders are spreading. A bridge 50 yards long has been wrecked, tying up two lines and preventing the movement of the troops trains. Heavy reinforcements of national troops have been sent to Rosario.

SOCIALIST DEMONSTRATION.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17. The Socialist parade to-day was not a particularly imposing demonstration. A banner at the head of the parade contained the motto "Down with secret diplomacy."

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 17. The official from British headquarters in France reads: This morning the enemy attempted to raid our trenches south of Lombertzyde under a covering bombardment. The hostile party was received with heavy fire by our troops and repulsed with loss before reaching our trench. Our artillery was active during the day at Ypres sector. The enemy's artillery was somewhat active except in the region of Lens and the neighborhood of Nieuport. From Sunday visibility has improved and a good deal of successful artillery work and photo work has been accomplished. During the fine interval the enemy aircraft were active again, being greatly favored by a strong west wind. In the course of the day hostile machines dropped 56 bombs behind our lines. Very little damage was done. Our airplanes dropped 145 bombs on German aerodromes and hostile billets, and fired many thousands of rounds from their machine guns at various targets on the ground, and in particular on a body of 2,000 German infantry who were engaged with machine guns from a height of 100 feet and scattered them. Six German airplanes were brought down in combat and four others were driven down out of control in addition to one hostile machine which was brought down in our lines by anti-aircraft guns. Eight of our airplanes are missing.

KERENSKY AND THE NAVY.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 17. Premier Kerensky has sent a telegram to the Baltic fleet, imperatively demanding the cessation of acts of violence and all excesses committed under the pretext of safeguarding the revolution. In reality, he says, men by their actions are disorganizing the navy by reducing its fighting capacity. The Premier condemns the guilty parties, and scathingly adds that he awaits news of the complete re-establishment of order.

TURKISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 17. The Turkish official statement received here to-day says: There has been strong artillery bombardment of British positions before Gaza on the Palestine coast.

LUXBURG INCIDENT UNSETTLED.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17. Foreign Minister Pueyrredon, after reading Dr. Molina's cablegram, announced he declined to accept the assurances of Baron von Busche-Hudenhause as a satisfactory settlement of the Luxburg incident, because it was merely a verbal statement of the under secretary. The Argentine Foreign Office is awaiting a formal note from the German Government before closing the incident.

GERMANY OFFERS NO EXCUSE.

LONDON, Sept. 17. Germany has given no official excuse regarding Count Von Luxburg's abuse of Swedish confidence, says an Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen. He quotes the Nya Dullitt Allenhad's Berlin correspondent, however, as stating that he had learned from the German Foreign Office that all German diplomatic representatives abroad had been informed of the contents of the contents of the Count's telegram.

LUXBURG BOOKED TO SAIL.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17. Dr. Louis B. Molina, Argentine Minister to Berlin, to-day informed Argentine foreign office by cable that the German Government had expressed regret over the actions of Count Von Luxburg, the German Minister to Argentina. Molina reported that Baron von Busche-Hudenhause, Under Secretary to the German foreign office, had informed him that Germany disapproved absolutely of the expressions used by Count Von Luxburg in his despatches. The Under Secretary, who acted for Dr. von Kuhlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, during his absence at Munich, asked the Argentine Minister to request the Argentine Government to notify Count Von Luxburg that the German Government wished him to return at once to Germany to explain the entire matter personally. Dr. Molina was asked to obtain a safe conduct for Count Von Luxburg. Count Von Luxburg announced to-day that probably he would sail Sept. 28 for Bilbao, Spain, on a Spanish steamer.

At the Circus.

Yesterday afternoon and night the Wonderland Circus, which is being held at the Prince's Rink was largely attended. Among the many attractions was the big merry-go-round which was in great demand by grown-ups and children alike. THE QUEBEC BRIDGE—NAVIGATION SUSPENDED.

QUEBEC, Sept. 17. Navigation in the St. Lawrence between Montreal and Quebec was suspended to-day, and will remain so until the span operations are over. Speaking of the work to-night one of the bridge engineers said that he was confident the raising would be a success. He said if a wind storm came on—the only thing likely to cause delay—the span could be made fast to the mooring trusses to prevent it swinging, and the work adjourned until better conditions prevailed.

BERNSTORFF AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

LONDON, Sept. 17. Count Von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, recently appointed Ambassador to Turkey, was received by the Sultan to-day and presented his credentials, according to a despatch from Constantinople.

The herbal extracts and vegetable oils of which Zam-Buk is composed are so wonderfully blended and refined that Zam-Buk possesses unusual power of penetration. Instead of remaining on the surface skin, as ordinary ointments do (owing to the amount of coarse animal fat they contain), Zam-Buk literally soaks through until it reaches the "root" of the disease, which is always in the underlying tissues. Then it cures from the "root" up, which is the only thorough and permanent way of curing skin troubles, and is why Zam-Buk succeeds when other treatments fail. Injustice to the Men of Trepassey.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—As you are aware we are after having two of the finest kind of wrecks, and the latter best of any, as it was no trouble to land all cargo, I may say it was in Portugal Cove beach, still no justice to Trepassey or the men. It seems they have got no one to look out for their welfare. It is true they have got a Preventive Officer in name, but no good for them, only for himself. With plenty of skills, motor boats and boats from Trepassey Cove, Dook and from the other outlying places could he not take command and give them all a chance to save? Instead of giving them a chance he gave his up to M. P. Cashin, then he of course looked out for his Southern Shore men. Trepassey men got only two or three hours' work and had to get out, our lines being cut away from the wreck. It seems that he would not give the poor a chance owing to the would-be officer being too lazy to see the cargo saved. By that treatment Trepassey need not want a Preventive Officer when a man from another harbor can come and take all control and drive the men of the place away from her. This is two wrecks in less than two months, and this is the way the people of his native place are served. We could not expect any worse treatment from a Turk, and cannot see why Cashin, Minister of Finance, should be on the alert to all wrecks. Is he not getting enough salary from the Government without trying to take all out of the poor fishermen's way that is paying more to the revenue than he? Our first vessel the Petrel is salvaging goods for him to Cape Breton this last three or four weeks. We understand she was paid by the Government to look after our island. Instead of that she is salvaging for Cashin. It seems that he can do what he likes and nothing said about it, but if a poor man done less he would be put in jail. Is that the way the Newfoundland Government is fooling away the money on useless things? Let some one who is not afraid to do the work get it and not the one they got. Hoping I'm not trespassing too much on your valuable paper, as I was an observer and seeing the way things went, I had to pass those remarks, and plenty as well as me said the same. Yours, LOOKER-ON. The Enemy's Growing Need.

There are additions every day to the accumulated evidence that Germany and Austria have not enough food, metals or coal, and that strict enforcement of our export embargo is cutting down their imports of supplies from neighbouring neutrals. Despatches from Berlin to not unfriendly newspapers in Denmark say the Government has decided to take bronze statues from parks and other public places for munitions. A Berlin Journal publishes the assertion of its correspondent in Munich that orders for confiscation of statues have already been issued in Bavaria. There are busts of the Kaiser and Crown Prince which should not be spared. In Austria, a Prague newspaper says the pipes of church organs are now to follow thousands of church bells into the melting pot. Sweden is sending to this country a commissioner who will ask for American coal in exchange for high-grade iron ore. Germany has taken millions of tons of this ore during the war, virtually paying for it with coal, but shortage of coal prevents additional shipments of it, even at the cost of losing the ore required for large guns and other war material. Germany needs copper. Our export of metals, even those sent to South America, must be carefully guarded. Shortage of food in Germany and Austria is frequently reported in the current news. It has caused the expulsion of foreign residents or visitors from Budapest, and many persons confined in Hungarian prisons have been set free because the Government was unwilling to feed them. Letters taken from Austrian prisoners by the Italian Army say many in Trieste and other towns are dying for lack of nourishment. Potatoes, sugar, coffee and oils cannot be bought at any price. It appears that only temporary relief was gained by taking the food supplies of Serbia. Thousands have died of hunger in that country owing to the loss of grain, vegetables and cattle. This has also been the fate of a great many prisoners in Austria. Germany feels the sharp reduction of her food imports from the northern neutrals, a reduction caused by suspension of our shipments to them and by the partial failure of their crops. It is understood that the Export Council's Administrative Board is not inclined to modify its recent decision. Enforcement of it was shown last week when licenses for bunker coal and cargo were withheld from a Danish steamship about to sail with several hundred passengers. Scores of loaded Dutch ships and several from Norway are still held at our ports. Indications of growing internal weakness in Germany and Austria support the board's commendable determination to prevent exports that would or might indirectly help the enemy.—N. Y. Times.

The Usual Preparation.

Philadelphia Ledger: If there were no other reason for believing that the Germans are preparing to execute a "strategic retreat" in Flanders, the announcement of their plundering operations would be sufficient. After three years of heartless oppression the Belgians still have some property left. But, just as in northern France, the German armies will leave a desolated country behind them. They are dismantling everything, carrying off such machinery and other goods as have hitherto been spared, turning a once prosperous land into a desert. It is idle to protest, of course, on the score of law or humanity. But one consideration ought not to be overlooked at Berlin. If Germany is defeated, all this destruction will make the demand for indemnity louder than ever. It would be intolerable to let the thief keep the stolen goods and make no reparation. Still another thing—is not all this brutality, this contempt for decades of civilization, further proof that the President is right when he says that with such a Government no discussion of peace terms is possible?

Evening Telegram Boy Thieves Again Rounded Up. Seemingly Judge Morris's new method of correction is not having the desired result in many cases, as four wayward lads, who were before him recently for theft, and got administered to them a dose of His Honor's new patent, were again arrested last night by Detectives Byrne and Whelan for breaking into a house on King's Road, during the temporary absence of Mr. J. Rendell and family, and stealing a camera. The lads appeared before court to-day and were remanded until to-morrow when they will be charged with other thefts that they have knowledge of, one of which is the larceny of watches from the store of S. E. Garland. One of the tickets were found by the police in a pocket of one of the culprits.

Christmas Boxes for Our Boys. Three months is but a short time to look ahead in these days when all eyes and minds are constantly on the future, and three months will bring us upon the threshold of another Christmas. For ourselves here at home there is little thought yet what sort of Christmas we shall spend, but it should be, and we know it is, the thought of all what pleasure and comfort, what remembrances of home, the season will bring to our sailors and soldiers. And so comes forth one more appeal, the sort of appeal which will be answered as soon, almost, as made. The Women's Patriotic Association have made it their peculiar care to provide Christmas gifts for all our brave lads. Last year their own funds were drawn on for the purpose, but there have since been so many and great calls upon them that they are insufficient to fill it now. They ask accordingly of the generosity of the public. Something a little over $1,000 is required, and it is required with all speed. It will be devoted to the purchase of suitable gifts to all men on active service. So far as the Regiment is concerned, it has been decided not to send any parcels from this side, transportation difficulties making the risk of loss and delay too great. Instead, suitable hampers will be ordered from the Overseas Club and despatched by it straight to the recipients. These hampers are specially made up for the purpose, and the decision will be welcomed as a wise one. It will ensure the receipt by every soldier of acceptable comforts and delicacies, with absolute certainty and punctuality. The same plan, cannot, of course, be adopted in the case of our Reservists, who are too widely scattered, and articles of a perishable nature are unsuitable. It is proposed to send them, wherever they are, the much needed and appreciated gift of socks, which will be none the less welcome if in any case they arrive a little late. With every parcel, whether to soldier or sailor, will go a card from the W.P.A., showing the boys whence it comes, and reminding them that they are not forgotten by the folks at home. The appeal is for but a small amount, and everyone can send a little. But it must be sent soon—who gives quickly gives twice. It can be sent to any member of the W.P.A., and we shall be pleased to receive subscriptions at this office and hand them on. Let us have a good list to publish to-morrow!

McMurdo's Store News TUESDAY, Sept. 18, 1917. We have just received a full stock of Salvia the well and popularly known hair tonic and dressing. Salvia is stated to contain, among other valuable ingredients an infusion of Sage Leaves (hence the name Latin Salvia) which has been largely used to restore the color to faded hair. It is besides, a really good dressing. Price 65c a bottle. The Excelsior Shaving Stick certainly excels in its line. It is an English soap, manufactured by one of the largest British Soap firms, and the product is in every way a first rate one. Price 85c a stick.

Man Missing. There is some concern felt over the mysterious disappearance of a young man named Wall, belonging to H. Main. He is a carpenter by trade, and was employed up to over a week ago, when he first absented himself from his boarding house on Waldgrave Street, with Mr. A. Walker in the West End of the city. Before his departure he left at his boarding house his grip, containing wearing apparel, and $18, his week's wages. The father of the young man is now in the city, but cannot account for the absence of his son. Up to noon to-day the police had no tidings of his whereabouts.

An Extraordinary Discovery. The invention of the X-rays started the world, and its use has been most valuable to medical science. Now, it seems, a new discovery has been made which will develop self-made pictures of the bones and more solid structures, but by means of his discovery it is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ of the body, brain, liver, kidneys, spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. Thus it is possible to see the blood vessels in the brain, to observe a blood-clot in that organ, to detect abscesses in the liver and wounds or cuts in any organ. In one case a "concre" in the appendix was seen clearly when the picture was complete. The miracle is achieved by utilizing the currents of electricity which the body is believed to generate. This conception is not new, and we owe to its instruments the electro-cardiograph. The difficulty was to make the current coming from any organ active and dynamic—i.e., to cause it to reveal its message, if that popular figure may be used. It is impossible here to enter into details, but it may be said that the patient lies on a table, and a perforated zinc plate or zinc wire screen, are employed. These are connected with batteries in the ordinary way, but are not placed in contact with the patient's body. One screen stands on a pedestal in a vertical position near the patient, the other is hung horizontally at right angles to the first one. In this way an electrical field coming from the first screen is always at right angles to that of the second.

Particulars of Upturned Craft. As a result of inquiries made by Minister of Marine and Fisheries Stone concerning the upturned craft reported a few days ago to be seen in Bacallieu Tickle, the consoling knowledge has been elicited that there was no loss of life whatever and that what accounted for the suggestion of a marine tragedy was that the schooner, laden with fish, was found bottom up with nobody on board. She had been on her way, we learn, from a place in Bay de Verde District to Petty Harbor. She was an old craft and sprung leak, which became so bad that the crew had to leave her at a most convenient spot in a motor boat. The craft was then left drifting about and on Friday last was turned turtle by a heavy squall. The crew, we understand, are safe and sound at a Trinity Bay port. We did not hear their names or that of their smitten schooner.

BIG YACHT SUNK BY EXPLOSION. AN AMERICAN PORT. To-day. News of the sinking of the yacht Union off the Canadian coast five days ago as a result of an explosion of her oil tanks reached here to-night on arrival by rail from a Canadian city of 64 men of the crew. There was no loss of life in the disaster. Only one man was injured. He is in a Canadian hospital suffering from burns. The Union was once the Yavande, one of the most palatial American sea-going yachts and owned until recently by C. K. G. Billings. At the time of her destruction she was the property of the Russian Provisional Government.

KALEDINES RESIGNS HETMANSHIP. PETROGRAD, To-day. General Kaledines has resigned as Hetman of the Don Cossacks. General Kaledines's arrest has been sought by the Provisional Government because of his adherence to the Korniloff revolt. Instructions to that effect were sent to the Grand Council of Don Cossacks sitting at Novo Tehorsk. The Council, however, replied it was impossible to obey the order because of the necessity of General Kaledines's attendance at the military conference of the Cossacks in his official capacity as Hetman.

Smuggling on the Dutch Frontier. In time of war, as in time of peace, there are always to be found individuals who will risk not only their liberty, but often their lives, for the sake of a little extra pecuniary gain. Particularly is this in evidence on the frontiers of the countries which join up with the Central Powers who are opposed to the Entente nations in the present war. The officials, for their part, visit unexpectedly all passenger stations leaving at the intermediate stations, sometimes taking the still stronger measure of requiring travelers to leave the train for examination of baggage or for personal examination. The latest trick is, at places agreed upon in advance, to throw smuggled articles out of the carriage windows on to the railway, where a confederate stands, who immediately takes the packet away. Here, also, the officials are on the watch for things thus thrown haphazard out of passing trains. The line in particular is pelted with bags and boxes of fresh or slightly salted pork and bacon. A military customs official said, "Sometimes it is quite like a Santa Claus night, for if by accident in the darkness they take you for a confederate, the packets about your ears. It is a bit hard work, however, when it happens, as it has done to me, that a parcel weighing 30 lbs. hits you with the speed of an express train." A recent Dutch paper reported the smuggling of some 200 sheep, 14 cows, and 8 horses between IJzendijke and Philippipe in Zealand Flanders. The morning after the incident the Burgomaster of Philippipe caused a suspected man to be arrested, who, when examined, was found to have upon him more than $2,500. He was a cattle dealer; but it was not known whether his detention had anything to do with the cattle, etc. At Roermond there exist few or no restrictions affecting trade and petty commerce in goods the export of which is forbidden. It has thus become a profitable place for the purchase of bacon, ham, and all the fats which are so welcome in Germany.

The Archbishop. On Sunday last at Grace the Archbishop's ceremony of the Memorial Window recently erected in the In addressing the event which had brought them. He paid a tribute to the faithfulness of the Memorial Window as well as to the Pastor to whom they monument in the year. He also took occasion to the people on the parish Church which further enhanced by these two Windows of workmanship and such. The Church, he said, was symbolic of the operation that existed Pastor and his flock, was there a time when for closer union and sympathy between the people than in the past, rest, distress and grief. The present was a world in which no one could revolutionized social conditions the world over, were arising every day grave moral issues, being advanced afflictions of life. There rest, social unrest, and rest throughout the world there was a spirit of democracy, its comitant evils were. That spirit found its revolutionary efforts, bles and disputes. In time, therefore, when and guidance of the unrivaled moral and fluence was more necessary than ever, it was necessary that the voice of those great issues, by or indirectly through the teaching authorities. The Church stood as a sense of democracy, the same time, the great principle of law and order in her teaching of an even balance of tyranny and democracy as such the democracy as she

The Archbishop at Placentia.

On Sunday last at Placentia His Grace the Archbishop performed the ceremony of the unveiling of two Memorial Windows which had been recently erected in the Parish Church. In addressing the congregation on that occasion he first referred to the event which had brought him amongst them. He paid a tribute to the two former zealous Pastors of the Parish to perpetuate whose memories the Memorial Windows had been erected, as well as to the present respected Pastor to whom they would also be a monument in the years to come.

He also took occasion to compliment the people on the beauty of their Parish Church which would be now still further enhanced by the addition of these two Windows of such exquisite workmanship and such artistic design. The Church, he said, stood as a monument to the faith of the people and was symbolical of the union and co-operation that existed between the Pastor and his flock. Never, he said, was there a time when there was need for closer union and co-operation and sympathy between the Pastors and people than in the present days of unrest, distress and upheaval in the world. The present war, the end of which no one could foresee, had revolutionised social and moral conditions the world over. New problems were arising every day that involved grave moral issues. New ideas were being advanced affecting all conditions of life. There was labour unrest, social unrest and economic unrest throughout the world. All over the world there was a spread of the spirit of democracy from which constant evils were not dissociated. That spirit found expression in various ways--in socialistic theories, in revolutionary efforts, in labour troubles and disputes. There was never a time, therefore, when the teaching and guidance of the Church with its unrivalled moral and spiritual influence was more necessary. There never was a time when it was more necessary that people should hearken to the voice of their Pastors on all those great issues which came directly or indirectly within the scope of the teaching authority of the Church. The Church stood as a steady influence in the world, the most democratic of institutions in the true sense of democracy, and yet, at the same time, the greatest upholder of the principle of authority and of respect for law and order. The Church in her teaching endeavoured to hold an even balance between the extremes of tyranny and democracy. She feared as much the unbridled license of democracy as she did the evils of an unrestricted autocracy. Even here in our own Colony, he said, there were not wanting evidences of the birth of new ideas, the growth of a socialistic spirit, of tendencies that needed to be carefully watched. We were passing at the present time, he said, through one of the most critical periods of the Colony's history, and the next few years were bound to be important and momentous ones in their bearing on the Colony's future. Up to the present time we had felt the effects of the war less than most other places. There was a great deal of prosperity in the Colony, but it should be remembered that it was largely a fictitious prosperity, engendered by abnormal war conditions. In the midst of this unstable prosperity it was to be feared that our people did not sufficiently realise the need there was for economy and for the curtailing of needless and extravagant expenditure. It would be too much to hope that there would not follow a sharp reaction the effects and the direction of which we had at present no means of judging. Our future, he said, was the cause of no small anxiety to thoughtful and thinking minds. It would require calm and unprejudiced judgment on the part of the people, it would require the best administrative ability that the Colony possessed, it would need wise leadership, broad and enlightened statesmanship and unselfish patriotism to enable us to meet and grapple with the problems that lay before us in the near future.

In concluding, His Grace expressed the hope that the people would be always true to the traditions which had been handed down to them from former generations, that the union of Pastors and people would be strengthened as the years went on, and that that union would always contribute to their spiritual and temporal well-being, in other words, to the material prosperity of the country and to the spiritual progress of the Church.

CITY RETAINS REID TROPHY-- DEFEATS GRAND FALLS TWO OUT OF THREE.

"The best series of games ever played here." This expresses in a single sentence the consensus of opinion after the City had defeated the Grand Falls team in the final game, thus winning 2 out of 3, and giving them possession of the Reid trophy for another year.

Leaving the city on Thursday, the 13th, in car No. 13 and 13 in number, and arriving on a Friday, the superstitious members of the party were predicting dire happenings, and when the City won the first game by 9 runs to 5 they still insisted that they were not to get off so easily in the games to come. The contest was a good one and was marked by good all round play, Hall and Berg doing particularly good pitching, both being in excellent form. Features of the game were the fielding by Cooney and batting by St. James. McCrindle starred for the City in the second innings, soaking the pill for a home run and scoring the three men ahead of him. The score was--

 City 0 4 1 1 2 1 0 0 x 9

After a good night's rest the teams again faced each other at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sloum and Crawley working for Grand Falls and Carew and Brazie for the City. Both pitchers were hit freely, but the fielding of the City team was very ragged in spots, while the Grand Falls team supported Sloum admirably. With the score 16 to 12 against them the City tried to even up matters in the ninth, but the side was retiring after one run had been scored, giving G. Falls the victory by 16 to 13.

It was then decided that the play-off should take place in the afternoon as a feature of the Sports Day. With a very large crowd in attendance the game started at 4 o'clock, Hall and Clouston being the batterers for the City and Berg and Crawley for Grand Falls. The City team won the toss and sent the paper men to bat, and that they did, scoring 5 runs before the side was retired. Anything but discouraged the City followed suit and put 7 runs to their credit for an opener. Then followed the most exciting game ever witnessed in Grand Falls. First one team and then the other would take the lead, and it was a case of watchful waiting to see which team would weaken under the strain. At the end of the seventh Grand Falls was ahead by one run and it was then that Hall drew on his reserve and fairly burned them over, holding the G. F.

team scoreless for three consecutive innings. In the ninth McCrindle opened with a hit and quickly stole second and third, scoring on a sacrifice by Cooney and tying the score. In the tenth Hall retired the three men that faced him. Excitement now was at a high pitch, but Clouston was equal to the occasion by slamming out a safe one and after stealing second and third scored on Brazie's hit to Berg, winning the game 19 to 18.

In the ninth inning of the second game Charlie Quick twisted his knee in a collision with Fortier and had to be replaced by Carew. Owing to ground rules there were a great number of batted balls that would not ordinarily be considered safe hits, and this accounts for the large number of hits registered.

The Grand Falls team added fresh laurels to their reputation for good sportsmanship and good fellowship, and the City team speak in glowing terms of their kindness and hospitality. Circumstances have prevented the team from practising regularly, and even with this disadvantage, their playing was equal to and much better in some cases than that of the City.

On Saturday evening the City team and supporters were the guests of the Grand Falls Athletic Club at a banquet given in their honour at the Exploits House, and after a sumptuous repast had been partaken of, the chairman, Mr. James Judge, extended a cordial welcome to the visitors, who were touched by the earnest and sincere greeting extended. An informal toast list followed, speeches being made by Manager Scott, Major Montgomerie, Messrs. O'Mara, Raines, Ogilvie, Fortier, Chesman and Hartnett, and the singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an event that will long be remembered by the City team and supporters. The visitors were given an open invitation to the room of the Athletic Club as well as the moving picture show, at which the enterprising photographer, Mr. Hayward, displayed lantern slides of plays that took place during the day.

Messrs. Judge, Fortier, Sloum, Berg and McVane wish to be remembered to all of their St. John's friends.

The City team was very capably looked after by their manager, Major Montgomerie, and much of their success can be traced to his knowledge of the finer points of the game and keen judgment exercised during the series. Umpire Chesman, Lieut. Maddock, Messrs. Davis and Stancombe accompanied the team.

Queer Baby Problems.

Four years ago there was considerable excitement on board a passenger-ship from England as it approached the shores of Australia. It had become known that a baby was to be born on board, and betting was indulged in as to whether the event would be delayed long enough to take place in waters that would make the baby "Australian" or whether it would be born on the "high seas" and become a "native" of Stepany, as is the rule in such cases.

It was born a few seconds after the line had been crossed, and was adjudged entitled to the five-pound bonus awarded for babies born in the Commonwealth.

In the same year, in England, a mother gave birth to a baby in February, and another in April. The question was discussed as to whether she was entitled to double maternity benefit, or whether the two births should be classed as twin births. She got the double benefit.

Here is another baby problem. Two days before Queen Victoria came to the throne a child was born in Hanover, then under the sovereignty of William IV. of England. The child's forbears had all lived in Hanover under the four Georges of England. It was brought to England when a few months old. If living now, would it be considered wholly British, or to be a German alien?--Answers.

REPAIRS COMPLETED. Repairs to the S. S. Neptune, which was damaged while on the recent trip to the Arctic, are practically completed. She will have to remain on the coasts for a few days longer while the re-plating of the Danish steamer Frederica is being done.

Those Queer Feelings.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

One of the many things that happens to every young person is to discover that he is an unusual and singular person, that he has strange thoughts, that he is subject to peculiar feelings that probably never came to anyone else.

And one of the many awakenings that come to the same young person as he grows a little older is to discover that other people also have these thoughts and feelings.

These Haunting, Taunting Half-Memories.

We were discussing some of these queer sensations the other day. Of course the commonest of them is the sense that somewhere before you have been in just the same position, heard the same things said and made the same answer. The average young person is inclined to fancy that this is some memory of a former existence, some vision that the "shades of the prison house" have not yet been able to shut out. He thinks that he is peculiarly favored. When he discovers that almost everyone is subject to these haunting, taunting, half-memories he is surprised, and probably not wholly pleased.

Could Anyone Think "I" Instead of "Me."

Another experience that most of us have had is that of catching a glimpse of oneself detached from oneself. One realizes all at once, "that person in there; the person that other people see and talk with and that I never really see is me" (I can't imagine anyone highbrow enough to think "I" instead of "me" at such a moment).

One feels momentarily as if one had lost one's grip on oneself; had become detached from that physical body and couldn't get back in, as if one were slipping off the world of material things and whirling away into space. I have really felt almost physically dizzy when I have thus become detached from my body.

To See A Familiar Housemate As If For The First Time.

Still another of these psychological experiences is to suddenly see a familiar housemate as if for the first time. I think this most often happens with husbands and wives. One looks across the reading table where he is sitting behind his evening paper and wonders suddenly, "Why is he here? Isn't it queer that we should have separated ourselves from the rest of the world to live in a house together. Isn't it queer that we, who never met till a few years ago, should have left our kindred and come together this way?" And for a moment he becomes almost like a stranger. Then the commonplace reassures "itself in some way, and the world swings back into its ordinary orbit.

Perhaps there will be some readers who will judge me to be a fit subject for the psychopathic ward from these confessions. But for every one who feels that way I am willing to wager that there will be ten, who will say to themselves "Why that's just the way I've felt sometimes."

THE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The free public library is a mass of fiction surrounded by an endowment. It consists of a handsome cut-stone building in which are enshrined a few samples of literature and a female book-worm called the librarian.

Librarians are chosen for their knowledge and sweet temper, both of which have to be used several times a day. A competent librarian knows every book in the library by its first name, and does not have to depend upon the color of the binding. When a school ma'am comes in and wants to know whether Thackeray wrote "Lalla Rookh" or "Ivanhoe," the librarian does not have to hunt through the catalogue with a trembling forefinger, but hands out the information with a blase air. The powers of endurance of the average librarian, who has to confront scores of people every day who prefer "Lady Audley's Secret" to any other form of intoxicant, are among her chief charms.

A school ma'am wants to know whether Thackeray wrote "Lalla Rookh" or "Ivanhoe."

The library is provided as a place of mental relaxation for people who have started a serial story and wish to reach the place where the villain is about to be thoroughly deflated by the intrepid heroine and a 22-calibre revolver. Some people are not able to relax at home on account of the baby, hence they repair to the library and devour a long, throbbing society novel which is full of thrilling episodes and grammatical misdeeds. Others do not tarry in the library longer than is necessary to pick out a good, spicy bank of fiction, which is then taken home and not returned until it is three weeks overdue, when it is accompanied by a sum of money equivalent to the original cost price.

Every once in a while somebody will come into the library and ask for a book which cannot be read without thinking of what the author was trying to say, but this does not happen often enough to grate the librarian. The greatest demand is for the popular novel which can be read from the rear as well as the front, with a plot which starts on a desert island and winds up with a marriage on shipboard.

Some high-brow critics contend that the money expended in building libraries could have been better spent in fitting out the heathen of other climes in nankin trousers, but a taste for good reading is not developed on the streets or in a home too poor to buy books. The most appreciative patron of the library is the boy or girl who has none at home.

Poultry Association

SAY EGGS WILL BE ONE DOLLAR A DOZEN.

President H. W. LeMessurier, C. M. G., presided at the special meeting of the Poultry Association held last night, the attendance being exceptionally large. The forthcoming annual exhibition was discussed and it is hoped to have the coming show excel in every way those previously held. The question of having the show in a more convenient place than the Rink was dealt with. The Association is now arranging for the distribution of 100 cockerels for breeding purposes for 1918 pens. The birds will be distributed in October by Secretary Calver. Some of the members reported that their spring pullets were already laying, and the announcement was made that owing to the big increase in the cost of feed it will be impossible to sell eggs at less than $1.00 per dozen. Grain products which cost $2 a sack last year are now priced at $4 or $5. The suggested exhibition at points in Conception Bay will be given, providing arrangements now on foot are completed. There will be a number of surprises for the public at the annual show and it is hoped to have a judge from one of the Ontario Colleges, who will also give illustrated lectures on the raising of poultry.

REST.

All summer I have been out West, where people go from home to rest, among the snow-capped hills, to be away from office chairs, and city noise and business cares, and all the work-day ills. I saw a million, less or more, and most of them found rest where each could for some dollars chase, and plan new business schemes and place more gray hairs on his dome. So few of us know how to rest! By mad ambition we're possessed to nail another bone, to add one large round dollar more, one shining doubloon to the store that we already own. We cannot lay our harness down, forsake the hot and bustling town, and have a restful time; we fear that while repose we take, some other fellow, more awake, might beat us to a dime. And so vacation finds us sore; we walk the mountains or the shore, and fame and sigh and fret; we yearn for cargo we left behind, and tell our wives the beauty grind is still the one best bet. Alas, we've never learned to rest, to let our work slide gaily west, to slumber and relax; we do not like to pace life's road unless we bear a galling load upon our creaking backs.

Brigade Matters.

The C. C. C. will hold a battalion parade on Thursday night next, preparatory to a church parade on next Sunday week.

The N.M. Highlanders had drill last night, the first time for several weeks. Owing to enlistments, the ranks were depleted, but young recruits are now coming in fast and filling the gaps.

Tea and Lecture at Topsail.

The Orange Hall at Topsail was again the scene of lively festivity on Wednesday evening, Sept. 13th, when a very successful tea was held, under the auspices of the Joint Women's and Men's Patriotic Associations. The hall was nicely decorated with flags and greens, and the tables, laden with good things, were rarely free of guests. Mrs. J. K. Bursell's candy-stall was very attractive, and was well patronized, as was also the ice-cream table in charge of Miss Nellie Fowler. At 8 o'clock the tea-tables were cleared, and all went to the S.U.F. Hall to hear Rev. Capt. Clayton's lecture. This fine hall was also decorated with flags, and was fairly well filled. The programme was as follows: Chorus, "Till the Boys Come Home"; Lecture, 1st part—"With the Red Cross in France," Capt. Clayton; Solo, "The Long, Long Trail," Miss Violet Butler; Lecture, 2nd part—"With the Regiment"; Solo, "An Old Country Town," Miss Elsie Herder; Lecture, 3rd part—"Life in Billets"; Chorus, "Rule Britannia"; Chairman's Remarks; National Anthem. In a charming manner peculiar to himself, Capt. Clayton, during the whole of his lecture, held his audience spellbound. At the beginning he complimented Topsail upon all that had been done to help in this great war—the giving of its best sons, many of whom had already laid down their lives, and the splendid efforts that had been made to raise money for the funds, and to send comforts to our gallant lads. He assured us that it was heartily appreciated by each one of them. He then told of the Red Cross work in France, where he had had the pleasure of meeting one of the audience, Miss Elsie Herder, who was then a V.A.D. nurse at Rouen. In the second part he told of his joy at being transferred to the Nfld. Regt., and seeing so many familiar faces. During this part of the lecture Capt. Clayton referred glowingly to Capt. Dortram Butler, M.C. and Bar, one of Topsail's own gallant sons, of whom, he said, we had cause to be justly proud. Capt. Butler was believed to bear a charmed life, as on many occasions the speaker himself had seen him coming out of the lines with his trench-coat in ribbons, but his splendid self intact. He called him the wonder of the Regiment, and added that he is an officer beloved, one whom his men will follow anywhere. Just here the applause was hearty and prolonged. With charming humor Capt. Clayton told of life in billets at Etaples; his having charge of canteen, and its problems; his management of a "store," and his dodges and blunders. In closing the lecturer, in a few grave words, brought home the need of more men for France. He told of an incident where a young officer of the 1st Nfld. Regt. had stayed at his post four days and four nights without food or sleep, and who would have died there had not relief come on the fifth day. The name of this young hero, though not given by the lecturer, is well-known here, and Topsail is proud in the belief that she has had the honor of his presence during his first months back from the front. The various items of the programme were much enjoyed, the audience joining heartily in the well-known songs, "Till the Boys Come Home," and "Rule Britannia," while the solos by Misses Elsie Herder and Violet Butler, both sisters of very gallant officers, were delightfully rendered. In his remarks, the Chairman, J. F. Bancroft, Esq., President of the M.P.A., referred with pride to the families of Butler and Herder—the one residents, the other summer visitors since childhood days. He was sure that Capt. Butler, and the brothers of Miss Herder—herself but late yesterday from the front—would be glad if they knew that tonight, in the far-off little Topsail they all remembered so well, their sisters were doing their bit to help the cause for which they are fighting. He asked for a vote of thanks for Capt. Clayton, which was given very heartily. The Chairman then expressed the thanks of the Associations to the following: Miss Emmie Butler, pianist; Misses E. Herder and V. Butler, soloists; all who had helped with the singing, and in other ways; the L.O.A. and the S.U.F. for the free use of their halls; and all who sent donations, or in any way helped to make the tea and lecture such a big success. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close. Combined receipts of tea and lecture amounted to $120.—Com.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Arrangements are being made to form a Laborer's Union in this town. It is said that a meeting will be held in a few days.

A little boy named Noah Martin, son of Mr. Reuben Martin, of Harvey Street, fell near his home on Sunday last and dislocated his collar-bone.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Coffin and infant are in town on a visit to Mrs. Coffin's parents. They return to their home in St. John's on Friday next.

Mr. J. C. Oke, of St. John's, was in town during the week on a visit to old friends.

The Ordination of Probationers Ernest Davis, of this town, and Joseph Joyce, of Carbonear, took place in the Methodist Church here on Wednesday night. A very large congregation was present. The clergymen in attendance were Rev. J. H. Saint, President of the Conference, who presided; Rev. A. A. Holmes, Pastor of the Church; Rev. E. Broughton, Dr. James, Revs. E. Moore, R. H. Maddock, E. A very pretty wedding took place at the Methodist Church at 7 o'clock this morning when Rev. Ernest Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orestes Davis, and Miss Florence Parsons were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. A large number of friends were present at the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Gertrude Davis, sister of the groom, while the groom was attended by Mr. E. Trappell, step-brother of the bride. After lunch at the home of the bride, the happy couple left by the 8.10 train for Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. The very best wishes of all our people will accompany this popular young couple on their voyage through life together.

Capt. James Parmiter who had been at St. Barbe during the summer on fishery protection service, returned by train on Thursday night.

Rev. A. A. Holmes, of the Methodist Church, and Rev. F. S. Coffin, of St. Andrew's, exchanged pulpits on Sunday night.

Nurse M. Parsons and her brother Mr. Cecil Parsons arrived by Saturday night's train on a visit to the family and other friends.

Mr. John LeDrew is pushing to completion the work on his new hotel at the corner of Water and LeMarchant Streets. The carpenter work under Mr. LeDrew's supervision is being done by Messrs. G. W. and Harvey Pynn, sons of Mr. Arch. Pynn.

Miss Minnie Pugh has accepted charge of the Presbyterian school at Corner Brook, Bay of Islands, and leaves shortly for the scene of her work in educating the young. We wish her much success. Miss Mollie Pugh, sister of the above young lady, who last year had charge of the Junior Dept. of the Presbyterian school here, has assumed charge of the Methodist school at Heart's Content.

Mr. C. Trappell, of the cable staff, Bay Roberts, is in town on a visit to his many friends.

Mrs. M. A. O'Brien, of St. John's, accompanied by her three children, arrived from St. John's on Saturday evening's train.

Mr. Tanker Cook, of St. John's, with his wife and three sons, motored from St. John's yesterday, and registered at Gordon Lodge. They return to St. John's to-morrow.

"The Last Phase."

The Scotsman: With Russia temporarily passive, the best Germany can do is to hold her own against the French and the British—she is, in fact, not doing that, as the encounters of the last month or two have proved. What is to happen when Russia is again in the field with her full weight, and America is also in with the fine troops of which specimens have been seen by London with enthusiasm and admiration? The German soldier is still fighting well; but the nerve of the German populace is falling. It is the last phase and the Prime Minister does well to remind the nation of its call for patience, courage, endurance, hope and unity.

Nerves of the Stomach

Were Weak and Inactive as Result of Nervous Prostration—Lost Twenty Pounds—Had to Take Sleeping Powders to Get Any Rest.

St. Catharines, Ont., September 13.—Many people never realize that the movement and action of every organ of the human body is dependent on the energy supplied by the nervous system.

When the nervous system gets run down there is weakness throughout the entire body. You feel tired and languid and your stomach and other digestive organs are similarly affected. Appetite fails, digestion is poor, you do not get the good of what you eat and gradually grow weaker and weaker.

This process can only be stopped by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which goes directly to create new nerve forces and thereby to invigorate the whole human body.

Mrs. Geo. S. Elise, 46 Davidson Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My husband had an attack of nervous prostration, and although he doctored for some time and tried different other medicines, he could not get relief. He had to resort to sleeping powders given him by the doctor to make him sleep. The greater part of the time he seemed to be with the nerves of his stomach. He began to lose weight, and kept on going down until he had lost twenty pounds. We had read advertisements in the newspapers for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and noticed that it seemed to be doing a lot of good for people troubled with nervousness, so my husband decided to try it. He found benefit almost from the start, and continued this treatment until he had taken about twelve or fifteen boxes. The results were most satisfactory. He is now enjoying good health, sleeps well, and has gained back nearly all the weight he had lost. He also uses Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally. I think them an excellent remedy. I have also used this latter medicine for dizzy spells and liver trouble, and was completely cured of these complaints. We think a great deal of Dr. Chase's medicines, and cannot speak too highly of them.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Jones & Co. Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Sphagnum Moss.

On the invitation of the energetic and popular pastor of Cochrane St. Methodist Centennial Church, the Rev. Dr. Bond, accompanied by a number of young people of the church and Sunday school, proceeded to tryphens yesterday and gathered a quantity of sphagnum moss, which is so urgently needed for the dressing of wounded soldiers. We congratulate the Doctor on setting such a splendid example. Why not other city churches follow this patriotic move and so interest their young people "to do their bit"?
