CHAPTER XII
"Chere madam," she calls, with some mockery, either in her tones, "do you hear me? We are all waiting for you—"

"Bridemen and kinsmen and brothers and all;

and your lord has sent up his commands that you are to hurry!"

The dressing-room door opens suddenly, and mademoiselle's malicious smile fades in spite of herself.

"Did Captain Glyne send you up with orders to me to hurry, mademoiselle?" Yolande asks, coolly but- toning her long, dark tan gloves.

"Orders! Well—really, I beg a thousand pardons, madam, if I have offended!" Miss Glover exclaims, with scarcely veiled impertinence in her sneering tones and deasy glance. She struggles hard to conceal her surprise and chagrin at her unexpected rebuff, with the lady's maid standing by and demurely enjoying it all.

"I thought she had some dire cause of offense against you!" A woman, sir, would rather you beat her than be indifferently treated."

He stops abruptly, but Dallas Glyne's flashing glance and frown of warning have come too late. Mr. Ormond sees that the bride has entered the room, and is standing at his elbow, looking from him to her husband with an inquiring smile.

"We are not quite such fools as we seem, I trust, Mr. Ormond," she says, saily. "And what sentiments to in- culcate in the mind of a newly married man! I shall take my husband away from you," and she slips her daintily-gloved hand within his arm and smiles radiantly up at him.

George Ormond stares admiringly and tugs at his mustache.

"By Jove," mutters the young gentleman, appreciatively. "Glyne knew what he was about! She's a pretty girl and a charming girl, and she looks on him! How precious lucky some fellows are!"

Captain Glyne smiles back at his young wife, secretly amused and pleased. She was deadly pale and shy and quiet to the verge of insipidity that morning in her bridal robes; and, while he knelt by her side at the altar and sat by her side at the wedding breakfast, his heart went back with pangs of fierce regret to his false, lost love—winsome, laughing, light-hearted Joyce Murray.

But now the quiet, shy maiden Yolande Dormer has been transformed, and Yolande Glyne, his young wife of a few hours, is as different from her as a fresh red rose is from a white daisy—as different as a sparkling, handsome, self-possessed girl is from a dull, plain one. Her dark eyes are alight with a strange brilliance, her cheeks are softly flushed, her lips wreathed in smiles; her whole manner is rather feverishly gay, but charmingly different from her usual tame placidity—so Dallas thinks.

His heart is very sore for that false lost love who is now, when it is all too late, within his reach. He despises her, he almost hates her, for her falseness; but he hungers for her sweetness and brightness and her sickle girlish fondness—now lost to him forever.

Knowing, however, that she is lost to him, his heart is on the rebound toward the girl who loves him truly and passionately, his fair little bride, who is standing beside him now, with all the men admiring her and envying him. His slighted love and wounded pride are yearning for the comfort and the consolation of the unselfish, adoring tenderness of Yolande's heart; but, alas and alas, she knows this too!

And little does he know or imagine that the pretty dark-haired girl who is looking so elegant and attractive that he feels for the first time a thrill of pride at possessing her—little does he know or imagine that she, with her dainty gloved hand resting confidently on his arm, is writhing in a secret agony of jealous wrath and misery—that she is counting the weary minutes and the lagging hours that must elapse before the time comes when she can be revenged on him for his treachery and baseness and cruelty. Happless girl! Revenge on him whom her soul loves, who is her demigod and her darling!

But Captain Glyne does not even dimly suspect that there is anything wrong—and not merely wrong but woefully strained—in the relations between him and his newly wedded girl love, until at the moment of their departure, when mademoiselle presses forward among relatives and bridesmaids to kiss the bride.

Yolande, who has kissed and been kissed by almost every one else—except her husband—draws back from mademoiselle with a haughty smile, and extends her hand.

"An revoir, mademoiselle," she says, coolly; "we shall see you at Pentreath next, I suppose?" And then she pauses on the threshold, looking back at all the laughing bridesmaids with their handruffs of rice. "You shan't throw any of that ridiculous stuff over me and spoil my bonnet!" she says, curdly; and, before they can guess her intention, she opens a large umbrella, and, catching up her velvet skirts, darts out to the carriage, the showers of grain rattling harmlessly off the umbrella; while Captain Glyne, following her, receives her share and his own of the rice, which lodges on the brim of his felt traveling hat, about his neck and shoulders, and glides irritatingly down inside his collar.

His face a red with rage, and smarting from the pelting he has received; and he utters some ugly expletives in smothered tones as he leaps into the brougham. He shuts the door with a bang—the footman can touch it, and throws himself back into a corner, and flings his rice-laden hat upon the opposite seat.

"Disgusting tomfoolery!" he mutters, savagely.

Yolande laughs carelessly.

"Why didn't you put up an umbrella as I did?" she says, coldly, while her very fingers are twitching to help him to adjust his collar and to brush off the grains of rice from his dear broad shoulders, while her heart is full of a desire to put her arms around his neck, and praise him and pet him and caress him out of his ruffled temper.

the edge of her teeth in a spiteful little smile. "She says you are absurd to even think she can go by the four o'clock train"—this quite loud enough for half a dozen people to hear, including Major Hutchinson and the "best man," George Ormond. "I think she is worried about tight gloves, or tight boots, or something of that sort. I know I was sent out of the room sans ceremonie!"—and mademoiselle laughs very merrily as she rustles off to another group of guests, and leaves the men glancing at each other and at the bridegroom.

"Mademoiselle has a grudge against Yolande as well as against me, I fancy," Dallas says to George Ormond. "Why, I neither know nor care."

George Ormond grins rather knowingly.

"Mademoiselle can be spiteful, I know," he responds, chuckling. "You haven't been spooning her, have you, old boy? Governesses carry their tender little hearts on their sleeves sometimes."

"I have never spoken a civil word to her beyond what I was obliged to do," Dallas answers, sourly. "Sh!" he adds suddenly, as he raises his eyes for an instant.

But George Ormond does not look in the direction in which the other is glancing, and he is, besides, slightly hazy and hilarious from too free indulgence in sherry and champagne.

"I thought so!" he says, laughing. "I thought she had some dire cause of offense against you!" A woman, sir, would rather you beat her than be indifferently treated."

He stops abruptly, but Dallas Glyne's flashing glance and frown of warning have come too late. Mr. Ormond sees that the bride has entered the room, and is standing at his elbow, looking from him to her husband with an inquiring smile.

he does not want her words or her caresses; he wants nothing of her but her wretched money for which he has sold himself! She and her love are only tenuous adjuncts to thirty thousand pounds.

"Because I wasn't as clever as you," Captain Glyne replies, crossly, for some grains of rice are slipping down his back.

"Oh, I think you are—quite!" Yolande rejoins, in a curious tone and with a disdainful smile; and neither bride nor bridegroom speaks another word until Victoria is reached.

Stories for all Moods.

HARRY DE WINDT'S YARNS.

(John O'London's Weekly.)

"I heard a good story of a re- splendent 'Nouveau-riche' staying at the Hotel de Paris who had recently purchased a mansion in the south of England, where he posed as the village squire. Having been brought up as a Dissenter, the latter was, on the first Sunday, rather puzzled by Anglican rites as practised, by the vicar, who, with the choir, happened to be issuing from the vestry just as the 'squire' and his family walked up the aisle to the pew. Simultaneously the congregation arose (upon the entrance of the clergy), but the 'squire,' assuming that people were standing up in his honor, not only howed his acknowledgments, but afterwards wrote to thank the vicar for this gratifying tribute of respect from his parishioners!"

MAX O'RELL.
Mr. de Windt tells two stories of that clever Frenchman who understood the English so well—Max O'Rell:—

"Max O'Rell used to declare that he had never met with such native humor as in the Western States of America, especially in Texas, where even public notices, although seriously meant, are jokingly displayed in the mining towns. Thus in one of the latter, when I passed through while motoring near the Mexican frontier, the following warning to 'chateaux' met my eye:—

"Drive slow, and see our beautiful city; Drive fast, and see our beautiful goal!"

THE JEW AND THE POM.
"Max O'Rell used to delight in the following story, which he heard during one of our nocturnal expeditions, and which my friend intended to publish in a work on America, which, however, never appeared. A business man, conversing, during the luncheon hour, in the 'bar' of the Palace Hotel, observed to another that his wife was crazy about 'Poms,' and that he would gladly give 200 dollars for one if he could only find it. A Jew standing by advanced towards the speaker and, stating that he had overheard the conversation, declared that he could at once supply the desired article, but that the price would be at least 300 dollars, also that the prospective buyer would never get one cheaper.

"All right," said the latter; "bring it around to-night to my house, and if it is all right you shall have the money." The Jew then hurried off to his office, and, meeting on the way another Israelite, cautiously drew him aside to whisper: "Ikey, old man, just do me a favor! Tell me what is a Pom?"

The author tells a story about George Chetwynd, the famous sportsman, who used to frequent the "Chalk Bar" in Paris, a favorite resort of Englishmen:—

"Chetwynd had one peculiarity: a marked dislike of the rising generation, and I foresaw trouble when, one day at the 'Chalkham,' a young Guardsman was loudly expressing his wonder as to how anyone with property in England could ever be really hard up for money. And this tactless remark, for obvious reasons, at once put Chetwynd's back up.

"May I ask how old you are, sir?" inquired the latter, in a freezing tone, to the ingenuous youth. "I am twenty-two to-day," beamingly responded the other, adding: "And only this morning my dear old mother sent me a 'monkey.'" (2500). "She seems rather addicted to that practice, dryly observed George. "Really, sir, why?" "Well, according to your account, she gave one to your father twenty-two years ago to-day!"

Police Closing Foreign Schools.

Scores of special schools have been started in industrial centres throughout Canada by foreign interests. The teachers are foreigners—in some cases British converts. In certain districts they have got control of public schools, the teachers in public schools working under their inspiration. Some schools have been so bad the police had to close them and recently several of them have been raided.

Among the principles being instilled in the children's minds are these: That theft from an employer is not morally wrong, because it is taking what belongs to the people and is preliminary to the "revolution" which will restore property stolen from the proletariat, but care must be taken at present to avoid being caught; that marriage is a capitalist institution which reserves the most beautiful girls for rich men; that a girl may have as many lovers as she desires; that children belong to the state and are to be put into a state institution at birth and brought up at public expense.

What conditions will be five or ten years from now when these boys and girls go out into the world is not hard to foresee.

Why Men Wear Buttons on Their Cuffs—And Other Facts.

We still have buttons, but so buttons, on the cuffs of overcoats. They were originally introduced in the seventeenth century when coat cuffs were intended to turn back.

The stripes down the sides of some trousers are a survival from the time when breeches were made so close in fitting that they had to be buttoned on. The buttons are forgotten, the stripes alone remain.

The swallow-tail coat is the descendant of that which was buttoned back to save the lining from getting dirty by rubbing against the hide of a horse.

Slate pockets on coats were the outcome of the slate made to permit the projection of the work handle.

The original reason for cutting away the coat in front was to display the waist—the wearing of which was a sign of wealth.

Stockings were once made from a straight piece of material. The clocks down the sides are the survival of the seam that made a fit possible.

Important Statements to be Made in the Lords and Commons To-day--President Harding Recovering--Majority of Steel Workers in Favor of Ending Strike--Snow in Western Canada Damages Crops.

STEEL STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK.
SYDNEY, Aug. 1. The Sydney steel strike is over. A mass meeting of steel workers held at Union Headquarters to-night, and sixty-five per cent. of those present voted to end the strike and return to work. The Union Executive will notify the British Empire Steel Company accordingly. In their resolution which formally ends the strike, the steel workers complain that every man's hand is against them, and they desire people, courts, police, newspapers, and Federal and Provincial Governments. The steel company stated to-day that 2,500 men were working at the plant of approximately 10,000 who were there when the strike began. The strike began on the morning of June 27th, for a twenty per cent. wage increase, and check-off system of collecting Union dues, which would involve recognition of their Union.

PRESIDENT HARDING OUT OF DANGER.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1. President Harding to-day seemed certain of recovery, according to General Sawyer, Chief of Staff of Physicians, and the same belief is general among others. Only unforeseen circumstances could cause a relapse, they say. The President was sleeping soundly at four this morning.

PARIS EXPECTS CONVERSATIONS TO DROP.
PARIS, Aug. 1. Both surprise and regret are expressed in Paris at the impression caused in London by the French and Belgian replies to Lord Curzon's reparations note. The complaint is made that the secrecy which has been so carefully observed by French official circles with regard to the British has not been observed in London respecting France's reply. The belief is felt here that London feels disappointed at finding that France and Belgium are so united on fundamental principles, notably relative to the Ruhr, yet Germany is not asked to abandon passive resistance. Refusal by Great Britain to continue the conversations is looked for although Premier Poincare's reply is considered of a nature to permit conversations to go on.

CHURCH UNION MEETING SEPT. 27TH.
TORONTO, Aug. 1. Definite decision to call a meeting of the Joint Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregationalist Church Union Commission on September 27th, was reached to-day as a result of conversations between Dr. Chown of the Methodist Church, Dr. Pidgeon reporting the Presbyterians and H. W. Barker, General Treasurer of the Congregationalist Church.

GERMAN FARMERS REFUSE TO SELL PRODUCTS.
DUSSELDORF, Aug. 1. The effect of last week's fall of the mark showed itself in a pronounced food shortage throughout the Ruhr. Farmers refuse to exchange goods or potatoes for badly depreciated money, and in consequence potatoes, meat, and other staples are almost unobtainable at any price. Farmers will not bring produce into town. This is true not only in the Ruhr, but elsewhere in Germany.

MAYOR KELLY WINS C. B. ELECTION.
NORTH SYDNEY, Aug. 1. Government candidate Mayor F. L. Kelly, of North Sydney, was elected to the House of Commons by a majority of 556 in the Federal bye-election to-day. In Cape Breton and Victoria he received 4,905 votes, R. H. Butts, Conservative, 4,949 votes, and Daniel D. MacDonald, nominee of the Independent Labor Party received 1,555 votes and lost his deposit.

REV. CANON SCOTT SPEAKS OUT PLAINLY.
QUEBEC, Aug. 1. Rev. Canon Scott, the well known Canadian Padre of the great war gave out the statement last night in commenting on a sermon delivered at St. Matthew's Church last Sunday by Rev. J. D. Hamelin relative to working conditions of the workers in Cape Breton. Canon Scott stated that the Canadians should call on the Government for complete investigation of the conditions of the workers both in the Steel camp and the mines of Cape Breton. It has been publicly stated and never denied that the wages of the workers in more than fifty per cent. of mines are only from 32 to 35 cents per hour and that the day shift consists of 11 hours and the night shift of 13. It is incredible that this should be, but the public must know the facts. That there should be a small proportion of reds among the strikers must not be allowed to blind our eyes to the important issue at stake, which is, have the strikers as a whole the right on their side? said Canon Scott during his remarks on the subject.

HUNGRY GERMAN MINERS REFUSE TO WORK.
BERLIN, Aug. 1. Reports from the Ruhr indicate the food situation is becoming steadily worse and at Gelsenkirchen several thousand miners failed to report for work and informed the management they were physically unable to enter the pits as their families were without potatoes and other food supplies since Saturday; the French are charged with having bought up food at various places in the occupied zone.

LADY ASTOR'S BILL RECEIVES ROYAL ASSENT.
LONDON, Aug. 1. Royal assent was given to Lady Astor's liquor bill, thus formally placing it upon the statute books. The bill prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors to any person under eighteen years of age.

FEARFUL WRECK ON GERMAN RAILWAY.
BERLIN, Aug. 1. A great disaster which occurred at the junction of the Hanover and Cassel line to-day caused by collision between a Hamburg-Munich express and a train standing in the station. Up to four o'clock 44 bodies were recovered and the estimated number of killed was one hundred, while 44 injured are being cared for in hospital.

WASHINGTON, July 30. Net reduction in government receipts of $151,895,287 during next fiscal year was predicted yesterday by Herbert M. Lord, Director of Budget, in his annual report concerning operations of Federal budget during second year.

PROMISING YOUTH CUT DOWN BY MOTOR CAR AND DIES FROM INJURIES.
A motor accident which brought fatal results occurred on the South-side Road Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock, when a 12 year old lad, named Gerald Griffiths, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffiths, was knocked down by a motor car driven by Mr. Donald Whiteway, and about half an hour later died at the General Hospital from the effects of a fractured skull. It appears that the motor car, which was owned by Mr. Jesse Whiteway and driven by his son Donald, had scarcely left the residence of Mr. J. Burt, where Miss Whiteway had been taken on board. The car was travelling east along the road with the intention of proceeding to the Whiteway home on Hamilton Avenue, where the other members of the family would be picked up. The car had gone a very short distance when the tragic happening occurred. It is said that the boy Griffiths was a number of his companions were playing ball, when the unfortunate lad ran across the road after the ball, running into the oncoming car, and before it could be pulled up the lad was knocked down sustaining a fracture of the skull. Mr. Whiteway immediately rushed to the injured lad, and picking up the unconscious form took him with all haste to the surgery of Dr. Roberts, but he was not available. He continued on to Dr. Cowperthwaite, who upon making an examination of the injuries inflicted, ordered his immediate removal to hospital where he expired about half an hour later. Eye witnesses state that it was apparent that young Griffiths did not see the approaching car, and that it happened so quickly that the driver of the car was unable to stop in time to avoid collision with the boy. Shortly after the sad occurrence, Mr. Whiteway gave himself up to the police. Later, through his counsel, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., he was liberated on his own bond of $5,000 and Sir Charles Cashin and Mr. J. C. Pratt $2,500 each. Gerald Griffiths was a bright and intelligent lad for his years. He was a general favorite with all who knew him, and there will be universal regret for the parents who are distracted over so sudden a bereavement. Mr. Whiteway, the driver of the car feels his position very keenly, as does also his father, Mr. Jesse Whiteway.

TRAGIC MOTOR ACCIDENT.
A motor accident which brought fatal results occurred on the South-side Road Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock, when a 12 year old lad, named Gerald Griffiths, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffiths, was knocked down by a motor car driven by Mr. Donald Whiteway, and about half an hour later died at the General Hospital from the effects of a fractured skull. It appears that the motor car, which was owned by Mr. Jesse Whiteway and driven by his son Donald, had scarcely left the residence of Mr. J. Burt, where Miss Whiteway had been taken on board. The car was travelling east along the road with the intention of proceeding to the Whiteway home on Hamilton Avenue, where the other members of the family would be picked up. The car had gone a very short distance when the tragic happening occurred. It is said that the boy Griffiths was a number of his companions were playing ball, when the unfortunate lad ran across the road after the ball, running into the oncoming car, and before it could be pulled up the lad was knocked down sustaining a fracture of the skull. Mr. Whiteway immediately rushed to the injured lad, and picking up the unconscious form took him with all haste to the surgery of Dr. Roberts, but he was not available. He continued on to Dr. Cowperthwaite, who upon making an examination of the injuries inflicted, ordered his immediate removal to hospital where he expired about half an hour later. Eye witnesses state that it was apparent that young Griffiths did not see the approaching car, and that it happened so quickly that the driver of the car was unable to stop in time to avoid collision with the boy. Shortly after the sad occurrence, Mr. Whiteway gave himself up to the police. Later, through his counsel, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., he was liberated on his own bond of $5,000 and Sir Charles Cashin and Mr. J. C. Pratt $2,500 each. Gerald Griffiths was a bright and intelligent lad for his years. He was a general favorite with all who knew him, and there will be universal regret for the parents who are distracted over so sudden a bereavement. Mr. Whiteway, the driver of the car feels his position very keenly, as does also his father, Mr. Jesse Whiteway.

An attractive dessert is vanilla ice cream sprinkled with raspberries and served with tiny raspberry tarts.
Rub your breadboard with a cut lemon, wash with cold water and dry in the sun, and it will be beautifully white.

A cracker custard pudding is made as one would prepare a bread pudding. Serve with vanilla or lemon sauce.
It is a good idea to keep a jar of cold cream over the kitchen sink and to use it after having the hands in water.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACHES

Prospectors for Labrador Gold are Sorely Displeased.

MACMILLAN THINKS ALL REPORTS OF FIND WERE VERY EXAGGERATED.

HUGE ICE FIELDS
Newfoundlanders Discouraged - Adventurers' Return is Forecast.
NEW YORK, July 31.—(Special Wireless from Macmillan's Arctic-bound Ship Bowdoin, via American Radio Relay League Station 1-ANA, Chathamport, Mass.—By Capt. Donald B. Macmillan. Copyright, 1923)—We are anchored here to-day at Grady, Labrador, after steaming through ice all day, covering a distance of fifty miles from Boulder Rock. We left Battle Harbor, Friday, July 13, although there were reports of heavy fields of ice packing against the land at Seal Island, 57 miles north.

These reports were not exaggerated as we later discovered when we met an ice field driving south under the influence of a strong northwest wind. The ice extended north and east as far as the eye could see and gave us a strenuous task to reach Boulder Rock for harbor. There we found three Newfoundland vessels awaiting a change in the weather. Their crews were all discouraged and stated they had never known worse ice conditions in Labrador.

As we left Boulder Rock we met the steamship Seal being towed with a broken shaft and the blades stripped from her propeller. We are forced to drop anchor here at Grady, well outside the harbor, as the latter is filled with ice which has smashed both the fishing stage and the dock.

Stag Harbor Sand.
Yesterday we met several schooners southward bound, loaded to the rail with sand and gravel from the gold diggings at Stag Harbor. In every port were are believed to be a party engaged in the same gold rush. All the visitors are quite disappointed when we tell them we are not interested, for the whole country is thoroughly aroused over the report of gold in Labrador. I understand that the steamers loaded with engineers, prospectors and supplies are rushing up from Montreal and Halifax.

It is our belief that nothing will come from it and that many have been deceived by exaggerated reports. No harvest will be reaped except by mosquitoes and black flies. Most of the suffering adventurers will be home in the Fall. We may call in at Stag Harbor on the way up and give a further more definite report on the situation.

We made some magnetic observations here, re-occupying the old station, of 42 years ago. The work is being done by Richard Goddard under the direction of the Carnegie Institute of Washington. E. P. Macdonald, of Chicago, my guest, has left for home. The boys all regret his going. The ice is not as compact to-night.

Lost Rest. Cuticura Heals.

"Eczema broke out in a rash on my scalp, arms and limbs. The itching and burning were terrific. My hair became lifeless and dry and fell out in handfuls. My clothing aggravated the breaking out, and I could not rest at night on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted about nine years. My mother tried many different remedies but they did no good. We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment which completely healed me." (Signed) Miss Beatrice M. Cleason, No. Sedgwick, Malton, Feb. 20, 1922.

ON THE STREET.

The girls are chasing in the street, may heaven bless their little feet! In olden times the little maids eschewed the midnight street parades; in quiet homes they spent their nights, enjoying safe and sane delights; they read good books that soothed the soul, and played a game of crokinole; at seemly hours they sought the hay and slept the peaceful hours away. And if at night a damsel fair desired to journey anywhere, there always was a stately aunt who by her side would gallivant, and guard her from the masher's wife, the hoodlum's stare and sinner's guile. But times have changed, and at this date each girl's the master of her fate; if she elects to roam the street, and elbow Mike and flirt with Pete, there is no guardian aunt on deck to take her gently by the neck, and run her home with kindly tact, and there declaim the riot act. The morning papers we peruse, and shudder at the dark red news. The tough and hoodlum ply their trades; the victims oft are winsome maids; who gambol up and down the street, and elbow Mike and flirt with Pete. And we bewail the good old days, the sheltered homes, the quiet ways, the girls as sweet as growing plants, who walked at evening with their aunts.

Are Women Overworked

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do household beside. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Ninety-eight out of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

Tomato salad has an exceptionally nice flavor when the salad bowl is rubbed with a little garlic and the tomatoes are sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Captain Evans has since retired. He was an old and trusted commander in the steamers of the Canadian Pacific, having sailed out of Liverpool for many years, first in the Beaver Line and continuing when that fleet transferred to the now famous Canadian Pacific, where he has had a long and successful career. A member of the association for many years, Captain Evans was appointed to the council in 1910. During the war he acquitted himself so well that he was appointed an officer of the Order of the British Empire "in recognition of his bravery and devotion to duty."

The chairman in making the presentation, said they were glad that the Newfoundland Government had recognized Captain Evans's gallant conduct, and they hoped he would be long spared to enjoy his well-earned retirement. Captain Evans, having acknowledged the gift, Captain J. Dobson (marine superintendent of the Canadian Steamships, Ltd.), who represented Captain Foster, and Captain P. D. Murray, spoke in eulogistic terms of Captain Evans.

Our Annual Derby.

Thousands of Citizens Witness Well Contested Events—Outer Cove Fishermen Repeat Last Year's Performance in Making Quickest Time for Day—Owing to Rain Showers Part of Programme Postponed Until This Afternoon.

The Annual Regatta of 1923 was held to adverse weather conditions and disappointment to many thousands of citizens who had assembled on the banks of picturesque Quidi Vidi to witness the various contests and enter into the one great day of the year when Democracy reigns supreme. Despite the spasmodic rain showers in the forenoon, well contested races were the enthusiasm of the huge concourse of people who seemed to enter into the spirit of the day in a hearty and unhesitating manner. It was not until the heavy downpour between 11 and 1 o'clock that compelled the Committee to postpone the remaining events until a time mentioned elsewhere in the Telegram to-day.

Thousands of pleasure seekers were congregated at the top of the Pond and on the North side long before the event and a continuous stream of humanity constantly wended its way from all directions up to noon when it was estimated a record attendance. Many notables were present, amongst whom were his Excellency the Governor, Premier and Mrs. Rogers, Sir Edgar Bowring, Mayor Cook, H. D. and Mrs. Reid. The course presented a very attractive appearance, being literally covered with tents of all descriptions, and according to Councillor Ryan there were thirty more tents than last year which is a record. There were side-shows galore, where everything from a badge to an anchor could be got, provided you were lucky. The swinging and dancing galleries were harmonized and it is seldom that a pretty scene has been presented.

The races were especially interesting and especially was this so in the Junior Football, which were fully attended and the crews in these events put a splendid showing and is a harbinger for future Regattas. The Junior Crew men had the quickest time of the day, being 9.47 in the Fishermen's Race, which was quicker than Kearsy's Truck Crew, who for years past carried off the championship and the meeting of these crews in the finals is looked forward to with exceptional interest.

THE DASHES.

Owing to five boats competing in the Amateur Junior Football, and the regular programme was delayed in order to eliminate one boat at each race.

The first dash, that of the Amateurs started at 10.15, and after a pretty race, all boats being close together, they crossed the line in the following order: Cadet, Guard, Mary, Nellie and Nellie R.

The Junior Football was the next, and this also was exciting, the Cadet being eliminated and the boats coming in Guard, Red Lion, Nellie R, Nellie and Nellie R.

In the Juvenile dash the Mary, Cadet, Nellie R. and Cadet reached the post, and qualified, while the Red Lion returned to their boat house after rowing half the pond.

TRADESMEN.

Only two boats entered in this race, the former, stroked by Mike Walsh, was the favourite, but when giving up on her winning. Both boats reached the buoy together, but on getting away the Cadet had a boat length and up the pond the Guard endeavoured to overtake her, but the Cadet piled it on and crossed the stakes beating the Guard by four strokes. TIME 10.14 1/2.

Magistrate's Court.

Donald Whiteway, resident Hamilton Avenue, was arraigned before Judge Morris this morning on a charge of manslaughter, that he, on the 31st day of July, had feloniously killed and slayed one Gerald Griffith, against the Peace of Our Lord the King His Crown and Dignity. The accused was not asked to plead the charge at present. Inspector General Hutchings, on behalf of the Crown, moved for the setting aside of a day for the hearing of the Preliminary Enquiry, which was granted. Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., Counsel for the accused, asked for a renewal of bail, which was ordered accordingly. The defendant signed a personal bond of $5,000, besides two other securities of $2,500 each by Sir Michael Cashin and J. C. Pratt.

A 76 year old inmate of the Poor Asylum, charged with being drunk, was granted his release.

A 29 year old laborer, Job Street, given in charge by his father-in-law, for being drunk and disorderly in his home and smashing a glass door, was ordered to sign a bond for $50.00 and pay the cost of repairs.

A twenty-two year old laborer, belonging to South Dildo, stood before the bar charged with obtaining money under false pretences, in the sum of $25.25, the property of the Postmaster at Whitbourne. The accused who elected to be tried summarily, admitted that he picked up the cheque and altered the figures. The offence committed is most serious one and he was sentenced to a term of six months imprisonment.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS. All communications should be addressed to The Evening Telegram, Ltd., and not to individuals.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Thursday, August 2, 1923.

The Attitude of the Legislature is Approved.

The speeches of the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition, published in another column, will go far to restore confidence in those entrusted with our public affairs. There is a ring of sincerity in every sentence of the Prime Minister's speech, and if he can without let or hindrance follow the course that he has outlined, he will have the country behind him.

While we have in our political life a spirit such as this existing, there is hope. When men of opposing factions can agree to sink their differences, to unite in the Cause which is theirs in common, determined to a man to have done with intrigue and irregularities, and to let the light of publicity shine in the dark corners of our political household, there is nothing to fear.

That there will be criticism goes without saying. Were there none, it would be suggestive of duplicity, but those in authority may rest assured that so far as we are concerned, whatever comments we may make, or whatever exceptions may be taken to the line of action adopted, they will be fair and according to rules.

There are without doubt various illustrations which might be taken to show that the culpability should be shared equally but two will suffice. Public attention has been directed to the lamentable fact that out of over four thousand boys in this city whose ages run from six to eighteen, not including the six hundred odd who are working, eleven hundred and twenty-two are not attending a school of any kind!

Again, OUR children whose parents are not in as comfortable circumstances as others, live under conditions that do not reflect any credit on the community. Housing accommodation is so limited that it is not uncommon to find two, three or even four families living under one roof, amid surroundings that defy description.

ing intently the contesting teams, that there are many to whom these pleasures are denied. We might also remember the example and precept of One who in the words "Forasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these," showed us clearly our duty and our responsibility.

In Defiance of Regulations.

There are circumstances under which a violation of the law may be condoned, provided the action was unpremeditated, or committed in ignorance, but where the laws safeguarding the public are flagrantly broken or treated with contempt, the offender must be quickly brought to book, and the punishment should be as drastic as the law will permit.

Yesterday when the whole town was on holiday bent, when young and old were making their way towards the lake, a gentleman from Harbor Grace, driving a Franklin car, entered the city by way of LeMarchant Road and drove to the lake side.

That a car with no identification marks could travel unchallenged through our crowded streets, is almost incredible. One would imagine that as a result of the calamity on Tuesday evening, no driver who could not be identified would be allowed to proceed even if he were within the letter of the law—which is questionable.

The attention of the authorities was called to the irregularity at the lake side and their action in the matter will be awaited with interest.

Vandalism.

We have used the above heading for the editorial column before. We use it again in order to extend its meaning somewhat, and to include within its scope those whom we treat with the greatest respect and affection—Ourselves.

From time to time there have appeared in the press heart-rending accounts of cemeteries desecrated, detailed reports of the havoc wrought in some private garden, or damage done to public utilities.

There are without doubt various illustrations which might be taken to show that the culpability should be shared equally but two will suffice. Public attention has been directed to the lamentable fact that out of over four thousand boys in this city whose ages run from six to eighteen, not including the six hundred odd who are working, eleven hundred and twenty-two are not attending a school of any kind!

Housing accommodation is so limited that it is not uncommon to find two, three or even four families living under one roof, amid surroundings that defy description.

In Passing.

The speeches of Premier Warren and the Honourable the leader of the Opposition, Mr. W. J. Higgins in the House on Tuesday are worthy of special commendation.

Sir M. P. Cashin's review of the Budget will be awaited with interest. Prohibition with a capital P. The Government only netted over half a million dollars profit on liquor during the past year.

The people by reason of the new loan are asked to find an extra amount of almost $200,000.00 this year to pay the interest, cost and charges on the new loan of three million dollars.

Sir Richard Squires arrived in the city on Tuesday night and there is much speculation as to whether he will take a seat in the Assembly today.

Mr. Higgins' clear cut diplomatic refusal to amalgamate with the Government as shown in his speech early in the week is commendable and his party associates outside of the House as well as those sitting behind him are highly pleased with his decision.

Hon. Mr. Warren's explicit admission of the Opposition's refusal to coalesce are likewise honest.

Coalition would have its many advantages as well as the few disadvantages to be gained at this particular period.

There are a few people who are disappointed by the Opposition's rejection of a coalition, but these are not associated in any way with the Opposition party at present, nor were they at the recent general election.

They were ardent supporters of the late Prime Minister who were hopeful of an opportunity to exploit a plot which was frustrated by the definite refusal of the Leader of the Opposition to join up with his Government which forced his resignation.

Noted Preacher Dead.

REV. DR. PEDLEY, OF MONTREAL, DIED ALMOST SUDDENLY.

Montreal, July 23. — (Canadian Press)—While playing a game of golf on Thursday, Rev. Hugh Pedley, D.D., Pastor emeritus of Immanuel Congregational Church, this city, collapsed and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Rev. Dr. Pedley, the subject of the above notice clipped from a Sydney paper was well and favorably known in St. John's. If we mistake not he was a native of this city having been born here during his father's pastorate of the Congregational Church. He filled the pulpit of the church of which he was pastor emeritus when he passed away, for a number of years, and was known over the North American continent as a preacher and lecturer of exceptional merit.

He supplied the Congregational Church, Queen's Road, in 1920 for a month or two and in the same year gave noon hour devotional addresses at the Methodist Conference which met at Wesley Church. Dr. Pedley had reached his seventy-first year, having been born in 1852. He lived a life of usefulness and service to his fellow men and has now received his reward.

In connection with the item appearing in Tuesday morning's News, re the Playground equipment turned over to the City Council by the Rotary Club, we are asked to state that the St. John's Rotary Club in seeking additional funds to defray the cost of the two equipments, were aided very materially by the generous response of the business men of the community.

House of Assembly.

PREMIER WARREN SAYS THE OPPOSITION REFUSED TO AMALGAMATE. MR. HIGGINS EXPLAINS THE OPPOSITION'S REFUSAL OF PAY AND POWER.

FINANCE MINISTER CAVE PRESENTS BUDGET.

The House opened at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday, Speaker Winter in the chair. Hon. W. R. Warren, Prime Minister addressed the members as follows:— Mr. Speaker.— Before the orders of the day are proceeded with I beg leave to say a few words, with the permission of you and the House. Since I last addressed the House I have succeeded in forming an administration and in carrying out the task imposed upon me by His Excellency. When called upon to form a Government in view of conditions in the country and in order to make the Government a more representative one, I approached the Hon. and learned Leader of the Opposition and requested the co-operation of that party. In the interests of the Colony they were prepared to assist, but in negotiating the details of an amalgamation we came to a deadlock and negotiations came to an end. I must express my regret that I failed but I take this opportunity of saying how I appreciate the personal tribute of confidence they gave me in preparing to co-operate under my leadership. Accordingly, Sir, I have formed a Government from the material I had at my disposal on this side of the House, and I am glad to say I have a united party behind me. The history and experience of previous Prime Ministers are not such as to encourage me to undertake the responsibilities of the position and I am further discouraged by the legacy left me. It cannot be denied that the Party and the Government have sustained a severe blow by reason of recent happenings. Undoubtedly public confidence has been shaken. Then, Sir, I have to ask myself the question "How can I restore that confidence?" My answer is, first, by an impartial and immediate investigation into the departments concerned. The Commission of Enquiry must have carte blanche. It must be no hole and corner affair and must have an absolutely free hand.

Who knows but that it was providential that the opportunity has occurred to get matters cleaned up. Things could not go on as they have been going, and it is due to the members of the Government themselves that there should be a full and complete investigation of the happenings that have led up to the present situation. It is not fair, until we see how far the members of the Government are responsible for what has taken place, to comment here upon the unfortunate affair which in our private capacities we all so deeply deplore. We are hopeful of a full and careful house-cleaning by the bunal which, to use an expression which is in vogue but expressive, will "whitewash" nobody. If ever there was a time when party differences should be dropped and party affiliations left out of consideration it is while this enquiry is being proceeded with, so that, while we may criticize where it is found necessary to do so, I think it will be found that whatever criticism is offered from this side of the House will be of a helpful nature rather than that which may be calculated to impede the progress of the business of the Legislature.

We on this side have every wish that the Hon. Prime Minister may receive the fullest support from the members of his own party, and I will go so far as to say that if they were not prepared to give that support they would not be worthy of the place which they occupy in this House. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it is our intention to do everything possible to facilitate the Hon. Leader of the House in cleaning up the mess that he is confronted with, but when the decks are properly cleared for action again we can assure him of a fair and determined fight. We do not want to charge him until he has both legs on the ground. In this spirit we extend to the Hon. the Prime Minister the assurance that there will be no cause for complaint so long as he lives up to the promise that he has given to have a thorough investigation by an impartial board. This is a feature which, no matter how we may be disposed personally, we cannot cloak up. It is not a personal matter but one which affects the whole country and of which the country must have full information. This enquiry may restore confidence at a time when confidence is sorely needed, because there are difficult times ahead and unless the public can have faith in those who are in high places, in those who are responsible for the expenditure of public monies, our position will be very little better than it was before.

THINGS COULD NOT GO ON AS THEY HAVE BEEN GOING.

WILL SUBMIT NAMES OF COMMISSION TO OPPOSITION LEADER FOR APPROVAL.

The Commission to be an honest one in which the public will have confidence, and I will even go so far as to submit the names to the Leader of the Opposition before publishing them. I owe it to the country, my party, and to myself to have this investigation and to make it as thorough as possible. We all want to start with a clean slate. Secondly, we think we can restore confidence by adhering to the path of rectitude and doing against us again, and thirdly, by prudent and honest administration. I know I am no statesman. I do not profess to be one, but by these simple means it may be possible to restore confidence. I count upon the healthy and helpful criticism of the Opposition towards this end. We shall of course come in for criticism, harsh criticism, but I think I am safe in saying—to use a common expression—they will not hit me "below the belt." And, Sir, by the time a general election is upon us if I have not incurred the confidence and trust I have anticipated I shall gladly and willingly transfer the burden to more capable shoulders.

The Prime Minister was immediately followed by the Leader of the Opposition, who spoke as follows:— Mr. Higgins.— Mr. Speaker, following the example of the Hon. the Prime Minister, I have to ask the House for permission of yourself and the House for saying a word or two. At the outset I desire to thank the Leader of the House for the very open manner in which frank admission that the desire to form a Coalition Government emanated from himself and those who supported him. I think in making this admission publicly he has done himself credit. I go further and say that in his desire to avail of the recent and unexpected political development which unfortunately are at present existing in this Assembly he has set an example in liberality of thought that should not quickly be forgotten. Every right-thinking man must deplore the present unnatural division which exists in this House. And so, when an opportunity was offered to alter this situation, and the offer was made from a majority of the House, it may be wondered why, Mr. Speaker, the answer is simple. It was not a question where we were masters of our own destiny. To me, personally, the matter of associating with the new Minister would have been a pleasure. As a life-long friend I have had special opportunities to confirm the statement I now make as to his honesty of purpose and absolute trustworthiness. It will be a great disappointment to me if in his new office he fails to live to the high opinion I have always held of him.

THE SQUIRES PARTY SHOULD CONTINUE.

It might also be asked why an opportunity to obtain what is commonly referred to as "place and power," namely offices of emolument for ourselves, was thrown down. Well, I think I speak the thoughts of Sir Michael Cashin (who because of his seniority in the House was associated with me in the discussions that have recently taken place) that we felt we were helpless. We could not think alone of ourselves and our friends on this side of the House. There was a power beyond us. We were merely the servants of the people who sent us here, and so had to act as we thought was proper in their interests. We did not seek office; the request came from the other side. We were prepared to go a long way to assist in making a stable Government, but there was a limit to our co-operation. Right from the outset we insisted that the party led by the late Prime Minister should go on. His success in his office had the unanimous support of his party, and there was really no absolute necessity for a further strengthening of his ranks. He had a majority of 21 to 13. He and his associates had decided to depose the late Prime Minister, and we were but spectators to the unexpected tragedy. The reasons for this change of leadership were matters to be explained by them. Despite rumours to the effect that this was a "plot," despite the propaganda that it was a religious "frame up" so that we could obtain power and monetary remuneration, we are to-day in the House exactly as before the change of leadership in the Government ranks. We retain our solid front, and the only loss is from the opposite side. No, Mr. Speaker, we did not desire to ride into power over a corpse. We do not, to use a football expression, like to win the same by a "penalty kick." We would rather secure our goal by other and more sportsmanlike means of play. Nevertheless it is but due to the new Prime Minister and his colleague, Sir William Coaker, for me to say that in their conference with Sir Michael Cashin and myself they displayed a spirit of interest in the public welfare that is to their credit. It is probably better that we were able to meet and part in this spirit, and that it was impossible to come to a common basis of agreement.

NOW LANDING Ex. S.S. "Heronspool": 1000 TONS HOUSEHOLD COAL at $13.50 Per Ton SENT HOME. HENRY J. STABB & CO. 128, ad. fr

Table with financial data: Indemnification is asked for the lifting of the export tax on codfish last November, also the removal of the 25 per cent. surtax, both of which were done previous to the general election by an Order in Council. The export duty on salt bulk codfish is abolished, all of which, together with the 25 per cent. surtax and 2 1/2 cents per pound reduction on sugar, will mean that provision for the amount of $412,040.00 will have to be made. A DEFICIT OF $682,433.00. The estimated revenue for the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1923, was $8,844,000.00, and the expenditure $9,526,433.00, showing a deficit of $682,433.00. The estimates already tabled call for an expenditure for the fiscal year 1923-24 of $9,105,153.57. As against this expenditure a revenue is estimated of $9,150,000.00, leaving an approximate surplus of $44,846.00. The sources from which the estimated revenue is derived are as follows:— Customs $9,890,000.00, Postals 245,000.00, Telegraphs 185,000.00, Inland Revenue Stamps 50,000.00, Crown Lands 80,000.00, Liquor Sales 480,000.00, Fines and Forfeitures 6,000.00, Fees, Public Institutions 45,000.00, Broom Debt, Penitentiary 10,000.00, Interest Guaranteed Loans 84,000.00, Excess Profit Tax 30,000.00, Income Tax 250,000.00, Sales Tax 60,000.00, Bank Tax 125,000.00, Cable and Bank Tax 70,000.00, Estate Duties 150,000.00, Miscellaneous 150,000.00, Civil Service Reduction 150,000.00. Total $9,150,000.00. This amount is $206,000 in excess of what was raised last year. EXPECTS BETTER RESULTS NEXT YEAR. The Finance Minister estimates an increase of $655,000.00 in revenue for 1923-24 over the past year. He estimates an increase of $38,000.00 postal revenue and sixteen thousand in telegraphs. There are other increases noted. As against these increases he estimates, with other items, a drop in miscellaneous revenue of $350,000.00, and in sales of $70,000.00. Subtracting losses from the gains as stated above there is a net increase estimated at $306,000.00. Questions were asked by Mr. P. J. Cashin and P. F. Moore. On a motion to adjourn Mr. Higgins referred to prices charged in goods at the stores which supply the stores working on the Badger Road. He was absolutely impossible, so he told him, to earn more than enough to pay for the food they consume etc. He was promised the favour of a next sitting. He was told that these stores were Government stores and he asked the Minister of Public Works if that was and was replied to in the negative. The stores were owned by the contractor. The Prime Minister promised Mr. Higgins full investigation and asked to be supplied with the names of the stores. The House then adjourned until to-day at 3 o'clock. ways successful, and the latest addition to under-sea power was at once towed to the dockyard for completion.

The new vessel is the last word in submarines; she is really a submersible battle-cruiser. Her displacement when submerged will be 3,600 tons, 1,400 tons greater than that of the largest German submarine and considerably greater than any of the existing American types. On the surface the X-1 will use steam for navigation, but when submerged will use electricity.

There is a great diversity of opinion regarding the size of the new vessel's armament. In some quarters it is said she will mount a gun of 12 or 13.5-inch calibre. It is possible, however, that the X-1 has been designed for a high surface speed, enabling her to work with the Grand Battle Fleet. If this is true a big gun would not be carried.

The cost of the new submarine, apart from armament and ordnance stores, will be nearly $5,000,000. At present there are 69 submarines in the British Fleet, and of these the M class, which mount a 12-inch gun, are the most powerful.

Singapore, the Dutch and the Americans. The debate on Singapore in the Commons yesterday was characterized by the British members of the House of Commons got up in public and dishonorable motives to the representatives at the Washington Conference that these same members would knock any suggestion down for suggesting. And the funny thing about it is that the members of Lord Balfour and his colleagues probably meant every word of the time. The Americans, of course, was able to categorically that all the delegates at Washington—British, American, Japanese and what not—clearly understood that Great Britain was retaining full freedom of action regarding Singapore. If we may be permitted to say so, we would like to add our support to this statement, the writer having been in Washington at the time and fully acquainted with this elementary fact. That is precisely why the Western boundary of the area in which fortifications are not to be increased was fixed at the 11th meridian, which lies just east of Singapore. The notion that the Americans will be approved by the widening of the naval base at Singapore is on the fantastic than it is ignorant. It is totally unfounded and maliciously aggressive criticism as was indulged in by members of the British Parliament yesterday might conceivably stir suspicions of equally uninformed Americans; but Americans "in the field" are wholeheartedly in favor of the British plan of making the fighting fleets of Britain available in the Pacific. They want them there for obvious reasons. It is not Great Britain that the Americans fear in the Pacific; and if they were going to start a fight with the British Navy, they would like its ships to be away around the world, and not in the Atlantic, at the time came. The late Viscount Grey—probably best-informed and the keenest of foreign policy experts—hit the nail exactly on the head the other day when he said that any war in the Pacific would be a race war, and that the United States and the British Empire would be fighting on the same side. Under those circumstances, the Americans would be as delighted to see our fleets pivoting on Singapore as we would be to have their fleets pivot on Manila or Hawaii. Singapore will be in reality, an American port. Yet there are people with so much sense of the new alignments in the Pacific politics that they still think that the Americans must automatically oppose anything which buttresses the British Empire. Equally misunderstood is the position of Holland. Critics of the Singapore plan said yesterday that it was this project which was compelling Holland to increase her fleet and to build her bases in the East Indies. The fact of the case show that it is not Holland, but as a complement to it. Who imagines that the Dutch could possibly create a navy powerful enough to hold the British at bay or East Indian fortifications strong enough to defend the Dutch island against us? Who does not know that Great Britain proposed to try conclusions with the Dutch, she would attack Rotterdam and not Batavia? But if the British feel that there is a possible peril looming on the East-Asian horizon which necessitates a strong naval base at the tip of the Malay Peninsula, is it not possible for the Dutch see the same peril and under imperative obligations to support the valuable islands in Singapore against it? Whatever for might conceivably try to creep around into the Bay of Bengal might easily attack or raid Java and Sumatra on their way. And it would be necessary for the Dutch to be prepared to offer at least an initial resistance. It is entirely plain to all students of the East that if the British and the Americans ever have to fight an enemy in the waters of the Western Pacific and the Indian Ocean, the Dutch too will be found fighting on their side. Singapore, in that sense, is a Dutch outpost as well. Those who say that this all points to a "yellow peril" and that there is now no "yellow peril" and that there is right today. But unless they will join with us in insisting upon a sane, conciliatory and non-provocative policy toward Asia, with its teeming millions, they will not be right long. England Now Possesses Undersea Battle Cruiser. Chatham, England, July 26.—(A.P.)—When England's new "mystery ship" submarine X-1, was launched here recently, newspapermen and spectators were rigidly excluded, and the approaches to the dockyards were heavily guarded to make sure no unauthorized person should see her take the water. Nevertheless it can be said the launching was in all

MEXICO WINS HER WAY BACK.

THE ROOT OF TRUTH.
 The Times—The true, the just, and the beautiful have their roots elsewhere than in what can be seen. In spite of its fondness for the ocular, modern education has, in one branch of study, recognized as much. SHORT OF SERVANTS.
 London Daily Mail—The meaning of the servant problem can be seen all over the West End of London, where there are large numbers of unoccupied houses standing empty because people cannot get willing servants. And yet the country is full of unemployed. So long as people are able to draw money for doing nothing, so long there will be a shortage of servants. What is the use of inventing all sorts of fanciful reasons for the unpopularity of domestic service, when the true reasons are staring us in the face?

AIR RIVALRY.
 Le Soleil—It remains fairly clear, in spite of all pretensions, that one arm has been substituted for another, the airplane for the dreadnought. One thing we must not forget is that the declaration of the British Prime Minister comes at the time of the Ruhr difficulties, a coincidence which is not of a kind to reassure the easily-disturbed spirit. But however disturbing this tendency may be, its increase on one side and another the forces of attack and defence by means of an instrument relatively new and proved so efficaciously in the Great War, it will always be the good-will and the conciliatory disposition which would exist between nations, much more than the partial diminution of their armaments, which must make peace certain and save them from disastrous encounters.

THE DRAMA OF THE SEA.
 Daily Chronicle—Twenty-two days in an open boat on the ocean afford an experience not often equalled in the records of the sea. Perhaps an exposure of such length has not been recorded since 1884, when three members of the crew of the yacht Mignonette endured a memorable and tragic journey of twenty-four days. The story of the Trevesa's crew, when set out in full—in which we hope may be included that of the boat still missing—will add one more to those thrilling stories of the sea with which our annals are full. Duffie knew well that for the telling of a tale of the sea narratives of fact gave the best material. Captain Marryat could not surpass or equal Hakluyt and Stevenson envied the experience that enabled Herman Melville to deal in real events.

Predicts Hinduism Will Fall Before Forces of Islam.

Calcutta, July 28. (A.P.)—Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Bengal poet and 1913 recipient of the Nobel Prize for Literature, says in an interview that on his last visit to America in 1920 he was greatly shocked and disappointed by the selfish, nationalistic spirit which he found, and that he did not intend to visit the country again. With regard to Indian affairs, the poet predicted that the Mohammedans would soon gain supremacy over the Hindus, bringing India again under Mohammedan rule. Tagore was found at his home and school at Shantiniketan (the abode of Peace), which is about four and a half hours by rail from Calcutta. When asked if he intended ever to go back to Europe and America, the poet said that while his first visit to America, in 1915, had led him to believe that the United States had become so powerful and so advanced in civilization that she would be able to avoid war herself and would also, by economic pressure, be able to prevent long conflicts between other nations, his last visit had brought only shock and disappointment. The country was war-mad, he said, and without the patience to listen to philosophers, poets or dreamers.

"I am afraid many of the things I had to say were unpopular," he added, "because an intense spirit of nationalism was sweeping America. I am opposed to nationalism in every form. For me every question is an international one. The press and public men were clamoring for what they called 'hundred per cent. Americanism.' Ah, but that is a dangerous pattern.

In answer to questions regarding the future of India, Tagore predicted the conquest of Mohammedanism over his own religion of Hinduism. "It is possible," he said, "that Hinduism may be a religion of the past before many years, and the inhabitants of India converted to Islam by force. And who knows but that it might be a good thing for India if the Mohammedans were to overrun it again?"

"Hinduism is a religion of pacifism, while the teachings of Mohammed transform even our peaceful Hindus into fanatics with a lust to fight. Even now Mohammedanism is spreading rapidly in India. The latest figures show that there are more Mohammedans here in Bengal to-day than there are Hindus. So, if the government falls into the hands of the Indian people, it probably will mean Mohammedan rule again. But even that would be preferable to the present government, because it would be government by our own kindred."

 I BELIEVE.
 I believe in friendship, and I believe in trees.
 And I believe in hollyhocks a-swaying in the breeze.
 And I believe in robins and roses white and red,
 And rippling brooks and rivers, and blue skies overhead.
 And I believe in laughter, and I believe in love,
 And I believe the daffodils believe in God above.
 I am no unbeliever. I know that men are true.
 I know there's joy in summer time when skies above are blue.
 I know there is no earthly power can shape a pudding rose
 Or bring a daisy into bloom; with all that wisdom knows,
 It could not fashion, if it would, the humblest blade of grass,
 Or stretch a living carpet where the weary travelers pass.
 I believe in friendship, for I have found it good,
 And I believe in kindly words, for I have understood;
 My faith is founded on the years and all that I have seen,
 Something of God I've looked upon no matter where I've been—
 Within a swamp but reverend a lily smiled at me
 And only God could set it there to bloom for me to see.

Near and Far.

Summary vengeance has been exacted by the Mexican Government for the attack on the Inter-oceanic Railway passenger train June 8, between Amozoc and Senore, near Puebla, in which two lives were lost. Five Indians, two of them residents from Amozoc, have been shot after summary court-martials, and twelve others, whose names were given by those executed as members of the band of robbers, are being hurried through the mountains by numerous detachments of Federal troops. Photographs of the five dead robbers, taken while they were falling under the bullets of the firing squad at the edge of the graves dug for them, have been distributed throughout the Malinal mountain region as a warning against further similar outrages. The fact that the Amozoc holdup was the first to mar the record of the Obregon administration for months prompted the Government to take extreme steps.

Wife beating henceforth will be considered a crime in France. The old law—under which a man was not punished who "in order to make himself obeyed or else as a punishment for an unfaithful wife" beat her, have been repealed by the court following the acquittal of a husband who had been prosecuted by his wife. The husband's lawyers produced the old edicts which authorized a husband to mete out "manual punishment" when a wife refused to obey him, and said that the husband was within the old Roman laws which stated: "A man has the right of life and death over his wife." The court agreed and released the husband, but the wife appealed to the higher court, which now has decided that the old laws no longer stand, and that not only should a brutal husband be punished but that also a wife who has been beaten should have cause for divorce.

Fiendish crimes, involving the murder of four persons, were told of when a young Hungarian named Toth confessed to the murder of an aged man, Andrew Lachman, to get control of his home and money, in Budapest. Lachman returned to Hungary from the United States last year with a comfortable fortune, purchased a charming villa and settled down to a peaceful old age. His daughter became enamored of Toth despite the fact that she was sixteen years his senior and that he was a grocer's clerk. She conspired with Toth to murder the Lachman family. The first step was to get American passports which they showed to neighbors, saying that Lachman was returning to the United States. They then killed Lachman and buried him under his house, telling his friends that he had left. Toth then shot Mrs. Lachman and her 15 year old son. Their bodies were buried in a garden. Left alone with Mrs. Kovacs, he strangled her and buried her body alongside the mother's. Toth claimed the house and fortune of the entire family, declaring all had gone to America and left the property to him. Discovery of the bodies led to his arrest.

Her metal diet resulted in a young woman being operated on in Avy County Hospital. She complained of pains internally and she was very sick, so the doctor X-rayed her, but the plate was spoiled. As she continued actively ill, he operated and extracted from her stomach 17 iron keys, 2 coins, one with a ring through it; 3 safety pins, one open; 1 button, 1 engineer's split pin and 1 pencil sharpener. The largest key was nearly 4 in. long. The patient made an uninterrupted recovery.

Regarding scopolami, the drug that is supposed to make persons tell the truth. The Superintendent of King's County Hospital says its use is similar to the old practice of brothers who got their sisters' fiances drunk to find out what kind of men they were. "That was supposed to be an infallible method," said Dr. Jones. "The use of scopolamin takes a man's conscious mind away from him. The average person will never say things that will cause him or others to get into trouble. He is protected by his conscious mind. This drug destroys that consciousness and puts him in a condition where he will tell what he would not tell otherwise. It is a gamble. The patient may tell the truth, or, like a man under the influence of liquor, he may murmur incoherently."

New Zealand's surplus keeps coming up to taunt her sister Dominions who are less fortunate. The budget introduced in Parliament shows the financial condition of that country to be very satisfactory. The revenue last year amounted to $137,897,215, while the expenditures were $131,312,845, leaving a surplus of $6,584,370. The revenue for the coming year is estimated at $139,846,000.

Australia's defence policy will be changed by the establishment of a naval base at Singapore. The Australian Minister for Defence, replying to the comment on the question of naval defence, and particularly on the establishment of a first class naval base at Singapore, says that the British Empire does not expect an attack from any direction. The Washington treaty ensures the peace of the Pacific for 10 years. It provides that the United States shall not fortify the Philippines nor any station in the Pacific west of Hawaii. It also provides that Great Britain shall not increase the fortifications or defences of Hongkong. But the treaty does not restrict any necessary provision for either naval or military defence of Australia or its dependent islands, nor does it in any way hamper the Empire so far as regards the provision of a naval base at Singapore. There is no violation of the treaty either in letter or spirit in the British proposal to establish a naval base at that port, nor is the policy of Britain in any sense a policy of aggression against any nation or people. With a first class base so near to Australia in the north, further expenditure on the establishment of the Henderson naval base is unwarranted and unnecessary, but provision will be necessary for a port of refuge on the west coast of Australia, and also provision will be necessary on the western coast for the docking and repair of ships.

Rich brocades in gold and black lines and trims the collar and sleeves and finishes the ornament at the waist of a navy rap frock.
Tub silks, knitted fibers, lightweight woolsens and crepes are used more for summer sports frocks than washable cottons and linens.

Household Notes.

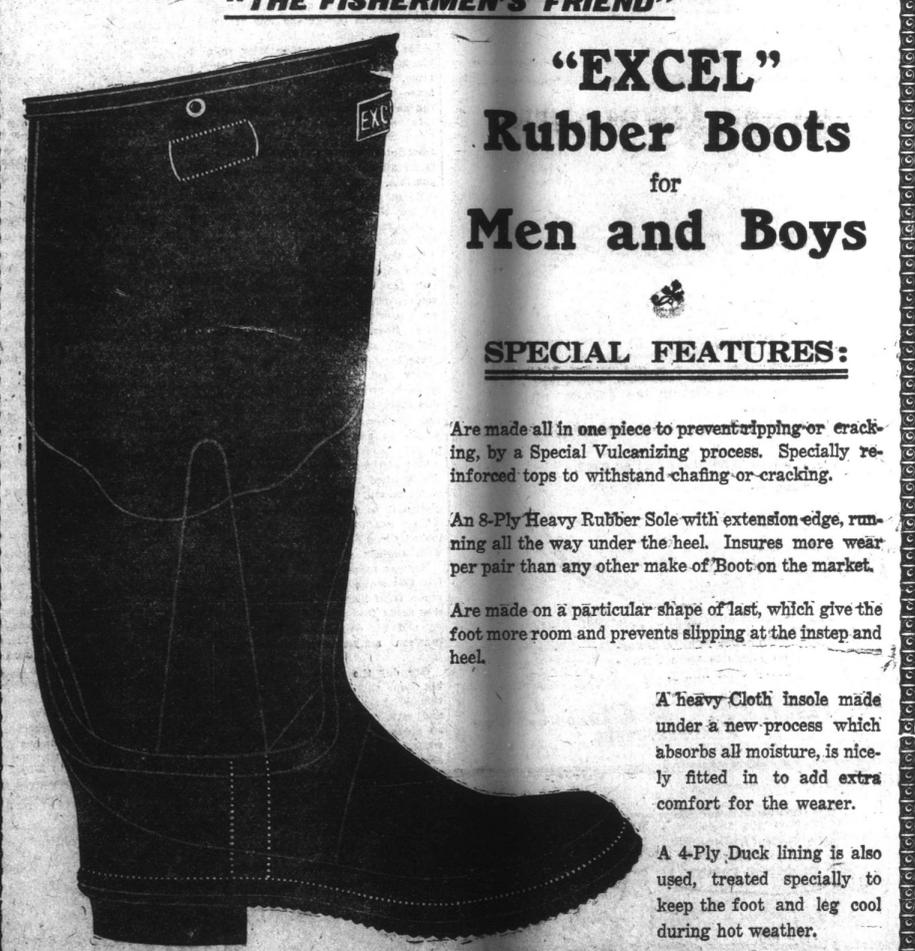

Washing makes the shells of eggs porous, so do not wash them until ready to use, to prevent them absorbing the odors.
Potatoes are always acceptable when boiled in salted water, drained and served with melted butter and chopped parsley.
Cut baked potatoes in halves, remove contents, mash with butter, milk and seasoning, repack in shells and brown in oven.
The numerous prepared cereals on the market served with plenty of whole milk make splendid light suppers for the kiddies.
Boil and mash sweet potatoes, season, mix to a soft consistency with hot milk, put in a greased baking dish, cover with marshmallows, and bake.
Place chilled cubes of watermelon in a salad bowl lined with lettuce leaves and sprinkle with a little sugar.

Sh-h-h-h—"Bavu," Big Film Hit.

"BAVU" COMING TO STAR THEATRE SOON, IS GRIPPING AND INTENSE DRAMA.
Mystery of the deep-dyed variety is the keynote of "Bavu," the all star Universal-Jewel special production which will be shown at the Star Theatre next week. It is said that this picture outdoes anything in the mystery line that the screen has ever known, completely mystifying audiences.
The cast of such a picture might be ordinary and the offering would "get over" through sheer strength of the mystery appeal, but "Bavu" incidentally presents such famous artists as Wallace Beery, Estelle Taylor, Josef Swickard, Forrest Stanley, Sylvia Bremer, Martha Mattok, Nickolai de Ruja, Harry Carter, Jack Rollens and others. Stuart Paton directed them with the skill he displayed in "Reputation" and other Universal pictures.
"Bavu" was written as the result of Earl Carroll's inability to find a suitable play to open the beautiful new Earl Carroll Theatre in New York City. For weeks and months he searched for some dramatic gem that would be fitting to usher into lights the most magnificent theatre in New York. Finally he gave up in despair and determined to write one of his own. The results exceeded his fondest hopes and he was acclaimed by press and public as clever a playwright as he was a manager.

THE BLIND MOTHER.

The more I see of the Boy Scout movement, the more I marvel at the good fortune of the modern mother who has so potent an ally to help her in rounding out the character of her boy.

And the more I wonder at the blindness of the mothers who refuse to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity. For, alas, there are mothers who will not let their boys become Scouts.

I met one the other day. We were talking of the Boy Scout camp where our neighbour's boy is spending a month and she was reading us part of his enthusiastic letter which she had just received. It was all of camp fires, and stunts in the "copy house" (an old barn), of swimming races and overnight hikes, of useful work and beautiful play with other "rookies and veterans."

Poor John.

As she tucked the letter back in the envelope for safe keeping, she turned to the other woman. "Is John old enough to join the Scouts yet?" she asked.

"He's old enough, but I never intend that he shall be a Scout," and from the hint of defiance in her tone I could picture to myself the times when she had taken this stand against John's vain pleadings.

"But why?" queried the Scout mother in bewilderment.

"Because I don't believe in having them tramping out till half past nine and ten o'clock at night. Home is the place for boys after dark."

When Apron Strings Break.

Ah, blind mother! It will not do to tighten the apron strings at this age. For with the coming of adolescence there are stirrings and awakenings in a boy's heart that cannot be suppressed by locking the doors.

Forbidden fruit was ever the sweetest and in a year or two "the glamour of night" will lure them out, however much you may try to keep them at home. It is the call of adventure to youth and will not be denied.

How infinitely wiser is the Scout mother who loosens these apron strings safe in the knowledge that although her boy is indeed "out at night," it is in the companionship of youths of his own age and under the supervision of that splendid body of men who constitute the Scout Masters of the Boy Scouts of America—men who give so generously of their time and ability for love of boyhood, asking and receiving no other recompense than the joy of constructive work with the boys who will be the men of to-morrow.

Stronger Than Iron.

The way for a mother to keep her boy close to her is not by bonds which chafe and become irksome, but by creating a bond of love whose strength lies in a sympathetic understanding of the needs of a boy's life. Such a bond exists, I am sure, between my neighbor and her son. Like the mother bird, she has pushed him over the edge of the home nest and is helping him to try his wings. And the two are yet

"more closely bound, by love than if by iron girded round."

A mother's position is a delicate one at this stage of a boy's life. She must be interested in all that concerns him without being intrusive; she must guide him without seeming to; she must keep his confidence without making him a mollycoddle. She must remember the song with which she lulled his baby slumbers: "Gull, baby, gull out across the sea. Only don't forget to sail back again to me."

And let her not be afraid lest he forget to sail back again, for if she keeps very close to him in spirit on that maiden voyage, she need never fear that the tide will carry him far from the safe haven of her protecting love.

Cash's Tobacco Store, Adventures in Africa.

TALES OF A WOMAN BIG-GAME HUNTER.

In the wilds of Africa it is always safer not to take a swim in a river, unless you know for certain that it is free from crocodiles. A human swimmer is considered a dainty morsel by these animals.

A game warden in British East Africa tells of the experience of one swimmer, who was caught and pulled down and kept under water until the crocodile thought he was drowned.

He came to some time later in a black, wet cave in the bank of the river. He felt all right, but dare not leave by the river, so he clawed at the earth above him and escaped in this way.

Hunting gorillas is probably the most interesting of all sports, as this is an animal as like a human as is possible.

So at any rate, says Mrs. Bradley in her book, "On the Gorilla Trail," where she describes how her party first came on a gorilla.

On the trail one day the native porters pointed to some bushes not very far away. The bushes were waving about, and the hunters could see something which looked like a black bear. They hurried on, and suddenly saw a male gorilla on a slope opposite.

"My first impression," says Mrs. Bradley, "was of shoulders—immense shoulders—huge, uncouth, slouching shoulders. His side was towards us and his back was silver grey."

One of the men fired, and the gorilla crashed to the ground in some undergrowth. They dashed towards him, only to find that he was gone.

They again saw him, and as he looked towards them he was finished with another shot.

He was measured and found to be five feet seven inches in height; the reach from hand to hand, outspread, was seven feet eight and a half inches, and his chest measurement was between sixty-two and sixty-three inches.

One day the party was trailing a big lion, and suddenly through a thicket the author saw its mane and ears. She fired at it once, and so did one of the men. Then they waited and heard a growl. Another shot was fired.

Whilst it is not by any means claimed that Biozone is an infallible cure for all the ills that the human body is subject to, the achievements so far manifested are particularly comprehensive and encourage even greater expectations.

Among the various disorders that Biozone has apparently either entirely cured, or after a short course, considerably alleviated, and which are in the main traceable to impure or impoverished blood, or impaired nerves, are Rheumatoid, Arthritis, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuritis, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Eczema, Psoriasis, Malaria, Influenza, Catarrh, Insomnia, Neurasthenia, Anaemia.

Foreign Ports Cold to Stranded Sailors.

Havre, France, July 27.—Unwary American seamen in large numbers, who carelessly or ignorantly sign faulty articles of employment on foreign vessels, are finding themselves stranded here without any hope of getting back home. In many cases jobless and penniless sailors have been arrested as vagabonds and thrown into French jails and, according to their stories, the same danger threatens them in a number of other foreign ports.

There has lately been a disposition, the sailors say, among foreign steamship lines operating between Europe and America to bring American seamen to Europe and drop them, either through false representation or misunderstanding on the part of the men when signing the articles. In some instances the men are careless and sign in a casual way, hardly knowing or caring what to do. Some sign for a port thinking it means a round trip, and they find themselves stranded on foreign soil.

Finding they have no means to return to America, many of them appeal to the American consulates. But nothing can be done for them except in cases of men holding seamen's cards in the American Merchant Marine.

The Y. M. C. A. at Havre has helped out a number of men, but the appeals have become so numerous recently that the Association has reached the limit of its funds for such purposes.
