CHAPTER XVII.

"But," said Lillian, with a sudden start, breaking into their hurried deliberations, "how did you find me out, and how did you enter this room? You have not explained that, which seems to me the most wonderful of all."

His face clouded and he turned his eyes moodily to her face.

"Lillian," he said, in a low voice, "I knew this house, this room, years ago."

"You did!" she exclaimed, and her eyes filled with a strange, ineffable satisfaction. "You have been in this room—lived here?"

"I have," he said, solemnly.

"I thought so," she said.

"Why?" he asked, astonished.

She blushed a bright crimson and hid her face.

"Because," she faltered, "Oh, must I tell? Because I seemed to love the room though it was a prison to me. I seemed to have known it before; and I never looked round it but I thought of you. Surely your shadow must have been sitting in it!"

He smiled, but she noted that he did so sorrowfully.

"Yes," he said, with a sigh. "This house gives us the clue; without it we might wander through this maze hopelessly. Yes, Lillian, my darling, I spent my boyhood years in this house, in this room, almost a prisoner as close as you are now."

She gazed at him in speechless astonishment.

"Were you born here?" she said.

"You have told me that you did not know where you were born."

"That is true," he said. "No, I cannot believe that I was born here; but I do not know. I remember the house only, and the man only, my master, my taskmaster, and my jailer, the man who has worked us both so much harm."

Lillian drew her breath hard and turned pale.

"Not Dr. Bromwell, not he?" she murmured.

"Yes, he," he replied, "though known to me by another, by many names. I knew him as Melchior, a criminal, a murderer—do not tremble, my darling; I know the fear that has struck you cold, but trust me. It is groundless. Sir Ralph is alive and well, and—be calm—in this house."

Notwithstanding the warning she started to her feet and her arms went up with a stifled cry.

He was prepared for her, however, and caught her to his breast. He feared she would faint, but she did not.

"Oh, thank Heaven!" she breathed. "I will forgive him all the rest if papa is safe. Oh, let me cry Clarence, or my heart will break!"

He let her cry, still holding her, and when she was calm again went on hurriedly, for he felt that every moment the chances of an interruption were increased:

"This man, this Melchior, for some dark ends of his own—revenge, or ambition, or avarice—has plotted your ruin and mine. He has plotted and worked with the ingenuity and mercilessness of a fiend. That catlike serpent of a woman was his tool. How many more he may have Heaven knows, for his webs are laid over other countries than this, and his ingenuity has gained him an infamous notoriety all over the world. Let his object be what it may he has our concealment at heart, yours, Sir Ralph's and mine. By this time, no doubt, he has obtained possession of Rivershall."

"No, that is impossible," said Lillian. "Rivershall, at papa's and my death, would go to Lady Melville."

Clarence started and turned white.

"Lady Melville!" he said. "Where have I heard that name? Impossible!"

She is incapable of such horrible crimes."

Gerald S. Doyle, Agent.

So great was his emotion, though he felt quite unable to account for it, that he groaned aloud.

Lillian clung to him in distress.

"Oh, what have I said?" she moaned.

"Oh, what dreadful net is this around us?"

"Dreadful, indeed," he groaned, recovering himself and stopping to kiss her hand. "Let us talk no more for to-night. I must sleep on all this—or, rather, think it over quietly. Heaven send me some solution. Now, darling, and he drew her to the chair as he spoke, "for our plan of escape."

She breathed hard and sank into the chair.

He knelt at her side with his arm around her waist.

"Will you come with me now?" he murmured. "Will you trust yourself to me?"

"I cannot leave him here," she sobbed.

It was what Clarence had expected and he had schooled himself to bear it.

"I will not ask you, my love," he said. "You shall both leave here together, or I shall think Heaven has deserted me. Let me think, let me think." He clasped his forehead with his strong hand in silent pining for a few minutes, then looked up with an eager light in his eyes. "I have it!" he said. "To-night you shall be free in his arms."

She stopped him with an exclamation of delight.

"Oh, papa, papa!"

"You shall," he repeated, rejoicing in her joy. "But to obtain such a glorious result I must leave you for a while, darling."

Her face fell at that, but with commendable bravery she tried to smile.

He looked himself heart-broken at the necessity, but went on, quickly:

"Only for an hour or two, Lillian; only for an hour or two. Heaven will have you in its keeping while I am from your side until I return to save you."

She put her hands in his with a simple trust that set his lips quivering:

"And now," he said, "listen. To-night—when do you leave this room?"

"At ten," she said; "the women come for me and takes me to a room above."

He nodded.

"At nine, then," he added, "I shall be here."

She began trembling.

"Oh, it seems too good to be true!"

He chided her lovingly for mistrusting him.

"At nine I shall be here—before, if I can—and at ten the plan I have bit upon will be executed. At the next meal the woman brings eat as heartily as you can, and be careful to do nothing that may excite her suspicions. Be in look and manner, just as usual."

"Trust me!" said the beautiful girl, all aglow with hope.

"That is all you have to do," he said, "the rest is for me."

Then he said he should have to go and took her in his arms to say good-by.

But the saying took a long while, and it was not until a footstep warned them of the woman's approach that he could tear himself away.

Softly unbolting the door, he caught up his revolver, and made his escape through the secret door, waiting with it ajar, to hear if anyone but the old woman had entered. She was alone and had brought some food, for Clarence heard the rattling of plates.

Waiting still a few seconds to hear if his darling spoke, he closed the ironed door softly—though it was unnecessary caution—and hurried through the passage.

Rats might scurry over his feet, and water might drip from the damp roof by pailfuls for all he cared now; his heart had risen from the grave, and he was alive again.

So full of meaning had been their first embrace, so much had their eyes told each other, that he had not wasted the precious moments by asking her if she had been silent to marry Harry Besant, nor she by requesting the name of the lady for whom he had fought the duel.

They had felt within their souls that though all things else were antagined in the web of falsehood and mystery their loves had stood out clear, burning brightly through it all.

CHAPTER XIX.

For the first time Clarence Clifford found the earlier associations of his life of great and material use to him.

With a speed which only the wings of love could have rendered him capable of, he traversed the underground passage, and made his way to his lodging.

His landlady, a poor but respectable woman, answered his hurried summons, and in reply to his question said that she had apartments which could accommodate a gentleman and his daughter.

"They are friends of mine coming from the country," said Clarence, "and I expect them here to-night. Can you have everything ready for them?"

"Yes, sir," said the woman. "What time am I to expect them?"

"Some time after ten," he said. "I am going up to the coach to meet them, and shall bring them back with me."

She courted, offered to show him the rooms and he followed her.

Next time you see a woman buying soap take care to note what soap she is buying.

Women who use SUNLIGHT SOAP make good wives

They know that clothing costs more than soap, and that inferior soap will damage clothing, therefore they buy Sunlight Soap, which, being entirely pure soap, is most economical for washing clothes, scrubbing floors and for other household purposes. They know that a bar of Sunlight Soap is better than two bars of inferior stuff, which may be only half soap. They know that it is always cheapest.

Carnation Makes Better Home-Made Candy

The kind of home-made candy that fairly melts in the mouth doesn't "just happen". You'll find the right kind of ingredients were used in the making.

Carnation Milk's double richness adds a rare smoothness and truly delicious flavor to your candy, for Carnation is just pure, fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization.

What Shall I Prepare for Dinner Today?

Mary Blake can help you. We will gladly forward—free—Mary Blake's Carnation Recipe Book on receipt of the coupon below. Over 100 delightful and useful recipes at our disposal. Try these recipes:

CARNATION CARAMELS
1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup white sugar, 1/2 cup corn syrup, 1/2 cup Carnation Milk. Mix well and boil, stirring often until the mixture makes a firm though brittle mass when dropped in cold water. Pour into a pan that has been rinsed with cold water and allow to cool without stirring or disturbing. When nearly cold mark into squares and cut when cold. If liked, nut meats or coconut may be laid in the pan before pouring in the candy. If chocolate flavor is liked, add one square of melted chocolate before the candy is finished cooking.

CARNATION FONDANT
1/2 cup Carnation Milk, 2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup water. Boil to soft ball stage without stirring, cool without stirring, beat until creamy. Pack in bowl covered with damp cloth until ready to use.

BE PATIENT.

Just a month ago she married William James Augustus Snide; by the village church I carried to behold the blooming bride and the orange wreath she carried in her loveliness and pride. From her wedding trip returning, I see symptoms, signs of care, and two hectic spots are burning on her cheeks so round and fair; in her eyes there is a yearning that I think should not be there. I am old and fond of spilling to the weary and distressed; in my counsel there is healing, younger folk have oft confessed; when their joy has hit the ceiling I can tell them what to heat. This young matron I invited to confide her woes to me; "That your grievous wrongs are righted, if such wrongs there are, I'll see." "Radio," she cried, "has blighted all my happiness and glee. I am not a meddling Mattie, and I'd see my husband gay; but my husband's going batty on this radio. I say. Not a topic I can mention draws him from his wireless mill; he will give me no attention, but he bids me to be still, and I feel like taking gentian, which, they say, will sometimes kill." "Pa-

Lord Burnham Says the Empire Must Get Down to Business

Still Hope That Coal Miners Negotiations May be Resumed -- Duke of York to Visit U.S.A.

MUST FACE FACTS.
VANCOUVER, July 28. "There is no use living in a fool's paradise, we've got to face the facts," said Lord Burnham, Chairman of the Imperial Press Conference, in an interview. "After dinner speeches about the solidarity of the Empire are very interesting and delightful," he said, "but we've got to have something more tangible than mutual enticements. We've got to get down to business and practice what we preach. There is no getting away from the fact that conditions in the Old Country are far from satisfactory." Asked why Britain did not send out more capital for development of the resources of Canada, he said, "this year for the first time in history Britain has had to draw on its capital. For many years the balance of trade has been against us, but this adverse balance has been more than overcome from private investments in the Dominions and elsewhere. This margin disappeared last year and statisticians tell us that our total income was thirty millions sterling less than our expenditures. That is to say England has a deficit of thirty million pounds. Britain has no money to send abroad and will not have it until conditions improve. Australia has floated a loan in the New York market for seventy-five million dollars and has done so with the consent of the Bank of England. The reason for this needs no explanation. Referring to the threatened coal strike, Lord Burnham was doubtful if this trade would ever come back owing to the serious inroads made by the use of oil and the development of electrical methods. "Britain must now resort to other fields of trade to re-establish herself," he concluded.

"Don't Call It Love"

Like all of William de Mille's pictures, this production fairly glows with class. The glided life of the rich at their country houses, "back stage" with the temperamental and beautiful opera star and love-making within her boudoir, the clash of two beautiful women, one famous for her loves and the other a modest girl, for the same man—that's the atmosphere of "Don't Call It Love."

MINARD'S KING OF PAIN LINIMENT

Wedding Bells

PRINCE-WARDELL.
The morning light filtered through the stained windows of St. Andrew's Church Tuesday morning crowning the heads of the Sains in the windows with an aureole, and lighting up the interior with fitful gleams upon pillar and pew. The atmosphere of the Church was very restful and its ordinary beauty was enhanced by the floral decorations of green and white. The occasion was the wedding of the Kirk Organist, Mr. H. B. Wardell had come to Newfoundland last year from Yorkshire and had since made friends in St. John's. Yesterday Miss Prince had arrived, also from Yorkshire, and the time had come when two lives should be merged into one. The bride looked bonny as she advanced up the aisle accompanied by Mrs. Power, the Matron of Honour. She was met at the Chancel steps by the bridegroom and the solemn words were repeated after the clergyman which pledged them each to the other for better, for worse, for richer or poorer, till death did them part. The prayers were said and the exhortation delivered and the declaration made by the clergyman. With the Apostolic Benediction they departed to the vestry for the signing of the Registry, while the joyous tones of the Wedding March played forth from the organ, which was played by Arthur Mews, C.M.G., Organist of Cochrane St. Centennial Church.

Mount Cashel Garden Party
The annual Garden Party at Mount Cashel takes place to-day. Greater efforts than ever have been put forth by the energetic committees in charge to make this year's event more attractive than that of any previous year. Hon. W. J. Higgins and his committee have a sports programme which will ensure a full evening's enjoyment. The ladies in charge of the tea tables have left nothing undone to cater to patrons. An attractive musical programme will be rendered during the afternoon, three bands being in attendance, the C. L. E., C. C. C. and Mount Cashel, and lovers of music will be in their element. The dance in the play hall will make a fitting close to the day's proceedings, and a programme has been arranged that the Committee feel assured will please all who attend.

Fined for Smuggling
Wm. Brake of Codroy was convicted of a breach of the Customs Act yesterday and fined $100. Maurice Brake, a junior, convicted of a similar breach of the Act was fined $100, according to a message received by the Deputy Minister of Customs from Inspector J. H. De. Brake was caught in the act of landing goods that had not been entered. Brake, Sr., was given 30 days imprisonment in addition to the fine which if not paid will mean that he must serve a further term of six months in the penitentiary. Maurice Brake was given the option of 30 days imprisonment.

Fish Laden Ship Lost at St. Shott's
Laden with 1200 qts codfish, the auxiliary ship "Nonia," owned by the Monroe Export Co., whilst on the passage from Berlin to this port ran ashore near St. Shott's Monday night and subsequently sank. The ship hit the rocks on the east side of St. Shott's during a dense fog shortly after midnight according to a message received by the owners. Capt. Pelley, who formerly commanded the Humourist, with his crew landed at St. Shott's in a small boat and then proceeded to Trepassey, and they will leave for the city by to-morrow's train. The "Nonia" formerly an American submarine chaser, was purchased some months ago by the Monroe Export Co. She was altered at Gloucester and her speed reduced from 25 to 9 knots. Yesterday morning there was no sign of the ship, she having slipped off the rocks during the night.

Baby Carriage Hit by Motor Car
Yesterday afternoon car No. 6438, owned by Mr. Cocker whilst backing up on Dick's Square, hit and badly damaged a baby carriage which was being wheeled by a Mrs. Snelgrove. Fortunately the child and its mother escaped without injury. At the time of the accident Mrs. Snelgrove was wheeling the carriage near the edge of the sidewalk and was not seen by Mr. Cocker when he backed his car preparatory to turning it.

by David Cory
Timmie Meadowmouse sat at the opening of the tunnel that led under the tall grass to his comfortable nest. He was waiting for somebody. But he didn't mind for Mr. Happy Sun was shining down from the Blue Sky Country, warming the reddish-brown back of the little mouse, who knew better than to wander far from the tall meadow grass, under which he had made little passageways through which he could run safely back to his tiny house in case Hungry Hawk should spy him.

"Hello! What brings you here?" asked Timmie Meadowmouse, just ready to skip away on his four short legs in case his caller turned out to be a disagreeable person. "I'm on my way to the Three-in-One Cent Store to buy mother a hairpin," answered the bunny boy. "Didn't you hear me coming?" "Of course I did," answered Timmie Meadowmouse. "I heard you although my ears are short. But so is my tail. I thought it was you. In fact, I heard the lollypoppe bumping about in your knapsack."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit. "I've just come from the Lollypop Tree. You know it grows near the Big Brown Bear's Cozy Cave. He climbed up and picked off maybe a dozen lollypops for me." Just then across the Sunny Meadow came the sound of the Kind Farmer's mowing machine. "Dear, Oh dear!" cried Timmie Meadowmouse, "soon I shall be in trouble. Gracious me, it's hard to hide in the short stubble. All my tunnels under the tall grass will be cut away. Dear, Oh, dear!" Clatter, clatter! went the moving machine as it passed slowly over the Sunny Meadow, laying low the tall waving grass. "Perhaps the Kind Farmer won't

Daring Realism in "Babbitt"

Sinclair Lewis' Powerful Book Makes Powerful Picture.

"Babbitt," which finished at the Nickel Theatre to-day, is an unusual photoplay. Every effort was made to put across the same convincing sledge-hammer blows of portraiture and realism that made Sinclair Lewis' book such a best seller. In doing this Warner Brothers believe they have poured the requisite stuff into the mould of the picture, so that the great army of average film fans might be carried away by its story. They have succeeded. The cast consists of Willard Louis, in the title role; Mary Alden, Carmel Myers, Gertrude Olmstead, Raymond McKee, Maxine Elliott Hicks, Virginia Loomis, Robert Randall, Casey Fitzgerald, Lucian Littlefield, and the Loomie twins. "Babbitt" runs the whole gaunt of American life. There is the dull, drab respectability of the Babbitt family at their dour breakfast. There are torrid scenes between the fat, egotistical hero and his charmer, Tanis. The real estate office appears as true to life as the one down the street. And the jail scene is another piece of faithful realism. Miss Marjorie Hutchings delighted her many hearers by her beautiful rendition of two well chosen selections. Miss Hutchings is a contralto of rich quality. Her voice is of rare tonal value and her diction is all that could be desired.

Women who use it say that Pearlina cleans everything quicker and better than any other washing powder.

Child Playing With Dog Falls 50 Feet

Racing "Mut" On Roof Of East Boston Home.

While racing with his little dog, "Mut," on the roof of his home at 157 Trenton Street, East Boston, last night 8 year old James Kanell, in the excitement of the chase, ventured too near the edge and, losing his balance, fell to the pavement of the narrow alley below. He is at the City Hospital and his injuries are such that his name is on the dangerous list. The little boy had climbed three stories to the roof top play with his little pal, where he would be safe from the autos in the street below. The furious barking of the little dog, which rushed back and forth and scratched at the skylight to get down to his master, attracted the child's parents and they discovered the child almost unconscious but game and asking for his dog. A passing machine was commanded and "Jimmie" was rushed to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a fractured skull, broken right collarbone, dislocated right elbow, broken right wrist and fractured left leg. After being given first aid treatment by Dr. Arthur S. Holland, at the Relief Hospital, the child was rushed to the City Hospital. The unfortunate child referred to in the above clipping is the grandson of Mr. J. Kelly, of Barnes' Road.

The Crisis

Great Britain is faced with the most serious situation that has ever arisen in the whole of her industrial history, and upon the turn of events within the next day or two depends the very gravest issues. The crisis arises out of the dispute between the miners and mine owners over the wages question and the length of the working day, and as the present agreement terminates on July 31st and as there is nothing at present to indicate that a settlement is likely to be effected, everything points to a complete tie up of the industry by the end of the week.

To-day the problem is this: in Germany, where the hours worked by the miners are 9 and 10 hours a day, the cost in wages of raising a ton of coal is about 7s. 7d. In Great Britain the cost is 13s. to 14s., with the miners working 7 hours a day. The plight of the industry is shown by the fact that while 170,000,000 tons of coal were produced at a profit last year, 84,000,000 tons were mined at a loss, and whereas there were but 31,000 unemployed among the miners in February last, the number has increased during the following months to 301,000.

How it happens that Germany can work her mines on such advantageous terms is accounted for in various ways, but whatever they are, it is obvious that no outside influence can alter them. In fact it is generally conceded that her methods have been deliberately adopted in order to embarrass Great Britain to the greatest possible extent, and that belief is strengthened by her decision recently to prohibit the importation of British coal. In January last the export to Germany was 624,000 tons, in June it dropped to 206,000 tons.

Already the railway workers have expressed their intention to support the miners, and judging from the trouble already reported in the Bradford woollen mills, it would not be surprising if the trouble spread to many other industries as well.

The real trouble is due to no immediate cause but can be traced back to the war days or even before that time. When hostilities broke out, labour troubles were imminent, but the workmen loyally consented to defer their demands on the understanding that they would receive consideration when hostilities ceased. During the war they noted the fortunes that were being made by the owners of the different industrial concerns, and their resentment was only quietened by the unusually high increases in wages which they were given from time to time, and which they as regularly expended with little regard for the future.

Then came with peace the setback to this period of artificial prosperity, and the influx into the labour market of millions of men. The situation which arose had been to a great extent anticipated and wise provision made to cope with it, but unfortunately the plans were not carried out and instead various expedients were adopted, which in the end aggravated rather than removed the difficulty. Unemployment pay—or as it is generally known, the dole—was resorted to, and, like the dandelion of old, proved an unmitigated curse. It weakened the moral tone of the people, killed initiative, enabled the authorities to defer the problem of taxation already almost intolerable owing to the long drawn out war.

The indecision, or the difficulty of being able to agree on any definite line of action was regarded as weakness; discontent among the masses grew, and at once the ground was ready for the seed of the agitator, who was not slow to avail of his opportunity.

There as elsewhere, the dole and unproductive employment were primarily the poisons which wrought the deadly evil. The will to work gave place to the right to work, that is, the right to expect the Government to provide the means of making a living as distinct from the responsibility of the citizen to rely upon his own efforts.

In the crisis which faces the country to-day in the coal mining districts it is difficult to hold either the men or the mine owners blameless. The latter have been more intent on their profits than in seeing to the comforts of the workmen and in introducing into the industry more up-to-date appliances and methods. The men on the other hand, in many cases at least, have been deliberately restricting output, and in their demands for higher wages and shorter hours have shown little consideration for the effect upon other members of the community, or for the dire straits in which the country finds itself. The solution depends on both sides admitting their faults, and, prompted by a sense of duty rather than by their personal interests, effecting a compromise, which will enable the country once again to find its feet.

Spectres of the Commons

The legends relating to the appearance of spectral figures at Westminster are not generally known, even to our legislators, but the Mother of Parliaments can compete with any of the "statelike homes of England" in the matter of ghost stories.

The most fearful of these spectres is that of Bellingham, who assassinated Mr. Spencer Perceval, the then Prime Minister, in 1812. His ghost, according to tradition, sometimes appears on the terrace of the House of Commons, and, with a dismal shriek, throws itself into the river.

Still more eerie is the story of how, on one occasion, Mr. T. P. O'Connor was seen sitting in his usual place in the House of Commons by a fellow member and by a member of the Press Gallery. And at that moment T. P. was in Ireland.

Resources of the Empire

IMPORTANCE OF EXCHANGE OF TRADE.

Sir Atul Chatterjee was the principal guest at a luncheon given recently at the Waldorf Hotel by the Imperial Industries Club to recently appointed representatives of overseas Dominions. Sir George Wyatt Trustcott presided.

Responding to the toast of "Our Guests," proposed by the Chairman, Sir Atul Chatterjee said their only grievance in India was that, although they took a great deal from the industries of Great Britain—rather more than half of their imports—Indian exports to the country did not exceed one-quarter of the exports to other countries. Lancashire he knew was complaining that India to-day was not taking enough of their goods. If they remembered the very much higher prices for cotton goods and the accumulated reserves of the Indian people the present position was not surprising. India would be glad to buy more from Lancashire, and in order to do so India must earn more, and that could only be done by development of their Indian industries and the better use of their agriculture. He looked to England for guidance and assistance in India's industrial development.

Lieut.-General Sir Travers Clarke (Chief Administrator, British Empire Exhibition), replying to the toast of "The British Empire Exhibition," proposed by Gen. V. Gordon (High Commissioner for Newfoundland), said that the Exhibition had done much more in the way of Empire economic education than appeared at present on the surface. It had shown in a plain, practical manner that the resources of the great territories of the Empire could be used with greater benefit to ourselves and to mankind generally, and that if we set ourselves industriously and intelligently to develop the Empire to the full we might reasonably look forward to a future of settled prosperity.

Mr. Colbatch (Agent-General for Western Australia), Mr. Frederick Pauline Agent-General for British Columbia, Mr. J. Lloyd Price (Agent-General for South Australia), Mr. John Huxham (Agent-General for Queensland), and Sir Burton Chadwick, M.P., also spoke.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 28th.—This morning it rained so hard that I did expect to see myself afloat in my house, like Noah in his Ark, being that it did seem how we were like to have another flood. Anon but the atmosphere so oppressive that I do feel but little inclined for work, and do turn to my papers out of England. Among other things do read of the discovery of the Cancer germ, that aforesaid was thought not to exist. This is a great step towards the conquering of this disease, albeit yet a means required to slay the germ.

This night to the lakeside, where a great crowd for the christening of the new "Blue Peter" race boat and indeed seems a fine boat and mightily well made. Anon home, and to read awhile, albeit greatly troubled by the heat.

Entomologist Coming

Dr. James N. Swaine, associate Entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, leaves Halifax to-day for here. Dr. Swaine's services have been secured to conduct a survey of our forest areas with a view to reporting on their condition entomologically. The destruction wrought to woods by insect pests induced the Government to invite Dr. Swaine to investigate and report upon necessary control measures. Dr. Swaine will be accompanied in his cruise by Mr. A. English, who for some time past has been conducting a survey of the areas affected.

LONDON, July 29.—The conference of representatives of the labor parties in Great Britain and the various dominions which is being held here passed a resolution supporting the demand of India for immediate self-government.

A TRUCE SUGGESTED.

LONDON, July 29.—There are good grounds for belief that the coal strike will be averted by a sort of truce for two months to allow more leisurely negotiation of new wage agreement, and whatever other measures may be devised for bettering the conditions of the depressed coal industry.

The Fastest Trains

(By DAVID OCKHAM.)

One of the most curiously persistent of railway myths is the legend that the New York Central's engine No. 999 once ran at a speed of 112 miles an hour.

It did not, and no approach to so high a speed has ever been attained on any railway. Indeed, the whole weight of evidence suggests that such a speed is impossible with a steam engine, and it is generally accepted that no record materially in excess of 90 miles has ever been authenticated. There is, certainly, not a single instance of 100 miles an hour which can be regarded as proved.

Speeds greatly in excess of 60 miles an hour for short distances are of everyday occurrence, but throughout the world the number of trains booked to run a mile a minute from start to stop is still extremely small. The writer knows of only 30, of which 22 are in the United States, 7 in England and 1 in France.

But the bulk of the American runs are for distances of under 30 miles, and there is reason to believe that the time-table is not always adhered to, while the Great Western, which is responsible for five out of the seven English performances, runs two trains a day over the 106.9 miles from London to Bath at an average speed of 61.1 miles an hour, and the standard of punctuality of the fastest trains in this country is remarkably high.

According to the time-table the fastest "hooked" speed in England, the 62 miles an hour for the journey from Princes Risborough to Leamington, also on the Great Western, is exceeded by one train on the Philadelphia and Reading, which is timed to run one-fifth of a mile an hour more. But records are not available to show whether time is normally kept. And in the combination of speed with length of run and heaviness of train there is nothing outside England to touch the "Cornish Riviera Limited." No other country, moreover, has so many regular trains at a speed of 50 miles an hour or over.

As a typical instance of English running, the writer may mention that a few days ago he travelled from London to Swindon in a heavy train timed to start to stop, at a fraction under 50 miles an hour. The actual speed was just over 66½—an admirable performance that was taken as a matter of course by all concerned.

GOOD PROSPECTS.—Reports from St. Mary's Bay state that squid is in abundance and fish is plentiful so that the prospect of a good voyage in this section is encouraging. The fish are of large size.

PICNIC AT ASYLUM.—A picnic for the patients of the Insane Asylum takes place on the grounds to-morrow afternoon. Music will be supplied by Mr. W. Rime, who has got up a brass band for the occasion.

The annual Party in aid of Topsail Parish will take place on Sunday next, August 2nd, at Powerscourt, Manuels. This year's event will eclipse all others. Preparations have been made to cater to a large number of visitors from town. Train will leave the station at 2.30 p.m. July 25, 21.

Grand Falls Win Cricket

The Telegram representative at Grand Falls sports meet sent the following account of the cricket contest, of which the earlier scores were given in yesterday's issue: Evening Telegram.

GRAND FALLS.

Grand Falls won cricket match hours two one inning games to-day, winning the first by ninety runs and the second by 42 runs with two wickets to spare. Splendid batting and all round fielding featured the Grand Falls play. The Guards scored 23 runs in the first game and 78 in the second. Double figures in the second game—Grand Falls, Luke 54, Macey 18, Laycock 29, Jona 13. Guards—Maddick 24, Ellis 13. The third game is on Wednesday.

A. H. THOMAS.

WONDERFUL HITTING.

At Brighton—Notts, with 7 Wickets to fall, lead Sussex by 87 runs.

Two dashing displays of hitting stood out in bold relief from an otherwise quiet and uneventful day's cricket at Brighton.

Going in when Sussex had lost six wickets for 102, Tate saw two more men go while the score was raised to 148, but then he let himself go and actually made 114 out of 188 put on by the last two wickets, Wensley helping to add 95 in the three-quarters of an hour.

Tate batted for only ninety-five minutes, hitting all round the wicket and having two 6's, one 5, and fourteen 4's as his chief strokes.

Even more remarkable was A. W. Carr's great innings. He went in at the fall of the second Notts wicket at 137 and hit 6's and 4's in almost every over. He reached his hundred in fifty minutes, and actually made 118 out of 153 in an hour without being beaten. One hard chance, when 70, was his only mistake, and so far he has hit five 6's and twelve 4's.

All About Cement

Substance That Will Set Under Water.—Cement is one of the most wonderful materials in the world. It binds together stone or brick to make houses and enables us, among other things, to build cities, railways and roads.

But it is by no means a new discovery. The Romans used cement for erecting their magnificent temples in Rome, and for constructing their forts. Chalk and clay are needed chiefly to make this building material, and we have these in England, as a matter of fact, English cement has been for the past hundred years the best in the world.

One remarkable property of cement is that it will set under water. Consequently it is invaluable for constructing docks, sea-walls, and piers. By using cement, divers can lay the foundations of walls under water, and when the cement has set the structure will be as strong as if built above ground.

English cement manufacture is practically confined to the south, particularly to the estuaries of the Thames and the Medway.

In a typical cement factory the chalk and clay are brought in trucks to the works. Here they are weighed and tipped into the wash-mills, in the proportion, roughly, of three parts chalk to one of clay.

These two ingredients are then broken up by rapidly-revolving knives, and stirred, with a little water, into a thick slurry, called "slurry."

After being thoroughly churned, the mixture passes through a coarse grating, which removes any lumps.

It then runs into a large steel drum, where it is combined with a proportion of cinders, that is, small pieces of hard steel.

The slurry is now poured into reservoirs, where the water is drawn off; and the mixture, when dried, is crushed and ground into a very fine powder.

The material is again churned in the mixing tanks and then passed into huge revolving kilns, where it is roasted. This operation takes over an hour. But the resultant material is no longer "slurry." The intense heat has changed it into small nuggets.

These are then ground into a fine powder as before, and the substance left is what we all know as cement.

Do YOU like our 24 hour Developing & Printing Service?

Most everybody does, as the enormous amount of film continuously handed over our counter for development plainly shows—and the quantity grows larger every week. Surely this fact is sufficient recommendation as to the quality of our work, isn't it? Still—for the benefit of those who have not given our Developing and Printing Dept. a trial we would like to say that every negative is carefully examined before printing. Every print is carefully examined before trimming, and only the most perfect results that can possibly be achieved from the negatives are allowed to pass our examiner's hands.

TO BUILD COLOSSAL ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.

Steam Turbine Generator Unit Will be the Largest in the World.

The largest steam turbine generator built will be constructed by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company East Pittsburgh, Pa., U.S.A., and placed in service in the Hudson Avenue Station of the Brooklyn Edison Company, New York, U.S.A.

This huge piece of electrical machinery will have a capacity of 30,000 kilowatts and will develop approximately 110,000 horse power.

The placing of this order by the Brooklyn Edison Company will make the third Westinghouse Generating unit to be placed in service by this company. The other two are both 50,000 kw. units.

The complete unit will weigh nearly two million pounds. Its design will include all the latest improvements that the engineers of the Westinghouse Company have perfected upon this type of equipment.

CHRISTENING CEREMONY AT THE LAKESIDE.

New Raceboat Named "Blue Peter II." Thousands of citizens thronged the shores of Quidi Vidi Lake last evening to witness the christening of the new racer, belonging to the Blue Peter Boat Club, and to watch her trial spin. Among those present at the Boat Club were Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. F. Rendell, President Hiscock, Vice-President Higgins and the members of the Regatta Committee, Mr. Ern Chafe, President of the Boat Club, Secty. A. H. Thomas, representatives of the other Boat Clubs, and in addition many veterans of past seasons, who, if age, increased girth, and shortness of wind have relegated them to the position of lookers-on, are not one bit the less enthusiastic in all matters pertaining to aquatic sports.

The boat was decked with bunting for the occasion and everything was in readiness when, shortly before eight o'clock, the new boat, borne aloft on willing shoulders, headed by the C.L.B. Band, and accompanied by a great crowd of supporters, came into sight at the head of the Lake, and proceeded down the Boulevard. Immediately Mr. A. Williams took up a position on the roof of the boat-house, and by means of a megaphone, directed operations.

Gently the delicate shell, resplendent in varnish, was conveyed to the end of the wharf and, the straps having been passed round her, she was turned over, lowered between the piers, and scarcely disturbing the surface of the water, received her kiss of welcome from old Quidi Vidi, who has mothered so many other kind.

In a few well chosen words, President E. Chafe welcomed the visitors and thanked the public generally for the generous support which had enabled the Club to undertake the building of the boat, and he then called upon the Regatta Committee, President, Mr. Hiscock, and Hon. W. J. Higgins, the Vice-President, to say a few words.

Mr. Hiscock, in congratulating the Boat Club on its initiative and enterprise in putting a new boat on the pond, expressed his gratification at the evidence which it afforded of the keen interest taken in the Regatta. He also heartily congratulated the builder, Mr. "Bob" Sexton, upon the further proof of his skill and trusted that the successor of the old Blue Peter, would have as successful a career as its predecessor.

Hon. W. J. Higgins endorsed the remarks made by the President, congratulated Mr. Chafe and his co-workers upon the good work they had performed and, in wishing the new boat every success, he paid a great tribute to Mr. Sexton. Cheers were then called for the racer and were given with a will.

Mr. Chafe then requested Mrs. Rendell to accept as a souvenir a little silver marker, decorated in the Club Colors and intended for the purpose of breaking the bottle in the christening ceremony. Proceeding to the pier head, accompanied by the Club members and the Regatta Committee, Mrs. Rendell smashed the bottle with one blow and declared the name of the boat was Blue Peter II.

meets were passed on her behaviour by all critics as, endowed with life, she sailed over the surface.

Present Chafe and Secretary Thomas and the members of the Club, are desiring of great credit for the manner in which the arrangements were made for the event and it only remains for the crews of the Blue Peter II. on Regatta Day to reward the efforts of the owners and builder, by making her reputation second not even to Blue Peter I.

JUNIOR LEAGUE FOOTBALL.
Mt. Cashel & T.A. Draw—2 Goals All.

Judging from the number of spectators at last night's game, between Mount Cashel and the T.A. teams, it would appear that the Juniors are fast becoming more popular with the crowd than the Seniors, and certainly on the exhibition of football given they merit the support.

First Half
Playing from choice against the sun and the light breeze that was blowing, Mount Cashel pressed their opponents and within a minute drew first blood as a result of a rebound from Daley and a quick return by Duffy.

The T.A. then made matters lively for Mount Cashel and at the end of ten minutes sent Nugent a hot one which proved too much for him and the score was evened. Shortly before half time the T.A. again penetrated Mount Cashel goal with a well directed shot by Thomson.

Second Half
Play opened briskly with Mt. Cashel the aggressors and in five minutes Duffy again evened the score. For the balance of play the honors were evenly divided, with both teams exerting every effort to gain the advantage. There were several close calls but the defence on both side was on the qui vive and the game ended 2 goals all.

Mr. W. Dugan acted as referee.

The White Rose Tenure

Some of our ancient estates are held upon curious tenures, a notable instance being Blair Atholl, which was granted to the ancestors of the Duke of Atholl on condition that a white rose should be presented to the Sovereign on the occasion of every Royal visit.

The condition has not always been easy to fulfil. Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort once visited Blair Atholl in winter, and the necessary roses had to be obtained from the South of France.

Nowadays, however, the Scottish climate would seem to be milder. Within recent years roses have been seen growing in Aberdeen gardens in December.

THE TEST OF A GOOD COOK.

What a mit of painstaking goes into really good cooking!

And by really good cooking I don't mean fancy cooking, the making of elaborate desserts, the concocting of molded salads and of rich and exotic mixtures such as fricassee of lobsters with mushrooms, aspice jelly, or violet ice cream. I mean the doing of simple things as well as they can be done.

He Drew A Circle.

You remember the oft quoted story of Giotto who was asked by the Pope's messenger for a specimen of his art with a view to further employment—how he took a sheet of paper and with one turn of his hand drew a circle so perfect that it was a marvel to behold. He handed this to the courtier as a sufficient proof of his skill and the Pope, though he had expected some intricate piece of painting, recognized that he had seen a demonstration of real genius and engaged Giotto to make his frescoes.

Someone had defined genius as an infinite capacity for taking pains. I don't think that's the whole story. Perhaps that would describe talent, but I think genius is that plus. And the plus is that infinite quality whose works we recognize though we never quite analyze the thing itself.

The "Infinite Capacity For Taking Pains."

But to return to cooking, what a deal of talent it takes to do the simple things well, what an infinite capacity for taking pains!

Perhaps you will laugh when I tell you some of my tests for what I call a good cook.

The ability to make really good toast. Brown enough and not too brown, brown all over and not in spots. Crisp on the outside but not hard all through. Buttered all over with just enough butter and yet not slathered with butter. Buttered without breaking the surface. Served at the moment it is finished and before it has begun to harden and deteriorate.

Cut up oranges. Cut up without either allowing any of the enclosing membrane to get mixed in or without mauling the pulp.

But He Couldn't Serve Vegetables Properly.

Vegetables always properly strained. At a good hotel where much of the food was excellent the spinach never came to the table properly drained. They paid their chef high wages and considered him excellent. He wasn't a really good cook to my thinking.

The ability to make a thoroughly appetizing stew or pot roast.

These, to my mind, are some of the culinary achievements that are like the circle of Giotto—apparently very simple but actually requiring that infinite capacity for taking pains which is the foundation of all true art.

PARKER & MONROE, Ltd., The Shoe Men

Annual Meeting of Nonia

(Concluded.)

At an early Executive meeting while choosing a cable address the word "NONIA" was derived from the first letters of the name of our Association—Newfoundland Outport Nursing Association, and is our Industrial Trade Mark for our industrial work. NONIA is slowly becoming known throughout the country and if our dreams and prayers come true it will live as a sign of progress, conditions, lightened burdens, and as a means to alleviate unnecessary pain and illness. One day I hope to see our yacht NINIA passing from Cove to Cove carrying an Organizing Nurse, a trained Industrial Worker, and their complement of nurses. Only in such manner can our better centres be reached.

The opening of our own depot in the Reid Newfoundland Building in 1924 was a great event. That Autumn Executive realized that however good the voluntary workers were it would be wise to secure the services of a permanent Secretary and in January 1925, Miss Simms was appointed to this position. We were not aware of the fact that she required more space, and premises in Water Street with an excellent work room and sales room have been found. Mr. W. L. Bishop of Montreal, has very generously promised a monthly subscription of $25.00 towards the first year's rent.

15 centres) beginners have been treated as trained workers and Depot mistakes in designs and instructions have added to their difficulties and hearts must have ached when garments were returned and payments very small. More volunteers and greater regularity in attendance at the Depot would help in this and the volunteers who have done such splendid work will find their services of double value under the instruction of the trained organizer. Without these volunteers it would have been impossible to reach many of the knitters. Their duties have been carried out very happily and whether they helped in designing, selling, correcting, packing, or checking in shipments, the Association is equally grateful to all and begs for their continued co-operation. We appeal for many more workers if we are to meet the ever growing appeal of this Island Home. Let us have courage to realize sincerely the difficulties and urgent need of the fishfolk and give them the chance to help themselves they so quickly seize. Many of them have shown their adaptability. At Wembley, in Toronto, Boston, Halifax and New York, their work is highly praised. Their own homes benefit from skilled nursing, new interests, and dawning hope. Their own courage and perseverance have achieved something of definite commercial value and a London Committee of Newfoundlanders recently formed, with Mrs. Amery, wife of the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs as first member, may be the first of many to approve the effort of the outport women.

The Initial Committee and this Association had received kindly encouragement from successive Governments, from the churches and many citizens and at all times from the press throughout the Island. It records to-day the gradual development of improved standard of health and a new outlook in the life of some of the Outport people. As its President may I record my personal gratitude and heartfelt thanks to all who have worked so loyally and patiently towards reaching our aims.

NONIA may be likened to a toddling child, eager and wistful, at times full of beauty and promise, other times faulty, stumbling and weary. Its little hands carry healing and promise to many. Shall we help it to grow? Its future is unknown but it will live if it may count on love for others, wise guidance, and whole-hearted Christianity.

THE WORKING MAN'S HOUSE.

We turned into a side street where he lived men who have to earn their daily bread.

"Houses for workmen," he muttered low.

"Alike as nine pins standing in a row." "Suppose," said I, "chance placed us here to dwell."

What story would our little cottages tell?

"These place seem alike, but closer look, One may read houses as he reads a book; This one is kept by one who has no care Beyond his food and drink and clothes to wear; But love of beauty in the next is seen, A wary man and woman keep it clean."

"Despite their care they give their twilight hours To trailing roses and a bed of flowers, The place is small but lovely to the eyes. For beauty is not measured by its size, Wherever chance may throw fine souls to dwell They'll find a way their finer thoughts to tell."

"So with their houses. Sordid people make A place which joy and loveliness forsake, Fine men and women through their toll and care Express their love of beauty everywhere; 'Tis from the soul that blossoms gentle grace And not from ease or wealth or pomp or place."

The Erring Wife and Mother is the woman who sacrifices her health and consequent happiness to her ambition. We all know such women, anxious that their homes shall be kept immaculately neat and attractive and their children well dressed they overdo and soon bring an some feminine ailment which is evidenced by nervousness, irritability, headaches, backache and other aches and pains attending such ills. Every woman should remember that the most successful remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for fifty years has been restoring women to health, strength and happiness.

Drive Out the Flies

WITH

SANIFLOR!

It is unnecessary to have flies in the home.

A Saniflor will drive every fly from an ordinary room and keep them out.

No spraying. Just open the bottle, insert the flower wick and the Saniflor does the rest.

Operates night and day. Lasts two to three months. Costs $1.00 at drug, hardware and general stores.

Manufactured by RENAUD & CO., PARIS.

Dr. F. STAFFORD & SON

Sole Agents and Distributors for Newfoundland.

Insects hate the delightful odor of Saniflor and give it a wide berth. Moths, water bugs and other insect pests move out when Saniflor moves in. Protects woollens from moths. Destroys all odors of cooking, etc., replacing them with the delightful and delicate fragrance of fresh flowers.
