A man's arm is his own Individual liberty grants him the right to stretch it out if he pleases. No one will dispute that. But the rights of one individual stretch it out if he pleases. No one will dispute that. But the rights of one individual end where those of the next individual begin.

So Queen's Park—or any other appropriately large open space, for that matter—and spread it out on the green sward it is his own business. But if as he unfurls it other people are injured he goes beyond his rights. If he hurls the weight of it upon the most sacred convictions of others who have an equal right with him to the public breathing place; if he lacerates their feelings and angers them in spirit, he commits an outrage that the authorities should properly deal with.

As it now stands frequenters of the Park have but one way of dealing with mouths that molest them—mob them into the fastnesses of the city. Since this plan has been found to work it will be regularly resorted to, but there should be a better way than this.

Tura On the Light.

It is a sensation that is quite new to Toronto to feel that a number of the aldarmen, are accused of being the weak vicities of bribers and corruptionists. New York, Chicago and other American cities have repeatedly afforded instances of the peculiar frailty of aldermanic fisch. Detroit affords us a more recent and near one, where the Mayor vetoed a bylaw disposing of the street railway franchise of that city because of aldermanic corruption, and an observer might see in it all the wave-theory of crime, with the 'clean skater of Cleveland' skimming along its crest distributing the contagion. But there has always been an idea here that boodling on a large scale could not creep into the municipal affairs of Toronto. Many times suspicions have arisen of crookedness, but an illogical opinion has long prevailed that while an alderman might develop enough dishonesty to pool interests. The Street Railway.

There is no hurry in selling the street railway franchise. We don't have to sell if we think we are not getting enough for it. town of Sarnia, and a member of the Fire and Water Committee, and, as such, a promoter and supporter of the Bylaw to enable and Water Committee, and, as desired and supporter of the Bylaw to enable the Town Council to enter into a contract with the Bell Telephone Company for a fire alarm system for the town, and who had on several occasions cast his vote for the Bylaw and resolutions to bring the same into force, had on June 29 voted against the Bylaw, and by so doing had defeated it. The next day Mr. Weelands admitted that his last vote was purchased of him by a payment to him of $500; that the money was given to him by William Kenny, who said he had received it from this defendant for that purpose. Weelands and Kenny said that they would, when properly called as witnesses, tell the truth and the whole truth. When Weelands and Kenny were sworn, they each claimed the right of not answering any questions tending to criminate themselves.

As the prosecution could not force the evidence of Weelands and Kenny, the informations against the accused were discharged.

Charles Haddon Spurgeon was born at Kelvedon, Essex, June 19, 1834. He was educated at Colehester, Cambridge and elsewhere, and became usher in a school at Newmarket. Some of his relatives who were independents proposed that he should enter one of their colleges, but as he had adopted Baptist views he joined the congression which had been presided over by the late Robert Hall at Cambridge. He now actively engaged, in Christian work, and at Feversham, near Cambridge, at the age of 16, he delivered his first sermon, and shortly atterward accepted an invitation to become pastor at Waterbeach. He now became a well-known character. The chapel at Waterbeach was filled, while crowds contented themselves with listening from the outside. Luvitations to preach were sent from surrounding places. His fame reached London and he was offered the pastorate of the church meeting in New Park-street chapel in Southwark, in which Dr. Rippon at one time preached. Mr. Spurgeon first preached before a London congregation in 1853 with so much success that ere two years had elapsed it was considered necessary to enlarge the building, and during alterations he officiated for four months in Exeter Hail. That large editioe was crowded and hundreds were turned away. The enlargement of the chapel in Park-street proved for a whilo sufficient, but hearers increased with such rapidity that it became expedient to engage the Surrey Music Hall. A lamentable accident occurred within its walls in October, 1856, and Mr. Spurgeon's followers determined to build a larger and more suitable ediffice. The Metropolitan Tabernacle was opened in 1801 and has always been filled to overflowing. It accommodates 6000 people. Mr. Spurgeon has published a sermon weekly since the first week of 1833; its circulation has averaged about 30,000 each issue, besides being reprinted in many English and American religious papers. Unide of the many other works he peculiar scene.

The steamers Abeona, Dan, Jackman, Esperanza, Ada Alice and Electric made flying trips from the starting line to the place where the various yachts were lying and took such ones as lay in their course in town, This caused a good deal of excitement not unmingled with chagrin in the breasts of those who were not chagrin in the breasts of those who were not fortunate enough to secure a tow for their boats. In several instances the tow lines The Canadian Tournament Continuedhastily thrown out proved too light to stand the strain and just as the yachts were all cona good start snap would go the tow line and their hopes vanished. However a sufficient to make number of boats got a fair start to make most of the races interesting. The wind freshened a little at about 10 o'clock and as the gun fired for the first-class. the Oriole, which had been towed, and the Vreda, which had sailed out, crossed the line almost together. The course to the buoy at Mimico was a long and short leg and the cutter succeeded in showing the schooner the way, rounding the mark about half a minute in the lead. The course to the lake buoy gave the Oriole a better overhauled the Vreda and rounded first. This order was maintain through the rest of the race, and when the gun fired the Vreda was more than five minutes astern of the leader. She won the race, however, easily on time allowance.

In the 46-foot class the entries were Yama White Wings, Verye (Hamilton), Condor, Aggie. The start was made at 10.15, the Aggie. The start was made at 10.10.

Edgar O, Silver, Boston, Mass., read a paper on "The Growth of Music Among the People." Mr. A. T. Cringan of Toronto then read his paper on "Methods in Teaching Music." Mr. Cringan is a strong advocate of the tonic sol-fa system. Pupils from the junior third class, Wellesley and Victoria schools, the second book class, from the Girls' Home and the fourth book class from the Borden-street school, about 40 in all, were present, and sang several original exercises, some of them being given by the president. The pupils showed stellity in reading them.

Illustrious Educators The evening session was very largely at-tended to hear one illustrious American and tended to hear one illustrious American and two illustrious Canadians. Those that came with a desire to be instructed and entertained went away satisfied. President Merrill E. Gates, LL.D., Amherst College, Amherst, Mass, has a refined appearance and is a re-fined speaker. He spoke of the profession of teaching with enthusiasm and feeling, and flavored his very excellent address with wit humor and oathos.

mit humor and pathos.

Professor Clark of Trinity University was the next speaker and told in a clear way the system of education in England. He evoked a laugh when he stated that John Bull never boasted [this occasioned, cries of 'Oh, Oh], but was changed into a decidedly credible smile when he added that 'John Bull never boasted because he is thoroughly satisfied with himself."

STOCK BROKERS

Drummond & Brown received the following to-day over their private wire from Baldwin & Farnum of Chicago: Wheat opened weak and looked as though we would get a sharp break. News from winter wheat confirmed all reports of quality and quantity. Spring could not be finer. Reports from foreign crops by cable and letter to-day were very much improved and in some places where they were going to raise half a crop 60 days ago reports come of a fair average crop. While our receipts keep up and speculation is dull we would not be surprised to see a great many weak spots, but we see nothing as yet to change our opinion. Buy wheat for December option on every weak spot, for nothing more than a scalb. We believe it is the safest side to trade on now. Provisions strong all day. Quite a lib; ard, 10c to 10½c a lb for Canadian tubs and pails; compound, 8½c to 8½c per lb.

stock market is there anything doing. Stocks go off just of their own dead weight more readily than if they were raided. There is absolutely nothing that might tempt anyone to bull enthusiasm. The Stock Exchange district is disgusted. Stocks of every description seem to be waterlogged and there is seemingly an utter absence of attempts on the part of the friends of any one corporation to give their favorties a little life. A prominent Nassau-street house is confidently predicting a whooping bull movement inside of 30 days. According to present indications 30 years would come nearer the mark. SMITH & PRIESTMAN

Fluctuations in the Chicago grain and produce markets, as recsived by John J. Dixon & Co., are bring the following data and sold for cash or market. CHARLES PRIESTMAN.

R. Cchara received the following to day from Kennett, Hopkins & Co. of New York: The stock market remains in the same featureless condition which has been characteristic of it many days. Prices responded at the opening very freely to the stronger tone of the London to buy. The street has it, however, that there is a small pool formed amongst traders to advance the price of this stock, but the dealings in the dort indicate such a movement. Western stocks are all strong excepting Union Pacific, which was depressed by the May statement of earnings, which show a decrease of gross of $78,000, and in net of $300,700. The action of the D., L. & W. Company in offering to sell coal to its customers at May prices, notwithstanding circular rates since that time have been advanced 15c to 30c a ton, is causing great deal of comment.
