At the County Council last week the bylaw granting an additional $25,000 for county roads was passed by a good majority after some op-position. This money will be dis-bursed under the Highways Improvement Act, and brings the appropri-ation for this year up to $125,000. The additional $25,000 is required for the construction of three bridges and it is expected that this year's program will clean up the original $100,000 appropriation.

The members of the Lambton County Council have been invited by the Road Commissioners of St. Clair county, in the state of Michigan, to take a tour through the county and inspect the roads and bridges therein and to discuss the matter of construction and upkeep. By this means much useful information is expected to be gained by both parties on this all-absorbing topic of permanent road making. The St. Clair gentlemen will pay all expenses and the Lambton councillors have accepted the invitation and will make the visit in the near future.

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD HAVE AN INTEREST IN THE TOWN AS A WHOLE

In our towns and cities one cannot go far without observing conditions of neglect and carelessness due entirely to the lack of interest of the people themselves. This is noticeable in every town. Walking down any street you pass two or three attractive homes with neatly mown lawns and well kept grounds and then the whole effect is destroyed by an unkempt lot or a house surrounoded by weeds and grass and bearing the appearance of an outbuilding rather than a home, and again there are many people who look after the grounds inside the street line but whose selfish interests prevent them In our towns and cities one cannot whose selfish interests prevent them from doing anything beyond the street line that would be for the genstreet line that would be for the general weal of the community. Unfortunately, the average citizen feels that once he has paid his taxes he has fuffilled his duty, and the town can do the rest. He overlooks the fact that the town is but an aggregation of which he is one. tion of units, of which he is one that any improvements or mainten-ance charges must be paid for by these units, and he must bear share.

It is a well-known axiom that careless employer is reflected in a careless employee, which largely ac-counts for the fact that in altogether too many cases the cost of municipal public works is largely in excess of of the cost of such works when privately carried out. Many instances might be cited of losses due to either wilful damage or carelessness by the people the medical contents. people themselves. In an eastern city during the past month a sewer be-came blocked by the depositing of material which could not be carried away. Many cellars were flooded and a cost of $30,000 entailed. These losses are reflected in the tax rate, and just so long as so much of the public revenue must be utilized to replace or repair the effects of neglect or disregard of public property, just so long will the tax rate continue to the second tinue to increase.

Brantford Asphalt Slates

A basis for analysis is given below:

1-INITIAL COSTS OF MATERIALS—Brantford Asphalt Slates are sometimes higher in initial cost for the material.

2—NAILS REQUIRED—Brantford Asphalt Slates require ONLY 684 nails to lay a square. Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates require ONLY 450 nails. 3-COST OF LAYING-Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates are four on one strip—require only one operation in handling, one operation in spacing—Individual slates are 8 x 1234 inches—Cut easily, fit on angles and bend over round surfaces. You save 30 to 50 per cent, in laying.

4—NO PAINT OR STAIN REQUIRED—The surface of Brant-ford Asphalt Siates is in nature's permanent colors, green and red, unfadeable, always attractive—requiring no stain to pro-duce artistic effects, no liquid coats to make them fire-resistant.

5—SAVING OF INSURANCE—Brantford Asphalt States are classed as non-combustible by fire insurance companies—a direct saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. on premiums is effected. In certain localities fire regulations demand asbestos paper under some roof materials, but Brantford Asphalt States are fire-resistant and are immune from special regulations.

COST OF REPAIRS—From the day they are laid Brantford Asphalt Slate roots show almost 100 per cent of the original roof untouched. Brantford Asphalt Slates do not curl, split, crack or rot. Complete protection and permanent protection are built into Brantford Asphalt Slate Roofs.

There are Brantford Roofs in your neighborhood. Look one up. You will be convinced that our roofs embody all the good features of other roofing without any weaknesses.

/ DEFECTS IN DAIRY BUTTER.

Bad Flavor, Staleness, Uneven Color, and Poor Packing.

buttermaking, or the making of butter on the farm is practiced less and less year by year as the manufatcure of "creamery" butter becomes more general in all dairy sections of Canada. Not more than four years ago the total amount of dairy butter manufactured in this country was estimated to be more than the total amount of creamery butter, and the total value of the former was also the greater. Now, however, regardless of what figures may show, dairy butter is so much a thing of the past so far as butter supplies on the city markets are concerned, that when dairy butter as onnesed the greater what the results of the creater when the concerned that when dairy butter as onnesed the greater what the creater was not considered. ter as opposed to creamery butter is brought to the attention of the average consumer, the question "What is dairy butter?" is frequent-what is dairy butter?" is frequently asked.

"Dairy" butter, as defined by "The Dairy Industries Act, 1914," is butter made from the milk of less than 50 cows. This requirement under 50 cows. This requirement under the act provides very little light for the inquirer who would like to know the difference between dairy butter and creamery butter, yet, compliance with this requirement is the one thing necessary to justify the maker legally in branding his output "dairy butter." So far as actual quality of the product is concerned, there is the possibility that dairy butter may be as good as or better than the best creamery but-ter, but such is not often the fact, or at any rate, the dairy butter generally offered on the market does not equal average creamery butter in quality. This is because the maority of dairy buttermakers do not follow the same exact practice in manufacture that is employed in the creamery to maintain quality at a high level.

So far as opportunity for con-trolling the quality of the raw ma-terial is concerned, the maker of dairy butter is better situated than is the creamery man, but on the average the creamery buttermaker has had experience and training and brings more or less skill and accurate knowledge to bear on his work, while a great many of our dairy buttermakers are lacking in accurate knowledge of buttermaking and also at a disadvantage as regards equipment for putting such knowledge as they have to best use.

The main defects in dairy butter as compared with creamery butter, according to George H. Barr, of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Ottawa, are bad flavor, staleness, or rancidity, too many shades of color, and unsuitable packages. The firm and unsuitable packages. The flat is of highest importance, and no matter-how good the butter may be in other respects, if the flavor is wrong, it is bound to be classed as an inferior article. To avoid the occurrence of these defects in his product, the creamery buttermaker gives attention to the careful ripening of the cream, so as to develop desirable flavors. He pays careful attention to the matter of temperature in the cream during the ripening process, and finally, when the butter is made he puts it in a neat, well finished package and makes it as attractive looking as possible be-fore sending it to market.

High Cost of Poultry Feed.

The high price of poultry feed is causing much worry to the commercial poultryman, and possibly to the fancier as well. Yet the man who sells only eggs and birds for breeding and showing purposes can afford to pay the high prices for grain much better than the one who sells to me. better than the one who sells to mar-kets only. Although eggs and poultry meat are bringing high prices, the price of feed advances; there-fore, it is necessary for one to buy feeds in as large lots as possible, thereby getting better prices. More-over, the marketing end of the busi-ness must be studied from every angle now. Take a day or two off and go to your nearest city. Take a sample of your product along. Talk the markets over with the best grocers in the city. Go to the best hotels and make a contract with the man who will offer you the best man who will offer you the best prices, everything considered. With feeds selling at prices as they are to-day, the poultry and egg producer must look well into his marketing in order to make ends meet.

TURKEYS AS SIDE LINE.

Free Range Essential to Success With These Birds.

When the festive season of the coming winter arrives, and the price of turkeys is almost beyond the purse of the average individual, one cannot help thinking that more of this type of fowl ought to be produced. The turkey flocks of Canada are not being made to keep pace are not being made to keep pace with the increase of population. This is no doubt due to a great extent to the difficulties encountered in the raising of young turkeys by those to whom this phase of the poultry business is a novelty.

To many people, turkeys have been a great disappointment. Many have failed because they have tried to raise turkeys in yards like those provided for other fowl. Others have killed their birds by overfeeding, and allowing them to become infested with vermin, owing to dirty quared with vermin, owing to dirty quarters, or lack of examination and proper care. The mature birds are very hardy, and stand improper condi-tions very well, but the youngel poults are very tender and must be treated right, if success is wished

It is absolutely necessary to give the poults free range, to feed them well without overdoing it, and to keep them free from vermin. It has been found by experience that to be successful year after year, and to annually enlarge the flock, it is necessary to have almost unlimited range, for in time land that has been used as a range, becomes "turkey range, for in time land that has been used as a range, becomes "turkey sick," and a range of new ground must be provided.

Where turkeys are hatched in the natural way, the usual thing is to keep the hen cooped for four or five weeks. A slatted front coop should be provided, giving the young turkeys a chance to run out, and they will cover a sufficiently wide range will cover a sufficiently wide range for a few weeks. Care must be taken to move the coop to a fresh stand each morning, or dead tur-keys will cause disappointment. Nothing is mere fatal to young turkeys than roosting over night in befouled places.

The cooping system avoids mortality from dampness, because the young birds will run home to the mother when it begins to rain. The poults will cover a wider range each day, and gradually become accutomed to moving over a larger are which is in the best interests of the flock. If the weather is pleasant at the end of five weeks, then hen may be let out with them, in which case the birds may be allowed absolute freedom. Do not shut the turkeys in close, ill ventilated pens at night, as this is certain to prove injurious, and will cause great mortality in the

There is a wide range to choose There is a wide range to choose from in selecting feed. Curds, oatmeal, cornmeal, and cracked wheat are all good. Shorts mixed with warm skim milk has been fed successfully for the first five weeks. Stale bread soaked in warm sweet milk should be fed the first few days, cradually changing to milk soaked gradually changing to milk soaked shorts until that forms the whole ra-tion. Mix the shorts moist and crumbly, and do not allow any sour feed to lie around. Keep the feed-ing troughs clean, and give skimmed milk and buttermilk as well as pure water to drink. About one-sixth part of the daily ration should be green food, such as onion tops or dandelion leaves cut up fine and mixed with the shorts.

Cleanliness and care not to over-feed are the main points in feeding.

Many young turkeys die as a result of feed being left in their troughs to sour, when they keep peeking at it, causing fatal bowel trouble.

Be very careful in changing feed, and in making any other changes and in making any other changes with the birds. Guarding against lice may be accomplished by giving the old hen a thorough dusting with the old lief a thorough this ling with insect powder a day or two before the eggs are hatched, and by dusting the little turkeys from time to time. In dry weather, if dusting places are provided the poults will dust themselves free of vermin. They must however he kent free of these must, however, be kept free of these pests because the parasites drink the blood of the little turkeys and enfeeble them so that death soon

Turkeys are very profitable if Turkeys are very prontable if taken care of properly, but slip-shod methods undoubtedly will result in failure. There is a good market for good birds in the autumn and winter, and a very large industry might be the result, our Canadian farmers would take if our Canadian farmers would take up the raising of turkeys, if only as a side line. Then, too, if there were more birds raised the prices might Fertility In Dead Leaves.

Because leaves contain relatively large amounts of potash, chemists at the Ohio Experiment Station point out the economy of using leaves as a mulch or fertilizer for the garden, rather than burning them in the streets of gutters. They show that 100 pounds of leaves are worth about 100 pounds of leaves are worth about 56 cents for their fertilizing value.

When leaves are burnt the ash still contains a considerable amount of fertilizing materials; but as the ashes are generally swept away by the wind or washed away by the water, their value is lost. To secure the best results from leaves as fer-tilizer, it is best to pile them in the garden and let them furnish a mulch for the ground during the winter; then they may be spaded in the spring and incorporated with the

"The farmer has always resented a fixed price because he considers that his wheat may be worth more than that at any time when he wants the full value for his presents has the full value for his property, but really the fixed price has very little to do with the selling price because at no time during the war period did wheat sell below the guarantee. The Case of Alexander Potts

By ELIZABETH Y. MILLER

The little Englishman, riding down town on a cross-seat of a crowded subway express, forgot where he was, and proceeded to pound his knee with a fist expressive of rapture.

"Like a glove!" he exclaimed for the benefit of all who chose to heed. "Like a bloomin' nice glove, too. Who'd 'a' thort it! Whold 'a' thort it were possible! Not me, not me!"

He paused and gazed reminiscently up at the lurid advertisements which formed a highly interesting and decorative frieze on both sides of the car; then he nodded his head and went on, in a somewhat more subdued tone

"Ol' man Potts, eh? An' me workin like hell for 'im, 'erdin' sheep on the Princess Beatrice ranch and countin them dear ol' Australia days jolly well wasted. . . . H'm! Well, you never can tell wot'll stand you in stead and wot won't.

The excited and pleased young man plunged anew into the newspaper which was the source of his unusual inspiration and read all over again the "Personal" which had claimed his attention and had been the cause of his jubilation.

There was nothing about it to provoke violent emotion in the ordinary citizen. It was dignified simplicity itself:

Information Wanted-Of Alexander Potts, namesake and heir of the late Alexander Petts of Warwick, Australia. Heir is the offspring of Alexander Potts's brother, James Potts, and is believed on good authority to be in the United States, Description-Blond, five feet, five inches tall, erect carriage, faint scar over left eyebrow, and slight east in the right eye. Party answer ng in: description and presenting satisfactory proofs of identification will please apply at the office of Fenwick Brown, attorney at law, 111/2

After rereading this item the young man fell into a brown study which completely held him until City Hali station was called, when he rose and stumbled out of the car in the wake of the crowd, still thinking deeply.

It was almost too simple to trace the vorkings of his ingenious mind, for he double of Alexander Potts, folded his newspaper carefully, after, once more noting the address of Fenwick Brown, attorney at law, and tucked it into his coat-pocket.

Drifting with the crowd, he came to one of the chocolate penny-in-the-slot machines; topped by its alluring bit of glass, and here he stopped and, un-annoyed by the facetious remarks of passers-by, proceeded to give his face lengthy and critical examination.

He counted his assets proudly, one by one-the sleek, neatly parted blond hair, coupled with one wavering and one steady pale-blue eye, the cast in the right eye-ah, it was the right eye!-his proudly thrown-out chestall were as the advertisement said.

As for the rest of it, our young gen tleman (whose real name is wholly im material) thought he could satisfy Mr Fenwick Brown He hadn't herd ed sheep under old Alexander Potts for nothing. Wholly satisfied with his inspection, he strode out proudly, albeit with a beating heart, through the city hall entrance, across the park oward Broadway. There was a beatific smile on his face, and his slant eye glistened with a fearful joy as he marched briskly along. "I must get it straight, now," he was saying to himself. "It's all of fifteen years since I was workin' on the Princess Beatrice. I never 'eard of no missin' heir in them days. I that the old man 'adn't nobody to leave 'is "He never did settle with me for this." He passed his hand over the scar on his forehead. "I got it the day we 'unted the cattle thieves for 'im. 'E was a stingy old cuss, all right! An' I'm poor, so forgive me; it ain't my fault if I looks like 'is missin' rela-tion. It's the doin's of Fyte, that's what it is. So 'elp me, I'm poor; w'y shouldn't I make a grab for 's pile? 'E'll never need it w'ere 'e's goin'."

In the matter of a few moments the missing heir to the Potts estate stood in the outer office of Fenwick Brown, attorney at law, parleying with an obtuse clerk, who was endeavoring testily to discover his business.

"Yur name, sir?" said the clerk. "It's really impossible for you to see Mr. Brown unless you give your name some hint of your business.

"I'll 'ave you tyke a look at me," he said, smiling. "Tyke a look and think it over. Wot d'ye guess, eh?"

But the clerk guessed nothing. He was beginning to believe that he had a lunatic to deal with, and was w ing if he could do it alone

"Oh, I'm not crazy," said the little blond man, commencing to lose some of his good humor. "But it's a poor detective you'd make, sonny. I suppose if John Rockyfeller 'imself walked in 'ere you wouldn't know 'm unless he took off 'is wig and signed a check-

"Your business?" said the clerk "My business, young feller, is with

Mr. Brown." "Mr. Brown is busy, and we don't take criminal cases." "Well, tyke a look at that—for your impudence!" He thrust his paper under the clerks' nose. "Did you or did you not print it? Is it or is it not bonny fidy? Am I or am I not-" "Merciful Heavens, you are!" exclaimed the lawyer's clerk, turning almost pale with excitement. "You are!

What a fool, wait, now, let me see."

The "heir's" good humor was restored in an instant; he stood up, a trifle more erect than usua!, while his personal charms were being docketed by the excited young clerk.

"Blond'-yes; 'five feet five inches' -well, I should say yes; 'scar over left eyebrow'-it's there, all right; 'cast in right eye'-perfect! Absolutely perfect in every particular!

"The old man will be crazy, He's had that estate on his hands for the past ten years. Why, that advertisement has appeared in the papers everyday for the past ten years. Do you wonder I didn't realize what you

"Oh, it's all right," said the "heir," grandly, dismissing the clerk with a gracious wave of his hand as he seated himself on the edge of a chair to await the coming of Fenwick Brown. To himself he muttered bitterly: "Ten years! Gawd, I might 'a' 'ad it ten years ago! That'll teach me a lesson. 'Ereafter I reads me 'Personal' column religious."

In the meantime, a highly excited clerk had burst into the private office of Fenwick Brown, attorney at law, while that gentleman was deeply en-grossed in some intricate case. He looked up, slightly troubled at the in-usion, and whomy mystined at his ubordinate's unwonted agitation "What's the matter, Geary?"

aid. "What's wrong?" "You'd never guess," clerk, wildly anxious to spring his news. "You'd never guess in a million years, so I'm going to tell you." "Dear me, do, by all means," said. Mr. Brown, laying aside his glasses and the interruption. "Who do you suppose is outside?" "You said I'd never guess, so you'd aning back in his chair, resigned to better tell me. "Who've we been advertising forfor-ten years-eh?

"Great Scott-not-" "Yes, sirree, as sure as you live." 'Not Alexander Potts?"

"As sure as you live, Mr. Brown, that's who it is." "Are you sure. Geary, you've made no mistake? This is a serious matter, you know. Big estate. Does the de scription fit?" "Like a glove!" said the clerk solemnly, using unconsciously the "heir's" own words. Fenwick Brown rose ponderously from his chair and started for the "I must greet my client and congrate

He got no further, for as he pushed through the swinging door to meet the eir to the Potts estate he gave a startled exclamation that was almost gasp of dismay. "Why, why—" he said weakly. "I where— Is this Alexander Potts?" "It is," said the clerk solemnly. "I ee, Mr. Brown, the remarkable resemblance startles you, as it did me. It is emarkable, isn't it?"

"Under the circumstances, I should av it was," said Fenwick Brown when e had sufficiently recovered his breath o answer. "Well, sir, I suppose you re prepared to give us satisfactory evidence of your relationship to the old gentleman, eh?" sir, I think I can satisfy you orl right 'bout uncle," said the "heir" odestly. "Wot'll you be askin' me?"

"H'm!" said Fenwick Brown, frownng importantly. "As a matter of fact, we really know very little about the pon the description to identify the eir-which you must admit is almost ufficient in itself."

The "heir" nodded wisely. Mr. Brown said:

"You fit the description in the paper. s my clerk said, "like a glove ' I have ever in all my life seen anything more remarkable.

"And your name is?" said the lawver blandly.

"Wy, sir, the pyper! Surely you knows my nyme. It's the syme as his'n, Alexander Potts."

"Remarkable, remarkable! That I elieve, is the most remarkable part of it all. That your name should be the

The clerk was puzzled and coughed eprecatingly as he looked at his su-erior. The "heir" smiled on, not seeing the point, if any there was. "Yes," went on Mr. Brown, went on Mr. Brown, "the whole case is remarkable. You see we've been handling this estate for ten years, and nothing could give us more complete satisfaction than to find the missing heir. It's been the dream of my life to locate that party." "And now," said the clerk, "you've done it, Mr. Brown." "Yes, it would seem so," mused the "But there's one thing we awyer. overlooked. Geary. That advertisement we've been printing will have to "Revised? Why-why-" "It will have to be revised." continned Fenwick Brown stubbornly. "Hereafter, Geary, please see that it says, Alexander Potts is a lady; no gentlemen need apply."

The outer office-door slammed and the missing "heir" to the Potts estate was down all of three flights of stairs. No elevators for him. He needed the bracing tonic of the out of doors, and he needed it quick.

Might Mob Him.
"My landlord has voluntarily reduced my rent."

"There's a man for you!" "But he doesn't want his name known!

A FEW SAD WORDS

The saddest thing A pen can scratch:
"I've got a smoke,
But have no match."

The saddest words A wife can say "I need the mon, Hand o'er your pay."

The saddest words To "pa" of ten:
"Cheer up, old man, It's twins again."

The saddest blow To beaux, by far: "I want a guy Who has a car."

The saddest words That women know "Good gracious, dear! Your wrinkles show."

These sad words oft Cause one to grin: "Please, have you got A safety pin?"

The saddest thing A man can say:
"They nipped me on The O. T. A."

The saddest words To speeding "jays":
"Ten dollars down Or thirty days"

The saddest words To those who know: Hand o'er your dough.'

The saddest tale Ever was told: "I have to own I'm getting old."

The saddest touch For some to get: "How's chances for A cigarette ?

The saddest jolt
To married men:
"The baby needs New shoes again"

The saddest words, That seem to scald:
"Too bad, old man, You're getting bald."

AFriend of the Family

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce, who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and which he called "Golden Medical Discovery," in the drug stores in the United States and Canada, so that the public could easily obtain this remarkable tonic, corrective, and blood-maker. Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks without alcohol-a corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Introduce pure red blood into the system, and health is assured. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the energizing influence of this reliable tonic. You can obtain Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for a trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.

BREEDING IMPROVES BEES.

Successful Experiments at Duck

Island, Lake Ontario. Nearly every domesticated animal and cultivated plant has been im-proved by selective breeding. With bees, however, not much progress has yet been made because of the great difficulty in isolating them. They mate in the air at some dis-tance from the hive and it is known that the drone bee will fly for miles in search of the queen bee. It might be thought that the busy bee could hardly be improved, but Canada contains varieties of solitary bees whose tireless industry make the honey bee appear dilatory in comparison. Besides, we know that great improvements await the bee breeder because some colonies store much more honey and are less in-clined to swarm than others. Any bee-keeper would give much to have his apiary composed of such superior

The Experimental Farms Branch of the Dominion Government has for some time been conducting experiments to overcome the difficulty of the isolated mating of bees. The first attempt was made on a large sandy plain near Kazubazua about forty miles north of Ottawa at a spot where no colonies of bees could be fewer within the country of the same could be fewer within the country of the same country of be found within three miles: but the young bees produced were dark col-ored, showing that the queens had been mated by the local black drones. Attempts were then made to mate the queens late in the day when the undesirable drones had ceased flying and also late in the season when these drones had died. The results gave valuable information but they did not solve the problem.

Next, a part of the north country that bees have not yet reached was tried, the Experimental Farm at Kapuskasing in Northern Ontario being selected, but here the little colonies were made restless by the great and sudden changes in temperature, and swarmed out when the queens flew.

In 1919, experiments were started on Duck Island which is situated near the eastern end of Lake On-tario, and is eight miles from the nearest island and over eleven miles from the main land. Duck Island covers only about two square miles and no bees exist upon it. The Duck

Island experiments were continued in 1920 and have proven successful, twenty-seven Italian queens of se lected parentage having been mated by the drones that were brought with them. By continuing the work it is hoped to develop a strain of Italian bees that will be heavy honey producers and disinclined to swarm. Meanwhile, plans are advanced to distri-bute to Canadian bee-keepers a limited number of daughters of the best of the queens mated on Duck Island, and a system has been worked out by which a bee-keeper will be able to mate a proportion of the same strain.—F. W. L. Sladen, Dominion Apiarist. Alsike and Sweet Clovers

There are many farms on which it is not practicable to haul lime. In such cases alsike may be used, alone if the land is low and poorly drained, or mixed with red clover on the average worn farm on which red clover often fails. Alsike will not yield as well as red clover

Alfalfa is the King of Forage Crops. will under favorable conditions but many soils on which red clover would fail. It will stand a "sour" soil better than red clover will. Sweet clover will not thrive without lime. There is no use trying it. But given lime it will grow on poor-er land than any other crop to improve such land. Sweet clover can be handled in a rotation the same as red, the seed is cheaper and in many places it may well take the place of red clover while the latter seed is so Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to be relieved except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy, which has given relief to a generation of asthmatic victims of this scourge of the bronchial tubes. (National Crop Improve "The demand for gasoline is growing day by day and economists are always prophesying that the world's supply will soon become inadequate," says Mr. C. H. Chilton, editor of the County Agent and Farm Bureau. "Science has already taught us, however, that almost every growing plant contains alcohol which can be distilled at a very low price per gallon, and which in many respects is superior in power to gasoline.

"There is enough waste on every farm to furnish its heat, light and power. The machinery is all availpower. The machinery is all available, and it is time that we should give this matter the most careful consideration. The principal difficulty of this plan will be to accumulate enough farm refuse to make the project profitable. Therefore it would be wise to have the outfit owned by some farmers' organization which will first encourage all farmers to supply a proportionate share in order that there may be sufficient material to make the plan successful." Cow Consumes Buiky Freeas.

When it comes to marketing grain. hay, silage, green crops, etc., the dairy cow is almost indispensable for economy. She consumes these bulky feeds, converts them into finished products easily and economically marketed and at the same time saves much of the fertility in the manure. Where hay, corn, fodder, etc., must be hauled to market there is considerable expense. If most of this expense can be saved there is a wider margin for profit on the farm.

Dairy Notes.

Milk cans should be washed as oon as emptied.

Thoroughly clean all utensils which come in contact with milk. Calves ought to get acquainted with the feel of the comb and brush very early.

that causes the same number of deaths in dairy cattle as tuberculosis. Wedding Announcements and Invitations of the finest quality at The Guide-Advocate.
