The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▽ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▽ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

HENRY HARRISSE

HENRY HARRISSE'S name is connected with one of the most erudite bibliographies ever published; indeed, according to Nicolas Trübner, Harrisse's "Bibliotheca Americana Vetusissima" is a "work unrivalled in its extent, accuracy, and comprehensiveness." This is the more remarkable because Harrisse had no bibliographic training, and because the work in question was his first attempt in this field. Before undertaking the work on the "Bibliotheca Americana," he had devoted himself exclusively to art, criticism, and the history of philosophy, translating into English and annotating all the metaphysical works of Descartes. Being unable to find a publisher in America for that class of books, he turned his attention to other subjects. At this time—about 1864–65—he made the acquaintance of Samuel Latham Mitchill Barlow, the generous collector to whose munificence bibliographical science is indebted for this splendid publication. Mr. Barlow shortly before had bought the library of Colonel Aspinwall that was destroyed in the fire which consumed the premises of Bangs, Merwin & Co., 696 Broadway, where the books were temporarily stored. Fortunately, Mr. Barlow, a few days before this disaster, had removed to his house a number of the rarest treasures in the collection. Harrisse was tempted, by the aid of Mr. Barlow's rich mine of invaluable works, to write a history of the beginnings, the decline, and the fall of the Spanish Empire in the New World. In making his selections

"Bibliotheca Americana Vetustissima A Description of Works relating to America Published Between the Years 1492 and 1551. . . . New York: George P. Philes, Publisher, MDCCCLXVI." (8+liv. +519 p. 400 copies in roy. 8°; 99 copies in 4°; and 10 copies in 4° on Holland paper, for private distribution.) In this work Harrisse describes and gives the collations, mostly from personal observation, of no less than 304 important and rare books relating to America, published in various languages between 1492 and 1551, commencing with the "Epistola Christofori Colom," first published in 1493, and ending with the first edition of Ramusio's collection of voyages published anonymously in 1550. As a specimen of American typography this bibliography has never been surpassed. The titles are printed in facsimile letters, and where woodcuts appear on the title-page they are also given in facsimile. Each book is described at length, and some account is also given of the author and his labors, the various editions of his works and their differences; and as all the books described are of excessive rarity, Harrisse gives the names of the American libraries in which they were to be found on the 4th of May, 1866, the period when he completed his labors. "Had Mr. Harrisse done no more than here stated he would have more than fulfilled all the duties of the bibliographer; but he has gone further, and has added to each description a list of the books in which information may be found regarding the works thus listed. Further, knowing how important it often is to the historian and to others to consult the original works on which opinions and statements are based, he carefully gives references, chapter and verse, for every fact he states—thus in his first description of the letter of Columbus, he gives no less than ninety-one notes, chiefly references to works consulted. Bibliographies are too often mere dry catalogues—transcripts of title-pages and nothing more. This volume is not to be classed with such publications. It is in fact a history, without which no future American historian can efficiently perform his task. Nay, it is a cyclopædia of facts relating to the early history of America, without which no large library can be considered complete. In his introduction, which, by the way, contains an admirable defence of Bibliography as a science, the author enumerates the labors of his predecessors in the same field, describing their works and giving brief account of their history."* In view of all this, it is noteworthy that, after thirty-two years, the small edition of 450 copies that was offered to the public at cost price is yet exhausted.

Harrisse in 1872 published a supplementary volume entitled "Bibliotheca Americana Vetustissima A Description of Works relating to America, Published between the Years 1492 and 1551: Additions" Paris: Librairie Tross." (4 vols. 199 p. 200 copies in 8°, 50 copies in 4°.) This volume is properly speaking, a continuation of its predecessor, a series of notes and additions "intended to aid towards forming a complete list of works relating to the discovery, history and geography of America, printed previous to the year 1551. It contains bibliographical notes gathered in the leading libraries of Europe, and 186 articles, two-thirds of which are new. The other third is composed chiefly of descriptions visu of extremely rare editions, which Harrisse had succeeded in finding on the authority of other bibliographers, or published only in the appendix to the "Bibliotheca Americana Veterustissima."

Harrisse was born in Paris in 1830. When quite young he came to the United States to join his family, and settled in the South, where he taught modern languages to support himself while he was studying law. He received the degree of LL.D. from the South Carolina College, read Blackstone with Hon. W. W. Boyce, and prepared himself for the bar in the Law Department of the North Carolina University. Hon. Stephen A. Douglas induced him to settle in Chicago, but after a few years of unrequited efforts as a lawyer, he moved to New York and entered the office of the late N. D. Ellingwood (at 59 Exchange Place,) at that time one of the most venerable and learned members of the legal profession. Harrisse is still entitled to plead in our courts. Thirty years ago he made Paris his home. Being discouraged by the treatment which his works, all written solely to promote a documentary and initial knowledge of the history of the country, received at the hands of the American public, he

Harris gave up Americana. During two years he studied Egyptology at the Louvre, under his friend Professor Maspero, translated several papyri from the Hieratic, and commenced a commentary on the Heretical Kings of the xviiith dynasty. At Mr. Barlow's urgent request he relinquished these studies and returned to American subjects, toiling henceforth and unremittingly and gratuitously, as usual, at the task of clearing up obscurities that rest upon the period of American discovery, which includes the voyages of Columbus, Vespucci, the Cabots, and Cortereal. Notwithstanding his sojourn in France, he retains his American citizenship. On the occasion of the Columbus quarter-centenary, Harris was made a Knight of the Legion of Honor by the French Government. Since 1854 he has published sixty-nine volumes and pamphlets in English, French, Spanish, and several other languages.

The following is a short title list of his bibliographical writings:

It may be interesting to add that all these works, besides several others, representing forty-four years of close study and hard labor, have yielded to Mr. Harrisse less than three hundred dollars all told. Further, he never was fortunate enough to find a publisher in America willing to undertake the publication of a single book written by him, although offered in every instance as a gift.
