Well it ain't like me to play sneak on partners, but you see Bill is a terror. You had to be put away according to his notion, and that lame devil, Crutchy, is worse than him. It was decided to bring you as far as the hellow, tree and then crack and the lake before morning."

I am here on business and am going through with it. If I killed you it wouldn't be murder. Bill and Andy were going to do you four years ago, and so if I put a hole through you now it would be their bullet which I have considerately held back all this time. But you have no gratitude. If you have neither gratitude nor sense enough to go to bed I'll finish you and feel no deeper personal concern than if I only met a funeral on the street. I have a right to kill you if I want to, and I'll get away too, for my partners are down at the wharf with a boat and we will be across the lake before morning."

WILL CURE YOU was decided to bring you as far as wharf with a boat and we wil that hollow tree and then crack you and stuff you down the hole or else shoot you and leave your gun as though it was an accident: We like the state before morning."

His reasoning was forcible but not convincing. The man meant it, I could see, strange as it was.

while he was talking we had started off running, but by degrees fell into a walk as distance grew between us and the spot where the men lay. Mark left me when a mile from my hotel. I offered him money which he refused; I told him I was a wealthy man and would give him $500 and set him up in some small business if he would be honest. He refused, but as he turned away he laughingly said: "Never mind that money now but remember you owe it to me and see that you pay it when I ask you for it."

There was a report, a pain in my left leg, and as I dropped to one knee he pocketed his smcking pistol and started to gather up the booty. I hobbled to the table and started to smash at him with my stick, and just then a terrific noise, of screams and falling furniture came to us down the stairs, My housekeeper was aroused. Between this and my attack Mark became alarmed, dropped the silverware and profiled for the open window of the adjoining room. As he vanishing his parting exclamation reached me and it was: "Curse you for a thankless brute!"

CHAPTER 11. Fortune has always favored me. Inheriting considerable means I have added steadily to the store and was reported rich before long I felt entitled to be so considered. Friends often warned the accordance of the hollow spinal column and yawning ribs might at the moment have been hidden but for Mark, and so concluded to let him entitled to be so considered. But I never laid anyone out yet and took a notion to you and made up my mind that between us we could handle them. I'll get away from here; anyhow, its getting too hot for us to make much of a haul any more."

I made a motion for my stick and was clinched again, he soon proving too many for me. Before, he had been mild, thinking it was "all right seeing it was me." Now he fought to win. He banged and pounded me and I was growing faint when by a quick wrestler's trick I escaped him and got my club, and rushed at him again.

"Curse you for a thankless brute!" Away he went. When along His ridiculous idea of the nature Away he went. When along with a well-armed hunting party of six, I revisited the locality the next year, we after some search found the log shanty. It was empty. By certain signs I concluded it had been vacated the day of my last visit. No doubt the inmates, after Mark's treachery, feared he would lead the authorities upon them and so they vanished. Thus individually did I accomplish for the Government what a large staff had sought in vain to do.

His ridiculous idea of the nature of gratitude due him from me struck me then and I rather smiled, but that leg deserved attention. The housekeeper did her best, but she would not go outside for help, and as I could not walk, we contented ourselves with bandaging and bathing it until near morning, when the good woman with many a prayer for her safety brought a doctor. Before he arrived I had determined to give no description nor confess any knowledge of my nor confess any knowledge of my burglar. I thought of the hollow for two reasons.

The first is because many patrons who have been given credit, have abused the privilege to such an extent as to make the business of publishing the paper a non-paying one, and it is necessary, in my own interest and that of those who do pay, that I should no longer continue to furnish the AD/ANCE to those non-paying subscribers.

The second reason is, that I wish to meet the competition of the city weeklies, which are made up from the type of the dailies and, therefore, cost little for production in comparison with a local paper like the ADVANCE, the type of which must be set up especially for it.
